HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—I would like to make myself clear about this compulsory sale to the Marine and Fisheries Department. The people of Bay d'Espoir say that they don't want to sell for profit, but they want to be permitted to kill the beavers to get rid of the nuisance. I think the government should be allowed to say to those people that since this is a nuisance you may go and kill the beaver and send the furs to the Marine and Fisheries Department.

MR. MacDONNELL:—Mr. Chairman, I would like to know why a certain section of the people are so penalized. I want to say that the people whose interests I am here to look after are not of the same attitude as the people of Bay d'Espoir to whom the Hon. Minister of Justice refers.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—Mr. Chairman, I find that the hon. member for St. George's objects to this bill. Do you not think that the country has some right as well as the trappers? How soon will the price decline if agents are allowed to travel all over the country. If the furs are handled by the Marine and Fisheries Department the market will not be overstocked and a better price will be obtained. The people of Alberta have to pay a dollar license to kill beaver on their own farms, and under no circumstances will they allow a private individual to buy a beaver skin.

MR. MacDONNELL:—Mr. Chairman, while there may be certain individuals in this house who would be affected by what they do in Canada it does not affect me. If you want to copy from Canada why not protect the salmon supply? This whole thing is most unfair. Why not put a tax on seals? Why legislate against a few individuals for the whole country?

I believe some money can be made out of it if the prices be so fixed as the hon. member for St. John's West has suggested and the people given an opportunity to take advantage of it.

MR. SULLIVAN:—Mr. Speaker, I might say that I am in favor of this bill (Respecting the Preservation of Beavers). I think the time has come when something ought to be done to give the people of this country an opportunity to reap the benefits and capture some of the wealth that has been secreted in the heart of the country for the past twenty-seven years. I think it is 27 years ago since this matter was first started. During this time I have spent at least sixteen years in the interior of the country on survey and I found that the beaver houses were increasing rapidly near the mouths of the various rivers. As to the government fixing the price I do not see any great difficulty in so doing. I do not see why the Game Board could not fix the price. The government of the country and the people would benefit there as far as I can see.

Now, as to having an open season, I know that every trapper trapping for the last six years knows every beaver house in a radius of fifty miles. There ought to be very stringent rules as to the killing of beaver. They should be allowed to shoot them but should not be allowed to cut open the house. Any one who has seen these houses knows that there is an outlet under water and an outlet over water. Now when the beavers are in the house all they have to do is to stop an outlet and then chop open the house and take out the whole family. I have seen at Bay of Islands on a river there a dam four hundred feet long built by the beavers. And on this account a field nearby was completely flooded. And something must be done to prevent the beaver from destroying such a quantity of birch and aspin as they harm.

I have seen a tree twelve inches in diameter severed by the beaver. Now there is certain trouble brewing if some trappers are refused them. Now I think they all get licenses but make them pay for them. Charge them a license fee of say fifty dollars. With regard to the remarks of Mr. Jennings as to poaching going on I may say this has been open secret for a long time. I do not agree with what he says. I know that beaver skins have been shipped out of the country year after year. I suggest that a license fee be charged. I also make the suggestion that only certain parts of the country be opened up at a time. I would not like to see beaver areas everywhere. I think there ought to be some reserved areas so that the beavers will keep on increasing. There should be something like the deer reservation at Howley where the beaver will keep on increasing. I will have more to say on this matter when we go into committee on this bill. I support the bill because I think it is a step in the right direction. I agree with Mr. Scammell when he says that an old man who worked with me for four years told him that the beavers die out after ten years. Some disease get amongst them and they perish. So I think it is worth while that the people shall be allowed to capture the animals and allow them to be sold. It is to their interests that this be done.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—If a portion of my constituents knew that there was a discussion here on the beaver I did not take part in it they would be disappointed because there are several trappers in Baie de Espoir whom I met last fall while there canvassing who want to kill beaver. While Mr. Scammell and the honorable member for St. George's say that their districts contain the most beavers I think there are more beavers around Baie de Espoir than any other part of the country. They are becoming numerous and mischievous and I got a petition a short time ago signed by five hundred people asking that something be done to reduce their numbers. As far as the trappers of Baie de Espoir are concerned they want the beavers to be killed and I approached the government with the proposition that they should be allowed to kill beavers because they had become so numerous that they were a nuisance. If the government finds it right to allow them to kill the beavers and thereby extend to them the granting of their request I hope some steps will be taken to prevent their extermination. If it is found possible to deplete the beaver and thereby raise a fund to provide for state insurance while at the same time taking precaution to prevent their extermination I think it is a step in the right direction but I want to say that there will be a certain degree of beaver to be killed. I agree with Mr. Sullivan, the member for Placentia, which he suggests that the whole country should not be opened up at the same time. There is no doubt, I am firmly convinced, that Baie de Espoir will be benefitted greatly if the beaver is allowed to be marketed. But as soon as a man up there gets his license and I may say that many men there make a livelihood in trapping, I feel sure that every one of them will expect to get his and go and kill every beaver he can at Baie de Espoir. Yet I hope in those places where they will be allowed to be killed they will not be exterminated and that certain areas will be reserved so that we shall not lose the beaver altogether. I desire to say that so far as Baie de Espoir is concerned they desire that the beaver be killed. I do hope that when the Game Board is handling this question they will use their best endeavours to see that the beaver is not exterminated. With respect to the issuing of the licenses I may say that my constituents look upon the rights to trap as they look upon the right to live.

MR. MacDONNELL:—I hope that when the honorable member for Placentia, Mr. Sullivan, talked of the deer preserve at Howley he did not intend to also have a beaver preserve on the west coast. With this preserve one has to go five miles further beyond the track to shoot a deer than he would if there were no preserve at all. I may say that there are a tremendous lot of deer killed in this preserve for to feed the men of the A.N.D. Co. when the Minister of Justice claimed that certain sections should be preserved I hope my district shall not be inflicted with another one.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE:—Mr. Speaker, I would crave the indulgence of the house for a short time as I speak of a matter that is to me very important. I would like to ask the Hon. the Prime Minister if anything has yet been done to relieve the salt situation?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Messages have been received from the high commissioner in London, and also from Bowrings of Liverpool to the effect that a steamer has been procured to load salt for St. John's. A message has also been received to the effect that the Cadiz strike is still on.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE:—I have myself received word regarding the strike in Cadiz. I would like to ask the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries if he is aware or the government is aware that we are being charged $6.00 for salt per hogshead. I will tell the hon. minister now that I have been looking for 140 hogsheads. I couldn't get it at all in St. John's. They told me I could get it in Harbor Grace for $6.00. Are you going to regulate this thing or is it going on? Are you going to allow them to charge what they want to charge? Are you going to take any action or let it go. If you had any ability you would have done it long ago. Are you going to sit here indefinitely and do nothing? I told you about it ten days ago, and you did nothing until you were absolutely forced to.

There is another matter that I wish to speak of. Do you know how Newfoundland schooners are being treated in Sydney? Do you know that coal is now selling in the city at $20.80? Are you going to make any arrangement with the company? We have had vessels waiting in Sydney twenty-one days for coal. When are you going to do something?

I accept the apology of the Hon. Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, Mr. Chairman, for jumping into the debate and I make every allowance for him because I know that he hasn't the least idea of what he is talking about. He referred to the salt situation last year and the high prices that were charged for it. There was 120,000 hogsheads of salt in the city in the winter of 1918-1919 imported so that there would be no difficulty about this spring's supply and the government of which both Messrs. Halfyard and Coaker were members guaranteed importers of that salt that they would suffer no loss because of having to store it for the winter. I was accused of making money on salt at that time. It was said that I had ten thousand hogsheads of salt in my store but I knew nothing about it till I saw it in The Advocate. As a matter of fact I haven't imported a grain of salt these ten years, the only firms who import salt now being Messrs. Bowring Bros., Job Bros., Baine Johnston & Co. and Morey & Co. and these were give na guarantee at that time that if they imported the salt and stored it they would not lose on it. The hon. gentleman says that what I have said with regard to the seriousness of this situation is like an echo to him of what I said last year about the same time. It is no echo, it is fact. He also takes it as a joke, well all I can say to that is I wish it was a joke but unfortunately it is not. Now I haven't said that the government should do impossibilities, but I did say and I repeat that it should not have taken them ten days to get off a message and two days extra to send a second one in an effort to have something done. That is not the way we did things when the hon. gentlemen were in the government with me last year. We did not wait ten days nor one day when action was necessary and Mr. Halfyard himself often sat in my office while I wrote out messages that had to be sent. I did not question the ability of the gentlemen on the other side with this situation, because ability is not necessary to do the right thing in the case. What ability is needed to see these men who are now here on the matter of the Bell Island ore tax and make some arrangement where by our coal supply will be assured. I trust that the dark clouds to which the hon. minister referred will pass away but it is up to us to help them pass away, if he don't we must expect a rain storm. I am asking now that the Prime Minister and his executive do something to relieve the situation at Sydney with regard to our coal supply and I want the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to give his attention to the matter of six dollars a hogshead being charged for salt. If a legitimate profit can be obtained by selling it at $4.00 or even at $3.70 surely it is nothing short of outrageous that fishermen should be charged six dollars.

I am absolutely in sympathy with the government and especially with the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. The position is a serious one and an unfortunate one, and like my hon. friend Mr. Halfyard, it is getting on my nerves. There is one point, however, which the hon. minister has failed to explain. He might have sat on the executive council for seven or eight hours yet it took him ten days to get a cable off after I had drawn his attention to the seriousness of the situation. Now we will forget salt for a time and take the matter of coal. The hon. minister need not go down and sit on the executive for ten hours to find out what to do about this, he can do all that is necessary in half an hour, and I'll go with him and show hom what to do if he doesn't know himself. He has also brought in the question of exchange in Oporto. We all know what is responsible for the fall in prices which we are getting for our fish today. It may be true as the hon. minister says, that the price in Oporto has not declined but nevertheless we are getting only 52 shillings for our fish, and the best anyone can hope to realize now is six dollars a quintal and some will not even get that. I do not blame the Minister of Marine and Fisheries for this condition of the Portuguese market and I have never accused him of being in any way responsible for it, but I do say that if his regulations had not been enforced, while losses might have been sustained, it would not have amounted to the general calamity that we have to-day. In conclusion I would say that if he is doing his best to deal with the salt situation I am satisfied, but now let us get at the coal situation and set that fixed up while the time is opportune.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Chairman, the question of coal might be an important one, but the main question before the house is one of such grave importance as to call for the serious consideration of every hon. member who represents in this assembly a constituency that is made up almost wholly of fishermen, and we owe a deep debt of gratitude to the last speaker, Sir John Crosbie, for bringing this matter so forcibly to the notice of the government. If it is true that six dollars is being charged for salt, and there is no reason whatever to doubt it, the thing is outrageous and I appeal to every hon. member representing as I do, a fishing district, and to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries who I know has the interests of the great mass of our fishermen at heart, to probe this matter to the bottom and if it is found that such an exorbitant profit is being exacted from the fishermen, to do something at once to eliminate the gross injustice that is being done them. This is serious matter for the fishermen who already have to pay so dearly for the necessary supplies with which to carry on their avocation and while the things we cannot help must be endured, we should not let it be said that because of callous indifference to the welfare of the people, such a condition has been allowed to exist. Sir John Crosbie has placed this matter fairly before the government and I trust that at the close of this evening's sitting they will get busy and do something on behalf of the fishermen. If they cannot do what is necessary, I am prepared to act the local Jim Larkin and lead a body of fishermen to go down and break open the salt stores and hand the salt out to them. I sincerely hope that this serious state of affairs will not be permitted to continue further than we can possibly help.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—I just want to say a word, Mr. Speaker, while we are on this subject. I can assure the hon. member that all the matters of which he has spoken have been receiving the serious consideration of the government not for the past te ndays, but for the past twenty, the past forty. For many days before hon. member for Port de Grave referred to the salt situation in this effort to find a solution of the difficulty that confronted us. Not only for hours at a time were we considering a way out, but for days and every means at our command was used. Messages were sent out to the imperial government and in other quarters in an attempt to overcome the difficulty. The matter of salt supply for this year was left in the hands of the importers as it was last year and we on our part agreed to protect them against loss, consequently we saw no reason to anticipate the trouble which subsequently arose and created the situation that we are now up against. I remember arriving here on Monday evening and Mr. Job at once sent word to me that the importers were powerless to do anything in the way of securing the season's supply of salt and asked me to meet him and discuss the matter. The Prime Minister and myself met him at 9 o'clock the same night and went fully into question of what was best to be done and the messages that have already been tabled were sent the next morning. Thru the agency of the British shipping board we were able to charter four steamers to proceed to Cadiz but they were still lying there awaiting their cargoes when the strike broke out. Here we were faced with another obstacle which none of us could have foreseen but we did not stop there. We immediately communicated with the Secretary of State and also got in touch with the British Ambassador at Madrid and also the Consul at Cadiz and asked them if it could possibly be arranged to have these steamers loaded, no matter what the cost, and we would pay the bill. If this arrangement could have been made we could have got the salt but of course at a very high cost as our instructions were to pay the strikers whatever their demands were. However, it would have been better to pay any price for it than to be without it. In the same way, the coal situation has been receiving serious consideration for months past and is receiving serious consideration to-day; anything that is possible to do will be done by the government. I believe that Sir John Crosbie knows very well the terrible responsibilities that were thrown upon the shoulders of the government on taking office, greater responsibilities perhaps than any previous government in this country had to contend with. We found the railway in a shocking condition and needing attention at once if it was to be kept going any longer, there was the Bell Island ore tax to be adjusted, the coal situation demanding constant consideration, the serious situation with regard to exchange in the European markets which threatened considerable loss to shippers and now the difficulty of our salt supply. The matter of exchange has been responsible for no small share of the troubles we have been up against. The price of fish has not declined in Portugal as has been continually stated it is exactly the same now as it was in February but the constantly increasing value of Portubuese money is responsible for the low prices we are getting.

Sterling exchange has gone from one shilling one six pence to eleven pence which accounts for why we are realizing only 52 shillings for our fish altho the Portuguese people are paying just as much as they paid when we received 81 shillings. This problem of exchange has also been receiving the closest attention of the government and last night we met the managers of the four city banks to see if we could arrive at some conclusion as to what steps, if any, could be taken to deal with it. In no way have we neglected to do what seemed to us best under the circumstances and no effort has been spared by either myself or my colleagues in endeavoring to get out of the difficulties, many of which are the direct result of the neglect of our predecessors in office. However, if the hon. member for Port de Grave can show us some more effective way to deal with these questions it would be more to the point for him to make his suggestions than to keep on trying to make things look worse than they really are. In my opinion we ought to have the War Measures Act enacted for another year to meet such conditions as he has referred to. He states that six dollars a hogshead is being asked for salt but arrangements were made between the government and the importers on the same basis as last year and the latter cannot charge more than four dollars. If he will give me the facts of the case he has referred to, I will see that if anyone has been charged more than four dollars they will have the amount paid over and above that refunded them.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:— Mr. Speaker, in moving that the House adjourn until Monday next at three o'clock in the afternoon, I desire to call the attention of the house, but particularly of Sir John Crosbie to a grossly inaccurate report in The Evening Herald of certain references which were made regarding the salt situation on yesterday. Tt the top of the second editorial column of The Herald of today's date there is the following: "What was the nature of this message was not revealed, but it was stated by the speaker" (Sir John Crosbie) "that it was of such a character that in the interests of the courtesy so that he might have the terms made public." The house knows that Sir John Crosbie knows particularly, that that statement is absolutely incorrect. Sir John asked informally for certain information in connection with the salt situation. No notice of question was given; it was purely an informal request. In replying I gave him personally certain telegraph messages which had passed with the High Commissioner in England and Bowring Brothers at Liverpool, and as a matter of courtesy so that he might have the full information I handed him a copy of the despatch sent by His Excellency the Governor to the Secretary of State for the Colonies requesting certain action by the proper officials of the Imperial Government. Sir John Crosbie, who is well acquainted with the procedure in such matters knew that the message was handed him for his personal information and for the personal information of the members of the opposition and the message was shown by Sir John to Sir Michael Cashin, the leader of the opposition. Sir John knows from his considerable parliamentary experience that it is not the practice of this house that such communications should be tabled particularly not during the period of negotiations. What Sir John really said, as the house will remember, was that this document was of a confidential nature and that for the present at least it would not be made public. There was absolutely nothing in the message which could possibly justify any other observation from Sir John and no other observations were made. I am sure my honorable friend will agree with me that that is so. The statements which are made in The Herald are absolutely false and are an instance which the opposition press is attempting to take advantage of the personal courtesy which I extended to a member of the opposition. The opposition will understand the fact that if their press does not know how to appreciate a courtesy but would make such a contemptible use of it as is done by the opposition in their paper this afternoon, then courtesies cannot be extended.

In the fourth column of the same paper there is another reference: "The other was addressed to the Secretary of State for the Colonies the contents of which were too serious to reveal to the country at present." The message, as Sir John Crosbie and Sir Michael Cashin, the leader of the opposition, both know was an ordinary business message asking that attention be given by the Imperial authorities to certain matters in connection with the salt situation. There is absolutely nothing whatever in the message which could for one moment suggest such an observation as that made in this newspaper. These statements are made purely for party political purposes and the reason why Sir John Crosbie and other members of the opposition are not taken more seriously by this house and by the country in the criticisms which they offer in connection with public matters is because everyone realizes that their criticisms are not in the interests of the country, the salt condition and the fish trade, but that any criticisms that are offered are of a purely partisan character, and these editorial references are in themselves conclusive proof of the contemptible attempting to turn a practical business despatch asking the assistance of the Imperial authorities in connection with a serious salt situation affecting Newfoundland into political capital.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE:—What the Prime Minister says about the words that I used yesterday with respect to the despatch from the Governor to the Secretary of State is correct. There was nothing in that despatch which might not be published. When the Prime Minister handed me the despatch he called my attention to the fact that it was a confidential document and that it was for the information of the opposition and not for tabling in the ordinary course. I consequently did not read the message to the house but merely referred to the contents of the message and the date upon which it was sent. The salt situation is a serious one. My criticism was not that it was a message which ought not to have been sent, but that it ought to have been sent ten days before.

Mr. Fox gave notice of question.

It was moved and seconded that when the house rises it adjourn until Monday next at three of the clock in the afternoon.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

MONDAY, May 31st, 1920.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Speaker, at your request and on your behalf, I ask leave to present a petition from the electorate of Perry's Come in the District of Carbonear, asking that the government disallow any modification of the Prohibition Act.

MR. ABBOTT:—Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to present a petition from the people of Birchy Cove, Newman's, Lower and Upper Amherst Coves, in the District of Bonavista, asking that hte road from Bonavista to Upper Amherst Cove be put in good condition and that a motor truck be placed on the route between these places. The request of the petitioners is a reasonable one as their requirements in this respect are necessary for the conveyance of reight and passengers. The places named in the petition have a total population of over a thousand people and in spite of their fishing and business activities they are practically cut off from all the business centres such as Bonavista, Catalina and King's Cove. The bay steamers have never made any of these places a port of call and having no railway connection it is impossible for them to get their produce to Bonavista. The petition is signed by some of the influential people of Bonavista, including Rev. Father Dwyer, Mr. John S. Rowsell, Mr. H. G. Mifflen, Mr. N. Ryan, H. J. Sawyers and others. I give it my hearty support and ask that it be referred to the Department of Public Works and I feel sure that the government will grant the request of the petitioners.

Pursuant to notice and leave granted and on motion of Mr. Fox, the bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 162 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled 'Of the Prosecution of the Seal Fishery,'" was introduced and read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

Pursuant to notice and on motion of the Hon. the Prime Minister the amendments made by the Legislative Council in and upon the bill sent up entitled "An Act to provide for the Better Obtaining of Information respjecting the Codfishery" were read a second time and concurred in, and it was ordered that a message be sent to the Legislative Council acquainting that body that the said amendments has been agreed to without amendment.

Pursuant to order and on motion of the Hon. the Prime Minister, the amendments made by the Legislative Council in and upon the bill sent up and entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 176 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Encouragement of Shipbuilding,'" were read a second time and concurred in and it was ordered that a message be sent to the Legislative Council acquainting that body that the said amendments had been agreed to without amendment.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the bill sent up entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 172 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Survey of Foreign-going and Labrador Vessels,'" with some amendments in which they request the concurrence of the House of Assembly.

On motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the said amendments were read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs the bill entitled "An Act to amend 'The Business Profits Tax Act, 1917,'" was read a third time and passed, and it was ordered that it be engrossed being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the bill entitled "An Act to amend Cap. X of 1919 George V, entitled 'An Act with respect to Existing Tenancies and Ejectment therefrom'" was read a third time and passed, and it was ordered that it be engrossed, being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice, the bill entitled "An Act to authorize the Montreal Trust Company to do business in the Colony of Newfoundland" was read a third time and passed, and it was ordered that it be engrossed being being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that House.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the House resolved itself into a committee of the whole conconsider the bill entitled "An Act respecting Licenses to Cut Hardwood."

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the chair of committee.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Before passing this bill I would like to ask whether it is the intention of the government to permit witch hazel or other timber to be cut within the three mile limit. It is common knowledge that there is at present a great scarcity of hardwood and as witch hazel and birch are perhaps the only timbers to be had for building vessels I think the three mile limit should be protected for the benefit of the fishermen, and ask that a clause be inserted providing this protection.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Chairman, I propose to ask the house to pass the first and second sections of the bill, and then to move that the committee rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again on to-morrow. The point which the leader of the opposition has raised is one which has already been considered by the government, and on to-morrow an amendment will be submitted to provide that no licenses to cut hardwood shall be issued if a representative number of the electors of the section of the country which might be affected by such hardwood timber cutting protest against that being done. I would point out that under the bill as it is at present the discretion is vested in the Governor in Council, and that the Governor in Council would not give a license for the cutting in the three mile limit. Where such cutting would be injurious to the public welfare but to make that position perfectly clear in the bill itself an amendment will be introduced under which notice would be given to the people who might be affected by the erection of a veneer mill in their vicinity and the cutting of birch and witch hazel, so that if a representative section of the people who would be affected thereby enter a protest, the license will not issue. There are sections of the country in which there are people who would welcome the erection of a veneer mill and in which the cutting of birch and witch hazel would not be injurious to the shipbuilding interests of the locality. It is quite probable that there are other sections in which the people might object to the erection of a veneer mill and the cutting of timber. This discretion will consequently be generally vested in the Governor in Council, as is now provided for in this bill, with the limitation that a protest by a reasonably large proportion of residents shall prevent the issue of a license. I feel that this amendment fully meets the suggestion of the hon. member.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—I don't think that this should be left to the Governor in Council. If you leave it to the Governor in Council any outsider may come in at any time and a point may be strained to meet their demands. I think the right place to settle that is right here.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I fear I did not make the scope of the amendment to which I referred sufficiently clear. The hon. member will remember that some days ago I moved that the second reading of this bill be deferred, and I did so because on a perusal of the bill I felt that there might be some question as to the desirability of vesting in the Governor in Council an absolutely discretion in connection with the issue of licenses affecting the three mile limit. I appreciate the great importance of the shipbuilding industry and the fact that the timber which would be used for veneer would to a very large extent be timber which would be used for shipbuilding. Important as it is to assist in every possible manner the development of a new enterprise, particularly one in which large capital would be vested and considerable employment given, an industry which will not be for goods of local consumption only, but will be adding largely to the value of our export trade, yet the government's special desire is to see that the interests of the fishermen and in the interests of shipbuilding be fully protected. The amendment which it is the intention to introduce fully covers that point, as it provides that no license shall be issued affecting any portion of the three-mile limit when the fishermen and shipbuilders interested in that particular area as the source of supply for the shipbuilding material files a protest against the issue of a license.

Notice of the application for a licensee to cut hardwood on that particular area will be given to the people resident in and interested in that area for shipbuilding purposes, and they will ben given sufficient time withi which to register a protest before any license shall issue. Thus there would be an option in the Governor in Council to refuse in all cases, but in so far as the application relates to the three-mile limit, the option of the Governor in Council to grant would be conditional on no sufficient protest having been lodged within a certain period of time after the people interested in the area had been notified of the application.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress and asked leave to sit again on tomorrow.

The House resolved itself into a committee on the whole on the bill entitled "An Act for the Preservation of Beavers."

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

MR. MacDONNELL:—With regard to this section of the bill, which gives to the Governor in Council power to fix limits to to the killing of beavers in any section of this country, and fixing other places where they may not be killed, I think that we are giving the Governor in Council too much power in this respect. If we are to have an open season, it is unfair that any section should be penalized. If we are to allow beaver to be killed in some parts of the country we should allow it in all parts. I would like the Minister to explain this matter.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—Mr. Chairman, in accordance with the request of Mr. MacDonnell, I would say, that the explanation of this lies in the fact that in some sections of this country beaver are very scarce, and in others they are very plentiful, and unless we fix the rules to meet these regulations the beaver will be exterminated, and this is the object of the bill. In certain sections of the counttry beaver are just beginning to appear. They are just beginning to appear in the bottom of Bonavista Bay, and we want to preserve them in those sections. The Game Board, who through their wardens will be conversant with those matters, will be in a position to limit certain sections. All regulations will be first submitted to the Game Board, for approval. There has never been any complaint of the actions of the Game Board. They have been very faithful in their duties, and I think we can safely leave it in their hands to handle this matter.

MR. MacDONNELL:—Is it the same board that was responsible for the deer reservation?

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—It is the same board.

MR. MacDONNELL:—In that case I can assure you that I know two thousand men who are not at all satisfied with the actions of the board in that matter, and if the Game Board made a mistake in the deer reservation they might do the same again with regard to regulations for the killing of the beaver, but if the Hon. Minister thinks that it is necessary for certain areas to be preserved, then I am satisfied. I presume it is the intention to issue licenses to bona fide trappers, and I think that something should be put in the bill now to let us know to whom these licenses will be issued. I don't think that there can be any objections to that.

MR. BENNETT:—While this matter was before the House for its second reading I think that I pointed out that there would be a great deal of difficulty in the issuing of licenses for the killing of beaver. I suggest that this matter should be controlled entirely by the Game Board, and that they would carry out the killing themselves. They would select suitable men to do the killing, and unless this is done, all the beaver will be exterminated, and I submit this matter to the Minister for his consideration.

MR. SCAMMELL:—In regard to the matter of paying for licenses, I find myself in accordance with the views of the Hon. Mr. Jennings, namely, that the man who wants to kill the beavers can least afford to pay for a license; at the same time there is going to be great difficulty in limiting the licenses to fact it is difficult to decide what conbona fide trappers. As a matter of stitutes a bona fide trapper. In certain areas in my district where beavers are plentiful the men who would go after beavers would be engaged at the fisheries for the greater part of the year. In fact he would only go trapping beavers in the autumn season.

MR. MacDONNELL:—This bill was bad enough before, but if the suggestion offered by the Honorable Member for St. John's West be adopted, it will be worse. I think with all due deference to the Member for St. John's West that the Game Board has no business to control this matter at all. Any beavers that are to be killed should be killed by the bona fide trappers of the country, and you can prevent extermination of the beavers by having a close season. If you allow one man in any section to kill beavers, and forbid the rest, you will find that before he gets to work that all the beavers will be killed. If you discriminate in his matter and only allow certain people n certain sections to kill beaver, this act will never be carried out.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Chairman, I think that the answer to this question is to create zones, or districts where you can kill beaver, and you cannot discriminate with regard to the granting of licenses. Take my own district for instance. They are all trappers down there, and I am sure that they know of every beaver house within fifteen or twenty miles, and as soon as a license is granted all the beavers will be killed. I don't think the Game Board should employ people to kill beavers. I want the trappers in my district to be given licenses but we don't want the beavers exterminated and the only safeguard we have and I am not sure that that is one, is the creation of these districts. In Bay D'Espair, they want to get rid of the beavers, because they are a nuisance but in the other parts they are not considered so, and the only thing to do, is to preserve them in some sections, and to kill them in others.

MR. SULLIVAN:—Mr. Chairman, I quite agree with the remarks of the Minister of Justice that it is not possible to discriminate as to who you should give a license to. Any man, whether he is a bona fide trapper or not, should be entitled to a license, because after all this is going to be easy money; but the best way I think to get over the difficulty is to charge a substantial fee say $50 for a license. If you are going to select one, two or three bona fide trappers in every settlement, you are going to have endless trouble. Therefore, I think it would be better to issue those licenses, subject to a substantial fee. Or you could make the fee $25 for that matter.

HON. MINISTER PUBLIC WORKS —Mr. Chairman, in whatever way I view the matter I see difficulties in the way. If you are going to charge a license fee of $50 you will cut out the man who wants to kill beavers the most and who are worse in need of money. With the statement made that beavers can be easily exterminated, I do not know what to think. For a number of years, before they were prohibited from being hunted beavers were killed throughout the country, but they were not all exterminated, there was quite enough left for breeding purposes. A close season can be put on them at any time. That would be the business of the Game Board to find out if beavers were in danger of being exterminated. If they were a close season could be put into effect right away. I believe that the principle of indiscriminate killing will make the bill an unpopular one.

MR. MacDONNELL:—I think that licenses should be granted to bona fide trappers free of charge.

MR. SINNOTT:—I beg to agree with that idea.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—I may say in reply to the honorable member for St. George's that under this section (bill for the preservation of beavers) that licenses shall be issued in accordance with the regulations published and they should be bona fide trappers free of charge.

MR. FOX:—I see a danger in this section and think that the beaver will be exterminated. It is all right to be nice and generous like the honorable the member for St. George's but I do not like to see the extermination of the beaver in particular sections of the country as will be under this section. As usual in this country we close the door after the horse is stolen. We ought to handle this matter with circumspection. We ought not to have any principle of discrimination because under it it is impossible to have satisfactory results. I also think that there ought to be a limit to the number of beavers kill in any particular section.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—That will be done. The number of beavers will be limited under the regulations.

MR. FOX:—Why not bona fide trappers only?

HON. MINISTER PUBLIC WORKS —I do not see any difference if this license is granted to one dozen men or fifty. I would not vote for any bill which contains discrimination.

MR. MacDONNELL:—I spoke the other day when notice of this bill (beaver bill) was given against this idea of making money off the trappers. Why not tax the man who catches a fox or the man who brings in seals. I think this is too foolish for anything. You seem to say to the trappers that "because the beavers are numerous you are allowed too kill them off and we are going to tax because of helping to get rid of a nuisance. As the result of your industry and your labour in killing off the beaver without permission we are going to make one hundred thousand dollars." The trappers have got to sel ltheir skins to the Department of Marine and Fisheries who will corner all the skins and then market theb abroad in the best markets and obtain the best figures and the result is that the department will net the sum of one hundred thousand dollars. The price to be given for the skins to the trappers will be reckoned according to the number of skins got and the price obtained for them. That is manifestly unjust. I think it is impossible to carry out this bill. I knew men who trap and if they are lucky enough to get beavers they will not if they think they can get a better deal elsewhere, send down their skins to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to make for the state insurance fund one hundred thousand dollars. Suppose there is a slump in the price of beaver what a nice position the trappers may find themselves in. They might not realize on their skins enough to pay for the freight. I think we are having too many regulations here. The minister took upon himself the responsibility of bringing in the fishery regulations and if there is any blame coming he will have to shoulder it or if any credit he will have the benefit of it. The whole future of the fishery structure depends upon the minister because of these regulations and now he comes into the house and introduces another bill under which more regulations will be made and he will decide who will catch and kill beavers and out of the affair the department will realise one hundred thousand dollars. Now I do not think this fair and decent. Now it is a pity that the important matter of state insurance should be started in such a petty manner. Now I think it is ridiculous to have say fishermen benefit from the trapping of beavers an adventure in which they took no part. Certainly trappers are not going to feel inclined to start state insurance for others. If we want to start state insurance we ought not do so by taxing the trappers on the skins they procure. If we are going to penalize them in the sum of one hundred thousand dollars one ought to foresee the dissatisfaction that is surely coming. This sum will be quite a little nest egg for the state insurance fund. If we are in earnest about this matter we ought to bring in a bill covering it and which shall also include sickness and disability. In England under such a scheme the weekly contribution is five pence. Of that sum two pence is given by the employer and three pence by the employee. Each quarter a card is sent to the government showing the number of weekly contributions paid by each contributor on the basis of five pence per week per man but paid in proportion by the workman and employer. This amount is deducted and put on the card. These cards are sent to the government to take a record of them. In the case of sickness a man is allowed ten shillings per week for a period of twenty six weeks and after that it is reduced to seven and six pence and that in a country like Ireland which has a rural population which is unusually healthy, even taking the city with the country it is found to be a very satisfactory proposition. I know because I was in those sections where the matter has prominence and know of the cheques being sent to a sinking fund for the reduction of the national debt.

HIS HONOR THE SPEAKER:— Mr. Chairman, I do not know whether Carbonear produces any beavers or whether the beavers have given any trouble there or that they will prove a source of revenue to the country. If there have not been too many bouquets thrown at him already I would like to hand another bouquet to the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries for his efforts in dealing with our natural resources. Looking at this bill in the light as it appears to me, I imagine Sir, that you are endeavoring to take advantage of one of our natural resources in order to turn it to a very good use that will be a benefit to succeeding generations, if your ideas can be carried into effect, and in the carrying out of this new idea I think that the matter should be left safely in the hands of the Game Board. I do not see how you can issue licenses to trappers for the different districts, without making an awful lot of trouble. By reason of the fact that you do not want to exterminate beavers, you cannot issue licenses to every trapper, therefore, to my mind, the right thing to do would be to leave the matter in the hands of the Game Board and allow them to take different districts upon different seasons and kill so many beavers in each particular district so as to safeguard the extermination. I think that that arrangement could be easily carried out with the assistance of wardens, who would be employed by the Game Board. I believe this should be undertaken as a government measure to allow the revenue to be taken charge of by the government to be appropriated to the state insurance fund. I think that would be the better way of dealing wit hthe matter. I read an article not very long ago dealing with one of the national parks in Canada and which is situated in the northern part of the province of Quebec. The article stated that in certain seasons they allowed certain keepers to kill off deer and fur-bearing animals. One of the engineers employed there estimated that they could get enough deer meat to supply the whole population of Canada. In addition the amount of revenue derived from the skins of foxes and other fur-bearing animals in the park would provide enough funds to discharge the interest on the whole national debt of Canada. If that can be done in Canada, I would commend to you sir, the forming of a national park in Newfoundland. I think that the idea of getting to work here on a big national park would be a good one.

MR. SCAMMELL:—Mr. Chairman, in regard to the matter of paying for licenses I find myself in accordance with the views of the hon. Mr. Jennings, namely, that the man who wants to kill beavers can least afford to pay for a license; at the same time there is going to be great difficulty in limiting the licenses to bona fide trappers. As a matter of fact it is difficult to decide what constitutes a bona fide trapper. In certain areas in my district where beavers are plentiful the men who would go after beavers would be engaged at the fisheries for the greater part of the year. In fact he would only go trapping in the autumn season.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Chairman, I do not agree with the proposition that a license fee should be charged. It does not make a bit of diffence whether ten men go out to kill beavers or whether twenty men do it. The principle is the same and it only means that with a less number of men it will take a few days more to do the work. If you charge a fee of $25 or $50 it will be like the sealfishery and codfishery. Somebody will supply the money and then beavers will be killed indiscriminately.

MR. MACDONNELL:—Mr. Chairman, while there may be certain individuals in this house who would be affected by what they do in Canada it does not affect me. If you want to copy from Canada why not protect the salmon supply? This whole thing is most unfair. Why not put a tax on seals? Why legislate against a few individuals for the whole country?

Why not tax the salmon fishers and the lobster catchers in the same way, since the country has also provided close seasons for both these fisheries in the same way that it has protected the beaver. This is simply discrimination against a certain class of persons. If the hon. minister is honest about this thing, why not make it clear that the price to be paid by the department for the furs will be put up to the full market price. Right back of that section is the intention to make money off the few people in this country who do any trapping and that can be called nothing but rotten legislation. If you want to institute state insurance, tax the public as a whole and I will give it my hearty support but I object to any department or board, whether it be a life board or a hereditary board, it matters not, having the sole right to purchase these furs, and I shall vote against that section.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

The chairman from the committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred and had passed the bill with some amendment.

On motion this report was received.

On motion for adoption of this report, Mr. MacDonnell moved that section 4 of the bill be deleted.

Whereupon the house divided and there appeared for the amendment: Sir M. P. Cashin, Mr. Higgins, Mr. Fox, Mr. Vinnicombe, Mr. Moore, Mr. Walsh, Mr. Sinnott, Mr. Sullivan, Mr. MacDonnell (9).

And against it: Hon. the Prime Minister, Minister of Justice, Minister of Finance and Customs, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Minister of Education, Mr. Foote, the Minister of Public Works, Mr. Abbott, Mr. Winsor, Mr. Small, Mr. Hibbs, Mr. Scammell, Mr. Targett, Mr. Guppy, Mr. Jones, Mr. Samson, Mr. Bennett, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs (18).

On a division being taken the motion was lost by a vote of 18-8.

So it passed in the negative.

The original motion for adoption of the report was then put when these appeared in its favor: Hon. the Prime Minister, Minister of Justice, Minister of Finance and Customs, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Minister of Education, Mr. Foote, Minister of Public Works, Mr. Abbott, Mr. Winsor, Mr. Small, Mr. Hibbs, Mr. Scammell, Mr. Targett, Mr. Guppy, Mr. Jones, Mr. Samson, Mr. Bennett, Minister of Posts and and Telegraphs (18).

And against it: Sir M. P. Cashin, Mr. Higgins, Mr. Fox, Mr. Vinnicombe, Mr. Moore, Mr. Walsh, Mr. Sinnott, Mr. Sullivan, Mr. MacDonnell (9).

So it is passed in the affirmative and was ordered accordingly.

It was ordered that the said bill be read a third time on to-morrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs the house resolved itself into a committee of the whole to consider the bill entitled "An Act respecting the Postal and Telegraph Services."

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the chair of committee.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—I would like, Mr. Chairman to ask the hon. minister in charge of this bill what amount his department has received from the Commercial Cable Co. and if any amount was paid in accordance with the judgment of the courts and what is being done about Port aux Basques. Also, I would like him to inform us what amount is paid by the several newspapers in the city for the foreign news service and what the cost of this is to the colony. I would ask the committee to rise until this information is forthcoming.

HON. MINISTER OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS:—Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the desire of the hon. leader of the opposition to have this information and I do not think there is any desire on our part not to give him the fullest replies to his questions but I should like for him to have his questions put on the order paper in the usual way in which case I think I may promise him a reply at our next sitting, but no purpose can be served by the committee's rising now as the information asked for has nothing whatever to do with the passing or otherwise of this bill.

The committee rose and reported that they had considered the matter to them referred and had passed the bill without amendment.

Second reading of bill entitled "An Act Concerning Former Enemy Aliens.'

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Speaker, in moving the second reading of this bill I desire to say that it is the result, I think, of a bill of the self-governing colonies of the British Empire, and I am introducing it in response to despatches from the other side. It is the same as the English act and provides that during the next three years no person who was an enemy alien during the war shall be permitted to land in Newfoundland without permission or having landed here, shall only be permitted to remain by permission from the Colonial Secretary, to be granted only on special grounds and for a limited period. As a matter of fact the principle is the same as that of the act in force during the war and it is to continue it for another three years that this bill is being introduced.

The bill was thereupon read a second time and ordered to be submitted to a committee of the whole house on to-morrow.

Hon. Minister of Justice gave notice of motion.

Mr. Bennett gave notice of question.

Mr. Walsh gave notice of question.

Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries gave notice of motion.

The house then adjourned till to-morrow at 3 o'clock.

TUESDAY, June 1st, 1920.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Chairman, I beg leave to present petition from the people of Petit Forte, Placentia Bay, signed by all the planters in that place and asking that a sum of money be granted for the completion of the public wharf there. This wharf I might say was commenced in 1914 but owing to the outbreak of war it was not found possible to provide sufficient funds to complete it. Last year when my colleagues and myself took over the control of the funds of that district we allocated a sum of money for that purpose but it was quite inadequate to finish the work. This is a very important settlement and harbour and a new firm has now opened business there. It is used by not only the fishermen of Petit Forte but by many others of Placentia Bay who go there owing to its suitability for fishing purposes. It is hoped that in the near future this settlement will be one of the largest in the bay and I have no doubt that when the Minister of Marine and Fisheries is making up his estimates provision will be made for this imperative necessity. I have very much pleasure in giving the petition my heartiest support.

MR. SULIVAN:—Mr. Speaker, I fully endorse what has been said by my colleague Mr. Walsh in presenting this petition and in view of the fact that there is only one wharf on this side of Placentia Bay I don't think it would be asking too much to have this done. The sum of money asked for is $1500 and the completion of this work will be a great boon not only to the people of Petit Forte but to the whole people of the western shore of Placentia Bay.

MR. SINNOTT:—Mr. Speaker, I have very much pleasure in supporting the petition presented by my colleague Mr. Walsh.

MR. MacDONNELL:—Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to present a number of petitions from the district of St. George's, containing the signatures of nine hundred of the inhabitants on the subject of an amendment to the prohibition act. These petitions have signatures from every part of Bay St. George and Bay of Islands and they include names of clergymen of all denominations, as well as the names of other prominent people, in those places, and I would like to suggest that whatever department of the government these petitions are referred to that some account of the number of signatures will be taken so that later on we may be able to get information if we want to. I don't think it right, that a movement of this character should be ignored by the government or should be put into any pigeon-hole or waste paper basket. All these signatures are guaranteed to be bona fide and as I said before I would like to suggest that some account be taken, both of those in favor of moderation and against modification of the act, so that we will be able to know the feeling of the country in this matter. I wish to say that I give my unqualified support to the prayer of these petitions.

Mr. Walsh asked the Hon. the Prime Minister (a) if it is the intention of the government to create a department of labor. (b) When said department will be established. (c) Will legislation in connection with said establishment be introduced at the present session of the legislature.

Answer to question asked by Mr. Walsh.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:— Within the course of a few days there will be submitted to the legislature a bill relating to trade disputes. This bill includes provisions for the appointment of a council or board to handle matters in dispute between employers and employees. My honourable friend will remember that reference was made in my manifesto issued last October to the creation of a council or board and this bill which has already been drafted by the solicitor of the House will be laid upon the table for consideration very shortly. It is the first step in the carrying out of that program. This Bill does not go so far as to create a new department.

Pursuant to notice and leave granted and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice the House resolved itself into a committee of the whole to consider certain resolutions respecting the improvement of roads.

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the chair of committee.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:— Mr. Chairman, in moving these resolutions I wish it to be understood that I am not acting on behalf of the government. They have been handed me to be piloted through the House by those outside of the House who are interested in this matter. I realize that in these resolutions there will be some things that will not commend themselves to the House and I wish to assure you that so far as I am concerned I am prepared to amend them in any way, that will not destroy their value. In discussing these I would like members to understand that as far as the motor association is concerned, although they have asked that a commission be nominated by them, they do not insist on this, but they think that as they have a large interest in the roads and the money which goes towards improving them, will largely be theirs, that in this way they will have a better chance of seeing that the money is properly spent, and that the work is faithfully carried out, than by leaving it in the hands of anybody who might be interested in the matter, merely from political motives. Now generally speaking I don't think that there is anything that can be held against the principle of these resolutions. If this is a whole hearted effort to improve the roads let us get right into it. I am quite sure, that the amount of money that has been spent in Hr. Main, Brigus and Hr. Grace for this purpose since the introduction of motor cars into the country would be found to be considerable and the same thing applies to the Southern Shore. I know myself that motor cars have created a market from Topsail, Manuels and Kelligrews for things which did not exist before, they came here and I am sure the amount of money derived from this is considerable. It costs something to run a car these days and one must remember that every time a car goes to a garage to be repaired it means a bill of no small proportion. If the roads are put in such a condition accidents will be made less frequent. It will mean that a car can be run more cheaply, and that more people will buy them, and the more cars that are bought the more revenue the government gets, and the more money spent in labour and chauffeurs and in the various other ways.

Therefore in submitting these resolutions to the committee, I would ask them to remember that they are not for the benefit of the motorists only. The man who saves an axle, altho his waggon may not be a very expensive one will get just as much benefit from them as those who run more expensive machines. Therefore I ask the committee to give these resolutions a fair show, and endeavour to see if we cannot improve the present conditions of the roads thru these resolutions.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Chairman, with regard to the resolutions that are before the House I agree that their object is one that deserves a full measure of support but might I suggest to the Hon. Attorney General, particularly in light of his own statement that he brought the bill in in response to a request from people outside the House, that it would be time well spent if we got twenty-four hours to consider the matter. He will appreciate the fact, that we will not want to come in here and support them, without having a chance for consideration. I would like to see some sort of a conference in which those of us, the Prime Minister and the Minister of Finance, who are directly concerned with what might be looked upon as opposition from the city council, could take part. I think this would be time well spent and I beg to suggest it to the Hon. the Minister of Justice.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

The chairman from the committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress and asked leave to sit again on to-morrow.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the committee have leave to sit again on to-morrow.

Pursuant to notice and leave granted and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries the bill entitled "An Act to amend the Pilotage Act, 1917," was introduced and read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

Mr. Bennett asked the Hon. Minister of Posts and Telegraphs if Miss Edith Brown, postmistress at Tilton, C.B., sister of ex-Private David Brown, M.M., had been notified of her dismissal from the public service and if so state cause of such dismissal.

Pursuant to order and on motion of the Hon. the Prime Minister the amendments made by the Legislative Council in and upon the bill sent up entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 172 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled 'Of the Survey of Foreign-going and Labrador Vessels'" were read a second time and concurred in, and it was ordered that a message be sent to the Legislative Council, acquainting that body that the said amendments had been agreed to without amendment.

Pursuant to order and on motion of

Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries the bill entitled "An Act respecting the Preservation of Beavers" was read a third time and passed and it was ordered that it be engrossed being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs the bill entitled "An Act respecting the Postal and Telegraph Services" was read a third time and passed and it was ordered that it be engrossed being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provosions.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the House resolved itself into a committee of the whole to consider the bill entitled "An Act respecting Licenses to Cut Hard Woods."

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the chair of committee.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:— On yesterday after the first and second sections had been passed I asked the committee to rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again to-day, so that an opportunity may be given to fully consider amendments which I asked the solicitor of the House to draft in relation to the issue of licenses on the three-mile limit. I now submit the amendments as additional sub-sections 3 and 4 to section 2 of the bill. This addition is to provide that three months public notice of any application for licenses under this bill must be given in The Royal Gazette and one other newspaper before the application will be considered by the council. The Department of Agriculture and Mines will take care to see that information of the application is conveyed to the towns and settlements within the area covered by the application. The residents of that area who are in the habit of cutting birch and witch hazel from the area for shipbuilding purposes will have an opportunity of filing a petition at the Department of Agriculture and Mines and no licenses can under this bill be granted by the Governor in Council in any case in which forty per cent. of the electors resident within the area protest against the issue of a license. The people interested in any particular area will consequently have the opportunity of deciding for themselves as to whether a veneer mill should or should not be established in their locality. If the circumstances are such that forty per cent. of the electors decide that the birch and witch hazel within that area shall be reserved for shipbuilding purposes, no licenses will issue. If, however, the circumstances are such that the people of the neighborhood welcome the large operations and considerable labor which a veneer mill would give and feel that shipbuilding interests are fully protected, they will file no protest. I feel that all possible objection to the granting of licenses for the cutting of birch and witch hazel on the three mile limit are overcome by this provision which has the effect of placing the decision in the hands of the people who are interested in the area in question.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

The chairman from the committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred and had passed the bill with some amendments.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the said bill be read a third time on to-morrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice the House resolved itself into a committee of the whole to consider the bill entitled "An Act respecting Former Enemy Aliens."

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the chair of committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

The chairman from the committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had passed the bill without amendment.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the said bill be read a third time on to-morrow.

The Minister of Public Works gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a bill entitled "An Act concerning Local Affairs in Outport Districts."

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House adjourned accordingly.

WEDNESDAY, June 2nd, 1920.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon, pursuant to adjournment.

Second reading of Council's amendment respecting the Registry of Midwives.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, the amendment in this bill is the addition of another section, which makes it quite clear as to whether or not the Governor in Council may determine the act and which reads as follows: "The Governor in Council may apply the said rules and regulations from time to time and from such part or parts of the colony as they may deem fit."

Second reading of Council's amendment to "Act respecting Legislative Disabilities and the Vacation of Seats in the House of Assembly."

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, it will be remembered that section (3) in this bill had an important bearing on the election of Mr. Cave. The section has been stricken out, as it is entirely unnecessary now. I consequently move that the amendment be read a second time.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, in the absence of the Minister of Public Works I ask leave to introduce a bill to amend the Local Affairs Act.

Third reading of bill "An Act respecting Former Enemy Aliens."

Second reading of bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 162 of the Consolidated Statutes, Third Series, entitled 'Of the Prosecution of the Seal Fishery."

MR. FOX:—Mr. Speaker, as this bill is still in the hands of the printers I would ask that it be deferred.

Committee of the whole on resolution respecting the improvement of roads.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Chairman, since the committee sat yesterday we had a conference with those members of the House who represent the districts named in the bill or as far as we could get them. Some alterations were made and section (1) of the bill now will read in effect that the commission shall constitute not more than ten persons, three to be nominated by the Governor in Council, three by the Motor Association and the Government themselves to appoint the Deputy Minister of Public Works with the addition of the Chairman of Public Works, who shall be chairman ex-officio.

HON. MINISTER OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS:—Mr. Chairman, I notice that Trinity district is conspicuous by its absence in this bill. I think I expressed myself already on this bill when speaking to the petition and I cannot say that I am in favor of it. That part of the bill which asks for government support I do not endorse, but outside of that it strikes me that Trinity district should be included in the bill, because motor cars are continually going to Heart's Content and Carbonear, but they do not go beyond these places. Now there is a very good road from Heart's Content to New Perlican and it would be a grand thing if that road was improved right down to Lead Cove; in fact I see no reason why the South Side of the Bay should not be included in the bill.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—All right; the south side will be included.

MR. CHEESEMAN:—Mr. Chairman, it might be news to some people perhaps to know that the district of Burin has got motor cars and, now that there are going to be special givings out in the way of motor roads Burin is going to ask for its share. I cannot say that I am in perfect agreement with the object of this bill. If all the districts were compensated in the way of special grants it would be a good idea, but to give grants to districts that have the advantage of a railway and with roads much better than we have in the district of Burin, I cannot see that I would be doing justice to my constituents to support the bill and give money out of the general revenue of the country to the particular sections named in the bill. And, as I said before, we actually have motor cars in Burin now.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—In reply to the hon. member for Burin, Mr. Cheeseman, I may say that while perhaps his district does not enjoy the benefit of road grants we do here in St. John's and other places, something over a quarter of a million dollars was spent in the district of Burin. I think that will go along way in upsetting the argument of the hon. member.

MR. CHEESEMAN:—That quarter of a million dollars was spent on marine works and it will take a quarter of a million more to have anything like sufficient improvement.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Perhaps the hon. member for Burin, Mr. Cheeseman, was not present when I introduced these resolutions. The principle of these resolutions is that in the various districts where there are motor cars the owners will have to pay taxes and the road commission under these will be given the money to spend on the roads. And I for one as the owner of motor car am satisfied to have myself taxed to have better roads for everyone who may care to use them. The hon. member for Burin ought to induce his friends to buy motor cars and I think Mr. Brownrigg will also. I will do my best to have these resolutions apply to Burin.

MR. CHEESEMAN:—Only last week some of the residents of the district of Burin invested in motor cars.

MR. SULLIVAN:—Is there an addition to that (C. sec. 2, resolutions re maintenance of certain roads)?

THE HON. MIN. OF JUSTICE:—Yes. "By the way of Salmonier, Colinet to Placentia."

MR. GOSSE:—Does that include the district of Hr. Grace? (re resolutions in the matter of the maintenance of certain roads) There is a road there going from Spaniard's Bay to Harbor Grace and as was already mentioned to you the people of Hr. Grace are willing to spend so much of their own money if the government will help them out on this road from Spaniard's Bay to Hr. Grace. Doctors sometimes have to go from Hr. Grace to Spaniard's Bay. It is impossible to get to the bottom of the bay with a motor car. They have to drive with a horse and the trip takes seven hours whereas if a motor car could travel on the road it would only require about two hours and a half to get there. The road is known as the New Harbor Road and connects Conception Bay with Trinity Bay.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—I may say to Captain Gosse's remarks that this road has been brought to the attention of the Motor Association and I have no doubt that it will take the opportunity of fixing up this road. And as Mr. Hibbs stated yesterday the people of Hr. Main will be glad to help along the work.

DR. JONES:—I am glad to hear that Harbor Main was represented. I was not here when this matter was in the committee stage but nevertheless am glad to know that the old district was represented. The road Captain Gosse speaks of is quite familiar to me. That road is only part of what I call a perfect drive. You can go along that road to New Hr. and thence to Whitbourne and then back to Holyrood. I called the attention of the House to this before to have this included in this bill. But I notice that these resolutions give very little power to the road commission to enter upon land for the purpose of making roads. This is often essential to make wide and fit enough to drive over. Our people of the bay suffer terribly for the want of roads of sufficient width. There is a certain number using motor cars who are inexperienced and the people of the settlements through which the cars go suffer no little inconvenience. I hope therefore that some of those on the commission will be representatives from the outports. They should be people living there. As I said they are some number of inexperienced drivers and not too few of even the best drivers are reckless when they get to outport roads and I hope to see some of the members of this commission representatives from the districts through which those roads run.

MR. SAMSON:—I consider this bill nothing more than class legislation and I oppose it. Down north there's nothing like the roads the people in the south possess. And until I see that the northern districts are carefully considered and given a share of this legislation I do not intend to favour this bill. Down north we need those roads as dire necessity and not for pleasure as the improvement herein contemplated is for.

HON. SPEAKER:—Before we pass this section I would like to say a word with regard to motorists around the bay. We have some fourteen or fifteen motor owners in Carbonear and if you are going to tax them they should have some representation on this commission. If Carbonear were canvassed you would find some people who would subscribe some money to get the motors off the streets of the town of Carbonear. They consider them a nuisance. The streets are not very wide and a lot of ponies come in there from outside points that are not used to cars, and sometimes they cause a lot of trouble. But there are some roads that would be used by motorists where some money could be spent to great advantage. There is a road from Carbonear to Heart's Delight that ought to be put in better condition; and I commend this to the hon. gentlemen who represent Trinity district. They have considerable difficulty in getting doctors. Provision should be made to have an amount of money spent for this purpose. And, as I said before, if the motorists outside of St. John's are going to be taxed, they should be represented on the commission.

Then there is another matter that I would like to point out. You are coming into Conception Bay and taking charge of the main road monies.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Chairman, that is not the intention. The intention is to work in co-operation with the road boards.

HON. SPEAKER:—That will be different. If they work in co-operation with the road boards it will be all right.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Chairman, I think the road boards outside of St. John's will be represented. It is the intention that the commission have a sort of supervision over the work done. There are many things that the commission will have to look after, such as the getting in of machinery. The Minister of Public Works will be chairman of the commission, and there will be other outport representatives on the commission. The commission is to see that good value is received for the money spent.

MR. SMALL:—Mr. Chairman, I object to this section (section 6) on principle. I don't see why we should come in here and vote one-half of the registration fee to be spent by the commission. I move an amendment. Instead of making it one-half make it one-quarter of the registration fee. We must remember that there are a lot of fishermen who need wharfs and then there is the coastal service that must be fixed up. Our first duty is to look after fishermen.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—Mr. Chairman, before these resolutions go thru, I would like to make a few remarks with regard to them. I do not want it to be understood that because I have come here to St. John's to live for a few months I have closed my eyes to the needs of the district that sent me to public life. Now sir, in the greater number of the districts of the country and particularly in Twillingate district, there are many so-called roads which in many cases are the only means of communication by travel between the various places, and these roads—cow paths you would call them here—are in such a condition that you might consider yourself fortunate if you could get over them with knee-fishing boots on, but the people have to put up with them because they are unable to get anything better. There are several reasons for this, one of which is that the soil is of such a nature and the available material is so little suited to the purpose that good roads is almost an impossibility. Another reason is that in a large district like Twillingate, families are constantly going into new localities to settle down, with the result that the amount of the road grants, which has been the same for many years, will not permit of roads being built where they are required, the grants being altogether inadequate for the present requirements. The history of road making in this country has been that small special grants have been obtainable the year before an election and this grant, so far as I have seen, has usually been sufficient to cut down the trees over the line of a proposed new road at which stage the work must be suspended for another four years and on the eve of the next election a similar amount is forthcoming with which a few yards of the road might be built and under these conditions the roads are never completed. I am aware, of course that in many cases the best results are not given for the money expended while this continues. If the government satisfies me that the absolute needs of my district will be attended to I am prepared to support this bill. I don't want to act the part of the dog in the manger and as I understand that the funds which the motorists are asking control of are derived from the taxes paid by them and the duty on the machines coming in the country, I don't see any reason to begrudge them improved roads provided the outport roads will not suffer thereby.

Second reading of bill entitled "An Act to amend the Pilotage Act."

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES:—Mr. Speaker, in asking that this bill be now read a second time, I might state that the only change in the present act contemplated is to increase the pilotage on large steamers from $60 to $80. This is being done at the request of the pilots themselves and will only affect steamers of very large tonnage and will not apply to the ordinary coastal or other coal steamers.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Speaker, I desire to give this bill my support as I believe the contemplated increase in the pilotage rates of steamers that will be affected by it is a reasonable one and as the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries has pointed out, the increased fee will have nothing to do with the kind of steamer usually coming to this port or engaged in the coastal or passenger service of the colony. At the present time the limit which the pilots receive from a ship of any size is $60 and what is now asked is to have his maximum fee raised to $80. I think that the class of ship coming under this rate, and consequently to be affected by the bill, would be any where from 2,000 or 3,000 tons and larger.

Mr. Fox gave notice of motion.

Sir M. P. Cashin in the absence of Mr. Bennett asked the Hon. Colonial Secretary question on the order paper, May 28th.

Mr. Speaker informed the house that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the bills sent up entitled respectively—"An Act to Provide for the Lighting of Outport Streets," "An Act to amend Chapter 86 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled 'Of Stipendiary Magistrates and Justices of the Peace,'" "An Act for the Confirmation of a Contract with the Susu Shipping Company, Limited," and "An Act to amend Chapter 137 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled 'Of the Fire Control,'" without amendment.

Mr. Speaker informed the house that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the Bill sent up entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 27 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled 'Of Death Duties,'" with an amendment in which they requested the concurrence of the House of Assembly.

On motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the said amendment was read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the bill sent up entitled "An Act concerning the Registration of Midwives," with an amendment, in which they request the concurrence of the House of Assembly.

On motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the said amendment was read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the bill sent up entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 4 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundlnd (third series) entitled 'Of Legislative Disabilities and the Vacation of Seats in the House of Assembly'," with amendment, in which they request the concurrence of the House of Assembly.

On motion of the Hon. the Prime Minister the said amendment was read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

Pursuant to notice and leave granted and on motion of the Minister of Public Works the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Local Affairs Act," was introduced and read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the Bill entitled "An Act respecting Licenses to Cut Hard Woods," was read a third time and passed, and it was ordered that it be engrossed, being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the Bill entitled "An Act respecting Former Enemy Aliens," was read a third time and passed and it was ordered that it be engrossed, being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Pursuant to notice and leave granted and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice the House resolved itself into a committee of the whole to consider certain resolutions respecting the Improvements of Roads.

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the chair of committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

The chairman from the committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress, and asked leave to sit again on to-morrow.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the committee have leave to sit again on to-morrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries the bill entitled "An Act to amend the Pilotage Act, 1917," was read a second time and ordered to be referred to a committee of the whole house on to-morrow.

Mr. Fox gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a bill entitled "An Act to amend the Society for Protection of Animals' Act, 1914."

Mr. Vinnicombe gave notice of question.

It was moved and seconded that when the house rises it adjourn until Monday next, the 7th inst., at three of the clock in the afternoon.

The house then adjourned accordingly.

MONDAY, June 7, 1920.

The house met at three of the clock in the afternoon, pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. Vinnicombe:—Mr. Speaker, I have a petition from the City Council and which, with your permission, I will read to the house. (Reads petition.)

MR. ABBOTT:—I ask leave to present a petition from the inhabitants of Open Hall in the district of Bonavista Bay. The petition also covers Red Cliffe, Plate Cove, Pick Up Cove and Keels. The petitioners think it expedient that a public wharf be constructed at Open Hall. At the present time there is not a suitable place for the landing of passengers. Open Hall is one of the principal ports of call in Bonavista Bay. Plate Cove, Pick Up Cove, Red Cliffe and Keels can all be benefitted by having a suitable wharf at this Open Hall. The petitioners ask for no specified amount but for whatever is sufficient to construct a public wharf of such dimensions as a bay steamer can come alongside. There is also request embodied in this petition that a man be sent from the Department of Marine and Fisheries to make a survey and give an estimate of the sum required to do the necessary work. The petition is signed by all the electors of Open Hall, Red Cliffe, Plate Cove, Pick Up Cove and Keels. I think this is a request of an absolute necessity and I support it. I ask that it be referred to the department to which it refers and trust that the request shall be acceded to.

MR. WINSOR:—I beg to support the petition presented by my colleague,

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—In the absence of the Prime Minister I may ask the hon. member to let that question stand until to-morrow, (Mr. Vinnicombe's question as to the purchase of Sudbury grounds).

Petitions were presented by Mr. Vinnicombe from Municipal Council re motor tax; Mr. Abbott, from Open Hall, re public wharf.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave notice of question.

Mr. Bennett gave notice of question.

Pursuant to notice and leave granted and on motion of Mr. Fox the bill entitled "An Act to amend the Society for Protection of Animals Act, 1914," was introduced and read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

Mr. Speaker informed the house that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the bill sent up entitled "An Act to amend 'The Income War Tax Act, 1910,'" in which they request the concurrence of the House of Assembly.

On motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice the amendment was read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the amendment made by the Legislative Council in and upon the bill sent up entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 27 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled 'Of Death Duties,'" was read a second time and concurred in, and it was ordered that a message be sent to the Legislative Council acquainting that body that the said amendment had been agreed to without amendment.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the amendment made by the Legislative Council in and upon the Bill sent up entitled "An Act concerning the Registration of Midwives" was read a second time and concurred in, and it was ordered that a Message be sent to the Legislative Council acquainting that body that the said amendment had been agreed to without amendment.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the amendment made by the Legislative Council in and upon the Bill sent up entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 4 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of Legislative Disabilities and the Vacation of Seats in the House of Assembly," was read a second time and concurred in and it was ordered that a Message be sent to the Legislative Council acquainting that body that the said amendment had been agreed to without amendment.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE (re amendment to Income War Tax Act):—I may say Mr. Speaker, that that amendment is only a technical one. The Act that went to the Upper House was copied from the Resolutions that were before this House and the last section said "that an Act would be introduced to give effect to these Resolutions." This should not have been there; should have been stricken out.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE (re amendment to the Legislative Disabilities Bill):—Mr. Speaker, in moving the second reading of this Bill I may say a section therein which caused a lot of discussion in this House namely one dealing with Mr. Cave's holding office until December 31st, 1920, has been taken out by the Council.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE (re amendment to Midwives Bill):—That amendment Mr. Speaker, empowers the Governor in Council to apply the provisions thereof to such sections of the country as they may deem fit from time to time. In the case of an abortion the Governor in Council will have to step in.

Pursuant to notice and leave granted and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider certain Resolutions respecting the improvement of Roads.

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the chair of Committee.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—The Committee rose the last session in order that sections three, four and nine of these Resolutions (Re the Improvement of Roads) might be re-adopted. And they refer to the collection of taxes and the amount to be paid to the Municipal Council I think I ought to make some reference to the petition presented this afternoon by the hon. member for St. John's East, Mr. Vinnicombe, on behalf of the Council. There are some parts of that petition or rather the argument for the Council, as put before this House which require an explanation and I propose to give my reasons why I think the money ought to be spent by the Road Commission outside St. John's. I need not go into any length on this matter as it has already been explained and to a great extent the principle has been adopted by the House. In the first place, Sir, I wish to draw your attention to the fact that this petition says that it is proposed to hand over the taxes collected to the Motor Association. Now that is not so. The petition to my mind is trying to create a prejudice against the Motor Association and it is also forgetful of the fact that we propose to improve the roads at our expense so that they will be passable for everybody. Mr. Gosling knew when he wrote this petition that this was incorrect because he happened to be present in this House when those who were interested in the matter and those members who were interested because of the districts through which the motor cars run, were invited to meet a certain afternoon. They were present when it was distinctly outlined that the money collected was not to be handed over to the Motor Association but to the Commission.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—Mr. Chairman, I object to this section. The Council can't do work with no funds, and that has been the great trouble right along. The Municipal Council thought that they ought to have all the money collected as taxes on motors because the cars are owned in St. John's and are operated for the most part in St. John's. At the present time we have a large number of motor trucks that never go outside of St. John's, and the taxes collected from these will go to build roads in other places. I object to this $6000.00 or any definite sum be named. The taxes collected from motor trucks should go to the Municipal Council entirely, and there should be a certain per cent of the other taxes turned over to the Council. As it is now if next year or in a few years time there are three times as many cars as there are at the present time the Council will still get the $6000.000 and no more. The Council ought to get a certain per cent so that the amount will increase with the number of cars. I am in favor of this bill. I would like to see something done with the roads, but as a representative of St. John's East I object to that section, and will not be satisfied unless some amendment is made.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—The main point of his argument is contained in his next argument regarding the division of taxes. I may say that when I was in the House before it was on my motion that the taxes were divided. I represented Port de Grave district. Port de Grave is a small district, and has many roads some of which are used considerable by the motorists from St. John's. The first week of the session of the Legislature two motor cars went over the bridge that divides Port de Grave district from Harbor Main district and broke it down. Now, as the motor cars are using these roads it is only right that they should be taxed to repair them.

Now as to Mr. Gosling's argument that the cars are owned by St. John's people and the tax should go to repair roads in St. John's, I would like to point out that while the cars are owned by people of St. John's for the most part they tear up the roads and break down the bridges outside of St. John's and the tax on the cars should go to make the necessary repairs.

Then he contends that most of the use of cars is in St. John's. I contend that that is not so. If a car run 5000 miles in a year you will find that 3000 miles are outside of St. John's.

The next section is absolutely dishonest, and Mr. Gosling knew when he wrote it that it was absolutely untrue. If motorists want to increase their taxes they reap the benefit, but other people reap the benefit also. Mr. Gosling forgets the fact that if the motor cars were confined to St. John's they would decrease in number. We are trying to make it worth while for a man to have a motor car—the more cars the more revenue. The object that we have in view is that the money should be handed over to the commission, and that the Council be paid $6000.00 annually to be spent by the Council.

SIR. M. P. CASHIN:—Mr. Chairman, while we are on the subject of roads I would like to ask the Minister of Public Works on whose recommendation the new boards were recently appointed in Ferryland District, and also if it is true that the large bridge at Aquaforte has been burned. We have been particularly unfortunate in that district this year in the matter of fires, due altogether to the fact that the firewardens who were usually appointed early in May have all been dismissed without any steps having been taken to replace them. Now, if matters are left to take their own course in this way forest fires are inevitable because along the line of railway the old grass is like tinder and as soon as a spark from an engine touches it there is a blaze. Since the railway has been in operation in that district wardens have been appointed as a protection against just such danger and each day at this time of the year they rode on the trains from place to place, dropping off at the grades and walking back over the track to put any fires that might have been caused by sparks. In this way forest fires and consequent destruction of valuable timber was averted. This year as I have stated the old wardens were dismissed and no others appointed, with the result that every stick of timber from Chance Cove to Aquaforte has been destroyed. LaManche Woods have been burning for the past ten days but no notice of it has been taken by the Agriculture Dept., and yesterday the people of Witless Bay had to get out with axes and cut down the trees surrounding the place to save the church and convent from being burnt down. All recommendations to have something done in this matter have been totally ignored and the only steps that have been taken were to appoint a few wardens who have now gone to the fishery and these men, I understand, are receiving salaries altho they are not there at all. There is nobody in this House to answer for the Agricultural Dept. but I serve notice that Ferryland district is burning from end to end and miles of valuable timber being destroyed while even the settlements themselves are in danger in many sections. If wardens had been appointed when they should have been, we wouldn't have this mess to-day. I would ask the Minister of Public Works again if he has any report of Aquaforte Bridge having been burned, and I would also like to know, as he was very strong on the point of not sending out money to improperly constituted Road Boards, how did he dismiss the old boards in Ferryland district and by what authority or on whose recommendation were the new ones appointed, and further how much money has been sent out to these boards for expenditure on the roads. I understand that hundreds of dollars have been spent on some of the roads while no money has actually been sent out by the Public Works Dept., and that there are hundreds of men employed at the present time.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—Mr. Chairman, the Leader of the Opposition has given me rather a difficult task to answer so many questions offhand but nevertheless, I think I can give him the answers, at least to most of his questions. With regard to the matter of Road Boards, when the conclusion was arrived at that there should be elective road boards in that district, the Dept. of Public Works had the advice of the Minister of Justice and it was decided to appoint boards pro tem, it being not advisable to have monies expended under the old boards and the time not being opportune for the holding of the elections. The list of the boards was sent over to the Public Works Dept. from the Colonial Secretary's Dept. In answer to the second question, I would say that I received a report about Aquaforte Bridge this morning and Capt. Bonia was immediately sent out to see what could be done to replace it. As to the matter of wardens, the Public Works Dept. has nothing to with them. I cannot answer the question regarding the money sent out to Ferryland district now but if the hon. member will put it on the order paper he will receive his answer in the usual way. I think, however that the statement about hundreds of men being employed is incorrect.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—There are at least a hundred men at work out there.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—I think that is incorrect.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—I am not thinking at all; I know what I am talking about and I am sure that what I have said is correct, and furthermore, I consider the answer of the Minister of Public Works to my question with regard to the road boards a very flimsy excuse and when he sent out money he should have known to whom he was sending it.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—There was no money sent out, and any expenditures that were made or repairs attended to were done under the supervision of Capt. Bonia.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—There must be at least a thousand dollars spent there already and not under the supervision or on the recommendation of Capt. Bonia who was in Bay de Verde district. This money has been spent from Tor's Cove to Ferryland and if the Minister does not know about it I can tell him. Here's what happened. A defeated candidate who polled three hundred votes in the idstrict last fall came in here and said that if he was not given the money to spend he would get the work done on credit, and he was told to go ahead with it.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—I might say that I have not the slightest knowledge of anything of the kind.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Then you are not attending to the affairs of your department or you would know what was going on. Mr. Hartery, a defeated candidate comes in here and is authorized to put men to work on the roads and you know nothing about it.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—If Mr. Hartery is doing this, all I can say is that he has no business to do it.

MR. MOORE:—Mr. Chairman, I drove thirty miles yesterday thru that section where the fires are raging in the district and I want to say here that it is a shame and a scandal to have this splendid timber destroyed and settlements in danger of being wiped out and not a move being made by the Government to prevent it. It is nothing but neglect of the first order, but this is the kind of thing that one would expect to be handed out to Ferryland district. As to the work on the roads, the Minister of Public Works need have no doubt about the truth of what my colleague, Sir Michael Cashin has stated. Men are at work on the road between Tor's Cove to Ferryland and we know who is employed there and if the Minister doesn't know anything about it, then I am sorry for his department. Now Sir, there is not a cent being spent from Tor's Cove to St. John's, and I trust that the Minister of Public Works will look into this and that he will not let the matter rest where it is but see to it that the facts are enquired into and be in a position to give us some information when he comes in here again. I would also say to the Minister that I hope when the bills come before him for the work now being done, he won't pay them without being satisfied as to the authorization for the work.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—I would go further than that and ask the Minister if he is not satisfied that my statements are correct to send out an official of his department to-morrow in a car or carriage and find out for himself.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—I can assure both Sir Michael Cashin and his colleague that not one cent has been authorized by my department for the work he speaks of.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—I believe you, but the work is being done nevertheless and you ought to know it but the thing has been done over your head and you are merely being used. It is an insult to Ferryland district and is being done for political spite.

MR. BENNETT:—Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the Minister of Public Works what is to be the policy with regard to the expenditure of the district grants and what arrangements is being made to have them spent in such a way as to prevent them from conflicting with expenditures under this Act. Is it the intention to pool the grants with the money that will be expended by the Commission? It appears to me something should be done, some policy adopted to deal with this matter, otherwise there is bound to be conflict.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—I don't know if any such step as the hon. member refers to has been considered yet but certainly something will have to be done in this way and I think that will be easily arranged when the proper time comes.

MR. BENNETT:—I presume that is the reason why nothing has been done yet this season to have the roads in the district of St. John's West attended to. Yesterday I was over a portion of that district and the roads are in a frightful condition and are in very urgent need of repairs. Of course, it might be said that the grants are not yet available as the Supply has not yet been passed, but it has been the practice to make provision for this in the past and there is no reason why the same thing cannot be done now.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—I might say that already the per capita grants have been practically expended and I am looking forward to having the annual grants sent out next week. The officials are now at work making up the allotments. They are beginning with the northern districts and working up around to the western sections and I expect the St. John's grants will be sent out about Thursday next.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—To get back to the Road Resolutions I am prepared to allow the tax on 30 motor trucks now in use in the city to be collected by the City Council. Thirty motor trucks at $35.00 would give an income of $1,050. It could be increased to $50.00 and this would give an income of $1,500. I am prepared to make this $5,500 to the Council and they can in future have the tax on motor trucks.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—I quite agree with that. The trucks are used only in the city.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Chairman, it is rather difficult to say what method of reconciliation can be used in reference to the suggestions made by the Hon. Minister of Justice. I think it is as fair a way as can be worked out. I can't disassociate myself with the outside parts of the district of St. John's East. Levys are made in the town for every kind of citizen for water taxation, etc., and the levy referred here to to-day is for a particular right to drive a car. It should be a right to drive in the country at large. It is an unsound principle to say that the taxes taken from a big 75 horsepower car should be collected and given to the city of St. John's when all the roads outside the district altogether are frequently being used by that car. It is unjust and unsound. It is only proper that some provision should be made to enable them this idea to be extended as it ought to be extended. The main point is that we have got to make the man who buys a car feel that he is paying a national tax. The great trouble is, taking St. John's East for example, the road grants are insufficient to carry on the work that has been made necessary by the influx of heavy motor traffic, and I think that it is quite proper to make the exception as far as motor trucks are concerned because they are practically all confined to St. John's. In future the Council will have the grant of nearly $6,000 and the taxes collected on trucks. I support these resolutions because in my judgment they are the only means of strengthening the grants. I don't think it would be possible for the Council to put into force an increased taxation like this, because the car owners would expect improvements that would be something to make.

MR. BENNETT:—Mr. Chairman, I think that there is a great deal of force in what Mr. Vinnicombe has said with regard to money collected on motor cars being handed over the City Council, and as has been pointed out by him they certainly have a very strong claim, because, when one realizes that while there is a certain amount of use given to country roads by motor cars, it is the city roads that have to bear the brunt of it, and they therefore should receive consideration. But what is underlying this I take it that the object, is not the improvement of city streets, but country roads, and the Motor Association have offered to tax themselves, for a special purpose, and they should have the opportunity of seeing in what direction the money will be spent. It is quite true, that the Government intend to subsidize this, and give half to the upkeep of roads outside the city. This is justifiable, because motor car owners will get the advantage of the roads, and the public will get the advantage, and therefore, the country will be getting an advantage that they would never otherwise have. Now Sir, I can understand that in the minds of some of the representaves of districts in this House there is an objection to grants being given to districts in the immediate vicinity of St. John's, that is understandable, but I would like to say that the roads in the city receive only the per capita grant allowed to all districts, and when one realizes the amount of wear and tear that they have to bear that this grant is not sufficient to keep them up. It is quite impossible to keep the roads in repair, because traffic has been so accentuated by the advent of motor cars that the grants are not near enough for the requirements. I certainly endorse these resolutions, and while I would like to see the city get as much as possible, in view of the amendment made by the Minister of Justice, I think that the best possible has been done.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—Mr. Chairman, like the speaker who preceded me, I am a representative of St. John's East, but I am also a representative of the city, in the City Council. When I came here this afternoon I tried to do all I could for the city, and I think it is my place to do that. There is six thousand dollars grant for St. John's, and I claim that as there is a large increase in the number of motor cars each year that this grant is not enough to make up for the wear and tear on the city roads by the motor cars. You can go up middle street any day you like and you will hardly be able to pass there with motor cars and carriages. I came here to fight to get what I could for the city, and now that they will be granted fifty-five hundred dollars, along with all taxes on motor trucks, I might say that I am perfectly satisfied.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had passed the Resolutions with some amendments and recommended that a Bill be introduced to give effect to the same.

On motion this report was received and adopted and the Bill entitled "An Act Respecting the Maintenance of certain Public Roads" was introduced and read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Pilotage Act, 1917."

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred and had passed the Bill without amendment.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the said Bill be read a third time on to-morrow.

Second reading of an Act "Of the Prosecution of the Seal Fishery."

MR. FOX:—Mr. Speaker, in moving the second reading of this, I would say, that certain portions of this Bill came before the Legislature, some years ago. These portions are the sections that relate to the food and maintenance of the crew. Sections dealing with the fare and maintenance of the crew was brought up this year because of certain facts that came to the notice of the Colony, and were brought to my notice in particular. The law says that a certain amount of food has to be apportioned to the sealers every day. There is nobody held responsible to see that these regulations are carried out, and it is a matter of indifference to the master and officers, whether or not they are carried out. The condition of the quarters of the crew are such that it is time that someone took a hand to see that these quarters are kept clean. Facts were laid before me that proved that absolutely intolerable conditions prevailed, and if something is not done in this matter, an epidemic will break out, and spread through all parts of the country. From such of this information I have received I can hardly conceive that such disgusting conditions could obtain on board these steamers. The position is that nobody cares whether the mens' sleeping quarters are clean or not, the master has other duties to attend to, and the men are left at the mercy of anybody that cares to look out for them, and in many cases there is no one to keep the quarters clean. When I asked why this was, I was told that in a great many cases the men themselves are to blame. The position I take on this matter is, that if these quarters are not kept clean, and if under certain conditions the men are to blame, this legislature should take the responsibility of protecting them against themselves.

The object of this bill is to have an inspector appointed, one for each steamer. He will see that the regulations with regard to food, and maintenance of the crew, are carried out, and he will have the authority to inspect the sleeping quarters of the men, and appoint a man to keep them clean. If anybody violates these regulations on reach port he will prosecute. In those sections dealing with the care and maintenance of the crew, I am sure that the House will endorse my views on the subject, and try to make conditions tolerable for the men on those steamers.

The second section limits the time for the prosecution of the seal fishery. Under the present law we have no close season. All we have is the provision that seals shall not be killed, before such a date, but the law does not say that no seals shall be killed after a certain date.

Sections three, four and five are merely formal, having the effect of rounding out the bill. I have no doubt that this bill will cause some discussion in the Committee stage. I ask leave to move the second reading of this bill.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Mr. Fox the Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 162 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Prosecution of the Seal Fishery'" was read a second time and ordered to be referred to a Committee of the Whole House on to-morrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of the Minister of Public Works, the Bill entitled "An Act Respecting Local Affairs in Outport Districts" was read a second time and ordered to be referred to a Committee of the Whole House on to-morrow.

Second reading of Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Local Affairs Act."

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—Mr. Speaker, in moving the second reading of this Bill, I might say that the amendments made only deal with some minor matters that we consider would make the Act more workable. I have arranged to have copies of the old Act distributed among the members so that they will be able to see where the amendments came in. I might say that when the Bill goes into Committee of the Whole House there may be other amendments that will be found necessary to add. In fact since the Bill has been in the hands of the printer there are two or three small matters in connection with it that I consider should be changed, and I shall take the privilege of mentioning those matters when in Committee.

The first amendment, it will be noticed, is in sub-section (1) of section (7), which makes it legal for a Stipendiary Magistrate to hold more than one meeting at the same date. In some districts this is impossible, but in other districts it is quite feasible. This amendment is the outcome of an election that was held over in Harbor Main district where the Stipendiary Magistrate was instructed to hold meetings in three or four different places, whereas, under the Act he could not hold meetings outside the particular area where he resided. The reason we found it necessary to have Stipendiary Magistrates to hold meetings is because they are best fitted for the work and because there would be less trouble arise therefrom, so that we amended the Act giving Stipendiary Magistrates authority to hold three or four meetings on the same date, where possible.

The next amendment is in sub-section (2) of the same section and it reads as follows:

"If any such meeting is not held at "the proper time or at all, or is clearly "irregular, or is in any way held or "conducted in contravention of the pro- "visions of this Chapter or is void "thereunder, the Minister of Public "Works may declare the election void "and order a new election to be held "within two weeks after the holding of "such meeting, or the date when it "should have been held, and ten days "notice of the holding of such new "election shall be given, as provided in "sub-section (1) (d) of this section."

The idea of that section is to give the Minister of Public Works authority to interfere and order another election in the event of a meeting being held irregularly or that something improper has happened at any such meeting. Another small amendment is in sub-section (d). Instead of two weeks notice for the convening of a meeting, ten days is provided. Section (8) is amended by striking out the words "two months" and substituting therefor the words "one month," and by inserting after the word "day" in the second line, the words "in November or December." We thought this time of the year would be better for the holding of elections in the interests of the several districts, as at this time of the year the majority of the people are home. Section (26) is amended to have duplicate returns sent to all the Boards by the Board of Works Department for the purpose of showing the returns of elections held, which shall be filled in by the Chairman, and of which one copy shall be forwarded by him to the Department of Public Works and the other posted in a public place for inspection. We consider it will be a great preventative against irregular expenditure to have these returns posted in the localities where the money is spent. Section (50) provides to whom the money shall be sent. For ordinary public works the money is to go to the Boards; and whilst it is thought, perhaps, that the Act specially provides that all public monies should go to those Boards, yet sub-section (B) of section (50) makes this very clear. However, the main object of the amendment is to deal with any public works needing expert management and that the Board cannot undertake, as sub-section (2) says:

"In the case of any area in which work of an unusual nature is to be done, requiring for its proper performance the direction of an expert or experts, the Governor in Council, on the recommendation of the Minister of Public Works, may pay over the said votes and grants, or any portion thereof, either to the Superintendent of Public Works, or to the Government Engineer, or to any Road or Marine Works Inspector or any other person or Commission appointed by him for that purpose, in lieu of paying the said moneys or the said part thereof to the Board. The moneys so paid shall be controlled by the person or persons to whom they are paid and expended upon the work done as aforesaid under his or their supervision."

This will deal with every public work like the building of a breakwater or pier, or the deepening of a Tickle or anything that requires the services of an engineer.

Turning over to section three of the Act there is another amendment that deals with certain troubles that arise in isolated places in the country and one particular case came under my notice since last winter in Parsons' Pond in the district of St. Barbe. They asked for the privilege to elect a Board, but as they were only forty families in the place, under the Act, they could not be given a Board. They are a distance of twelve miles from Cow Head where there is a Board and we could not expect them to undergo the hardship of walking twenty-four miles to attend a meeting at Cow Head. And there are other places where thirty and forty families reside who would like to have their own money to handle in the best way possible. The amendment will meet these conditions. There are not many cases of this nature, probably a dozen altogether were brought under my notice. The last amendment is for the purpose of having all the elections in future held on the same date. As the matter stands now the Boards elected last February and last fall their time expires now. Other amendments that are thought desirable can be made when the Bill goes into Committee stage. Already I have some myself to submit to the House.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Speaker, I have just a word or two to say not so much in regard to the measure before the chair, but rather as an excuse to draw the attention of the Minister of Public Works to conditions over at Bell Island with regard to local affairs. Matters there are going to reach a very awkward stage unless something is done and done immediately. I have already drawn the attention of the Prime Minister to this matter, but now that he is not present this afternoon I will bring it under the notice of the real Leader of the Government, who is present and ask him as well as the Minister of Public Works to consider the matter. The situation over there, as the Minister of Public Works is aware, is that the marine and road grants have been distributed between two Councils; Lance Cove, where the third Council is, are petitioning that there is no one attending to their affairs at all. The Minister himself obliged them by sending Captain Bonia to Lance Cove to report upon the matter.

I would like also to say to the honourable the minister in charge that I think we ought to avail of the opportunity with a certain section in the old Local Affairs Act. It is too bad that it was passed by the House as it was. I remember when section three was passed and one would want to be a Philadelphia lawyer to understand it. It is really a disgrace because perhaps we did not give it honest attention and perhaps the honourable minister then was not as keen as the present one. Section three really means nothing. Now is the time to make any amendment and that is why I draw the attention of the honourable minister to it. It is a disgrace to the legislature and I feel sure that when the matters comes before the House it will be done credit to by the Honourable Minister of Justice.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—I may say in reply to the honourable member for St. John's East, that I shall be only too pleased to have legal advice to make it harder to understand. In reference to Bell Island I may say that a while ago I understood they were not satisfied to act any longer. However I learned lately that they have reconsidered their decision and will act until the Fall. Under those circumstances the grants for Bell Island will go to the Council.

MR. McDONNELL:—I would like to call the attention of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works to section four of sub-section two. It deals with our old friend the expert. Just reading it casually it appears to me that the Governor in Council can at any time replace the local road board by handing over the matter to some one called an EXPERT. We have some kind of a system whereby a road board is elected to do certain work but now altho it may be duly elected the work may be done by the so-called expert. I will oppose this when it comes before the House, in committee stage. I view those experts with holy horror. We have had them here on Water, Agriculture, and Model Farms and now we come in here with another expert. This expert is to take the place of the duly elected road board. I ask the minister not to bring this in or else define what this expert is, etc. I think section six which says that all elections shall be held on the same day is all right and go further and say that something should be put in that section saying who will select that day. At present it is selected haphazardly. The Minister of Public Works should have power to select the day. I shall have more to say about this when it comes again before the House in committee stage.

MR. FOX gives notice of introduction of Bill.

THE HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE gives notice of introduction of Bill.

MR. BENNETT:—I would like to ask the Honourable Minister of Posts and Telegraphs if he has that answer to my question re the postmistress at Tilton?

HON. MINISTER OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS:— Imay say in connection with the postmistress at Tilton that her services are no longer required and that it is in the interest of the district that she no longer retain that position.

Mr. Fox gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 3 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland entitled 'Of the Election of Members of the House of Assembly.'"

Mr. Fox gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act Respecting Commemoration Day."

Hon. the Prime Minister gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave t ointroduce a Bill entitled "An Act to amend 9 & 10 Geo. V Cap. XV Respecting Elections in the Present Year."

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

TUESDAY, June 8th, 1920.

The House met pursuant to adjournment.

MR. SMALL:—I ask leave to present a petition from the residents of Cape Ray asking that station agent be appointed there. It is signed by practically all the people of the settlement. The station is one mile from the settlement and it was built for an agent but apparently it has not been seen fit to put one there. It is really an necessity. When freight in the past has been put there it was pilfered. I trust the Colonial Secretary will do something in the matter and I support the petition.

CAPTAIN JONES:—I present a petition from the inhabitants of several settlements on the north side of Twillingate district. It asks that a railroad be built from Hall's Bay to the Main Line. It was proposed in the past to build this line and ever since the people down there have been talking about it among themselves about the proposed railroad but never took an active interest in it until the present time and ever since we have been talking about it but it has not been built yet. And we have been told and may be persuaded that it is impossible to build this railway at the present time under the existing conditions such as the high cost of material and labour. Any way I and my colleagues ask that if it is impossible to build this railway we may be accommodated with a decent road. So much has been said and legislation passed dealing with motor roads we have decided that if it is impossible to have this railway certainly the people ought to have a motor road so that we can travel and carry light freight. In the fall of the year we have to get as best we can supplies for the winter. It is true we get the necessaries of life and how we do that is a matter of conjecture. Anyway we have been short of many things we require. Many people have been short of supplies, sugar and butter. Some people have tried to get their supplies over the railroad. They have paid the freight as far as Millertown Junction, and it has cost them 7 cents a pound to get it from there, so that to the present cost they have been obliged to add 7 cents per pound.

Then again there is the travelling condition. I will quote one instance to show the actual conditions. The Fall before last the Prospero took a cargo of herring at Little Bay Islands, and two young men finding that they had a nice bill at their disposal came to St. John's for a two or three weeks' holiday. On returning they had engaged a dog team to take them from Millertown Junction. The team cost them $50.00 and they had to put on snowshoes to make a path ahead of the dog team. At the very cheapest rate it costs $20.00 to get from the head of the Bay to the Junction at Millertown. In winter and spring there is always great inconvenience in travelling. We get a mail about once in fifteen or twenty days in the fall and spring. If we cannot get a railroad, there is no reason why we could not get a motor road. I thought from some of the remarks that were passed here regarding the improvements of roads that may be we would have to get some cars before we would get the road, but I hope it will not be as hard as that. There are many thousands of people who would be benefitted by this road. If a road were built many cars would be bought and the revenue increased. I have no objection, whatever, to the people in St. John's having good motor roads for whatever pleasure there is in it, as I have shown by not raising any objection, but I trust, and I appeal to hon. members that are citizens of St. John's that they will support this

Then again there are valuable mineral claims along this road. Mr. Speaker, you may have heard of the Gull Lake mineral claim. Two local men have recently gone to New York and made arrangements with a company there for the opening up of this claim; but the claim is about 20 miles from the road and the first thing they want is a road to enable them to get supplies to begin with. I hope the Government will see its way clear to grant this petition.

HON. MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—Mr. Speaker, I rise to support the prayer of this petition. I do so because I know of the great need for a road in this place. It is reported that our opponents went around last fall with a railroad in their pockets, and I suppose that is one reason why they should have been elected instead of our humble selves. A road should be put there to take freight to and from Millertown Junction. The herring fishery cannot be carried on at the present time to make it pay unless the people have some outlet for their products. I hope the Government at the earliest possible convenience will grant the prayer of this petition.

MR. SAMSON:—Mr. Speaker, I support the prayer of this petition as it has already been explained. It is a very great necessity, and I wish to give it my very hearty support.

MR. HIGGINS gave notice of question.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN gave notice of question.

HON. COLONIAL SECRETARY:—

The property in question was purchased from Mrs. Thompson for the sum of $29,000.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked the Hon. Minister of Justice if the Commission promised to inquire into the Woodford Affidavit are yet appointed, if not, why not.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—I would ask the Hon. Leader of the Opposition to allow that question to remain over till to-morrow.

SIR M. P. CASHIN, inthe absence of Mr. Bennett, asked the Hon. Colonial Secretary to lay on the Table of the House a certified copy of Minute constituting the present Board of Review of Separation Allowances, giving date when said Minute was passed.

HON. COLONIAL SECRETARY:—I have here the Minute of Council which is dated Dec. 16th, 1919, and approved by His Excellency the Governor December 17th. I may say that Mr. Hickman was consulted and he said that he considered the sum of $250.00 for the work done reasonable and just.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked the Colonial Secretary what action the Agriculture and Mines Department have taken to stop the forest fires along the Southern Shore, have they sent out any person from the Department to enquire and report, give the names of wardens appointed from St. John's or temporary warden, and table the report sent in from each warden.

HON. COLONIAL SECRETARY:—I beg to table the information which has been handed to me by the Minister of Agriculture and Mines.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked the Minister of Public Works to table the amount of money allocated for road work in Ferryland district, both local and main line, since April 1st to date, giving the names to whom allocated.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—I beg to table the reply.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, I beg to table the report of the Militia Dept. covering the period from April 1st, 1919, to March 31st, 1920, and also the Financial Statement from July 1st, 1918, to June 30th, 1919.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Mr. Speaker, I have received no answer to the question I asked the Minister of Public Works. Why I asked that question yesterday was because in the District of Ferryland an immense amount of work has been done on the roads the past fortnight. The main line road from Tor's Cove to Aquaforte has been gone over completely and been repaired and it was never in better condition than it is right now. I understand the work is being looked after by Mr. Hartery, my opponent in the last election, who came to St. John's and was authorized to undertake these repairs. I think I am safe in saying that he must have hundreds of men employed out there and surely goodness it is not possible that all this has been done without the knowledge of the Minister of Public Works whose department has the absolute control and direction of such work as is now being done. Some individual must have authorized it and the answer handed me by the Minister is a reply to a question I asked in this House a month ago and this work has been undertaken within the past fortnight. Mr. Hartery has been authorized to spend certain monies with the understanding that payment is to be made by the Government after the Estimates are passed and it is not alone curious that the Minister of Public Works is ignorant of this, but it is placing him in an extremely humiliating position to have this thing taken completely out of his hands and I would like to know whether or not he really knows anything about this work.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—I might say that I have no further information to give the hon. member on that point. If any work is being done it has not been authorized by my department and no money has been allocated for it.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Do I understand that the Public Works Department will pay for this work when the vote is passed. Are you in a position to say that you will not authorize the payment of the bills?

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—It will have to receive a certain amount of consideration but I am not prepared to stand for anything of this kind and if Mr. Hartery has done the work referred to by the Leader of the Opposition, he will have to pay for it out of his own pocket so far as my department is concerned.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—I am glad to hear you say that. I look upon you as one of the most honest men in this House and I hope you wont allow yourself to be made a tool of in this matter. As I pointed out yesterday, Ferryland District is being prostituted for the sake of satisfying political spite. The Government has taken upon itself to dismiss the fire-wardens there with what we now know to be disastrous results and then they go to work and dismiss the Road Boards. I recommend that wardens be appointed and I do so again. I don't care whom you appoint so long as they will do the work. They should have been appointed early in May when fires usually start. Since the railway has been operating in Ferryland District nothing has ever happened like what is occuring now. Men were always appointed to patrol the line from Trepassey to the Goulds and it took all their attention to prevent fires from starting by sparkes lodging in the dead grass along the side of the track. Now, what is the position to-day? All that splendid forest on the banck of Chance Cove is burning and the woods on the back of LeManche are in flames and this is the principal timber limit in the district where fishermen from all over the district go for fishing material, boat-building timber, spars, etc., but no step has been taken to deal with the situation. The district is being practically burnt from end to end, I ask is this the way these people should be treated? In Witless Bay on Sunday, the whole congregation had to get out with buckets and axes to save their church and convent from destruction and the same conditions prevailed at Mobile; still the Agriculture and Mines Department did not even send a man to enquire into the danger that existed. I must say, however, in fairness to Dr. Campbell that he appointed a couple of wardens out there as soon as I wired him on Sunday and they did immense good too, but they should send out a special man to patrol the whole district.

Second reading of Council's amendments to "Income War Tax Act."

On motion of Hon. Minister of Justice these amendments were read a second time and ordered to be read a third time on to-morrow.

Third reading of Bill entitled "An Act to Amend the Pilotage Act, 1917."

On motion of Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries this Bill was read a third time and ordered to be engrossed and sent to the Legislative Council with a message asking the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Committee of the Whole on Bill entitled "An Act to Amend Chapter 162 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Prosecution of the Seal Fishery.'"

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the chair of Committee.

MR. FOX:—Mr. Chairman, as I stated yesterday, the necessity of having the present sealing law amended to the extent provided for in this Bill, was brought home to me on the occasion of certain prosecutions a short time ago and accordingly this Bill was drafted with the concurrence of the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

Sub-section 7 is amended as follows:

The effect of this will be that no steamer shall be able to clear for the sealfishery unless she has the quantity and quality of food on board to meet the requirements of the Act

Amendments—

Reading of Bill—

MR. SULLIVAN:—I think Mr. Chairman that it is absolutely necessary for the inspectors to visit quarters not twice a week but twice a day. I am in favour of the Bill and I think it is time to appoint such men, but if they are going to inspect quarters twice a week it would be just as well to keep them on shore.

MR. FOX:—You will find that the amendment makes it read "once a day."

MR. SULLIVAN:—Mr. Chairman, might I ask if it is the intention that if a man be guilty of keeping his quarters dirty that he is liable to a fine of $100 or imprisonment and that half of the fine is to go to the inspector.

MR. FOX:—It is absolutely necessary to have somebody responsible to see that the quarters are kept clean. The members of the crew will only be too glad to keep their quarters clean and the one hundred dollars is a maximum penalty.

MR. SULLIVAN:—I quite agree with the intention alright but you are giving the inspectors too much power. Why should any of the fine be given to an inspector. He is going out there and he is having a cushy job and is getting the same share as the other men, and you are practically giving him a chance of bringing in fictitious claims.

MR. HIGGINS:—I support the contention of the hon. member for the district of Placentia and St. Mary's. I am glad to see we have a Coaker on this side of the House and that he is following in the footsteps of the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries in bringing in fishery legislature, but I am sorry that he has the autocratic manner of the Hon. Minister. I must say that I am surprised that my colleague for St. John's East is bringing in such legislation.

Committee on amendments to Public Affairs Act.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—

Mr. Chairman, in sub-section (3) I would like to have the words added: "That no fee be charged for convening a meeting." I find that some of the parties who authorized the holding of such meetings in the past used to charge five dollars. The expenses of such meetings are supposed to come out of the grants. I do not think it is fair for any Magistrate to make a charge. I might say that no case in which a Chairman of a Road Board charged came under my notice.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Chairman, with regard to the suggestion of the Hon. Minister, I do not think it is fair to expect a Magistrate to do work that is not part of his magisterial duties. Take the highest judiciary in the country to-day, anything he does outside his regular judicial work he is compensated for it. The Magistrate who sits in the Magistrate Court in St. John's at an ordinary Marine Court of enquiry expects to be compensated for it. You cannot expect him to do the work for nothing. Fortunately, the principle in this Bill does not affect the Magistrate here,, and the reason why I discuss it in an abstract way is that it is not likely to give much worry in the territory in which I am interested. Besides the Chairmen of Road Boards are paid already for that kind of work, however small. I would like to say to the Minister that this principle is very drastic to foist all sorts of work upon an outport Magistrate, and I think it would be unwise to adopt that principle.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—Suppose we specified a certain fee, say two dollars.

MR. HIGGINS:—I am not opposing the Bill, but I merely advise the Minister to consider this matter carefully before putting it in the Bill, and I say this with some little knowledge of how Magistrates are going to feel about the matter.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—I see some reason why Justices of the Peace should be paid for doing this kind of work because they are not paid any regular salary; but in regard to Magistrates, people look upon them in the outports as being able to do this work, without extra charge.

MR. HIGGINS:—I thought that you had become civilized and that your viewpoint had become broadened and enlarged. What happens to-day, under the law. A Magistrate goes on Public Health work or anything of that character and for which he is paid; why inflict road work on him and not pay him. The principle is wrong, but, as I said before, I do not object to it, but I think the Minister is making a mistake.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—I am quite satisfied that Magistrates should not get anything for holding public meetings, but that Justices of the Peace should.

MR. HIGGINS:—I would like to hear the Minister of Justice as to what he thinks of that as a principle.

MINISTER OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS:—Mr. Chairman, I would like to know what is being done with the point raised by the hon. member for St. John's East, because I think that if somebody does not take an interest in this matter we are going to have another farcical Act tacked on to our Statutes. The attention of the Minister of Justice has been called to this, but there is no response, and that is one of the reasons why there are so many unworkable Acts on our Statute Books. I think that the imposition of a fine of $100 on a Chairman for failing to elect a Road Board will be found unworkable. It is no use to get a man to do this sort of work and subject him to a fine, because it shows that the interest of the people in the management of their own affairs is at a low ebb. When a Justice of the Peace gets his appointment he considers there is a little honor to it at first, but after a month or two he finds it a sort of trouble and annoyance to him because he does not get paid for work that he is called upon to do, and, under this section of the Act, if he does not feel inclined to convene a meeting and act as Chairman of a Road Board, he is fined $100. With regard to Magistrates, it may be alright, perhaps, for them to take the work to do, without fee.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—With regard to this form, the reason this was included is because people in the past who were instructed to hold elections neglected to do so and gave no valid reason for such neglect. It is quite easy for a man, who does not feel inclined to act, to inform the Public Works Department to that effect, and, under the Act, he has the privilege to hold meetings or not, so that another man can be procured. Every chance is given, and the reason why this clause is inserted in the Bill is to deal with people who are careless and who neglect deliberately over those matters.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Chairman, I think that this section should be completely thrown out. It really comes down to the position of frightening people from taking any responsibility in the matter at all, because of the impending fine of $100.

After all, the person primarily responsible for calling a meeting is the Magistrate. Now if a Magistrate does not live within the prescribed area, the duty devolves upon the Justice of the Peace, who does not get paid at all and who does not, as a rule interfere very much, except when specially called upon, therefore, I do not see how you can impose upon a Justice of the Peace duties for the carrying out of which he will not be paid and yet be made liable to a fine of $100. And then after the Justice of the Peace the next man called to perform the work is the Chairman, and, if he does not do it the Minister of Public Works then calls upon some other person to convene a meeting, subjected to a fine for not carrying out the duties properly of course, and the result will be that the Minister will not get anybody to convene a meeting. It will all come down to this that every man will resign rather than render himself liable to the fine mentioned. It is only natural to expect that the Justices of the Peace will resign because he does not get paid and probably there will be no meetings held at all. There are no meetings called off to-day where there is a Magistrate. In Conception Bay I know that the Magistrate takes charge of the thing and does his best to apply his knowledge of the law. Some of them have been irregular and the people have not been satisfied but that can be got over by this section in this Act (Respecting Local Affairs) but as far as the Magistrate is concerned he will do his best. He cannot resign, he gets a salary and he will take his chance. But the people with whom it will be a labour of love will resign rather than get themselves into any difficulty resulting in having to pay a fine of one hundred dollars. And after all I think after one sees all these Road Boards elected by the people the people will be inclined to take to this manner of spending the money rather then handing it over to a few individuals who have been favoured by the members for the district. And I would suggest to the Minister the advisability of not making a penal offence for anybody to neglect this matter because then you will not get anybody to undertake any responsibility of any shape or form.

MR. HIGGINS:—I want to help the Minister out but I will repeat that it is due to this lack of interest in this measure (Respecting the Local Affairs Act) just as the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs illustrates, that it is absolutely necessary that little more thought be given this measure before it is gone through. They are going to pass this measure as it stands but up to the present we are not correcting that which exists to-day. What is really required is this and I address the members opposite because they are vitally concerned in the outports and especially the Minister of Public Works, that the Committee rise so that the matter be gone into to consider the further necessary amendments of these sections which up to the present time have been a joke. I say not in any sense reflecting upon the honourable minister. I defy any man on the other side to tell me what section three means. This is the section which creates the Road Boards and put into operation the necessary machinery and under this the Act is called into being. Now we ought to remedy this senseless section and to do so further amendments are required here and because I know the Minister of Public Works wants to grapple with every difficulty I think it worth his while to have the Committee rise and then have this Act further considered and he will find that very radical changes are required to be made to section three. In order that he might have the opportunity to do that I suggest to him that. As has been remarked here he is perhaps the only really interested person here because may be of his department. It is only idle for us to sit down here and go on because we will not give the matter the necessary thought and in justice to the members on the other side who represent those districts which require the Local Affairs Act, I repeat to the Minister that the Committee rise.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—I wish to endorse the suggestion made by the late speaker that the Committee rise to give time to further consider the Act. I read it for the first time this morning and I myself could suggest some improvements and therefore endorse the suggestion made by the late speaker.

MR. McDONNELL:—I suggest so that we may get out of the difficulty of the parties resigning just as the Minister of Justice said, that we embody in this Bill that the members of the district go round and hold the meetings. I think this would be a good idea. Then there would be no opportunity to resign to get clear of the fine.

The House adjourned until 3 of the clock on to-morrow.

THURSDAY, June 10th, 1920.

The House met at 3.30 p.m., pursuant to adjournment.

MR. ABBOTT:—Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to present a petition from the inhabitants of Amherst Cove, in the district of Bonavista, asking for the sum of $200 to repair a washout and replace a landing which was carried away there during a storm. The petition is signed by Joseph Little, Hy. Little and a large number of others.

I also ask leave to present a petition from the inhabitants of Salvage and Bishop's Cove asking for a sum of money for repairs to the road from the East Tickle, Alexander Bay to Tray Town, a distance of six or seven miles. It appears that this road was opened some twenty years ago and nothing has since been done to it altho petitions were sent to previous governments time and again on the matter but were ignored by them. I give the prayer of both those petitions my hearty support and ask that they be referred to the department to which they relate.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to present two petitions, one from Flat Islands in the District of Burin and the other from Oderin. The reason why the former was sent to me for presentation is because it deals with the matter on which the people of Oderin are petitioning, namely that of telegraph communication for that place and the people of Flat Islands have been good enough to back up the request by also sending in a petition. Both are largely signed, that from Oderin having the signatures of Rev. Fr. Dee and all the residents of the place. This matter has been before the House on several occasions and has been the subject of constant correspondence for the last three or four years. Now Sir, as many hon. members well know, Oderin is the centre of the large and important parish of Oderin and at present the people suffer very great hardship because of lack of communication.

Oderin is more suitable because at any season it can be approached. I understand that the Prime Minister has had some communications in reference to this matter and I have every confidence that he will make some provision for it in the estimates. Anything that he may do will be absolutely appreciated by the petitioners. I am sure that this will receive the support of the hon. members for Burin and I want to apologize for not dislocating the two petitions and asking them to present one of them, that is the one from Flat Islands. It was only through the courtesy of the people of Flat Islands that they decided to support the petition of the people of Oderin. I give this my heartiest support and I bespeak the consideration of the Government and I ask that it be referred to the department to which it relates.

MR. SULLIVAN:—I fully endorse all that has been said by my colleague Mr. Walsh in reference to the petition now being presented. Oderin is an island as you know that is most accessible and yet it has none of the conveniences that a great many other such parts of the country are enjoying. It has no communication whatever except a visit from the Argyle about once a week. I think that it should have some means of communication with the outside world. When you come to consider the grave dangers that the inhabitants of Oderin have to contend with in order to follow their work, this can't be done unless their needs are attended to. It is a matter for the Government to decide which they will do. If it is not possible to lay a cable from Flat Islands to Oderin it may be possible to lay one from Oderin to Baine Hr. If this can't be done I ask that one of these small telegraph stations be erected. I bespeak the support of the members of Burin and I know that they will back us up on this petition.

MR. SINNOTT:—I beg leave to support the petition of my colleagues Mr. Walsh and Mr. Sullivan.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I am very happy to have this matter brought to the attention of the Government by the senior member for the district of Placentia and St. Mary's, Mr. Walsh, and in so far as it relates t oa telegraph office for Oderin, but the latter part of the petition cannot be considered at the present time. The island of Oderin is capable of becoming a great centre if it were linked up by cable connection and would prove of great advantage to the colony for the reporting of ships, etc. I met a representative of the Wireless Telegraph Co. who was in town some time ago and discussed with him the feasibility of placing a wireless station at Oderin either telegraph or telephone. I also got in touch with the Anglo-American Telegraph Co. with the object of purchasing some second hand cable in good condition at a reasonable figure, as the cost of new cable would be enormous to-day. I also discussed the probability of placing a chain of small wireless stations in different isolated spots in the colony which would be of great advantage to the trade. The request of the petition relating to the establishing cable connection at Oderin is already granted with a view to developing conditions in this country.

MR. CHEESEMAN:—I have much pleasure in supporting the prayer of this petition. I have considerable personal knowledge of Oderin and I am sure if it was in communication with the land there is every prospect that it would some day become the centre of a great fishing industry. Every year the people of Oderin secure a good portion of the catch, they are hard working and industrious people and judging from the remarks made by the Hon. Prime Minister their petition will receive the consideration that it merits. I am very happy to give it my heartiest support.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, I am very glad that the hon. member for Placentia, Mr. Walsh, made reference to the very great importance of telegraph connection with the island of Oderin, Placentia. Oderin is an important settlement. Some years ago it was a magisterial centre, but for some time past the magistracy has been vacant, as an effort was being made by the residents of the place to secure a resident medical practitioner at Oderin and if so, it was thought probable that he might be appointed Magistrate. It is the policy of this Administration to encourage medical practitioners to settle in leading outports, and in the case of a suitable man the appointment as Magistrate would be very helpful. Such a man would naturally by education and training be competent to undertake the duties of a Magistrate and the salary would be an encouragement for him to remain in the district. A few months ago I took into consideration the matter of telegraph connection between Oderin and the mainland. For it to be the place of residence of a Magistrate and Doctor, it is almost imperatively necessary that it should have telegraph connection. Oderin is, I believe, a settlement which if it had telegraph connection might develop into a very important commercial centre. I have discussed with the Superintendent of the Anglo-American Telegraph Company the matter of the cost of cable and find that the price of new cable would be prohibitive. A few weeks ago I learnt that there was a quantity of old cable which would be guaranteed satisfactory for the volume of business to be transacted between Oderin and the mainland that could be obtained at a reasonable figure. I have also had an opportunity of recently discussing the question of installation of a wireless telegraph or wireless telephone between isolated sections of the Island of Newfoundland and the question as to whether it is practical and economical for Oderin to be connected with the mainland by wireless telegraph or wireless telephone is a matter which is being inquired into. I support the prayer of the petition insofar as the petition relates to telegraph connection between Oderin and the mainland. The other portion of the petition relates to a matter of which I have no personal knowledge, and I consequently at this moment can express no opinion on it.

MR. SULLIVAN:—I ask leave to present a petition or at least a number of petitions from the inhabitants of the district of Placentia and St. Mary's on the subject of a modification of the present prohibition laws. This petition is signed by practically all the male inhabitants of Isle of Allan, Bar Haven, River Head St. Mary's, St. Ann's. In view of the fact that up to the present time a great number of petitions for an amendment to the Prohibition Act have been brought into this House nothing has yet been done and they are apparently ignored. The Prime Minister in his Manifesto stated that the present prohibition law was a farce and that it should be amended. I hope that he has not altered his views. The prohibition law as it stands is a farce. It is not what it was anticipated to be when it was placed on the Statute Book and I hope the Government will give due consideration to these petitions.

MR. WALSH:—I have very much pleasure in supporting all that has been said by my colleague Mr. Sullivan and it is only reasonable to suppose that the petitions presented will receive the very serious consideration of the Government, and I hope that some amendment will be made.

MR. SINNOTT:—I have very much pleasure in supporting the petitions presented by my colleague Mr. Walsh.

The House resolved itself into Committee of the Whole, on the Bill an Act to amend Local Affairs in Outport Districts.

Mr. Scammell took the chair of Committee.

HON. THE MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—Mr. Chairman, when I read this Bill the other day, there was some difference of opinion on sub-section three, section one, and the Committee decided to delete that section altogether. As we continue going through the Act the other alterations will be pointed out.

In section four, sub-section one, the word "annual" is deleted. The word "wharves" is inserted before "Breakwater."

Further on the words requiring for its performance the direction of an expert or experts, are deleted, and it reads: In the case of an area in which work of an unusual nature is done, the Governor in Council on recommendation of the Minister of Public Works, may pay over the said votes and grants, or any portion thereof, either to the Superintendent of Public Works, or to the Government Engineer, or to any Road or Marine Works Inspector, or any other person or Commission appointed by the Minister of Public Works, for that purpose, in lieu of paying the said moneys, or the said part thereof, to the Board. The moneys so paid shall be controlled by the person or persons, to whom they are paid, and expended upon the work, as done aforesaid, under his, or their supervision.

Second reading of Bill entitled "An Act to amend Cap. XV of 9 and 10 Geo. V entitled 'An Act Respecting Elections in the Present Year.'"

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:— This Bill is brief and I feel sure will meet with the unanimous concurrence of the House. The Voters' List used in the 1919 autumn elections was the list taken in the year 1917, together with additional Soldiers' List compiled from the records of the Militia Department. To make the use of these lists legal in the 1919 general elections a special Act was passed in the last session of the Legislature. That enactment deals with elections during "the present year." That might be construed to mean the calendar year of 1919, and probably that is what it means, but in any event it could not be construed to deal with any period beyond the expiry of a year from the fifth day of June, 1919, the Act being assented to on the 5th day of June, 1919. The latter construction was the one which was applied to the Bill for the purposes of the bye-elections through the country in November and the bye-elections in St. John's West in January last. By no construction of the Act, however, is it possible to use the 1917 Voters' List and the 1919 Volunteers' List for the purposes of an election to be held in the District of Bay de Verde on the 24th day of the present month of June. Mr. Hickman, through his solicitor, Mr. McNeily, communicated with His Excellency the Governor lately, taking exception to the use of the 1917 List in the pending Bay de Verde bye-election. Mr. Hickman, it will be remembered, was one of the candidates for the Opposition Party in the autumn election. Mr. McNeily on his behalf, and I presume on behalf of the Opposition, contended that it was undesirable that these lists should be used, suggesting that by their use a considerable number of electors would be disfranchised. The Government felt that the position taken by the Opposition in this regard was reasonable; there had been considerable trouble in the autumn of 1919 and in the January election because of the use of a Voters' List which was three years old. A proclamation was consequently issued calling for the taking of a new Voters' List for the District of Bay de Verde. It was a matter of no importance to the Government as to whether a new Voters' List was taken or whether an Act was introduced extending the operation of the 1919 Act, but in my opinion the taking of a new Voters' List was preferable. The effect of this Act is, first, to legalize the Voters' List which is now being taken, and second, to legalize the use of the special soldiers' list prepared by the Department of Militia in the year 1919 and used in the general election of the autumn of 1919 and the bye-elections in January last. I am quite sure that the House will recognize this as an absolutely non-partizan measure, and that my honourable friends opposite who are interested in the campaign will on behalf of their candidate realize that this measure is entirely in the public interests. I consequently move that this Bill be now read a second time.

Second reading of Protection of Animals Act.

MR. FOX:—In moving the second reading of this Bill (Of the Protection of Animals) might I say that it has for its object the prevention of certain acts of cruelty. In the past in actions against certain offenders under the act it has happened that altho the Magistrate was anxious to promote the ends of justice he finds he cannot do so because the only way to effect that would be by preventing the offender from owning an animal. Sometimes it has happened that the same offender would be up for acts of cruelty a half dozen times so it has therefore been found by the Society that it is very necessary to have an amendment to the present S. P.C.A. Act to this effect that "In any proceedings for an offence against this Chapter, if the sitting justice shall find that any defendant owning an animal to which the proceedings relate is not a fit person to be allowed to own it, he shall make an order that such animal be confiscated and sold (after one advertisement' at public auction; and the proceeds of such sale (after deducting costs of the proceedings before the justice if ordered, and the costs and expenses incidental to the sale and keep of the animal pending sale) shall be paid to such owner." This merely means that when an owner of an animal takes an animal and continues to ill-treat he is to be prevented from owning it. This does not interfere with the owning of property and will not bear hardly upon the owner of the ill-treated animal because altho it is confiscated the proceeds after deducting certain incurred costs shall be paid to the owner. I feel sure that the House will concur in the humane tendency of this amendment and the amendment will secure the whole support of the Assembly. Section two is merely a formal amendment. Section three is also a formal amendment. It is really an amendment to the main Act. I move the second reading.

Second reading of Woman Suffrage Bill.

MR. FOX:—Mr. Speaker, before this amendment passes, might I say, that I regret very much the attitude of the Government, although it was not unexpected. They played their part in a manner, which I did expect. For example, when a petition from the women of Newfoundland was presented a few weeks ago two honourable and gallant gentlemen on the Government side of the House presented it. They are absent to-day, because they did not want to be here, when they were told how to vote.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. LeGrow, as the sitting member for Bay de Verde, in this House, is in Bay de Verde, now, where his duty lies.

MR. FOX:—Viewing the situation in the light which the Hon. the Prime Minister has thrown upon it, that explains the absence of Mr. LeGrow but, it does not explain the absence of two men, who a few weeks ago, came in here, and gave this petition their support ,and to-day when their presence is more necessary, they refrain from attending.

Now the part that the Hon. the Minister of Public Works has played is one that I did not think he would play. I regret, Sir, that the Hon. Minister has seen well to take the position that he took here this evening; I regret, Sir, that he has indicated so strongly the dependent position that he occupies in the Government; I regret, Sir, that he and the hon. member for Trinity, have so plainly indicated that when the voice higher up says jump, that they are ready to jump, and further, Sir, I regret that sufficient spirit is not noticeable in the ranks of the Government to make any member on the other side of the House get up and support this petition. It clearly indicates how much right the present Government has to the title of Liberal Reform Party when it refuse to back up the biggest reform movement that the world has undertaken for the past fifty years. It is quite in keeping with the hypocritical attitude of the Government who went to the country last fall with upraised hands and holy faces and who to-day confess publicly that they were not sincere in their protestations of reform last November. In a sense this does not surprise me, but the position taken by the Hon. the Minister of Public Works does surprise me. He would not like anybody to think that he disagrees with the principle of the Bill, but he was too weak-kneed to see it through when he did agree with it. If he is to be taken at his own valuation then once he agreed with the principle of the Bill he should lose no time in having it brought into effect and out of his own mouth he has refuted his argument. Agreeing with the principle necessitates seeing it through and no argument could be adduced for the six months hoist which is proposed to be given it. The Government thinks that there will not be an election before four years pass. It may follow that such is the case but, it may be that the Government is entirely wrong, for all we know we might have an election next Fall, and that is not sufficient excuse for putting this Bill off till the next session of this Assembly. In view of the opinion in favour of this Bill that the Hon. the Minister of Public Works has expressed, how can he reconcile his mind to and what argument can adduce in support of the six months hoist that has been attempted to be given to this Bill. The Government is busy, they have no time to attend to it. The request of the women of Newfoundland is of such a trivial nature and is so entirely inconsequential, that owing to the important business of this session the Govt. has not time to attend to this petition, and yet Sir, we spent only eight hours last week in the transaction of this important business. Last week we spent from six to eight hours in transacting the legislative business of Newfoundland, and during that time the Government could have taken up that Act and passed it if they felt so inclined and it would now be on its way to the Legislative Chamber for approval. The Government has the hypocrisy to say that they have not time, and yet they have time to delay and adjourn this House at four o'clock and four-thirty every afternoon for the past week, they have time to waste hours and hours over unimportant matters, but they have not time to spend an afternoon in dealing with a matter of such grave importance as this measure before the chair. Could hypocrisy go further? Do the leaders of the Government think that the people of Newfoundland are blind? Don't they credit them with some intelligence? Do they think that we can accept the proposal advanced by the Hon. Minister of Public Works on the flimsy excuse that the Government has not time to attend to the Bill? It is too ridiculous, and I only mention it because it is another instance of the hypocrisy of the Government which they displayed so fully last Fall. I always had the idea that the protestations of reform given by the Government last November were shallow and insincere, but I never realized fully until to-day that these gentlemen who went to the country last Fall with upraised hands and holy faces were hypocrites, or at least there was no evidence of it until to-day. The Government may well recognise that franchise for women is coming. Just as surely as I stand on the floors of this House it is coming, and the day will come when the Government will rue the position they took to-day in this matter. I always thought that the Hon. the Prime Minister was a man of certain political wisdom with a certain happy knack of intuitive insight into matters connected with public life. I never thought he was so blind to his own interests as to comport himself in the manner in which he has to-day and train his party to say no to a petition from the women of the country for what they should have. I am surprised at a man of his intelligence to take such a position and tie the knot which will one day hang him to the political gallows of Newfoundland. Does he not realize, Sir, that the people whom he is turning down have a large amount of influence and that the attitude which he has adopted will bring its own punishment? If he does not, he should, and it is not within my province to point out his error to him. As his political opponent, and trusting that I will continue so, I welcome the attitude of the Government of which he is leader. I see in it, Sir, just another means of one day taking from their hands the reins of office in Newfoundland, but, Sir, in another sense I am surprised and disgusted at the hypocrisy with which they have approached this matter. I am surprised, Sir, that a few weeks ago they could sit down here and say to the supporters of this petition yes, we are in support of your petition, and that two members should get up and support it from their places on the other side of the House and to-day, because it does not fit in with their scheme of political expediency they should deliberately turn it down. Be that as it may, on their own heads be the punishment. The day is coming when the people whom you have turned down will have the power placed in their own hands to take revenge on those who thwarted them in getting rights to safeguard their own interests.

The attitude assumed by the Hon. the Minister of Public Works reminds me of the Mikado, or the Lord High Executioner. It shall not go through because I have not been approached upon the matter. Curfew shall not ring to-night because he does not draw the string. Does he think that the women of his district cannot formulate a request without first getting his consent? Does he think that the women of Newfoundland must do without the vote unless he is approached in a manner becoming to his exalted position? Does he think that there must be a train of women waiting upon him before this measure can receive the consideration of this Assembly. He knows that this petition does receive the attention, and has received the support of the women of Twillingate, and he was only burking the issue when he attempted to get out of a disagreeable situation caused by his playing the part he was told to play in this matter.

As to the member for Trinity, he has not given his reasons for supporting the amendment advanced by the Hon. the Minister of Public Works so I will not cross swords with him, but I must again express my surprise at the lack of wisdom displayed by the Government in this matter. This movement will come as surely as responsible government came to the Colony, and may as well face the fact that in spite of them the Franchise Bill for women will be placed upon the Statute Book of Newfoundland, and I trust that I shall have the distinction of seeing this come to pass.

MR .TARGETT:—Mr. Speaker, I would like to make a few remarks with regard to the Woman's Sufffage Bill.

I intended to congratulate the hon. member for St. John's East, Mr. Fox, after he made his speech, and I can assure the gentleman that he is not more in favour of the Woman's Suffrage Bill than I am. I am very sorry for the assertions which he made. He said that the Government were led by the Hon. the Prime Minister, and I want to tell the hon. gentleman, here and now, that the Premier never mentioned to me in this House how I ought to vote, and I can tell him that it would be just as well for the Premier, or anybody else to snap his fingers at me as to tell me how to vote. I am not married to the Premier, I always use the dictates of my own conscience, while at the same time I always like to get information from other people. But I wish to say that I am in favor of the Suffrage for Women and I am going to vote accordingly. I do not know whether it is going to be passed this year or next, but, as I said before, no member ever hinted to me as to what he was or was not going to do in the matter, and I am very sorry that the hon. member for St. John's East made such an assertion here to-day as far as I am personally concerned. I do not know the reason why the Minister of Public Works spoke the way he did on this matter. He certainly never spoke a word to me about it, nor did the ladies of Trinity district ever speak a word to me about it, nor do I want them to do so. I repeat that I am prepared to vote for the measure when it comes before this House of Assembly again.

MR. FOX:—Mr. Speaker, in moving the second reading of this Bill it follows almost as a natural consequence the petition by the women of Newfoundland claiming the franchise. The bill needs very little introduction to the members, but I would ask that the bill be regarded not from the standpoint of courtesy or sentimentality, but in the cold calculated light as seen by other countries of the world. The bill is intended to give to the women of Nfld. the right of suffrage as full as that enjoyed by the men. For that purpose this bill is intended to amend the Election Act by striking out section 3 subsection (a) of the chapter and substituting therefor "The express 'person' means any person, male or female." Then sec. 4 is amended by inserting on the first line of the section after the word "male" and before the words "British Subject the words "or female." The other change is that in the whole Act unless the context otherwise requires, words importing the masculine gender shall be held to include the feminine gender and vice versa.

These changes will I feel sure get recognition and acceptance by all the members of the Assembly. I feel sure that every honorable member is conversant with modern constitutional enactments on this subject. I regard it as nothing more than a recognition of the right. It is a right that has been granted to women of other countries, and Newfoundland women ask that they be put on the same level as these women. In New Zealand the measure met with ready acceptance. Australia quickly came to the forefront. Canada, during the war, followed in a similar course. America followed suit. And England will have untold benefit as a result of the adoption of the measure. I have never heard a valid argument against conferring upon women this function. We have been approached without any militant spirit, without any vindictiveness. When we regard the place that women held in Newfoundland to-day, when we regard the part played by them during the war, when we see our banks and offices staffed by women, when we see the social, religious and moral benefit,—when we see that Newfoundland is benefiting by all these advantages how can we have the impudence and arrogance not to grant it.

Ido not think that we should regard the granting of this function as a matter of courtesy. I look at it as a matter of duty and necessity, something that should be granted as by right, and that strengthens their position to-day. When they come along and ask us to direct our attention to the merits of the proposed measure, and we view it from the point that it is going to confer upon the country the benefit of their service, I cannot conceive of a single argument against it.

HON. MINISTER PUBLIC WORKS:—Mr. Speaker, I don't want it to be understood that I am opposed to the principle of this Bill but I don't think it is quite fair to have it sprung upon us at such short notice. Women suffrage is at present confined to St. John's and nothing has been received from the outports. Mr. Speaker I wish to propose an amendment that this Bill be read a second time six months from today.

MR. MOORE:—I must congratulate the Government for the stand they have taken in this matter but perhaps they have not considered the great part the women of Newfoundland have played in the war and I don't see why the Government should throw down this Bill. Mr. Fox's speech on behalf of the women of this country will go down in history.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Speaker, I did not intend to take part in this discussion but as the introducer of the Bill has seen fit to adopt a recriminating attitude towards the matter from ulterior motives I on behalf of every member on this side of the House desire to say that this is not a party measure or a political matter. In the first place the introducer has seen fit to attack certain members on this side of the House. He has no right to talk about my attitude with regard to any Bill until he hears me say what my attitude is but when he got up to speak he did not know what my ideas were.

MR. FOX:—You told me what you thought of the Bill.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—What were my words?

MR. FOX:—It is not necessary to tell you the exact words.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—I hav not been opposed to the Women's Suffrage. I have been told in the street and in my office that it is reported I am. Now I disclaim it and go further and say that a Women's Deputation asked me to introduce this Bill and I pledged myself that I would do so next year but not this year and I also pledged some members on this side of the House. The honourable member had no right whatever to get up here and talk as he did about those who did not see eye to eye with him with regard to this Bill and call them one mass of hypocrisy. I was not hypocrtical about being in favour of it but pledged myself to bring in the Bill next year and I gave a guarantee of my good faith. The honourable member refers to this as a matter of grave importance. It is a matter of grave importance and I would ask the honourable member why he has been so wanton in the language and the attack he has used and made. It is a matter of grave importance and that is why it should not be sprung on this House without a moment's notice to ninety-eight per cent of the electors of this Island. I have ten thousand constituents in the district of Fortune Bay and they have not heard one word on this matter and now we are in a hurry to get this Bill introduced. The honourable member is trying to take political advantage of the measure.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, it is to me a matter of extreme regret that the honourable member for St. John's East, Mr. Fox, has in a bitter, partisan speech, attempted to make this measure a political football. A matter of this sort should not be a Party measure, and it is unfair to the cause which the honourable member claims to represent that he should destroy this Bill by making it a Party measure. I do not think there is one Government member within the hearing of my voice who is opposed to the general principle of Woman Suffrage. The observations of Mr. Fox concerning the two honourable and gallant gentlemen, Lieut. Small and Sergeant Major LeGrow, are entirely uncalled for and without any foundation in fact. His observations were grossly discourteous to these gentlemen. I was astounded when I heard Mr. Fox refer to my distinguished friend and political associate, Sergeant Major LeGrow, as a coward who, at the crack of the Party whip, ran away and would not face a debate on this measure. Mr. LeGrow at the present time is campaigning in the electoral district of Bay de Verde, his own constituency. He is the sitting member for that constituency. There is, as Mr. Fox knows, one seat vacant. Mr. Cave, the Minister of Shipping, is the candidate for that constituency, and Mr. LeGrow is doing his duty by himself and his constiuency, by his Party and by this House, by being in his place in the political battle-line in support of his colleague, Mr. Cave. Lieut. Small is out of town. Mr. Fox has had this Bill on the Order Paper for some days. It has been deferred from day to day. Mr. Small had no notice that on this particular afternoon the Bill would be brought forward for discussion. I would point out to this House that the two honourable and gallant gentlemen who have been insulted and abused by Mr. Fox, the member for St. John's East, are two of Newfoundland's Blue Puttee Boys, two of the first five hundred volunteers who went to fight Mr. Fox's battles when Mr. Fox was not able to go and fight for himself. Mr. Fox has used contemptible, mean, dirty, false and grossly insulting observations towards these two gallant gentlemen.

MR. FOX:—Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point or order.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—State your point.

MR. FOX:—Will the Prime Minister take his seat first and then I will?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I will.

MR. FOX:—I ask the Prime Minister to kindly repeat the words I used in reference to these hon. gentlemen. I placed them in the one category with the rest of the Government.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—The stenographer will repeat what you said.

MR. FOX:—The stenographer will not, sir. I had an evidence of that sort of thing before and I have another evidence of it this afternoon. What I said was, that a few short weeks ago these two gentlemen had the privilege of supporting proposals coming from the women of Newfoundland, and that these two gentlemen are absent from this House now when it is their duty as supporters of that movement to be here.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—That is not what you said. You said they were a mass of hypocrisy.

MR. FOX:—I did not. I said the Government as a whole was a mass of hypocrisy, without singling out in any way any individual member of the Government.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—You said that they stayed away deliberately.

MR. FOX:—I did not say that they stayed away deliberately. (I asked did they stay away deliberately.) Why does the Hon. Minister of Justice support the position of the Prime Minister and knowingly foist such a charge upon me.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—I would ask the hon. member for St. John's East if he did not say that these two gentlemen stayed away because they were told.

MR. FOX:—I never said any such thing.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—The hon. member for St. John's East said that these two gentlemen were a mass of hypocrisy. He has denied having said it, well then there is nothing more for us to say. He has risen to a point of order. I wish he would state his point and then sit down.

MR. FOX:—Unless you correct my words you have no right to get up here and make a charge against me. I say that the Prime Minister is wrong. He inadvertently took down what I said an dwrongly applied the words I used. I said that the Government, by their attitude, were a mass of hypocrisy. Would the Hon. Minister of Justice, for instance, think that I said he was a mass of hypocrisy. When you make such a charge you know that funamentally it is wrong and deliberately framed up to put a misconstruction on my words.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—If my honourable friend has completed his somewhat lengthy observations on his point of order, I would like to be permitted to continue my remarks referring to the discourteous words by Mr. Fox with respect to Messrs. Small and LeGrow. I would first point out that when Mr. Fox asked me to repeat his words I referred him to the official stenographer, and suggested that the official stenographer would supply the House with his remarks. Mr. Fox replied in a manner which shows the sort of man he is. He said that the stenographer would not repeat it, that he had evidence of that sort of thing before and ha sanother evidence of it this afternoon. What does the honourable member mean? What this House has had an evidence of this afternoon and what this House has had an evidence of before from Mr. Fox is a species of ignorant discourtesy. Mr. Fox stated in the hearing of every member of this House that Messrs. Small and LeGrow had deliberately absented themselves from this House this afternoon. He now indicates his contemptible meanness by saying that he did not make that statement in the form of a positive assertion, but that he asked, did they stay away? I cannot find words in which to express my disgust for any member of the House who would attack these two honourable and gallant gentlemen and charge them with cowardice. Mr. Fox stated that these men, in response to a Party whip, had absented themselves from the House,—or perhaps Mr. Fox will now rise to another point of order and say that he again made an interrogative insinuation. This is not the place and Mr. Fox is not the man to make discourteous insinuations of this sort towards men of the Small and LeGrow type. I also denounce the discourtesy of this city representative towards Mr. Jennings, the Minister of Public Works, one o fthe representatives for the outport constituency of Twillingate, and the discourtesy towards Mr. Guppy, one of the representatives for the outport constituency of Trinity. I would point out to the honourable member and to the House that Mr. Jennings and Mr. Guppy have as much right to express their opinion and to make and second a motion and cast a vote in the House as Mr. Cyril James Fox. Mr. Fox has suggested that the two soldier representatives who are absent from the House asked Mr. Jennings and Mr. Guppy to oppose the Bill introduced by Mr. Fox. That statement is not true. So far as I am aware, Mr. Jennings was not asked by any person, nor, so far as I am aware, was Mr. Guppy asked by any person to do so. The member for St. John's East is laboring under an entire misapprehension of the personal views of the individual members of the Government. I regret exceedingly that a junior member of this House, who has perhaps used more words and offered less wisdom than any other member of the House during the past few weeks this Legislature has been in session, should have felt it a part of the duty which he owes to his city constituency to insult two Great War veterans and two independent outport representatives. Not one of these four gentlemen may have had the opportunity of the classical education of the member for St. John's East. They certainly speak in much simpler and more intelligible English than he does. But because none of them may have had the privilege of being born in the city and the leisure to memorize Macaulay, they should not be the subject of sneers and contempt at the hands of Mr. Fox. While Mr. Fox was at leisure, pursuing his studies, Messrs. Small and LeGrow were risking their lives that he may live and study in peace. While Mr. Jennings and Mr. Guppy were battling with the storms of the rugged coasts of our Colony, engaged in the successful pursuit of Newfoundland's staple industry, the fisheries, Mr. Fox was enjoying the repose of the leisurely armchair and the luxury of the classics. Men are made by struggle rather than by leisure and processes of so called refinement. Gentlemanliness is inborn rather than an appendage acquired by study in the same way as an accent. It is very unfortunate that the women who are behind this Bill should have selected as the person whom they desired to make responsible for its passage through this House one who should see fit to be discourteous, insulting and offensive to his betters, two of whom are to-day absent from the House.

The principle of Woman Suffrage has been adopted by the leading nations of the world. At various stages of the development of civilization and in various countries women have been the slaves, the equals and the masters of men, and perhaps in every country, in every age, there have been women who in the same generation have been the slaves ,the equals and the masters of men. The recent War gave women an opportunity to show their strength and nobly have they borne their share of the world's work and the world's sacrifice. The principle of Woman Suffrage in Newfoundland is embodied in the Municipal Charter, which Bill, I am informed, will be introduced into this Chamber during the present session. Women in various parts of the world have taken rank in commercial and professional life on an equality with men. In social life they have long been men's superiors and leaders. There are some avocations in which men cannot possibly compete with women, as there are others in which women cannot possibly compete with men. The years of war have developed between the sexes a mutual appreciation, and the mingling of the sexes in commercial, professional and mechanical pursuits has developed a spirit of cameradie good-fellowship and mutual regard which is exceedingly helpful in the conduct of life's affairs. I feel, as Mr. Jennings and other members of my Party feel, that this House should have an opportunity of studying and debating this matter of woman suffrage in its application to Newfoundland conditions. I feel that this Chamber should have an opportunity of making itself acquainted with similar proposals elsewhere, particularly in Great Britain and the Sister Dominions, and that Newfoundland should follow the Mother Country in this regard as closely as local conditions render practicable. The effect of this motion is merely to defer the consideration of the measure. The representatives of the various constituencies, particularly outport constituencies, have had no opportunity whatever of making themselves acquainted, even in the most casual way, with the views of their constituencies in this regard, and I fully sympathise with Mr. Jennings, the representative for the District of Twillingate, and Mr. Guppy, the representative for the District of Trinity, when they point out to the House that this measure, which to them is absolutely new, a measure which is entirely new to their constituents, a matter to which they have given absolutely no thought, should not be rushed through without their having an opportunity of making themselves acquainted with the scope and effect of similar legislation elsewhere, the effect of its operation in other countries, and the views of their constituents in that regard.

MR. FOX:—I may say in reply to the honourable member with regard to his statement that the Government has desired that this matter be deferred that a Cabinet Minister informed me that the Government intended to give this matter a six months' hoist.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Speaker, I would like to say a word or two with regard to this matter. Like some of the previous speakers, I had no intention o ftaking any part whatever in the discussion, but having heard the debate, I think it is my duty to place myself on record as having voiced my opinion on the measure now before the House. I think it is a pity that the discussion should have taken the trend it has this evening, and I feel sure that if the ladies who have listened to it were to go out and report what they have heard, a great many of those who have supported the movement would withdraw their request that the franchise be extended to them, for if this is the first gun in the women's campaign for the privilege of the ballot, I can only say that it has been fired under extremely unfortunate circumstances. With the remarks of the Hon. Minister of Justice I disagree entirely because he has pledged himself to support the Bill at the next session.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—I said I woul dintroduce it then.

MR. WALSH:—And the reason he gave for not supporting it now was that he had heard nothing from his district with regard to it, and did not know what the attitude of his constituents towards the measure would be. In this the hon. gentleman is altogether inconsistent because it might well happen that on consulting his constituents he would find that 95 per cent of them were opposed to Woman Suffrage, and in that event where would his pledge of support for the measure at the next session come in? I am going to oppose the amendment that the Bill be read a second time six months from now because I consider it nonsensical to put it off for another year. Let us be big enough and honest enough to bring the Bill into Committee and if it is to be defeated, let it be defeated in the regula rway. What right has anyone to dictate to me or any other man what he should or should not do? An election might be held in six months from now and by deferring this bill to the next session we would be disfranchising the women of the country who are now asking for the vote. I saw for the first time to-day a telegram sent in from one of the larger settlements of the district I represent, signed by a large number of the women, asking that this right be granted to the women of Newfoundland, and I have no doubt that were the thing to be fully ventilated, the petitions would be largely signed. What my attitude will be should the bill go into committee I shall not state, but I oppose the amendment to give it a six months hoist.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—Mr. Speaker, I hold the opinion that no government has the right to legislate on a matter of such importance as this without first having obtained the opinion of the country with regard to it. If a petition signed by two thousand women of St. John's is presented to this House asking for woman suffrage, is that any reason why we should immediately pass the measure without having due regard to the wishes or views of the people of the other districts all over the country? If the matter is to be decided on the merits of the petitions presented, then we certainly have no grounds in that direction for any legislation at present. I repeat that I haven't received a single request from the women of my district to support a measure of this kind and if my hon. friend, the introducer of the bill has been more fortunate in that respect with regard to his constituency, I cannot be expected to fall in with his views on that account but I give him this challenge that I will stand against him in the District of Twillingate when the women have the vote, and I will not be afraid of the results. I'll go further than that and I'll say that I was in favor of Woman Suffrage before the hon. member for St. John's West was in his political swaddling clothes and I don't think the hon. gentleman had any right to act as he did this afternoon because others could not see eye to eye with him on this matter. I want to say in conclusion sir, that when the Bill is brought before the House in the right manner and at the proper time, and after the Government has had an opportunity of obtaining more fully a knowledge of the wishes of the country at large, I shall be prepared to give it my hearty support.

MR. SULLIVAN:—Mr. Speaker, I have heard nothing in this debate that leads me to alter the opinion I had before I came in here this evening, but I must congratulate the women of St. John's on their choice of a champion. Mr. Fox has put forward the claims of the women as perhaps no other member of this House could have done and he has advanced arguments in support of their claims which are certainly irrefutable. I see no reason why the women of Newfoundland should have a vote but I am not prepared to support this Bill before I have the endorsation of my constituents in doing so. If the women of Placentia and St. Mary's want the vote it would only have been a matter of courtesy for them to place their demands before this House in the form of petitions. I have seen one telegram from the District of Placentia and St. Mary's with some twenty names signed to it, and the member for St. John's East has told us that he has innumerable signatures from other quarters, but with the exception of the petitions from the women of St. John's and that from Grand Falls, I doubt if there are one hundred bona fide signatures in from other parts of the country. The hon. member for St. John's East has told us to approach this question without bias or without prejudice and I am approaching it without either and I say that in my opinion there is no need for the great rush which is now being manifested to put this far-reaching measure into effect at this late session of the House, more especially as I understand the movers in this matter have received an assurance from the Government that they were prepared to carry this measure through at the next session of Parliament.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow Friday at three of the clock in the afternoon.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

FRIDAY, June 11th, 1920.

The House met pursuant to adjournment.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, since taking my seat here this afternoon, I received the following letter from Mr. John J. St. John, Secretary of the Moderate Prohibition Committee:

"St. John's, Nfld.,
"May 17th, 1920.

"Hon. R. A. Squires, K.C., M.H.A.,
"Prime Minister.

"Dear Sir:

"I am instructed by the Moderate "Prohibition Committee to hand you "herewith several petitions from the "electors of St. John's West on the "Question of a modification of the pre-"sent Prohibition Act now in force, "with the request that you, as senior "member for the district will kindly "present these petitions to the House "at the earliest opportunity.

"Respectfully yours,
JOHN J. ST. JOHN,
"Secretary of Committee."

In accordance with the request of the Secretary of the Committee I present petitions Nos. 7, 30, 34, 57, 61, 117.

MR. MacDONNELL:—I ask leave to present three petitions from St. George's, asking for a modification of the Prohibition Act. This makes eleven hundred signatures from St. George's in favour of a modification of the present Act. In presenting these petitions, I would suggest, that an account of the signatures be taken by the Colonial Secretary's Department in order that we may get the facts later on as to the number who have signed petitions.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, with regard to the petitions presented by the member for St. George's, Mr. MacDonnell, asking for a modification of the Prohibition Law, I would observe that the Government has had under consideration numerous and largely signed petitions relating to Prohibition. There have been a large number of petitions asking for a modification of the Act; there have been a smaller number of petitions asking that the present Act be not modified and that it be strictly enforced. The Government has given this matter careful consideration and has decided to appoint a Commission which will be representative of all shades of thought in connection with this matter of the use of intoxicating liquors and the application to Newfoundland of legislation to control its misuse. The duty of the Commission will be to inquire into the operation of Prohibition legislation in Canada and the United States, and the Continent of Europe, inquire into Newfoundland conditions, the use of dope, moonshining, smuggling, and having thoroughly considered the legislation of the world in this regard, in the light of local conditions to make recommendations to the Government upon the basis of which such a Legislative enactment as may be necessary in the premises shall be introduced at the next session of the Legislature.

MR. MacDONNELL:—Will we get a report from the Commission this session?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—No report can possibly be received from that Commission this session. It will take many months of serious study and careful consideration.

MR. MacDONNELL:—In that case it will be no use to appoint a Commission because the question will be settled one way or another before that. Petitions from seven thousand people got a plebiscite for Prohibition, and now when there are fifteen thousand people petitioning for modification all we hear is that a Commission will be appointed to inquire into the matter sometime, and it will report sometime. That is not satisfactory and I believe that some member will bring in a bill in favor of moderation before this House closes.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—I would like to point out to the Hon. the Prime Minister that in the District of Ferryland fires are burning in all directions, and nobody in the Government has taken any notice of that district. I asked to have someone sent out there to make a report on the matter to the Agriculture Department. The fire has been burning near Renews for the last ten days, and the only timber on the Southern Shore, which is at LeManche, has been destroyed, and the fire is sweeping in all directions. I brought this matter to the attention of the Leader of the Government. He don't seem to take any interest in the matter.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, the Leader of the Opposition mentioned that matter to me, and on the next occasion when I met Dr. Campbell I spoke to him about it, and he told me that he had received a message asking that a warden be appointed, and that he had made arrangements for that appointment.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—He may have said that, but the bridge erected at Acquaforte by some unknown person by the Hon. Minister of Public Works has been destroyed. I received a note from the Deputy Minister of the Department of Agriculture and Mines, saying that a Mr. Dinning had been appointed as warden, a man who if he went near a fire should have a bodyguard to protect him as he is well past his labour.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Speaker, might I be permitted to ask the Hon. the Leader of the Government, in view of the alarming proportions assumed by the forest fires whether the Government has given any thought to making arrangements for protection against town fire. My reason for asking is that to-day the fire has got down on Cove Road, which is very near town. I think that the Government would have the endorsation and support of the House and the city in taking some unusual steps to provide against the possibility of an outbreak in town.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—In reply to the honourable member for St. John's East I have to say that Dr. Alexander Campbell, the Minister of Agriculture and Mines, is himself personally in charge of fire fighting operations in that section of the country from Brigus Junction to Port Blandford, where a fierce forest fire is now raging. A large number of men have been engaged for the work of fire fighting in that section. The Reid Newfoundland Company has been approached by Dr. Campbell in the matter of the employment of the Reid section men as fire fighters. So far as the protection of the suburbs of St. John's is concerned, that matter is in charge of Mr. George Turner, the Deputy Minister of Agriculture and Mines, who, I am informed, leaves this afternoon supervising fire fighting operations in one of the outlying sections of the District of St. John's East. The Inspector General of Constabulary, who is head of the Fire Department, has special instructions in this matter also. The honourable member and the residents of the District of St. John's East and St. John's West may feel confident that every effort which human thought and energy can devise is being directed to the prevention of devastation by forest fires.

Committee of the Whole on Bill entitled "An Act to Amend 'The Society for the Protection of Animals Act, 1914."

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Chairman, might I ask what is there in the Bill to prevent the owner from buying in the animal again.

MR. FOX:—Mr. Chairman, yes, I would move the following addition as an amendment:

"That it shall not be lawful for said "defendant to purchase said animal at "such sale, or thereafter to hold said "animal."

Second reading of a Bill respecting Elections in the Present Year.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Speaker, yesterday at the request of the Hon. Leader of the Opposition the second reading of this Bill was deferred until to-day, and the Hon. Leader of the Government appeared to think then that the request for deferring the second reading was due to some malign purpose or some desire on the part of those who requested that deferring to unduly delay its passage. I think I intimated to him yesterday that there was no such desire, but simply a wish to get a clear understanding of what the Bill really covered, and, having read the Bill and having given thought to it, I think, perhaps, it would be unnecessary on this occasion that I should give voice in congratulating the Government for the manner in which the Bill is framed. I can quite conceive the idea which the Bill is intended to accomplish and quite appreciate the object that was in mind when the Bill was drafted, and I trust that the Bill will meet the objects the Government have in mind for presenting it in its present form. Therefore, so far as I am concerned, at this stage I merely desire to oppose the second reading of the Bill for the reason that I intimated yesterday and for the reason that the excuse given for the presentation of this Bill, that it ought to go through this House pro forma and that it was but a re-enacting of what was done last year, does not hold water. I stated then and I repeat now that there is absolutely no similarity in the two cases at all. The Act of 1919 was an Act brought into being for the purpose of making good the election lists that had been taken about a year and a half previous to the holding of the elections last November. The law, as it stood in 1913, under the Election Act of that year, was such that the lists were good for only twelve months, and that period having elapsed and the necessity for a General Election being imminent, legislation for the taking of the new lists was necessary. But there is at once this difference between the two cases. In the first case the House was providing for an election throughout the entire country, an election, which, I think, it will not be denied, was necessary, apart altogether from the length of time that had intervened between the last general election and the previous one but more particularly because of the fact that the House was so short of its membership, so many had gone away and so many had died, that the calling of a general election to fill the vacancies in the House was an absolute necessity, as there were no representatives at all for some districts. But the situation that we are asked to have confirmed to-day, and the great rush that has been made to get this Bill before the House, does not contain any such condition at all. This Bill is formally and merely brought before the House and we are asked to make it law, under its own words in the sense of the last section of it, as applying in particular to the election in Bay de Verde district. The last section provides that any list of electors taken up to the date of the election will be sufficient for the purpose of any election during the year 1920 of members of the House of Assembly for such district, and this at the present time, according to a Gazette Extraordinary, the Government is arranging to have done, and, as I gathered from the remarks of the Prime Minister yesterday, such a list is being taken now for Bay de Verde. Then the idea is to rush through with the taking of this list in order to make the election valid, pending the 24th instant. Time will tell the wisdom of this Bill and time will disclose how far the Government will have cause to congratulate itself upon the Bill, and time will, more than all others things, justify the position that I purpose to take in objecting to the Bill, because the Bill is one in which the accepted principle, which has been handed down for years, is flagrantly violated, where there is no occasion for it. Bay de Verde is represented. Bay de Verde has at present one member in this House. Bay de Verde had two members in this House up to two days ago. And that district is now being made the excuse of this Bill in order that it may afford an opportunity for the Government to justify the appointment of the late Minister of Shipping the position which the Government itself through its leader told the country was of more or less temporary duration. This is a position which was provided for by a special section in the Bill dealing with Legislative Disabilities and which section became unnecessary and was cut out by the Upper House when the Supreme Court invalidated the election. This position has reached a rather humorous aspect and it is with extraordinary haste the Government has tried to secure the unfortunate situation when they commit themselves to a Bill like this which time only will be able to justify as to its wisdom, justify whether the Govt. has accomplished its purpose and time will justify our opposition to it. The election in Bay de Verde has been rushed unduly for reasons that are obvious. It is unduly rushed because it was thought that the late member for that district, Mr. Hickman, would be a likely candidate for the district if conditions were normal, fair and proper and the election were held I submit in due time and due season and the Gazette was issued because also another gentleman of much influence might be out of the district. As to the wisdom of the Government in this matter, that aspect will be more or less dealt with by the people immediately interested and the aspects of our objection may be discussed on a future day when the election is over. There has been reference to the explanation as to why the election was called and why it was justified. Well, before the House closes maybe there be an opportunity to deal with this and I may intimate that these intimations have not passed unnoticed and that the ideas behind the matter were not unobserved and I hope the time will come when we shall have an opportunity to discuss this in this house which is the proper place to do so. I fear that this is an occasion, and I may be pardoned for being a prophet, on which I must prophesy that those who are responsible for the Bill may find that the Bill does not quite fit in so as to accomplish what was intended and perhaps they may find that despite the undue haste they have displayed and the feverish anxiety they have shown to have a nominee of theirs to come back to this House that ere long they may discover that in accordance with the old story to "always make haste slowly" that the Government has hastened a little too quickly and because I have sympathy for that feverish anxiety that causes that haste and because I appreciate the awkward position in which some of the members of the Government find themselves and because I realise that some of them labour under an aspect denuded of support that I quite forgive them as far as I am personally concerned for the extraordinary way in which this House called this election at a season of the year when hundreds of men have gone away from the district and it is therefore deprived considerably of its voting strength.

Mr. Fox gives notice of introduction of Bill.

Mr. Walsh gives notice of questions.

Sir Michael Cashin gives notice of question.

The House then adjourned.

MONDAY, June 14th, 1920.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present petitions, containing the signatures of a thousand voters in Ferryland District, asking for a modification of the Prohibition Act. I have much pleasure in supporting the prayer of the petitioners.

MR. MOORE:—Mr. Speaker, I heartily support the prayer of those thousand petitioners and I hope that their request will be granted.

Sir M. P. Cashin gave notice of question.

Pursuant to notice and leave granted and on motion of Sir M. F. Cashin the Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 143 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Keeping of Dogs'" was introduced and read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—In the absence of the Hon. the Prime Minister, I beg to state that the Sudbury property had been purchased by the Government upon the representation of the Hospitals and Pensions Boards for the use of returned soldiers.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the Bills sent up entitled respectively: "An Act to authorize the Montreal Trust Co., to do business in the Colony of Newfoundland; and "An Act further to amend Chapter 35 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Postal and Telegraph Services'" without amendment.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Mr. Fox the Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 108 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Protection of Animals'" was read a third time and passed and it was ordered that it be engrossed being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Pursuant to order and on motion of the Hon. the Minister of Justice the House resolved itself into a Committee of the whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act to amend 9 and 10 Geo. V Cap XV Electins in the Present Year."

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Samson took the chair of Committee.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Chairman, section (5) as it reads at present may mean practically any list whatever, so I would move, as an amendment, the addition of the words "up to the 1st of June, 1920, and before the date appointed for an election."

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred and had passed the Bill with some amendment.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the said Bill be read a third time on to-morrow.

Hon. the Prime Minister gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to move the House into a Committee of the Whole to consider certain resolutions respecting certain concessions to the Dominion Cooperative Buliding Association Ltd.

Hon. the Minister of Justice gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a Bill to confirm a contract made by the Government with the Terra Nova Sulphite Co., Ltd.

Hon. the Minister of Justice gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Companies Act."

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

TUESDAY, June 15th, 1920.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

MR. BENNETT:—Mr. Speaker, on behalf of the member for Port de Grave, Sir John Crosbie, I beg to present a petition from that district asking for a modification of the Prohibition Act. This petition is in similar form as others formerly presented on this subject and is very largely signed by the residents of this district. I, therefore, desire to lay it upon the table of the House and to ask that it be given consideration.

Committee of the Whole on Supply.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—Mr. Chairman, following the usual proceedings each hon. member will find on his desk a copy of the Estimates for the coming fiscal year. The increases this year will seem very large but they are represented by changes, every one of which I think will appeal to every hon. member of this House. These changes, whilst brought down by the present Government, are not altogether our work, but to a large extent, we are finalizing the intentions of our predecessors, as it will be remembered that the late Government appointed a special Commission to deal with the salaries of all officials and we are therefore adopting their report. It is my intention to deal with the Estimates as summarized and explain the increases under different heads. The first item, Interest on Public Debt, will show an increase of $112,988. This increase is due to exchange principally, and if exchange becomes normal again our liabilities under this Head will decrease; Head two will show an increase of $289,643; Head three $14,834; Head four $69,-364; Head five $40,982; Head six $287,659; Head seven $211,829; eight $24,917; nine $58,600; ten $139,577; eleven $23,892; twelve $395,732; thirteen, Customs, $211,684; fourteen $40,000; fifteen $47,300; seventeen, decrease of———

If there is any additional information desired by hon. gentlemen, I shall be glad to furnish same as we proceed with the details. I would move that the Committee rise, report progress, and ask leave to sit again on to-morrow.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—I would ask that the Estimates be deferred until Thursday, to give us time to consider them.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—Alright, Thursday.

HON. MINISTER FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—Mr. Speaker, in rising to make the financial statement, which by long Parliamentary usage is designated the Budget Speech, I appeal to you, Sir, and to the Honourable members of this House for that consideration due to one to whom for the first time, and without previous experience, has been allotted a task as onerous and responsible as any that can be undertaken by a Minister of the Crown in our local Legislature.

I cannot be expected during the short time I have had the honour to occupy the position of Minister of Finance and Customs, to have absorbed that intimate knowledge of the financial affairs of the Dominion which can be attained only after years of experience, or to have acquired that grasp of details of the Country's trade, commerce and industries which only long association with the statistical departments of the Government can bring.

I shall not at this stage make any observations on the fiscal policy of the late Government but I deem it necessary to comment somewhat on certain phases thereof before concluding my remarks on the financial and industrial situation which now commands the attention of this House.

I shall therefore without further preliminary remarks proceed to the important task I have in hand which is to lay before the House an accurate and complete statement of the Dominion's present financial position, covering both income and expenditure, and submit for the consideration of Honourable members the Government's proposals for raising supply to be granted to His Majesty and outline the resources which we may confidently rely on for the forthcoming year, as well as the expenses we may have to incur in the administration of Government. This I shall endeavour to do in a straightforward manner and as expeditiously as the importance of the subject permits.

The fiscal year ending June 30th, 1919, produced the largest revenue in the history of the Country.

The total Revenue collected from all sources was $9,535,755.16, showing an increase over that of the previous year of $2,810,493.85.

To that total the Customs Revenue contributed the sum of $7,191,260, being an increase of $2,267,864 over the receipts from the same source the previous year, which increase is shown by the following comparative statement:—

	1918	1919	Increase 1919
Customs	$4,923,396.31	$7,191,260.71	$2,267,864.40
Other Sources	1,801,835.00	2,344,464.45	542,629.45
	$6,725,231.31	$9,535,725.16	$2,810,493.85

The public accounts already tabled for the fiscal year 1918-19 show total expenditure on ordinary account of the sum of $6,766,430.51 as compared with an expenditure of $5,554,603.37 for the corresponding period 1917-18, an increase in civil expenditure for the past year of $1,211,827.14.

The heads under which the principal increases occurred were the following:

Head	Increase	Decrease
1, Interest on Public Debt	$ 461,381.17
2, Civil Government	119,443.95
3, Pensions	1,002.89
4, Administration of Justice	65,648.86
5, Legislation		$ 4,341.15
6, Education	99,547.83
7, Public Charities	114,368.33
8, Lighthouses	37,869.54
9, Agriculture and Mines	2,311.76
10, Marine and Fisheries	45,731.92
11, Roads, Bridges and Ferries	11,223.82

12, Postal Telegraphs	277,030.59
13, Customs	141,302.00
14, General Contingencies		65,494.16
15, Elections		14,902.26
Surplus Trust		131,821.71
	$1,428,386.42	$216,559.28
	216,559.28
	$1,211,827.14

Under the head of Interest on Public Debt is embraced interest on our war borrowings.

The outcome of the financial transactions of the past year may be summarised as follows,—

Revenue from all sources	$$9,535,725.16
Ordinary Expenditure	6,766,430.51
Showing a surplus for the fiscal year 1918-1919 of	$2,769,294.65

Turning now, Mr. Speaker, to the current year ending June 30th next I find that from present indications the total revenue from all sources will exceed the estimates submitted in the Budget last session. I base this calculation on the actual Revenue for the nine months, accounts of which are available, and on the average Revenue annually received for the remaining three months.

From the beginning of the present fiscal year t othe end of March the total Revenue from all sources amounted to $6,881,555.89 showing an increase of $1,361,063.58 over the same period of the preceeding year. Of this sum $6,031,507.25 was derived from Customs Revenue an increase under this head of $1,342,972.39 over that of the same period the previous year.

For the remaining three months of the current fiscal year, April, May, and June, I estimate $4,500,000.00 from all sources, which will bring the Revenue for the fiscal year ending June 30th next up to roundly $11,400,000.00. The Expenditure for the current year I estimate $10,800,000.00, leaving a balance in favor of the Colony of $800 000.00.

I have thus far reviewed the financial transactions of the past year as exhibited in the public accounts, and the situation of our finances for the present year as far as statistics available permit.

I now, Mr. Speaker, come to the consideration of the third and last of the financial periods which come within the scope of an annual Budget Speech, that is the fiscal year upon which we shall enter on July 1st next, and which ends on June 30th, 1921.

I shall first deal with expenditure. So far as we can at present estimate, our civil expenditure for the fiscal year 1920-21 will amount to about $10,-250,000.00, as compared with roundly $9,145,554.00 for the present year.

The above estimated ordinary expenditure for the year ending June 30th, 1921, is based on the fixed charges of civil Government which permit of fairly close estimate. To that amount we must add Expenditure arising from war obligations, such as provision for disabled sailors, soldiers, vocational training, maintenance of Militia Department, and winding up of our Military undertakings, and charges incidental thereto which properly ought to be placed under the head of extraordinary charges, as such disbursements cannot rightly come under any department of civil Government and cannot be classified as ordinary expenditures.

The amount required to meet these last named obligations I estimate at roundly $750,000.00. This gives us an estimated total expenditure for the coming year of approximately $11,000,000.00.

To meet this expenditure we propose to re-enact last year's revenue Bill, with some amendments which I shall refer to further on.

I estimate the Revenue for next year as follows,—

Customs.. .. ..$	8,700,000.00
Posts and Telegraphs..	540,000.00
Crown Lands..	150,000.00
Fines and Forfeitures..	8,000.00
Stamps...	60,000.00
Penitentiary Broom Dpt.	35,000.00
Taxes and Assessments	55,000.00
Liquor Control..	200,000.00
Excess Profits' Tax. ..	800,000.00
Income Tax..	50,000.00
Fees on Public Institutions...	6,000.00
Interest on Municipal Council Debt..	57,000.00
Miscellaneous...	450,000.00
	$11,201,000.00

The expenditure on account of civil Government having materially changed since last year's estimates were submitted necessitated revision which will be readily noticed on reference thereto. This revision was made necessary and is based upon the report of the Civil Service Commission to whom was entrusted by our predecessors the duty of standardizing the salaries of civil servants.

In view of the world-wide depression and unrest now existing it may be asked if even in the estimate I have made I am not over-sanguine. I do not hesitate to reply, No. The resources of revenue which for the past few years have been so prolific we anticipate will maintain their productivity without serious abatement during the coming year. Past experience has demonstrated that the greatest fluctuations recorded in our Revenue for a long period did not embarrass the exchequer to any extent.

Nor have I overlooked the fact that the large Revenues of the immediate past were mainly derived from exorbitant prices of imports, the result of abnormal conditions brought about by the war.

All these things, Sir, have received due consideration, and despite the fact that trade, commerce and industries all over the world are in an unsettled state, and that it is not improbable that a reduction in the prices of commodities which form the basis of our Customs Revenue may diminish our receipts somewhat during the coming year, I still confidently anticipate a sufficient revenue from all sources to meet the ordinary expenditures of civil government as outlined in our Estimates. Under these circumstances we feel we are fully justified in removing from the Tariff the undersigned articles and legalising certain modifications made in the Tariff by the late Government.

I propose to make the following alterations in the Tariff, viz,—

To change the duty on rough undressed leathers, when imported by tanners for further dressing from three cents per lb., to 20 cents ad valorem.

To specify under Item 103 "Bologna Sausages" per lb. one cent.

To include on Item 106, under the head of Nails, "Iron or steel Fasteners to be used by box makers" per lb. 3/8 ct.

To return to the free list the following items, viz.,—

Item 159 Agricultural Implements, etc., Item 160, Animals imported by Agricultural Societies, etc., Item 172, Tanning Extracts, Item 175, Books, etc., Item 196 196, Manures and Fertilizers, etc., Item 204, plants, trees, etc., Item 205, Printing paper, etc., Item 207, Sand, Fire-clay, etc., Item 217, Wheat whole. To legalize the change made in the duty on Indian Corn. Item 191, and Cattle feeds, Item 200, by substituting ten cents per 100 lbs., for ten cents ad valorem. To place on the free list, Apparatus imported for use in fish drying, (Not to include ordinary tools), also receptacles for putting up jams and jellies when imported by manufacturers for from twenty cents to ten cents per cwt. and to strike out from the schedule the Item, "Split Herring."

I shall now, Mr. Speaker, take up the consideration of our Public debt,—

The position of the Dominion in respect to Bonded Indebtedness on the 30th of June, 1919, was as follows,—

Loan at 3 per cent. . . .	$ 1,581,666.66
Loan at 3½ per cent. .	18,905,546.65
Loan at 4 per cent. . . .	9,002,432.29
Loan at 5½ per cent. .	5,000,000.00
Loan at 6½ per cent. .	7,543,400.00
Total.	$42,033,035.60

Adding to this sum the amount of the loan raised last fall after the present Government took office, namely, $1,000,000.00 we find that at the end of the current year, June 30th, 1920, our gross public debt will be $43,033,-035.60.

From this must be deducted the following amounts,—

Accumulated Sinking Fund.	$1,007,587.42
Guaranteed Debt, St. John's Muncipality. . .	1,433,394.22
Harbour Grace Water Co., Stock.	13,700.00
Total.	$2,454,681.64

This exhibit shows the net funded debt of the Dominion at the present time to be $39,578,352.96.

On the 30th of June, 1914, the gross public debt of the Dominion was $30,-450,765. On the 30th of June, 1919, as stated above, it will be $42,033,035.60, showing an increase of $11,582,270.60, in six years, an average of nearly $2,-000,000.00 per year.

To alter schedule E, of the Revenue Act passed in 1918 by altering the duty on fresh fish and fish exported from salt bulk without being spread or dried

A substantial portion of this indebtedness was incurred on war account. The total expenditure under that head from the date our Regiment was organized to the end of the fiscal year 1919 was $11,486,753.60. For the current year the expenses of the Militia Department, including the Civil-Re-Establishment Committee, will aggregate $2,400,000.00. For the same period we estimate the payments on account of Disability, Pensions, of soldiers and sailors will amount to $545,-000.00. The Militia Department estimate of its requirements for the coming year, 1920-21, is $250,000.00, and the Board of Pensions Commissioners' estimate for same period is roughly $500,000.00. The London Pay and Record Office was closed and the Local Office will be closed at the end of 1920.

Here it may be added that the whole of the Dominion's war expenditure has been met by borrowings, and is charged to Capital Account.

A synoptical statement of these expenditures will be found in the extracts given from the Auditor General's Report annexed.

Turning now, Mr. Speaker, from the subject of our finances and the Public Debt I shall refer briefly to the general affairs of the Country.

Our Import and Export Trade during the war period shows the following results,—

At the end of the fiscal year 1914 our trade showed an adverse balance of $659,188; our Imports being $15,793,726, and Exports $15,134,543. The uncertainty with which business went through immediately following the outbreak of the war in August 1914 was reflected in the result of the succeeding years trade in both imports and exports. In 1914-1915 our imports dropped $3,442,940, and our exports declined in value $1,997,663, but the trade balance was in our favour to the extent of $786,000. The following year trade recovered from the depression caused by the outbreak of the war and the soaring prices of commodities were reflected in the abnormal increases in the value of our Imports and Exports.

The following statement giving the increases and decreases in both export and import trade during the period from 1914 to 1919 inclusive may be of interest to the House,—

Year	Imports	Increase	Decrease
1914.. ..	$15,193,726		$ 818,639	less than 1913
1915.. ..	12,350,786		3,342,940
1916.. ..	16,427,336	$ 4,076,550
1917.. ..	21,318,310	4,890,974
1918.. ..	26,892,946	5,574,636
1919.. ..	33,297,184	6,404,238
Totals..		$20,946,388	$4,661,579

Net Increase in Import Trade 1914 to 1919, inclusive.. .. .. ..$17,284,819

Year	Exports	Increase		Decrease
1914.. ..	$15,134,543	$ 461,654	(Over 1913)
1915.. ..	13,136,880			$ 1,997,663
1916.. ..	18,969,493	5,832,613
1917.. ..	22,381,762	3,412,269
1918.. ..	30,153,517	7,771,755
1919.. ..	36,784,616	6,631,099
Totals..		$24,109,390		$ 1,997,663

Net Increase in Export Trade 1914 to 1919, inclusive.. .. .. ..$22,111,727
Net Increase in Import Trade for same period.. 16,284,819

Total Net Increase Dominion's Trade 1914 to 1919.. .. .. ..$38,396,546

The total gross trade of last year, 1919, was.. .. ..$70,081,800
Compared with.. .. .. 57,046,463 in 1918
Showing an increase over preceeding year of.. 13,035,337

The largest gross increase in trade in our history except that of 1918 which showed an increase of $13,346,391, over the previous year.

The following table shows the result of the last six years import and export trade,—

IMPORTS FROM

Year	Britain	Canada	United States	Elsewhere	Total
1913-14...	$3,826,529	$ 4,681,047	$ 5,796,906	$ 889,244	$15,195,726
1914-15...	2,311,945	4,509,827	4,943,752	585,262	12,350,786
1915-16...	2,579,614	5,870,456	7,097,779	879,487	16,427,336
1916-17...	2,620,033	7,412,300	10,233,899	1,052,078	21,318,310
1917-18...	2,248,781	11,107,642	12,244,946	1,291,577	26,892,946
1918-19...	2,399,853	12,777,684	16,569,236	1,550,461	33,297,184

EXPORTS TO

Year	Britain	Canada	United States	Elsewhere	Total
1913-14...	$3,256,445	$ 1,971,809	$1,679,362	$ 8,226,926	$15,134,543
1914-15...	3,196,353	1,394,663	1,537,385	7,008,429	13,130,830
1915-16...	4,582,379	4,582,379	2,540,606	9,824,736	18,969,493
1916-17...	4,836,074	2,042,117	4,047,842	11,455,729	22,381,762
1917-18...	3,822,931	2,750,990	7,110,322	16,449,274	30,153,517
1918-19...	2,500,419	2,428,217	6,411,340	25,444,640	36,784,616

The following comparative statement shows the movement of trade from 1914 to 1919, and the increase or decrease, as the case may be in the value thereof, between Newfoundland and the principal countries to which we export our products and from which we import our requirements,—

EXPORTS.

Country	1914	1919	Increase	Decrease
United Kingdom...	$3,256,446	$ 2,500,419		$ 756,027
Canada...	1,971,809	2,428,217	$ 455,408
United States...	1,679,362	6,411,340	4,731,978
Brazil...	3,240,487	5,179,349	1,838,862
B. W. Indies...	526,331	1,150,780	624,449
Portugal...	988,930	7,836,328	6,847,398
Spain...	1,260,649	3,911,967	2,651,318
Italy...	1,087,858	3,087,492	1,999,634
Greece...	403,662	2,091,019	1,637,257
France...	1,997	1,023,933	1,021,936

IMPORTS.

United Kingdom...	$3,826,529	$ 2,399,853		$1,426,706
Canada...	4,861,047	12,777,684	$ 7,916,637
United States...	5,796,906	16,569,236	10,792,330
British W. I...	222,801	930,904	608,113
Portugal...	19,970	107,920	87,950
Spain...	113,541	217,503	103,962

Thus it will be seen that the effect of the war upon our trade with the United Kingdom was a decrease in exports of roundly three-quarters of a million dollars, and a decrease in our imports from the Mother Country of approximately a million and a half dollars. The value of our imports from Great Britain in 1919 was $179,761 less than 1916, and for the same period our exports showed a falling off to the extent of $2,081,960. This unfavorable showing is undoubtedly due, in te main, to disturbed industrial war-time conditions in the Old Land. The revival of trade and its expansion with the United Kingdom is a purpose which I feel sure will appeal to every member of this House, and any effort toward the attainmenet thereof will receive every encouragemenet and assistance which this Government can give it.

The phenomenal increase in the value of our imports from the neighbouring Dominion and the United States is due, of course, chiefly to the very great increase in the prices of the commodities which we have had to import from those countries. The increase has been mainly in money value, and not in volume of goods, wares and foods stuffs. As shown by the comparative table of values in Imports and Exports given above our imports from Canada increased nearly eight million dollars, and our exports exports increased less than half a million dollars between 1914 and 1919. Similarly with the United States trade. Our exports to that country increased about four and three quarter millions, while our Imports for the same period increased ten and three quarter million dollars.

The increase in the value of our exports to Portugal during the six years under review was almost $7,000,000 practically all of which was fishery products. Against Portugal's $7,836,-238. na ue of our fishery products, our other chief Mediterranean customers took between them only $9,090,478. worth of Newfoundland products, which also was chiefly proceeds of the fisheries.

The total value of fishery products for the fiscal years 1918 and 1919 was as follows:—

1918,.. .. ..$25,547,334
1919,.. 32,792,271

Showing an increase in value of $7,-213,937, in 1919 over that of the preceeding year.

The total quantity exported in 1918 was 1,821,206 quintals of dry codfish, valued at $18,829,560.

The total quantity exported in 1919 was 1,681,770 quintals valued at $24,-316,830.

This shows a decrease in quantity of 139,436 quintals, and an increase in value of $5,487,270.

The Seal Fishery

The seal fishery of 1919 was the poorest on record up to that date, there being only 81,293 seals taken, against 193,448 the previous year, a decrease of 112,155. The gross value of the products of the seal fishery for 1918 was $863,552, and 1919 $278,145, showing a decrease in value of the proceeds of that industry last year of $585,407. But the smallest catch in modern times, perhaps since the systematic prosecution of that fishey began, was that of the present year, 1920, the total catch being 33,985 seals valued at $159,948. This represents a very considerable loss of capital invested in that industry the past season, which is much to be regretted, and the outfitters of the ships have the sympathy of the trade in this unprecedented failure of what has, on the whole, been a fairly remunerative venture in the past. It is a precarious industry at best, and while it is not improbable that the successes of the past may be duplicated, it is significant of the future in store for this industry that the decreasing number of ships engaged therein is going on from year to year without any apparent intention to replace the disappearing units of the once powerful sealing fleet, and the old-time keenness in the prosecution of the voyage is noticeably absent among the mercantile body. The loss to the men who prosecuted the 1920 seal fishery is also to be deplored, and the general trade of the country for the coming year will surely feel the effects of such a poor catch.

The safer avenues of investments in high dividend paying industrials remunerative trade ventures and development entherprises, the returns from which may be slow but sure, are probably proving more attractive to the members of the mercantile body who heretofore were the chief investors in the sealing industry. It is to be hoped, however, that the coming year will see the sealing industry prosecuted with renewed energy, and that the returns will be as has often proved before, sufficiently remunerative to those who invest their capital to compensate for the losses of the past couple of years.

The Herring Industry

The branch of our fishery next in value to the sealfishery is the herring fishery, the export value of which in 1918 was $2,067,891. Referring to the 1919 pack the Board of Trade Annual Report, dated January, 1920, says:

"The herring fishery the past season (September 1918 to September 1919) has not been very remunerative to the fishermen and a direct loss to outport packers and merchants. Large stocks of spring-split herring are held in the optuorts and in storage in St. John's waiting for buyers. Some dealers still have their whole summer's collection on hand."

After commenting on the demand for our herring in the principal markets, the extent to which the trade was hampered by high freight charges and exchange rates, the Report continues:

"Considerable quantities of Scotch cure herring put up in the fall of 1918 were stored in New York in January and February 1919 unable to find buyers. Some of the herring are still there and selling at a price that will not more than cover the cost of freight and storage and insurance charges in New York Our Scotch Cure herring had to compete with Pacific Coast herring put up as Scotch Cure. These supplied the American market at a much lower price than our exporters were asking. Newfoundland Scotch Cure Herring received a set-back through shipments going out in bad order."

The Board of Trade is undoubtedly in a position to be better informed on the catching, curing and marketing of our fishery products than any other public or mercantile body in this country. Its pronouncements are, therefore, official and carry great weight, and should command the attention of fishermen, merchants and Government alike when it deals in its official capacity with matters having a direct application to an important branch of our staple industry. For this reason I have encroached upon the time of the House to quote the above excerpts from the Board of Trade Report on the Herring industry of 1919. It contains statements of fact which may well occupy the attention of his House. The statement that our Scotch Cure Herring, which promised so well at the beginning, received a set-back "through shipments going out in bad order," carries with it a condemnation of the Government of this country under whose administration inferior and badly cured herring were allowed to go into the best market we had for such an important product of our fishery certified and branded "Scotch Cure," as it is to be assumed they were. The statement of the Board of Trade has been corroborated on the floors of this House this session by the Hon. Member for Ferryland, the Leader of the Opposition when he described "Newfoundland Scotch Cure Herring on the market in New York a few months ago as below the standard in quality and size." In the face of these conditions need we wonder that Pacific Herring catchers can drive our product out of the American market, after bringing their catch across the Continent over 3,000 miles of railway.

This important branch of our fisheries is capable of great developument, the potential wealth of which should be more extensively availed of, and under the present capable head of the Marine and Fisheries, with the co-operation of a business administration, an earnest effort will be made to prevent a recurrence of last year's conditions in the New York market.

The Lobster Fishery

The Lobster Fishery of 1919 produced 4,494 cases, against 8,279 the previous year, a falling off in the number of cases to the extent of 3,785. But the advance in price, offset to a great extent, the shortage in catch. The average price in 1918 was $21.00 per case, compared with $34.50 per case in 1919. The value of the catch of 1919 was, therefore, only $18,816 less than that of the previous year, the 1918 catch being $173,859, against $155,043 in 1919.

It is worth noting in connection with this industry that the prices quoted above were obtained in the American market. Heretofore the bulk of the lobster pack went to the German market, which, in pre-war years, was our best customer. The resumption of trade with that nation, which will in due time follow on settled political and industrial conditions in Europe, should materially contribute to the maintenance of highly remunerative prices for well-packed lobsters.

Minor Branches of Fishery

Minor branches of our staple industy, the fisheries, tierced and canned salmon, frozen salmon and halibut, refined cod-liver oil, are capable of great expansion, and by the application of modern methods which may be found best adapted to our conditions will no doubt prove remunerative to those whose experience and knowledge in the business justify their investing therein.

In the past this country's staple industry, her prolific fisheries, have not received the direction, encouragement and support from Governments which its immeasurable importance to our industrial progress and financial stability demands.

Thus far, Mr. Speaker, in reviewing our trade I have given exclusive attention to the fisheries. While up to the present the fisheries have continued to be the basis on which our economic fabric rests, and will in all probability so continue for many generations to come, there are many other natural resources in this country, the potential wealth of which is immeasurable and has been barely tapped. These may be grouped under three heads—Agriculture, Timber and Mineral resources. Taking them in the order named I shall make brief comment on their present status.

Agriculture

Dealing with Agriculture it is not easy to give exact information as to the areas of development, production, value, etc., owing to the system, or rather I should say the absence of system, in the compilation of statistics. It is an industry, however, which in recenet years has made great progress, and in view of its increasing importance in the domestic pursuits of our population, and the possibilities of future expansion, the Government contemplate devoting special attention to its re-organisation, encouragement and development. The intention of the Government is to inaugurate reforms in that branch of our national industries so as to make it what it should have been long ago, a real and valuable factor in our country's progress.

I do not think any man in public life or in private life in this Dominion who possesses any knowledge of the Agricultural Department's administration of the past will disagree with me when I say that this country has not received the full benefit it sould have derived from the large sums which have been paid out of the revenue of this country for the "encouragement of agriculture." What is most essential in order to obtain the best results for the expenditure on agriculture is to systematize and bring under the direction of competent departmental experts that branch of the department which may have supervision over the produce of the soil, and the introduction of an improved breed of cattle, horses and sheep. In the near future we anticipate an earnest effort in the directions indicated.

Timber Resources

We have now in operation in this country two large pulp and paper mills, the Anglo-Nfld. Development Co's. mills at Grand Falls, and the A. E. Reed Co's. mills at Bishop's, both situated on the Exploits River.

Last year these two Companies exported 22,819 tons of paper, valued at $1,545,344.00; 3,128 tons of pulp valued at $43,265.00; 4,023 tons of sulphite valued at $431,913.00, making a total valuation for the three commodities of $2,020,522.00. In addition to the above Companies, the coming year will see two other mills exporting from this country, one situated at Lomond, Bonne Bay, and the other at Terra Nova, and it is not too much to expect that as the years pass by this industry will grow to such proportions as will stagger the originators of this industry in our country.

There are also 292 saw mills operating, the annual output of which is approximately 25,155,776 million feet B. M., estimated value of which is $1,006,231.00.

Prior to 1909 the manufacture of paper in this country was regarded as impracticable, and the failure of such an undertaking was confidently predicted by men of wide experience in the business. These opinions and predictions were based on erroneous information relative to the climatic conditions in this country.

The Harmsworths after thorough investigation erected a $6,000,000 plant, and have since then practically duplicated their original outlay at Grand Falls.

From these mills they are supplying the complete requirements of the extensive line of Northcliffe publications in England, and disposing of all the surplus stock they can turn out and ship to United States and other markets. Last year they shipped to the Associated Newspapers of the United States some 50,000 tons of paper and also sent a considerable quantity to Australia.

Brazil, Argentina and Chili have also placed orders for the Grand Falls paper during the past two years, and there is a likelihood of South America becoming a purchaser of Newfoundland paper on a large scale if the market is properly attended to. Before the war Germany supplied a large percentage of South America's paper requirements. The highest testimonials as to the superior quality of Newfoundland paper have come from those who have used it abroad.

The operation of the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company, and the A. E. Reed Co., have only demonstrated to the world the value of Newfoundland forests as a base of supply for pulp and newsprint. These operations have been a world-wide advertisement for this Country's timber areas and it is bearing good fruit.

Potential Forest Wealth

Ten years ago, Mr. Beeton, of Grand Falls mills, estimated that our pulpwood areas averaged a minimum of nine cords to the acre, and figured the wage value of each cord placed at the mills at $8.00 per cord (at then rate of pay) which represented $72.00 wages from each acre. Speaking on this subject at that time Sir Edward Morris estimated that every square mile of forest land, accepting Mr. Beeton's average yield per acre, represented a value of $45,000 to this Dominion in labour alone. Continuing he said, "allowing 14,000 square miles of forest land now available at $45,000 per square mile the potential wage-value of our forests would aggregate the enormous sum of $630,000,000." Now, Mr. Speaker, that seems a very great value to place on a single natural resource in this Dominion. I admit it is a huge sum. But the estimate of the forest area which places it at 14,000 square miles of timbered territory is a conservative one. Other estimates place it at 18,000 square miles. The estimate of the cost of placing the raw material at the mills is actually below what that work is now costing the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Co., so I am creditably informed. Taking these two factors into consideration we will not be able to escape arriving at the same estimates as that given by Lord Morris and Mr. Beeton, the latter an expert in forest work and estimates. But assuming that from forest fires, wastage, etc., the total estimated value be reduced 40 per cent. we still have the very large sum of $378,000,000 as a potential earning power for the labourers of this Dominion. This enormous source of wealth has been barely touched. It lies dormant and depreciating awaiting the investment of capital to convert it into gold for our people. These are a few facts which it is the duty of the representatives of the people in this Chamber to deeply ponder over, inquire into, verify and be in a position to deal with intelligently and effectively when the establishing of pulp, paper and lumber operations may demand their attention.

But it is my firm conviction, Mr. Speaker, that it is the bounden duty of the Government of this country to do all in its power to encourage the investment of capital in our forest areas, and not place vexatious restraints upon capital that may offer to develop the dormant resources of this Dominion in any direction, provided always that the interests of the people are safeguarded in all respects. Our lumber and pulp-wood output ought speedily expand to a greater extent than at present and become the most profitable of our industries except the fisheries, and as the industry develops the Dominion exchequer cannot but receive a considerable access of revenue from the manufacturing and marketing of the products of that splendid natural asset.

Our Mineral Wealth

Unsettled conditions during the war arrested many speculative ventures in the prospecting and developing of certain mineral areas. There are indications that this year will witness a resumption of activity in that direction, and let us hope with beneficial results. The Bell Island companies increased their output somewhat last year, but their export up to the end of June 1919 was only 709,300 compared with 731,000 the previous year. Their pre-war export was over a million tons, and we hope to see them reach that figure again this year. The production of other minerals was practically nil.

Native Coal Development

A persistent well-organized effort has been carried on during the past year and is still in operation by the St. George's Coal Fields, Ltd., to develop the coal deposits along the Robinson River areas. Good progress has been made and more extensive operations are likely during the next few months. The very high cost of coal for domestic use makes the development of our own coal areas a national necessity, and it is to be hoped that before long the output of our native mines will be brought within reach of the people at a greatly reduced cost. It seems to have been satisfactorily demonstrated that the arears referred to above contain extensive deposits of high grade domestic coal, estimated at 2,000,000 tons in sight. No greater boon could be bestowed upon this country than the successful working and marketing of our local coal. Its importance would not be confined to the reduction in price, but in the number of persons engaged in and about the mines, the railways and tram lines, and in the various other direct and indirect results which would flow towards all classes in the Dominion. In my opinion, Mr. Speaker, the Government would stand fully justified before the country for the investment of a reasonable sum of money to bring to a successful issue the development work already entered upon, and demonstrate once for all that this Dominion does, or does not, possess large deposits of coal of commercial value.

In commenting at such length on the prospects of the utilisation of these natural assets my object is, Mr. Speaker, to direct the attention of this House and of the country at large to the sources of potential wealth within our borders practically untouched, and from which we may find it profitable and expedient to supplement our revenues in the near future to meet the burden which the Dominion is carrying and which it may be necessary to augment to meet the pressing requirements of our trade and transportation.

To provide for the obligations which these requirements must impose is the duty now before us. It is of the very essence of the future financial stability of the Dominion to maintain at the highest possible point the earning power of our people. A declining earning power is invariably followed by decline in Customs Revenue. Our Customs Revenue, that is taxation from our imports, is to-day about 80 per cent. of the total Revenue. Any serious decline in the price of our staple products must of necessity act adversely on our Customs Revenue receipts. It is imperative, therefore, that available sources of additional internal revenue be utilized to the fullest extent, and new revenue producing industries encouraged and developed.

In common with all North American countries we have, during the past three years, been enjoying what all economists concede to be a fictitious prosperity. It is what has come to be designated as "war prosperity." We have been passing through a cycle of prosperity the result, not of expanding trade but of abnormal returns from the products of toil on land and sea.

We have been measuring our prosperity in terms of money—not in what money will buy. This applies to the people as a whole and has largely contributed to make "profiteering" easy and profitable. The late Ministry were not exempt from this financial fallacy. They, too, measured the country's prosperity in money and not in what it could buy. They received huge revenues and found surpluses mounting annually of which they boasted greatly. It was nothing to boast of. If, under normal conditions, such surpluses were produced they may have been regarded as an index of the expanding volume of trade, and may justly be pointed to with pride by the Ministry and by the Minister responsible for the fiscal policy of the Government, but with money cheap and commodities dear even if you tried you could not avoid having a surplus.

To provide for the requirements of the state without unduly burdening these from whom provision therefor is drawn should be the chief aim of tariff-makers and revenue-estimators. The late Government disregarded that sound principle. Their sole concern appeared to be the accumulation of revenues far in excess of normal requirements, and they made prodigal use of them. Their disbursement of a large portion of these revenues evidenced neither wisdom nor prudence. On ordinary business principles alone, the prudent husbanding of the country's resources was dictated by existing conditions and considerations of practical wisdom and good sense which should have imbued them with concern for the lean years which the late Minister of Finance admitted in his Budget Speech of last year were probable.

With successive revenues greatly in excess of the Dominion's ordinary requirements the late administration had a great opportunity to make provision in the days of plenty for the uncertainties of the future, to conserve their income for emergencies, but it would seem that the more wealth the revenues produced the more the late Government squandered. Plethoric revenues, the result of abnormal conditions, they attributed to the wisdom of their rule, but over which they had no more control than over the ebb and flow of the Atlantic tides. But over the expenditure of those revenues they did have control, and therein they failed to exercise it to permanent loss of this position.

In this connection the Hon. Leader of the Opposition, the ex-Minister of Finance, had a duty to do, the performance of which would have redounded very greatly to his credit, and that was the judicious and economical administration of the large revenues and large surpluses which the toil and labour of our people entrusted to his keeping. The manner in which a great portion of those surpluses was expended evidences reckless extravagance, instead of prudent frugality, which the then present conditions and future outlook would suggest to a careful and prudent steward of his country's resources. It is unnecessary for me to enlarge on this phase of the subject. Honourable members need only refer to the public accounts and to the Auditor General's report to inform themselves as to the manner in which the late Administration discharged these weighty and serious obligations to the revenue producers of this Dominion.

The expenditure of the large revenues contributed by the people, and millions of dollars raised on loan within the Dominion and outside was marked by the utter absence of method, economy, principle, regularity, frugality and care of the people's resources. Indeed, the latter months of the late administration, were marked by a reckless extravagance unparalleled in the public life of this Dominion. It was in all respects a prodigal administration revelling in an ill-ordered squandering of the public wealth.

Before closing permit me to refer briefly to the subject most uppermost in the minds of the industrial classes in this country, namely the prospects of an early decline in the cost of the necessaries of life.

The Government availed of the earliest opportunity to take Legislative power to deal with the most important phase of the subject, that of profiteering. It is of paramount importance that the masses be safeguarded against the imposition of unfair, unjust, and unnecessary burdens either in the way of excessive revenues or exorbitant charges on the necessaries of life. It is predicted by some students of economic conditions that an early receding in prices of the most essential commodities may be anticipated. But on this subject there are many and divergent views held.

Mr. Herbert C. Hoover, speaking on the subject a few months ago said, "the law of supply and demand is not working normally and probably will not for another year. While prospective food supplies for the next twelve months are about equal to the apparent need, unstable political situations, a recurring shortage in shipping, a shortage of credit, and a combination of either buyers or sellers will tend to create great speculative waves and may inflate prices to a point unendurable to the consumer, or in the reverse situation unendurable to the farmer."

In his Annual Report the President of the Bank of Montreal said,—"The high cost of living, about which so much is being said, and for the relief of which so many remedies are suggested, is a world-wide, and not a local, condition." Continuing he attributed the chief cause of high cost of living to "the pressing demand of European countries for commodities of every nature at abnormally high prices. We cannot, therefore, expect any considerable amelioration in living conditions until the world's demands are satisfied and Europe once more returns to an exporting basis. . . . . Food prices will without doubt be the soonest overcome, and I think we may look forward confidently to a reduction in the cost of all commodities both at home and abroad after another harvest, to be followed in the natural sequence by a reduction in the scale of wages; but the process promises to be gradual and marked, and a rapid decline in the near future does not seem probable."

Generally speaking the concensus of opinion of men best qualified to speak authoritatively on such matters seems to be that there will be no marked downward tendency in prices in the immediate future. And although the prospect may not be a pleasant one it is as well that our people look forward to a continuance of present prices in most of the necessaries of life for the remaining months of this year and probably the greater part of next.

For these reasons it should be our aim and policy to augment our financial strength by multiplying our productive exertions. The great necessity of exercising rigid economy and reducing to minimum expenditures upon luxuries and non-essentials should be impressed upon our people.

Conclusion

We are now entering upon the period of after-war reconstruction and readjustment. Despite many difficulties and uncertainties this country emerged from the great conflict with undiminished vigor in industrial pursuits, her local manufacturing concerns operating to capacity investment in our staple industry, the fisheries, up to the standard of pre-war years, and our financial stability unimpaired. Labor in every industry and employment is receiving remuneration commensurate with the increased cost of living.

Business generally is adjusting itself in a satisfactory way to changing conditions and the banks report that obligations are being met in a satisfactory manner, and that savings deposits show an average increase in addition to considerable investment in the local loan during the year, which speaks well for the industry and thrift of our people.

I now move, Mr. Speaker, that this House go into Committee of the Whole to consider Fays and Means.

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred had made some progress and asked leave to sit again on Thursday.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on Thursday.

Pursuant to notice and leave granted and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice the Bill entitled "An Act to confirm a Contract made by the Government with the Terra Nova Sulphite Company Ltd." was introduced and read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

Pursuant to notice and leave granted and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Companies Act" was introduced and read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

Answer to question of Mr. Bennett.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—The work of the Civil Service Commission has not yet been completed. A number of interim reports have been received, but these are in the nature of confidential documents and it would not be in the general interest to make them public. The Auditor General has for some little time been out of the Colony. He is the Chairman of the Civil Service Commission. He is presumed to have left for Newfoundland on the tenth instant.

MR. BENNETT:—Then no final report has yet been received.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—No final report has been received. A number of unsigned interim reports have been received.

MR. BENNETT:—Then the Estimates are not based upon the report of the Civil Service Commission.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—In some particulars the Estimates are based upon the Interim reports of the Civil Service Commission and in others not so based.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked the Hon. Colonial Secretary what arrangements have been made between the Reid Nfld. Co. and the Government, re the reconstruction of the Railway. If any Legislation re same to be brought down this session.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—No arrangements have been made with the Reid Newfoundland Company re the reconstruction of the railway and the matter has not yet reached a point so that I can make any definite statement whether legislation shall be introduced this session re the same.

MR. WALSH asked the Hon. the Prime Minister if the steamer "Carman" was purchased by the Government, or if chartered. If purchased, what was the purchase price, if chartered, what are the terms of charter, and for what purpose is said steamer to be used.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—The "Carman" has been hired by the Government at the rate of sixty dollars per day, the owners paying insurance and the Government paying all other charges. The steamer is being used in connection with the Customs Protection Work. She was engaged for the Customs Service but has been transferred to the Mail Service temporarily.

SIR M. P. CASHIN asked the Hon. Minister of Justice if it is correct that His Excellency the Governor is about to leave the city within the next week for a tour of the Island, and if not when; if it is His Excellency's intention to appoint the promised Commission to inquire into the Woodford affidavit before he leaves, and if not why not; also what steps His Excellency proposes to take, if he does not appoint a Commissioner before leaving, to expedite action in this matter; also if it is desirable in the interest of the maintenance of respect for the administration of justice in this country that action in this matter, which first received publicly almost three months ago, should be longer delayed seeing that a Commission was promised before the opening of the Legislature, which has now been in session two months, and that His Excellency in a communication addressed to the Opposition party on May 21st intimated that he was "on the point of obtaining such a Commission."

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—I understand from His Excellency that it is not correct that he is about to leave the city for a tour of the Island. He is only leaving the city for a day to address the G.W.V.A. at Grand Falls. It is the intention of His Excellency to appoint the promised Commission. This is an answer to the first part of the question. As to the last portion of it as to the desirability in the interest of the maintenance of respect for the administration of justice, etc., I am not in a position to express any opinion.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the Bill entitled "An Act to amend 9 and 10 Geo. V Cap. XV respecting elections in the present year" was read a third time and passed, and it was ordered that it be engrossed being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Second reading of Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 143 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Keeping of Dogs.'"

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—I ask to have it deferred.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I beg to lay upon the table of the House a copy of the Annual Report of the General Hospital for the year ending December 31st, 1919.

Mr. Bennett gave notice of question.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

WEDNESDAY, June 16th, 1920.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, I find on my desk a letter from Mr. John J. St. John, Secretary of the Moderate Prohibition Committee, under date June 16th, which reads as follows:

"Enclosed please find several petitions for presentation to the House of "Assembly asking for a modification of "the present Prohibition Act. Kindly "present same at the earliest.

"Yours truly,

"(Sgd.) J. J. ST. JOHN,

"Secretary Moderate Prohibition "Committee.

I accordingly ask leave to present petitions Nos. 6, 8, 20, 48 and 74.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—Mr. Speaker, I have much pleasure in presenting a number of petitions asking for a modification of the Prohibition Act. I would ask that they be referred to the Commission.

MR. SAMSON:—Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to present a number of petitions from the district of Twillingate asking for a modification of the present Prohibition Act.

MR. SMALL:—I ask leave to present a petition from the residents of La Poile asking that there be a modification of the Prohibition Act.

MR. HIBBS:—Mr. Speaker, I beg to present a petition from the residents of Joe Batt's Arm, District of Fogo, asking for a modification of the Prohibition Act.

MR. HIBBS:—Mr. Speaker, I beg to present a number of petitions from the residents of Lumsden, Doting Cove, Musgrave Hr., Ladle Cove, Carmanville, Horwood, Change Islands, Seldom Come By, Joe Batt's Arm, Tilting and Fogo asking that the railway be extended down the north side of Bonavista Bay and straight shore of Fogo District to Carmanville. The people residing in this section of the country are more handicapped than any other part of Newfoundland. No other section of the Dominion is so much hampered by lact of transportation facilities as is the straight shore of the district of Fogo.

The matter has been brought before this House on more than one occasion before and petitions have been presented asking for this railway extension.

The petitions which I present to-day are very largely and influentially signed, and I think with the exception of those asking for a modification of the Prohibition Act are the most important, numerically speaking, of any presented during the session.

I do not think this House is fully aware of the hardships that the industrious people residing in this section have suffered and what impediments they are subjected to because of their isolation.

There is not a harbor from Lumsden to Carmanville along that bleak and inhospitable shore, and the inconvenience and loss that the fishermen of the straight shore suffer as a consequence of this cannot be estimated in dollars and cents. The building of a harbour on the straight shore must be regarded as a very big undertaking which would mean tremendous expense, yet it is a matter that warrants the attention and consideration of the Government.

In the absence of any safe harbour along the coast mentioned there seems to be no other remedy but to give those people a back door, so to speak, in the form of a railroad.

Now, I want to be frank and say that I do not expect the Government to build this railroad during the year 1920 or 1921.

The petitioners in asking for this railroad realize that the movement is more or less in the nature of getting down our stake so that when the proper time arrives, when the finances of the Colony can bear it the first branch railroad which shall be built will the one from Gambo to Carmanville, or better still to Farewell.

There are great natural resources along that section which can never be developed, while the people are living in the state of isolation that they are at the present time. I shall embrace every opportunity that offers to drive home to the Government the necessity of this railway.

There is a lot of agricultural land situated along the straight shore which could be tapped by such a road where now the people are simply confined to their own immediate settlements, not even having roads by which they may develop the better agricultural areas situated further in the country.

I would like to again impress a serious fact upon the Government which must not be overlooked and that is that people resident in certain sections of Fogo district, particularly Gander Bay, have undergone great suffering this spring through shortage of provisions. They have even been borrowing from one another for some time past, and I understand there is not a barrel of flour to be bought in Gander Bay, and the good people in that part of the district have been sharing out their own stocks of provisions in order to ward off starvation from those who have suffered most by the shortage.

One of their chief reasons for this horrible state of affairs is the incapacity of the little steamer "Susu" to cope with the requirements of the district. This coupled with the cutting off of the other steamers from certain sections last year have brought about this deplorable condition of affairs.

It must be remembered that the same sections that I have referred to have not received a mail for the last six weeks, and surely it cannot be contended that any reasonable excuse can be given for this kind of treatment to any section of Newfoundland in this twentieth century. This must not and will not happen again if I have any power to prevent it.

Ice conditions practically cut off the entire district from communication by water during certain months of the year, and while this is a condition over which we have no control it shows more forcibly than anything else the necessity of a railroad which will place the people to some extent independent of commerce by water, and give them an opportunity to carry on uninterruptedly their usual trade and industries.

I realise that the Government has a big project on its hands in the form of our main trunk line, which it is only natural to assume must have its first and most urgent consideration, but I repeat again that just as soon as the financial condition of this country will warrant the extension of branch lines I shall expect the Government to accede to the request made by so many of my constituents on the petitions which I have presented to-day, asking for this railroad, which not only will be of inestimable benefit to the people residing on the straight shore, but it will also enable the residents of Fogo Islands and Change Islands to connect with a modern means of transportation by a couple of hours run in a motor boat.

I expect the honourable members who represent the District of Bonavista to support me in advocating the building of this road as the District of Bonavista and Fogo are contigious, and such a road would tap the north side of Bonavista Bay as well as the straight shore of Fogo.

Mr. Speaker, I have very much pleasure in presenting these petitions today, and in giving them my heartiest support I trust the Government will take this matter up in earnest and that the time is not far distant when the prayer of this petition will be acceded to.

HON. MINISTER OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS (Mr. Hlafyard):—I support the petition presented by the honourable member for Fogo.

MR. WINSOR:—I support the petition presented by the honourable member for Fogo and the remarks he made were quite true. A railroad is the only thing that can relieve the great suffering down there. Bonavista Bay in some cases may have good harbours but these do not and cannot relieve the situation when the harbours are blocked with ice. Good harbours are of no use when the ice comes along. We want a railroad on the north side of Bonavista Bay. Last year petitions were presented from the people of the north side of Bonavista Bay asking that something along those lines be done and I notice that a few days ago the Motor Association of this town presented petitions asking for the repair of the motor roads which we must admit are more for pleasure than for service and then the Government brought in resolutions embodying the request of the motorists and then a Bill was introduced to give effect to them. And since the request of the petition is necessary I think the Government ought to take the matter into serious consideration.

MR. ABBOTT:—I support the petition presented by the honourable member for Fogo and as soon as possible the railroad ought to be extended down the north side of Bonavista Bay.

MR. SULLIVAN:—I ask leave to present a number of petitions from the people of St. Mary's and Placentia asking that some measure be introduced for the modification of the Prohibition law. This petition is largely signed, it has one thousand signatures appended to it. And in view of the number of petitions coming into this House I think it is only fair and right to the people of the country that some steps be taken during this session that may have for its object the meeting of the wishes of the numerous petitioners. I give these petitions my hearty support and ask they be referred to the Department to which they relate.

MR. WALSH:—I support the petitions.

MR. SINNOTT:—I have much pleasure in supporting the petitions presented by my honourable colleague.

MR. BENNETT:—On behalf of the honourable member for Port de Grave, Sir John Crosbie, I ask leave to present a petition from that district on the question of the modification of the Prohibition Act. This is in keeping with the petition presented yesterday and is very largely signed and therefore I have much pleasure in presenting them on behalf of the honourable member. I also have several petitions from the people of St. John's West on the same subject. These petitions contain many of the prominent constituents I have the honour to represent. As the matter is assuming very large proportions I ask that the Government take the matter up and give us a pronouncement as to their intention in this matter. I have much pleasure in supporting the petitions and ask that they be referred to the department to which they relate.

MR. MOORE:—I beg to present a petition from the district of Ferryland, Witless Bay and Fermeuse asking for a modification of the Prohibition Act. I give this petition my hearty support.

MR. HIGGINS:—I have a bunch of petitions here containing over one thousand names and they are along the same lines of those already presented from St. John's East, namely, the modification of the Prohibition Act. In presenting these petitions and in light of the suggestion made on this side of the House as to the intention of the Government I repeat what I have said before that I support the prayer of the petition and I make that repetition today for this purpose that in asking the Government to do something in the matted the leader of the House has announced that a Commission will be appointed to enquire into the prevailing conditions but as it will not be able to report until the next session of the House the second part of the petition is more important than it would be otherwise. The second part of the request is that a Plebiscite be taken. This is undoubtedly a reasonable request and I support the request not because of my personal objection to the conditions prevailing to-day but because the request itself it strikes me, is largely supported throughout the country and I think the Government ought before this session closes give further thought to that matter and that aspect of the request is important. I have much pleasure in presenting the petitions.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Speaker, I beg to present a petition from all the residents of Jersey Side, Placentia. This petition requests the amount of $5000 for a break-water at that place. During the storms of last fall and winter the break-water was swept away. It is absolutely essential that this matter be attended to as soon as possible if the Government wished to protect the lives and property of the people of this place. The amount may seem large, but the break-water covers a very large stretch and it will require that amount to do the work. This break-water not only affects the people of Jersey Side but the entire district, and I hope the Government and the Minister will see their way clear to do this without delay. I might also point out that the request comes from the Committee in charge of local affairs. Mr. Speaker, I give this petition my unqualified support and hope that the prayer of the petition will be seriously considered as soon as possible by the Hon. Minister and the Government.

Mr. Sullivan:—Mr. Speaker, I have much pleasure in supporting this petition. It is very necessary that this matter be attended to before the bad weather sets in. The absence of such a break-water or the loss of the one that was there places the lives and property there in a dangerous position, and the matter cannot be attended to too quickly. I have pleasure, Mr. Speaker, in supporting the prayer of the petition.

MR. SINNOTT:—Mr. Speaker, I have much pleasure in supporting this petition.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—Mr. Speaker, I give notice that I will on to-morrow move the House into Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means.

Pursuant to notice and leave granted and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the House resolved itself into Committee of the Whole to consider certain resolutions respecting certain concessions to the Dominion Cooperative Building Association Ltd.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the chair of Committee.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, about a year ago the Hon. John Anderson, member of the Legislative Council; Mr. James McGrath, then President of the Longshoremen's Union; Hon. M. P. Gibbs, member of the Legislative Council, in conjunction with certain other gentlemen moved in the matter of Workingmen's Homes in the city of St. John's during the early summer of 1919. It was my privilege to be in conference with these gentlemen and assist them in their organization work. When in August, 1919, I was asked to undertake the leadership of the Liberal Reform Party on the Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Bond indicating that he was not prepared to undertake the leadership of the party to contest the then pending general election, I was waited on by these and other gentlemen and was asked to look into the proposition. I did so, and was glad to lend them my hearty cooperation and support in their public-spirited undertaking. After the election of November 3rd, when my party was elected to office, a deputation waited upon me seeking concessions on three points. First, the free duty into Newfoundland of such building material as was not procurable in Newfoundland; second, the guarantee of interest on the paid-up capital stock of the company at the rate of five per cent per annum for a period of twenty years; third, that in the event of the incorporation of a company funds would be provided through the companies' bankers to meet drafts and other financial obligations in connection with orders which would be placed by the company to secure building material for delivery this spring in the event of such becoming due before the legislature would have an opportunity of dealing with free entry, and the guarantee of five per cent dividend, as they thought that the company which they intended to incorporate should not make any substantial call on its prospective share-holders until the Legislature had dealt with these two matters. I assured the gentlemen who waited upon me that the matter of free entry would be accorded, that a guarantee of five per cent would be given, and I also assured them that arrangements would be made that the financial assistance which they required would be forthcoming. Subsequently a company was incorporated, it being regarded as a philanthropic rather than a business undertaking. The company was permitted by Order in Council to register free of cost in accordance with the provisions of the Companies' Act in that regard. I then got in touch with some of the leading gentlemen connected with the company and asked them to submit to me in writing their request in the matter of free entry and guarantee, which being done a Bill was drafted covering fully the undertaking which I had months before given these gentlemen and covering fully the present request. This is not a program for which the Government itself desires to take any credit. The person entitled to the major portion of credit for this undertaking is the Hon. John Anderson, who has given a very large amount of time, industry and attention to the development of the program. The directors of the company regard it as a philanthropic proposition and not merely as a business undertaking. They assured me they can get all the capital that they require on a five per cent guarantee and the free entry of such supplies as most of necessity be imported into the Colony. Within the last day or two they have sought credit to the amount of $25,000 to liquidate immediate demands owing to the arrival of goods ordered some time ago as supplies for the construction of houses during the winter, and arrangements are being made so that accommodation may be provided them through their bankers, the accommodation being temporary only, as immediately after the passing of this legislation they will call upon their shareholders for an amount which will enable them to liquidate such temporary accommodation and have sufficient funds to carry on their operations for the coming year. The first section of the Bill authorities the payment to the company of any sum by which the net earnings of the company shall be less than five per cent per annum upon so much of the capital of the company as shall be actually paid-up in cash and engaged in and about the construction of dwelling houses in Newfoundland. Section 2 is the usual provision for payment only upon the certificate of the Auditor General, the company to furnish the Minister of Finance and Customs at the end of each year certain statements and to provide facilities for the examination of books by the Auditor General. In the event of any dispute arising between the company's auditor and the Auditor General the matter shall be referred to the arbitration of any public chartered accountant, whose award shall be final. Under Section 3 all building material and machinery imported into the Colony by the company for use in its business and not of a kind and description manufactured in this Colony shall be admitted free of duty for a period of twenty years. Under Section 4 one-third of the directors of the company shall be nominated by the Government. This last section is new and is an indication of the policy of the Government that whenever any company desires a guarantee of interest on the capital which it invests in any particular undertaking the Government shall have the right to be represented on the directorate of the company, so that the Government may be informed from time to time as to the management and undertakings of the company and the Government may always be assured that the company is efficiently managed, its accounts properly kept and is doing its best to make a success of its enterprise. These resolutions carry out fully the understanding between the gentlemen who organized the company and myself with respect to Government assistance to be given this important enterprise and fully covers the request that has been made upon the Government in this regard. I consequently move that this House do now resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole on these resolutions.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—The Speaker, I would like to ask the hon. introducer of these resolutions if he can give us more definite information with respect to this matter. How is the money to be raised? A Government guarantee of 5% is not sufficient to raise money on. This is not a business proposition. I would like to know very much whether the Government intends to loan the money, or whether they intend getting it outside, and if the interest is not going to be more than 5%. I have an idea that this is another piece of camouflage such as we are being treated to this session.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—This is not regarded as a business undertaking. A large number of the share-holders are subscribing to the capital stock of the company as a matter of philanthrophy and not for profit. Money could not possibly be secured in the markets for a mere commercial venture at the present time on a five per cent guarantee. A very large proportion of those who will be shareholders in this company seek no guarantee. There are, however, some share-holders who desire to secure some return to the extent of feeling that they may be guaranteed to get back in dividends as much as the principal sum which they invest. In the twenty years the shareholders will have got back in interest the entire amount of principal invested. Interest in the Savings' Bank, in which the principal is absolutely secure is three per cent, and there are undoubtedly some who feel that they should be making two per cent more on this money than if it were in the Savings Bank, when from the standpoint of philanthrophy they make an investment to put through the company's program. This is, as I have already said, not a business proposition; it is a proposition with which people who have means and desire to help out the housing situation in St. John's have associated themselves for the purpose of doing something for the cause to which the Hon. John Anderson, Mr. James McGrath and Hon. M. P. Gibbs and others have given a considerable amount of time and effort. I understand that some leading firms, such as Messrs. Bowring Brothers, Ltd., are substantial subscribers to the capital stock of the company. These gentlemen are not investing their money to get a five per cent dividend; these gentlemen are not investing their money for the purpose of getting the capital back; they prefer, however, to make their donation in the form of an investment and put the amount in the hands of a limited liability company rather than in the form of a straight donation.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Speaker, before the House goes into committee I want to say that the terms of these resolutions are a decided disappointment to me in the sense that while the Hon. Prime Minister has pointed out that they comply in every detail with the requests of the company, we must look at the thing coldly and brutally from the standpoint of what they are calculated to do in the way of giving encouragement to this project, and if we do so we must admit that the Bill does absolutely nothing at all to help in the building of workingmen's homes. It appears from the resolutions that the company has asked the Government for the free admission of such materials as they may need in the construction of these houses but there is nothing in that for which the Government can take the slightest credit to themselves because that very same thing is done for anyone who wishes to build a hen's house, it is done in the case of fox farms and in fact in numerous projects that have none of the features that this has to recommend it. As for the five per cent guarantee, it will certainly not influence anyone to put their money into it as a business proposition and consequently the Government has done nothing.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I did not say that we were doing anything.

MR. HIGGINS:—I am glad you admit, and now Mr. Speaker, that the Hon. Prime Minister has made this admission, I might say that I had looked forward, when we got a change of government, to having a new town, judging from the pre-election praises and hopes of the Prime Minister, but of course if St. John's has to bow to the will and power of the outport districts I suppose we must forgive the Prime Minister for his failure to bring about a realization of his promises in this direction, but for us to consider that in these resolutions we are doing angthing to assist in the building of these workingmen's houses, why it is too far-fetched to talk about. Another point, when we consider the number of offeerers who have tendered donations towards the movement we know that they have done so, as the Prime Minister intimated, in the spirit of doing something to help a deserving cause, they have done it in the spirit of generosity because they have the money, but it should be remembered that in this building proposition the capital of the country should be available and the Government should be prepared to assist in an special degree, in an unusual manner in this housing scheme and I think hon. members will not deny that. Those who have already offered money are not looking to getting a return of 5% and surely the Government is not going to ask us to accept the proposition that this five per cent guarantee will have the slightest weight in influencing persons who have money to invest it in this way for the sake of the returns they are likely to get. It ought at least be made eight per cent, because if we are going to encourage people to put their money into the project we must make it attractive for them. So far as the returns on the houses themselves are concerned, it will I think be readily agreed that nobody is going to build houses for rent as a business proposition; you are not going to get the money out of these houses to pay any kind of a dividend on the money put into them because even to meet the expenses of wear and tear and the general up-keep of the houses the rents will have to be excessive. I am not speaking now in a critical sense at all, but members like the Hon. Prime Minister and the Minister of Finance, who are doubtless better acquainted with these matters than most of the other hon. gentlemen on the other side, must know that if we are going to touch the thing at all, we should give the necessary encouragement by this five per cent guarantee. Take for example the Hr. Grace Dry Dock and the Bell Island Tramway, the guaranteed dividends in these cases were merely a means of safety for shareholders, both were absolute certainties, calculated business propositions from the beginning, but this idea of building houses in the city is not to be considered for a moment as a business proposition or as a likely investment but rather from the standpoint of the necessity which exists for them amongst the working people, and if we are going to give any guarantee on the money that is put into them let us make it something that will at least make the invetment attractive for those who wish to put their money in. There is surely nothing in this Bill to congratulate the Government upon and the Leader of the Government now says that the Government does not profess to be doing anything in the matter. I am glad at any rate that he has had the honesty to admit that much and there will be an opportunity later to say a word or two with regard to this point.

MR. BENNETT:—Mr. Speaker, I must say that I rise with a feeling of disappointment at the resolutions just submitted by the Hon. Prime Minister on a matter in connection with which so much had been expected from him. When we consider that this very thing played such a prominent part in bringing him and his colleague back to this Chamber, it is difficult to realize that this is to be the extent of his efforts.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Do you mean the by-election or the general election?

MR. BENNETT:—Both. From the prominent place which the Government's supposed action with regard to the building of workingmen's homes occupied in the Speech from the Throne, I felt that the limitation of their encouragement to the sum of $60,000 was not very generous but the resolutions we have here now fall far short of even that effort, and promise absolutely nothing and I am sure that the disappointment I feel in this matter will be felt by every working man in this city when they realize how they have been fooled and hunted. I am sorry for the Prime Minister and his colleague because in my opinion they should have fought to the last trench in an effort to keep their promises to those whose support was secured by them. I can appreciate the difficulties of a government constituted as this one is, swayed as it is by the outport interests but I believe that the outports could be brought to realize the great need for these houses in St. John's and that they in their generosity would agree to such concessions as would help to eliminate the sufferings caused by present housing conditions.

I notice that according to the first section of these resolutions, the company is not confined to St. John's but as you will notice by the last line in this first section, they can go anywhere in the Colony. The company can go to Bonavista Bay if they wish or to Trinity or Conception Bays. I have no fault to find with this, but I contend that it is not necessary, there is no need for such reform, as the Leader of the Government terms it, in the outports. Certain persons connected with this movement were very prominent during the election last fall. In fact the prime movers perhaps were sincere in their efforts but they took very good care to be identified with the present government and some of them went out of their way to misrepresent myself and others. During the time of Mr. Halfyard as Colonial Secretary a communication was sent to him from the Hon. John Anderson in reference to the housing scheme but it was never replied to. I was told about this matter upon taking over this office and I immediately sent a reply.

HON. MINISTER OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS:—I respectfully take this opportunity Mr. Speaker to explain to the House why I did not make a reply to this communication referred to by the hon. member for St. John's West. Mr. Anderson sent a further letter saying that he had sent a letter to the Colonial Secretary but he did not get a reply to it, he also states that he sent a letter to the Prime Minister of England but received a reply. The letter to which Mr. Bennett referred was sent to me on the morning of the 16th or 17th of September, 1918. That morning I took passage on the Susu for Catalina as you are probably aware at that time the shooting season opens and this is the only opportunity I get to take a holiday. I came back two weeks later and found that the Deputy Minister had failed to acknowledge receipt of the letter. That communication was then put on the Agenda. The next time I saw that letter it was marked "stand over" so therefore I am not responsible for not making a reply.

MR. BENNETT:—Who marked it "standover"?

HON. MINISTER OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS:—Sir Michael Cashin I presume, he was then Prime Minister, and there's the reason why the Hon. John Anderson didn't get a reply. I am glad of the opportunity that has been given me by the hon. member for St. John's West to explain this matter.

MR. BENNETT:—I don't think the hon. member has altered the situation any. I don't think that hon. minister is discourteous and is probably correct in his reply but it is surprising that the Deputy didn't do the necessary. I feel that we should all be one on this very important question, the conditions in the town to-day ought to be relieved and I am sure the men on this side of the House will back up the Government, but it is very disappointing to me that the Government has not taken this matter more seriously. You won't raise a dollar on that guarantee. Sir Edgar Bowring or the Hon. J. D. Ryan or some other wealthy men may from a philanthropic viewpoint contribute a sum of money, but they would probably do it without any guarantee. I think that it is unworthy of the Government and its introducer to bring in such a bill. In days gone by a 5% guarantee as pointed out by the hon. Mr. Higgins on the Hr. Grace dockyard or the Bell Island tramway or the Placentia and Carbonear Water Company was a very good investment as money was very plentiful in those days and the percentage was very low but you don't raise a dollar to-day on a 5% guarantee. What is the use of throwing dust in the eyes of the people of St. John's on such a matter of great vital importance. The guarantee only runs for 20 years, what is to happen after that? A twenty year guarantee and then no provision for what is to come after. What is going to happen after that? The houses will be getting old then and to ask the people of St. John's to take a proposal like that I think would be a slur on the intelligence of the community. I am sorry that the Government is not big hearted enough to come forward and do something because after all it is the capital city and the working classes are always at a great disadvantage. People in the outports generally have their own house, a cow and some sheep and their own garden but the great majority of the working men in the city have nothing to call their own. Picture the case of the man in the city who has a family and is working hard from morning till night to support that family and he is living away in one of the back streets and his health breaks down there is nothing left for him but a charitable institution. This is brought by the environment and unsanitory condition in which they are compelled to live in. There is no more important subject to come into this House than this, and it is occupying the attention of statesmen all over the world. Any money spent in the building of houses is money well invested. It would be far better for us to do something in this direction than to be devoting money for the improvement of hospitals and insane asylums and poor houses and other institutions.

As to the fact that the Government will allow materials to come in duty free, that is merely a drop in the bucket. For the class of houses that will be constructed by this Dominion Building Cooperative Association, ninety per cent of the material will be found in our own country. Outside of the hardware necessary for locks and hinges, the material will be found at our own doors, and therefore the Government will not be giving any great concession, when they admit material duty free. Iam afraid if the policy outlined by these resolutions, is to be followed, that there is very little hope of any appreciable advance on these lines. You may build ten, fifteen or twenty houses, but we want hundreds of houses, in this town, to-day, and nothing less will do to relieve the situation, and the day of reckoning will come unless those who are charged with the responsibility will take up this matter in the proper way and make some effort to bring about some reform of a far-reaching nature. They will have to take the resopnsibility of a breach of trust, because all kinds of promises were made to the people of this city by honourable members on the other side of the House, and the people who voted for them are expecting something of a tangible nature. They cannot live on promises, fresh air is good, but it is not sufficient for breakfast. The Hon. the Prime Minister is muttering something unintelligible behind his paper. If he has anything to say why does he not put away his paper and speak out like a man. I think Mr. Speaker that it is indecent for the Hon. the Prime Minister to sit behind a paper, and throw out an insult to any hon. member who is speaking on the oflors of this House.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I did not say anything to the hon. member for St. John's West.

MR. BENNETT:—However Mr. Speaker, I wish once again to express my serious disappointment and regret that the Government have broken faith with many of those who voted for them and who deserved better at their hands. The Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs says that they will get what they were promised. Well, it is a case of live horse, and eat grass. I am sure that these resolutions will go down in history as one of the most feeble attempts ever made to meet a contingency which should have liberal treatment at the hands of the Government.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—Mr. Speaker, before this section passes, as a shareholder in this Company, I would like to say that I think that this is a very dangerous section. The Municipal Council have built houses under the supervision of Mr. J. Coaker, and on all the material that went into those houses duty was paid, and I think that this Company should pay duty also. I contend that a man from Hr. Grace has as much right to get material duty free as a man in St. John's, and any man in Newfoundland has as much right to get material duty free as this Association. I think that if the Government would loan this Company fifteen or twenty thousand dollars, and let them pay the duty, that it would be better. A man might go down to the Finance and Customs Department and get ten or twenty barrels of cement, and he would want it duty free ,and if we give this Association that privilege, and keep it from others, you will have trouble, and for that reason I would like to see this section altered.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Chairman, before this section passes I would like to ask the Prime Minister whether it is the intention of the Government to change the interest from five to eight per cent.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—The Company asked for five per cent. They stated that they had all the capital that they required, and the request in maximum from them, has been granted in these resolutions.

MR. HIGGINS:—If there is any correspondence on the housing question can we have it on to-morrow?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—If there is any correspondence, in this connection, it will be tabled to-morrow.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

The Chairman of the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had passed the Resolutions without amendment, and recommended that a Bill be introduced to give effect to the same.

On motion this report was received an dadopted and the Bill entitled "An Act respecting Certain Concessions to the Dominion Co-operative Building Association Ltd." was introduced and read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

MR. BENNETT:—To ask the Hon. Colonial Secretary to lay on the table of the House the report of the Commission appointed by the late Government to enquire into the salaries of the Civil Service.

HON. COLONIAL SECRETARY:—Mr. Speaker, the work of the Civil Service Commission is not yet completed, though there are a number of interim reports furnished the Government by the Commission.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—You did not base your Estimates on those interim reports.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—We based them upon consideration of the interim reports and in so far as the Estimates furnished were already passed upon.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the Bill sent up entitled "An Act respecting Certificates of Masters and Mates" with some amendments in which they request the concurrence of the House of Assembly.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, these amendments are merely verbal. The operation of the Act is extended six months. After the word "shipping" in section (1) add the words "any two of them will act." The Board comprises three members. In section (2) is amended by adding the words "such rules and regulations when approved of by the Governor in Council and published in the Royal Gazette shall have the force and effect of law." Section (4) is amended by striking out the words "January 1st, 1921," and substituting therefor the words "June 30th, 1921."

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Speaker, I would like to draw the attention of the Government to these amendments, because it will be distinctly remembered that the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries stated when this Bill was before the House that this thing would only extend until the end of this year and these were the reasons that prompted us to support the Bill. I direct this question particularly to the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries and to ask him as to why he changed his view.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—Mr. Speaker, this matter was referred to a Select Committee. Among the members of that Committee were several ship-owners, who urged the change, because of the fact that many masters and mates would be leaving Newfoundland soon and going away and would not probably return for seven or eight months, and that if we did not extend the Act that they would be prevented from going. That is the reason why the change was made.

Second reading of Bill entitled "An Act to confirm a Contract made by the Government with the Terra Nova Sulphite Co., Ltd."

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the second reading of that Act. The Terra Nova Sulphite Co., Ltd., are formed to carry on a pulp industry at Alexander Bay on the Terra Nova River. Negotiations were commenced with the late Government for certain concessions and the only difference in the agreement is that this Government now proposes to charge so much per horse power for the water power developed by the Company.

Second reading of Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Companies Act."

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Speaker, in moving the second reading of this Bill, I would say that this Bill will not be of any interest to many members of the House. It is merely to give power to the present Companies Act, which is incorporated by Charter.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

THURSDAY, June 17th, 1920.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

MR. ABBOTT:—Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present a petition from the residents of Port Blandford for the sum of $1000.00 to repair the Main Road from one end of Port Blandford to the other, a distance of four miles. It seems that this road has gone without repairs for a long time and that several bridges are in a very bad condition. I ask that this petition be sent to the department to which it relates and that the prayer of the petition be given due consideration.

MR. WINSOR:—Mr. Speaker, I have pleasure in supporting this petition.

MR. SMALL:—Mr. Speaker, on behalf of Mr. LeGrow I ask leave to present a petition from the residents of Broad Cove asking for sufficient funds to build a launchway in that place.

MR. GOSSE:—Mr. Speaker, knowing the place and the need I have pleasure in supporting this petition.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, I am to-day in receipt of a petition without covering letter signed by a number of representative citizens of the electoral district of St. John's West protesting against any modification in the present Prohibition legislation and seeking for a vigorous enforcement of the Act as it at present stands. As this document has been forwarded to me I conclude that the sender intended that it should be dealt with formally, and I now ask leave to present the petition to the House.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Speaker, before we go on to the order of the day I would like to draw the attention of the House and particularly the Leader of the Government in the absence of the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs to a message that come from Bay de Verde district. This is a serious matter. I think it will be recognized that this method of carrying on public service is of no credit to ourselves. This matter is of such a character that an immediate investigation should be made. We have heard a lot of the Postal Telegraph business. Some business men of the town have declined to do business through the Postal Telegraph. There is no secrecy. This latest aspect is most serious. This prostitution of a public service is certainly one that no honorable member wants to stand for, consequently I ask that the matter be immediately investigated and that the result of the investigation be made public. I feel sure that if there is an investigation that it will in some measure restore confidence in the system. We cannot compete with the Anglo, and this incident shows why. No business is secret. I consequently ask that the Colonial Secretary in the absence of the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs have this matter looked into.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, the value of a telegraph message received by the honourable member for St. John's East in connection with the Bay de Verde campaign depends to a very large extent upon the sender of the message. Does the honourable member for St. John's East make this charge on his own account, depending upon the reliability of the person who sent the telegraph message as his justification?

MR. HIGGINS:—The person who sent the message was a reliable person. I have quoted that portion of the message which related to the incident. There were other portions of the message which were private.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—As Mr. Higgins makes the charge himself and states that he makes it on the basis of a telegraph message received from a reliable party, I assure the honourable member that I will have the matter investigated. I would point out, however, that telegraph messages, particularly messages in connection with the Bay de Verde election campaign, cannot as a rule be relied upon. I myself had an experience in the district last week. On Saturday evening I was at Bay de Verde. I received a telegraph message during the afternoon saying that on Saturday morning I had to fly for my life from Freshwater. I consequently changed my plans and arranged to go to Freshwater for a meeting on Monday night. I got there on Monday about noon, and on Monday night I had a meeting there which was probably the finest political meeting ever held in Freshwater. It was just as large and enthusiastic a meeting for Freshwater as was any of our meetings in the Majestic Theatre for St. John's. At that meeting I referred to the telegraph message which I had received which said that a man named Butt of Freshwater had sent a message to Mr. J. C. Puddester, at Western Bay, which message Mr. Puddester was circulating, to the effect that on Saturday I had to fly for my life from Freshwater, and called the attention of the audience to the fact that they were residents of Freshwater, they knew that I had passed through the town that morning, that I had been in Freshwater all afternoon and they were now at a meeting at which I was addressing them, and asked them whether they stood for such conduct. The message was signed "Butt" and I consequently am not absolutely sure as to who sent the message, but I am informed that it was sent by a man named James N. Butt, who made himself responsible for this lying statement. Such a man is a disgrace to the locality in which he lives, and I have no doubt the people of Freshwater will drive him out of their town for such improper conduct. It is quite probable that this message to which the honourable member for St. John's East has referred is from an equally irresponsible person and is of a like false character. I shall, however, be glad to have the matter investigated.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the amendments made by the Legislative Council in and upon the Bill sent up entitled "An Act Respecting Certificates of Masters and Mates," were read a second time and concurred in, and it was ordered that a message be sent to the Legislative Council acquainting that body that the said amendment had been agreed to without amendment.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—These amendments are important in that they improve the Act and extend its operation to the 30th of June, 1921. They are not, however, major amendments, nor do they in any way affect the principle of operation of the measures, but rather improve it. Under section 1 of the Bill the Board of Examiners is appointed, consisting of three persons. The first amendment provides that two shall form a quorum for the transaction of business. Section 2 of the Bill provides that the Board may make certain regulations and the amendment provides that these rules and regulations shall become and have the full force and effect of law on approval by His Excellency the Governor in Council and publication in the Royal Gazette. The third amendment relates to Section 4 which section provides that the Board shall remain in existence and have power until the first of January, 1921, and no longer. The amendment extends the time to the 30th of June, 1921. I move that these amendments be now read a first time.

Committee of the Whole on Supply.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Chairman, before proceeding with the Estimates, might I ask the Hon. Minister of Finance if it is his intention to table the interim reports of the Commission on Civil Servants' salaries already asked for.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—I haven't seen any reports.

M. HIGGINS:—Being in charge of the Estimates, I naturally thought that you would also have control of these reports.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—I do not know anything about them.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—On yesterday I replied to the question asked on that point and stated that no final report had been received from the Commission but that certain interim reports were in the hands of the Government, which being of a private nature cannot be tabled as it would not be in the interests of certain officials to do so. A digest of these reports which will be of an official nature, has been delayed owing to the absence from the Colony of the Chairman of the Commission who, as you know, is the Auditor General and so far as the interim reports are concerned, the other two commissioners, Messrs. O'Rielly and Christian, are not prepared to accept the responsibility of having them made public.

MR. HIGGINS:—The reason of my asking that the reports in question be tabled arises out of the Prime Minister's reply yesterday to the effect that upon the interim reports submitted and upon the recommendations of the Commission made therein, the great bulk of the increases shown in the Estimates were based.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSOMS:—Some of the increases it was said.

MR. HIGGINS:—Whether there were some or a great many, the position of this House is the same. The reports are not confidential, they are the property of this House as are the Estimates themselves. No report of this character can be private and that is what prompts me to say that not alone is it improper but exceedingly strange that if the estimates are based upon the recommendations of a commission appointed to look into the matter of Civil Servants salaries, we are asked to pass these estimates without the report of the Commission being laid before the House. The position is such that it is not a matter for the Prime Minister to say that some official may be hurt if these reports are made public; certain salaries are to be voted and there are differences here that we cannot account for and therefore it is not a question of the Government's saving any officials from the comment which might arise as a result of the report of the Commission. I think, sir, that under the circumstances, it would be improper for us to consider these Estimates further until the reports we have asked for are in our hands because if it is a case of some department being inefficiently staffed for example, it is not for us to allow such a state of affairs to be hushed up but rather to ventilate it as fully as possible otherwise we are allowing a position to exist that is extraordinary and irreconcilable. We are merely asking for the report of a Commission appointed and paid for by the people whose money we are going to vote away, and in the light of this aspect of the case I submit that the Government, with all respect, has no right to ask hon. members to regard this report or any part of it confidential or private.

Such a report is not and cannot be confidential. There is no such thing as a confidential report of a Commission appointed by the public service, and paid for out of the public funds. I go further and say that to the best of my ability I will see that that report comes down. If it be the intention to cloak up something and save the feelings of somebody then I think I can find a means of getting the report down. This is the first time in the history of this chamber that this report was not tabled before any discussion was made on the Estimates. Nothing is private to the Government except in the case where mutiny is expected in government departments. Is the report of such a character that it will cause a mutiny in any of the public departments. There is no excuse for denying the House the privilege of reading these reports and I ask the Prime Minister if he would consent to rising the Committee until this can be done.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Chairman, I feel that I have been misunderstood in what I have said. I did not say that there would be no report. In so far as the Estimates are concerned the reports will be furnished. As regards the interim reports on the whole there has been no opportunity to consider them. The Chairman of the Commission has been out of the country and the two remaining members do not feel that they could shoulder the responsibility of giving the reports. They are both new men on the job but in so far as the Estimates are concerned the information will be tabled.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Speaker, I would suggest that we get through some of the formal parts of the Estimates. Take, for instance, Pensions, that is not touched by the Civil Service Report.

MR. HIGGINS:—I would suggest to the Hon. the Minister of Justice that I think it would be better for the Committee to rise, as I am sure that it will facilitate matters. You may get through one or two of the votes this afternoon, but what is the use of that.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Members on this side of the House are anxious that the House should close as early as possible. If the Committee rises, it looks like if we were throwing away an afternoon when we could be discussing some of the votes.

MR. HIGGINS:—I understood the Leader of the Government to say that the Committee would rise.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—I was not under that impression, because when I came back to my seat the Prime Minister suggested that we should take up the matter of Pensions.

MR. HIGGINS:—If you want to feel that you have made a start in the Estimates you may get through one or two of the votes this afternoon, but there won't be much advantage in that, and I think that it would be better for the Committee to rise, and give us a chance to look over those reports before going any further.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Chairman, so that Mr. Higgins may have the opportunity of studying these reports over night, I move that the Committee rise and report progress, and ask leave to sit again.

The Hon. Minister of Justice moved the House into a Committee on the Terra Nova Sulphite Co. Act.

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the chair of the Committee.

MR . CHAIRMAN:—Before this clause goes through I would like to ask the introducer of the Bill if he has had any information from the Terra Nova Sulphite Co. as to what horse power they intend to develop.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—They did give me a figure, but I have forgotten it. If you have any idea of what the figure might be, and would tell me, it might help me to remember the actual figure. I know that the figure is based upon the one charged in Ontario, and Quebec. It's about the average figure. What horse power have they in Grand Falls?

MR. SULLIVAN:—Fifty thousand horse power.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—I think this company's will be about three or four thousand horse power.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Just one word before the adjournment of this House. In reading down the articles in The Evening Advocate reference I see is made to salt. Is it the intention of the Government to charge the fishermen eight dollars per hogshead on the salt imported from St. Pierre by the S.S. Terra Nova and also is it the intention of the Government to charge six or seven dollars per hogshead for salt that is coming from Liverpool at the present time. If that is so there is not much to look forward to for the man who uses salt. The fishermen will certainly have to pay nine or ten dollars for salt during the present summer. I notice here in The Advocate the following (read). Well salt landed here at St. John's and sold to the planters will certainly incur the further cost of at least fifteen per cent on account of freight and profit. Salt today going from St. John's to Labrador will cost a cople of dollars more so I would like to ask the Leader of the Government if it is the intention of the Government to pay the difference between four dollars and eight dollars on the cargo of salt coming from Liverpool and on the cargo arrived from St. Pierre. The set price to-day is four dollars per hogshead for salt which every man North, East, South and West is going to use and we have to add to the first cost of it one dollar at least. I might also state that at present in St. John's there is not a hogshead to be had. I was along the waterfront this morning at eight o'clock and there are vessels down there tied to the wharves waiting for salt. We have nothing to secure the getting of salt for these people. If the ship which has left Liverpool strikes an iceberg where are we? Has any enquiry been made in Nova Scotia for salt? There is considerable salt at Halifax. This is no laughing matter especially as far as the fishermen are concerned. This is the most serious thing before the House at the present time and it needs our careful consideration and in doing that we have a lot to do. Here we are nearing the 1st July and a great number of vessels tied to the wharves in the harbour here with no salt to give them and there is a statement made in one of the Government's prominent papers to lower the fishermen down, to break it gently that the price of salt from now to the last of August will be from eight to ten dollars per hogshead. This is mere camouflage trying to blame the merchants of Water Street for this. It was the province of the merchants to look after the salt question. During the period of the War the salt question was carefully watched from season to season and early in the winter months arrangements were made by the late Government to have salt on the move early in May. Go back and look up your diaries and you will see that salt arrived promptly and we had two or three cargoes here in the month of May in the years from 1917 to 1919. If this is the situation, no doubt it is, the Finance Minister in bringing down the Estimates was wrong when he said there would be an increase of two million dollars. The increase will be something like two and one quarter million dollars when we have to pay on twenty or thirty thousand tons of salt five dollars per hogshead so as to give it to the fishermen for four dollars per hogshead. We know in the House and out of it that the trap voyage is over the end of July. The trap voyage is the principal voyage along the South Coast, the Northern Bays and Labrador. If we haven't any salt we are going to be in Queer Street. We ought immediately get in touch with Lunenburg and Halifax. There is a quantity of salt at Halifax, but I am not sure that it is for sale. We should get the sealing steamers that are in the harbour and dispatch them to Halifax if any salt can be obtained there. The salt situation is a very serious one, and no time should be lost in trying to remedy it.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:— The situation in connection with salt is that there are 11,000 tons of salt expected to arrive within the course of the next two weeks. A large quantity is due between Wednesday and Tuesday of this week. The steamer "Isis" chartered by the Newfoundland Government some little time ago left Liverpool on the 12th with a cargo of 6,000 tons of salt. A quantity of salt has already been received from St. Pierre. The seriousness of the salt situation is not a matter for which either the salt importers or the Government is in any way responsible. Last autumn the Acting Minister of Shipping approached certain salt importers on the matter of a supply of salt for this season's fishery and was informed that they were making arrangements for a full supply. During the winter they were again approached by the Acting Min. of Shipping who was assured that arrangements had been made so that a full supply of salt could be secured. There is no question about the fact that everything that could be done from a business standpoint was done. It is a matter of public knowledge that a very large supply of salt would have been in port some weeks ago were it not for the strike at Cadiz. The House has already been informed that four steamers having a total capacity of about 28,000 tons have been detained in Cadiz for a month owing to the strike. That strike was not a matter which could be anticipated by either the fish merchants or by the Government, and in spite of anything the Opposition may say to the contrary neither the fish merchants nor the Government were responsible for the organization of the strike or in any way identified with the delay of the ships because of the strike. I realize the fact that as there is a bye-election pending in the electoral district of Bay de Verde the Leader of the Opposition will accuse the Government of having promulgaged this strike for the express purpose of delaying the salt for fishery purposes, but no person except an enthusiastic supporter of Sir Michael Cashin would give credence to any such story. With respect to the price of salt, the standard price of $4.00 per hogshead for Cadiz salt has been determined upon by the Government. The Cadiz salt imported from St. Pierre cost as high as $8.00 per hogshead; the Liverpool salt imported from Liverpool cost about $6.00 per hogshead; the salt which will ultimately be secured from Cadiz will be very much cheaper. The intention of the Government is to pool all the salt and establish a uniform cash price on the basis of $4.00 Cadiz salt. Liverpool salt being about one dollar per hogshead higher than Cadiz salt. That will mean that the Government will have to help out the fishermen of the country to an amount which is estimated at $50,000 on salt supply for the season's fishery unless subsequent cargoes can be secured from Cadiz at a cheap figure.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Speaker, before this House adjourns I would like to bring the attention of the Prime Minister and the Government generally to the fact that in conversation with Mr. Bartlett a day or two ago I was informed that some 800 patients are unable to get admission to the hospital. Three or four of my constituents after staying here two or three weeks in boarding houses waiting to get into the hospital had to return home. I would like to know if anything is going to be done about this matter. We cannot estimate the value of a human life, yet we are treating it as if the matter was not worth consideration. There is no provision for this in the estimates; there is no provision for any outport hospitals or any addition to the city general hospital. I merely bring this matter to the attention of the Government now so that the matter may be attended to as early as possible.

Mr. Walsh gave notice of question.

HON. MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—Mr. Speaker, with respect to the salt situation I would like to say a half dozen words. It is certainly to be regretted that there is a shortage of salt, but certainly neither the Government or the merchants are to blame. The strike in Cadiz is to blame. So far as the price is concerned I don't think even $6.00 would frighten the people in White Bay. They had to pay $8.00 last year for salt in White Bay.

On motion the House adjourned until 3 of the clock on to-morrow.

FRIDAY, June 18th, 1920.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Speaker, I have here a petition from the St. John's Municipal Council dealing with legislation now before this House and as the petition is a short one I shall read it for the benefit of hon. members. (Reads petition). I would like to say that this petition is of such a nature that in my opinion, it would be worth while for the Government to consider the matter referred to in it before proceeding further with the Bill now before the House. What is best in the interests of the public is what the Government must feel bound to do. There is a great deal of force behind the request in this petition and I think it should be acceded to because it cannot take from the request of those behind the other measure. That means an indemnity of 5% and if we can give that guarantee to one there is no reason why we cannot give it to the other. I fear, however, as I pointed out a day or two ago that we are not going to accomplish very much in this way with regard to relieving a situation which has become not only accute but painful to those who are in a position to know just what conditions are. It is difficult to make those who are not in the way of becoming acquainted with the actual facts understand the seriousness of the present position with regard to housing. There are hundreds and hundreds of hard working and reputable mechanics and others, who on account of houses having changed ownership, are absolutely without homes. Only the other day a reputable engineer came to me and told me he had notice to quit the house he was in and his situation was actually so desperate that he wanted to know if I could tell him of some person who might have a vacant lot of land where they would allow him to pitch a tent. Now this story is almost unbelievable but conditions are really as bad as that in the city to-day. There are altogether too few houses to cope with the growth of the city. I would ask in presenting this petition that the best possible consideration be given to the request therein. I think there is a very great deal of justice behind it and by granting it nothing can be taken from the other proposition but rather will it add to it and with that consideration in mind, I would ask for it the Government's support.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—I would like to ask the hon. member if it is his desire that we take the duty of all materials that a man needs for the building of his house and if he expects that the duty on all hardware to be used is to be refunded.

MR. HIGGINS:—I take it that there has been universal concessions of free admission of materials and that here things needed and imported will be granted a rebate.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—If every individual would have to get a rebate on all things that he needed for use in building his house and bought locally I think that it would be an awful undertaking to control.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—

Mr. Chairman, I don't see where this petition effects this bill at this stage in the committee. A great many men are ready to sacrifice their capital and put money into this undertaking out of purely philanthrophic spirit. The independent citizen wants to help out the poor man, the class of man that Mr. Bennett referred to yesterday. If philanthrophic men give their time and money we will encourage them. They don't plan to make on the rent they charge as much as 5%. It is not a private investment.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—Is it a charitable proposition, if so why not let the few men who have their money in it on the 5% basis take it out and let the Government put in the promised $60,000.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I understand that my hon. friend is one of the shareholders in that company. I am also a shareholder. The proposition that now forms part of this bill is what the company has asked for and all it has asked for.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—I gave my subscription in a public spirited manner. I was asked to contribute for five or six years and I am ready and willing to let them have it without any interest. When I gave the money I didn't care if I ever got it back again. I think that those generous men who have placed their money there can afford to let it stay there without any interest and the Government could do what I proposed.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Will you move that this section be stricken out speaking on behalf of the company.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—Yes I will move that it be stricken out.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, the Bill with respect to the Dominion Cooperative Building Society relates only to the activities of that particular combination which is a philanthropic organization; it does not relate to any general movement which may be made throughout the Island of Newfoundland for the building of houses for the accommodation of the people of Newfoundland. Any such proposition would receive the consideration of the House separately and distinctly from the present measure. I consequently do not feel that the Committee Stage of the present Housing Bill should be deferred because of the presentation of this petition, nor do I feel that any general provisions should be inserted in this Bill. This Bill has one object, and one object only, and that is, to put into Legislative effect the pledge which I gave the promoters of the Company in the matter of free entry for building material not procurable in Newfoundland and a guarantee of a dividend not exceeding five per cent, the Government having sufficient representation on the Board of Directors to see that the affairs of the Company are properly managed and that rentals were fixed on a five per cent dividend basis. A very large proportion of the investors of this Company seek no dividend. As it is, all the investors may be donating their capital because this Bill does not guarantee capital. But the Company asked for two concessions. These two concessions are granted by this measure. That was the pledge which I gave, and that pledge is being carried out to the fullest. So that there can be no misunderstanding in this connection I will read a letter from Hon. M. P. Gibbs, solicitor for the company, asking for the concessions, my letter in reply, and a second letter from him to myself. A perusal of this correspondence in conjunction with this Bill will satisfy the House that the requests that the company made are being fully carried out. The following is the correspondence:

Gibbs & Barron,
St. John's, Newfoundland,
May 26th, 1920.

(Copy)

Hon. R. A. Squires, K.C.,
Premier.

Dear Sir,

We are directed by the Dominion Co-operative Association, Limited, to inform you that the following have been elected Directors of the Company: Hons. J. D. Ryan, M. G. Winter, J. Anderson, J. McGrath, Esq., E. Bowring, Esq., Jas. Parker, Esq., Harold MacPherson, Esq., Dr. Brehm and Lieut. Col. Bernard. Bankers: The Royal Bank of Canada. Auditors: G. N. Read Son & Watson, and our Mr. Gibbs, Solicitor for the Association.

The Association would like your Government to have legislation enacted the present session of the Legislature, whereby:

(1) Interest to an amount not exceeding 5% be guaranteed by the Government upon Bonds of the Company. The Government shall only be called upon to guarantee interest upon bonds provided the par value of the Bonds so guaranteed shall not exceed the cash capital actually subscribed for and paid into the Treasury of the Company. The Bonds to be redeemable in twenty years.

(2) The cost of workingmen's homes to be no greater than $2,500 each.

(3) Materials that cannot be produced in the country and to be used in the construction of workingmen's homes, to be admitted free of duty. If said materials be purchasable locally, the Government to allow a rebate of duties.

(4) The Government to advance by way of Loan to the Company the sum of $50,000 to be repaid to the Government by the Association, when the said sum of $50,000 shall be paid into the Treasury of the Company by the Shareholders thereof.

Yours truly,
(Signed) GIBBS & BARRON.

(Copy)

May 29th, 1920.

Gentlemen:

I have your letter of the 26th referring to the Dominion Co-operative Association, Ltd.

Before the Government would be prepared to make a cash loan to the Company or guarantee interest on bonds it would be necessary for arrangements to be made under which the Government would be suitably represented upon the Board of Directors. It would also be necessary for me to have for submission to Council a share list showing the names of the shareholders and the amount for which they have subscribed.

I would be glad to have this information at the earliest possible moment.

Yours very truly,

(Sgd.) R. A. SQUIRES,

Prime Minister.

Messrs. Gibbs & Barron,

City.

(Copy)

Gibbs & Barron,

St. John's, Nfld.,

June 1st, 1920.

Hon. R. A. Squires, K.C.,

Premier.

Dear Sir:

We have your favour of the 29th ult., re Dominion Co-operative Association, Ltd., and note what you say.

The Association will be pleased that the Government have representation upon the Board of Directors and is prepared to carry out any reasonable recommendation that the Government may make or suggest in that behalf. Enclosed please find copy of share list showing the names of Shareholders. There has been no attempt made by personal solicitation to induce people to subscribe to the capital stock of the Company, because it was not thought desirable until the Company was in a position to definitely state the concessions which the Government had given.

We beg to suggest for your consideration that instead of a guarantee of interest on bonds that the Government agree to guarantee to the shareholders of the Company for a specific number of years any sum on which the net value dividends of the Company shall be less than five per cent, upon the actual cash capital paid upon the share subscribed for and allotted.

Yours truly,

(Signed) GIBBS & BARRON.

Share list of the Dominion Co-operative Building Association, Limited:

Names	Shares
E. P. Roche	10
James Parker	10
Eric Bowring	100
F. Morris	5
H. Anderson	5
A. McPherson	10
James McKay	10
Dugald Munn	10
Robert A. Templeton	10
M. P. Gibbs	5
John Anderson	10
C. A. Pippy	2
Harold Mitchell	10
R. K. Bishop	5
H. E. Cowan	10
J. D. Ryan	5
E. H. Ershler	5
Thomas Soper	5
W. P. Shortall	2
James J. McGrath	5
J. M. Devine	5
J. M. Spearns	5
M. G. Winter	10
A. J. Harvey	10
Jonas Barter	1
Llewelyn White	2
Harold McPherson	10
Thomas C. Noel	1

In the matter of loan, I have since the receipt of the first letter from Mr. Gibbs received a letter from the Hon. John Anderson stating the amount of the advance which they require to be $25,000 and not $50,000 as stated in the first letter. That advance of $25,000 will be arranged for. It will be a credit established with the company's bankers, the Royal Bank of Canada, against which would be paid into the bank the amount for which the various share-holders have pledged themselves. There will be no loss to the Government and no loss to the Company in that connection. It is merely a matter of providing temporary credit so that this spring's supplies of materials may be paid for and payment made promptly, the credit lasting while the company is getting in its first call on shares.

This housing proposition is not a matter for which the Government takes credit; the entire credit has to be given to the Hon. John Anderson, the Hon. M. P. Gibbs and Mr. James McGrath, the former President of the Longshoremen's Union. I do not agree with the view which has been expressed by Mr. Higgins and also by Mr. Vinnicombe, two members for St. John's East, that it is improper to give this company free entry for building materials. This is not a case in which the Company is going into stores on Water Street, buying goods and then asking the Customs to give a refund on the articles purchased. This is a case in which the Company will import from abroad the supplies which are required in quantities sufficient to meet their demands. The invoices will be presented, and, by virtue of this Bill, the Finance Minister will be authorized to let the goods come in on free entry. If it were a case of a company constructing houses for commercial purposes or a private individual building houses for his own investment purposes, it would be a different matter. No building company or private individual would for one moment consider the investment of capital in houses on a five per cent profit basis. This proposition is not one that appeals to any person who wishes to invest money purely from the standpoint of an investor who wants to make sure of a satisfactory annual return for his capital. The houses to be built by this company are to be built in the interests of the poorest class of the community. The object of the company, in so far as it has been explained to me, is to build say thirty houses and then go to some slum section and take thirty families out of that slum section and put them into these houses and clean up that slum section, build thirty houses there and take thirty families from some other section and put them into the section they have cleaned up, and so on year by year, to clean up the slums of the city. This is not a housing proposition which brings the company in competition with any other building company or private investor. Houses will be provided at a rate of rent to suit the families of the class of people who now live in slum sections and who cannot afford to occupy decent tenements. This is a case in which the Government is helping this company as a public philanthropic concern in the same way as it would help a hospital, subscribe to the upkeep of a park or provide for improved sanitary conditions in an unhealthy locality. The object of the company is to help to clean up the slums of the city, and by so doing improve housing conditions for the poorest classes of the community and to provide decent homes for a class of people whose earning ability is not sufficient to pay house rent for a good house. The objects of the company as I understand them are not merely to provide additional homes; in fact the company will not be providing additional homes, because it will not carry out the mission for which it is intended as the objects of the company have been explained to me if it does not tear down the filthy rookeries in which people are now living and replace them by respectable tenements; that will not be increasing housing accommodation, it will be improving housing accommodation. The honourable member stated that this company will be in competition with the St. John's Municipal Council or any building company or private investor who desires to undertake the erection of houses and provide more housing accommodation for the city and to erect houses to be sold to people who are financially able to purchase or rent to people who are able to pay full rent. What I would like to see is the erection during the summer of say thirty houses in some good locality. I would like to see the company go to any of the dirty, miserable sections of the town where people are living in filth and disorder, take these families from these houses, put them in clean, decent surroundings, and give them a chance to live, tear down these rookeries and replace them by decent houses. The company will do very little good in this town of St. John's if its object is merely to build houses and rent them cheaply. It must go farther. It must build houses. It must rent them at a figure which the people who live in these slum sections can afford to pay, and then clean up the slums and put decent houses in their places. A day or two ago the honourable member for St. John's West referred to the workmen of St. John's as being a poor class of people, much below the average in independence and income of the outport man of the same class, that the outport man had a comfortable home, had a bit of land and had cattle while the St. John's man of the same class could not afford to pay for a decent tenement in which to live.

Ido not agree with Mr. Bennett. If that were true, instead of the outport people coming to St. John's to better their conditions St. John's people would be going to the outports to better their conditions. If Mr. Bennett feels that there is in St. John's a class of that sort who can do better for themselves in the outports I can indicate to him a score of outports to which these men may go this summer and thrive and prosper in the same way as the outport man thrives and prospers. The housing problem in St. John's is serious in the matter of the shortage of houses. That shortage is due to the high cost of material for the construction of houses, combined with the high cost of labor. Rents must go up in proportion to the increase in cost of building materials, and the increase in the cost of labor, and just so long as these high prices continue will rents be high, and there will be a dearth of houses. But the suggestion made by Mr. Bennett that St. John's, the capital city of this country, is inhabited by a race of paupers who want to depend upon the Government charity for the houses in which they live I entirely disagree with. I feel his remarks are a reflection upon the city, and a libel upon the working classes of the community. The working men of St. John's are just as independent, just as capable of earning a comfortable livelihood for themselves, as the same class of men living in the outports. As a matter of fact, a very large number of them are outport men and if these men find that they cannot make as comfortable a living for themselves in St. John's as they can make in the outports, then there is no question whatever about the fact that they would go back to the outports to improve their condition. I am in entire accord with the ideas of this building company; I am also in entire accord with any program which may be advanced by the honourable members opposite to improve housing conditions in Newfoundland, particlarly housing conditions in St. John's, as the only part of the Island of Newfoundland from which I have heard any complaint as to housing conditions in the town of St. John's. The condition as it exists this year is no worse; in fact, is not as bad as it was last year and the year before. One would look in vain, however, for any attempt being made last year or the year before or the year before that by the honourable member who presented this petition or by any member of the Government of that day to improve conditions, and if it were not for the public spirited activity of the Honourable John Anderson, Hon. Mr. Gibbs, and Mr. James McGrath, and the fact that the Government is anxious to help them out in their enterprise, nothing would be heard of this matter at this session of the Legislature. The attitude of the honourable members for St. John's East, Mr. Higgins and Mr. Vinnicombe, and the honourable member for St. John's West,

Mr. Bennett, is antagonistic to the idea of helping out this company. I am surprised at them. I could quite understand outport representatives who had no immediate interest in this Bill objecting to the pledging of the funds of the Colony for the benefit of the working classes of this city, but I cannot understand these two members for St. John's East attempting to throw any obstacle whatever in the way of a courtesy being extended to this philanthropic organization the object of which is to better housing conditions in St. John's. Housing in St. John's is not a Government proposition; it is a Municipal proposition. The Municipal Council has done nothing or practically nothing; the only evidence of life that the Municipal Council has shown during this session of the Legislature in the matter of housing is this petition presented by Mr. Higgins, member for St. John's East, objecting to the Government's assisting this company to help the poor in the matter of housing. Let the Coty Council get busy and do something for the citizens of the city. When the housing matter was brought before the late Government they decided that it should stand over. When the West End bye election was on Sir Michael Cashin had a conference at his residence with some of the parties interested in housing problems, and made all sorts of promises, but nothing came of it. Just as soon as the Government attempts to do something the Municipal Council wakes up and tries to impede us in our work and the members for St. John's East and Mr. Bennett, member for St. John's West, get busy and try to impede.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the Bills sent up entitled respectively:—"An Act respecting the Preservation of Beavers," and "An Act concerning Former Enemy Aliens," without amendment.

Mr. MacDonnell asked the Prime Minister, in the absence from this House of the Minister of Agriculture and Mines:—(1) If an application of Joseph Kenny for a license to cut timber, or to erect a saw mill in the vicinity of Gull Pond—(near Conception Harbor, in the district of Harbor Main) has been granted. (2) If any protests against such license have been received in the Department of Agriculture and Mines.

Mr. Walsh asked the Hon. Prime Minister to lay on the Table of the House all correspondence between deputies of all departments of the Government (or any department which made recommendations) and the Commissioners appointed by the late Government to adjust the salaries of Civil Servants, also all recommendations from deputies of the several departments in relation to increase or otherwise.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice the Bill entitled "An Act to confirm a Contract on the subject of the Manufacture of Paper Pulp and Wood products" was read a third time and passed, and it was ordered that it be engrossed, being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice the Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 1p7 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series) entitled 'Of Companies,'" was read a third time and passed, and it was ordered that it be engrossed, being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs the House resolved itself into Committee of the Whole on Supply.

The Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the chair of Committee.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Mr. Speaker, before dealing with the Supply, I would like to make a few comments. I noticed that when the Minister of Finance and Customs introduced his Estimates a few days ago he simply came in and tabled the Estimates and read from the Summary increases under different heads, and simply remarked that the Estimates were not his own estimates. Perhaps he did not say it in those words, but that is what was understood by us as he told us that the Estimates tabled to-day were based on the report of a Commission appointed by the out-going Government to inquire into Civil Service salaries and that that report was received by us, and adopted by us, and that he was merely carrying out the report of that Commission appointed by us. I don't think that he meant to tell the country that these were our Estimates.

I happened to be the Finance Minister of the late Government, and the position was simply this. Last year, as you know, a demand was made on the Government by the Postal Telegraph Department and other departments, and as you remember the Postal Telegraph Department after some communication with the Government, and after some consideration by the Government, were granted the request asked and following that the Government immediately decided to appoint a Commission composed of the Auditor General, Inspector O'Rielly, and his Accountant in that department to go into all the Civil list and report to the Government. That was at midsummer. Since then there has been a General Election, and we all know what has happened. The new Finance Minister comes in and takes charge, and apparently, according to the Estimates tabled but not in accordance to the promises made to his constituents, introduces a Supply Bill here with an increase of two million dollars and tries to tell the House and the country in general that these were the Estimates of their predecessors recommended by Commissioners appointed by them and adopted by them before they went out. That is not the position. Although we appointed those Commissioners to inquire into the salaries of every department and report to the Government we did not pledge ourselves to them, or to the country, or to anybody what our action would be after we received their report, but in the face of that when the Estimates were tabled we were told by the Minister of Finance and Customs that the Estimates were based upon the report of the Commissioners. We asked for the report of the Commissioners and were told by the Prime Minister that the report could not or would not be tabled. On further inquiry we find that the Commissioners have not reported in full at all, that the report was only piece-meal, and that the Estimates are not based upon that report or on any part of it. The Estimates are based upon a political vote and brought in here by the Minister and handed to the country, not upon the lines that we hoped that they would be, of a full report of the Commissioners paying salaries, deserving salaries, to each and every official in the different departments. Here we are to-day faced in the Estimates with an increase of practically two million dollars. Well, now, I would like to remind the Minister of Finance and Customs, and the Prime Minister, that these Estimates are not in keeping with the Manifesto handed to the people of the country by the Prime Minister when seeking election to the House last year; these Estimates to the ordinary outsider and certainly to the ordinary politician, after looking through them, make the whole thing look like a wreck, make them feel that the whole country will be a wreck. Well, I am credited with knowing what a wreck means, and this looks more like a wreck to me than anything that I have seen for many years. We were held up to ridicule and criticism by our opponents before the General Election last year and in the face of that the present Government have the temerity to come in here and ask the House to vote an increase of nearly $2,000,000 and table these Estimates and defend themselves before the country. Read them down and what do you find. Every salary, every large salary is increased not with regard or in accordance with any report made by the Commissioners. Now what is the meaning of it? The Minister should when he came here yesterday have tabled the Estimates and given us in detail the increases and the cause for each one, but he had not the courage to name each estimate and tell why there is an increase of two million dollars. Now we are asked to come in here and pass them without consideration. Take the first estimate. I will ask the Minister now why he has increased the first estimate 125,000 dollars.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE & CUCTOMS:—Because of New York Exchange.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Exchange has nothing to do with it. What about the London drop and the gain there? Put the debt to Europe at thirty million dollars, and the debt to New York at eleven million dollars. The gain on the London exchange more than offsets the loss on New York Exchange last year, and if that is so why vote an amount of one hundred and twelve or one hundred and fifteen thousand dollars for that purpose? That is not the way to make up Estimates. How do you know what the New York Exchange will be next year? Time enough to vote that money if you find that you need it within the next six months, but as I have already stated the difference in London should give us a good sum to our credit on the other side of the books.

We find the vote of Civil Government increased $272,582.72. What is the explanation? You gave us no explanation. Now is that in keeping with the Manifesto of your leader when you told this country that you were going to reduce expenditure and reduce taxation. You never made any attempt to justify it. Here are a few things that the Prime Minister mentioned in his Manifesto that he did not carry out and never intended to carry out: (Reads extracts from Manifesto.)

These are a couple of paragraphs from the Manifesto of the Prime Minister, but before going into the Estimates fully in connection with the Estimates, I would like to draw the attention of the Prime Minister as well as the Finance Minister to the fact that last fall, before the elections and after the elections, the Government of to-day said in their own papers that they were going to have myself and my associates behind prison bars. This is the kind of stuff that was handed out to the people of the country to read and digest. Within the past eight months you have prostituted every department in the hope of trying to secure evidence against us, and your efforts have all gone against us in your papers and otherwise, but where are the proofs. The House of Assembly has now been in session two months and we have not yet heard of a single bit of evidence to prove that we acted false to the people of the country. According to the prostitutions you made of the Government Departments and according to the charges you made in your own papers, you did not propose that we should be here to-day. But where are your proofs, and why are we here to-day? You ought to get up to-day and apologise to us, at least, for the many charges that you made and which you could not substantiate. Nothing was too low, mean and contemptible for you to do. You brought Auditors from the United States and gave them a free hand to open up every public institution in the country. While these gentlemen were investigating, the Government were shouting that Cashin and his associates were going to be put behind prison bars. The Government simply turned out the Auditor General and turned these gentlemen loose on the different departments. Now what has happened. These gentlemen have been here and gone and we have been in session two months and the Government have not brought forward one particle of Legislation that will be for the betterment of this Colony. There was never a Government in that had less to its credit than the present Government. I want to tell the Finance Minister and the Prime Minister, as the two principal members of the Government, face to face, that I do not care a jot for the charges that they made against me. I hope that the Finance Minister will leave that office with the same record and with the same recommendation as I did after eleven years. The majority of my countrymen feel the same about it. The charges made against me and my colleagues by the Finance Minister and the Prime Minister are now dropped and we are meeting with that reward at the hands of our fellow countrymen that men of proper calibre always meet, viz.: confidence and approbation for our past record. I served my country as Finance Minister for ten years and eleven months and I care not for any statement that can be made by the Minister of Finance and the Prime Minister, who have descended to the lowest and vilest means to try and degrade me. But the tables are turned to-day and when we go into the details of the Estimates, I may have an opportunity of asking them why they made those charges against me. Why do you not table the report of the Commission that was appointed to enquire into the salaries of the Civil Service? The reason is that the report do not suit you. If the Government is honest and if they are sincere why not come out and tell the whole story.

I am prepared as I already stated to defend anything you will bring down in this House. I care naught for any man in this House as far as my actions in the Finance Department are concerned. But I want to remind you gentlemen that day in and day out you have vilified me and vilified my associates, you have brought down detectives from the United States as well as accountants to open up every department. You have prostituted every department. The Finance Minister handed out the information in the bye-election in St. John's West last fall to the Squires' paper but it could not be substantiated. It was done by Brownrigg as it could not come from anybody else. He handed it out to the public of this Colony and after being two months in this House you have not brought down in this House what you told the public you would. Thank God I am on this side of the House. I say thank God I prefer to be on this side of the House and not on the other side and be a half-criminal. You are not prepared to get up here and talk like I am this evening. That is how I feel about it. Now you come down here after this deceit and turmoil of six months and present to the Colony the Estimates containing an increase of two millions of dollars. Every one of importance in the Civil Service has had his salary increased. But as far as the people are concerned what do those Estimates show? Not one cent for old age pensions—not one cent for the relief of the poor. But the salary of the Finance Minister has been increased to eight thousand dollars with pickings. The Prime Minister has increased his salary thousands of dollars and as far as I know his salary will be in the vicinity of twelve or fifteen thousand dollars per year. Each and every other individual who has a seat in this House gets a thousand dollars per year. Legislature alone this year will require a vote of thirty thousand dollars more than ever before. Why come down here and ask this House to vote one thousand dollars to each and every member of this House for sitting here? Why should you have a seat in this House at all if the Government is not prepared to come in here and do business? Why not proceed with the affairs of the Colony in four weeks, here we are nearing the end of June and nothing of importance done. Mr. Jennings need not laugh. He ought to be over here trying to do some good for the country and not looking from behind Government benches. You would be here but for the fat job you have. You would be away in the herring fishery. You would be on this side endorsing what I am saying that is if you were the honest man you are supposed to be. I suppose you are human like the rest of us. That is the position. Why should you be here receiving five thousand dollars? Why should this Colony pay you one thousand dollars for three months work? Talk about the business of this House; you know what business has been done up to the present time. What have they done in fulfilment of their promises to the people of St. John's West during the bye-election last fall? The House may be open for another week or another month, the Estimates are very late in coming down and we are told the Budget Speech will be delivered in a few days. There has been no serious legislation brought in this House, no measure except the Fishery Rules by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. No member on the other side has brought in any worth while legislation of any kind. There have been introduced a few bills simply to change the verbiage of existing legislation. You will find on the several order papers not one bill of any importance except the Fishery Rules brought before this House. And these are questionable. Not one measure of any kind has been introduced by any member on the other side from the Prime Minister down. This man's fancy promises last fall when he was seeking his election in St. John's West have been unperformed and the people of that constituency have been looking forward to a great many things to come from this Government. The conditions of the Colony are worse than ever before . Every paragraph of the manifesto if you read it down the same as I do is ancient history. No legislation of any kind has been introduced by them. To substantiate this I may say that this afternoon a petition was presented by my colleague the honourable member for St. John's East on behalf of the Municipal Council asking for free entry on all material imported for the purpose of building poor man's houses. What is his position to-day as compared with January last? To-day he has brought in legislation to guarantee five per centum per annum on all money offered by charitable persons to build houses here in St. John's for the poor. What induced those people to give that money to the poor people of St. John's? Is not great credit due those who have taken this up on themselves, to Sir Edgar Bowring and Hon. J. D. Ryan and others who have given this money for a philanthropic purpose and who have considered the great want and hardship which the people are to-day experiencing? If the Government are not prepared to do something they nevertheless call it a charitable act. I repeat that statement in this House. I call this charitable money. These men deserve credit and further they do not care when they get it back. We hear no question of the Prime Minister or Mr. Brownrigg fulfiling their promises as to the housing scheme, we do not see them bringing in that great measure before this House so that houses will be erected for the workingmen of St. John's East and West; to accommodate the poor people who are sleeping five and six in a bed, and to accommodate those who have not to-day a roof over their heads. We are told this afternoon by the Minister of Finance that down in the basement of the Custom House there is a family, a number of children and a man and a wife I take it who have no shelter and no place to lay their heads and still the Finance Minister comes in here with the Estimates containing an increase of two million dollars over last year in answer to his promise to the electors who sent him here, to protect their interests and to erect houses in galore. The Government ought to bring in legislation according to their promises made last fall in the bye-election. The members on this side of the House will vote for it. What does it mean? I will take one item in the Estimates, the salaries given the members of this House and the Upper House. The increase in that direction is thirty thousand dollars. That thirty thousand dollars will go to the rich men of the Upper House and rich men of the city still the Finance Minister when he presents the Estimates has no provision made in them for the fulfilment of the promises that they made last fall to the working people of St. John's that one of the first things the Government would do would be the bringing in before this House legislation to provide for the housing scheme in the East and West of St. John's. Here in the last stages of this session of this Assembly as I have already stated no proposition of any consequence has been brought before this House. If they were in earnest last fall would they not bring in that proposition now? If you bring in such a measure we on the Opposition side of the House will forfeit our claim to the thirty thousand dollars which has been foisted upon us. If you take this thirty thousand dollars it will go down in history for years and years without being changed. No Government will take the trouble of reducing salaries and it was never done for the thirty years I have been here except a certain entrenchment under Sir Robert Bond's administration. Put this amount to the credit of the housing scheme and it will meet all the requirements. It will pay 6% on a half million dollar loan. Do not take the whole half million in the first year but spread it over a period of six years and build sufficient houses for the poor of this city and have enough to accommodate all. With that thirty thousand you can borrow a half million dollars right here in the city at six per centum per annum. You need not borrow it all now to try and prove to the people of this city at least to those in whom you are interested that you are in earnest. The one thing of any consequence that has been done is to pass the fish regulations as I have already said.

I heard a story once about the Prime Minister of this Colony, the present Prime Minister. I heard he had a dream, and in that dream he was going to be Prime Minister of the Colony. So far his dream has come true. But he dreamt also that the country was going into Confederation with Canada in two or three years. He then ran for Prime Minister of Canada and was elected. I do not know, sir, if it is correct that you had that dream, but it looks as if it were true not only that you had the dream but that the dream might come true. If you continue in political life for 25 years you will undoubtedly find yourself in Canada, and you will find this Colony in Canada.

You have come in here with estimates $2,000,000 more than last year, and next year they will be $2,000,000 more than this year. If you are going to pay back out of the revenue of this Colony $4.00 on every hogshead of salt it will cost the Colony $200,000 for this one item. And how many other things are there for which no provision has been made. There is the matter of the coastal boats, and the railroad, which I understand you intend taking up when the House closes. If that continues there is no reason why you will not land this country into Confederation with Canada, politics or not. But to get away from the dream. I want to remind you that your conduct will not pass without my criticism as a representative of the people, I am here to look after the interests of the people.

With respect to the coastal boats you have been asked for a statement of the coastal boats Portia and Prospero since they were taken over by the Government. That was asked for several weeks ago and it is not yet forthcoming. Take the coastal boat Portia that has been on dock three months already. She is there with the bottom out of her, with full crew under pay and fifty or sixty tradesmen working on her. I am not questioning what she is going to cost the Colony, but the whole management of the coastal boats has been inefficient and wasteful. Look at your manifesto, read it down. What are you going to do about the railroads? Where are all the great things that we were going to get from the new government? In your manifesto you compared the owner of the railroad with the owner of a house; if the house is not kept in repair it goes down. But you have not made a single effort to improve the railroad, you haven't touched it, and people are going out on the railroad every day at the risk of their lives. It isn't because you haven't got the money. We left $3,000,000 in the treasury of the Colony. We were told by the Finance Minister during the election that it was frenzied finance, but I want to remind you that that railroad is in the same condition as it was last year and you haven'h made any attempt to remedy it. You are refusing to give any information, and you have brought down no legislation. You know that the people are aroused now. You know that the people in Bay de Verde are awake to the situation. I don't care whether we get our man or get yours. The whole matter of the coastal boats is in a deplorable state. We were told the other day that you had hired a boat for $60.00 per day. You have to find the crew and everything else. I was up to the dock this morning and saw the Ranger. You should have been up there, sir, or had a representative there. She has gone north to-day. There is a man gone north on her as doctor who can neither read or write. I was told that he is a great friend of Coaker, and he is going down to look after the health of the people on that boat.

I suppose I will be told that I am rambling away from the estimates. But why doesn't the Minister of Finance get up here and explain to the House what each item means, so that it can go to the country through the reporters' box.

While I think of it, I have noticed a proclamation signed by R. A. Squires as Colonial Secretary and headed, Published by Authority. It struck me on reading over that proclamation that the man who signed it did not know or did not consider what he was doing or perhaps it got in unknown to him. It reads as follows:

Upon the recommendation of the Food Control Board, and under the provisions of the Food Control Act, 1917, and the War Measures Act, 1914-1916. His Excellency the Governor in Council has been pleased to approve the following Regulations regarding the sale of Sugar:—

1. The wholesale price of sugar when sold by the importer shall not exceed Twenty-seven and one-quarter cents per pound, when it is a cash transaction.

2. When sugar is sold by Jobbers, the price shall not be in excess of Twenty-eight and one-quarter cents per pound, when it is a cash transaction.

3. For the purpose of this Regulation, Twenty-five barrels or over shall constitute and be deemed a wholesale transaction, and must be taken delivery of at one time. Any less quantity than the above, sold in original package, shall constitute a jobbing transaction. A barrel shall be held to contain not less than three hundred pounds.

4. From and after this date the retail price of white granulated sugar within the Municipal limits of the Town of St. John's shall not exceed thirty cents per pound, and in the outports thirty cents per pound, plus transportation, insurance and other regular charges.

5. Any person who shall offer for sale, or shall sell any sugar at a greater price than that fixed in above Regulations, shall be guilty of a breach thereof.

6. All foregoing prices are for cash sales.

7. No dealer shall refuse a tender of cash when a purchase is male.

8. Any person violating any of the provisions of these Regulations shall be guilty of an offence and liable upon summary conviction before a Magistrate or Justice of the Peace to a penalty not exceeding one thousand dollars, or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months, or to both fine and imprisonment. (One half of the fine shall be paid to the informer and the balance to the Food Control Board, for the benefit of the Dominion).

9. No Sugar shall be imported into Newfoundland unless a permit to do so shall have been obtained beforehand from the Food Control Board.

10. These Regulations shall be, and come into effect on the First day of June, 1920.

11. The Regulations respecting Sugar, Flour and Molasses, published in the Royal Gazette on the eighth of October, 1918, are hereby cancelled.

R. A. SQUIRES,
Colonial Secretary.

Dept. of the Colonial Secretary,
June 15, 1920.

Can you see anything wrong with that sir? On first sight it struck me as playing into the hands of a certain class, the wholesale men. Under this regulation the wholesale man can buy sugar one cent cheaper than the smaller man. Now teke the grocer on Middle St. or anywhere else in the city, and how many will you find who are in a position to buy twenty-five barrels of sugar at a time. They cannot do it but men like Mr. Knowling can buy their sugar in big lots and make a cent a pound off it more than the small grocer without touching it. Surely that proclamation was never even looked at by the man who signed his name to it, if he represents a St. John's district. There is no reason why the smaller man should not get the same advantages as the wholesaler. This sugar has to be doled out to the people of this city by the retailers, you know the kind of stores I mean, and how many of them can go down and make an outlay of nearly a thousand dollars for twenty-five barrels which they must do if they are to get the benefit of the cent that is given to the bigger man, and still the man who signed that is a representative of the district of St. John's West. Surely he will cancel it and I would draw his attention to it particularly so that he may have it changed because if he does not it is nothing less than an imposition on the working men of this city.

I notice that all the salaries of the departmental heads have been increased to $4,000 each and the deputies to $3,600. I would like to know if that has been done on the recommendation of the Commission. We asked for their report but we only got part of it and that was signed by nobody and accompanied by a request from the Government not to make the contents public. Why should the Government ask that this report not be made public? There is one reason for it and it is this: The recommendations embodied in these reports were ignored altogether by them and increases are shown in the Estimates that are not at all justified while other officials who are deserving of consideration have received none. Take the Finance Minister's Department for example, the first accountant has been increased from $1250 to $2000 and the first clerk from $1680 to $2200, that may be all right but we find that the accountant of Old Age Pensions gets no increase whatever. Now to begin with Mr. Woods is as old an official as any man in the Customs and Finance Department, he is painstaking and efficient and further he is an ex-member of the House of Assembly and has been a departmental head and he has a thorough knowledge of affairs inside and outside of this House and not one black mark will be found against him. His duties are by no means easy but he seems to please every one and there are men who have had their salaries doubled who are not fit to be in the same office with him. Mr. Bursell has been increased from $1600 to $2200. I am not in position to say what the Commission said of Mr. Bursell but I know that he is one of the best officials in the Civil Service of Newfoundland. He is always competent and obliging and you will always find him at his office early in the morning and the last to leave there at night. I do not know if his increase was made on the recommendation of the Commission for as I have already stated only part of the report was handed to Mr. Higgins and I have not seen it. As a matter of fact we should not be here at all considering the Estimates till we have the full report. However there must be some mistake about Mr. Woods. Does the Minister of Finance know anything about it?

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—I have no information to give you.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—He was getting $1500 and that should have been doubled.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—In my opinion he is getting all he is worth. Any schoolboy could do the work he is doing.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—It is not enough because you say so, that he should have been ignored.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—Do you want me to increase him?

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Yes you ought to do it. His is one of the most important positions in the Colony.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—All he has to do is to sign cheques.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—He has very much more than that to do as you should know.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—He was sick for four months and a stenographer did his work.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—You might be sick yourself yet. This statement is untrue.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—Yes perhaps I would, but what I state is absolutely correct.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Now take the Agricultural Department. The vote for that department has been increased $58,600. You have not told us anything about that increase. Mr. Bailey, the Secretary of that department, is now receiving a salary of twenty-five hundred dollars. Who is the historian of that department? Mr. Shortis. Well, I would recommend him to write the history of the Woodford Affidavit. I see here that the Government Analyst, Mr. Davies, has received an increase from $2924 to $3800. He is competent and deserves an increase in salary. He has all the qualifications. He was an outsider and he had about seven or eight hundred dollars a year as schoolmaster, before he got this job. He is increased every year. He may be worth the money, but if that department was closed to-morrow, we could do without it. We increased the salary 20%, we gave this last May. You will find in the Estimates of last year, that he received $2400, to-day he is receiving $3800, an increase of $1500 more than last year. This increase is as much as the total salary that Mr. Woods is receiving to-day. There must be a reason for that. Mr. Hutchings in the Marine and Fisheries Department has received $2500 increase, a justifiable increase. He is a worthy, obliging, and competent official. That is the worst I have to say of him in the ten or twelve years I have known him in that department. Who is the Superintendent of Fisheries, a new appointment of $5000. Who is the Superintendent of Marine Instruction, an appointment of $1500.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—Mr. Hawco, the hero.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Has he the qualifications necessary for this salary?

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—I presume he has.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—You should know whether he has or not. Minister of Public Works increased from $2592 to $3600. Mr. Harris, the first clerk, increased to $1650, but what is puzzling us is on what basis are you giving these increases. Surely you do not think you can come here with your Estimates, and pass them, without being able to tell on what basis you have given these increases. Don't you think this is an unsual way to bring in Estimates? Don't you intend to give some explanation in going through them? Don't you think you should have given some explanation, before we went into them at all?

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—Perhaps so.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Now take the Customs Department. Alexander LeMessurier is now receiving less salary than last year.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—That is not correct. There was no reduction.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Well, he is receiving the same salary. There must be some reason for it. He is cashier in that department. He has received as high as $80,000 a day cash, still, you don't increase his salary, and won't tell us why you didn't.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—There is no reason.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—You did not increase the salary of the Inspector of Customs, and you won't tell why. Do you think that the people of the country will stand for that kind of thing. Why did you increase the salary of the Deputy Minister to $3600. There is no Deputy has a more responsible position than Mr. LeMessurier. He is receiving the whole revenue of the country over the counter, and he must be competent and honest. If he is why did you not treat him as well as others. Why give another individual $1600 increase who does not do nearly as much work? These are the things I oppose.

Take Alexander LeMessurier. Are you prepared to reconsider his salary?

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—No. There will be no further increases in the salaries in the Estimates.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—What about Mr. Fox? What did he do to you that you won't increase his salary? I want to know on what basis you give increases.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—I won't tell you.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Well, you should. You should have courtesy enough to come in here and explain matters when you are asked. I am a public servant, and so are you, and I want the information for the public. If you are not prepared to give information why did you open the House? Is that the way to treat the people who elected you?

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—They elected me twice.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—They elected you twice. Well, I was elected nine times and you will have some going to beat that, and now keep quiet. Mr. Chairman, ask the gentleman to keep quiet. Well, Mr. Chairman, according to the disposition of the Minister of Finance this evening we don't expect much from him. He is here with Estimates he is not prepared to explain. He is not prepared to table the report of the Commissioners who inquired into those matters. He says that the Estimates are based on that report, and he will not let us see that report, and we as representatives of certain portions of this Island have to take it from him, that these are his Estimates, and that he is going to pass them. Well, now, all I want to tell him, is that if that is the position he intends to take, that he will not be in the Government long. He will have to alter his tactics, because the people want satisfaction and courtesy from the members of this House. To-day we are not confronted with the conditions of thirty years ago. The people are more enlightened, and the Minister will find that if he is not prepared to come here and do the right thing by the people who sent him here, he will soon find himself outside this House. If he thinks that it is the right way to push a lot of stuff down the people's throats, until they elect him, and then he can do what he likes, then he is mistaken, and he must remember that he will have to return to the same people for re-election, and they will turn him down. He must not forget that he will not be here all the time. The time will come when he will get the same dose as the honourable gentlemen, who preceded him, and his action this afternoon, in refusing to explain the increases in the Estimates, has no precedent in any of the honourable gentlemen who occupied that position before his time. Every courtesy was extended to the members by the men who preceded him in this House as far as the Estimates were concerned, and every satisfaction was given to every detail. Every question was answered and still we have to come in here and listen to the Minister in charge of the Finance Department tell us what he likes or tell us nothing. That is poor satisfaction for the people outside. You cannot tell me anything about Estimates, sir, but I want you to tell the country the truth of the matter. What about the two million of dollars to meet your Estimates within the current year? Personally, I am not a bit concerned about the Estimates. I know that it is question of political pull and political influence as regards the salaries in the Estimates to-day. It is not secret, sir. That is the reason why some salaries are increased and others are decreased. It is not a fair and equitable basis for any department to work on. Your manner and disposition in this House this evening does not trouble me a little bit. It is my duty on behalf of the people of the country to ask you for information in relation to the Estimates. There is no reason why I should not ask you for any information that is desirable. I hope I have not insulted the Hon. Minister by asking him about the salary of Mr. Woods. There is nothing unfair or unreasonable in asking that question. Here is a man receiving $1512 per annum and a man who went into that department after him and holding a position under him getting $2000. Is this fair or is it just? Surely this House and this country is not going to tolerate the attitude and disposition of the Minister of Finance this evening, and surely the Hon. Mr. Barnes, who is looked upon as a fair-minded man in this House is not going to stand for this; nor is the other strong man I refer to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, going to stand for it, because if he is, it is not what he had been preaching or practising. There does not seem to be any discrimination evident in that department over which he presides. The men in that department who supported the late Government are enjoying the same increases as the others. Here we have the Minister of Finance recommending to the Executive that the salary of Mr. Woods shall not exceed fifteen hundred dollars and those under him given a substantial increase.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—That is what is pinching your corns.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—No, but that is what is pinching Mr. Woods' corns. That is unjust and unmanly and if we have to put up with this position that we are to receive no satisfaction from the Minister in charge of the Estimates, then the only thing we can do is to register our strong protest against the treatment meted out to some officials of the Civil Service. I for one will do all in my power to change any vote in these Estimates that I think is not desirable, I do not care what the result will be. It is unfair and unjust and unmanly to say that Mr. Woods is to receive $1500 and men who work side by side with him are to receive $3000 and $3600. It is unfortunate that there is a crowd of men who are associated with the Minister who know of this thing and who I am not prepared to say are real men. My answer to them, if they stand for that sort of treatment, is that they are only tools and not independent men of this House. By what right and what authority do you treat any individual in that way? You may grin but you do not feel it, and you may yet grin on the other side of your mouth. Some gentlemen on the other side well know that when we appointed that Commission to enquire into the Civil Service, they knew no politics. We were prepared to do the right thing. Here this evening the Finance Minister himself intimated to this House that he recommended the several votes; not according to what was right and not according to the work done and not according to his judgment, but, as I take it, according to the way they voted on the third of November last. In considering these Estimates we should not judge a man according to the way he voted. Because if we are to expect the kind of injustice, as indicated by the Minister, well, then, Heaven help the people of this country. It is our business to criticize these Estimates and your business to mind your own business.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—I am trying to do that and you won't let me.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Well I do not think you are trying very much. I think you have been handled like you were handled last fall.

HON MINISTER OF FINANCE

AND CUSTOMS:—It is quite a job to handle me.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—I know it is, but all the same you got your terms. You were one of the men who gave out the false information last fall and everything you handed out was false. For instance, you gave out a statement that it only cost the Colony $2000 to raise $1,000,000. I hope you will give an explanation to this as well as to the many other questions. When you stated that the raising of a loan of one million dollars only cost the Colony $2000, that tells me how much you know of your department.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—You know it all.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—I knew enough to conduct it properly. You came in here with Estimates intimating that one clerk was to get $1500 and his brother clerk was to get $3600 for doing the same work. There was no such thing happened within the past twelve years.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—I read the Hansard of your Estimates for 1917.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—I hope you will pursue what you read and if you will go out of office with the same record as I did, we will present you with an address, though not from me, beacuse I do not think you worthy of it. There were certain things you did that would not commend themselves to me. You would have accepted a similar position from the late Government if you had got the opportunity.

AND CUSTOMS:—It's a lie. I refuted that statement before and I asked you to make an affidavit.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—I have no use for affidavits. There is one outstanding already against your Prime Minister at the present time, which he has failed to make good. At the very mention of affidavits your chief blushes.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—There are three, one from Mr. Howley, one from Mr. Higgins and one from Mr. Woodford.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—It is up to you to give the fourth.

MR. HIGGINS:—And there is the fifth one from Mr. Gibbs.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—There is a lot of people waiting to arrest the man who made that affidavit. It is really none of my personal business, but it is the business of the Governor and the Judges of the Supreme Court.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Go to it.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—You mean the men behind you to go to it. If I were Minister of Justice and you were guilty you would have a black and white leg on and I would have this matter probed to the bitter end and would want to have it in black and white to show that the Prime Minister is innocent before I would be prepared to lay under the stigma which now adorns his head.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—That is Sir Michael's record.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—If you are not guilty, why not deal with Mr. Woodford, who made the charge against you. You have all the machinery necessary to handle him. There are a lot of people interested in this episode. What is wrong that you do not move. Now Mr. Finance Minister please do not mention that word affidavit any more. If you had any consideration for your chief and if you had more carefully considered what you were about to say at that time, I doubt if you would have used that word affidavit. Mr. Chairman, I was going on to say, when I was interrupted, that the Hon. Minister of Finance was prepared to take any side in politics last fall.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—It is a lie.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—It tickles you, but it is the truth, and it is part of your duty to deny it.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—You came to my office.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—That is about all that your patriotism and your liberalism and your politics amounted to. The people do not know you yet sir. The Government had a despicable record during the last eight months and you have been working over time to provide evidence for your chief and I am here this evening, but not in the position in which the Prime Minister finds himself. I have no such stigma on my character. He is right up against the ropes at the present time. I would not like to be in his position to-day. It is you who have brought up this matter. You have been stumbling right through and now you are stumbling over the affidavit in your statements before the House. He is in the position of the Prime Minister of this Colony and he has to clear himself as we would be doing right if he did, not by giving the severe reprimand he deserves.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—There was a charge against you and you never answered it.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—You got detectives down and had every civil servant endeavouring to secure evidence in that department and you spent twelve thousand dollars in carrying out your spite in that direction, and here we are with the House open for two months and you come in and in a fashion that would not do credit to a boy from the Christian Brothers or other schools, have presented the Estimates to the country in the form in which you presented them a day or so ago. You then hold out your chest and say what a great man Brownrigg is. It is already written all over you. I know you want to be on that side. I was there twenty years ago. Where were you twenty years ago? I was here twenty years before you. I was on this side and that side. I was on every side of the House and all around it. You will not be a success as a politician in this House and of this I serve notice here and now. I worked hard and at the fishery too and you never did any hard work. And hard work I had to do I did it. Pardon me if I am away from the point, but I am only giving an estimate instead of considering one. I am quite in order, Mr. Chairman. The member on the other side has brought up the affidavit matter. I am going astray. Point it out to me. You are the only chairman for this House and you ought to see that the Finance Minister is kept in order. I have done nothing wrong. Tell me anything I have done and if it is not right I will take it back. I will discuss the affidavit as he mentioned it first and I am going to reply. If the Prime Minister were in a good position relative to the affidavit he would not blush when I mentioned it and would also have the Courts thrash the matter and have a decision whether he is right or wrong and if right have Woodford arrested for perjury. This is the right place to talk and exhibit square facts and not outside the House nor in the newspapers or through report. The right place for such a discussion is right here in this House. Squires and Brownrigg do not want to hear those facts but think that they ought to be put away but I am not going to be tied down even by the Chairman. I am going to get there always but to get back to these Estimates, before they pass this House, I think the Opposition will agree with me that there is going to be a lot of opposition and the people of this Colony have got to get a show. The House has been open now nearly two months and here we are at the time of the caplin school. I wonder if he knows what this means. We have been discussing measures of no importance as the order papers will show. We are not discussing measures which we should have discussed last January and February. Take some of the men on the other side to-day. They are not anxious to be here. They do not want to be here. Their interest is not here, it is down home attending to the fishery, but according to the Government's plans we are here to-day discussing simple matters brought in day after day. It can be truthfully said that not one measure of any consequence has been brought in this House altho it is now open for two months and we will be soon told that no other measure is to come. The manifesto of the leader of the Government as handed out to the country last year promised everything from the stars down. Improvements were to be made in the coastal service. Education was to be attended to. Taxation was to be given attention and even prohibition, and here we are after two months and the fringe of the manifesto has not been touched. Now that is the position and now comes the Finance Minister and he tables the Estimates showing an increase of two million dollars.

MR. MacDONNELL:—Mr. Chairman, I think it is usual in this House in going through the summary of the Estimates to make a kind of a general criticism under the item which shows the national debt. Apparently it is now increased, the interest is greater. Anyway I am not going to do that. It seems that the report of the Commission sees fit to do so. It is through political pull that these big increases in salaries have been acquired. I wish t osay and I believe that this will continue until such time as we see competitive examination necessary to get a civil service position and until that is the basis on which one secures a position in the Civil Service political pull will still play its role and that is a matter of such importance that I am surprised that there has not been before this some discussion about it. During the two months of this session we have only brought in bills for changing the verbiage of some of the Consolidated Statutes and this matter of competitive examination strikes at the root of the civil service and a bill should be brought in making competitive examination necessary to obtain a position in the civil service. I do not know much about this in other countries except the British Isles where there is an age limit according to the various departments and there is an entrance examination for each class of work, first class and second class as the case may be. Your seniority dates from the date of your examination in what ever class it may be and when a servant dies promotion is given according to seniority and political pull plays no part whatever. A man would then get a position according to his place in the competitive examination, and according as a vacancy occurred the man next in line would fill the vacancy. I want to see that thing brought before this House, and brought before it very speedily. As I look over the Estimates I see no mention of it. I see that there is to be an increase of $300,000 on the amount expended for education, but there is no indication as to how this amount is to be expended. Why all this secrecy? I see here $2700 cut out for a Deputy Minister of Education, but we have no idea as to who this Deputy Minister is going to be. We do not know but he will be a doctor as the head of the department. We don't know but the one man is now drawing several salaries. There would be abundant precedent for it. I know something of this work of education, and I want a lot of information before I am prepared to vote the amounts set down here. I note that there is an amount of $70,000 to be given to the Boards. We have absolutely no information about this, whether it is to be divided among the Boards to be used by them or to be used by the Minister of Education. It is a queer thing that the Minister is not here. I say that every cent of money spent in this country comes under this head, and every man who is head of a department should be here.

We come down to the sparsely populated localities. If there is one grant that should be increased it is this one. I am glad that the Minister is coming back to the House. I was saying, Mr. Chairman, that while we are asked to vote $300,000 we are refused any information as to what the duties of the department are. We are asked to vote $70,000 to the Boards, but we don't know whether the Minister is going to interfere with the Boards or not. We are asked to vote a sum for inspection of schools. Is this going to be spent by the Minister? I was inspector of schools and out of a salary of $1200 paid my own expenses.

HON. MINISTER OF EDUCATION: —Mr. Chairman, I wish to say for the information of the honourable member that I had intended that this matter be deferred until the bill was brought before the House when it would be explained in detail.

MR. McDONNELL:—I am glad it is the intention of the Minister to explain the whole thing in detail.

Coming now to the Department of Agriculture and Mines I find that there is an increase of $25,000. We come to that somewhat hardy annual, the model farm, and despite the fact that the gentleman in the Upper House has spent considerable time in explaining the benefits of this thing I say now that this $25,000 would be better spent in the actual encouragement of the agriculture of the country. I remember something of the bye-election in St. John's West. I visited practically all the farming settlements and the people said they were going to vote for Mr. Squires and Mr. Brownrigg because they were going to make a model farm. The Minister used to have a strong tendency towards St. George's, and he might have put it in that farming district. Or the call of blood might be stronger, and he might put it in Prince Edward Island. It would be just as much benefit to this country. Then we are asked to vote $10,000 for the encouragement of agriculture. This is to strengthen the quality of the stock. We weren't told that they were to come from P.E.I. where all the blue noses come from. Another bill provides $7000 for surveyor's supplies. This may be because the head of the department is a medical man. Now I wonder if the head of the department is going to send all the surveyors out of the city fully equipped with everything for agricultural purposes.

Mr. Chairman, I was just considering the Department of Agriculture and Mines when the Committee rose and had got to the matter of surveyors. There was a bit of a tangle some time ago over a mining grant in the district I represent. In looking over the chart in the Lands Office I found that one surveyor had placed this claim on one side of a brook and another surveyor had placed it on the other side. In the case in question the gentleman who had the grant was given a claim of bog land on the north side of the brook while the real claim was on the south side, however I have no doubt this matter will be cleared up. Now we come to another important matter, that of forest fires, in connnection with which there is a vote of $13,500, and I do not think that any time could be more opportune than the present to deal intelligently with this question. Heavy losses of valuable timber have been sustained all over the country and I trust that when this vote comes up, hon. members will give the best suggestions they can to help the Government and particularly the Department of Agriculture and Mines cope with this menace in the future. In the district I represent we escaped very well this season; we had fires it is true but fortunately they did not reach the good timber. However, we may not have the same good fortune next year.

The next matter I would refer to is that of logging inspectors. Now under the present arrangement, the advent of these men into the logging camps is always well known and everything is put in apple-pie order for their coming. consequently their work is without any effect whatever and the money voted in this way, unless the order of things is greatly changed, is a useless waste. In the case of Customs inspection the same thing applies as it does in every other form of inspection in this country. The men engaged in this work should be allowed to go and come at their own desire, because why? The chances are the logging inspector like the inspector of saw-mills is subject to the convenience of the Agriculture and Mines Department and has to carry on his work in accordance with a set program. These should be in a sub-department to themselves and the inspectors should be at liberty to come and go as they please, and more particularly is this so in the case of Customs inspection. At present the Customs Inspector is subject to the department and if the department is all right, very well but if the head of the department is wrong, if he is crooked, if he is venial, then he can send the inspector north while some friend of his is doing some smuggling on the south coast.

In this increased grant of $59,000 not one dollar has been voted the way that I would like to see it voted that is for the clearing of new land. I have spoken half a dozen times on this subject already and I am going to speak again. We are speaking on an increased revenue of nearly two million dollars and not one dollar has been voted for the clearing of land. We are banking everything on the fishery pure and simple and if the fishery goes wrong everything goes up and while we find the Minister of Marine and Fisheries very apt and properly in encouraging the fishery we find that nothing has been done for the encouragement of any other industry. Nobody will deny that the main scource of income is the fishery yet there is not a country in the world that has subsidary industries and does not encourage them. We are putting all our eggs in the one basket. The Government is going to shoulder the burden of $50,000 to improve the salt situation but it is an absolute gamble. A fisherman puts his gear into the water and he is not sure that he will ever take it out again. I advocated at a previous date in this session that money he expended for the encouragement of our agriculture because the one cry in every country of the world is "back to the land." This is the slogan that has been taken up by every other government and every other part of the Empire and even in perhaps the most conservative part of the whole Empire the British Isles. The land purchase system was introduced in Ireland by which the right was given to tenants to purchase their land and pay back to the government in yearly instalments not greater than their previous rate of rent. That is why Ireland was the only country in Europe that didn't suffer during the war.

Mr. Chairman, that is the result of wise legislation ten years ago. We are to-day importing year after year agricultural products that we could grow here. There is no need to import one dollar's worth of hay, potatoes or crops of that kind; there is no reason that with proper encouragement that we should not have sufficient seed crops of our own. We have the land, any amount of it, and to-day it is in the same state as it was ten years ago. A scheme for the encouragement of agriculture on the following lines should have been here long ago. Money should have been loaned by the Government to those interested in the farming of land not already cleared at an interest of 6% or 5½% or whatever it would cost the Government to raise the money. These would be paid to the Government to raise the money. These would be paid to the Government within a period of say fifteen years. The first five years those who received that money would pay interest on the whole sum. Beginning with the sixth year one tenth of the loan and interest would be paid and at the end of the fifteen years the whole sum would have been paid back. Now one hundred thousand dollars put to that use would cost the country about six thousand dollars to raise, in actual fact it would cost nothing, because if it were loaned to those who are interested in the encouragement of agriculture the interest could be paid back annually. The Government would have first claim on the property. It is a business proposition, a money proposition if you wish to make it so, and imagine what that would mean, one hundred thousand dollars loaned by the Government a year to the men who want to take advantage of it. It would mean that after fifteen or twenty years we would be self-producing with regard to vegetables, and this is a scheme for which not one dollar could be available, and as if that were too progressive we were afraid to go back to the times when a couple of years ago a bonus was paid for the clearing of land, but we come in here and vote sixty or seventy thousand dollars, some of it, twenty-five thousand dollars of it for a model farm fad. It just happens that some people take a model farm in the same way that others take to photography, and they will find it just as expensive a luxury as the snapshooters find photography. The Government could vote thirty-five thousand dollars to this model farm, but not one dollar to the men who can better this country by production. We can come here thirty-six of us and we can vote thirty-six thousand dollars a year for ourselves, one thousand for each, but we cannot find a dollar for the encouragement of men who would give better value to the general public for every dollar spent that way than the thirty-six thousand dollars paid us. In conjunction with you, sir, and other honourable members on the other side of the House, I preached this policy of Liberal Reform last year, and I believed in it, I believed that there was something in it, I believed that this country would be a better country to live in, a bigger country, a better developed country, but I see no indications now to justify me in that belief. As has already been pointed out in this House this afternoon, we have done nothing of any consequence in the past two months, and we here in this House now at a time when we should not be in session at all. One honourable gentleman on the other side of the House asked whose fault it was, as much as to say that it is the fault of the Opposition. Apparently the idea is broadcast that the business of the Opposition is to come here and sit still and say nothing except as the hon. member for St. John's East has said, to say amen to the legislation of the Government, and if he does venture to exercise his right to question and criticise he is told by this House and the press and the party touts he meets on the street that he is an obstructionist. I wish to tell the House, sir, that if we wanted to obstruct, rather than criticise, that we do not lack perception to seize upon opportunities and we are quite capable of putting our views into effect when we do see them. I have not got much say, I am too young in this House, but if I did there would have been obstruction in this House long ago. To think that the threat of an irresponsible in a newspaper or the sneers of political opponents is sufficient to muzzle people who I take it possess average intelligence is too ridiculous for contemplation. I take it that the reason that these Estimates were delayed until now, that the reason that the opening of this House was delayed so long, was because a certain member of the Executive Government thought that he could work his newspaper to the extent of muzzling his opponents. If that was the idea, sir, I wish to say that it is not the first error of judgment that that honourable gentleman has made. These Estimates are not going without discussion. If there is any particular thing in them, which I think should be discussed, as far, as I know, I don't care how long it takes me, I will ask members on the other side of the House, to bear with me, if I do not come to the point quickly, I will discuss every vote that should be discussed, and all the criticism of my opponents will not disturb me in the slightest

Now we come to a vote on roads. I got a particular assurance last Fall, that the worst need of my district, that of having roads of some kind, to connect the settlements, would be the first thing, that would occupy the attention of the Government. In the District of St. George's the amount voted for local roads, in 1919 and 1920 was three thousand seven hundred and twenty-seven dollars. Now I want the honourable members to realise what that means. Some members representing constituents in the city, and in Conception Bay might not know what that means to the Pioneer district in this country. The people of St. George's are getting the same per capital grant to build new roads, as the people of St. John's get to keep in repair roads that have been built for the last fifty or a hundred years, and not one cent is increased in the vote to St. George's. When they increased the sessional pay of members from three hundred dollars to one thousand dollars, but that will be poor comfort to the man who has to walk knee deep in mud, to get from his house to his fishing stage or to the children of settlements, who have to go through the woods as they have to in Bay of Islands, to get to th eone school there. It is not good to them to be told that the Government, have dealt in a magnificent way with the district, when they have increased the sessional pay of the members from three hundred to one thousand dollars, when the per capita grant for building roads in the district is the same as the per capita grant in the city for keeping up roads that have been built for fifty years. I made one promise last fall to the people of St. George's, and I made it because I was told to make it I was told I could it on the word of the Prime Minister, and that was, that a large special grant, would be set aside, each year, over the above the per capita grant. There is not mention of it here yet. The grant for local roads is the same as it was last year. There is additional expenditure of nearly three million dollars and there is $25,000 provided for a Model Farm, but there is not an additional dollar voted for the clearing of roads. That may be reform in the opinion of some people, but it is not a progressive reform, but retrogressive. The fact will be brought home to those people on the West Coast more strongly than ever before that because they are three hundred miles away form this the Capital, that they do not count. I want to impress upon Hon Members of this House who represent constituencies equally far from this Capital and constituencies where the same needs are and where tthe people are crying out to-day that provision is made out of the two million dollars voted in cases where it has been shown there was no reason for it, and the one grant which should have been increased and that it is the business of this House to see that it is increased, remains cold. One of the big things we were told that was going to be done for St. George's District was that there would be two members put in this district instead of one. That reminds me of a certain gentleman who was going to make two blades of grass grow where one grew before, so that the present Premier is not alone in this theory. The wonderful promises made in the celebrated manifesto have all gone away. We were told that the roads and highways would be given special attention, but I see no indication that this promise will be fulfilled. In spite of all the things that were going to be done for roads and highways as promised by the Prime Minister, the same money that they got last year is voted again this year. We are asked to build roads and maintain them at the same old grant that they were maintained for 150 years ago. Then there is the question of the railway. This is a matter of some importance to those of us who live on the western side of the country, particularly in the district that I represent and which at present has one port of call for a coastal boat for the whole of the two bays. As far as this side of the country is concerned there is no other means of communication with the railway. Now I have asked three or four times already as to what is being done by the Government to remedy the condition of the railway and to put it in a fit state for passenger traffic and the transportation of freight. I always got replies that a Committee of Council were considering the matter and that a report would be made in due course. As long as I can remember there have been Committees considering this same question and they will be considering it until the next general election comes around. Then perhaps the gentleman who represents the district of St. George's will say that he will see that the contractors live up to their contract. But it will be like the cat with the nine lives. After coming back from the country the Commission will sit again and will be sitting until the next general election will come round, but will never report thereon. The seriousness of that may not be easily perceived by those who do not know what it means, but to those people on the West Coast who have only one way of communication it can be very quickly conceived. Take that section around the Codroy Valley where the people produce far in excess of what they want for victualling themselves. The people up there sell potatoes in the Fall of the year at $1.50 per barrel cheaper than what they sold in St. John's for. I remember one time when Sir Edward Morris was on a visit to that locality and when he was enquiring into the prices of vegetables there. He was very much interested in what he saw, in fact he had a fashion for getting interested in local affairs of any people with whom he came in contact. While enquiring into the prices of the various products he commenced to point out to the people how much better off they would be if they would send their commodities to St. John's for sale. An old farmer who hails from the south of Ireland said to Sir Edward that that reminded him of the story at home between the farmer and the tourist. The story goes that this farmer was leaning over a fence and was looking out at some 15 or 20 ducks swimming in a mill in his garden and an English tourist came along and asked him what he was going to do with them. The farmer replied that he was going to eat them. The tourist said you are very foolish for that, for if you send those ducks to the market in London you would get ½£ per pound for them. The farmer, who was up against railroad conditions like what prevails in this country, said how would I get them there. And then turning to the tourist the farmer stated emphatically if that garden was in Hell what a good price I would get for it, the farmer knowing that he would have just as good a chance to get water in Hell as he would to get for his ducks the price named by the tourist. The same applied to the people on the West Coast with regard to the good prices that they would get in St. John's for their products, under our present railroad conditions. It seems funny that at every general election each party blames the other of being controlled by the Reids and each one say that they are determined to keep the Reids up to their contract, but they all fail to vote a single dollar for the upkeep of the railroad. The road is getting worse gradually and an occasional train goes twenty or thirty yards in the woods by way of diversion; fifteen or twenty persons are burned and three or four die as a result. And yet we come here and listen to members of this Assembly express themselves as being very indignant when told that they voted as a party. They deny the idea that they voted as they like. They always did vote as a party and always will, and, perhaps, it is a good thing that there is party voting, because imagine every one of us looking at things and viewing things from different angles. I cannot see how this Government can blame the people for protesting when this very important matter of the railway is untouched. And I tell hon. members of this House that the people are not slow in remembering that while we look after ourselves handsomely that we were very slow indeed in looking after their interests. We are told that the report of the Commission had something to do with these Estimates. How many Coroner's verdicts had we and how many reports had we from the Government Engineer. It is a well known fact that a man takes his life in his hands travelling over the railroad to-day, but we can vote $25,000 for a model farm; $1000 for sessional pays of members and $4000 for Ministers, but nothing for the maintenance of the railway line. And that reminds me that the celebrated Commissioners recommended that every Minister of a Department should get $4000 and they laid down the principle that no one man with two ministerial positions combined should get more than $6000. That is one of the recommendations of the Commissioners and one that it seems is convenient to forget. I should imagine that the Prime Minister's salary to-day is somewhere in the neighbourhood of from twelve to fifteen thousand dollars. Well that is only 250 per cent more than the Commissioners recommended. Twenty per cent of an increase was considered sufficient and in some cases in the Government too much, but it appears that 250 per cent was not too big a price and not too big a reward for the Prime Minister. This is all the more remarkable when it is considered that the same gentleman was the one who said that he did all that was humanly possible for any party to do to lessen the taxation on the people. How we used to talk last Fall about other gentlemen who held two jobs. It does not matter whether they did the work or not they are getting three salaries and that as I said is wrong and the men on that side of the House said was wrong and they still vote for it or I presume they will vote for it. It is quite a change we have seen. What has caused this? It was all wrong last October, it was sin which cried up to Heaven for vengeance, well surely it is not deserving of our support at the present time. I have been accused in this House of inconsistency. The honourable the Prime Minister on one occasion referred to my inconsistency. I do not know whether it would be right or fitting that ordinary member of this House should charge the Prime Minister with inconsistency. Why condemn in another man what you do yourself? In one case you must either lie or else you are inconsistent. It is either one or both. Now in this matter I find that certain gentlemen of the Commission are to blame for the two and one half million dollar expenditure. Now take the Magistrates classified according to the first, second and third classes. The salaries voted or recommended there by the Commission and the salary voted in the Estimates contain a difference of three hundred dollars. Probably the opinion of the Government is that various Magistrates over this country are not considered worthy of the increase of salary, that their work is not of sufficient importance, the work of keeping the peace and this is a matter which does not merit consideration and commendation of the Government. If that is the salary for the Magistrates the Government certainly look at the matter from a peculiar angle. I hope that when the Budget is introduced that some increase scheme will be shown by which they can still pay an increase of two million dollars in taxes and still have a reduction of the high cost of living and if this is done the Government of the day will have accomplished a lot. I do not know whether that can be brought about as I do not know enough about high finance but I think it is desirable that while we have increased expenditure we should also have a lowering of the high cost of living at the same time. The fishermen have to pay ten cents as an export duty on fish and they promised that the war tax of twenty cents per quintal on fish would be taken off and now they want another ten cents instead of taking off the war tax of twenty cents per quintal and these men will have very little comfort when they realise this. Especially when they are informed that certain gentlemen in this House will receive salaries from twelve to fifteen thousand per year and that they will have to be taxed an additional fifty per cent on fish. The War Tax is being continued altho Peace has been signed a couple of years and it has been added to by fifty per cent to make matter worse. That the money is being spent in a way that no other money has been spent is only a matter of theory. The ultimate result will show. Now that is all I have to say for the present but when each particular vote comes up I shall have something to say if I am able to talk about it provided it is different from that which it should be and I shall not be afraid to do so even if charges of obstruction are levelled at me.

MR. MOORE:—I was glad to hear this evening when the member for St. George's asked the Minister of Education if he was intending to take the vote. Like the member for St. George's I am interested in that vote and I have told the Minister in private conversation that I had a story to tell this House when that Bill comes down. I am afraid I will not be able to subscribe to some of the increases in the vote. While in the district for which I have the honour to be one of its representatives I had to tell them that the widows and orphans would still get the dole of five dollars per quarter and this was a mere camouflage. And until such time as this Government can see its way clear to increase that dole I intend to vote against those increases given to officials who were getting eighteen hundred dollars and now are getting three thousand six hundred. In relation to the G.W.V.A. of which the Minister of Justice is a member he accused me some time ago in this Assembly of a criticism again the G.W.V. A., and said that those who wore the badge were as patriotic as those who were to the war. I say that is not the case. I will back my patriotism against his any day and say those who wore the badge were not and are not as good as those who were to the war. If he will look up the records of the G.W. V.A. he will find that I did more than he did for that Association. The widows and orphans have got no increases but those who were getting two thousand dollars are now getting three thousand six hundred dollars. The Minister of Justice stated in this House in discussing the address in reply that those who wore the badge were entitled to positions and were just as worthy as those who went over and fought but I can say that they were and slackers have been given Government positions while out on the streets you will see the legless and armless soldier looking for a job. Four years ago when we went down to say farewell to them we pledged ourselves that we would not forget them when they would come back. Yes, they have come back but we are finished with them now and we say to Hell with them. Now that is the position we are in. I might also state that down in the Customs House there was a position but it was given to the defeated candidate for St. John's West. As long as I am spared to remain in public life I will endeavour to make that job right for the returned soldier. I am not finished with the returned soldier and will take the model farm. I visited the model farm yesterday. I was out that way yesterday and as I heard a lot about it I thought I would go in and see it. I found five men and five horses there and I asked them what they intended to grow there and they answered "Well we cannot say what you can grow in this country but we are sure you can grow whiskers." I also noticed that they were setting turnips there and I am sure these turnips will cost the Colony thirty dollars per barrel. The Minister will be soon packing his saratoga and will be off in a few days to spend the fifty-five thousand voted. We have come to a pretty pass if we are asked to vote fifty-five thousand dollars to spend twenty-five thousand of it on a model farm such as we have in at the Sanitorium. The increases that have been given to some officials I agree with and do so with the thirty per cent given by the late government and I think until such time as we can increase the pensions of old aged fishermen, the quarterly payment for the widows and orphans we should go slowly especially when we can give thirty-six hundred dollars per year to those who were receiving fifteen hundred per year. May I ask the Minister of Education if it is his intention to bring down the Education Bill on Wednesday?

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Chairman, like most of the previous speakers I feel very much disappointed over the estimates. I have the estimates here before me, and side by side I have the manifesto of the Hon. the Leader of the Government. I have gone through the manifesto, I have read some of the great things foreshadowed, and I have to say that in view of the manifesto the estimates are a great disappointment to me and to the public. Despite these most extraordinary times the Minister of Finance has come in here and asked the members to vote an extra $2,000,000, and absolutely no attention is paid to the matters of most vital importance. We find the amount allotted to each department greately increased, and these increases are only to satisfy political influences as has been so well pointed out by the leader of the Opposition and others. We have to tax the fishermen $2,000,000 extra to meet these increases. I remember the leader of one of the wings of the Government, the leader of the F.P.U., on many occasions pleading for the poor fishermen and sarcastically referring to the $50.00 paid to the worn out fishermen by the Morris Government, and if ever he got the opportunity he would increase that amount by 100%. But now that he is leader of one of the wings of the Government we don't hear a thing about it. The people who supported him will regard him as insincere and untrustworthy. When that $50.00 was given it was the best that could be done. At that time $50.00 was as good and would go as far as $150 or $200 to-day. $7.00 would buy a barrel of flour, $4.00 would buy a pair of boots, and $15.00 a suit of clothes. Is it reasonable to come in here and ask the honourable members to give their sanction to these estimates that entirely neglect the poor fishermen, whether these people belong to the West Coast or to Bonavista Bay? These people who are bringing in the money into the treasury of the country to pay the Ministers salaries are absolutely neglected. I think it is regretable, I think it is indecent, and that is stronger, for the Hon. Minister of Finance to bring in estimates that have so forgotten the hard toiling fishermen of the country. You have the widows and the orphans to look after. It is only those who have been close to them who know the circumstances and who can appreciate them. In the district that I have the honor to represent there is a large number of poor people. Owing to the great hardships and the numerous dangers which the men have to encounter in their work there are a great many widows and orphans. I regret that there is no provision made to care for them, and it is nothing to the credit of the Hon. Minister of Finance and his associates that these people are absolutely ignored in the estimates. Then there are the returned men, the soldiers and the sailors. What provisions have we made for them? These men answered the call when you and I were unable to do so. They shouldered the gun for themselves and for us. Now how unthankful we are to them? I know many of the men who, driven by absolute necessity, have had to go down to some shipping office, buy their tickets and leave here for some other country where, if they want to succeed, they may have to foreswear allegiance for all time to the British Empire. The announcement was made some time ago that some ships were to be purchased by the Government and that another was being presented to the Colony by the British Admiralty, and I made enquiries with the object of ascertaining what possible chance there was for these ships being manned by those men who had borne for us the heat and burden of the war, and at least two of them from my own constituency made application to the Shipping Board. One of them was a man who went overseas as an ordinary seaman, but he was rapidly promoted and returned an officer. He went to school and studied navigation to fit himself for a position of the kind and then applied for a position on one of these ships. He was told that the position was filled and on enquiry it was found that the position was filled by a political heeler. The result is that that man is now in the United States. If that is the sort of reform the Government has to work in this country, then I don't want to be classed as a reformer. In going thru these estimates there is one thing that strikes me forcibly and it is this, in every case where an increase is made it is in the case of what might be termed for the sake of distinction, the upper class official, there is absolutely nothing for the poor man. Take the couriers for instance, who have to take up their bags of mail and go out into the storm, take the courier at Badger, I mention him particularly because I happen to know more about that section, perhaps, than any other, he has to leave Badger and brave the storms of the long stretch to Hall's Bay, to Little Bay Islands, then to Cape John and down around White Bay to Cape Norman when navigation is closed but what provision is made for this man? He may get a free hand to shoot rabbits or beavers but that's about all. It is the same in the case of the fishery warden, the man who is supposed to protect our fisheries. If the job is not one of sufficient importance to pay the man who is engaged on it a living salary then why have it in existence at all. Similarly, the tide waiters, outport poor commissioners, all are ignored. There is no provision for telegraph extension despite the fact that since this House opened, numerous petitions have been presented on the subject and ministers and heads of departments have occupied hours at a time elaborating on the great necessity of telephone and telegraph extension in certain settlements thruout the country, and right here I want to mention a circumstance that has already been referred to by one of the speakers on this side of the House. The idea has been sent abroad that the House was delayed by the obstruction of the Opposition. If there has been any unnecessary obstruction I have not seen it except on the part of the Government themselves and particularly on the part of the Executive members. I have been here at three o'clock every day and the House is never called together before half past three or a quarter to four and then we find an order paper that could be gone thru in twenty minutes, yet in face of this we are told that the session is being delayed by the obstruction tactics of the Opposition. I want to inform the House that if any obstruction were found necessary, and the Hon. Minister of Justice is a good judge of how it should be practiced, we have enough material on this side of the House to keep us here till Christmas. The only intention I have is to see that the public get a square deal. On the opening day when the speech of His Excellency the Governor was being discussed, a matter was brought to the notice of the House by the Leader of the Opposition, and this was made necessary because of the neglect of the Department of Justice to take the matter up as it was his duty to do. I refer now to the Woodford Affidavit. A man who had occupied responsible positions in the Colony for 30 years made an affidavit containing incriminating charges against prominent members of both branches of the Legislature, and when that class of man makes an affidavit I say that it is the bounden duty of every member of this House to probe it to the very bottom and if Mr. Woodford is found guilty let him be removed to the hotel by the lakeside and if he is not guilty the man who is should not be an advisor to H. E. the Governor and his associate should not occupy a seat in the Upper House. This matter should not be winked out of sight. This is the proper place to discuss it and so far as I am concerned and the public and Mr. Woodford and Mr. Squires and Mr. Gibbs I will place myself on record as being an obstructionist to see that justice is done though the heavens may fall. Another matter I wish to draw to your attention to is the matter of aids to navigation. I had reason to believe that an substantial vote would be set aside for this purpose in the estimates. Petition after petition has been presented by members from both sides of this House for a lighthouse or some other aid on different parts of our coastline. If one takes a trip around our rocky shores and then goes to other countries and there sees the navigation aids given to those who go down to the sea in ships it would be unnecessary to remark our inefficiency. Up in my district valuable lives have been lost and likewise in other parts of the Island. If through political animosity the Government didn't see its way clear to build a lighthouse or a fog signal in Ferryland district let them go down in Bonavista or Twillingate or St. Barbe or come down to the district represented by the Hon. Minister of Justice you will find many dangerous points and many settlements that have petitioned the Government for a warning station. The coastal service is a matter which affects my district perhaps more than any other public utility. There is a large coast line from Placentia to Trepassey and over 40 miles of the Cape Shore there are no coastal facilities. From the very first time that I came into this House I have been advocating for additional service in that district. During the period of the war and while the country was called upon to bear the burden that was being thrown upon its shoulders wec ouldn't expect any great improvements but now that the war is over and we are voting two millions of dollars of extra taxation I am expecting that something would be done. Surely the people of that section of the country who are called upon to pay dollar for dollar with the sections that have their railroad should receive their own proper share, and so far as this is concerned this is one of the reasons that will compel me to withdraw my sanction and give an absolute protest to the greater number of votes of increases which we are called upon to make. In discussing the reduction of taxation what do we find but that each taxpayer is called upon to pay an increased tax of tens of dollars per head more than last fall.

MR. SULLIVAN:—Mr. Chairman, I would like to draw your attention to the fact that we have not a quorum in the House.

MR. WALSH:—I am sorry that my hon. colleague had to draw the attention of the House to the absence of a quorum, there might be some excuse for withdrawing to have a smoke and a chat but to-night we are here to consider estimates of increases of $100 to $1000 and $300 to $1500 to $2500 to $5000. Surely any hon . member should have sufficient interest to hold his seat in the House while we are discussing estimates of such far reaching effect. I hope the chairman will not have to call the attention of the House to the absence of a quorum in future. The high cost of living is another political kite which occupies a place in the manifesto and by the estimates it has been found of such sufficient importance to give it another boost. It is not high enough so they give it another kick and put it higher. We have passed a measure to deal with profiteering and I pity the man on Water Street who will be accused of profiteering. Yes I pity him if he is an opponent of the Government. But if he is one of the men who was liberal enough to pay out the money to defray the cost of their election last fall he will not be interfered with but every encouragement will be given him. It is like that famous proclamation that has been issued by the Colonial Secretary in regard to the sugar. The small grocer who buys sugar by the barrel gets his one cent a pound of profit while the big man who can afford to buy 25 barrels or over is allowed an additional cent per pound. In the parish of Placentia where there is very little more than one thousand souls, something like one hundred and thirty, 90% of those qualified to go, physically fit and of age, offered themselves and went overseas ,and I am very sorry to say that a large percentage of those noble heroes will never come back, a large percentage of them are to-night bleaching, some of them over ground on the plains of Gallipoli, and others on the soil of France and Flanders, and their loved ones at home have for the remainder of their lives to mourn the loss of those nobles heroes. In honour of the memory of those noble heroes the residents of the parish of Placentia erected a monument. I hold in my hand here a copy of the programme on that memorable occasion. The monument is a beautiful one and it will to some extent keep fresh in the minds of those who have no personal occasion for doing so the splendid sacrifices of the people of this parish and of other places all over the Island, and I regret that the Government have not seen their way clear to erect some substantial memorial in honour of our dead heroes. Now the other memorial that I am going to refer to is this one —the Estimates. They will go down in the history of this House when the present members of this House have passed away and their memories are forgotten because there will be no legislation passed by members in this Assembly that will be worthy of keeping their names fresh in the memory of the people, these will go down in history as the most extraordinary document ever presented by any Hon. Minister of Finance and Customs. If we were passing through normal times there would be reasonable objection to voting the extraordinary increases that we are called upon to vote, but we are not passing through normal times, we are passing through times when the people are called upon to pay three or four hundred per cent more for the necessaries of life than four or five years ago; we are passing through times when our greatest product is a drug in the market; we are passing through times when it is a common sight to go into any of the principal streets, Water Street for instance, and to meet the bone and sinew of the Colony with his yaffle of fish under his arm, his hat in his hand, and his finger in his mouth going into some of our merchant princes to know if they will buy his fish. This is an extraordinary state of affairs. I remember the time, and I daresay you, sir, remember the time, and other members of this House who were in the last House of Assembly, and members who were not in the House at that time will remember when you would take up the fishermen's paper and read in it that the price of fish was what the Pres. of the Fishermen's Protective Union wanted to make it. If he wanted to make it twenty dollars it was twenty dollars. This was defended by honourable members in this House who were associated with him, this was defended by others who were not in this House, and some of the arguments advanced in its favour were so strong that I myself was beginning to feel like Newman felt when he wrote Lead Kindly Light; but surely, Mr. Chairman, if the arguments advanced that the Hon. President of the F.P.U. made the price of fish twenty dollars then he is responsible now for the price of fish. If he took the praise for the increase in price he must take the blame for making the price five dollars. The codfishery of Newfoundland is its principal industry, and will always remain so, no matter how many auxiliary industries may crop up, and it is regrettable that we should be called upon in passing through these extraordinary times to vote such a large increase to the already over burdened tax-payers of the country, a country that is already bending under the enormous load of taxation that is being piled up year after year. A lot of it was of course absolutely necessary if we were to keep up our end of the plank in the great European War, and despite this increase they are voting nothing to some of the most important public utilities, some of which I have already mentioned, some which I will mention now, and some which I will mention later on, and the chief one of these is the transportation by land and railroad. During the election campaign last fall pages were written about the Reid Nfld. Co. and the railroad. The Minister of Posts and Telegraphs issued a warning from his place in the House last year that the railroad was not safe to travel on and that the men who purchased a ticket to go from here to Topsail, or Manuels, or any other station along the line were taking their lives in their hands when they went aboard the car. I agree with that statement then and I agree with it now, but what has he done since in the matter? What has the leader of the Government done since? At that time it served to sway some of the electorate their way. We were told in reply to a question asked here yesterday that there would be no legislation dealing with the railroad brought down this session. Surely the Government don't think of going outside this House and bickering with the Reid Nfld. Co. in reference to this matter. I don't think they do. The matter should be dealt with here, and the Government should have pluck enough to bring in a bill and deal with it. Don't wait until tomorrow, or next week, or next month. Don't wait until you pick up a newspaper and read an awful calamity has occurred on the railroad and that lives have been lost. Don't wait until the second session of this House. You may not have another session. There may not be another session of this legislature with the personnel of the Government as it is now. Now is the time when you have the reins of office with a good following. With regard to myself, and I think I can speak for each and every member of the Opposition, any criticism that will come from this side of the House on such a bill will be meant in a friendly spirit to point out some defect in the legislation. It would be more to the credit of the Government to spend weeks or months discussing the railroad question than the bill for the preservation of beavers and other matters of no importance that have been discussed within the last two months.

Another serious matter has come to my mind, and it only came to my mind when I looked across and saw the Hon. the Minister of Education, is the amount that we are called upon to vote to this department. We are called upon to vote an enormous increase to this department, and I regret that the Government did not see its way clear to bring in your bill before they brought in the Estimates, I regret that they did not give us a chance to peep behind the scenes. The whole thing has been shrouded in mystery, and is so still. The only thing that we know is that we are called upon to vote to the Minister of Education four thousand dollars and to the Deputy Minister three thousand dollars, and the clerks down the line in accordance with those increases; and as has been pointed out by the hon. member for St. George's, the Opposition in this House does not know, and I daresay a large number of the members on the other side of the House don't know, but the Minister is the whole shooting match, minister, deputy minister, clerks, typewriter and all. I don't think that this is fair ,and if the Hon. Minister were on this side of the House that his criticism would be more severe than any that has been handed out here today or any other occasion. That is all I intend to say on this matter at the present time.

As intimated by Mr. MacDonnell, the hon. member for St. George's, I have a story to tell also when the bill comes down and the story is going to be told from my place in this House. Provision could not be made in the estimates for very many of the necessary public utilities in the Island, but $35,-000 could be found to hand over to a man (Dr. Campbell) who has no more stake in this country than Dick Mc-Ghee to experiment on a model farm. Now the fishermen of this Island have got beyond that stage. With a poor voyage facing this country the present year, with that wave of prosperity that was in evidence the past few years having disappeared, with salt at a top notch price and with all the other necessary commodities, some of which are to be found on the table of the poor man, what is going to be the outcome. I say, Mr. Chairman, that this is too serious a matter to be winked out of sight. When we are prepared to juggle with the funds of this Colony and give to Dr. Campbell, who has to give no account of his stewardship to anybody, $35,000, then I for one am going to protest against it. Dr. Campbell went to St. John's West for election and was kicked out, but it appears that he had sufficient pull with the present Government to be dumped into the Upper Chamber, a chamber that has been vilified by nearly every individual and by the very men who hold office in the administration of the day. And I had the privilege myself of being in that chamber recently and listened to Dr. Campbell, the Min. of Agriculture and Mines, in his disgusting references to members of this House who dared criticise his agricultural fad. Let me predict and I predict it in all honesty and in all seriousness that it is just as well for the men in Bonavista Bay and Trinity District and all the men in the other districts for that matter if Dr. Campbell went to China with that $35,-000, because there will not be one farthing in return from that model farm. I say it is the most contemptible piece of juggling ever attempted by any government in this country since we had Responsible Government. Is it an honest Government that gives to Dr. Campbell, who is responsible to nobody and represented nowhere, $35,000 to do as he pleaces with. I might say that this is not good enough and the people of the country ought to have something to say over the squandering of their money in this fashion. If you had taken this $35,000 and sent it to some of the outport districts or to some isolated parts of our coastline where people are repeatedly petitioning this House for public utilities there would be some results therefrom. Or could that $35,000 be voted for the erection of fog alarms, light houses or some other aids to navigation that may be the means of saving many valuable lives to this country. I say without fear of contradiction that this amount voted to Dr. Campbell is an absolute waste and this country will not get 35c. returns. About the only thing it will do is to benefit the friends of the Minister or some individual who has pig pull or sheep pull with him, but so far as the general public is concerned they are not going to get a cent in return for that expenditure. When the agricultural bill was before the House I pleaded that some consideration be given to the poor people of this country who have been writing to me and other members of this House on both sides asking for some assistance. In many cases the story of those poor people is that they are unable to buy seed because of the prohibitive prices. I represented their cases in an application to the Minister of Agriculture and Mines Department and I was told to apply to the Relieving Officer and their wants would be supplied. Now, Mr. Chairman, I emphatically protested and I protest against this attitude of the Minister in trying to drag down those people, particularly, because, as I said before, he represents nobody but himself. If the Government had made provision for ten thousand dollars worth of seed to distribute fairly and indiscriminately among the people who could ill afford to buy them, it would bring ten thousand times the returns. Potatoes in the town to-day are almost at prohibitive prices for the majority of people and are not to be found on the poor man's table. But the price does not worry the rich man. He does not care what a thing costs to go on his table. He is going to get it any how. But the poor man if he wants a barrel of flour for his family and he has not got the necessary wherewithal to get it, well then he probably has got to borrow a five dollar bill to make up the price, otherwise he has got to do without it. Apparently some of the hon. members opposite are enjoying this discussion. It may be amusing to those who are in the class that I have just referred to, but not to the men who have to fish on the Grand Banks, Cape St. Mary's, the Groais Islands and other places and who are guaranteed about five dollars a quintal for their fish. If conditions were normal there would be some excuses for the increases, but while three or four times pre-war prices are being asked for the necessaries of life, how do you expect fishermen who are absolutely depending upon what they get from year to year to support their families. I am afraid the Ship of State is fast approaching the dangerous shoals of bankruptcy or confederation and there appears to be a deliberate attempt made to place this country in such a condition that we will find it essential to send the Hon. Minister of Justice and some others of his associates to Ottawa to discuss terms with Canada, if Canada would take us in. I say that if such a condition is deliberately planned you could not go about it in a better way; you could apply no better means towards laying the foundation than in the Estimates before the House at the present moment. No sane, sound, sensible business man, or any firm or company, but knows that if they are not able to meet their liabilities they are bankrupt. The same principle applies to a Government. During the war countries loaned us money from a patriotic standpoint and money was spent freely. A state of prosperity was about us in that line and we were given the glad hand. But conditions are different to-day. Go down to any of the Banks to-day and try to borrow money for any business purpose whatever and what do you find? You find an entirely different attitude. You will find a different smile on the face of the banker than what you saw last year and the year before, and it is only on good security that money can be borrowed at all; and when that condition prevails at home the Minister of Finance cannot expect to go to the New York market or the London market or any other of the money loaning markets to obtain loans without having to pay heavy interest. Well it is only natural and reasonable to suppose and to assume that if this country happens to meet with a bad fishery this year—although it may be able to recover from one—and a second one comes equally as bad, where do we find ourselves. We will find ourselves absolutely on the rocks. And when this country was found in such a condition some years ago, we had men of integrity, men of ability and men of honesty of purpose in charge of the old Ship of State, and with some exceptions we have men of integrity, of ability and of honesty today. We have prominent men holding prominent positions in the public life of this Colony and in this chamber who stand charged with a serious offence. Until this charge is explained away satisfactorily and affidavit meets affidavit and until the leader of this House has vindicated himself of the blemishes that have fallen upon his character he should vacate his seat. How can the country or any section of the community view with confidence any action that may be taken by the Government when it is presided over by a gentleman charged with such a serious offence. On the opening day I supported the resolutions that he should vacate his seat until the charge was disposed of. And I said that I would be one of the first to extend to him the glad hand of good-fellowship on his return to this chamber and I said this with all seriousness and from the very depths of my heart and I say so again but I do not want any juggling or camouflage and I want to see the Prime Minister get fair play and also want the public to get fair play. I also want to see Mr. Gibbs get fair play and also want to see Mr. Woodford get fair play and we can see these gentlemen getting fair play only by having a commission appointed in which the public will have confidence and over which the presiding officer will be a man of character and who will be respected by everybody irrespective of his class or creed. I say we are passing through the most extraordinary times that have ever been experienced in this Dominion or ever will be. For the last five years there has been an unprecedented wave of prosperity passing over the country. From 1909 up to 1914 this country has experienced one of the most prosperous periods it has ever experienced or ever will. During those years many were called upon to weep and many were the hours of sorrow but still there was prosperity. A large amount of money had to be borrowed to keep our place in the firing line and this amount of money was to a great extent spent at home and put in circulation and then this country met with prosperity but this prosperity is no longer in evidence. Meet anybody on the street to-day and they have a gloomy expression on their faces. That which they had previous to the war is no longer to be found. The public is alarmed at what is to be the next move. This is an extraordinary document which has been in the press for some time. A man has to pay ten dollars for a barrel of flour and consider this with a man who has a family of say five children who may be half clad and this so-called Liberal Reform Government has come into this House and through the Finance Minister has voted an increase of two million dollars to increase the already fat salaries. Then we find the sum of thirty-five thousand dollars voted to the Minister of Agriculture and Mines to squander and it is no wonder that the poor down trodden labourer of the country is crying out. I do not blame him. But there is bound to be a reaction. The pill was swallowed last autumn and that pill was coated over nicely. The Government has been absolutely dishonest as far as the working classes are concerned. I make that statement deliberately. A reduction of taxation was promised in that wonderful manifesto. In reading this particular paragraph I will now occupy the attention of the House in trying to convince the country as I know I cannot convince the House. The House has made up its mind to put through certain legislation and it has the majority and despite all the criticism it will go through. But I want to convince and warn the country that this reform government has made promises which the members who now constitute the Government do not intend to fulfil. There are sections in this country who know that it was all clap trap. They simply wanted to catch votes and merely said when we get in we will see what we can do. Thats what it amounts to. But the day of reckoning has to come and it may come sooner than anticipated by some of the members of the House. Strange to say I notice a recommendation made to the Government by the Commission that when the Prime Minister holds two offices the salary should be $6000. When the Minister of Finance tabled the estimates he said that they were on the recommendation of the Commission. This is one that you did not accept. When we had a man like Sir Robert Bond as Prime Minister of this country he was getting only $2500. Here we have a man to-day who is under a cloud, who if he did not move in a particular circle such as the men in the gallery here to-night, would be behind the prison bars. We are voting an amount not what was given to Sir Robert Bond, not $4000 as Prime Minister and $2000 as Colonial Secretary as was recommended by the Commission, but $4000 for each job and a few additionals so as to make up a couple of thousand more. Still we are wondering why the people are showing such discontent. Why could not the incumbent of that position sacrifice a little. There are lots of men walking the streets of the city to-day without work, some men with wooden legs, some with wooden arms, men who sacrificed everything for their country. Is nothing going to be done for those men? The Prime Minister lost two chances to clear himself of that charge. When that charge was made, if it were me, I would not wait five minutes. I would get in touch with the nearest J. P. or Stipendiary Magistrate. I would have that man brought before him and have my character vindicated. That was when he lost his first chance. Having lost that opportunity he should have vacated his seat the first day of the opening of the House. If he had done that he would have made up 100% in the estimation of the people of the country.

With regard to the offiicials of his department I have very little to say. Some of them are eminently qualified men. Mr. Mews is a man of great ability. He is a man who was called up day after day during the war because of his knowledge and experience, and did he his work well. But whethe it is wise to raise his salary to $3600 I am doubtful.

Now I intended to refer to the other departments, but as there are others who want to speak I will give them a chance. I have no intention of letting the estimates go through this House until they are explained by the heads of the different departments.

There are one or two other matters to which I wish to refer. I note that a large amount of $50,000 is, as the Government says, allotted to the fishermen. The Star said yesterday in big black type that the Government had come to the rescue of the fishermen to the tune of $50,000. There is absolutely nothing in this that the Government can commend themselves on. But for the bungling of the Government when Sir John Crosbie was trying to get them to save the salt situation that $50,000 would not have been lost to the country. If the warning of Sir John Crosbie had been taken in the right spirit we might have avoided that rock, but it has made a hole in the ship and it is costing the country $50,000 to repair it. The ship has not yet absolutely foundered, but unless that bungling is stopped she is going to founder. If competent, capable men were in charge that $50,000 would have been saved.

MR. SULLIVAN:—Mr. Chairman, I have listened with a great deal of pleasure to the different views expressed here this afternoon and evening and I want to congratulate my colleague, Mr. Walsh, upon the able speech with which he has entertained this House for the last two and a half or three hours. Now sir, in rising to speak on these estimates before the chair, I have two minds as to how I should approach the subject. There are many ways in which we can look at these estimates, there are many viewpoints from which we can regard the Government responsible for them, but I shall content myself this evening with viewing them from two points only. After carefully studying the estimates, I have asked myself if I should not congratulate the Government (I regret isr that this is the second time this evening that attention has had to be called to the fact that there is no quorums. The members on the Government side do not seem to be sufficiently interested in the business before the House to remain and listen to the debate). As I was about to remark when my colleague, Mr. Sinnott, drew attention to the fact that there was no quorum, I have asked myself if I should not congratulate the Government on their optimism, if I should not congratulate them upon the rosy views they take of the future prosperity, congratulate them in their assumption of the tremendous recuperative powers of the people of the country, more especially when we consider the present condition of the people generally and more especially when we consider the period of reconstruction which is bound to follow for a year or two yet after the great war so successfully ended. On two or three occasions during this session, when some men were inclined to be pessimestic, I took the optimistic view and I preached optimism on every possible occasion, but I never dreamt that I should win such converts to my way of thinking as would appear from the Government's action with regard to these estimates. I have also looked at the matter from another point of view and I have asked myself would any sane business man, after grave thought and deliberation, after considering the pros and cons, and after looking at the affairs of the country in a fair, unbiased way, have brought down these estimates and placed them before sane men and expect them to be passed without debate? Would any government with the slightest claim to political acumen place estimates like these before us? There is only one conclusion we can come to and that is the one I have arrived at and is expressed in the old saying "whom the gods destroy, they first make mad." I see the handwriting on the wall and we will soon see the end of this Government. The first shot will be fired on the 24th, when the electors of Bay de Verde will send Mr. Puddister back to this House with a big majority. I see the Hon. Minister of Justice taking notes and no doubt he will give me a broad side but if he does I hope I am sport enough to take my medicine. If I have hurt the feelings of any hon. gentlemen I am sorry for it. I am not speaking of them as individuals but as part of a machine—the Government. I am only going to speak briefly now but when the different votes come up I shall have more to say about them. I do not consider these increases equitable, nor do I think that the Government have sufficiently taken into consideration the recommendations of the Commission. Probably they have been guided somewhat by them but I think they have used their own discretion quite a bit. I believe, with the hon. member for St. George's, that the civil service is controlled to a certain extent by a political pull and I am sure that hon. gentlemen in this House will be glad to see the day when positions in the civil service will be obtainable only by competitive examination and then the poor man's son will get his chance. Any member bringing in a measure to give effect to this, whether he be on the Government or Opposition side of the House will have my hearty support. In dealing with the estimates I find that they are very interesting and I am sure that if the public get copies of them, they would stay up all night perusing them. Take page two, for example, under the head of Civil Government, head A and we find that in the Government House there is an increase of 20%. The Department of the Prime Minister is given the modest increase of 116% and the Department of the Colonial Secretary gets a rise of 23% which is not so bad. The Department of the Minister of Justice is not so much out either, he gets the nice little increase of 70%. Now take the Department of Finance and Customs. There is nothing small about the grab the head of that department gets for his department, it is the same as the Prime Minister's, an increase of 116%. Probably I'd do the same thing myself if I were in his place. Then we come down to the Minister of Agriculture and Mines who gets a little increase of 70% for his department, while the Minister of Marine and Fisheries gets 60% for his department, he's somewhat behind. The Minister of Public Works is very modest, he only gets an increase of 42% for the Department of Public Works.

Take Public Charities for 1920 the vote was $719,470.21 and Public Charities for 1920-19121 is $931,299,-71, an increase of $211,829.50. Now sir the majority of the people reading this would say look what the Government has done for the orphans and widows, but do you think this increase helps out the widows and orphans; they have been allowed an additional $14,294.00 and now where is the rest of the money gone? Charitable institutions and salaries I presume, so far as any increase for the widows and orphans, the actual figures are only $14,294.00. Is this sir in keeping with the promises outlined in the manifesto of November last. Even the widows were given an assurance or at least an intimation that they would be given a pension the same as the men, but it doesn't look like it to-night. Let us bring this matter home to ourselves. How would we get on with 24 or 36 dollars per year and I think it is something in the vicinity of $24.00 that some of them get. How far would that go with the present high cost of living? The House is not inclined to listen to this I am thinking. That is why four of the Cabinet Ministers are absent from the House to-night. It is very bad taste to say the least of it for these men to be absent when the House is in committee of the whole on Supply. Does it mean that they are determined to railroad these estimates through this House in spite of our objections. It looks like it anyway. It would only be common courtesy to stay here and ltisten to our criticisms. Now while we are at this question of public charities I would like to draw the attention of the House to the Deputy Minister of that department, Mr. O'Dwyer. If he is a deputy is he not entitled to the increase that other deputies have received, namely $3600. Every man in this House knows that he is entitled to it, the Commission recommended it, and we know that he is the right man in the right place. He is as hard as nails when the occasion requires it but on the other hand when the claims put forward are just he attends to them, and I regret that he has not been placed on the same feeting as the other deputies. To carry out those estimates that are before the House tonight is going to be a question. I ask the Minister of Finance now in all sincerity if he is going to look forward to the coming years with hope and faith. The estimates this year call for a vote of $8,856,616.94. I would ask sir if you were doing a private business of this magnitude would you be prepared to go the limit as you are doing with the country's affairs. With reference to the increase in salaries I don't say that they do not deserve them. No man can put his increase to better advantage than I can but are we justified in giving those increases to ourselves and other officials and ignore those other poor people around the country and give no increase to old age pensions and practically none to widows and orphans. It is true that there has been a $10,000 vote for old age pensions but this will be given to other applicants waiting but not to increase present grant of $50, and that's on a par with what I said just now in relation to the widows and orphans. Why the pension to-day of $50 will not buy more than 2½ barrels of flour. Don't you think that the old men and women should get a share of what is going? High cost of living must bear heavily on their shoulders also. Those are the different views that we should consider before we pass these estimates as they are. I look down the list of couriers and nowhere can I find where any increase has been provided for them. After all they should look for an increase considering the price of hay and oats and harness and horses to-day. I think that they would be justified in asking for an increase. The high cost of living bears very harshly on them and I do not think it would be out of the way for them to ask for an increase. And what about the soldiers and sailors, I understand that their grant has been considerably decreased since last year. I cannot find where any provision has been made for the rependants of those men who gave their lives on the fields of Gallipoli and France so that we could live in peace at home. A very sad case came to my knowledge a few days ago. A woman came to me, she was here to see her 14 year old son who was in hospital and who was likely never to come out of it. Her boy had died in France and her husband was now laid up with rheumatism and a broken leg. When her boy died in France the father was A1 but has since been disabled, to-day he is unable to support his family. I think some provision should be made for cases like that. We should see that a sufficient sum of money was voted so that any father or mother or dependant of those who shed their blood for us will not be in want, and I throw out now the suggestion to the Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, and I hope he will bring the matter up before the Executive Government at an early date and see that these people are not neglected but provided for by a grateful country. This is not the only case brought to my notice. There is another: A man in my district over sixty years of age who went overseas. His son, the only son that he had unmarried, was killed. When this man came back he was boarded out of the regiment and he appeared to be alright, but after he was boarded out he became badly crippled with rheumatism. His plea for help was turned down, the same as the woman that I have just mentioned. Those are the things that are making trouble with the G.W.V.A. Then there is another question of allowances for uniforms. This may apply to the hon. and gallant gentleman on the other side of the House, Lieut. Small. I do not know when he was demobilised, but if he was demobilised on the 30th of July he forfeited one hundred dollars, but the other men who were demobilised in August drew one hundred dollars for kit allowance. This is another cause of complaint with the G.W.V.A., because they know that it is not a square deal. If these men who were demobilised on July 30th were not entitled to the same amount as the men who were demobilised in August, then at least, they should have got a proportionate share. That is only one of the many kicks that the soldiers have. Now, sir, I wish to suggest to the Hon. the Minister of Justice, the Hon. the Minsiter of Finance and Customs, Mr. Foote, and Mr. Barnes that at the next meeting of the Executive Government they bring up this matter of providing for dependants of our fallen heroes where no provision already exists and see that it is given proper attention. I have no fault to find with the Board of Pension Commissioners, because they have to go by the rules laid down for them, which are hard and fast, but they should be given power of discrimination, in matters of this nature.

Now sir, we will take the question of lighthouses and signal stations. I find that for last year there was a vote of $185,854.65 and for the years 1920 and 1921 a vote of $210,771.39, an increase, mark you, of only $24,916.00. Now, what can be done with that increase in the establishment of lighthouses and signal stations along this coast. If the estimate I am reading is not correct, I would like to be told so, and be given an explanation. I am taking the figures laid down here, but the members on the other side of the House are looking at me, as much as to say that cannot be. This increase would not buy one light. Where is the money coming from to establish lighthouses that are being called for every day? Where is the money coming from to establish life saving stations? Where is the money coming from to provide whistling buoys, great aids to navigation, which you will see anywhere but in this country, but we are one hundred years behind the times? Go along the Cape Breton shore and down the coasts of Nova Scotia, coast of Maine, in the Irish Sea, the English Channel, the Bay of Biscay, and not away out in the ocean but along the coast you will see these whistling buoys, bell buoys and automatic whistling and light buoys and all kinds of aids to navigation. If some of the money that we have squandered in the past few years on foolish votes were spent in equipping a light saving station near Cape Race perhaps many of the people lost on the Florizel would be alive to-day. I went through that experience and I know what I am talking about, and I made up my mind then that at every opportunity that offered I would do my utmost to see that more aids to navigation be furnished. What we want and what I think we will get from what the Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries stated is another Directional Wireless Station, there is one now at Cape Race. If we had one at Cape Chapau Rouge in Placentia Bay or one at Signal Hill or Cape Spear there is no reason why we should have any more tragedies, provided steamers exercised due caution, and were equipped with wireless. It is one of the greatest inventions of the age, and we should not hesitate to allocate the necessary money for that station, either at Cape Spear, Signall Hill or elsewhere.

Next we come to the vote for roads and bridges. I find that in 1919 and 1920 $197,714.50 was voted, and for 1920 and 1921 the vote is $221,606.50, an increase for roads on our main line of $23,892.10, a very small increase sir, when you consider that wages has gone up 300%, and at the time when we could get men to work for eighty cents a day, the main line grant was not sufficient to keep the roads in repair, not to talk of extending them. What roads are in my district are nothing better than cow-paths. Then again, look at the cost of lumber for bridges, hardware, nails, etc. The roads are no good now and they will go down and get worse unless we can give more financial assistanee to local roads and our main lines than is provided for in the estimates before us now.

I see sir, that in 1919 and 1920 the amount voted for Contingencies was ten thousand dollars, and for 1920 and 1921 the amount voted is fifty thousand dollars. There will have to be some explanation for that increase.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—While there was only ten thousand dollars voted for Contingencies last year, there was one hundred and fifty or sixty thousand spent.

MR. SULLIVAN:—I regret to hear that sir, but I am sure that the Minister will appreciate that this isall I have to go by, I mean the estimates tabled by the Hon. Minister of Finance, and I notice that last year there was ten thousand voted and this year there is fifty thousand dollars voted. Surely I am not out of order in asking for an explanation of this big increase.

It is a most interesting study going down through these estimates. We find a little further on another vote for additional estimates. We had the same vote last year. I am not blaming you for putting it under the same heading. For 1919 and 1920 the vote was seventy-nine thousand three hundred dollars. This year in keeping with all the other increases it is one hundred and twenty-six thousand six hundred dollars, an increase of forty-three thousand six hundred dollars. This, sir, is like the contingency account, and when the proper time comes I want an explanation of why that big increase is voted for additional estimates this year. We can vote forty-three thousand three hundred dollars for this purpose and only the small sum of fourteen or fifteen thousand dollars for the relief of widows and orphans, :t does not seem quite fair does it?

Another vote here I would like an explanation of from the Prime Minister is the vote for pensions of soldiers and sailors. In 1919 and 1920 this vote was six hundred and fifty-six thousand dollars. This year it is down to five hundred and two thousand five hundred dollars, a reduction of one hundred and forty-three thousand dollars. I would like to know why it is. Is it that the men who drew pensions last year have died, or are not receiving them any longer or what other reason is there for this reduction?

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—I couldn't tell the hon. gentleman.

MR. SULLIVAN:—I presume that the Hon. the Prime Minister will be able to explain the matter. I wish he were here now, and I would ask him. I expect he will be here when the Bay de Verde election is over. For 1920-21 there is an increase in civil government of $289,643. I want you outport members on the Government side to remember those figures. I know that salaries have gone up 20%, but we also know that a lot of salaries have been increased 100%.

MR. SAMSON:—You cannot say that they lost time.

MR. HIGGINS:—You can say that you like $1000 better than $200.

MR. SULLIVAN:—Here is something interesting to us all. For 1919-20 it took for Legislation $36,325.25; this year $77,358.12, a nincrease of $38,849.25. This is not altogether made up of salaries to members of the House, but a part of it, and I do not see why members of this House should not be given a decent sessional pay, beacuse I consider any man who represents an outport district and has to come in to St. John's earns it and should be entitled to it. But are we justified in voting ourselves first? I want the money, perhaps, as much as any man in this House, but I ask myself that question, in view of the condition of things in this country, and the other demands upon the Government. Are we justified in voting that big increase and others in the Government receiving only 20% of an increase and some others getting no increase at all? That is the question for this House to decide and this House should not be afraid to face the burden and decide it. There are some increases and some decreases made. I made a note of them as they struck me. For instance the messenger in the Public Works Department. He had a salary of $885.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—That is not his salary.

MR. SULLIVAN:—I am not a thought-reader. I am going by what is in the estimates. On Page 11 the salary of the messenger was down last year for $885. I thought he was reduced $100, but now I see he is reduced $185 and is to get $700 this year. When the vote for this department is being discussed in Committee I shall ask for an explanation as to why this man was cut, when, according to the Commissioners report, there was a general increase owing to the high cost of living.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Who is this man?

MR. SULLIVAN:—I could not tell you.

MR. HIGGINS:—Some one told me that this man would not go to Bay de Verde for the Government. I understand that that is the reason.

MR. SULLIVAN:—In those estimates I have not seen any provision made for increased coastal service and I am afraid that there is no provision made for any additional coastal contracts or no provision made for our transportation problem. I do not think that there will be very much left to attend to these matters out of our nine millions of dollars of revenue, even if we do have a banner year next year.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—We will have more revenue than that.

MR. SULLIVAN:—I am glad to hear that statement, but I really cannot become reconciled with it, in view of the present high cost of living. I would like to know if the Budget will disclose any heavier taxation.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSOMS:—Reduction.

MR. SULLIVAN:—Well, if reduction, then you cannot get more than nine millions of dollars of revenue. You have got to tax some one if you anticipate a revenue of nine millions that is a certainty. There is another matter that I would like to refer to and that is the unfairness of those increases. I see that the President of the Upper House is to get $500, poor man, he needs it. Another poor man up there in that Chamber is the Leader of the Government, who also is booked for $500. Now then I ask you why does not the Speaker of this House get an increase from $750; the Chairman of Committees, the clerks, the solicitor, the pages, the door-keepers and the Sergeant-at-Arms. Does not the high cost of living bear heavily on their shoulders? The amount voted for the printing of debates in the Upper House last year was $900; this year it is $1300, a nice increase. But that is not the main point. Last year we voted $2200 for the publishing of debates; this year there is an increase of $400. The paper that they are printed on is sold at pre-war prices and the labour in the handling of that paper is not gone up enough to warrant such an increase. I know that the prices of telephones and stationery will astound some of the members of the late administration. For the House of Assembly it is $1500 this year; last year it was exactly half that amount. I am sure when the explanation is forthcoming that it will make interesting reading. Now if you will look at page seven, under the head of Civil Government, take the Colonial Secretary's Department and notice what the salary of the third clerk is. I give you my word of honour I do not know who that gentleman is. Last year he had $1260 and this year he is to receive $1200, a substantial increase, no doubt. I am very sorry that the Colonial Secretary is not here so as we could get an explanation of that. These are questions that I would like to see cleared up. There seems to have been a wave struck the Colonial Secretary's Department. I find that the fourth clerk last year got $900; this year he is down for $750.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—This is on account of Mr. Butt having been transferred to the Department of Education to keep the accounts there.

MR. HIGGINS:—A good man. This is the foundation of this department, I presume.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—There is a little credit due us. There is a re-arrangement in the Colonial Secretary's office. There was really no fourth clerk in that department last year.

MR. SULLIVAN:—I regret that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries is not here so as I could deal with the vote for that department. There is a new vote for a herring inspector. I find that two typewriters were put in there at $720 each. Provision is also made for a superintendent of marine construction at a salary of $1500. This is a new vote. I see that the Superintendent of Fisheries is to get $5000. Well the Minister told us about that vote when we were discussing the standardization of fish bill. I understand that the fees coming out of the tax on exportation of fish will help to pay that salary. These are only some of the figures for that Department. Some of them have gone up considerably more than we were led to believe. Take the Department of the Government Engineer. I presume that department comes under the Colonial Secretary's Department. I notice that the position of masonry superintendent is down for $1620. I would like to ask what that means.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—We did not appoint any masonry superintendent.

MR. SULLIVAN:—We ought to make a vote for it. What is tabled in this House is the only information we are supposed to have. There is no masonry superintendent appointed, we are told, although the vote for one is here as $1200. Then again there is a new vote for rolling stock inspector. I notice under the heading of Assessor's Department, a travelling auditor appointed with $1800 salary and no doubt travelling expenses are included somewhere also.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—That was made by the late Government.

MR. SULLIVAN:—I am not supposed to know.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Sure the hon. member read it last year.

MR. SULLIVAN:—I was not in the country when the House was in session last year. It is quite simple to cut in and say that this vote was there last year, but not give us a copy of Supplemental Supply, so as we can see where we are.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on Supply.

Mr. Speaker left the chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress and asked leave to sit again on to-morrow.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on to-morrow.

And it now being past twelve of the clock, midnight.

The House adjourned until this afternoon at three of the clock.

SATURDAY, June 19th, 1920.

The House met pursuant to adjournment.

HON. MINISTER OF EDUCATION:—Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present a petition from the district of Harbor Grace asking that the sum of $800.00 be granted them for the replacement of a bridge which has recently fallen down.

Committee of the Whole on Supply.

MR. SULLIVAN:—Mr. Chairman, when the House adjourned this morning I was dealing with some new salaries that the House had been asked to vote. I had placed the matter squarely and fairly before the Opposition and Government. I do not wish to debate any longer under the present existing conditions. Practically every head of departments with the exception of the Minister of Justice, the Minister of Finance and the Minister of Education is absent from this House. We have absent to-day the Prime Minister and Colonial Secretary who is also taking the place of the Minister of Militia under whose department we are asked to vote the sum of five or six thousand dollars for pensions. We have also absent the Minister of Marine and Fisheries under whose department we are also asked to vote a very large increase. We have also absent the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs whose department also calls for a large increase and some new votes for salaries that the Minister of Finance has told us he is not prepared to explain. What the votes were required for he was not able to explain except in so far as his own department was concerned. I think, sir, that under these circumstances it would be only right and decent to adjourn the debate on these estimates until such time as the ministers who are absent are able to come here and tell us why we are asked to vote the different sums for their departments. So far as it appears at present they cannot come here until after the Bay de Verde election. Let us get together right now and adjourn this House and let whoever wants to go to Bay de Verde go. While speaking last night I didn't anticipate that we would be called here to-day and find the same ministers who were absent then would be absent to-day from this House. So far it is not likely that any of these Cabinet Ministers will be here until next week and it is time for us who are not Cabinet Ministers on both sides of this House to protest against this obstruction. They claim that we are obstructionists but we have done nothing in the way of obstruction since the opening week of the House. We are not sent here to be dummies and I want the members of this House to understand that we don't intend to be. If the business of this House is going to be carried on in the slipshod way that it has been carried on in the past few weeks then there is not much likelihood of closing up for some time. If the men on the other side of the House who are present to-day have any influence with the Government they should use it to see that these ministers come here. The Minister of Finance should be able to tell us all about these estimates. I think he has made a great mistake in not making some explanation of the estimates on presenting them. They are the only facts we have to go on. We don't know what supplementary supply was last year. I was told last night that I should know, but it is not my fault if I did not as I was not in the country. How do I know what such and such a man received last year? I would be very glad if some member on the other side of the House would propose that we adjourn until the cabinet ministers have returned.

That is not good enough. People have waited here two weeks and have had to go home at the end of that time. Mr. Walsh stated, and I presume that he had good authority, that there are at least eight hundred people waiting for admission to the General Hospital. If this statement can be substantiated, then sir, I say that it is time for this House to wake up, and it is time for this Government to wake up, and provide some facilities for treating the sick people of the country. Mr. Walsh jus ttells me that there is a boy here named Walters from Boat Hr., Placentia Bay, who has been waiting three or four weeks for admission to the General Hospital. Now then how can we overcome this congestion. There are one or two ways by which this congestion can be overcome. We all recognize the fact that there is only one hospital in the country outside of a small one in Grand Falls. Well, then surely the Government knows this as well as I do. They know that this congestion is getting worse year after year. Why did not the Government in bringing in the Estimates make some provision for this in a small way at least by voting sums of money for outport hospitals in the capitals of the principal districts. That would relieve the congestion to a large extent. Another thing that I hear criticised from time to time is that there is no charge made in the General Hospital for treatment, and as a result of that, when a patient gets in there, it is impossible to get him out of it. Now, sir, an arrangement should be arrived at whereby a patient who is able to should be made pay for the treatment he has received. There are a good many people in the city to-day and many in the outports who would be glad to pay for the attention they receive in hospital, but according to the way things are now they are not allowed to pay anything for treatment at the General Hospital. This is not business! It is not sensible I know that there are lots of worthy people who are not in a position to pay for the tattendance they receive, but that is where the Government should step in. The hospital should receive payment directly either form the individual or from the State, and until some plan along these lines is introduced, and we have those outport hospitals established, we will have the same conditions at the General Hospital as we have to-day. How many people in St. John's to-day, people who are well off or in the outports would be glad to go down and take a private room, if they could get one. They have two or three private rooms down there, and if you book one two years ahead, you might be able to get in. Why not build a wing on to the hospital with private rooms, and charge people who can pay it five or six dollars a day, as they do in other countries. If you want to make a poorhouse of the hospital go ahead as you are doing, but if you want to make people who go there feel independent, introduce a system that will enable them to pay for the treatment they receive there. So much for that. I trust, sir, that the few remarks I have made here will bear fruit, and that the Executive Government will exert themselves to formulate a system along the lines I have suggested.

Now we come to the Postal Telegraph vote. All through the campaign I was a great advocate of the extension of the telegraph or telephone system. I might say that I have a preference for the telephone. My contention is that we should have central telegraph office and telephone feeding lines from all the offices around our districts, because you know, and I know, that although we have established telegraph offices all around the country that there is not the slightest chance of many of these becoming a paying proposition, but if the telephone system was inaugurated and connections were made with a central telegraph office, or with a post office, that we would be able to reduce considerably our salary vote for the outports of the whole country. We could use the slot system. I am aware that the salaries operators have been receiving for a number of years have been very small. Even in the old days when living was cheap they could barely exist upon them, and that there is a very good reason for the increases that have been made to officials of the Postal Telegraph Department all over the country, but I do not consider that they have been made in the proper way. They have not all been made on merit, and before I close here this evening I hope to show instances of increases that have been made to officials in this department that should not have been made, and also to point out some cases where increases should have been given and have not been given. Now sir, I come to the vote in the estimates for the General Post Office. Last year we were asked to vote $16,330.62 and this year an increase of $16,728.00 under this head. I would like to ask the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs for an explanation, I would like to ask him why the vote asked is not considerably more, because it is only a small increase under the circumstances of six or seven thousand dollars. If the Minister is not here to give a reply to the question, then is there any gentleman on the other side of the House prepared to answer my question. Perhaps the Minister of Finance might be able to explain?

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—The only thing I can tell you is that was all was asked for.

MR. SULLIVAN:—You must agree with me, sir, that it is a most unsatisfactory state of affairs for us to be asked to pass these estimates without getting a reasonable explanation of them.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—That is the only explanation I can give you.

MR. SULLIVAN:—There must be some explanation. Mr. Chairman, I would ask the Minister of Finance to move that the Committee rise and report progress and ask leave to sit again at alater date.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—We have not come to the Postal Telegraph vote yet in the estimates, and when we do, the Minister will be here to answer any questions put to him. Does the hon. member propose to make any further remarks on the matter?

MR. SULLIVAN:—I have considerably more to say yet.

MR. MacDONNELL:—I think that the hon. member asked the Hon. the Minister of Finance to raise the Committee.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—The Minister of Finance and Customs won't raise the Committee.

MR. MacDONNELL:—I am glad to see the Hon. the Minister of Justice taking charge in this House. Personally I think he should have had charge long ago, and I am glad to see that he is coming into his own at last.

MR. SULLIVAN:—Well, then so much for that vote. No explanation. Next we come to the vote for St. John's offices. Last year the vote was $38,591.52. This year we are asked to vote $56,692.40, an increase of $16,980.88. I presume that that is to be made up in increased salaries to officials in offices in St. John's. No doubt those increases are deserved, but are they allocated properly? Are they allocated on merit, or is the amount allocated regulated by the amount of pull the man may have? I am not making this charge. I am asking for information. As the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs is absent from the House I will have to wait for an answer and it will only mean repeating the whole thing at a later date.

The next item is Travelling Post Offices. Last year this House was asked to vote $38,157.91 for this purpose. This year we are asked to vote $54,-888.00, or an increase this year over last year for Travelling Post Offices of $16,731.91. This seems to be a large increase for Travelling Post Offices. There are not so many in the country. There are probably six on the railroad and six or eight on steamers. This appears to be an increase of $1500.00 for each Travelling Post Office. I don't for a moment think that the Executive Government would pass so substantial an increase as this, but what is one to believe? Here we are asked to vote an increase of nearly seventeen thousand dollars for Travelling Post Offices, and there is no explanation given. In going down through the estimates, under the heading of rents, I find that rent for Postal Telegraph Department, have gone up from five to seven thousand dollars annually. This will require some explanation. I do not know whether or not the General Post Office is built on Crown Lands or leasehold land, if the latter we should have a 99 years lease of it; but if this increased two thousand dollars does not apply to the G. P.O. building, I would like to know for what rent it is required to meet. Coming down the list under postal contingencies I find, sir, that this grant has been increased from $25,000 last year to $40,000 this year. Surely, sir, when we are asked to vote an extra $15,000 for contingencies we should receive some explanation for it. I say that it is an absurdity to dispose of the estimates without the necessary information and explanations at our disposal. I repeat that it is bad taste, to say the least of it, for Ministers and Heads of Departments who are asking for exorbitant increases in their respective salaries that they should not be here to give us the reasonable information which we ask and which the country desires to know. Speaking of uniforms, surely, sir, the cost of uniforms have not increased 100% since last session. It is quite possible that they have increased during the war to that extent. Last year this House voted $4,000 for uniforms for the Postal Departments. This year we are asked to vote $8,000. With the crying needs throughout the country to-day and such calls from old worn out fishermen and from the dependents of those who went Overseas and fought for us, I think that we are quite within our rights in asking for the fullest information possible in connection with these estimates. We now come to another very interesting topic, that of steam subsidies. Last year this House voted $605,078.25; this year we are asked to vote $715,378.25, an increase of $110,300.00. We would like to know where that substantial increase is going to be spent. I have particulars of some of the increases. I might say that the districts I represent is badly in need of further coastal facilities and I contend that if we are going to vote this big sum for coastal subsidies, that I want my share for the district of Placentia and St. Mary's. I will show this House where part of this vote is going to be diverted and then members can judge for themselves if their districts are getting a square deal. Under the heading of General Maintenance I find a big increase and I would like an explanation as to what this big increase is asked for. Last year there was voted $206,065.91; this year $301,-091.15, an increase for maintenance alone of $95,025.24. After all, there is nothing very unreasonable in asking why this large increase is required. Possibly there may be some good explanation. If there is I will be glad to receive it and my colleagues and the other members on this side of the House will be glad to receive it. Under the heading, Postal Telegraphs, construction and repairs to main line; last year $22,000 was voted; this year we are asked to vote exactly the same amount. I would like to know what is the explanation for this. We all know that the cost of construction must have gone up and we know that the cost of telegraph poles and wires cost considerably more to-day than they did and if those items have gone up in accordance with others, it is only right and proper for this House to increase last year's vote proportionately. Now is the time to have that vote properly dealt with and not have it brought in under contingencies. I understand that it is the intention of the Government to bring in one vote covering everything that is required. Last year the vote for Marconi royalties $4,637; this year we are asked to increase that vote to $20,000. I move that the Committee rise and report progress and ask leave to sit again.

MR. HIGGINS:—I understood that the main idea of sitting this afternoon was to meet the Governor.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—If Mr. Sullivan is finished we will adjourn. I understood he would finish by five o'clock.

MR. HIGGINS:—I do not think that Mr. Sullivan will be finished at that hour.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Well then Mr. Sullivan may go on until five o'clock.

MR. SULLIVAN:—I am now, sir, discussing the Marconi royalties. Last year the vote asked for under this heading was four thousand six hundred and thirty-seven dollars. This year it has been increased to two thousand dollars, an increase of four hundred and and fifty per cent. The thing may be all right but on the face of it it does not look right and surely there must be some good reason, some explanation why this vote is asked for. I regret that the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs is not here in his seat to-day to answer these questions and give us the information which is ours by right. Now sir, I come a little further down and find a very large amount asked for. We are asked here to vote under the heading of the Anglo-American tax the sum of seventy thousand dollars. I can see no vote in last year's estimates of a similar nature. Why is this seventy thousand dollars voted? Might I ask the Minister of Finance for the information?

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—What is the use of giving you an explanation when you will not accept it?

MR. SULLIVAN:—I will accept it.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—You have not accepted any information I have given you.

MR. SULLIVAN:—You cannot say that. When have I doubted your veracity?

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—This amounte is voted to pay the Anglo-American Company for last year's bill for sending through our messages. We did not then have the line open at Port aux Basques.

MR. SULLIVAN:—Well that is very satisfactory. This amount of seventy thousand was put in the estimates without an explanation and it is not strange to ask why it is voted. Well, sir, some of the members of the Government were not in here when I referred to this vote of seventy thousand dollars which we are asked to vote for the Anglo-American cable tax and some of them may be in the same position as I was. They probably knew why this amount was voted or selse they would have been in here to receive the information of the Finance Minister. Under the heading Wireless Telegraph Construction we are asked to vote the sum of ten thousand dollars. I have nothing to say against that because I am an advocate for establishing around our coast extra wireless stations and small wireless stations to connect up the islands where it is not feasible to lay a cable. But we should know where and how this ten thousand dollars are going to be spent. I would like to know if any part of that amount is to be used in connecting up the island of Oderin and Flat Islands with the mainland in the district of Burin because after all it is only reasonable for the members for the district to like to have their share of the givings out for the district they represent. Otherwise they are not doing their duty to their constituents. When we go back for re-election whenever that will be, they will not be able to say that the present members for Placentia and St. Mary's did not get their share or did not look for their fair share of what was going for the district. And it is my policy since elected and I intend to keep it up as long as I represent Placentia and St. Mary's on the floors of this House. Now, sir, I am going to deal briefly with some increases which have been made under the heading of Civil Government. As I have been discussing the Department of Posts and Telegraphs I might continue on and deal with the officials there. I am saying that those increases that have been voted are excessive or otherwise. What I would like to know and have is an explanation of those increases. With the high cost of living as it is I do not fear for one moment that there is any danger of this Government or any other Government giving the officials of the civil service more than is absolutely necessary. And all they will be given under the present living conditions will be only enough to exist upon but what by the way is the reason for those increases.

We are told that the late Government appointed a Commission to recommend certain increases in the Civil Service. That may be so or not. I have been told that the late Government appointed a commission to enquire into and report upon the salaries of the civil servants with a view to increasing some if it was found that they were deserving of increases. That statement which I have is made by me in all sincerity. I never saw the copy handed the Commissioners. I have been told that the late Government approved of a twenty per cent increase all round in the civil service. If that be so I am at a loss to understand why that twenty per cent did not go into effect. It has gone into effect according to the estimates in some cases. In other cases the increases range from seventy per cent to one hundred per cent. Is the late Government responsible for those increases which I have referred to. If they are I do not want to take any of the blame for them. Every member of the civil service who merits promotion should get it. And as I said last night we will never have a satisfactory civil service until such time that one cannot enter it but on the basis of competitive examination. Now for the heading Superintendent of the Money Order Office. The vote last year was fifteen hundred dollars and this year it is twenty-one hundred and sixty. That is considerably more than twenty per cent increase. I presume there is some good reason or that amount would not be there. Why sir, this man is getting an increase of six hundred and sixty dollars.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—That is not correct.

MR. SULLIVAN:—May I ask for an explanation?

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—

Last year when the estimates were tabled by the then Minister of Finance the gentleman referred to by the honourable member for Placentia was stipulated to receive fifteen hundred dollars. The Commission appointed by the late Government to enquire into the salaries during the summer made certain recommendations for increases. In 1920 there were increases given by the Government as follows: one thousand dollars, thirty per cent; two thousand dollars, twenty per cent increase and three thousand dollars fifteen per cent increase. It was assumed that a certain number of individuals for whom recommendations for increases were made by the Commission would not receive it until after the general election. There was a certain part of the service which forced the hands of the Government to do so before they intended and these people were the telegraph operators of the country. The gentleman to whom the honourable member referred received under last year's estimates a salary of fifteen hundred dollars and previous to our taking over the Government he received the twenty per cent increase which brought his salary up to eighteen hundred dollars. So under the present estimates he has received an increase of three hundred and sixty dollars instead of six hundred and sixty.

MR. SULLIVAN:—Was that increase made after the Commission reported?

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—I may say that the increase was granted after the Commission reported to them. Those were the ones who were doing the work and as you say they are entitled to it.

MR. SULLIVAN:—I now come to first clerk of the Money Order Office. He was voted last year twelve hundred and sixty dollars. This year he is down for seventeen hundred and twenty-eight dollars. If this clerk is entitled to it because of his work that is satisfactory to me. I would like to ask the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs why is it that the postmasters in the outports only got an increase of twenty per cent? What is the explanation of that? Have we not as good officials in the outports as in the city? I suppose they have no friends on the other side and they are forgotten about. People are not treated alike, and if you haven't the pull and if you don't get out and fight and shout for the Government, you are going to be left behind, and that's what's happening to-day. Here we find the outport postmasters and postmistresses getting an increase of 20%. Now what is 20% added to the miserable pittances they received before. Again take the couriers, I have gone thru the whole list and I have not been able to find a single increase for a courier. Does not the high cost of living lean as hard on these people as on the heads of departments; you are making fish of one and flesh of another. I notice that steam subsidies have been increased but there is no provision for adequate service in Placentia and St. Mary's District. Bay of Islands is provided for then why not Placentia and St. Mary's, what is the explanation? Like many of the other questions asked here, it is unanswerable. The subsidy for Bell Island last year was $3400, this year we are asked to vote $6000. In connection with steam subsidies, I can see where a big slice is going. There was no vote last year for Fogo District, this year we are asked to vote $40,000. Labrador North gets a vote of $30,000, surely that cannot be right? And the North East Coast which had $45,000 last year now gets $50,000. The vote for the South and West Coasts last year was $38,000, this year we are asked to increase it to $50,000. I would like to know how that extra $12,000 is going to be spent.

Fortune Bay District had $20,000, this year the vote is $40,000, and so we have Fogo, Fortune Bay, Labrador North, the N. E. Coast and parts of the South and West Coast with big increases in their subsidies, and I repeat there is not vote for Placentia and St. Mary's. This is not playing the game. We need more bay and coastal boats on that big district and if there are going to be givings out they are as much entitled to it as any other district. I am sorry the Minister responsible for the vote is not in the House because I consider that St. Mary's Bay is cut off from every service. There is the Portia, it is true, but the western part of the bay is entirely cut off from everything and I would like to see something done to remedy this. We see a small steamer like the Argyle placed on Placentia Bay but she is not able to cope with the traffic there and another steamer is required but so far nothing has been done and altho these people contribute their share to the revenues the Government turns a deaf ear to their requests and they derive no benefit from the votes of money now asked for, part of which comes out of their pockets. Now sir, another matter that I will deal with is the Telegraph vote. The central staff at St. John's had $50,031.50. This year we are asked to vote an increase of $21,-848.60, making a total of $71,373.10. The outport operators have also got a considerable increase but I shall only refer to some of them. These increases are not carried out in an equitable way, some offices have been given large increases while others get none, and the same thing applies to the messengers. Now what is the explanation for this? Why are not all treated alike? In looking over the list the first office that takes my eye is Port au Port where the lime quarries are situated. The vote for that office last year was $405, this year it is $480, an increase of practically 20%.

Now take the next one, Anderson's Cove,, where it is I don't know, but last year the vote was $225, this year it is $420, an increase of $195. Badger office last year was $585, this year it is 749.60, an increase of $176.-60. Bay Bulls last year was $300, now it is $420, an increase of $120. Bay de Verde last year was $187.50, not very much you will admit for anyone to exist on but now it is $420, an increase of $232.50. Now why is this so, why this descrimination? Some offices get an increase of $120, others get $315, and so on. Bell Island for example was $885 last year, now it is $1200. For the life of me I cannot see on what basis these increases are made up.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—The explanation is that as a result of the telegraphers' strike last year no operator was to be paid less than $420.

MR. SULLIVAN:—That explanation isquite satisfactory, but why not the messengers get a share of the rise? I see here that the messenger at Bell Island got $147 last year and this year the vote is the same. Now take the operator at Black Head, last year the vote was $295, this year it is $420, that is alright. For Bonne Bay the vote last year was $691.80, this year it is $1200, an increase of $608.20; I suppose there is an explanation for that, tho the strike cannot be responsible for it. Perhaps the Minister of Finance can give me an explanation?

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—I cannot.

MR. SULLIVAN:—I am sure I cannot understand it.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—You have my sympathy.

MR. SULLIVAN:—Cape Race operator last year got $405, this year the vote is $540, a little over 20% increase. Now why should not a man or a woman at a place like Cape Race, a lonely headland, get a decent salary. Catalina vote was $450 last year, this year it is $840, an increase of $300; got the pull evidently. Change Islds. is even worse, the vote for that office last year was $337, this year it is $840, a nincrease of $503. Don't you think, sir, we are justified in asking why these increases are made. Why should this man get such an increase while another in some office where there is double the work gets none? Simply because the other man happens to be on the wrong side of politics he gets the increase. Now we come to the office at Come By Chance, in the District of Placentia and St. Mary's. The operator there is a Trinity Bay man. The lady who was in that office was discharged to make room for him, he is a returned soldier. The lady in question belongs to the district and her father was line repairer for twenty years, but no sooner was the present Government returned to power than she was discharged. However that is not the point I want to draw attention to. The vote for this office last year was $691.80 and it is the same this year. Why not increase this man's salary? It is a repeating station and the man is a returned soldier. I wish someone on the other side, in the absence of the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs would give me an explanation of this. I would like to ask the hon. member for Fortune and the hon. member for Burin, Mr. Foote, to see that this man's salary is increased proportionately with others.

MR. MacDONNELL:—Mr. Chairman, I said last night that we might expect some comment from The Star as proof of what was going to happen to-day we are sandbagged and bludgeoned in this Government newspaper. The article I refer to was written by John T. Meaney, the man who was sandbagged out of the district which he was contesting. This man has never stopped a chance to jump on me and there is no question about it that as long as we submit to this journalistic thuggery we are going to get it. Already one member of The Star has been driven out of this House and has never come here since as a reporter. This man was Mr. English. We are asked here to give our best co-operation for the passage of bills and there is sent here to-day journalistic assassins of this type to criticise. Take this article in The Star of yesterday. It starts with the heading in bold black type "Cashin Cuts Loose." Fair comment indeed sir. There are those who are writing these articles who should have been cut long ago and I say cut advisedly, it would have been better for the morality of the country. "Leader of the Opposition in Vulgar Abuse and Profanity." This sir, is a reflection upon Mr. Hibbs. This House has the highest regard for Mr. Hibbs as Chairman and absolute belief in his fairness and either the statement that profanity was permitted in this House is true or it is false. Are we in this House to withhold the debates. Because Mr. Halfyard received an S.O.S. call and went to Bay de Verde and because Mr. Coaker is at the present time making arrangements so that he can be in Bay de Verde on Monday must we refrain from debate. The Government is held responsible for this cowardly attack of literary assassins sent to this House for no other purpose than to sandbag their opponents. I know what other members of this House think about it. It has no effect upon me. We can expect to receive nothing better from the hands of such men and every word of condemnation from them is a word of praise. Mudslinging from such men has no effect upon us and that kind of newspaper stuff will not prevent me from giving my honest and candid opinion. I put it to the chairman yesterday whether anything said was unfair.

Sir Michael Cashin gave notice of question.

MR. MOORE:—In seconding the motion for adjournment I will not delay the adjournment of the House more than a minute as I have a matter that I want to bring to the notice of the Government. Yesterday I called down at the Military Hospital where a nephew of mine is. He was operated on on the 13th April, 1918, and is suffering from wounds received in France in 1916. I ask Mr. Small, the gallant member for Burgeo and LaPoile, to drop down at that hospital this evening and see it. It is nothing but a sink of dirt and the food they get is not fit to eat. I am referring to the hospital down at the Grenfell Institute. On enquiring as to the condition of the food I found that the doctors there can't help it, the soup they get is cold and unfit to drink. There's one poor chap there who asked Mr. Sullivan to have me call in there and see him. That chap has been in hospital for two years and he has a wife and child. They are living in a house where they have to pay ten dollars per month out if his allowance of $30.00. He asked me to have him taken out of the place. The patients there are cold and shivering. The heat is off and the attendants down there say the manager Mr. Jones went off to England and didn't leave any orders to have a fire. The floors and walls are black and filthy and dirty, this is not right treatment and the Minister of Militia should look after it.

Mr. Walsh gave notice of question.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the Bills sent up entitled respectively—"An Act Respecting Licenses to Cut Hard Woods" and, "An Act to amend The St. John's Pilotage Act" without amendment.

The House then adjourned till three of the clock on to-morrow.

TUESDAY, June 22nd, 1920.

The house met at three of the clock in the afternoon, pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. Walsh asked Hon. the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs to place on the table of the House a copy of the original report of Mr. Knight the Commissioner appointed by the Government in 1916-17 to inquire into matters in connection with the department of Postal Telegraphs.

MR. HIGGINS:—In the absence of Mr. Walsh I ask that this be held over.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—This report has already been tabled.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Asked the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries if Lt.-Col. Bernard is appointed Trade Comissioner for Newfoundland outide the Colony, and if so where and at what salary.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—I ask that that stand over.

HON. SIR M. P. CASHIN:—You retain it on the Order Paper?

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Yes.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on Supply.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

MR. SULLIVAN:—Mr. Chairman, when this House adjourned on Saturday I was dealing with new salaries and increases far in excess of what the supposed big increases in the civil service and far in excess of what the Commission is supposed to have recommended. I will deal to-day in the finish with the interest on the public debt. I notice that last year this House was asked to vote $2,088,224.81, and this year we are asked to vote $2,201,212.01, an increase on intercharges of $112,887.20. a very large increase indeed when you consider the present outlook of conditions in this country. This is not all; there are other large Supplementary estimates and contingencies to be brought in at a later date. In dealing, Sir, with some of the increases I especialy mentioned the case of the messenger at the Public Works Office. I did not know the name of the man in question the last time I refered to it but since then I learned that he was Mr. Thos. Lockyer. I thought messengers only received $885.00 and that this was decreased to $700.00, and I think that this is bad enough when you consider the high cost of living today, but now that I find that his salary has been cut down from $1100 to $700 I say that he is being persecuted. If he is no good and not worth the money get rid of him, but if he is good pay him. He is no friend of mine but I believe in giving every man in the Civil Service a square deal, and, if you are going to keep them there, don't do it on a pittance.

Now we come to the big crowd—the select crowd—the crowd with the pull. The first name on the list is His Excelency the Governor. His salary has been increased from $14,375.-00 with expenses to $15,000.00 and increased expense vote as well I expect.

The Prime Minister's salary last year was $3,450.00, this year it is $4,000.00. The Colonial Secretary, Minister of Justice, Minister of Finance, Minister of Agriculture, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and Minister of Public Works were receiving $2,400 last year. This year they are getting $4,000.00. A very nice increase indeed and very acceptable to the Hon. gentlemen I am sure.

Twenty per cent increase is allowed to Departmental Heads who were allowed forty-seven per cent already or sixty-seven per cent altogether. After all, there is an old saying that runs something like this: "A man should christen his own child first." Perhaps you are not to blame, but there is a day of reckoning coming and before the House meets again the financial condition of the country may have a different aspect about it than it has to-day. Anyway when this Government wil have to face the electorate again, if I am any judge, they will go back in fear and trembling when they have to give an account of their stewardship. I see that the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs is increased to $4,000. He is down for $3500 last year, although that Department was not in existence last year. Why this is so, I am at a loss to know. Again, we have the Minister of Education slated for a $4,000 sa. ary. N wonder the Minister looks over with a cheerful expression on his face. I would probably smile too, with that amount coming to me. And I see that the Auditor General is increased from $2400 to $3600. Well, if the other Deputy Heads are worthy of this rise, I presume he is. What strikes me again with reference to a remark I made on last Friday night is why is it that the Commissioner of Public Charities, Mr. O'Dwyer, has not received this increase to his salary, and why the discrimination? Getting back to the Public Works Depart ment over which Mr.Jennings has control, I find that we are asked to increase the vote practically 100 per cent for the members of the Board of Works. There are six men now on the Board of Works. Last year $750 was voted for the members; this year we are asked to vote double that amount. I think, Sir, that I was justified in my remarks a few days ago when I stated that the Executive Government must have taken a very rosy view of things indeed when they increased votes by 100 per cent. I will now step from the Public Works Department to the Agriculture and Mines Department. I see here a vote for $5000. It is a new vote, and that vote I endorse, because long ago we should have a thoroughly up-to-date and No. 1 Geologist, and I may say that we could not expect to get a No. 1 man to come here for less than that amount; and the quicker that this country votes a sufficient sum of money for a Geological Surveyor the better it will be for the country. If you are going to bring in a good man from outside for that position, get him, even at $10,000 a year, and I will support him. I find that the Government Analyst is increased from $2445 to $3800. I have nothing to say against that vote. I understand that Mr. Davies is a very good man, but I would like to know what he is doing away, and if he is away on Government business, as he is badly needed here now with a load of moonshine coming in every other day and a lot of liquor seizures. He should be here to test the stuff.

HON. MIN. OF JUSTICE.—You do not want an analyst to test that.

MR. HIGGINS.—We would all volunteer for that job.

MR. SULLIVAN.—In the Government Engineer's office I find that the chief cderk was drawing $997. For a chief clerk that was a small salary but I see that it is gone up this year to $1729. I consider that that man was badly paid in the first place, but you have no business to give him a jump like that in one shot. The Government Engineer I place in the same category as the Geologist. That man has spent fourteen years of his life in Newfoundland. He is a professional man and one who devotes all his time to the job. He is just the same as the Minister of Justice, any more than the Minister of Justice will probably be there for a year or two. The Minister devotes nearly all his time to his Department for $4,000 and makes but little outside. But this man Hall is an educated man and trained for his position, yet he is getting this year the same as last, though almost everybody else has got an increase. Why is it that you have not given an increase to the Government Engineer?

You have increased the chief clerk $700 but have left the head of the Department down for the same pay as he was receiving last year. I suppose the High Cost of Living does not touch him. I do not put the blame upon the Gvernment. Now we come to the Pension List. In these Estimates we have nothing to show that any vote was asked for them in the Estimates for 1920. I suppose some of these should be working and have therefore no right on the list. Last year the Pension vote was $25,190, this year you are asking us to vote $40,024, an increase of fourteen thousand dollars, more than the widows and orphans of this country are receiving. This is disgraceful. I do not know the intention of the Government but I am inclined to think they are trying to run her ashore. I wish to know what is to become of these amounts? I do not know and I do not care if the last Government pensioned them and if they did they are just as much to blame as you are. The first on the list is Chas. Way in the District of Fortune. The last time I saw him he was like a Gordon Highlander, he was fit for anything. I would like to know why he was pensioned. The next we come to is A. J. Pearce, Sub-Collector at Twillingate. These Estimates have been handed down in a disgraceful condition. I consider that they should be brought down in a manner that any one new to this House should be able to follow them and discuss them in a sensible manner, and not be interrupted repeatedly by the members on the other side of the House. I am tired of that. Now I come to John Trapnell of Harbor Graie. He is down for a pension of $902. I would like to know the reason of that?

MR. ARCHIBALD.—I may say that when Mr. Piccctt was a member of the late Government he was instrumental in removing Mr. Trapnell and putting a Church of England man in his place to capture the Church of England vote. The job was held by the Methodists for seventy-five years and it was taken from them by Mr. Sullivan's men to catih votes.

MR. HIGGINS.—I suppose in the absence of the other ministers you are the Minister of Religious affairs.

MR. ARCHIBALD:—Mr. Sullivan was criticising the Estimates and I only told him why it was done. I can bring correspondence here to bear out what I say.

MR. SULLIVAN.—If that is the case I denounce them as well as you. I but accept your word.

MR. HIGGINS.—If you move up to the Minister's Chair then we cannot accept your word.

MR. ARCHIBALD.—You cannot pull anything like that over Harbor Grace District.

MR. HIGGINS.—The trouble about you is that you have too much two in one in the back of your head and you cannot get it out. You have a long way to go. If you want to get us into a discussion like this you may be surprised at what will come out of it. You better eat some ice cream so as to cool off.

MR. SULLIVAN.—I am only taking them as they come along and have no reason to pick out Harbor Grace. Here we come across the name of Mr. Cornick. He is pensioned off at the amount of $1200. I am sorry the Minister of Marine and Fisheries is not here. The last time I saw him he was a fit man. Now here is the name of Captain Edward English. When he was pensioned he was a smart, healthy robust man. I do not know whether he wanted to be pensioned. I think he should not have been pensioned unless he wanted to be. The people should not be burdened with any extra pensions. Here is the name of John Kemp of Pushthrough. Why was he pensionel?

THE MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—He is in an advanced state of senility and is therefore prevented from doing work. He is seventy-five years old.

MR. SULLIVAN:—Now what about Wm. Thorburn of the Court House. He was messenger there. Why is he pensioned? All these are strange to me and I wish to get the information. May I ask the member for Burin why Joseph Mitchell is pensioned? The reason why I ask is because he may be a supporter of his. Here is the name of Mr. MacLoughlan; he is pensioned for fifteen hundred dollars and the man taking his place is receiving a substantial increase. He ought not to be pensioned unless he asked to be so.

THE HON. THE MINISTER OF FINANCE:—He asked me to use my influence to get him pensioned.

MR. SULLIVAN:—I take the honourable gentleman's word for it although I heard something to the contrary. Here is the name of E. Brocklehurst, messenger at the Colonial Secretary's Department. He is pensioned at the sum of $503. He was a smart man and healthy. What is the explanation of that? Here is the name of Wm. Prideaux. This man is pensioned at the rate of $1100, and the man taking his place is receiving an increased salary. Now we come to the name of Wm. O'Brien, Health Officer. He is pensioned off at $1000 per year. Why is it he is pensioned? He is a healthy man and I understood he was quite able to do his work. Did he ask to be pensioned or was he unable to do the work?

THE HON. THE MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—He is unable to do his work.

MR. SULLIVAN:—All right. I understand him to be a healthy man. Now, Sir, earlier in my remarks in criticising the Estimates I stated I thought that the Minister of Finance had allowed too little margin for the contingencies, and I am of the same opinion still. I will give my reasons presently. Last year we had the largest revenue on record, it was nine million dollars. Now I would like to ask the Government if they are justified in assuming that a similar revenue will be forthcoming in the years to come? I do not think they are justified under the existing conditions The revenue will depend entirely on the purchasing power of the people. Will the people have the same big purchasing capacities and will they purchase goods and provisions outside those which are absolutely required to warrant you in assuming that the country is likely to have a similar revenue as the one collected last year. We should bear in mind that the conditions last year were very extraordinary and we got immense prices for our staple industry. Then codfish fetched fifteen dollars per quintal, but we do not know anything about this year's catch. Last year cod oil rose to an equally good price and went over three hundred dollars per tun, and naturally the people then prosecuting the fishery were earning big money and consequently had a big purchasing power. Now we will take the catch of last year as being 1,800,000 quintals. Figure that out at fifteen dollars per quintal and we have twenty-seven million dollars, purchasing money handed over to the people of this country. On the other hand assuming that this year the catch will amount to the same thing but nevertheless it will hardly be as hundreds of the young men of the country have left in search of work. Supposing we get ten dollars for it. Now this year we will get eighteen million dollars against twenty-seven for last year resulting in a loss of nine million to the people and a possible loss to the revenue of about one million two hundred thousand dollars. Those Estimates brought down this year vote the sum of eight millions eight hundred and fifty six thousand six hundred and sixteen dollars. If this loss will ensue we are going to have a big deficit. I say that possibly we will not have the revenue of last year and that the revenue for 1920-21 will be something like six million. What will happen if that comes? I ask the Minister of Finance if he will be able to enlighten us if this happens and what he will be able to do to carry on this country.

If there is a loss in the purchasing power of the people, and I think that is as certain as the sun rises in the east and sets in the west. To get out of this difficulty there are several ways. In the first place more taxation would be required to increase the revenue if that were possible but I am of the opinion that the public today are staggering under the burdens they are already carrying. Why not impose a tax on the well-to-do and lighten up a bit on the poorer class. I can give one instance in the matter of coal. The poor man who can get only a quarter of a ton at a time has to pay just as much as the man who can put in 20 tons soft coal at one time. Why not put a tax on hard coal. That is only one instance. Another thing we should do is to protect our institutions from unfair competition. We have very great competition in the foreign markets, and it is up to us to protect our interests there. Put us on equal terms and the new rules regarding the regulations will put us in a position to put an article on the market that will compare favorably with the products of other countries. The South American market we have not yet touched. I mean the southern part of the South American market, and I hope the Government will lose no time in introducing our fish products to that big market. I do not intend taking up much time on the Estimates. As they come up for discussion I may have a word or two more to say on them.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Chairman, there are just a few words that I would like to say, and perhaps before we enter upon them it might be well to clear the atmosphere regarding the attitude toward the Estimates. I fear the Government members have a wrong idea of the duties of both sides of the House in considering the Estimates, and if a picture of the present sitting were taken, showing all the responsible Ministers absent, it would do no credit to the House in later years. The Estimates form the most serious business to be dealt with. A week ago today they were laid upon the table and with an air that something holy was brought up and should not be questioned by the Opposition. We dare not criticize them. The whole proposal was fired at us badly gotten together, badly printed, unbound, ill arranged, and unexplained, and we are asked to accept them because they were tabled by Mr. Brownrigg. I wish to deal with the principles involved, not with the individuals touched on. The Minister of Finance has to assume responsibility for the estimates, and it is an unwritten law that they are never considered until all the Ministers are present to explain, as is their duty, matters relating to their departments and things the Finance Minister does not know. Our decision not to pass them while no explanations were given was the same as would be made by the other side if in opposition. It would violate the principle of the ages to accept any one vote asked for, and it would be disgraceful to think of passing two million dollars extra taxation with only a bare quorum present. No member beyond the Executive has any knowledge of the votes, and still we are asked to accept them holus bolus. To accept explanations chipped in by private members and pass the estimates would show neglect of duty to the public. It is the most serious day of a session when the estimates are entered on, as it is the first movement that touches every individual throughout the country. On what is passed the budget will be framed, and according to what is decided now will the people be taxed. At first blush the Estimates may not be deemed so important by new members. Criticism is put down for mere opposition; but criticism is the duty of the Oposition. Sometimes it is the most ignorant remark that speaks the truth, and this is one of the times. Government members being under party rule can't be expected to stand against the votes, but it is up to those on the Opposition side to enquire into financial measures affecting the whole country. It is a sacred duty of the Opposition to the people, and if they neglect it they would certainly be false to their trust and be looked on as purchased slaves, and blamed for taking $1,000 for themselves, where previously we got only $250.00.

What the bringing in of these Estimates amounts to is that the Government comes in here like the directors of a company bringing before the shareholders their plans of management for the coming year and it is but right and reasonable to think that these proposals should have first been given careful consideration before being submitted, and I am safe in saying that not alone have these Estimates not been carefully prepared, and not what they ought to be, but in the very manner of introducing them the Government has laid down principles which are vicious, principles which should not be endorsed, principles which the more we think of them, the more they seem calculated to make people think that, well, if one crowd was bad the other is worse, and to confirm the thought that all is not gold that glitters and that things are not always what they seem. It is a pity that the Ministers of the different departments are not here this evening as there are certain personal references I wish to make, and which I think should be made in the hearing of these hon. gentlemen, but as these are not likely to be here till the Bay de Verde Election is over and Mr. Puddester returned, I shall defer them till then and therefore, I will only hit the high spots, as it were, and merely endeavor to make hon. members on the other side understand why, when we were so quiet before, we now become "violently antagonistic." All down through the year previous to the election certain people said it was time for a change and perhaps they were right. Personaly I believe that a change does some good on times; we were told to turn the grafters out, to arrest the boodlers and put them behind the bars and not alone were the grafters to be put in jail, but the procession was going to be headed by the Prime Minister himself and naturally the people thought that something good was to come out of the change and my hon. friend from Trinity, Mr. Guppy, and others like him realy believed that this was so. What a humiliating position for these men to find themselves in. They went out and told the people of their districts that the day of the grafters was done, that the day of the men who did nothing while they were in power but plunder was over, and that in their leader had been found the saviour of the country, and so these rank boodlers and that king pirate Woodford were turned out and good Mr. Jennings takes over that department and started cheese-paring and running things so finely that improvements are apparent every day. The Hon. Minister is so careful that I am told the splits are no longer bought by the bundle but he has had regulation size boxes prepared for all the departments into which the splits are measured and the day of the Broad Cove man is finished. Instead of the splits costing three cents a bundle as formerly they now come to two and seven-eighth cents and even that saving is an example to the other departments the great things that can be done in the way of economy. But, sad to relate, as the hon. member for Placentia, Mr. Sullivan, has put it, we fed our own child first, and despite the promised reform the Government soon fell into the ways of the notorious gang that preceded them. There are two things about the Department of Public Works that are not like when Mr. Woodford was there, there are no scrips and the Bell Island man must go somewhere else to get his dollar. Why, sir, after all this talk about turning the grafters out and putting the boodlers in jail, to lay before us Estimates like this is, as a former leader in this House and who has since attained to higher honors elsewhere, said on a memorable occasion, enough to make a cat laugh. As the late Mr. James Murray once said, nobody knows where we are going or wither tending. Here we are with these Estimates before us and we are asked to pass them, yet there is not a man here who can answer the simplest question with regard to any of the votes, and not alone that but the very manner of tabling the Estimates was unusual. I have been in this House now for twenty years as a reporter and a member and I never saw nor do I think any hon. member here ever saw them brought down like this. There was always a digest made from the Estimates and time was given hon. members to consider it before being asked to pass the different votes and why this was not done now it is difficult to say. I do not say this is the fault of the Hon. Minister of Finance but I do say that there is no one in the Government who cares two straws whether the House likes the form of tabling the Estimates or not. We have been told from the other side that the odds are two to one against us but I will say here that not a single vote will go through until the information asked for has been furnished us and as the Hon. Minister admits his inability to give us this information, I think it would be a graceful act to adjourn the House until Mr. Puddester is elected.

Poor Mr. Barnes over there to-day is alone. He has no Bill, no Department. We can't consider his Bill and he don't know where he is at and he don't know where he is going. There may be no department. There is no head and no deputy and he may be wandering around for the next four years educating the government and I think that in this position he will be able to give full value. There was a big rush when this matter was first brought up. Our education was going to be greatly improved, but yet it daren't be touched, it daren't be considered, and it will not be considered as our Hon. friend the Minister of Education has told us.

HON. MIN. OF EDUCATION.—That is not true. I said I considered it would be unfair to consider a principle before it was put in the Estimates. It has been put in the Estimates but the Bill will be brought down before you are asked to vote on them and if this House doesn't appeal to such a policy let the Estimates be amended.

MR. HIGGINS.—It so happens that when you approach this subject some of us know what we are talking about. I know this that you are not yet in a position to introduce an Educational Bill into this House. It's true, and you know it is true. You can't bring down estimates here and vote salaries for a Department that may not be created and if it is created it will only be created on ight lines.

HON. MIN. OF JUSTICE.—Hear, hear.

MR. HIGGINS.—Hear, hear is right. A department will be created when and only when a satisfactory Bill is brought down. At the present time the work that is to be done by the department of Education is being done by Mr. Butt of the Colonial Secretary's Department. Mr. Butt is everybody and the laughable situation about it is that if anything happens to him nothing at all can replace him. In reference to the Estimates, they appear to have been slung together in a hurry and pretty badly. You almost want an index to try and find out where things are. The Hon. Minister of Education says he cannot ask us to consider a Bill. You can't make yourself the whole department and vote the whole to yourself. So far as we are concerned in the Opposition it is not a question of being asked to consider but we hazard the opinion and are doubtful that we are going to be asked. Time will tell us if that list of votes is going to be altered. It is the duty of the Opposition to criticize, and primarily and above all the first and most important thing we have to consider in the bringing down of estimates is the condition of the people which you are governing. Remember, Mr. Chairman, there is not a member of the Government who will be elected by these Estimates. Our portion is small, there is no trouble for us to stick out our stomachs and look fat.

Last year in the Estimates the country was asked to vote seven million dollars, and this year they are asked to vote nine million dollars. The Estimates must go up in reason if officials are to get increases that are due and if you are to carry on the work of the country, but then, it is to be remembered that this year the outlook is not of such a nature to warrant any unnecessay expenditure, and it is our duty to see that unnecessary things are deferred. I do not say for a moment that the officials of the Civil Service are not worth the increases they are getting, but to increase the Estimates two million dollars at one blow is disgraceful when we remember that a few years ago two million dollars was considered a large sum for the whole thing.

In making up Estimates for this country it should be considered that we are not in a different position from any other country. We cannot count upon any great change in the number of our population, and the natural result is that the same people who were paying the Estimates last year will have to pay them this year, and it will be a great addition to the burden already too heavy that they have upon their shoulders. If we were compiling Estimates for a big country like Canada where the population is continually gowing it would be a different matter, large sums could be voted on chance, but what is the position here. We are like a family. It should follow from this that like the father of the family who feels the expenses grow heavier as he has to rear this family, that he gets a certain amount of consolation from the fact that the sons will soon be grown up and able to take a share of the burden which he bears. But the position we are in is this: We have the same old father under the same old difficulties, with the difference that he has no help to look forward to, and in view of this it is criminal of us to come in here and vote an increase of two million dollars in the Estimates over last year, when we consider that a few years ago two million in itself was considered a tremendous amount to be voted for Estimates. There has to be an increase, but we should see to it that all unnecessary expenditure is avoided.

Now take the history of the present Estimates. Take the attitude adoped by the Government, and particularly by the Prime Minister, who recently got up and endeavored to suggest that the report ought not be made public and who at first did not seem inclined to give it at all. Of course this attitude was so ridiculous that he withdrew from it, but not until he was compelled to. This report is not only due the public, but it is of particular interest to them at the moment, in view of the Estimates this year. With regard to this report I will not trans gress, and reveal anything of such a character that might reflect upon any branch of the Civil Service, but I must say that reading this report and taking the suggestion given that not alone is that not so, but the remarkable thing about the Estimates is that, where certain individuals desired it that report was used to their benefit, but where it did not suit them it was ignored. I will draw attention to this aspect of the case more fully when we come to the differ ent departments, if we ever come to them. There is one thing in this report that summarizes the whole situation and bears me out in what I say that the suggestions of the Commission were followed when suitable and passed when unsuitable. Take the case of the Leader of the Government. The Commissioners laid down that the heads of all Departments should receive four thousand dollars a year, but that if anyone should be head of more than one department that he should not receive more than six thousand dollars, but this was ignored and the Prime Minister puts himself down at four thousand as Prime Minister, four thousand dollars as Colonial Secretary, and one thousand dollars as a member of this House, apart from his connection with the Government Savings Bank, the Board of Works, and the Militia Department. I would be willing to bet that his salary is nearly fourteen thousand dollars. In view of this, how can anyone be asked to believe that the Estimates are based upon the Commissioners' report. It shows that the Government are looking after themselves first. If there is going to be a wreck, the crowd now aboard of her are seeing to it that they will be safe.

The Government says, if she is going ashore, while she is afloat we will see that we are looked after, and let the others down in the hold take their chances. If this report ever sees the light of day thre are a lot of things that will have to be explained. The Commissioner's' report also classified the following three gentlemen as equivalent to Heads of Departments: the Assessor of Taxes, the Auditor General, and the Liquor Controller. Now it is funny that although the Commissioners recommended this that the Assessor of Taxes was passed over. I want to ask the Minister of Finance and Customs what explanation in fairness can be given of this.

HON. THE MINISTER OF FINANCE & CUSTOMS:—There is no reason why the suggestion was not followed.

MR. HIGGINS:—I recognize the fact that as the Minister of Finance and Customs has said there is no explanation of this. It is another glaring example of the callousness of the Government to turn down the best officials in the Customs department. Of course the trouble is that he is not useful. Other men might be able to be used in politics. The work performed by Inspector O'Reilly and thrust upon him reflects the highest credit upon him and the late Government who appointed him. When he was appointed it was said that the collections would not pay for the machinery to collect same, but he was appointed and was practically alone in that work, and today we see the great result of his work, and after all that he is turned down, in spite of the recommendations of the Commissioners, while the Prime Minister gets much more than was recommended by them. It is not a question of saying that the Ministers should not be paid, and that salaries should not be increased, but this I do say, that we should not bring the Estimates before this House looking after ourselves, without first seeing that the rank and file are properly treated. I think that is a principle that cannot be disputed. No matter how much we think of ourselves we have no right to come in here and look after ourselves while other deserving people are turned down. This is one of the things that will make the country lose faith in all of us, not only you on the other side of the House, but we on the Opposition as well. I see that Mr. Targett is laughing. You needn't laugh, Mr. Targett. This is no laughing matter for the people who will have to bear the taxes. You are alright, you will get your thousand dollars. You think it is a great joke to come in here and vote ourselves a thousand dollars.

MR. TARGETT:—That is not true. I was not laughing about that at all.

MR. HIGGINS:—Seeing that you are getting well paid, and when you got on that side of the House you took good care to see that they would.

MR. TARGETT:—I don't think it is fair for you to accuse me of that.

MR. HIGGINS:—Will you support me when I vote against them? I know you are independent. Will you get up and move that this be abolished or will you support a motion whoever makes it?

MR. TARGETT:—That is a thing I am not prepared to say until the time comes.

Take the position of the soldiers today with regard to pensions. There is a feeling amongst these men that something should be done for them in the way of pensions. Well surely if there is justice in that demand what right have we here today to vote ourselves an increase and not have their claims considered. Not alone is it not right to do it, it isabsolutely criminal to pass increased votes for other purposes without attending to their claims first. Take the Upper House. Does any honorable gentleman believe that the men in the Upper House want the increase that has been voted to them, or that it is a necessity. Run down the line of the gentlemen who are there. None of these gentlemen will want for food or fire. Their votes are doubled, while the doorkeeper remains stationary, the messengers remain stationary and the Usher of the Black Rod is decreased. I don't know what the Government thinks of Mr. Pinsent, but if his position in the past has been paid for at a certain rate, it ill becomes us to decrease it, and to vote double to the Hon. members in that House. and to make a special position there for a man who was not elected at all. In doing this we cheapen that House and we insult the Hon. gentlemen there. The idea is that our House should be increased, but it would be a greater compliment to them to treat them as they should be treated, as gentlemen, who go there at a sacrifice and serve their country in a spirit of public duty, as they really do. Does anybody think that two hundred and fifty dollars will pay those men for their time spent in that House? Does any man think that any Hon. member in that House would value his time spent there at two hundred and fifty dollars? Then why increase it, when the salaries of pages, doorkeepers and reporters remain the same. The principle is wrong and cannot be defended. As regards our own House is it right to come here and vote an increase in the Estimates in our sessional pay from two hundred dollars to one thousand dollars, and not to give one dollar increase to the clerks, reporters and pages? Does any member in his conscience as a man think that it is right to do this? Is there any defence for it?

MR. HIGGINS:—I didn't think that you would. I don't blame you, sir, because everyone recognizes that you are only human. The point is that up to now we all thought that you were an angel. We thought that to ask you to take more money would be to insult you, and we were afraid that if such a thing were suggested that you would leave the House. I thought that if such a proposal was brought up that the least you would do would be to get up and denounce it, and that is why I was surprised at your laughing. Mr. Chairman, I am glad that the hon. member is considering denouncing this bill, because he will realize the point I am making, that however much our opinions may differ as to the correctness of this bill, that nothing like this should be brought in until the other deserving people are attended to first. The principle I repeat is that it is not a question of making the allegation, that a man is not worth an increase or that any member who comes in here is going to make a fortune out of it, but that it is proper for us to vote those increases, under present conditions.

I understand also that there is some trouble with the official reporters in connection with the amounts that they are to be paid. I reported in the Legislature many years ago and was paid a better salary then than the reporters are paid now. And still we leave out those men when making increases as well as all the rest of the help around here and we sit down happy and contented because we ourselves are voted $1,000. We will have more to say about this matter later. When the vote comes up we will deal with it a little more friendly, perhaps. But before we go through any of those Estimates, in the light of the suggestion I have made, I would ask the Government if it would not be wise and proper, and would it not be better for us for the sake of public opinion and for the purpose of restoring public confidence in this House, if for no other reason, to treat these officials right and decent and pay them for their services. You know it's a poor skipper that will not look after his officers, and it is poor boss in charge of a job who does not look after his crowd. Such a man would not be playing the game right. The same principle applies to the Civil Service at large. Take the leading official in this House. The salary of the Clerk in this House was greater years ago than it is now, although the work he is called upon to perform is considerably greater today. The present session has been going on for over the past two months and will go on for some long time to come. Take the system and the quickness with which the reporters turn out their work today and the undoubted satisfaction given by them. Is it right and just and proper to pay these men for that work less than what was paid reporters many years ago, and particularly in the light of the fact that we increased our own vote five times over. Now here is a suggestion. Let us take that big increase that we provided for ourselves and divide it amongst the reporters, as an increase for them, and let us wait until next year for the increase.

Take the Ministers of the different departments of the Government today and the absolute indifference displayed by them in this House. Only four Ministers are in the House at present the others are busily active in another direction. There is no one in the position to give us any explanation about the Estmates. The idea, I think is anything but a good one. We should look after others with ourselves. It is not playing the game with the civil servants or the officials right in this House. Now I want to repeat to the Mnister of Finance, to bring it to the attention of the Prime Minister, under whom this legislation was done, that it will happen if you create the idea here among clerical help and among minor officials that they are not fairly treated and that they are not going to be paid decently, and the idea must be created according to the present Estimates, then we can only get poor help and we cannot expect to get competent help. Let me illustrate the position clearly. My conception of a reportorial staff is this: I would pay a good reporter a sufficient salary to warrant his making an effort to come here. I would enduce a staff to become a permanent staff. The trouble with reportorial work is that the amount allocated to competent stenographers, who are engaged in other directions, is not sufficiently attractive to them to put themselves out to try to be here, if they can fit in at work outside. There is nothing to induce a man to be here each session. And my notion is the notion that prevails elsewhere as regards the official reporters. You got to make reporters pay sufficiently attractive to warrant a man remaining on the staff instead of having to come in year after year and session after session to break in a new staff. If you do as I suggest we will all get better results in the handling of our work, and you will encourage a good man to stay on. As regards the present staff, I do not for very many years, and I do not know when I saw better satisfaction given. The work here is promptly done and well reported, and, I would ask, as regards the matter of remuneration for reporters, that this be taken into consideration and the Estimates made so that justice will be done them. The same principle may be applied to Mr. Mott, Clerk of the House, who has been here almost since Responsible Government and who probably will be here when we go into Confederation. I know that when a matter of this kind is under discussion that Honorable members of the Government are going to say well here are the Estimates and we are not going to change them. I recognize the unwisdom of changing Estimates, but I must readily say that upon a matter that we feel that injustice has been done, surely the Government are going to be big enough to depart from what was the practice in the past. We cannot alter or make votes from this side of the House; but we can recommend and suggest. Our only power is that of suggestion. And may I now suggest to the Government that if we honestly feel that a sessional indemnity should be fair and equitable that we do one thing or the other. Better give no sessional indemnity at all, rather than offer a man $200 for coming here. Either compensate a man properly or none at all; and let the same principle apply to Ministers of the Government. If we do that it will tend to greater efficiency. We must not make the change for any one individual or the other in this House, but readjust the salaries of those all down the line.

I will just refer to a few of the things as they strike one on looking through the Estimates. What I say at the present stage are more or less preliminary remarks, as it would be impossible to make a close commentary on the Estimates because they are in such form. I speak of the Estimates as having been unfortunately hurried. Probably those in charge of them were handicapped and experienced great difficulty in getting the figures and other stuff from the different departments. There is nothing in the Estimates to indicate exactly what is the present salary of officials and we are not in a position today to consider them or discuss them intelligently when the Ministers responsible for those Estimates and who should be here are not here. In other words, let us take the first vote that strikes one. The Orderlies at Government House are down for 1919-20 as $1235 against $1618. There is nothing to indicate that they are receiving $1618 at present or not, or nothing to indicate whether or not that amount includes the 20% that was paid them recently. The same will be seen all down through the Estimates. You are going to find yourselves in this position that the Opposition is going to be in the happy position of continually asking what is the salary of a man to-day. To attempt to discuss these Estimates even on the broadest lines those Ministers, who are in charge of the different departments, should be here. Take for example the Marine and Fisheries Department, which we will be able to dispose of later when the Minister is here. The one thing that strikes me right off hand in that vote is the extraordinary habit acquired by this and all the other departments of having a private secretary. It has become a sort of mania, or what is more commonly termed: that style is killing the crowd. Every head of a department must have a secretary. That seems to be the one great essential. If one only goes on a train or a motor trip he must carry a secretary. We hope, by and by, when the Minister returns to this House to ask him to explain his latest and most extraordinary attitude in this connection. Now, I happen to know, as a stenographer, the qualities of the typewriters down these for $720 each. There is a new position created in the Department of Marine and Fisheries, that of Secretary at a salary of $1200. Can anyone tell me if $720 represents the salary of Miss Calpin? No one answers, and no one cares. I say this is an unfortunate position to be in.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—Yes; that is Miss Calpin's salary.

MR. HIGGINS:—I say that this is an unfair thing to do; it is an absolute downright disgrace and a manifest injustice. And the best proof that my position is taken off hand is that I do not know who the new secretary, who is put in there at $1200, is. I understand he is a young man named Clouter. I do not want to refer to him personally. He is put in there because he is a personal friend of the Minister at $1200 a year, and that girl, than whom there is no more competent stenographer in St. John's, highly educated, an acomplished girl in every way and judging by her work she is decidedly a level-headed girl and has been in that department for years. If I remember rightly that girl's salary was something like $1100. She is a good and competent stenographer, worth any money to any department and worth very much more money than is paid to lots of people in that department, and still her salary is cut from $1100 to $720. If I were not in this House I would make use of an expression that I would very much like to term this scandal. Anyway, to say the least of it, it is a low down rotten thing to do and it is a reflection on the principle of the public service. I repeat: that to turn around and reduce her salary and bring in an entirely new man at an increased salary, in the light of what I have already said, it is not right, it is not proper, it is not decent, and it is the kind of thing that kills the public and also shows the insincerity of the Party of Reform.

They are to blame when this kind of thing happened, and this I do say that from a party that went out with the idea of cleaning up abuses, with the idea of reforming things this reformation has been wicked and it shows the poor principles of the party if one of the ways of reforming is to cut down a girl's salary from $1100 to $750, and increase the salaries of that crowd who has the pull and who does not need it, to increase the higher official"s salary and cut the smaller official's is an unsound principle and the kind of thing that destroys the public service, the hope of the public service, it's only chance is to get the officials to work faithfully and work well in every department of the public service and get it out of the rut in which it has been for so long, but the very life of that hope is here struck at. I recognize that the traditions handed down is that the man who has worked and bawled for the party will be given the most and that the competent and the faithful workers will not be taken account of, and I say that in reference to the party coming in here upon the idea of public service reform, upon the idea of cleaning up these things, these grossly neglected state of affairs, but in view of cleaning up those things and changing the principle they have carried it to an extent that is worse than ever prevailed before. Now take the department of the Prime Minister. The secretary is to receive two thousand dollars. Undoubtedly he is a good secretary and that particular gentleman is well worth it. There is adso an assistant secretary in the Department of the Prime Minister and not alone is a position for an assistant secretary created but also the position for a telephone operator in the Colonial Secretary's Department has also been added. Now this one official is head of two departments and it is an extraordinary and somewhat unexplainable thing to me that the assistant secretary in the department of the Prime Minister should also be a secretary in the Department of the Colonial Secretary. The work of the honourable leader of the Government, in the sense of an executive head, is really done in the Department of the Colonial Secretary and through that channel most of the official business goes and it seems an extraordinary thing to me to create a new secretary in the department which has heretofore been looked upon as a department in name. Now the deputy head of the Colonial Secretary's Department gets thirty-six hundred dollars per year and he is one of those referred to as having got a recommendation for an increase. Could someone tell me what the Chief Clerk and assistant deputy, previous to this, was getting? He is down in the Estimates for twenty-four hundred dollars. Mr. Jennings does not know. Mr. Guppy does not know, and we do not know. Nobody knows. This is an extraordinary thing. Here we are; nobody knows and nobody cares what Mr. Stirling was getting previous to his getting twenty-four hundred dollars in these Estimates.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—He was getting seventeen hundred dollars, and to that you have to add the twenty per cent. increase.

MR. HIGGINS:—I would like to know if he was only getting seventeen hundred. I see twenty per cent. has to be added. Well, that can be added. That elucidates the point. I see twenty per cent. has to be added to it and twenty per cent. to that of the Second Clerk. Well, now, you might eplain to me why it is in proportion the Deputy's is raised from twenty-four hundred to three thousand six hundred, the First Clerk from seventeen hundred to twenty-four hun dred, and the other man's salary from thirteen hundred to sixteen hundred? Now take the Second Clerk, he was getting twelve hundred and sixty and to that must be added twenty per cent. Well he is down here as getting sixteen hundred but the third clerk was down in the Estimates for 1920 as receiving twelve hundred and sixty and add twenty per cent. and he is down here for twelve hundred dollars.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—That is Mr. Butt and he is to be transferred to the Department of Education.

MR. HIGGINS:—Well, I must say that I admire Mr. Butt. He will be safe anyway as under the vote for the Colonial Secretary's Department he will receive his salary and not from the vote for the Education Department which may not be required. We are supposed to be educated in this country and this official Mr. Butt draws attention to the awkward position you are in. Can anyone tell me why an attendant is required to the Department of Colonial Secretary? Is this a valet? Is it a he or a she? It is not a she. The reason why I ask is that I have heard a lot of fancy ladies visiting here and I was wondering if this was one of them.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—That attendant is Mr. Brocklehurst.

MR. HIGGINS:—I am glad that the attendant is Mr. Brocklehurst. He is a supporter of mine. And I must say that he is a good man.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—He was taken from the Board of Public Works and voted the amount for extra hours.

MR. HIGGINS:—Take next the position of the telephone operator. This person is to get six hundred. Why this operator? Surely the Department of Colonial Secretary is not called during the day with such a terrific rush that a person is required for nothing else but to answer calls on the telephone. Surely the honourable minister does not ask us to believe that the telephone calls in the Colonial Secretary's Department, with all respect for the Colonial Secretary who is so energetic, are so great in number that a person is solely required for that position.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—There is a direct line with the head of each department.

MR. HIGGINS:—When was that installed?

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—About last November.

MR. HIGGINS:—In other words there is a private wire between the Ministers of each department. Surely you are so suspicious as we believed. You are certainly taking precaution against leakage when you even so protect the business done on the wire.

HON. THE MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—You may except the Department of Public Works. No connection was made with that department.

MR. HIGGINS:—I have confidence that you will not give anything away. Nothing ever occurred which so aptly illustrates what I have always thought of you. You are such an honest man that if you heard what happened over that wire you would not be where you are to-day. I may tell you that you are too temperate, and I am sure you would not do anything with a private wire to the Controllers Department. However, this much is to be said. This has come out accidentally. This economical Government, this great crowd to save the country's money is very anxious about saving it when owing to a mistrust in everybody else they install these private telephones and even to save expenses they exclude Mr. Jennings from this communication, but as far as St. John's East is concerned I would like to be always in touch with the Department of Public Works.

MR. HIGGINS.—Is the Minister of Agriculture & Mines also on this private line? He is on it. He must be on one end if the Prime Minister is on the other. I am glad this information came out accidentally. If you could see the face of Mr. Jennings, Mr. Foote and Dr. Barnes you would know that something has been going on that they did not know anything about and they weren't a bit too well pleased about it. This wonderful government must be arranging such great plans to save the country that they must be kept secret. This line was constructed shortly after the election, and I venture to assert that it was the creation of some diseased brain that was imagining plots by the Opposition to destroy him. This is not the time for private lines when great public matters should be attend ed to. The Prime Minister referred in his manifesto to a long distance telephone connection, and I suppose his is it. This is the Government reform that we are to look for. Is the Government House on the line? The Government House is not on the line you say. I understand that there was not the best of feeling between the Government and the Government House at all times ad I suppose that is the reason. Has there been any late increase for the Registrar. He was down to $1600. Why is his made only $2200? You don't know. Why is Mr. Doyle getting no increase? We come to the Department of Justice, the gentleman knows about that. His Deputy Head is down for $3,600. Then he is down for a secretary $1200. Take the other positions. There is a new clerk getting $1020. He is down here as new. Is there a new clerk or is there not? How many clerks are there? Speaking on that department while we are here now, is the Minister of Justice in a position to say whether it is the intention of the Gov ernment to bring in any legislation regarding the prohibition petitions that have been brought in here? You are not in a position to say. The Minister will agree that my judgment is right when I say that nothing has happened affecting respect for law and order as much as the attitude toward prohibition has. I mean smuggling. The Prime Minister suggests that a commission will be appointed to report on this matter, which means year. In the light of popular opinion something more than appointing a commission should be done in view of the large number of petitions, some 15,000, asking for modification. Nothing could be more reasonable than the second request of the petition that a plebiscite be granted. Day after day I see the worst kind of offences because of the liquor laws, and to begin with we have smuggling. Down in the police station you can see stuff with a sediment in it an inch deep. This is being sold for as much as $25 per gallon, and other stuff is being prepared and sold that is ten times worse than moonshine. The stuff is vile and filthy. Down in the Magistrates' Court people are fined because they are drinking this vile stuff that has more than 2 per cent alcohol in it.

When people come to realize that some, because of their connections, shipping or otherwise, can obtain all the liquor they want, an unfortunate position arises when a woman is brought befor court and fined for sell ing hop-beer a little above the allowed percntage. This is the kind of thing that causes unrest. It is looked upon as class legislation and in the light of all this, may I not ask the Hon. Minister of Justice to accede to the requests that have been put forward so strongly and if a bill is brought in and passed and put into effect by the Governor-in-Council it will be a good thing, because there is nothing so demeaning, nothing so be-ittling as to have a crowd of able-bodied and intelligent policemen engaged in the miserable occupation of going around badgering and pestering people to find out if they have drop of stuff stowed away somewhere. There was a case the other day where a man got a present of a bottle of liquor and having accepted it he went and lodged a complaint with the police, and this is the kind of thing we are going to have while the practice of giving half the fine to the informer exists. I do not blame anyone for this but it is the kind of thing that causes unrest and suspicion and I would ask that the matter be taken into account by the proper authorities.

Now with regard to the matter of Old Age Pensions, I would ask the Hon. Minister if it is the intention of the Government to increase the amount of these pensions?

HON. MIN. OF FINANCE.—No.

MR. HIGGINS.—No; of course we must look out for ourselves first and let old worn out fishermen starve on his miserable pittance of fifty dollars a year, an amount that was never considered sufficient for a man to exist on, unless it was in the days of Indian meal, but evidently this is an other example of the Government's liberal policy. Surely if we can double and quadruple our own salaries, we might double the dole that we are handing out to the man whose hands are cracked by the salt water, the man we are all depending on. These are the men that returned you to this House, and one of the promise to which you pledged yourselves was the extension of the old age pensions. If you cannot be liberal, and we all know that you cannot be liberal to these men, be at least fair. How can any of the hon. gentlemen on the other side of the House who represent g back o tirccccccll shrNg eimade up districts made up wholly of fishermen, go back to their constituents and tell them, when asked what they have done, that they have voted a thousand dollars for themselves but that they voted nothing for their Uncle Sam who is looking forward to at least some increase in his pension. It is not too late yet to do something in this matter, and when these ministers who are now absent from their places come back, ask them to reconsider this, get the Big Chief to treat the fishermen with the same liberality as he has treated us. He has been generous to the members of the House of Assembly and I, for my part, thank him for it.

Now take the Department of Agriculture. The First Clerk is down at eighteen hundred dollars. The Second Clerk and Accountant at fifteen hundred dollars. The Secretary of Agriculture has received a large increase. Does any man know who is the Secretary of the Agriculture Department?

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Bailey is Secretary of that Department.

MR. HIGGINS:—Why is his salary increased from twelve hundred and sixty dollars to twenty-five hundred dollars? What explanation can be given of that?

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE & CUSTOMS:—In the absence of Mr. Donnelly his duties in connection with that department have become much heavier, and he is a man with a family of twelve children.

MR. HIGGINS:—If the only excuse that can be given for Mr. Bailey's increase is that he has a large family, what possible excuse or explanation is there for the manner in which we create a new department and undertake to pay five thousand dollars to the head of that department without knowing for certain if we are to have that department at all? Is the suitable man for that department going to be a man with a large family?

MR. HIGGINS:—Reference was made here the other day to the Government Analyst, Mr. Davies. Now as far as he is concerned I know him well. He is thoroughly competent, and an excellent chemist, no better could be found. I think from the remarks of certain gentlemen on that matter that they must have been suffering from diseased brains when they come out with the statement, that because the leader of the Opposition commented upon that increase that he did so because he did not want the people educated along a certain line.

The man who wrote that article is a lunatic, he is a maniac, and I hope that when a department is created for treating such people that his case will be attended to. It is not a question of whether Mr. Davies is worth thirty-eight hundred dollars, for I say now that he is worth it, and much more than that. He is thoroughly educated, and highly competent, but I do say this: How will you reconcile this increase when you pass over other deserving people, heads of departments and others. Take the Charities Department. Is not Mr. O'Dwyer worth every dollar as much as the best Deputy head of any department in the Civil Service? It cannot be said of course that he will smother you with smiles, but what can be said is that he is a thoroughly competent official. He is so strict in his duty that he is almost uncharitable. No man in charge of any department of the Civil Service is as hard to try to get a concession from as this man, when it is outside his duty. He has not much political or social influence. but he is a hard-working, honest, thoroughly competent man, and the only reason I can see that he is turned down is that he does not trouble himself in a political way about you or us. I don't know what his political opinions are, but I do say that that class of thing should not interfere with the Estimates. In his department there are three officials, the Deputy, Mr. Power, and Mr. Kenny. They have received no increase and there is no explanation, and I see no explanation that can be given. Well, now, if it be correct that no explanation can be given of this, and I am certain that there is no better conducted department in the Civil Service, than this one, it surely proves that the Estimates have not been based either on the report of the Commissioners, nor upon any consideration of the worth of the individual. There have been spasmodic cases where this has been done but they are very rare, and it is no answer to say: "Why did not your party think of this when you were in?" That is not good enough from a party from whom we expect a change. The more one thinks of those extraordinary increases in the Estimates, and the fact that the Ministers who should be here to explain them, are absent, the more one thinks that it is unfair for the Government to ask us to continue on with these Estimates.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Chairman, I see the force of the arguments advanced by the hon. member for St. Johns East, Mr. Higgins, and in view of them I would ask the Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, to raise the Committee until Friday.

The Committee then rose, reported progress and asked leave to sit again.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Mr. Speaker, I wish to draw your attention to a message which I received from Clarkes Beach, and which appeared in the 'Telegram' relative to the sailing of the Labrador mail steamer.

I wish to draw your attention to the fact that the season is getting late. It is now the 22nd of June. These people are not much interested in the Bay de Verde election, and it is not right to hold that steamer at Reid's, and hang them up. At first blush you would think it is an enormous amount to be spending on a steamer, one thousand dollars a day, but on reflection, I would point out that it is not so serious as keeping back hundreds of people from the Labrador on that steamer, when you consider that if the wind changed to the north-east, and with the ice conditions, they might not be able to get down for weeks. I would like to call the attention of the Hon. the Minister of Justice, who is in charge of the House, and ask him if it is fair to hold that boat at Reid's when she is all ready to go to the Labrador. That is not the action of a Progressive Government. What is troubling me is that the gentlemen on the other side of the House, who are practical fishermen and know what this delay might mean, are standing for this. I would ask Mr. Jennings and Mr. Windsor. Is this fair to your brother fishermen of Conception Bay, to hold that steamer, at a thousand dollars a day expense when she is ready to go? It is unfair, and not at all business-like, and the Government who are doing it will certainly get their deserts at the hands of the people. I would like to know from the Hon. the Minister of Justice if he will stand for it. The Prime Minister is out of town, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries is out of town, the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs is out of town, and he is in charge, and I think he is honest enough to issue an order to have that boat sail.

HON. THE MIN. OF JUSTICE.—Mr. Speaker, in reply to the leader of the Opposition, I might say that I saw the article he refers to, and that that was the first knowledge I had of it, and on inquiry I found that the boat was not ready to sail as they were putting on berths.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—I know that the boat has been ready to sail, and that she has been held there, and I was told that the order was that she would sail on the 24th. I know that the steamer is held up and that she has been ready to sail for the past two days. If the Hon. Minister of Justice would go up there and inquire he would find that the statement I have here is correct. She has been held for political reasons.

HON. THE MIN. OF JUSTICE.—I was informed that she was not ready to sail, as they were putting berths into her. The hon. member for Hr. Grace, Mr. Archibald, can substantiate me in that statement.

MR. ARCHIBALD.—I was on board that shp in interests of my district and I would not stand for her being held up. That boat is not ready to sail. I made inquiries and I saw dozens of carpenters putting berths into that boat. I went over there to see if she could be hustled up. I tried to see the captain to know when she would be ready to sail, but he was not there.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—That boat was ready to sail and was supposed to sail on the 24th, but the intention was to hang her up until election in Bay-de-Verde was over.

MR. ARCHIBALD.—I don't know about that, but I do know that there is a lot of work going on on that ship, and if there were not, I would not stand for her being hung up. You cannot send that boat down to the Labrador without proper accomodations. You cannot put the men down in the hold like cattle. I just arrived here yesterday and the first thing I did was to go aboard and find out why she was hung up. I could not see the Captain, but I could see that there was a lot of work going on, and that that was the reason that she was hung up.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—Why did you try to see the captain? Why did you not go to the Colonial Secretary s Department or to the Marine & Fisheries Department and find out? That boat was ready to sail and you will find that she will not sail until the 25th.

HON. THE MIN. OF JUSTICE.—The boat will sail to-morrow at two o clock.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN.—Well, you will see that she will not leave Bay-de-Verde until the 25th.

MR. SAMSON.—I wish to back up the statement made by Mr. Archibald. I was on board that boat this mcrning and from the amount of work going on there I am sure that she is not ready to sail yet. We saw that message that Sir Michael referred to and we went aboard to see what was the reason of the delay, and we found that she was not lt to sail.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred and made some progress and asked leave to sit again on Friday.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on Friday.

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

Hon. the Minister of Justice gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act for giving effect to Treaties of Peace between His Majesty and certain other Powers."

Hon. the Minister of Justice gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act for the Holding of a Municipal Election in the City of St. John's."

Mr. Vinnicombe gave notice of Question.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until Friday afternoon at three of the clock

The House then adjourned accordingly.

FRIDAY, June 25th, 1920

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

HON. MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS—Mr. Speaker: I ask leave to present a petition from the inhabitants of Trayton, Brighton and several other small places in the district of Twillingate on the subject of Prohibition. The petitioners ask that there be no modification of the Act. I would ask that this be referred to the department to which it relates.

NOTICE OF QUESTION

Sir M. P. Cashin asked the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries if Lt.-Col. Bernard is appointed Trade Commissioner for Newfoundland outside the Colony, and if so, where and at what salary.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES:—Mr. Speaker: In reply I wish to say that Lt.-Col. Bernard has not been appointed Trade Commissioner.

MR. HIGGINS:—Would you mind saying whether or not he has received any Government appointment?

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES:—He is gone over on something in connection with the war.

Mr. Higgins asked the Hon. the Minister of Justice, in the absence from this House of all Ministers known to be in any way connected with the Militia Department, if the Vocational Committee have resigned; also to Table copies of any correspondence between the said Committee or any of its members and any department of the Government within the past three months.

Mr. Vinicombe asked the Minister of Justice in the absence of the Colonial Secretary if any annual returns have been made to the Government by the Bell Island Tramways Co., if so, to lay the copies of the same on the Table of the House.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—These will be answered to-morrow.

Mr. Walsh asked the Hon. Prime Minister to lay on the Table of the House all correspondence between deputies of all departments of the Government (or any department which made recommendations), and the Commissioners appointed by the late Government to adjust the Salaries of Civil Servants, also all recommendations from deputies of the several departments in relation to increases or otherwise.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—In the absence of the Prime Minister, I ask that this matter stand deferred.

Mr. Walsh gave notice of question.

Pursuant to notice and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice the Bill entitled "An Act for giving effect to the Treaties of Peace between His Majesty and certain other Powers," was introduced and read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the Bills sent up entitled respectively, "An Act to provide for Commemoration Day" and "An Act to amend Chapter 108 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled 'Of the Protection of Animals'" without amendment.

Pursuant to order and on motion of the Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on Supply.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

MR. HIGGINS:—Before the House adjourned on the last day during that sitting you will remember that a remarkable position was created when we said that no vote would be passed in this House owing to its peculiar constitution, and consequently the House was adjourned until to-day on the motion of the Minister of Justice who at that time was leader of the House, because as I have said, of the attitude taken by the Opposition towards the Estimates, and now that the travellers have returned, now that the mighty men have come back and the real legislators are present, and in particular this guiding spirit and soul of the House is in the sound of my voice, the time has now arrived when that attitude can be understood. I would like to say to this soul, addressing it in its human form, that it is unfortunate we had to justify the opposition given and we have confirmed that idea of some in legislative moments known as obstruction, and in that aspect we cold-bloodedly told the House that no vote would be passed until the Estimates were in a position before us as they ought to be. They are some what in that position to-day. They are in that because we have here present that great power of all who is quite capable to stand the responsibility of all the Ministers but in his absence we felt that we could not decently undertake the consideration of the Estimates. The Minister of Finance, the Minister of Justice, the Minister of Public Works, and the Minister who is yet to get his power, the Minister of Education, did their best I can assure those who were absent, and say, that in the Government's position were justified in what they did, and I think they even recognized not alone the impossibility but the impropriety of asking us to submit to a consideration of the Estimates with the House constituted as it was. And that aspect then referred to is now sufficient and it indicates those lines along which we propose to go. We are now in a position to consider them. We have been talking on this side of the House that no vote would be passed purely and simply because of the position in which the Estimates were presented. And to say the least of it it would have been indecent to undertake the consideration of them. There was nobody present to give us the information we asked for. We submitted the views we held in regard of the present votes and our desire to have certain information, and no one could supply it, and because of the intimation which was intimated respectfully but firmly of the position we were going to take the Government, through the then leader, the Minister of Justice, did what was to their credit in realising that at least we were in a position to carry out that intimation. Now that has been done and now we are in a position to consider the Estimates. I will at this stage make the suggestion that so far as I am concerned I belong to a tribe, and I belong to a race that is not perturbed much over the happenings of life, but I think they will be satisfied with the attitude I have taken in their protection, but now that the Minister has come back we will be able to deal with them which we could not in his absence. There was serious comment as regards certain votes and in regard to the manner in which they were presented owing to the absence of the head of the Department and in the absence of those who might know about them, and we, on this side of the House, who were of right entitled to the information, were debarred from it owing to the absence of them. I would like at the very outset to make it clear that it is not my intention to prolong this particular part of the Estimates which is a real ly formal matter, that is, the voting of the public debt, but when we do come to the individual votes we shall have ample opportunity to illustrate the views within us, and we will endeavour as far as possible to try and get the Government to realise that what perhaps is popularly called Opposition talk is just one broad representation of our views, and we intend to carry that line of discussion out, in reference to the question commented upon by us all, namely, the question of ministerial increases and the increases of indemnity to the members of this House. We have taken that attitude and through it we want the Government to consider the amount voted these who sit here in the Assembly. The position taken by me is this: That a Minister today who really devotes his time and gives attention to his office is worth the salary, and I will go further and say that if he properly gives his time and attention to that office he is worth more than the salary. If a member comes into this House with the idea or the notion of getting this sessional indemnity he is not likely to be the class of man to be elected to this House, and, therefore, the principle applies that the sessional indemnity at least is sufficient to indemnify him against any actual loss, but in the light of the conditions under which we live, and in the light of the disclosures in the Estimates, and in light of overlooking of the smaller paid officials, and in light of particularly the lack of increase for the Old Age Pensioners, about which there has been much comment, the Government has no right and it is not worthy of us to vote ourselves such large indemnities and likewise the ministerial increases, and I think it is our bounden duty to defer both of these increases until we first see to it that those very justifiable complaints are first attended to. Let this be an exception to the maxim that "Charity begins at home" and before looking after ourselves let us give our attention and material assistance to those about whom complaints are made. I think the position is based upon principle, and is one admitted on this side namely, that in light of the conditions under which we are living, and in light of the fact that we expect confidence in those for whom we are legislating, we must endeavour to show them that so far as we are concerned we are prepared to make our sacrifices as well as they, and, on that account, I think it is not fair or right or even worthy of us to balk the Old Age Pensioners increase and increase our own indemnity. This is particularly improper for us for in so doing we are affecting public opinion and affecting the respect for law and order, and affecting the ideals in legislation, if we come in here and increase our own indemnities and those of the gentlemen in the Upper House. Surely those in the Upper House have not looked for it nor do they want it. The gentlemen there are men of independence, and who do not need it. Surely you cannot seriously contend that the Honourable President of the Upper House, and the leader of the Government there, want to have their present sessional grant doubled, when we are living in times to-day when that class of vote, when that class of legislation provision is going to disturb the confidence of the people in this House, and I urge upon the Government to recognize the position with regard to that. I want the Government to take the position that no honorable gentlemen, who are connected with the Government, come to the House for the purpose of drawing the increases allocated to ourselves by ourselves, and if they do that principle is unsound and it cannot be disputed.

A couple of other matters arose out of the discussion. One matter was illuminating as a new discovery. Some of the honorable members heard of a new institution. This we shall deal with at the proper time. It is not with any spirit of gusto or pride over anything that has been done, but the stand we have taken that no Estimates should be passed until the Ministers were here to explain them is justified as our duty to the country. No better argument could be found to justify our attitude than the fact that it was approved by the government as shown by the Minister of Justice adjourning the House from Tuesday until Friday. I repeat the welcome to the members that are absent, and I hope their presence will have the effect of adjusting some of the ridiculous things that are now in the Estimates.

HON. MIN. OF JUSTICE.—Mr. Chairman, it is not my intention to delay the House, but the member who just sat down referred to my adjourning the House as an argument in justification of the attitude of the Opposition toward the Estimates. I did not intend the adjournment to mean that. Our procedure is at variance with other houses of parliament. In England and Australia the House goes into Committee on Supply without any statement from the Minister of Finance. Our civil service list is comparatively small, and it is reasonable to expect that the Minister of Finance can answer any questions regarding the civil service. In Canada that could not possibly be so because of the large civil service. The result is that the Minister of Finance in other countries gives no statement, and the minister of each department answers any question regarding his department. The Minister of Finance has been in office only six months, and it would be most unreasonable to expect him to be familiar with every item in the Estimates. The Opposition will take up the Estimates and ask questions from page 44, 46, 34, 22, and 11 at random. That is not the practice in other countries. With regard to the Estimates themselves, some points have been raised by the Opposition which will require explan ation and defence, but I merely get up now to disassociate myself from the idea that the Minister is supposed to answer any and all questions regarding the Estimates.

MR. HIGGINS.—The Hon. Minister of Justice is not quite in line with what is done in other countries. The point that I made the other day I repeat, the Estimates are always criticized by the Opposition. We are really the auditors on behalf of the people. Any objection to the Estimates must necessarily emanate from this side of the House. Who can say whether the votes are right or wrong? It has been claimed that they are based on the recommendations of the Commission.

HON. MIN. OF FINANCE & CUSTOMS.—Some votes are based on the report.

MR. HIGGINS.—That makes the position still worse, and I shall prove that the increases are not on the recommendation of the Commission. If you say some it means that this exhaustive report was only to be followed in coming years. If it is to be followed in one instance why not in all? The place for comment is on the opening vote, interest on the public debt. Once that is touched, as the public have to pay it we have the right of examinaion. As the Minister of Justice does not admit our stand I am disappointed. If we are takng a wrong stand why didn't the Government go on Tuesday? They had a majority to carry on. The argument is not worthy the Minister, and is not endorsed by custom in the House.

The fates decreed that I should stand cigars for the reporters. The position is not altered, that the Minister of Justice comes along now and says that a certain thing is not done because it is not done in Canada. That is not worthy of the Hon. Minister, and I must say that I had expected something different from him. There were men who occupied the seats opposite and who occupied the seats on this side who followed out the practice I have mentioned and the example of these men is good enough for me. I do not imagine that the whole world cenres around myself and I say that every precedent of this House has been disrgarded, and according to the Hon. Minister we must do this or that because it is done in Canada. Perhaps it is that the ministers are practicising Canadian methods. I have heard of ministers having ambitions to duplicate in Canadian politics they positions they hold in this country. I hardly think that the present Minister of Finance will very soon introduce the Budget in Canada, but if he does there will be somebody there abler than I to criticize it. The manner in which these Estimates have been presented shows that the Hon. Minister was not in a position to give us the usual digest which helped so materially in dealing with them. On former occasions the Minister of Finance was helped by his fellow-ministers to make a presentation of the facts in submitting the Estimates, but I indicated, and was right in the contention, that in bringing down these, every one scrapped for himself. So far as the Minister of Finance is concerned he has candidly admitted that he was not acquainted with the general principles on which this was done, but with all due respect to the opinions of the Minister of Justice, I think the good old-fashioned way was the best. Of course if the idea is that all things must now be done here as they are done in Canada, very well. Some one told me that the soldiers in the neighboring Dominion were marching from Vancouver to Ottawa to demand their rights, and if the march starts here I trust we wlil sit here until our soldiers have an opportunity to pay us a call.

HON. MIN. OF JUSTICE.—I regret very much much, Mr. Chairman, that my few remarks about Canadian procedure should have called forth such a heated reply from my hon. friend, the member for St. John's East. I only got up because he gave the idea that by adjourning the House on Tuesday I had admitted the position taken by him to be a correct and proper one. Now that is not so. No one blames the hon. gentlemen opposite for their criticisms, but they subjected everyone on this side of the House to a severe cross-examination as to the name of this or that official, their present salaries, their previous salaries, and so on, and because they were not able to get answers to all their questions they took the view that every one of the Ministers should be in his place to supply the information, and I merely pointed out that the procedure in Canada was to discuss and explain each vote as it came up. When the hon. member stated on Tuesday that no vote would go thru, I thought it just as well to adjourn the House until today, but the suggestion was never made that the conduct of absent Ministers was improper.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—Mr. Chairman, I would be lacking in my duty if I were to allow these Estimates to go by without offering some criticism. Although a new member in this House I know something of its procedure and I've seen other hon. members offer very much more obstruction than has been attempted by the Opposition this session, and the very Minister of Justice, who sits on the other side now, was one of the best examples of that. I remember sitting here from Thursday night to Saturday listening to the hon. gentleman talking about a post office at St. Johnes Within and now he tells us about how the Estimates are tabled in other countries. I've seen Estimates brought in here and spoken on for as much as two hours by the Minister of Finance before the House started to consider them at all, but the present Minister comes in with a proposed increase in salaries amounting to $1,860,000 and asks us to accept these Estimates without a word of explanation as to why they are to be voted or who is to get them. If I did not criticise them I would be failing in the duty I owe to those who have to pay these salaries. Of course I never expected that any questions asked from this side would be answered, when we consider that the Hon. Minister of Finance, when he made his maiden speech in this House, said that he would not be associated with us.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—With your leader I said.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—We are not a bad crowd of people, a good looking lot of men even tho' we are grafters. In looking over the Estimates I notice that in the Board of Works vote there are some nice increases made although others are reduced from $1,200 to $700, now, I wonder did the Commission recommend that.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—I'll explain that when we come to it.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—How much is John Davey getting? There's nothing in the Estimates about it. The Magistrate at Harbor Breton is getting his salary increased from $612 to $1200 a year; why has this been done?

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—That was placed there by the late Government.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—Take the salary of the Inspector General; he is getting $3600, and Inspector Grimes, after 46 years in the service, is only getting $1500; don't you think that he is deserving of better consideration than this?

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—That's what the late Government did.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—Never mind the late government. You are the Reform Government. The Inspector General is only a lawyer like yourself —what does he know about constabulary? Ten constables last year were receiving $8,312.50, and this year they are only receiving $7,600.00; now, I think, this might be put the other way.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—That will be explained when we come to it.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—Well, just take a note of it. I notice that in the Minister of Agriculture and Mines Department the Deputy Minister, Mr. Turner, has received an increase, and I think that's about the only right thing the Government has done. The two Clerks, Mr. McNeilly and Mr. Hart, have received a very small increase, and why such is the case I can't understand. I believe they are doing the work of the late Mr. Thorburn, who was employed there, and I think that they are at least entitled to an amount equal to half of his salary for each man. But I don't think there is any necessity of me talking any more about this until we come to it. There are three sections in the Government to-day: The Coaker and Warren section is very nice, but the Squires section is venomous. The Minister of Finance told us some time ago that we had his sympathy.

MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—I'll explain that.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—My advice to the Minister of Finance is not to take anything out of the Squires book. At the present time he reminds me of that advertisement the Edison Gramaphone Company "His Master's Voice." He is the dog and Mr. Squires is the master. And talking about obstruction I can remember when the present Minister of Justice held up this House for three or four days talking about bicyles for the postal officials and St. Jones Within.

My advice to the Minister is to be nice to us today or we will hang up this House until Christmas.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE & CUSTOMS:—Mr. Chairman, I regret that I didn't speak for a few hours when I was presenting the Estimates a few days ago, but 90 per cent. of the Estimates was not our work and it was impossible for me to tell what was in the heads of those men who made the changes at that time; $10,000 was voted for contingencies, and $154,000 was spent, and it was impossible for me to tell why this amount was voted and that amount spent. The late Government asked that a vote be passed for the expenditure of seven millions for the coming year and they spent $9,-000,000. Now it is impossible for me to explain why these changes were made by the Government last year. I think all the Hon. members can appreciate why I don't know what has been paid out when I don't know what the Chief Clerk in the Customs House was paid last year out of contingencies. The Assistant Clerk was paid out of contingencies, and I don't know what he was paid as it was all embodied in the general report. One official down there was paid $16.00 per month of an increase out of contingencies. How did I know what he was getting out of contingencies. Any changes I have made in the Estimates I am prepared to give full and complete information as we come to the different items. I hope the hon. members will understand this.

MR. BENNETT.—Mr. Speaker, when the Minister of Finance and Customs laid the Estimates upon the table of the House, ten days ago, I think it was, and in accordnace with the request of the leader of the Opposition, they were deferred until next following day. Since then I have been performing public duties in other directions that have prevented me from attending the House and I have had no opportunity of considering the Estimates and hearing the discussions that took place in this House. The mission on which I was engaged assisting in the count at Bay de Verde did not turn out successfully, and in saying I am sorry, I mean that I am sorry for the people of the country. Time will tell whether the district has decided wisely. We feel that the work which we put in on that district although having no immediate effect, will bear fruit in the near future in a manner which is not contemplated today.

When the Estimates were tabled I had the honor of asking for the report of the Civil Service Commission which was appointed by the late Government, to be tabled. The answer was that it was impossible to do so as the Civil Service Commission had not made any report, but they had made certain interim reports, and the Government did not see their way clear to table them, as there were certain matters contained in them, that were better kept from the public. Evidently since then, there has been a change of policy on the part of the Government, because I have here a very lengthy report that was tabled a day or two ago, but which I have not had the opportunity to glance over as yet When this Commission was appointed, it was appointed with one object, and that was the purpose of seeing the discrepancies that the late Government were convinced existed in the different departments of the Civil Service. It will be remembered that a couple of years ago there was a great deal of agitation in existence amongst the members of the Civil Service with regard to salaries. They were paid salaries to keep themselves and their families on, which in many cases were not sufficient to procure the necessities of life. They insisted that something should be done promptly to meet that contingency, and over two years ago, when Lord Morris was Prime Minister, his Government decided to give a percentage increase, granted so that those who were receiving small salaries would receive proportionately more benefit than those who were receiving large salaries. This apparently satisfied them for a time, but as time went on conditions again required adjustment, and last year just before the strike in the Postal Telegraph Department, when the operators stopped work, and held the Government up for immediate settlement of their demands, and we were powerless to do anything but to accede to their demands which were not unreasonable, that those who were giving good service to the country get the increase they looked for, it was brought home to the Government that if that were the case with the Postal Telegraph Department, it was equally the case with all other departments, but the difficulty was that it would take months and months to get a true conception of the state of affairs, and the Government saw no other course open but to appoint a Commission composed of men whose reputation would be beyond question to go into the matter of the Civil Service with a view to increasing not the salary of His Excellency the Governor, or the Ministers of the Crown, or the higher officials, but to see how the minor officials were being paid for their services to the country. In this country there has been no assessment of a man's ability. He is paid according to his position, and not according to his ability, and when that Commission was appointed, it was to enquire into the qualifications, and the work done by each official in the Civil Service. The duties of certain positions have changed, and the amount of work involved is not in proportion to the salary voted, but we have that salary whether there is one hour's work or twenty-mour hours work a day. We have postal officials in the outports who have to work all day and a good part of the night who are getting a salary of two hundred dollars or less for such service, and the main object in appointing that Commission was to see that salaries should be paid according to merit, and not according to the position the individual hold. Now sir, I have no information, unless it is contained in the report of the Commission on these points, but, I do say, that the Government have taken good care that those who least want it, those whom the country should expect as good service from, as in the past, should not have been given the large increases that they have been given. It is quite true that the estimates before us cover the increases granted last year by the Government of the day, but the heads, deputies and clerks of the different departments have been granted enormous increases, irrespective of ability, or service rendered, or the importance of the office held. There are some departments of the Government that are very important, and busy, and require continual service, departments, the offices of which are never closed, except very late at night. There are officials who go in their office at 10 o'clock in the morning and remain there until 10 and 11 o'clock at night to keep ahead of the work they got to perform; and there are other departments in which the offices are opened at 10 o'clock in the morning and the key put in the door at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and we find that men who work 10 and 12 hours a day paid the same wages as men who work, perhaps, half that time. If this Commission have not reported on this matter, well then they have ignominiously failed and have not carried out the wishes of the late Government in this connection. Certain increases are perfectly justifiable because it is only proper and right that a man should be paid for his services. People in mercantile life to-day have to pay very much higher wages than ever before, but the man in commercial life will always engage the best man he can get and he pays him accordingly; and there are young men in this city today, who, perhaps, two or three years ago, earned $500 a year are now earning three and four thousand dollars a year because of their exceptional ability in the different walks of life in which they are engaged. The increases that are provided for in the tabulated totals in the beginning of the estimates show an enormous increase in our public expenditure, increases that might well make us consider where we are drifting and what is going to be the end, if we go on at the rate we are going at the present time. It is unfortunate for the Government and unfortunate for the whole country that the business affairs of the country at the present time are not in the rosy condition that some people would like us to believe and are not in a condition that inspires us with confidence for the future, and, with an increasing debt and an increasing expenditure and with decreasing prices for our products, there is but one result possible. I do not care what Government is in power nor do I care who is responsible, but when the balance overweighs one side of the book to the other, it is like any business concern. After all the running of the country is like the running of a business. A business has certain earning powers; an industry has certain earning powers and must produce sufficient to meet its obligations and must get sufficient prices for its products to meet its liabilities. The same applies to a Government. A Government must keep down its expenditure according to the productiveness of the people whose trustees they are. They must keep down the cost of running the country in line with the products of the country, because, after all, our revenue should be raised according to the products that we have, but when those products drop below a figure that is necessary to produce that revenue to meet our expenditure, then we are straight on the road to ruin and disaster. It is quite within the knowledge of this House and every member of it that the prospects for the return of the great staple industry of the country this year are anything but bright at present and that the prices for our products will be much below what they have been for the last eight or ten years, and when the earning power of the people is reduced to such an extent as anticipated this year, then the people can no longer pay the taxation imposed upon them and keep up the public service of the country and meet their own private obligations. The high price of living to-day is appalling the people and never in the history of this country were the people so much concerned over the seriousness of the situation of affairs as they are to-day: and they will be compelled to curtail in their own homes; they will be compelled to curtail their own living expenses and they will have to deprive themselves of everything but the ordinary necessaries of life; in a great many cases in this country, to tide over next winter that might be, perhaps, one of the hardest seasons that they ever had to contend with. The low prices of our products and the high prices of everything else is the cause of the situation in this country today. Every other foodstuff and every other commodity is high in price, gone away above and beyond what we have had here before and the prices of our own products have not been as low for many years.

Why is it that fish, which is such a good foodstuff, has had its value cut in two, and in many cases less than that, when other foodstuffs are beyond the ordinary prices that the ordinary man can absolutely ill afford to pay for them. I say it is unfortunate for the Government that circumstances places them in the position that they have to introduce Estimates that will bring such a large increase in our public expenditure at a time when the whole country is looking to them to live up to the promises that they made when they went before the electorate, namely, that they were going to bring about a reduction of taxation and reform and rectify the many wrongs that they accused the late administration of and that they were going to make good to the people all the discrepancies that took place during the past ten years: and although we on this side of the House were parties with some of those on the other side to those discrepancies, still we do not shirk our share of the responsibility. But the Government of the day should live up to what they have promised the country and that is reform, reduction of taxation and happier conditions for the people to live in than they have had heretofore.

I think I stated before on the floors of this Assembly during this session when the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs brought in a Bill here some two or three weeks ago in reference to certain alterations in connection with his department. One item of which was that a registration fee was to be charged on parcels, which would mean a revenue of some five or six thousand dollars a year. The Minister said, when I asked the question as to what use this money was going to be put, it was going to help pay the Minister's salary. Of course I took the reply in the spirit intended, because I congratulate him on his prospects in answering that this amount mentioned was merely going towards the payment of his salary. Now I have been accused by a section of the press of this country of having got very large sums for work that I performed in a certain department of the civil service. I was the Colonial Secretary of Newfoundland for over four years, two years of which I received two thousand dollars a year and for the balance of that term I was paid two thousand five hundred per year. Well, every member of this House knows that such a salary is inadequate practically to meet the outside demands that they are usually to be met by a man in that position, because a man has got to live up to that position; he has got to perform public duties; he has got to become the target for every demand that is possible from the public and he will have a very small amount left out of his salary of two thousand dollars a year after continuously putting his hand in his pocket to meet the demands that I refer to. Well, I performed the duties and I have not yet heard of anything happening in that department but that the duties were as well done as heretofore or since. After I left that department in 1918, I went to the Department of Militia. I made the voluntary offer to Sir Edward Morris to relinquish the duties of Colonial Secretary for the purpose of establishing and organizing the Militia Department, because I was more in touch with militia matters, as Colonial Secretary, than any other Minister of the Crown. The Department of the Colonial Secretary's was the War Office of the Government from the starting of the war until the time I left it. Everything came through the Colonial Secretary's office and it was only reasonable to suppose that I would know more about military work than any other Minister of the Crown, and I consequently offered voluntary to assume the new duties of Minister of Militia, and undertook to form and establish the department and administer therein to the best of my ability. The salary for the head of that department was made $3,000. Sir Edward Morris suggested $4,000 for the Minister of Militia, because, as he pointed out, that there were certain officials in that department whose pay of rank would give them over $3,-000 a year, and he did not want a Minister at the head of that department with subordinates paid a bigger salary. I have been openly accused in the public press of having been paid a salary that I did not earn I want to say to the House this evening that during my tenure of office as Minister of Militia, during the most trying period of the war, that I went to that office every morning at 10 o'clock and I never left it until 6 and 7 o'clock in the evening, and every hour that I was in that department I was engaged. In fact, I absolutely neglected my own affairs, and left them to others to lock after, because the duties were incumbent upon me as head of that department that they required as much of my time and attention as possible. I may be accused by my opponents of certain transactions in connection with that department, but to which I am not going to refer this evening.

And I hope to have the opportunity before this House closes to refer to some things which were made use of to villify me personally and in my pub lic capacity and to give my side of the story so that a different impression will be left upon the minds of honorable members of Assembly and possibly those who have seen fit to villify me in connection with my work in which I should have had the sympathy and assistance of the whole community and of every man who called himself a British subject and not be subjected to the scorn and ridicule which was handed out for the purpose of political expediency and political revenge. The salaries of the Ministers would not be too high at four thousand dollars but it is unfortunate that those increases should be made at this particular time.. It has created a good deal of discontent. It has created a great lack of confidence in the Government because they think that the time is not opportune for them to put heir hands in the Public Treasury, for the country was never in a worse condition and and to their own salaries forty or fifty per cent more than they were before. As to the pay of the members of this House, well, under ordinary circumstances it would be excusable, but I say this that we should not consider ourselves or our own interests. The example of the members of the House would have a wonderful effect throughout the whole country. The Government has thought it wise to give these increases, and I can quite understand why hon. members who are sitting here week after week and month after month and who are not resident here in St. John's want to live and expect to live at home. These gentlemen are entitled to compensation for the time they are away from their houses attending to their public duties. But heretofore the representatives were content with the old salary and no doubt some felt it a great hardship that adequate provision had not been made to meet their personal obligations whilst rendering services here in the Legislature. It is only reasonable to expect that some consideration must be given to and some increases granted, but if the Government allow the contemplated large in crease they will not make a good impression or set a good example to the smaller officials who just eke out an existence, to the worn-out fishermen who have to live on the paltry sum of fifty dollars given him by the Government during the present high cost of living and the excessive demands made on him. It would be very much to their credit if the Government take a portion of that indemnity and increase the pay of the old age pensioners to one hundred dollars per year and show them that we are prepared to bear the brunt of the hard times as well as everybody else. They would appreciate it and deserve it. The widow of today must be in a terrible condition. If she barely existed in the past on the small mite she got from the Government, well, surely today she must be suffering terribly, trying to purchase the necessaies of life. That is her position and wll contnue to be hers as long as the same dole is passed to her through the Poor Commssioner's Office. Would it not be the proper act of this new Government, styled the Reform Government and of whom so much is expected, to help the poor of the country and come in and increase the amount of money given to the Old Age Pensioners. It would be a very much better policy on their part if they considered them first before they increased their own salaries from one hundred per cent to five hundred per cent in the instance of the Sessional indemnity. But these actions of the Government are excusable in comparison to those who hold seats in the Upper House. These gentlemen are supposed to be men of independence and of means and simply take their seats for the honor and prestige and great power it gives them in passing the legislation of this country. In looking over the gentlemen of the Upper House not one of them requires or needs compensation for their sevices. I have always wondered why the members of the Uppe House were paid at all. The Government are making a gift to those gentlemen of the higher walks of life and who are generally well-to-do, in making them a salary of two hundred and fifty dollars. It is not the proper course to take, rewarding those gentlemen as legislators, which gives them very valuable prestige , if not in this country, well, aboad, and one can see that it is especially an advantage to the business man who might go aboad and be unknown. The fact of being a Legislative Councillor gives him an entree to places to which otherwise he would have no possibility of at taining, and why a salary is voted to them I am at a loss to know and perhaps will never know. If that money given to those who are members of the Upper House was given to the door-keepers and the reporters and the messengers of the House and those engaged about the House, it would be very much better, because of the object, and that is these men are absoutely dependent on it and they work for it and it ought to be given to them in return, so as to be in some way commensurate with the demands of the present time. Take the Hon. President of the Legislative Council. He is an esteemed gentleman of the community and it is generally understood he has lots of money. The other honorable gentlemen are in much the same position and in no way require to have their sessional indemnity increased something like one hundred per cent. The leader of the Government in the Upper House who hertofore performed that work was a member of the Executive Council can well afford to render his services gratuitously. Why make a present to him of five hundred dollars for the session? His work is merely expressing the wishes or the policy of the Government in the Upper House. The duties which are his do not warrant the compensation. A person sitting in the Upper House and who has political influence with the Government should be only too glad to accept the duties of Leader of the Government free of charge. I am sure the gentlemen there do not need the money and have made no request for it and is only another instance of the offhanded manner in which the Government is handling the funds of the country. I understand that one of the officials in the Upper House, the Usher of the Black Rod, Mr. Pinsent, has had his salary cut in two. I know Mr. Pinsent and all about his appoint ment there. His father was for many years the custodian of that office, and the present custodian, when his father became sick took up the office without any addtional stipend. When his father died the Government of the day thought it fitting to give the office to the son of a worthy sire. He is a young man struggling to get along, but the Government comes along and cuts his salary in half and doubles the salary of the members of the Upper House. It would have been better for the Government to have told him that his services were no longer required than insult him in this manner.

I see no provsion for increasing the salaries of the officials of this chamber. If the salary of the leader of the Government, of every minister and deputy-minister should be increased, it is also true of the sergeant at-arms, the pages and the reporters. Many officials have been ignored, and some have been dismissed because they had political sympathies with the late Government. I would advise the Government to go slow in that direction. It was tried before, and a storm of resentment arose so that it was stopped. This civil service commission, upon whose recommendation certain increases are made, I venture to say did not recommend that certain officials be dismissed because of political sympahties. It is only in the last few years that any attempt has been made towards reforms in the salaries of civil servants. When it came to a man's salary in the late Government it mattered not what party which he sympathised with so long as he was rendering good service. The Estimates that are before the House are, I suppose, most important owing to the most extraordinary changes that are taking place. We on this side of the House have a serious duty. I know something of how Estimates are brought down. I sympathize with the private members of the Government who have had no opportunity of doing anything with respect to the Estimates. The criticism that has been going on from this side of the House is for the purpose of showing the country how the public monies are expended, and private members of the Government agree with the attitude although unable to express their approval.

It is not my purpose, Mr. Chairman, to hold up the Estimates. I realize that no amendment can be made from this side of the House, but I also realize that there is a duty on every member that he should rise in his place and protest against any extravagance, no matter how small, in the interest of the country. The Minister of Finance has my sympathy in this matter. His first step as Finance Minister in this House is a serious one. He has to find the Ways and Means to meet the huge expenditure of the country, and it will be necessary for him to have a very optimistic mind. For the sake of the country I hope we will be able to afford it. I hope we will see some reduction in taxation so as to reduce the heavy burdens of the people. We are getting back to post-war days and we want to put the people back to a normal condition. We want to get an adjustment of conditions so as to get the confidence of the country, and of other countries. The Finance Minister may have to go abroad very soon to raise funds to meet our bills, and his success will depend very largely upon the figures that are on this paper.

Money was never tighter than it is today, and Newfoundland will need to borrow more money to put her transport facilities in proper condition if we are to safeguard lives of those travelling on our railway, and if the business of the country is to be carried on. Moreover from a government that has promised such reforms as this, much will be expected. Things are bound to change and we cannot expect to have them remain as rosy as the Government seem to think them now. A time is upon us fraught with unpleasant possibilities, and if our products do not realize the prices that we hope, we will, I fear, enter upon dark days. Even in the darkest of days when bad times overtook us and fish was down to four dollars a quintal, the price of flour was also down and our debt was down in comparison; but today conditions are reversed, and the cost of sustenance has gone up 200 per cent. What we must do is increase the earning power of the country; it has wonderful resources and there never was a time when it was more imperative that they should be developed. I warn the Government to go slowly in increasing expenditures before they know where the money is coming from. There is an old saying that it is the last straw that breaks the camel's back. It is our duty to economize, but, at the same time, to give fair play to those who have to get their living from the exchequer of the country. As the votes come up I hope to have an opportunity of dealing with them individually.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress, and asked leave to sit again on to-morrow.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on tomorrow.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Mr. Speaker, cn motion for adjournment I would like to ask the Hon. Minister of Fisheries what is the program with regard to the salt situation. Does the Government propose to pay the difference between the cost of salt and the price the fishermen are paying for it? An impression has got abroad that no matter what salt costs the fishermen will not have to pay any more than $4 for it. Is the country to understand that the Government is going to pay the difference?

HON. MIN. OF MARINE & FISHERIES:—In reply to the hon. gentleman, I might say that an arrangement has been made whereby the salt that came here by the 'Terra Nova' will be paid for by the fishermen at the rate of five dollars, and whatever the cost is over and above that figure will be paid by the Government. I think the cost of that salt will be about $5.50 or -6.00.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow morning at half past ten of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

SATURDAY, June 26th, 1920

The House met at ten thirty of the clock in the forenoon, pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. MacDonnell gave notice of question.

Hon. the Minister of Justice gave notice that he would on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a bill respecting the appointment of a temporary Commission for the city of St. John's and that he will move that the Rules of the House be suspended with regard to the stages of such Bill.

On motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice the notice respecting the Bill for holding of a Municipal Election in the City of St. John's was withdrawn.

Mr. Walsh asked the Prime Minister to lay on the Table of the House all correspondence between deputies of all departments of the Government (or any department which made recommendations) and the Commissioners appointed by the late Government to adjust the salaries of Civil Servants also all recommendations from deputies of the several departments in relation to increases or otherwise.

Mr. Walsh asked Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs the following questions, viz.:

(1) Is the rumor correct that R. T. McGrath, Inspector of Customs, has been suspended from his position.

(2) The cause of such suspension.

(3)) Whether such suspension was ordered after full and impartial enquiry with all the facts bearing on it.

And to lay on the table of this House all correspondence between the Assistant Collector and Minister in relation to this matter.

Further I give notice that I will ask the Hon. Minister of Finance and Customs if it be his intention to order an investigation into the conduct of affairs of the Customs Department to establish the real cause of the disagreement between the Assistant Collector and Inspector of Customs as to the conduct of their departments and relative positions.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on Supply.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

Mr. McDonnell gave notice of question.

Hon. Minister of Justice gave notice of motion.

MR. SINNOTT:—Mr. Chairman, I have listened with great interest to the various speeches and criticisms that have come from this side of the House. It is not a matter of consolation or of congratulation to read the Estimates brought down by the Hon. Minister of Finance. You are saddling the country with $2,000,000 extra taxation that must come from the fishermen of the country. You have swooped up the large surplus left by the late Government. If Labrador fish is $8.00 per quintal and shore fish $10.00 where are you going to get the revenue to offset the expenditure demanded by the estimates that you have brought in here? I merely ask these questions that you may give some consideration to the seriousness of this matter. There is no doubt that you have feathered your own nest well. The Executive men have increased their own salaries by $1600.00. I will not make any comment on the salaries received by the Prime Minister. They will be between twelve and fifteen thousand dollars. Before I take my seat, Mr. Chairman, I must protest against this enormous raise in salaries, and I hope that the Government will reduce the amount which it is intended should be expended over and above last year by at least 50 per cent.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Chairman, before taking up the matter of the estimates I want to place myself on record as being absolutely opposed to the principle that we are now called upon to adopt in this House. The responsible ministers of this House, because there was an election campaign on in Bay de Verde district, deliberately left their seats in the House with the hope that the business of the House would be railroaded through in their absence. I want to endorse the stand taken by my hon. friend Mr. Higgins yesterday, and I want to say that it isn't because that contest is over that they are going to railroad legislation through this House and add $2,000,000 extra to the burdens of the tax payers of the country. As far as myself is concerned my voice will be raised whenever any attempt is made to pass class legislation. And these estimates are class legislation, because the man who already has a large salary is getting an increase. The old age pensioners and the tide waiters are not thought of. They are being absolutely ignored. I think it improper and indecent to let these estimates go through without making some provision for a greater increase in the amount for old age pensions. I remember the time when hon. members who now hold important positions on the Government side of the House who have fell from grace. I refer to the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries. On more than one occasion I have heard him train his artillery on the incumbent of the position he now holds. On more than one occasion I have heard him throw his Jack Johnstones at the then Prime Minister, Sir Edward Morris. At that time I supported the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries on behalf of my constituency for the erection of cold storage plants for the preservation of bait and to-day we all realize and must realize that hundreds of thousands of dollars are lost annually to the fishermen for want of this necessity. The district that I have the honour to represent loses thousands of dollars annually for want of bait and the same applies to Burgeo and LaPoile and Burin and other places that I am familiar with, and gentlemen on the other side of the House are fully coignant of the fact that the want of bait is a serious handicap to the fishermen of the whole Island. Not only the men who follow the bank fishery but the shore fishery as well. I have seen as high as twenty vessels lying up in Placentia for want of bait in the height of the fish boom, now what are we going to do to eliminate this condition of affairs? Are we making any serious attempt to improve these conditions? to increase the revenue and earning power of our people. We are doing absolutely nothing, and I take this opportunity while these estimates are being presented to appeal to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and I am sure that if he makes up his mind that we are to have a grant of $50,000 for the construction of a bait freezing plant the vote will go through even if he meets with serious objection in the Government because he would have a united Opposition. Any legislation for the benefit of the people generally will have my strongest support. I trust that these few remarks will have some effect on the Hon. Minister. A few days ago we voted the sum of $50,000 so that the price of salt would be kept down and there was no strong protest from this side of the House but the farmers and others of this country should not be called on to pay their share of this tax because if the Dept. of Shipping had been handled properly and the many warnings of Sir John Crosbie and the Leader of the Opposition had been heeded there would be no necessity of voting this money and it could be used for the establishment of cold storage plants, and even now although we have walked into the pitfall they will eliminate to some extent the indignation and criticism if they will vote a further $50,000 for bait plants, and this is a fifty thousand that may pay for itself in a few years a thousand fold if properly handled. It will increase the earning power of the fisherman 100 to 1000%. Herring may be found in abundance this year and may not be again found for some time. If we had bait plants we could easily stow away some for a rainy day and the same applies to squid and caplin. It can be said of you Mr. Coaker that you made an honest attempt and I trust that you will take these few remarks in the spirit of sincernty. It is perhaps already in the mind of the Minister to erect cold storage plants and I am prepared to give him all the credit. I want none. If he comes in here and votes $50,000 for the erection of bait freezing plants around the Island then I am prepared to give him full and complete credit for it all. If I find that these matters are to be further neglected, I for one, from my place in this House, and on my standing in the district I have the honor to represent, or any district I may be in touch with, I will be fully prepared to give just condemnation, where on the other hand, I would give credit and approval, if I see an honest attempt made to better conditions. I am sorry that the Hon. the Prime Minister, the Colonial Secretary, and the other positions that august gentleman fills, is not here in i shseat emtrPh ieeady. , shrd hr h his seat in this house. I wonder if another political drama is about to be staged, and whether the men who are to play the leading roles are being rounded up this morning. Now that the election in Bay-de-Verde is over, the Hon. the Prime Minister out of common courtesy ought to be here; it is his bounden duty to be here in this House to listen to the criticisms that will be made. I do not feel like hitting a man when he is absent, and it is impossible for me to do my duty to the district which I have the honor to represent, to do my duty to myself, to my associates on this side of the House, or to the thousands of people all over the country who are dependent upon us to express the feeling within them with regard to many public matters, when the Prime Minister is absent from this House. I say for these reasons I would like to see the Prime Minister in his seat in the House today, but I would not be at all surprised that after the criticisms which I intend to make of the Prime Minister and his conduct that I may take up a paper on tomorrow, or Monday or Tuesday, and read where a foul and contemptible attack was made in the House of Assembly upon the Prime Minister by one Walsh, in the absence of the Prime Minister from the House. Well then, why is he absent from the House? I am predicting that this is the kind of hooligan journalism we will be treated to by a section of the Press, and by a small section of the Scribblers. I may say that in justice to all but one of the newspapers in this town, and to all but two or three of the scribllers, and these are on the one paper. Before the closing of the House this session I would like to pay tribute to some of my bitterest political opponents who have been manly enough to deal with issues, and not with personalities, and a better day will come in this colony, a day will dawn when we will have purity in politics; when we will have true brotherhood irrespective of party politics; a day will dawn when the class of man who is now in politics will not find it necessary to retire, and the class of man who is not in politics today will find it quite possible for him to be able to offer his services to the country without running the risk of having his home desecrated by the class of journalistic crooks and de generates I now refer to, and I must compliment some of the members of the Government for having to a large extent relegated into oblivion the class of men I refer to. I regret that the Prime Minister is not here. However, the remarks I intend to make will not be made with regard to the individual man. In addressing that august seat, the Prime Minister, and Colonial Secretary, and other Commissioners which he represents, and for which he is well paid, I want it to be understood that it is not R. A. Squires as R. A. Squires, that I am referring to.

In his manifesto, placed before the people of the country last autumn, there were very many promises made, some of them placed there, I dare say with the intention, if conditions permitted, of carying them out, but others were put there for the purpose of thowing dust in the eyes of the people, and why I am jusified in coming to that conclusion is, because of the Estimates that we are called upon to pass in this House. In these Estimates we are increasing taxation to a large extent. We are voting two million dollars more than ever before for the Civil Service, and in doing so we are increasing the burden of every householder in the country by forty dollars, and we are doing nothing in any way to help them to meet that extra burden. I asked a question in this House, no, it was outside this House that I asked it, but I repeated it in moving the adjournment of the House that evening, and it had to do with hospital accommodation. In conversation with Mr. Bartlett, who has charge of this particular important branch of the Civil Service, I was told that there were eight hundred applications from the different outports of the country, and no doubt Mr. Chairman, some from your own district, for admission to the General Hospital. In the campaign last Autumn hospitals played a very important part. Personally, if our Government had been sustained and I found that the party with which I was associated would not handle this important matter in a straightforward manner and make provision in the Estimates for the expenditure of sufficient money to warrant further extension of the General Hospital, or better still, the erection of Outport Cottage Hospitals, if I found that the party in any way tried to sidetrack this matter, I would be prepared to leave the party and go over to the Opposition, or take an independent seat in this House. I make that statement in all seriousness. As true as God is over me, if an attempt was made to sidetrack this, one of the most important matters in the island, I would no longer be prepared to associate myself with men who would not do their plain duty. It is now the plain duty of the Government to see that sufficient money is voted for the further extension of the Hospital accomodations. When the past Government went out of office they left a fat surplus of three million dollars. Surely out of part of that money provision could be made in the Estimates for the erection of two or three outport Cottage Hospitals, or the further extension of the General Hospital in St. John's, and while speaking on this matter I would like to endorse what was said here a few days ago by one of my colleagues with regard to paying for treatment received in the General Hospital. It should be made absolutely imperative that any man who can afford it should pay for treatment there, and I take it that the great majority of our people who are in a position to do so, who are blessed with a large share of this world's goods, resent the idea of going to the General Hospital and receiving treat ment for which they do not pay. I think it is a reflection on the general status of our country to permit such a state of affairs to continue any long er.

I notice in reading the Hospital Report that practically 50 per cent of the patients admitted to the General Hospital come from the city. Now the city of St. John's has its population of some 40,000 and the Island has its population of some 240,000 people. well, then, 200 000 from the outports of the Island have only the same amount of accommodation in the hospital as 40,000 from the city. I do not blame the people in the city, but I commend them; and I want to commend the representatives of the city who have been wide awake enough and energetic enough, and who have been sympathetic enough to their constituents to see that at the expense of all the people of all the other districts that their people have been looked after in the General Hospital. I do not lay any blame to any officials in the hospital because it is their duty to only attend to the patients as they are brought in there, but I do lay blame and I lay blame justly now to the Liberal-Reform administration, who are prepared to vote two millions of dollars to increase our own salaries in this House and to increase the salaries of those who have been already receiving magnificent remuneration for the work they have to perform, and who are prepared to vote large salaries for those who have been used for political purposes; but they are not prepared to vote an additional dollar so that serious illnesses and serious epidemics and untold agony and poverty may be eliminated. Let any hon. gentleman on the other side of the House go out and ring up Mr. Bartlett, the gentleman who is in charge of that branch, and ask him if it is correct that he told me that he had 800 applications from people in different parts of this Island who are suffering from all kinds of afflictions placed upon them by the Almighty Hand. Ask Mr. Bartlett if that statement is correct, and, if it is correct, then ask yourselves and ask your consciences if this is any justification for the two million dollars of an increase —if it is any justification for increasing the salaries of Ministerial jobs by $1600, and if it is any justification for increasing my salary, perhaps the poorest man in this House, from $200 to $1,000. No. I say it is no justification and we should be prepared to give our true Christian sympathy to those people who are afflicted by the Almighty God. I have been in the homes and lived in the homes of the poor. I sprang from poor stock so far as dollars and cents were concerned, but that is the only way the word poor could be attributed to any of mine, and having sprung from the ranks of those who earn their bread by the sweat of their brow, I do know what I am talking about. I know what conditions are like, and I dare say that some of my associates on this side and on the other side of the House, could paint vivid pictures of what conditions are like, especially in the remote and isolated parts of this Dominion. In the district that I have the honour to represent we have a medical doctor at Trepassey; we have no other between Trepassey and St. Mary's. At St. Mary's we have a doctor who, I understand, is about to leave there and be transferred to St. John's. From there we come to Placentia, a distance of about two hundred miles of a coastline. At Placentia we have an old gentleman who has been practising medicine there for over forty years, and let it be said to his credit and to the credit and liberality of the people of Placentia, that altho' Dr. McKendrick is almost the only man not a Roman Catholic in the place—he is a Presbyterian by religious persuasion—that he is one of the best men and the whitest men I have ever met in my life. Though aged and infirm he is still practising medicine. He is suffering from a serious malady which is sapping his energy, but despite that fact he goes on sick calls today. I do not care who the other doctor is that goes to Placentia he is not wanted there until the coppers are laid on the eyes and the lid laid on the coffin of Dr. McKendrick. Good medical men have tried to work up a practice at Placentia. We had Dr. Chisholm who went there and was starved out of it. We had Dr. McDonald, who is now here in the city, and he met with the same result; and we had Dr. Lynch, now of Bell Island, he also had to leave there. I say that this speaks volumes for the liberality and fair-mindedness and true Christian spirit of the good people of Placentia and it will give this House an idea of what this poor old man can do.

We have no other doctor in the district until you go to Marystown, a distance of some 250 miles of a coastline. The doctor there has all the work he can perform without going on sick calls in this bay. The people in the bay have been looking for a doctor but no man could be found to go there. When sickness occurs in the homes, perhaps forty, fifty, sixty or may be a hundred miles, from a place I will leave it to yourselves to picture what conditions are like. A man goes to the nearest telegraph office to wire the member of the district or the official in charge of the Public Health Department when a member of his family is suffering from a disease which he knows nothing about and there is nobody around sufficiently qualified to make any attempt of diagnosing the trouble. In some cases it may be some serious disease that may spread and wipe out valuable lives and cause untold agony and suffering. I say all this would be eliminated if we had an outport Cottage Hospital erected in some section of the district that would be most suitable to the greater number of people. And what applies to the district of Placentia and St. Mary's applies to almost all the other districts in the Island; I feel sure that it applies to the large, long and isolated stretch of coastline in the district of St. Barbe. And what is true of St. Barbe is true of all the other districts. This is a matter that should be taken up by a commission. We have had numerous commissions and, no doubt, we will have some more before the close of this session of the House and before the opening of the next, if there is going to be any next, and surely no more important work could be performed by any commission and I hope that the Government will take this suggestion. They should appoint a commission of men irrespective of party affiliations, a commission prepared to give their time and talents in trying to devise some means whereby this unfortunate state of affairs, that I have just mentioned, can be wiped out. I believe that all the men who constitute the Government party in this House have an honest desire to eliminate those hardships, and I believe that it only needs the painting of the picture in its true colors to the hon. gentlemen who occupy seats in this House to have sufficient influence brought to bear so as to be able to persuade the Government to adopt these suggestions. Now, I am mapping out a programme in my few remarks this morning, that, if taken into consideration and acted upon, will be a strong lever in bringing about the return of your Government; and I am mapping out a programme that if not acted upon, but relegated to the background, the lever will be used, and used to advantage, with force and consistency by hon. members who may oppose you whatever time another election takes place. Your inaction and nonsupport and lack of sympathy is bound to re-act, and I would advise you to take time by the forelock and do not allow this, your first session, to come to a close, with out having treated those matters which are of vital importance to the whole country, and without having given consideration that each and every item that I have referred to deserves. The vote of two millions of dollars may be justified to some extent, if we were making any serious attempt to give justice and fair play to those of our population who feel that they are no longer able to earn bread, and to those of our population, who through circumstances in a great number of cases, have been reduced to poverty.

I referred to this matter on a previous occasion, but when I made the reference the Minister of Marine and Fisheries was absent and I still have some confidence despite what I hear and see; I still have some confidence in that honorable Minister for some sympathy and some justice for the poor people of this country. If he is prepared to do that here is an opportunity for some sympathy to be displayed by him in a practical way. The increase to the widows and orphans under the Estimates is insignificant; and to do any good to the poor widows who are struggling along and may be trying to support three or four children who are helpless, on the paltry sum of five or six dollars per quarter. Surely a part of the nest-egg left the Minister of Finance by the late Government ought to be contributed to the widows and orphans and increase their miserable pittance at least two hundred per cent. I would like to ask the honourable members of this House what is it they can purchase for the paltry sum of twenty dollars per year? Some of these widows are absolutely dependent upon their neighbor for their existence, and if the conditions prevailing now throughout the whole country are considered, the neighbor who has all to do for himself and family will not be able to render any assistance, and there are numerous cases in this country where little children are unfed and unclothed. There are numerous cases in this country, not confined to any particular section of it either, where this is to be found. Why you need not leave the city of St. John's to find numerous cases where the people are in absolute poverty. I mean the widows and orphans. It is true there are some charitable institutions here but these are not all together of themselves able to cope with the large demands that are made upon them from time to time, and it is incumbent upon this House, especially now, when you come in here and ask the members to give their support to an addition of two million of dollars in the Estimates. I say it is indecent, absolutely indecent, and each and every individual member of this House knows and every individual member of the community knows that this is so especially so when you ask us to increase our own salaries and that of the Prime Minister from twenty-four hundred dollars to I do not know what—that all depends upon the number of jobs he will have, and, in the face of this to ignore the poor widow inflicted by the Almighty. whose husband perhaps may be one of the men who played a prominent part in making it possible for a roof to remain over this Assembly, or ovor any other institution in this country. I say it is a reflection on the honesty, and charitableness, and Christian spirit of which we should have evidence in this Chamber, and it should be found to a greater extent in those Ministers who are now able to enjoy all the luxuries they personally require and bye and bye, in the dying hours of this Assembly, they will make another appeal to their constituents and say what they will do when they get back, but it will be a repetition of this present camouflage in the eyes of the public. We are passing through an era that is the most epoch-making in the history of this Island, we are passing through a period which is the same the world over —during which we are trying to get back to pre-war conditions. The road is rough and on it difficulties will be found, and also, many obstacles, and it is only by wisdom that these obstacles can be overcome. What are we doing for the men, who, by their patriotism and devotion to duty and heroic response to the call of the Empire, to use the words of a greater man than myself, and perhaps greater than any man in this House, "Made it posible to have Newfoundland placed on the map of the world." What are we doing for them? We know what we are doing to the country, and we know what we are doing to the people, who, in just indignation, gave public expression to their feelings some time ago here. There has been gross indifference and criminal negligence towards those who fought and bled for us. I had hoped in the opening days, on the first day this House opened, when the Speech from the Throne was being replied to by the Address and when it was moved and seconded by our two gallant friends on the other side with magnificent addresses, for something, and I made up my mind that the Returned Soldiers had two good champions on the Government side of the House, but I am somewhat disappointed, and I find that despite all that I expected from the Liberal-Reform Government that what had been done for the Returned Soldiers by the expenditure of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars is now cut off in the Estimates. So this is the treatment that is handed out to the men who were satisfied to make untold sacrifices themselves. It does not always follow that because certain individuals who were part of the Newfoundland Regiment have been elevated to a higher plane, it does not follow because some of them have secured positions of emolument in the Civil Service, that these returned men are being done justice. Go to the rank and file, to the father whose eyes are still dimmed with tears and the poor mother and sister whose eyes also well up with tears because of the loss of their sons and brothers during the war. I can cite cases in my district where three and four have gone from the one house in defense of this country. I can cite cases where men have gone over there and bled in the heat of the day, and who have fought on Gallipoli, in France and Flanders, but when they returned how do they stand? Because of the criminal neglect and indifference of the Liberal-Reform Government they have been compelled to make their homes in a foreign country. As I stated the other day, I met one of the best men who served in the Naval Reserve, in the person of a Mr. Wareham, from Placentia. He has a brother well up in the religious life of the country. This man is well qualified for any position, because of his ambition and industry. This gentleman friend of mine had political pull with my opponents, and I did not turn him down because he was politically opposed to me when he came to me for assistance. My attitude about it is: that when the last ballots were cast the whole matter is closed until the next election. I have always treated my opponent with the same courtesy and respect as I treat my friends. This man made application for a position on one of the steamers that are coming out here. I do not know which one it will be. He went around from door to door of each department so as to speak of the Civil Service, and I met him after this and he said, "Walsh I have bought a ticket for New York, and when the next European War breaks out you will have to fight for yourselves, and tell Mr. Squires, or any of his associates, that he will have to go over and do the fighting. We are not going to do it." He cannot be blamed one bit for this. Men like this man have gone to the United States to forswear their allegiance to the British Crown. This is a serious state of affairs brought about by the criminal neglect of the Government. This indignation has echoed from the Atlantic to the Pacific and the day will come when the political heeler will not be able to come in and take charge of the men who have honestly and bravely fought in defense of our country. It may be said that this is political criticism but that is not the case. If you are prepared to give justice and equality to those men you will have my absolute support, and I will say that any criticism that may emanate from this side of the House against any vote of this nature I will resent, and so, before it is too late, and now before the Estimates pass the House, let this matter, that I have referred to, be given serious consideration in the Estimates. I have referred to the Old Age Pensions, the Regular Pensions, the Cold Storage, Outport Hospitals, the Widows and Orphans, and now I am speaking about the Returned Soldiers. These are matters of vital importance, and matters which the community expect to be attended to. As the Leader of the Opposition was not present I will re-state, for his information now, what I have said. But I do not anticipate any objection from him on this matter. I will support an increased vote for the Returned Soldiers, and if the Government are prepared to come in here and augment this one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, which has been taken from them, with another one hundred and fifty thousand, I will give my wholehearted support to the measure, and if there is any opposition to that from this side of the House I will strenuously oppose it. And my reason for this support is because of the fact that there are numerous cases where the loss of a son or sons to a father not alone caused him a great shock but the death of them has cast a sorrow upon those fathers that will incapacitate them for the balance of their days.

I know that from personal observation with several of my friends. There is one case of a gentleeman living near Freshwater, Placentia Bay. He had three sons who volunteered their services to their country. One was missing after the July drive, and instantly another brother took his place, and the sadness was all the greater when on the very day of the signing of the Armistice the second son went down. The father is in very good health physically, but what consolation has the Gvoernment given to that father? I say it is the duty of the Governmen of this country if we are going in any way to show a just appreciation of the great services rendered by the young manhood of the country, if we are going to show a just sympathy to their dependents, to see that they get their rights. Now that the agitation is sarted in the proper way and by the proper men it is our duty to stand by these men. Before departing from this particular subject I would like to read a satement from the Conadian press, dated June 19th.

Now, as I said, Mr. Chairman, in the early part of my speech on behalf of the returned men, this is one of the courses that we could adopt The Hon. Minister of Justice dealt yesterday with how legislative matters are dealt with in Canada. Now I refer to how Canada is dealing with her returned men. Appoint a committee, but do not make that committee a political tool. This statement from the Canadian Press says further:

Now, Mr. Chairman, it has been found necessary in the Dominion of Canada to make large increases for the returned men. The conditions in Canada are somewhat similar to what we have at home. There is absolutely no justifiiation for the attitude of the Government toward the men who were spoken of as "better than the best." I would like to make a strong plea that the vote to the re- u nedtrmeehbn gaevoah mf mf m m turned men be augmented by $160,000, and I feel sure this will be done when the Government are convinced that the Opposition and the Government are one in their sympathy for the dependents of the gallant heroes.

Mr. Chairman, whilst we were prepared to come in here and ask for these enormous increases for the several departments, whilst we were pre pared to come in here and increase the salary for the depattment heads from $2400 to $4000, and the deputy heads to $3600, in the case of men who have motor cars and swell homes we have absolutely ignored the poor official no matter what his station or occupation in life. He is left just where we found him "at the foot of the mountain brow." The hon. the member in charge of the Estimates has stated that the Estimates as far as the increases were concerned were based on the recommendation of the commission. We find now that this is true only in so far as it effects the men who are already well paid.

When we adjourned for lunch I was endeavouring to point out to this House, and to the country, what I consider to be a discrimination, and a large and serious discrimination, in several of the votes that we are asked to pass, in these Estimates, for a certain section of our people. Whilst we are prepared to ignore absolutely a certain section, which is just as important, to me, and just as important if not more so, to the country generally, and I wish to emphasize the fact, that any legislation that is attempted to pass through this House, or that may be attempted in any House, which savors of class legislation, is unworthy of the support and sympathy of a great many of the mem bers of this House. I tried to point out the serious lack of consideration that has been given to some of the most important branches of our industries by men we expected more from.

Now let us take the Department of Agriculture and Mines. This is a department over which I had control for a short period, and, I think, in all fairness, that every individual member of this House will admit that my time in that office was not of sufficient length, and that the conditions under which I was laboring, when I took up the performance of my duties there, were not such to warrant the improvement that I would like to see in that particular branch of the Civil Service. With regard to its agricultural efforts I would like to say that I do not pose as an agriculturist in any sense of the word, but I have sufficient knowledge to be absolutely convinced that the expenditure of thirty-five thousand dollars of the people's money by a man who represents nobody, a man who was not elected by the people, and I venture to predict will never occupy a seat in the Chambers of this Asembly, is not right. It is criminal to hand over to that man for expenditure, as he thinks fit, thirty-five thousand dollars of the people's money; and I also venture to predict that there will not be thirty-five cents return for it. This Model Farm will be used as a place where the political friends of the Government will be able to go and get a particular brand of: ram, or cat, or hen; but so far as the people of Bonavista Bay, or Trinity Bay, or any other outport are concerned, there will be no return, there will not be five cents worth of value come back for this expenditure. If you had taken that money and added it to the salary of the poor, added to the dole handed out to the widow and the orphan there might have been some excuse, and I for one would have endorsed such a step and hold over Dr. Campbell's fad for a Model Farm until such a time as the country had an opportunity to recuperate from the stress of the times we are now passing thru', and the worse times I see in the near future, unless the Divine hand of Providence intercedes to save us. I say, that in consideration of the extraordinary times we are passing through, it ill becomes any honourable gentleman to come in here and ask us to throw away thirty-five thousand dollars for such a purpose. The Minister of Finance and Customs seems to be pleased. Perhaps if Dr. Campbell had been a defeated colleague of mine I might be delighted too, and I might be prepared to support this movement if it would be the means of getting me back to power some time later, but not when we are facing the serious conditions we are up against today, not when we see nothing ahead but bankruptcy, unless conditions change and change quickly unless, as I stated before, it is a deliberate attempt to scuttle the ship, unless that is the case, there is a lack of that wise legislation that has been in evidence ever since we have had Responsible Government in this country. Even if this thirty-five thousand dollars had been distributed fairly and equally in the purchase of seeds to be distributed throughout the different districts, we would have a return, and a direct return, and we would make good interest on the thirty-five thousand dollars. I don't know what conditions are like in Bonavista Bay and Trinity Bay, with regard to seed potatoes, whether all the poor people there receive potatoes. I see Mr. Targett smiling, but I don't know whether his constituents will not find themselves up against it.

MR. TARGETT:—Yes, we have potatoes in Trinity Bay.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Targett says that they have potatoes. That is a happy position, and I hope it is correct, but I have my doubts. I know, and I have it on the authority of the Minister of Agriculture and Mines, that they have had numerous requests from all parts of the Island for encouragement of seed potatoes, and what they decided to d owas to have these potatoes supplied through the Relieving Officer. I don't know whether any hon. member's district was supplied through that channel, but I protested as far as my constituency was concerned. I would not have them dragged down to the level of paupers by having any such encouragement given them in that manner. Next Autumn will tell the tale, when the crops are taken from the ground, and I hope the condition of affairs will not exist which does exist today, when the poor people are called upon to pay forty and fifty cents a gallon for potatoes, and I predict that fifty per cent. of the people, and that is a large percentage, will not be able to take out of the ground sufficient to tide them over the Winter. Well, then, it will be poor encouragement for these people to take up a paper and read where there are a half dozen Short Horn Cows, or Bulls, or a half dozen Short Tail Cows or Bulls, on Dr. Campbell's Model Farm. If this suits the hon. members of the Government it is none of my business, and if it suits any gentleman that is his own business; but I want to tell you that it will not suit or satisfy the constituency I have the honor to represent in this House, and it is because I know that it is an absolute injustice to these people who have to toil from morning to night, from daylight to dark, it is because of that, that from my proper place in this Assembly, I want to raise my voice in protest against any such extravagant juggling of the public funds. I only wish that I could use stronger words.

MR. SAMSON:—Will the poor people receive potatoes?

MR. WALSH:—If you have anything to say to me, say it so that I can hear it, or get up when I have finished and air your views on the matter. Now that we are seriously handicapped with regard to our staple industry, now that conditions that had prevailed in this country, have changed, now that our staple industry, that was selling a few months ago at fourteen and fifteen dollars a quintal, is down to five dollars a quintal, now that we have no positive and absolute proof that it is not going to remain at that figure, it is our duty to look around, it is the duty of this House, it is the duty of each and every member of this House to look around and see if we cannot find some auxiliary industry to assist the fishery.

I, for one, am a firm believer that if we got any encouragement from any administration, or if any honest attempt was made by any Government, that we can unfold countless thousands of dollars of wealth never before touched; I refer to our mineral wealth. And, as I stated on other occasions in this House, when referring to that particular branch of our industries, I speak with experience. Take any of the mines that were ever worked in this country and go back to the history of how they started and you will find that there is not one of them but was found by accident, absolutely found by accident. The old copper mine in Little Bay, down in Notre Dame Bay, was found by accident by an old gentleman who lived some four or five miles away from Little Bay, who was up shooting. I do not know what class of game he was after, but I know that he was climbing over the hillside when he uncovered the moss from the mineral, and, gentlemen within the hearing of my voice, now know this is absolutely correct, no matter how they might smile at the statement. And the same applies to the other list of mines that were discovered here. Take the Bell Island mines, the richest mines of that particular brand of mineral in the world, a mine that Germany would pay millions and billions of dollars to get control of. Some of the ore of that mine, so we were led to believe, played an important part in the assassination and murder of lots of our own men in the nature of German bullets. People in this country fifty years ago used to use the ore at Bell Island as ballast for their boats.

Now I do not want to indict the present Government any more than the past Government, but at the pres ent time when the country is crying out for the opening up of other industries and when numbes of our young men are packing their bags and boxes and when every train and every boat that leaves here carries our manhood away to other countries, well, is it not our duty and the duty of this House of Assembly to try and open up other industries that would be the means of keeping our men at home. These men by their daily aoil are building up the institutions of other countries. A large percentage of them will never come back. There are as many Newfoundlanders now in the State of Massachusetts as there are living in the whole of this country. This was brought about by our own people having been driven from their own country and the Liberal-Roform Government are prepared te come in and continue the driving out. We are not making the slightest attempt to keep our people at home. I would like to see in thos Estimates a vote for $50,000 for a start and to have some reliable and competent man engaged to go into the hillside or the valley where there is any indication that mineral may bee found and make an honest attempt of finding out our mineral possibilities. Geologists in the past have reported favorably on the mineral condition of this Island, but because of the fact that we have had no Geological Surveyor in recent years, capitalists are shy about coming in to invest their money and because of unscrupulous characters who have gone outside this country with nothing but a map in their possession; they went on Wall Street and other streets and tried to sell properties that never existed. Such characters have gone to Canada and the United States and it is because of the numerous black eyes given this country by fakirs, capitalists are shy about coming here with their money. I am glad to notice that provision is made in the Estimates for a Geologist. One of the things that I did do while I was in that department was to open up correspondence with at least three geologists, with a view to having a good man, a man who will thoroughly understand the geology of the western countries, and I hope that when the Government decides to make the selection that they will not engage some gentleman who has spent most of his professional career in an Orient al college, but I hope that it will be some man who has had some experience in the Continent of North America and I hope will be some man who is not too old to get out into the country, and I further express the hope that he will be staffed with men, patriotic, honest men, not political heelers from any side of politics, but men who have an honest desire to try and do something that will be for the betterment of conditions for themselves, their families and their countrymen. And if such a vote was placed in the Estimates to try and explore a section of the country this year, $50,000 probably would be too much, but say $20,000 for a start, I would gladly give it all the encouragement and all the assistance I can. I might say that I have some little information about different sections of the Island, and I would be only to pleased to assist that geologist and assist that department, if I am convinced that an honest attempt is being made to try and uplift our common country. I would like to speak on that particular branch of our industries for quite a long time, but I do not want to in any way obstruct the business of this House. The mineral branch of our industries is a subject that I could easily interest the members of this House in for quite a period.

If the Government are prepared to throw politics to the wind I am prepared to give all the assistance I am able to this particular branch of our industries. I have to express again my regret of the absence of the leader of the House. I cannot for the life of me understand how this honourable gentleman can expect his estimates to receive the consideration they deserve if after being away campaigning down in Bay de Verde for the past week he still vacates his seat this afternoon. Transportation is another important matter which occupied a prominent place in the forecast of the Government policy. What have they done? What have the Government done despite the fact of voting two millions of dollars extra? What have they done with regard to it? The echo answers not. The railway has not been touched and that is a most important part of our transportation. And the Prime Minister intimated to the House some few evenings ago that no attempt would be made to bring down any legislation relative thereto this session. The Minister of Posts and Telegraphs from his place here in the House warned the country that our railroad was not safe to travel over and he is there now and he can contradict if he can. He himself from his official place in this House warned the people that our railroad was not fit for a human being to travel over. Now what has the present Government done to remedy this condition of affairs? It has been in power for eight months. We have been in session for just two months and the session is now in its dying hours and no legislation has been brought down in this House. I think it is an unfortunate state of affairs. I can quite agree with the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs that the conditions are serious with regard to our railroad and when the conditions are such why does not the Government tackle the problem and bring down legislation and if necessary vote some millions of dollars to effect the necessary repairs of re-construction to the railroad. Now is the time to tackle that work. It would be to your credit to do so but you are not big enough, not honest enough to deal with this matter and deal with it promptly. We heard a lot of criticism during the last campaign with regard to the Reids, the railroad and the coastal boats but I am afraid it is the same old story and the public are beginning to think it is the same old story. That kind of criticism may be able to send you back to the House but we are getting tired of that kind of stuff and it would be to your credit to make an honest attempt to safe-guard the lives of our people. This is a most serious matter and I would not wish to be in the shoes of the Honourable Minister of Posts and Telegraphs if an accident occurred on the railroad which I hope to God wont and hope it will not while the Minister is in power or even before the Government tackles the problem. We must expect that the people will realise that that statement of the Minister's was not made with honesty of purpose. Now I would not believe that the honourable gentleman was not honest. But what I do find fault with is that he and his party does not take some steps to do something. There is another matter of vital importance and I would like to know what attitude the Government intends to take with regard to the signatures of fifteen thousand people all over the Island. This is the matter of Prohibition. Prohibition occupied a prominent place in the manifesto of the leader of the Government and the question of Prohibition occupies at the present time a prominent place in the conversation of lots of places all over the country and if reports are correct occupied a prominent place in the campaign just closed in the district of Bay de Verde and it is to the effect that motor cars were commissioned with the necessary cheer and it was given out in cases. I make the statement for what it is worth. A whole lot of people say so and a whole lot of people believe it. But what about the fifteen thousand persons who petitioned this House for a modification of the Act and that matter bears heavily upon a certain class of people. It does not bear on some. There are men in this House who can get as many scripts as they want. And that is no secret to the members of this House. I am not one of these. There is a lot of people here who can get them when they wish and in any manner they like as the Minister of Finance well knows. But what about this petition to the House?

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—I would like to ask the honourable the member if he infers that the members of this House got prescriptions from my Department or from me personally?

MR. WALSH:—I do not accuse you of issuing them. You can get them though. That is a fine condition of affairs to exist and if the statement of the Minister is correct it is a direct violation of the Act and it should not be allowed.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—I would like to point out to the honourable member that I can get them when I am sick.

MR. WALSH:—Certainly you can get ten bottles.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—I can get ten bottles when I am sick.

MR. WALSH:—That is camouflage. You are not going to put that down the throats of the public.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—No members on this side issued scripts for the Government.

MR. WALSH:—Yes, Dr. Campbell does all the issuing.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—He issues them in his official capacity.

MR. WALSH:—The Minister of Agriculture and Mines is well able to look after the sick list.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—So is Dr. Jones.

MR. WALSH:—Now that this has been brought up by the Minister of Finance I would like to tell the House that it would be well for the country if a few of those who have the handling of scripts handle the matter with such care an dthought for those who are the victims as does Dr. Jones. I make this statement without fear of contradiction that I have never in my life asked or received a script for any amount of liquor from the Doctor and I am able to bear that out on oath if necessary. Now coming back to the subject, it is not good enough to ignore the requests of fifteen thousand persons with regard to the modification of the present Act The plebiscite was granted the country on a far less number of signatures and the honorable gentlemen who represent the Northern districts know how difficult it is to get this stimulant under present iniquitous Act, and they know that material is manufactured which is not fit for human consumption. Why it is their duty to come to the rescue of their constituents and do away with the manufacture of moon-shine in the different sections of the Island and these representatives have not raised their voices in protest despite the fact that these representatives have time after time presented petitions on behalf of their constituents for a modification of the Act. Perhaps they have inside information from the Prime Minister that the necessary remedy will be effected. But still why not have they made some protest with regard to this matter. The peoples of this town and every other town and village are dissatisfied with the present Act as it is now carried out. If we are to have Prohibition, let us in God's name have it properly, and not have this hypocrisy carried on by this House and the member sof this House and outside this House. There are nu merous men who, after the exertions of the day, now have no stimulant to take, while those sitting around us here may have. There is no considera tion for the man who was always used to having aglass of port before retiring. It is poor consolation to him to know that Mr. Walsh, Mr. Brownrigg or Mr. Squires had his drink before turning in. But words are not strong enough to denounce the man who used it and injured his home or the public. We hoped that before this session this matter would be taken up and not winked out of sight. Let a bill be brought in for a modification and close up the Controller's, or the manufacture and importation should be absolutely prohibited. One thing or the other should be done. A great majority of the people of the country want a modification of the Prohibition Act. They are not satisfied with present conditions. The people say that in the manifesto of R. A. Squires we were promised a modification of the Prohibition Act, and in this respect at least he should carry out his manifesto

There is another matter that I must refer to before taking my seat. Some time ago I asked the Hon. the Leader of the House if he intended to bring in any labor legislation. I would say to the Hon. the Leader of the House that this is too important a mattter to give to any of the present departments of the Government. You should create a new Department. Mr. Chairman, I would ask you to take a look behind the curtain and see the situation with regard to labor. Go down on the wharves, on Bell Island in the mines, go insid ethe factories. Look at the litttle children trying to support the invalid mother or father. Look at the unsanitary conditions. I drew the attention of this House some time ago to another accident on Bell Island. It is a matter of fact that men have been accidentally discovered dead on Bell Island; their boots or clothes dug up. And this is because we have not the proper Government inspection. I call to the attetntion of the Prime Minister and the Minister of Justice that a com petent man should be appointed to look into this matter and try to remedy con ditions. Shortly after taking office of Minister of Agriculture and Mines I went to Bell Island and discussed this matter with the authorities of both Companies, and the Companies are as one with the Government in any effort to preserve the minds and lives of their employees. Whatever party I as sociate myself with, if a department of Labor is not created before the next general election, it will be one of the agreements between me and the party that such a department be created, and it will not be a political dumping ground. Now, Mr. Chairman, there are some other gentlemen here who have a word or two to say, and I will defer any further criticism for a later date. The remarks that I have made here otday have been for the informa tion of the gentlemen, the salaried gen tlemen, who saw fit to vacate their seats during the Bay-de-Verde political campaign.

MR. FOX:—Mr. Chairman, I was ab sent from the House when the Hon. Minister tabled the Estimates. In this connection let me say that the cam-paign in Bay-de-Verde District was one that reflects no discredit on the Op position, and, so far as I know, no dis credit on the Government. It was a hard fight and a clean fight ,one that put a lot of nervousness in the hearts of the Government members. We may not have won, but I take it we gave the Government a run for their money. I Wish, Mr. Chairman, to tender my sin-cere congratulations to the returned member. In the downfall of John C. Puddester the Opposition and the coun try have lost a valuable man. During the entire campaign he fought, early and late. He was on the job every minute. The Hon. gentlemen oppos-ite smile at my remarks.

HON. MIN. OF PUBLIC WORKS: —Mr. Chairman, I have noticed that every time any preson on this side of the House smiles the Hon. member takes it as an insult. Surely it hasn't come to it that we can't smile on this side of the House. I want to assure the hon. member that it was not meant as an insult.

MR. FOX:—In reply to the Hon. Minister I would say that the time was when the Hon. Ministers of the Govern ment could not afford to smile. As I was about to say, Bay-de-Verde has lost a good man, and as I told them in Bay-de-Verde I don't want to rub shoulders with a better man. I be-lieve that there is not a man from Freshwater to Bay-de-Verde he does not know, and among them he has a large number of friends. But when it falls to the year of grace 1920 we find that men come back through gold to earn their salaries. In the good old days we had $200 a year, just suffici-ent to meet our expenses, a mere nom inal indemnity, and today we have the indecent spectacle of the Government bringing in an Act to provide $1000 for its members, and God knows what is going to happen the country. If we were assured of our financial stab-ility and had a credit on the right side of our books I would say if it is ne-cessary increase the Ministerial salary and there might be some excuse for doubling the salaries, but there are people in this country to-day who can-not tfind a crust to eat and the Govern ment comes in here today and takes $1000 and puts it into their own pock-ets. I suppose if the Hon. Minister of Finance were here today he would say that the report of the commission is re sponsible for these increases. In re-ference to the increases and decreases in the Civil Service I have not much to say but I think that there has been grave discrimination exercised, and a sorry day has come to Newfoundland when we have to realize that only poli-tical supporters get remunerative in-creases. If these Civil Servants are being penalized it's a two-edged sword that touches both ways, and our own experience leads us to know that past governments who used this kind of discrimination never got over the disrepute into which they had been thrown for such action. I want to point out to the Government that they are not broad enough to acknowledge that this is a free country and that every man is entitled to his free expres sion of opinion and exercise of fthe mind that God gave him. If you are going to penalize the men who have different ideas than those which you have, then all I have to say is God help this Government. Now in com-menting on the Estimates there is one item there concerning the report of the commission which the Government has probably lost sight of. We were told that when a Minister of the Crown holds two or more positions he should not receive more than $6,000 per year but today we find that the Prime Minister is comfortably placed in three positions tha tbring him in the nice little sum of $9,000. In the olden days Sir Robert Bond got $2,000 as Colonial Secretary and was content to occupy his position in honor and glory to him self and of benefit tohis country. But we are now come to a free pass when the Leader of the Government comes in here to carry out his surname of Liberal and dips down into the Treasury to fatten his own bank account. We have reports here now upon which we have been working for every night, noon and morning, with what result? The Government members merely come in here and look at each other and say nothing. If any one of them said a word they would be ex communicated. You refuse to give the men who are slaving for this House the salary that does not pay them for the time that they are losing down here. I know what it is to come down here and sit up in that box and copy speech after speech. When they pro tested a few days ago, what was the Government's reply. If there is any official in this House who deserves a substantial increase it is the reporter, and these men are what I call penalized, and when they protested a few short days ago, we had the interesting spectacle of the Leader of the Govern ment bringing down a gentleman with a staff I don't know where he got this staff, but I suppose it was from his office, to take the places of these men who only exercised their rights, when seeing that the salaries of the members were being increased so much, said: "The laborer is worthy of his hire, and we want ours." And because they dared to raise their voices in protest they were told to get out if they were not satisfied, and were practically forced to take up the job again. Then take the Clerk of this House. The gentleman who is conscientiously working at his duty in this House three hundred and fifty-five days out of the year, his salary is not increased. Oh no. Every increase to any official in this House meant so much less to increase our own salaries, and we have men on the other side of the House who are contented with that, and they call themselves honorable gentlemen of this House. If you increased your own salary and then turned round and did a good turn for the men who are working for you it would be as much as could be expected, but when you take everything for yourselves and leave nothing for the man who is doing your work for you, you have a small ideaof your duty. Then we come to the Upper Chamber. In the old days gentlemen were always found to take charge of the Government bills that were referred to that House for the honor of the thing, and today we have to pay a man to take that position; and we find that one official of that House, a man who occupies a position of honor, the Usher of the Black Rod, a man whose position stands for much in every country where the British constitution is in force, is decreased. You take two hundred dollars off his salary and add it on to the leader of the Government in that Chamber. What is the intention of the Government? Do they want to drive him out of that position? He and his father before him have done yeoman service in that position, and done credit to themselves and to the House, and it falls to this Government to penalize him and reduce his salary instead of increasing it as they should have done. The same thing applies right through the place. The men who are doing the work are neglected and the people who are getting the benefit of the work are benefitting themselves and passing over them. Two million dollarss of an increase in the Estimates when Newfoundland is facing the most serious situation she has ever faced; when the staple industry of the country is in such a bad state, the thing upon which Newfoundland de pends for her very life, at a time when it takes four quintals of fist to buy a barrel of flour, and a half a quintal of fish to buy a gallon of molasses. This is the way the Government is reducing taxation. A lot of declarations were made last year to the people. It was stated that one dollar was only worth twenty(-eight cents, but that there would be a change if the present Government were returned, and we were told in Bay-de-Verde the other day that not alone was that dollar consumed, but that inroads are being made on the second dollar, and still the Government bring in an increase of two million dollars in the Estimates.

The Government is taking a lot of credit to themselves because they are saving the fisherman fifty thousand dol lars on salt. They have put glaring headlines in the papers showing them selves as saviours of the fishermen, be cause they have taken over the respon sibility of that fifty thousand dollars. Four weeks ago Sir John Crosbie warned the Government of the seriousness of the salt situation, and the Government told him that it was none of his business, that they would attend to that. He sat down and three weeks after he rose again and asked the Government what had been done in the mat ter, and they said—We have discussed the matter carefully. We have stayed awake nights thinking it over, and we recognize that the situation is serious; and he said that if the members of the Executive Government, instead of stay ing awake nights thinking it over, had come down to his office that he would have settled the whole matter in half an hour. It is through the fault of the Government that the fishermen are in the position they are in today with regard to salt, and they blame the strike in Cadiz for it. In 1918 and 1919 when we had given our cargo-ships to Russia and other allies in order to carry on the war work, we faced the same situation and the Government that was then in power sent over to England and asked them to commandeer ships to take up their work and that was done in order to obtain salt, and the fact that the Government have aken over the responsibility of the fifty thousand dollars does not excuse them, because every dollar that they pay for the fisherman means another dollar out of the fisherman. It is class legislation. It is discrimination of the worst kind. It is not a loss that you will save the fisherman from when you shoulder the burden of that fifty thousand dollars, because you merely take it out of one pocket and put it in to another. If the people of this country are foolish enough to believe your statement, then they are foolish enough to believe anything. Two million dollars increase and the Ministerial salaries doubled, and the pay of the Government members in this House in creased 500 per cent, and where are the Widows and Orphans of Newfound land? Where are the men who went across and were prepared to sacrifice everything for the country? What about the promises that were made wit hregard to these men, that nothing was too good for them, and they would never be forgotten? They are forgotten, and we have today practically the same conditions we had after the Crimean War; those men who went across and sacrificed everything are practically selling shoelaces on the cor ners. Is it any wonder that these men should go to the Government and ask them to carry out their promises? They did not ask you to make them, they did not want you to make them, bue when you did make them, they want them carried out. All that they want is British justice. But when they asked this the answer was, we have not enough money for you, we cannot do anything for you if we double our own salaries. You come last. Is it any wonder that these men should rise in revolt against that treatment. They take the Widows and Orphans. You can put up your own salaries, and add 500 per cent to the salaries of the members of the House, but do you add one cent to the Old Age Pension of men who spent their lives in service of Newfoundland, going down to the seats in boats and catching fish that meant Newfoundland's preservation. Have you thought of the old woman who spent her whole life in building up the same industry? You vote ten thousand dollars to the Old Age Pensions and that will not go towards increasing the annual pension of any one person. You will not give these people anything that will keep them from being paupers. Because when you give $50 a year to an old worn-out fisherman you are only handing him a gilt-edged insult. If you took that two million dollars and gave one million of it or if you had made the increased vote four millions and gave two millions of it to these worthy Newfoundlanders then you might be able to come here and face this House with some degree of pride; but when you come here and fail to carry out your pre-election promises and disgrace those Estimates and disgrace our public accounts by multiplying your own salaries and neglecting those worn-out Newfoundlanders, who built up your country, and neglecting the men who put this country and you where you are today, then you are doing something that can only be considered discreditable to yourselves. Fifty dollars a year for old worn-out fishermen. Why it would not get a man two barrels of flour every six months.

We read in the days gone by in November last and particularly during the Fall campaign of charges of graft aganst the then administration and how certain men waxed fat at the public expense. Those charges were made by the then Opposition. But these same men who were villified then had the proud satisfaction of leaving a substantial credit behind them. Those charges were not due to any member of the late party and those members of that party who became rich acquired their riches through the shrewd exercising of their own ability and to legitimate businesses. And th efallacy of those charges were afterwards proven. The Auditor-General was notified by the present Government that the books containing the record of the late administration were to be left at the disposal of special accountants who were brought here from the United States to audit our books. Of course in the opinion of the present administration Newfoundlanders had not sufficient ability to do this kind of work. A great deal of the work of the imported commission consisted of checking and measuring coal that went into the General Hospital. The Commissioners went there and asked to see if the Institution was receiving the amount of coal that it should. Their work also comprised the counting of potatoes in some of our public institutions, and to see that the inmates therein were not wasting any.

The Commissioners found nothing as a result of their investigations; they practically told the Government that they had shamefully misrepresented the past administration and deluded the people of this country. In consequence of the practise of this experiment we have, and the whole of this country have, to shoulder the payment of another $25,000. A pretty costly experiment to say the least of this or any other administration, and I hope that the Government will take good care not to repeat the experiment.

In the Estimates I find nothing deal ing with that burning question—the need of a reformatory in Newfoundland. I asked the question a short time ago and the leader of the Govern ment told me that the matter was being gone into by the Government. But the Government knows there is necessity for a Reformatory in St. John's and every member of the Government knows that juvenile offenders are becoming dyed-in-the-wool criminals be cause of their associations in the Penitentiary with experienced and harden ed criminals. Children who are sent to the common jail on conviction of twopenny half-penny charges, come out with the mark of Cain on their foreheads, because that stigma will probably always remain with them, and we have not a single cent voted or asked to be voted in this House for the establishment of a House of Correction or Reformatory for the juvenile offend ers that we have. Look at other countries. What are they doing in this mat ter to safeguard and to see that their morals are protected. If they have got any wayward children they have Houses of Correction to put them in and because it is the duty they owe to themselves and their country. We have juvenile offenders who have to face the Bar of the Magistrate's Court children who should be under their mothers' care if they had any, and if they had nobody else to look after them should be taken under the care of the Government, turned out like curs and sent down there to the Lake side to consort with men who are serv ing terms for most heinous offences. Such children are imprisoned for the most trivial offences and when they come out never forget their entry. The Government has seen well not to take up that question and in this connection I would like toask why the vote for Child Welfare has been reduced. Is there not a necessity for keeping that vote where it was and in fact for increasing that vote. Does the Minister in charge of the Estimates think that this question of Child Welfare need not be seriously regarded? We talk about building up our city and our Newfoundland, but we forget that the people we will have to depend upon in years to come in this country and who will direct this country's affairs we ar eneglecting now. The vote for that very necessary thing—Child Welfare—is cut down lower than ever it was, but the vote for Min ister's salaries is doubled and the vote for members who come to sit here in the afternoons is increased over 500 per cent.

HON. THE PRIME. MINISTER:—What page is the Child Welfare vote on?

MR. FOX:—Page 61. The vote for Child Welfare for 1919 is $1920 and for 1920-21 the vote is $750. It is cut down by more than one-half.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—

The situation of the Child Welfare matter as I know it, is this: When I was Colonial Secretry of the National Administration in the autumn of 1916 I was approached by certain people on behalf of the Child Welfare Movement. The grant then was $450 and it was hoped that the vote would be increased in the Estimates. Although I am not holding anyone to blame for it it was overlooked by the subsequent administration and not put in the Es timates for 1919-20, but that $450 on recommendation to the Executive Gov erment by the Child Welfare Committee, after we took charge in November last, was increased to $750. Just what this $1920 is for in the Estimates I do not know.

MR. MOORE:—Evidently that is the amount paid last year.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Evidently there is a mix-up in the figures. There is no amount in the Estimates to correspond with the $750 voted last year. In the autumn of 1916 an arrangement was made when I was Colonial Secretary under which $450 would be given and to go with a sum of money to be given by the Muni cipal Council and which amount was given to the ladies of the Newfound- Patriotic Association to provide for community nurses. That $450 was to be in the Estimates the following granted and paid. It was supposed ed that there be an increase in the year, but it was not. When we came back in November last, one of the first things I did as Colonial Secretary was to make enquiries regarding this vote, and I found that it had been overlooked. The late Government were not to blame. It was one of those things that went down as a Minute of Council, and when the Estimates were made up in the Spring of 1919 the vote was not included. The position laid before me in November was that the Child Welfare people had got the first $450; they did not get the second, and they then ask ed that there be an ncrease in the vote owing to the omission. We gave them the $450 short and increased the vote to $750, paid $750 on last year's account and voted $750 on this year's account. Just what this $1920 repres ents I do not know, but I will find out.

MR. FOX:—There is another point I am sorry to see the Estimates do not cover, and that is the additional coast al protection. Now surely this Government recognizes the necessity for added protection around our South and South-East Coasts. Surely they have had sufficient experience of the dangers that overtake the mariners coming to that coast and particularly passing St. Shott's. What is going to be done to place ships making Cape Race in an assured position that there is some chance when nearing that coast. Is the Government content and do they glory in the fact to have this part of our coast named the Grave Yard of the Atlantic. If any portion of the additional two million dollars was appropriated to an efficient protection service or wireless service or buoys, I would take no exception to it. But that is altogether omitted from the Estimates. To a cer ain extent unnecessary matters have received attention, while those of vital importance are absolutely treated with silent contempt. Now to the question of State Insurance. The Hon. Minister of Marine & Fisheries brought down a bill here, one of the objects of which was a provision in it that out of the amount collected under it the nucleus of it would be appropriated to State Insurance. Why not have a provision of that kind in the Estimates and bring down a bill and get this State Insurance scheme on the same basis here as it is in Eng land and get into shape. This matter which embodies the very best of political and economical principles has been neglected by the Government by not carrying into effect the principle displayed to the House by the Minister of Marine & Fisheries. This ought to be carried out. Another point I wish to refer to, and that is that no provision has been made for the erection of Outport Hospitals. We know that the General Hospital here in St. John's has been used to a certain extent for political purposes. The Hos pital is always over-flowed and the very efficient staff there cannot carry out their duties as effectively as might be if the proper assistance was given. We know of cases that require medical or surgical treatment but their attention is overlooked because when they petition for entrance they find that the Hospital is over-crowded Hospitals ought to be erected in the principal Outports to relieve the congestion that always is evident at the General Hospital here. Why not erect hospitals around the principal dis tricts and have provision made for their maintenance in the Estimates? These hospitals would not alone assist the administration of the General Hos pital here but would be the means of saving a great many lives, because I know for a fact that lives have been lost for the necessary medical or surgical attention could not be obtained. I think the Government has been very neglectful in not providing Newfoundland with adequate Hospital service. The idea has been ventilated in the newspapers for the last ten years and on which there have been lectures and lenghty articles, and the only thing we find done is that the vote for the Harbor Grace Hospital has been reduced. Why does not the Government take under its benign care greater hospital protection? Surely they must recognize the necessity. If they have not it is high time they do, and if the two million dollars increase in the Estimates somewhat covered the matter I would be in a position to congratulate the Government on that score. Has any portion of the two million gone to the assistance of what is known as the "saddest place in Newfoundland"—the Poor Asylum? That is a regrettable feature that we have to call it the "saddest place in Newfoundland." Our present Poor Asylum is a disgrace to the Government. It is overflowing with inmates and it is not conducted as it should be owing to the lack of facilities and assistance. The place ought to be destroyed, in my opinion, and a suitable establishment provided for and maintained in an excellent manner. Why you cannot enter the doors there because one is stuffed by the odor and you are ashamed that you belong to Newfoundland when you approach this pitiable institution. It is a pitiable spectacle and it reflects discredit on Newfoundland. And now we come to one of the main things the Government talked about last Fall, and thatis the Railway Policy. There has been no vote brought down to deal with this Railway Policy. The Governmnt has not presented a Bill to cover the matter. Apparently they do not regard it necessary. We heard a tremendous lot last Fall about the Reid Octupus, and were told that they had their hands around the throats of the people of Newfoundland, and were told that the then administration connived with the Reids to raise the freight rates and allowed them to get away with the people's money and the Opposition then said the Reids were so and so. And now we find this Government allowing the same thing to be done. The Reids have raised freight rates and the fright on molasses and other commodities has been raised. Has not any attempt been made to curtail these rates? The only thing the Government has done is raised the petulant cry when they were the Opposition, but that even has failed. The Road is not in a fit condition at all to ride over. Only last year when the Assistant Clerk here and myself were travelling over the road when the train left the track and he was nearly finished when he was nearly incarcerated in the top bunk. It would be very regrettable if he had met an untimely end, altho he would have made my election in the East End of St. John's much easier. I am surprised that he has not urged the Government to remedy these suicidal conditions on the Railroad. The railway demands immediate attention. People take their lives in their hands on boarding the train at the station. And no vote has been made for the remedy of the Rail road altho we were told how the Reids last fall were bleeding Newfoundland. When the railway was constructed the traffic was small and the same railroad exists to-day. To-day it is not efficient enough to cope with the demands made upon it. The rails and the rolling stock and the other necessaries are only a by-word. The tourist traffic of Newfoundland has been killed because the people abroad are not going to endanger their lives on stepping aboard the train at Port-aux-Basques. The Government should be alive to their task and bring down a measure and give effect to the proper propositions. Do not get two thousand dollars but get the real money and bring down the railway policy you were talking aboot and convince the people how necessary it is. The railroad does not pay and never did pay. I know friends who will not even leave for Topsail on the train without first taking out an accident policy, and as they say good by to you tears are in their eyes because they think there is a possibility that they will never return. Now what about the Education Bill. There are votes in the Estimates dealing with education, but in my opinion they will never be used. There has been no educa-

Bill brought down. What does it mean? Does the Government intend to bring a Bill down? If it does not why give this vote, and if it does why it should have been brought down sooner than this. We have heard a lot about this efficient education system. Why not bring down whatever is your policy? Very little attention has been paid this matter and I think very little attention will be paid. Is the Government nervous or is it afraid of the public censure, or does it think that it will be impossible to carry out the proposed educational scheme? I had not the advantage of hearing the Finance Minister explain the Estimates when he was tabling them, but so far as I am aware no explanation has been given. After all it is incumbent upon the members of this House to scrupulously go over every item of the Estimates and if I were an auditor to-morrow I would have to go through these items very carefully and see that they were correct before I could certify that were so. But I am not in a position to do that and I should be placed in that position. The Minister should provide us with sufficient information so that we could intelligently discuss the Estimates. We are in this position that we are not allowed to make correction and dare not take the Estimates under review. Some votes are incrased and some votes are decreased. Why? In the name of the world who can certify this accounting when no reason is given for them? We ought to have the necessary information.

HON. THE MIN. OF FINANCE:—I do not know whether you were here or not when I said that it is not necessary that we give the requisite information. Any particular information will be given when we come to the particular votes.

MR. HIGGINS:—That may be an answer to that but it is not an answgr to the position taken by the Opposition, and while I quite understand the position of the Minister of Finance in presenting the first set of Estimates, the position taken by the Minister of Justice in defending this new method of procedure by holding it is similar to the procedure adopted in Canada is not an answer to our remark that no change should be made in what has been the custom here.. We should be in a position to discuss them intelligently, and any principle different to that is not in accord with what has been the custom here for the yaars gone by. The Minister of Justice has attempted to set up this new principle but we do not agree with it.Some of the increases have been granted on the report of the Commission appointed by the late Govrnment.

HON. MIN. OF FINANCE & CUSTOMS:—The explanation given yesterday was all that could be given. I stated then that it was impossible for me or any member of the present Gov ernment to give an explanation of last year's Estimates. Last year a number of men in the Customs Department were paid out of contingencies, but this year no Customs men will be paid of contingencies. We are unable to give an explanation as to why certain things were paid out of the Customs and others out of the funds of some other department. For instance, a boat was hired by the Customs Department and was paid out of the Marine and Fisheries Department last year; this amount was $58,000.00. I explained then that I would explain any changes made in my department.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Chairman, as to the Finance Minister's statement that certain votes were contained in the Estimates which were previously paid out of contingencies before we could support these Estimates we ought to know about all these matters If these matters were explained with respect to some votes it may change our attitude toward other votes.

MR. MacDONNELL:—Are we to infer, Mr. Chairman, that the other Ministers didn't think it worth their while to tell the Minister of Finance on what grounds they based their increases. I notice that there is no mention of telephone extension in these Estimates. I remember last fall that one of the grand things that we were going to do was to extend the telephone system.

HON. MIN. MARINE & FISHERIES:—I think if you will look in the Estimates you will find that $35,000 has been voted for telephone extension.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—I may say that there is a special vote for the current year only for telephone exten sion it will not be included in the continuous annual votes. In reference to roads there is a general increase of 20 per cent. on them and your district is receiving special consideration.

MR. MacDONNELL:—Another matter, Mr. Chairman, I would like to refer to and this is the petitions for various public works and improvements, and I don't think that it is usual to wait such a long time and find that nothing has been done. I myself presented a petition which was signed by every member in Somerset for a ferry across to Curling. The peculiar position in which these people are placed in is that there is at present two high schools in Curling and neither one at Somerset. There's no ferry and there's no chance for the kids to get to school. We are asked for the sum of $1200 for the annual upkeep. I think that here has been great lack of consideration. I intend to bring up this matter again when we come to the matter of roads and bridges. To the people who live on this side of the country and who are being well looked after in the past it does not strike home to them the serious situation in which we up there have been placed. I don't know how far these Estimates have played in the bye-election at Bay de Verde.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress and asked leave leave to sit again on tomorrow.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on tomorrow.

The remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

Hon. the Prime Minister tabled the following Reports of Public Schools under Roman Catholic Boards, Dec. 31, 1919; Public Schools under Church of England Boards, June 30, 1919.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until Monday afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

MONDAY, June 28th, 1920.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

HON. MR. FOOTE:—Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present a petition from the people of Burin against any modification of the Prohibition Act.

MR. MacDONNELL.—Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present a petition for the people of Wood's Island and all the merchants of Bay of Islands for a public wharf at Wood's Island. There is not at the present time, and there never has been, a public wharf at that place. This is the reason why Wood's Island has never been a point of call for the coastal boats. This petition is signed by all the merchants at Bay of Islands and asks for an amount of $4,000 for the purpose of building this wharf. In the winter time this harbor is practically a free port, and it is the centre of herring shipping for the district. It is very dangerous to have to bring the herring out in dories. It is a safe harbor, and the water is deep. I give this petition my fullest support, and ask that it be referred as soon as possible to the department to which it relates so that if anything is going to be done this year there will be ample time in which to do it.

HON. MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—I ask leave to present a petition from the people of Springdale for a public building, such building to contain the post office, the telegraph office, and other public facilities. Springdale is a growing place, and I give this petition my hearty support.

MR. SAMSON:—Mr. Speaker, I beg to support that petition.

MR. WINSOR:—Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to present a petition from the inhabitants of St. Brendan's asking that that place be made a port of call for the coastal boat. At the present time people going to the French Shore or other places north have to take an open boat and go considerable distance to the nearest port of call.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the Hon. Minister of Justice if the Commission promised some time ago to look into the matter of the Woodford affidavit is yet appointed, and if so, the personnel of the Commission. It is now almost three months ago since this Commission was first promised, and I want to notify the Hon. Minister that we do not intend that this thing should drop.

HON. MIN. OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Speaker, in answer to the Hon. Leader of the Opposition I would say that the Commission has been signed. The Hon. J. D. Ryan, President of the Legislative Council, is chairman of the Commission. The other members of the Commission are: Hon. R. K. Bishop and Mr. R. G. Rendell. Mr. Bishop, I understand, has had to go away, but any two members of the Commission have power to sit in the absence of the third. Mr. Summers, Deputy Minister of Justice, is to act as secretary of the Commission. The Commission told me that they were anxious to sit right away, and they wanted to get permission to hold the sitting in one of the rooms of the Court House. They will sit in the tower room.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—I would like to ask the Hon. Minister if he will table a copy of the Commission, and if the hearing will be open to the public.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Speaker, I intended asking the Hon. Minister if the hearing will be open to the public, and a second point, whether the parties have the right to be represented by counsel.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Speaker, the hearing will be open to the public, and the parties will have the right to be represented by counsel.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Speaker, in asking leave to introduce this bill—a Bill to extend the life of the present Municipal Council for a period of six months—I would say that it seems that no statement of the expenses of the Municipal Council of last year was laid before the House, and it is doubtful whether it is legal to collect revenue under the circumstances. In order to remove any doubt I have put in a section making it legal. There is also a section extending the life of the present Municipal Council as Commissioners for a period of six months. In order to facilitate matters, and it is now the 28th of June, I would move, Mr. Speaker, that the rules of debate be suspended with regard to this Bill.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Speaker, I rise to second the motion with respect to the suspension of the rules, because I recognize that it is not the fault of the Government that this condition has arisen. It is obviously impossible to have an election in July.

Pursuant to notice and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice the Bill entitled "An Act respecting the appointment of a temporary Commission for the City of St. John's and for other purposes" was introduced and read a first time and as the Rules of the House were on motion suspended it was ordered to be read a second time presently.

Whereupon on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice the Bill entitled "An Act respecting the appointment of a temporary Commission for the City of St. John's and for other purposes" was read a second time and ordered to be referred to a Committee of the Whole House presently.

Whereupon the House resolved itself into a committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act respecting the appointment of a temporary Commission for the City of St. John's and for other purposes."

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred and had passed the Bill with some amendments.

This report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the said Bill be read a third time presently.

Whereupon the Bill entitled "An Act respecting the appointment of a temporary Commission for the City of St. John's and for other purposes" was read a third time and passed, and it was ordered that it be engrossed being entitled as above, and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Pursuant to notice and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

MR. MacDONNELL:—There is a matter I would like to know from the Marine & Fisheries Minister and that is if it true that the Edmund Donald went down to the Labrador with 300 passengers and only six boats and no wireless accomodation on board, and if the delay in holding her up was not to have her put in proper order.

HON. MIN. MARINE & FISHERIES --In reply I might say that Lloyd's Surveyor had charge of the fitting up of the ship and had orders to carry as many passengers as possible. I don't know how many passengrs went down on her.

MR. MacDONNELL:—We were told here the other day she was held up to be put in proper repair and now the Minister says that he does not know how many passengers she carried, and he doesn't say whether she had six or sixteen lifeboats.

MR. FOX:—Following the reply of the Hon. Minister of Justice that the Committee of Council is now negotiating with the Reid Nfld. Co. I wonder why the Government tolerates the references that are now made against that Company by the Government organs. I think there is a deliberate attempt being made to camouflage the issue. I think it is absolutely indecent to have this country flooded with abuse of the Reid Nfld. Co. If negotiations are now going on I think it is better for the Govrnment to muzzle its scoundrelly press. In reference to the Edmund Donald I think I can tell where she was sent. She was held over to go down to Bay-de-Verde for election purposes. The answer given by the Hon. Minister of Marine & Fisheries is very inhumane despite all the talk that has been going on in this House for the safeguard of ships and their human freights. Today the Hon Minister is not able to assure this House that the laws made are not being carried out. You leave the whole thing to Lloyd's Surveyor. I take it that that's another way you have of evading the issue. It is a very serious position and one which we can't wink out of sight. It is just as well for us to close up this House and put no laws on the Statute Book if the officials have no first-hand knowledge as to whether the laws that are made are being carried out.

HON. MIN. MARINE & FISHERIES —In reply I have to say that you don't expect me to be on board every ship when she is sailing to see whether she has any boats on board. It is the duty of the Lloyd's Surveyor to attend to that. I have no report yet from the Surveyor in relation to the Edmund Donald. The date of the vessel leaving has nothing to do with me. That's controlled by the Shipping Department. All my department has to attend to is the matter of boats. If the question is made here I would easily find out and make a reply.

MR. FOX:—And then you would be after locking the stable door when the horse had been stolen.

MR. HIGGINS:—Such consequences I think should be investigated and I think we should have the fasts. We have heard by way of criticism that the local government has fallen down as better was expected to be done. The whole truth is that you were all so busy in getting back Cave that you forgot everything else. If that be so and the ship has gone out in the condition I think the matter should be investigated.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Just a word before passing that vote. There is no necessity to have to vote this amount, having asked for information and received none. The total amount borrowed from the Old Country is 18 or 20 millions. I would like to know the amount of exchange saved by the Colony on the 30th of December last and the 30th of June this year. What is the amount of exchange the Colony had to pay on the two loans that are payable in New York if so desired?

We borrowed from the Old Country about eighteen or twenty million dol lars, and I would like to know what was saved on the interest paid up to December 30th last, and June of this year, and also what amount of exchange we had to pay on the two loans in New York, payable at the end of every six months. I would like for this vote to stand over until we get this information, and then the House will readily see that there is no necessity for a vote of one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars in this direction. I would like to draw the attention of the Minister of Finance to the Public Debt statement, where there is a vote of $1,500,000.00 for Telephones. It is not intended to raise this amount and it should be stricken out. Also there is another amount to be raised of $135,000.00 at 4 per cent. Every schoolboy knows that you cannot raise money now at 4 per cent. It is up in the sixes and sevens. That amount should be strick en out also. I would ask that this information with regard to the difference on exchange between the Old Country, and th New, and between here and New York, be tabled tomorrow.

With regard to the Edmund Donald I was on the boat several mornings and evenings. I saw the Edmund Donald at the dock Saturday, and as the Hon. Minister of Justice knows I brought the matter up here, and I said that she was being held over for the election in Bay-de-Verde, and the Minister of Justice denied that fact. The hon. member for Hr. Grace, Mr. Archibald, took a large part in that discussion. He said that he was at the dock looking after the interests of his constituents in that direction, and that the boat was not ready to go; that if she were ready he would not stand for her being held over, that berths were being put in her. Now there is a charge that that boat left here with six life-boats that would hold ten or twelve people each, and she had no wireless, and about three hundred passengers on board, and that there was no doctor on board, I was told that thre was a man going on that boat in the capacity of doctor and he could neither read nor write, and that the only qualification he had was that he was a strong supporter of Mr. Coaker, and because of that he was going as Doctor. The farcical part of this is that these are the men who promised so much to the country, and the Government that pointed out what they would do for the Fishermen; and now the hon. the Minister of Marine & Fisheries stands up and cooly states that he did not know how many boats that ship had, and that unless complaint was lodged it was none of his business. When Mr. Piccott was in that position he used to supervise that end of the work himself. No boatever left here for the Labrador without his knowing all about her condition in this respect. Mr. Coaker says that it was the duty of Lloyd's Surveyor to attend to this, but I guess we would find if we asked that gentleman that he knows nothing about it either. What are you doing Mr. Coaker? You areneglecting your duty. That boat left here with three hundred passengers and with boats to hold one hundred in case of accident, without a doctor or wireless and if an accident was to happen the responsibility is yours, as you have done nothing to cope with such a con tingency. I do not know of anything worse since the boats have been going to the Labrador. If that boat reaches there in safety, it is only thru the mercy of God. We are told that the fisherman has come into his own, but if that is his own then it is not worth much. I am not familiar with the fishermen of th North, but if they will stand for this they will stand for anything. Mr. Archibald said that he was carefully watching preparations on that boat. Aftr that I had business there, and he never came near her except that once to justify his statement that she was held up a couple of days, but according to reports she should have been held up longer, as there was no accomodation for three hundred people on board. Then when we come here and ask the Minister of Marine & Fisheries for an explanation, he says that it was not his business, that it was the business of Lloyd's Surveyor to see to these things. The only thing the representatives of the fishermen have done is to raise our salaries, and their own salaries, from one to five thousand dol lars. Is that the treatment for the under-dogs? If there is anything more farcical than that I would like to know it.

Now as far as the Budget is concerned we will not refer to that until Friday. We were prom ised great things, the readjustment of th Tariff, the reduction of taxation on a liberal basis in the futur.e It is not out of place for me to point out that there has been nothing done in that direction. There is not oneiota in that Budget Speech in the interests of the fishermen. A half dozen items are put on the free list, Bologna sausage is one. When we come to this on Friday we will have something to say. Now I do not wish to delay the business of the House, but I have asked the Minister for information with regard to difference on exchange on the debt in London and the debt in New York, and I ask him to defer this vote until an explanation can be given.

MR. BENNETT:—Mr. Chairman, Since Friday last I have had an opportunity of glancing through the Estimates. I pointed out on that occasion that members on this side of the House were very much disappointed, and especially those who were in the Executive of the late Government, upon the lines in which decreases and increases were made and were not made according to the recommendations of the Civil Service Commission. Increases were made in the several Departments to the salaries of Ministers, Deputy Ministers, Chief Clerks, and so on; but very little attention was given to the merits of the class of people who are most in need of some consideration and need some further increases at present to their inadequate salaries. I endeavored to point out that a great lack of judgment was displayed in regard to the increases made in the different positions of the different departments, and I am more than ever convinced that the Government have not given sufficient attention to those who have important duties to perform in the Civil Service, and who are usually treated to some consideration, but the Deputy Ministers of all the different departments have been given very substantial increases, increases out of all proportion. It will be also observed in the Estimates that great favor was shown by the Government in the matter of increases. In some instances increases may have been justified, bu tthere are others in the giving of which, I think, gross extravagance has been perpetrated. I pointed out the other day that there were certain officials who worked 10 and 12 hours every day who had their salaries ignored, and in some cases, reduced; while other officials who did not work half that time daily got substantial increases. When the Civil Service Commission were appointed their instructions were to make recommendations according to merit, the amount of work performed and the responsibilities of office. I have not a copy of the report of the Commissioners nor have I seen a copy, but I can see by the Estimates now that that principle has not been followed, and I fear that instead of having an efficient public service that the different departments will lapse into a state of indifference owing to the fact that no reward and no recognition is given to those indispensible public officials that I have referred to. A great many men who have important duties of office to perform did not get any increases for the reason that they were found guilty of bearing kindly feelings towards members of the late Government. Some of this class of man were not alone refused consideration, but were dismissed. The political axe was used on men who have spent years of their life in the public service; men who were efficient, competent and in every way able to perform their duties, have been shamefully thrown upon the street and told that their services are no longer required. I have no knowledge and no recollection of any such conduct before. It is a new departure and one that is bound to re-act.

SIR. M. P. CASHIN:—We were told the other day that the Estimates were our making and we were also told by the Finance Minister that we would get an explanation of all the votes as they went along in Committee. Now I would like to ask what amount was saved on the interest of the loans.

HON. MIN. OF FINANCE:—I will have the information in the morning.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Until we get this information, I would ask that this vote under Public Debt stand over.

MR. BENNETT:—I would like to know if the Banks here are holders of coupon premiums at the increased rate of exchange.

HON. MIN. OF FINANCE:—Yes, but I am not certain if the Bank of Montreal is. However, I will find out.

MR. BENNETT:—Are the Banks cashing the premiums at par? The reason why I ask that question is that some individual holders were refused at some of the Banks. Perhaps that is unknown to the oGvernment.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—As far as I can learn it is common knowledge that people have been refused the dif ference in exchange on premiums at the Bank of Montreal and were offered only face value for them, but thay went across the street and got the exchange at the Royal Bank of Canada. It is awkward if the Government has issued an order to the Bank of Montreal not to pay it, and places that institution in a false position. The Finance Minister admits now that the Bank of Montreal were not cashing the premiums and still he says to the Committee that he will get the information to-morrow.

MR. BENNETT:—This cuts both sides. Here the civil service is filled with political supporters as a reward for services rendered during the elections and the present Government is certainly following in the footsteps of its predecessors in that direction, and I have no fault to find and I think it justifiable to expect that when vacancies occur they will be filled by those who supported the Government during the campaign and it is only natural in the course of events to find these people getting the sympathy of the Government and obtaining from it the fulfilment of their wishes when the recipients have benefitted the Government by their being over-zealous during the contest. They may have displayed some particular discretion or ardor and so afterwards their reward comes along.

But it is regrettable that those whom they replace are thrown into the street, maybe without the merest enquiry.

But this kind of procedure is cruel and occurred in the past in Newfound land when many years ago cruel acts were perpetrated against old officials because they were identified with a certain party and history shows that those who are guilty of such acts will receive the sametreatment when the time comes. I can appreciate the dif ficulties of the new Administration in satisfying all those who are clamoring for office, and some times it is essential that some individuals will be put out of their offices for the pur pose of putting a friend or rfiends in their places. But there is very little justification unless the dismissed one is guilty of some outrageous conduct Such dismissals might mean in some cases starvation to himself and family. Some other man less worthy and on whom no one is dependent may be put in his place. No Government should adopt this but start in to remedy the condition of affairs that have existed. The increases to the Ministers of the different departments is justifiable under certain conditions but I submit Mr. Chairman that that is not so at this juncture. The position of the Prime Minister which is the first in the list under Civil Government is one that heretofore was performed without pay or emolument. Sir Robert Bond occupied the dual position of Prime Minister and Colonial Secretary but only accepted the salary voted the Colonial Secretary, namely, two thousand dollars. It is true he was a man of means. Sir Edward Morris did the same thing when he accepted the Prime Ministership without pay and I was one of those at the time in his Government who advised him that he should receive some consideration for the work performed because I think the principle is sound that this country should not expect from the Prime Minister services without compensation. If the Government of the day find themselves in a position of affluence, in a position that the future looks rosy, that there is a surplus revenue, then by all means pay the Ministers as high as we can afford. But it has gone through this country and it is having a detrimental effect on the people of the country and it will create unrest when the people properly appreciate the fact that the Ministers of the Crown have raised their own salaries one hundred per cent. It is true some of the duties of the Ministers are onerous and they should be paid accordingly. It is also true that some of the Ministers perform their work in every possible detail and it is also true that some of them do not do so but leave it to the hands of their deputies or chief clerks and merely take it easy by passing the time in having interviews and such like. Why should the Prime Minister be in the dual position of filling the two most important positions in the Government? He cannot perform the duties of both at one and the same time. The duties of Prime Minister are not administrative the same as those of the Colonial Secretary. There is no reason why there should be a Prime Minister's Department at all. Sir Robert Bond performed all the functions of the Government outside presiding over the Executive Board and as Leader of the House through the Colonial Secretary's Department. Therefore through that Department all the work is practically transacted and the Minister is generally kept busy. Therefore it seems excessive that the Prime Minister should draw two large salaries. As I pointed out before he is taking a very nice slice of the grants voted by the Government for individuals. The Prime Minister is not considered a man of large means still he has large opportunities ahead of him and we are told by the Minister of Justice that he has been retained on the Labrador Boundry dispute and will accompany the Minister of Justice to the other side and he will no doubt get a handsome fee out of the job. I know from past experience and I have often regretted that I am not a lawyer myself. Many a lawyer has profited from the Government on account of this old historic dispute. This is one of the things lawyers are always looking for. The French shore question gave an opportunity to some lawyers to get large fees for services rendered and since that has been settled we have had no other except this Labrador Boundary question. I am glad the Minister of Justice is not too late to get a little crumb and no doubt he will and if he wins the case he will deserve the thanks of the whole Dominion. The Minister of Finance has provided for large fees in this matter. With such an able counsel we do not anticipate failure. If Mr. Warren does not win the case he will still have the pay coming to him. It makes no difference to lawyers. But I believe our case will be favourable. I know a little about it because Mr. Furlong prepared the case and I think he arranged the issue and I think our case a strong one. It will be a great thing to have it settled to our satisfaction and it will mean great big developments on that coast because I think it is a matter of history that the development of the Newfoundland-Labrador Coast beyond doubt opens up great possibilities. The Labrador areas contain a product that the world is starving for, and if our claims are upheld it is quite possible that it will be second in value only to our cod fishery. I know Mr. Monroe, Mr. Tobin and others who have areas down there, and they are negotiating with a company that is ready to develop the areas as soon as our claim is established. If the claim is settled satisfactorily it will not be much trouble for the Minister of Finance and Customs to raise a loan to run the country. I hope that the Prime Minister and the Minister of Justice will be successful. In this connection I would like again to refer to the salaries of the Prime Minister and Colonial Secretary. While Mr. Squires may not be a man of great means as was Sir Robert Bond, he is getting $8000 as Minister of the two departments, which with his sessional pay, emoluments from the Militia Department, and big retainers' fees will make him in a little while a man of considerable and independent means.

Reference was made this afternoon by the Minister of Finance to the winding up of the Militia Department. We have no information as to what this Department is costing the country. We have the Estimates here that show a very large expenditure, and why that expenditure is going on I am at a loss to know. The London Office has been wound up for a year or nine months. The whole thing now amounts to the payment of pensions. Now, in connection with that matter of pensions the Prime Minister stated that the $4000 put down for a commissioner was intended to be $2000 for each of two Commissioners. I think he is wrongly informed. Major Dr. Parsons is getting $4000, and I think we are getting the Doctor's services very cheaply. It would be impossible to build a man better fitted for the work than is Dr. Parsons. The other Commissioner, Mr. Clift, is paid $2400. I don't know if it is the intention of the Governmnt to fill the place vacated by Sir P. T. McGrath. Personally I think the work could well be left in the hands of the two gentlemen that remain. The work of the future will not be anything like it was in the past. Once the pensions have been adjusted they will go along without any change The work can be handled by a very ited board, and I feel quite sure that it could well be left to Dr. Parsons and Mr. Clift. A question was asked on the floors of this House Saturday regarding the Vocational Committee. I understand that the Committee has resigned. When I was in that Department there was the utmost confidence in the Vocational Committee. The work of the Civil Re-Establishment Committee is one that has greatly benefitted the country, and I am very sorry to hear that the Committee has resigned. I know their work. I know one of the returned men was well placed in civil life.

Before the formation of the Militia Department the whole lot of the work was looked after by Major Howley. Major Howley has proved himself to be a most invaluable man, and if there is anything to be done, if there is any reward to be given in a monetary way, or a civil service position I hope that Major Howley will get it. I hope therefore, that when the time comes he will be properly rewarded..

When the House rose for recess I was referring to certain officers in the Militia Department, and I was endeavoring to point out certain claims they had on the Government and I would now like to refer to the Estimates in reference to the Pensions. You will rmember that when the Estimates were tabled the only votes that showed a decrease was that of the soldiers' and sailors'. A great many lives were lost in the great war and the people who were responsible for the devoting of pensions when this means was first introduced were quite satisfied that they should be well recompensed for the valiant services they gave to their King and Empire. The cutting down of the pension this year is not the matter of cutting down any particular pension, but it is owing to the changed condition as when this measure was first introduced. The Imperial part of the Royal Navy shows an increase of $5000 and I take it that this is being reimbursed by the British authorities. The main item was the matter of pensions to soldiers and sailors and this matter created a great deal of discussion. The Great War Veterans' Association took certain steps and made certain represntations to the Government, and I hope these representations will bring full amounts to these worthy subjects of His Gracious Majesty the King. Nothing could be too great for them. The G.W.V.A. time and again made representation to the Government and advocated the organization of the Militia and Pensions Department on Canadian lines and to have pensions paid at Canadian rates. They met the Executive Government and the whole matter was thrashed out and Sir M: P. Cashin, the then Prime Minister, told them that they would get every consideration.

From the day I went to the Department I devoted my whole time to the work there, and I pointed out the other evening I organized the department, owing to the fact that as Colonial Secretary I probably had a better knowledge of conditions than any other Minister of the Crown, and at the request of Sir E. P. Morris, I took over that department. It must be borne in mind that we had never had any previous experience in that line, or previous knowledge of the running of such a department, and instead of getting support and sympathy everything passible was done by my opponents to make it difficult for me and to poison the minds of the soldiers and sailors against me, whom it was my duty to look after. I appreciate the fact that it was political tactics, but the Department should not have been dragged into politics. It was too sacred and serious a one to be dragged into the hurly burly ot politics.The seriousness of the situation was open to me, and those who were associated with me, will bear me out that I did all in my power and gave my full attention to the work of the department. I went there early in the morning, and performed the duties there until late at night, and neglected my own affairs. I was blamed for the fact that the Blue Puttee boys who came home on furlough had to return to the other side. Well, I want to say that when I was in England in 1916 I went to France and I had a round robin from the Blue Puttee boys to see if it would be possible for them to get home on furlough. I said that I would do my best to have the request acceded to. I saw the Commander-in-Chief and pointed out to him the situation and said that if they were given leave that I would be responsible for their return in time to go in the lines. He said that they were very short of men, but as Newfoundland was such a small country and had done so much, and in view of the fact that they would not be going into action for over two months, he would have the necessary furlough granted to allow them to return home, provided that they came back in time.

I had to go to the War Office to get this performed, and I had to give a personal guarantee that the men would return. They told me that similar requests had come from Australia, New Zealand, Canada, and South Africa, but in every case the request was refused, as they could not spare the men. I returned with some of them, via New York, and as far as was in my power I did everything I could for the men. I think my friend, Mr. LeGrow, will bear me out, as he was one of them who came. For the whole voyage I never heard the men murmur, and I have heard no complaint since from the men who came then. I would have been very pleased if I could have recommended to His Excellency, who summoned me to Government House, to meet a delegation headed by the present Prime Minister, that their request be acceded to. I had to tell him that I had given a guarantee to the War Office that the men would return, and as much as I would like to have them remain, I had to keep faith with the authorities, and for the sake of the reputation of the Regiment and the country, I could not recommend any other consideration than that they return as agreed. It may have been possible for them to remain in England, but we had to keep faith with the War Office. I was charged with being callous and sending men back, who had already for a considerable time borne the brunt of the fight, but I could not do anything else. Now when the requests of the delegation which met the Government are considered, I hope that the Government will be as liberal as possible, not alone to them, but to the dependents of boys who went over, although strictly speaking they may not be entitled to any consideration. Before the late Government went out of power they were taking steps to recognise claims of those people. It must be appreciated that a young man who went over in 1914 has some claims, although at the time his father or mother may not be entirely dependent upon him for support. It must be borne in mind that in the course of four or five years the situation may change a lot. The father might not be able to work now as he was then. For years he had been looking forward to the day when he would no longer be able to bear the burden of expense, and he was counting on his son to take his place. Every member knows that there are cases such as this, and with this in view, the late Government appointed a Committe to act in conjunction with the Pensions Board, when bona fide cases should come to their notice, and give some relief to those people. If the work of that Commission had been carried on many a deserving person today would not ask for relief in vain. I heard nothing of the work of that Commission since, but I would recommend the Government even at this late hour, to do something in this direction, because there is no better tribute we could pay to the memory of those who are gone than to see that those left behind get assistance when they need it. The G.W.V.A. is an organization which has influence, and it is not good for any Govt., no matter how long in office, no matter how strong it is, to turn down a request from them, without due consideration. It is not, Mr. Chairman, my intention to delay the Committee, and I hope it will be understood that my remarks are not made in a spirit of obstruction. I merely take this opportunity of making one or two observations in this connection, and I hope that they will bear fruit. I notice that outside of the regular increases referred to by several speakers on this side of the House, such as Ministers' salaries, Deputy Heads, Departmental Heads, etc., that there seems to be an epidemic in departments for the appointment of secretaries. The first is the Secretary to the Minister of Justice. Last year the amount paid this gentleman was three hundred and seventy-five dollars; this year it is twelve hundred dolars. There is also a clerk at ten hundred and twenty dollars. Might I ask the Minister of Justice if the secretary whose salary is raised from three hundred and seventy-five dollars to twelve hundred dollars, is the same individual as last year.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE.—I have already explained to the House that that secretary was an assistant to the Secretary in the Prime Ministers Department. His name is Mr. Godden. He was receiving twelve hundred dollars and I took him over to my department. I don't know where this three hundred and seventy five dollars came from.

MR. BENNETT:—I also notice that the Minister of Finance has a secretary at twelve hundred dollars. That is a new vote also.

HON. MIN. OF FINANCE & CUSTOMS:—It is not exactly a new vote as a stenographer there last year was getting $800.00 from contingencies.

MR. BENNETT:—I see that the Secretary of Agriculture is advanced from twelve hundred and sixty dollars to twenty-five hundred dollars. That is Mr. Bailey, and it is a deserving case. He is an extremely competent official and has done great work, and he is not being paid too much. There is an increase from eighteen hundred dollars to five thousand dollars for the Director of Theological Surveys. Is that the position occupied by the late J. P. Howley?

HON. MIN. OF FINANCE & CUSTOMS:—Yes, it is.

MR. BENNETT:—Is there a new appointment?

HON. MIN. OF FINANCE & CUSTOMS:—No, but it is assumed that we will be able to secure a competent man for that position.

MR. BENNETT:—There is a secretary in the Marine and Fisheries Department at twelve hundred dollars. That is a new appointment, is it not?

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—Yes, it is.

MR. BENNETT:—There is a vote here of five thousand dollars for Superintendent of Fisheries. Is there such a man in existence?

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—No, we cannot get such a man at present.

MR. BENNETT.—Now, I regret to find that there is no increase for Old Age Pensions. There is an increase of ten thousand dollars, but that was granted by the late Government last year.

HON. MIN. OF FINANCE & CUSTOMS:—I would like to point out that there is an additional increase of ten thousand dollars by the present Government. Eight thousand of that the Government derived from interest on certain bonds, which will be added to the two already shown.

MR. BENNETT:—I would suggest to the Minister the desirability of considering an increase in this respect. It must be borne in mind that fifty dollars today is practically unable to purchase any more than twenty-five was a few years ago, and it would be a gracious act to increase this vote to seventy-five dollars. That would help to make up in part for the other increases. With regard to Education, as I understand the Minister is bringing down a bill in this connection; when this comes down he may be in a position to give us some information on this matter, and we may have something further to say, for there is a grant for this department of twelve thousand dollars. With the Minister's salary, and other expenses, this will mean a vote of twenty-five thousand dollars. I notice as we go along that there is very little increase if any for the poor relief. That is understandable, as they are in the same position as the Old Age Pensioners. Also there has been no consideration given to Postal officials, couriers and ferry men. I hope that the Civil Service Commission, whether finished work or not, will find it convenient to recommend an increase in this direction. If the recommendations in this direction are too late for the Estimates, I have no doubt that if the Government grant increases on Executive responsibility that it will receive the endorsation of the House next year when the Estimates are laid on the table of the House.

Before taking my seat I would like to say a word in connection with the recent election in Bay de Verde. I was asked to go there to assist the Opposition Candidate, in company with Mr. Fox, and I would like to say here, that I never met a more hospitable people, or I was never more cordially received. I was really surprised to see the posperity there, and I am sure that Bay de Verde can be taken as an example of what a fishing district means in this country. During the campaign in Freshwater I told the people there nothing personal against the members of the present Government. I said that Mr. Cave was a man I had a personal regard for, and I thought he would be a worthy representative if he was in good company and the people had confidence in him. I thought that the point at issue was not altogether political. I pointed out that last fall, when Opposition candidates were contesting the different districts that they took advantage of the condition of affairs, and naturally placed on the shoulders of the Government the responsibility. I pointed out that in politics I had no fault to find with these tactics, I believe it had a great influence on the votes of the electorate, but I also pointed out that when they, the present Government, was elected to power, they should be held responsible for present conditions. Not alone have the commodities not decreased since then but they have increased in prices. The question of Fish Regulations was one discussed freely, and, although I have been charged with inconsistency in this direction, I want to say tonight that when these Regulations were before the House, and when certain amendments were suggested from this side of the House and accepted, that I supported the Regulations to a certain extent, but not entirely. I concluded that we had done our best to improve them and let the matter go with these amendments added. The next day the 'Daily Advocate' came out with a statement that the Fish Regulations had passed unanimously with the exception of Sir John Crosbie. I think that the House will remember that when next we met I took opportunity to protest against that, that as far as I was concerned, they had not passed unanimously in their entirety.

I am in favor of the Regulations and I told the people of Bay de Verde I was, but there were other conditions to which I could not subscribe because they were not a benefit to the country. I told the people of Bay de Verde the question for them was whether they would endorse the Regulations or otherwise. They were immaterial to me personally, I told them; and I told them the responsibility was on them because their decision would be taken as an answer on behalf of the whole country as regards the best interests of the country in reference to the Regulations. The answer has come and by a considerable majority of the electors of Bay de Verde, and I wish to say that there are many sensible men there who do not see eye to eye with them in this respect. There are nine hundred sensible men in the district who have recorded their ballots as against fourteen hundred. I will not say they are not sensible men and will say that time will tell whether their decision is in the best interests of the district or not. However, the decision has come and I feel sure that the Government will realise the great confidence reposed in them by the electorate of Bay de Verde, and they will realise more fully the great responsibility they have in the administration of the marketing and the sale and inspecting of our staple industry. One of the papers supporting the Government attacked me because of my attitude in this connection. It said I was inconsistent, I was unworthy of the least respect and consideration of sensible people; still Western Bay was the only place we had any opposition at our meetings and that came from one man, and, although they were unsuccessful, still they may bear good fruit in the future. I do not wish to detain the Committee any longer. I will reiterate that I think the Government made a great mistake in making increases in the directions not required and neglecting those who should have had their first consideration. The poor underpaid official has been left out. The well-to-do-officials, the members of this House, the heads of the departments, and the gentlemen in the House of Lords, from the President down, have received the most liberal consideration at the hands of the Government. If the country can afford it all well, if the times were prosperous and the outlook hopeful, I could understand the Government's attitude but the outlook is not hopeful and the prices of our commodities are deplorably low in comparison with the prices of what we have to purchase. The Minister of Finance, this evening, made his Budget Speech of which we will have an opportunity of studying in the next few days. And he expects to get a large revenue, and this can only be derived from the earning powers of the people, and if that earning power is cut down one half, if the returns for our products are diminished, to a large extent the people will not be able to buy in the same old way, and therefore the duty to be collected will not be as great as heretofore. We are passing through a new era and economy is necessary, and the cutting down of expenditure is essential for our financial safety, for the present time has never been equalled in the history of this country. Today a dollar cannot be put to good use; and, therefore, the Government of the day have no small proposition and no small responsibility in handling the affairs of finance of this country if things do not turn out a little better than the present indicates. I must say in reference to a matter that was before this House this afternoon, and that is the Newfoundland Railway; that it is not sufficient to meet the requirements of the people, and I must take this opportunity of saying that the railway is overworked especially during the five years of war, and it was practically driven to death in endeavoring to handle the traffic which was essential for our existence. It was the only means of transportation. In fact the railroad was run so that its life has been shortened because of its extra work during these anxious years. The Government was blamed for not taking over the control of the railroad to meet the necessities of the people. It is true every other country, Great Britain, United States and Canada, took over the control of the railroads. But the running of these roads under Government control meant serious financial loss to each of those countries. Canadian Government lost millions of dollars when it had the operation of the railroads under its control, but it was necessary for the transportation of her soldiers, foodstuffs and coal. What was true in Canada was also true in the United States. It is also true of Great Britain when she had to nationalize her railroads and run them under Government control because of the extraordinary conditions existing, and that country could not do otherwise. And if we in this country had taken the same course the same kind of service could not have been arranged here. The Government control has always been a failure and especially would that apply in a country like ours where we have no persons competent to superintend and manage them; and the best thing to be done was what other contractors do, and that is, take the best out of what we have until such time as when we get back to normal. The railroad was not built for the work it has done, and therefore its life has been shortened and we are in the position today that a large sum of money is required to put it into proper operation. That has got to be found but where it is is the problem. If the Reid Newfoundland Company is responsible they should be made find the money and put the road in proper shape. If they are not responsible then it is the duty of the Government. They will have to undertake the proper fixing up of the road and if necessary placing new rails from here to Port aux Basques and it requires re-equipped rolling stock which cannot be done without on the only highway in Newfoundland. They will further have to see that it is kept in order. The Commission appointed by the Government to settle the matter have a very important problem ahead of them and as the honorable member for St. George's described here today when the trains arrive they are so overcrowded that that point alone is sufficient to cause serious consideration. Therefore I beg to say that outside of any particular items that might come up I have no further statements to make in reference to the Estimates. I think the members on this side of the House have no desire that the business should be delayed and I hope the worst days of the Session have passed and the rest will be gone through expeditiously.

MR. FOX:—Mr. Chairman, I said that when the people of Newfoundland endorsed the fish regulations that I would, but that I was not satisfied to take the say-so of ten or fifteen men. It has been said that we on this side of the House are not fishermen and do not know what we are talking about. The Government said these Fish Regulatinos are all right and we will put them through. I had my doubts on the subject and I said, I will bow to the will of the people, and I will try to get first-hand evidence if possible, and I went to Bayde-Verde and two of you gentlemen were there, and see if I do not repeat now what I said then. The people themselves had to try the issue, and I told them that if they said that they approved of the regulations I would accept the opinion of an experienced people, but if they did not, I could come back and face the Government and tell them that I was no longer a man of no experience, but that I represented one of the largest fishing constituencies, and they told me to come here and protest against these Regulations, but they said that the Fish Regulations are all right, and I accept their statement. But going back to the question of Prohibition. Something will have to be done, and soon. We cannot allow this law to go down as it now is through all the years which fcae Newfoundland. We have the Controller's Department shut at five o'clock, and other stores you can get into morning, noon and night, and get liquor on a script or without one, according as it suits the will of the proprietor. Why is not the Controller's Department as much at the service of the people as any other? The other day a strong supporter of mine came along to me and asked me if I had a script to give him. I opened my pocket-book and gave him the only one I had. Greater love no man hath than to give his last script to a friend; but the position taht faces Newfoundland, and St. John's particularly is this, that the ontroller's Department is not being thrown open to the people as it should be. Supposing I was sick tonight, and I am very likely to get sick, I usually get sick about this time, and I needed a stimulant, I could not get to the Controller's Department to get anything. Yhy should that be? If liquor is dispensed in this country because of medical necessity, why take the long chance that such a necessity will not arise after five in the evening? Either the Controller's Department is a dispensary for medical purposes, in which case it should be thrown open to the people morning, noon and night, or it is a legalized public house subject to certain rules and regulations set down by the Government; but the Government says it is a medical dispensary. I endorse everything that has been said with regard to Prohibition. I think the principle is quite correct. The Scripture says "If thy right eye offend thee pluck it out," but it does not tell us to pluck out our brother's eye, and that is what we are doing in this connection. So, therefore, I appeal to the Government to seriously consider the question of harkening to the appeal of the people of Newfoundland. "Art thou weary, art thou thirsty, art thou sore distressed?" They say, yea we are, and we have sent petitions to the House of Assembly. They have asked for bread and we have given them a stone, and we should have given them wine if they asked for water. Something should be done to rectify the state of affairs in Newfoundland today.

There is a vote for three thousand dollars for the Deputy Assessor's Department. I think there is one gentleman who should have a proper salary and that will not remunerate him for his services, and I think that Inspector O'Reilly should be properly compensated for his work. Not alone is it a delicate work he has to perform but you want a specialist for it and you have one in Inspector O'Reilly, a man who can unravel every business problem given him by an experienced business man, and he is not getting proper salary when he only gets three thousand dollars. We call him a Deputy Head, or a Departmental Head, and why is he not paid on a par with the other men occupying the same positions. If you look here you will find that the Assessors Department the Auditor General is getting twenty-two hundred dollars, when if he is a Deputy Head he should be getting thirty-six hundred dollars, and if he is a Departmental Head he should be getting four thousand dollars. How far has the Government looked into this? Has any notice been taken of it at all? It looks as if they are trying to hunt with the hounds and run with the hare. They did not take any notice of the recommendation by the Civil Service Commission that the Prime Minister's salary should not be more than six thousand dollars, and they have given him a lift of four thousnd more. Why the whole thing is a farce. The Government talks of millions when a couple of years ago it was thousands. They give thousands to Ministers of the Crown, and not one cent to the man who is doing all the work. That is not a square deal. That is the rankest kind of class legislation; we let other men do the work for us, but we partake of the benefits ourselves. Now, for example, take the Law Clerk in this House. He has more important work to do than every member on the Government side, and he is getting seven hundred and fifty dollars. If you sent a retainer to Harry Winter and asked him to draft one of the bills that go through the Clerk's hands he would charge you five hundred dollars and he would be entitled to, because he is bringing to bear on it a specialist's ideas, the trained knowledge of a trained mind, and he is giving you the benefit of long years of experience, and we expect a professional man who is losing twice that amount by being here at all, to draft our bills and be content himself with seven hundred and fifty dollars. Is that right? Is that any encouragement to him to exercise his best abilities? He is supposed to see that every act goes through right, and to perfect his work. He will do it because he is that kind of man, because he takes a price for his work, not because of the money. But you will not find men like him in every corner, and we are going on a wrong principle when we expect the maximum amount of work at a minimum figure, and unless we get rid of this idea we will never have things right in Newfoundland. Now take the Clerk's Assistant and he is rewarded with seven hundred and fifty dollars, and every day of his life in session and out he has to be in attendance here, to look after his duties. He is a man who not alone has expert knowledge, but a man who has shown that he is the most competent person in the country to perform this work, and he gets seven hundred and fifty dollars, and we expect these men to do their work for that pittance. Now I want to speak of Mr. Carter, and I would not mention him only he is in a position where he will shortly need every dollar he can get. It is not playing the game to give that man five hundred dollars, when he went out last fall and fought for you and your party. That man if he attended to the duties of his profession would realize that he is losing money by being here, but he comes here to help you out. He went to St. John's East last year as a candidate for your party and that is the way you treat him. Now there is another official and that is the official Reporter of the Minutes. That is an arduous undertaking. I was there in that position myself and I was up until one and two in the morn ing, and at that time we had no prolonged sessions, and the salary is the same now as it was eight years ago and you expect that young lady to do that work for one hundred dollars. She has to do hard work and she earns four times that amount. Now we come to the Reporters in this House and see the way they have been treated. They have been coming here morning, noon and night, sitting in that box and doing the work of the House for the amount of two hundred and ten dollars. Their requests have not been considered. You did not do them the courtesy to say, Yes, we will give your request serious consideration, but instead of recognizing the just position that these men took that the laborer is worthy of his hire, the Govrnment says, you are getting as much as you will get, and if you do not like that you can get out, and we will have your places filled by others i can tell you that it requires experienced men to do this work, and it is not fair treatment for them. As my friend Mr . Walsh says, you leave them where you found them at the foot of the mountain brow. I do not know what happens in the Upper Chamber, but I do know that the gentleman who for years past has been holding the honorable position of the Usher of the Black Rod faces the ignominious position that his salary is cut by one-third. For what reason I do not know. It is not that he did not give satisfaction, because he did, and we have his salary of six hundred dollars cut down to four hundred dollars, and we hav the leader of the Government in that House, a position that gentleman strove after in the past because of the honor of holding it, receiving a salary for doing something that he should consider it an honor to do. We are commercializing every position of honor in the country; we are prostituting every public position, because we make it worth a man's while to take those positions; we are encouraging a man to take them for what he can get out of them, instead of what he brings to those positions, and we have gentlemen in the Upper House, the Lords of Newfoundland, being paid, and these are not necessitous men, they are men who from their positions in the community are looked upon as being above monetary needs, and it in a poor state of affairs when we have to pay these men to go there. It is deplorable to make those positions a question of dollars and cents. It is killing the spirit of honor, and it is killing the very soul of the country. That is what we are doing. We are holding out an inducement to a man to take positions like this because he knows it is a credit to him to hold such a position, but we are dangling before him the golden dollar, and we say to him, make it your God because it is the Golden Calf of Newfoundland today. The whole thing is wrong. It is wrong to put two million dollars extra taxation on the people. It is wrong for this reason. When the Hon. the Minister of Finance & Customs brought in his Estimates he told us that 90 per cent of the increases were made by the late Government. That is not right, and even if it were true this Government should take care that it does not follow in the footsteps of the Government which it held up to ridicule last Fall for the same things. You are only trustees of the public money, and you commit a breach of trust when you do not carefully consider the benefit to be derived from every dollar you spend. The Min ster of Public Works has set himself upon a nedestal of rectitude. I will tell something in connection with this. A short time ago a matter of urgent necessity was brought to his attention for one of the districts and he said, build that bridge but it cannot cost more than thirty dollars. The bridge was built and for years will be a monument to him. When the cost was made up it came to thirty-one dollars, and when the bill was presented to him he said, Satan get behind me, You will not get thirty-one dollars you will only get thirty dollars.

I am glad, Mr. Samson, that you interrupted me, because it gives me a chance to recall to your mind the last time we met. You remember that you ridiculed a certain honourable member in this House, Sir John Crosbie, and that I had to rise to my feet and take you to task for it, and I said to you then, as I say now, that if your leader, the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries, had been there that he would have been the first to criticise you for criticising Sir John Crosbie, as you had no right whatever to do it in his absence, and when you said he was big and bombastic. I said he was not a couple of years ago when his assistance was sought for the protection of your union. Ask your leader if Sir John Crosbie's advice and opinion is not always received by him with pleasure, and if he has not sought it often.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES:—I never sought his advice.

MR. FOX:—We all know that you did, and it is a credit to you; but the point I make, sir, is this, that the gentlemen who retorted to me, had no right to make that reference to Sir John Crosbie.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES:—You had no right to make the reference now that you did make.

MR. FOX:—He had no right to comment upon a man in his absence. And now, Mr. LeGrow, I want to ask you a question. It has been brought to my notice that you said that the Opposition had to send down to the support of Mr. Puddister, in Bay de Verde, the scum of St. John's Is that correct?

MR. LeGROW:—I did not say that.

MR. FOX:—Now, Mr. Scammell, I am going to outline a position, and make you the arbitrator. I was accused of calling those two hon. and gallant gentlemen, Lieut. Small and Sergt.-Major LeGrow, a mass of hypocrisy. I assure the hon. gentlemen of this House that I did not say so; that I was referring to the hypocritical attitude of the Government in connection with the Woman's Suffrage Bill, and now if you say that I did, I will apologise for saying so. When I was going through Western Bay the first report that reached me was that Cave did not want any speaking on nomination day.

SERGT.-MAJOR LeGROW:—Cave and Puddister got together and decided that there would be no speaking.

MR. FOX:—When this report reached me I consulted with Mr. Puddister and we decided that if Mr. Cave did not want any speaking on nomination day that we would not have any either, and we packed our grips and went home. The reason I went there was to find out the kind of people from whom Sergt-Major LeGrow sprung, to find out the kind of people that produced a man that was ready to sacrifice everything for his country; and I came back satisfied that he was not alone a good representative of the people, but of a good people, and when we came back we were informed that certain gentlemen had spoken. Just before nomination I met you, and I said. LeGrow, I was accused of insulting you; and when we get to St. John's I am going to refer this to Mr. Scammell. I have had no communication with him ever before on the subject and I will ask for his verdict. If he says that I did insult a personal friend of mine, a man whose friendship I desire to keep, I will apologise to you before the House, and now I ask him for his opinion.

MR. SCAMMEL:—Mr. Chairman, the position that I take is this. The hon. gentleman cannot deny, will not deny, that he accused the Government of being a mass of hypocrisy in regard to the Woman's Suffrage Bill. Now, when he accused the Government, he accused every member of the Government. The words he used were if I remember, that he regretted that those two hon. and gallant gentlemen, Lieut. Small and Sergt.-Major LeGrow, were not in their places to support and defend a position which they were manifestly expected to support and defend. Now the hon. gentle man may have had honest intentions when he singled out those two gentlemen, but hon. members on both sides could only come to the conclusion that he cast an aspersion on these two gentlemen, that they were influenced by men higher up, that they were afraid to face the issue. That is my opinion, but I do not say that he had any intention of casting an aspersion against these two hon. and gallant gentlemen; but, I cannot see how the House could put any other construction upon it.

MR. FOX:—Thank you, that is the attitude adopted by the Hon. the Minister of Justice, and I give to you the same answer I gave to him. He stated that the insult I offered the two gentlemen was based upon the fact that I called the Government a mass of hypocrisy. I said, and I say now, that you could not apply my remarks to those two gentlemen any more than to yourself. That is just what I thought you would say, and it clearly shows that what I said could not be construed as a personal insult to these two hon. and gallant gentlemen. Now take it from a legal standpoint. The law says that if I make a certain statement about any body of men that you cannot apply that, which was spoken in a collective sense, individually.

MR. SCAMMELL;—I do not say that the hon. gentleman meant to insult Sergt.-Major LeGrow or Lieut. Small; but there could be no other construction put upon his words.

MR. FOX:—The statement that I made was construed by the Government members in one way, and in another way by my colleagues on this side of the House, and, therefore I appealed to an opponent to vindicate me. I do not know whether I should now appeal to Sergt.-Major LeGrow and ask him what he thinks of the matter. I could not face him in Western Bay if I had insulted him; I would not be able to look him in the face if I had said anything insulting about him.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, and made some progress and asked leave to sit again on Friday.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on Friday.

Mr. MacDonnell asked the Hon. Minister of Justice what members of the Local Bar had been retained by the Government in connection with the Labrador Boundary Arbitration. What sums, if any, have been paid them on account. Is it intended to retain any other lawyers, and if so, whom? Can the Minister give any idea of what the costs of the arguing of this case before the Privy Council will likely amount, and within what period a decision is likely to be rendered.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on Supply.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

And it being past midnight

FRIDAY, July 2nd, 1920

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. Hibbs—I beg leave to present a petition from the people of Joe Batt's Arm on the subject of a modification of the Prohibition Act. The petition is very largely signed and I ask that the appeal therein be given due consideration.

Mr. Sampson—I beg leave to present a petition from the people of Lawrencetown on the subject of a modification of the Prohibition Act.

Mr. Guppy—I beg leave to present a petition from the inhabitants of Heart's Delight, Heart's Content and Trinity, on the subject of a modification of the Prohibition Act.

Mr. MacDonnell—I beg leave to present a petition from the people of Curling on the subject of an amendment to the present prohibition laws. I give the petition my hearty support and once more request the Government to consider this matter before the House adjourns.

Mr. LeGrow—On behalf of Mr. Small, the Hon. Member for Burgeo and LaPoile, I beg leave to present a petition from the people of that district on the subject of a modification of the Prohibition Act.

Mr. Bennett—I beg leave to present two petitions on the subject of a modification of the Prohibition Act. One is from Petty Hr., and the other from the city. I trust that these with all the other petitions presented on this subject will receive the consideration of the Government, and something told us definitely re their policy before this House closes.

Mr. Walsh gave notice of questions.

The Chairman from the Committee of the Whole on Supply reported certain resolutions which were read a first time as follows:

Administration of Justice: $353,-113.65.

The said Resolutions being read a second time it was moved and seconded that the House concur with the Committee therein and the said Resolutions were agreed to.

Pursuant to notice and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice the Bill entitled "An Act for giving effect to the Treaties of Peace between His Majesty and certain other Powers" was read a third time and passed and it was ordered that it be engrossed being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on Supply.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

MR. FOX:—Mr. Chairman, the Law Clerk is entitled to more liberal allowance for the services he performs in the interest of his country. As I pointed out the other day, the Government asks him to draft important Bills for which he is remunerated such that he might regard as a fitting retainer to undertake that work. The same applies to the reporters. In their case I wish to draw attention particularly. They have worked harder this session than for many years back. I think it is most unfair and most unjust to vote them the same figure that they got years ago and for much shorter sessions. The same applies to other officials right down the line, and I would ask the Government to give this matter. earnest consideration. There is one vote that deals with newspapers. That brings me to a subject that I intended to refer to later on and it arose out of a discussion here the other night. When the Government newspapers appeared on the streets two nights ago they contained articles which, I for one, consider were a gross insult to the whole country. The papers I refer to are the 'Daily Star,' which has been waging war in a certain direction for many months past; and the 'Evening Advocate,' the official organ of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. When we referred to this matter in the earlier days of the session I thought that the House was one in an endeavor to kill this hideous thing once and for all. Now it is just as well for us to face the issue squarely and to clear this matter up and to remove it out of our political life, even if it hurts somebody else. We must admit, if we are honest wit hourselves, that there has been a concerted attempt by a certain section of the press within the past few months to divide this country on sectarian lines, and the worst part of it is the insidious fashion that it is done in. With a man who attacks in that manner it is hard to deal with him. You can deal with a man who attacks openly. but when he attacks in such an insidious way as the 'Daily Star' has attacked, one does not know which way to handle him.

I make the charge deliberately that a certain section of the Government press, and with the knowledge of certain members of the Government itself, have consistently given publicity to the vilest kind of stuff and with the one object in view. namely, the dividing of this country on sectarian lines, and as I have said already, the sooner we face that position and clear it up the better for all concerned; and the articles that appeared in the 'Daily Star" the other night is only a consummation of the filthy attempt and the rotten campaign that that paper set out to wage. We all know that the object of circulating this sort of propaganda was to try and set one denomination against the other in this country; we know that those unjust charges made were levelled against members on this side of the House; we know that members of the Oposition were acused of using sectarianism for political purposes and we know that the campaign launched upon by the "Daily Star" last fall when they hinted and insinuated that the 'Evening Herald" was entering upon a sectarian campaign had one object in view, and that objective they achieved. What odds, it they painted the picture as it should be painted, but they painted it as it should not be painted. When I left the District of Bay-de-Verde a few days ago I got possession of a special edition of the St. John's Daily Star containing one of the most defamatory, inflamatory, and abusive articles that I have ever laid eyes on. It was directed against my honored and revered leader, Sir Michael Cashin, and was absolutely without foundation in fact and undoubtedly wrong. A few days previous to that it published another disgraceful article and along similar lines, abusing all and sundry. The object was to satisfy people of a certain district whose faith was different to mine. But the limit was reached on last Wednesday night and the man who wrote it should cringe and feel ashamed that he ever penned those lines. Now to all intents and purposes this country is divided today and the fault does not lie at the doors of the present Opposition. The position is that certain gentlemen have sown the wind and now reap the whirlwind. It is regrettable if gentlemen on the other side of the House are going to allow this to continue, because I lay the blame on certain members of the Government and on the Government press, with the exception of the "Evening Advocate," although the "Advocate" fell from my graces the other night. There was no necessity for that leading article that it had on the back of the page, but I suppose it was meant to buttress the attempt made by the other sections of the Government press and the nefarious object that it had in view. One of the chief charges made by the "Daily Star" in their article on last Tuesday night's debate was to accuse the leader of the Opposition because he said that the reason the Prime Minister was absent was that he was attending a Conference which his denomination was then entering upon. This statement was twisted, distorted and knowingly misconstrued and the man who wrote that article knew it was wrong when he was writing it. And not alone did he abuse the leader of the Oposition in that article, but he insinuated that Mr. Higgins, who had made some derogatory remarks on the question before the Chair, namely, the Housing Problem, had insulted the Loyal Orange Association, and that I had backed up Mr. Higgins. I entered the Assembly room at eleven o'clock and members of the House must have known that I took no hand, act nor part in it, and when the reference to which the "Daily Star" complained of was made, I was not in the Chamber at all. I do not know what Mr. Higgins had endorsed previously, but when I endorsed what he said he had spoken on the Housing Bill and said that the Government should make substantial provision in connection with the building of houses. I endorsed that then and I do so now. And then the writer of that contemptible article insinuates against us to suit his own vile purposes. The one occasion that I ever heard that expression referred to in the "Daily Star," was on a public platform in the District of Bay-de-Verde, when an Opposition candidate was asked "what he thought of 21-2 now." The significance of the expression was not known to me until the following day in the lower part of the district. I had thought at first that it was a mark that had been put upon our fish. I kept it to myself and never knew what it meant until certain enquiries led me to realize the second position. I am sure that nobody ever intended to insult any such Association or body of men in this country, and when the "Advocate" comes out and says that there was a deliberate attempt made to insult twenty thousand people in this country, I can tell them in reply that the Government members were the first to use that cry.

MR. LeGROW:—It's a lie.

MR. FOX:—It's not a lie.

MR. LeGROW:—It is a lie.

MR. FOX.—Pardon me; it's not a lie. Mr. Chairman, I ask you to take down those words and to ask the Speaker to take his chair.

MR. CHAIRMAN:—I must ask the Hon. Member for Bay de Verde to retract his statement.

MR. LeGROW:—Mr. Chairman, I did not mean to say that it was a lie for Mr. Fox; but that it was a lie for his informant.

MR. FOX:—I wish in future that when the Hon. Member makes a state ment that he be more clear about it.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES:—I would like to know what the Estimates got to do with sectarianism.

MR. FOX:—The explanation that I am making has much relevancy to the matter before the Chair.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES:—I have listened to your explanation, but you need not take three or four hours to make it.

MR. FOX:—I will take sufficient time as I feel is proper to refute the charges that you had in your newspaper. You write an article, make a charge and then you cannot accept an explanation. This is the opportunity and the only opportunity that we have to defend ourselves. Now you are going to hear it again. In reply to the hon. member for Bay de Verde, I may say that it may be a lie for my informant but I doubt it. I was present at a meeting when that remark was passed when a question was asked Mr. Puddester. The significance of the remark never dawned on me because it did not affect me one way or the other. If the Government press takes exception to any remark which they say is insulting to any section of the community they ought to chase their own members first.

MR. TARGETT and MR. SAMSON:—We all know it was insulting.

MR. GUPPY:—I consider it was insulting to the 20,000 members of that body in this Island. I am one who is connected with it and I would like to have the matter all explained.

MR. FOX:—I am not in a position to explain what it means; but I am creditably informed that there was no insult upon that Order or any member of it. But before the people get up and hold up their hands in holy horror they should first get after certain members of their own party who are members of that organization who are using it for their own political ends. If I were a member of it I would be the first to get up and strongly resent the attitude of anyone of any side of politics who had the temerity or the indecency to utilize it for political purposes. And I believe that every right-thinking man in that organization would take a similar position. We may be separated on a matter of faith but we must regard ourselves as Newfoundlanders after all, because the day is come when concerted action is necessary in an atempt to solidify our public life.

MR. SAMSON:—You will have to get a new leader; yes, you will, because your present leader——

MR. FOX:—How dare you abrogate to yourself the right of making those unseemly interruptions at will. You just take your seat while I have the floor and reply when I am finished. In reply to the hon. member I do say that a new leader is necessary.

MR. SAMSON:—That is what I meant.

MR. FOX:—I know your consideration for members on his side is very touchy, but still it is not required. If his attempt to tear out the vitals of our public life is to be coped with you will certainly need a new leader. As regards the members on this side of the House, our hands are clean from a sectarian standpoint and I defy contradiction to that statement.

MR. TARGETT:—It makes me smile.

MR. FOX:—Does it? You think other folks are patterns of yourself. Have you the cold-bloodedness to say that my assertion is untrue?

MR. TARGETT:—Yes, I have heard the Hon. member telling lies before.

MR. FOX:—Mr. Chairman, I ask that these words used by the hon. member for Trinity be taken down by you and that the Speaker be called into the House.

MR. CHAIRMAN:—The Hon. member for Trinity has made a direct charge and I ask that the words be taken back.

MR. TARGETT:—Mr. Chairman, I did not mean to use any unparliamentary language. I meant to say that I knew Mr. Fox to tell lies before.

MR. FOX:—The Hon. member for Trinity does not give his own explanation. He tells what is given to him by the Minister of Justice.

MR. TARGETT:—If I used unparliamentary words I will take them back, but I cannot take back the lies you told the other day. You said that in Bay de Verde you saw stones two feet high on the road and you said that Tom Lockyer had eleven children. You know that was not true. Now decide that Mr. Chairman; you also made remarks concerning the Poor House that were not true.

MR. FOX:—Do you think you're talking to a crowd of children? Apparently you do. Do you think that while discussing such a serious subject that you can make cold-blooded interruptions in an unparliamentary way and with a pack of sheer nonsense draw a red herring across the trail? Let me inform you and every member on your side that any time any objectionable thing is said it is not going to be allowed to go by with impunity, first, on general principles, and secondly, because you cannot do it in parliament. The real position is that we are facing an issue in Newfoundland to-day whereby a concerted attempt is made to keep this country divided on denominational lines, and, unfortunately, I have to accuse the Government press of doing that, and if they had the courage to say that they were not doing it I would not mind as much, but when told of their filthy actions they lay the blame on other people's shoulders. I entered political life last Fall and conducted a clean campaign and no one can say that I ever once used such disgraceful tactics, but that I attempted, even at my own respect and to my own credit, to keep sectarianism out of the campaign. The same applies to my own colleagues. On any platform that I spoke from, particularly in the heart of sectarianism and where people were not supporters of my party, I appealed to the people to vote according to their consciences and not according to any other motive. I had hoped that when the new Government assumed office that they would try and keep that dirty thing from entering Newfoundland public life, but, unfortunately, my expectations were not fulfilled; and it is common knowledge that right down during the past few months it has been kept up by a section of the press and unnecessarily kept up, and, as I said in the opening days of this session that the men responsible for conducting political life in Newfoundland should be hounded out of it because they are a menace to decent society.

MR. SAMSON:—Hear, hear.

MR. FOX:—I only wish you would back up your endorsation of what I said towards a certain section of your party. It is no use in holding up our hands in holy horror, as words are absolutely useless, but the time is come when some of my friends on the Government side will have to unite with their friends on this side in a concerting attempt to fight this base thing to a finish, as it is discreditable to our individual constituencies and to Newfoundland as a whole. I think I can place my fingers on the two men who wrote those articles in the "Advocate" the night before last and which were directed against the Leader of the Opposition. These two men ought to be ashamed of themselves, to say the least of it. But it only goes to show that nothing is low and bad enough for these men to lay their hands on for the purpose of wounding an opponent and to gain their own political ends. The insinuation was made that an attempt was made to insult 20,000 citizens of this country. Now it would be more fitting for them to divert their efforts nearer home and put the shackles on some of their own party first and consider the advisability of restraining and to restrain them from their deliberate attempt to cross the people and to divide this country on the most reprehensible lines. If not they will have to take the consequences. I say it is a positive disgrace, and it is contrary to all sense of decency and self-respect that we should allow our selves to descend to such despicable line of warfare that have disgraced Newfoundland politics since last November and the sooner the "Daily Star", over which the leader of the Government, has influence, recognizes their duty and ceases their insidious attempt to disturb the harmony, good-will and quiet feeling of the people of Newfoundland, the better. I regret that the "Advocate", which I had praised in this House for being so clean during the political contest last Fall, should associate with a journal that has done nothing else than to deliberately tender to the prejudices and passion of our people. The whole thing is on a par with the conduct of the "Star" ever since politics was entered upon last September. But worst of all is that it sets out to do the work and then puts the blame on the other man. I am surprised that certain men in the Government ranks tolerate such an indecent state of affairs. If they are satisfied to let it go on, very well, but I hope that they will have the courage to take the blame for their work.

I personally object to the statement made in that paper that the Opposition, of which I am a member, deliberately insulted an organization that boasts of thirty thousand men; I object to the statement that the same Opposition insulted the Methodist body of this country, and for this very reason that some of my best friends are members not alone of that faith but also of that body of thirty thousand strong. That organization has done lots of good for the people of Newfoundland. And when we talk of good feeling, that very organization, which through certain sections of the Government press is holding up to the public scorn that it was insulted by another denomination, in the year 1893 obtained through that revered Catholic clergyman, Dr. Mullock, the same rights that were enjoyed by the Church of England and the Catholic Church. The Wesleyan body through the exertions of that gentleman got the same rights as the other denominations, and my attitude towards that body is the same today as it was in these days of 1893. I strongly object to this bigoted and narrow-minded conduct, and it is pitiful and indeed criminally neglectful to say that that paper has no other regard for the good-feeling and good fellowship which has always been existent among the different denominations. The Catholics have served them once and will serve them again, and I feel sure that Episcopacy of which that Doctor of Church was its head, and which obtained for that body rights which every Britisher is entitled to, will whenever necessary give assistance to them. If the Daily Star questions the accuracy of my statements, I can give them date and data for it. That is all I have to say on this subject, but I cannot repeat too strongly that the time has come when the decent elements of the Government ought to join hand to hand with every other section of the country and call a finish to this disgraceful state of affairs, and the time will come when the accuracy of my reprobation will be unquestionable. If this kind of political propaganda continue you are sowing he wind and on to-morrow you will reap the whirlwind. There wil be no success to the men who deliberately advance their own interests through denominational channels and it will prove no stimulant to the good-fellowship which always existed throughout the country.

MR. MacDONNELL:—While this matter is being discussed and while I am alluded to by the Daily Star, I wish to make my position in the matter clear. The words I used then I will use now that the Prime Minister said he did not know the meaning of the term used in this House and I told him that he did, and if he continued to say that he did not know I would not believe him. If the Prime Minister will make a statement here now that he does not know the meaning of the term, I will withdraw my words. No one member on this side of the House or on the other side of the House can say that I mentioned sectarianism in this House. When we had a debate here for two days on it, I took to myself that distinction. I never alluded to it because I thought it too ridiculous to do so and my presence is the best answer to that and the best answer to the conduct of the district I represent, and leaves no room for doubt that sectarianism did not figure there. You do not mean to say that I got myself elected because I supported Squires? We live in perfect harmony in the District of St. George's, and in some cases there are many Church of England, in others Methodists and in others Roman Catholics and never has the slightest word been construed by these people in a narrow way and ill-feeling is neyer evident. I have among the best friends possess many belonging to different denominations than my own I wish to conclude my remarks which were interrupted a few moments ago. I was going on to say that despite the fact that a great sectarian campaign was carried on here in St. John's last Fall by the newspapers against Sir Michael Cashin, I won the district, and this is the best answer to the question whether there was any sectarianism carried on in St. George's. It is because of that fact that I resent from any man, whether in this House or out of it, I resent the idea that any sectarianism was stirred up in St. George's, and I defy any man in this House to get up here and give a different story in respect of St. George's. Since I have come down here to St. John's I have been continually set upon by the newspapers. If I had time to turn up the back files of the Daily Star I will find that I am blamed for a lot of this sectarianism, but the magnificent support I got from those people of St. George's is a sufficient answer to that man who writes that kind of scribble. On one occasion I had a private conversation with the Prime Minister and he told me he was not to blame or responsible for what appeared in the Star. Well, I want to know who is responsible for it. I want to make this statement that I do not think Dr. Mosdell writes those editorials. There is but one to do it, and I know him well. The remarks made here in this House appear the next day in the Daily Star and the Advocate. There are two men in this House each being connected with one paper. The fact of this matter appearing in the two papers and the fact that two members in this House are connected one with one paper and the other with the other is not without coincidence. Men come up here to this House, and not having seen me before from only reading the newspapers accuse me across the floors of this House of sectarianism and which they cannot prove. I do not think that good enough for the district I represent. I want nothing of this sort to go to my district, and I want any man who knows that I was in any way connected with sectarianism to get right up here now and say so and we will have it out. I have not the habit of covering up my words. I may not use flowery rhetoric or sound logic, but I do use good plain English. But I do not want this session kind of stuff which we are handed out by the Star and which cannot be substantiated in this House. I thought it was necessary to make those statements and want them to go in the district not because it is necessary ordinarily but because it is so as the other papers which contain this false stuff are being circulated.

MR. SAMSON:—I would like to ask Mr. MacDonnell whether the leader of the Opposition used the words that "the Prime Minister used the two and ond one half trick in Bay de Verde?"

MR. MacDONNELL:—He did not use those words.

MR. SAMSON:—If the leader of the Opposition did not use these words he used words which reflected on societyism. And that is how this trouble in the papers has been brought about. But I do think that the 'Daily Star' has done an injustice to Mr. Fox and I think possibly many things were said which were better unsaid, but I think that Sir Michael Cashin grossly insulted the leader of the Government on using the two and one half trick down in Bay de Verde. I believe the leader of the Government and the leader of the Opposition mean to give fair play to everyone and trust that nothing will be actuated on a religious foundation but there will be equal rights for everybody. I am not afraid to get up here and express my sentiments, and I think the Government has been done an injustice.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—I said the two and one half trick cannot be used here.

MR. HIGGINS:—As in law cases occur which require no explanation and during the trial of which no witnesses in chief are produced on one side but the parties implicated are prepared to stand cross-examination so far as that side are concerned, the same applies here and I present myself for cross-examination. I have no explanation to make. I do not want to say anything. I know there is a certain kind of individual who keeps company with a certain class of people who move around to themselves. I do not belong to it. I took no part in the famous debate. I do not know what the two and one half means. And consequently not knowing what it means it is of no concern to me. But I do say that it is a reflection upon any gentleman when he personally endeavors to boost his cause under the guise of common falsehoods in the newspapers. Nothing of that kind can succeed or continue. It is just like a house which is very large but the sticks which make the foundation are not genuine and the apparently fine house collapses. The same attempt is made when the suggestion is made which incidentally advertises Higgins, that Higgins was coupled with a debate in which he took no part and perhaps it is right for me to thank those connected with the 'Daily Star' for this free advertising which has been given me, and while the 'Star' was endeavoring to appeal to a certain class of men that very class of men have increased my law practice, and while this advertising continues it will continue to increase. Three parts of my clients belong to that faith known as Methodist. I have never heard of the two and one half trick, and, I want to say to all and sundry, that sincerely, on behalf of my family, that I am deeply grateful for not alone increasing Higgins' number of clients but also that Higgins' return in the East End is always assured when he feels like seeking it so long as the 'Daily Star' and the newspapers continue to advertise me as they do; and I do think that those who get abused have every reason to be grateful to those who were instrumental in giving them their free daily advertising. I can move around among all the different shades of men without experiencing the slightest danger of anybody arising out of a ditch and breaking out my brains, and I can run fairly well too; and, so far as I am concerned, I will enjoy the unfortunate conditions through which we have to live and which comes from those who ought to know better and from whom we expect better and who ought to put their time to better use. I want to thank every person connected with that paper for securing my election in the East End last fall, and I am deeply sensitive of the gratitude I owe them for my having obtained the record vote there. I am very thankful for all the abuse showered upon me, and I expect that all the politicians present and to come will be greatly boosted if they are given the same reception as I have been given and I think the form of advertising I am honored with is the most effective booster in politics. I never take notice of the papers but at the same time it is a poor sample of the kind of stuff which is in a man if this is the way one has to hit a man. It is an insidious suggestion when it is said that Sir Michael Cashin insulted the Methodist denomination. How was such an inference made? This is absolutely and deliberately fabricated. That Sir Michael Cashin jeeringly said the leader of the Government was attending the Methodist Conference is entirely untrue. That is a poor sample of politician. The paper that endeavors to forward along a cause by such fabrication without any semblance of truth is unworthy of the purpose which has brought it into being.

It is not an imbecile mind, but it is a sort of deranged mind. The reference made to Sir Michael Cashin that no children should be educated in the Methodist College is not one that any sane person will take seriously. After all, I expect Sir Michael has very little to do with that well-established and valuable institution. But there is one institution that we shall have an opportunity to refer to. For the present I propose to withhold any reference. There is an institution that should receive some consideration, an institution that will deal with lunatics at large. I think we can suggest that for this country and I think it would have some effect. I have no interest in the debate that has just taken place, but I must express my opinion of the incessant abuse that is being conducted by some of the newspapers. I differ from the other speakers as to how the people will view the guttersnipe scribble. I know the humble fisherman will take it at its value, and use the dirty sheet for what it ought to be used. May I not hope that in volume and space it will increase.

MR. BENETT:—Mr. Chairman, I don't intend to delay the House very long. I must express sincere regret that circumstances should call for the debate that has taken place this afternoon. The time has come when propaganda of this kind must be stopped In the opening days of this session I had occasion to refer to certain appointments in the Upper Chamber. and to refer to the denominational representation in that Chamber, and because I had the audacity to contend that the Church of England had not its proper representation in that Chamber I was accused of rank sectarianism. The House of Assembly, the Executive Council, and the Legislative Council are all constituted on denominational lines notwithstanding the contention of my honorable friend the Minister of Justice, to the contrary. It is a system that has been adopted in all respects in the entire public service, but I was hailed before the public and held up as a sectarian firebug. I think Mr. Fox, the member for St. John's East, at the time handled the subject in a manner that did credit to himself. I was present at the time Sir Michael Cashin threw across the House to the leader of the Government some reference to two and a half. I do not know what two and a half means. I do not belong to any organization of which that is an emblem, and I knew nothing of its significance until I took up the 'Daily Star.' It is quite true that the paper that published that has taken every opportunity to vilify me personally. I pay as much attention to that paper as I do to the noise of a mule or a cat. The incident the other night was, in my opinion, simply a pure childish interruption which brought back from the Prime Minister the statement that he would no longer continue the debate. I was down in Bay de Verde and I received a cordial reception. I heard no reference to anything but party issues. In the meeting at Freshwater Mr. Puddister and myself laid down the condition of the campaign: there was to be no reference to religion and no personalities. My opinion was that the election was going to be tight, but that the Opposition candidate was going to win. I don't know of any trick work, and if there was any it was done silently in the last day or two.

I have no desire to enter into this controversy. I merely want to say that as a man, a friend, and as a citizen, there is no man in St. John's in whom I have greater confidence than Sir Michael Cashin. His name is a household word. He has stood on the floors of this House under different premiers, irrespective of what denomination. He happens to be a member of a certain denomination, but that makes no difference to me. I support him because I feel that he is the best man in sight at present, and to think that Sir Michael Cashin insulted any denomination or society deliberately is perfectly absurd. I think it is an unfortunate situation that members of this House should use the Government papers to sway the public mind in this manner. This country's division is this country's disaster. If we permit this we will be a laughing-stock and a bye-word among civilized men. Let us realize that we are all Newfoundlanders, and are here in the interest of a common country. Never did the country need greater unity than at the present time, and to say that the red flag is going to be hoisted will spell ruin to the country. The sooner we realize the high duty that we have to perform the better. No matter what the personnel of the Government or the Opposition let us legislate as Newfoundlanders.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—Mr. Chairman, I don't intend to speak much on this debate. I was in the House when some reference was made to two and a half. When two and a half was mentioned I thought it had reference to the Prime Minister, because when the Prime Minister was canvassing in the West End he used to go into the beer shops and shout for the crowd and tell them that if returned he would give them something better than two and a half.

Now I want to call attention to an article in the 'Daily Star' of June 2nd. The 'Star' calls us Seinn Feiners, and says that we are a wound in England's heart. But we gave our sons many of whom gave their lives in answer to England's call. That night I met a Protestant, a great friend of mine, and he told me that there was going to be an election in Bay de Verde, and that this was Mr. Squires' manifesto to Bay de Verde. He said, I supported Mr. Squires last time, and I know his tricks. The next day I saw in the 'Star' about the election in Bay de Verde. I care not what a man's religion is. I have many good friends in the L.O.A. and the United Fishermen in Portugal Cove. I go there and I am treated like a king. When I first heard about this matter I thought it was some reference to the Prime Minister and the modification of the Prohibition Act.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—The Hon. Sir Michael Cashin, Leader of the Opposition, has occupied the attention of the House for two hours in his criticisms of this Housing Bill. I now seek the attention of the House for ten minutes in which I feel sure the House will be satisfied that his criticisms have been fully answered. In the days of the National Government of which Sir Michael Cashin was Minister of Finance and Customs, the Municipal Council asked the Government for a grant of the sum of $30,000 for the erection of Workingmen's houses. Sir Michael Cashin as Minister of Finance aggressively opposed the grant and the Government rejected the application and declined to give any grant. At that date housing conditions were just as serious as they are today. Sir Michael knew their seriousness but aggressively opposed the application. In the autumn of 1918 the Hon. John Anderson wrote the Government of that day, the present Opposition, asking that his housing scheme might be considered, and, in keeping with the previous attitude of Sir Michael Cashin, the present leader of the Opposition, the Government replied in the following very definite words "nothing doing." Every application made to the present Opposition when they were the Government of the Colony, whether made by the Municipal Council or the Hon. John Anderson and his associates was flatly rejected. I feel, Sir, that Sir Michael is paying a very great compli ment to the Government when he urgues that during the few months that we have been in office we are capable of giving more serious and satisfactory attention to the Housing Problem than he and his associates were able to give to the problem during a period of three years when pressure was brought to bear upon him and his colleages to deal with this important matter. Sir Michael has offered a personal criticism of myself in suggesting that this Bill has been thrown on the table of the House without any explanation. Sir Michael's memory is entirely at fault in this connection. The subject matter of this Bill was introduced in this House some few days ago in the form of resolutions. These resolutions were tabled and were fully discussed. Sir Michael himself supported the resolutions while he now opposes the bill—which is based upon them. All the information which Sir Michael seeks was then laid before the House. Sir Michael was present during the discussion, and was present when the information was furnished. The principle of this Bill was fully discussed and list of prospective shareholders was tabled; full information given as to the nominal capital of the company, the value of the shares, and, as a matter of fact, even the original correspondence between the Government and the Hon. John Anderson and others relative to the subject-matter of the Bill was laid upon the table of the House. The hon. member for St. John's East, Mr. Higgins, asked certain questions with respect to the subject-matter of the Bill, and the information which he sought was tabled in writing. The memory of the honourable the leader of the Opposition must be exceedingly faulty when he is standing on his feet, because he was present in this House when the resolutions were discussed and the information to which I have just referred tabled. In spite of that, he has repeatedly asserted during his lengthy speech that the matter had been brought before the House without explanation and that the company was not incorporated and that it had no capital. This House has already been informed on several occasions, Sir Michael Cashin being present at the time, that the company had been incorporated under the Companies' Laws of Newfoundland, and that while it had no paid-up capital, yet the Memorandum of Association was signed by a large number of strength who indicated the number of shares to which they were subscribers. The Company was incorporated free of cost under a Minute of Council passed under the authority of the Companies' Act which provides that a company incorporated for philanthropic purposes may under certain circumstances be incorporated without payment of the usual fees. The Bill provides that the company is to receive certain concessions, such as free entry for materials to be used and a guarantee of interest on bonds.

MR. BENNETT:—Was the agreement acceptable to the Government?

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—The concessions which the company desired to secure were discussed on several occasions with me by Mr. Anderson. I was also waited on by the Hon M. P. Gibbs and Messrs. McGrath, who was President of the 'Longshoremen's Union, and Linegar and Foley. The proposition submitted to me by the Hon. Mr. Anderson and his associates is the proposition which was embodied in the resolutions which have already passed this House, and is the basis upon which this Bill has been drafted. The only correspondence of which I have any recollection between the Government and the Company consists of a request by the Company for the concessions set out in this Bill. Their entire request has been fully met. The Hon. John Anderson has asked whether the Government would be prepared to guarantee a bankers credit to the amount of probably $50,000 for the purchase of supplies, etc., pending the collection of capital. The Government has agreed to give him a present guarantee of $25,000. The question of a credit for a further sum of $25,000 is to be considered at a later date. The leader of the Opposition has attempted to suggest that the Bill before the House is one for which the Government proposes to take any credit. The observations of the honourable gentleman are entirely imaginary. No person who took the trouble to listen even intelligently, to the observations which I have made with respect to this matter both in the resolution stage and in its present stage could come to such a conclusion. This housing scheme is the result of the combined energy and co-operation of the Hon. John Anderson, Hon. M. P. Gibbs, Mr. James McGrath, President of the Longshoremen's Union, Mr. Michael Foley and some others. They have asked the Government for certain concessions, and the only credit the Government takes in connection with this matter is that it has granted the concessions sought, and has not behaved in the indifferent and discourteous manner towards this housing problem as Sir Michael Cashin and his associates have behaved during the past few years.

MR. HIGGINS:—This is not a Government project.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—Nobody has ever suggested that it was a Government project. I feel that I have made it abundantly clear to the House that the entire credit for the development of the idea belongs to the Hon. John Anderson, Hon. M. P. Gibbs, Mr. James McGrath, Mr. Foley and the other gentlemen who are associated with those gentlemen who are the leaders in the development of this scheme. The Government has granted their request. It is not in this Bill offering them any more than they asked for, nor is it offering them less. They put up a certain proposition to the Government, and the Government with alacrity and in the most friendly spirit acceded to it, thus showing an attitude towards the housing problem entirely different from the attitude shown by the present Opposition when they were in charge of affairs.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—(Interrupting): When these resolutions were introduced you told us that you would explain the whole thing fully when it was brought in as a Bill. You are here for the last half hour trying to cover up your mistakes. I care not how they shout or how you shout. I care nothing for you or your satellites in the gallery, brought in for the purpose. Never mind trying to get away from it. I have you right there now where I want you. The two and a half trick will not do you here.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—I do not understand what you mean by the 'two and a half trick."

MR. MacDONNELL:—You know alright.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—So that there may be no misunderstanding as to what Sir Michael Cashin and Mr. MacDonnell have said I desire to call the reporter's attention to their statements and ask that they be particularly noted. The words used by Sir Michael Cashin were "The two and a half trick will not do you here." The words used by Mr. MacDonnell were "You know alright."

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—There is no way of your getting out of it now, and I am just going to lay you bare.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—What are you going to lay bare, "the two and a half?"

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Never mind the two and a half. I have been used to that all my life.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—When Sir Michael Cashin used the term "two and a half trick" I did not appreciate what his insolent remark was, but I feel now that I understand.

I consequently decline to further debate this matter with Sir Michael Cashin, the Leader of the Opposition, or with Mr. James MacDonnell, who has also made an observation with respect thereto. I consequently, Mr. Speaker, take my seat.

MR. HIGGINS:—What is being done in the matter of the bonuses for the engineers at the Lunatic Asylum and General Hospital?

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—The bonus for the man at the General Hospital is under consideration by the Executive.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—I notice there is no increase for the Supt. of the Poor Asylum. Now, Mr. Chairman, I would like to say a word for Mr. Miller, because I think he should have been considered. In their choice of a Superintendent for the Poor Asylum the Government have picked out a good man. I know both Mr. and Mrs. Miller and I am sure the inmates of the institution of which they are in charge will be well looked after. I know of Mrs. Miller's charitable work and I am certain that whatever we give them will not be too much.

MR. BENNETT:—Has the Government considered the erection of a new Poor Asylum?

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—No, but the organization of the institution has been aranged for under the direction of Mr. Miller.

MR. BENNETT:—I endorse everything said by Mr. Vinnicombe with regard to Mr. Miller. I presume Mrs. Miller is the matron.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Miller's deceased son's widow is the matron.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—I would like to ask if an Inspector of Meats has been appointed yet.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—No.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—I understand there are some applications in?

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—I dare say there are the usual number of applications, as in all cases where a vacancy exists, but none has come under my notice particularly.

MR. HIGGINS:—That appointment was made on the recommendation of Mr. Bennett and myself on behalf of our constituents in both ends of the city. Public Health Officer O'Brien had no practical experience, and in such cases as the examination of slaughter houses, etc., great injustice was often done. People were prosecuted on the most flimsy charges; if their slaughter houses were built on the bank of a river they were brought before Court because the river didn't run through them. The result was that representations were made to the Government and Courtney was appointed. I would like the Prime Minister to table the correspondence in connection with his dismissal. Mr. Courtney was dismissed without cause and for no reason whatever. I am given to understand that the recommendation for his dismissal did not emanate from the Public Health nothing more nor less than to satisfy a personal spleen. If that is the case a great injustice has been done. Mr. Courtney was a well informed man Office and that he was dismissed for and I question if there are many better informed or better read men in the city than he is. He was a credit to the Department and I question if in the whole department there was a man, with the exception of Dr. Brehm himself, measuring up to his class. As to the need of a man like Courtney in that position, the members of this House will be surprised to know that the amount of imported meats, such as salt and corned meats, condemned last year was between forty and fifty thousand pounds. Now if this condition existed last year, surely it is wrong to let it go unchecked in the future. If we want to ensure the quality of our food suppply the inspection of meat must be properly done and not give little perquisites to butchers in business. I would like to have that correspondence tabled. I will not anticipate too much but if Mr. Courtney was dismissed without cause, I will deal with the matter.

MR. BENNETT:—I would like to have a word to say before we pass this vote in reference to the position of Meat Inspector in this city. Mr. Courtney held that position at a salary of $300 per year. This was not sufficient for the gentleman to live on. As pointed out by Mr. Higgins such a man is required today not alone for the inspection of fresh meats but for the inspection of all salt meats, pork, etc. Quite a lot of work could be done in this connection. Such an official would be very essential especially during the present time when so much meat is being sent to the outports, some of which is unfit for human food. During the life of the late Government Inspector O'Brien held that position and later Mr. Courtney, who is a man thoroughly capable to fill the position. He is young and sober, honest and industrious, and I am sure that you would find no more suitable man. As to what are the Government's intentions in this respect I do not know. I was very sorry to hear that Mr. Courtney's services had been dispensed with. I think that the two positions of Public Health Officer and Meat Inspector could have been consolidated. I now wish to call the Prime Minister's attention to the second vote on this list and that is the vote for Child Welfare. Is that a mistake?

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—Yes, I think it is. Under the Morris Administration of which I was Attorney-General this was voted and it was decided to give $450. The $450 was not given last year. The W.P.A. and City Council and Public Health Department collected certain funds some time ago and they were short $450. They asked for this amount and it was paid. This year it is $750. That is an increase and not a reduction. What that $1920 is I do not know. There was no such vote last year but the Minister of Finance can give the information.

MR. MacDONNELL:—During the discussions a few days ago Mr. Coaker stated that he would not stand for a stenographer's salary being over $700.

HON. MIN. MARINE & FISHERIES —I don't intend to either. This lady will also be a clerk. You shouldn't draw my attention to it anyway. Do I infer from what you say that you want her salary reduced?

MR. MacDONNELL:—No, but I want all the others increased.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—This lady will not only be a stenographer but a general clerk.

MR. MacDONNELL:—Mr. Coaker it is good to see that you can't do every thing.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—The Smallpox vote has decreased, altho last year the number of cases were enormous. Rsidents of Bell Island and other places in Conception Bay submitted to voluntary vaccination and the doctors were paid the sum of twenty-five cents for each vaccination.

MR. MacDONNELL:—I'd like to say a few words in reference to this vote. I am glad that the Prime Minister has said that the cost last year was enormous. I received some infor mation some time ago. It is second-hand and I got it from the various departments. I will lay a general summary of it before the House so that such things as this may be prevented from going on. Every doctor is entitled to the same treatment and Dr. Jones in 1918 treated 96 patients for smallpox.For this he was paid 50 cents per visit and 35 cents a mile and getting nothing for the return journey. If he happened to be out of his own place at the time another man was brought in there and paid $15.00. Several of the doctors are kicking because of this treatment and are now asking that they be paid $1.00 a visit and $1.25 per mile. Last year during the outbreak of smallpox at Avondale Dr. Gill was paid $15.00 per day for his work at that place. You are not going to get doctors in their own settlements to look after smallpox cases for 50 cents a visit and 25 cents a mile, when an outsider can come in and get $15.00 per day and the amount paid Dr. Gill for his services was $615 while $1600 was paid to the man who drove him. I think that $15.00 a day to a man coming in from an outside settlement is an outrage. A dollar a visit and $1.25 per mile would be enough.

MR. HALFYARD:—During the Flu Epidemic the doctors were paid $25 per day.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—That is what was paid in some instances and it was often difficult to get medical attendance for that figure.

MR. MacDONNELL:—Well, if they are going to take advantage of such conditions as these, then I think that it is high time to get to work and prevent it and I think it is about time to bring in a Bill to consider it. If a lawyer did this do you think he would be tolerated by the Law Society? I think that a local practitioner should get more than 50 cents a visit and 25 cents a mile. The 50 cents a visit may be all right but I think that their travelling allowance should be increased.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—It is not correct to say that there has been no increase by the Government in the Poor Grants. The total sum of money paid by the Colony annually under the head of Public Charities is not less than one million dollars That represents a tax of $4.00 on every man, woman and child in the Island on Public Charities account. The Old Age Pension grant has been increased by the sum of $10,000. It is quite true that the specific vote for the relief of the poor is approximately a matter of a quarter of a million and has not been increased, but the Commissioner of Public Charities advised me that that vote is sufficient for the purpose for which it is intend ed. In the event of any marine or other disaster, destruction by forest fires or special calamity from any other cause, special provision has been made in the past and will be made in the future by the Executive Government to meet such special demands, but for the usual and regular assistance to the deserving poor a quarter of a million dollars, or a tax of $1.00 for every man, woman and child in the Island, is regarded by the officials in charge of Poor Relief as sufficient. There are certainly very many cases of serious hardship, but that hardship is due not so much to a lack of funds as to the unfortunate method which appertains in some sec tions of the administration of the funds available. As a matter of fact the total increase in Public Charities accounts is $200,000. I appreciate the fact that this increase does not go directly into the pockts of the poor, but it is for the benefit of the poor. This total of $1,000,000 is not $1,000,000 which is being distributed amongst the poor people of the Island. Only approximately $350,000 is being so distributed, but the Poor Grant is for the poor. The General Hospital, which up to the present has been a free institution, is an institution primarily for the poor. The Lunatic Asylum, which is practically a free institution, is primarily an institution for the poor. There are exceedingly few paying patients at the Asylum for the Insane. The money which is expended in connection with the prevention of infectious diseases is largely a payment on account of the poor. The doctors who attend infectious diseases in the wealthy classes are not doctors paid at Government expense. In the cases of quarantine the large expense of maintenance of families is the maintenance of the families of the poor. If the house of a poor man is quaranined, he and his family are looked after at Government expense. If he is a man who can afford to pay his own expenses, then he does not claim the Public Charities account for his main tenance while he is under quarantine. The vote for travelling expenses of patients to and from the Hospital, medical attendance and the votes for Orphanages, training of the Blind, training of the Deaf and Dumb, and the numerous votes for philanthropic and charitable organizations are for the assistance of the poor. I consequently feel that having regard to the revenue of the Colony, one million dol lars is a very liberal vote under the head of Public Charities, and, having regard to the limited wealth of the country, $4.00 for every man, woman and child in the Colony is a very sub stantial taxation for that purpose.

In answer to an inquiry which was made by one of the members for St. John's East, as to the Poor Asylum, I have to say that up to quite recently the Poor Asylum was horribly managed. This was not due to the carelessness or callousness of the Superintendent or his assistants, but it was due to the fact that the Superintendent had for years been applying for a pension. He was quite incapable of doing any work, and were it not for the fact that the matron was a very capable woman, the situation in connection with that institution would have been infinitely worse than it was The Poor Asylum has long been known as he "saddest place in Newfoundland." Shortly after I took office my attention was called to the condition of affairs at the Poor Asylum by the presentation of the Grand Jury. A Committee of Council was immediately appointed to look into the matter. Reorganization was undertaken. The Superintendent, who for years had been applying for a pension, was pensioned. Mr. A. W. Miller, a man of kindly disposition good executive ability and industry, was appointed Superintndent; the wife of his deceased son was appointed matron, and from the reports that I have received from time to time since the appointment I am satisfied that he is pursuing a policy of reorganization and improvement in connection with the conduct of the institution and that it is now very creditably run and the condition of the inmates has improved immeasurably. The Government does not at the present moment contmplate the building of a new Poor Asylum, much as a new Poor Asylum appears to be needed, but the reason why a new Por Asylum appears to be needed is that its management has been very unsatisfactory, rather than any grave defect in the building itself.

True, it is admitted by all that it would be a very great improvement if the Government felt the Colony could afford the expenditure of half a million dollars for the erection of a new building. In answer to the inquiries which have been made as to the policy with respect to the General Hospital, I must say that I have noted with great pleasure the unanimous support which the Opposition has given to the Government's idea of putting the Hospital upon a commercial basis. At the present time the Hospital is an absolutely free institution. Men and women of wealth are treated at the Hospital, and are treated free; they are not allowed to pay. In many cases payment has been tendered and refused. I have in mind one particular case well known to honourable members of the Opposition, in which a gentleman of wealth and standing in the community, demanded the right to pay for the treatment which he received at the Institution. He was told by the Superintendent that no payment could be accepted. Several years ago the Hon. Mr. Bennett will remember the Board of Commissioners recommended a scale of fees for all patients, those who could pay to be called upon to pay; those who could not pay to be paid for by the Department of Public Charities. That policy was approved of by the Morris Administration, of which I was Attorney-General. It was also approved of by the Morris National Administration, of which I was Colonial Secretary. I gather from the observations which have been made by some of the honourable members opposite that it was approved of by the subsequent Lloyd administration and also by the still subsequent Cashin Administration, but it was felt that it could not at these several times be put into effect because elections were pending and such a step might be used as political capital by an Opposition against the Government that took it. Since I have taken office I have had several interviews with members of the Hospital Commission with a view to putting the scale of fees adopted by the Morris Administration, confirmed by the Morris National Administration and also confirmed by the Lloyd and Cashin Administration, into effect, and I am glad to note that this policy has the endorsation of the honourable members opposite, particularly the endorsation of the Hon. Mr. Bennett, the member for St. John's West, who was Colonial Secretary of both the Morris and Cashin Administration. I want to make it very clear that this policy will not militate against the interests of the poor. It will, on the other hand, relieve the Hospital of some of the pressure which it at present receives from a class of people who are undoubtedly able to pay, but who nevertheless have the natural tendency to take advantage of a free institution and consequently occupy beds at the General Hospital because it is a free institution, when if the General Hospital were an Institution at which a charge would be made they would take the treatment at their own homes. There is also this advantage and that is, that medical men very often urge patients to go to the General Hospital for minor operations which might just as well be performed in the patient's home. Putting a reasonable scale of fees into effect will consequently lighten the burden on the General Hospital to some extent at least and thus give the poor a better oportunity of being treated, as also all who have to face such major operations and important treatment as cannot be satisfactorily undertaken at their homes or in the several private hospitals of the city. Those who are poor and unable to pay pay their medical and hospital expenses paid for them through the Department of Public Charities, and those who can pay will be expected to pay, and I feel that in ninety-nine cases out of every hundred, will be glad to pay, as Newfoundlanders as a rule are not the sort of people who are looking for charitable assistance and expect to get surgical, medical and hospital treatment at the expense of somebody else.

Reference has also been made to the supply of Artificial Limbs. Up to the immediate present an arrangement has existed between the Government and Messrs. Rowley Brothers, of Chicago, under which a member of the Rowley firm would visit Newfoundland once or twice ayear and look after the matter of the suplying of artificial limbs to those who required them. The calamities of war have added very considerably to the number of artificial limbs required, with the result that I took this matter up with the Civil Re-Establishment Committee last Autumn and on arrangemnt was arrived at with Messrs. Row ley Brothers whereby two soldiers who were taking Civil Re-Establishment courses were taken by Mr. Rowley to Chicago and today are being trained there as artificial limb experts. Mr. Rowley visited Newfoundland a few months ago, brought the two men with him, installed some necessary apparatus for them to undertake the work, handled all the cases which required attention, took the men away with him again, and this autumn or next spring they will be able to come back to Newfoundland as expert mechanics in this industry

MR. HIGGINS:—A present the total vote to the poor is $300,000. For the Lunatic Asylum we have voted $140, 000. You can't call that a poor vote. For the General Hospital we have voted $175,000. You can't call that a vote for the poor. For Public Health we spend $160,000; this is for the benefit of the community. For protection of tne greater part of the community we pay $45,000 to the Fever Hospital and in point of fact the million dollars for charity now boils down to $380,000. I have no further objection to the vote

MR. WALSH:—We practically got a guarantee that consideration would be given the district of Placentia and St. Mary's, and I hope that a man will be sent up there to locate a place to build a fog alarm. We need two fog alarms up there, but if we got one placed there this year we will be satisfied. If th Government can see their way clear next year to build another the people of Placentia and St. Mary's will be grateful for their work.

MR. MacDONNELL:—When I went to the District of St. George's I pledged that a light would be put there. I find that this year $25,000 has been voted for this purpose, but no light has been put there yet.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—We will carry out all our pledges, Mr. MacDonnell.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—I would like to ask the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if that $800.00 voted for Cape St. Francis light is a salary for the keeper.

HON. MIN. MARINE & FISHERIES —Yes. that's the keeper's salary.

MR. VINNICOMBE—I went to Cape St. Francis some time ago and I had a look at the place and I think the keeper there is worthy of an increase in his salary. His place is shining; all the brass work and the rest of the house is kept very nice and clean, and I think he takes an interest in the place. I think that the Minister should consider his case.

MR. HIGGINS:—Are we going to proceed any further this evening?

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—Might we not proceed to the Marine and Fisheries vote?

MR. HIGGINS:—There are a few hon. members that would like to say a word upon that vote and who are not present tonight.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—We are hoping that we will be able to close this session of the Legislature by the end of the present week and we would like to get through as much business as possible.

MR. HIGGINS:—There are a few things in the vote for Roads and Bridges that some of the hon. members who are absent may like to consider.

HON. MIN. OF JUSTICE:—Before the committee rises I would like to reply to a question asked by the hon. member for Ferryland some time ago. He stated that there has been no issue of uniforms to the firemen for the past twelve months. I have made some enquiries and have secured the following reports from the Inspector-General and the fire chiefs.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES:—The other day some friends on the Opposition asked a question in reference to the Edmund Donald. In reply, I might say that she carried 300 passengers and had boat accommodation for 660.

MR. MacDONNELL:—How many boats did she carry?

HON. MIN. MARINE & FISHERIES —About 20.

MR. MacDONNELL:—What about wireless?

HON. MIN. MARINE & FISHERIES —She had no wireless.

MR. HIGGINS:—I would like to ask the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs if he will inform the House why W. B. Moss has been dismissed.

MINISTER POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS:—It was considered very desirable that a change be made. This was done by the Executive Government.

MR. HIGGINS:—I ask that if there was any correspondence in reference to this dismissal that I would like to receive copies of same.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—Mr. Chairman, the engineer at the General Hospital was rated the same as he is now but he had a bonus which has now been cut out, while the engineer at the Lunatic Asylum has his bonus still. Why is this?

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—That has already been explained. The position is this. The work at the Lunatic Asylum was such as to entitle the man there to an assistant but the engineer preferred to do the extra work himself and get the bonus. At the same time the matter of a bonus for Mr. Moore is under consideration.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—Don't you think it is an insult to an engineer to have him down for the same amount as the firemen are getting? This man has the responsibility of the whole thing on his shoulders, he has to answer all calls and still you have him down for the same as the firemen. It is unfair and I hope it has not been done because of political pull. If you don't want to keep the man on, then fire him but if you want to know what he is doing ask the doctor and he will be in a position to tell you. I am not causing any outcry against the firemen getting $1170, they are worth it, but what I contend is that the engineer should receive more than the fireman. I don't know how the men on the other side can go back to their districts after what they have done in the matter of increases. There was a time that I sat outside the bar of this House and I heard Mr. Jennings say that he would take neither a position nor a salary from the Government but when he heard the jingle of the gold he fell from grace. I also remember Mr. Coaker saying that the people of St. John's did nothing but go to football games and watch a crowd of men chase a ball around the field like so many cats chasing a mouse, ride in motor cars and go to the Golf Links, and now Mr. Coaker does it all but go to the golf links. I don't know how the people will treat him when he goes back to them after this session. God knows we have enough poor people waiting day by day to draw their few miserable dollars, and I really don't know how these men on the other side can go back after all we've heard about them the past eight or ten years fighting for the cause of the poor down-trodden fisherman. I believed in Coaker one time, I supported him the last election, but he also fell from grace when he heard the tingle of the gold. Now I trust, Mr. Chairman, that the widow's mite will be looked after.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

At half-past four of the clock, the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod appeared at the Bar of the House with a message from His Excellency the Governor, commanding the attendance of the House in the Council Chamber Accordingly, Mr. Speaker and the House attended the Governor in the Council Chamber.

And Mr. Speaker and the House being at the Bar of the Council Chamber His Excellency the Governor was pleased to assent to the Bill entitled "An Act Respecting the Appointment of a Temporary Commission for the City of St. John's and other purposes"

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had passed certain Resolutions and asked leave to sit again on to-morrow.

On motion this was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on to-morrow.

The remaining orders of the Day were deferred.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the Bills sent up entitled respectively "An Act Respecting Local Affairs in Outport Districts," and "An Act to Amend Chapter 127 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of Companies' without amendment.

Mr. MacDonnell asked the Prime Minister

(1) If the Government has been considering the purchasing of the mining property of the St. George's Coal Company;

(2) What amount is being paid for same;

(3) If it is the intention to begin development operations in the near future.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, in moving that the House at its rising do adjourn until tomorrow, Monday next, at 3 in the afternoon, I desire to answer two questions which were put to me by the honourable the leader of the Opposition, Sir Michael Cashin, during the course of his lengthy speech. Sir Michael asked me if I were in a position to inform the House as to what was the attack that he made upon the Honourable the Minister of Marine and Fisheries some days ago. He read an editorial from the 'Daily Star' newspaper in which the statement was made that Sir Michael Cashin had used vile and offensive language and had made an attack upon Mr. Coaker. I regret that I am not in a position to answer Sir Michael Cashin's question, because I was not in the House when Sir Michael made the indecent exhibition to which editorial reference was made. I consequently cannot give the House any information whatever as to what Sir Michael said on that occasion. My only knowledge of the unseemly occurrence consists of the newspaper references and the information which I have from various members of the House who have discussed it in my presence. As to the editorial in question, I was very much amused at Sir Michael's saying that when he was speaking I was writing the editorial at my desk, that he saw me writing it.

In view of the fact that I was not in the House at the time I can readily believe that Sir Michael sometimes makes statements which are not in accordance with the facts. As a matter of fact, I was not aware of the contents of the editorial in question until Sir Michael Cashin read this evening the report of the proceedings which appeared in the 'Daily Star' as I did not have the opportunity of seeing any of the city newspapers of that day's date.

The second question which Sir Michael Cashin asked me was in the nature of a statement rather than a question. He said that during the course of the Bay-de-Verde campaign he had received a telegraph message to the effect that on one or more platforms in the District of Bay-de-Verde I had stated that the brand which would be put on fish would be a 2 1-2 brand. I fear that Sir Michael must have drawn upon his inimagination in this case, just as fully as he must have in the other instance to which I have just referred. I do not propose to venture any opinion as to whether Sir Michael did or did not receive any such message, but I do know that I did not on any public platform or otherwise during the course of the Bay-de-Verde campaign or at any other time, make any such statement, nor was such a statement made in my hearing by any person, nor, as a matter of fact, did I ever hear the words "two and a half" used directly or indirectly, openly or by insinuation in relation to fish or any other matter, during the entire campaign. I regret that Sir Michael should so frequently base utterances delivered by him from his position as leader of the Oposition in this Chamber upon nothing more substantial than a deluded imagination.

MR. WALSH:—As the Committee arose, Mr. Chairman, I was about to make some remarks on the Public Charities vote, but before doing so I would like to point out another injustice. It is unnecessary for me to add anything to what has already been said with reference to the Commissioner and staff of this Department. Mr. O'Dwyer is above reproach as the head of that Department; he is a man who cares nothing for party politics and who cares less what position or influence a politician may have. He will, under all circumstances, do what he considers to be his duty. I understand that the Commission placed him in the class of the Deputy Heads. I understand that the Assessor is to be considered and I hope that Mr. Dwyer will also be considered. In the other cases of this Department there is Mr. Dunphy, who I learned since going to my tea, has been in the Department for twenty-six years. He is down for fifteen hundred dollars and he is called upon to do very particular work, but his salary remains the same and similarly with the other officials. It is most unfair and I trust the Government will reconsider this vote. Now to come to the vote for casual and permanent poor. This may be an oversight or a misprint, but before I take my seat I want to make one more appeal to the private members of this House who have more association with this class of person than perhaps the ministers have, to do all they can to induce the Government to increase this amount of $214,000. These men must know the actual necessity that exists for an incrase in this miserable dole. During the days of war when with good fisheries and good prices for our products we enjoyed the greatest of prosperity, these poor people were badly off enough, because it matters not to them whether fish is two dollars or twenty, they get the same pittance but now that prices have gone even beyond the means of the ordinary person, their plight is very much worse. Before this vote goes thru I hope it will be reconsidered and increased by at least a hundred per cent. It is nothing short of criminal to vote ourselves and our well-to-do friends increases of two, three and five hundred per cent and to increase other votes for purposes that are not at all deserving, and to do nothing for the poor widow and orphan. I do not desire to longer delay the time of the House, Mr. Chairman, except to riterate the injustice we are doing the poor unfortunate people who are depending on this vote for the wherewithal to live.

SIR. M. P. CASHIN:—Mr. Chairman, before the passing of this vote I would like to join in the protest against some of these increases and to say that in the proposal made by the member for Placentia, Mr. Walsh, I heartily concur. It seems hard, it seems cruel, it seems unkind, it seems unjust, it seems unfair, to find that we come here, a respectable looking crowd of men, and cooly increase every vote under this head except that for the relief of the poor. Have we any conception of what we are doing? Have we any feeling whatever for these people? We increase our own salaries but we ignore those who are actually suffering want. This is not the doctrine preached by the gentlemen on the other side bfore the election. There is a balance of three mil lion dollars to the Colony's credit and yet there is not a single protest from the other side against this vote. Are these gentlemen satisfied that these people are not in need? Are they satisfied that the widow and orphan can live on thirty dollars a year? There is not a member on the other side but understands as well as I do the circumstances under which the poor who are depending on this vote exist; still centincreases from thirty to five hundred pr cent are made in salaries but no attempt is made to increase the mite that is handed out to the widow. Surely it must be a mistake. Is the Minister of Finance so cold, so callous, so dead to humanity as this? Is West and to the country last fall? Is this what he promised to St. John's it because the people are poor that no notice is taken of them, while we increase our own salaries? Personally I do not think that there is any explanation that can be offered for it. I for one will join with the hon. member for Placentia in entering a protest against such treatment, and I am sincere in this. We are voting ourselves $30,000 increase for coming here for a couple of hours a day for eight or ten weeks. I don't know who asked for this increase. I am sure nobody on this side of the House did; and I am prepared to give my share of it to the widows and orphans; but it is idle for me to talk in this direction. The members on the other side have made up their minds and nothing will move them .It is strange how quickly gentlemen can change their minds and their actions. It is not so long since the people inside of this House and outside of it heard of some of those on the other side beseeching us when we were over there to double the old age pensions, but what, I ask, have they done since they have been there? They made all kinds of promises to get votes and they did everything they knew how to get here, and all they have done in return is to increase their own salaries.

It is not unreasonable to ask to make the vote for the relief of the poor six or seven hundred thousand dollars. Just imagin $30 for an individual to live on for a year. It may be said, and with a great deal of truth, that the widows and orphans in the outports may have other sources of revenue in the way of having land of their own with which to rear vegetables; but why not take into consideration the widows and orphans in St. John's who have no resources and who are living in top flats with scarcely a place to lay their heads. Why not the Government wake up and realize what they are doing in this direction? Likely they will go on for a couple of sessions and then nearing the end of their term of office they will come in and ask this House to double or treble this vote, but the most disgusting part of it is to the persons who are in want and who placed their confidence in the Government of the day and who are looking forward to the Government of the day, in the light of the fact that you are increasing your own sessional indemnity by five hundred per cent and you have increased virtually every salary on the Civil Service list from fifty per cent downwards and in many cases that amount upwards. Here you cannot offer any explanation and are not making any attempt to offer any as to why you have not increased this dole for the poor widows and orphans of the country. It's true that the most we can do on this side of the House is to recommend and protest, and on behalf of the Oposition, I protest against the passing of this vote in its present form There is no reason whatever according to the rosy statements contained in the Budget that was prsented to this House a few days ago, and according to the reserve cash that you have in credit in the Bank of Montreal, why you should not double this grant this session for the relief of the poor. Now after leaving the grant for the poor with a great deal of reluctance, I come to the General Hospital. What are you doing and what is your policy in this connection? Is it your intention when this House closes to charge fees to all patients who go there for treatment? Are you going to take any vote before this House closes to provide for the number of people that are waiting patiently to enter that institution at the present time? I understand that there are over fifty patients in the city from different outports waiting for immediate admission to the General Hospital. I also understand that Dr. Fraser has an hospital able to accom odate over forty children patients and that arrangements were made between the Governmnt and Dr. Fraser to accomodate only 15 children. Now why 15, if there is sufficient accomodation for 40? There are children here in the city from the outports awaiting to get admission there to be operated up on and many of their cases need immediate attendance, I understand. Why should you limit the number of patients for that institution if the accomodation is there? I would like to know before this vote passes this House if you are going to collect a fee in the future at the General Hospital? Are you going to try and collect a fee from anybody who is not prepared to pay it, or are you going to collect it through the Poor Commissioner's Department? I understand that the Government is considering that matttr and I draw the attention of the House to it now and would ask the Prime Minister and Colonial Secretary to state the programme of the Governmnt in relation to it.

I would also ask what is the intention of the Government with reference to fire sufferers throughout the Island? I understand that in several parts of the Island, apart from Feryland District, several families have been burn ed out and have lost savings of a lifetime. As to the District of Ferryland which I represent, I might say that I had a report today stating that a number of people had lost all their belongings in that district within the past week or so. At Cappa Hayden, just above Renews, a family named Guiney, very industrious and well-off fishermen, had all their property destroyed by fire, including a lovely dwelling house, considerable cattle, barns, fishing gear and all valuable property. A week ago these were independent people; today they are living in a barn at Broad Cove and looking to the charity of their neighbors for support. Coming further down the shore to Mobile, which is a small settlement and containing few families, the people there also lost all their fishing gear and dwelling houses. The destruction to live stock and other property alone was such that it would cost over twenty thousand dollars to replace, apart from the destruction done to the forest and timber property surrounding the place. I know of one family there named Quirk that was cleaned out altogether and with nothing left, except what they stood in. Some families removed their provisions and supplies that they had for the summer down to the waterfront, the people having to clear out of thir dwellings owing to the intense smoke. The next morning they found that the sparks had blown down to the sea-shore and everything along that section, including furniture from the houses, fish and provisions were burned. One large trap skiff, which was made fast to a stage, had caught fire and drove to sea. Surely goodness, the Government will do something to relieve those people. Similar happenings occurred at Witless Bay and I wrote Dr. Campbell this morning with reference to the whole matter, asking him to bring the matter before the Government. I also wrote Dr. Campbell when the fire was raging furiously up in that district, and to his credit, he promptly went up there and did all possible, bu it was a case of locking the stable door when the steed was stolen. I told the whole story within the past ten days in his House and I told what progress the fires were making along that shore, and I told how such contingencies were grappled with in the past by governments. I put it right up to the Government and showed them how they disregarded the appointments of the right men to look after the controlling of fire in that settlement. I pointed out that during the past seven or eight years since the inception of the Southern Shore railway there was very little destruction as a result of engines; but in May last an order went forth from the Government and all the wardens who were there for years were dismissed. If they had waited until July or August to do this there might be some sense in it, because the vegetation season is on and sparks from the trains are more liable to start forest fires. Nearly every day within the past month we have had fires on that shore. Although I understand that the fires that took place at LaManche and Mobile were not started by the trains but by trouters or by men who were three or four miles in the country rinding; but the district has suffered heavily at the present time as a consequence. I hope that the Governmtnt will do something for these people living in that territory. Just imagine families going to bed at night quite independent and find themselves absolutely destitute in the morning. The splendid valley of La Manche, which was so useful to the people of the upper part of the district in supplying timber and planks of all kinds, has been burning for the past four weeks and up to four days ago not a hand was raised by the Agriculture and Mines Department to stop any of the fires. All the timber around the place and almost right up to Salmonier has been burned, and Mr. Bennett, who was in that section recently, can bear me out in this. The Crane family at La Manche were burned out and Mrs. Crane, an aged lady, lost her life, her skull being found yesterday among the ruins. I hope that the Government will take this matter into their serious consideration as I believe that those who suffered from forest fires all over the country should be compensated to some extent.

In the past it was the practice of previous governments to help in that direction. I knew of one gentleman who lost a lot of property in a northern district and we sent down a Commissioner to look into the matter and upon his report we spent thousands of dollars to relieve the people who suffered. I hope that Dr. Campbell will urge upon the Government to appoint a Commission to enquire into this matter of relief himself. I had a request today from some people in my distrct asking that some fencing be sent out, and I sent some myself, because many of the fences of the little gardens surrounded and burned by the forest fires were more or less destroyed. We know that the burning of the fences of the gardens of these poor little means much to them, because their crops are in the ground and the fishery is now on and they have no time to spare. So I trust that if Dr. Campbell, on behalf of the Government, intends to do anything, that he will act promptly.

While on these Estimates I would like to say a word or two with respect to the last debate that we had in this House, and in reply to the report of the 'Daily Star' on the proceedings. I want to draw the attention of this House to the scurilous and infamous charge made in that paper by a gentleman who has a seat in this House and by a gentleman, who, if he did not write that article, must have inspired it. Further than that I think it is only fair to me and to this side of the House and to our supporters outside this House that you will bear with me, Mr. Chairman, while I read the report of the proceedings, as contained in the 'Daily Star', and the scurillous attacks made on members of this House. But to begin at the beginning I would like to refer to an article published in the 'Star' under date of June 1st, and after reading it, I will ask you your opinion, and the opinion of this House and the opinion of respectable folks outside this House, as to whether it is according to "Hoyle." I would have referred to it the day after it appeared, but because it left an impression on my mind after reading it then that it was meant for a purpose. It was written on the eve of the Bye-election in Bay de Verde and for the purpose, firstly, to draw the attention of the Opposition and to draw them into a debate on it, and secondly, it was written to the voters of Bay de Verde district. I did not comment upon that article until the following day, but I bore it with patience until now. I will read it to the House and then ask the author for an explanation. I may say that the article was written in my presence in the House. Here's what it says:

(Reads article)

Well now, Sir, all I say to that document is that it was written for a purpose; that was written as a manifesto by Mr. Squires to the people of Bay de Verde. It was written for its effect in Bay de Verde. A document covering the policy of the Government went forward. Inasmuch as he sent this document there he also wrote or inspired it, and it could not get into the paper without his knowledge or consent. This now I leave to an intelligent public to judge and leave it to their consideration as to what it means. This certainly does not mean that it was written for an intelligent district. It was written to arouse the feeling of that district in a certain direction. It was written for a purpose by the Prime Minister, and as far as I am concerned and as far as my associates are concerned, we have fought a square and manly fight against him. And that is what we are prepared to do in this House and need not go behind the columns of a newspaper. But Premier Squires is not prepared to remain in this House and take what is coming to him. Such filth to hand out to an innocent people and that is their proper appellation if they take notice of it. It was written to take advantage of their religious feelings. Every move in every direction since that was written until the poll was declared is corroborated by the conduct of the Prime Minister. I charge Mr. Squires that he either wrote that or inspired it, and it did not get into the paper without his consent. That is an insult from beginning to end. Now here is another article, and I am glad Mr. Bennett and the Postmaster General are present. It is headed "Nothing Doing." This was also penned by Mr. Squires. I explained that on the 29th. (reads). Then here is another article; but, before leaving this one, I might draw the attention of the Postmaster to it, and, may I ask him, if I had any controversy with him about that matter?

HON. MINISTER OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS:—I do not think we did.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—(Reads article.) That is the second manifesto sent to the people of Bay de Verde. I challenge the Prime Minister right here and now that he wrote that, and if he did not write it he inspired it, and it was sent broadcast to the country. My attitude towards every denomination has been and is contrary to what has been penned in that document and I want to state right here and now that I am not afraid or ashamed of what my attitude has been towards any denomination since I have been in a position to render any help in that direction. And I have helped education for the past four or five years just as much for the Methodists as the Prime Minister has. At any time when a call has been made upon me from that body or any other body of educationalists for the past four years I was not the lowest on the list of donations to forward that movement. That article which I have just read to the public and the House was written by Mr. Squires for a purpose. It was written against me to stir up the feeling down in Bay de Verde because I was leader of the Opposition and a Roman Catholic. The reason why that was done is because that gentleman after being nine months in office he sees, according to his manifesto issued last year, that he is guilty going to these people and knowing that he is guilty in not having done anything in carrying out his manifesto he produces this. In the first part of the manifesto he says that I atacked Mr. Coaker because he was not here. Mr. Coaker knows that I am not afraid to attack at any time an attack is necessary. And what I have to say to Mr. Coaker I will always say to him right here and I am always prepared to do. And I challenge Mr. Squires to tell this House what I said about Mr. Coaker when he was absent. I will not alone say what I have to say but I will also substantiate it. These articles were written, as I have already stated at the beginning of my discourse, for a purpose, and I leave that purpose for the consideration of the intelligent men and women of the country. There is no question about it. You do not want me to come out 'flat-footed' and tell you why it was written. It is written all over it and as far as I am concerned and the abuse of the 'Star' is concerned that contemptible gentleman goes outside this House and goes to that paper and vilifies me in a descriptive way such as no other can do; but it will have not one bit of effect on the people who sent me to this House. I have not the advantage of education as the gentleman on the other side of the House has. I was a poor fisherman's son. I was not a relieving officer's son. I could not be sent to college to remain for any degrees. This I must admit and still after all the gentleman on the other side has accomplished and will accomplish why take notice of my action in the matter. I have fought him squarely and honestly, and I do not care for any statement in his paper. Some time ago, and rightly so, Mr. MacDonnell said that people were brought from abroad to do "scavenger work" and to hound decent people and hold them up to ridicule as was never done before. But what will happen? I have told the gentleman what would happen. Right will conquer. They have seen fit to vilify us and I consider it my duty to get right up here and make this statement to this House and to the country. I would not make this statement until now. When those articles were written an election was near and they were written for the very purpose of denouncing me and my associates. Here is Saturday evening's paper: it comes right out flat-footed and goes on to say. You were in this House and you went out to give this to your paper to hand out to the public. Some of it was written here in the House. (Reads article). Why did you write it?

Because we tore that Bill to pieces you brought in this sectarian cry so as to draw the public's attention from the Bill. When I came into the House you were rushing the Bill through. We showed the public how absurd and unfair it was, and here is what you did to draw the attention of the public from it. When I used the word "cheatry" I had a definite meaning for it. I had in mind the bills paid the 'Daily Star' Office. Last year the 'Advocate' printed the Agricultural Report for $240. This year the 'Star' printed it and charged $850. Last year the 'Herald' was paid $425 for printing Customs Returns; this year the 'Star' is paid $1080 for the same work. Last year the 'Telegram' was paid $7.50 per thousand for printing Customs Forms; this year the 'Star' is paid $40 for the same. Last year the 'Herald' was paid $7.50 for Customs Forms; this year the 'Star' is paid $14 for the same work. Is not that cheatry? The 'Star' is cheating the people to the tune of 400 per cent. to 500 per cent. more for work than the other papers would do the work for. Now do you know what the word means? It is also true that when the bills were paid the results were not in. Is that good enough? Is that honesty?

Now with reference to "the two and a half"; the 'Star' says that I said: "The two and a half will not do you here." That is right exactly. When the Bay de Verde campaign was on I had two messages. The first message said that when Mr. Squires was speaking he said that the fish would be standardized by forty-two and a half. That was an error, and the second message said two and a half. If it was an insult to use the term then the men who first used it were the ones who were guilty and not those who, not knowing what it meant, repeated it.

The House of Assembly is being degraded day by day. Why all this? Isn't it done for a purpose? When anything like this is done in the House of Assembly it is done for a purpose. The purpose of this is to draw the public's attention from a worthless Bill. It is nothing but mean, contemptible, low-down politics, which does not commend itself to the smallest-minded man in the country. You have construed the facts to suit your own vile purposes.

MR. HIGGINS:—"He who gives to the poor lends to the Lord" but the man who votes himself an increase and refuses to listen to the plea of the widow and the orphan is the worst kind of offender against all that is charitable and all that is good. Instead of squandering money the way we are doing, let us say we are going to take some of this surplus and, after providing for ourselves first of course, and then having looked after the members of the Upper House, we will last of all see that we won't wrong the poor creatures who can't speak for themselves, the little children who have no votes and the poor bed-ridden old age pensioner, and I do it in no partisan spirit when I remind the gentlemen on the other side that we should not go out of here and have it to say that we voted ourselves an increase but did nothing for the aged and the poor. Do you not think that now you have started off on your voyage it would be more to your credit if you started it well by increasing this vote. Let the Leader of the Government say "yes, go back to your people and tell them that we have doubled this vote." Take the cases of these people, there must be hundreds of them in every district, looking forward to the coming of the quarterly dole that they might get a bit to eat. Think of the worn-out woman whose husband has been taken from her while engaged in the industry that has made this country; think of the wan little face of the poor half-starved child. Think of these, gentlemen, and ask yourselves if you can go out without lifting hand or voice in their behalf. I am quite certain that if hon. members on the other side thought seriously of this aspect of the case they would not be a party to passing this vote as it stands. Let me think that in spite of all the times we have been called hooligans and other things on this side of the House, there is one plane on which we can be all united. Think of all those who have gone down to their death in this country who did more than anyone here to make this a place fit to live in and ask yourselves can you find it in your hearts to be utterly blind to the wants and sufferings of their dependents. May we not hope that this matter will be taken up and something done before this vote goes through.

MR. BENNETT:—Mr. Chairman, just a word in corroboration of what has been said by Sir Michael Cashin and Mr. Moore with regard to conditions on the Southern Shore. I went thru the district myself and the statements made by these gentlemen are in no way exaggerated. The position is a terrible one. Houses, crops fish ing gear have been destroyed and the whole place is in ruins. The beautiful homes of a few days ago, many of which have such pleasant recollections for some of us, are now nothing but a blackened mass of ruins and I hope the Government will send a competent man there without loss of time to see what can be done to relieve the awful situation.

I want to express my appreciation of the Colonial Secretary for the explanation he has given the House of this vote. As I intimated, when the head of the Department came down with an explantion of the various increases, etc., it would facilitate matters considerably and he has like the Hon. Minister of Justice and the Hon. Minister of Fisheries given us that explanation, but I must say, like my hon. friend Mr. Higgins, that the fact of there being no increase for the widows and old age pensioners is deplorable. I think when the commission was appointed that not alone was it the intention to have the salaries of the judges and similar high officials enquired into with a view to arranging for increases, but it was meant to cover the cases of the smaller officials and the poor as well, but the small official has been left out in the cold, while the higher ones have been placed on a par with those of the Upper Provinces of Canada. Now what applies to the higher officials as regards the necessity for an increase applies more emphatically to the smaller man and certainly to the relief of the poor. The purchasing power of money is not half what it was a few years ago, but still they are expected to get along on the same miserable dole they got then, and I think the plea so ably put forward by Mr. Higgins is one the Government might well hearken to. The Old Age Pension was introduced by Sir Edward Morris but at that time people thought it was going to be altogether impracticable, but nothing was ever more popular and the necessity for an increase in this grant now cannot be too strongly emphasized. There is one vote going through here which seems to me to be very large. That is $65,000 for smallpox. Now this may not require $5,000, but if the vote is put through as it is the amount will be spent. Of course, it is impossible to estimate what the danger of an outbreak may be and for that reason I think the amount was always voted on Executive responsibility.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—Other infectious diseases will come under that vote.

MR. BENNETT:—I would suggest that it be put in that way.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—We will make it to read smallpox and other infectious diseases.

MR. BENNETT:—That might not be enough, but that is easily remedied As the other votes seem to be all right I think the totals might be read.

MR. MOORE:—Mr. Chairman, while we are on the vote for Public Charities, permit me to join with my colleague, Sir Michael Cashin, in pleading for assistance for the sufferers on the Southern Shore. The picture painted by Sir Michael as a result of his visit there was not exaggerated. I went out as far as Tor's Cove and I saw for myself the havoc wrought by the forest fires in that section. At Mobile there is the most indescribable suffering. The people who have lost their all were there sitting on the road-side. They had taken their belongings from their houses when the fire threatened them and put them in the stages, but these were also destroyed, and with them their salt and gear and in fact everything they were owners of. I brought back a full report, and if the Government sent a man out there something might be done and should be done to relieve the sufferings. I hope no time will be lost in taking the necessary steps to have the matter attended to.

MONDAY, July 5th, 1920

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

William Henry Cave, Esq., duly elected member for the district of Bay de Verde, having been duly sworn by His Excellency's Commissioners, was introduced to the House by Hon. the Prime Minister and Hon. Minister of Justice, and thereafter took his seat.

MON. MINISTER OF EDUCATION:—Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present a petition from the inhabitants of Spaniard's Bay asking for some modification of the present Prohibition Act.

MR. SCAMMELL:—Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present a petition from the residents of the Straits of Belle Isle on the subject of telegraph communication.

Mr. Higgins—Mr. Speaker: May I present a petition from the residents of Nagle's Hill, St. John's East, that is entitled to some consideration for two reasons: first, because it is bound to receive support, particularly from the Department of Agriculture, and secondly, that the amount asked for is very small. The petitioners ask for the opening up of roads. A considerable number of families have come there within the past few years and erected homes and started to develop farms and which reflects great credit on their industry. I think that the conditions under which we live that the amount asked for here is very small indeed, and, I feel sure, that the Minister of Public Works will give it his hearty endorsation and to whom I commend this petition. For his information I might say that this class of man whose name is signed to this petition is not the class of man whose name is usually found in petitions asking for personal favors. They represent men who stand for public improvements for the public benefit. I bespeak the sympathetic support of that department towards this petition.

Hon. Minister of Education: Mr. Speaker, I give notice that I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill relating to Education.

Hon. the Prime Minister: Mr. Speaker—I give notice that I will on Wednesday next move the suspension of the Rules of the House in relation to all business then before the House and thereafter to come before the House.

Mr. Higgins: Might I ask if it is possible to have printed copies of the Education Bill before the Second Reading?

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—We are making an effort to have them ready for distribution on First Reading.

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—The Civil Service report to which the honorable member for Placentia refers was tabled by the Rt. Hon. Sir Edward Morris in the year of 1909 and appears in the journals of the House for that year.

Hon. Minister of Education gave notice that he would on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Education Act.

Mr. Walsh asked the Hon. the Colonial Secretary to lay on the table of the House a copy of the Report of the Civil Service Commission from a denominational stand-point issued in 1908.

Hon. the Prime Minister gave notice that he would on Wednesday next move the Suspension of the Rules of the House respecting all business now before the House or to come before it.

The Chairman from the Committee of the Whole on Supply reported certain Resolutions which were read a first time as follows—

Legislation	$ 77,358.12
Public Charities	931,299.71
Lighthouses, Blockhouses	210,771.39

M. WALSH:—Then we have the road from Placentia proper to Little Placentia, a distance of eight miles. The original grant for this was $400 and now it is $480. This is the only thoroughfare and for the reason I stated before ,namely the cost of labor, &c., it is impossible to keep this road up. Then we come to the road from Placentia to Cape Shore, and perhaps this one of the most important roads in the whole Island. There is no coastal service or railroad and the people are absolutely dependent on this particular road for communication with other places. And I wish to point out that on many occasions they are called upon to contribute dollar for dollar as the men in Bonavista Bay. The people there have the railroad at their disposal and many other districts have the facilities of the rail road. I think it is unfair that a substantial amount of money is not voted to build a substantial road for those people. In the early part of the session my collague, Mr. Sinnott, presented a petition which was largely signed, having the signatures of all the people of this section of the community, on the same subject. Along that wild shore there is no safe harbor for forty miles for a vessel to harbor in during stormy weather, and the products of the rsidents have to some times remain over winter for the want of conveyance. There were scores of people there who were unable to market their catch of fish. There are numerous cases where they had their fish on their hands and lost thousands of dollars. I went down to the office of the Hon. Minister of Marine & Fisheries and pointed out to him the and he admitted they were being robbed of $3.00 per quintal on their fish. injustice being done to these people If they had been able to sell it at the proper time they would have got $15 pr quintal for it. It had to be held over the winter and then when they brought it down here in the spring they only got -6.00 per quintal for it. And thse conditions, judging from the Estimates are to remain the same as they are. I have no hope for the granting of the pleadings of my late colleagues Mr. Devereux and Mr. Morris. I also pleaded on numerous occasions for special consideration to be given to the special and extraordinary conditions existing in this part of the country. I had hoped for the facility of coastal communication for this part of the country but I am informed by the leader of the House in reply to the question which I asked that for the present no change is to be made in the coastal service as regards this part of the coast. I am sorry to hear this pronouncement and I am sure the people concerned are much more disappointed. Apparently their interests are not to be considered. I hope the reason for this lack of consideration on behalf of these people is not in the same category as the other discriminations that have been handed out because of the fact that Placentia and St. Mary's did not subscribe to the banner of the Liberal-Reform Party. I think we are entitled to this consideration. It is our just right. If they are not to be afforded coastal facilities surely it is not unreasonable to ask on behalf of those thousands of people who contribute by their labour and industry to make up the salaries of those in this House and who contribute to the upkeep of the public institutions just as much as the fishermen of the North. I say I trust the Government will take into consideration the extraordinary conditions prevailing in this section of the country and if it is impossible to grant the coastal facilities for the side of the Bay from Cape Shore to Placentia, I hope it will not be impossible to vote a substantial sum before the Estimates are passed so that a motor road will then be built at or along the Cape Shore. If this road is built the extraordinary conditions existing last winter will not be experienced this winter. The enterprising people there will certainly be able to supply the motor lorries if the Government will just show its sympathy in a practical way. You ought to vote a sufficient amount to build this important road. Another main line road is the one from Trepassey to St. Shotts, distance being fifty-eight miles and the grant is $420.00. This is not sufficient to keep half of the road in repair and if the Government is not able to grant a substantial special amount to be disposed of by the Department, this road, over which many people have to travel many times will certainly go in disrepair quickly. Then there is the road from Holyrood to St. Mary's, a distance of 28 miles, and the grant is $240.00. Then from Riverhead to Mall Ball, $96.00. Salmonier to St. Mary's the amount is $840.00. These three last mentioned votes for the Main Line roads are on the Southside of Placentia Bay. I had hoped that we would have railway extension before now. When I went as a party standard bearer of Sir Edward Morris, the People's Party, in 1913, I went there because Sir Edward and his associates pledged themselves for the railway extension, but unfortunately the year after, 1914, the war broke out and the people of St. Mary's and Placentia were not so unreasonable as to expect during the period of the war any large expenditure of money from the public coffers and the representatives did not press the Government during the war; and now as the war is over and it is the proper time for the problem of railway extension, I have no doubt that it will be considered in this House. I have seen during the present session of the House important petitions presented by representatives of the important sections of the Island asking for the extension of the railroad, and I sympathise with them and their constituents who sent the petitions to the House, and I want to place myself on record to this effect, that at whatever time these matters petitioned for come before the House, that is, matters of railway extension, I will give them my warmest support and I will expect in return for that support the support of these gentlemen for a similar request in the same matter which has been before this House before and perhaps is the prior of all those relative to the question. It is absolutely unnecessary for me to point out that a railroad down thru' the Salmonier Valley, tapping St. Mary's Bay, would open up some of the most fertile sections of the Island for agriculture, and I venture to predict that a branch railway through St. Mary's Bay would be conducted on a paying basis, and I hope that later in the session this problem will be tackled. The vote for the Western Shore road was $300 and is now $360. I do not want to lay any blame on the present Administration for this small grant. This small amount has been passing the House for the past fifty years. But I want to point out to the Committee the ridiculousness of this vote because this road is fifty miles long and the amount of the vote is only $360. No part of this is assigned for any particular road. To make this road fit for foot passengers, not to speak of any other form of conveyance, the sum of two thousand dollars is required. And for this reason I have had on all occasions to plead with the Government and had to work overtime to get that amount allocated and that justice would be done to the people of this section. I would like if the Government would see its way clear to apportion some of the surplus left it by the late Administration. We can increase our own stipends so we ought to consider the whole people. If our hearts are so hard as not to harken to the cry of the widow and orphan or the old age pensioner, let us at any rate eliminate some of the hardships experienced by those who use the roads in my district and let us vote some of that surplus for the improvements of the roads. Maybe some of those highways do not concern you people here. You can take your motor cars out with your chauffeurs to drive them and go where you like here in St. John's. You have no occasion to use the roads I am dealing with. No consideration is shown for the comfort of those who travel over these roads. There are numerous roads in Placentia and St. Mary's not yet completed. Last year I decided to become a Cashin candidate and had a consultation with the other gentlemen who were to be my colleagues and as there is by statute a sum of money to be allocated for the opening up of new roads, we considered this, and we then knew that the road between Peter's River and St. Shotts was only a cow path, and this was the subject of the first allocation, and to start with $2,000 was got for this particular road. This sum was spent judiciously and it was inadequate to open up this road. Another important section is down in the bottom of Placentia Bay, where the Railway should run thereby tapping many different settlements. During the last sesion of the House a petition was presented through me on this subject and it was signed by Rev. Short, Rev. Cacciola and Rev. Ward, and all the residents of the bottom of the Bay. This petition requested a road, and $500 was recommended and the sum of $2,000 was really required. Reliable men had the spending of that sum. I have letters in my possession from these Rev. gentlemen asking that a like amount be granted. In the case of emergncy loss of life may result. I remember one time Rev. Cacciola went on a sick call and when he got off the train he got lost in the woods, and from the exposure resulting he was in hospital here for months when he lost some of his limbs. If something is done along these lines I will be only too glad to give any information to the Minister of Public Works. I will be thankful for the due consideration which I hope the Government will give this matter.

MR. MacDONNELL:—I notice that evening a remark was made by the Prime Minister that in some special cases an additional may be made, and in view of this I wish to state that the main line roads in St. George's are under extraordinary conditions, and the Prime Minister admitted that fact and I am hoping that the Minister of Public Works will see that special allocation is made for these roads. We need more than what is given per capita elsewhere. The roads are new and they require better treatment than on a per capita basis. On page 102 of the Estimates there is the amount of $400 for the road at Grand River from the north to the south side. In the early part of the session I presented a petition asking that a motor be installed in the boat operating on the Grand River for the past ten years. It is a large scow, and this scow takes all the traffic from the north to the south side. I would like to know if the Government intends to grant the prayer of that petition. When the tide is strong and he weather is stormy there is a danger of losing many lives.

THE HON. MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—I have referred it to the Executive through the Department of the Colonial Secretary. I could not say what has been done with it.

THE HON. THE COLONIAL SECRETARY:—I have not yet seen the petition.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the Minister of Public Works how much money voted for Public Works in the District of Ferryland is being allocated, how it is being sent out, and to whom?

THE HON. MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—It has not been sent out yet.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—I would like to know something about the Main Line Grants. The whole main line requires immediiate attention. I would also like to know why some of the Boards up there were dismissed and others appointed by the Governor in Council. I would like to be inform ed why this was done. They were elected a year ago at the same time that other Boards were elected thruout this Island. What is the reason for the dismissal of the Board at Witless Bay while the Board at ———— has been retained. I would like to know whether any instructions have gone out from the Department to have bridges replaced for those that were burned down?

THE HON. MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—All bridges of which we had instructions as being burned, have been ordered to be replaced.

THE HON. MINISTER POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS:—Mr. Chairman, if there are any questions regarding this Department of Postal Telegraphs, I shall be glad to answer them as we come along to them.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Mr. Chair man, I would like to ask the Hon. Minister why the salary of the De puty Minister is placed at $3,000 whilst other Deputies are getting $3,600? Mr. LeMessurier is, I think, an old servant, spent the greater part of his life in this Department. I un derstand that he has no politics but attends to the business of his Depart ment solely. The Commission made no such recommendation with regard to him. Take the Superintendent of the Money Order Department. His salary has been raised from $1500 to -2160, whilst Mr. Kinsella's salary is only raised from $1260 to $1644. Mr. Kinsella is Superintendent of the Par cel Post Department and there is no reason why he should not be paid the same amount. Is this the recommend ation of the Commission?

THE HON. MINISTER POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS:—Mr. Chairman, that is the amount put down by the Com mission for the Superintendent of the Parcel Post Department. As to the Superintendent of the Money Order Department, his salary was raised on Executive authority. The head of the Department wrote the Executive ex plaining that there were three posi tions paid the same salary, but the Superintendent of the Money Order De partment and the Superintendent of the Parcel Post Department were nev er on the same basis. I did the very best I could and got every cent pos sible for the officials of the Depart ment.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Mr. Chair man. Mr. Kinsella has been in the service for forty years and there is no reason why his vote should be placed at $1644 while the Superintendent of the Money Order Department is put down at $2160. I certainly do not think that Mr. Kinsella is paid enough.

MINISTER OF POSTS AND TELE GRAPHS:—Mr. Chairman, if he were to be retired the salary of the new ap pointee would be much lower. I am trying to give them every cent pos sible.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Mr. Chair man, I want the Minister to put these two gentlemen on the same basis. There must be some political reason for this great difference. He has ad mitted just now that it was done on Executive authority. There is no satisfactory explanation given for the difference in salaries. The salaries are placed there and that is all the explanation that seems to be given us.

HON. MINISTER POSTS AND TELE GRAPHS:—Mr. Chairman, of course I appreciate the feeling of the Opposi tion, who are trying to give the impres sion that their hearts are bleeding for the Civil Servants; but this condition has existed for years. It is not a new thing for Civil Servants to be asking for an increase. The Superintendent of Registration is in the same position with others in this regard.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Why not put him on the same basis as Mr. Milley?

HON. MINISTER POSTS AND TELE GRAPHS:—I will be honest enough to say that two or three persons are being considered, but at the present time I don't know who is going there.

MR. HIGGINS:—It is possible in spite of yourself that the man may be put there that you wouldn't want put there. The Minister has admitted the importance of his department, and in the light of the inconsistent way in which the salaries have been made up and where the Minister says he is going independently of the Government, I think it would be wise to have this injustice to Mr. Kinsella remedied.

HON. MINISTER POSTS AND TELE GRAPHS:—The nominating of a man and granting him a position make all the difference in the world.

MR. HIGGINS:—You have certainly been interested in him and why not go and get his salary.

HON. MINISTER POSTS AND TELE GRAPHS:—That may not be quite so easy.

MR. HIGGINS:—You are the man who recommends that a certain salary be paid. How does the Minister of Finance or the Colonial Secretary know what he should be paid. If you come out flat and say this man is to be paid a certain salary, it would be a far better exhibition of independence.

HON. MINISTER POSTS AND TELE GRAPHS:—I am not in the happy position to break up a government over a man's salary.

MR. HIGGINS:—Well now, will you give away a little secret? Did you try as hard to secure an increase for Mr. Kinsella as you did for Mr. Milley? Or, perhaps I will put it this way. Did you try as hard to get an increase for him as you did for Mr. LeMessurier? You tried hard, but not very hard. You are all influenced when it comes to looking after the big men. Mr. Kinsella is a poor man, wears an old shabby hat, been wearing the same for the past forty years if I don't mistake. Well, I am disappointed. Now we will wait till we see how Dr. Barnes looks after his department. You will find some fancy salaries there. I think that you ought to look after Mr. Kinsella, he's going to die soon. You won't have to give it to him for long.

MR. BENNETT:—In making some observations on the Estimates I take the position that the civil servants are not receiving the consideration of the Government. I think that grave discrimination is apparent. The Supt. of Posts and Telegraphs, Mr. Stott, has been increased to $2160. Mr. Stott has given good service and no doubt is deserving of the increase, but why discriminate against Mr. Kinsella. He is an old man in the service and spent his entire life in the service of Newfoundland, and why he has not received the same consideration as others I am at a loss to know. He may not be as young and as active as other officials, but if he can't do the work, give him a pension. It is not to the good of any government that their old and faithful servants are to be discriminated against.

MR. WALSH:—I think that it almost a waste of time and exertion on the part of the representatives of the Opposition to get up and make objection to the passage of any legislation in this House. It has been a set policy with this Government that the salary of Mr. Milley is justified according to the opinion of the Minister, and if it is the policy of the Government to repay any public servant for being a political supporter then I have no fault to find. Any member of the civil service who has been blowing the Squires trumpet will get his salary increased, but any man who has dared to disagree with his policy must be prepared for the axe. There's a little chap DeLacey in St. John's West, who has given his brother as a family contribution to the war and whose body now lies over there in the battlefields of France, and who was not eligible himself to go, and because he dared give public expression to his views was dismissed from his position in the Custom House. If he had given you his support he would have been handsomely rewarded. This is not keeping with the standard you are suposed to have raised in this House. You have termed yourselves the Liberal Reform Party. I think it is sheer nonsense and waste of time to talk to the members on the other side of the House. All we get is sincere replies. A man who has been 40 years in the service of his country has been practically ignored, but the man who has not spent one quarter of that time in a civil position, is recognized. The Minister must admit that Mr. Kinsella is a good man and the discrimination is quite apparent. I want to place myself on record this afternoon to publicly denounce this outrage.

MR. FOX:—Might I draw the attention of the Minister to the necessity of putting a telegraph line from Cape Anguille to Codroy. I have been asked by Mr. MacDonnell, who is absent this afternoon, to draw your attention to this. The district to be covered is only three miles. There is no post or telegraph office at Cape Anguille, and the same applies to Doyle's and South Branch. I would like to endorse all that has been said by the hon. members in reference to Mr. Kinsella, and I realize the discrimination that has been practised.

MR. BENNETT:—Why increase the vote of the Sub-Collector at Kelligrews from $375 to $750; for what reason?

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—We dispensed with the official at Topsail, and we have one man looking after the two places now.

MR. HIGGINS:—Is that Charles Hynes?

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—Yes.

MR. HIGGINS:—This is the man who petitioned against Dr. Jones; he is worth it all right, to the Government. A Government Customs official named DeLacey was dismissed, and it is unfortunate, unfortunate in the sense that he had not the power of foresight that Charles Hynes had up in Kelligrews. DeLacey's mistake was that he did not know how to keep his mouth shut during the election period. I did not have the pleasure of meeting this man Hynes in court, after he had filed the petition against Dr. Jones, but I do know that a week after he performed that ceremony he was appointed to a position in the Customs, and a man named Tilley, who already held that post, was dismissed. It is really the irony of fate in the light of the justification made as to the honesty of the Government in making the increases in salaries. It is an unfortunate coincidence that we should learn at this stage that the man who replaced Tilley was this man Hynes, who also, so far as other men were concerned, got his salary in his new job raised from $375 to $750, this being the purchase price of his loyalty. I hope that the Government will be big enough to rectify the wrong done DeLacey. DeLacey's case is pitiable for a variety of reasons. First of all he is weak physically, as the Minister of Finance knows, and is only capable of doing the lightest kind of work. He has two brothers who went overseas and fought; one who was badly wounded has since recovered and is now driving an express waggon; and this young man in question has been doing his best to try and keep the home of his parents' going. He is today doing nothing. He was fired out for the reason that he saw fit to open his mouth in the West End bye-election. This is a frightfully unfortunate circumstance in view of the fact that an able-bodied man gets his salary doubled for serving the party. This unfortunate boy DeLacey is today a physical wreck. Surely this is a just reminder of the rottenness of state control and state service. I do not know this man Hynes, I never met him. His only credential for the position he got and for replacing the man Tilley that was dismissed, is that he used his judgment to the advantage of the party and later he got his salary doubled. DeLacey does not know that I am making this appeal for him to-night, I would like to emphasize, but surely the Minister will have the memorial service of yesterday in mind and think of poor DeLacey's brothers, who fought for us, and try and take the lesson of Christian charity therefrom, and try if you can't re-instate this unfortunate boy who could not harm any party if he tried. Probably, though, he exercised his judgment best; who knows the wisdom of his judgment; who knows what has happened since the return to power of the Government and since, and who knows after looking at these Estimates, but that the judgment of this poor, innocent and unfortunate boy DeLacey, if it had prevailed, that things would be in a much better state generally? Time alone will tell. Might I again ask the Minister if he would voluntarily undertake and make a job for this boy. It is no more to make a job for him than it is to make a job for Mr. George Shea in the Upper House at $500 a year. I think it would be more fitting and more commendable to make a job for DeLacey, as a tribute to what his brothers fought and did for you and me.

MR. HIGGINS:—I understand that there is no substantial allocation for this vote. The main line grants throughout the entire country are of necessity too small. The cost of material and the upkeep of them have become so advanced that it is impossible to keep them in shape for the amount voted. The 20 per cent increase is not commensurate with the rate of pay of the man who works on the road, or with the cost of the different materials. I think it is a pity that the Government did not embark upon a policy on the lines that they had promised. I think all will subscribe to the principle that we all like to have our roads in a decent condition. Well, that being so, why take the old stock votes that have been there for so long a time, and particularly because of the heavier class of vehicles that go over the roads at the present time causing more increased expenditure to keep them in a respectable state of repair. I think we ought to allocate a substantial amount to be distributed among the different districts, as required. The roads, as outlined here, do not include many roads that should be given the benefit of main line grants and which are not. Take the road to Logy Bay and Outer Cove. It is a very popular drive over that road and nine tenths of the people who frequent it do not belong to the outport places mentioned. In other words, this road is for the general benefit of the community. Now there is no amount voted for that road. The first time for years that this road was given any attention worth while was last year when there was a general allocation all over the country. I regret that the Government is not going to allocate a special grant this year, because personally I believe with the notion that prevails elsewhere that one cannot spend too much on public highways. I again regret that no further advance is made, in the light of the fact that we committed ourselves to the principle of road-making when the Motor Association Bill was before the House. I think I might avail of this opportunity of mentioning to the Minister of Public Works that he has now got an opportunity of displaying some of those re-organizing powers. You know we used to hear a considerable amount of abusive comment in the past on how road monies in the past were allocated. I trust that the Minister will see that some of the reforms, so long expected, will go into effect. However, I am afraid that the same old method will be fallen into and I am afraid that somebody's personal friends in St. John's East will not give as much satisfaction as the gentlemen they replaced. These gentlemen who have been shifted for no reason whatever except that they were not friendly disposed to the party in power, did competent work in the past. I trust that the Minister of Pub lic Works will not endorse too much of that kind of method.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—I do know that there have been a couple of changes, but not more than a half dozen.

MR. HIGGINS:—I can give you a whole list of them.

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—The same road inspector is there and I have instructed him not to employ any incapable help; also I told him that I would stand by him in giving every man who worked on the roads to understand that he had to give good results. Any changes made to the disadvantage of the roads have not been made at my recommendation.

MR. HIGGINS:—Whatever changes were made are not going to affect me any how, and are not going to hurt me at all, in fact the new appointees are friends of mine; but apparently someone has taken charge of your department.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Chairman, I must say that I feel disappointed at the statement of the Prime Minister in regard to the upkeep of the roads. However, I trust that when the vote whatever it is, will be distributed, that the District of Placentia and St. Mary's will not be forgotten. In com mon with certain other sections of the country, the storm that raged last Fall played havoc with parts of my district also, and I hope that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries will see his way clear to hand out special grants to make good the damage done. With regard to main lines generally throughout the country, I do not think that it is necessary for us to point out that the grant is altogether inadequate to keep roads in decent condition when we consider that the cost of labor and materials have gone up two hundred per cent. Where the grant for 12 miles of a road from the half-way house in Holyrood was $500 is now increased to $600; from Placentia to Hurley's Bridge, a distance of 33 miles, the vote is $400. I hope that the Government in conjunction with the Motor Association, will see their way clear to span the bridge to Colinet River. $160 is vote for the road from Hurley's Bridge to Salmonier, a road that is used by all the people in St. Mary's Bay, and it is only by getting special grants every year that we have been able to keep these roads in any kind of half decent condition whatever for traffic. I think we should make provision so as we would not be depending on special grants from year to year.

MR. HIGGINS:—You are making jobs galore under the new Department. Why not make DeLacey Deputy Minister of Education and give him $2750 a year and he will fulfill the position just as well as any other person you will put there. I appeal to the good sense and kindly spirit of the Minister of Finance. God knows he wants the job.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—In reply to the hon. member as regards DeLacey, he well knows that DeLacey was not alone obnoxious in his position but also obnoxious towards the general public doing business at the Railway Station.

MR. HIGGINS:—In fact the man is of indifferent health and it was such as he was fired and the big gun who could fight was all right. We recognize the foolish ones voted for us.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—After the general election I had no intimation or desire to remove DeLacey and he looked upon the taking of an active part in the election as an act of gratitude to those who placed him in his position, but when the bye-election came off he was pointed out to us as being very obnoxious around the Railway Station. He made it a point of going to the newspapers which supported the late government and distributing them around among his friends. Even after that I did not take the chap serious and he came down to my office to see about his job and asked if it was the intention to dismiss him, and I told him no and the only way to get clear of him was to dismiss him, which I did As to putting him back, I have nothing against him and if I can do it I will. The other day other parties approached me on the same matter. As regards the Kelligrews matter the official who does the work there also does the work for Topsail under the present Estimates. Mr. Roche was the holder of the job at Topsail and he died and as we thought it unnecessary to have a customs official at Topsail we appointed the official at Kelligrews to do the two works and accordingly paid him twice as much, which is only reasonable.

MR. BENNETT:—I am very grateful to the Minister of Finance for the information in the matter and as one of those who are concerned with the district may say as far as I am concerned he is one that I do not take seriously. . I do support the request that some work be given him. The late Government through a continual pressing on his part and knowing that he was in hard luck gave him a job. I discouraged him from taking part in politics, but unfortunately for him he was endeavoring to show gratitude to those who placed him in his job and as far as possible tried to keep the late Government in power. He had two brothers over there and if I am not mistaken one of them paid the supreme sacrifice. His father is an old public servant being a letter-carrier for a long time and is one at the present moment. He is over seventy. And I am grateful to the Minister for the information he has given us in saying that he will do his best to have him reinstated in his job.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—I wish to explain this vote of fifty thousand dollars. Last year the vote was taken from the Marine and Fisheries Department. The vote is down in the usual form and instead of having it taken from that Department it is now put in the Customs Department. That is the better place for it.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—May I ask the Minister of Finance in reference to that vote of $3,500, is it true that the Customs officials last year got no clothes? I intended to put this on the Order Paper.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—For the information of the honorable gentleman I may say that the Military authorities had quite a lot of serge on hand and we were arranging to take it over and during the last week asked for tenders as to the making up of the same.

MR. BENNETT:—Speaking on refunds on coal, there seems to be a lot of dissatisfaction as to the price we are paying for coal. I was informed yesterday that coal from Sydney to Halifax only costs at Halifax $12.00 per ton. Surely the difference in freight ought not bring around the difference in price there and here. I think the public will appreciate any information that may be forthcoming. Maybe the Minister of Shipping would enlighten us on the matter.

HON. MINISTER OF SHIPPING:—That seems to be a mistake. I do not think it can be sold at $12.00 at Halifax.

MR. BENNETT:—No, it is correct as far as I know. There is always an opinion prevailing here that there is a big rake off on coal. One dollar per ton is a big discrepancy. Did not the Dominion Company's Directors have interviews with the Government relative to supplying the country with coal and also with reference to the tax to be collected on the export of ore. I presume some information will be coming before the House closes in reference to the tax on the ore at Bell Island.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—With regard to the coal question the Government proposes to take action shortly and requests those who need it to store it early. We will be making arrangements for more coal than last year very shortly. I may say the matter is acute in Canada and the United States as well. At the present moment I hold in my hand two articles from the Montreal Star and they say that a controller is to be appointed to take charge of the coal and the Government is advocating the getting of the coal for here before the appointment of the controller and then we will not at least have any more difficulty than the past. According to these articles the industries there have not more than one week's supply in Canada and they often fear they are going to close. This has been brought to the attention of the Government and the Government is going to get all the coal it can and it is going to insist on the industrial centres here in St. John's storing the necessary coal. And by no means is it going to leave the matter till the winter season.

MR. BENNETT:—It is difficult for the ordinary person to store coal at the present price. They expect it to lower. The price is abnormal.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Well if they do they cannot expect the Government to come to their assistance.

MR. BENNETT:—With regard to Anthracite coal, the price now is $35.00. The Government I presume is interested in this matter.

HON. MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—The Public Works Department has issued advertisements asking for tenders for the different institutions supply of Anthracite.

MR. BENNETT:—But is it possible to get it? Is it procurable at Pittsburg? The cost of production has increased. There has been an enormous increase over the past price. Instead of the price being cheapened it is going up. If any information is possible it ought to be given to the public. If necessary we ought to send a man to Canada and get the information first hand.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—What is the position with regard to the Bell Island ore tax, I was not here when it was discussed?

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—The negotiations with the Company's representatives were partly finalized and they have gone back to think it over. Nothing really was done.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—When do you propose collecting the ore tax from the Nova Scotia Company?

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—Inspector O'Reilly has been negotiating with the Company.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN—:That will not do. The Dominion Steel Co. paid theirs. At the present time you are holding over the heads of the Dominion Steel Company an export duty of one dollar on ore. No reason why the Minister of Shipping cannot make arrangements for all the coal we need at the present time. The House has been open three months and nothing has been done in reference to this one dollar tax and now we are told that next year we will have more retroactive legislation. Large steamers go to Sydney and then are unable to get cargoes. The same with vessels. The Company owes you in the vicinity of a quarter of a million dollars for taxes. It is in accordance with the history of this session. Nothing important has been done. Not one act on the statute books of any importance. The Dominion Steel paid their taxes voluntary and there is no reason why the same should not be the policy of the Government with regard to the Nova Scotia Steel Co. The coal situation will be the same as it was last fall. The same applies to the railroad. The same old road exists to-day. It is a ridiculous position for the Government to be in.

MR. BENNETT:—When I was over in Bay de Verde I saw coal landed there at Freshwater on the wharf and I asked the man who was handling it what he paid for it and he said he gave $5.70 per car load and a car load meant about fourteen hundred. In other words he was getting it for about seven dollars and fifty per ton. Of course he was an employee of the Company but I do not see why the difference in price is so great between the cost at Bell Island and the cost in St. John's.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Chairman, it is a fact that down at Portugal Cove they are getting their coal $6 to $7 a ton cheaper than we are. It is extraordinary that we have here two statements of conditions. First, there is the statement at Halifax, the price of coal there. Then there is the statement as to the price at which employees get it at Bell Island. It seems that when the Newfoundland order comes in the price of coal goes up. I strongly support the suggestion of the Leader of the Opposition that the Minister of Shipping be immediately sent up and see that this matter is thoroughly looked into. The company owes us a large amount as taxes in spite of the fact that the other Company has paid its taxes. There is no reason why the taxes of the Nova Scotia Steel & Coal Company should go unpaid any longer. On the other hand we have the Government's declared intention not to do anything in this matter for twelve months. It may have the effect of hampering operations on the Island. It is a pity that this matter cannot be attended to at once, but if the Government intends doing as little as possible before the House closes, and if they intend bringing in retroactive legislation again next year, nothing will be done in this matter. If the Government intends holding this legislation over their heads this is the proper time to get the coal. They have the coal up there and we want it; we have the ore down here and they want it. We will endorse sending the Minister of Shipping up there and giving him all the powers of an ambassador, so that we may get cheaper coal. With their business tax still unsettled, and the Companies merger unsettled, I think they will be business-like enough to see that it will be wise to be a little generous toward us . Unless some aggressive, strong position is taken at once it will be a bad position for us.

MR. MOORE:—Mr. Chairman, I strongly support the arguments advanced by the members of St. John's West and St. John's East. It seems a strong statement for the member to make that the people in Freshwater, Bay de Verde, can get coal for $8.00, we have to pay $12.00 extra in St. John's. Surely there is something wrong. The Minister of Shipping ought to be sent immediately to look into this matter. All the other Ministers are going away, and we can spare you also. Now is the time to deal with this question. We have the power in our own hands, and it is up to us to do something.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Chairman, there is just a word that I would like to say at this time. Not only have we the ore, but we have the coal as well. In my judgment we have abundance of coal in sections of the country, and I understand that the Government is negotiating with parties on the West Coast with respect to this. I think the Government would be well justified in handling this industry in a business-like way. I hope it is not another case of where a gentleman was recommended by someone in authority, but when the test came he was thoroughly lacking. I understand that the owners of that property on the West Coast have had very attractive offers from this Continent and from England. I understand that the Government stepped in and would not allow any proposition to be finalized. I hope the Government have gone into the matter with the idea of developing the local coal areas. I am heartily in accord with the suggestion to send up the Minister of Shipping to arrange for a supply of coal, and I hope that the activity will cover every section of the country so that every section will help toward the upkeep of the Shipping Department.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Chairman, I was going to explain that the total amount of the expenses of the Militia Department is made up different from last year.

MR. BENNETT:—Mr. Chairman, before the Committee rises in connection with this vote I would like to refer to an article in The Advocate of last Saturday. I think most of the honorable members have had an opportunity of reading this, and it surely reflects credit on the Hon. Minister.

Apart from one section of the article it might go unchallenged, and be accepted as authoritative. My attention was drawn to section 1, which deals with the fact that no attention was paid to the remains of men or their graves after the Armistice. The section reads: (Section read).

Now, sir, under the circumstances that is a very strong statement. I have no idea as to the time the Hon. Minister was in France, but it might be assumed that I was responsible for this criminal negligence. I am sure that such an order never came. As you will notice there is an ambiguity about Father Nangle's statement. As far as I am concerned I had no knowledge of any such request coming into the Militia Department. If there had, I would have given immediate instructions to have the work attended to, no matter what it cost. It may have been at the time when my successor, Mr. Hickman, held office. It surely was not during my time. If the O.C. in France thought it necessary that such work should be done, he had only to order same and see that it was accomplished without reference to the Minister of Militia. In fact he was the one that should do so. If the Hon. Minister or any other honorable member wishes to look up the records of the Militia Department he will find them intact, and if there was such a request it ought to be found amongst the records. I felt that I ought to give this explanation in justice to myself.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES:—Mr. Chairman, it gives me very great pleasure to hear the denial from the hon. member for St. John's West in connection with the matter of the burial of our dead heroes in France. He, of course, feels the matter very seriously as I do and I am glad that he is in a position to-day to disclaim any responsibility for such a criminal neglect of duty. On going over the ground, we saw these bodies, we came across two first and took up one of the helmets from which we brushed away the dirt and saw the Newfoundland badge. Side by side with him was another. That was hard enough, but just a little distance away, on the corner of a knoll or mound, we found seven other bodies, some with their heads one way and some another. It was hard to think that these poor fellows had been lying there for three years and eight months. Major Nangle had gone over the ground and only a year ago Sir Wm. Lloyd and I had been there and must have been within forty yards of where we came across the bodies. Fr. Nangle said that the whole field had been thoroughly searched and this spot was only twenty-five feet away from where he found poor Frank Lind and young Clancey just a year before. Poor Clancey had a prayer-book in his hand by which Fr. Nangle identified him and he knew it was poor Lind's body by the papers that were found on it. I said to Major Nangle, "how is this thing possible, who has failed to do his duty in this matter?" He felt it very keenly and replied, I think his words were "Recommendations were made by the O.C. to the authorities in St. John's to have detachment of men kept back to search for and pick up the bodies of those who had fallen." When he said the O.C. had made the recommendations, I took it for granted that it was Major Bernard as I understand he was in command of the Battalion at the time. Since I came back, I published an item about the matter in the paper, and I endeavoured to find out if any request had come in. I asked several officers but I did not go to the Record Office, where, as Mr. Bennett suggests, it could no doubt be found if such a request had come in. However, it gives me a great deal of pleasure to hear from Mr. Bennett that he was not responsible for the grave dereliction of duty that resulted in these bodies being found where they were, and in the condition they were in when we came across them.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Chairman, before this vote goes thru, I want to make one more plea for an inspector of mines. We have lumber camp inspectors, marine inspectors, inspectors of roads and bridges, inspectors of marine works, herring and lobster inspectors and inspectors for every branch of industry no matter how insignificant except for what in my opinion is the most important of all, namely, mines. I have referred to the matter on many previous occasions and it is unnecessary for me to labor the question but I hope and trust that the Government will make some provision for a man to take up this very necessary work. They have made many new appointments and one more will not bankrupt the country. I hope the Prime Minister will take the matter up with the Minister of Agriculture and Mines without delay. There is no need to go outside for a suitable man for this work, you can get fifty men in this country who are fully competent to perform it, and if you are going to get a man, get one who will have the confidence of the working man, and moreover, one who is not a political heeler and you must pay him a good salary so that he will not come under the influence or sway of any corporation. Numerous accidents are happening all the time, some of which, of course, cannot be helped or averted but there are others that could be if the proper care were exercised. My first visit after the office of Minister of Agriculture and Mines was to the mines of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. and the Nova Scotia Co. at Bell Island, and the management of these plants were only too willing that I should inspect the mines and they afforded me every assistance possible in doing so. It may be asked by the members on the opposite side "Why didn't you appoint an inspector when you were there?" I didn't have the chance. I did not have time to bring into operation the ideas that I had in the back of my head in this regard. The Bell Island companies do all that is possible to safeguard the lives of the men working with them, but it is only natural to suppose that the men employed by these companies are going to do all they can to cut down expenses, and the making of provision for safeguarding life is not calculated to cut down but rather to add to expenses. The proper timbering of mines is most important and must be attended to by a fully qualified man as must also the other branches. Take the matter of explosives, for example, only by years of practical experience can a man become proficient in this and only by high wages can you hope to secure the services of such a man, and naturally if a company can get a cheaper man they are going to take the risk which his inexperience may entail and in order to overcome this sort of thing we must adopt the system that we have applied to our other industries. When the Minister of Marine and Fisheries came in here he had considerable experience in the seal fishery. He got to work and put a law on the Statute Book which eliminated at least some of the undesirable features in that industry. This mining industry is bound to play a prominent part in the future of this Colony. I have handed out these suggestions in no spirit of criticism but in an honest desire to see some good come out of them. Down in these mines I myself have gone as long as 12 months without seeing daylight. I have gone down before daybreak and come up at dark for 12 months and I know the conditions that exist there. I think that the man who goes down in the mines at Bell Island and breathes the foul air and dynamite smoke from one end of the year to the other that he is entitled to all the privileges that this House can throw at him.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—I may say that this matter has been taken up with Mr. Hall and that he will make a report.

MR. HIGGINS:—Following on the lines of Mr. Walsh's remarks and as evidence of the value of such a laudable idea the company over there has formed their own safety first committees. The heads of the different departments comprise the committee and they take turns in going round and have all the dangerous curves and overhanging rocks or ore remedied. It shows the company's desire to respond to any effort for the elimination of the dangers that are always there. The work in this connection is purely voluntary but there are times that it may be hampered on the grounds of expense. If there is a bad accident in the slope you can't get a man to go down there for several days after. What you do really want there is an independent government inspector who would be continually going over there and I know that such an appointment would be recognized and appreciated by the companies concerned.

MR. WALSH:—Not only Bell Island

but many other parts of the country are in a like position. In Sept. 1903 I was working at Pilley's Island and on Sept. 2nd a chap named Keefe went down into the mine at five o'clock in the morning and at seven o'clock he was brought to the surface having been killed instantly. I was with him at the time and received a broken arm and scratches that I carry to this day. If we had a competent inspector at that time this would not have happened. The affair was caused by incompetent help filling responsible positions. A charge of dynamite put in a hole that O'Keefe had drilled the day before was not fired when the other blasts went off. This hole was not noticed and was not connected with the result that O'Keefe and I who were working with the drill the day after struck the charge of dynamite and caused an explosion. When I came to myself I called for O'Keefe, he was dead and in pieces. I don't blame the government or past governments for this accident but we must prevent a recurrence of such as this for ever more. I am prepared that the government shall get full credit for such an appointment and such a man who will not be baulked in his duties.

MR. HIGGINS:—I would like to ask the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries in regard to the appointment of trade commissioners, how many have been appointed to the present time and where are they going to be placed?

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES:—There will probably be one placed at Greece, Italy, Spain, there is one in Portugal now. There will be one at Brazil, West Indies, and Liverpool, and probably next year one at ————. There will also be one to follow Mr. Goodridge in South America.

MR. HIGGINS:—How will they be employed? Will they go over there for a number of years?

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES:—Yes, if we will get good men we will probably send them over there for two or three years. The worst feature it is hard to get good men and to get them to stay at a place and there is also the matter of languages as well. A man in Europe who can speak French will get along alright. It is not hard to get a man for Brazil. I think that there will be about 10 men employed.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—There is only one section now and that is Education. We cannot touch that until the Bill is brought down.

Committee rises.

The said Resolutions being read a second time it was moved and seconded that the House concur with the Committee therein and the said Resolutions were agreed to.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on Supply.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—In the Supplemental Supply there will be noted three items to which I might call attention, $5,000 paid Sir Michael Cashin; $10,000 paid Mr. A. B. Morine, and $2,500 paid myself. I have been informed that during my absence from town in connection with the Bay de Verde bye-election Sir Michael Cashin was pleased to attack me as having been paid the sum of $2,500, and, with his usual impudent insolence suggested that the money had been paid before. Sir Michael Cashin knew that his insinuation was false, but it is merely in line with that base contemptibleness of his which is written all over the records of the proceedings of the House. While in the District of Bay de Verde my attention was called to an editorial in Sir Michael Cashin's chief supporting paper, the "Daily News." I immediately telegraphed a solicitor to institute libel proceedings, and that has been done. As the attack was made in the House, however, I felt that I should not let this opportunity pass without making reference thereto. The payment of $5,000 to Sir Michael Cashin was made to him for two visits paid by him to Canada and the United States in connection with the floation of loans, the payment agreed upon being $2,500 for each journey. The payment made to Mr. Morine consists of a fee of $5,000 paid him in connection with the Labrador Boundary. For this $5,000 he gave nothing, offered no advice, took no steps and did not spend any time in a study of the matter. The remaining sum of $5,000 consists of $1,000 or so which he paid himself for the purchase by himself as Attorney General of a remnant of his own law library. When he moved from his law office some years ago when he left Newfoundland intending presumably to take up residence in Canada he had a number of books that he considered it not worth his while to pack up to take away with him. He left these in his office in St. John's in charge of a solicitor who rented the offices after he vacated them. Mr. Morine returned to Newfoundland a short while ago and on becoming Attorney General had these books removed from his office to the Department of Justice, and as Attorney General bought them for his official office from himself as a private practitioner. That transaction was concurred in by Sir Michael Cashin, the other $3,000 or $4,000 representing special fees which were paid him for which value may or may not have been secured. Mr. Morine, it will be remembered, was an Independent Opposition member during the Lloyd Administration. When in the spring of 1919 friction arose between Sir Michael Cashin and Sir William Lloyd because Sir William Lloyd refused to assent to certain preposterous terms which Sir Michael was pressing on behalf of the Reid Newfoundland Company, the Reid Newfoundland Company and Sir Michael took the position that they were strong enough to smash the Government, and they were. Mr. Morine, who when Attorney General some years ago, made himself famous as being both Attorney General and legal adviser to the Reid Newfoundland Company, Government contractors, at the same time, who is to-day one of the Reid lawyers handling for the Reids important company business, joined Sir Michael Cashin, to whom up to that moment he had apparently been most aggressively opposed, and became Attorney General from April, 1919, to November, 1919, when the Cashin Administration was defeated and Mr. Morine lost his own seat in his own constituency of Bonavista, finding himself at the bottom of the poll of six candidates. Mr. Morine drew his salary as Attorney General and in addition thereto drew this sum of $10,000 for special services and old law books. It would not be for me to say that any such deal was made between Sir Michael Cashin and Mr. Morine as the subsequent facts indicate, but it is worthy of note that for the brief period of six months during which Mr. Morine was Attorney General he drew in addition to his salary as Attorney General a bonus of $10,000, $7,000 or $8,000 of which could not by any possible line of thought be regarded as earned. This same Sir Michael Cashin who paid this money to Mr. Morine and who himself accepted $5,000 for two visits to Canada in connection with loan matters is quite indignant, because I was paid for my services for visiting Ottawa in connection with the transfer of Newfoundland Shipping at the same rate per journey as he was paid. Certainly logical reasoning has never been known to be in any way identified with the particular system, whatever it may be, with which his irregular and uncertain thinking processes are identified. Certainly Sir Michael Cashin's insinuation about my having been paid twice in this connection is absolutely false, and for the information of the House I will relate the circumstances of the whole transaction. In November, 1917, I was Colonial Secretary of the Morris National Administration. Sir Edward Morris was in England, and Dr. Lloyd, the Attorney General, now the Rt. Hon. Sir William Lloyd, was acting in his stead. At about eleven o'clock one morning Sir William Lloyd received a cable from Sir Edward Morris urging him to send some person to Ottawa to take up with the Canadian authorities the matter of the transportation by Canadian vessels of Newfoundland codfish to the European markets. The facts were that practically all Newfoundland owned vessels used in the fish carrying trade to the European markets were under Canadian registry. The message from Sir Edward Morris was to the effect that under a Canadian Order in Council no Canadian registered vessel was permitted to enter the war zone and if any such vessel did attempt a journey across the Atlantic the vessel and her cargo were liable to forfeiture. Under the circumstances in which Newfoundland fish shippers found themselves placed, that Order in Council destroyed every hope of marketing the 1917 catch of codfish. That was the month of November. Practically no codfish had been shipped across the Atlantic. Almost the entire year's catch was in Newfoundland awaiting transhipment, and with that Canadian Order in Council in existence there were no ships by which that fish could be forwarded. Fish in Newfoundland is of no more value than the rocks on our hills except in so far as it can be shipped abroad for sale. Newfoundland was consequently faced with absolute disaster. Immediately on the receipt of the message Sir William Lloyd telephoned the Reid Newfoundland Company asking them to hold their express which was due to leave that day at one o'clock until two o'clock that afternoon, and he summoned an emergency meeting of Council at his own office, the office of the Attorney General. Sir William Lloyd was in the chair. There were present Sir Michael Cashin, Sir John Crosbie, Mr. Hickman, myself and perhaps several other members of Council. I am not quite sure as to the other members who were there. Sir William Lloyd placed the position before Council, and asked for volunteers to go that day on the express and take the matter up with the Canadian authorities at Ottawa. No one would volunteer to undertake the work. Sir William Lloyd asked Mr. Hickman if he would go. Mr. Hickman refused saying that at that season of the year it was absolutely impossible for him to leave his business at such short notice. Other members of Council were not prepared to go. Finally Sir Mchael Cashin, then Minister of Finance and Customs, said that as nobody else would go and as I was Colonial Secretary, it was my duty to go. I demurred because it meant a very great sacrifice for me, without a minute's notice, in the month of November, to abandon my large law practice and hand over to other solicitors the important work which was in my office for attention. There was no client on Water Street who for the sum of $2,000 could have induced me to leave my office under these circumstances to go to Ottawa on a matter of business for him. However, the situation was serious. Newfoundland's interest had to be looked after. It meant positive disaster if satisfactory arrangements could not be made. No other member of Council was prepared to make the sacrifice, and, being Colonial Secretary and ever prepared to undertake responsibilities which others desired to shirk, I said that I would go, provided the train was held up for another hour; that would be until three o'clock. I went back to the Colonial Secretary's office and disposed of one or two important matters and had all the outstanding business at the Colonial Secretary's office and my law office gathered together. I arranged with Mr. Le-Messurier, the Registrar of Newfoundland Shipping, to get together all the information on the points on which I required to be informed, and took my Secretary and went out on train at three o'clock. I got from Mr. Lemessurier when travelling across country all the information he could give and so far as it was possible attended to all outstanding matters; Mr. Le-Messurier and my secretary returning to town by a crossing train. It was only after I had started the journey that I realized that negotiations with the authorities in Canada would be difficult because general elections were then pending in Canada. I did not realize the great difficulty, however, in that regard until I arrived at Montreal, and found that all the Cabinet Ministers were in their constituencies, but fortunately the Minister of Justice and the Minister of Marine were offering themselves as candidates for Montreal constituencies. I got in touch with the Secretary of the Minister of Justice at Montreal, and had an interview with him after a political meeting which he held at Montreal, the interview being at his room at the Ritz Carlton Hotel at midnight. On the following day I visited the Committee Rooms of the Minister of Marine and discussed the matter with him in his committee rooms after a meeting which he had with his campaign organization. After I had done everything possible in Montreal I went to Ottawa and took the matter up with the Deputy Minister of Marine, Mr. A. Johnson, whom I found to be an exceedingly courteous and capable official. He gave sympathetic consideration to the case as I put it before him. I then found that it was absolutely impossible to hope to secure the attendance at Ottawa of a sufficient number of members of the Council to secure the passage of any Order in Council modifying the existing Order in spite of the fact that the Minister of Justice and Minister of Marine had both, with the abundant courtesy for which they are noted, offered to leave their constituencies in the heat of the election and go to Ottawa to attend a Cabinet meeting if such were found to be necessary. After discussing the matter very thoroughly I found that a meeting of the Cabinet was utterly impossible to secure, and entirely discourteous and unfair for me to suggest under the circumstances, I felt that there was a way by which the matter could be handled, namely, by an arrangement which could be made under the Ministerial authority of the Minister of Marine, and that was to release from Canadian Registry and have transferred to Newfoundland Registry all ships owned in Newfoundland. The Minister of Marine very courteously left his contest in Montreal and came to Ottawa for the day. There was a conference between the Minister, his Deputy, and myself, which lasted a considerable portion of the forenoon and lunch hour and a large part of the afternoon. The position was fully discussed, and before I left the Department of Marine that afternoon a cable was sent by the Deputy Minister of Marine to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries of Newfoundland, and also a cable sent by him to the Registrar of Shipping, St. John's, putting into effect the program which I had laid before them and to which they had so courteously agreed. In the meanwhile I had telegraphed Sir William Lloyd laying before him the position as I saw it. I had received a reply saying that it would be necessary for him to submit the proposition to Council for consideration, and after a meeting of Council he would telegraph me instructions. I had waited for a day. No reply had been received. It was essential that the arrangement should be closed immediately, and I closed the arrangement entirely on my own responsibility without waiting for the authority of Council, as I felt that was a matter of vital importance, that that was the very best that could be done, that that met the situation fully and that it had to be closed that day before the Minister of Marine went back to his constituency. I remained in Ottawa in connection with this business and did not leave Ottawa until I received a wire from the Acting Prime Minister authorizing me on behalf of the Government of Newfoundland to make the arrangements, which, as a matter of fact, I had made two or three days previously. Since Newfoundland has been sending representatives abroad to handle business transactions I venture to say that there has not been a case in which such important diplomatic negotiations as between countries have been handled more expeditiously and with greater success. I was absent from Newfoundland between three and four weeks in all. I returned early in December. The political condition was cloudy. There was no meeting of the Executive Council called for general business from the time I got back to the dissolution of the Government, but on the 14th of December there was a formal meeting for the confirmation of minutes at Government House. We all then had reason to believe that Sir Edward Morris was retiring at the end of the year and that he would be advising His Excellency the Governor to call upon Dr. Lloyd to form a Ministry. It was also considered highly probable that I would be declining to accept office in that Ministry, but Sir William Lloyd, with the courtesy and honor for which his private, professional and political career is so well known, wrote out at Government House in the presence of His Excellency the Governor and the Council a resolution of appreciation for the work which I had so successfully performed on that important mission. The original resolution in Dr. Lloyd's handwriting is in my possession. The following is a copy of it as it appears on the official record:

"The Council expresses the high "appreciation of the services of Hon. "R. A. Squires, K.C., Colonial Secre-"tary, in obtaining from the Governor "in Council of Canada permission to "allow the transfer of Newfoundland "owned vessels from Canadian to "Newfoundland Registry. Resolution "by Hon. W. F. Lloyd, His Majesty's "Attorney General and Acting Prime "Minister."

For that journey and that successful work I was paid to cover my services, my time and travelling expenses the same amount of money that Sir Michael Cashin was paid for each occasion when he went away in connection with loan matters. As to the efficiency by Sir Michael Cashin, I leave it to the public to judge, but I think everyone who has watched Sir Michael Cashin's career and has noted his behaviour in the House of Assembly during this session will agree that if Sir Michael Cashin was entitled to $2,500 for his services in connection with diplomatic missions to other countries in the interests of Newfoundland, the value of my services would more nearly approach $25,000 than $2,500. However, $2,500 was the amount which I was paid.

There is another aspect of the matter to which I would call attention. Sir Michael Cashin is a man of wealth, and I honor him for his ability, insofar as he has dealt honestly, to have amassed great wealth. I was a professional man depending for my living and the maintenance of my home upon my income as a barrister and solicitor. One would think that Sir Michael Cashin, with his wealth, would not condescend to take from the Government of Newfoundland $5,000 for two visits to Canada and the United States in connection with raising loans for the Colony. If I had half the wealth that Sir Michael Cashin boasts of possessing I would deem it the greatest privilege of my life to serve my country without remuneration or reward. There was not one cent of profit in that $2,500 for myself. For the time and effort used I was not paid by the Government nearly so substantial a fee as any mercantile establishment would have been glad to offer me for similar successful services in a matter of half the importance and magnitude of the mission to which my efforts were directed on behalf of the Government of Newfoundland. To be absent from Newfoundland for three or four weeks, being a portion of November and the month of December, represented a personal loss to myself in connection with my business relations of more than the total amount paid me by the Newfoundland Government. I went as a matter of duty to the Government of which I was Colonial Secretary and to the country in the legislative halls of which I had a seat. I went when other members of Council would not volunteer and other members refused on the ground that they could not leave their business at that season to undertake the work, and instead of Sir Michael Cashin behaving as a man and a gentleman in this House, calling attention to the payment and expressing his appreciation of the services which were rendered, he has the impudence to attack me and include in his attack these insinuations. Sir Michael Cashin's conduct in this instance, as in other instances during this session of the Legislature has proven to this House and to the public his utter untrustworthiness as a politician, his incapacity as a leader, the vindictiveness which prompts his utterances and the baseness of his mind.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had passed certain Resolutions and asked leave to sit again on to-morrow.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on to-morrow.

The remaining orders of the day were deferred.

Hon. the Minister of Justice gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a bill respecting Municipal Affairs in the City of St. John's.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

TUESDAY, July 6th, 1920.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon, pursuant to adjournment.

Pursuant to notice and leave granted and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Education the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Education Act," was introduced and read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

Pursuant to notice and leave granted and on motion of Hon. the Minister of the Bill entitled "An Act Respecting the Education Act," was introduced and read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

Mr. Bennett gave notice of question.

Mr. Higgins gave notice of question.

The Chairman from the Committee of the Whole on Supply reported certain Resolutions which were read a first time as follows:

Public Debt and Management	$ 125,000.00
Agriculture and Mines	52,800.00
Marine and Fisheries	268,235.00
Roads, Bridges and Ferries	221,235.00
Postal and Telegraph Department	1,555,084.38
Customs	559,156.54
Contingencies	50,000.00
Pensions, Soldiers and Sailors	514,000.00

Mr. Chairman,—I propose to submit an explanation of the Estimates of the Fishery Department for the information of the Honourable members opposite. Instead of there being an increase in the estimates there will be a reduction. I propose to give the House three columns—one containing the estimates of last year, another the estimates asked for the coming year, and another containing the actual amount paid under the increase made by the Cashin Government last fall. The House will readily see just where the shoe pinches, so far as the Fishery Department Estimates are concerned:

HEAD X.

Amount voted 1919-20 Estimates	$128,658.00
Supplemental Supply asked for to cover overdrafts for the year 1919-20	161,841.40
	$290,472.40

In view of the fact that $290,472.00 was expended in 1919-20 under Head X; the asking for $268,235.00, is not to be considered excessive; but on the contrary a saving of $22,237.00.

Taking the comparisons you will see the facts:—

Marine and Fisheries Department Votes under Head X.	Expenditure for year 1919-20.	Estimates for year 1919-20.
Salaries outside such as Wardens	$ 5,413.22	$ 5,500.00
Meteorological Service	6,000.00	6,000.00
Herring Fishery Protection	800.00	800.00
Public Wharves (hire, repairs, keepers
Expenses S. S. "Fiona" (Customs protection)	55,000.00

Travelling Expenses Department of Fish-ies	1,650.00		1,650.00
Incidentals	150.00		150.00
Lobster Label Expenses and Salmon Label Expenses	2,100.00		2,100.00
and Light)	2,000.00		2,500.00
Harbour Master, St. John's, $120; Boat-man $650	1,037.69		845.00
Night Boatman and Sundries	40.00		40.00
Instruction to Masters and Mates, and Asst. Examiners	1,545.54		1,550.00
In aid Instruction Drawing, Mechanical Engineers	300.00		300.00
Cold Storage for bait	5,000.00		5,000.00
Enforcement of Bait Laws	8,000.00		8,000.00
Bounty on ships built	52,436.16	'X'	16,000.00
Marine works	15,000.00		15,000.00
Dredging	32,621.29		33,000.00
Propagation of Lobsters	22,598.68		23,000.00
Amount in aid Game & Inland Fishery Board	16,200.00		20,000.00
Herring Fishery Expenses	11,910.77		12,000.00
Cod Liver Oil Expenses	6,719.52		6.800.00
Export of Fish Board	8,000.00		8,000.00
New Steamers, two, "Daisy" and "Lobelia"			50,000.00
Trade Commissioners			50,000.00
Grand Bank Hr. Construction	30,000.00
	$290,472.40		$268,235.00

Bounty on ships built, $52,436.16 is the required amount for this year.

$16,000.00 is asked for in the Estimates for 1920-21; but this is one of the very few votes that cannot be estimated correctly.

$16,000.00, however, is put in this year's requirements (1920-21), with the distinct understanding that it may be altogether too little, as we do not know how many vessels are likely to be built during the year which bounty may have to be paid on.

There are new votes for $50,000.00: two new steamers, and this amount will have to be very carefully expended to meet the ever higher cost of operating steamers.

$50,000.00 for Trade Commissions and their expenses.

$8,000.00 for expenses in connection with the Fish Export Board.

The Department of Marine and Fisheries is of necessity a large expending Department in consequence of the nature of the work under its control.

But this year the collection of fees from Cod Fish Licenses together with 10c. quintal on fish exported, will amount to $150,000. The savings in cost of delivering supplies will amount to $20,000 and if the rescue ship operates she will pay her expenses, consequently the votes of $50,000 for Trade Commissioners and $50,000 for operating the two steamers, and $8,000 for Advisory Board expenses, will in all probability be wiped out and a balance of $50,000 or more remain to the credit of the Department.

ON ACCOUNT OF ST. LAWRENCE FOG ALARM AND LIGHT—NEW
Replacing plant destroyed by lightning	4,000.00
ON ACCOUNT OF LAMALINE FOG ALARM—NEW
Including new whistle house	4,000.00
GREEN ISLAND, CATALINA—NEW
Replacing outfit now there	12,000.00
OIL TANKS
10,550 gallon oil tanks	3,500.00
CHANCE BROS. ORDER
11Acetylene Lights, Repairs Ferryland Light, 1 Re-charging station, 1, 5″ fog alarm outfit	50,000.00
2, 3″ fog alarms	25,000.00

HEAD 2.

Votes Passed in House of Assembly Estimates 1919-20

Salaries	$26,492.33
Supplemental Supply asked for to cover percentage on salaries	10,500.00
Total for year 1919-20..	$36,992.33

Vote asked for House of Assembly Estimates

1920-21	$42,576.00
Increase	$ 5,583.67

	Voted Estimates 1919-20	Actual Payment 1919-20	Voted for 1920-21
Deputy M. F..	$1,680.00	$ 2,516.00	$ 2,500.00

Secty. Fishery Bd.	500.00	650.00	500.00
First Clerk and Accountant. .	1,203.75	2,000.00	1,800.00
Second Clerk.	875.00	1,237.50	1,200.00
Third Clerk.	811.25	1,150.62	1,150.00
Fouth Clerk and Messenger. .	780.00	780.00	750.00
Typewriter.	650.00	1,032.20	720.00
Store Keeper.	585.00	860.50	1,000.00
Examiner Master and Mates and Ships' Husband.	1,610.00	2,000.00	2,000.00
Quarantine Officer.	650.00	845.00	845.00
Lloyd's Surveyor.	1,216.66	1,459.00	1,800.00
Inspector of Lighthouses. . . .	2,400.00	2,760.00	2,500.00
Lighthouse Typewriter.	625.00	812.50	720.00
Secty. Lighthouse Dept.	1,260.00	1,900.00	1,800.00
Lighthouse Mechanician.	1,260.00
Inspector of Boilers.	1,536.00	1,843.20	1,843.20
Asst. Inspector of Boilers. . . .	1,440.00	1,728.00	1,728.00
Inspector Pickled Fish.	885.00	1,150.50
Inspector Fisheries.	1,250.00
Deputy Surveyor Shipping. . .	750.00	975.00	975.00
Secty. Herring Fishery Board. .	1,250.00	1,800.00
Cod Liver Oil & Herring Insp. .	1,440.00	1,728.00	1,750.00
Cod Liver Oil & Herring Insp. .	1,440.00	1,728.00	1,750.00
Cod Liver Oil & Herring Insp. .	1,200.00	1,440.00	1,500.00
Lobster Propaga'n & Her. Insp.	1,250.00	1,500.00	1,500.00
Herring Inspector.		900.00	900.00
Typewriter.		420.00	720.00
Secretary to Minister.			1,200.00
Supt. Marine Construction. . .			1.500.00
Secty. Fishery Advisory Board.			500.00
Supt. of Fisheries.			5,000.00

New Appointments Not Included In Last Year's Estimates

Secretary Minister (Clouter)	$1,200.00
Typewriter (Gardner)	720.00
Superintendent Marine Construction (Hawco)	1,500.00
Superintendent Fisheries	5,000.00
Secretary Advisory Board (Hutchings)	500.00
New positions	$8,920.00
Salaries saved $5,812.00
Salary Light Inspector saved 2,500.00	8,312.00

Increase for 1920-21 . . . . . $ 608.00

New Appointments This Year But Included In Last Year's Estimates.

Lighthouse Mechanician (Cornick) $1,512.00
Inspector Fisheries (Dee) 1,500.00
Secretary Herring Fishery Board (Badcock) 1,500.00
Pickled Fish Inspector (Fitzgerald) 1,300.00

$5,812.00

We propose to dispense with the position of Lighthouse Inspector as soon as the Government can transfer Mr. Goodison to another position and two sub-inspectors will be appointed—one North and one South,—who will reside in their sections and give all their time to inspection, supervising and construction. Two such men are now employed by the Department and are paid out of construction votes. Their appointment would therefore not add to the amount of the general vote.

Votes Passed by House of Assembly Estimates

1919-20 (Head 2) Contingencies. $1,850.00
Supplemental Supply asked for to cover expenditure
1919-20 . . . . . 6,500.00

$8,350.00

Vote Asked For House Assembly Estimates

1920-21 . . . . . $10,000.00

Increase $1,600.00

It is not likely that the vote will be spent, but if not it can revert to the Treasury.

HEAD VIII.—LIGHTHOUSES.

Votes asked for House of Assembly Estimates 1919-20. . $185,854.65
Additional Estimates voted Estimates 1919-20 . . . . . 41,420.00

$227,274.65

Supplemental supply asked for to cover Expenditure
1919-20 . . . . . 81,681.00

Total for year 1919-20 . . . . . $308,955.65

Estimates asked for 1920-21 . . . . . $210,771.39
Additional Estimates 1920-21 . . . . . $121,300.00

$332,071.39

Increase of . . . . . $ 23,115.74

It will be noted that this year's estimates include the erection of 11 acetylene lights, 4 fog alarms of superior quality, 1 compressor outfit, completion of St. Lawrence light and alarm, the equipment of preparing light at $4,000 cost.

MAINTENANCE	1919-20	1920-21
	$93,032.00	$93,847.00

These amounts are for maintenance only, such as oil, fuel, etc., etc., and the estimated requirements are that this figure will suffice for the year 1920-21.

The amount of $93,032.00 estimated in 1919-20 had to be supplemented by an amount of $50,650.00 for the following expenditures:

Extra cost on freight and coals	$2,000.00
Bay Roberts—new house	3,000.00
Carbonear—landing; store damaged by storm	800.00
Cabbage Hd.—storm damages	300.00
Cape St. Francis—storm damages	1,000.00
Cape Spear—storm damages	750.00
Cape Bonavista—repairing house	200.00
Shoe Cove Pt.—damaged by fire and storm	500.00
Fortune—damaged by fire	500.00
Baccalieu Alarm—storm damages	1,000.00
Channel Head—storm damages	1,200.00
Lamaline—New store	1,000.00
St. Lawrence—damage by lightning	4,000.00
Gas accumulators	2,000.00
Ferryland Hd.—Casing iron tower	2,000.00
Sagona & Penguin Is. West—Landing oil tanks	500.00
Dodding Hr.—Landing place	700.00
Pt. Verde—New tower	1,500.00
Powell's Hr.—Storm damages	600.00
Fort Amherst—Repairing masonry and light tower	2,000.00
Goose Cove—Erecting light	500.00
Newtown—Erecting light	600.00
Lower Sandy Pt.—New house	750.00
Woody Pt.—Erecting light	750.00
Estimated expenditure for balance April, May and June...	6,500.00
St. Lawrence—new fog alarm	8,000.00
Lamaline—New fog alarm	8,000.00
	$50,650.00

Making for the year 1919-20 not $93,032.00 as asked for, but $143,682.00 expended.

CONTINGENCIES

Extra cost printing, stationery, telegrams, etc., etc. .. ..$ 500.00

BLOCKHOUSE SALARIES

Percentage on salaries 304.00

BLOCKHOUSE MAINTENANCE & NOON GUN

Extra cost supplies, coal and powder. Extra supply coal and assistance to Keeper on account of fire 1,200.00

NOON GUN SALARIES

Percentage on salaries 27.00

CAPE TELEPHONE SERVICE

Anglo contract telephone to Capt St. Francis 3,000.00

Last year kero oil cost 40c. per gallon by the cask; in 1918 it cost 40c per gallon. The wholesale price last year paid by the suppliers of the oil was 31½ cents, and 34 cents in 1918 less 5½ duty. This therefore shows that the Department paid 8½ cents profit on 1200 casks, 51,600 gals or $4,378 handed out to a jobber or grafter in one year, and about the same amount in 1918. This matter will be investigated by the Commission of Enquiry now sitting. This year while kero. oil has increased in value 6c. per gallon over last year's rates, would cost the Department 46c. per gallon. We are supplying oil at 28 cents per gallon and reducing the quantity by 20 per cent., as we have cut out wood casks and sent only steel barrels, which will prevent leakage—18 cents per gallon is therefore saved to the Dept. this year on 50,000 gallons, or $9,000. This amount is still reduced 20 per cent. by lessening the supplies by 10,000 gallons. This is a serious matter, and one that the public and this House should go to the bottom of.

During the year acetylene lights have been erected at Fort Amherst, Mouse Island, Curzon Hd., Bonne Bay, Boxey Point, F.B., Honey Pass Island, B.B., Squarey Head, B.B.

UNDER ADDTIONAL ESTIMATES

This expenditure of $121,300.00 is for special work as explained.

In supplemental supply for 1919-20, $8,000.00 is asked for in each case to cover work and machinery bought and paid for in this year, and the $4000.00 each asked for as additional estimates for 1920-21 is to cover the cost of completion of this work, so that each year's work may appear in the year that the work and cost of same was done.

GREEN ISLAND, CATALINA

$12,000.00 for new fog alarm plant.

OIL TANKS

$3,500.00 to purchase ten 550 gallon kerosene oil tanks to be placed at ten light stations.

11 ACEYTLENE LIGHTS

To be erected at the following places:—English Hr. West, West Burgeo, LaPoile, Rencontre, Point Verde, Herring Neck, Harbour Grace, Puffin Island, B.B., and Labrador.

FERRYLAND LIGHT.

Apparatus to greatly improve the existing Light is being imported, consisting of an incandescent oil vapour burner, similar to Cape Spear.

RE-CHARGING STATION.

To refill the cylinders used at the Acetylene Light Stations with acetylene, instead of having to send these cylinders to New Jersey, U.S.A., to be refilled as we do at present.

3 FOG ALARM OUTFITS.

For Baccalhao—Cabot Island or Twillingate, Long Pt., St. Lawrence and Lamaline will have Fog Alarms and Lights completed this season.

HEAD 2—REGULAR ESTIMATES

1919	$36,992.33
1920	42,576.00
Increase	$5,583.67
Voted estimates last year	$20,317.33
Actual amount spent of which I am not responsible for a cent	$37,000.00

Amongst officials included this year but paid from contingencies last year are Hy. Inspector Dunphy at $900, 2 typists at $720—$1440—which if paid as last year would reduce the increase for wages under Head 2 to $3,243—and this in spite of the additional staff required to carry out the Fish Regulations and the addition to the staff of a Supt. of Fisheries and a Supt. of Marine Works. The latter official has already saved to the country 20 times his salary—and will continue to do so.

HEAD VIII.—LIGHTHOUSES, BLOCKHOUSE, ETC.

Estimate of Expenditure for which Votes of the Legislature are required	Voted in Estimates 1919–20	Estimate 1920–21	Actually paid 1919–20
LIGHTHOUSE SALARIES STATIONS:—
Red Bay	$ 405.00	$ 526.50	$ 526.50

Goose Cove	75.00	100.00
Jackson's Arm	187.00	250.00	243.75
Seal Cove	187.00	250.00	243.75
Western Cove	187.50	250.00	243.75
Conche	281.25	250.00	365.62
Groais Island	46.87	100.00	60.93
Inglee	187.50	250.00	243.75
Williamsport	46.87	100.00	60.93
St. Anthony	405.00	526.50	526.50
Great Hr. Deep	46.87	100.00	60.93
Griquet	281.25	250.00	365.62
Gull Island Light	682.65	900.00	887.44
Gull Island Light Assistant	565.50	750.00	735.15
Gull Island Light Alarm	997.50	1,200.00	1,296.75
Gull Island Light Courier	135.00	175.00	175.50
Nipper's Harbour	506.25	658.12	658.12
Little Bay Islands	344.25	447.52	447.52
St. Michael's Head	344.25	200.00	447.52
Long Island, N.D.B	858.45	1,200.00	1,115.98
Leading Tickles	425.25	552.82	552.82
Long Island, Courier	121.50		146.45
Twillingate Wharf	187.50	250.00	243.75
Twillingate, Long Point	710.32	923.41	923.41
Long Point, Twillingate, Asst	565.50	735.15	735.15
Fortune Harbour	506.25	658.12	658.12
Mill Point, Botwood	281.25	250.00	365.62
Lower Sandy Point	375.00	550.00	487.50
Grassy Island	375.00	550.00	487.50
Cabbage Head	421.87	550.00	548.43
Black Island	421.87	550.00	548.43
Sergeant's Cove Head	778.80	1,200.00	1,012.44
Baccalhao	778.80	1,200.00	1,012.44
Herring Neck	344.25	100.00	447.52
Ragg's Island	344.25	400.00	447.52
Change Islands, S.E	506.25	550.00	658.12
Change Islands, N.W	187.50	250.00	243.75
Cann Island	691.87	900.00	899.43
Burnt Point, Light and Alarm, Seldom Come By	885.00	1,200.00	1,150.50
Stag Hr. Run Buoys	187.50	250.00	243.75
Tilton	187.00	250.00	243.75
Joe Batt's Arm	585.00	750.00	760.50
Wadham Islands	858.45	1,200.00	1,115.98

Peckford's Island	858.45	1,200.00	1,115.98
Muddy Shag	62.50	100.00	81.25
Musgrave Hr	187.50	250.00	243.75
Penguin Island North	858.45	1,200.00	1,115.98
Cabot Island	858.45	1,200.00	1,115.98
Cabot Island, Courier	112.50	150.00	146.25
Wesleyville	62.50	100.00	81.25
Templeman Leading Lights		100.00
Honey Pot Island, Newtown		100.00
Puffin Island	585.00	750.00	760.50
Puffin Island Alarm	885.00	900.00	1,150.50
Shoe Cove Point	585.00	550.00	760.50
Little Denier	778.80	100.00	1,012.44
King's Cove	506.25	550.00	658.12
Happy Adventure	93.75	120.00	121.87
Cape Bonavista Light	710.32		923.41
Cape Bonavista Assistant	565.50	750.00	735.15
Cape Bonavista Alarm	997.50	800.00	1,296.75
Squarry Head	344.25	100.00	447.52
Melrose	93.75	120.00	121.87
Green Island, Catalina	627.65	850.00	815.94
Green Island, Catalina, Asst	620.50	800.00	806.65
Catalina, Hr. Light	150.00	120.00	195.00
Fort Point	281.25	400.00	365.62
Fort Point Alarm	706.25	900.00	918.12
Fort Point Assistant	506.25	650.00	658.12
Ragged Island	585.00	800.00	760.50
Random	778.80	1,000.00	1,012.44
Hopeall Head		100.00
Heart's Content	425.25	550.00	552.82
Hant's Harbour	281.25	400.00	365.62
Jean's Head	585.00	800.00	760.50
Old Perlican	506.25	650.00	658.12
Baccalieu Light	990.00	1,200.00	1,287.00
Baccalieu Courier	150.00	195.00	195.00
Baccalieu Alarm	1,089.00	1,200.00	1,306.80
Baccalieu Alarm Courier	75.00	97.50	97.50
Western Bay	788.80	1,000.00	1,012.44
Carbonear Island, Acetylene	585.00	760.00	760.50
Hr. Grace Island, Acetylene	585.00	100.00	760.50
Estimate of Expenditure for which Votes of the Legislature are required	Voted in Estimates 1919–20	Estimate 1920–21	Actually paid 1919–20

Hr. Grace Beacon & Bar Buoys	450.00	585.00	585.00
Bay Roberts	479.00	650.00	622.70
Bay Roberts	100.00	130.00	130.00
Brigus	585.00	780.00	760.50
Cupids	585.00	780.00	760.50
Salmon Cove	344.25	450.00	447.52
Cape St. Francis Light & Alarm	710.32	850.00	923.41
Cape St. Francis Assistant	645.75	800.00	839.47
St. John's Leading Lights:
Congregational Church		200.00
King's Wharf		200.00	676.00
St. John's, Narrow's Buoys	187.00	250.00	243.75
North Head, St. John's	750.00
Fort Amherst, Light and Alarm	1,100.00	1,200.00
do. do. Courier		120.00	1,320.00
Cape Spear, Light and Alarm	781.75	1,000.00	1,016.27
Cape Spear, L. & A., Assistant	781.25	900.00	919.42
Cape Spear, L. & A., 2nd Asst.	565.50	750.00	735.15
Bay Bulls	778.80	1,000.00	1,012.44
Ferrland	885.00	1,150.50	1,150.50
Powell's Head, Light & Alarm.	1,100.00	1,200.00
Powell's Head, L. & A., Courier		120.00	1,320.00
Cape Pine	926.25	1,200.00	1,204.12
Point LaHaye	425.00	550.00	552.50
Cape St. Mary's	1,031.25	1,200.00	1,237.50
Cape St. Mary's, Courier	30.00	50.00	39.00
Point Verde, Light and Alarm.	1,028.50	1,200.00	1,234.20
Placentia, L. Lights	281.25	385.00	365.62
Point LaTine	425.25	550.00	552.82
Marticot	778.80	1,000.00	1,012.44
Marticot, Courier	37.50	50.00	48.75
Long Island	778.80	1,000.00	1,012.44
Long Island Courier	112.50	150.00	146.25
Flat Island	281.25	350.00	365.62
Tide's Point, Light and Alarm	997.50	1,200.00	1,296.75
Iron Island	100.00	130.00	130.00
Dodding Head	682.65	850.00	887.44
Dodding Head, Assistant	565.50	750.00	735.15
Little Burin Is., Light & Alarm	997.50	1,200.00	1,296.75
St. Lawrence, Light & Alarm.	997.50	1,200.00	1,296.75
Green Island, Light & Alarm.	1,100.00	900.00
Green Is., L. & A., Assistant.		600.00	1,320.00
Green Is., L. & A., Courier	112.50	150.00	146.25

Lamaline, Light & Alarm	421.87	1,200.00	548.43
Lamaline Leading Lights	281.25	400.00	365.62
Brunette	949.05	1,200.00	1,233.76
Fortune	375.00	450.00	487.50
Grand Bank	281.25	400.00	365.62
Garnish	281.25	400.00	365.62
Long Hr. Point	506.25	650.00	658.12
Belleoram	281.25	400.00	365.62
Harbour Breton	281.25	400.00	365.62
St. Jacques	778.80	1,000.00	1,012.44
Sagona	997.50	1,200.00	1,296.75
Pass Island, Alarm	997.50	1,200.00	1,296.75
Pass Island, Light	585.00	750.00	760.50
Gaultois	281.25	400.00	365.62
Pushthrough	46.87	100.00	60.93
Boxey Point	75.00	100.00	97.50
Penguin Is. W., Light & Alarm	997.50	1,200.00	1,296.75
Ramea	778.80	1,000.00	1,012.44
Boar Island	585.00	750.00	760.50
Ireland Island	826.00	1,000.00	1,073.80
Rse Blanche Point Light	627.30	800.00	815.49
Rose Blanche Alarm	885.00	1,200.00	1,150.50
Bad Neighbour Buoy	93.75	100.00	121.87
Burnt Island	375.00	500.00	487.50
Isle au Morts	375.00	500.00	487.50
Port aux Basques	650.00	850.00	845.00
Channel Hr. Light and Alarm	1,083.37	1,200.00	1,304.00
Codroy Island		250.00
Crabbes	112.50	150.00	146.25
Fishells	112.50	150.00	146.25
Sandy Point Light	475.00	650.00	617.50
Sandy Point Wharf Light
St. George's, Leading Light	196.87	250.00	255.93
Black Duck Brook, Leading L.		250.00
Cape St. George, L. & A.	997.50	1,200.00	1,296.75
Port au Port	585.00	750.00	760.50
Broad Cove Point	93.75	100.00	121.87
Little Port Head	778.80	1,000.00	1,012.44
Frenchman's Head	506.25	650.00	658.12
Eagle Island	93.75	120.00	121.87
Lobster Cove Head	778.80	1,000.00	1,012.44
Woody Point	75.00	100.00	97.50
Cow Head	585.00	750.00	760.50

Kepple Island	506.25	650.00	658.12
Port aux Choix	150.00	200.00	195.00
Assizes Harbour	100.00		130.00
Double Island	778.80	750.00	1,012.44
Domino	585.00	750.00	760.50
Indian Tickle	778.00	750.00	1,012.44
Cape North	585.00	750.00	760.50
Pack's Harbour	585.00	750.00	760.50
Cut Throat	585.00	750.00	760.50
Winsor Harbour	585.00	750.00	760.50
Manuel's Island	585.00	750.00	760.50
Cape Harrigan	585.00	750.00	760.50
Ford's Hr	585.00	750.00	760.50
Kelligrew's Wharf Light	37.50	50.00	48.75
St. George's, Turf Point	28.12	35.00	36.55
St. George's Wharf Light	28.12	35.00	36.55
Brig Bay	18.75
Leading Tickles. Wharf Light	28.12	35.00	36.55
Fredericton	28.12	35.00	36.55
Wesleyville, Wharf Light	46.87	100.00	60.93
Lance au Loup	93.75	120.00	121.87
West St. Modeste	93.75	120.00	121.87
Forteau	37.50	50.00	48.75
Daniel's Harbour	18.75	25.00	24.37
Current Island	46.87	50.00	60.93
Greenspond Leading Light	46.87	50.00	60.93
Joe Batt's Arm, Beacon	46.87	100.00	60.93
Fogo		60.00
Bragg's Island	37.50	50.00	48.75
Salvage Bay	37.50	50.00	48.75
Newell's Island	22.50	25.00	29.25
St. Lawrence Beach	46.87	60.00	60.93
St. Lawrence Wharf Light	45.00	60.00	58.50
Spaniard's Bay Wharf Light		50.00
Pouch Cove	18.75	25.00	24.37
Portugal Cove	46.87	50.00	60.93
Branch	37.50	50.00	48.75
St. Bride's Fog Horn	112.50	150.00	146.25
		$109,501.14	$113,840.56

We will cut out Light-keeping, Labrador, and place Acetylene lights —saving $6500 in salaries.

The bill for maintenance will not be larger in spite of increased cost of supplies as paint and outfit for private use and oil will be reduced 20 per cent.

The bill for Paint will also be reduced as I propose to have the buildings painted every second year instead of annually which is a waste of $10,000.

The vote for lighthouse salaries 1919-20, $113,840; 1920-21, $109,501 —or $4339.00 less than last year's vote.

The said Resolution being read a second time it was moved and seconded that the House concur with the Committee therein and the said Resolutions were agreed to.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on Supply.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress and asked leave to sit again on to-morrow.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on to-morrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Before the passing of Ways and Means I would like to say a word or two. I may say we all expected something good in the Budget when it was brought down as we were promised reduction in taxation. The Government of which I had the honour to be a member, was accused of taxing the fishermen too much. And one of the principle promises made by the present Government to the people of the Colony was that if elected to power reduction in taxation would take place. Now that is one of the promises unfulfilled by the Government. They have not attempted in the Budget before us to reduce the taxation on the fishermen of the Colony. There are a few simple items of no account mentioned in the Budget and the Minister in charge has made no attempt to tell the House and the Country what is the reason why no attempt was made to reduce taxation. When references in the past have been made to the surplus the late Government left we were accused of taxing the fishermen on uneven basis and that we should reduce the taxation and collect only sufficient sum of money to meet the expenditure of the Colony. Here we are to-day asked to pass Ways and Means by the very same men who made this promise to the people of the country and also that everything possible would be done to open up new industries throughout the country. In looking down the manifesto I come across a few of those things promised to the people and on taxation he goes on to say: (Reads Manifesto). To-day we are asked to pass practically the same Budget that was passed in the House last year. Further he says: (Reads section of Manifesto).

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—I may say for the information of the honourable member that in the case of the importation of kerosene oil there is no duty on such that is imported in wooden barrels.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—If duty free in wooden barrels why not in steel barrels? I take it that even if the fishermen paid the tax on the steel barrels they would be better off than buying kerosene oil in wooden barrels and get them duty free. The wooden barrel is going out of use as far as kerosene is concerned because the wastage out of it is more than the duty payable on it, when imported. There is no reason why kerosene in steel barrels should not come in duty free.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—The reason why kerosene is allowed in duty free in wooden barrels is because we felt and thought that if we did not take this course there would be no packages to export cod oil in.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—If you charge the fishermen on the steel barrel and allow the wooden barrel in duty free, then while the wastage from the wooden one is sometimes ten gallons, he gets one hundred per cent in the steel one and while the wastage amounts to more than the duty on the steel one he is paying for the wooden barrel for somebody else's requirements. Do you think you are doing a justifiable thing in allowing these wooden barrels to come in duty free when the inducement is held out to simply have enough of them to meet the demands of the merchant and the planter? The fishermen to-day will take the steel barrels in preference to the wooden ones. In allowing in kerosene in wooden barrels you are not giving the fishermen any privilege but you extend the privilege to the merchant and the planter who will need the barrels. Now what about fishermen's engines as promised in the manifesto of the Prime Minister? There is a tax of 11 per cent on all engines coming in and there is no reason why they should not come in duty free and on the back of that you have the surplus which I left there when I left the Department, namely, two millions of dollars, and now at the end of the fiscal year I presume you must now have at the Bank of Montreal nearly four millions of dollars. Why not relinquish this tax of 11 per cent on all engines imported for the fishery purposes? I would like to hear an explanation of these things before passing Ways and Means. The Prime Minister made all those promises last Fall and some of the people must think he was sincere when he made them. (Reads section of Manifesto). We are told by the Finance Minister that kerosene in wooden barrels is allowed in duty free because the barrels are required for the use of the merchant and the planter. This is a simple inducement to import it in a wooden barrel in preference to a steel barrel. When the wooden package is left to the eye of the sun during this season of the year the depreciation and evaporation is considerable. But take the steel barrel and even if he pays a little more for it, the depreciation is very little, may be one per cent. Then this manifesto goes on to say: (Reads). The only articles named in the Budget as being duty free are as follows: (Reads). I would like to ask the Minister in charge who has benefited by this Manifesto and those articles enumerated as duty free? This Budget is not in keeping with the manifesto. There is nothing pertaining to the fishermen of the Colony. The fishermen of the Colony don't use any agricultural implements. Bark and cutch are about the only things that they use. The whole thing in a nutshell is this, you haven't reduced taxation. You have made no attempt to carry out the manifesto handed to the country by your leader last fall.

Because some member in the Upper House made reference to some irregularities in the management of the Finance Department you have made a change. How are you going to keep the information of that Department from your colleagues? There is no reference whatever to roads and bridges. Here is what the Prime Minister said last fall in his manifesto:

"Newfoundlanders are groaning today under the heavy burden of taxation. A revenue of $9,000,000 is being annually wrung out of a quarter of a million people. In other words, every man, woman, and child in the Island has imposed upon him a per capita tax of $36.00 per year. A reorganization of the public service and a business-like administration of affairs will make a substantial reduction in taxation possible without in any way interfering with Newfoundland's capacity to meet her financial obligations and substantially improve her public services. The dilapidated condition of affairs in Newfoundland is due not to a lack of revenue, but to the orgy of corruption which has been going on for some years, a carnival of squandering, grossest incapacity, and an entire lack of the application of the most elementary principles of business common-sense.

"I propose a complete reorganization of the tariff. Marine and other internal combustion engines used in the fisheries and other industries of the Colony shall be imported duty free. Kerosene and gasolene used for purposes of power in connection with the fisheries and other industries of the Colony, shall be admitted free of duty. The tariff shall be so balanced that every person shall bear some share of the public expense of the Colony, but each person shall bear his share in proportion to his ability to pay. The necessaries of life will bear the minimum of taxation; the luxuries of life the maximum of taxation.

"I propose a reorganization of the method of accounting in connection with Income, Excess Profits, and Death Duties taxation. Under the present system the Minister of Finance has by law access to the private books of account, invoices and memoranda, of every company, business man, schooner owner and fisherman in the Colony. In view of the attack made in the Legislative Council during the past session of the Legislature by a member of the Executive Government, who, in an effort to silence a political opponent attempted to blackmail him by quoting private information appertaining to duty bonds filed many years ago in the Department of Finance and Customs, I am of the opinion that the private affairs of the business men and fishermen of this country should not be open to the inspection of politicians of the blackmailing and unscrupulous class.

"While it is not probable that there will ever again be a man connected with public life in this Colony who would descend to the baseness to which certain politicians descended some few months ago, yet the law should be so changed as to free the merchant and fisherman alike from the thought of the possibility of such a political partisan use being made again of private business information. I consequently propose to inaugurate a system whereby an independent accountant having the same independence and rank as the Auditor General of the Colony shall be put in charge of all matters relating to the Business Profits Tax, Income Tax, Estate Death Duties, and similar returns of a confidential and private nature. That accountant would have the same power of examination of private books and records as the Minister of Finance now has, but this work should be subject to the inspection and control of the Auditor General only and his records would not be available for partisan political use as appears possible at present in view of the incident above referred to.

"I am satisfied that there can be such a readjustment of tariff as will bring in a revenue, in conjunction with the Income Tax and Excess Profits Tax, which will materially lighten the burden of unjust and harsh taxation now bearing upon the people, and provide a sufficient revenue to meet all obligations, develop improved public service, and provide a small annual reserve to be kept for the Colony's purposes and not to be lavishly expended for electioneering purposes as is such a large proportion of the taxation exacted from the people during the past year."

The same old grants are mentioned in the Budget as the year before. Out of that half million dollars allocated last fall considerable work was done. Many bridges and wharves were attended to. We are promised in that manifesto that all this would receive attention, and I can't nd an item in the budget speech referring to road work. There is a reference made in the manifesto to a reorganization of the Public Works Department. I would like to know from the Minister of Public Works if any reorganization has taken place in his department. You haven't adopted anything new, and I take it you are going along in the same old rut as your predecessor. The only thing that we have heard of is the checking in the split department. The business ability of the gentlemen in charge and his staff is known throughout the country to be very high, and no doubt there will be a great change.

Now we will leave that department and go to the department of Agriculture and Mines. I would like for someone to tell me what great changes have taken place there. I noticed an advertisement some time ago by the Minister of Agriculture and Mines regarding returned soldiers and sailors. I would like to know from the Minister of Finance and Customs what number of soldiers and sailors have applied for financial aid.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—None have applied to me so far.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—It means that your energy in that direction so far has been wasted. None of the returned men have applied. If they did apply to the Civil Re-establishment Committee, that Committee would have to get the money from you. I understand that the Civil Re-establishment Committee is under a cloud, and that their resignation is in the hands of the Government.

It was absurd for any man to think that he was going to get any of our returned men to settle down on land around St. John's West. The men who went to war were fishermen, and you can't make successful farmers out of fishermen. Now what have you done for the returned soldier in the budget before the House? The late Government promised that the returned men would be placed on the same footing as the Canadian men. That was carried out up to November last. What have you done? Nobody in this House seems to be responsible for the work of the Militia Department. You have not carried out the promise of your predecessors in this direction. It appears that the object of the present Government is to sail as close to the wind as possible, and have this House close without giving any statement as to what they propose to do for the returned men. Now this is your opportunity to make a statement. Deputations of returned men have waited on the Government from time to time. What do you propose to do about it? I have on my desk now a report headed "The G.W.V.A. Holds an Important Meeting." I take it that this committee of the G.W.V.A. was before the Government with regard to pensions, and that only 20 per cent was granted.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—That is all they asked for.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—This report on the G.W.V.A. meeting goes on to say: (Reads report). What has been done in this direction? Can any gentleman in this House tell me this afternoon. Here is a report of a meeting of the Great War Veterans, setting out what they asked for, and surely some one can give us some information. We have not a man on the Government side of the House who can give us the least bit of information on this matter. This is not good enough, and surely something will be done for those men.

What is the Government policy with regard to agriculture? What are you going to do about it? You must today, sir, find yourself in a very false position. What have you told us in your budget with regard to the agricultural policy? We have been asked to vote some money, and we have been given absolutely no information as to the model farm, how you propose to educate the farmers, or any other information as to how you propose to spend this money. I take it that there are better farms in Newfoundland today than any that the Government can produce. All the people know about this model farm is that it is going to cost them $50,000 this year. It is a burden, which, if they had to choose themselves, they would not carry.

Now as to your program for labor. In his manifesto the Prime Minister makes a great splash about child labor, but nothing has been heard about it here unless it is in the bill which Dr. Barnes is to bring down to-morrow. The idea is a good one, one that has my greatest sympathy, and no time should be lost in doing something in that direction. You haven't made an attempt to carry out the promises that you have made to the electors of St. John's West. You came in here and you forget all the promises. The proof is contained in the budget which you have brought in here during the past few days. Now before I take my seat I want to remind the hon. member of another promise made to St. John's West. You stated in the manifesto that there were three factors that were making the necessaries of life so high in Newfoundland. The import and export rates by the R.N. Co. and other shipping companies, the enormous duties paid on goods imported into the Colony and criminal profiteering.

Reads from Manifesto:

"A very large share of the money expended in the construction and repair of roads and bridges is squandered. This is not due to any dishonesty on the part of Road Boards, Local Councils, or workmen. It is squandered because of the lack of intelligent organization and competent direction and supervision—no sane business man would think of handling Road Construction and Repair by the present methods of the Department of Public Works.

"I propose such a reorganization of that branch of the Department of Public Works which relates to roads and bridges as will put an efficient staff in charge of road construction and repair. The people of the Colony who work on the roads will be very much happier at finding that the work which they do is done under such direction as will make their work of some advantage to the community in which they live. It is the duty of the Government to provide such supervision, information and direction as will bring to the Colony value in good roads for the money expended.

"There are certain sections of the country which require liberal grants overland above the regular grants for the purpose of road construction. The regular grants voted year by year would, if properly expended, put and keep existing roads in good condition, but it is impossible for districts where pioneer road work is required to undertake the construction of new roads and the necessary bridge work without special provision being made therefor by the Legislature. In addition to the present votes for the upkeep and maintenance of existing roads liberal provision must be made for pioneer road and construction work.

"The Department of Public Works requires reorganization also in the matter of the maintenance of public buildings and the purchasing of supplies. This is a large spending department, its accounts representing millions annually, yet there are no modern business methods of accounting, checking, and general supervision. The management and business methods of this large spending department of the people are not as efficient as the business management of a bull's-eye shop. The distribution of public funds in the form of political graft is a scandal; economy, equality and justice are unknown in the placing of orders for supplies for public institutions and contracts for public works. I propose to introduce business principles and methods into this Department of chaos and thereby give satisfaction to the public and save hundreds of thousands of dollars for the Colony."

Now can the Prime Minister or the Minister of Finance tell us what they are doing in that direction before this budget passes. Sugar they tell us has taken another jump and through the bungling of the Food Control Board we have to pay another three or four cents on a pound of sugar. I hope that the Minister of Finance in the absence of the Prime Minister will tell us what is going to be done in this direction. Last week I asked for a copy of the Finance contingencies account and the Minister told me it would take three or four days to prepare it. Here it is, have a look at it, you could do it in five or ten minutes. The reason why they didn't bring it in is because they had dipped down into the treasury and had given Mr. Squires $2500 for his expenses for that little trip to Canada and if I am not sure he has already been paid for this in 1917. I make the statement subject to correction. Mr. Squires was asked to go to Canada in connection with the transfer of some vessels, he took a week to go up there, called on Mr. Ballantyne and was a week returning for this little job he takes the sum of $2500. I believe that he has been paid for that already and I will take that back if that is not true. I am sorry that the Prime Minister is not here, he knows the budget is before the House and he should be here. I would like to ask him if it is true that an order has been sent to the committee for the investigation of the Woodford charges not to expend more than $50.00. In introducing the budget the Minister of Finance stated that next year he would have an estimated revenue of $11,200,000. The Customs revenue will be $7,000,000. He has not told us how he is going to get the rest. I would like to have him figure out to the House how next year we are going to have the estimated revenue of $11,200,000. Down through the debates on the estimates we have practically touched on every item in the budget and have pointed out what is going to happen to the country in the next 12 months. I don't want to take up the time of the House by any lengthy comment on the budget. If the catch of fish this year is going to be down to one and a quarter million quintals and the fishermen only get eight or ten dollars a quintal for their fish then you are going to find yourself on the wrong side of your books. I notice that nothing has been done for the herring fishery. The Government has forgotten that last year we had a two million dollar industry in herring. The lobster fishery is practically a thing of the past. The sealfishery is a blank. Last year's catch was equal to the catch for one steamer a few year's ago. I think that before we close this House the herring fishery should be considered.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES:—This year's catch of herring will be inspected and nothing will be allowed to go out of the Colony without it bears the crown brand upon it. As far as we can do to restore the conditions we will do. There has been a great deal of slackness by buyers in allowing men to hold licenses to pack herring that shouldn't. We cannot cut out the small man and the matter must receive the serious consideration of the Government. It shall not be overlooked and the Marine and Fisheries Department will see that this is done. So far as the sugar situation is concerned I think that the best possible was done, under the circumstances. Take the case of the Union Trading Company. Last December we purchased large lots of sugar, and when the price was fixed by the Food Control Board we had 350 barrels purchased to arrive and which could be sold at 20 or 21 cents a pound. The Board took that and charged us 28½ cents wholesale and 30 cents retail. We stood to lose very considerable, but in the meantime I want to be fair to the Board who acted the fairest way in dealing with the country as a whole. If they had not stepped in we would be paying 38 cents a pound for sugar to-day instead of 30. If we allowed the public to come in and buy what they required it would be just a week or ten days when all the cheap shipment would be consumed. The Board did not take into consideration the interest and storage charged in fixing the price on this sugar and this is what is referred to in the announcement of to-day's papers. Out of the thousand tons of sugar that came in recently we purchased $60,000 worth and must pay the interest and other costs ourselves. Our instructions were if you do not order sugar now, you might not get it in the Fall. We were put in a critical position, owing to having to give up our cheap sugar but I consider nothing better could be done by the Board.

MR. BENNETT:—This country will during the next year experience a very serious disappointment when they become to realize the conditions that exist. It is quite true that during the past years of the war we had big revenues and large surpluses but when the war broke out we didn't have a dollar in the treasury to buy cotton uniforms for the men. We had to go to the Bank of Montreal to obtain a loan. The country at that time was in a deplorable state and that period in the history of the Colony has to be thoroughly known to be appreciated. The Government handled the situation to their own credit and without any financial loss. The crisis came with no great results at first but we were up against the problem of how we were going to finance the country in the days to come. We had to find ways and means to get money for purposes which we never had to look out for before. The present leader of the Opposition was Finance Minister at that time and handled the whole affair to his credit. Death duties were then singled out as a means to secure money. This was the first tax on the estates of those who could afford to pay. It was an unheard of thing for a man to leave anything he had except to his relatives and very often the money found its way into other countries. It was a reasonable action on the part of the Government that when a man had passed away and left an amount of property this country was entitled to a part of it. It was then thought that many of those could well afford to give to the state a portion of the money and land that they had secured from the state.

MR. WALSH:—Before this vote goes thru I would like to have just one other word on behalf of the poor people. I refer to the vote for public charities. I notice that there has been a substantial increase, but I find that no provision has been made for an addition to the funds for the widows and the orphans. I hope that this has not been overlooked and that this is only a mistake. You can't expect us to increase our own salaries and forget the widow and the orphans. The cost of living has gone up by leaps and bounds and the poor widow and orphan can't buy a pair of shoes. Down in my district I have some very poor people to look after and I have pleaded with the Government that they may get some substantial increase, and what applies to my district applies to every other district in the country. There are widows with three and four children trying to live on the miserable sum of $6.00 every three months. That is not sufficient to keep the life in one infant, and they are dependant upon the charity of the neighbors. That we haven't attended to the wants of these poor unfortunate people is not to our credit. You voted yourselves $1000 and you have increased the salaries of the men in the Upper House, men who do not need it. There is no justfication for this, and you take the Honor away from the members of the Upper oHuse when you ask them to accept an increase. Another vote I would like to see increased, and that is the vote for the sick poor. I have them right down in my own district, they pass my door almost daily on the way to the hospital. I have had them at my own house, they having gone around to the hotels there and found that their allowance is too low to give them board. People also suffer very much from the inconvenience they meet with in trains. They are very often compelled to lie on the floors of baggage trains, while stretchers could easily be obtained and placed there for that purpose. If stretchers were provided this would be different.

MR. BENNETT:—I know how the matter was adusted by the Food Control Board, but I question whether events will prove that they were right, because sugar will be cheaper by the end of September next. A friend of mine in Montreal told me that the Newfoundland Government had been buying sugar from a manufacturing concern in Montreal for 25 cents a pound and he can buy it there for 20, though not from the same company. I also know that a large importer in St. John's made a statement not long since that he could import all the sugar he liked between then and the end of the year at 25 cents a pound.

HON. MIN. MARINE AND FISHERIES:—Have you a mesage from Montreal to that effect?

MR. BENNETT:—I got a letter.

HON. MIN. MARINE AND FISHERIES:—Wil you show it to me?

MR. BENNETT:—I will. The writer is a gentleman who has been in New York in connection with this same matter. There is something radically wrong about the whole situation. You, the Government, are contemplating a contingency that will never arise. It is something like the coal situation, it is shrouded in mystery. Somebody is getting a rake off. Probably the profiteers are being shut out by the Government and the effects are being felt.

Most of the sugar here before the Control Board took up the work was imported at 18 1-2 cents a pound and the owners of that sugar were compelled to give it to the Control Board, who sold it at 28 1-2, thus allowing the real owners of it a profit of 5 cents and the Board 5 cents. I say this is an interference with legitimate trade. I dot not know what conclusive evidence they have to expect this extraordinary high price for sugar next fall. If the people of the country, the consumers, have to pay 40 cents a pound, then there is a remedy for it and that is to do without it. I cannot see how the people's interests were protected. They are paying 32 cents for it to-day, and the retailers, I understand, met the other day to raise the price in the city, because they cannot handle it for a profit of a cent and a half a pound, considering the payment of help and the time lost generally in the handling of it. And they are quite justified, I think, in taking this position.

The net result of the whole transaction is that the Control Board are not able to do business in the way that they anticipated. It is not an answer that the Board did not figure on wharfage and storage charges. They must have contemplated this, and if they did'nt, well it's a question of incompetency and incapacity on their part. They should have contemplated and they should have realised that the men who purchased sugar for their retail shops every Monday morning thought that the price for sugar was fixed up to the end of December next. If the price is put on these men they will lose on the transaction. This was the contract entered into between the trade and the Control Board a short time ago. Any attempt to raise the price until the end of December next is a breach of contract and a breach of faith and should not be allowed. Why the price of sugar here is so enormously high that one cannot appreciate it. We all know that it is through shortage of crops that sugar is so scarce. Governments of other countries all over the world are trying to control it and get the price within the range of normal and I believe that before many weeks are over the result will be evident.

Certain allusions were made here this afternoon to the Bell Island ore taxes and to the price of coal. I would like to say that I do not think that the answer of the Minister of Justice yesterday, who spoke on behalf of the Government in relation to this matter is quite satisfactory. We may be faced in this country within the next year or two with the position that many people will want employment and if the other avenues of employment outside the fisheries are not found there will be nothing left for the people to do but to emigrate. The great project set on foot, namely, the Empire Steel Merger, will mean a great deal for the development of this country. I understand that the Directors associated with this company came here to see what the Government were going to do in relation to the export tax on ore. When that tax was first introduced it was intended to make the tax 20c. per ton. Recommendations were made to the Government in office at that time and it was decided to make it 7½c. for ten years. Now we do not want to hamper a new industry surely, and if the tax of 7½c. is too little, the Government having the experience of past Governments, should name the tax to be paid by those companies in the future. The promoters, I understand, have not come to a definite understanding with the Newfoundland Government as to what the proposed tax is going to be. The question of $1 per ton, of course, was merely a statement made by the Hon. Mr. Coaker at one of his Conventions. This amount would be too excessive, because, after all, we do not want to drive capitalists out of the country; we want them to come in, and if this great enterprise is going to develop in the proportions anticipated, and as the great consumers of iron ore will be supplied from this country, well then an enormous industry might develop out of what is now a comparatively small industry. It is an Inter-Empire organization and going to be maintained absolutely within the Empire and every pound of iron ore that comes from Bell Island will be kept within the Empire and the steel made will go towards British ships and to carry on British industries. Therefore, it is the duty of the Government to see to it that we ought not jeopardize our chances, but to get the best advantages we can. I throw out the suggestion that when the contract with this company is being made that provision be made for a minimum wage for miners working in the Bell Island mines. I think this is an opportunity that we have of providing for our miners for the future so that they will get sufficient for their work to keep them in comfort. There might be a thousand men there today, whereas if this enterprise progresses there will be three or four thousand men there within the next few years. It is the one bright ray of hope I see for the employment of our people, and it might have the effect of putting the hands of the clock back if the Government do not take this matter up promptly and come to an agreement regarding an enterprise that means so much for the future prosperity of this country. If the people who got to get the capital in Great Britain for this enterprise and they want to assess what tax they will have to pay to the Newfoundland Government it will put the whole project back for a few years, or perhaps destroy it altogether, if they have to wait unnecessarily for the answer. I am afraid that we do not know what the resources of this country really are. Our resources have been practically untouched and we have done hardly anything to find out what we have. We never made an honest or sincere effort to find out what is in the interior of this country. It's quite true that we developed a few mines around the sea-coast and every one of them were found to be rich in value. Well if it's true of those mines around the sea-coast, what of our vast interior trodden only by the fox, caribou and other wild animals and of which we know nothing. And I would suggest that in the appointment of a Geological Surveyor, as provided for in the Estimates at $5,000 a year, that the Government make it $10,000 and see that they get the best possible expert, the best man procurable in the United States, Great Britain or Canada, but preferably Canada or Great Britain. Give him a staff to go over this country and let him find out what we have, because it's the opinion of many eminent geologists that this country is abounding in minerals and that it only needs a scientist to make an intelligent search to find out where they lay. It would be money well spent and money that would eventually come back to the country a thousand fold. An instance of this is what Bell Island has done for Newfoundland and for Conception Bay in particular. If Bell Island were taken from Conception Bay it would be a place for everyone to leave. It's the backbone of the five or six districts surrounding that Island; and if it's true of Bell Island, it is equally true of a dozen or more places thruout this country. We have coal areas opened up the past two years but there has been nothing done in a tangible way during all that period to expect any development of any commercial value. It would be a bright day for Newfoundland if we had our coal areas developed. It would make us independent for the working of our other industries, for the development of our mines as well as give an enormous amount of emplyoment to our people. We must not pay all attention to the fisheries of this country. I quite agree with the policy that the fisheries will be our mainstay for many years to come, but we got to grow and to try and get more for the people. The Estimates, as tabled, are not Over-Estimates for the requirements of the people. We cannot have too much for the people of this country. The fisheries is not an industry to attract outsiders, because they are not trained in it as they are in other industries and the sooner we can open other industries by which to attract outside capitalists the sooner we will be able to paddle our own canoe and able to maintain our independence as well as that of our children. If our fisheries fail we become helpless, because all our eggs are in the one basket, so to speak, and the consequence is that we become financially bankrupt, lose our independence and have to look to other means for subsistence. I do not contemplate any immediate danger of such a situation, but it may come quicker than we anticipate, and through stress of circumstances it may transpire in the not far distant future that we will wake up some fine morning and find the bottom gone out of the country with nothing but disaster and ruin staring us in the face. This can be obviated by launching on a policy of looking after the development of our other resources, because there is no other part of the British Empire that has greater resources and with greater possibilities than this old Colony of ours. I therefore hasten to express my disappointment that the Finance Minister should have thought fit to come in with such a presentation to the people of the country to fulfil a promise that was so well used with far-reaching affect as the reduction of taxation and the removal of the burdens from the taxpayers; you come in with a paltry, flimsy and contemptible document to wring another ten million dollars out of the people during the coming year.

MR. HIGGINS:—I do not intend to delay the House to any length. Just a few words I would like to say and I say them because of the principle that has always been adopted in the House that the Budget happens to be one of the occasions when the aspects of the Government's policy are brought forth and an occasion which affords an opportunity for commenting on various matters, as well as the tabling of the Estimates, the Budget and particularly the passing of the Ways and Means which form the last link in the trio representing public affairs in this country. This is an occasion on whch the community at large will look forward as to whether or not the Government's policy is to be realized and this is an occasion on which we are able to deliberate as to the real form and the aspect of our legislation as far as it concerns the public at large. This voting of Ways and Means, the passing of this vote is alone of consequence to the country. . It is easy enough to come in here and agree on the Estimates and decide as to the increases to be gfanted, but the thing is how this affects men outside and for which we are legally and morally responsible and that is the method adopted to collect that expendiure. It is easy for us to be here as an Opposition and either criticise or support the Government in coming in here and bringing down the Estimates as to what constitutes the public expenditure, and it is easy for the Government to vote all kinds of salaries for all sorts of reasons, and while it is very gratifying to have substantial increases voted all in this House, which are abnormal increases, but the man who has to pay the piper is one who is now concerned, and now as we have come to the time when we went into Ways and Means as to the method by which this taxation is to be levied and we have got to give serious thought as to how this paying is to be done under the circumstances. I recognize the principle and at the outset wish to say that so far as I am concerned I subscribe to the idea entirely, that this is a new Government and this is it's first Budget Speech, and as this is the Minister's first presentation of Ways and Means he is of necessity hampered, because he cannot be expected to be held responsible for what has happened for the year reviewed, nor can he be fairly held accountable for the balance of the year into which we have just entered and which had not come into review at the time the Budget Speech was made. But there is a period for which the Government will be directly responsible and that is the period which forms the third portion of the financial year and which ends June 30th, 1921, and as to that I wish to say a word. We do not blame the present Government for the Ways and Means for the payment of expenses of last year, or do I intend to find fault with the Government for considering Ways and Means for covering expenses, but I do say that some of the enormous duties and burdens of the Administrtation of the day is the undertaking of the responsibility of the Ways and Means for defraying expenses for the year upon which we are now just embarking, and unfortunately I have to say that the Government is not very happy as to the manner of its first levy upon the public, its first charge upon the Colony, its undertaking to collect the amount required to cover the Estimates which the Government has brought in. I have no fault to find with the members on the opposite side agreeing with the Government upon the Estimates brough in here, or for their not registering their objection to the methods of taxation necessary to be levied to meet these Estimates, but the Government cannot escape responsibility now placed upon them. There are two positions to which I propose to say a word. Firstly, as to the Estimates just practically terminated, and secondly to the method of paying this estimated amount of expenditure. Now the Finance Minister in his Budget Speech undertook to say that the extravagance of the late Government was mainly responsible for the increased expenditure, that surplus got down to $600,000 by June, 1920, and I think he is undertaking something unfortunate for himself, as I hope to be able to show in a moment, in becoming that absolute deciding factor as to the manner in which the revenue was lately expended and by inference of course takes unto himself the responsibility of being expected to sugegst improvements for his term of office upon which he is now embarking. There are a couple of paragraphs I wish to refer to. I know there are certain elements of the Government who will forget this serious business policy, but this is not cheap newspaper clap-trap, and who will forget that is the wording of a paragraph or two in the Manifesto more or less, and who will forget that the Minister has fallen into language which has been used on previous occasions if you will bring your minds back to the speech of the leader of the Government when he went to the country a little while ago, and I venture to say that some of these paragraphs are copied from that speech. And in spite of this we are given to understand that this is the Budget Speech. Just listen to this (reads.) Now listen to the deductions made from this by the delightful financial Speech (reads). Now listen to this. You will remember in this connection the poor Minister of Marine and Fish has got to hold his tongue while these things are being said. Even if he is a dictator, I do not think in making this Budget Speech he could manufacture this kind of stuff because he is unfortunately in the position of being a member of the Government which is hereby assailed and it is his Government that did what this speaks of when that Administration was in office twelve months ago. Still the Finance Minister is coming in here and on behalf of the Government is seriously trying to impress us that it is a Reform Government, and that it will live up to it's name and under the guise of a lot of words draws attention to other people's misdeeds, forgetting unfortunately that the people are concerned not how much we talk about the misdeeds of other men or how much we repeat the story about grafters and boodlers which story is now becoming hackneyed, but what we do and will do ourselves, and the serious phase comes when we have to face back to those people in our districts who will tell us we are fed up with your talking about bye-gones and we are not concerned what other men did not do for us and what they did do for themselves, and we want to know what have you done for us and not what you have done for yourselves. We find that for those whom we represent we have done nothing but as far as we are concerned we like little men voted our salaries five times over, increased the ministerial pay considerably as well as the indemnity of those sitting in the Upper House and unfortunately we have followed the example of the grafters who proceeded us, but with the difference that the late Government impressed their bona fides upon the public by laying their cards upon the table.

It is often suggested that you need not be afraid of a man who comes along and says he is going to hit you in the face, or a pickpocket who tells you he is going to pick your pockets. But we have to take care of the new class. We have to look out for the Finance Minister's next budget. We find already that things are not as they seem. The Advocate use to have a whole column telling where the money goes. Who knows but that we will have a similar column showing where the money goes? I can tell you now where most of it is going. A fair share of it is going to be taken up by yourselves and your supporters. I never thought that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries would be found in that class. We hoped that the day had come when we would have real economy. As far as this Government was concerned the greatest frugality was going to be exercised. But what has really occurred? We have only stopped increasing at the smallest things. We have voted anew in quarters where it was not required. The Minister stated in his opening paragraph:

Then look at another paragraph in the same address: "To provide for the obligations

That is sensible, proper and right, but to come along in another paragraph and say that fluctations don't count, don't affect the earnings of our people, is but another instance that an attempt was made to make as good showing as possible. Does the Minister mean to suggest that if the earning power isn't so much the reserve will not be effected? Such would be an economist of the first order. But there can be no mincing matters on one point,—the attitude we are taking is the attitude of the people in general. Our view point is supposed to represent the view point of the public at large. The Government have got to admit our position, that to seriously say that there is any tariff reform in the program before us is saying too much to swallow. We heard last fall that this new Government was going to change all the conditions. A change can come about in only two ways,—you have got to have a tariff readjustment. It is pathetic to read that story, that big long paragraph in the Prime Minister's manifesto, wept over by the Prime Minister and his colleagues, and responded to with sobs by the Union members, that the heart's blood was wrung out of the people with taxation. To use the words of the Prime Minister "the people are groaning under the burden of taxation." We were told that there were only a quarter million people in the Island. We have the same quarter million people to-day, and no more. Now here is the serious proposal. I ask the Finance Minister if motor engines are coming in duty free, and he replies that they are not. But Bologna sausages are coming in duty free, and sausage skins are coming in duty free. You ought to import one big skin and stuff into it the whole crowd who had anything to do with compiling this unsavory budget. Is gasolene coming in duty free? No, it is not. What are the conditions under which kerosene is coming in duty free? We are told by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries that the reason for that is so that we will have wooden packages for the purpose of exporting cod oil. But, if we are to believe the Minister, it is of dubious worth to the fishermen because of the leakage. Instead of making a reduction in that form it would have been much better to grant a bonus for making packages for the exportation of cod oil. That would have some effect in reducing the high cost of living.

The Minister says in his budget speech: "The necessities of life will have the minimum of taxation, and the luxuries the maximum of taxation." Bologna sausage will have the minimum of taxation. We will have to call this the Bologna Sausage Government, and the Minister of Finance and Customs the Bologna Sausage Minister. Let all hands young and old go out and eat Bologna sausages and sausage skins. We are seriously told by the Finance Minister that we are going to have sausage skins free of duty. My own experience with sausages is to the effect that sausages all depend upon the maker. I hesitate lately to eat sausages for the reason that there is a sausage meat put up and coming here that is absolutely unfit for human consumption. It contains all kinds of rubbish; but that is the stuff that the people are going to get in with the minimum of taxation. Heretofore the Germans were known to be the only sausage eaters, but now Newfoundlanders are going to be the only sausage eaters. Mr. Abbott will be coming back a year from now with a German face and a sausage stomach. It is rumored around town that the Minister of Finance likes sausages. I was wondering what the reason was for his German face. Then there is Mr. Foote, and Mr. Cave, and Mr. Winsor, they all look like good sasage eaters. I don't believe that Mr. Jennings likes them. I knew, sir, that you wouldn't eat that vile stuff. My friend, Mr. Guppy, is not here. I would like to know what he has to say about Bologna sausages. We can't eat agricultural implements, books, or cattle feed, and the funny thing about the whole situation is that the only thing used as human food on the free list is Bologna sausages. That is what the Government calls placing the burden of taxation on the shoulders where it belongs. Next session we will come in and ask the Finance Minister to whom were all the sausages sent. If I had my way the man who would eat Bologna sausages would be shot. That is what the Government is going to call tariff readjustment. It would be better for the Minister and the Government to say we can't do anything, and all that talk we had during election time about tariff readjustment was only election talk to deceive the voters. If the Government were honest that is what they would say. Now that the election is over and even Mr. Cave is back that kind of thing comes on the one hand, and on the other hand there is no reference whatever as to what is going to be done with the surplus. We are told what Mr. Hoover says, and the outlook of the President of the Bank of Montreal, but there is not a word as to the handling of the railroad situation. Everybody knows that some of the surplus will have to be devoted for that purpose, or a year from now the whole thing will be blown to pieces.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Chairman, before the political curtain rings down on the closing scene of the first act of the tragedy being staged by the Bologna Sausage Government, I wish to have a word with regard to the financial program of the gentleman who has assumed the leading role. This tragedy was begun last August when the present Prime Minister announced his intention to lead a party in the political field, and I am sorry that he is not in the House to-night. In the introductory paragraph of his manifesto to the people he said amongst other things, "In 1917 I visited Canada in the interest of the National Government and my trip was of great value." Of course it was. It was an arrangement of great value to the gentleman who made the trip. I was away at the time and I had no knowledge of the fact that this patriot had received the sum of $2,500 as payment for his services until the Leader of the Opposition, Sir Michael Cashin, informed us of it this evening, and indeed we have reason to believe that this has not been all that he received in connection with that trip. What I do not understand is why, for work done in 1917, he should have waited until 1920 for payment. Now sir, I remember men who made trips abroad that kept them away from their business and from their private affairs for months, but they did not receive anything like this amount paid to the Hon. R. A. Squires. Mr. Bennett made a much more extended trip which cost the Colony only $1,000 and every reasonable minded man will admit that he was put to considerably greater expense than was the Prime Minister. Sir William Lloyd visited England on the occasion of the Imperial Conference and he did not get anything like what Mr. Squires received in the instance we are now discussing. I wouldn't mind so much but for the fact that this is the same man who denounced graft so strongly and who was going to reform the country when he attained power. Well, if this is reform, I hope we will not see any more of it. He goes on in this document with what to my mind was an attractive program of the great things he was going to do, and I do not blame the people for being deceived by it, but just let us turn the search light on it for a moment, or as my friend Mr. Devine used to say, let us put it on the operating table and apply the dissecting knife. The first matter dealt with is Public Health, a very important question and one that required readjustment. Regarding this, the Prime Minister pointed out the need for hospital extention. He knew well enough what the people wanted and what they would therefore most readily fall for, but he had no intention of following out this program because if he did, we would not be here to-day voting amounts the expenditure of which was never forecasted in his manifesto while the very first matter to be found on its pages was being absolutely ignored. There is not one district clear of St. John's sufficiently supplied with hospital accommodation and as I informed this House only a short time ago, there were then eight hundred applications in from persons waiting to get admittance to the General Hospital, and surely this must have been known to the leader of the Government and to his Executive yet, knowing it, they come in here and vote money for themselves and every other unnecessary purpose that one could think of and these unfortunate people who were deceived by their flowery promises are relegated to the background in a matter which to them was and is of the first importance.

The second item of importance in this program, or one that was believed to be second in importance was that of homes for working men, and in this at least the Government has done something, they have found positions for some of the men identified with the project but the people who required most and who were led to expect most got absolutely nothing. The Government put this off by means of the bill which we had before the House a few days ago and which means nothing to the solving of the housing problem and nothing will be heard of this matter till some future date when it is wanted again for political purposes.

Another matter dealt with is Public Charities and right here I want to congratulate the writer of that manifesto on knowing so well the subjects that would most strongly appeal to the people. Nothing is done however, and the widow and orphan are left to paddle their own canoe. Perhaps when the curtain is about to ring down on the final scene of the last act of this tragedy, the Government will come in here, and as a death bed repentance, will ask for a substantial vote for this purpose so that they may catch the votes of the friends of those then remaining but the maintenance of those unfortunate people is not considered in the meantime. I think, sir, that it is nothing to the credit of those who sanctioned the increases in their own salaries while to the dependants of those who have contributed in the largest measure to the wealth of this country they give nothing. The answer to it is that the widow has no vote nor has the orphan a vote and for that reason we are prepared to ignore them. The next matter is tuberculosis. What has been done in this? True some provision is being made to deal with it in the city, and anyone who has friends in high places may have special provision made but in several sections of the country there are hundreds suffering from this dread disease for whom there is nothing done. If you were to increase the proposed expenditure for this purpose by five hundred per cent, there is not a man on this side of the House who would raise an objection. As things stand at present, Dr. Rendell has not the means at his disposal for dealing adequately with this vital matter and the Government is doing nothing to help him in any way. Substantial votes have been made to trade and commerce, education, marine and fisheries and I must say I have not as yet lot all confidence in the gentleman who is the incumbent of that office and as in the Fish Regulations, I am prepared to give him a fair chance till the House meets again. If during the intervening time he lives up to his promises in the interests of the people, I will be prepared to get up in my place in this House and do him full justice and if on the contrary he fails to do his duty in this respect I will not hesitate to denounce him.

And now we come to taxation, which formed one of the chief planks in the platform of the leader of the Government when he went to the country, and which has been so cleverly and humorously dealt with by the member for St. John's East, Mr. Higgins. I think I can assure the Minister of Finance and Customs that his budget is, without exception, the most disappointing document ever delivered to the people of this country. You have reduced the taxes on manures, printing paper, sand and clay and on sausages. I also noticed that you have reduced the two dollars which you collected last year on wheat. Now Mr. Chairman, instead of reducing the burden which the Prime Minister in his manifesto said was bearing on the poor people who toil from morn till night this is what you have to offer. I quite agree with the statement that the burden bears heavily on the poor people and I now want to assure the Prime Minister that the poor people are not prepared to swallow this. Instead of decreasing the cost of living you have added another $10.00 per head more than they had to pay in 1919 through the increased cost of living brought about by the reform party. The manifesto of the Prime Minister told of the horrible conditions under which labour was existing in Newfoundland; now what do we find in the Government programme in regard to this subject. They spoke of a department of labour but in replying to a question asked the Prime Minister told us that there was going to be no such department created. It was not thought of sufficient importance. Last fall the present government party cried down bitter tears because of the conditions existing among the labouring classes of this country. It was a very good vote catcher but like all other promises that they have made it remains a vote catcher and nothing has been done to improve the conditions. When labour organized in the west end so as to cause a split vote and allow the election of the Prime Minister and his colleagues the extent of the interest shown by the present government was such as to allow the appointment of one of the candidates in a civil department and no doubt the recompensation of the others. This kind of stuff won't work any more. The working classes of this country are not prepared to be hoodwinked and fooled by the few at the expense of the many. On the strength of all this the Prime Minister is elected and comes in here and votes himself many thousands of dollars and if the Labrador boundary question is going to be probed by him for the next two years at $2500 a week you can figure out what he will get. If he holds that office for the next four years he will be worth $100,000 easily. I regret that the Prime Minister is not in the House to-night, I don't want him to come in here to-morrow and say that I was taking advantage of his absence to expose him. He should be here to give an account of his stewardship. I don't care who it is that does wrong I am prepared to expose him. But really it is only waste of energy and valuable time to try and induce the government to make an honest attempt to fulfill the pledges handed out to the people last fall. I believe that the personnel of the government never intend to present themselves to the country again. They are making hay while the sun shines. The sun is shining now but the storm will very soon burst. The ministers and members of this House who have heard the many pleas that I have placed forward time and again for the widows and orphans must never intend to go back to seek re-election again.

In reference to the high cost of living I notice that the government are handling it in a practical way and in a way that the merchant is making fortunes at the expense of the poor. The clerk who works for the monthly wage is hit the very hardest; the man who works for the day's pay, the stipulated amount. The profiteer who is flourishing to-day on Water Street and flourished during the war is flourishing to-day to a far greater extent and the legislation you have asked us to pass is that connection is just as much a farce as the housing problem. These men have nothing to fear from the present administration. You have said to yourselves we will make the taxpayer, the farmer and the fisherman pay his share but we won't touch or interfere with the profiteers, because they have said if you don't interfere with us we won't interfere with you. As sure as the sun rises to-morrow morning the people of this country will soon have their eyes open to the fact and they will soon be asking what is doing. Only the Hand of Providence can save us from bankruptcy. If there's going to be a bad fishery this year where are we going to find ourselves. The clergy of Canada have publicly denounced from the pulpit the criminal scandal of increasing the stipends of the members of the House at Ottawa at the expense of the best blood of the country. Some say that we are very glad to get ours. We might be glad under normal conditions but I am not glad to receive mine under the present conditions. Now what is being done for the men whom you have talked about in the manifesto as "Our Boys." They were our boys when they were wanted to vote but they are not our boys now, they are "these fellows." I wouldn't like to predict what would happen in this country if Great Britain had to go to war to-morrow in defense of the same freedom and the same justice that they responded to in 1914. I do not think that the same rally to the flag would be repeated in 1920 because of the criminal neglect of the present administration. Practically all the positions that have been filled since the government have come into power have been filled by party camp followers.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—That's not true.

MR. WALSH:—It is true, and I can prove it. Is the secretary to the Finance Minister a returned soldier? Is the secretary to the Minister of Fisheries a returned soldier? Ah no, they are like scores of other political heelers. I can name many of my own constituents who have returned from the war maimed for the balance of their lives; some applied for positions and were turned down, while new positions were created for political trumpeters. One, an ex-R.N.R., who was here when peace was proclaimed after spending four years on active service and who applied for a position and was refused and who is to-day in the United States. His last words to me on leaving here were "If we get a repetition of 1914 you will have to look somewhere else for men to man the ships. Now I don't say that in any spirit of being unpatriotic. I have been accused of not having done my duty in the recruiting campaign. It is true that in 1917 the Chairman of the Patriotic Committee asked me to go round Placentia Bay on a recruiting trip and not considering the matter rightly I said that I would go but after consideration I didn't go.

MR. FOX:—In days gone by, particularly during the general election campaign last, I have heard the expression "Hunnish methods" as applied to the tactics of the present Government for unduly criticising the present Opposition who were then the Government. Now the action of the new Reform Government is not alone Hunnish, but the members thereof Huns and Germans for their deliberate attempt to Germanize Newfoundland. They have attempted to foist Germar food on the people of this country and turn us into sausage eaters. But in this they think they have not gone far enough to complete the diet table, because the Germans give their people sausages and beer, but this Government says to the people of Newfoundland, "We are going to give you sausages but we are not going to give you any beer." They started out to give us free sausage, but they took jolly good care that their loud-mouthed and much looked forward to promise concerning prohibition would not be fulfilled. Here we have in Newfoundland the majority of the electorate expectantly waiting for the Government, which was returned to power and won its election in a large measure by its promise to reform prohibition, to do some thing in this connection. But, unfortunately, the Government has not the courage of its convictions to bring down this present session a bill replacing that highly indecent, unjust and reprehensible Act, known as the Prohibition Law. Words are not strong enough to condemn the present measure in existence. I think that the Government is negligent and derelict in their duty on behalf of the people, because one of the principal promises that they were determined to carry out when they went to the country last Fall was to remedy this intolerable state of affairs, under the present Prohibition Act. Why the whole thing is a sham from start to finish. You stated that you were going to attempt to save the people and to save the half hundred men who had not sufficient control of their appetites. I venture the assertion to-night that the very men, with few exceptions, who set out to bring about Prohibition are the very persons who have been making a regular bonanza out of that Act financially as well as being in a position to get all the liquor they want to consume themselves. We have decent respectacle citizens suffering to-night and by the exercise of their own free will, because they are denied the privilege that a free living citizen is entitled to And even my good friend the hon. member for Placentia intimated that he believed that the would be Premier who compiled that Manifesto was sincere. No, sincerity is not made of that stuff. I ask this House and this country to-night what evidence has the Leader of the Government given of his protestations and promises of Reform last year. Prohibition, as at present carried out, is a farce and a sham and a iniquitous measure and I expected that the new Government would not be in office long before this evil thing would be killed for ever in this Newfoundland of ours. We should give the decent citizen the right to exercise his free right and his free will. This country thinking that the Government of the day were sincere in the promise that they made last Fall in this respect, went to work and four weeks ago sent a petition to this House, signed by twenty thousand of the free men of this Island, but the Government takes no notice of that. Well, as a result, we have to-night a disgraceful conditions of affairs going on, which the Government, though its Prime Minister promised to remedy, and Newfoundland, especially St. John's is being turned into a veritable dope centre. And the Government are largely to blame at present for allowing this to continue as it is by their inaction to exercise their powers of control, and any body of men who will complacently look on and allow our manhood to become degenerates are not fit to be called a Government. I cannot protest too strongly against this iniquitous measure; not alone is it wrong on principle, but it is heinous in the effect that it is having upon the people. You have succeeded in closing the bars, I admit; you have succeeded in putting into an early grave people who needed liquors for medical purposes and you have succeeded in putting thousands of people in the town that I was born in into degenerates. You have not the courage to tell the people that this iniquitous measure is wrong and admit that it is wrong. No wonder that you have got an extension on your Lunatic Asylum and mark my words that if you allow this condition to continue much longer that you will have to build so many asylums that it will be found that the general revenue of the Colony will be insufficient to keep up. Ask Dr. Campbell, the late colleague of the Prime Minister and the Finance Minister, what the effect of dope is upon the human system and the human brain. So degenerating has the dope habit become in our midst that I have seen, in my experience around the Magistrate's Court, cases in which men refused a drink of decent liquor for a drink of dope stuff. And the fault of all that lies at the doors of the present administration.

Now who wants Bologna sausage without beer, as Mr. Higgins said. As a matter of fact one would want something to drink as a chaser after using such an inferior article of diet as Bologna sausage. Vanilla will not take away the disgusting taste. You may laugh, but this country is facing a serious position when it is saddled by an Act which the people do not want and the Government know it, and still the Government did its work best on the evil tenor of its way. In protesting against this iniquitous measure I do not reflect upon the gentlemen who were its creators and who started the Prohibition movement in this country, because I believe that they had a sincere desire to remedy the conditions that then existed, but I say that most of them gentlemen never anticipated an unfair measure as this. Italked this matter over with the most ardent prohibition people and they were one with me on this point. The Minister of Finance talks about the preservation of our forest wealth and backs up his statements by lengthy quotations from gentlemen eminently qualified to talk. I will quote for the information of the House the exact words used by the Minister in his Budget in dealing with this matter. (Reads quotation).

Three hundred million dollars is stated as the potential earning power for the labourers of this Dominion and yet the Government vote the paltry sum of $20,000 for fire patrol, which would a little more than pay the salary of a competent man to look after this class of work. During the last six weeks we had numerous forest fires all round the country that did damage to the extent of some hundreds of thousands of dollars. This destruction was caused in a large measure by the negligence of the Government who comes along with this hypocritical statement about the potential earning power of our labourers. This rosy promise to our labourers by the Government ddi its work best on the eve of the election. What other countries would do, realizing, as we should, what a magnificent asset it is to have such a vast forest of resources, is to set out systematically and patrol that country and not depend upon a half dozen fire wardens to go over a few hundred miles and not depend upon rain to quench fires when they start.

We cannot hope to derive the proper income if the prices go down. On the question of expenditure you are not taking into account the loss Newfoundland is going to suffer on the one hundred thousand quintals of fish unsold in European markets. We have been told that there are two hundred thousand quintals of fish unsold here and in the European markets and on the authority of a competent person as to the trade of the Colony I can say and I believe that the country is going to suffer and the price of fish will be $6.00 per quintal. What amount is there on the loss of fish shipped since last November? On the competent authority of this gentleman, I am assured that the loss to Newfoundland will not be less than one half million dollars on fish shipped since last November. Have you ben taking into account that deficit? Have you taken into account the deficit on salt? The Government paraded before the country, before the electors of the Dominion, saying they were going to take off their shoulders the present burden, or to use their own phraseology, "the laborers of the country would have their taxation lessened by $50,000." If salt is to be imported and distributed to the people at a loss, of course, you are not going to take the credit for this, for you are merely robbing Peter to pay Paul. Every cent of that $50,000 will be paid by every mother's son of us in Newfoundland. If I am an employee and I rob my employer of $50,000 I am responsible for it. You cannot take the credit of a loss of that sum because it is paid to the fisherman. In every phase of public life when the salt situation was critical in the past it was dealt with with foresight, and if this had been done during this year Newfoundland need not suffer this loss of $50,000, and instead of taking credit for that magnificent act of public charity you ought to hang your heads in shame. It is amazing that such incompetence and incapacity should be displayed on your part. And I noticed in going over the manifesto of the leader of the House a lot of talk about the public charity to be shown to the people of ewfoundland. But as far as I can see you have been charitably disposed to put your charitable hands upon your charitable hearts any pay $28,000 to yourselves. This is the public charity of the so-called Liberal Reform Government in advancing to protect ourselves and that is the extent of that great big talked-of charity. You have not done one cent's worth of good to the poor worn-out fishermen of the country the men who spent the best part of their lives and who cannot work now. How can they exist on $150 per year? But here today you are advancing the ministerial pay four hundred per cent. And then you talk of the largeness of heart and the spirit of public charity. In the early part of this session when we were only having five o'clock conversations with you gentlemen, when we were merely exchanging pleasantries, you accused us of holding up the proceedings of this House. If any of us on this side get up and talk about vital matters, the gentlemen on the other side twitch like hens on hot bricks. Meet a member of the other side and he will tell you he is home-sick and wishes to get there to attend to his business; he will say that he cannot remain here for five weeks while the fish season is on and that he never heard such talk as came from the Opposition benches for the past five weeks, and then suddenly the gentlemen opposite are gifted with the valuable gift of appreciation. If after all they recognize that we were learned and were throwing pearls of wisdom at their feet and they were willing to sit more contentedly and more attentive to the doings of the House, and perhaps they may wonder if there is something else the others take notice of and we do not at any rate it suddenly dawned on them like a flash and the news is heralded to everyone that their sessional pay is one thousand dollars. Now we are content to remain four months because we nipped the public treasury and advanced ourselves what the leader of the House would call public charity. I for one protest against being paid to come here to perform a public duty. I regard it as an honor and a privilege to be sent here by the people of the district I have the honor to represent, and I regard it as a direct insult to come in here in an attempt to protect the interests of the people dole us out some dirty dollars by the way of solatium. You thereby place the Legislature of Newfoundland in the unenviable position of paying its members and then over-paying them for doing their duty. This duty should be an honor for them to perform. Take that tweney-eight thousand dollars which the members of the House of Assembly aren't entitled to, and give it to the orphans and widows and worn-out fishermen and distribute the money amongt the men who died and bled for you. If you had done this I would take off my hat to you for displaying such a mangnificence of spirit, but instead you have denied those objects of public charity and you have gratuitously given yourselves the money and you have turned your backs upon the people who look to you for the upholding of their rights, and you have gone far from handling matters on a moral scale. The whole thing is a scandal from beginning to end. You have been hypocritical, as you have built your plans upon the shifting sands. You cannot tell me that any good is coming from the Government we have to-day. The present Government has discarded and overlooked all that is sacred in the Administration that has at heart the promotion and safeguard of the interests of those whom it is in duty bound to protect. The only thing the Administration of the day can boast of is the protection of their own interests first. I am surprised. I did really expect better. I will not be surprised if the people of Newfoundland will wake up and turn out of office the Government who were presumed to be all business ability and who were substituted for a bunch of grafters, but after all they substituted a group of novices, whose only interest at heart is self.

MR. MacDONNELL:—During' yesterday's debate I ventured to make some comment and the Minister of Finance told me I was no business man. Still the Minister of Marine and Fisheries said yesterday that the Trading Company was to be recouped by the Food Control Board for some loss owing to the lack of business knowledge and action in reference to the importation of sugar. I presume the Minister of Marine and Fisheries is a good business man. And he is the dominating spirit in this Government all the good business instinct has permeated every branch of the Government I suppose. But still since the Government has taken office that idea of good busines has not been adopted as regards the promises made the people of Newfoundland last Fall. If they have fulfilled the promises contained in the manifesto of the leader of the House they have shown no proof of it. They have not in any way justified the repose of the peoples confidence and I cannot but believe he was sincere when he made those promises. Those things were held up in that manifesto, I am afraid, with some indifference which has characterized the doings of the present Administration, and we have been justified in our criticism that they have been very prominent with their promises because of the absence of the evidence of performance. I do not preach myself to be a political economist in all things, although the Minister is one, yet I have studied the subject for four years. They have four years ahead of them, but I think they will prove experts in promising but failures in practice. You were talking about how the late Government were extravagant during their period of control and they were continually described as a bunch of grafters that will never be worse in this country, and that the Government was not of the people by the people and for the people, but it was a Government that stood for tyranny and despotism. The present Government was not going to fall into the ruts of its predecessors, but already they have fallen and they find themselves in the mire which a short time ago they simply loathed. This Government was going to lighten the burdens of the people, but we find the free entry list comes to a total sum of $66,000 and that is the reduction of taxation we were promised. If this is the extent of the reduction of taxation every person in this country is saved yearly 27 cents. Now against this we have an increase of taxation of two million dollars, which means that every person in this country is taxed more than ever—about eight dollars per head. So instead of having a lessening of the taxation we have been given an increase to the extent of $7.73 for every man, woman and child in the country, and this is how they have fulfilled their promises to lighten the load on every man, I want to know why this is and why in face of all the talk of the leader of the Government, motor engines for the use of the fishermen are not included in this list, and why do they make the promise that motor engines for the use of the fishermen will come in duty free as soon as they came to power? Why is it not done? What has the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to say with regard to this? If that is the idea of the Government I think they are starting on the paid to put the engine for the use of the fishermen on the free list. They also promised that gasolene for use in these engines should also come in numerous promises unfulfilled. Can anyone explain to us the reason of it all? Do you want to discourage the general success of the fisheries of this country while time is given to work out the salvation of some pet plan? That is the only reason or excuse. The duty of twenty cents on split herring is to be taken off. Well might the Government take this off as it was a War Tax. The best price now obtainable over in St. George's for herring is $3.50 per barrel, and by the time you figure out the cost of salt and the package very little is left, and still we are forced to consider the Regulations brought in by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries and he is prepared to take the chance I hope they will be justifiable. The herring fishery has amounted to one million dollars and still it is not considered to be of any importance whatever. Nothing has been done to keep the herring industry up. Well might the Government take twenty cents off the Export Duty. I suppose there are no big followers to pack split herring. We heard during the discussion by Mr. Fox the relation by him of a new story. I am wondering if there is any collusion between Mr. Fox and the Minist er of Fisheries. And the reason is this: There has been on the agenda for a number of days a Bill entitled "The Keeping of Dogs," and I wonder if the Minister brought in that Act to have all the skins after canning up all the dogs of the country. I know that in some foreign countries there are gratings and when the dog steps on it he disappears. Mr. Hibbs the other day said he wanted our photos for some plan, but I think he ought really get our photos and put them on all the jam crocks and call the whole thing the Jam Crock Government. So this is what we get from what should be the decent government. I also see nails, etc., are to come in slightly reduced. They will be very useful for times coming. The people who should have concerned this Government get no place whatever. I suppose that Commission which was considering the Railway is still considering it. They are a long time sitting on those eggs but still they are not hatched out yet. Another of the promises of the Government was the improvement of the roads and bridges and there was supposed to be set aside a large special grant for the pioneers in road making, and only a couple of days ago the Prime Minister admitted in the House that the people of St. George's required more than a per capita grant for their requirements up there as regards road-making, but when you will have to face them again you will not be able to say you fulfilled that promise, but you will have all you can do to answer why you increased their taxation $7.73. They have paid their dollars as well as every other section of the country still they have not a single branch railway, and if you cannot see your way clear to build a branch railway, the least thing you may do is to give them a decent main line road. And now we are to be consoled to know that we are to get in Bologna Sausage for nothing. This will prove to be of meagre solace to the people of St. George's when they have to wade through bogs and rivers and through the terrible highways of their district because of the great lack of proper roads, and instead of carrying out your promise in a proper business like way you come in and say Bologna Sausages and Jam Crocks will come in duty free. You, in common with us, made those promises, it is true, but still I am not impeded from holding you responsible for their fulfillment. I had hoped too for greater land bonuses. I have many times asked those to be granted particularly in the farming sections of the country, and I trusted that my remarks may remind the Government and that it would take up the consideration of it. But the only result is the Model Farm, which I have never seen and never will see, and which will never be seen by one-fifth of the people of the country, and that is the result of that Department which represents nobody in this country nor Nova Scotia. I have on several occasions pointed out, the way to reduce the High Cost of Living was to have increased production. The Government promised that, on the immediate entry into office, the conditions causing the High Cost of Living would have its first and careful attention. I know what I am talking about. I was one of those in common who made that promise and I am holding you responsible for the non-performance of it. In connection with the Housing Scheme, the leader of the House when depicting Sir Michael Cashin's attitude towards it said that Sir Michael Cashin marked "Nothing doing" on the agenda when the matter was referred to the late Executive for consideration. Well, this Government may be truthfully termed not alone the Bologna Sausage Government, the Jam Crock Government, but one may rightly add the "Do Nothing" Government. The Food Control Board has fleeced the public under the new Administration and where the present Government has not made a mistake it has done nothing whatever.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—Mr. Speaker I have listened to the various speakers with interest. I look upon this first Budget, sir, as an insult. You did not even have a copy printed for the members. We have to get it from a newspaper. Mr. Brownrigg can't sit down and take his medicine, and evidently the Prime Minister thought it was all over because he just came into the House. When I opened the Speech from the Throne I saw some-$20,000, but that was put there only because of Honorable John Anderson. It doesn't seem to me that Mr. Coaker and the union candidates are taking their medicine. We have three factions in the Government now—Mr. Coaker, Mr. Warren and Mr. Squires. Now we have Mr. Squires' manifesto and Mr. Brownrigg's Budget Speech with bologna sausages the only article of food on the free list. You have called us Sinn Feiners but when we come back to the House next session we will be fighting the Germans on the other side of the House, because they will be Germans after eating sausages.

Mr. Brownrigg has become famous because of this Budget. We are going to get jam crocks free of duty. I remember we used to get jam crocks with a picture on them. The man's name was John Gray. Now we are going to have jam crocks with Mr. Brownrigg's picture on them. The Prime Minister was going to lessen the burden of the poor people and put it on the rich. This is how he is doing it. Has he taken the duty ofi molasses, flour and boots?

I passed some remarks the other day in the House and when I found a copy of those remarks I noticed that the reporter had typed a few of the words and then he said that the rest was "all bosh." I also heard that the reporters were asked to cut down the Opposition speeches. If the reporter now in the box wishes to think that this is bosh he can put that down as well. There has been so many queer things done lately that even this does not surprise me. We have heard a lot about the boodlers and grafters during the election campaign. It was all written over the newspapers and I began to wonder who the real boodlers and grafters and robbers were, and today I have found out. They are over there from the Prime Minister down. The Hon. leader of the Opposition stated the other night that the Prime Minister had received $2500 for work done in 1917 and he also said, though he was not sure, that the Prime Minister was previously paid for that same work.

HON. PRIME MINISTER: —The Governor-in-Council passed a resolution granting me courtesy and thanks for work well and favorably done.

MR. VINNICOMBE:—Oh, I guess you got paid all right. In referring to some remarks passed the other day on Prohibition, I know that the Prime Minister went into the beer shops in St. John's West during the election campaign and called for drinks for the crowd, and he told them that he always took a drink, and he told them that when he got into power something would be done to remedy the conditions that were then existing, but they haven't the courage of their convictions to do anything. They will probably form a committee of anti-prohibitionists and prohibitionists and they will get together in the court house and have a talk over it and they will disagree and that will finish the prohibition question. There is no man here who would dare give his honest and candid opinion of this question. There's a good many men on the Government side of the House that I wouldn't trust with a bottle of Black and White. I know Mr. Jennings can take his little drop like he took his thousand dollars, and there are lots of men there like him. Now about this Budget. The Minister of Finance came in here last week and slapped a copy of it on the table and today we can't find it, and when you want it you have to go look for it. There is the Squires' Manifesto and the Coaker Manifesto and the Warren Manifesto. I know all about the Warren Manifesto, because he was forming his own party and he was going to ask Mr. Coaker for his support. I pity Mr. Squires over there if they are supporting one another. I am sorry that the Minister of Finance isn't here., I cant find a copy of the Budget. I guess I will have to look for a copy of the Star or the Advocate when I want to read the Budget. I much prefer the Advocate. I notice the duty has been taken off wheat so that the Flat Island men can make moon-shine; that is what they use, and they also use molasses. That is what we will have to drink here soon, molasses. They said they were also going to take the duty off oil. That's their finish; they are going to oil, anyway. They say they are not going to take the duty off steel barrels, but off wooden barrels, because we are getting short of barrels to ship our own oil in. I think that is an insult to the coopers of the country. A company was started here four years ago and they sold oil for 13 cents a gallon, but just as they got their camp pitched they started to skin the people and today you have to pay them 40 cents a gallon. Tobacco today is a luxury. There is not a fisherman in this country to-day hardly who does not smoke or chew, and many of them buy as much as 25 cents worth of tobacco each day. Now why does the Government not take the duty off tobacco. These men can't do without tobacco like some men can't do without rum. Some of our ancestors were reared on rum and molasses. I notice that one of the members is after falling asleep over there. I notice that there is still no sign of the Minister of Finance, and in regard to that Budget I don't think that he will ever make a fortune off it. No wonder that cat would run across the House. You can go ahead and make your sausages now.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Who is in charge of that Bill?

HON. PRIME MINISTER:—The Minister of Finance. Shall I call him in?

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Don't you think it would be the decent thing?

MR. HIGGINS:—I think that this is the first time that the Committe has sat on Ways and Means in this House and nothing has been done to answer the views expressed by the members on the Opposition side of the House, and I would like also to thank the Government for their good grace and sense not to attempt a justification of the hopes that have been held out to the country. I would ask the Ministers to go out and fortify themselves by eating a good feed of bologna sausage or sausage skins, or may some of the skins be filled up and given to the members to put some spirit in them. There are many of them perhaps, like myself, who have never yet mustered up sufficient courage to sample it, who may do so now and go back to their districts and tell the electors that they have placed bologna sausage on the free list. I am sure the country at large will appreciate this action of the Government and that regulations will be issued for the curing and proper handling of bologna sausage, so that we may be sure we will not do that great food any wrong. This Government will go down in history as the "Bologna Sausage Government."

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:— Some days ago the senior member for St. John's East, Mr. Higgins, read a telegraph message which he had received from some friend in the District of Bay de Verde in which the sender of the message made a charge against the Postal Telegraph officials saying that a telegraph message sent to Mr. Puddester had been made public by the telegraph operator. I asked Mr. Higgins as to whether the charge which he was making against the honor of the telegraph official was based upon information obtained from a reliable source. Mr. Higgins replied that he would not disclose the name of the sender of the message, but that he was a reliable person. I then assured him that a full investigation would be made. I immediately wrote the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs who promptly, namely, on June 18th, sent the following memorandum to Superintnedent Stott:

General Post Office,
St. John's, Newfoundland,
June 18th, 1920.

MEMO TO SUPT. STOTT.

Attached is a copy of a letter received from the Prime Minister respecting the charge made in the Assembly that a message telephoned from Salmon Cove to the telegraph office at Carbonear addressed to J. C. Puddester, Northern Bay, was given unauthorized publicity on Tuesday night at Salmon Cove. You will observe that the Prime Minister desires that this matter be fully investigated.

MIN. POSTS & TELEGRAPHS.

Superintendent Stott replied to Mr. Halfyard under date June 19th, which letter was forwarded to me on the same day by Mr. George W. LeMessurier on behalf of the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs. The correspondence referred to is as follows:

Newfoundland Postal Telegraphs,
(Copy)

Superintendent's Office,
St. John's, N.F.,
June 19th, 1920.

Hon. W. W. Halfyard, Minister.

Sir,

Concerning your memo of the 18th instant, I find, on inquiry, that we received a message at Carbonear on the 15th from the United Towns Electrical Co. The message originated at Salmon Cove telephone office and was addressed J. C. Puddister, Northern Bay. Our Carbonear operator finding that Mr. Puddister was at Lower Is. Cove, forwarded the message to Lower Island Cove where it was promptly delivered to Mr. Puddister who paid our tolls on same.

I find there are eight telephones on this wire including central, from Carbonear to Broad Cove.

Attached please find inquiry papers.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,

Your obedient servant,
(Signed) DAVID STOTT, Superintendent.

Encs.
(Copy)

General Post Office,
St. John's, Newfoundland,
June 19th, 1920.

Hon. R. A. Squires, K.C.,
Prime Minister,
St. John's.

Sir,

I have the honour to enclose a letter of even date from Supt. Stott, in reference to a message from Salmon Cove to Mr. J. C. Puddister, addressed to him at Northern Bay, and delivered to him at Lower Island Cove without delay.

This message was sent by the United Towns' Electrical Company's telephone system from Salmon Cove to Carbonear, on which line there are eight telephones, operated by persons who are not in the employ or under the control of the Postal Telegraphs and, as far as I know, not responsible to any Department of the Government, and under the circumstances, I submit that more definite charges should be made and proved before blame is attached to the Postal Telegraphs.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your obedient servant,
(Sgd.) GEO. W. LeMESSURIER,
For Min. of Posts & Telegraphs.

I may say that in addition to this official inquiry I made an inquiry on the spot. I found that the sender of the message was Mr. C. E. Russell, of Bay Roberts. Mr. Russell was employed by the Opposition as a campaigner against Mr. W. H. Cave in the District of Bay de Verde. Mr. Russell's habit was to follow Mr. Cave around, go to all his meetings, and then send reports, usually false reports, around the District as to the sort of meeting Mr. Cave had and the reception he got. In this particular case Mr. Russell wanted to send a telegraph message to Mr. Puddester, telling Mr. Puddester about a conversation which Mr. Russell said he had with Mr. Cave and some other matters, the message being an absolute misrepresentation of facts. The message was not handed by Mr. Russell to any telegraph office. It was telephoned by Mr. Russell over the United Towns Electrical Company telephone system. He used a public wire on which there were eight telephones besides central. At the time he took down the receiver two subscribers were on the line. Mr. Russell started out his conversation in the following words "This is Mr. C. E. Russell, J.P." and then gave his message. The message being over the public wires and of political significance was common property within the course of a few minutes. Both persons who were at the 'phone made a note of the message, one sending a copy, insofar as he was able to get it accurately from the telephone conversation, by motor car to Mr. Cave, who was holding a meeting in a neighbouring town. The message to Mr. Cave came from a telephone station many miles away from the place where Mr. Russell telephoned the message and many miles away from Carbonear. There was absolutely no leakage whatever so far as the Telegraph system was concerned and the attack of the honourable member upon the Postal Telegraph officials was entirely without justification.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

And it being past midnight.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had passed certain resolutions and recommended that a Bill be introduced to give effect to the same.

On motion this report was received and adopted and the Bill entitled "An Act further to amend the Revenue Act 1905" was introduced and read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

The remaining orders of the day were deferred.

Mr. Fox gave notice of question.

Hon. the Prime Minister tabled report of the Auditor General on Municipal Accounts.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until this afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

WEDNESDAY, July 7th, 1920.

The House met at three of the clock pursuant to adjournment.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—I ask leave to present a petition from the residents of Hermitage and the nearby places asking that a Magistrate be appointed at Hermitage. I ask that the petition be received and referred to the Department to which it relates.

MR. MacDONNELL:—I ask leave to present a petition from the people of Stephenville in connection with the development of agricultural land as this depends upon the deepening of the river connecting Stephenville Pond and the waters nearby they ask that the river be deepened. At the present time the water is overflowing the banks of the river. I wired them to know the amount of money they would require and they repled saying that the sum of one hundred and fifty dollars would be sufficient. The petition is signed by Father Adams and all the persons in the vicinity. I think the request is reasonable and hope it will be given the careful attention of the Minister of Public Works and I ask that it be referred to his department.

I have another petition from the residents of Port-au-Port, Fox Island River, Stephenville and Aquathuna. I have on more than one occasion voiced the prayer of this petition, namely, the improvements of roads in my district. The petition is signed by everybody in those places and roughly the number of names would be about two hundred and fifty. (Reads petition). This place is twelve miles distant and is cut off from any communication with any other part of the country. We have petitioned time after time for a grant to build a road down there and the people are prepared to go half way if they are given any assistance. This place is the contre of the lobster and cod fishery in the summer time and important in the winter as being the chief centre of the smelt industry. It requires to be connected with the other point by a road and a series of bridges. The whole thing would cost about twenty-five hundred dollars. (Reads petition). As I have already pointed out there is not a single mile of branch railway and this road would connect all the adjoining settlements. We have paid for some of the branch railways and the least you may do is to build a decent main line road to connect up all the other places of the district. This is a reasonable request. The Prime Minister admitted the other day that a special grant was necessary for the roads in St. George's and said further that the per capita grant was in sufficient for that district. Only a small appropriation will be necessary and I think the Government ought to grant the fulfilment of this reasonable request.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—Mr. Speaker, I beg to lay on the table a copy of the Auditor General's Report for the year ended June, 1919.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, I beg to move that the rules of the House with respect to present business and all other business to come before the House be suspended. There is very little other business to come before the House. I may say there will be no effort to curtail debate in any matters coming before the House.

MR. HIGGINS asked the Hon. the Prime Minister: (a) Why David Courtenay, later inspector of meats, was dismissed. (b) To lay on the Table of the House copies of any correspondence respecting his dismissal.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—There was absolutely no official correspondence leading up to the dismissal of Mr. Courtenay. Subsequent to his dismissal there was some correspondence, and in particular one or two personal letters from Mr. Courtney, but his dismissal was not based upon any correspondence, official or otherwise, with the Department of Public Health or any other Department.

MR. HIGGINS:—Then what was the reason for his dismissal.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—The work of Meat Inspector formerly came within the duties of Inspector O'Brien. For some years past he has been failing in health, with the result that Mr. Courtney was asked to undertake that portion of Inspector O'Brien's work. As the honourable member for St. John's East knows, Mr. O'Brien was pensioned some time ago, and on the recommendation of the Public Health Officer the next official under him was promoted to the position vacated by Inspector O'Brien. The Government felt that the Inspector would attend to meat inspection as one of his duties.

MR. HIGGINS:—Then it is not the intention of the Government to appoint a new meat inspector.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—There is no immediate intention of appointing a new Meat Inspector. The new inspector will be asked to undertake that work, and if the Inspector and the Public Health Officer feel that the Inspector is over-pressed with work and cannot give the matter sufficient attention, new arrangements will have to be made. The Government views the matter as a balance between efficiency and economy. If the work can be efficiently done by one Inspector and those under him in the Department of Public Health, then there is no necessity of having a specially-paid Meat Inspector. If it is found that it cannot be so done, then such additional help as it may be necessary to employ to have the work properly performed will be employed.

Mr. Bennett asked the Hon. Minister of Posts and Telegraphs who is the newly appointed mail officer on the S.S. "Earl of Devon" on the Cook's Harbor service; when the appointment was made and if other applications from returned soldiers were on file when the appointment was made.

Mr. Bennett asked the Minister of Posts and Telegraps if Miss Chalker, the assistant operator at Brigus has been dismissed and if so why? and to lay on the table of the House statement of any charge that has been laid against her.

Mr. Fox asked the Minister of Public Works to whom the contract for the painting of the Sanitarium has been awarded; what is the contract price, and whether tenders were called for?

Pursuant to notice and leave granted and on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the Rules of the House respecting all business now before or to come before it were suspended.

Pursuant to order Hon. the Minister of Education moved the second reading of Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Education Act."

HON. MINISTER OF EDUCATION:—Mr. Speaker, in moving the second reading of this bill I desire, in accordance with the established practice of this House, to make brief observations upon certain sections of the measure. Before doing so, however, I wish to refer to the criticism that has been directed against the Government regarding the creation of the Department of Education This criticism was particularly strong and insistent during the late bye-election in St. John's West, and was doubtless resorted to, solely, because it was considered good political material, but whether it were so I am not sufficiently skilled in politics to determine. We were told that the creation of a Department of Education with a Ministerial head must surely constitute a serious blow to the existing system. These statements were persistently repeated in the face of equally persistent denials on the part of the Government press that the status-quo of the present denominational system would be disturbed. I desire, therefore, at the outset to allay if possible any doubt or suspicion that may lurk in the minds of honourable members, by stating openly and frankly that the present bill in no way disturbs the existing denominational principles of the system so well known in this colony.

There may be some difference of opinion as to the necessity for a Department of Education, but in view of the fact that we are to-day expending more than $800,000 for educational purposes, the Government has decided that it is advisable to have a minister, who will be responsible to this House for the proper and efficient expenditure of that money. It will be readily admitted, I think, that the question of Education, fundamental and all as it is, has scarcely, if ever, received that measure of attention from this House which its importance for the welfare of the country merits. This omission probably, has not been due to lack of interest on the part of members of this House, but rather to the fact that the system being purely denominational and having no responsible head in the Assembly, members hesitated to criticise the system and its working. The Superintendents were the denominational representatives and immediately the work of any one of them was criticized in this Chamber, ecclesiastical resentment would probably ensue. Now, there will be a responsible minister who will be present to answer for the Department, and be a fair mark for any reasonable criticism. Criticism, especially constructive criticism, is not only desirable but essential; and the fact that criticism of our system and its working is becoming more frequent is an indication of a deeper educational interest and a desire for better things.

The strongest exponents of our present system will, I think, be the first to admit that it has serious defects, and will promptly welcome any measure calculated to minimise or remove them, and so render it possible for the system to yield its best. Wherever we turn to-day, in the civilized world, educationists are at work remodelling their systems, readjusting the courses of study, demanding better qualifications on the part of teachers; and governments are freely expending larger and larger sums of money to render their educational institutions more and more efficient. Never before has education been valued and sought after as it is to-day. The very tension of war has aroused the nations to consider a thorough-going augmentation of elementary education as indispensable to national welfare. It is more forcibly urged to-day than ever before, that the whole future of any people and of their position in the world depends upon the wisdom of the arrangements that they make for education. People are critically considering their schools and what is taught in them. They have been finding out what schools should mean and at the same time they have been finding out what they have not meant in the past, what they should mean, and must mean in the future. emergencies and demands of war have laid bare certain weaknesses and shortcomings in the scope and character of public education that now call for readjustment and reorganization. The school exists for general benefit and public safety. It is the agency created by government to unify people, conserve ideals, mould and integrate public opinion, and increase the physical wellbeing of rising generations, shape the instinctive desires and attitudes of the young to social ends, and incite each child to vigorous and noble aspirations.

This Dominion, Sir, cannot afford to accept lower educational ideals than our Canadian and American neighbours. Education that is fundamentally essential for them is equally necessary and important for us. Newfoundland in her own interests, must fall in line, must exert such influence as will ultimately render her educational system as efficient as possible, consistent with her financial resources. To demand less, to be satisfied with a lower standard, is to hinder development, arrest progress. and deny to our children that which by every principle of justice and right we are bound to supply them.

One of the chief aims of the present bill is to render it possible to secure better and more adequate returns from our system than it has hitherto yielded. The bill, however, does not meet all the defects, far from it; but given the machinery, we shall be able to cope with them as circumstances permit. The defects of our system, as I see it, are legion, but one of the greatest is the practice that obtains of admitting to the teaching profession persons, in many cases, with a minimum of intellectual preparation and no professional qualifications. This, Mr. Speaker, is no reflection upon the young people who take up this work, frequently with enthusiasm and devotion, but realizing their inability to cope with the task of training the future citizens than which there is no more honourable and dignified, yet no more difficult and exacting work, they either abandon the work altogether, or, as is sometimes the case, descend to merelifeless routine that stunts the mental and moral growth of their pupils. The young teachers themselves deplore this lack of training and frequently express themselves in the strongest terms of condemnation of a system that equips them so badly. The whole country is to-day convinced of the inadequacy of the professional training afforded our teachers, and also of the consequent cruel injustice done the children. Unfortunately the opinion prevails in many parts of this country that any person at all can teach a school, any person can train the mind and fashion the character of children and worse still, Sir, this opinion eventuates in practice. I tell this House, sir, and through it the country, that a more mischievous idea and a more pernicious practice rarely obtained a footing in any land. We insist that the lawyer shall receive proper professional training—be fitted to discharge his duty to his clients, that the physician shall give evidence of professional knowledge and skill which enable him to diagnose and cope with the ills of the human body; but those who are called upon to inspire our children with lofty ideals, to develop mental growth, and to lay the foundation of true character and citizenship we accept, in many cases, without any evidence of their fitness for the work. To send these young people out with such equipment is unjust and unfair to them and to expect the best returns is as unwise as to seek water in an empty well. The educational waste resulting from the employment of inefficient, unprofessionally trained teachers is being brought home to even the most indifferent. The precious years of childhood are being wasted—since many of our children emerge from the schools almost mentally hopeless. Not only is a large proportion of the pupils' time frittered away but habits inimical to the pupils' future civic welfare are formed. Too often, the time is spent in teaching text-books rather than children, in preparing for examination rather than life. The aim, in some cases, appears to be information, facts, rules, rather than inspiration, character and growth.

Every other civilized country has its Normal School devoted entirely to the professional training of their teachers. In each of the neighbouring Provinces of Canada one or more such schools are found. In the United States to-day, the tendency is to demand four years of High School work as a prerequisite for admission to the Normal School, then two years of professional work mainly, in such an institution. The object is to make the students thoroughly familiar with the subject matter which they will be required to teach and also acquaint them with the most efficient methods of presenting the material and of handling the manifold problems of a school. That is to say, additional Academic Study is allowed but special attention is devoted to professional training and supervised practice. Switzerland, that little country of unsurpassed natural scenery, demands four years of attendance at Teachers' Seminaries where both Academic and professional work are taken before the Elementary teachers' certificate is granted. Those who subsequently desire to engage in Secondary School work can only do so by attending a university or some other higher institution of learning for two or more semesters, and submitting to a rigid examination by a Board of Examiners comprised of specialists. In Sweden, three years of training are required before one may enter the teaching profession, while in Norway the persistent problem is whether the training period should be extended from three to four years. I mention these facts, sir, merely to show what other countries are doing in the way of professionally training their teachers. In Newfoundland we have no Normal School, and teachers receive practically no professional training and certificates are too often given as a mere matter of form on the results of the Examinations of the Council of Higher Education.

One of the provisions of this bill is the erection, equipment, and maintenance of a Normal School so that teachers in the future will get some professional training before entering upon the work of conducting schools. Until this school is established it is unreasonable to expect returns commensurate with our educational expenditure. When the Normal School is ready we propose to select students with care and discretion, provide them with more liberal financial assistance tory of this colony, and afford them course of study under the guidance of the opportunity of pursuing a suitable than at any other time within the hisexpert teachers. At the present time Superintendents find a difficulty in securing prospective teachers. We propose now to have circular letters sent out, not alone to Chairmen of Boards, but to principals of schools, pointing out the provision made by the Government for the purpose of inducing suitable persons to enter upon the work of training for the teaching profession. Under the old Act, males in training were entitled to receive a sum not to exceed One Hundred dollars per year; females eighty dollars. The present bill makes the amount One Hundred and Eighty for males and One Hundred and Sixty for females. During the training period students will be afforded demonstration and practice under properly qualified critic teachers, so that when they leave the institution to engage in what we trust may prove for many of them, at least, their life's work, we may reasonably look for results.

We do not propose even then to drop these young people. We are making provision under this bill to render them skilful and sympathetic assistance so that they may avoid the pitfalls into which too many of their predecessors have fallen. We are confronted with a dual problem—to train not only the future teachers as they enter the Normal School, but to change the major portion of our untrained teachers into a band of men and women, alive to modern educational problems; supply a new conception of popular education, and a new spirit in the teaching corps. In the attempt to accomplish this the efforts of the teachers themselves will not be lacking. We propose to key up our teachers by sending out a number of capable, sympathetic, experienced teachers as Supervising Inspectors who will have had special training for the work. They will visit not as mere inspectors, judges, spies or detectives to discover failings only; but to render service, to assist teachers in finding solutions to their special school problems. We need more than mere criticism, which is cheap, disheartening and destructive in its influence. The Supervisors will be enthuiastic educationists, tolerant, patient and experienced; persons who will know how to assist the teachers to master principles and so attain freedom in their chosen profession. They will remain in a school long enough, at a visit, to determine definitely the strong and weak points of discipline, instruction, and method; detect cram, inefficiency or monotonous routine, if such exist, and give the teacher sufficient time in conference to discuss, in a friendly spirit, the weak points, arrange for their eradication and hence in this way materially increase the efficiency of the teacher and generally stimulate all to greater effort. We have lost much in the past because of the lack of skilled supervision. The teachers have been expected to do that which we have not fitted them to do. We have been unreasonably expecting returns, but instead, Sir, we have been confronted with a certain indifference, and insular—medieval educational ideas. We have been striving to show results by submitting poorly taught pupils to written, competitive examinations, thus affording our people an incorrect standard of judgment. The living agent—the supervisor—will now replace in a large measure the written examination.

It may be urged that we are unduly increasing the number of these Supervisors in this country—that the expenditure is not justified. As a matter of fact, experience has abundantly proved that moneys expended for the salaries of such Supervisors in other countries produce far greater returns in increased educational efficiency than similar sums expended for classroom teaching. To attain excellence in teaching requires long experience ander wise and prudent guidance. Nothing is more vital to the school than the constant improvement of the teachers in the field. To secure this improvement is one purpose of the Supervising Inspectors. Wherever they have been enrolled to work under right conditions, no other single factor has contributed so largely to the excellent results attained.

The present bill provides, too, for an Advisory Board whose powers and duties are clearly defined. There may be difference of opinion as to the necessity of such a Board but to me it appears to be indispensable. No honourable member, Sir, I am sure desires to see Education dragged into the hurley-burley of party politics. It is not inconceivable that disputes may arise between Superintendents and teachers, and when such do occur, here we have a court of appeal. The Minister should not, in my opinion, be expected to decide those questions—these disputes, lest the dissatisfied party should accuse him of being swayed by political consideration. The constitution of the Advisory Board prevents the possibility of such a contingency arising, at least as far as the Minister is concerned.

With regard to the matter of educational finance—the Government this year has made a substantial increase in the Augmentation Grant; we have in fact made the largest contribution, the most substantial increase to the augmentation grant ever made in this colony—an increase of $64,675 has been made this year which will bring the total vote for that purpose up to $226,362.

MR. MacDONNELL:—Is that exclusive of the 20% increase given last year?

MINISTER OF EDUCATION:—Yes, the total grant for Augmentation to the end of June this year is $161,687 and to that sum we now add $64,675. We are giving an additional $10,000 to help defray expenses of students attending the Normal School; and $10,000 additional for the erection, equipping, and renovating of school buildings. There are a few old teachers in the colony who were never contributors to the Pension Fund, and consequently cannot participate in its benefits. Only a short time ago I met a very accomplished lady-teacher, of many years standing, who because of straitened circumstance has been forced to spend the evening of life in the Poor Asylum. We are taking an extra vote, now, to meet these few outstanding cases and afford them a small retiring allowance.

This bill, too, makes provision for the establishment of Night Schools and a vote of $10,000 is made for the purpose. We have heard much during the last ten or fifteen years about Night Schools for the purpose of affording some of our young men and women the opportunity of learning to read and write—an opportunity that has in the past been denied them, or if present they for some reason have failed to take advantage of. The Government is making an effort in this way to help in some measure to reduce the high percentage of illiteracy in this country and I bespeak for the movement the unanimous support of this House as well as the press of the country. In looking over the census returns for 1911, I find that after eliminating all persons below ten years of age we still have 17% of the total population listed as illiterate. The step above illiteracy in America is shown by the ability to read the newspaper and write a letter to a friend. If such a test could be applied to our people it would show our percentage of illiteracy to be very much in excess of the figure just stated.

I shall refer very briefly, Sir, to just one more feature of the present bill—namely the provision to foster School Libraries. Apart from the Colleges and a few Superior Schools, our schools lack libraries. One of the functions of the school is doubtless to teach reading—to put the child in possession of the key to hidden treasures of knowledge, but it is also in duty bound to engender a love for reading by whetting the pupils' appetites for the best things in the language. We have, it seems to me, failed in this respect and in consequence many of those who reach perhaps the third or fourth standards leave school, not only without having acquired the taste for good literature, but with a strong dislike for books; and as a result they not only fail to read anything but forget what they have learnt and slowly but surely help to swell the ranks of illiteracy. With better trained teachers, and good literature available, we hope to cure this disease-spot in our system.

Mr. Speaker, I fear I have trespassed too long upon the indulgence of this House, but the importance of the subject, Sir, must be my apology. No other subject of such vital importance, it seems to me, can occupy the attention of members of this House; and in no better way can representatives discharge their obligations to their constituencies than by intelligent advocacy of education. We owe it also to our gallant sailors and soldiers to see to it that in our system, in our schools, their achievements, their victories be made to stimulate our boys and girls to go forth not alone to such victories but to unrecorded triumphs, unwritten conquests. Let us, therefore, betake ourselves seriously to the consideration of this measure, and in deliberation devoid of party strife, endeavour to rid it of its imperfections. Let our single aim in this important matter at least be the best within our means for the children, the future citizens and bulwarks of our beloved country. Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the second reading of the bill.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice the Bill entitled "An Act to amend and Consolidate the Laws in relation to the Municipal Affairs of the Town of St." was read a second time and ordered to be referred to a Committee of the Whole House on to-morrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs the Bill entitled "An Act further to amend the Revenue Act, 1905," was read a second time and ordered to be referred to a Committee of the Whole House on to-morrow.

Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs gave notice that he would on to-morrow move the House into a Committee of the Whole to consider certain Resolutions respecting a Loan for Railway improvement and Coal Development.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

THURSDAY, July 8th, 1920.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

Hon. the Minister of Justice gave notice that he would on to-morrow ask leave to introduce a Bill to provide for the collection and distribution of the Estates of certain Esquimaux deceased.

Mr. Bennett gave notice of question.

MR. MacDONNELL:—Mr. Speaker, I want to present some petitions from the people of St. George's on the subject of that contemplated road. I have already spoken of this matter. I have reason to believe that before long a concrete proposition will be put before this House on this matter. The petitions, though somewhat differently worded, are unanimous in expressing the wish of the people. Something ought to be done towards the development of the West Coast. We have been told by the Prime Minister that it ought be done but we can't get it done. If it is not done by the Government it will be done by some outside parties. I have every reason to believe that if any reasonable proposition is put before the Government that the Government will not turn it down. The people of the West Coast have a lot to be safeguarded. I would ask that these petitions be referred to the Department of Public Works, and that the Minister see that the matter is put before the Executive Government.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Justice the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act to amend and Consolidate the Laws in relation to the Municipal Affairs of the Town of St. John's.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—Mr. Speaker, I was spoken to about this matter of the Municipal Charter. I told them that we were following the wish of the Citizens' Committee. I would like to say for the information of the honourable member that the bill is practically a result of the suggestions of the Citizens' Committee.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Mr. Speaker, I might say that I am entirely indifferent as to whether the bill is passed or not. There is an effort to close the House as soon as possible, and it is up to the Citizens' Committee to see that it is put in shape.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—Mr. Speaker, I have received a communication from the Secretary of the Citizens' Committee. The position of the Government now is that the Commission goes out of office the 31st December, and unless the bill is passed another Commission will have to be appointed,

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE & FISHERIES:—I suggest that we proceed with the bill, and if it is necessary to bring in an amendment next year let it come in when there is lots of time to discuss it.

MR. BENNETT:—Mr. Speaker, I feel somewhat in the same frame of mind on this matter as the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. The objections of the Citizens' Committee have been met, and the bill is the result. There is no reason why the whole thing should be held up, unless they have for some reason changed their minds.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, the bill is a lengthy one, and may or may not cause some discussion. I would suggest that we go through the committee stage, and let the preamble stand over. I gather that the recommendations of the Committee are practically within the scope of the bill. I suggest that we go through the committee stage, then let the committee rise and report progress, so as to give the Citizens' Committee a chance to meet to-night, and be in the committee stage. This would give the advantage of having the bill disposed of so far as this House is concerned, subject only to such recommendations as the Citizens' Committee may have to make with respect thereto. If as a result of to-night's meeting the Citizens' Committee desire to offer any suggestions, these suggestions would then be considered when the bill is in committee stage to-morrow, but it would then be necessary to consider only such matters as have been brought to the attention of the House by the Citizens' Committee. I feel that this bill should not be finalized to-day. The Citizens' Committee have had the same opportunity of perusing the Bill as I have had and all the other members of the House have had except those who formed the special informal committee which went into the whole matter carefully and are responsible for the Bill in its present form, but that merely means that the Bill has been in their hands for a day or two and naturally, being busy with other than Legislative matters, they have not had an opportunity of perusing it carefully. I am informed that the Committee is holding a meeting this evening and feel that we should not finalize this Bill in its Committee Stage this afternoon. It is a courtesy which we owe to the Citizens' Committee, many members of which have given months' time in a careful consideration of city problems and city legislation.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Speaker, I agree with suggestions.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress and asked leave to sit again on to-morrow.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again on to-morrow.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Education the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Education Act" was read a second time and ordered to be referred to a Committee of the Whole House presently.

Whereupon the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Education Act."

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the chair of Committee.

MR. MacDONNELL:—It has been said that it is desirable to keep education out of politics; well, you can't do it because the minister is a politician. You can't keep education out of politics and it is a mistake to drag it into it. That the present system hasn't been going well in the country may be right but it will never go right while it is connected with politics. If a teacher finds that he has not been treated right by the government he is sure to blame the doctor. I would like to ask the doctor one question and that is if it is his intention to abolish the Council of Higher Education under this system. I find here in section 24 that the salary for the superintendent is $3,332 and the assst. superintendent $2,650 and district superintendents $1,600, and the point I want to make is that Mr. Wilson, a very conscientious worker and a universal favourite, will under the present system be receiving a salary less than the asst. superintendent. I will oppose that section if nobody else does. When it comes to a question of being given a show no man is more deserving of it than Mr. Wilson and I would ask the doctor to consider this. I would also ask him if last year's grant for the Council of Higher Education is still going on. In reference to the vote for expenses, the ordinary official, policeman, customs official or any other man in the public service from the premier down gets his expenses paid as per the account sent in by him. Why the Educational Department should be limited to a certain amount I do not know. I have had the experience of travelling at times where I had to spend a month's salary on a two week trip. These men should be paid to the cent for all expenses that they incur in connection with that department. If you don't do that you know what is going to happen when their grant is all spent —they will discontinue their work. We should encourage the superintendents to visit the schools as often as possible and do not handicap the. They should not have to spend their salaries for travelling expenses. Now in reference to the minister himself I don't see what he has to do. He has to collect reports and he is here to answer questions, but I think that it is a pity that a Bill should be brought in here which doesn't give Dr. Barnes the chance to let Newfoundland know what he is doing for Education. One section here provides for delivering addresses for the stimulation of educational efforts in this country. Surely it is not the intention to relegate the minister to that.

HON. MINISTER OF EDUCATION:—That work will be assigned to the superintendents.

MR. MacDONNELL:—I also notice here that there will be an annual census of children from 6 to 14 years of age and that all children between these ages must attend school, it is not sufficient that we should vote a sum of money to that. I would like to know if the Governor in Council has anything to do with fees. I would also like to know if the Doctor has power to requisition for any grant.

HON. MINISTER OF EDUCATION:—No, I can't requisition for money.

MR. MacDONNELL:—I hope that before we come to the reading the Doctor will clear up two matters I have referred to, that is the Council of Education and the Advisory Board and who comprised of. Whether the minister can select his staff and who the deputy minister will be.

HON. MINISTER OF EDUCATION:—I sincerely thank the hon. member for the district of St. George's for the helpful criticism he has advanced in reference to the Bill now before the Chair. It is very evident from the remarks of the hon. gentleman that he has been a member of the teaching profession and I have been expecting something from him in this connection and I must say that I have not been disappointed. I would like to refer very briefly to the few remarks and I hope that my answers will be satisfactory. The first point that has been discussed by the hon. member is the defects in the present system. That there are defects must be readily admitted. A system of education must be a progressive one because education itself is a progressive science and a system which does not progress with the times is worn out. In the educational world to-day the greatest and brightest minds are tending to remedy the system at present in use because they have realized that that system must grow old. Our system has grown old. It has not been given a thorough overhauling and I don't claim that this Bill will give it a thorough overhauling. But, it has not had a thorough overhauling since its inauguration in 1874. Our system has gone on so long without affording professional training to teachers and it is of fundamental importance that this be done. I am glad that the hon. gentleman has expressed his approval on that point. In reference to the other defects it would do no good to specify them. The hon. gentleman has said that we have established the only thing worth while in this Bill when we provided the means of giving professional training to teachers, but if we give a teacher that professional training and send him into some remote part of the colony would it be not also worth while to have a superintendent travelling around and getting in touch with that teaher so that he may be able to put his hand on the weak spots which time and again find their way into the system that is now in vogue in the outports. We are going to appoint a number of qualified inspectors who will be thoroughly competent for the work and who will spend a certain time in each school and discover the defects, if any, and apply the remedy for them. You will pardon me if I must take up the time of the House in relating an experience of my own which bears out my contentions. A young lady was sent to a smal school in an outport two or three years ago and when I went there to visit her and see her at work I noticed she had fallen back and was using methods that find no place today from a scientific standpoint. Speaking afterwards in tears she told me that without anybody to counsel her she had fallen back. A few years ago superintendents visited certain sections of the country and as proof of the benefits obtained the Superintendent of the Church of England Schools was in receipt of many letters testifying to the great benefit and expressing the wish that some day a corps of such superintendents would be sent throughout the country. For this this reason and many others I do claim that these appointments are one of the big things in this Bill.

I have referred to Switzerland by way of comparison, but I have not mentioned Norway or the United States. I think the improvements made by the Swiss are a result of their system of education. I visited their schools there, and in one of them found being taught English. I spent one morning in this particular school. At that time news arrived of the sinking of the Titanic and I asked them if they would like to hear the story about her. They assented, and I told it. Afterwards I asked if they would like to ask any questions. They hesitated, but after a while one young fellow stood up and asked me the following question: "What are your resources in Newfoundland?" and another question asked was: "How far have you succeeded in adapting science to your resources?" This shows that their their system is second to none in the civilized world, and we may take a tip from them in this respect. The hon. gentleman asked what is being done to encourage young men to remain in the profession. I thank him for that question. I have been supplied with certain data in connection with this, part of which I will read to you just to show how far that point touches on the educational system in this country. Out of 739 teachers, 253 have remained in the profession from 5 to 10 years, 80 from 11 to 15 years, 30 from 16 to 20 years, 32 from 21 to 25 years, 27 from 26 to 30 years, 21 from 31 to 35 years and 15 from 36 to 40 years. This shows a gradual decline in teachers from 5 years down. From the year 1909 to the year 1919, 468 C. of E. teachers dropped out of the profession, and 640 Roman Catholics, making a total of 1108 teachers for ten years. In 1920 183 teachers dropped out of the profession; 52 C. of E., 64 R. C., and 67 Methodists. A total of 56 schools have been closed for want of teachers. Another big handicap which shows the inadequacy of our system is the fact that we have teaching in this country to-day ungraded teachers What are we going to do to meet this question? During the life of the past governments teachers were not allowed enough to come into St. John's to get through their grades. The present Government has increased that grant which offers an inducement to young people to come forward and do their very best.

I think a circular should be sent to the teachers in charge of schools, and when the results of the Council of Higher Education are made known a circular letter will be sent to those who are in the Intermediate Grade, pointing out the advantages of this section, namely, the increase in the grant to enable teachers to secure the training which we all know is necessary. That is not all. I think I observed yesterday, the total increases we have made in the Education Grant is one hundred and thirty thousand dollars. Of that, not less than one hundred and one thousand six hundred and sixty-five dollars finds its way to the pockets of the teachers, and in this way: We have the extra ten thousand dollars to encourage pupil teachers, six thousand six hundred and seventy-five dollars for augmentation, ten thousand dollars for night schools, sixteen thousand dollars for salaries of those ten teachers chosen for inspectors, ten thousand dollars to help old teachers who have dropped out of harness, and for whom up to the present time no provision has been made. I am quite aware that our teachers are worth more than that. Having spent thirty-five years in the profession myself, I think I know what work our teachers are doing and what they are worth, and I want to say to this House, this evening, and to this country, through the Reporters' box, that as long as I am in charge of the Department of Education, the needs of the teachers will be advocated; but we cannot do all that is necessary in one year. Not only that, Mr. Speaker, but the Government has decided that we shall obtain from the teachers in convention, certain views which they hold respecting this matter of salary, and we have determined that a Committee will be appointed to go into the whole question of salaries for teachers, with a view to securing a minimum salary, beyond which it will be illegal to engage a teacher. .The next question that my honorable friend asked me was, who selects the staff for this normal school. The Governor-in-Council appoints the Principal of the normal school, and he will be free to select his own staff. Another question the honorable gentleman asked about the Supervisors, how are they selected? If he will refer to Section 21, Sub-section 1 of the Bill, he will find that it deals with this matter. I will read it for you.

In answer to the question, I would say that we are leaving it to heads of the Denominations to appoint Supervisors. The Superintendent of each denomination will be requested to furnish with three of each denomination, who will have certain qualifications laid down under the Act. Now about this Advisory Board, I still adhere to my opinion that the Advisory Board is necessary. I may say that some time ago in Ontario where they had an Advisory Board they discontinued it, because the Department felt that it could get all the necessary information from the Superintendent and the District Supervisors and officials of the Department itself. But it has been since learned that the advice received in that way was not as sound as the advice that would be given by an Advisory Board. It was colored by the personality of each person who gave it. It lacked cohesion, because each person gave his advice from his own standpoint, and it has been contended by one of the principal educationalists in that Province that it has lost by abolishing that Advisory Board. The necessity for it here, however, seems to me to keep party politics out of the Department. It is true that politics will enter, must enter, but party politics need not enter. I hope that as long as I hold that office that nobody will be able to accuse me of dragging party politics into it. I have refrained from taking any part in elections since my appointment to that office, for the reason that my my first duty is to Education, and not to the party of which I am a part. It is conceivable, I am sure, that cases may arise when it will be necessary for two parties to be heard, and the best court of appeal in my opinion is the Advisory Board, not the Minister of Education, and I may say that the Minister of Education is not a member of that Board, as the function of that Board is to advise the Minister of Education, and it is for him to act upon the decision of that Board.

MR. MacDONNELL:—Will the Minister have anyhting to say in the selection of the five men on that Board?

MR. BARNES:—No, they are to be chosen by the heads of the denominations alone. Even the Teachers' Association has a right to select three teachers provided they belong to the three leading denominations. It is not the intention of this Bill to interfere with denominational status as it is to-day. Take for instance, the Supervisors, they are appointed in the same way by the Governor-in-Council, but nominated by the heads of the denominations, and it will bel the same with this.

Now in connection with the Council of Higher Education, there is a great difference of opinion as to the work being done by them. There was a time, in my opinion, when it was absolultely necessary, but I am not so sure that it has not now outlived its usefulness. Of course that is only my opinion, and I am not trying to force it. I think one reason for this is that we are today submitting our children to competitive examination and a school is judged by the results it produces in that examination, and that means we are asking our people to judge by a false standard. It is quite possible for the teachers to get children through these examinations dishonestly, although I do not say that it is done. I have had considerable experience. No less than one hundred of girls and boys taking Associate Grade have gone through my hands, and from what I saw of the work submitted to me, I say that it it no credit to the work done by the C.H.E. I am not sure that the C.H.E. should not be replaced by another body that would do better work. Your only test of efficiency to-day is the result of the C.H.E. examinations. I have visited schools where I have found one teacher in charge of seventy or eighty pupils, and that teacher was trying to pass one pupil through Primary or Preliminary Grade, and consequently the other children submitted to his care were neglected. An old teacher of my acquaintance said to me some time ago—I will use his own words: "I want to tell you that under present conditions I am forced to prepare candidates for the C.H.E. examinations, and what I do is to try and pass some pupils and neglect the rest." However, I have only been in office a short time and I am sure my honorable friend will allow that it has been impossible to deal with the number of things that I hope will be dealt with in a satisfactory manner eventually.

With regard to the Registrar of that Institution and the increase in salary, there has been a misunderstanding there. There has been very little increase, if any. Superintendents' salaries have had no increase. The gentlemen opposite have asked the members of the Government on what basis the increases in the Estimates have been made, and I am happy to be able to answer for myself that the Superintendents' salaries have as a basis the salary paid to the Superintendent of the R. C. denomination resident in this city. His salary last year is the standard to which the others have been raised. I am not so sure that it would be advisable for me to state just how that was brought about, but if the honorable gentleman would like to se the figures I will be only too glad to put them at his disposal. With regard to the Assistant Superintendents there is very little increase in their salaries. These men have done yeomen service. If either of these gentlemen were to become incapacitated and retire, his retiring allowance would be smaller than that given to an ordinary clerk in a Government office, and I am sure that no honorable gentleman will contend that that is right. The Superintendent's salary voted was $1600.00. He got, in addition to that, the amount paid by other denominations. The Augmentation Grant was used in order to help these two gentlemen to live. There was a demand on the Augmentation to enable them live. The Augmentation Grant, according to the Act, is to be paid to a teacher who has a certificate stating that he has successfully conducted a school for one year. These men had been doing the work of teachers, but they were not teachers in the real sense of the term. Now we have saved that money for teachers' augmentation and given these men a regular salary. The salaries will be voted them in the Estimates the same as Government officials. With respect to the travelling expenses of the Superintendents and Assistant Superintendents, the work of office has increased manifold in the past ten years. To-day his presence is required constantly in his office, so that the necessity of voting a larger sum than two hundred dollars for travelling expenses is not apparent. In Nova Scotia the amount paid him for travelling expenses is two hundred dollars, and we are paying the same amount. I may say for the information of Mr. MacDonnell that it was the intention to divide the country into sections and put one Superintending Inspector in each area or district. That would lessen the distance he would have to travel, and he would be able to do better work. but for some reason that plan was abandone. This is a start. however. It may be necessary later to fall in with the views of my honorable friend, and when it is necessary I will be one of the first to support him in these views.

With regard to school census, census of children between the ages of six and fourteen, we have very few statistics. Next year is census year and we hope to have a full report of the ages of children, so that we shall have an idea of how many children of a certain age are at school and how many have not been to school.

MR MacDONNELL:—Just one word to thank Dr. Barnes for the information he has given. I may agree with him that something should be done with regard to the C.H.E., a change in the Examiners perhaps, but we must have some system of examination or test. The publishing of results may be wrong, and competitive examination for young children may not be sound, but we must have some system. However, as we are not abolishing the C.H.E. I think that a decent salary should be paid the Registrar; a salary equivalent to that of a Superintendent, and that the Secretary in that Department should get as much as the Secretary in the Marine and Fisheries Department. I would ask the Minister to look into that matter and see if it cannot be adjusted immediately. The Registrar of the Council of Higher Education is doing good work and should get as much salary as a Superintendent, and the Secretary should get a salary of twenty-seven hundred dollars, the same as a Secretary in any of the Government Departments. With regard to Pensions for teachers, I hope as Mr. Barnes has said, that something will be done in that connection. A teacher in the past has had no show in this mater. He must give thirty or forty years service before he gets a pension at all. Does it not suggest itself to the Minister that this falling off in teachers is not in a great measure attributable to the fact that teachers after they spent five years in the profession get out of it? The Doctor has not told us when the normal school is going to be established. I suppose he will later on. I trust that the Doctor will attend to that request of mine in relation to the matter of Higher Education, and I hope he will see that there will be no discrimination in regard to salary.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Chairman, I do not intend to say aynthing regarding the Bill itself, as, apparentl, the House is unanimous in adopting the principle of this Bill. I might say that it is the first time in the history of the country that we have had a Minister of Education, and I feel, speaking for this side of the House, that however much we may regard the programme as falling short of what was expected as regards the Bill, and however much we may be inclined to think that the Bill may not make any marked improvements of present conditions, we will all agree in one respect, and that is that the selection of the first new Minister is a gentleman who, we are all satisfied, will do his best to carry out the educational programme for the betterment of our common country; and we feel, further, that the Government in their selection, so far as this House possesses knowledge, have a fitting gentleman for that post. Dr. Barnes is a man of undoubted sinlerity and we wish his educational programme here and his department all the proud hopes tha the holds for them, and trust that his hopes will be fully realized; and we do say, however much we have in the past, as regards the Estimates, more or less criticized the idea of creating a department at all, that we are in no way at variance with the position, but rather have we the utmost confidence as to his own personal fitness for occupying the position he is now in; and we have the undoubted assurance that he will conduct that department in the spirit in which he has spoken to-day, a spirit not alone of fairness and propriety as regards the people, but more than all, with the keen desire of one who wants better educational conditions and facilities in this country. I trust that the department will be responsible for advancing things educationally in the direction about which we have had much adverse comment of late years.

The Minister himself and the member for St. George's reminded me this afternoon of a point that I would like to mention. Being in the unfortunate position of being consulted at meal hours as regards examination papers, naturally one's attention is drawn to them. I have seen some papers this year and I might say that the class of papers for young boys were very inapt. I have seen the type of paper referred to by the Hon. member for St. George's, and really it would be better if it was out of the syllabus altogether. I think we want a change of syllabus and a more judicious selection of gentlemen to set the examination papers. Personally I do not know who has been setting them. I am in favor of the principle of competitive examinations because I think that, generally speaking, it is a fair test, but certainly I think that the quality and class of test at present in existence is wrong. I am not an educationalist, but speaking in the sense of a layman, I hope that the Minister himself when he gets down to work will see the wisdom of adopting a different method. I do not think that there should be a total condemnation of the C.H.E. system as I see it. It has done a lot of good work. If the C.H.E. is not continued I hope that something similar will, As regards competitive examinations, I desire to repeat my personal good wishes and respects to the occupant of the new position and I congratulate him on behalf of the Opposition for the manner in which he introduced our first educational budget, and I hope that in years to come that the Minister and his Department will make such improvements that there will be no disagreement at all to this Act. I wish Mr. Barnes to understand clearly that the comment made in the past in no way reflected on his honesty of purpose or against the Department over which he is now going to preside.

MR. WALSH:—I cannot let this opportunity pass without expressing my appreciation of the Minister's success in bringing down this important measure. I can assure him that I am glad he has been so far successful and he has my hearty support in his great national work. I am sure the management of the Education Department will reflect credit not alone upon himself and his assistants but also reflect credit upon the country. St. John's perhaps to a greater extent than any other cestion of the country is given facilities in the way of education. But I am particularly interested in the outport school and whatever little schooling I got I obtained it in the District of Twillingate. I am interested in the outport school, not alone in my district, but in other sections of the country that I know so well to have suffered so badly from the lack of education, and this particular scheme that the Minister is ushering in will, I hope, remedy this condition of affairs and I hope the staff associated with the Minister will be of the same calibre as the genial Minister, and this being so, I see a bright future ahead for education in Newfoundland. I hope that in the interests of the whole population the matter will be grappled with in detail and with success. Take up the public press and you will read how abroad it is so currently reported that the people of Newfoundland are illiterate and very backward. Now this is an unfortunate state of affairs. Of course the people engaged in the fisheries cannot get a university training, yet they ought to be given a decent education which at present they are deprived of. I could not let this opportunity pass without expressing my confidence in the Minister and particularly hoping that he will meet with success.

MR. SAMSON:—Mr. Chairman, I would like to make a few remarks before this Bill passes through the Committee stage. I contend that this is one of the most important Bills that has come before the House. Education is undoubtedly the most important topic of this country, because upon it depends the future development of our Dominion, and the future intelligence of our people. Education has never received in this country the attention due to it.

In the past we have had yearly reports handed out by the various Superintendents of Education and we have found that these reports have contained many grievances and requests for reform. Some people have been interested enough to read these reports and forget them immediately after, but invariably they were never perused by the majority of our people.

I believe the Government is fully justified in creating a new department to deal with this most important subject. Now that we have a Departmental Head, our grievances, our requests and our criticisms can be aired in this House and the necessary reforms made from time to time.

I contend that the present system of education is very deficient in many ways. One of the great causes of these defects is due to the fact that our teachers have never been trained.

Mr. MacDonnell and I had the misfortune to be thrust upon an innocent public, as teachers, at the age of seventeen. Personally, I knew as much then about a child and his developments as I did about something I had never seen or heard of. I treated a child as a machine and tried to obtain results in my own crude way. When I think of the pupils I first taught, I can sincerely pity them.

Just think of the idea of sending a person after three months' training, or very often no training at all, to do the most important work in the country. In what other trade or profession would one become a director or master after such a training?

The teacher in his professional capacity is responsible for the development, of the body, the mind, and to a large extent, the soul of the child. How can he accomplish satisfactorily such a tremendous task if he has received but three months' professional training? No wonder our people are illeterate, no wonder we are 100 years behind the times.

The establishing and conducting of a Normal School in our midst, even if we have nothing else to our credit, will be a monument of which the so-called "Sausage Government" may justly feel proud.

As regards the inspection of schools, I contend, with all due respect to the gentlemen who conduct the work, that the system has been little more than a farce. It is a case of "the harvest being plentiful, but the laborers few." Under present conditions, the Superintendent or Inspector rushes through the work—he needs must rush because of the limited time at his disposal—and after a few hours, or very often, a few minutes, the work of inspection is done. In such a short time he cannot do justice either to teachers or to pupils, nor can he form any correct opinion as to what the pupils have accomplished during the year.

I seriously contend that the appointment of ten inspectors is a move in the right direction. Ten inspectors may be sufficient if our system were inter-denominational, but with the preent system it requires twenty or thirty to do the work which should be accomplished. These inspectors, by examinations, by criticisms, by pattern lessons and by lectures can be of inestimable benefit to teachers, children and parents.

The appointment of an Advisory Board I am quite in accord with. The increase in Augmentation is a move in the right direction, but the increase is not nearly large enough.

Teachers leave the profession because they are under-paid, and until you can pay them a living wage there will always be an exodus of the best and most efficient.

During my fifteen years of service in the teaching profession my maximum salary was only $760.00. At what other occupation or profession could I engage in and at the end of fifteen years receive such a paltry wage.

Teachers will not stay in the profession until the salaries are double what they are at present.

Night schools and school libraries are good things and are very important from an educational point of view. The building of schools in isolated places and the renovating and equipping of many of our old schools demand attention.

I give this Bill as far as it goes my hearty support, but I am sorry this Bill is not stronger in its demands for more reforms and higher salaries. I believe that the teachers who will meet here for Convention next week will not be satisfied with this Bill, and I should not be surprised if demands were made for more sweeping reforms than can now be accomplished.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had made some progress and asked leave to sit again.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again.

Hon. the Prime Minister introduced a Bill entitled "An Act Relating to Trustee Investments" which was read a first time and ordered to be read a second time presently.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:— This afternoon the Rt. Hon. Sir William Lloyd, Registrar of the Supreme Court, called upon me in the House, submitting a draft form of a Bill entitled "An Act Respecting Trustee Investments." Sir William Lloyd explained that because of his office of Registrar of the Supreme Court he was trustee of a large number of estates and held about $200,000 worth of Newfoundland Bonds. These bonds were payable to Bearer. Under the Trustee Act it was unlawful for him as trustee to hold bonds payable to bearer and Sir William stated that he had discussed the matter with the Deputy Minister of Justice and the Judges of the Supreme Court, and they had all agreed that this position should be remedied by Statute. There was no provision under the law of the country whereby these Government bonds payable to bearer could be registered so as to be payable only to the registered holder or bearer. This Act, of which I now give notice, is very brief and merely declares that it shall be lawful for the Minister of Finance and Customs to open at the Finance Office a register and that bonds issued by virtue of any Act of the Newfoundland Legislature may upon the application of any trustee be registered in that special Trustee Bond Register at the Finance Office. Since visiting the House this afternoon Sir William Lloyd has discussed the matter with the Attorney General and with the senior lawyer on the Opposition side of the House, Mr. W. J. Higgins, and I understand the Opposition will raise no objection to the immediate introduction of this Bill and its passage through all the stages. I consequently ask leave to introduce this Bill.

Whereupon on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister, the Bill entitled "An Act Relating to Trustee Investments" was read a second time and ordered to be referred to a Committee of the Whole House presently.

Whereupon on motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled, "An Act Relating to Trustee Investments."

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred and had passed the Bill without amendment.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the said bill be read a third time presently.

Whereupon the bill entitled "An Act Relating to Trustee Investments" was read a third time and passed and it was ordered that it be engrossed, being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Mr. Speaker left the chair until eight of the clock.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the bill sent up entitled "An Act to Regulate the Exportation of Salt Codfish" with some amendments in which they request the concurrence of the House of Assembly.

On motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the said amendments were read a first time and ordered to be read a second time presently.

Whereupon, the amendments were read a second time and passed and it was ordered that a message be sent to the Legislative Council acquainting that body that the said amendments had been agreed to without amendment.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Education the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Education Act."

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred and had passed the Bill with some amendment.

On motion this report was received and adopted and was ordered that the said Bill be read a third time presently.

Whereupon, the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Education Act" was read a third time and passed and it was ordered that it be engrossed being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Finance the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on Supply—

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had passed certain Resolutions, and asked leave to sit again.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Mr. Fox, the Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 143 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series) entitled ' Of the Keeping of Dogs,' " was read a second time and ordered to be referred to a Committee of the Whole House presently.

Whereupon, the House resolved itself into a Committe of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act to Amend Chapter 143 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Keeping of Dogs.' "

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs tok the Chair of Committee.

HON. THE SPEAKER:—This is a law to shoot the poor man's dog which is his horse in the outports, and not a few times during the bitter winter months he uses his dog to go in the woods and bring home loads of firewood to keep his family warm. But at the same time, while you shoot this man's dog, you allow hunting dogs to be kept, and I can say from my own experience in Carbonear that there the sheep have been more annoyed by the hunting dog than any other class of dog. Therefore I think this clause ought to be excepted, and if it in my power I will refuse to put this clause before the Chamber.

MR. SULLIVAN:—I note the amendment suggested and have much pleasure in supporting it.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, and had passed the Bill with some amendment.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Bill be read a third time presently.

Whereupon, the Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 143 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Keeping of Dogs'" was read a third time and passed and it was ordered that the said Bill be engrossed being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

MR. BENNETT:—I asked the other day, in the absence of the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, two questions. They were on the order paper yesterday. Might I have a reply now from the Minister who is now present?

HON. MIN. POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS:—In connection with the position of Mail Clerk on the Ss. Earl of Devon, I may say that no clerk has been appointed. With regard to Miss Chalker's dismissal. I may say that she got the regular three months' notice and according to that notice she was dismissed and now another lady is doing her work. Apparently the Executive Government deemed it fit to make this change. No serious charge was made against her.

MR. BENNETT:—For what reason then? Is it because of her relatives not being favorable to the Government, or what?

HON. MIN. OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS:—I suppose it is an ordinary thing in the course of a Government, especially a new Government, to make any changes and there has been a change in this connection and they are responsible for it.

The remaining orders of the Day were deferred.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon at three of the clock.

Mr. Fox gave notice of Question.

The House then adjourned accordingly,

——O——

FRIDAY, July 9th, 1920.

The House met at thre of the clock in the afternoon pursuant to adjournment.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present a petition from the people of Branch asking for a breakwater. It is hardly necessary for me to point out the absolute necessity of this breakwater, and I hope to receive the assistance and co-operation of the Government in having something done. Two thousand dollars was spent by the late Government on this work and the people of that place gave a lot of free labor towards it, and also a lot of material . Similar assistance has been given to the people of Grand Bank in building a breakwater at that place, and the benefit received from such a breakwater has indeed justified the large amount of money that was spent. Port Union was also given a breakwater and I think that it is only reasonable to give Branch the same consideration. This place is open to the sea like Grand Bank, and is a very dangerous piece of sea in rough weather. I had an experience myself in Branch, and one that I shall not forget. During the election campaign last year, my colleagues and myself arrived off that port at dark. A very heavy sea was running, and in fact it was a very stormy night. The little boat we were going ashore in was almost swamped and it took all our time to keep afloat. It was very near being a fatality, and but for the assistance of the people ashore there is little doubt that we would all have been lost. The Government has not been able to give us the coastal facilities that we ask for, and yet we pay our share of the taxes just the same as the other people who have been so privileged as to receive due consideration from the Government. I ask that an inspector be sent down to Branch so that on his report something substantial will be done.

MR. SULLIVAN:—I fully endorse all Mr. Walsh says. The conditions under which the people of Branch prosecute the fishery are something wonderful. It is only when a big fresh comes that they can venture out in their boats at all. There are at present 100 motor boats opearting in Branch and the people are so keen on getting this breakwater built that they have offered to supply all the timebr which is necessary for the work. We were able to give an allocation of $2,000 for the continuation of the work last year and something was done, but it is now necessary that the work be continued immediately, because the sand will shift and the channel will fill up. That this is badly needed there is little doubt, because if it was not, the people of Branch would not go to the trouble of drawing up a petition and presenting it to this House at this late date. I have very much pleasure in supporting this petition and I hope that it will receive due consideration of the Government.

HON. MIN. OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS:—Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present a petition from the district of Trinity, asking that there be no moderation of the Prohibition Act.

MR. HIGGINS:—In the temporary absence of the two sitting members for Hr. Main, I beg to present a petition from the people of Manuels, Chamberlains and vicinity asking that there be made some rules and regulations for the keeping of sheep and goats. The farmers in that district depend on their crops for a livelihood, and, owing to the scarcity of rails, it is found impossible to keep the sheep from destroying the crops. They now ask that rules and regulations be made to keep these destroying gentry from wandering in that area. In view of the fact that there is to be an election held there shortly I think that it would be a very good policy to grant the prayer of this petition.

MR.- HIGGINS:—Notice of Ques tion.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—I have a Bill here that I would ask the House to put through its various stages. It is more or less important and deals with the Esquimaux on Labrador who have died there during the influenza epidemic and who have left certain sums of money in the hands of the Moravian Missionaries there. At present there is no law made to have it paid over and distributed to the different next of kin. I am asking the Government in this Bill to appoint an- official administrator with power to collect and distribute this money.

"An Act to provide for the collection and distribution of the estates of certain Esquimaux Deceased" was here introduced and read a first time and ordered to be read a second time presently.

Whereupon, the Bill entitled "An Act to provide for the collection and distribution of the estate of certain Esquimaux Deceased" was read a second time and ordered to be referred to a Committee of the Whole House presently.

Whereupon, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act to provide for the collection and distribution of the estates of certain Esquimaux Deceased."

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibs took the Chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred and had passed the Bill without amendment.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Bill be read a third time presently.

Whereupon, the Bill entitled "An Act to provide for the collection and distribution of the estates of certain Esquimaux Deceased" was read a third time and passed, and it was ordered that the said Bill be engrossed being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

The Chairman from the Committee of the Whole on Supply reported certain Resolutions which were read a first time as follows:

Education.. .. ..$16,900.00

The said Resolutions being read a second time it was moved and seconded that the House concur with the Committee therein and the said Resolutions were agreed to.

Pursuant to motion and leave granted and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider certain Resolutions respecting a Loan for Railway Improvement and Civil Development.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Chairman, the Honourable the Minister of Finance and Customs has asked me to inform the Committee as to the object of the Bill. The position as I understand it is this: The Reid Newfoundland Company is in financial difficulties. They are unable to continue the operation of the Railway under their contract with the Government. The following is a memorandum in writing under date June 30th submitted by the Reid Newfoundland Company to the Government. I will read it for the information of the Committee and lay a copy of it upon the table of the House.

MEMORANDUM RELATIVE TO THE REID NFLD RAILWAY CO.

June 30th, 1920.

To sum up the matter in brief—The Contractors built the Railway upon the standard and specification called for by the Government which standard and specification was to meet the then (1890) requirements of the Colony, and was the standard and specification of the Placentia Junction and Hall's Bay line, which was a road built for development and settlement purposes and not with an idea for main line traffic. This is the standard and specification which is the basis of all contracts, the exception being the increasing of the weight of rail from 35lb to 50lb: but even then it was deemed necessary to lay 65lb steel on the lower end of the Placentia Road, built by the Government in 1888, owing to curvature and grades, which were about the same as the average for the first 150 miles between Placentia Junction and Glenwood.

No provision having been made in the Contracts for improvements over and above the standard set by the Government in 1890, and should the people of Newfoundland desire railway conditions more in keeping with the advancement and development of the trade of the country, that duty and responsibility rests with the Government and people who own the road.

The Contractors have continuously since the signing of the 1901 Contract endeavoured to improve the rolling stock and the equipment to meet the increasing traffic of the road. In this regard it may be pointed out that though the Government specifications did not call for it the cars have been equipped with steam heat, electric light up to date air brakes, automatic safety couplings, etc. Since 1915 the Company has been unable to increase its rolling stock and equipmnent in sufficient quantities to meet the abnormal demand thrown upon the railroad owing to the shortage of shipping resulting from the sale and loss of local ships during the war.

It is necessary to differentiate between the conditions of the road bed, which is owned by the Government, and the standard of which has not been improved since the Placentia Branch construction of 1888, and the condition of the rolling stock and equipment, which has been furnished by the Company, and which greatly exceeds the standard as laid down by the Government specifications under the contract.

Roling Stock, etc., of the Company from 1902 compared with 1918:

	1902	1918
Miles of Track	634.90	949.5
Tons of freight hailed	92,346	195,120
Passengers carried	125,632	298,992
Carloads ballast (1913)—389
Carloads ballast (1919)		11,664
Sleeping cars	4	6
First class cars	13	22
Second class cars	7	21
Mail cars	4	17
Diners	3	5
Box cars	55	241
Flat cars	68	230
Snow plows	6	13
Locomotives	20	41

Tie renewals 1902-1919—3,910,500 or yearly average of 217,250 ties.

In addition to this, rotary plows, steam shovels and ditchers have been added to the equipment.

The story of the railroad situation in Newfoundland is similar to all parts of the world, where owing to the war, the increased cost of labor, materials, fuel and general operations, railroads have had to be met by increased rates or subventions or both from the various Governments.

SHAREHOLDERS LOSS:

The Shareholders of the Reid Newfoundland Company stand in an unique position, as they are practically the only Railroad shareholders in the world that had to face all the losses which were directly attributable to the war: and this could be best put in a concrete manner by a statement that the operating losses of the railway for the six years pre war, 1908-1913, amounted to $363,057.12, against the loss in the six year war period, 1914-1919, of $1,544,429.13, which makes a difference of net loss to the concern and the owners of it of $1,280,000, which los is directly attributable to the war.

UNITED STATES CONDITIONS:

In the United States the net loss to the Government of operating the railroads during Federal control amounted to $900,478,000 and this was met by the tax payers of the country. In addition to this the railways of the United States have appeared before the Interstate Commerce Commission and asked for an increase in freight rates which will aggregate annually $1,017,000,000.

CANADA:

The story of Canada's railways is too well known to deal with at length, but the net loss on operating the Government roads last year was in the neighbourhood of $60,000,000, and with the addition of the Grand Trunk this year, the Minister of Railways admits it is hard to estimate what the tax payers wll have to meet.

WAR INDEMNITY:

Owing to the shortage of shipping greater burdens were placed upon the Newfoundland Railway than it was ever intended to bear and it has entailed considerable depreciation in the road bed and rails owned by the Government, so much so that should the Dominion of Newfoundland enter a complete claim for indemnity against Germany it would be fair to include in this the re-railing of the road as well as the losses sustained by the owners during the war, namely $1,280,000.

The losses on the Reid Newfoundlan Railway operation for twenty years amount to $3,265,116.34.

To give an idea of the relative increase and development of the Dominion of Newfoundland the following figures are of interest.

	1901	1919
Total Trade ..	$16,606,491	$70,081,800
Revenue	2,060,581	9,535,725
Trade of Canada	2,489,499	12,777.684

It is fundamental to the question and it must be clearly borne in mind that the operating expenses of a transportation system in any country must, if efficient service is to be given, be paid for by the people of that country. The contracts for railroad construction were conceived with the idea of colonization and settlement of the Dominion, and entered into both by the Contractors and the Government with this idea in view, and on the whole attained their object, the losses being comparatively small. The situation created by the war is an abnormal one not contemplated by either party, and has brought about condition where unforeseen happenings beyond control of human beings render a review of the situation in the interest of the country advisable.

The reasons for the road bed being in a run down condition are because in the first instance the standard laid down according to the contract was never sufficiently high for a main line traffic road and was adopted ostensibly with a view to the colonization of the country. Secondly the Company, with the Government's consent, in order to try and meet the increasing demands upon the railroad with the growing trade of the Colony, placed heavier locomotives and rolling stock on the road, which has proved after some years of experience to have been too great a strain on the rails and road bed, but both the Company and the Government conceived they were acting in the best interest of the country by so doing.

Had conditions remained as they were prior to the war the Company could no doubt have carried on the operation of the road, but the heavy increase of traffic which had to be taken care of on account of the lack of shipping and the abnormal increase in the cost of operation both as to materials, wages and fuel, have placed the road in such a position that since 1914 the following losses on operation have been made:

LOSSES IN OPERATION

1914	$171,445.81
1915	167,176.84
1916	134,137.63
1917	108,843.97
1918	317,275.86
1919	645,549.02
	$1,544,429.13

COAL FOR LOCOMOTIVES

1915	$164,693.58
1916	191,238.27
1917	294,105.50
1918	365,436.59
1919	586,227.29

RAILWAY PAY ROLL

1915	$507,444.32
1916	593,561.79
1917	737,295.77
1918	928,648.18
1919	1,249,937.48

COAL COST REDUCTION:

The Coal bill for the road increased from $164,000 in 1915 to $586,000 in 1919, but should the contemplated development of the St. George's coal areas under the Government be completed and the Coal on the track cost the estimated figure of $4 per ton a saving on the Coal bill for the operating of the road can be effected amounting to close on $280.000 and as Coal has already made several advances since January 1st, it is safe to assume that with the production of St. George's Coal a saving in operation of the railroad might be effected to the extent of $350,000 per annum.

The increase in revenue for the road for 1919 over the year 1914 was $645,051.86. The increase of operating expenses for the same period is $1,159,813.25 and the loss for the same period shows an increase of only $471,103.21. It must be quite apparent that the result could only have been achieved by careful management under very difficult circumstances.

As to whether the statements contained in this memorandum are correct or not I do not know. As to what the financial position of the Reid Newfoundland Company is I do not know. I do know, however, that the system has not been satisfactorily operated for some considerable time, and it appears to be now on the point of absolute collapse. The railway system is a public utility which must be cperated. It may be handled in one of three ways. First, by the Reid Newfoundland Company going into liquidation and a receiver being appointed with power to temporarily operate the railroad until matters betwen the company and the Government and other creditors are adjusted. The second way is for the Government to take over the rail line and then get down to the proposition of making such adjustments as it is possible for them to make with the Reid Newfoundland Company for their breach of contract. So far as I understand the position, that is the method which the Reid Newfoundland Company would refer to have adopted. The third way to deal with the matter is by temporary arrangements under which the rail line would be operated by a joint commission, not a Government Commission, but a Commission upon which the Government would have representatives and the Reid Newfoundland Company representatives. Representatives of the Reid Newfoundland Company have had several interviews with a Committee of Council and have laid before them their position, the memorandum just read being a statement submitted by the Reid Newfoundland Company to Committee of Council as setting forth their position. I understand that Mr. H. D. Reid has also had a considerable number of interviews with individual members of Council, so that the whole matter might be discussed, and, so far as possible, all the members of Council, none of whom are railroad experts, might become acquainted with the railroad situation of the Colony. It is quite probable that some temporary arrangements will be made with the Reid Newfoundland Company for the operation of the railway for the coming fiscal year.

Of the million and a half loan proposed in this bill $1,000,000 is for railway purposes and is intended to be devoted to railway improvements. The remaining sum of half a million dollars is intended for coal development work primarily in connection with railway operation. The St. George's Coal Fields, Ltd., owns a property upon which very satisfactory reports have been received from geologists as to the probability of its containing a large quantity of coal suitable for both railway and domestic purpose. It is also regarded as a satisfactory gas coal. Mr. Howley's report upon the area have been very encouraging. Mr. Forbes, of the Reid Newfoundland Company, who is a capable geologist ,reports that in his opinion there is not less than a million and a half tons of coal capable of being worked. Through the courtesy of Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Borden, Prime Minister of Canada, Mr. Dowling, who is probably the leading geologist of British North America in the matter of the investigation of coal areas, visited Newfoundland and has given the Government a report which indicates that here is a very large quantity of workable coal in this area The proposition in connection with this half million dollars is that if satisfactory arrangements can be made with the St. George's Coal Fields, Ltd., the Government will undertake coal operations in this area, the supply of coal being used primarily for railway purposes, but also for domestic purposes and the production of gas, if it is found that the coal can be mined and delivered in St. John's at a satisfactory price.

The policy of the Government in connection with the operation of the railroad during the coming year and the matter of the coal areas has not been decided upon, but the object of the bill is to provide a million and a half dollars, all of which is primarily for railroad purposes, it being intended, so far as any definite policy has been under consideration that $1,000,000 shall be appropriated for railway improvements and the remaining half millions for the development of the St. George's Coal Fields, Ltd., for the purpose of providing a coal supply as indicated above.

It will be noted that the Bill provides that bonds shall be for a period of ten years and the interest shall not exceed six per cent.

I fully appreciate the fact that the honourable members opposite have taken the position on a number of occasions that to deal with this entire railroad problem will mean an expenditure of nine or ten million dollars, and the idea of a Loan Bill of a million and a half will undoubtedly be the subject of ridicule. I have merely to say that this is a provisional measure to enable the Government to do something towards the improvement of the rail line and make it approach in some slight measure a workable railroad. When the Legislature next meets full information should be available as to the condition of the rail line, and its cost of operation, and I hope it will then be possible for the whole position to be fully and intelligently discussed by the House.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—On behalf of the Oposition, I ask that the Committee rise and report progress, so as to give us time to consider this matter, as this is a very important Bill because of the fact that the sum of one and one- half million dollars is involved, and there is no reason why this should not stand over for twenty-four hours to allow us time to consider the matter.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—That is a very reasonable request. I move that the Committee rise, report progress, and ask leave to sit again to-morrow.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman of the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred and had made some progress and asked leave to sit again on to morrow.

On motion the report was received and adopted and it war ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act further to amend the Revenue Act, 1905"

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

THE HON. THE MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—While the first three parts of the Bill (An Act to further amend the Revenue Act, 1905) have already been considered by the Committee of the Whole on Ways and Ways and Means, I would like to explain the other portion of the Bill, namely, section four. Some time ago the postal rates were increased by adding one cent, and as Newfoundland forms part of the Universal Postal News. and as we have put on one cent extra postage without consulting those countries concerned, we have been asked by the Colonial Office to put in this section so that those countries that compose the Universal Postal News shall not be slighted. As some of us in Newfoundland know, Newfoundland was included in the Universal Postal Convention. The Canadian Government is doing the same thing.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Before passing this Bill (An Act to further amend the Revenue Act, 1905) I would like to point out that while the Budget was being criticised from this side for ten hours several questions were asked in reference to it, and the information asked for has not been given. The Prime Minister was absent while the Budget was being discussed and the Minister in charge of the Budget left the House for eight hours while this document was before us. There are several things in the Budget which are absolutely necessary for this House and the Country to know. And while I am not intending to go over the same ground I do say that it is not fair to this House or to the people of the country to allow this Bill to go through without getting this necessary information asked for. Now in looking over the Auditor General's Report I notice there is at last a surplus of $3,314,638. It would be interesting to the Opposition to know the intention of the Government in this direction, what is its disposition towards this amount of surplus. Is it the intention to put this amount to the credit of the Government at the Bank of Montreal, or does it intend to spend it in addition to the $1,500,000 asked for in this Loan Bill before the House? Surely you do not expect the House to close without giving the members on this side of the House this necessary information. It is the usual custom of the Minister in charge of the Budget to explain all these matters with detail. We did not treat the Opposition in this manner when we were on the Government side of the House, and we do not expect the Government to treat us differently. I would like to hear the Prime Minister tell us what is the intention of the Government with reference to this $3,300,000. You come in and ask for this loan of $1,500,000 with this amount already to your credit. Are you going to leave it there to your credit or what? I think some time ago I asked the Minister of Shipping about the Coastal Boats Ss. Prospero and Ss. Portia. I have heard nothing about this matter, and I also asked for information about the accounts. This also has not been answered. We would like to know what position you are in financially in this matter. When the ships were taken over we were in credit and it is only fair to us, and we are entitled to see those accounts dealing with those two boats. They were purchased for two hundred thousand dollars each and it was paid out of the surplus mentioned in the Auditor General's report. The amount for arbitration in reference to the Reid Newfoundland Company was also paid out of this surplus. This information should be given voluntarily and it must be given before these Resolutions pass the House. This is part of the procedure and these accounts should have been laid on the table of the House. I would like the Minister of Finance to explain about those figures.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:— In dealing with this matter, I am speaking from memory and am consequently able to quote round figures only. The Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Bond's reserve of half a million dollars was entirely exhausted by the late Government prior to the end of the fiscal year 1916-1917. On the first of July, 1917, there was neither reserve nor surplus. The revenues for the fiscal year which expired on the 30th day of June, 1918, were exceptionally good, due to the largely increased cost of goods and the fact that our duty was an ad valorem duty, combined with the proceeds of special War taxation. There was consequently a substantial surplus. War expenses were paid by Loans and the Surplus was put to the credit of Surplus Trust Account as at the first of July, 1918. Of this sum, amounting to $1,170,000, during the year 1918-19 there was expended $1,-125,000, representing $725,000 for railway purposes and $400,000 for the purchase of the "Prospero" and "Portia," leaving a credit to the Surplus Trust Account on the first of July, 1919, of $45,000. The surplus of revenue over current expenditure, not including War Account which was still handled out of War Loans, for the year 1918-19 which expired on the 30th day of June, 1919, was $2,769,000, which gave a credit balance on Surplus Trust Account as at the first day of July, 1919, of $2,814,000. Out of this $12,-814,000 the late Government appropriated the famous half-million "Corruption Fund" for electioneering purposes, the actual amount appropriated being $1,497,000. This is the money which was squandered throughout the country during the months of September and October of last year and for which a value not exceeding ten per cent of the expenditure was secured or can ever expect to be secured. There was an amount of about $1,800 paid the Reid Newfoundland Company in connection with certain claims of theirs, $5,000 was transferred to the Department of Agriculture and Mines in connection with Railway Arbitration, and the present Administration purchased the S.S. "Watchful" for $63,-000 and, on the certificate of the High Commissioner in London, about $23,- 000 was paid for expenses in connection with the "Watchful" and the two steamers which had been donated by the British Government to Newfoundland. Then the Militia Department had to be provided with funds. They required $1,000,000. $400,000 was available on account of last Loan, $200,000 from other Loan Accounts, and to make up the total amount required the sum of $400,000 was taken from the Surplus Trust Account, pending the raising of a further War Loan if such should be found necessary on the final adjustment of War liability and the possible refunding, in such an event, of this amount of $400,000 withdrawn. This made a total debit of $993,000, leaving a balance to the credit of Surplus Trust Account as at the 30th day of June, 1920, of $1,720,-000. The Auditor General informs me that the Estimated Surplus on 1919-1920 account will be approximately three million dollars, as against which there will be substantial war liabilities to be liquidated at least temporarily out of that account.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Chairman, it was brough to my notice that certain candy manufacturers in the city can purchase sugar at much lower prices than small buyers. I understand that the F. B. Wood Company can buy it from four to five cents a pound cheaper. This information was given me by a manufacturer of candy. Now there is another matter that I want to mention. Some time ago I made enquiry regarding the suspension of the Inspector of Customs, Mr. McGrath. Now I understand that Mr. McGrath is still under suspension, if not dismissed. The Minister of Finance and Customs says that there have been no other steps taken. Mr. Chairman, I want to place myself on record as being absolutely opposed to this conduct of the Government towards Mr. McGrath, and I consider it my duty to state right here my opposition to this conduct. Two and a half centuries ago two gentlemen on the Irish coast packed their bags and left for the New World. These two gentlemen were McGrath and Walsh, and it is a strange coincidence that one of the descendants should find it his duty to get up in his place in this House and denounce what has been done to the other descendant.

The McGrath family has been prominent in the public life of Newfoundland. The father for five years held a seat in this House of Assembly. Asociated with him were other gentlemen who did themselves credit in representing their districts. He was followed by his son, a brother of the man who is now under discussion. The name of McGrath is respected all over the district of Placentia and St. Mary's. When Mr. James McGrath retired his place was taken by Mr. R. T. McGrath, and in 1900 he was elected a member of the Libertl Party. In 1904 he was again elected under Sir Robert Bond, and in 1908 he went down to defeat. He was later appointed Stipendiary Magistrate and was appointed Inspector of Customs in 1915, and now we find that this man who has been so closely connected with public life of this Colony has been practically driven out of office without a hearing.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, and had passed the Bill with some amendment.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the said Bill be read a third time presently.

Whereupon, the Bill entitled "An Act further to amend the Revenue Act, 1905" was read a third time and passed and it was ordered that it be engrossed being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the following Bills sent up entitled respectively "An Act to confirm a Contract on the Subject of the Manufacture of Paper Pulp and Wood Products" and "An Act Respecting the Dominion Co-operative Building Association Limited" without amendment.

Hon. the Prime Minister tabled Report of the Government Engineer upon the Government Railways for year 1919—

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs the House resolved itself into a Commiteee of the Whole on Supply—

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—When I was in the Department of Finance and Customs I knew about Mr. LeMessurier and about every official in that Department, but I didn't allow Mr. LeMessurier or anybody else to run me when I was there, and I took no statement from anybody until I found out whether it was correct or not. If the present Minister of Finance had followed in my footsteps in that direction concerning the case of Mr. McGrath he would not now be in the position that he finds himself in the House to-day. The facts as I know them are that Mr. McGrath sent in a requisition for $150 to go West and inspect the Customs around to Port aux Basques and do down the West Coast. He brought that requisition to Mr. LeMessurier who refused to O. K. it. Mr. McGrath then took it to the Finance Minister, who told him that he would see about it and the requisition remained in the possession of the Finance Minister. Later on a Mr. Sterling was sent North to do Customs work. To this Mr. McGrath objected before the Minister of Finance, pointing out that it was his work that Mr. Sterling was sent to. Mr. McGrath was told to see Mr. LeMessurier about it. Now these gentlemen did not see eye to eye with each other and the altercation, which we are discussing to-night, took place. At the wind up of it McGrath was suspended within an hour and without any hearing. Later on Mr. LeMessurier wrote to the Finance Minister pointing out that he thought Mr. McGrath had gone West and that he had signed a cheque for him to go West. Later Mr. LeMessurier was allowed to take back that letter to the Finance Minister, and wrote another letter. On enquiry it was found that Mr. LeMessurier was not correct in his statement and that Mr. McGrath could not go West, because he could not go without money to pay his expenses. Mr. McGrath was still in his office, a fact that was known to Mr. LeMessurier,- although Mr. LeMessurier put up that statement, and it was known to the Minister of Finance. Another man was put over Mr. McGrath's head and given the necessary funds to go North or West, as desired. Do you call that the right and proper treatment to dole out to a man of Mr. McGrath's intelligence and experience and standing in the community. After the altercation took place you ordered Mr. LeMessurier to write a leter to Mr. McGrath suspending him. Now to be fair to Mr. LeMessurier and Mr. McGrath and all the other officials of that department, I might say, that for the ten years or so that I was in charge there, that if I wrote letters for all the requests that I got from Mr. LeMessurier and all the other Misters down there without enquiry, I would have been kept busy all the time in this particular direction and I would have had probably the whole staff suspended. But I never allowed Mr. LeMessurier or anybody else there to dictate to me. When Mr. LeMessurier made charges against any official I always waited to hear the other side of it, and very often Mr. LeMessurier was in the wrong. And Mr. LeMessurier is in the wrong to-day, because the very letter that he wrote proves it. You had right to give Mr. McGrath a hearing in his own defence. You intimated to Mr. McGrath that politics was the cause of the trouble.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—If Mr. McGrath took it in that way he is laboring under a false impression.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—It was not your place to chase after Mr. McGrath and coax him to come back. That was not altogether in keeping with the dignity of the position which you hold. What you should have done was to order an inquiry into the matter. You should have written Mr McGrath to that effect and heard the evidence from both sides. You have not done justice to that department nor to some of the officials of that department like what was done by the heads of some of the other departments towards their officials. Take the Agriculture and Mines Department where the recommendations of the Commission appointed to enquire into salaries of civil servants was followed regarding increases. In your department you have increased salaries contrary to the recommendations of the Commission and you have decreased salaries contrary to the recommendations of the Commission. Take Mr. O'Reilly's case. After you were cornered and it was pointed out to you that you were doing him an injustice, you asked to have the vote held over in the Estimates. Apparently now you are increasing Mr. O'Reilly's salary. Take Mr. LeMessurier, the Cashier, you did not give him a raise; and Mr. Fox, who holds a very important position. Take Mr. McGrath. You reduced his salary and I know how you reduced it. The reason is Mr. LeMessurier took charge of you and whatever salary he told you to reduce you reduced. You did worse than that; you went to Ferryland district and you dismissed thre or four tide-waiters there. This, in my opinion, is low down and contemptible treatment. Take the tide-waiter at Bay Bulls. With nothing against him you dismissed him forthwith. To-day Bay Bulls is suffering because you are not prepared to put another man there. This is one of the principal parts of our district and necessitates having a tidewaiter all the time, because American vessels are contiually coming there at this time from Gloucester bound for the Northern Banks. You went to Renews and dismissed a man at the instance of Mr. LeMessurier, because I know that Mr. LeMessurier was after this man for years. Read the recommendations of Inspectors O'Reilly and Dee, under whose care this unfortunate man Brazil was, and you wil find that he was dismissed solely on the recommendation of Mr. LeMessurier. Why did you not enquire into the matter? Take the man at Caplin Bay who never interfered in politice and who gave entire satisfaction, who was dismissed without warning, and you put an incapable in his place. This was done by the wire-pulling of one Hartery, a defeated candidate.

These are samples of who is running your department. LeMessurier is in charge of the department. While I refrain from saying too much of LeMessurier, there are many stories that I could tell of LeMessurier which would prove interesting. One of these stories, as referred to here this evening, happened at Bonavista, and it got the Customs into a bad mess last year. Before Mr. LeMessurier leaves on his long vacation get him to tell you the story and then ask the old man Templeman of Bonavista to witness it, after that I will ask you to go to a picture show and see if you can find anything to beat it. I do not blame you. I know that you do not know anything about the department. This man McGrath whom you have thrown on the street was a member of this Assembly when you had short clothes on. Each and every individual down there that served you in politics got their salaries increased as high as 100 per cent, while those who did not agree with you politically have to suffer. This brings me back to the discussion before the chair this evening and of the Speaker's opinion of that principle. Take the young man DeLacey, referred to here the other day. His case was indecently handled in my estimation. This is a poor chap, afflicted by God, whose two brothers went out and offered to lay down their lives for you and me, yet you have not dismissed those drawing $2,000 and $3,000 a year. No, you have courted and are courting those, while the heads are cut off Brazil, Day and DeLacey. And this is how the Government of the day have abided by the decision of the Commission appointed to adjust salaries and increases. That is the apparent object and that is the platform of the Government, to dismiss the ordinary civil servants that took part in politics, but Mr. Salter, whom you used politically, you put him in one of the best positions you got to offer. And it appears that our Speaker endorses this principle very strongly, according to the statement that he made this evening concerning the firing of Mr. McCarthy on the street. It reminds me of a quotation that I read in the history of the late Judge Prowse, which suits a number of members of this House and which reads as follows:

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—Of course that was written to mean both sides of the House.

SIR. M. P. CASHIN:—It's possible, though not probable. Well now, after reading that indictment of the late Judge Prowse, and then to go back a few months and think of the promises made by the great Liberal-Reform Party, with the accent on the word Reform, and to come on the other side of the House, one would be inclined, in my judgment, to agree with what that deceased gentleman wrote. But before taking my seat, I would like to point out to the Minister of Finance that, in justice to Mr. McGrath, he should be given a hearing. You should appoint a Commission—Commissions are the order of the day just now you know—and allow that Commission to hear the evidence of Mr. LeMessurier and Mr. McGrath and then abide by the report of that Commission. I repeat that it is not in keeping with the dignity of the position of the Minister of Finance to go to Mr. McGrath and ask him to wait until Mr. LeMessurier moves out temporarily and then slinge back into office. That is what was done by the Minister of Finance. I know enough of Mr. McGrath, and I know all the McGraths, and I think that, in my opinion at least, he will not be found to have his position handled in this fashion, and that he would much prefer to jeopardize his job rather than act on the recommendation, as already referred to, of the Finance Minister. If you are just and fair or trying to be just and fair to Mr. McGrath, appoint a Commission. Get their report and then deal with Mr. McGrath according to that report. That is all I have to say on the matter. The other matters will come up again to-morrow or next day.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—Mr. Chairman, I have listened with a great deal of interest and attention to the remarks of the Hon. Leader of the Opposition. I answered every question put to me as truthfully as I could and, with his permission, I would like to ask him one or two questions later on in the debate. However, his own admission will show whether it was spite or spleet on my part because of the friendly relationship existing between the Hon. member and Mr. McGrath that I dismissed Mr. McGrath or not. Your own very answer will prove that such is not the case. With regard to the dismissals on the Southern Shore, I may say that I answered some of them on a previous occasion in this House. With reference to Mr. Brazil, I may say that that gentleman was receiving a salary of $820 a year, and besides that amount he was receiving one dollar per day board money while on shore. When I took over the office I discovered that Brazil was on shore for at least five or six months out of the year.

SIR E. P. CASHIN:—Not more than four months at the outside; he used to be engaged in other parts of the country doing Customs work.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—Admitting that he was four months unoccupied in Ferryland district receiving the salary mentioned and an extra dollar a day, I did not consider that the man was earning his salary. It was not in any spirit of spite or spleen that I removed Brazil.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—On economy?

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—If I wanted to remove friends of the late Government for their politics, I doubt if there would be a civil servant left all along the Southern Shore.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—There are not many of them left there now.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—With regard to the other friends of the Hon. member, I have not interfered with them in their positions. Regarding the Tidewaiter at Bay Bulls I decided to have the business there done by the Sub-Collector. I do not know who this man Day is, or what his politics are.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—I am sorry you dismissed him on the recommendation of Mr. LeMessurier.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—I did no such thing. I felt that his services there would be fully carried out by the Sub-Collector, without a Tidewaiter. If I find out that the business there warrants a Tidewaiter I will appoint one. As to the appointment to Aquaforte, I think that the hon. member will agree that we made this possibly to our own detriment, as the official whose name is Winsor was a friend of yours.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—It is a- terrible compliment to appoint young Winsor, who fought and bled for you. I think that it is the height of impertinence on your part to get up and mention his name.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—I have my strong doubts if you would have appointed him if he was up against you in politics, and we know of some of the appointments that you made in the nature of misfits for that matter.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Mention one.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—

I can mention several if I liked. The Commission said that some of your appointments were too old and unfit for the work they were called upon to perform.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—I challenge you to mention one. Any appointments I made I am prepared to sand by them now. I never refused to appoint a returned soldier anyhow.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—What about Mr. Chafe? He was opposed to this Government.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—And what about that notorious slacker Foley? Did you want the old man Chafe, who sent three sons to war, to go himself too? You were young enough to go yourself, but didn't.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—You must know a lot about my age.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—There were men older than you went. The old man Best, who was over 60 years of age went, and you should have gone.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—He went with the Forestry Battalion.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—You would be better in the woods, too.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—I would be as good as you are any day, either in the woods or in here; and I can prove that. The day that the statement is made here, as was made about you a few years ago, I will walk out through those doors.

SIR M. P. CASHI:—Its another mater to produce the proof yong man. You put this Colony to the expense of $15,000 to try and prove these charges and you did not acomplish your task yet; you are still searching for the proof. Now don't lose your temper.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—I am not losing my temper and it is a good thing for you that I am not. I want to say that I have answered every question asked me truthfully since I have been sitting in this chair. Every man, woman and child in this country knows that since the opening days of this session you have been persecuting the Prime Minister and myself; you are not after anybody else but us two.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—We are going to make you do what is right. You know the reason and I have told you already in this House the reason.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—You are not able to tell me anything. You made statements in this House that are not correct. Twenty years ago you made statements that you had to retract and statements were made against you that were not taken back. I want to ask if it is not correct that you suspended two or three men in the Customs Department without enquiry. Well then, is it wrong for me to do likewise? Have I not, as one man to another, done all I could to get Mr. McGrath back in his office, clear of any political animosity whatever. In fact you have admitted yourself that I stooped below the dignity of my office to try and get him back. I took the same attitude in suspending McGrath as you took in suspending other men in that department. When you suspended those men you found afterwards that you took a wrong step, but up to the present I find that I have not taken a wrong step. No man, either LeMessurier or Keating is going to run me in that office. I admit that I went into politics practically a new man. I went into it unsolicited. I did not seek politics; politics sought me. I do not like the dirty game. Since I went into that department I tried to do what is just and fair for the country's betterment and I am going to continue trying to do it. I have recommended an increase for every man in that department. I will leave it to my friends in the Executive if

I did not agitate for an increase of $100 for Mr. McGrath, and it was only after strong agitation that I got it. Is that the attitude of a man using spite and spleen against McGrath. All the increases that I looked for I could not get. Every Departmental Head in the Government sought increases, they got some but could not get all. I want to say once and for all that I have acted fair and square in that department and to every individual in it. I stood up for men whom I knew had strong party feelings and inclinations towards members on the other side of the House. One of them in particular was a messenger drawing $1150 a year. I had the fight of my life to keep that official's salary at $1150. I want to say for the last time that I have been as fair and square as I could in that department. With regard to Mr. O'Reilly, everything that happened in his department was not to be known to the members on the other side of the House or to the public at large. Mr. O'Reilly was to see me a short time before the Estimates were made. He pointed out that there were certain duties in connection with his office that he looked upon as legal work and might have entailed the services of a professional man and he asked me for a certain allowance for doing it. I upt the matter before the Executive, as Estimates were on and I did not know what was in the Estimates with regard to the salary of Mr. O'Reilly. But when recommendations came from the other side and acting upon the report of the Commission, I placed the matter then before the Executive. After seeing Mr. O'Reilly they gave him an increase that met his views. I, consequently, allowed him $3600 per year instead of any allowance for any additional work. I want to state here that whatever Mr. O'Reilly politics were was immaterial to me. Since my entry into that department I have always tried to do what is right and fair, irrespective of politics. I admitted here at the opening of the session that my parliamentary experience was nil, but I am not unwilling to learn when I am in the right school.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Mr. Chairman Just a word or two in reply, pointing to the economy applied by the Finance Minister regarding Ferryland District. Tidewaiter Brazil was paid $800 a year whcih is less than the ordinary laborer on the wharf can earn and far less than what a fisherman can earn in four months. And still the Minister tries to justify himself by saying that the $800 paid Brazil who was engaged on the Fiona and other boats on the Protection Service Work in connection with the Colony, was too much. But as soon as the new Minister struck his department , Brazil, who has no black mark against him and in whom no fault was found, gets his head cut off, so to speak. With regard to Mr. Brazil, I would like to make it clear that, although he did not spend the whole of the season on the "Fiona," he worked as Tidewaiter and when the "Fiona" was otherwise engaged he was sent to various parts of the Island for similar work.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—Pardon me for interrupting, but Mr. LeMessurier did not hand in any recommendation to me for the removal of Mr. Brazil.

SIR M. P. CASHIN:—Take now the man at Aquaforte. Mr. Windsor was the officer there but he died during the month of April of the present year. Mr. Windsor sent two sons to War. They went with first contingent. Windsor died in April, I recommended Mark Windsor, but he was not appointed to this position, although the position was not a very important one, the salary being but $300. Windsor was only a poor man doing a small business of his own at the time. Evidently you would wish to bring me under a great compliment to you for having suggested the appointment of Mr. Windsor to this position, but I realized that Mr. Windsor was fully entitled to this position, not alone in that he had been a returned soldier, but that his father had occupied the position before him. There was no charge of any kind against him that should deter him from getting this appointment, whereas there were many things in his favor which should have induced the Government to place him in the position which had been vacated.

The Minister of Finance has stated this evening that he removed Mr. Brazil under a plea of economy. Mr. Brazil had done his duty and given every satisfaction. No charges had been preferred against him and it seems strange to me that the Government should retrench in this way by dismissing tidewaiters who were receiving small salaries, as a method of economy, just as the Minister of Public Works, who sits next the Minister, started by a line of economy in the purchase of splits for his department. The Finance Minister dismissed Brazil because he felt that he had not supported the Government, and removed Brazil from the Public Service because in his opinion the salary he was receiving was too great a strain on the finances of the Colony. There are others now who are getting much more in the matter of increases than Mr. Brazil's whole salary, but the Minister is now feeling uncomfortable because these matters are shown up to him. If anybody were to look at him to-night they would find that he is considerably tormented. He has made the charge that he and the Leader of the Government were the only two on the other side of the House who were being persecuted by me and other members on this side. I do not know that either of these gentlemen can justify that attitude in the light of their conduct towards me during the recent election. If I have anything to say in the House I am prepared to say it right here from my place in the House. I do not run away, but the Prime Minister is always ready to leave the Assembly when I rise to criticize any action of the Government in which he is immediately concerned. If he and the Finance Minister had had the common sense and common decency, after the General Election, to take up the matters of the various departments and forget what has happened during the election, they would not have had the trouble of defending a by-election in St. John's West because we would have permitted them to be returned by acclamation, but as soon as they got in their departments they started rummaging for information, thinking they would find a mare's nest and that they would succeed in putting the Cashin crowd in jail. They boasted openly that this would be their attitude towards the members on this side of the House. . What has happened? The Minister of Finance and Customs prostituted his department by producing information with regard to certain individuals who were concerned in the raising of the Loan for the Colony and handing that information to the, Prime Minister thinking that in so doing they would damaged me in the eyes of the public. I have no objection to the Minister furnishing any information that would be considered useful to him in the interests of his election in St. John's West, but I think that when dealing with information of this class he should have represented matters fairly and not unjustly. Not alone did the Minister search all the records of the Finance and Customs Department, but the Government turned down the Auditor-General and imported two detectives, costing about $12,000, to go thoroughly into all the public accounts to find, if possible, any charges of dishonesty against the late Government. They started a campaign of villification through the Daily Star, claiming that a shocking state of things existed in all the Departments. They sent this news broadcast, not alone through the country, but they aired it outside this Colony in Canada and the United States, thinking to damage the reputation of those who had been associated with the late Government for so many years. After making those charges against me, charges which they in no sense could corroborate or prove, they now squeal because I take the position here of defending myself against the malicious statements they have made. The Prime Minister, while he is prepared to use the "Star" to villify me, is not prepared to come to this House and make similar charges from his seat on that side of the House, nor is he prepared to in any way endorse the charges made repeatedly by the organ of the Government. He has dragged my name through the "Star" and has handed out information most damaging to the reputation of all members of the late Government. The Finance Minister obtained in the Finance Department the names of those who were connected with the raising of the National Loan. There were several names on that list, including business men, financial agents, banks, and other commercial institutions, but they singled out the name of my child, who was also one of those who received a slight commission for raising a part of that loan. They made it appear in the public press and they made it appear upon the public platform that no other person had received any commission, and the Prime Minister did not hesitate to state before a public meeting in St. John's West that those of my immediate family were the ones who had received consideration at my hands. insinuating that some dishonesty had been aimed at by me in connection with that loan. Both the Finance Minister and the Prime Minister featured this particular matter all through the District, and the people of St. John's West could not be blamed if they accepted that statement which the present Prime Minister handed out. It was a cowardly attempt to villify me but I have since shown through a statement which I read before this House, that there were over thirty people in connection with that loan who had received a similar rate of commission for the raising of the loan and the people of St. John's West now know that those statements, made at that time, were as false as any other statement made with regard to the present Government. The Finance Minister denies that he ever made any attack upon me or upon my family, but if he did not make the statement he heard Mr. Squires make it and, knowing it was false, made no attempt to contradict it. This is the reason why I have strongly criticised the Minister of Finance and the Prime Minister from my place in the House. I have nothing to say to any. other member of the Government or any other supporter of the Governement on the other side of the House. I consider that the others fought a clean fight, that they won by honorable means, and I am not one of those who would deny them the credit that is due them for putting up a successful fight. I would have had the same feelings towards the other two gentlemen to whom I refer if they had acted like men, and if they had not made false charges against me I would not now be dealing with them in the manner that I am. In the Majestic Theatre, the Prime Minister announced to the public on the eve of polling day that my daughter received certain commissions, insinuating in a way that she had received stolen property, but next to her name on that list was that of Sir Edgar Bowring, to whom no reference whatever was made. This is why I condemned the action of the Finance Minister and the Prime Minister, because I feel that they acted disgracefully in connection with the whole matter, that they made statements which they knew were false, regarding me, and they had not the manliness to correct those charges either there or at any other time since. Men of this class are generally the first to squirm and cry for mercy. I can now bring the different issues of the "Star" containing the charges made by the Prime Minister and Minister of Finance against me and my family. I have satisfied this House, I think, on the matter, that all the charges made with regard to me are false and that they were made for one puspose, the purpose of deceiving the electorate, that with them the end justified the means, and that they are not yet prepared to offer that apology which would be necessary from gentlemen for their infamous conduct in the matter. The Finance Minister said he did not know or understand the statements in that Budget. He is excited, and, to give emphasis to his statement, he pounds the desk and declares to the House and the country that he is an honest man, but he should not consider or try to convey the impression that there are no other honest men. The Budget has been torn to pieces by the criticism of the Opposition, and there is not a man on the other side of the House to defend it. The Minister of Finance is the man in charge who should be able to defend his statements contained in that Budget. But, instead of doing so, he stands up here pleading for mercy, because he does not know anything about the position which he holds. He should be able to explain fully every detail of the Estimates. He shoud come in here with a detailed statement of every amount contained in those Estimates. He is expected to give this House every information, but he is unable to do so. He said that we are persecuting himself and Mr. Squires. We admit that we have criticized both these gentlemen, and I have already given the why. Those reasons should impress themselves upon them so that in future they may be able to pursue a different course and treat Members of this House with that respect which is due them. We came to this House to deal fairly with all matters which came before the Legislature, but the attitude of the Government, particularly of the Minister and Prime Minister, has convinced us that our proper attitude in the future will be to call a spade a spade, to speak out plainly, which we intend to do from this out. Whilst I have a seat in this House I will not be prevented from criticizing in a manner which I consider proper, any measure brought before this House by any Member of the Government, and I now say that if the Prime Minister and Finance Minister serve their country during their term of office as creditably as I have done during my time, that they will have nothing to regret, and that I feel that I resigned my office with a clean record.

Getting back to the matter to which I referred, Mr. Brazil's dismissal, I would point out that Mr. Brazil was receiving $800 per year, that he had a family of eight children and a wife to support. If the Government intended to economise by dismissing him and saving $800 it does not seem consistent that they should come in here and vote $30,000 for themselves and vote the Departmental Heads $4,000 each; and further, whilst the Commission stated that- no Depart metal Head holding more than one position should receive more than $6,000, still Mr. Squires is prepared to accept two such positions, meaning $8,000 and perquisites, which further increases his salary to at least $12,000. Brazil was a competent official who did his work honestly and earnestly, but because he was blamed for supporting me—and this I cannot confirm with regard to him—he had to be dismissed. If this is the kind of politics which the present Government intend to follow, the statement which I have referred to to-night, made some time ago with reference to the Legislature and contained in the history of Judge Prowse, applies to the present Government. Last Fall the present Government denounced the Reid Newfoundland Company violently and held them up to public ridicule. They claimed that when returned to power they would keep the Reid Newfoundland Company up to their contract and see that the railroad was put in first-class condition. To-day we have a Loan Bill introduced here to help that Company out of its present difficulties. The Finance Minister would be expected to introduce his Loan Bill, but he is evidently not competent to deal with it and unable to pilot it to the House, so he is compelled to hand it over to the Prime Minister, who last year denounced so violently the whole Reid outfit. Take the attitude of the 'Star' which is the organ of the Prime Minister, and what do we find? We found them stating day after day previous to the election and since the election that they would do everything to put the Reids in their places They would compel the Company to operate the railroad in a satisfactory manner and claimed that if the Company had not the means to repair it, the Government would take it over and run it properly. I am now reminding them of their attitude during the last eight months. That attitude has entirely changed and in the last hours of the session, under suspended rules, this Loan Bill is introduced. The Prime Minister to-day stated, in introducing the Bill, that the Government had no confidence in the directorate of the Reid Newfoundland Company. Still he is prepared to introduce this Bill to give them a million dollars of the public funds of the Colony to help them out of their difficulties. This is not consistent with the attitude of the Prime Minister in his appeal to the electorate last Fall. His attitude then was the attitude of a man who would go to any limits to deceive the people in order that he may obtain power and enrich himself at the public expense. There are many statements in his Manifesto which are not in keeping with his position in this House to-day. Many men on the other side of the House must certainly sympathize with the Prime Minister in finding him compelled to introduce this Bill in the manner in which he did. During the last moments of the Session he is asking for a loan to put the railroad in condition. He assured the public that if elected he would take over the railroad if it were not run properly, as well as the lands and the assets of the Company, but to-day we hear nothing of this and we know when he made those statements he had no intention of carying them out. He also knew that those statements with regard to the Reid Newfoundland Company were false, but it served the purpose he had in mind in deceiving the people as to his real attitude, and he now turns a complete somersault in dealing with this Company. We are also told that out of the Surplus of three or four million dollars which was acqured by the late Government, only $400,000 of this Surplus now reman. I will again refer to this matter to-morrow .

MR. BENNETT—Mr. Chairman, the figures that were given us by the Minister of Finance as to the expenditure of the surplus require some explanation. The time does not permit to-night to diiagnose them. Ducks and drakes have been made of the surplus to the tune of $2,000,000.00 I think, it is important that during the last two or three days we have been callled upon to pass bills of far-reaching effect under suspended rules. It is a very unfair position in which to put this side of the House. We are given no time in which to consider these matters. On Thursday we had Dr. Barnes introduce a Bill of the greatest importance. It is somewhat revolutionary in its character. The addition of so many officials with increased expenses might have been criticized much more fully from this side of the House.

It is a pity that the Government ever touched the sugar situation. All that bugaboo about a shortage of sugar was mere profiteer propaganda.

This railroad Bill should have been brought in earlier in the session, but I am sure the Opposition will be glad to facilitate the Government in any way possible at this late stage of the session. A million dollars is only a drop in the bucket. The Prime Minister pointed out this afternoon that it would take $300,000 to put fish-plates on the road from here to Port-aux-Basques. Strong words of condemnation have come from the lips of the Prime Minister regarding the present management of the railroad, and I know that this money is voted against his better judgment. The Government was not unanimous in the matter, and pressure was evidently brought to bear to get him to bring in this legislation. We cannot afford to trifle with this railroad legislation. It is a matter that affects every man and woman in the country.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had passed certain Resolutions, and asked leave to sit again.

On motion this report was received and adopted, and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again.

It was moved and seconded that when the House rises it adjourn until to-morrow afternoon at three of the clock.

Mr. Walsh gave notice of Question.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

SATURDAY, July 10th, 1920.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon, pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. Sinnott gave notice of Question.

The Chairman from the Committee of the Whole on Supply reported certain Resolutions which were read a first time as follows:

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—As some of the largest items in Additional Estimates appertaining to the Department of Militia, and other items come within my own personal knowledge, I shall, with the permission of the Minister of Finance and Customs make brief reference to the various items listed. The first is a vote of $250,000 for the Department of Militia, that is the estimated cost of the Department from the first of July, 1920, to the 30th day of June, 1921. Up to the present the entire cost of the Militia Department and all matters appertaining to soldiers and sailors have been paid out of Loan Account with the exception of the sum of $400,000 appropriated by the present Government out of Surplus Trust Account, which $400,000, together with $150,000 voted for Supplemental Supply covers disbursements to the 30th day of June of this year. This sum of $150,000 includes augmentation of pay, Separation Allowances, Military Hospital Commission. It does not include pensions, as that has already been voted in the Estimates, the amount for pensions being slightly over half a million dollars. The next item is the sum of $100,000 for additional pensions for soldiers. In my Manifesto issued last October I pointed out that there were some material distinctions between the Canadian scale of pensions and other allowances for soldiers and sailors and the Newfoundland scale and understood that the Canadian pension scale as it then was would be applied to Newfoundland. The question then arose as to whether the application of the Canadian scale would or would not be beneficial to Newfoundlanders and their dependents. There was some difference of opinion, and I understand there still is some difference of opinion, but the G. W. V. A. sha animously, decided to support the application of the Canadian pension scale. At a meeting between the Executive Government and a representative deputation of the Great War Veterans' Association the deputation stated that in some cases the application of the Canadian scale would undoubtedly reduce pensions, but the reductions would not bring about any hardship while the application of the Canadian scale would have the effect of giving increased pensions to specially deserving cases. The Great War Veterans' Association is thus fully conversant with the facts. There appeared to be some difference of opinion as to whether on the whole an application of the Canadian scale to Newfoundland would cost the Newfoundland Government more or less than the Newfoundland scale as at present. Some are of the opinion that the medical examination and appraisals of property and income are very much more stringent under the Canadian scale than under the Newfoundland scale. Others are of the opinion that the medical examination and appraisals in Canada are not so severe as in Newfoundland. As a result of a recent conference between the Executive Administration and representatives of the Great War Veterans' Association it was decided to give for the calendar year of 1920 a bonus of twenty per cent in cases of soldiers and sailors total disability to the dependents of deceased or totally disabled soldiers and sailors, that bonus to come into effect from the first of January, 1920. It will be remembered that in consequence there was taken in Supplemental Supply a vote of $50,000 for Additional Pensions. $50,000 is estimated to be more than sufficient to cover the bonus of twenty per cent in these cases from the first of January to the 30th of June, and by some it is estimated to be more than sufficient to cover the total increases which are likely to result from an application of the entire Canadian scale from that date if the Government decide to apply the Canadian scale in toto. The twenty per cent increase is not a permanent increase. It is an increase for the year just as it is in Canada and is based upon the increased cost of living, the percentage to be given, if any, will be graded every year. That is, if the cost of living has materially decreased by January, 1921, there would for the same reason that this increase of twenty per cent has been given, be a reduction in the percentage, and if it is found that the cost of living has increased, increases should be according to the same principle given. The vote in the Additional Estimates for $100,000 is estimated to be more than sufficient to cover the increases to the extent of twenty per cent for the entire fiscal year, and by many it is estimated as more than sufficient to cover the entire increases which would probably result from the application of the Canadian scale as a whole. I am not myself in a position to express any opinion on that point as the opinions expressed to me are very conflicting and I have had no opportunity of making myself personally acquainted with the facts.

The next item is a vote of $73,000 under the head of Civil Re-establishment. Up to the 30th day of June the Civil Re-establishment has been conducted presumably subject to the Department of Militia, and has been paid out of Capital Account. The work of the Civil Re-establishment Committee has been very considerable and the entire country owes a deep debt of gratitude to the Civil Re-establishment Committee under the able chairmanship of Mr. Justice Kent for their abundant labor of love on behalf of the soldiers and their dependents. This committee has worked for years, has given much time, thought and valuable effort to the matter of Civil Re-establishment, Vocational training, finding of employment for soldiers and sailors. Their work has been entirely without remuneration or reward, with the exception of the salary of $1,600 which has been paid to the Vocational Officer, and that salary is not regarded as a payment to him for his services, but rather as a sum of money which would enable him to pay for the performance by others of that portion of his duties as Church of England Superintendent of Education and Civil Re-establishment work, he is unable to perform. Certainly the officials of the Department are drawing a salary, and some of the members of the Civil Re-establishment Committee occupy military and other public offices, but many of the members of the committee are giving their time and attention to the work without any thought of financial reward whatever therefor even in the most indirect manner. Some months ago when the Executive Administration was looking into this matter of Civil Re-establishment it was found that the committee was working with an absolutely free hand, without estimates, and without apparent responsibility to anybody, the moneys being paid by the Department of Militia and borne by Capital Account, the large disbursements made in connection therewith not coming to the attention of Council. In view of the very large expenditure involved, representing to date substantially over a quarter of a million dollars, the Government felt that the Civil Re-establishment Committee should for its expenditures be directly responsible to Council. In connection with the conference between the Executive Administration and the Civil Re-establishment Committee estimates were submitted as to their requirements for the coming year. These estimates were as follows: $42,000 for the three months of July, August and September; $21,000 for the three months October, November and December ;and $10,000 for the following six months to the 30th day of June, 1921, and this total of $73,000 is the vote concerning which I am now addressing the committee. Thus from the first day of July the Civil Re-establishment Committee stands upon the basis of a philanthropic unpaid committee which holds itself responsible for this important work of Civil Re-establishment, their disbursements being limited by the Estimates as just stated. They will have full discretionary powers in connection with the handling of matters within their jurisdiction up to the expenditure of these various sums. The Civil Re-establishment Committee were of the opinion that their services might be dispensed with by the month of November or December next, possibly as early as October, but I hope that the Committee will remain in existance and continue the conduct of the work until the end of December, by which time the Committee themselves feel that the work will be so reduced that it may be satisfactorily handled by such of the officials of the Department of Militia as may be in charge of the winding up of the Department.

The vote of $55,000 for Customs Examining Warehouse is a matter which I am sure will meet with the unanimous approval of this Chamber. For many years this has been an outstanding necessity. The late Administration made provisional arrangements for the construction of a new warehouse, and this is the vote which is to carry on that most necessary undertaking.

The next is a vote of $50,000 for Postal Telegraph building. That is an undertaking the immediate public necessity of which is known to everybody. The total expense is estimated at $100,000, of which a vote for $50,000 is now taken. A very large portion of the delays, irregularities, inaccuracies and annoyances in connection with the Postal Telegraph system are due to the inefficient accommodation both for the telegraph operators and the public in its present quarters.

A vote for $1,600 for additional inspector under the Education Act is necessitated by the increase by this House of the number of inspectors from ten to eleven. The Education Act as passed provided for eleven; the education estimates provided for ten, and this vote provides for the eleventh.

The next two items are the additional amounts payable to the stenographers of the Council of Higher Education and the Registrar of the Council of Higher Education. These two amounts were omitted from the Estimates prepared for the Education Act.

The next is a vote of $50,000 for the Long Bridge. Many years ago the bridge was destroyed and a temporary bridge was made, it being the intention to put up a permanent steel structure. That temporary bridge has given service for years, and is now in such a dilapidated condition that a new bridge must be erected, and the intention is to put a permanent steel structure there. The bridge must be of sufficient strength to carry the large water main which after the construction of the bridge will be used to carry the supply of water across the river to the Southside. The road leading from Water Street to the Southside will be paved. We are all acquainted with the congested conditions of traffic. The bridge and roads leading thereto on either side will consequently be widened. The pavement will bring the surface permanently level with the railroad crossings, and the present abominantly muddy and rutty condition of that section of the town over which there is such large amount of truck, carriage and foot traffic will be improved. This matter has been inquired into from an engineering standpoint by the Government Engineer and the City Engineer, and it is hoped that it will be possible to complete the work for $50,000.

The next item is Steam Subsidies of $85,000. This is a vote for additional moneys which in all justice must be paid to certain steamers undertaking the carrying of mails. The present subsidies are based upon figures of many years ago. The services of these steamers cannot possibly be expected at these figures under existing conditions. If the committee desires any details in connection with this matter they will be given them by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

There is a vote of $100,000 for Harbor Improvements and $100,000 for Public Works. Harbor improvements cover such important undertakings as pier at Grand Bank and other matters of public importance. $100,000 for public works cover allocations for roads, bridges and other items requiring immediate attention. The vote of $25,000 for roads includes the $10,000 already provided for by statute as a vote to the Road Commission created by Act of the present session of the Legislature. $25,000 for telegraph and telephone extension will not be regarded as a large vote, but the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs estimates that very many items of most pressing importance may be accomplished within the limits of that vote.

The next three items, that of the upkeep of the new Fog Alarm Station at Lamaline, the St. Lawrence Fog Alarm Station, the Lamaline Fog Alarm, are matters of special marine importance. The item entered as "Chance Brothers order for Marine and Fisheries" is given in detail in the agenda attached to the Estimates as tabled and includes a number of acetylene lights. The vote of $3,000 for oil tanks for lighthouses is in accordance with the policy of the Administration to provide efficient and economical service. The method of supplying oil to lighthouses and the storage of oil at lighthouses has been rightly the subject of very great criticism. The waste of kerosene and gasolene has been enormous. The Government feels that by taking a vote of $3,500 now and at a subsequent session of the Legislature supplementing that vote tanks may be provided for all lighthouses requiring them and satisfaction in use and economy in fuel be secured. This it is estimated will more than repay the capital invested.

The vote of $250.00 for Child Welfare arises out of an arrangement recently entered into between myself on behalf of the Government and the ladies of the Women's Patriotic Association. As is well known, the ladies of the W.P.A. have since the War been identifying themselves with patriotic work of a very practical nature. The Child Welfare movement is due almost entirely to their enthusiastic activities. The first step taken in this connection was taken by the Morris National Administration, of which I was Colonial Secretary, an arrangement being then made in which the Government intended to give a vote of $450.00 towards Child Welfare. That vote was given for the year during a portion of which I was Colonial Secretary, but was not included in the Estimates for the following year and consequently dropped. After I assumed office in November last I was waited on in connection with the matter, with the result that the $450.00 overdue was provided for and the vote increased from $450.00 to $750.00. About a month ago I was in touch with the Women's Patriotic Association and suggested that the Public Health Officer should be given a budget of $4,000 for expenditure in connection with Child Welfare work. For some years Mayor Gosling has, I am informed, been donating his salary as Mayor to this work, and the City Council were considering taking up the matter and making a donation. My proposition was that if the City Council donated $1,000 and the Women's Patriotic Association $2,000, the Government grant would be raised to $1,000. I understand that that proposition has been acceded to; hence the sum of $250.00 which was placed in Supplemental Supply covering the sum which would be paid for the present year and now this sum of $250.00 in the Additional Estimates would cover the amount for the 1920-21 fiscal year.

The said Resolutions being read a second time it was moved and seconded that the House concur with the Committee therein and the said Resolutions were agreed to.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. Minister of Justice the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act to amend and Consolidate the Laws in relation to the Municipal Affairs of the Town of St. John's."

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the mater to them referred and had passed the Bill without amendment.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Bill be read a third time presently.

Whereupon, the Bill entitled "An Act to amend and Consolidate the Laws in relation to the Municipal Affairs of the Town of St. John's" was read a third time and passed, and it was ordered that it be engrossed being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message requesting the concurrence of that body in its provisions.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a mesage from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Newfoundland Patriotic Fund Act, 1915" in which they request the concurrence of the House of Assembly.

On motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Newfoundland Patriotic Fund Act, 1915" was introduced and read a first time and ordered to be read a second time presently.

Whereupon the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Newfoundland Patriotic Fund Act, 1915" was read a second time and ordered to be referred to a Committee of the Whole House presently.

Whereupon, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Newfoundland Patriotic Fund Act, 1915."

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred and had passed the Bill without amendment.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Bill be read a third time presently.

Whereupon, the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Newfoundland Patriotic Fund Act, 1915" was read a third time and passed and it was ordered that a mesage be sent to the Legislative Council acquainting that body that the said Bill had been passed without amendment.

Pursuant to order and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Finance, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on Supply.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee reported that they had considered the matter to them referred, had passed certain Resolutions and asked leave to sit again.

On motion this report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Committee have leave to sit again.

Pursuant to notice and leave granted and on motion of Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider certain resolutions respecting a loan for Railway Improvmnt and Coal Development.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the Chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

HON. MINISTER FINANCE AND CUSTOMS:—Mr. Speaker, as one who sat on the Council Board, and one who fully realises the work done by Mayor Gosling, I want to endorse the remarks made by the Hon. the Prime Minister, and also to endorse the remarks made by Mr. Higgins, with regard to the Citizens' Committee. My intention in getting up is to explan to the House that the present draft of the City Charter is not completed, and I have given a personal guarantee to the Citizens' Committee that one or two of their recommendations, to be embodied in this Bill, will be brought down next session. I just wanted to prepare the House and to tell them that it is not finally settled.

MR. WALSH:—I beg to suggest what I think would be beneficial to the districts. I take it that there are too many ports for the Argyle to serve. She is not large enough. Have Marystown as terminus for Eastern ports, then the Argyle could be the link with another steamer for the inner portion of the Bay. The assistance of another steamer is necessary to have the coastal service there run properly. As to the Cape Shore of both bays, I think the placing there of a small boat would please the people. One terminus could be at Trepassey where there is railway connection and the other could be at Placentia where there is also a railway connection. This would make a suitable link between Trepassey and Placentia. Now, in reference to the purchase by the Government of two or three steamers, I have heard that one of these is to be sold to a company. May I ask the Minister if it is a local company?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Yes, it is a local company which has been incorporated.

MR. WALSH:—I anticipate that this company will put this ship on the coastal service, and I hope the Government intends to put these two other ships in the service of some part of the Island. If you have three additional steamers consideration ought to be given to this very important belt of coast line between Trepassey and Placentia. There is no coastal connection between these places at the present time. The Minister suggested that during the winter months the services of these ships would not be required and then the Trepassey and Placentia route could be given attention to, but the services of these ships are required before the winter months set it. The people there require coastal facilities for marketing their produce. They have no railway connection. Some time ago the people along there from Branch lost heavily by their inability to market their fish. They had to bring it down here in the Spring and sell it a loss of five dollars per quintal. I merely point this out to show the justice of the statement as regards these people. I am glad to hear the Government is recognizing the just claim of these people and they have been recognizing it for some time. It was impossible for the Government of which I was a member to do anything in this matter, because during the years of the War it would be impracticable, and the people did not press their claim, but now the War is over and this is a new Government with a large surplus left it by the late Government which is being distributed lavishly and there is practically only half a million of it left. And I hope that the District of Placentia and St. Mary's will be given due consideration, because it is their right. And the people of that Dstrict have given their proportionate part towards that surplus; they have paid dollar for dollar with the men of Bonavista Bay and Twillingate and Burin and every other part of the Island, and there is no reason why the district of Placentia and St. Mary's cannot get one hundred per cent of their just claim. I do not anticipate their not being given it. All I would ask from the present Minister who has to a great extent a lot to say in the matters referred to, namely, fog alarms, light houses and general coastal facilities, that before the closing of the House if it is possible, to grant a conference with the representatives of the district. It would only require fifteen minutes for my colleagues and myself to place before the Minister what is necessary to satisfy the claim of the people of that district. They are reasonable people and no unreasonable requests have come from that district to this House during the years I had the honor to represent it and the people there have been broad-minded and big-hearted enough to endorse any request from any other part of the Island that was reasonable. And I take it it is only the wish of the Minister to meet the representatives of the District so that we may get a fair show. I do not think the Minister is the man who would turn down a just claim because of the fact that the district did not return three Liberal Reform standard bearers. If the Minister expects to have his photograph hung on the walls of the homes of these people he ought to show them sympathy when he is in a position to do so and he is well able to look after their interests in this House if he would exert himself a little.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Before the Committee rises I would like to explain that item for one hundred thousand dollars. This amount is for Normal School expenditure. Instead of being in the Additional Estimates it should be charged on Capital Account and then debited Surplus Account. I omitted to refer to this while it was before the House.

MR. HIGGINS:—I wish to say just one word for the purpose of commenting upon the remarks of the present Government that the past Government were characterized by their spending habits, but I think the blame was wrongly directed, as the present Government is starting out with the substantial Additional Estimates covering one million dollars. But as regards the third period of the year which has to come, I venture to prophesy that the expectations of the Government will not be realized and I think this celebrated expenditure in the form of Additional Estimates will thoroughly satisfy them that the late Government was not so lavish after all. The Government is starting out well in the matter of figures.

Mr. Higgins asked the Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if Patrick O'Toole, late Lighthouse Keeper at Pack's Harbor, has been dismissed; if so, for what reason, and to lay on the table of the House copies of any correspondence which may contain a complaint against the said official.

HON. MINISTER MARINE AND FISHERIES:—Patrick O'Toole was dismissed on the request of some of the members of Conception Bay.

MR. HIGGINS:—OF which district?

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—You can include them all. The request was made by the people of Bay Roberts, the members for Harbor Grace and other members in Conception Bay. You can include them all. I might tell the hon. member that there have been several dismissals from Light House positions on the Labrador Coast. We intend to have the present lights replaced by acetylene lights and then there will be no need for the present keepers. The men who are doing the work are only temporary.

MR. HIGGINS:—But may I ask the Minister to explain this? Since the Speaker shakes his head , he must have been dismissed by the Hon. Dr. Barnes, Mr. Archibald and Captain Gosse. But Dr. Barnes shakes his head and Mr. Archibald says "No" and I think it is unfair to blame Capt. Gosse when he is absent from the House. Surely there must have been a reason over and above the mere fact that this man was requested by some one or some persons to be dismissed. O'Toole lives in Harbor Grace and has no position in God's world. Then why was he dismissed and by whom?Surely that is a reasonable request. I am sure the members of the F.P.U. did not recommend his dismissal. I am sure it was not because of the color of his tie. Now the Minister knows that what he has said does not represent the real story. Why not tell us right out why the man was dismissed? As to the further part of the question I ask that it be laid on the table of the House.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—I have given the hon. member the best explanation I could. If he wants to fully discuss the matter, well, I am satisfied to go on and discuss it. It was not because of the color of his tie.

MR. HIGGINS:—I take the answer of the Minister to be this: Because some one recommended his dismissal he was dismissed. You know there must be some cause why it was done more than a mere request to do so. The Minister well knows he will not dismiss any Civil Service employee because he is asked to dismiss him. This is not in the line of the conduct of the man. What has happened? Does the Minister decline to answer?

HON MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—Does the hon. member take the position that because a half dozen are dismissed there is no reason. I suppose the reason is political.

MR. HIGGINS:—Well, politics forms the reason why he is dismissed. I suppose the only construction that can be placed on it is that he did not vote right in Hr. Main and was dismissed from public service. But after all I must state that if the Minister dismissed him for political reasons the information which was conveyed to him must have been false, because he is going to re-appoint him in a position of a Warden. Is it not correct that his salary as light-house keeper is to be doubled as a Warden?

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—His present position as Warden will carry the same amount as he got as Light-House Keeper.

MR. HIGGINS:—If you are going to give this man only quarter of the salary he got as light-house keeper you have done far worse because the information which coused his dismissal was false, but I feel confident that the Minister will re-adjust his salary and all I want to get is an undertaking that this man will get decent treatment.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—He will get the same salary that he got as light-house keeper. As was done by the late Government, he will be paid by two or three departments. He will receive some from the Game Board and some from the Fishery Board.

Mr. Walsh asked the Minister of Finance and Customs to lay on the table of the House a statement—

(a) Showing all payments made to R. T. McGrath, Inspector of Customs for the past two years, ending June 30th for travelling expenses;

(b) Copy of all vouchers for said payments.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE:—In answer to this question I may say I have received the information asked for. Last night in debating I made a statement to the Leader of the Opposition to which he took exception. I stated that there were no vouchers returned for the amount advanced this gentleman for inspectorial work. I still contend that no vouchers from a business man's point of view were received. The Auditor General accepted them and stamped them, but for a long time he took exception to them, saying they were not vouchers. I have much pleasure in presenting these bills, but I still contend that no vouchers, from a business man's point of view, were received.

Mr. Walsh asked the Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to lay on the table of the House a statement showing

(a) The amount of money paid E. G. Stone of Catalina for services in connection with the department of Marine and Fisheries from July 15th, 1917, to November 15th, 1919;

(b) Class of work performed and time employed.

HON MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES:—In reply to the hon. member for Placentia and St. Mary's I have to say that I only saw the question now, and I will take the matter up and give the information in a day or two.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN:—Before the passing of these Resolutions, I wish to make one or two observations. I am glad that the railway policy of the Government has been presented to the House at last. We were waiting for ten weeks to be informed what the Government intended to do with reference to the railway, or what their attitude would have been towards the Reid Newfoundland Company. We know, and the people know, that considerable discussion with regard to this matter had taken place in the public press last September and up to January, with regard to the railroad. Considerable blame was laid upon the late Government because of their action towards the railway management. During the six months just passed, the new Government made it their platform and policy to criticise us for our action in regard to the reconstruction and repairs of the Reid Newfoundland Railway, saying that we failed to keep the contractors up to their contractual obligations. The present Government made this their platform on going to the electorate. Both on the platform and in the public press it was presented to the people of this country by the present Government that we had been wanting in our interest to the people in our failure to compel the Reid Newfoundland Company to put the railroad in that condition of repair, which it evidently called for, and the members now on the Government side said in effect: "if you will return us to the House of Assembly we will look after the railroad and put it in good condition." Everything that happened on the railroad for the past number of years in the way of accidents or disarrangement was charged to the late Govt. After all that has been said in that direction, we expected something in a business way from the Government of the day. The disinterested outsider who has read the statements of the public press for the past few months has been looking for a report of the proceedings of the House, to see what is doing or what is going to be done by the present Government, and up to this point in the session no pronouncement had been made; but yesterday, on the eve of the closing of the House and under suspended rules, the Finance Minister —or pardon me, the Prime Minister —brings down a half-hearted proposition to this House and this country in reference to the Railroad. The Prime Minister made a statement here yesterday with reference to the Reid Newfoundland Company wherein he pointed out what the Government intended to do in that direction.

MR. SULLIVAN:—Mr. Chairman, as I have already remarked, I found that when I last began there were no reporters in the box. I presume that there must be some good reason for their abence. However, as the supervisor has kindly consented to transcribe my few remarks, I shall now proceed with the question before the Chair. In dealing with the Resolutions before the House, I propose to deal with them in a spirit of constructive criticism, because I deem it a duty which I owe to my constituents to place myself on record as being in favor of the Resolutions in so far as they go towards placing the Railway on a workable basis. I wish to take this opportunity of congratulating the Prime Minister on his evident conversion to the principles of Reidism. I feel sure that there is joy among the directorate of the Reid Newfoundland Company over the return of the prodigal Squires back to the fold in which he used to wander from 1908 to 1919. I will now quote a paragraph from the "Daily Star." (Mr. Sullivan quotes from the "Daily Star.")

That being so why are we votnig them one million dollars? I think the idea that the road will be put in repair by putting on new fish plates is a ridiculous one. That is only one provision. No provision has been has been made for raising the road bed, new ties, renewing rails, reducing curves, and numerous other things that must be done before the road can be operated successfully. I venture to predict, that with the same conditions next Winter that we had to face last Winter, that the position will be worse with regard to tie ups. I can understand the Premier coming in and asking for one million dollars for road repairing, but when it comes to putting seven hundred thousand for terminals and rolling stock, and only three hundred thousand for road work, it is bordering on twenty years behind the times, and if the Reids cannot run it it is up to the Government to see that it is run, and properly run. I have just returned from a trip to Canada and I came across on the Kyle, and I want to say here now that the accomodation on that steamer was not nearly sufficient for the number of people travelling on her. It is essential that there should be another boat put on that route to accomodate the people who are travelling.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Chairman, now that we have arrived at a period when we got to get sensibly to work to devise the best way that the railway has got to be kept up and properly kept up, the money has to be provided to keep it up. It is like a poor tenant who has got a house but is unable to keep it in repair. The landlord for the sake of his own property comes in and they make a joint deal to help the thing along. The same applies to the railway and the Government. In the opening days of the session when the Address in Reply was under debate I made a commentary and I have only to repeat it now that it is only necessary for hon. members to remember the conditions under which we built the railway to be forced to the conclusion that it is nonsensical to expect that the railway can be kept up properly under present day conditions. We built a cheap railway many years ago under conditions that were never contemplated at that time would have to compete with our present day methods, and in the years that have passed we have found ourselves, through stress of traffic, compelled to admit that the farcical notion of talking of keeping the Reids up to their contract only meant the going back to those conditions of twenty years ago. I think I have stated dozens of times that the railway, when it was built, was never intended for a carrying railway at all, and it was never contemplated that it would be called upon to do the heavy work that it is called upon to do now. The proposition is peculiar to me as one who was familiar with the operations of the railroad and as one who has been paid for studying the railway contract; but I can say this that the Government of the day have acted wisely when they took the advice of the Attorney General and when they took the liability they were saddling the Reid Company with, and I have to say this that the thing that always struck me forcibly was that if the Company took the alternative and said "There is the outfit, run it yourselves," the whole thing would be on our hands. We would regret the day when such a course as this would be taken. As I pointed out on the opening day of this session, if you advertise this railway to-day all over the world no reputable concern would touch it, unless you have a substantial cheque to offer in advance. It can never pay as a railway and the reasons are obvious. A railway can only pay with short hauls and no long haul in the handling of freights. This Company always have long hauls, and until such time as you develop a sort of inter-town traffic like they have at Grand Falls and with special rates for short hauls on freight, you are not going to make it pay. And that day is not in the immediate future. It may come, but it will never come in a hurry. To-day a shipment of flour is dropptd off a steamer at Port aux Baques, the terminus of the railroad, put on board a train and is carried all the way to Humbermouth, a distance of hundreds of miles, before it is landed, whereas if this freight was dropped off somewhere en route and some other freight substituted, it would be an entirely different matter. The other situation that we must bear in mind when dealing with this problem so far as the earning power of trains are concerned, is that we are in the unfortunate position that whatever is voted now can only be termed a temporary cure until such time as the guage of the road is altered. With our present guage an engine and train crew can only haul one-half the freight that they can haul in Canada and for the same amount of expense; in other words a train here will generally take six car loads of freight to one haul, whereas in Canada a train will take twelve, this in view of the fact that wages and other expenses are equal, so that you absolutely cannot have a railway pay in this country without making some very marked changes, and it is just as well for us to look at it in that way. That being so, the proper course, I think, for us to take in the way of a business proposition is this. Say to the Reid Company, you are operating this railway and we are prepared to help it out, but in return bear in mind that you got certain lands and water powers and certain natural resources and which are greatly enhanced by the carrying on of the railway. And I say here now that the Reid people themselves ought help the Government and the Colony in the operation of the railway for their own sakes, because the development of those timber lands that they have largely depends upon having the railway run as methodically as possible. It is clearly our duty to the country to see that the railway is kept up and that is why I support the measure now before the Chair.

The great point lost sight of by some people with regard to the operation of the railway is that they have lived in a fool's paradise, inasmuch as they have been under the impression that the railway was supposed to be kept up in accordance with the nature of traffic and that if it was not kept up—I regret that the Prime Minister is not in his seat in the House to argue that point—that we would turn around and come down on the Reid Company. Any person who has read the contract knows that the Reids to-morrow have their penalty for them in the contract. One thing we should bear in mind, now that the elections are over and the Prime Minister having used his election kite to his advantage on this issue is that this business has got to be tackled properly to put the railway in shape, altho as I have said already, whatever we do now will be only a temporary cure. My idea for saying this is not the idea given me by the Reid Company's statement, nor is it my own idea nor the idea given me by train men with whom I have had close intercourse, but it is the idea of the Government Engineer, whose report on the railway I have now before me. The great trouble to-day is that we got a rail too light, a rail that is too light even if laid down new today, despite the fact that it has done twenty years' service, and it is too light for the class of engine on it. The actual fact is that I am voting to-night for something that I know is merely a bagatelle to what has got to follow in the years to come. I am absolutely satisfied to-day that the putting of heavier fish-plates in operation is no more going to remedy all the things we are complaining of than it is possible for me financially to go to work and build a railway. Take the report of the Government Engineer, as tabled in this House. Here is what he says in part:

(Mr. Higgins reads extract from report.)

The specification upon which that road bed was constructed was poor and cheap just the same as a man who wants a cheap concreting job done and the specification was in accordance with price paid. On that point hon. members opposite, no doubt, will observe that the track bends as a train passes over it and is not sufficiently substantial to put fish-plates on. It is just as well for us to understand that. Still we are begnning again to do a cheap job with this vote. We certainly are not going to cure the trouble; we will only relieve it for the time being. The fastenings are weak both as to the weight of the material and bolts themselves. Following a special report made by the Government Engineer after the unfortunate accident caused by a derailment and into which an enquiry was held last year, I remember specifically the point developed, and Judge Morris, the presiding gexamining officer, asked the Government Engineer what was necessary in the interest of public safety and efficient operation of the road, and the answer was the heavy rail. In my judgment it is an unfortunate state of affairs and a great pity that the Government has not gone to that extent and tried to remedy matters, but I think that it has got to come and is bound to come. I must say that, on behalf of the Colony, we must see that this money is to be properly ear-marked and properly spent, but we must remember that when embarking on that enterprise that the day is over for talking about the liability of the Reids concerning the railroad; because once you take the position that we are taking here to-night, and in the light of the statements of the Prime Minister and the recommendations of the Government Engineer, under the circumstances, it is just as well to make up our minds that we are started on the first step of relieveing Reids of any liability. There is no mistake about that point. Once we vote for these Resolutions we are decidedly putting the Reid Company in the position to be excused from any liability in the years to come. I have my own opinion on what is going to happen the expenditure of this one million dollars. What will be found to happen and what is bound to happen and what must of necessity happen, as already pointed out by Mr. Sullivan, that apart altogehter from this defect of light rail, there is the further and serious defect of the narrow road-bed. I do not know who developed it, but certainly it is a well recognized and accepted theory in the practical experience of railroad men, that in winter snow fighting is entirely due to the narrowness of the road-bed and the unfitness of the bolts. Now what is the use of getting on fish-plates and getting additional rolling stock and terminals, etc., if it is not going to affect the bolts and improve the road-bed, and that trouble is going to continue until such time as these people who are operatnig the road are able to cope with it. It is unfortunate that the Government should have taken the attitude they have to this matter in the interests of the Colony, but the Government must remember that henceforth they will be responsible to the people, and responsible to this extent, that once they appoint a commission to deal with the railroad question they have to be prepared to bear the blame for all complaints and trouble that arise.

Regarding the position of lack of freight accomodation at St. John's, I do not think that there can be any doubt at all on that point. This reminds me of the frightful conditions for handling freight at Port aux Basques and I hope that the Government will not lose sight of this fact, as I believe that the situation there is more important than at St. John's because Port aux Basques accounts for about two-thirds of the freight that offers to come here. The real great trouble in the tie-up of freight there is caused by the abominable conditions at North Sydney, where they have poor facilities for transhipment; and I hope that one of the results that will be derived in the spending of this money will be the improvements of condition at Port aux Basques and North Sydney. Something was done in that connection last year, but it all fell short of what was required.

There is just one point more I would like to emphasize here and that is that so far as these Resolutons are concerned they were never discussed by the Oppositnon as a Party, but I feel confident that our viewpoint must be the same in voting on this measure, because we recognize that there are two courses open, namely, to take over the railway altogether ,or help carry it along as well as we can for the present. The last course is the best seeing that we are faced with the situation that we got, because, after all, the organization that is running the railway is the best we can get anyhow, and with experienced railroad men in it, the best that can be found in the country. I think, therefore, that we should support the Government in this programme; it is the eternal fitness of things that those of us on this side of the House who have been so much accused of enlarging the powers of that Company should be present to-night and be able to say Amen to those on the other side who sang their hymns of faith and who filled their newspapers about all the dire things they were going to do with the Reids, and the only personal satisfaction they have got is that they have voted to the Reids this one million dollars.

On the matter of coal development I will not attempt to say more than this: If the Government have decided to invest money in this proposition, I feel sure that it will only be done upon a satsfactory report, because all of us wish well to the St. George's Coal Fields Co. However we must not be unmindful of the fact that nothing is more deceptive and nothing requires a more careful report than a report upon a coal formation of that character, and I think that the Government have acted wisely in arranging for an independent report. I am sure nobody doubts for a moment the ability and competency of those two experts, Messrs. Hatch and Forbes, but I think that the report ought to be checked off by some outside independent and thoroughly competent person who has not been in that area. We all look to these coal areas with natural pride and we will be all glad to know that the Government intends to develop and put to practical use this coal. Even if we can get this coal at the same figure as we get it from the outside, I think that it will be a great thing for this country and for the people in the country. I saw samples of this coal and can testify as to the excellence of the quality of it. I do trust that the report to the Government will warrant them making that proposed expenditure.

I say in all sincerity that nothing, so far as St. John's is concerned, will give greater satisfaction than the voting of money that will result in the developing of our own coal resources. Now I just want to say another word, Mr. Chairman. A good deal has been said with regard to the handling of these Companies on Bell Island, and much and all as harsh treatment of these people might affect me politically, and pleasant and all as our relations may have been in the past, I think, nevertheless, that it is time that the Government should put its pads on and get busy to bring about some sort of understanding that will be of advantage on and get busy to bring about some sort of understanding that will be at to us, and I do think that the Government should not be over lavish in kindness when dealing with these people in the future, in the light of how they have treated us. In view of all the circumstances, I think they should have done better. Therefore, Mr. Chairman, I propose to vote for the resolutions before the Chair, not in the spirit in which they were introduced, not in the spirit of camouflaging the point at issue, but in the spirit that we should do the very best that we can as regards our legal obligations and as regards our obligations to the people whom we represent.

MR. WALSH:—Mr. Chairman, at the outset I want to say that I fully endorse the statements of the hon. member for St. John's East when he said that the Opposition held no party meeting on this matter. I had no idea what the attitude of the members of the Opposition was with regard to the measure before the Chair until I heard them express their views here this evening. With regard to my personal relations with the company under discussion, I can say that I never had the slightest transaction with the Reid Newfoundland Company and never intend to while I am a member of this Legislature, because I realize that only when one is under no obligation to that Company, and only when one is absolutely clear of all relation with them that he can do justice to the constituency that he may have the honor to represent in this House. With regard to the statements of the Prime Minister, I regret that he found it necessary to make the attack upon the Reid Newfoundland Company which characterized his introduction of the measure. If he made that attack because the heads of that Company happened to be his opponents in the recent election, I can only say that such action on his part was beneath the dignity of the office he holds, and I might add that in the same election some of my own bitterest opponents were officials of that same Company. However, all that is now over, and no such considerations should be permitted to effect our deliberations in the enactment of such legislation as is now before us. Altho this is the most important business that has yet come before us it has been held back to the dying hours of the session and members are given no opportunity to deal with it in the manner which its importance calls for. For instance, here is the report of the Government Engineer, teeming, I am sure, with information that would be of the greatest value in the consideration of this matter, which we never had a chance to discuss and which should have been placed on the desks of hon. members as should every other bit of information of the kind which we have had to demand of the Government this session. I doubt if the private members of the Government have seen this report or are aware of its contents. I want to say at the outset, Mr. Chairman, that it is both my intention and my duty to suport these Resolutions and like the previous speakers, I want to record my regrets that the Bill does not ask for a more substantial amount to put at least the trunk line across country in better condition. No one will deny that the railway from St. John's to Port aux Basques is the main artery of the Dominion's traffic and if the statements made in this House and in certain newspapers as to the terrible conditions under which people are travelling over that line are correct, and I have no doubt they are correct, how can one million dollars effect the desired improvement especially when not all that sum is to be used in reconstruction. As a matter of fact, only $300,000 is to be used for the reconstruction of five hundred miles of railway, and any common-sense practical man knows that this amount is not enough to do more that improve the fish-plates. I submit, Sir, that this is not what we should be doing. We should be tackling this thing in a business-like way. We have no hesi- no doubt, but this is the most import- other improvements, necessary too, tation in voting large amounts for ant of all and if the day should come when the Dominion will no longer be able to keep the railway in condition where it will be of service, that will be the day that some peatriotic Newfoundlander should put an ad in the papers "A Country For Sale." Instead of what we are doing we should be voting ten millions of dollars and making provision for a standard guage railway and further branch lines, so many of which were promised by the present Government before they came into power. During the war we were called upon to make extraordinary expenditure. $10,000,000, I think, was our war debt, and this was something for which we never hoped to get returns, while there were further losses for which no amount of millions could recompense us, the losses in blood spilled by the Country's noblest and best. We have been able to meet the interest on this amount without interference with the administration of our civil government, and we would be increasing the earning power of our people now if we were to ask for ten millions instead of one. There are men now in the States who should be working at home and who, instead of helping to build up institutions in other countries should be helping to build up their own country. Three hundred thousand dollars now is but a temporary remedy and we will be asked to vote the same amount next year. While we are asked to vote fifty thousand dollars for a terminus at Port aux Basques, there are places along the line where there is not even a shelter for passengers waiting for the train and who have walked perhaps ten or twelve miles to the railway, and there are flag stations where freight and express packages are thrown off without anybody to care what becomes of them.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I cannot agree with the proposal that a commission be appointed to look after the expenditure of this money and I certainly do not agree with the suggestion of the Prime Minister in moving these resolutions that those associated with the Reid Company know nothing about their work. The members of that Company, or some of them at least, have been closely associated with railway work since railway operations started in this country. Take Mr. Powell, for example; he is not only a prac.tical man but an experienced civil engineer and we should be glad that such a man is a Newfoundlander instead of casting reflections upon him thru the Press and in this House. Now, Sir, I want it to be understood that Mr. Powell is a man with whom I have not exchanged ten words in my life, and I speak as I do because I am not at all in keeping with the getting off of this camouflage to which we have been treated of late with regard to this matter. Perhaps if some others of the Reid family were in control things would be different.

With regard to the matter of Bell

Island, I have just a word or two to say. I quite agree with the previous speakers that this is another serious blunder on the part of the Government, but this cannot be laid at the doors of the present Government alone, but many previous Governments have been equally to blame. The steel works which were responsible for the boom in Eastern Canada and which made Sydney, should be in Conception Bay. It is notorious that the iron mines of Bell Island are the richest in the world and it is equally well known that Germany would have paid billions of dollars for them, but the only advantage that we derive from them is that some of our laborers get employment there at a lesser wage than they would get anywhere else, and now is the time for the Government to step in and see that we get fairer returns for what we give, and more especially as these people are now showing their teeth in the matter of our coal supply. I had hoped that the Government would be able to come to terms with these people even if drastic measures were necessary and if friction does come the Government can count on me.

With regard to the half million dollars for St. George's Coal Fields, this is a matter with which I have had some experience, one which I have studied carefully, and I am convinced that the late Mr. Howley, who held the position of Geologist for a number of years, is right in his prediction that St. George's Bay was destined one day to become just as rich in coal as it is at the present time. The formation of St. George's Bay is somewhat different from over across the Gulf, but still with the experience I have had, and with the knowledge derived from going through the reports of the late Mr. Howley, I am convinced that coal will be found in sufficient quantity in St. George's to pay commercially if development is undertaken by the Government or by any private company. The largest coal colliery in British North America is in Cape Breton, and I had the honor of being one of the first two men who broke coal in that colliery, and the honor of working five years in the development of that colliery, and it cost the company eight million dollars before one cent of return was realised. I have no doubt that the same coal extends to St. George's and now that the Government have taken over the place seriously that they will come to a suitable arrangement with Canada to send down a competent man to report, because after all it is the duty of the Government before it goes any furthr to see that they are not making a false step. I want to commend the Government for going outside, as they have done, and having an independent report given on behalf of the people interestd in St. George's Coal Fields, and I wish them every success, and if it can be found that there is a sufficient quantity of coal there to work commercially, it will relieve us of being under a compliment to any outside company for our coal supplies. Now, I have no desire to prolong the debate. I intend to vote for the resolutions, and I only regret that they do not go further, that they are not in keeping with what the country is expecting from the Government with regard to the reconstruction and reorganization of the railway.

MR. FOX:—Mr. Chairman, I wish to register a protest against an important measure of the like of these Resolutions being brought before this chamber at the eleventh hour. We have been in session nearly three months and a matter of such importnace as this might have been brought down before the closing of the session, and I cannot realize for a moment why the Government realizing the necessity for introducing some such measure as this did not do so sooner. It will be remembered that right along through the session when members of the Opposition asked for information with regard to what form the Railway Bill would be likely to take, they were absolutely refused information, and now when this measure is brought before the House we have to suffer the indignity of being asked to rush the matter through this afternoon. This indignity is intensified by the attitude assumed by certain members of the Cabinet, who not alone said that they wanted this Bill put through quickly, but threatened the Opposition that if it were not put through quickly that they would withdraw it. I don't know what idea the Minister of Marine and Fisheries had in mind in making this threat, but I would like to tell him that as far as I am concerned, the threat had no effect whatever, that it is immaterial to me whether they withdraw the Resolutions or not. I think that the legislation of this country has reached a pretty pass, and I protest against the idea of asking this House to consider these Resolutions without having the necessary information handed them to enable them to consider them in an intelligent manner. We have been denied all information on the matter. When we asked to have the report of the Government Engineer tabled we were told by another Minister of the Crown, the Minister of Public Works, that it has not been usual in the past for members of the House to have access to reports of this kind. This report is of such a nature that every Government official, let alone members of the House, has a right to see it. One would think by the attitude taken by the Government in refusing any information on this matter, that a measure involving the expenditure as it does of one million dollars is of trifling importance. This is one of the most important matters ever before the country. It deals with the principal industries of the country, as it is the only means we have of shipping our products, and the Government should not have waited until the last hours of the session to bring this matter before the House. The Prime Minister yesterday afternoon officially took charge of these Resolutions, and might I ask why he is not here to-night when they are being discussed? Does anybody know? Does the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries know? Does the Hon. the Minister of Justice know?

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—Mr. Speaker, in moving the second reading of this Bill, I would like to explain that in 1915 an Act was passed incorporating certain Trustees of the Patriotic Association. They reported to the Government a few months ago that their work was hindered by that Act, that certain instances of need in connection with soldiers and sailors which should come within the scope of their operations, did not under the Act. The Secretary hereby requests that the following amendements go into effect.

I feel that these amendments which were suggested by the Trustees of the Newfoundland Patriotic Association will have the approval of the people and of the Legislative Council, and that they will receive an unanimous second reading.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—The Prime Minister is very busy outside finishing the Salaries Act.

MR. FOX:—In view of the importance of the Resolutions before the Chair, the proper place for the Prime Minister is in his seat. The Prime Minister yesterday afternoon tabled certain memorials from the Reid Newfoundland Company, and we are not supplied with a copy of them, and I suppose it would be useless for us to ask for a copy.

HON. MINISTER OF JUSTICE:—There was a copy supplied to the Leader of the Opposition.

MR. FOX:—That is not sufficient. It does not follow that because the Leader of the Opposition has a copy that every member of the Opposition will have it at his disposal, and every member of the Opposition should be furnished with all data in reference to these Resolutions. It is not creditable to the Government to be so discourteous to the members of His Majesty's Opposition, as they have been right through the session. Now with regard to the report of the Government Engineer, the Hon. Minister of Public Works stated that it was not usual for members to be furnished with reports of this nature. If he has any proof to bring forward of this statement, I am prepared to listen to it.

HON. THE MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS:—The position I took was this. While I was in this House for the last four or five years that course which the hon. member says should be followed was not followed. Reports of this nature were handed to the Leader of the Opposition for perusal, but not to the members of the Opposition individually. The point I wanted to make was that the Government did not act discourteously in not acceding to the request of Mr. Fox.

MR. FOX:—I understand from the Minister that he is merely drawing upon his own personal experience for his statement, but now he will have to give me some authority for his statement to show that what he outlined is the usual procedure. The action of the Government in this respect shows that they are neglecting their public duties, that they are not alive to their responsibilities. The expenditure of one million dollars on that railway is not sufficient. Putting new fish-plates will not put that railway in a condition that will make it safe for the people of the country to travel on. We are supposed to be spending one million dollars on the road, when in reality we are only spending three hundred and fifty thousand for that purpose, and the rest for rolling stock and terminals. Three hundred and fifty thousand dollars will do nothing in the way of reconstruction. You may put in all the new rolling stock that you please, but if you do not improve the road-bed and the weight of the rail, it will all be no good. It will be only a wast of money and next Winter we will have railway conditions as bad as ever.

TUESDAY, July 13th, 1920.

The House met at two of the clock in the afternoon, pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the Bill entitled "An Act to provile for the Collection and Distribution of the Estates of certain Esquimaux Deceased" without amendment.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Act Sixty-one Victoria (1898) Chapter Eight entitled "An Act Respecting Salaries" without amendment.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the Bills entitled "An Act Respecting Certain Retiring Allowances," "An Act further to amend the Revenue Act 1905," "An Act for the Raising by Loan of a Sum of Money for Railway and other Purposes" and "An Act for Granting to His Majesty certain sums of money for Defraying Certain Expenses of the Public Service for the Financial Years ending respectively—30th day of June, 1920 and 30th day of June, 1921 and for other purposes relating to the Public Service" without amendment.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the Bills sent up entitled respectively:—"An Act to amend the Education Act"; "An Act to amend Chapter 162 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled "Of the Prosecution of the Seal Fishery'"; "An Act Relating to Trustee Investments"; "An Act to amend Chapter 143 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled 'Of the Keeping of Dogs'" and "An Act for giving effect to the Treaties of Peace between His Majesty and Certain other Powers" with some amendments in which they requested the concurrence of the House of Assembly.

AMENDMENT TO EDUCATION ACT

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—This amendment was introduced by the Legislative Council and relates to the qualifications of Supervisors. It will be remembered that the section with respect to Supervisors provided that the Supervisor had to be a teacher who had not given up the teaching profession for more than 3 years prior to appointment, the policy of the Government being that teachers in active service should have the preference. It was thought, however, that under very exceptional circumstances there might be a person specially qualified as a Supervisor who had recently given up teaching and that such a person might, though having given up the teaching profession, be specially qualified for the appointment. The Legislative Council desired to make the policy of the Government in that regard perfectly clear in the section by submitting an amendment to the effect that teachers actively engaged in the profession should have preference over teachers who had vacated the profession within the period of three years provided their qualifications were equal. This Amendment is directly in line with the policy of the Administration and has the Government endorsation. I would consequently move that this Amendment be now read a first time.

SEAL FISHERY AMENDMENT

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—These amendments have been made by the Legislative Council after conference with the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and they are regarded by the Minister as improving the Bill as a Legislative enactment. I move that they be read now a first time.

TRUSTEE BILL AMENDMENT

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—This is a trifling amendment with the addition of a word or two which give an improved grammatical construction to the section and make its interpretation clearer. I consequently move that this amendment be now read a first time.

DOG BILL AMENDMENT

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—This Dog Bill introduced by Mr. Fox was the subject of very mirthful discussion in this Chamber after it had made its appearance on the Order Paper for some weeks without being considered. The Council has made an amendment that Shepherd Dogs and Collies have to be certified as such by the Department of Agriculture and Mines. I understand that the mover of the Bill in this Chamber, Mr. Fox, concurs in the amendments. I have no objection thereto. I have heard of certified stock, certified grain and many other certified products. We are now, under this amendment, to have certified dogs. I feel that it is my duty to the honourable members of the Legislative Council who inserted this amendment and to Mr. Fox, who introduced the Bill into this Chamber, to move that the amendment be now read a first time.

PEACE TREATY AMENDMENT

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:— This Bill as it passed this Chamber related to the Treaty of Peace with Germany. The Council has enlarged the scope of this Bill so as to include Peace Treaties with all the opposing nations. The Bill is improved by this amendment. I move that it be read a first time.

On motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the said several amendments were read a first time and ordered to be read second time presently.

Whereupon, the said several amendments were read a second time and concurred in and it was ordered that a message be sent to the Legislative Council acquainting that body that the said amendments had been agreed to without amendment.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that he had received a message from the Legislative Council acquainting the House of Assembly that they had passed the Bill entitled "An Act Respecting the Appointment of a Temporary Commission for the City of St. John's" in which they request the concurrence of the House of Assembly.

On motion of Hon. the Prime Minister the Bill entitled "An Act Respecting the Appointment of a Temporary Commission for the city of St. John's was read a first time and ordered to be read a second time presently.

Whereupon, the Bill entitled "An Act Respecting the Appointment of a Temporary Commission for the City of St. John's, was read a second time and ordered to be referred to a Committee of the Whole House presently.

Whereupon, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the Bill entitled "An Act Respecting the Appointment of a Temporary Commission for the City of St. John's.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

Mr. Hibbs took the chair of Committee.

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair.

The Chairman from the Committee, reported that they had considered the matter to them referred and had passed the Bill without amendment.

This report was received and adopted and it was ordered that the Bill be read a third time presently.

Whereupon, the Bill entitled "An Act Respecting the Appointment of a Temporary Commission for the city of St. John's" was read a third time and passed and it was ordered that the said Bill be engrossed being entitled as above and that it be sent to the Legislative Council with a message acquainting that body that the House of Assembly had passed the said bill without amendment.

Honourable, the Prime Minister tabled Report of the Newfoundland Patriotic Fund for the year ending Dec. 31, 1919.

Observations in reply to Mr. Fox on Muncipal Bill.

MR. HIGGINS:—Mr. Speaker, before this Municipal Bill passes I would like to say that it should not be allowed to go out of the House without a word of commendation being place on record of the work of the Citizens' Committee, of the gentlemen who gave so much time and consideration to this Bill. The Citizens' Committe spent months in session in consideration of the draft of the Charter which has been submitted to the House, and it will be agreed with all subsequently connected with it that their criticisms were intelligent and expressive of an honest desire to make such improvements as possible with regard to the Municipal Government of St. John's. I think it is only right for me to avail of the opportunity as Secretary of the original Committee to pay tribute to Mr. Cochrane, Mr. Soper, Mr. Kelly and the Secretary, Mr. Smith, who are in the main responsible for the Bill which is now before us, and which reflects credit upon these gentlemen. Also Mr. Jonas Barter and Mr. Davey the contractors are worthy of our thanks for the manner in which they have endeavored to perfect this Bill. This Bill has caused a considerable amount of discussion for some years past, but the Bill in its present form does not make any considerable alteration in the methods of government, and I feel sure that the new council in December next will not be vested with any authority that will be objectionable to the citizens. I think it should go on record that we are not unmindful of the interest that the gentlemen I have already mentioned have shown in this Charter. I also want to say that on their behalf, I thank the House for the courtesy shown them by deferring the Bill for the past two days to give them a chance to consider it, and as I anticipated, it only required the Bill being sent to them to satisfy them that their recommendations have, in the main, been adopted.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—

Mr. Speaker, Permit me to join with my learned friend, the member for St. John's East, in an expression of appreciation to the Citizens' Committee who for so many months have worked assiduously to perfect the City Charter, and also to extend a word of sincere esteem for the efforts of Mayor Gosling who for so many years past has devoted his time to civic improvement. This Charter is the result of the combined efforts of the Mayor and Councillors and the Citizens' Committee and I feel that sincere congratulations and a high meed of praise must be extended to them for the work which they have accomplished.

HON. THE PRIME MINISTER:—

Late last evening while I was attending a meeting of Committee of Council I received a telephone message from the Legislative Council that some of the members of the Council were strenuously opposing the passage of the new Charter and that the majority of the members of the Council were not in favor of the Charter in its existing form. I consequently adjourned Council and attended the President's Room of the Legislative Council. On finding that it was quite useless to expect to secure the passage of the Bill I caused to be drafted the Bill which has just been reported as having passed the Legislative Council. This Bill provides for the appointment of a Commission to govern the affairs of the city of St. John's from January to June, 1921. It will be remembered that some weeks ago His Excellency the Governor assented to a Bill providing for a Commission for the City of St. John's from July to December of this year. That Bill was passed on the supposition that the City Charter would become law at the closing of this session of the Legislature, as it was discovered that it would be hopeless for the City Charter to pass the Legislative Council either in its present form or with such slight amendments as could be readily considered by this Chamber. It was imperative that this Bill should be submitted so that we might have a form of Municipal Government during the first half of the year 1921. The Council made an amendment to the Bill as presented by the addition of a section which provides that no abbatoir shall be erected or operated within the city limits after the first day of January, 1921. The objections to the City Charter were many. The members of Council were unanimous in expressing their appreciation of the work of Mayor Gosling and the members of the City Council; they were unanimous in their approval of the splendid work of the Citizens' Committee, but they felt that there were many sections in the Charter which could not meet with their approval. Opinions as to the desirability of various sections diverged very widely and in some cases there was very aggressive opposition. I had personally met the members of the Legislative Council during the early part of the evening and discussed the charter with. I pointed out that the new City Council to be elected under the Charter would not take office until the first of January, 1921, that the Citizens' Committee was not entirely satisfied with the Bill and had a considerable number of amendments to suggest. The Citizens' Committee felt, however, that the Bill might be passed in its present form at this session, and at the next session of the Legislature, which would probably be in January or February of next year, the whole matter could be discussed at an early date in the session. The members of the Legislative Council felt, however, that this Bill had not been discussed in the House of Assembly, that it was accepted unanimously by the House of Assembly without debate in the closing days of the session on the informal report of a voluntary and informal committee consisting of Mayor Gosling, Messrs. Browning and Halfyard, of the Government, and Messrs. Bennett, Higgins, Vinnicombe and Fox, of the Opposition, and that while the House of Assembly had passed the Bill without debate they were not prepared to assume that responsibility and desired to discuss it in its details and at length. For some considerable time last evening I listened to the debate on the Bill in the Legislative Council, and found that several of the members objected to the idea of a Bill of this magnitude being introduced in the House of Assembly within two or three days of the date set for closing, and they also felt that the Bill had been passed without discussion upon the recommendation of that informal committee, and they were not prepared to deal with it. They felt that a Bill of this importance should be introduced during the early days of the session and be the subject matter of full debate. One or two of the members pointed out that many weeks ago the Bill had been submitted to the Committee referred to, that during the period of several weeks they had it under consideration, that they had dealt with it section by section and that the Citizens' Committee were prepared to see the Bill passed in its present form. They recognised that the Bill was not a Government measure; as a matter of fact, they knew that the Mayor of the City and the City Council had expressly requested that it should not be so regarded and that the Government was not in any way responsible for the introduction of the Bill or its contents, but that its passage was the unanimous act of the House on the recommendation of the committee. They pointed out that if the Mayor and Municipal Councillors or the informal committee of members of the House of Assembly or any other body desired to have a Bill of that sort passed it should have been introduced much earlier than it was, but the Committee had taken a very long time in which to get it in shape and they felt it would take them a considerable amount of time to debate it, and there were many amendments which during the debate would be introduced. The motion that the Bill be read that day six months was moved by Sir Patrick McGrath and seconded by the Hon. J. J. Murphy. Several members of the Legislative Council, particularly the Hons. Mews, Gibbs, Shea and Campbell, expressed their deep regret at finding that the majority of the members of Council were not prepared to pass the measure at this session, and on motion being put the Council rejected the Charter. That action rendered this Bill necessary, the third section being added by the Legislative Council in Committee stage as I have already stated. I feel sure that the entire House, particularly the members for St. John's East and St. John's West ,will concur with me in my deep regret at the fact that the Legislative Council was not prepared to accept the recommendation of the informal committee of the House, backed by our unanimous support. On the other hand, I appreciate the fact that this Bill was not introduced in this Chamber at a time when it was possible for it to be fully debated; it was delayed in this Chamber for two or three days as a courtesy to which the Citizens' Committee was fully entitled, the House in my opinion having acted properly in deferring the Bill at their request. I fully appreciate the fact that the Legislative Council could not have time to debate such a lengthy document containing many hundred sections with any degree of completeness, and from the debate I gather that the amendments which would be introduced would be of such a nature as to entail very considerable debate in this House, and it would undoubtedly be necessary for them to be submitted to the Citizens' Committee for their consideration. Under these circumstances this House has to face the inevitable and see the Bill which had been reported upon by the informal committee of the House and had been passed unanimously by us here, dropped for this session. Before the Municipal Bill was introduced into this House at all I informed the House that it was my plan to have business completed by Saturday last, and when the matter of the adjournment of the consideration of the Bill was before the House on several occasions, while I concurred in the adjournment as being a necessary courtesy to the Citizens' Committee, I nevertheless pointed out that the time was very limited and that every day which passed meant less time for the Bill to be debated in both branches of the Legislature. I regret exceedingly that the Legislative Council has not been pleased to fall in line with the views of this House in connection with this measure, but fully appreciate the fact that neither this House nor the Council ought to be asked to deal with a Bill of this magnitude during the last days of a very lengthy session. As I have already pointed out, this Charter is not a Party measure. It was expressly stated to me by the Mayor that he did not want the Bill introduced as a Government measure, on the one hand, nor as an Opposition measure, on the other. The delay in bringing the measure into the House is not a matter for which either the Government or the Opposition is responsible. The Committee which had it in charge worked on the Bill very diligently, but took many weeks to complete their labors, and it was to me a matter of very great surprise that when they brought in the Bill when the session was more than nine weeks old, when the date of the expected termination of the session had been announced, and when, as a matter of fact, for a week previous the Government had been refusing to introduce new legislation, they should expect the Bill to receive the consideration which it deserved and pass both branches of the Legislature. So far as this Chamber was concerned it did receive consideration. It was not debated at all, but accepted unanimously on the report of the committee. The Citizens' Committee concurred in its passage subject to amendments which they thought it probable would be secured at the next session of the Legislature. It is imperative that this new Bill should now pass through all its stages so that it may be assented to when at three o'clock this afternoon His Excellency the Governor will prorogue the Legislature; otherwise the city will be without a Municipal Government after the 31st day of December of this year and until an Act is passed at the next session of the Legislature, which in the ordinary course of events, could not possibly take place earlier than the latter part of January or the first of February next.

The suggestion of my hon. friend, Mr. Fox, that the Govt. is in any way responsible for this measure is entirely incorrect. It was not a Government measure. The Mayor of the city expressly stated that he did not desire to have it a Government measure. The Bill as submitted was the report of an informal committee of members of the House, of which the honourable member for St. John's East was one. I was not a member. The suggestion that the Government is responsible for the delay in the introduction of the Bill which resulted in its being dropped by the Legislative Council is utterly absurd. The honourable member knows better. The Bill was introduced at the request of the committee after it was known to every member of the committee and to every member of the House that it was intended to conclude business on Saturday last, and, as a matter of fact, it was introduced a week after the Government had taken the fixed stand of refusing to introduce new legislation. I am not blaming the Committee for undue delay, as I am aware that the Committee had been working upon the bill for many weeks, but the fact remains that the Bill was passed unanimously by this House without debate, on the recommendation of the Committee, in the dying hours of the session. Its rejection by the Legislative Council was to me a very great surprise, but they were within their rights in taking the position that the Bill had been introduced in the House of Assembly within a few days of the date set for prorogation, that it had not been debated in the House of Assembly at all and that it was incumbent upon them to discuss the matter fully. That is their prerogative as members of the Legislative Council, and while I feel that their decision in this particular instance was wrong, yet the decision was theirs and for it they are prepared to assume the full responsibility. Personally I did everything in my power to secure the passage of the Bill through the Legislative Council. I went to the trouble of attending the Legislative Council yesterday afternoon and early yesterday evening, and again late last night and spared no effort to explain the provisions of the Bill upon which information was sought. The Bill was not a Government measure and the opinion of the members of the Legislative Council thereon was so divergent that the chances of securing its passage was quite hopeless. I interested myself in the matter not as leader of the Government, but as the senior member for St.

John's West. The suggestion that the Government is in any way responsible for the defeat of the measure in the Legislative Council is merely another of the Opposition's many misrepresentations and is scarcely worthy of this passing notice.

At three of the clock the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod appeared at the Bar of the House with a message from His Excellency the Governor, commanding the attendance of the House in the Council Chamber.

Accordingly, Mr. Speaker and the House attended His Excellency in the Council Chamber.

Mr. Speaker at the Bar of the Council Chamber addressed His Excellency as follows:—

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY:—

The House of Assembly has voted the Supply required to enable the Government to defray the Expenses of the Public Service.

In the name of the House of Assembly I present the following Bills for Your Excellency's assent:

"An Act for raising by Loan of a sum of Money for Railway and other purposes."

"An Act to Amend the Revenue Act 1905."

"An Act to Amend the Act Sixty-one Victoria (1898) Chapter Eight entitled 'An Act Respecting Salaries.'"

"An Act Respecting Certain Retiring Allowances."

"An Act for granting to His Majesty certain sums of money for Defraying certain expenses of the Public Service for the Financial Years ending respectively the 30th day of June, 1920 and the 30th day of June, 1921, and for other purposes relating to the Public Service."

"An Act to amend the Business Profit Tax Act, 1917."

"An Act to amend the Income War Tax, 1918."

"An Act further to amend Chapter 35 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series) entitled, 'Of the Postal and Telegraph Services.'"

"An Act Respecting the Department of Posts and Telegraphs."

"An Act for the Confirmation of a Contract with the Susu Shipping Company, Limited."

"An Act to Amend Section 9 of Chapter 139 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Encouragement of Agriculture.'"

"An Act to Regulate the Exportation of Salt Codfish."

"An Act Respecting the Issue of Certain Debenture Bonds of the Colony."

"An Act to Amend Cap. X of 9-10 Geo. V entitled 'An Act with Respect to Existing Tenancies and the Ejectment therefrom.'"

"An Act to authorize the Montreal Trust Co. to do Business in the Colony of Newfoundland."

"An Act Respecting the Preservation of Beavers."

"An Act Respecting Licenses to Cut Hardwoods."

"An Act Concerning Former Enemy Aliens."

"An Act to Amend the St. John's Pilotage Act, 1917."

"An Act Respecting the Maintenance of Certain Public Roads."

His Excellency withhold his assent to the Bill "An Act Respecting Certificates of Masters and Mates."

His Excellency was then pleased to make the following speech to both branches of the Legislature:

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE

Mr. President and Honourable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Honourable House of Assembly:

I am glad to be able to relieve you from the responsible duties of this extended Session and I desire to express my appreciation of the zealous manner in which you have applied yourselves to the discharge of your legislative labours.

Many of the measures to which you have given your attention are of great importance to the future of New- regulations regarding our staple industry will result in an improved cure and enhanced value, while the control of the forwarding of shipments should prevent over-stocking of the markets. The legislation in respect of agriculture makes the commencement of a policy which is constructive, and will tend to positive results. The Department of Posts and Telegraphs has been created, and the Service will now receive the personal attention of a responsible Minister, who will take into immediate consideration the important problems demanding solution. In common with many other countries, Newfoundland has awaked to the value of Education, and the necessity for an improvement in our present system. The Department of Education has been established and special attention will be given to the training of those who devote themselves to the profession of teaching. While the higher branches of Education will not be neglected, special consideration will be given to the Elementary Schools. An effort will be made to bring the great boon of education within the reach of every boy and girl in Newfoundland.

It is very gratifying that the returns of the fiscal year just closed show the Colony to be in a sound financial position.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Honourable House of Assembly:

I have to thank you for the liberal supplies which you have made for the various Departments of the Public Service. These will be expended with regard to economy and efficiency.

Mr. President and Honourable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Honourable House of Assembly:

In taking leave of you at the close of this Session, I am glad to note that the prospects are favourable for the industrial operations of this year. I desire to express my sincere wish for your prosperity and general welfare.

After which the Honourable the President of the Legislative Council by Command of His Excellency the Governor said:

Gentlemen:

It is His Excellency's will and pleasure that this General Assembly be prorogued until ———— the ——— day of ———— next, then and hereto be holden; and this General Assembly stands prorogued accordingly.

APPENDIX

[Following is Mr. Hibbs' speech on the subject of Agriculture which was inadvertently omitted from its proper position on page 464.]

MR. HIBBS:—Mr. Chairman, I crave the indulgence of the House while I make a few remarks on the question before the Chair.

I do not pose as an agriculturalist, and so it is with some diffidence and trepidation that I approach the subject. I regard the science of agriculture as a science of the greatest industry in the world, and one on which the whole universe depends for its very existence. To show that this science has been so very improperly practised, if practised at all in this country, is the subject which I would like to deal with.

I am glad that the Government is about to launch on a new agricultural policy, and I wish it much success, and I sincerely trust that it shall be productive of some good.

Reference have been made to the policy of the late Government, and while I am not going to abuse or even accuse the late Government of having done nothing, I regret to say that their policy has fallen much short of what I believe was anticipated.

It is my firm conviction, sir, that four years from now we will be judged, not by what we say of the mistakes of the late Government, but what we ourselves shall have accomplished during that period.

I have had some little experience in helping to carry out the agricultural policy of the late Government in the District of Harbor Main, which, as pointed out by the hon. member for Harbor Main, Dr. Jones, is more or less an agricultural district, and a few remarks on my experience gained in that connection may not be out of place.

While I am fully aware of the many faults and shortcomings of the agricultural policy inaugurated some ten years ago when the Morris Government assumed office, in justice I have to admit that some benefit did accrue, even though it was very little in comparison with the amount of money expended during those years. The chief feature of that policy was the distribution of live stock, seeds and agricultural implements throughout the country.

In so far as the live stock was concerned, I regret to say that it was not productive of as much good as one would wish. A large percentage of the animals imported and distributed had a peculiar habit of dying prematurely or disappearing mysteriously, some under very suspicious circumstances. Still in spite of this it is only fair to say that a slight improvement in the stock of cattle and sheep was noticeable in various sections of the country.

In connection with the distribution of implements, I have to confess that some of the farmers realised some benefit therefrom.

One of the assential features of farming, neglected by the small farmer in the outport, is a rotation system. The practise in the past has been to grow one crop continuously in the same land for a number of years.

I have known sections on the South Shore of Harbor Main District where hay was continuously grown on one piece of land for 20 to 30 years. I know sections where potatoes have been continuously grown on one piece of land for the last 60 years without any change of crop. This is surely not conducive to economical farming, but it is very difficult to disabuse the people's mind of old ideas. In fact in a great many settlements up to recent years one could not find a one-horse sod-turning plough, and it being practically impossible to turn sod with the ordinary plough used on potato land, the consequence was that the land remained either in hay or potatoes for many years, principally because of the lack of proper implements of cultivation.

The distribution of farming implements went a long way to remedy this state of affairs, and speaking with personal knowledge I do not know of any section of Harbor Main, east of Holyrood, where the Society there has not placed a suitable one-horse sod-turning plough, as well as a steel roller and harrow, and a cultivator.

In justice to the policy of the late Government I have to say, that with all its shortcomings the distribution of farming implements in the section referred to, was of considerable value to the farming class of that section.

I cannot say as much in favour of the live stock distributed, the cause of which must be attributed to a great extent to reasons which I will later point out.

I have always been a strong believer in a properly equipped and conducted Model Farm on a scale proportionate with our requirements.

It will be remembered that the Government led by Sir Robert Bond introduced this method of improving our agricultural system, and whether the Morris Government approved of that policy or not, they must of necessity make some change, because of the condemnation of that Model Farm during the election campaign of 1908 and 1909, consequently they launched on the well known People's Party policy which has been subjected to so much criticism, a great deal of which has been deserved.

I contend, sir, that the Colony has very little to its credit as a result of that policy. Our farmers know no more to-day about farming than they did 10 years ago. No effort was made to enlighten or educate the small farmer as to how he should carry on that occupation in the best possible way to secure the greatest return. The old slipshod methods which our forefathers practised are still in vogue, but preparing as we are to-day to inaugurate something more scientific and no doubt calculated to stimulate and encourage farming in Newfoundland, it does not behove us to come in here and spend our time condemning the late Government because of their mistakes, but rather is it our duty to make some improvement on their policy, and profit by the experience of the governments of the last ten years.

I have much confidence in this new departure. One of the reasons is that the Agricultural Department has a very capable head in the person of the Hon. Dr. Campbell. He has had some agricultural experience, coming as he does from an agricultural centre, Prince Edward Island, and that, coupled with his undoubted energy and enthusiasm, will I feel sure, appeal to everybody as being part of an essential necessity in a person who is to achieve anything worth while from an agricultural standpoint. I believe he is one of the best men that could possibly be secured for the job. Whenever one happened to meet him he never fails to impress you with the agricultural needs of the country and to explain some of his ideas, which I consider very practical indeed. However, he has a big job on his hands, and my only regret is that owing to so many pressing needs the Government cannot see its way clear to grant at least 100,000 instead of the $55,000 now voted to enable the Minister to carry out his policy in a more extensive manner.

I have to congratulate the Doctor upon the magnificent report which has been turned out this year. I think it is the finest I have ever seen issued in the country. Some of the features which appealed to me were the business like statistics and illustrations which indeed make it appear like a real agricultural report, which is more than can be said of some of the reports published during recent years.

Whether or not we shall ever secure an improved stock of Aryshire or Holstein cattle, Stropshire sheep or Berkshire pigs, it is at least very consoling to see their pictures appear in a Newfoundland Agricultural Report.

And again, another encouraging feature is, that in that report is contained a promise of better things to come. It is certainly an improvement upon the reports issued for the last six years which did not contain even a promise. It seems that the late Government had resolved to do nothing, and of course the report contained nothing of a promising nature.

There is an important, though deceptive, feature of all those reports which I would like to refer to. It is that part which gives an annual report of the amount of hay, potatoes and other vegetables and root crops grown in the Colony, and I want to say right here that those reports are very misleading, and seldom if ever such as to warrant any reliance. I know exactly how those reports are got up, and I know they do not constitute even a near estimate of the crops grown in any section.

It is obligatory on the Boards to send in an annual report. It is usual then for the Secretary and Chairman to combine their knowledge of the farm crops grown within their jurisdiction, which very often extends over an area of 10 to 20 miles. In most cases they are not personally acquainted with a large number of the farmers residing within that section and have not the remotest knowledge of the crops grown, and in the absence of any accurate information they simply hazard a guess of the quantity of hay, potatoes, turnips, etc., and the figures arrived at is generally so ridiculously low or so ridiculously high as to be absolutely absurd, yet this report is received by the Agricultural Board, is incorporated into the report and sent out through the country as reliable statistics of our farming operations.

It is something similar to the fishery report sent in by Fishery Wardens and Customs Officials around our coast line, who in many cases have not the remotest idea of the amount of fish caught during any week of the season, but have to get up some kind of report with the off-chance that it might be near the truth, and this unfortunately is accepted as a basis for calculating the catch, and is often ridiculously inaccurate.

Mr. Chairman, it is my firm opinion that if we are to issue an agricultural report in the years to come, that legislation must be enacted making it compulsory for farmers to send in a report of the crops harvested by him at the end of each season. This would not entail much work, as every farmer knows pretty accurately how many tons of hay, and barrels of potatoes and turnips, etc., grown on his farm during the season. Then and not till then will we have anything like a reliable report of which the Board can take stock, if I may use that term, and until this is done, sir, it is equally impossible for us to find out what our annual consumption amounts to. At the present time we only know the amount of potatoes we import, but have no conception of what we actually consume.

This reminds me that we imported last year hay and potatoes to the value of $236,000. If other vegetables imported last year were included it would no doubt amount to $1.00 per head of our entire population. This is surely, not good enough.

It is about time that something was done in this country to relieve this state of affairs, and I believe with the establishment of a wise, prudent policy along scientific lines that will encourage and impart knowledge to the people who are engaged in agricultural pursuits, that the amount of money annually sent out of this Dominion to purchase hay and vegetables could be saved to the people of this country.

In selecting live stock, a great deal of care, in my opinion, will have to be exercised. The Department must see that nothing but animals best adapted to our climatic conditions should be brought to this country.

I remember years ago in an endeavour to secure a better breed of cattle, I secured some Short Horn calves from the A.N.D. Co., Grand Falls. They grew to be very fine animals, one cow weighing, when butchered, 750 lbs., but I soon discovered that this stock was not best suited to our cold and rugged climate, and I think the Grand Falls people themselves discovered the fact, as I understand they have substituted Ayrshire and Holstein on their farms there during the last few years.

With a properly conducted Model Farm I believe that after a few years practical demonstrations of scientific farming could be given throughout the agricultural sections of the country.

While the distribution of literature would have some effect I am not at all a great believer in it as the sole means of education in this Colony. Some people will read it, some more won't spare the time, and a number of others are perhaps unable to read, and I see no means as effective as a practical demonstration by persons sent out from a Model Farm.

The conditions under which farming is done by the average small farmer throughout the country is indeed deplorable. Old ideas and methods are clung to with great tenacity, and unless we can prove by a practical demonstration, which can be observed by everybody, that their methods are not the best, I fear it would be hard to convince them.

My idea would be to have the soil scientifically analyzed by some representative from the Model Farm to determine just what the soil contains and what it is deficient in, so that an intelligent idea may be obtained as to what kind of Fertilizers are best suitable for that particular farm and to have the crops sown and cultivated under modern methods, the results obtained in this way would go further to convince the farmer of the wisdom of improvement upon his old-time methods than any other argument.

This practice has worked well in Canada and would, no doubt, have the same effect here. By this method the farmer gains an intelligent knowledge of the different elements he must restore to his soil, and in what proportion nitrogen, phosphoric, lime, potash or any other fertilizing agency may be profitably applied.

The chief Fertilizer on Root Crops used throughout Conception Bay is barnyard manure, which when properly conserved is undoubtedly the best.

Most people are in the habit of using spruce boughs for bedding purposes. This material is not a liquid absorbent, and consequently is of little value in that respect, but it is very difficult to persuade the people of their error in depleting the forest of those young trees, which some day would develop into timber which is so badly needed. It is hard to estimate the loss sustained by the country through this wholesale destruction of young trees for the unprofitable purpose of bedding. The result of using those boughs is to keep the barnyard manure loose, permitting the air to penetrate the pile when fomentation is set up, and the most valuable part of the Fertilizer, in the form of nitrogen is burnt up. It is a common sight to see the farmer's only hope of restoring fertility to his soil being leached away by the Spring's rain, or the ammonia going up in steam from the manure heap.

While at Troru Agricultural College in the Winter of 1913 I asked Professor Cummings, who is the Principal of that College, what in his opinion was the fertilizing value of boughs mixed with barnyard manure. The matter appeared to be so foreign to anything he had ever heard before, that it took considerable time for me to explain to him that our people actually cut up the branches of spruce trees for this purpose. His opinion was, if the stuff would rot he did not think it would do any harm, but it certainly was of no fertilizing value whatever.

While at Truro I, learn something in connection with the quality of Stock imported by the Newfoundland Agricultural Board. Attached to that College is an expert, whose services was offered to one of our Agricultural Commissioners who went over there, for the selection throughout Nova Scotia of pure bred stock.

This offer, however, was turned down for some reason best known to the Commissioner himself, and instead a wily speculator whom I happened to know in Truro purchased the animals for the Newfoundland Board, at considerable profit to himself I understand, and when the gentleman from the College went over to the railway cars to inspect the bulls and rams, etc., he was surprised and disgusted to find some of the poorest scrubs that could be picked up on the ranges of Nova Scotia being shipped over to the innocent and much deceived Agricultural Societies of Newfoundland.

It is probable that the nature of the stock imported had something to do with the mysterious disappearance of some of the animals, for it is a well known fact that they were very prone to meet untimely ends and in many cases the country did not suffer much by their demise, but it is a crying shame that money should be squandered in the purchasing of such stuff when it could be utilized in securing a full bred class of cattle that would infuse new blood in the very indifferent stock hitherto raised in this country.

This is an example which the Hon. Minister of Agriculture, Dr. Campbell, will do well to profit by, and in any importation of live stock made by the Government, nothing but the very best stock obtainable should be purchased, and those of the breeds as I said before best suited to the climatic conditions of Newfoundland.

Some discussion has taken place in this House as to the advisability or otherwise of the Government granting a bonus for the purpose of encouraging farmers to clear land. Arguments have been adduced against that policy and it was pointed out that it had not worked advantageously in the past.

While I admit that a great deal of deception was practised when the policy was inaugurated many years ago, I would also like to remind the House that a great deal of good was accomplished, and I have no hesitation in stating that we have thousands of acres of land yielding crops to-day that would never be under cultivation if it were not for the bonus.

The Government of that day discovered that the farmers did not always clear the land sufficient for cultivation before claiming the bonus. I have some recollection of a supervisor getting in trouble for giving a certificate for bonus where the land was not cleared, but that policy was revised, and only half the amount of bonus was paid when the land was cleared, the other half being withheld until the crop was over the ground and that trouble was therefore remedied.

I know of many places where good crops are being grown on land which was cleared under the bonus system.

I sincerely hope that the Government will see its way clear to have an additional grant earmarked for the purpose of encouragement for land clearing. I would like to go on record as being in favour of the policy of giving a bonus for land clearing under proper supervision of the Agricultural Department.

Another important point in connection with the Agricultural programme is the making of better roads. To my mind Agricultural improvement and good roads go hand in hand. We cannot have one without the other.

I have in my mind many sections throughout the country where there are splendid tracts of land of very fertile soil and quite capable of producing excellent crops, but the people have no access to this land because of the lack of roads. There should be no need of importing vegetables from Prince Edward Island when we have plenty of arable soil in our country awaiting cultivation.

I know a particular settlement named Victoria Cove, in the District of Fogo, where there are splendid sections of land just back of this settlement, but the people cannot cultivate it because they have no means of getting to and from this land.

In this connection I intend asking the Government for a sum of money sufficient to construct a good road there.

I have had requests from several sections of Fogo to send them seed potatoes. If sections like Victoria Cove were properly cultivated sufficient root crops could be grown to supply their own needs as well as other nearby sections not so fortunately situated.

In reference to canker, I do not think there is so much need to be alarmed on that score. I have never taken the matter as serious, as I believe we will never be troubled with any great calamity through canker in this climate where the frost penetrates to a depth of two and three feet. It is a noticeable fact that in exposed sections where the frost penetrates the soil the canker seems to be eradicated, and usually disappears, and I believe that severe frost is a potent factor in exterminating the canker germs. In more sheltered sections where early snow-falls cover the ground and remains, and the frost do not penetrate, the canker is more in evidence.

Mr. Speaker, I do not hope for any extraordinary agricultural developments in this country because to say the least we have not an agricultural country. While some sections of the country are undobtedly very fertile, at the same time climatice conditions are very much against us, but I firmly believe, that with a proper fostering of this industry we could become self supporting, that is as much as we can ever hope to accomplish.

It has been stated by some that you cannot make a farmer out of a fisherman. I don't understand what is meant by that term, only in as far as it is impossible for a person to be fishing and farming at the same time, but to say that our fishermen during spare time cannot intelligently cultivate a small garden in order to raise his own vegetables is preposterous. One would infer from remarks of this kind that the fisherman is not intelligent enough to make a farmer. This, sir, is not true. I know some fishermen who tilled their little gardens in a very intelligent manner and with good results, and I know of no reason why even a fisherman farmer is not capable of profiting by information imparted from Agricultural Headquarters as well as many other persons.

In conclusion I must again congratulate the Hon. Dr. ampbell upon the energy and zeal which he is undoubtedly putting in his work and with the theoretical and technical knowledge which he possesses of agricultural problems, supported by his optimism and activity. I look forward to greater results in the Agricultural Districts than we have hitherto experienced in this country.

I believe when the late Government inaugurated their policy they meant well, and I only censure them because they persisted in their policy for ten long years, even after it must have been apparent to every person that it was a mistaken one.

I believe that if the Leader of the Opposition, Sir Michael Cashin, had come back from the polls with the majority last Fall he would be bringing in a Bill similar to the one before the House, for I am sure he must have seen that there was a lot of room for improvement in the Agricultural methods adopted and carried out by his party during the last decade.

I would like to say a great deal more on this subject, but there seems to be a feeling that you are in the wrong atmosphere to discuss agricultural problems at any length, and I will therefore bring my remarks to a close, but the country will be pleased to know that in conjunction with our Fishery Legislation we have also endeavoured to promote that, which is after all the greatest industry on earth, namely, the cultivation of the soil.

Before sitting down I wish to reiterate the hope that is the Government will see its way clear to carry out all that is aimed at in this Model Farm project, including a bonus to industrious and deserving people to enable them to extend their farms by clearing more land, and thus placing our country in a position to be independent and self supporting in the matter of Agricultural Products.

INDEX

ADDRESS IN REPLY.
Motion for, 27.
Committee on, 27, 31.
Draft, 31.
Presentation of, 309.
Governor's Reply to, 309.

ARCHIBALD, MR.
On Speech from the Throne, 183.

ABBOTT, MR.
On Address in Reply, 206.

AGRICULTURAL BILL, 397, 403, 470, 517, 535, 559.

BEAVER BILL, 542, 547, 565, 580, 589.

BUDGET SPEECH, 632.

BUSINESS PROFITS TAX BILL, 397, 429, 432, 562, 564, 578.

BENNETT, MR.
On Speech from the Throne, 82.
Shipbuilding Bill, 295.
Standardization of Codfish Bill, 346.
Legislative Disabilities Bill, 419.
Business Profits Tax Bill, 431.
Fire Patrol Bill, 455.
Exportation of Codfish Bill, 507.
Beaver Bill, 567.
Housing Bill, 656, 657.
Supply, 747, 785, 791, 828.
Coal Situation, 845.
Ways and Means, 871.

BILLS, LIST OF, 957.

CASHIN, SIR M. P.
On Resolutions of Condolence, 19.
Motion for Address in Reply, 27, 136.
Speech from the Throne, 112, 113, 117, 119, 128.
Fishery Regulations Bill, 121.
Shipbuilding Bill, 262, 266, 301.
Information Respecting Codfishery Bill, 314.
Standardization of Codfish Bill, 333.
Legislative Disabilities Bill, 422, 435.
Fire Control Bill, 461, 462.
Exportation of Codfish Bill, 481.
Supply, 664, 673, 674, 680, 782, 821.
Ways and Means, 864, 866, 867.
Railway Loan Bill, 918, 940.

COMMISSION OF INTERNAL ECONOMY, 195.

CROSBIE, SIR J. C.
On Speech from the Throne, 77.
Shipbuilding Bill, 297.
Survey of Vessels Bill, 375.
Legislative Disabilities Bill, 408, 411, 414.
Business Profits Tax Bill, 430.
Women's Franchise Bill, 449.
Profiteering Bill, 450, 472, 473.
Agricultural Bill, 472.
Masters and Mates Bill, 538.

CONDOLENCE, RESOLUTIONS OF, 19, 20.

CONSOLIDATED STATUTES BILL, 31, 73, 107, 154.

CONFISHERY INFORMATION BILL, 158, 314, 359, 366.

CERTIFICATES OF MASTERS AND MATES BILL, 447, 449, 517, 535, 651.

COMMEMORATION DAY BILL, 606, 741.

COMPANIES' BILL, 647, 660, 819.

CHEESEMAN, MR.
On Speech from the Throne, 160.

Standardization of Codfish Bill, 345.
Exportation of Codfish Bill, 498.

LOCAL AFFAIRS BILL, 534.

DIVISIONS.

On Motion to Adjourn pending the finding of Royal Commission, 17.
Shipbuilding Bill, 306, 307.
Legislative Disabilities Bill, 442.
Beaver Bill, 485.

DEBENTURE BONDS BILL, 479, 518, 559, 565.

DEATH DUTIES BILL, 397, 402, 445, 451, 480, 594, 596.

EXPORTATION OF CODFISH BILL, 366, 514, 518, 542, 559, 910.

ENEMY ALIENS BILL, 542, 547, 586, 589, 590, 595.

ELECTION BILL, 606, 616, 631, 648.

EDUCATION BILL, 829, 849, 892, 900, 910, 951.

ESTATES OF DECEASED ESQUIMAUX BILL, 912, 950.

ESTIMATES—MARINE FISHERIES DEPARTMENT, 850.

EDUCATION, HON. MINISTER OF
On Education Bill, 892, 901.

FOX, MR.
On Speech from the Throne, 64, 67.
Post and Telegraphs Bill, 254, 307.
Shipbuilding Bill, 267, 288.
Standardization of Codfish Bill, 336, 342.
Legislative Disabilities Bill, 433.
Women's Franchise Bill, 444, 617.
Export of Codfish Bill, 499, 505.
Master and Mates Bill, 535.
Sealfishery Bill, 602.
Protection of Animals Bill, 617, 629.
Supply, 771, 794.

Ways and Means, 881.
Keeping of Dogs Bill, 911.

FINANCE AND CUSTOMS, HON. MINISTER OF
On Speech from the Throne, 216.
Business Profits Tax Bill, 430.
Supply, 747.

FOOTE, MR.
On Shipbuilding Bill, 265.
Codfish Exportation Bill, 494.

FOOD CONTROL BILL, 32, 74, 108, 154.

FIRE PATROL BILL, 397, 403, 446, 452, 480, 517, 594.

GOVERNOR, HIS EXCELLENCY
Speech from the Throne, 4.
Assents to Bill, 819, 057.
Prorogues the Assembly, 958.

GOSSE, MR.
On Speech from the Throne, 210.
Survey of Vessels Bill, 379.
Local Affairs Bill, 592.

GRAND BANK HARBOR BILL, 360, 366, 389.

HIBBS, MR.
On Speech from the Throne, 165, 166, 168.
Local Affairs Bill, 170, 171, 172, 525.
Agricultural Bill, 958.

HIGGINS, MR.
On Speech from the Throne, 98.
Shipbuilding Bill, 267, 285.
Legislative Disabilities Bill, 404, 405.
Income War Tax Bill, 429.
Women's Franchise Bill, 449.
Fire Patrol Bill, 466.
Profiteering Bill, 479.
Fish Regulations Bill, 506.

Certificates of Masters and Mates Bill, 540.
Local Affairs Bill, 601, 604, 610.
Election Bill, 629.
Housing Bill, 655.
Supply, 662, 725, 727, 730, 736, 738, 741, 817, 835, 837.
Coal Situation, 840.
Ways and Means, 873.
Education Bill, 905.
Railway Loan Bill, 941.
Municipal Bill, 952.

HOUSING BILL, 921.

INFORMATION RESPECTING CODFISHERY BILL, 578.

INCOME WAR TAX BILL, 428, 479, 517, 535, 596, 609.

INDUSTRIAL SOCIETIES BILL, 32, 73, 107, 154.

JONES, DR.
On Speech from the Throne, 44, 199.
Fire Patrol Bill, 463.
Road Bill, 592.

JUDICATURE BILL, 250, 363, 369, 379, 389, 564.

JUSTICE, HON. MINISTER OF
On Speech from the Throne, 218, 219.
Shipbuilding Bill, 276.
W. P. A. Bill, 320.
Standardization of Codfish Bill, 336.
Judicature Bill, 363.
Exportation of Codfish Bill, 512.
Local Affairs Bill, 612.
Women's Franchise Bill, 621.
Supply, 741.

KEEPING OF DOGS BILL, 631, 648, 910, 951.

LEGISLATIVE DISABILITIES BILL, 238, 250, 404, 432, 452, 590, 594, 596.

LICENSES TO CUT HARDWOOD BILL, 518, 535, 563, 578, 589, 595, 720.

LOCAL AFFAIRS BILL, 590, 594, 603, 615, 819.

LIBRARY COMMITTEE, 394.

LeGROW, MR.
On Motion for Address in Reply, 23.
Fish Regulation Bill, 159.

MARINE AND FISHERIES BILL, 269, 271, 323, 360, 547.

MONTREAL TRUST COMPANY BILL, 515, 541, 563, 578, 631.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS BILL, 740, 755, 898, 936, 781, 819, 957.

MOORE, MR.
On Supply, 693, 720.
Coal Situation, 841.

MacDonnell, Mr.
On Shipbuilding Bill, 269, 297.
Standardization of Codfishery Bill, 338.
St. Lawrence S. S. Company Bill, 380.
Legislative Disabilities Bill, 404, 455.
Fire Control Bill, 454, 464, 466.
Exportation of Codfish Bill, 496.
Beaver Bill, 569.
Supply, 686, 813, 814.
Education Bill, 900.

TARGETT, MR.
On Women's Suffrage Bill, 619.

MARINE AND FISHERIES, HON. MINISTER OF
On Fish Regulations Bill, 137.
Shipbuilding Bill, 191, 256, 265, 272, 304.
Standardization of Codfish Bill, 310, 326, 349.
Information Respecting Codfishery Bill, 314, 359.
Survey of Vessels Bill, 322, 333, 373, 374, 378.
Legislative Disabilities Bill, 412.
Exportation of Codfish Bill, 424, 502, 514.
Certificates of Masters and Mates Bill, 537.
Beaver Bill, 566.
Herring Fishery, 869.

MESSAGES—
Concurring in Bills 307, 467, 547, 594, 631, 819, 949, 951.
Requesting Concurrence in Bills 442, 451, 452, 609, 936.
Commanding Attendance at Bar of the House, 819.

NEWFOUNDLAND MEDICAL BOARD BILL, 32, 74, 107, 154.

OUTPORT STREET LIGHTING BILL, 423, 442, 452, 594.

PRIME MINISTER, HON THE
On Resolutions of Condolence, 17.
Speech from the Throne, 222.
Posts and Telegraphs Bill, 250, 255.
W. P. A. Bill, 320.
Standardization of Codfish Bill, 353.
St. Lawrence S.S. Company Bill, 370, 383, 384, 385.
Susu Shipping Company Bill, 392.
Legislative Disabilities Bill, 433.
Profiteering Bill, 443, 477.
Registration of Midwives Bill, 446.
Fire Control Bill, 452, 465.
Local Affairs Bill, 525.
Postal and Telegraph Service Bill, 549.
Licenses to Cut Harwood Bill, 589.
Election Bill, 616.
Women's Franchise Bill, 621, 623.
Housing Bill, 652, 667, 809.
Supply, 664, 844, 931.
Municipal Bill, 899, 952.
Trustee Investments Bill, 909.
Railway Loan Bill, 913, 919.

PROFITEERING BILL, 475, 514, 517, 535.

PILOTAGE BILL, 589, 593, 595, 602, 609, 720.

PROTECTION OF ANIMALS BILL, 595, 596, 617, 627, 741.

PUBLIC ROADS BILL, 602.

PUBLIC WORKS BILL, 32, 74, 108, 154, 442, 451.

POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS BILL, 32, 191, 250, 307, 559, 589, 631.

PATRIOTIC FUND BILL, 936.

POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS, HON. MINISTER OF
On Standardization of Codfish Bill, 351.
Postal Telegraph Service Bill, 547.
Beaver Bill, 585.
Housing Bill, 657.

PUBLIC WORKS, MINISTER OF
On Survey of Vessels Bill, 321.
Local Affairs Bill, 603, 610.
Railway Loan Bill, 949.
Speech from the Throne, 242.
Beaver Bill, 568, 582.
Road Bill, 592, 599.

PETITIONS.

Sullivan, M.S.—28, 363, 394, 650.
Walsh, W.—29, 75, 254, 586, 613, 651, 911.
Justice, Hon. Minister of—30, 33, 156, 246, 271, 321, 363, 388, 447, 514, 521, 891.
MacDonnell, Mr.—32, 109, 156, 361, 365, 401, 586, 780, 799, 891, 898.
Public Works, Hon. Minister—33, 76, 248, 372, 520, 780.
Higgins, Mr.—76, 77, 192, 249, 366, 543, 651, 666, 829, 912.
Shipping, Minister of—109, 110, 396, 520.
Small, Mr.—110, 155, 158, 179, 180, 401, 515, 606, 648, 660.
Scammell, Mr.—157, 193, 396, 829.
Halfyard, Hon. W. W.—157.
Targett, Mr.—179, 193, 309, 401, 545.
Cheeseman, Mr.—179.
Minister of Finance—193, 544, 648.
Crosbie, Sir John—246, 515, 543, 544.
Winsor, Mr.—246, 253, 309, 362, 365, 396, 780.
LeGrow, Mr.—247, 447, 799.
Abbott, Mr.—248, 310, 360, 365, 401, 514, 577, 595, 613, 660.
Hibbs, Mr.—248, 362, 365, 386, 387, 388, 515, 648, 799, ——
Jones, Dr.—253, 515, 521, 545, 606.
Foote, Hon. Mr.—254, 401, 545, 780.
Minister of Education—828.
Gosse, Mr.—310.
Cashin, Sir M. P.—321, 369, 515, 631.

Fox, Mr.—321, 524.
Coaker, Hon. Mr.—424, 545.
Sinnott, Mr.—519.
Vinnicombe, Mr.—521, 595.
Minister of Posts and Telegraphs—543, 545, 546, 912.
Bennett, Mr.—544, 632, 651, 799.
Hon. Prime Minister—627, 648.
Samson, Mr.—648, 799.
Moore, Mr.—651.
Guppy, Mr.—799.

QUESTIONS—
Cashin, Sir M. P.—52, 108, 249, 307, 310, 360, 369, 373, 389, 396, 403, 596, 607, 608.
Sullivan, Mr.—32, 110, 111, 112, 158, 310, 325, 424, 450.
Walsh, Mr.—112, 159, 249, 369, 373, 402, 432, 479, 586, 587.
MacDonnell, Mr.—32, 112, 249, 367, 369, 373, 389, 424, 450, 755, 799.
Jones, Dr.—112, 159, 249, 252, 479.
Moore, Mr.—159.
Bennett, Mr.—249, 253, 307, 310, 396, 403, 586, 596, 850, 892, 898.
Vinnicombe, Mr.—249, 253, 360, 741.
Fox, Mr.—249, 892.
Scammel, Mr.—307.
Crosbie, Sir John—32, 369, 389, 400, 402, 540.
Higgins, Mr.—400, 607, 741, 829, 850, 892, 912.
Hon. Prime Minister—527.
Sinnott, Mr.—931.
Walsh, Mr.—631, 741, 755, 799, 931, 940.
Cashin, Sir M. P.—647, 740, 780.
MacDonnell, Mr.—819.

RULES SUSPENDED—
755, 781, 829, 891.

REPORT OF
The Department of Militia, 28.
Newfoundland War Contingent Association, 28.
Harbor Grace Industrial Society, 28.
Newfoundland Savings Bank, 28.
General Hospital, 547.
Auditor General, 891.

RESOLUTIONS RE ADJOURN OF HOUSE PENDING THE FINDING OF ROYAL COMMISSION—417.

SUPPLY—
479, 632, 662, 710, 741, 782, 799, 829, 844, 850, 863, 910, 913, 931, 936, 951.

SMALL, MR.
Motion for Address in Reply, 21.

SCAMMELL, MR.
On Address in Reply, 96.
Codfishery Information Bill, 315.
Beaver Bill, 567.

SHIPPING, MINISTER OF
On Speech from the Throne, 211, 213.

SINNOTT, MR.
On Speech from the Throne, 82.
Supply, 765.

SAMSON, MR.
On Speech from the Throne, 199.
Education Bill, 907.

SPEAKER, HON. THE
On Speech from the Throne, 5.
Survey of Vessels Bill, 375, 377, 378.
Keeping of Dogs Bill, 910.
Road Bill, 592.

SULLIVAN, Mr.
On Speech from the Throne, 34.
Shipbuilding Bill, 273, 275.
Standardization of Codfish Bill, 337.
Fire Patrol Bill, 459.
Beaver Bill, 571.
Women's Franchise Bill, 626.
Supply, 703, 708, 711, 718, 720.
Railway Loan Bill, 941.

SHIPBUILDING BILL, 75, 256, 271, 310, 578.

STANDARDIZATION OF CODFISH BILL, 32, 310, 564, 565.

SURVEY OF VESSELS BILL, 269, 271, 321, 336, 363, 373, 389, 578.

SUSU SHIPPING CO. BILL, 360, 369, 423, 452, 594.

ST. LAWRENCE S.S. CO. BILL, 360, 366, 370, 380, 389, 547.

STIPENDIARY MAGISTRATES BILL, 397, 402, 445, 451, 452, 480, 594.

SEAL FISHERY BILL, 578, 590, 602, 603, 609, 951.

SALARIES BILL, 950.

REGISTRATION OF MID-WIVES BILL, 397, 402, 446, 451, 481, 594, 596.

REVENUE BILL, 891, 898, 918, 920, 951.

RAILWAY LOAN BILL, 913, 951.

RETIRING ALLOWANCES BILL, 951.

TRUSTEE INVESTMENTS BILL, 909, 951.

TREATIES OF PEACE BILL, 740, 799, 951.

TENANTS BILL, 535, 542, 563, 565.

TERRA NOVA SULPHITE CO. BILL, 647, 659, 663.

VINNICOMBE, MR.
On Women's Franchise Bill, 449.
Exportation of Codfish Bill, 513.
Local Affairs Bill, 602.
Supply, 745.

WAYS AND MEANS—863, 871.

WINSOR, MR.
On Address in Reply, 239.

WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE BILL, 47.

W. P. A. BILL, 239, 250, 320, 360, 365.

PROCEEDINGS

OF THE

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

During the First Session of the Twenty-Fourth General Assembly of Newfoundland

1920

UNION PUBLISHING COMPANY, LTD.

PROCEEDINGS

OF THE

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

SESSION 1920

TUESDAY, April 20th, 1920.

This being the day appointed by Proclamation for the meeting of the Legislature.

At five minutes to 3 o'clock, p.m., the House met.

At three o'clock, p.m., the Honourable Robert K. Bishop, the Honourable James D. Ryan, and the Honourable Marmaduke G. Winter, members of the Legislative Council, nominated and appointed by His Excellency the Governor as Commissioners having taken their seats the Honourable R. K. Bishop commanded the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, attendant on the Council, to proceed to the Honourable House of Assembly, and inform the members thereto that His Excellency the Governor's Commissioners desire their immediate attendance in the Council Chamber to hear the Commission read, and they being come thereto, the following Commission was read by the clerk of the Legislative Council setting out that whereas it is not convenient that the purposes for which he had called the said General Assembly together should be declared until the Members of the House of Assembly have proceeded to the choice of a Speaker, he had appointed the said Honourable James D. Ryan, Honourable Robert K. Bishop and Honourable Marmaduke G. Winter to signify to the Members of the said House of Assembly that it was his pleasure that they should proceed to the choice of some person to be their Speaker, and present such person for his approbation.

The Honourable Robert K. Bishop, addressing both Houses of the Legislature, then said:

Honourable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council:

Gentlemen of the Honourable House of Assembly:

It is not convenient for His Excellency the Governor to declare the reasons of his calling this General Assembly, it being necessary that a Speaker of the House of Assembly should be first chosen;

You Gentlemen of the House of Assembly repair to the place where you are to sit, and there proceed to the appointment of some proper person to be your Speaker, and present such person whom you shall so choose, here to-morrow at three o'clock for His Excellency's approbation.

The House of Assembly then withdrew.

On motion House then adjourned.

WEDNESDAY, April 21st, 1920.

The House met at three p.m. pursuant to adjournment.

At three o'clock p.m. His Excellency the Governor, Sir Charles Alexander Harris, K.C.M.G., C.B., C.V.O., having arrived at the Council Chamber and being seated on the throne, Commanded the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, through the Honourable the President of the Legislative Council, to let the Commons House of Assembly know—

"It is His Excellency the Governor's pleasure they attend him immediately in this House"

Who being come thereto.

William F. Penney, Esq., Merchant, Member for the District of Carbonear, having been presented by the Hon. R. A. Squires, Premier, as Speaker elect, and the choice approved, His Excellency the Governor was pleased to speak as follows:—

(Speech appears in first part of this volume.)

His Excellency and the gentlemen of the House of Assembly having retired, the Commission of Honourable J. D. Ryan as President was read by the Clerk.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—Mr. President, as the senior member of the Council present I desire to take the earliest opportunity of extending to you my very hearty congratulations upon the honour conferred upon you by the representative of His Majesty the King in appointing you to the honourable position of President of the Legislative Council of the Dominion of Newfoundland.

His Excellency the Governor has not alone acted with wisdom in appointing you, Sir, to preside over the deliberations of this branch of the Legislature, but has made an appointment which I feel sure affords great pleasure to every member of this House, and to the public generally. We feel, Sir, that your appointment is appropriate, that it is a recognition of what is at once due to you, and due to this branch of the Legislature of this Dominion.

I have every confidence, Mr. President, that while occupying the Presidential chair you will recognise the right of every member of the House to a free expression of his opinions, within the limits of the rules of the House, and render your decisions with impartiality and a becoming dignity; following thereby the worthy example of the honoured President who, when you first entered this Council and for years afterwards, occupied your present seat, —the late Sir Edward Shea, of whom we were all so justly proud. I welcome you again, Sir, to the Presidency of this Council and trust you may be permitted to occupy that chair for many years to come.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—Permit me, Mr. President, to extend to you my congratulations upon the very high honor conferred upon you in your appointment to the Presidency of this Council, and in so doing, I feel that I am giving expression to the thoughts of honourable gentlemen who compose the Council. In congratulating you upon the dignity and honor conferred, I feel assured that the best traditions of the office and the dignity of the Chamber will at all times have a worthy exponent and representative in you.

To you, Sir, it must be a source of pleasure that in the evening of your life an office such as President of the Council should have come to you unsolicited and unsought. It is, however, but a testimony to your probity of character and well spent life since you first left the shores of your native land and made this country your adopted home. It is also at the same time a tribute to the race from which you sprung that wherever men of Irish descent have been afforded opportunities which are denied them in their own land they have distinguished themselves in every walk of human endeavor. It is my earnest wish that you may be long spared to preside over the deliberations of this Chamber.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Mr. President, I would like to join in a little contribution and congratulate you upon the position you occupy to-day. In 1900 when I first entered political life I was associated with you at that time, and during all these years you have always shown exemplary interest in everything pertaining to the welfare of the country. In 1904 I was one of those who were associated with you when we became members of this House. There were four appointed. There were yourself, the late Hon. John Harvey of respected memory, and my friend to the right, Hon. Mr. Milley. At that time, Sir, the House did not extend that reception that perhaps ought to have been given, but, Sir, you were the first to take the hand and give a warm welcome to those who afterwards came to this House. I am proud to have this opportunity of congratulating you upon the exalted position that you occupy now, and I trust that you may be spared many, many years to uphold the dignity and honor of President of this Council.

HON. MR. PRESIDENT:—I thank the Hon. Mr. Bishop and Hon. Mr. Gibbs sincerely, and Mr. Anderson for the kind sentiments which he expressed. I am now at a stage where I do not take all that as pertaining to myself, but I am grateful for the kind expressions, and I shall do my duty here to the best of my ability, but I cannot expect to do it of myself. I count on your support and cooperation, and then I know we will perform our duty here for the benefit of our common country.

Ithank you very sincerely, gentlemen, for the kindly words expressed towards me, and I hope that you will not be deceived in any action which I may take during my occupancy of this seat, and if you find I am not doing my duty a kind friend will give me a slight nudge and I will take it and step down. I have received the following commisions from His Excellency the Governor: Mr. George Shea, Dr. Alexander Campbell, Mr. Frank Steer, Mr. John Browning.

Gentlemen, I welcome the new members, and from my knowledge of them I think they are an acquisition to this Chamber. As my esteemed friend, the Hon. John Anderson, has pointed out, when a few years ago we came to this Chamber we were not received with open arms, but I think it may be said of the Hon. John Harvey, the Hon. Mr. Anderson and Hon. Mr. Milley, leaving out myself, that they have conducted themselves to the entire advantage of the country, and I hope that while I am here the country will have no cause of saying that we have not carried out the deliberations of this Council to the best of our ability. I thank you sincerely, gentlemen.

The Clerk read the Speech from the Throne.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—Mr. President, since we last met here in session the Great Reaper has been busy and three of our oldest and most honoured members have been called away. Such depletion of our small membership makes a great breach and provides for those of us who are left a striking reminder of never ceasing change and decay.

The Hon. George Skelton, who was for a number of years past a surprise to us all, who tho' having attained a very great age so seldom permitted anything, not even inclement weather even, to prevent his attendance at meeting of the Council. The Hon. Dr. Skelton was a member since 1890 and will be long remembered for his genial kindliness towards his associates and faithfulness to public duty.

The Hon. A. F. Goodridge too, who had also reached his eighty first year of age and seventh year of membership here, was one of the most valued and most highly respected members. Mr. Goodridge was always intelligently interested in the legislation of the sessions, followed keenly the bills which came before the House, and brought to its deliberations a keen intelligence and ripe experience, of which he was ever ready to give lucid expression. We all remember how during the last session when Mr. Goodridge's health was anything but robust he took a very keen interest in many of the Bills before the House and freely approved or condemned as his judgment dictated. The passing of Mr. Goodridge is a decided loss to the Legislature and to the trade and commerce of the country as well. He was one of the old school now becoming unfortunately all too few.

The Hon. John Harvey—of him what shall I say. If time permitted I should rather ask, what shall I not say. The passing of John Harvey, occurring as it did when he had but attained the age of mature manhood, has been acknowledged throughout our Dominion to be an event of Dominion-wide import, and has occasioned Dominion-wide sorrow. Throughout the length and breadth of Newfoundland and far beyond he was intimately known and most highly regarded. During the past fifteen years he occupied a seat in this Council and we have had many opportunities of observing the care and attention which he gave to all legislative enactments, and how often has his speeches evidenced the student, the judicial reasoner, the well stored mine of experience which he could draw from in relation to all the interests of the country. Very few, if any, of her sons had greater faith in Newfoundland's resources or spent more of their time and means to assist and encourage their development.

The Hon. Mr. Harvey regarded in no light manner his position and his responsibility as a Legislative councillor, and was most tolerant and broad in his attitude towards those whose viewpoint upon the matter under consideration did not accord with his own. It is not here alone, Sir, that the loss of Mr. Harvey will be felt, nor even by those of us who met him frequently in commercial and other intercourse, but throughout our city and indeed throughout our country can be found many hearts still saddened through the comparatively early passing of Hon. John Harvey.

I wish to avail, Sir, of the opportunity now afforded this Council of marking by resolution our deep sense of loss and of our regret in respect to our departed comrades, and I beg to propose the following:

HON. MR. GIBBS:—I avail of this opportunity to express my deep regret at the loss which not alone the Council has sustained but the country as well, in the death of the three members named in the resolutions of sympathy.

It was my pleasure to occupy a seat in this Council Chamber next to that of the late Honourable Mr. Harvey, and I had therefore an excellent opportunity of observing the singleness of purpose to which he devoted his energies and talents in making legislation that came before the Council as perfect as it was possible to do so. In the debates in which he participated he impressed us all with the vigor of his intellect and the facility with which he unfolded his thoughts and ideas to the Council. The various bills which came before us and the subject discussed in which Mr. Harvey took an important part showed him to be a man of wide range of knowledge and a deep student of the development which has taken place in legislation the past thirty years. Legislation that came before the Council received at his hands keen scrutiny and serious consideration and his well stored mind and mature judgment on very many occasions were instrumental in amending bills which otherwise would not have attained the objects aimed at. He was a steady and indefatigable worker and he came to every discussion which he took part in with complete preparation. He was preeminently a fair and candid man, in debate he took no petty advantage and stooped to no unworthy methods. The lines of his friendship and confidence encircled men in every creed. In all things he had charity.

The commercial life of this country in his death has met a very severe loss. The deceased gentleman was always optimistic as to the future of the country. He loved his native land, and in the many industrial enterprises which he inaugurated or assisted in developing, he did so, not solely for the gain that may come to him, but to make Newfoundland industrially happy. As an employer of labor, his relations with his employees were of the most cordial character. No appeal to him on behalf of the worker passed unheeded. He was broad and sympathetic in his dealings with labor and recognized the worker's right to proper compensation for his toil. There was another side of his character, and that was his desire to bring succor and relief to the suffering. We can all look back and see the energy and singleness of purpose with which he roused the country to the gravity of the great white plague. The amount of work which he did, the time given, and the money he freely spent in this movement which he originated and developed until it spread throughout the Island, shows the greatness of his heart and his desire to leave the country in which he first saw the light, better than he found it. If the late Mr. Harvey had done nothing more than bring home to the minds of the people of this country the awful toll which the great white plague was annually taking in our midst, he deserved the lasting gratitude of the country.

In the Honourable Mr. Goodridge the country has lost a familiar and prominent figure in the public and business life of the country. No one could come in contact with the deceased gentleman but could fail to admire the sterling honesty of the man, his splendid talents and undoubted courage. Mr. Goodridge was a man amongst men. He possessed high intellectual attainments and great debating power. As a Parliamentary Debater on an issue squarely joined, when the ground had been chosen, he must be assigned a position in the first rank. He had a great and abiding faith in the country and loved to see it prosper. He at all times gave freely of his talents and his time to every cause that aimed to uplift Newfoundland, and his many years in the public life of the country showed him to be a man of commanding personality and of splendid abilities. Men associated in business and politics with Mr. Goodridge always have had a kind regard of his many good qualities of head and heart. He never oppressed any man. On the southern shore and in other portions of the country where his firm carried on an extensive business the name of the deceased gentleman is a household word. The mere length and variety of his public services in almost every branch of the Government of the country, whether as a member of the lower branch of the Legislature, Prime Minister or an honored member of this Council, have secured for him a conspicuous and permanent place upon our public records.

In the Honourable Dr. Skelton the Council has lost one of those rare kindly old gentlemen of the old school, of a type which is rapidly passing away. The gentleman whose decease we deeply regret was one of those old landmarks in our public life. Scholarly and dignified, he represented the best traditions of the Council.

The loss of the gentlemen referred to creates a gap in the public councils of the country that is not easy to fill, but they have left us better titles to remembrance than any which mere office can bestow. The crowning characteristic of their lives was their liberality and their tolerance of the opinions of others. Tolerance was of their nature. Let us therefore bind fresh bonds of brotherhood and of union in the cherished memories of those who have gone before us. I beg leave to second the motion.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—As one of the older members of this House and one who has been associated with the late members who have now been mentioned, I rise with a great deal of pleasure, though with regret at their demise, to support the resolution that is before this Chamber. This House during the past fifteen years has had many changing scenes. When we first came to this House in 1904 the President was the late Sir Edward Shea, father of the gentleman recently appointed to a seat in this Chamber. I refer to the Hon. George Shea, whose father occupied the position of President of this Chamber for very many years and rendered valued services to his country. At that date there were eighteen members of this House. Twelve are gone and have been promoted to the great assembly above. There were in the Council these members: Hon. Sir Edward Shea, the Hon. George T. Rendell, Hon. Samuel Blandford, Hon. J. D. Ryan, Hon. John Harris, Hon. J. S. Pitts, Hon. James Baird, Hon. James McLoughlan, Hon. James Angel, Hon. John Ayre, Hon. Dr. Skelton, Hon. John Harvey, Hon. George Knowling, Hon. Mr. Greene, Hon. Mr. Bishop, Hon. Sir Edgar Bowring, Hon. Mr. Milley, and myself. Out of these eighteen who occupied seats in this House at that time there are six remaining. There are four in the House at the present time, our honored friend the President, the Hon. Mr. Bishop, Mr. Milley and myself. There is also the Hon. George Knowling, who is not with us to-day on account of his health, and there is also Sir Edgar Bowring, who is now the High Commissioner for this Colony in England. Such changes show us what may take place in a brief period of fifteen years. We never know who may be next, and it is only a duty that we owe to ourselves and our country that while we are here we should do good for those who come after. I join with the mover and seconder of the resolution, believing that the good example that these men have left behind them will be followed by those that are here to-day. I support the resolution, Mr. President.

HON. THE PRESIDENT:—I join in supporting the resolution proposed by Mr. Bishop, seconded by Mr. Gibbs and ably supported by Mr. Anderson. I have had a knowledge of these gentlemen for many years. As Mr. Anderson has stated, the Hon. Mr. Harvey was one of the members appointed when we were, and there is a distinct loss to this country in the passing of Mr. Harvey. As to the genial Dr. Skelton, he was an extraordinary man for his years. On stormy days he very seldom missed putting in an appearance in this Chamber. With the Hon. Mr. Goodridge I was very familiar, because, living in the same neighbourhood as he, I very often met him going to his business, and he was very seldom late, and it was only within the last few days that he did not walk to his business in the morning although he was nearing eighty years of age. His death was a distinct loss to the country, as, with the other gentlemen who occupied seats in this Chamber when we entered it—I refer especially to the President of the day—he did his utmost for the betterment of the Colony. On stormy days when it was a danger for a person of his years to come out, he very seldom failed to put in an appearance in this Chamber. However, God, in His own time removed him from his friends, and, as Mr. Anderson has stated, twelve have departed since we took seats in this Chamber.

The resolutions were then put to the House and carried.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—In rising to move that a Select Committee be appointed to draft an address in reply to the Speech with which His Excellency has opened this session, I wish in the first instance to thank hon. gentlemen for the welcome they have extended to myself and the other hon. gentlemen newly appointed to this House.

The speech as delivered by His Excellency foreshadows a very great amount of legislation that will no doubt tend to the general advancement of the Colony and it is well that this is taken up as mentioned here that the trade generally throughout the world and conditions generally have been so disorganized, and a great amount of reconstruction will have to be undertaken in all countries by legislators, and more so probably in this country than in others which have been progressing at a more rapid rate, and have taken advantage of advanced thought more so than we have. I fear that we in this country have been too lax in taking advantage of much improvement and advanced thought that have emanated from outside sources. We have rather been content to go on in a great measure in the old way until driven possibly by circumstances to make some alterations. The unrest in this country is having I think very great influence in making us, in business and in our legislative duties, consider what is to be for the future. This speech outlines a very large program of legislation. His Excellency refers also to the ships that have been donated by the Admiralty. No doubt these will be of great service, and were much needed by the country.

The speech also refers to the dispute outstanding for many years between this country and Canada in relation to the Labrador boundary. It is well indeed that this matter is now to be taken up, and in a short time probably will be settled, as to what jurisdiction either country will have in the territory in dispute.

A matter of great importance referred to in the speech, deals with fishery matters, and I am very glad indeed that on the assumption of office of the present Government, they put into force regulations for the conserving of our fish markets. Of course in all new things there must be a difference of opinion, and in such a country as this where we hate to depart from old customs and adopt new ones, it seems very radical for the Government to step in and regulate the price and sale of fish to foreign countries. But I think sane people on looking around and seeing that the trade of the whole world at the present time is being regulated and conserved and guided by the governments of the several countries, will admit that it was a wise step on the part of the Government here. There is a difference of opinion as to the form of carrying out these regulations but there can be very little difference of opinion as to the principle involved, and we hope that in the coming session that such regulations will be made as will meet the sympathy of the whole country, and that all will give their aid in carrying them out. The fishery is our one great industry, and probably less has been done for it than any other. Different governments have passed legislation as to cull and other things, but they have never been carried out with any degree of firmness. Consequently instead of their being of benefit, as a practical result they have been worst than none at all. Some persons claim that these regulations prevent competition. Well the only competitions this country can have are those countries which produce the same article as we do, and these are the only ones we ought to have in disposing of our fish. There ought not to be competition between one and the other of our export merchants which will tend to depress the price of fish in our foreign markets. While it is proper that a minimum price should be made here, the competition between our merchants ought to be what they can get over and above the minimum price set for our fish.

The first principle in dealing with natural products, to my mind, is that the property of the individual who may have them in their possession. What I mean is this that supposing a fisherman has been fitted out with boat and all necessaries for catching the fish, goes to the grounds and catches his load of fish, and the feeling though the country is that that fish is his. To my mind that fish is not his, but it belongs to the country. It is a trust reposed in him and his proprietary interest in it is only in so far as the labor that he has put into the catching of it. Therefore it is right and proper and the absolute duty of the Government of the day, to see that on the fish being caught the fisherman will handle it so as to give the best results to the country and they be the arbiter as to what should be done with that fish. They should make such regulations to see that that fish is properly cured and everything done to make it a profitable article. At the present time it is a disgusting scene to go in a fishing stage as I have and seen them washing out fish in water grey with the offal and slime of that fish. How could it be possible for fish handled in that manner to be anything but bad? I want to enunciate the principle that the natural resources of the country are not the property of the individual, but merely a trust. That trust is conveyed to the fish merchant and while he may pay him for the product of his labors he transfers his trust, and it is further transferred for the handling and disposing of in the foreign markets. So that it is right and proper and entirely in the province of the Government to take hold of all products of the country and conserve them to the general good of the community.

Another most important matter in the speech is that regarding the Department of Marine and Fisheries, that a department of scientific research is to be established. There can be no two opinions as to the benefits of such a department, particularly in a fish business; and in fact almost every manufacturing concern at the present time is developing scientific research, and endeavouring to provide the very best food that can be made of a product.

Another matter is the way ships are being built, and the risks that our people are taking in going abroad. It is most surprising that up to the present time we can procure men to go in many of the crafts at present sailing the waters.

The Government are also creating a Department of Education. That to my mind is the best thing in the speech, for education applies even to the catching of fish, for an intelligent man will give greater attention to his products than an uneducated one. I am pleased indeed to see that such a department is to be created. Our fullest energies should be devoted to seeing that every child in the country is educated. It is a disgrace that there were so many illiterates in both our Regiment and the Naval Reserve; some of the best we have in the country and fifty per cent of them illiterate. I think the Government ought to have all support to the fullest extent in passing measures to compel every parent to send his child to school; that it ought not to be optional with the parent to send his child, but he ought to be compelled to send him. There has been an endeavour to create a higher education in this country, but I think it has absolutely failed, and I hope it is the intention of the Government in this department of education to devote their whole energies to the three R's. Higher education is a matter for individual effort and not so much for the Government. It is only within very few years that any grant has been made to Higher Education or to any of the Universities in England; and only a few of them are getting any grant to-day; the University of Bristol being the first to receive a grant. The whole of the Higher Education is done by individual effort and not by the government. I hope that our Department of Education will take this matter in hand so that every child in this country will be able to read and write and figure intelligently. Many at present are supposed to read and write who really do not read and write intelligently.

I understand that it is the intention of the Government to organize a Normal School so that the teachers that go to the several outports will be fully qualified. At present they are at a great disadvantage. No doubt many of them do very good work, but in the aggregate they are at the disadvantage of imparting information which they may not possess.

With these few remarks, I beg to propose that a Select Committee be appointed to draft an Address in Reply to the gracious speech with which His Excellency has been pleased to open this Session of the Legislature.

HON. MR. STEER:—Mr. President, I rise to second the motion that a select committee be apopinted to draft an address in reply to the gracious speech with which His Excellency has been pleased to open the present session of the Legislature.

One cannot help but note with satisfaction the volume of useful, practical and beneficial legislation foreshadowed in His Excellency's speech.

Legislation aiming at the better cure and cull of our fish, and the protection of shipments of same in foreign markets.

Legislation establishing regulations for a survey of our foreign-going vessels, and making provision for the safety of their crews; a matter which has been so lamentably neglected in the past.

Legislation for the creation of a Department of Posts and Telegraphs, the present system having become absolutely unreliable, worn-out, and obsolete.

Legislation for the betterment of our transportation service, both coastwise and internal; the condition of which has, owing to varied causes, come to such an acute stage of in-efficiency.

Mr. President, it seems to me that the proposed creation of a Department of Education is indeed a step in the right direction, for there is no question of doubt that our Educational facilities are utterly inadequate, there being, in the City alone, over one thousand children who can have no prospects of obtaining even the most elementary education, through lack of accommodation.

The same may be said of the re-organization of the Department of Agriculture and Mines, for Agriculture has failed to make the advances in the past that it should have done, and the lessons taught thereby should prove useful in helping towards hoped for success in the future.

I am pleased to note from His Excellency's gracious speech that the Government is taking up in earnest the Housing problem. I congratulate the Government on their effort to improve the social conditions and the home life of our working-men. The Government, Mr. President, is only doing what every Government in the British Empire is doing at the present time.

I understand that the Company hope, during the present year, to erect at least thirty houses, which, when completed, will be occupied by tenants taken from slum houses, the aim being to have the latter then condemmed and destroyed and so make room for the building of decent habitations.

It is, I think, also a matter for approval that the practice, carried out in the past, of submitting Estimates far below the actual anticipated Expenditure (and thus easily passed) and the trusting to Supplemental Supply for the over expenditure, I say that such practice should be discontinued, and that bona fide Estimates, getting as near as possible to the anticipated Expenditure should be presented.

The securing of three steamers, two by gift, and one by purchase, from the British Admiralty cannot but meet with approbation, especially when we take into consideration the losses sustained in shipping during the past few months; and the application of one of these boats for rescue and emergency purposes will supply a need long felt.

It is also a matter for congratulation that there is at last some prospect of a settlement this year of the long outstanding dispute between the Province of Quebec and this Colony as to the boundary line on the Labrador Peninsula.

Mr. President, standing, as I do today, for the first time on the floor of this House, I take this opportunity of expressing my sincere appreciation of the honor conferred upon me by His Gracious Majesty, the King, and I hope and trust that when my record here is finished, it will prove to be one showing duties well, faithfully and conscientiously performed, and upholding in every respect the best traditions of this august Chamber; and before resuming my seat, I would like personally to heartily congratulate you, Sir, upon the honor conferred upon you by your appointment as President of this Council.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Before commencing my criticism of the matters in the speech, I would like to felicitate the hon. mover and seconder on their maiden speeches in this Chamber. I hope we may have opportunity of hearing them from time to time, as they will be able to throw some light and afford some assistance to us in the various deliberations we shall have to engage in. I do not propose to traverse the whole of the gracious speech from the Throne; I would like to limit my criticism to that portion which was so fully enlarged upon, if nebulusly by the hon. proposer of the Address in Reply. The paragraph of the speech reads as follows:

"Promptly after its assumption of office the Government established regulations to protect the fishing interests of Newfoundland in their foreign markets, and it is pleasing to know that the establishment of the regulations has been attended with much success and substantial benefit to our codfish industry. The fishermen of Newfoundland will be invited to co-operate earnestly with the Government in its effort to improve the cure of codfish. It can reasonably be anticipated that if the cure of fish be improved so that a prime article is produced, the price of Newfoundland codfish will continue at good values."

With that paragraph I cannot agree. The Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries has a record in this country for endeavouring to raise the social and economic condition of its people to a higher level than heretofore. He enjoys the reputation for having successfully and to a large extent achieved his purpose, but acting on that success he has promulgated resolutions that have not only done great injury to the country in the past but are continuing to do still greater harm in the future. It is impossible to see just what benefit has accrued to the country through this policy; and moreover of the two or three millions of dollars which have been sunk on codfish exportation; a large portion is due to the regulations which have been formulated by the Department of Marine and Fisheries. It is impossible to maintain that supply and demand have nothing to do with fixing the prices of products; and to attempt to do so is contrary to first economic principles. We have here, by proclamation prescribed rules whereby holders of fish are not able to sell except under certain fixed prices. This has had the result time after time that instead of bringing more money into the country; the country has suffered severe losses and a far greater loss than a money loss has been incurred by the establishment of a want of confidence in future business enterprises of the country. I venture to say that as a result of this, business men must approach the new era with the greatest diffidence and I think that the future will bear out that statement when we take into account the large contraction in business that must necessarily follow that want of confidence. The Hon. Mr. Coaker I give him all credit for what he has done; but one of his advisors only two days ago cabled out to his firm the following message and I think that it ought to appear on the records of this House so I read it. It is from Mr. Walter Monroe and reads: "My opinion is regulations now detrimental to the interests of country; if continued, curtail supplies to minimum. Give publicity." Now here is one of the Advisory Board who goes to the old country and realizing the Board's mistake promptly wires his firm that if these rules are continued he must sustain substantial money losses in his business. That I think is a good answer to the optimism of the Hon. the proposer for an address in reply and to the person who drafted this paragraph of the speech from the Throne.

The Hon. Mr. Browning in the course of his remarks talked about standardization. I should like the Hon. gentleman to tell us what he means by that word. He also talked about cure. But what does he mean by standardization? Our catch is already standardized and the following extract from a letter I have just received must explain itself and show how the Italian standardize. It is dated Italy, March 22nd: "We finally landed our fish. Damp being 10/ reduction. Third Class 30/. White Stink 33s. Black Stink reduced 48s." Now if that is not standardized fish I would like to know what is. If white stink and dark stink are terms of standardization I would like to enquire what the meaning of standardization is. We surely want co-operation but we do not want arbitrary prices to bolster up prices and be undersold by competitors in other producing countries.

Exporters have sunk in my opinion between two and three million dollars during the past season and the outlook for marketing fish now is far from pleasant. I contended and I maintain that these losses are largely the result of the proclamation whereby we cannot sell or ship fish outside of this country unless up to a certain consignee; and this has eliminated competition in the marketing of our fish and left us with a large stock on hand. I hope when this matter is taken in hand that it will be with the advice and concurrence of those who carry on the fishery exporting business. With an experience of over half a century I am quite satisfied that the basis of prices is best determined by competition; and the people affected are not only the exporters themselves but all our people; for if we are arbitrary we allow our competitors to take advantage of our position and undersell us in our markets. We are going to have a large quantity of codfish on our hands and unless these rules are speedily abrogated and the merchant is allowed to exercise his own rights in connection with his fish, we are only courting graver disaster.

I hope when the Ministers arrange and formulate new rules in connection with this matter that they will take the whole trade of the country into their counsels, and not leave it to a few people—misguided I hope—and accept what they think just. You will generally ascertain what you want in the counsels of the majority and should not adopt the ideas of the minority. I would therefore think that the whole trade of the country should be considered.

But I am not going to go into particulars at this time. These are just general remarks with respect to these regulations, and come from me with absolute sincerity and lack of bias. As a result of them first the confidence of the country has been destroyed; and in bringing about such a condition the authorities are subjecting this country to a great risk. Only by an immediate withdrawal of these regulations can confidence be maintained by and with our people and if you take away from them this confidence the result will be a largely diminished and curtailed supply for the fishery. That would affect the whole industry of the country and affects every man and tradesman and labourer. All are equally affected by the business of the country; and it is therefore to be hoped that this confidence will be preserved and this cannot occur unless saner counsels prevail than obtained when these fishery regulations were thrust upon our people.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—Mr. President, just a few words with your permission. I imagine I hardly went so far in the matter as the standardization of fish. I think I merely gave the idea that the fishery of our country was a trust and that our fishermen are the guardians of that trust; and it is the duty of the Government to see that that trust is being fulfilled; forasmuch as it is the duty of the Government to see that that fish is properly handled, cured and otherwise prepared as an article of food. If such were done there would be no such thing as stink fish. That must be caused entirely by lack of washing. If a fish is not washed in clean water, there must a film which continuing to surround the fish must eventually cause it to think. That is where scientific study would be worth while; and there would be very little trouble with stink fish. I do not think I went further in my address, but deferred further comment until the regulations themselves came up.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—Mr. President, I do not desire to prolong this debate but I would like to take some few exceptions to the remarks of the Hon. Mr. Grieve. Mr. Grieve enunciates certain principles of political economy which have been exploded long ago. He has grown up under an old school known as the Manchester school; one of whose principles was unrestricted competition. Under the principles of that school the people of England sent their goods to the foreign market at whatever price they could obtain; and the competition in the markets of all these different countries was so keen that it forced down the price with the result that the traders had to return to England and there force down the price of work and to such a condition of affairs did this principle of unrestricted competition land the people that they became far worse off than the Slaves of the West Indies; and had to work hard and without ceasing not to give them and their children a decent livelihood but to get sufficient to keep body and soul together. And everyone who has studied out this whole question knows that it reduced the people of England to a depth of degradation unknown to any other country of the world. Yet in view of this, this is the principle that my learned friend wants to see introduced into the fisheries of this country. In other words there must be no regulations whatever in the standardization of our fish. Every merchant who purchases the fish is to be permitted to sell it at any price that he may see fit, regardless of any obligations which on his side are to be discharged. He may be forced to sell it lower in price than was paid for it, in order to sell it at all. That is a mistake. Trade should be regulated. No man has or ought to have the right to buy or take an article without having to pay the person from whom it is bought sufficient remuneration for the trouble and industry bestowed on it.

The Hon. the mover has enunciated the correct principle and that is that the person who markets fish is not acting for individual gain. He is only the trustee for the people from whom he in turn purchased; and it is an absolute duty binding on him to see that such a price is obtained for him as to give those from whom a price is obtained proper reward for their services. What we want is regulation of trade. The principle of supply and demand has been tried and found of the same effect the world over. In its working it is found that the people who produce suffer from the drop in price caused by the keenness of the competition. That was the principle in England until recent years, forgetful of the fact that every man had certain rights which society could not dispute; and is entitled to fruits from his work sufficiently remunerative to enable him as his work would justify. In other words there is a duty on those who market our products to see that the returns therefrom are sufficient to fully compensate the worker, and if they fail in this duty it then becomes the duty of the Government; and the Government that does not make this its duty is not doing its duty by the people. The principle of supply and demand has been exploded years ago so far as trade and industry and those employed in it are concerned. The Hon. gentleman has grown up in that school which thinks otherwise and when we grow up in one envirement we find it hard to change our views. This is the reason then that after his studies in that school which recognises the principle of supply and demand my learned friend is unable to accept the dictum of a principle which runs contrary to his teachings on that subject. That the whole industry should be allowed to use its judgment in the sale of its products, and in all the other circumstances in connection therewith without heeding the counsels of the community is preposterous. The commuity has certain rights and these rights must be at all costs protected. For these and other reasons then, Mr. President, I feeled called upon to support the proposer and seconder of this motion.

Mr. President, while I am on my feet I may be permitted to make a few remarks on another subject.

We have among us to-day, Honourable Gentlemen, who for the first time have taken their seats in the Council. Men, who will by their talents and ability very materially aid in the work which will come before us. Honourable Mr. Shea has been long and honorably identified with the public life of the country, of a family who has given to Newfoundland some of its most distinguished sons. In the person of the Honourable gentleman that high order of talent which distinguished his forebears will not diminish. I feel assured that his work here will be characteristic of that devotion to public duty, unfailing courtesy and dignity which his distinguished father, the late Sir Edward Shea, who so ably filled the position of President of this Council, always practiced during his public career.

Honourable Mr. Browning is well known to the people of the country as a successful business man, long and honorably identified with the trade and business interests of the country whose well stored mind and practical knowledge will aid us very materially in our deliberations.

In the Honourable Mr. Steer we have a name that has been for upwards of three quarters of a century connected with the business and public life of the country. In the Honourable Mr. Steer the Council has a member of wide practical knowledge and experience who I feel assured will use these qualities for the benefit of the country with which the name has been so long and honorably identified.

The Honourable Dr. Campbell is an accession of strength to the Council. He is one of the most successful students of medicine that McGill University has during recent years given to the profession. During his career as a Medical man, he has had degrees conferred upon him by the most renowned schools of medicine and surgery. In him, we recognize a self-made man, one scorning obstacles in his path and winning his way to recognition by his superior talents and indomitable energy.

I tender to the Honourable Gentlemen my most cordial congratulations, and I feel assured in so doing I give expression to the thoughts of Honourable Gentlemen of the Council.

The motion was then put and adopted.

The Committee named by the Hon. President was Hons. Mr. Browning, Steer, Anderson, Murphy and MacNamara.

Hon. Mr. Shea tabled reports.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea, Council adjourned until Monday at 4.30 o'clock.

MONDAY, April 26th, 1920.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Browning the Address in Reply was read a first and second time.

HON. MR. SHEA:—Mr. President, will you permit me first to join in the general chorus of congratulation from all parts of the country on your appointment as President of this Council. I hope you may be long spared to preside over the deliberations of this Assembly, which I am sure you will do with credit to yourself and the Colony. I would also like to thank hon. members of the House for the cordial welcome to myself and colleagues when we took our seats here first last week. For myself I have only to say that as long as I have a seat here I hope my conduct will be such as will merit the esteem and respect of every member sitting here with me.

I would like to say a few words in reply to the remarks of my hon. friend on my right, Hon. Mr. Grieve, who spoke a few days ago on the Fish Regulations. I cannot say that I know how the hon. gentleman himself felt towards these regulations, and I know they were not in accordance with his views. But I was somewhat surprised at the statement he made with respect to the losses that accrued; that were solely due, he said, to the regulations put in force by the present Government. I am not personally very conversant with the business of the export of fish in this country, but like yourselves I have learned a good bit since the regulations were put in force and I can hardly imagine that the losses of three millions could have been attributable to the imposing of these regulations, considering that they did not come into effect here until well on in the month of November when certainly a large portion of the fish had been exported; and to say that the losses on that fish from the end of November until March were three millions, was, to say the least somewhat of an exaggeration. Now there are lots of gentlemen in this community who are conversant with the export of codfish who say that if these losses or any did occur,—and we believe certainly there were serious losses in connection with the export of fish,—they would have been very much more severe and more heavy if these regulations had not been put into effect. So that it was difficult from the beginning when the regulations were put into effect for any outsider like myself who might wish to take an unbiased opinion on any question generally, to come to any conclusion. In the first place, you have some fourteen or fifteen people exporting and from the beginning half of these were condemning and the other half hailing them as the saviour of the trade. The trouble about this question from the outset has been that it was made a political question. It has never received the consideration it should have received, because it was made nothing more or less than a political football from the beginning to the end. Now there was nothing new, nothing secret about this. We know the export of our fish was giving the late Government serious consideration last fall, and a committee was formed, not by the Government but at their approval and that prominent members of that Government were then in accord with making regulations and putting restrictions on and controlling the export of fish and more particularly in regard to the price. Well now that the committee was formed and the hon. gentleman on my right was a member of that committee.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—I was not in the Colony, and could not have been a member. I did not arrive here until the end of the year.

HON. MR. SHEA:—Well, I am very sorry I made the statement. I was informed you were. I was informed a committee had been formed to take up the matter of the exportation of fish and regulate it and put it under control; and that committee did a certain amount of work. But the Government of the day did not officially connect themselves with that committee, because they did not consider it expedient to do so. Then the elections took place and these regulations commenced to be used as a political football. All through the elections they were used as a means to turn down this Government in power because they had introduced them. And that has been the trouble from the beginning to the end in regard to this question. It was impossible for any outsider to form any opinion. You had a few men saying they were absolutely imperative, and the other few saying they were absolutely disastrous. One of the first things they did was to take up the question of raising the standard of fish so far as price was concerned. They did so. They were abused right and left in the bye-election in the West End. As I have said before, this question was then raised again, and was used as a political stick to beat the Government's back, and from the beginning to this time the whole question has been treated as a political issue, to the detriment of the entire trade of the country. When the present Government came into power the Honourable the Minister of Marine and Fisheries made it one of his first official acts to get this thing to some extent under Government control, and he did so. He was vilified and abused and condemned from all quarters by the Opposition Press and by the members of the Opposition themselves. However, he carried through the work, and up to the present I do not see where disaster has been caused. I am not sufficiently conversant with the working out of these regulations to know, but at any rate it is commonly said by those who ought to know, and who do know, that if we have had losses they came in the ordinary course of trade and would have come with much more severity and much more effect if there had been no control whatever. Now this question of Government control over matters of commerce and over matters of finance and matters of shipping is quite a new thing; a few years ago no Government of the day would think it within their province to interfere with control of any such matters, but the whole condition of the world has changed; Governments all over the world now are closely allied with all questions of commerce and trade. The powers for the time being of the Government of a country are mixed up with all questions of trade, shipping facilities and matters of finance, and Governments have been forced, and we have been forced, to change ideas held in former times. We have been forced more so from the fact that we had to face a combine called the Consorzio formed to take over the control of the importation of fish, which combine was backed by the Italian Government and whose only sole object was to control the importation of fish and its price, to the detriment of this Colony. The Government was compelled to take equally drastic steps here, and there was no alternative left for them but to deal with it in the manner they did. That is the whole history of this question, and I am very sorry, Mr. President, that the honourable member who is perhaps one of the greatest authorities in this country on the matter of the exportation of codfish, who had devoted a life-time to it and whose opinion is so valuable and second to none in this country, should have taken this stand; I think it is a mistake and will do no good, but now he has taken this stand I think he should confirm it in the way of figures in support of the statements he made here the other evening. I am sorry he did take such a stand; I do not think that any good will come out of it; I think it was a mistake, and I fancy he must have made his statements without giving them the due consideration that he usually gives to his utterances, whether made in this House or elsewhere. Now, we have the interest of the Government in this matter,—the interest of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries; the interests of all concerned are, so far as I can see, identical with those of the trade of the country. We are all interested in the conservation of the fisheries; we are all interested in the standardization of the fish, and, more particularly, are we interested in the matter of price. The only question is, who is going to do it? We are all agreed on the point that the higher the price we can command for our fish in the foreign market, the better it is for the country, and we should all work with one effort for that purpose. It is only a question as to whether Mr. A. or Mr. B. or Mr. Somebody Else should do it. The present Minister of Marine and Fisheries has devoted a considerable amount of time to this: he is a man interested in the exportation of fish, in as much as he is President of a very large exporting company. He is in the same position as the Hon. Mr. Grieve, or Sir John Crosbie, or Messrs. Harvey & Company or any other large exporting firms. They are all agreed on one thing, and that is, that the matter of price is the main consideration. So the question is, who is to deal with the matter of price, and that is the question all through these regulations. Politics have entered into it, and have been tearing the stomach out of it. If there are any merits they have been trampled under foot. We have had the Press opposed to the Government publishing editorials that must necessarily have been talked into the editors, because they knew nothing about the exportation of fish. They were working it as a political stick to beat the Government in the bye-election in St. John's West. They rang the changes on it, and their utterances were thrown forth to the people with the idea of impressing upon them what the disasterous results would be if Messrs. Squires and Brownrigg were returned and that these fishery regulations would lead to untold misery. I am sorry, Mr. President, that things took such a turn, because I believe the country has suffered for it. The regulations themselves are only experimental. No one says they are perfect. They are not, like the laws of the Medes and Persians, unalterable, but they are capable of amendment and improvement and they will be improved as time goes on. The Honourable the Minister of Marine and Fisheries has been on the spot himself. He has been on the Continent; he has seen the people who are handling the situation; he is a practical man and knows about the fishery, he is interested in only one thing, and that is the uplift of this country so far as the fisheries are concerned, and he is not going to embark on a policy that will bring trouble to the fisheries of this country. I have every confidence, Mr. President, that the present Minister of Marine and Fisheries will come out at the right end. He has shown that he has a grasp of the situation; he is identified with this fish corporation which has no other interest but fish, and his whole time since the present Government came into power has been spent in endeavouring to bring system out of the chaos which existed in the Department of Marine and Fisheries before the present Government took charge. Now, Mr. President, I do not intend to dilate further on this matter. As I said before, I think the honourable member who made the statement that a loss of $3,000,000 here was solely attributable to the proclaiming of these regulations ought to furnish figures to confirm his statement, so that not only the House, but the country at large, should know the situation.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—I must protest here against being associated with any political party in connection with my views on fish matters, and in support of that statement I would like to say that a few days after my return to this Dominion, in conversation with my honourable friend, Mr. Shea, I said that in my opinion these regulations were calculated to do a great deal of harm, but that I preferred not to make any move in the matter until the conclusion of the bye-elections lest it should be imagined that I was mixing up politics with commercial matters, and that the remarks which I would make, and subsequently did make, were not made by me as a partizan in support of any political party. I had no such intention in addressing this House last week, and now I wish to say that any remarks I made in connection with fish matters were made by me as a private member of this House, and as an exporter in this country, and were not made with any idea of impeding the Government in the carrying out of these regulations. But surely I must be allowed freedom to express my opinions without having improper motives attached to them in their expression. I have been a long time connected with the fisheries of this Colony, and I have seen the ups and downs of the exporting merchant for well night fifty years, and I consider I am as good an authority to form an opinion as to what is best as the honourable member who represents the fishery department in the present Government. I agree with my honourable friend Mr. Shea that Mr. Coaker's aim and object is to better the material condition of the fishermen of this country. Now Sir, if we are to form a correct opinion of matters and arrive at a right conclusion, it will entail a review of all the circumstances of this matter. I speak from hearsay only, and am open to correction if I am wrong. In the month of October or early in November the President of the Fishermen's Protective Union received a deputation consisting of one of our merchants and the foreign agent or representative of that merchant and others, who paid two visits to Catalina or Port Union, and following shortly afterwards, on the 20th day of November, a bombshell appeared in our midst in the shape of a proclamation forbidding the export of codfish unless to arrive in such a manner, and if not so to arrive confining the receipt or care of it to one party. This applied to Italy and Greece, and either at that time or subsequently Portugal was included. The only country that was left free was Spain. On telegraphic receipt of information, using my own judgment and without comparing ideas with any of my brother exporters in this country, being removed two thousand miles from them, I telegraphed to my leading directors and told them that such regulations were, in my opinion, so prejudicial and entailed such disastrous consequences that they had better restrain their buying and conclude the year with a very small stock on hand, and that instead of as in former years finding our firm in possession of thirty or forty thousand quintals, in my opinion ten thousand was sufficient. Now when one buys twenty or thirty thousand quintals the idea is of making a profit. The idea of limiting purchases to ten thousand was that my notions of profit interfered with the putting in force of the regulations, and perhaps had other people thought in the same way as I did we would have had fewer losses than at the present time. I also took the liberty of cabling the Governor protesting against these regulations, and on my arrival here I made myself more fully conversant with all the rules and regulations laid down, and my first impressions, made in November, are as strong to-day, and stronger, than they were then. I am convinced that such regulations as these are calculated to do this country a very great deal of harm. I have been told in this House that the law of supply and demand either is modified or does not exist. I am not quite sure that I am exactly quoting my honourable friend Mr. Gibbs, but I understand him to say that the law of supply and demand has practically disappeared. I trust he will correct me if I am wrong. Now by these rules we establish prices for the produce of the country,—prices which are arbitrary. We establish the arbitrary prices, by means of which we enable our competitors in Nova Scotia, in Ireland and in France to successfully market their fish. In other words, while we were asking too high prices for our fish they were realizing theirs at lower prices and getting them out of the way. In connection with the rules in regard to the Brazilian market, it was stipulated without warning that all purchases made by Brazilians from this country were to be paid for in cash, at St. John's, in New York or in London, and that the cost of the fish and any profit on that fish and the insurance on that fish and freight on that fish were to be paid one hundred cents in the dollar before the fish would be allowed to leave. These rules were subsequently modified, when it was pointed out that they were onerous and obstructive to trade, and a new rule has been instituted by which a minimum price was established here and a margin of ten per cent allowed to the receiver to cover any claim he may have for short delivery or any damage, and in that connection I would say that one member of the Advisory Board to which my honourable friend refers, Mr. Walter Monroe, retired from the Advisory Board; he could not be a party to these Brazilian regulations. He stated publicly at a debate in the Board of Trade that he approved of the regulations as applied to the European markets, but since he arrived on the other side of the water he has been able to see more clearly what the conquences are going to be, and he has cabled out for the information of the general public that if these rules are not suspended or abrogated, so far as he is concerned as a merchant, he is going to cut down his supplies to a minimum. Now credit in this country, and credit in every country, is one of the bases upon which business is done, and I venture to say that if you call off all credit—I mean by that not extensive credit but legitimate credit—if you prevent men who have been accustomed to and who rely upon getting a small backing whereby they can prosecute the fishery, you are paralizing the trade of the country. Already distrust has been generated, and the manifestation of that distrust will be as largely seen on the part of those who supported these regulations as upon the part of those who refused to support them. I venture to say that if the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, with his Advisory Board or without it, has the right to name a certain price to be paid for the produce of this country, you are destroying competition, and if you destroy competition, you are lowering prices. It is the competition which has existed during my life time that is responsible for the prosperity of the people of the country, and we know that such a thing as combination on the part of exporters is unknown. To state figures is a difficult thing. They must be more or less speculative. I said in my speech last week that I thought the trade had lost between two and three millions of dollars through the export of fish this past year, a large portion of which was in my opinion attributable to the institution of these rules. These rules were instituted, prices were fixed, and they were not observed, and consequently there is a feeling of distrust throughout this city and throughout the country that in my opinion will do damage to the material interests of this Dominion. Now my honourable friend talks about the trade being divided on this point. Well, Sir, the trade is divided on this point, but it is not equally divided. There are fourteen or fifteen exporters against six or seven, fourteen or fifteen exporters who do not believe in the regulations as against six or seven who do, and of these six or seven already one or two have left the Advisory Board. Whether it is because they see the consequences which will arise from this style of proclamation or not, I cannot tell; the fact is that, so far as I know, their places have not been filled. It may be quite true, as my honourable friend says, that this matter has been made a political football of. I never knew any measure in this country that was not made a political football of, each side trying to belittle the efforts of the other, but I disclaim on my own behalf any political motive in opposing these regulations. I do it simply as an exporting merchant with an experience of fifty years and with a knowledge extending to sixty. It is only my opinion. I give it for what it is worth. The future will show whether I am right or wrong. In my opinion, there is a dark cloud hanging over this country now. We have had them before and they have been dissipated. This may be dissipated, and no one would be more glad than I would be if this disappeared. In my opinion, we have not yet come to the consequences; the consequences will come in the fall of the year, when the people employed in catching the principal article of produce of the country will find it very difficult to get purchasers. The first requisite for successful business is confidence, and if you destroy confidence you handicap trade. Reference has been made to the Italian Consorzio. The Consorizo was an association appointed by the Italian Government and had the monopoly of buying and selling all the fish in Italy. One of the promises held out by the Hon. Mr. Coaker was that by the means he was establishing we would be able to do without the assistance of the Consorzio but would be able to get better terms, that instead of selling our fish and being paid at a much lesser rate than we contracted for, we would receive payment to the extent of one hundred per cent. That is not true. When I say "not true" I am not attributing to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries any bad faith, but the promise then made has not been realized. There are five or ten cargoes of fish that have been paid to the full extent. Some have been paid 80%, in other words the hopes held out to us have not been realized. Arrangements were made by which a sale of all the cod fish exported to Europe could be brought about. The portion which could be sent was proposed by cable. A party was formed. I was told that if I became one of its members I should be put on the ground floor. I was to benefit specialtly though outsiders would suffer. This difficulty, merchants from this country have had to contend with for many years. We should have agents in different markets to superintend the landing and adjustment of the cargoes. The late Government made an effort in that direction and the present Government is following it up. It would be greatly to our advantage to have men residing at the different ports. In answer to Mr. Browning's question—'In what way could harm come in standing firm on export prices?'—There would be no harm—It is much more difficult to name prices to receive in foreign countries combining one another than for local supplies.

HON. MR. SHEA:—I hope I said nothing in my remarks to which exception could be taken. With regard to these regulations I never meant in any way to make a charge against you in the political aspect. Nothing was further from my thoughts.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Section II of the Address of His Excellency the Governor refers to the ratification of the Peace Treaty. I am sure we all join with His Excellency in hoping that peace throughout the world will long continue. Section III of Speech from the Throne refers to the gift of two ships from the British Government. These ships will be welcome. They are badly needed just now, and will be a great asset to the country. In reference to Section V—the standard and price of fish must be kept up. If the price of fish and other products are not kept up, the purchasing power of the people will be small. It is estimated that the loss in last year's catch was three million dollars. We must remember that the price of imports into this country have greatly increased. Textile fabrics which in 1914 could be obtained for 5sh. 6d. sterling cannot now be procured under 30 shillings. Woollen and cotton have gone up five to ten times their value. It is the duty of the people of this country to look to the Government to sustain the value of exports. Effort must be made, by Parliament, to keep up the price of fish. Section VI refers to the fact that the Government is making a strong effort to close the Militia Department. Expenditure has been going on for six years. It is time to clip its wings. Section VII—The purchase of Beaumont Hamel will give us a God's Acre abroad, in which many of our brave lads sleep. There are quite a number of gentlemen in the House who are more or less interested in our imports. What has been the experience of the last two or three years? If I only refer to my own orders. We have had goods lying in Liverpood, in New York and Boston for weeks and months. October goods arrive in the summer. I make the suggestion to the Leader of the Government—he knows our requirements—that an effort be made to get some line of steamers to bring commodities into the country. I have no desire to occupy the time of the House in regard to the Housing Scheme, but I take this opportunity of congratulating the Government on what they are going to do for better housing in this city. They are only doing this year 1920 what they have been doing in Australia, in New Zealand and South Africa, in Great Britain, in Canada and the United States since the year 1917. Now we awake to the fact that we want better houses, and the Government are going to assist a Co-operative Company in doing this, and we have prepared a scheme and whoever lives to see it carried out will see that it is possible to regenerate the whole system of housing in the west end of this town. Nearly one thousand houses there are not fit to live in, and as soon as we provide homes for some of those living in them, it is the intention of the Company to tear them down and build new ones up, and I congratulate the Government on their pluck and determination in this matter. The last section refers to Divine Providence to have care over the deliberations of that body, and I can only add in this review I have given to the Speech that it will be endowed with my best blessing to the Government to carry out the program laid down here. It is true there is no relation in this to the manifesto; there can be no relation to the political, but I am prepared to give them fair and reasonable time, and I am satisfied the Government will carry them out.

HON. MR. SHEA:—I beg to move the further consideration of this debate be deferred until next Thursday.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—Before the motion for adjournment is put, I regret having to refer to the matter, and I am aware that no official reports of the proceedings have been published as yet, but on the morning of Thursday what was purported to be a synopsis of the proceedings of the previous day was reported, and incorrectly so. It appears to me I ought to call attention to it. Whether by design or not, because it might be thought, I submit, I had an ulterior motive, if I, as senior member, had neglected to congratulate you Sir. It will be aware to hon. members that I did so. Why there was an omission I do not know, but the evening papers reported in the same way, perhaps copied from the morning paper and no reference was made to my remarks, and they did not appear in any paper published on that day or since. I refer to it because I wish to be reported officially as having joined with those who did welcome you to the position of President of this Chamber; I did so as heartily as any hon. member could.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—I quite agree with Hon. Mr. Bishop in relation to this matter, and I am sure it is within the memory of many here the last few years that speeches made here never appeared, and I do not think such a matter should occur. It seems the report in the morning paper is only a synopsis, a very excellent one no doubt, but not correct. Now these reports are sometimes copied in the evening papers, and it is looked on by many as an official report. I am sure the new Supervisor will see that it does not occur again.

HON. MR. MEWS:—In reference to Hon. Mr. Bishop's remarks it probably did not appear in The Advocate because I was not present after the opening and His Excellency had retired. I do not know if that was the period when his remarks were made, but I can assure him that it was not intentionally omitted from my paper. I did not appear until the discussion had gone on for some time. With regard to the publication of the debates, I myself was only handed to-day copy of some remarks made last session, that are only now being put up in print. It is a remarkable state of affairs that has developed in recent years, and I sincerely hope the new Supervisor will see the reports are kept up to date.

HON. PRESIDENT reported communications from H. E. the Governor granting leave of absence to Hons. W. J. Ellis and D. A. Ryan. Also from the family of the late Hon. A. F. Goodridge respecting vote of sympathy on the passing of his father.

HON. MR. BROWNING gave notice of question.

On motion of HON. MR. SHEA the House then adjourned until Thursday next at 4.30 o'clock.

THURSDAY, April 29th, 1920.

House met at 4.30 pursuant to adjournment.

Order of the Day.

(1) Address in Reply.

HON. MR. MacNAMARA: — Mr. President, I would like to say a word or two about the gracious speech of His Excelleny the Governor at the opening of the House before it goes through its final stages.

If we omit or exclude the paragraph which refers to the Fishery Regulations there will be hardly anything left in this document worthy of serious comment.

That the Fishery Regulations have been injurious to the country I believe will be admitted and I will now with your permission endeavour to produce facts and figures for making this statement.

Before proceeding, however, I will read the following from the Governor's speech before us: "Promptly after its assumption of office the Government established regulations to protect the fishing interests of Newfoundland in their foreign markets, and it is pleasing to know that the establishments of these regulations have been attended with success and substantial benefit to our codfish industry."

I have no hesitation in saying that this statement is not in accordance with the facts.

We have, unfortunately, ample evidence to show that instead of these regulations being attended with success and benefit—that the contrary has been the case.

It is estimated that the large sum of $3,000,000 has been so far lost to this country due entirely to these regulations and that further sharp losses are inevitable in the near future.

The delay caused by these regulations in marketing our fish from November to March accounted for the non-consumption of 200,000 qtls. and most of the other 400,000 qtls. which went to the Mediterranean in that period resulted in heavy losses to the shippers, aggregating in all roughly a total loss of the appalling amount of $3,000,000 already referred to.

The balance 150,000 qtls. represented the total exports from November 1st to March 1st went to South America—the West Indies and New York.

It is well known that there is nearly another quarter million of last year's catch in this Dominion still unsold and we must anticipate even heavier losses will be met on whatever proportion of this unrealized fish finds its way to the Mediterranean market.

Then again there is a large quantity of Labrador fish in our northern outports that will show a sharp loss as there is practically no market for this fish at this season of the year.

To further strengthen my argument I will read Mr. Walter Monroe's cablegram sent here from England last week.

This cablegram has been already read in this chamber by the Hon. Mr. Grieve but as there is good matter in it it will stand repetition.

Mr. Monroe says "My opinion regulations now detrimental to trade. If continued curtail supplies to a minimum."

No greater reflection as to the unwisdom of these regulations could be produced than this cablegram of Mr. Monroe's.

Mr. Monroe it must be remembered is a member of the Fishery Advisory Board and one of our largest fish exporters and surely when we have his opinion—an opinion which must be of value, otherwise he would not be on the Board—these regulations cannot therefore be regarded otherwise than a failure.

Despite all these irrefutable facts isn't it strange that we are told in the Governor's speech that "The establishment of these regulations has been attended with much success and substantial benefit to our codfish industry."

If the harm done to this Dominion already only applied to this year the outlook would not be so dark but the Government by promulgating these regulations have prejudiced and embittered the fish importers of Italy, Greece, Spain and the untold illfeeling created will take a generation to eradicate and to-day Newfoundland is practically blacklisted with these Mediterranean fish buyers.

Another thing if these Fishery Regulations were at all necessary—which I deny, the Government started the wrong way and the wrong time to carry them out.

They should have waited until the beginning of this season's operations and until the fish was standardised before putting a pistol to the heads of the Mediterranean buyers when they knew not what quality of fish they had to offer—and until we knew the fish we had was reliable and unlike one cargo at least that became rotten in transit and had to be destroyed at port of destination as totally unfit for human consumption.

Now Mr. President I submit that price fixing by law is not workable and will be found impossible to carry out.

There might possibly be an exception to this case if we were the only country in the world producing fish—like Greece for instance the sole producer of currants—but when we have Norway, France, Iceland and other fishing countries competing with us price fixing will be found practically of no advantage.

When we assembled here at the opening of this House on the 21st April the scientific and wireless world was straining its ears and nerves to hear some dot or dash from the Planet Mars —this planet being nearest the earth on this particular date.

Unfortunately, however, the world was disappointed.

But we here in this chamber were be welcomed and that Trade Commissioners and other agents will be apcerned when the Hon. Mr. Gibbs in reply to Hon. Mr. Grieve about fishery matters made the sensational statement "that" the law of supply had exploded 30 years ago.

This is not the case. The law of supply and demand had not exploded because there is nothing in it to explode.

Further supply and demand are the two factors that determine values and no matter how you argue you cannot get away from these facts.

If the hon. member's contention that the law of supply and demand had exploded be right why I ask does the London Stock Exchange, the New York Stock Exchange, the Bourse of Paris, the Board of Trade at Chicago and other large cities still continue to regulate the price of stocks and commodities according to supply and demand.

Even the very gold which is the basis of all commerce is subject to the law of supply and demand.

The greatest political economists of to the Government that the securing of the day are agreed on this point and if we go back over 100 years to the days of Adam Smith we will find that this law of supply and demand is inexorable.

As far as I can judge there are four things to be attended to to regulate our fish business—first, standardisation; secondly, improvement in cure; thirdly, regulation of shipments, and fourthly, prohibition of consignments under certain conditions and I venture to assert if we carry out these essentials there will be no fear but our codfish industry will be placed on a sound and profitable basis.

That an Information Bureau and Scientific Research Department will be established in connection with the Marine and Fisheries Department will more fortunate as far as news was conpointed from time to time until Newfoundland is suitably represented in all its principal fish markets will be equally welcome and I hope when these appointments are made that suitable men irrespective of politics will be selected and further that natives of the country familiar with all matters pertaining to the fisheries will be given preference over all other applications for these positions.

It will be a great consolation and comfort for the friends and relatives of our fallen heroes and I might add to all Newfoundlanders to learn that the Government have secured the battlefield of Beaumont Hamel—the spot sanctified by the blood of our fallen soldiers—and have made arrangements to have the graves of these men suitably marked by war memorials and it is to be hoped that sum of the money will be allocated from time to time to keep the graves in respectable condition.

I need not enlarge on the urgent necessity of having our coastal and island transportation facilities attended to and while on this matter might I point out an additional boat or two for this service will be hardly enough to get over our present forwarding difficulties—and that the matter of a suitable premises for the quick despatch and handling of freight is of prime importance and I hope the Government will not overlook this point when dealing with this trouble.

It is gratifying to learn that an effort will be made to improve the housing conditions in town and I hope there will be no delay in this matter as the present housing facilities suffered by some of our people are not at all healthy or desirable.

HON. MR. MILLEY:—Mr. President, Mr. MacNamara made an incorrect statement concerning Mr. Monroe. He is not a member of the Advisory Board. He was not a member when he sent the message.

HON. MR. MacNAMARA:—I understood Mr. Monroe was a member at that time. I apologize if I have made any error.

HON. MR. MEWS:—Mr. President, I feel rather diffident in speaking on the subject of Fish Regulations as I am not in the fish business; but I am emboldened by the fact that the Morning News encourages expression of opinion, and I am also encouraged by Hon. Mr. MacNamara who may or may not be in the fish business. A discussion on the theory of the regulations is one in which we can all take part. The theory of these regulations is human. These regulations would secure for the fishermen a higher price for his fish, and he will be compelled to make his fish as good as possible to merit the price put upon it.

Often in this country as in others, business begins at the top rather than at the bottom.

In the question of supply and demand it is the theory which is objectionable. Two factories manufacturing the same article—an article not produced elsewhere—stand side by side. An explosion occurs—one factory is demolished. Immediately the workers in the other factory can demand higher wages because no one else can take up the work. In this way to my mind labour is regarded too much in the light of a commodity. In my opinion unrest and uncertainty comes from this very attitude. This is wrong in principle and wrong in practice. Industrial effort had one aim—the making of money instead of the making of men. The supply and demand theory is one which is oppressive. It is not a theory to be upheld. It is wrong; it is not christian; the case of the factories proves this; for the workers might even be expected to pray that the factory next door would explode.

A man who dabbles in stocks is another illustration. If he prays at all, he prays that stocks will be short in order that he may make his millions on the stock he holds.

It would be advantageous to bring the whole business of the fisheries into one monopoly. I do not mean that the fisheries should be held as one big trust by one man. There is a control which a government can have over our fishery produce which would be a power for good to the country.

In connection with Hon. Mr. MacNamara's figures stating that one-quarter of a million quintals of fish unsold were now in stock—my information is, we have one hundred and fifty thousand qtls. only, and that the balance, left after selling to the Brazilian market, is to be sent to Mediterranean ports between now and end of July and sold at not at all ruinous prices. On question of losses I cannot positively speak but there is another feature, and it gives rise to the question: how much we would have lost if regulations had not been put in force?

Moreover, these Fishery Regulations were fully discussed in the Board of Trade, and I think the Hon. Mr. Grieve voted on that occasion, for a resolution which began: Fish Regulations are essential.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—Mr. President, it was my intention to have made a reply to Hon. Mr. Grieve. I prefer not to do so in his absence. I beg to move that meantime the 2nd reading be deferred.

I should like to know whose estimate Mr. MacNamara quoted in acknowledging loss last year to the extent of $3,000,000.

HON. MR. MacNAMARA:—I have no definite figures to prove statement but thought that such was generally admitted.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—By no means are they generally admitted.

HON. MR. SHEA:—In reply to Hon. Mr. Browning's question I may say information is being sought. I hope to be able to give in a few days the statement from the Militia Department which he requires.

HON. PRESIDENT read communication from His Excellency the Governor naming Internal Economy Commission: Hon. President Legislative Council, Hons. Mr. Bishop, Mr. Shea, Mr. Speaker, Mr. Squires, Mr. Warren and Mr. Coaker.

The following bills were read for the first time:

A bill for "An Act to amend the Industrial Societies."

A bill for "An Act to amend the Food Control Act of 1917."

A bill for "An Act respecting the Department of Public Works."

HON. MR. SHEA tabled Annual Report of Reid Newfoundland Company.

On motion the House adjourned until to-morrow Friday at 4.30 of the clock.

FRIDAY, April 30th, 1920.

The House met at 4.30 p.m. pursuant to adjournment.

HON. MR. MILLEY gave notice of petition from W.P.A.

Order of the Day.

(1) Address in Reply.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—Mr. President, the Speech before us, being the first pronouncement of their Policy by a new Administration, has been receiving in the House of Assembly attention such as we know is usually accorded the Government in this country upon its first meeting in legislative session. It is eulogised by the speakers on behalf of the Government and condemned utterly by the Opposition. It was not to be expected of course, that a unanimously favourable opinion would be expressed by hon. members in this chamber and it occasioned no surprise that a portion of the Speech of His Excellency the Governor at the opening of this Session has been criticised adversely.

It must however be exceedingly gratifying to the Hon. Mr. Shea, the leader for the Government, that up to the present at least, criticism has been confined to one paragraph only of the Speech—a Speech which refers to many matters of public moment, all of which are highly important and indicating various contemplated changes, the aim and object of which are the advancement of our country, the improvement of her economic resources, the permanent enhancement of the value of her products, and the extension and improvement of facilities for more rapid and more convenient handling of her commerce—local and foreign—among all of which it will not be denied that the industry which employs the majority of our producing class, and without which all other industries in this country would be non existent—stands first and paramount.

Now, Mr. President, it is not my intention to weary the Council by reviewing in "extenso" the whole of the Speech, but I regard it, Sir, a duty to myself, to this branch of the Legislature, and to my country, to voice my sentiments respecting matters which I believe to be not only important but at the present juncture vital.

In the month of November last two contending parties presented themselves to the Electorate of this country —one, the party led by Sir Michael P. Cashin, which had for some time previous been in control—the other led by Mr. R. A. Squires. The sentiment of the country was found to be adverse to the late Government and Mr. Squires and his followers were returned with a very substantial majority. Now Sir, whatever may be said of the merits of the opposing parties, as such, I submit the result of the bye election in St. John's West, which was one of the most persistently vigorous contests ever witnessed in this country, left no room for doubt as to the sentiment of the country. The Hon. R. A. Squires was confirmed in his position as Prime Minister of Newfoundland, and the country being now faced with post war conditions, the duties which devolve upon him and his Government are numerous, extensive and onerous, and as I view the situation it is therefore the duty, not only of those who by their recorded votes placed the Government in power to support them fully, but it is the duty of all good citizens, all patriotic sons of Newfoundland, not to continue showing factious opposition, but to assist in removing obstacles rather than to place obstruction in the way of the Prime Minister and his Government. Surely we must realise that it is incumbent upon us, no matter what our politics may be, to recognise the supreme right of majority rule.

The programme of the Government then for the coming year is before us for deliberate consideration and fair comment.

I should like Sir to take a minute or two to commend the action of the Government in relation to the purchase of a portion of the battlefield at Beaumont Hamel. It is the portion of France which will remain for all time and hold chief place, in the memory of Newfoundlanders, as the gallant deeds of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment are recalled. It has been my privilege to be on two occasions upon that sacred ground. Exactly three weeks after the memorable 1st of July, 1916, I traversed the trenches of the British Army upon the Beaumont Hamel field, proceeding through the communication trenches and thence from the rear to the front line trench and reaching a point where from a concealed machine gun emplacement I had a close view of the ground over which our boys had gone with such heroic courage in the early morning of July first and though depletion of their numbers commenced when they had proceeded but a comparatively few yards, and despite the rifle fire from the front trenches of the Germans but three to four hundred yards distant were subject also to enfilading fire from two batteries of machine guns which quickly thinned their ranks but they never faltered nor flinched. The bodies of many of our splendid boys, among them my own nephew, were still lying strewn over that portion of no man's land when I looked upon it, and their recovery and burial could not be attempted. As a lively artillery duel was in progress before we had reached the front line trench and falling shells were frequent, the Captain sent from Divisional Headquarters to accompany me, having a mistaken notion that a legislator was of more value than a soldier, urged our return to a safer region and was particularly urgent when we had reached the front trench and officers there also endeavoured to persuade me that it was a very unhealthy spot, and they insisted I should upon no account get on the firing step and look over the parapet.

Disregard of their warnings that hundreds of German snipers with their rifles pointed towards us in that trench were waiting and watching for the least sign of movement, brought an appeal to me to consider the responsibility upon the officer in whose charge I had been placed. I said I had come a long way to visit that ground and until I had seen it from the nearest point of vantage I would not return. A Major or Colonel then said, "But Sir, Military rule controls here," to which I replied "I know it, but my escort was ordered by the highest authority to take me as far as I wish to go and I'll take my chances." I wouldn't exchange the experience of that afternoon—when with a steel helmet on and a gas-mask hanging from my neck—I experienced something of warfare at close quarters for any other experience or any money that could be offered me. That poor young Captain though said he was glad when we had got out of the danger zone and if there were to be any more such visitors he would like to be assigned to other duties. Such was my first experience at Beaumont Hamel and it afforded me great satisfaction as I felt how heroic have been our boys against such odds as they had faced on that field.

Well, in August last I was again upon that hallowed ground in company with Rev. Major Nangle, and I assume the area purchased embraces the cemetery which we then visited and in which so many of our boys are resting, though unfortunately the contests for possession of that area subsequent to July 1916 prevented recovery and burial of a great many of our fallen men. It should be regarded a privilege to support the suggestion of the Hon. Mr. Coaker by contributing a dollar towards a popular subscription to cover the cost of that field, which was, taken and retaken during the war.

While the difficulties of the work undertaken by Major Nangle is now generally known I cannot refrain from saying again that my tour with him of the battlefields of France and Flanders, over which our Regiment fought, convinced me of the fitness of the selection of Major Nangle for the onerous work he has so cheerfully undertaken, which he and will, I am sure, perform to the entire satisfaction of the Government and of our people.

I am glad to notice in the Speech intended changes in matters pertaining to the Departments of Agriculture, and of Marine and Fisheries. That the changes contemplated will prove to be improvements in large measure, I have no doubt.

Now, Mr. President, it is evident that the paragraph of the Speech around which the greatest interest centres is that relating to the Fisheries.

There has been a great deal of interest, real or pretended, manifested in respect to the regulations for the export of codfish proclaimed shortly after the assumption of office by the present Government. Indeed, it seems as if it would have been a lean season editorially,—for certain newspapers, if the editors had not had this subject to hash and rehash day by day for several months past.

I was greatly interested in the remarks of the Hon. Mr. Grieve, respecting these "Fishery Regulations." Mr. Grieve is an out and out opponent of the measure, and Mr. Grieve's long experiences as a fish merchant and exporter entitles him to full latitude in the expression of his opinions. Other prominent exporters, notably Sir John Crosbie, condemns only the fixing of selling prices, but affirms emphatically his belief that the standardisation of quality and competent, impartial inspection is absolutely necessary. Others again support the opinion of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, that both quality and price should be regulated and controlled.

Now Sir, in all the writings and all the orating upon this subject we have had little but generalities such as $3,000,000 have been lost, etc., without a tittle of evidence in support of it. I was glad to hear my friend, the Hon. Mr. Grieve, disavow any political animus or influence, in his attack upon the "Regulations," but Sir, I feel bound to say that Mr. Grieve is in bad company and that the Opposition newspapers are making full use of the attitude of Mr. Grieve. I notice Hon. Mr. Grieve gives the Minister of Marine and Fisheries credit for a sincere desire to benefit the people of this country, and that his action respecting the enforcement of Regulations was the result of such desire. Mr. Coaker will I am sure appreciate Mr. Grieve's candour.

It must appear to those unacquainted with the ramifications of the export of codfish that a splendid opportunity for exporting the past year's catch with good profit has been lost through the imposition of these fish exporting regulations. It may be correct, Sir, to say that a certain shipper, at a particular time, could have marketed a cargo at a satisfactory price, but even that, I submit, Sir, is doubtful, for what might be obtained from a buyer who could operate without regard to restrictions, might not, and probably would not be paid by him if the restrictions which induced the offer were suddenly withdrawn.

Now Sir, I wish to interrogate respecting some of the assertions of the Hon. Mr. Grieve.

Has there been no profits made upon cargoes shipped since Regulations were enforced? Are the losses upon the shipments of codfish since November last where losses occurred, solely and entirely attributable to the "Regulations," and apart altogether from those restrictions let me ask, were not the market conditions decidedly unfavourable during recent months? Does Mr. Grieve wish this House to infer that had there been no "Regulations" enforced and he and every other buyer had had a free hand to sell how, when, and at what price they pleased, it would have been quite safe for him to have purchased 40/50 thousand qtls. of codfish last fall and that he could have been sure of marketing it at a profit? Does he say that a free hand for everybody, at all times, and under all and any conditions is the proper course to follow? Mr. Grieve complains too that cargoes sold under the Hawes argreement have not been paid for in full at the price agreed, but are the "Regulations" responsible for that? Most certainly not, but because of lack of care in shipping, or more probably careless or insufficient curing, the fish was found when it reached its destination to be not of the quality or grade the buyer had a right to expect, and consequently the shippers' agent in fairness to the buyer conceded a reduction; that Sir is the cause of short remittances, and is that a reason for crying "abolish all restrictions?"

I would say also Sir that ascertained losses as far as I know are very greatly below the figures mentioned by the Hon. Mr. Grieve, are not in fact one tenth of $3,000,000. If $3,000,000 have been lost it means an average loss to shippers of about $150,000 and as some shippers have met no losses and I hope B. Johnston & Co. are not one of these it becomes evident that some firms and not a few either must be subjected to a financial strain which they cannot possibly withstand.

It must be noted also Sir that Mr. Monroe's cable message, about which a great deal is attempted to be made, does not say the restrictions from the first have been a failure, but that in his opinion, an opinion Sir, affected possibly by contact with men who from the first have ridiculed the attempt of the Government to regulate sales—the conditions now, not last fall, but the conditions which exist to-day are such as to make it desirable that any holder of codfish should be free to market it as he can. The cablegram does not I submit Sir warrant the interpretation that

'tical football of. I never knew any measure in this country that was not made a political football of, each side trying to belittle the efforts of the other, but I disclaim on my own behalf any political motive in opposing these regulations. I do it simply as an exporting merchant with an experience of fifty years and with a knowledge extending to sixty. It is only my opinion. I give it for what it is worth. The future will show whether I am right or wrong. In my opinion, there is a dark cloud hanging over this country now. We have had them before and they have been dissipated. This may be dissipated, and no one would be more glad than I would be if this disappeared. In my opinion, we have not yet come to the consequences; the consequences will come in the fall of the year, when the people employed in catching the principal article of produce of the country will find it very difficult to get purchasers. The first requisite for successful business is confidence, and if you destroy confidence you handicap trade. Reference has been made to the Italian Consorzio. The Consorzio was an association appointed by the Italian Government and had the monopoly of buying and selling all the fish in Italy. One of the promises held out by the Hon. Mr. Coaker was that by the means he was establishing we would be able to do without the assistance of the Consorzio but would be able to get better terms, that instead of selling our fish and being paid at a much lesser rate than we contracted for, we would receive payment to the extent of one hundred per cent. That is not true. When I say "not true" I am not attributing to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries any bad faith, but the promise then made has not been realized. There are five or ten cargoes of fish that have been paid to the full extent. Some have been paid 80%, in other words the hopes held out to us have not been realized. Arrangements were made by which a sale of all the cod fish exported to Europe could be brought about. The portion which could be sent was proposed by cable. A party was formed. I was told that if I became one of its members I should be put on the ground floor. I was to benefit specially though outsiders would suffer. This difficulty, merchants from this country have had to contend with for many years. We should have agents in different markets to superintend the landing and adjustment of the cargoes. The late Government made an effort in that direction and the present Government is following it up. It would be greatly to our advantage to have men residing at the different ports. In answer to Mr. Browning's question—'In what way could harm come in standing firm on export prices?'—There would be no harm—It is much more difficult to name prices to receive in foreign countries combining one another than for local supplies.

HON. MR. SHEA:—I hope I said nothing in my remarks to which exception could be taken. With regard to these regulations I never meant in any way to make a charge against you in the political aspect. Nothing was further from my thoughts.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Section II of the Address of His Excellency the Governor refers to the ratification of the Peace Treaty. I am sure we all join with His Excellency in hoping that peace throughout the world will long continue. Section III of Speech from the Throne refers to the gift of two ships from the British Government. These ships will be welcome. They are badly needed just now, and will be a great asset to the country. In reference to Section V—the standard and price of fish must be kept up. If the price of fish and other products are not is being placed on it, in fact it clearly and distinctly shows the contrary.

There is nothing new, Sir, in finding market conditions unfavourable and losses accruing to shippers of codfish. A statement by Sir John Crosbie at the Board of Trade meeting in February may be remembered. Sir John said his experience had been that he always had a chance to make some profit upon fish, which he shipped before the end of the year, but upon stocks of fish in store at the commencement of the following year there were invariably losses met. This had no relation to restrictions of price or destination, but that always there were losses upon stocks of codfish, carried into the following year. This is the opinion of Sir John Crosbie and relates to years in which no restrictions existed.

Now, Mr. President, I wish to make it clear that this is not the first season that attempts have been made to regulate the marketing of our fish by agreement, and I do not think Mr. Grieve was always averse to such attempts. I go farther and give it as my opinion that had Mr. Grieve been in St. John's last Fall when the Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries called in for consultation certain members of the trade, that he Mr. Grieve would not be to-day condemning restrictions totally for there cannot be a doubt, I think, that Mr. Grieve would have been one of the first whom Mr. Coaker would have sought conference with, and Mr. Grieve beyond doubt would have been of great assistance to the Minister in working out some acceptable plan of operations.

Through a misunderstanding no doubt, the Hon. Mr. Grieve denied that he had been a member of a Committee appointed for control of prices and shipments of codfish. In the Fall of 1918 the Hon. J. C. Crosbie, Minister of Shipping, the late Hon. John Harvey, and Mr. Grieve formed a committee for that purpose. It will probably be said that that was a voluntary act by the fish exporters, but its chairman was a cabinet member—the Minister of Shipping,—its meetings were held in his public office and the majority at least of the exporters of St. John's and of Conception Bay believed the other members, Messrs. Harvey and Grieve, to be advisers only and not appointed as principals who were being merely assisted by Sir John Crosbie. It was thought that Committee could do much and I believe it really did much to regulate matters pertaining to shipments, but the object underlying that and other agreements, Sir, was to maintain by combination greater stability of prices and regularity of shipments. It was an acknowledgment of the principle of "unity of action" and the same chance for all in an effort to secure the best results and prevent undue depreciation of our products.

The Hon. the leader of the Government, Mr. Shea, in his address at a former sitting—an address upon which I wish to compliment him,—very correctly described the newspaper opposition to the Government restrictions as party prejudice greatly detrimental to the interest of fishermen and merchants alike.

The causes affecting present marketing conditions are various, chief of which, however, is the poverty of the great fish consuming countries of Europe, whose currency is so reduced in value that it is impossible for them to purchase freely any kind of imported food. Another difficulty of shippers arises from the impossibility hitherto of obtaining even approximately correct information respecting the catch or stock of fish in our own country, a condition which I hope the present Government will at once take steps to rectify. Lack of correct information respecting our catch has always been a handicap upon exporters. With knowledge of the catch by the Marine and Fisheries Department passed on weekly to the Board of Trade, and shipments from outports also telegraphed promptly, the trade would be greatly helped and the whole country benefited.

The conditions in Portugal at present are admittedly bad and losses in some cases serious, will be met. Those conditions have not resulted through Government restrictions but from internal causes; and are not holders of Brazil fish asking and expecting higher prices for their stocks still held. The position is not cheering I admit but we have more than once seen it much worse.

I hope the Government will ask the co-operation of the Board of Trade in deciding upon standards of cure and cull and arrange for the strict enforcement of such rules as may be decided upon. This is not merely desirable but is absolutely essential if we are to maintain preference for our chief product in any of the markets of fish consuming countries. If Hon. Mr. Coaker has been correctly reported it is his intention to ask the co-operation of the Board of Trade.

Reference to the Hawes Agreement should in my opinion find no place in this discussion, but I may say that as far as I know I was the first to refuse to be a party to the Hawes Agreement, and I am therefore the more free to speak. There may or there may not be a Hawes Agreement the coming season, and if there are objectionable conditions attached to it at present they may possibly be remedied.

The stocks of codfish unmarketed certainly afford cause for some anxiety whether it has been shipped abroad or is still held in store in this country, but the situation is not helped by blaming the Government or the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, or by continuing controversy over the merits or demerits of the Hawes Agreement, which did not restrict me or Mr. Grieve or anybody else from shipping our fish to any country except Italy and that restriction may be removed by the time this year's fish is ready for marketing. As I remarked before, we have had to face adverse conditions in fish markets periodically, and shall again meet them. Let us not, however, foolishly decide that we have become incapable, or that the country's resources are permanently impaired; let us rather manfully face the conditions confronting us, not sectionally, but "unitedly" and remember that not local conditions only but present world conditions demand harmony and co-operation between merchant and merchant, between city and outports, between government and people, and an earnest desire and resolve upon the part of us all to work "pro bono publico"—and take to heart words recently uttered by Mr. Lloyd George and which are as applicable in this country as in Great Britain—"THE TIMES ARE TOO SERIOUS FOR PARTY CONFLICT."

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—It might naturally have been expected that I should have replied to the speech of Hon. Mr. Bishop who has devoted so much of his argument to me personally. I regret that a very large portion of his speech was inaudible to me as the hon. gentleman was facing the chair. He has taken the precaution deliberately to commit in typed characters the remarks he has delivered to this chamber, and I should like at leisure to study those remarks and to reply to them in a deliberate manner because my remarks shall go on record either for woe or for weal of this country and I should like to plan those remarks supported so far as I can by argument.

I should like to refer here to one matter which has nothing to do with the question under discussion, namely the Escasoni cargo last year. The circumstances were as follows; and do not come within the scope of the present Speech from the Throne. This was a large cargo of codfish, some 60,000 quintals which it was very difficult to realize upon. The exporters met, and Hon. Sir John Crosbie, Hon. John Harvey, A. E. Hickman and myself were appointed a committee to take charge of and dispose of this cargo. The only authority we exercised in that connection was in regard to the Greek market to which the vessel was consigned . With regard to other markets we had nothing to do. But we took this in hand and we managed to realize it, with assistance, in a market that was unknown to us, and the proceeds were not paid for except in the shape of bonds of three years duration, which I hope at maturity will be met. Had we not done so and that option not been taken the value of that cargo, probably worth a million and a half would have been lost.

That however has no connection with this matter. The Hon. Mr. Shea in course of his remarks asked me to be more specific. I intend to get together some figures in support of my contention in reference to the losses. Between two and three million dollars have been lost. This loss is mainly to be attributed to the institution of these regulations. I hope very shortly to supply Hon. Mr. Shea with some of the figures he asked for. I hope also to reply to Hon. Mr. Bishop in deliberate form. One cannot on the spur of the moment, without preparation, speak on a weighty matter such as this. As far then as those sections of the speech are concerned I defer what I have to say. Mr. Bishop alleged that we debated only one section . I do not know that it is incumbent for every member to speak. This is not like another chamber but a deliberative body to correct hasty decisions, but not on strict party lines as elsewhere. I think I am correct in saying that the desire of all of us is to contribute something to the welfare of the Dominion and not to be splitting straws. I hope at the next meeting of the House to be in a position to state satisfactorily what my opinions are. These regulations are calculated to do grave harm. I agree with Mr. Monroe. In February he indorsed the regulations as far as Europe was concerned, but not with regard to Brazilian market. When he went across he saw the harm of these regulations—changed ideas on making enquiries into the matter. If what may be called supplying in the country is restricted I may deduce from that that they have insufficient confidence in the country's ability to market the produce of the country. There is mistrust of the future—to some extent this is due to the regulations regarding export of codfish and the throwing overboard of the law of supply and demand. There are a hundred thousand quintals in Portugal to-day and the price is low when there were four or five thousand quintals last year and the price was higher. That meant poor supply last year and good supply this year. This is the same principle.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—There is just one point only on which the Hon. Mr. Grieve and myself disagree. I am prepared to admit we have to act with the greatest caution. He avers that present conditions are to be traced entirely to the promulgation of the regulations last Fall with regard to sale prices. We agree to disagree. I do not think they can be traced even in a small way to this cause. With regard to the Escasoni it has nothing to do with the question at issue. I refer to this as an instance where attempts have been made from time to time by exporters of St. John's to arrange a combine to protect themselves. Conditions demand the serious attention of all persons connected with trade. Instead of crying blue ruin we should unite to keep up the trade not only for ourselves but for those who come after us, who have to be supported by the cultivation of this country.

HON. MR. WINTER:—I wish to say a few wprds in reference to remarks made by Hon. Mr. Bishop re a statement of Sir John Crosbie's made in the Board of Trade rooms last February. A great deal of discussion took place, and a great deal of public interest was shown. It was resolved that the Advisory Committee would call a meeting in the Board of Trade and ask the members to meet there and discuss the merits or demerits of the regulations. The meetings were held for three days and the whole situation debated on. Hon. Mr. Grieve was present. I do not know whether he took part in discussion or not. However the result of the debate was this: that the meeting unanimously agreed that the regulations were essential. Resolutions were passed by vote. In my opinion there is not the slightest doubt that these regulations were necessary and I have sufficient experience to be able to form this opinion. Just at this time I have gone out of the fish business. My principal reason for doing so was that there were no regulations. I found the result of our shipments from Labrador was unsatisfactory, some years we made a little money, other years we did not. Had the shipments been regulated we should have always made money. Some years we were able to make sales, sometimes in Greece, Italy and Spain. Then the Spanish merchants found out it would be safe not to buy till vessels arrived in Gibraltar. Sometimes twelve, fifteen or eighteen cargoes arrived from Labrador at the same time. The buyers in Spain and Italy would then buy what they liked or reject it altogether. This seriously affected price. If we all work together there is no difficulty in putting the price on fish.

The Spanish and Italians state themselves that they do not mind the price they give for the fish if we can guarantee no one here will sell lower. We agreed often to hold our fish for a certain price but agreements were always broken. When once the foreigners see us weakening they take advantage of it. Experienced men must know that there are some business people in Italy and Spain who will do the right thing and treat customers fairly, others are notoriously dishonest. Cargoes have been condemned as bad fish and been refused if no allowance is made. It used to be so. It is better now as our agents now in some ports help the shippers out. Price and shipments should be regulated.

The Hon. Mr. Bishop made some remarks in refence to the statement of the Hon. John Crosbie re result of shipment of past years. I do not know if he were right or not but I had the same impression. I understood that shipments made after a certain date were sold at a loss. His experience was (if I am correct) if he had a voyage of a hundred thousand quintals of fish and sold sixty and had forty remaining, it would pay him to sell the balance at cost. That is what I understood. That goes to show the necessity for fish regulations. If there were regulations he could not possibly undersell like this. If he lowers the price others must suffer.

I think it is a mistake when making regulations not to invite all interested in the trade. It is unfortunate all did not attend meeting to discuss this matter. We should not have the opposition we have to-day if such had been the case. For those who were not asked to take part naturally resent them. I understand that in future it is proposed that the regulations will be in charge of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries and he will have an Advisory Board to consult as to best regulations to be made. I cannot see any objection to this being adopted by the Government. Members on Board will be those interested in the country, and most of them large shippers themselves. The more people consulted the better. Regulations obnoxious last Fall or now might be altered.

In reference to enormous losses owing to regulations I am glad the Hon. Mr. Grieve is going to give us figures. My own opinion is the loss of two or three million due to regulations is a gross exaggeration. It could not happen to shippers here without making them stagger. I see no difference in Water Street to-day. It is nothing new to make heavy losses.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—It is generally admitted that the stock is abnormally large. We have approximately in Portugal ninety thousand quintals of fish, in Spain one hundred thousand, in Italy, (which has sent back cargoes), about one hundred thousand, twenty or thirty thousand in Greece. I venture to say that the loss will amount to amount $5 a quintal to the shippers, these stocks run so very largely. There is in stock in this Colony between two hundred and three hundred thousand qtls., valued at $11 or $12 per quintal. That fish cannot be sold in St. John's for eleven or twelve dollars. If these are calculated I figure a loss amounting to two or three million dollars must accrue.

HON. MR. WINTER:—We want more evidence than that there is going to be such severe losses. I am not convinced that these losses are entailed by the regulations. In Portugal the loss is not on account of regulations but on account of fish being rotten. I do not blame fish regulations for that. This should not be considered in figuring up losses. The honourable gentleman will admit the loss on good fish will not be very large and that when he ships it over to Spain it will pay him a good profit.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Sometimes.

HON. MR. WINTER:—Nearly always. I am very pleased to know that my honourable friend has made so much money out of fish.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—I am reported to have lost this year two hundred thousand dollars.

HON. MR. WINTER:—But you cannot believe reports. If we believed all the stuff that is printed in the papers now we would be very much misinformed. I must apologize, Mr. President, for taking up so much time of the House, but this subject of the fish regulations is a very important one. I do not think we could discuss a matter of more importance to the country than this. I must say it seems to me that we cannot overlook the fact that the first people to form an opinion as to whether the regulations are good or not are those that have experience in shipping and those who have been in the foreign market and know what the trouble is. Now the Honourable the Minister of Marine and Fisheries has spent a very considerable time travelling in Europe, in Italy and in Spain and Portugal. He has been over there and he knows exactly what the trouble is over there, what it is due to, whether it is due to the quality of the fish or that the market has been overstocked. He has got all the particulars, and I think that with his practical knowledge and being a large shipper largely interested in the business of the country, together with practically the whole of Water Street assisting the operations, I think we ought to be able to make some very sensible regulations which will be of advantage to the country.

HON. MR. SHEA:—Mr. President, I beg to move the second reading of the Bill entitled "An Act respecting the effect and application of certain acts subsequent to Consolidated Statutes (Third Series). This Bill comes from the Minister of Justice and refers to a purely legal matter. It refers to the effect of the application of certain Acts subsequent to the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland. These are Acts passed since the Consolidation took place in 1916. It is a purely legal matter and has been sent to us by the Minister of Justice. I beg to move the second reading.

Second reading of bill "An Act respecting the effect and application of certain acts subsequent to Consolidated Statutes (Third Series)."

Referred to Committee of House on to-morrow.

HON. MR. SHEA:—Mr. President, I beg to move the second reading of this bill entitled "An Act to amend the Industrial Societies Act, 1919." This refers to what is a change of words more than anything else. The effect is to change the word "Registrar" to "Minister of Justice." It was considered unexpedient that the Registrar should have the framing of laws affecting the Societies, and that the matter ought to be handled by the Minister of Justice. This bill also comes from the Minister of Justice. I beg to move its second reading.

Second reading of Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Industrial Societies Act, 1919."

Referred to Committee of House on to-morrow.

HON. MR. SHEA:—Bill entitled "An Act to amend Cap. 41 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Newfoundland Medical Board.'" I beg to move the second reading of that Bill. The Bill is in reference to the Medical Board and has the effect of changing the fee for admission. When a gentleman comes here to practice and wants to get a permit from the Medical Board, instead of paying $25.00 as formerly he will under this Act have to pay $40.00. The Medical Board considered the fee of $25.00 was too small to meet expenses. I beg to move the second reading of this Bill.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—I want to ask the honourable gentleman whether this has anything to do with the matter of the high cost of living. I presume it has not, but wished to make quite certain that it was not a matter of profiteering.

HON. MR. SHEA:—It has no bearing on the high cost of living.

Second reading of Bill entitled "An Act to amend Cap. 41 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Newfoundland Medical Board.'"

Referred to Committe of House on to-morrow.

HON. MR. SHEA:—Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Food Control Act, 1917," I beg to move the second reading of that Bill. The Food Control Board under the Act of 1917 consists of only three members. It has been considered necessary to increase that number and this Bill will make it possible to increase it to six if necessary. At present the Board consists of five and this Act is to allow the number to be increased to six instead of three. I beg to move the second reading.

Second reading of Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Food Control Act, 1917."

Referred to Committee of House on to-morrow.

HON. MR. SHEA:—A Bill entitled "An Act respecting the Department of Public Works."

I would ask that the further consideration of this Bill be deferred.

HON. THE PRESIDENT:—I have to-day received a communication of thanks from the family of the late Hon. John Harvey which the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read the communication.

The House adjourned until 4.30 Monday, May 3rd, 1920.

MONDAY, May 3rd.

Hon. S. Milley read petition from the Women's Patriotic Association re Act of Incorporation and said: "As this Bill will come before the House later on, it is not my intention to say anything at present except that I am entirely in accord with the granting of this petition. I beg to move that the petition be received.

House went into Committee on the several Bills, entitled an Act respecting the application and effect of certain acts subsequent to the Consolidated Statutes, 3rd series; an Act to Amend Chap. 41 Consolidated Statutes, 3rd series, entitled, Of the Newfoundland Medical Board; and an Act to Amend the Industrial Societies Act, 1919, which were passed without amendment, and on motion of Hon. Mr. Shea ordered to be read a third time on to-morrow.

House went into Committee on the Act to Amend the Food Control Act 1917, Hon. Mr. Browning in the chair.

HON. MR. MEWS:—As a member of the Food Board I have a few remarks to offer. I might say that the original section reads as follows: (read section). Under ordinary circumstances, therefore, the Act would cease six months after the declaration of peace, which date would be somewhere in June, but as it was eminently desirable that the Food Board should remain in existence as there were several pressing matters that it was necessary some department should look after, the Government have substituted this paragraph, and when the Food Board is to go out of existence, it will be proclaimed to due course. In taking up this matter of food control one of the first things that strikes one is the fact that Newfoundland is dependent for her supplies, on outside countries. Almost everything we have to export in large quantities, even potatoes, which anyone would naturally suppose would be produced in sufficient quantities here to feed us. But we find to-day it is costing $14.00 to bring potatoes in here and owing to a very great shortage most people will have to pay that. The Food Board is in rather a difficult position, between two fires, if I might put it that way, with the business community on one side and the people on the other. The business people generally, as some of the operations show, are perhaps no better than any other ordinary human being. For instance we find in the case of sugar some business men asking if we are not going to commandeer all the sugar coming in this month, five or six thousand barrels. Of course that demand generally comes from people who have not been farseeing enough to provide themselves with sugar, but the stand the Food Board takes is that so long as that sugar is coming in and getting into proper distribution, there is no necessity for interfering. To take over a lot of sugar like that is no easy matter, when we consider that it is not only to be distributed along Water Street, but throughout the country. We have plenty of sugar coming in, I think about 6,000 barrels, this month, which will accommodate present needs both in the city and outports.

There is one thing I should like to say in this connection, and that is, that it would help immeasurably if everyone, not only those who can afford to buy a barrel, but those buying from week to week, if they would resolve not to buy any more than enough for immediate needs. This is one of the causes that raises prices more than any ordinary individual would think, and the fact of the people rushing after barrels and quantities as soon as it is put into store is bound to result in a shortage of supplies.

Another matter is that of re-selling "up-a-long" that which is bought for home consumption. I was told that one could get double the profit on the goods coming in if sold in Canada without touching it at all, but I am glad to say that that business man who told me that turned the offer down, as he did not think it fair to the country, to the trade, to the Government or to his fellowmen.

In that connection I should like expression of opinion from honourable members in business. It does not seem to be playing fair for a commodity which we absolutely need to be put out of our reach, especially when it at present is hard to replace —very hard to replace. On the other side we have the people who are now in a state of uncertainty and unrest, which often to my mind is alarming. They feel what is happening—the high cost of things. I can understand this. I can't buy lots of things I could. I have to do without many things. In that way I can feel for the people who are endeavouring week by week to make ends meet. I know among some classes wages have increased, but there is another class commonly called the salaried class, whose salaries by no means measure up to requirements. These cannot live as they would like. The demand of the people is not unreasonable in many cases. There are of course a lot of people who make money and waste it. That is true, but there are lots of others who cannot possibly remain outside the circle of unrest. Personally I should like to see a Consumers' League formed, people through that agency will be able to enquire for information about business—an advantage which they ordinarily would not have. They have grievances now. In some cases they have to pay high prices (which do not necessarily mean high profits). These difficulties are caused through lack of contact between business men and people, which the league may get over. People complain of high prices and blame the Food Board, but this league will give them opportunities to voice their complaints through an organization, and complaints will be investigated. Consumers' League can do a great deal with regard to demand. If it can influence demand or the nof buying freely of the necessaries of life this will go a long way towards lowering prices. The Food Board is generally conceived to be a police department going round everywhere and finding what profits are being made, but we have no machinery to do that sort of work. We investigate more in bulk rather than in individual cases. We have to take over practically whole supplies before we can attempt to fix prices. I am very glad to be able to announce it is very likely the Government will introduce a profiteering Act along lines similar to the English Act, so that the individual can lodge complaints. This act will be altogether separate from the Food Board Act. I had the pleasure the other day of being censured for lowering prices in one commodity, in a store on Water Street and saved some people several thousand dollars. We can stand a great deal of that.

One of the great difficulties to business people mostly is defining what profiteering is. Most of the stores in Newfoundland carry everything from a needle to an anchor, as the saying is, and if exorbitant profits are being made on needles we are told that money is being lost on anchors. They are working under the system that the price of an article is set by the price which they have to pay in order to replace it. That is the business axiom. I have an article here which speaks of this. It is what I have been wondering about myself in cases of that nature—when a man is making a whole lot of money on sugar but losing on fish. In New York lately a dealer bought sugar at 16½ cents per lb. and sold it for 21¾ cents. He was selling at market rule, but he was hauled up before Court. He was obeying a rule and instinct of business operation. How far is that axiom to be taken, how far is it to be discounted? There must be a sort of average to take, as to how much a man has made during five years by following the market and how much he has lost. However there will be another opportunity to go into this matter when the Profiteering Act comes up. I expect it will be debated with vigour in this chamber. The whole problem should be settled by co-operation—co-operation between business men and the people. Antagonism on either side is injurious. I simply ask, if I may, that trade would submit to work more openly, more in harmony and take cognizance of the people's share in it. This would undoubtedly bring about a better state of affairs. Hon Mr. Bishop concluded his speech with a quotation from Lloyd George, "Times are too serious for party conflict." It may also be said that times are too serious for unjust profits.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Mr. Chairman, I wish to make a few observations on the bill before the House; to increase the membership of the Board of Food Control or in other words a Board to regulate prices and to keep down the high cost of living. Mr. Chairman, I know of no bill, or any act of Parilament in any country that has been passed during recent years, that has assisted in reducing the high cost of living more than the Daylight Saving bill. During the past week some clever writers to the press have been writing against the measure, without giving a single reason. Such contributions are only fit for the waste paper basket. I observed during the week an editorial reference to the daylight and changing of the clock as the summer game of make believe. Life is too short to answer the many silly arguments used against more daylight. The best argument in favour of the Daylight Saving Bill is—the whole world has adopted it by Acts of Parliament, with the exception of the United States and Canada. I regret to say, politics and personal interests dominate these two countries in the world wide question of saving daylight. In the case of the United States without an Act, practically three-quarters of the population are now enjoying the blessings of a long evening in that great and glorious country. Common sense prevails among the populace of the United States, they are tired listening to farmers and tht extra hour of pay between six o'clock and seven each evening during the summer time. The farmers of the United States are now backed by directors and shareholders of electrical and gas undertakings. What I have said of the United States equally applies to the Dominion of Canada. Independent of the Government, about three-quarters of the people will enjoy during the summer one hour of extra sunshine. The members of the House of Commons and senate sitting at Ottawa, and the members of the farmer labor legislature of Ontario at Toronto, while admittedly opposed to daylight saving, find themselves compelled to work by it on account of local conditions.

When the British Government appointed a commission to enquire into the operation of the Daylight Saving

Bill for 1916, after taking evidence throughout the British Isles, they unhesitatingly said that the vast preponderance of opinion throughout Great Britain is enthusiastically in favour of summer time and of its renewal, not only as a war measure, but as a permanent institution. Such was in part the report of a Committee to enquire into its operation. Wherever the Act has been passed it has contributed in many ways to a reduction on the high cost of living.

Now Mr. Chairman, in looking over the Revenue and Expenditure for the following years, I find the Government have been making very decent profits from the people of this Dominion, through the Custom House. You can call it overtaxed if you like, caused by high values on goods imported from the United States, Canada, or Great Britain, on the basis of high advalorem duties, varying from twenty to fifty per cent.:

	1913	1914	1915	1916	1917	1918	1919	1920
Flour	$ 5.60	$ 6.00	$ 7.20	$ 8.00	$14.30	$14.70	$14.00	$16.00
Pork	26.25	28.00	20.25	29.50	43.50	43.00	60.00	54.00
Beef	19.00	20.00	19.00	21.00	33.00	46.00	33.00	30.00
Sugar, per lb.	3¼	7	6	8¾	.10½	.10	.10½	.20
Molasses, gal.	.37	.26	.37	.40	.53	.94	.95	2.00
Bran, bag	2.00	1.60	1.60	2.00	2.55	3.30	3.50	3.80
Hay, ton	23.00	26.00	23.00	26.00	25.00	33.00	46.00	60.00
Oats, per bag of 4 bushels	2.60	2.80	2.80	3.20	5.20	5.40	5.30	6.40
Feed, bag	1.80	1.70	2.20	3.80	4.00	4.50	4.50	4.80

Above are all average cost prices

1915-16.

Revenue	$4,600,272
Expenditure	4,110,885
Profit	489,387
	$4,600,272

1916-17.

Revenue	$5,206,648
Expenditure	4,554,891
Profit	651,757
	$5,206,648

1917-18

Revenue	$6,540,083
Expenditure	5,369,455
Profit	1,170,628
	$6,540,083

1918-19.

Revenue	$9,550,000
Expenditure	6,850,000
Profit	2,700,000
	$9,550,000

Total Revenue in 4 years $25,897,000
Total Expenditure in 4 years 20,885,231

Government profit in four years paid through the Custom House, (Five million dollars) $5,000,000.

While the high cost of living has risen, no effort of any kind has been made to reduce the tariff. I admit the task would be a difficult one, the markets both at home and abroad are constantly going up—with the result great unrest prevails in all parts of the globe. Unrest on account of the high cost of living.

Unrest at home! The workingman is looking for better social conditions for his family—unrest among the workers for higher wages. General unrest throughout the country among our young men. The spirit of roving has entrapped many of our finest youth—they cannot settle down to real life. There are few injunctions more needful at the moment than that which reminds us that we are living in a world in which supplies are not equal to the demand, and that there has not yet been an adequate effort on the part of peoples of the world to make good the wastage. I earnestly beseech every young man, and thoughtful men of age, to settle down to a real life of industry and become a producer of his country. High prices, after all, are only one of the manifestations of a freak economic situation, and all our energies must be bent towards the righting of that situation.

I have carefully gone into the question of flour, beef, sugar, molasses, bran, hay, oats, feed, etc., with my Hon. friend Mr. McNamara, who is in this business. From these figures you will observe the steady increase in prices from 1913 to 1920. Whether these goods are sold retail or wholesale, in both cases the merchants follow the market. All the goods mentioned here pay a specific duty, and does not in any way effect the cost, either at a high or low cost in price.

At the present time, I understand, there is a falling market, and considerable losses will be made in general provisions, particularly beef.

Mr. Chairman, with regard to the high cost of living, and its cure, for the information of this House and the country—I will quote a few articles, their cost in 1914 and the present cost in 1920:

March, 1914, blue serge that cost 5|6 Stg.; March, 1920, cost 25|—.

March, 1914, blue serge that cost 6|6 Stg.; March, 1920, cost 28|—.

March, 1914, blue serge that cost 7|3 Stg.; March, 1920, cost 30|—.

Tweeds for men's suits have risen in the same proportion. It makes no difference whether these goods come from the United Kingdom, United States or the Dominion of Canada—they all pay the same duty, 38½ per cent advelorum. We have no deferential or preferential tariff.

Tweeds that cost in 1914 6|— per yard to-day are costing 22|— per yard; 6|6 are 23|—; goods that could be bought in 1914 for 7|— to-day are invoiced at 28|— per yard.

Common linings used in the tailoring trade that cost in 1914 1|9 are now costing 5|6 per yard.

Linen htread that cost 5|10 in 1914 is now invoiced at 24|— per lb.

Black silk twist in 1914 cost 22|— is now 72|— Stg. per lb.

Common black wools that were bought in 1914 at 6|6 and 8|6 per spindle are now 50|6—higher prices have advanced to 75|— and 85|— per spindle.

Cotton goods, bed tick, sheetings are from 300 to 500 per cent higher than they were previous to the war.

The same applies to Boots and Shoes. Take the case of a certain kind of men's boots that in 1914 the price was $3.00; 1915, $3.40; 1916, $4.00; 1917, $5.00; 1918, $5.50; 1919, $8.35; 1920, $9.50.

Women's boots that were sold in 1914 for $1.80 are to-day $6.00 per pair.

The above prices are F.O.B. New York or Boston. The same advalorum duty of 44 per cent is paid to-day on the high cost of goods as the trade paid on the low priced goods of 1914.

In my opinion, Mr. Chairman, the most important section of the speech of His Excellency, delivered in this House a few days ago, is that relating to the estimates. These will be subject to considerable revision, and that a bona fide statement of moneys, necessary to carry on the Government of this country will be laid before the House. In addition to this the Minister of Finance will prepare careful estimate of taxation that will be required to meet expenditure. The Minister can rest assured to meet the obligations of the civil service of the Dominion, and the increase of debts incurred by the great war, he will have the endorsation of the country. To avoid undue taxation, and unnecessary taxation the Minister of Finance will of goods, paying an advalorem duty. require to exercise great care, on account of the high price of all classes In the case of wool, the duty has increased about ten times. Cotton goods from pre-war cost shows an increase of six times; boots and shoes, five times. There is much scope for the Minister of Finance to show his great ability in his first budget, so that his estimates are thoughfully and carefully prepared, having due regard that ample provision is made to meet the expenditure, that the people and trade and commerce of the country are not overtaxed. I am not aware of any justification why the Government of this country should show a surplus of over two million and a half dollars, if the high cost of living is to be reduced.

Mr. Chairman, the greatest drain upon the man of salary or any householder is his coal account. Coal is being sold to-day at $19.00 per ton. Lately the quality seems to be dirt and dross, with a few lumps of coal thrown in. I hope to refer to this important question later, but a united effort must be made to reduce coal to at least $13.00 or $14.00 per ton by the co-operation of the Government, Bell Island Ore Co., Dominion Coal Company, and our local Union of Longshoremen to give quick dispatch to iron ore carrying steamers. The price of coal sold in St. John in 1913 was $7.20 per ton; 1914, $7.60 per ton; 1915, $10.80 per ton; 1916, $11.00 per ton; 1917, $15.00 per ton, and later in the year $16.00 per ton; 1918, $16.00 per ton; 1919, $15.00 per ton; 1920, $15.00 per ton, in the month of February $17.50; May, $18.50, and on Saturday last $19.40 per ton. The duty paid on coal 70c. per ton and 10% surtax; on a barrel of flour 27½ cts.; hay per ton of 2000 lbs. $3.30; Indian Corn Meal 22c. pbl.; Salted beef and pigs jowls $1.10 per bl., pigs jowls and tongues $1.65 per brl., pork $1.65 per brl., family mess pork $2.20 per barrel.

Sugars—loaf and cut loaf 3cts. lb. and 10%; granulated sugar 1½ cents per lb. and 10% surtax. The rise and fall in the market of the above articles in no way effect the Customs tariff.

The bill before the House to increase the members of the Food Control Board, has my support, and co-operation to reduce, or find if possible a solution of the high cost of living. In numbers there is always a glimmer of hope. On the completion of the full board, we hope to see the dawn of a new era, a promise for the future. What we want, Mr. Chairman, is a settlement of the great unrest. This city cannot afford any more strikes; I am a great believer in settling all disputes by arbitration. Common sense applied will cement a good feeling between capital and labour. Many labourers in this city have given it as their opinion that the only way to ease the high cost of living is to improve our housing, and bring the dollar back to its original value, is to increase production—and this is a real step toward that increase.

Mr. Chairman, we must not leave the reduction of the high cost of living to the coming manhood. We must be reasonable, the laborer is worthy of his hire, he must have a living wage, but unreasonable demands for higher wages with no greater production of earnest work, prices go higher, freights go up, the whole machinery of the country's trade is put out of gear; there is still much to be done, all sections of our industrial workers have yet to see the light of this new dawn. When employer and worker are co-operating to the mutual benefit of both, and through that to the benefit of the country.

We must use our best efforts to settle for some years, by some agreement, the great social question of unrest. I hope the time is not far away when all unions will have met their employers and settle this vexed question of wages, and by their united effort bring back the standard of the dollar to its old purchasing power, and not leave the problem of the high cost of living to the future manhood of the Dominion.

Coal—Since this year came in it started at $15.00, then went to $17.50, $18.50; some time ago it was sold for $19.40, and now, I understand, the price is $19.00. Soft coal pays a duty of seventy cents a ton and 10% surtax. I have not yet got into the secrets of the trade as to the amount that is paid for coal F. O. B. North Sydney, but I cannot understand why the people are being charged $19.00 a ton for coal unless they are paying an extraordinary freight, away beyond what they are entitled to pay. In 1913 the freight from Sydney to St. John's was $1.20; in 1915 it rose to $4.50. What it is at the present time I am not in a position to know, but this I do know, that whatever the price at Sydney, the wages paid the men in 1913 was 17c. an hour, and now they are paid at the rate of 55c. an hour, and that the discharging of coal in St. John's was 40 c. a ton, and now, I understand, it is 90c. The point I want to make, Mr. Chairman, is that we ought to get the steamers coming to Bell Island for ore to bring coal to us. I believe that an effort was made some time ago, but the trouble was that the steamers could not be discharged quickly enough. Now if some arrangement could be made to get these steamers coming from Sydney to bring a cargo of coal and get immediate despatch at a reasonable freight, the coal could be very much lowered in price, and I hope the Minister of Shipping will make an effort to get some coal, a most important thing for the people of this city, at a low or reasonable price, much below the present quotation.

Mr. Chairman, I am glad today that I am in a position to put before this House for the benefit of the honorable gentlemen who may not be familiar with the facts, some statistics with regard to the high cost of living. Some of the honourable gentlemen may be aware of these facts, but it will be at least valuable information for the people of this country, and I hope that the reporters will be careful to take down every word of what I am saying. It is in connection with the cost of living in the United Kingdom. It is a comparative statement of the percentage rise in the cost of living in the United Kingdom and in foreign countries and has been issued as a parliamentary paper. From the figures that I have submitted to this House and from the information that I have from Canada, I find that there is very little difference between the high cost of living in Canada and Newfoundland and the United Kingdom. This is a parliamentary document issued last April—I think it is April 20th. In the United Kingdom the cots of living has advanced 130 per cent.; in Paris, 197 per cent.; other French towns, 220 per cent.; Rome, 193 per cent.; Milan, 282 per cent.; United States, 96 per cent.; Belgium, 296 per cent.; Denmark, 142 per cent.; Norway, 201 per cent.; Sweden, 159 per cent.; Germany, 356 per cent. From the figures I have submitted to the House today on the high cost of living and with a little care, I have estimated that in the Dominion of Newfoundland the cost has increased 120 to 150 per cent.

HON. MR. MEWS:—Since when?

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Pre-war days, and that in the Dominion of Canada—I have taken the figures from "The Montreal Star" and I believe they are correct—the increase has been about the same as in Newfoundland.

As to profiteering, the greatest profiteer of the country was the late Government. I will show you why. The revenue for 1915-1916 amounted to $4,690,272, and the expenditure to $4,110,000. They increased their credit balance by $489,000. In 1916-17 the revenue was $5,206,648 and the expenditure $4,554,891, and they increased their credit balance by $651,-757, higher than the previous year. In 1917-18 the revenue amounted to $6,540,083 and the expenditure $5,369,-455. The surplus at the end of that year amounted to $1,170,628, or an increase on the previous year of $518,871. I have no figures for 1919-20 yet, as I do not presume the accounts are yet ready, but there is a revenue of $9,550,000 against an expenditure of $6,850,00, showing a surplus of $2,700,000, credit balance, or profit if you like; politicians call it surplus.

Now I do not discredit in any way whatever the Minister of Finance for showing such a large surplus. If you take the four years from 1915 to 1918 and put the total revenue together, they amount to $25,000,000 in round figures, and if you put the expenditure together it would amount to $20,000,-000 in round figures, or, in other words, during the four years the surplus would amount to $5,000,000. I am not blaming the Minister of Finance, because, having an ad valorem duty as we have, when goods that have increased in price to the amount of 500 or 600% are imported, they bring up the revenue, and it would not matter who the Minister of Finance was, whether this sheet of paper were the Minister, the result would be the same.

Now the point I want to seriously impress upon your minds is this, that if the Government wishes to grapple with the problem of the high cost of living it must consider the goods that come into this country that pay a large amount of duty. And, further, I want to know from the Minister of Agriculture and Mines what are the proposals that he is going to put before the farmers. He must insist upon the farmers growing more turnips, more potatoes—because I understand potatoes would be one of the most profitable commodities the farmer would have to sell now, and I hope that the introduction of the Daylight Saving Bill will, as one of my friends suggested, make the hens lay more eggs—one can never tell what effect it may have. And my honorable friend will tell the farmers that they must mind business and mind it well, and increase last year's produce by at least 100%. That is one of the best ways in which the high cost of living can be reduced—greater production, full value for increased wages, and still greater production.

Now there is one other little matter upon which I must detain the House. Section 8 in His Excellency's Speech says:

"The revenue for the last fiscal "year showed a substantial surplus "over expenditure. On the other "hand, there have been large expen-"ditures not included within the scope "of last year's Estimates which it "will be necessary to legalise. In "spite of these large disbursements "the revenue was more than sufficient to meet current expenditure. It "must be remembered, however, that "practically the whole of the very "large expense incurred in connection "with the Department of Militia and "in the matter of pensions for soldi-"ers and sailors and their hospital "treatment and civil re-establishment "was borne on Capital Account."

Whether that means, Mr. Chairman, that the surplus that I have just mentioned will go to meet these obligations, I cannot tell. I have heard it stated in the Lower House that when all the debts of the war were put together the cost of the war would likely be about $30,000,000, which amount we hope will be paid by Germany. Well, I am afraid we will not get it in a great hurry, but I think that the $5,000,000 should have been applied to reduce taxation, and while in a crisis we are willing to do our best, there are future generations coming after us and whether we should pay for what debt is incurred now is another matter. But, Sir, I believe we should consolidate all our debts and make full provision for our interest charges, and reduce if possible our national debt. The Speech goes on:

"The Estimates have been subject "to considerable revision, and have "been based upon the report of the "Civil Service Commission appointed "by my late Ministers. My Ministers "propose to submit to you for your "careful consideration a bona fide "statement of the moneys which are "estimated to be necessary to cover "the expense of the public service of "the Colony for the coming fiscal "year."

Now, that is a statement, a clear-cut statement of a debit on the one side and an estimate of what they are likely to get on the other. I am not now going into the question of estimate and expenditure. It will be gone into carefully and very thoroughly.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I have never on the floors of this House mentioned the name of the Hon. Mr. Coaker. I have been acquainted with him ever since he started in a humble way, and I tell you, Mr. Chairman, that if the policy that he has outlined of trying to get the best price for the commodities of this country is carried out, he will deserve the best thanks and gratitude of the country for the interest he has taken and the trouble he has taken to do so. There never was a time when the people of Newfoundland required the best price for their commodities than now. I am not going into the question of herring or salmon or other exports, but I wish briefly to draw the attention of the House to the price of lobsters since 1913. In 1913 the price was $22.50; in 1914, $15.00; in 1915, $12.50; in 1916, $16.50. Now in 1914 the great market for lobsters, a market which we have since lost, was Hamburg.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Was it not Russia?

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Well, Russia too, but more particularly Hamburg in 1914. Hamburg was then paying a very high price for lobsters. Now I hope we will develop a big trade with the United States. The highest price paid since 1913 was $36.50, in 1919, and I am told that the price will drop in 1920, and that we will probably be getting $25.00. I hope this is not true and that we will get a bigger price.

I was in hopes that before taking my seat I would be able to review the prices paid for fish from 1913 to 1919, and thep rice that is being paid for it now, but I have only succeeded in getting the prices at which it is valued at the Customs House, but presume there is very little difference. The value in 1913-14 was $6.50, 1914-15, $6.75; 1915-16, $7.25; 1916-17, $8.25; 1917-18, $10.40; 1918-19, $14.50.

Mr. Chairman, when the Bill in relation to Fish Regulations comes before this House I hope the regulations will be of such a nature that they will meet with the approval of those at least who are immediately identified with the trade and who have a great interest in keeping up the value of our exports. If the Hon. Mr. Coaker does this, he will, as I have said before, have done a marvellous piece of work in the interests of the country.

Mr. Chairman, I support the bill before you now, and impress upon the Government and upon the Food Control oard the importance of using an extraordinary effort to keep down, whenever possible, the price of the commodities that must be consumed by the people, and to keep down the price of coal and always have sufficient in the market to supply the demand.

On motion the Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendment. The report having been received the Bill was ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

On motion of the Hon. Mr. Shea the remainder of the order paper was deferred until tomorrow.

Hon. Mr. Shea tabled Report of Schools under Church of England Boards and Report of Schools under Methodist Boards; also papers in connection with the Treaty of Peace between Allied and Associated Forces and Germany and other papers relating thereto.

On motion of the Hon. Mr. Shea the House adjourned until Wednesday the 5th inst., at 4.30 o'clock.

WEDNESDAY, May 5th, 1920.

The House met at 4.30 pursuant to adjournment.

These Bills were read a third time and passed:

Bill entitled "An Act respecting the Effect and Application of Certain Acts subsequent to the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland."

Bill entitled "An Act to amend 'The Industrial Societies Act, 1919'."

Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 41 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland entitled 'Of the Newfoundland Medical Board'."

It was ordered that a message be sent to the House of Assembly informing that body that this House had passed same without amendment.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Before the passing of this Bill I wish to make a few observations along lines similar to those which I followed a day or so ago.

As far as sugar is concerned there seems to be a feeling abroad that the price is likely to be high. Now, Sir, I wish to inform this House, and through it hte people, that it won't go to the price feared. Those connected with its importation, I have no doubt, will be able to keep the price down to a reasonable extent. In view of the wide interest being displayed at the present time in the sugar situa tion, a recent report from Cuba on the sugar crop in that country, prepared by H. A. Chisholm, Trade Commissioner at Havana is interesting.

He says it is predicted that the value of this year's sugar crop may reach a total that will almost equal, if not surpass, the value of the last three years' crops put together. If sugar continues at the present high rate of between 12 and 13 cents a pound, f.o.b. Cuba for crude, this year's estimated production of 4,200,000 tons will be worth in the neighbourhood of $4,200,-000,000. Of course, it is impossible and unsafe to predict just what the sugar market will do, but, taking the low estimate of 10 cents a pound as the average price, Cuba will get for this season's crop the value of her sugar will be $940,800,000 on an estimate of $4,200,000 tons. In 1919, total value of the crop was $471,269,445; in 1916, $324,937,179 and in 1917 $322,-368,576.

Referring to the export situation, he says that an interesting feature of Cuba's exports in the last three years has been phenomenal increase in the amount exported direct to Canada. In 1917 Canada took 3,515 tons, 1918 12,090 tons and in 1919 the statistics show as above that Cuba exported 81,996 tons direct to Canada. There are loading in Cuba at the present time 9 steamships for St. John, N.B., Halifax and Montreal, and three more are on their way. These are to discharge at Halifax. Large quantities of Cuban raw sugar are to be brought to St. John, Halifax and Montreal during the next few weeks. There are at present nine large cargo carriers loading sugar at Cuban ports, three other vessels with sugar are on their way to Canadian ports, and still another has reached Halifax, bringing the Canadian sugar fleet up to thirteen vessels. All the vessels are operated by the Canadian Government. The list includes:

The "Canadian Adventurer" unloading at Halifax.

The "Canadian Sailor" taking cargo at Jucaro and Cienfuegos.

The"Canadian Trader" loading at Palo Alto;

The "J. T. Drummond," loading at Havana;

The "Sheba" and "Canadian Sower" loading at Havana;

The "J. A. McKee" at Guay Abel.

This fleet will bring to St. John. Halifax and Montreal a total of more than fifty thousand tons, the greater part probably going to Montreal. The employees of the Montreal refineries threatened to strike unless wages were advanced, and if the plants are forced to close some of the Montreal sugar may be diverted here. It is understood that several thousand tons of raw sugar will be refined here for United States interests. Refined sugar in that country is higher than it is in Canada, and the big rush of raw sugar to Canadian ports is a movement to keep the price of sugar from going to twenty three cents in Canada. It is felt that a great trade movement between Canada and the West Indies is at present only in its initial stages, and will grow in time to immense proportions. The Royal Mail Steam Packet "Chignecto" is due in St. John to-day and it is probable she is bringing considerable sugar.

There is one other matter I wish to speak of before sitting down. It is the coal question. I am sure my honorable friend the Leader of the Government will exercise his full power to relieve the coal situation. I had occasion today to make application for some coal, and could obtain but half a ton and that dirt and dross. We have been and are now sending ore from Bell Island. I hope the Government will arrange a reciprocal trade through that company. If we supply ore on which is only paid 7½c. per ton duty, they ought at least keep us in coal at a reasonable price. The city needs about seventy thousand tons to meet requirements, and this and other necessities should be obtained through these lines, and not alone that, but get whatever is required for the people at a reasonable price, more especially in the case of coal, one of the greatest necessities that the people of this country require during the winter season. We cannot do without coal, and I am sure the Government will impress upon the Dominion Company this great necessity and the interest that should be taken to get coal. A reciprocal policy ought to be adopted between the Government and the Dominion Iron and Steel Company and the Coal Company—for what we are giving you, you have to give us something in return, or you have to do something in return. And if we can succeed in bringing coal down from $18.00 or $20.00 a ton to $12.00 or $15.00 a ton—and there is no reason why we should not do it—we have done a great deal for the country. I understand that once before the war coal was supplied to a corporation in this town for about $1.25 a ton.

Well, it has gone up by leaps and bounds, until now coal cannot be bought in Sydney for less than $6.00 or $7.00, whether screen coal or from the mouth, I do not know. But why we should pay $20.00 a ton for coal, paying a duty of 70c. and freight and other charges to the amount of $13.00, goes beyond my comprehension. There must be something wrong somewhere, and an effort must be made to right that wrong. Today some of the stuff that is being sold to the people for coal is nothing but dust, and ought not to fetch more than fifty cents or a dollar a ton. I understand that a local company is making an effort to mine coal in Newfoundland, and I hope the Government will give them all the encouragement and assistance and support they believe they desire.

I think, Mr. President, that prices have gone up so much since 1913, not through any fault of the importers of the country, but entirely because of the manufacturers abroad. The fact that the prices of raw wool, raw cotton and other raw materials have gone up is the reason why prices are so high.

Now there is one other matter, Mr. President, and that is the question of potatoes. Members of the House of Assembly have expressed their regret that the Minister of Agriculture and Mines was not in their Chamber, but I can assure him we are glad to have him here. I understand that the next arrival of potatoes will be $14.00 a barrel, and that local potatoes are being sold at $11.00 a barrel. We made a great hue-and-cry during the war for allotments and encouraged the people, both of St. John's and the outports, to grow more vegetables. Well, the need today is stronger than ever it was, and I hope my honorable friend will make things hum agriculturally and give every encouragement to the people to grow more vegetables than in the past. It is in the interests of the Government and the country to keep down if we can the prices of the articles of daily food for the people. Clothing I need not refer to again. They have their Overall Brigade in many American and Canadian cities. We have not yet arrived at that stage in St. John's, but if we do I am sure some of us will look very well indeed. I can assure you so far as clothing is concerned, the percentage of profit is no bigger than in the pre-war period, and things have gone up much more in the Old Country than in St. John's.

There is a factory in this town which ever since it has started business has given the trade an excellent quality of underclothing, and when the trade gets an opportunity I am quite sure it is a pleasure to them to buy from that local factory. This factory is unable to supply the trade now because of the great difficulty in securing raw materials.

Then there is sugar. We have been promised within the last few days that sugar will be 28c. a pound, and I think that the Government and the Food Control Board ought to do something and make every effort to get a quantity of the sugar which is now being refined in Canada, so that we may if possible keep down the price of this much-needed article of food.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea the Bill was read a third time, passed and sent to the House of Assembly with a message that this House had passed the same without amendment.

On motion of the Hon. Mr. Shea the remainder of the Order Paper was deferred.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea the House adjourned until Thursday, the 6th instant, at 12.15 p.m.

THURSDAY, May 6th, 1920.

The House met pursuant to adjournment.

At half-past twelve o'clock the Council proceeded to Government House with the Address in Reply to the Speech of His Excellency the Governor.

At twenty minutes to one o'clock the House having returned, the Honourable the President reported that His Excellency had been pleased to receive the said Address and return an answer thereto in the following words:—

Government House,
St. John's, Newfoundland,
6th May, 1920.

Mr. President and Honourable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council:

I thank you for your Address in Reply to the Speech with which your present Session was opened.

C. ALEXANDER HARRIS,
Governor.

On motion of the Honourable Mr. Shea, ordered:—That the consideration of the Order of the Day be deferred till to-morrow.

On motion made the House adjourned until Monday, the 10th inst., at 4.30 p.m.

MONDAY, May 10th.

The House met at 4.30 pursuant to adjournment.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea the Bill "An Act respecting the Department of Public Works" was deferred.

Hon. the President informed the House that he had received messages from the Assembly acquainting the House that they had passed the following Bills in which they requested the concurrence of the Council, viz: An Act to amend Chapter 176 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled "Of the Encouragement of Shipbuilding"; An Act Respecting the Department of Posts and Telegraphs; an Act to Provide for the Standardization of Codfish; an Act to provide for the better obtaining of Information respecting the Cod Fishery; an Act to incorporate the Women's Patriotic Association of Newfoundland; an Act to amend Chapter 11 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled "Of the Department of Marine and Fisheries."

On motion of the Hon. Mr. Shea these Bills were read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Mr. President, before the motion for adjournment is put I rise to ask your permission to make a personal statement. In the course of the debate on the address I made reference to the visit of certain people to Port Union and the subsequent promulgation of proclamations following quickly afterwards, and I drew the conclusion that these visits had something to do with the proclamation. In this connection I was challenged by Mr. Job, one of the gentlemen whose names I mentioned, and he has written to me the following letter, which I propose to read with my reply thereto. I do not propose to debate the matter, but in justice to Mr. Job place his view of what did take place before the general public, and will read the correspondence without making any comment.

(Copy) May 7th, 1920.

Hon. W. B. Grieve,
City.

Dear Mr. Grieve,

I notice that during your eloquent speech in the Legislative Council a few days ago (with very little of which I can agree), you did more than insinuate that the much discussed Regulations were originated and put in force as the result of a visit by myself and Mr. Hawes to Port Union. I have no wish to deprive Mr. Coaker of the credit of having made this, at least partially successful effort to substitute sanity for insanity in the conduct of the country's business, and therefore write to state that during the first visit to Port Union, to which you refer, there was no discussion or suggestion as to the enforcement of these or any other Regulations. Mr. Hawes went there in connection with his own business with the Union Trading Company or Export Co., and hearing that he was going I volunteered to accompany him, purely as a matter of interest, to see the Company's premises.

The Regulations were neither suggested nor inspired by either myself or Mr. Hawes now did we know that it would be practicable to put such Regulations into force. Mr. Coaker framed the Proclamation himself, presumably with assistance from some of his colleagues, and when they were definitely decided on and not before, he asked the assistance of myself and Mr. Hawes on his Advisory Board. The scond visit to Port Union was made at the request of Mr. Coaker himself, several days after the issue of the Proclamation, in order to assist him in framing some plans for carrying out the object aimed at.

I am quite in accord with the view, that the Trade generally should hav been more fully represented on the Advisory Board. but that was a matter over which neither myself nor Mr. Hawes had any control.

I did in this case, exactly what you did when the late Government was in power, viz: agreed to assist them when requested to do so, for the benefit of the whole trade, and I don't think I shall ever regret having done my best in this matter, thankless though the task may have been.

I feel sure you will have the decency to correct your statement.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) ROBERT B. JOB.

I wrote back that same day to Mr. Job:

May 7th, 1920.

Robert B. Job, Esq.,
City.

Dear Mr. Job:

I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of this day's date. In my speech in the Legislative Council I referred to your two visits to Port Union, accompanied by Mr. Hawes; and I note that you disclaim having discussed fishery regulations on your first visit and that on your subsequenet visit to Port Union you went there "to see the Company's premises," and at the request of Mr. Coaker. My deductions must therefore have been erroneous; and I shall, on Monday, when the Council resumes ask permission to make a statement in explanation.

The question of your sanity or insanity and mine need not be discussed. What I am alarmed at is what will be the mental condition of the people of this country later on arising out of these restrictive regulations?

The plan of campaign adopted in the case of the "Escasoni' cargo is not exactly as you state it. Sir John Crosbie as owner of the steamship "Escasoni" sat as Chairman of a Committee selected by the Board of Trade at a general meeting of that body called for the purpose.

I take exception not so much to the limit placed upon Trade representation on the Advisory Board as to a statement made to the Government that the majority of the exporters approved of such restrictive measures.

Yours very truly,
W. B. GRIEVE.

This is followed by another letter from Mr. Job in which he says:
[COPY.]

May 7th, 1920.

"Many thanks for your letter, from which I judge that you have mis-read mine, in which I stated that I accompanied Mr. Hawes to Port Union on the first visit purely as a matter of interest and "to see the premises.' If you will re-read my letter you will see that your reply shows that you have mis-read it.

With regard to the third paragraph of your letter, I did not refer to the case of the "Escasoni" cargo but simply to your position on the Board of the Ministry of Shipping in a general way. In the case o fthe "Escasoni" cargo no doubt all the shippers were consulted—in many other cases the rest of the trade, outside of the Advisory Board, were not consulted. I think you did your duty on the Shipping Board to the best of your ability, and for the common welfare, which is exactly what I attempted to do on Mr. Coaker's Alvisory Board.

Yours very truly,"

I do not propose to comment upon these letters, but in justice to Mr. Job I put his views on record, and they will go to the country to be interpreted by the country.

The House then adjourned.

On motion of the Hon. Mr. Shea the House adjourned until to-morrow at 4.30 o'clock.

TUESDAY, May 11, 1920.

The House met at 4.30, pursuant to adjournment.

Hon. Mr. Shea moved the second reading of the Bill respecting the Department of Public Works and said the object of this Bill is to change the number of members from four to six, as owing to the increased work in that department, this has been found necessary.

The said Bill was read a second time and ordered to be Committeed on tomorrow.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea the second reading of the Encouragement of Shipbuilding Bill and the Department of aMrine and Fisheries Bill was deferred until tomorrow.

Hon. Mr. Shea moved the second reading of the Bill respecting the Department of Posts and Telegraphs and said this Bill has for its object the establishment of a new department, that of Posts and Telegraphs, and it abolishes the office of Post Master General, and places the control ofthe Post Office and all its workings under an executive head, who will be a member of the Executive Government and of the Legislature. It has been found that this department has grown so much of late years as to necessitate its removal as a sub-department of the Colonial Secretary, and it is hoped this will make for the better working of the department.

The Bill was thereupon read a second time and ordered to be Committed on tomorrow.

Hon. Mr. Shea moved the second reading of the "Standardization or Codfish Bill," and said: "This bill provides for the appointment of a Committee with regard to the Standardization of Codfish. When we go into Committee, I shall go into details, but that is the purpose of the Bill, placing the standardization of codfish under a government Control Board."

The Bill was thereupon read a second time, and ordered to be Committed on to-morrow.

Hon. Mr. Shea moved the second reading of the bill respecting "The Better Obtaining of Information Respecting the Codfishery, and said:—This bill is really self-explanatory, providing for the better obtaining of Information regarding the fishery generally, and calls for no further explanation. Said bill was thereupon read a second time and ordered to be Committed on to-morrow.

HON. MR. MILLEY moved the second reading of the Bill re Incorporation of the Women's Patriotic Association of Newfoundland, and said:

HON MR. MILLEY—In moving the second reading of this Bill it is not necessary for me to occupy very much of your time, the work of the Women's Patriotic Association is well known to every member in this Council.

Organized shortly after the outbreak of the War, this Association has, with untiring zeal, done a marvellous work in the interest of "Our Boys" who went overseas to fight for King and Country. Now that the war is over, people are beginning to realize what is owed to the Women of our Empire, for their great, glorious and self-sacrificing labours. I have been informed that, since the operations of this Association commenced, no less than one hundred and fifty thousand dollars were collected and distributed through them. The reports published from year to year, as well as the information given frequently by the daily press, are matters of common knowledge.

It was feared a short time ago by some of us that the close of the War would see the close also of the Women's Patriotic Association, it is therefore a particular pleasure to me to ask this Legislature to assent to a Bill which has for its object the incorporation of this organization with a view to continue, along other channels, the good work thus begun.

I need only call the attention of the Honourable gentlemen present to the names attached to the petition, presented by me last week, to show that this new movement augers well for the carrying out of high and noble aims in the interest of the people of this country.

I have much pleasure in moving the second reading.

The Bill was then read a second time and ordered to be committed on to-morrow.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea, the House then adjourned until Friday next at 4.30 o'clock.

FRIDAY, May 14th.

The House met at 4.30 pursuant to adjournment.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the following Bills:

"An Act respecting the Department of Public Works."

Hon. Mr. Winter in the Chair.

Committee passed Bill with an amendment. Bill to be read a third time on Monday.

"An Act respecting the Department of Posts and Telegraphs."

Hon. Mr. Mews in the Chair.

In introductory speech it was stated that the Department of Postmaster-General was to be changed to Ministry of Postal Telegraphs.

Committee passed same with amendments. Bill to be read a third time on Monday.

House went into Committee on the Bill "An Act to Provide for the Standardization of Dried Codfish."

Hon. Mr. Cook in the Chair.

On motion the Committee rose. reported progress and asked leave to sit again.

House went into Committee on the Bill "An Act to Provide for the Better Obtaining of Information Respecting the Codfishery."

Hon. Mr. Steer in the Chair.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—In Section 3 I would suggest that we strike out the words 'Not less than $10.00.' I think the sentiment of this House ought to be against the imposition of minimum penalties. It may be found that in some cases a penalty of less than $10.00 should be imposed, and while it is correct to say "Not less than $100.00" we ought to eliminate the minimum. We have in the section "Imprisonment not exceeding one month." If the principle holds good in one case it ought to hold good in the other. We have been strongly against minimum penalties for some time, and I think it will not deteriorate from the usefulness of the Bill in any particular.

Amendment carried.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—I certainly object to this paragraph altogether. Why should we be expected to report to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who is engaged in the same business as ourselves? To give details of what exporters hold is wrong, if such information can be enjoyed by men in the export trade. It is unreasonable to suppose that the Minister or his Advisory Board will not take advantage of such information. Such legislation is un-British in my opinion, to make use of the private information of anyone. If I think money is to be made by a certain quality of fish, I back my opinion. Why should I hand over my opinions to the scrutiny of people engaged in the same business as myself, who will know what my stock of fish is, but I will not know what theirs is.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—While I sympathise to a certain extent with my hon. friend in the objections he raises to this section, nevertheless if we exclude it from the Act, the purpose and object of the Act would be defeated. One of the principal objects of the Bill I take it, is that it is absolutely necessary that the quantity and quality of fish should be known. Otherwise, how is the trade to be regulated? For instance, Brazil wants a certain quantity of fish suitable for that market; Portugal the same, and the other markets require certain quantities and each a different quality of fish. Except information of that character be given how can the export of fish to the different markets be regulated? It is necessary to find out if we have the quantity required on hand. Of course I recognize the position of the hon. gentleman that it is not altogether proper that a person holding the office of Minister of Marine and Fisheries should be engaged in the export of fish, but it is one of those conditions in this Colony that in almost every Department we have some gentleman filling office who may be engaged in the same trade or business as people who may have to go to him in his official capacity; but I know of no cases of suffering in the past, and do not think there will be any in the future. But I think it is necessary that this information be supplied in order that the export trade may be properly regulated.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—If you are going to do away with individual effort and enterprise, and destroy the adventure and courage and opinions of those who buy and export, this in my opinion will be the first step towards that. Speaking as an exporter it will be utterly impossible for me to fill my stores with fish on speculation, as I frequently have if I have to give information to a man in similar business, I can give a case in point: A few weeks ago I loaded a vessel for Brazil. There was an arbitrary price of 102/- and I had an open market for it. I applied for permission to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who does not export to Brazil, and he gave me permission and stated the language in which the application was to be couched, but when it was put to the Advisory Board next day I was denied it, and that cost me $30,000. The embargo placed upon my cargo by the Department of Marine and Fisheries. The Minister being in favor of giving me permission, but members of the Advisory Board were in the same business and objected, and I was denied that facility. The same would happen under this section; they will take advantage of knowledge I may possess, and I will be seriously handicapped but if I know now beforehand what is going to take place, I must drop out, and I am preparing myself to do so. If I am going to be governed by people of little experience as to the mode and method I have to adopt in doing business, then I will have to drop out, and instead of having keen competition as beforehand, you will have people looking askance and prices will fall. We must not lose sight of the fact that our competitors are doubly and trebly outfitting for the fisheries. Great Britain has distributed 120 steam trawlers to her people and invading our ground, and if we have to compete with that and with Norway we are destroying the trade of the Colony. And not only the trade of the Colony, but every man who derives his livelihood from the proceeds of the fisheries. I say this is a most pernicious clause. It may be framed with the idea of benefitting the fisheries, but in my opinion it will cripple the enterprise and industry of the people who are carrying on business, and instead of sustainment of prices you will have lowering of prices. I say that clause ought not to pass, and if I find any sentiment in favor of the argument I put forward I will write out an amendment.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I would like to point out to the hon. gentleman in charge with regard to that section that while provision is made in sections one and two for reports from those who go to Labrador, Banks, Straits, or French Shore, as it is called, there is no provision that that information should be given out; but there is provision that stocks of fish held by licensed exporters should be published twice a month. Now is that by accident or design? If by design why is it that sum total of the fish from the Northern sections should not be given out as well as information of the licensed exporters? It seems to me that would be the best policy, to give the full catch on a given day, as the Noruwegians do. I presume it is an oversight. Apparently no fish is to be reported except fish in the hands of licensed exporters, and fish in the hands of the fishermen themselves, which at certain periods of the industry will be by far the greater proportion, is not to be publicly reported. Possibly it is intended to report the whole of it, and in that case the Bill will have to be amended.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Now, Messrs. Monroe and Duder are recognized agents of firms in Brazil, and if they find the quantity of fish is large, they will simply sit down and wait for prices to fall. If they want only 150,000 quintals and there are 500,000 in the market, they will pass such information on to their principals, and the consequence will be the demand becomes small. When a merchant suffers, everybody suffers. The merchants will be sufferers by the fact that Brazil buyers will not come forward and purchase. Those in the know, however, will be able to market their fish, and those not in the know and not made acquainted with the details given in, will suffer. That does not inspire confidence; to know that a certain two or three will have prior information, and will be in a position to compete successfully with them. It is un-British. I could quite understand it if the Minister was not in the fish business, but he is an exporter, and the man who succeeds him may be also. If I was a member of the House of Assembly and got the appointment of Minister of Marine and Fisheries, I wonder what my opponents would say if I cleared out all my stores and held no fish. I say the effect of such a clause as this will be to destroy confidence and diminish competition and to lower prices, and if hon. gentlemen can complacently look on the fact that the fisherman is going to catch fish with flour at $19, molasses at $2.00, salt $4.00 and other things in proportion, and only get half the value as indicated by the Minister and find themselves in debt at the end of the season, I do not think the country at the end of the year will be in a prosperous condition.

Last year in September Labrador fish came in and people looked at it in askance, and but for the firm of Lazo & Co., who stepped in and bought 10,000 quintals and gave the rest of the trade courage, it might have had a slump. If in the fall people have no confidence and are afraid to put fish in their stores, and the price is regulated by people of little experience or none and those who are assisting the Minister are in a position to makes sales from better knowledge of conditions than the rest of the trade possesses, then I think there is only one end to the fish business of this Colony. Hon. gentlemen are all interested in the general prosperity of the Colony and it is their duty to oppose this.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—Before Section five passes, it would appear to me that this paragraph cannot have received mature consideration in the Lower Hause, and I would like the hon. gentleman in charge of the Bill to give us any information he can; but it does appear extraordinary that the Minister is to be furnished by every exporter not only with the total quantity of fish he holds in store, but with the qualities also. In other words he must say he has so much fish for Brazil, so much for Spain, so much Italian, etc. But the Minister shall not publish or allow any person whatsoever, except in legal process, to have access to any such report. What then is the value of that information to the Minister if he cannot impart such information to his Advisory Board? He is bound only to report to the President of the Board of Trade what is the sum total of the fish held by all importers. That information may be of some value, but only trifling value. The Minister demands he shall have full knowledge, but is bound not to divulge it. Well, I submit if that be the case and the Minister, being, as he is, a large exporter, can never be free of suspicion that he is making us give information which he is legally bound not to impart to any other exporter. If he could impart it even to his Advisory Board they would be at least in honor bound to treat fairly the information that comes to them; but according to that paragraph the Minister cannot impart to anybody. And what possible benefit can it be to him, or how can be use it? I would like an explanation if the hon. gentleman is in a position to make it.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—I think before the Bill is passed information should be given.

A MEMBER—By whom?

HON. MR. BISHOP—By the gentleman in charge of the Bill.

HON. MR. SHEA:—I shall be glad to afford the Honourable member the information required. I shall raise committee on it.

HON. SIR P.T. McGRATH—I object to the section on the ground that it practically stifles all criticism and comment on the catch of fish. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries is to be furnished with a report of the catch. It is not stated whether he gives out this information or keeps it secret. He has only to furnish that information for the use of Trade generally. It is not public property. How are we to get a definition of Trade generally? It may mean ten or a dozen big exporters or it may mean big fish dealers in some of the outports. Information should be given to the public officially. It should be gazetted, just as we get the total catch in Norway so ought the information regarding the total catch in Newfoundland be obtainable by our own people.

HON. MR. GRIEVE—Such information is the property of the Board of Trade and reports re catch of fish that come in, the general public become cognizant of. That is a convenient way of doing it. There is no intention to deny the public reliable information.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—The word 'wilfully' has already been used in Bill. With 'wilfully' excluded a man who publishes approximate statistics is liable to prosecution. I would suggest to honourable gentleman in charge of Bill to insert "wilfully." (Section 3, wilfully report incorrectly). This would prevent discussion.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—I ask Committee to rise and ask leave to sit again so that a conference may bring about a satisfactory clause.

Committee in charge of Bill entitled "An Act to provide for the better obtaining of Information respecting the Cod Fishery" reported it had made some progress and asked leave to sit again.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the following Bill entitled "An Act to Incorporate the Women's Patriotic Trust Fund and for other purposes."

(Hon. Mr. Bell in the Chair.)

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I wish to call attention to honourable gentlemen in charge of Bill that this Trust provides that President shall be wife of Governor and Vice-Presidents—wife of Premier and wife of Chief Justice. There is no provision made for contingencies. These people may be non-existent. I suggest that Hon. gentleman in charge of Bill consult with these ladies and ask that provision be made for the filling of those positions in case of such.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Ladies from the committee would be chosen.

Committee reported that Bill passed without amendment. Bill to be read a third time on Monday.

Second reading of Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 176 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled "Of the Encouragement of Shipbuilding," was deferred till Monday.

House adjourned till 4 p.m. Monday.

MONDAY, May 17th, 1920.

The House met at 4.00 p.m. pursuant to adjournment.

On motion the Department of Public Works, Department of Posts and Telegraphs and the Women's Patriotic Trust Fund Bills were read a third time, passed, and ordered to be sent to the House of Assembly with a message that the Council had passed the same without amendment.

On motion of the Hon. Mr. Shea the Standardization of Codfish and Codfishery Information Bills were deferred.

Shipbuilding Amendment Act.

Second reading of a Bill "An Act to amend Chapter 176 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled "Of the Encouragement of Shipbuilding'."

HON. MR. SHEA:—I beg to move the second reading of this Bill. The purport of the Bill is that the bounty on vessels shall only be paid on vessels of one hundred and fifty tons or less. This amendment to the Bill for the Encouragement of Shipbuilding passed in 1916 confines the bounty to be paid on vessels to vessels of one hundred and fifty tons or less, and provides for a rebate of duty on material used in the construction of certain vessels. These the the principal items in the Bill. I would ask that the Bill be allowed to go to second reading and that we discuss particulars when we go into Committee.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—Mr. President I desire to say just a word or two at this stage. I have always understood, Sir, that the Act relating to Shipbuilding and payment of bounty was an Act for the Encouragement of Shipbuilding. It seems to me that the Bill that is before the House for consideration is not a Bill for the Encouragement of Shipbuilding; at least that it is only so in part. The Bill, as I understand it, provides that no bounty shall be paid on a vessel that exceeds one hundred and fifty tons. I am unable to understand, Mr. President, why, if I build a vessel of one hundred and fifty tons and the vessel is built in accordance with the schedule laid down and obtains her class of "A" or "B" when surveyed by the proper authorities, I shall receive my bounty on my vessel of one hundred and fifty tons, while my next neighbor, say Mr. Winter here, for instance, who builds a vessel of two hundred or two hundred and fifty tons instead of one hundred and fifty, receives no bounty. I am unable to see why I do the country any more good by building a vessel of one hundred ond fifty tons than Mr. Winter or anybody else would by building a vessel of two hundred and fifty, and I claim that he is entitled to as much consideration from the Government as I am. If it be for any reason not yet stated that bounty on a vessel of more than one hundred and fifty tons should not be paid for the whole tonnage, surely in all fairness Mr. Winter is entitled to the same amount of bounty on one hundred and fifty tons of his ship as I am for the whole tonnage of my ship. It is apparent to everybody that we require vessels exceeding one hundred and fifty tons in the trade of Newfoundland, and why should we force everyone who requires a vessel of two hundred, two hundred and fifty, or three hundred tons for the purposes of Newfoundland trade to go to Nova Scotia or elsewhere and employ the shipyards and labor of that country and bring his ship into the country without rendering any returns to this country. By this Bill the man in this Colony who employs labor in Newfoundland and uses Newfoundland timber to build a ship larger than one hundred and fifty tons is penalized. It is true that he had been offered the trifling return of any duty that he may pay upon any material for such vessel, but I submit, Sir, it is entirely unfair and unreasonable that every man, no matter what size vessel he may desire to build shall not be entitled to receive bounty on at least one hundred and fifty tons of his ship. I am not saying that payment of bounty should be confined to that, because I think that any vessel that is built for purposes of trade and used in the trade should receive bounty. The rate of bounty, however, is another matter, and if the bounty that is being paid is more than the revenue can afford, then reduce the rate of bounty, but do not discriminate against one man, and, above all, do not force the trade of Newfoundland to go to Nova Scotia or elsewhere and employ foreign labor to build ships for our trade.

HON. MR. SHEA:—Mr. President, while my honourable friend says that the bounty was given for the purposes of the encouragement of shipbuilding, which is perfectly true, yet the Government is of the opinion that it has been demonstrated time and again that vessels larger than one hundred and fifty tons built of material obtained in Newfoundland are unsuitable for trade, and so limited the bounty to vessels that were considered generally of a suitable size for trading ships in the Colony. I quite see the force of my honourable friend's argument that a vessel of two hundred and fifty tons should receive a pro rata bounty up to one hundred and fifty tons, but at the same time if these vessels are not suitable for purposes of trade, bounty should not be paid. I believe we have had the experience that large vessels built here have not been suitable, for the reason that the material that is got here is not suitable for large vessels, and the Government wanted to limit their liability for bounty to vessels of that class, and to encourage the building of vessels not larger than one hundred and fifty tons.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—Mr. President, I cannot help saying that the statement made by the Honourable the Leader of the Government cannot be supported by the testimony that we can produce, and I go further and say that it is a libel upon the builders of Newfoundland to say that they cannot product suitable ships larger than one hundred and fifty tons.

HON. MR. SHEA:—I am informed that the material for larger vessels, vessels of two hundred, two hundred and fifty, an dthree hundred tons, is very difficult to obtain here.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—There is at present in the harbor of St. John's a vessel of five hundred tons, built in Newfoundland, the "Sordello," and does anybody say that that vessel is made of material that is unfit or timber that is too small. Surely the surveyors, Lloyds' surveyor and the local surveyor, are not passing for bounty, vessels that are not fit. It is quite true that a number of our Newfoundland vessels have been lost on voyages during recent years, but the same is equally true of vessels built in Nova Scotia, and I could refer to more than one, more than two, more than three, that have been built within the past few years in Newfoundland that are as good as when they were built.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—May I ask the honourable gentleman what proportion of the total cost the bounty approximately represents?

HON. MR. BISHOP:—Ten per cent, but if the bounty is more than the Government feels it can affard to pay, (and that should not be because there are a very small number of vessels built,) it can be reduced. If the position is that we cannot now find timber of a sufficient size for building large vessels, that is up to the inspector who examines the ships to say that they are not fit to receive bounty, but that we still have timber in Newfoundland fit to build vessels of two hundred, two hundred and fifty, and three hundred tons, cannot be gainsaid.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—The point I was going to make was this, that if the bounty paid is ten per cent of the original cost, then it appears that the gentleman who have the vessels built are prepared to spend ninety per cent of their own money in vessels that are unfit for use. I cannot think that possible. The "Sordello" is owned by the Harmsworth people. It would be a reasonable argument that a firm of that character ought to build without bounty, but I think that if we could produce vessels of that type in our own country it would be a good proposition to pay the bounty, because the money for the labor, the materials for the ship, maintenance of the sails and so forth, would be left with our own people.

No doubt the Government has given a great deal of consideration to this measure and with the information before us I would not be disposed to object to the second reading, but I hope when we get into Committee we may get some further information that will give us stronger reasons for passing the Bill than we have at present.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—I am not saying anything against the second reading of the Bill. I support it, but I would like to say that vessels are now being constructed. There was one during the past winter in Notre Dame Bay, and the Government Surveyor advises her owners to apply for Lloyd's Class. That vessel is over 200 tons, and if the Government Surveyor, who is a bona fide man, says we should apply for Lloyd's Class, then is it not absurd to say you cannot find timber here for vessels over 200 tons.

The Bill was read a second time and ordered to be Committed on to-morrow.

Hon. Mr. Shea moves the second reading of the Department of Marine and Fisheries Bill and said: This bill practically means the abolition of the Herring Board that has for some years past been dealing with the Herring Fishery, placing the conduct of that business under the management of the Fishery Board. It has been found that the Herring Fishery Board is not working satisfactorily and it is considered desirable to make the change I have outlined, and put matters on the same basis as it was originally. That is the Whole of the Bill.

The said Bill was there read a second time and ordered to be Committed on to-morrow.

Hon. President read a message from the House of Assembly, asking concurrence in the following Bills passed there, namely:—"An Act to amend Chap. 172 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland, (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Survey of Foreign-Going and Labrador Vessels';" "An Act to amend the Judicature Act," and "An Act to Confirm a Contract between the Government and the St. Lawrence Timber, Pulp and Steamship Company, Ltd."

Said Bills were then read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea the House then adjourned until to-morrow at 4.30 o'clock.

TUESDAY, May 18th, 1920.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea the Bills re Standardization of Codfish, Obtaining of Information Respecting the Codfishery, and Encouragement of Shipbuilding, were withdrawn and referred to a Select Committee to sit and report within three days. Said committee was appointed by Hon. President, Hons. Shea, Bishop, Winter, Sir Patrick McGrath, Grieve, Steer and Browning.

Bil re the Department of Marine & Fisheries passed through Committee Stage without amendment and was ordered to be read a third time on to-morrow.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea the remaining orders were deferred.

HON. MR| POWER:—Before the House adjourns I should like to congratulate you, Mr. President, on the high honour you have attained. I am sure you will perform the duties of the office with honor to all and credit to yourself. I also wish to voice my regrets at the passing of the three hon. gentlemen of this House, who have passed away since last session, Hons. Dr. Skeleton, John Harvey and A. F. Goodridge. I have not had opportunity to do so before, as I have been indisposed and have not been here previously. They were three particularly able men, especially Messrs. Harvey and Goodridge, and a great loss, not only a loss to this House, but a great loss to the country and the general business of the country. And the best thing we can say of them now is God give rest to their souls.

HON. PRESIDENT:—I thank the Hon. gentleman for his kindly reference to myself. There is no doubt this House lost three of its best members in the passing of the Hon. gentlemen referred to, of which we took cognizance on the opening day.

Hon. Mr. Shea tabled report of schools under Salvation Army Boards.

House then adjourned until Thursday next at 4.30 o'clock.

THURSDAY, May 20, 1920.

The House met at 4.30 pursuant to adjournment.

Marine & Fisheries Bill

On motion of the Hon. Mr. Shea the Bill "An Act to amend Charter 11 of the consolidated Statues of Newfoundland (Third Serious) entitled of the Department of Marine and Fisheries" was read a third time, passed and ordered to be sent to the House of Assembly with a message informing them that this House had passed the Bill without amendment.

Survey of Vessels Bill

On motion of the Hon. Mr. Shea the Bill "An Act to amend Chapter 172 of the Consolidated Statues of Newfoundland (Third Cerious) entitled of the Survey of Foreign-going and Labrador Vessels" was read a second time, and ordered to be referred to a committee of the whole House on tomorrow.

Judicature re Amendment Bill

On motion of the Hon Mr. Shea the Bill "An Act to amend the Judicature Act" was read a second time and ordered to be referred to a Committee of the Whole House on tomorrow.

St. Lawrence Timber, Pulp and Steamship Co. Ltd.

Second reading of Bill entitled "An Act to Confirm a Contract between the Government and the St. Lawrence Timber, Pulp and Steamship Company Limited."

HON. MR. BROWNING:—Mr. President, this industry is a matter which I think the House ought to take into very careful consideration. The pulp industry is one which has developed from its initial stages to a most prosperous and aggressive business. The advances that have been made in this matter within the last few years are marvellous. The shortage of paper is a very serious thing, and the prices that are being paid now are much greater than could have been contemplated years ago when franchises were sought and granted and the business was very speculative.

I presume this is not the time to go into any details in this matter, but this Bill, it seems to me, is from its first sections right through objectionable in every phase. I presume that in committee would be the time to go into details, but I would now ask the members to take this into very serious consideration. I would object to Sections 1, 2, 5, 7, 9, 10, 12, and I think that a very great deal in this Bill should be eliminated. I know of a company which started just a few years ago with preferred shares paying a dividend of seven per cent. with a bonus of 50% to the public on common shares. Today these common shares are in the market at five to one. That is, a person holding fifty shares of that stock when the company was started three or four years ago, today holds two hundred and fifty, paying a six per cent. dividend.

When that investment was made, it was about $9,000 and today if under normal circumstances, it is worth $35,000, or almost four times its value. This is an absolute conservative stock paying 6 per cent., and no doubt next year it will be paying ten on its common shares; and looking at that I do not think it reasonable for any person to come in here and ask special privileges for any industry that has such prospects before it. We in this country have been very liberal in granting franchises for people investing their monies, but this is one of the industries we should be able to make good revenue out of in future, out of the few areas of timber we have left, and instead of granting franchises and special privileges, further than the privilege of getting free entry on machinery which we cannot manufacture here. All such should come in duty free, but the other franchises are, to my mind, very objectionable. There is one franchise there, the right of pre-emption, giving this company the right of procuring land from the individual if there is any objection to it, and providing that the company may demand it and arbitrate as to the amount to be paid. That, I think, is wrong, absolutely wrong, in principle; and any private individual, and a company is that after all, should be on the same basis as the individual in possession.

I will not occupy any further time today, but would ask hon. members to look carefully into the Bill and see that we are not giving away more than is justified.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—In explanation I may say, as it comes under my department, that this agreement was entered upon by the late Government. It was nullified by the present Government, one of our first acts. We considered that the interests of the country were not satisfactoriiy safeguarded. The bill as we introduces it is much in detail as that introduced by the late Government. From a party standpoint in the other branch of this Legislature it was nonpartisan. I may say in reply to my Hon. friend that the provisions of this bill conform fairly accurately to the Act of 1919 entitled An Act respecting the exportation of Timber. I may say further that this is a bonafide company. They are a large concern, not speculators or gamblers; and have received nothing in the line of limits of franchises from the Crown. The limits owned by them have been purchased from Salter & Son & McKie, who have been operating a mill in Main Arm of Bonne Bay for the last 20 years. It was not a grant from the Crown. Salter Bros. & McKie have the land under lears of 99 years from the Crown. The franchises granted them will not be explained now, but taken up section by section in committee. They are operating a large saw mill and propose to spend a million dollars, and put out 10,000 tons of pulp per year. It is a concern of some pretensions and some dimensions. I think the Grand Falls output is 30,000 tons, so you will see that it is quite a large proposition. I want to impress on Hon. gentlemen that it is not a speculative proposition. They are building houses and a large pier, and it is such a concern as this country needs. They are opening up a wilderness there and will employ a large number of people. When in Committee we will compare this with the privileges given by the late Government and perhaps then my Hon. friend will have a different opinion.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH—As the Hon. gentleman who took exception to the second reading suggested there were various clauses objectionable, might I ask him for some little further information as to why we should study it carefully and as to the nature of his objections. Personally I know nothing of the Bill and never saw it until a few moments ago. I listened with interest to the comments of my Hon. friend on my right and in reference to the particular instance he cited as regards pre-emption, I do not think his arguments very sound. If any company, which in good faith plants an enterprise of the dimensions suggested by the Hon. Minister of Agriculture & Mines is not to have the right of pre-emption, I do not know how it would be possible for any company to do business under any circumstances. If any man having a little bit of a house on it could hold up a company prepared to spend a million dollars in order to extort a fabulous sum then it would be impossible to do business under any circumstances. And I submit that argument ought not to have much weight. At the same time there may be objectionable features in the bill and it would help us if the Hon. gentleman would suggest to the House the particular objections he has to the measure.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—I do not wish to detain the House just now, but ask Hon. gentlémen to look into the Bill because I think it very objectionable. There is this, that while this pulp and paper industry in its initial stages was not a profitable venture, it has got out of the speculative region altogether and become the most profitable in the world today. As regards the employment o labor, in this country at present, we are not seeking labor, but laborers. Any company coming in now ought to start up as any other firm or person would start up on their own basis and not ask for any special favors or franchises. It is a beginner's scheme to make good money, and I contend that it is not necessary to give them concessions just because some other company got it in the past. That day has gone, and we ought to-day to see what the country is going to get out of this. That is the point I want to make. If this was a speculative business it would be the natural thing, but all the companies in Canada of this class have been doubling and doubling their stock over and over again, there is no pulp industry in Canada but is paying and paying handsomely. I want to remove this industry from the class of one which requires encouragement and have them come in and open up on such a basis as any other industry.

The Bill was read a second time and ordered to be committed on tomorrow.

Hon. Mr. Shea tabled the Report of the Registrar of Births, Marriages and Deaths, and also information asked for by Hon. Mr. Browning.

House then adjourned until Tuesday next at 4.30 o'clock.

TUESDAY, May 26th, 1920.

The House met at 4.30 pursuant to adjournment.

Survey of Vessels Bill

On motion of the Hon. Mr. Shea the House went into Committee on the Bill "An Act to amend Chapter 172 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Survey of Foreign-Going and Labrador Vessels'."

Hon. Mr. Murphy in the Chair.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Is it proposed under this Act to have the vessel surveyed after every voyage. Supposing, for instance, I send a vessel up to Sydney on the first of June and the vessel gets back on the 10th of June, shall she be surveyed and resurveyed The wording should be "Annual Survey" or something of that sort. It is absurd to say that the owner of any vessel shall upon every trip have the vessel surveyed. It would take a large amount of time in addition to the expense. We ought to modify that section in some measure.

HON. MR. SHEA:—Supposing a vessel left here and went to Green Bay and was damaged, something would have to be done in that case.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—I think a suggestion was made that a survey should not be compulsory more than once a year except in case of damage.

OHN. MR. GRIEVE:—If that is so, that is quite satisfactory.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Might I also ask whether there should not be an alternative in the penalty clause. There is only a fine stated and no provision for the alternative of imprisonment. Supposing a man will not pay the fine, what are you going to do about it? It is not that I want a person sent to gaol, but I think the alternative should be inserted in the Bill.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—I think there is a general proviso in the Consolidated Statutes to the effect that if a fine is not paid a man may be sent to prison.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Of course, if there is, that does away with the necessity for it in each individual Bill, but in three Bills that have come before this House there has been the alternative of imprisonment; a man has to pay $1,000 or go to gaol for three months, $100.00 or go to gaol for one month. If there is a general clause in the Consolidated Statutes we ought to cut it out of all the Bills or insert the alternative in this Bill.

(Amendment taken note of.)

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Mr. Chairman, would you also kindly take note of my objection to repeated surveys.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—I think, Mr. Chairman, that the object of that Section is to make it obligatory upon the owner of a vessel to see that the vessel is kept in a seaworthy condition. Now if an annual survey be held there is no reason why the owner of a vessel should not get a certificate of seaworthiness for every trip, as an ocean-liner or steamer gets. It is only a matter of form, and the object of the Section is to endeavour to cure—if I may use that word—a condition of affairs which arose during the past few years where vessels have proceeded to sea and have been lost, and valuable property lost, and lives lost, while if there had been a proper inspection and examination of the vessels such would not have occurred.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Some of those which have been lost have been perfectly new vessels. Then again, steamers are only surveyed once a year.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—If a vessel be in a seaworthy condition it is only a matter of form for that vessel to get a certificate for every voyage. If such a rule had been put into effect during the past few years, much valuable property would not have been destroyed, because the vessels would not have been allowed to proceed to sea.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Take the case of an Allan steamer lost some time ago. The last thing that was done was a survey of the vessel, and she was never heard of again. It is not fair to assume that all the vessels that leave here and are lost are unseaworthy.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—I do not mean my statement to apply to all, but many vessels have been lost which in all probability would not have been lost if they had been subjected to survey before they left port, as they have left port without a certificate of seaworthiness having been obtained, and it is only reasonable to assume that in some cases vessels have been lost which would not have gone down if the owner had been compelled to take out a certificate of seaworthiness. The object of this rule is to protect life and property.

HON. MR. SHEA:—I do not think there is any great hardship in this clause. To get a certificate for every voyage is only a matter of form; it does not impose any hardship. If there be any error, it is certainly erring on the right side.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—But there is a hardship. Take, for instance, the case of a steamer which comes in here and wants to leave immediately. Perhaps the surveyor will not work after six. That means that the vessel has to wait until the next day to be surveyed. We are anxious to protect life as much as possible, but all the surveying in the world will not prevent marine disaster, and I think it would be a great hardship to subject ships to survey more than once a year unless the surveyor in discharge of his duty find it necessary to call upon the owner to see that the ship be put in proper condition.

HON. MR. SHEA:—If we leave it an open question it will not be done at all.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—Mr. Chairman, I would point out to the honorable member that if an annual certificate only is required, the vessel may at any time prior to the expiration of that annual certificate have become in a condition that is unseaworthy, and that would be no way of finding that out. If all vessels are made subject to a survey, in the case of any vessel that is unseaworthy, the survey is only a matter of form. At the present time foreign-going vessels have absolutely no protection whatever. All that is called for is an annual survey. The surveyor may make recommendations, but there is nothing of a binding character which is so necessary to protect life and property.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—The unseaworthiness of a vessel would very soon be determined by the man who is going to ship a cargo in her. I have in my recollection now a case within the last twelve months where a comparatively new vessel came down here, the "Nado," and the charterer refused to load her until she had gone on dock and been submitted to considerable repair, and that vessel was put on dock and subsequently loaded. My point is that a weekly or fortnightly survey of ships engaged in short voyages is absurd. As a schooner-owner I have my vessels surveyed, put them on dock once or twice a year, and take precautions to keep my property in repair and conserve the lives of men. This is a most vexatious clause in this Bill to compel me after every voyage to have my vessel surveyed. It would be apparent if the vessel is not seaworthy. If she has come in making water, the fact will be public property, and the vessel will be docked. But this Bill as it stands at present is vexatious and will not accomplish the object that is intended.

I daresay a weekly survey would be better than once a year, but I think that once a year would be quite sufficient to determine the condition of a vessel and any owner knowing his vessel his vessel was not in refrain is not going to risk his vessel and the lives of his men.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—It is to be remembered also that not half the vessels coming here for cargoes come in to St. John's, and what is going to happen in Northern or Western outports, and vessels coming from Iceland and Denmark. In most cases, of course, these vessels are classed vessels and in good enough condition to take their cargoes, but I do not see how you are going to provide to have a surveyor at every port and have vessels cleaned out as they must be for a survey, and in some cases it would prove a hardship. I think also along the lines of Hon. Mr. Grieve it seems certainly unnecessary to compel a vessel to have a survey every time she goes to, say, Sydney, to take coals. If the period of 12 months is too long, it might at least be confined to narrower limits than that and say not often than every three months if she sustains damage. But I think it will create hardship and evasion.

Committee rose and reported progress and asked leave to sit again.

House went into Committee on the Judicature Act Bill, Hon. Mr. MacNamara in the chair.

HON. MR. SHEA:—As Hon. members will see, this Bill is one regulating the fees of lawyers.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—This Bill is the outcome of the high cost of living. In a matter of this kind we have to protect the public. The fees charged by a lawyer which amounted to ten dollars in the past will be increased to fifty or one hundred dollars in the future. I do not object to the fees. In many cases they are well earned.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—That depends on whether one wins or not.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Mr. Chairman if the legal fees are to be increased five hundred or six hundred per cent I fail to see the reason why special jurors should not receive the increase also. The whole principle of the Bill is wrong unless made universal.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I took occasion to enquire from a legal gentleman the explanation of terms Lower and Higher Scale. The two scales, lower and higher, do not mean lower scale and higher scale of fees as compared with the past. They refer to particular classes of cases. The lower scale applies to the majority of cases which comes before court; the higher to those cases of exceptional difficulty. In the case of two vessels running into one another, the lower scale would apply. In the Cable Co's. case the higher.

If fees of legal gentlemen are increased, jurors and petty-jurors should be given something commensurate with present cost of living.

An ordinary witness, who may have to spend a whole day in court is allowed today two dollars; professional men—legal and medical—are allowed four dollars. This is too small. Architects and surveyors are given two dollars and fifty. I think we should advance those fees.

HON. MR. SHEA:—I am informed these fees are increased and that they have been increased.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—I was about to ask what or who determines the classification advocated in high or low—if the judge, it ought to be so stated. I agree with the other speakers that fees allowed to jurors are too small.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—In order to become better informed concerning this Bill, I beg to move that it be deferred till tomorrow.

The Committee in charge of the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Judicature" rose and reported it had made some progress and asked leave to sit again.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea the House went into Committee of the Whole on Bill entitled "An Act to Confirm a Contract Between the Government and the St. Lawrence Timber, Pulp and Steamship Company, Limited."

Hon. Mr. Mews in the Chair.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—This company is operating in this country. Why then did they go to Great Britain for incorporation?

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—This is a bona fide Company, previously incorporated in the United Kingdom, who, having a large capital, purchased large properties held on 99 years lease by the Reid Nfld. Co. and further properties held by Salters' Sons, Sydney. These leases have all been renewed for 99 years, and every thing in the Bill is in the very best interests of the country, and in fullest accord with the provisions of the 1918 Crown Lands Act.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—It is a common thing for a company to be incorporated outside the country. A company operating in Newfoundland may be incorporated in Canada or England.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—Mr. Chairman, I would like to call the attention of the House to the information I have got with regard to pitprops. I understand that the Anglo Newfoundland Development Company have bought up all the pitprops that have been cut here and are grinding them into pulp, why should this company be allowed to export what can be manufactured in the country. I know, as a matter of fact, that the A. N. D. Company have purchased pitprops from people who would otherwise export them, and I understand they are grinding them into pulp. The fact of the matter is that the value of pulp nowadays is so very different from the value a few years ago. I understand that the price of pulp a few years ago was $30.00. Now it is $80.00 and $90.00. In fact, I understand that when pulp mills were started here, $15.00 was considered a very fair price for pulp, but a few years ago it went to $30.00, and now it has gone up three times as much. Therefore, I think that before these people are given the right to export pitprops, this matter should be looked into. An Act was passed last year whereby the Government would have the power to give licenses to export pitprops. Previous to that pitprops were not allowed to be exported.

HON. MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE & MINES:—That was only a War Measure.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—Now the war is over. It was considered before that pitprops were not profitable to export. Now that the war is over, and particularly when pitprops can be converted into an article of commerce, why should their exportation be permitted now. If the Harmsworth people are grinding two and a half inch wood, why should these people be allowed to export six inch wood?

HON. MR. BISHOP:—They have not yet a pulp mill to grind it in. This Bill only gives them permission to export for one year while they are erecting their mill.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—The Bill gives them two years. The pitprops that the Harmsworth people are buying have been on the bank for four years and more. They are not like a perishable article. Therefore, I think, Mr. Chairman, that this privilege ought to be very carefully gone into, and we ought to be assured that these could not be utilized here, and if they can be utilized here, they ought not to be allowed to go out of the country.

HON. MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE & MINES:—I might say, Mr. Chairman, in reply to my honourable friend, that I think the St. Lawrence people would be prepared to utilize everything they could. The law provides that a person who owns a mill can export pitprops. That was the Act of 1919. It has been estimated by pulp people that twenty per cent. of every tree used for pulp is left on the ground as slash. I have never heard before until to-day that two and a half inch trees could be used for pulp. However, we will investigate the matter. I know the A. N. D. Co. would not take advantage of the clause in their agreement to export pitprops only the cost of the transportation of the slash to the sea would cost too much, and it has been a problem with them what to do with their slash. I may say that the St. Lawrence people are only getting in this contract what was allowed them in the Act of last year. There is a slight increase in the size, and the idea is to even up the size of pitprops because if they are of uniform size they will market better. We cannot change the Crown Lands' Act all in a minute. Perhaps we are making a mistake in permitting the exportation of pitprops. Perhaps the Crown Lands' Act is a mistake from end to end. I do not believe that any man in Newfoundland knows what timber lands and water powers Newfoundland has. There has been no survey of timber lands and water powers, and the quicker we can afford to do that the better. The Provinces of New Brunswick and Quebec are making the most of their timber lands and water powers, and I think this Dominion has a valuable asset in such resources. Another question in my mind is the question of reforestation. The pulp and paper question has become a burning one with everybody in the newspaper business in the world. Paper is getting scarcer all the time, and I do not think that we have the area of timber lands that the people of Newfoundland imagine we have. They look at a map of Newfoundland with so much colored red here and there, and the red is timber land. It is the rashest and crudest kind of guess. We may have a survey by airship and aeroplanes, but it would give no particulars. It would tell marsh land from timber land, bog land from lake, but it would not tell us what the actual kind of timber was. It might be pulp wood, timber land, or scrap wood. We have to go at it in the old-fashioned way by a general survey. I think we are doing right in this agreement, although my honourable friend may not agree with me. We are merely confirming with some slight alterations and agreement which the late Government had with this Company. The Company is converting what has been a wilderness into a manufacturing centre. I think they intend to adopt a reforestation scheme. Messrs. McKie & Company operated a mill there for many years, but they were in forced idleness all winter long. Now we have a bona fide concern which will give employment all winter long. It is a prosperous concern already. It is a concern which means business. It is taking nothing from the country. It is what we want, a bona fide concern which will manufacture our timber, I hope coupled up with a reforestation scheme, and I trust that the day of the timber gambler will soon be a thing of the past.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—So far as I have been able to ascertain at present, I cannot help regarding this Bill as a good Bill, and I think that the interests of the country are thoroughly safeguarded by its provisions. There is one thing that strikes me as peculiar, and I am inclined to think there must be something wrong. The Bill applies only to an area of 425 acres.

HON. MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE & MINES:—I think that must be a misprint. They have an area of 230 miles.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—Well then, they are square miles instead of acres. That would make quite a difference. Apart from that I think this is a good Bill, and I think we should have no hesitation in passing it.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—May I throw some light on the remarks of my honorable friend, Mr. Browning. He says the Harmsworth people are buying pit props. This is in a large measure due to the fact that the Harmsworth people are short of pulp wood as a result of the reduced operations during war time. They contemplate an extension of their plant, and they find themselves obliged to gather in all the wood they possibly can along the coast at points from which this material can be brought to Botwood and come up to Grand Falls. To facilitate them in getting this material to the mills they purchased a steam trawler which is to be used for drawing this out of the inlets of Notre Dame Bay and bringing it in where it can be handled. The Grand Falls people are planning an extension now which will enable them to increase by fifty per cent. That is to say, if their mills were now making a hundred tons, within a couple of years they hope to be able to make three hundred. What has been said about the shortage of pulp and paper is quite correct.

While I was in New York I had the pleasure of attending the sessions of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, which had its annual convention in the Waldorf Astoria Hotel the third week in April, and the whole cry was, How are we going to get paper? Some of those who had not been fortunate enough to secure contracts would possibly have to pay twenty cents per pound. In many cases they were paying thirteen and fourteen cents. There is a boom in paper and pulp, and in my opinion this country is going to benefit greatly by it; but, of course, it remains to be seen how long the boom is going to last. We have had booms before and they have not lasted very long.

It is because of this that it is desirable that we should get everybody we possibly can to build mills. I know nothing of this Bill, but on principle I favor the establishment of local industries, and I think the concessions these get are in the main not any mistake. When the Harmsworth people came here ten years ago most honorable gentlemen will remember the country was shaken up from end to end, protesting against the character of the concessions they were getting. Well, we all know now that the Harmsworth industry has been one of the best things that has ever happened this country. Thousands of people have secured employment at good wages. If we can duplicate that, even in a small way, at Bonne Bay, I think it is very desirable that we should do so, provided we are not making any extravagant concessions.

I am against the policy of permitting the exportation of pit props that it is at all possible to manufacture in this country, and now with the prospect of pulp and paper companies being able to manufacture this material I should think the chances are that there would be very little of it to export. By this Bill the company is to spend $1,000,000, and I do not think it is unreasonable for them to get these concessions, because if they do it helps them out in their finances, and on the other hand, it is a debatable question whether they will be able to get steamers to bring the wood from the country. The honorable gentlemen who were here will remember the discussion four or five years ago on the subject of permitting pit props to go out of the country as a war measure. Well, everybody started to cut pitp rops, but I think if the Colony had all the money that was lost in the pit prop enterprise it would go a good way to wiping out a deficit at some future time, which we all hope is a long way off. But with regard to the question of assisting a company like this which is coming in in good faith, putting its money into a plant, I think we ought to hesitate to put any obstruction in its way.

I would like to call the attention of the Honorable Minister of Agriculture and Mines to the fact that he said the company had purchased a certain portion of land from Messrs. McKie & Company, and a certain portion from the Reids, and that Messrs. McKie & Company had been operating twenty or twenty-five years, while from the introductory clauses of this Bill it seems that the company must have other land, because it seems to have been granted under leases of May, 1917, and July, 1918.

HON. MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE & MINES:—They are renewals for a further period of ninety-nine years.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Thank you.

HON. MR. McNAMARA:—Section 2 states that this company shall be in operation within three years. Sections 5, 6 and 7 have allowed exemption from taxation for five years. Why should they be exempted from taxation for five years when they must have their plant ready and in operation within three years?

HON. MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE & MINES:—I might explain that the Crown Lands' Act provides that they shall commence building within two years and proceed to operate their plant within five years, but we made it less in this case; they have to commence building within twelve months, and be in operation within three years. The exemption for five years is an exemption under the Revenue Act and applies to all concerns.

HON. MR. McNAMARA:—There is another thing. There is no clause in this Act covering the wages of working men. I do not think it is unusual for a paragraph of that sort to appear in an Act, as I think the Railroad Act made provision for the wages of working men. The reason I refer to this matter is that a man working at Sydney Mines I understand gets thirty cents an hour; the men working at the same class of work here in St. John's are getting twenty-five cents an hour. In other words, a Newfoundlander in Newfoundland is getting five cents an hour less than a Newfoundlander in Sydney is paid. I think this is unfair, and I think there should be some clause to protect working men. At Grand Falls I understand the men get thirty-five cents an hour, and I think it is of vital importance to laboring men that will be engaged in this industry that some clause should be put there to that effect.

HON. MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE & MINES:—It is not usual for contracts of this class to have a minimum wage clause. There is no such clause for the A. N. D. Co., the Dominion Iron & Steel Company or the Nova Scotia Steel & Coal Company.

HON. MR. McNAMARA:—So much the worse for the poor man. Such a clause appears in the Railroad Act. There is a provision for payment of $1.25 a day and I think there should be some protection for these men who cannot protect themselves.

HON. MR. MURPHY:—Every man that is looking for labor to-day knows that he will have to pay for it. Here they are not backward, and the people in the Bonne Bay section are just as intelligent as in any other part of the country, and as soon as this company wants men you will find that there is no need for us to look after their interests. They will get all the Harmsworth people are paying and their neighbours are getting. I think this Bill on the whole is a very reasonable one. When we started a few years ago to send our pulpwood over we could not get enough for it after paying the freight, and everybody who touched that proposition, including myself, lost thousands of dollars. We are getting twice as much as we are giving, and you need not be alarmed as long as this company is compelled to carry out the contract and spend $250,000 this year, and $250,000 the next and so on to erect a pulp mill. I do not think we need be alarmed as to what they are going to do with any timber that they cannot make pulp of, and they will have to have a very much larger piece of land than they have to be able to export much timber. We have been doing more butchering than timbering during the last thirty or forty years. We have left more in the woods than we have taken out. This is a very broad statement, and I know what I am talking about. To get four or five trees you must cut ten, fifteen or twenty. There is nothing of any service to go to any saw mill that is smaller than six inches. It was only when the wood got scarce I began to cut that size. All that were cut down and were not of that size were left. Take it altogether, there was more left in the woods than was brought out, and it was left there to turn into blasted boughs, ready for a fire. It takes two cords of timber to make one thousand feet. If you take two cords of timber, saw it square by hand as has been done, and take the bark off by hand, it will cost you more to do that than to put it through the saw mill or grind it up. So that if you do send it out you pay more money to get it out than to put it through the mill. Whichever way we look at it, it is alright. To-day somebody is afraid this company will make too much money, and that is the difficulty with us. When the Anglo Newfoundland Development Company came we had a public meeting protesting against the granting to them of the concessions. We nearly lost the A. N. D. Company. They were negotiating in Canada and the States, and it was only by luck that they came here at last. It is the same way in this case. Let us get them first to put their money in it, give them every encouragement, and we need not bother our heads about them after that; the men will get the proper wages that should be paid them. And the big pot of money is going to be left in this country before they can get any pulp or paper or any thing else. There is no danger of our losing, but for goodness sake get them here, that is the main thing. Another matter the hon. gentleman spoke of and I am glad he mentioned it. We have been sending surveyors around the country looking for something to do, whereas we have beautiful water powers, and know nothing of their extent, how much power they can develop, or anything whatever about it. But go to the Canadian Crown Lands' Department and you can find out all about it, what the drainage area is, what water is there, what power it can develop and so on. Here we know nothing whatever, as they have never been surveyed. It is the same with our timber lands. I hope the Minister will take this matter up so that anybody coming in here would have something official to go on. So far as this Bill is concerned let us for gracious sake get them in and get their money, and we shall take care of them afterwards.

The Committee reported the Bill without amendment, and it was ordered to be read a third time on to-morrow.

Hon. Mr. Bishop tabled report of Select Committee on Standardization of Codfish Bill, Codfish Information Bill and Encouragement of Shipbuilding Bill, and moved that they be considered in Committee on to-morrow.

The House then adjourned until to-morrow at four o'clock.

WEDNESDAY, May 26, 1920.

House met pursuant to adjournment.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea the St. Lawrence Timber Pulp and Stemship Co. Confirmation Bill was read a third time and passed and ordered sent to the Assembly with a message that this House had passed the same without amendment.

House went into Committee on the Judicature Act Bill.

HON. MR. SHEA:—In reference to remarks of some hon. gentlemen yesterday regarding this Bill, I have obtained some further information and find the fees are compiled by the Law Society with the sanction and approval of the Court authorities. The lower scale of fees was in force for some years and applies to cases involving $25, and the higher fees apply to cases of a higher grade, subject to the taxation of the taxing master. It is also to be borne in mind that the fees paid witnesses and jurors are not paid as compensation for services rendered, or the Court is in a position to demand such services, but is given as somewhat of a recompense for loss of time. All fees for bailiffs, etc., have been increased in recent years, as it was found these men would no longer act under the old rates. The fee formerly paid witnesses was 75c. but is now, under this Bill, $1.50. The fees appear to have been satisfactory, whether to the public remains to be seen, but have been so to the Court authorities and have their imprimatur and approval and we now ask for the imprimatur and approval of this Council.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—I have no objection to the Bill, but I think the business man is just as valuable as a professional man and should get $4.00 if the latter is worth that. Many would prefer to give $4.00 or even $10.00 to stay away, but at least a business man's time is worth every bit as much as the professional man.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—As I raised some objection yesterday, I think it only fair to say that I made some inquiries today and find that all fees of officials were raised, and I think it is well therefore the Bill should go through as it stands. It appears, however, the scale of fees should have been drafted by a Committee of the Supreme Court, consisting of the Judges and certain of the barristers. These gentlemen thought, however, they would escape some responsibility by throwing it on the Legislature. I think they should have shouldered the responsibility, but as they have put it to the House I do not know if we ought to reject it at this stage.

The Committee reported the Bill without amendment, and it was ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

House went into Committee on the Standardization of Codfish Bill, Hon. Mr. Anderson in the chair.

The Committee rose and reported the Bill with some amendment, and it was ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—Mr. President, I hold in my hand the petition of which I gave notice yesterday and which I have been asked to present to this House.

I feel, sir, that no greater honour has ever been accorded to me than the privilege of presenting to the House the prayer of the petitioners.

The original petition which has been presented to the other Branch of the Legislature contains the signatures of 1700 women of St. John's of legal age. The only regret I feel, sir, in connection with this petition is that it should have appeared necessary to the women of St. John's to appeal on their own behalf to the Legislature to grant them the Franchise, and while I willingly present the petition, and urge as I do in the strongest possible manner, the rights of the petitioners, I feel, and feel strongly, it should not be necessary for our noble women to come to the Legislature as suppliants. Their right to be placed upon an equality with men must be recognised by all and should be immediately accorded, for even slow-moving England, after many years of opposition, has, as we all know, capitulated and granted the vote to the women of Great Britain. If there ever were doubts in the minds of the sterner sex in this country respecting the rights of women in relation to the regulation and government of civic or political matters surely that day has passed, and it cannot be that either appeal or argument is necessary—especially in this chamber—to assure the petitioners that their prayer will be granted, and granted in the fullest measure in the near future.

I feel sure that no member of this House will be found to question the right of women to the fullest political privileges. A few years ago, perhaps, none of us knew or understood the aspirations of women, or if we did, few of us were willing to acknowledge before what we are compelled to acknowledge to-day. No one who has seen, as I have had the privilege of seeing, the surprising magnitude of the work accomplished by women during the war and how great was the share they so willingly assumed in the Empire's titanic struggle, could fail to acknowledge the debt of the Empire to its women.

For many years past I have felt that the privilege of the vote should have been granted to women as to men, tho I had no sympathy or patience with the militant, unsufferable suffragette, but the attitude and the action of the suffragettes, Sir, and particularly of Mrs. Pankhurst during the war, won my admiration. Many of them, and notably Mrs. Pankhurst, whom I have had the pleasure of hearing upon public platforms during the years of conflict, were foremost in activity in the efforts to win the war. The way these women laid aside their pet hobby during the war and unceasingly applied their energy and marked ability to war work propaganda was an inspiration to thousands of men hitherto unimpressed and shamed many slackers into activity. When the war was won, the nation lost no time in acknowledging with gratitude that the part taken up by women and so effectively accomplished disarmed all further criticism, and "votes for women," so long sought for, and fought for—was won not by their making war, but through their acknowledged share in winning for Great Britain and her Allies the great world war.

Even if everybody will not accept my own belief that it was the women of the British Empire and of France who won the war, all will, I think acknowledge that but for the part performed by our women we should not have been winners, and would be fighting still, if indeed we could have withstood for so long the forces of our Enemy. But we have been saved, thanks to our women, as I think and as many others think, from the ignominy of defeat.

I remember during the tour of Great Britain and France in 1916 by the Overseas Members of Parliament when inspecting the manufacture of Munitions of War in a very large factory in Sheffield where 2500 women were employed doing work of various kinds, some working lathes—hard and strenuous work, others doing delicate or intricate work demanding great skill, and the whole place a beehive of industry. I remember saying to a very bright looking girl engaged in loading shells: "this seems to be a busy day," she smilingly replied, "just as usual." "Do you like the work," I then asked. "Oh, the work is all right, Sir, and besides 'we have to beat the Germans'." Such was the sentiment animating the tens of thousands of young women we saw engaged upon the manufacture of war material of all conceivable kinds throughout England and Scotland.

And it was not alone manifested in the manufacture of munitions or by the thousands engaged in the various departments of the Government, the War Office, or the Admiralty, where directly or indirectly their work must be classed as war work, but in the hundred and one other capacities where we have seen women engaged in work to keep the home fires burning, and the populace fed.

In many cases, during the years of war, the women were doing work which nobody had believed women to be capable of accomplishing. They proved, however, not alone capable of, but they thrived upon hard work. One could not help admiring them in whatever capacity they were employed, whether as porters, window cleaners or the suitably uniformed picturesque farmerettes, but to those women whose time and skill was directed to ministering to the sick and wounded fighters for the Flag and Empire, must the laurel wreath be given, and especially I think to those thousands of splendid girls known as V. A. D's.—the workers of the Voluntary Aid Detachments—who, without fee or reward—save the reward which always comes from the knowledge of duties faithfully performed—labored in the hospitals as assistants to the Sisters and Nurses. I remember asking one last year how long she had been doing V. A. D. work; she said: "My people would not let me take it up at first, but I was determined I would not stay at home doing notning, so I've been at it for about three years." "Did you not tire of it?" I asked, to which she replied: "I have often been very tired, but as you know, Sir, we had a very big job on, and this was my part of the job." Such was the spirit and pluck of V. A. D's.

Who can ever forget that incident which occurred in connection with the torpedoing of a troopship in the early part of the war, in the Eastern Mediterranean? When the ship was struck by the torpedo, the nurses lined up on the deck as they had been instructed, and as soon as the boats were ready for lowering they were ordered to take their places in the boats. Did they become panic-stricken? Did they rush to the boats for safety? No. but their answer to the command was: "No, no, save the men, save the fighting men, first," and twelve of these noble women, refusing the chance of safety, went down with the ship. Their graves are unmarked, but their heroic sacrifice for the honor of their calling, and the maintenance of the best traditions of our race should never be forgotten.

With such examples before us, surely none will be found to deny to the women of this land the exercise of their undoubted right. Our women, Sir, during the past five years have been nobly doing their part for the Empire's cause. We were well represented, tho not in great numbers, it is true, in France and in Great Britain, and it was a delight to meet, as I did, some of our young women on the other side of the Atlantic, and to hear from various sources how competent and how reliable they were found to be by those under whom they worked. I am glad and proud that Newfoundland shared in that great dynamic force—the women war workers of the nation.

And those who could not go across and do active war work, how faithfully they worked at home in the interest of and for the benefit and comfort of our own sailors and soldiers. And they are not yet weary in their well doing, for but a few days ago we assisted here in passing an Act to Incorporate thereby giving permanence to the Women's Patriotic Association. They are now giving their attention to Child Welfare—than which no subject is more important.

Mr. President, I feel that every member of this House will wish to express his desire to support the prayer of this petition and to assure the petitioners that the Bill which will undoubtedly come before us, will receive unanimous support. This, Sir, is not a matter to be treated lightly or with jest, it is no ordinary occasion, but is an epoch-making event. I say this in all seriousness for such I conceive it to be. I am led to this conclusion as I look around this chamber, because of what I know of these members who are in the enjoyment of man's most cherished possession, and of those of us who still cherish memories of the possession we have lost awhile.

Mr. President, I beg to present the petition and move that it be now read.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—I rise with much pleasure to support the prayer of the petition before the House. For many years I have on the floors of this House advocated votes for women, and if I had my way at the last session of this House the vote would have been granted. I am proud to avail of this opportunity, (with so many ladies present), of expressing my views in favour of the petition.

In the Bill introduced in 1917 in the British House of Commons, votes were given to women over thirty years of age. The franchise at that time gave 835,000 women the right to vote, but the Bill passed in 1918 increased the votes of women to six million, five million of the six were married. There is a balance of one million. They found they had made a mistake. A very few of the million wished it to be known that they were over thirty years of age. The present session of the British House of Commons is bringing franchise down to twenty-one years, so that women will be on a par with men.

In supporting the Bill, I may say, I know of no reason why women should not get the vote. In the British House of Commons there is one lady member. Not so many years ago a suffragette was told by a Conservative on a beautiful afternoon she should be more interested in the purchase of a millinery hat than in searching for the franchise. She replied that it would be better for her honourable friend if he interested himself in purchasing a pair of braces to brace himself up, for he should need bracing before she was done with him.

Women can take their place in any department of life. My Honourable friend, Mr. Bishop, spoke of the work done by women during the war. I am sorry I cannot state exactly the amount of work done by the women of this Dominion. This is not a statistical country—we do not keep facts as we should—but I do know their work during the war was enormous. In England one million five hundred and sixteen thousand women worked in men's positions up to the end of April, 1919. Three months later 1,659,000 women were doing the work formerly done by men. Is that not argument in favour of granting them the franchise? Many of the women assisted in building houses; 594,000 were munition workers. They had also been working at other trades and in Government establishments. Two hundred and thirty thousand women occupied Government positions. Thirty-three thousand did work in civil service. Many of them did this work gratuitously—in the interest of their country and Empire and us, and of those who have gone from this country. Women all over the Empire have done their part and have done it well. Why should the Government refuse them what is their due right? So long as I have a voice on the floor of this House I shall speak in favour of woman suffrage. Women sitting in the House will raise the moral tone and be able to accomplish much work.

Mr. President I support this petition before the House and only regret I have not the details of the work done by the women of Newfoundland during the war. In Canada, New Zealand and South Africa the franchise has been granted them, why are we always last? We should have given them the vote long, long ago.

Now Mr. President, one other point —it is this. The army enlistment from July, 1915, to July, 1918, was 4,800,096, the influx of women into industrial work was 2,366,000. This work went on night and day. At the industrial centres—Sheffield, Leeds, etc., which Hon. Mr. Bishop visited; the work continued for the twenty-four hours of the day through the whole war, and to do that the women were prepared to sacrifice much and are even yet making sacrifices. I assure them they have my support.

HON. MR. MEWS:—I wish to draw attention to the fact that the coverings on the guns in the park and in front of the House were removed yesterday. I do not know whether the gentleman usher of the Black Rod had anything to do with this. If it frightened the ladies away yesterday it has not to-day, for they have come in increased forces and made their way into this chamber. I hope soon to see them come to occupy seats in this chamber. In rising to support this petition I say the principle of equal suffrage is a sound one. It seems to me to be obviously sound. I only regret with Hon. Mr. Bishop that it has become necessary for women to ask or plead in a petition for the franchise, to plead as for something which is not due to them, as a concession or a privilege to be granted by mere man, and not as a right which the Government of former days and this Government should have granted without its being asked for in this manner. The objections to equal suffrage now are few and far between. Those who have been prominent in objecting now come down to the statement that they would not like to see women with the vote, simply because it would bring them into the arena of politics, and politics are not too clean. Of course the obvious retort to that is that the sooner the women get the vote and get into politics, the quicker will politics become clean. Another objection is that woman has her sphere in the home. But, Mr. President, it seems to me that that does not mean anything. It does not mean that the home must be a prison, and that because woman is doing greater work in the home than perhaps any man is doing in his office or at his business she cannot exercise the intelligence that she undoubtedly possesses on any great question that is before the country any less than any man who goes down in a store on Water Street or works on a wharf, or works at a business or any other occupation. The carrying on of a home should not be considered any less in importance than any other business. To give the franchise to women does not mean that all the women will immediately forsake their homes and rush into politics; it does not mean that in the case of men who have the suffrage. They go to their business just in the ordinary way. They are not all in politics. In many of the stores here we allow women to go to work, and in almost every department nowadays, and it does not seem quite fair that we should deny them the right to express their opinions on public matters when their fellow-workers of the male sex have that right. I would also point in this House to the fact that women have come into their own in this House in that we have two ladies here.

We have at present two ladies who occupy seats on the floors of this House, and though at the present time they are not allowed to answer back, Mr. President, you know and I know they are taking a note of every word we uter and at some future day it may come back to us. I refrain from speaking extensively on the war work of women. To my mind this war work was something that woman did because she was a woman. She did the war work so well because right from the beginning she has been bearing most of the suffering in the world and caring most for the suffering, and the fact that she did war work was only a natural thing for her to do, and she accepted it. Of course, it led men to think more highly of her. But they should have known before what she would do. Mr. President, it seems to me that the case is not one that can be labored, because there is only one side to this question, I think, and that is, that the women should get the vote, and I think we might well follow the example of South Africa, which only two weeks ago granted women the franchise.

HON. MR. McGRATH:—I should like briefly, Mr. President, to express my sympathy with the prayer of the petition, and to endorse all that has been said in support of it. With the observations of the honourable gentleman who introduced the petition in regard to the war work done by the women of Great Britain and the Overseas Dominions, including our own Colony, I am in entire accord, and I think that if women had no other claim to put forward in support of their demand for a vote, that would be ample to justify any Legislature in giving it to them. But apart from that altogether, I think the women had even before the war justified their claim. Women had been voting in Municipal elections and local government elections in the mother country for some years without any very destructive results, but rather with very substantial benefits. New Zealand and Australia even before that gave votes to women, not alone in Municipal, but in Federal or general elections, and the results there had been to greatly improve the character of the legislation enacted by these Parliaments, legislation in the direction of bettering the condition of the children and women, and social progress generally. The same thing has occurred in the United States and in the different individual States where woman suffrage has prevailed, and while the American record, like the British, is only one woman representative in Parliament, Miss Rankin of Nebraska, a predecessor of Lady Astor, still it does not follow that women will not have in the early years to come representatives in the American Parliament just as we expect to see Lady Astor supported by a small but steadily growing band of women in the Imperial Parliament, and I trust that representatives of the fair sex will be in our Legislature.

Properly speaking, of course, a Woman's Suffrage measure must emanate from the Lower House. That House has to determine the character of the electorate which will elect members to constitute that branch of the Legislature, and our part at the present time can be merely thepious hope that the House may deal with this in the near future, and an undertaking that when the Bill comes to us we will do our part. I think it will be possible to effect a compromise even if there should be some delay in having this measure receive recognition in the early future, and that is, to adopt the suggestion advanced recently and provide that women be granted full franchise in the next Municipal election in St. John's and try the experiment in that way. If a Municipal Bill should come before us at this session or the next session without a section in it providing for woman suffrage for the next Municipal Council which will be elected under that Bill I think it would be within the province of this House—I speak subject to somebody setting me right—but I think it would be within our province to introduce into this House an amendment to enable the experiment to be tried in that way, and I hope the ladies of St. John's and the women of the country generally will be satisfied with making a start in that direction if it is not possible to have the general bill become operative before that. Perhaps indeed it might be desirable that the experiment be tried in that fashion. But whether or not, I would say with those gentleman who preceded me that I thoroughly believe in the principle that women should have a vote as well as men. It is only one step more in social evolution, to the progress of which we give too little attention. Changes come quickly in these days. Within comparatively recent times—it is not over a century—the American Republic has abolished the horror of slavery. It is only within recent times that the Married Women's Property Act made it impossible for a woman to hold and enjoy her own money and other possessions. Still more recently, as I have said, the franchise was conceded in Municipal elections. Now when the general woman suffrage Bill was enacted two years ago, as my honourable friend here pointed out, the vote was only given to women of thirty or over, and that was a deliberate decision as explained by the Speaker of the House of Commons, the object being to try the experiment in that way. Now the experiment seems to have resulted so satisfactorily that the Bill before the British Parliament at the present time contemplates what we understand as manhood suffrage, that is to say, a general twenty-one-year-old franchise. The experiment proved successful there; it was tried in Canada by what was known as the war-time election Bill, that provided a limited franchise whereby women who were relatives of men on active service were able to vote, and I think those who studied the question say that only by that means could the Canadian Government ensure the passage of a Conscription Bill at a time when Canada's failure to pass such an Act would have struck a very serious blow at the efforts of the Empire to win the war. I know of nothing in Canada's record that was more to the credit of the women of the country than that they should have supported the Government which was introducing Conscription and assisted in bringing about the passage of the Bill, which, as I see it, kept Canada in the struggle to the end of the war. We fortunately in this country did not need to proceed to such an extreme, but it was a case where the end justified the means. Now Canada has gone the full way. It has decided to give manhood suffrage to the women of the country, and if our neighbours on both sides of us are prepared to adopt that policy, I think we can make no mistake in following such a program. I therefore, Mr. President, have much pleasure in supporting the petition.

On motion the House went into Committee of the Whole on the Bill "An Act to provide for the better obtaining of Information Respecting the Cod-fishery."

Hon. Mr. McNamara in the chair.

HON. MR. SHEA:—The House is aware that this Bill is before us through the Select Committee, and we are asked to deal with it. There has been some change in the first clause and in the fifth, and a small change in the seventh.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Mr. Chairman, is it at all possible for an exporter to expect to get fair play under such a clause as this (Sec. 5). The Minister of Marine & Fisheries is an exporter, a large exporter of codfish, and by giving him an insight into our mode of speculating in the staple industry of the country you are giving him a prior right to dispose of his codfish. I would not object to the totals being communicated to the Minister, but to give the quantity of each kind of fish would be to give him a right of disposing of his holdings to the prejudice of other people who held the same qualities. There is another Bill that has passed the Lower House which deals more drastically and gives a greater privilege to the Minister of Marine & Fisheries so long as that Minister is an exporting merchant, and I have no hesitation in saying that while this Bill would be prejudicial to the highest degree to the fair trade we have always enjoyed, the passage of the other Bill in its present condition which seems to have had a certain amount of unanimity in the other Chamber, will paralyse the business of the country. I disclaim any political bias or any political interest in the discussion that has taken place. I would be very easy to work a specious case out of the condition of the markets of Europe, it would be very easy to work out a specious case against the Government or against the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

HON. MR. SHEA:—You do not attribute the condition of the markets wholly to the regulations.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Oh, no, c' course. My objection, to confine myself to the matter of the Bill, is that if I give an oath to the Minister of Marine & Fisheries, who is a large exporter of codfish, and will be a larger exporter of codfish this year, because other people will not export so much, if you give him that right, that privilege over all other exporters, you are destroying competition, you are destroying trade. I have no hesitation in saying that such a clause as that will give the Minister, or I should say the President of the Fishermen's Union, information that he ought not to possess, information that he can make use of in prejudice to those in competition with him, and will destroy the export trade of the country. I say this in all seriousness, as such a clause as that included in this Bill will be prejudicial and destructive to the interest of the country which we all have so much at heart. It will affect every Department of the economic condition of this country, and I beg honourable gentlemen to hesitate before they give effect to this clause No. 5. If they do so, I think the consequences will be so far-reaching and will precipitate such a condition of things that an early opportunity will have to be taken to remedy it. I could say much more, but my lips are closed with relation to a good many things, but I state here that such a power as that vested in a man who is a large exporter and will be a larger exporter, gives him a privilege which will be prejudicial to every one else and probably in the long run prejudicial to himself. I move that this section be expunged.

HON. MR. MILLEY:—Mr. Chairman, in this section here, I would like to ask the gentlemen in charge of the Bill why it is altered from 48 to 15 hours?

HON. MR. SHEA:—That was done at the suggestion of the Select Committee.

HON. MR. MILLEY:—Is there any objection to having their report read?

HON. MR. SHEA:—Oh no, but that was the result of the report.

HON. MR. MILLEY:—Was it unanimous?

HON. MR. SHEA:—With the exception of Mr. Grieve.

HON. MR. MILLEY:—I think it is the duty of the Select Committee to give the reason to the House why it has been altered. I would like to know the reason. I do not want to vote on a question of this kind without knowing whatI am voting for and why the alteration has been made.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—I can explain that. The paragraph as framed called for information to be furnished to the Minister of Marine & Fisheries on the 15th and last day of every month. It is not changed to monthly only, at the end of each month, or within 48 hours thereafter.

HON. SIR PATRICK McGRATH:—With reference to the points raised by the Hon. gentleman opposite, I must say I was much impressed by the strength of his argument at the last session, and that was the reason I suggested a Select Committee. We had the Minister meet us and we went into the question in all its details, and while unquestionably the point raised by the Hon. gentleman as to the Minister at present, or any Minister, is an exporter, yet the fact remains we have to face this question as we find it. And furthermore there is this point; there are 15 or 20 exporters along Water Street who are evidently sufficiently satisfied with this, to let it go, as they did not come before us. If they are not sufficiently interested to so come and ask to have it changed, then I do not think we should change it. That is my position. We have the Bill and we have to make the best of it. Possibly another Minister might be an exporter or might be connected with people who are. The gentlemen responsible for the conduct of affairs now feel that this legislation is necessary and if they think this is necessary for the success of the experiment they are undertaking for the betterment of the markets, then seeing that none of those interested object to it, I do not think we are called upon to make strenuous efforts to alter it. If it does not succeed, then the fault will be upon the heads of those who introduced it, and on the business people who did not come here to object to it.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—In February I combatted the proposed legislation and found myself opposed by a majority of the exporters of the Colony. Since then I do not go to the Board of Trade and do not take any interest in the proceedings of men who do not look after their own interests. Since then the Big Six have come round to my way of thinking, but I suppose are unwilling to admit it to a sense of shame, and are leaving the Opposition to some gentlemen in the Lower House or here. That is the position we are in now, but you are all intelligent men and in different walks of life, and if you apprehend no danger, then it is within your privilege and province to pass this. It will not affect me materially. I have taken my own precautions and if this passes, and other legislation foreshadowed passes, then I know exactly what I will do. But I am arguing on behalf of the Colony, and every interest of the Colony, merchants and exporters, importers, tradesmen and labourers; it affects them all and us all, if this measure is allowed, and if we are handicapped by legislation, by a law that will prevent me using my own judgment, limit me to sell at a certain price, limit me to exporting and disposing of my own produce. I do not agree with the Hon. gentleman who says that after you make a purchase it becomes the property of the Colony. I do not hold with any such theory as that. If you choose to pass this; if you choose to ignore Cassandra's voice, you do so at your peril. Troy fell when she did so, and this country may do so also. I say you cannot safely entrust to a man of the calibre of the Minister of Marine & Fisheries, who has a great many good points, and not a few bad ones, if you give him preference over the rest of the exporters.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—I presume this report is that of the Committee that sat upon the Bill, and that Committee, I presume, is interested in the Trade. If those interested in the business of the Colony are satisfied, then it is not for me to find fault. If this Bill is wanted by the Government and is necessary to safeguard the interests of the Colony then I am going to support it.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—We knew that.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—How did you know it? I want my Hon. friend to understand I am not here as a puppett manikin to rise and fall like a jumping jack at a pull of the string. If a committee comes in and reports it as a good bill I am going to support it. If it does not meet with the approval of the Committee then they should come to some understanding. But we have amendments to various sections, and I have my own views of it; every business man should have. However the position I want to take is, if the trade have agreed with the Government and the Minister with a deputation of the Trade are satisfied, then it has my support.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—There has been no deputation from the Trade, and you should not insinuate there was.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—I am insinuating nothing, but a deputation from the Lower House, and this House have agreed to the Bill, and it is the same thing.

HON. MR. MILLEY:—Re the amendment made by my Hon. friend, I would not like you to force that section this afternoon, and ask to have it stand over for another day.

HON. MR. SHEA:—Why?

HON. MR. MILLEY:—Well, for one not engaged in the fish business I want to vote honestly, and I am asking only a small matter for this section to stand over. In the past we have done so, and I think you should grant this request.

HON. MR. SHEA:—I have no objection to do so if the hon. gentleman will give some reason for asking it. The word "quality" was added in there at the request of the Select Committee who sat on the Bill. I do not want to force the Bill, but I think it only in reason to ask the Hon. gentleman for his reason in wishing the bill deferred.

HON. MR. MILLEY:—At the present moment I cannot give the reason. That is why I am asking to have this section stand over. There is no hurry; by the way legislation is going we shall be here until August. I would like to have some other gentlemen engaged in the fiish business give some light on this subject. I move the Committee rise and ask leave to report progress.

HON. MR. SHEA:—I am afraid I cannot accede to that request in the absence of any information from the Hon. gentleman. We have already had this Bill before the House, and referred to a Select Committee and given full consideration. Legislation is behind and we have bills coming up now and it is only right we should get through. I do not want to force legislation unduly, and if the Hon. gentleman will give some reason for postponing I should have no objections, but in the absence of any such information whatever, I cannot accede to the hon. gentleman's request.

HON. MR. MILLEY:—I am sorry my Hon. friend has taken that action. I do not think it was ever done in this House before, and I have been here for 16 years. The Select Committee come in with a report and we have a right to go into that report and into the Bill, and you are not giving us that right. This is a serious matter to this country.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—I think perhaps that the Hon. Mr. Milley is noticing only the insertion of the word "quality" in the latter part of that section. When the Bill first came before the House, the fish merchants were compelled to furnish to the Minister fortnightly the quantity of fish held in store with the various quantities for each market. But he was not compelled to furnish to the President of the Board of Trade the same information. That was explained as being an omission, and it was intended to furnish the Board of Trade with the same information sent into the Minister with this exception; if say 40,000 qtls. of fish are held in store, so much for Brazil, so much for Italy or Portugal, or Spain, as the case may be. I will get a copy of the returns sent in too, and know there is so much fish, but I will not know how much Job Bros. have or Baine Johnstone have. The only difference is the Minister will know the different holdings and he is in honour bound not to disclose. Every exporter will know how much fish is held for the different markets, and with this information, the Bill was satisfactory to all, except Hon. Mr. Grieve, who opposes the Bill in toto.

HON. MR. GRIEVE—And in addition when the representatives of the Brazil houses acquire that knowledge and transmit it to their principals in Brazil I wonder what the value of a large stock of Brazil fish will be when the receivers to be will know we have an abnormal quantity of Brazil fish. The consequences will be, prices will fall and the Colony will suffer. Give them the aggregate if you will, but do not tell them we have 500,000 qtls. of Brazil fish when the total consumption is only 300,000. Do not give the whole thing away. You do not give your business away to everybody, but know you are going to advertise to all our buyers exactly what quantities of fish we hold and arming them against yourselves.

HON. MR. MILLEY:—I am not opposing the Bill, I wish that to be understood, but only wish more time to consider the section now under discussion.

HON. MR. SHEA:—I have no desire to force the Bill but only asked a natural question reply to his request to raise the committee, and if he gave any bonafide substantial reason, that would be another matter. It is far from me to want to force the Bill down the throats of Hon. gentlement. I have no desire to take any arbitrary course and am sorry I should be the first to break the Hon. gentleman's experience of 16 years in this House, because I amonly a novice here myself. I think I am only in reason in asking why you want me to do it.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—I assume the Hon. gentleman is only desirous of seeking some information that is not here.

HON. MR. SHEA:—If there is any expression of opinion on the matter I have no objections.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I was going to suggest the same as my Hon. friend. I gather he is desirous of getting some further information and may be able to make out a case. I would like to say—I have not been here all the session,—but since I came here the Hon. gentleman representing the Government has been most courteous and considerate in all his dealings with Hon. gentlemen.

The Committee rose and reported progress and asked leave to sit again on to-morrow.

Second reading of the Encouragement of Shipbuilding Bill was deferred.

Second reading of the Management and Control of Harbour of Grand Bank Bill.

HON. MR. SHEA:—Mr. President, this Bill entirely affects the management and control of the harbour of Grand Bank, and this legislation i in response to the request of the residents of Grand Bank. . I beg to move the second reading.

The Bill was read a second time and ordered to be committed on to-morrow.

Hon. President read messages from the House of Assembly:

(1) Re passing Council's amendments re Posts and Telegraphs Bill, and Public Works Department Bill.

(2) Re passing following Bills, namely Legislative Disabilities and Vacation of Seats in the House of Assembly Bill; Act to provide for Lighting Streets in Outports; Act for Confirmation of a contract with the Susu S. S. Co.; Act re Stipendiary Magistrates and Justices of the Peace; Act to amend Death Duties Act; and Act concerning the registration of midwives, in which the concurrence of the Legislative Council is requested; also amendment of the Act re Fire Patrol.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea the following Bills were then read a first time and ordered to be read a second time to-morrow.

(1) An Act to Amend Chapter 4 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series), entitled "Of Legislative Disabilities and the Vacation of Seats in the House of Assembly."

(2) An Act to provide for the Lighting of Outport streets.

(3) An Act to amend chapter 86 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled "Of Stipendiary Magistrates and Justices of the Peace."

(4) An Act to amend chapter 27 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled "Of Death Duties."

(5) An Act concerning the Registration of Midwives.

(6) An Act for the Confirmation of a contract with the Susu Shipping Co., Ltd.

(7) An Act to amend chapter 137 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled "Of the Fire Patrol."

HON. MR. SHEA:—I wish to lay on table of this House a Report of Postal Telegraph Department.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea the House then adjourned until to-morrow 4 o'clock p.m.

THURSDAY May 27, 1920

The House met at 4 p.m. pursuant to adjournment.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea the Bills entitled respecting "An Act to amend the Judicature Act," and "An Act to provide for the Standardization of Codfish," were read a tihrd time, passed and sent to the House of Assembly with a message that this House had passed the same without amendment.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea the House went into Committee on Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 172 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled "Of the Survey of Foreign-going and Labrador vessels."

Hon. Mr. Steer took the chair.

HON. MR. SHEA:—Honourable members will remember when this Bill was up before it was practically passed with the exception of Clause No. 4, and in clause No. 3, "Under penalty not exceeding one thousand dollars or three months imprisonment." The other clause on which there was some discussion was that with regard to survey. I may say the intention is more of a general inspection. Vessels going away, taking fish, should be subject to inspection. The Government is desirous of protecting the cargo. It is desirable to have an inspection or partial survey before each voyage. It is not intended to be an actual survey unless circumstances make it necessary. It is more in the light of a general inspection of vessels; to have the power to have a survey if necessary. I hope this may be satisfactory to the gentlemen of this House who raised the question.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—There is no intention to inspect every vessel, but to have the power to do so?

HON. MR. SHEA:—They want to have the power in case such is necessary.

I move the adoption of No. 4 section.

Section 4 passed.

The Committee then arose and reported that it had passed the Bill with some amendments, and it was ordered that Bill be read a third time to-morrow.

On motion of Mr. Shea the House went into Committee on Bill entitled "An Act to provide for the better obtaining of Information respecting the Cod Fishery."

Hon. Mr. Winter took the chair.

Section 5 read.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—There is one point in connection with Section 5 on which I am not clear. After report is made to Minister of Marine and Fisheries no time is stated when intimation is to be given to Board of Trade.

HON. MR. SHEA:—It is assumed that information will be given in a reasonable time.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—I wish to move an amendment that 'and qualities' be deleted. We are investing the Minister of Marine and Fisheries with power which may be used to his advantage. It has come under my notice that a firm of twenty-five years standing—Messrs. Harvey & Co.—have a vessel loading at Belleoram, which has been denied clearance. In answer to an enquiry they were told that no clearance was given before June. On what grounds were they denied? At present there are two vessels loading at Port Union and one in St. John's. Are these to share the same fate as Mr. Harvey's vessel? This is giving the Minister of Marine and Fisheries a monopoly. We know very well secrets leak out, even executive secrets leak out. The amount of fish in different markets is known in Brazil and she buys cautiously and at the cheapest rate. I have the strongest objection to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries having the sole knowledge of what every merchant in the country holds, which enables him to dispose of his fish and leave other people with their stocks on hand and unsold. In resolutions that have been passed in the other Chamber there is a foresight of most arbitrary legislation which will prevent any exporter exporting without the authority of the Minister of Marine & Fisheries, and only exporting at a price named by the Minister and the fish must be sold before the vessel leaves the harbour. Now I think that is in contravention of all fair play, and I think we should not place in the power of the Minister of Marine & Fisheries, who is also an exporting merchant the power to do as he pleases and have exclusive knowledge of what every house in the trade holds and what he could quickly dispose of, with the advantage perhaps of a rise in the market. This is placing in the hands of a man in the trade the knowledge of what every other person in the business is doing, and for that sufficient reason I think that my amendment is in order and I press it to division.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—Mr. Chairman, I think if we keep on discussing this Bill the honourable member who has just sat down will be supporting it entirely. First when it was introduced into this Chamber he saw no good whatever in it.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—I beg your pardon. You must not say that. I did not say I saw no good in it.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—Well, you objected to the principle contained in the Bill. Now the only objection is to giving the Minister information as to quality.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Mr. Chairman I must protest. I shall have to ask the shorthand notes to be read. I did not at any time object to the entire Bill.

HON. MR| GIBBS:—I stand to correction, but I say the honourable gentleman opposed the principle underlying the Bill, that is, the giving of information to the Minister of Marine & Fisheries as to stocks of fish held by the fish exporters of St. John's.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Only in respect of clause No. 5.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—Well, Clause No. 5 is the principal one in the Bill, and with that left out, it is useless. The honourable member must give other people credit for being as equally interested in the public welfare and the trade of the country as himself and should not think that all the wisdom connected with the trade and business of the country is centred in him. Other people see good in this Bill, and surely they must not be charged with uncharitable or improper motives. We have had gentlemen occupying departmental offices in this country before who were in trade and business where the invoices of goods and the prices for which these goods were purchased and the places where they were purchased and the places where they were purchased had to come before the Minister, and we have no evidence that any information obtained in his official capacity, even though he was engaged in trade and business similar to that of those who had to pass invoices before him, was ever made use of for his own personal and private ends, and we have no right to state, or even to insinuate, that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries will make use of any information that he may obtain as to the quantity and quality of the stocks of fish that may be on hand in order that he may realize to the best advantage the stocks he has. I say it is not fair to insinuate that such a thing would be done. I say it is not fair to insinuate that such a thing would be done. If conditions were normal there would be a great deal in the objections of the honourable gentleman, but we must not forget the fact that abnormal conditions in every walk of the economic and industrial life of the country prevail to-day and will prevail for some years to come, and, realizing this abnormal condition of affairs, we have got to deal with them, we have got to face them, and there is no other way of facing these conditions and dealing with them except by legislation of this character. Every country in the world to-day is regulating its trade and its business. Why? Because of the abnormal conditions that have arisen in consequence of the War, because of the issues of paper currency, in the European continent especially, which has depreciated the standard and has influenced the price of goods to such an extent that the purchasing power of money has decreased in some cases 100 per cent, in some cases 200 per cent and in some 300 per cent. Now we are selling fish, the principal product of this country, to the poorest portions of Europe—Italy, Portugal, Greece and other places along the Mediterranean—and is it not right and fair that we should endeavour to regulate the terms and conditions under which we shall sell our goods, and is it not therefore necessary for the proper authorities to know the quantities and qualities of fish that are in stock in order that they may regulate the sale and disposition of it according to the best interests of the country, because, after all, that is the object of this legislation. It is not for the purpose of making any individual or any firm or any class of individuals or companies rich, but it is for the purpose of benefiting the whole country, and as we have an abnormal condition of affairs prevailing in the world to-day, exceptional legislation must be enacted in order to deal with these conditions. If you want to find out the production of wheat in Canada there is nothing to prevent anybody in any part of the world learning that fact. If you want to find out what is the number of sheep on the hoof, what is the production of pigs or any other product in the United States or Canada you may get that information. That does not mean that there is going to be a depreciation in the price of the articles if a demand exists; the demand exists and this power to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries is for the purpose of regulating the supply of that demand, so that where there are two or three exporters they may not ship large quantities of fish to the same place at the same time. Why should we not carry on trade and business in the same way as a business man in the United States or Canada deals with a man here. You cannot get flour or sugar or any other goods without contracting to pay for them. You know the price beforehand. But have not the fish exporters been sending off fish and taking what price they could get for it.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Oh no.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—Well, some have to wait for six or nine months before getting paid. Is that a sound commercial policy? Is that the way business should be carried on? But, independently of that fact, Mr. Chairman, abnormal and exceptional conditions prevail in the world to-day, and it is necessary for the stability of the trade and commerce of this country that they be protected by some supervision and control of this character, and I have no doubt that that supervision and control will be exercised with discretion and that the things which the honourable member anticipates may happen will not befall us.

MR. ANDERSON:—Mr. Chairman, while in committee I would like further to add that in St. John's there are quite a large number of fish exporters. I do not know how many of them, but I understand that quite a large number, are in favour of this Bill, and that a very small number do not agree with it. If this House is to be the safety-valve to regulate legislation on behalf of the country, I think that we ought at least to listen to those who have given their opinion that this Bill in its entirety is a Bill worthy of support. Some little time ago in referring to the high cost of living we reviewed from this place the condition of the food market. Now the price of our commodites, especially when the commodity is an article of food, must be protected in some form or other. In this House we have two honourable gentlemen who are in this business, directly in the business. I refer to the Hon. Mr. Grieve and the Hon. Mr. Bishop. Others of us here are more or less indirectly acquainted or interested in the quality and the exporting of fish, and I would say again, Mr. Chairman, that there never was a time in the history of this country when greater care should be exercised in the quantity and quality of the fish which this country is producing. If the trade is satisfied to give this programme a trial, a fair trial, and entrust the Minister of Marine & Fisheries with the necessary information, I think this is a measure worthy of trial. I know there have been times when people in positions of trust and responsibility in the Civil Service have violated their trust. It is unfortunate that people in business and trade should occupy these positions, and I hope that the time will come—I do not care what Government is in power—I hope the time will come when such will not be the case. In this Bill I have yet to find indications of any loss that the country is likely to sustain. It is worthy of trial, but I regret that some united effort was not made between the trade and that they could not arrive at some compromise in this matter. This Bill has passed the Lower House, I am told unanimously. I cannot recall at the present moment who are the honourable gentlemen in that House who are intimately identified with the trade, but they take upon themselves the responsibility for this measure. If there had been a request from the trade as a whole, or even the majority of the trade, to cut out the word "quality" I would be prepared to consider the amendment, but as when this Bill was up before us before it was referred to a Select Committee of seven and signed by six. one of the six immediately interested in the Bill, I am prepared to give it a trial.

HON. MR. MILLEY:—Mr. Chairman my reason in asking yesterday that this Bill be deferred was that I might get a little more information on this section, especially on the amendment proposed by my honourable friend, Mr. Grieve. This morning I interviewed as many as I possibly could of the fish exporters and every one of them would like to see the words "and quality" stricken out of the Bill. The Bill itself I am in favor of, and as this is a very small thing, to have these words stricken out, I think it is my duty to support the amendment.

On division the amendment was lost.

Committee rose and reported that the Bill had passed with some amendment, and it was ordered to be read a third time on to-morrow.

On motion the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on the Bill "An Act to amend Chapter 176 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled 'Of the Encouragement of Shipbuilding.'"

Hon. Mr. Power in the Chair.

HON. MR. SHEA:—This Bill, Mr. Chairman, is one of the Bills sent to a select committee, and itwas reported on by that committee two or three days ago. Clause No. 2 in the original Bill has been stricken out and in substitution therefore there is a new clause which will now be read. (Clause read).

The Committee rose and reported that the Bill had passed with some amendment, and it was ordered that the Bill be read a third time on to-morrow.

On motion the House resolved itself into a committee of the whole on the Bill "An Act to amend Chapter 183 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled "Of the Management and Control of the Harbour of Grand Bank.'"

Hon. Mr. Browning in the chair.

HON. MR. SHEA:—This Bill, Mr. Chairman, speaks for itself. It will affect the control of the Harbour of Grand Bank and has been brought here by the people of that place.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Before the passage of this Bill I would like to compliment the people of Grand Bank upon the stand they have taken in trying to improve their condition. So far as I can remember, this is the first time during my association with the House that a Bill of this kind has come before us, where the people of an outport are making an effort to improve their condition and to tax themselves to improve their harbour and to pay salaries in connection with its management. I think the people of Grand Bank ought to be congratulated, and hope that whatever they take upon themselves to carry out will be a success.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—They have been doing this for years.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—I know, but this is the first time that I have had an opportunity of going through a Bill of this nature, and I trust that the people will be successful.

The Committee rose and reported the Bill passed without amendment. It was ordered to be read a tihrd time on to-morrow.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea, the following Bills were read a second time and ordered to be committed on to-morrow, namely:—Legislative Disabilities and Vacation of Seats in the House of Assembly Amendment Bill; Lighting of Outport Streets Bill; Stipendiary Magistrates and Justice of the Peace Amendment Bill; Death Duties Amendment Bill.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—I beg to move the second reading of the Registration of Midwives Bill. I may say in explanation that the practice of Midwifery has been carred on in Newfoundland somewhat surreptitiously and sometimes with fatal results. The practice of obstetrics is one of the most scientific in the practice of surgery, and a committee has been formed in the effort to improve matters. I shall move an amendment in Committee, and shall not say much to-day, but might observe that this matter involves human life, not alone one, but two are involved.

The bill was read a second time and ordered to be committed on to-morrow.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea, the Susu S. S. Co. Contract Confirmation Bill was read a second time and ordered to be committed on to-morrow.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—I beg to move the second reading of the Fire Patrol Amendment Bill. This Bill increases the grant to the A. N. D. Co. and the Albert Reed Co. for their section of the fire patrol on the railway line, from $4,000 to $6,500. Labor has increased and it has been found necessary to increase the grant.

Said Bill was then read a second time and ordered to be committed on to-morrow.

HON. PRESIDENT:—Read message from the House of Assembly announcing the passage of the following Bills; an Act to Check Profiteering; Act to amend the Income War Tax Act 1918; and requesting Council's concurrence.

Said bills were then read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

Hon. Mr. Shea tabled Report of the Minister of Agriculture & Mines for the year ending December 31, 1919; also Report of the General Hospital for the year ending December 31, 1918.

House then adjourned until to-morrow at four o'clock p.m.

FRIDAY, May 28th, 1920.

On motion the following Bills were read a third time and ordered to be sent to the House of Assembly with a message informing them that this House had passed the same with some amendments:

"An Act to amend Chapter 172 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled 'Of the Survey of Foreign-going and Labrador Vessels.'"

"An Act to provide for the better obtaining of Information respecting the Cod Fishery."

"An Act to amend Chapter 176 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled 'Of the Encouragement of Shipbuilding.'"

On motion of the Bill "An Act to amend Chapter 183 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled 'Of the Management and Control of the Harbor of Grand Bank'" was read a third time and ordered to be sent to the House of Assembly with a message informing them that this House had passed the same without amendment.

On motion the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on this Bill.

Hon. Mr. Cook in the chair.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—I may say for the information of the honourable gentlemen that two Department of the Government have been created, the Department of Posts and Telegraphs and the Department of Education, and that it therefore becomes necessary that amendments be made to the Legislative Disabilities Act. This Bill provides that an amendment be made in Section 3 of Chapter 4. Sub-section 1 of Section 2 defines the persons who may respectively hold the offices. The amendment will therefore add two additional offices, the Ministry of Posts and Telegraphs and the Ministry of Education. The Ministers who are the heads of these Departments went to their constituencies as Minister of Posts and Telegraphs and Minister of Education respectively in the bye-elections of December last and were re-elected. In the general election they went as ordinary Opposition candidates, and, having been elected, they were appointed to these Departments, and it became necessary then for them to seek re-election at the hands of their constituents. They went back for election, and this amendment is for the purpose of confirming the action of the Government in creating these two Departments and confirming the position of these two gentlemen in the House. Section 3 deals with the Department of Shipping. Honourable gentlemen will remember that during the War it became absolutely necessary that a Department of Shipping be created and a Minister placed in Charge of that Department. The necessity for that Department's continuance very much longer is not apparent, and it is the intention of the Government to wind up the Department as soon as possible. The person who was appointed to that Department, Mr. Cave, could not hold office any longer than six months without vacating his seat As the Department will be wound up within a short time it is not fair, I submit, to ask the present occupant of the office to go back for re-election merely for the sake of a couple of months' continuance in the office. The object of the section, therefore, is to enable him to hold office until it is wound up finally, which must take place before the 31st of December next.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—In view of the contingency that tomorrow the Supreme Court may hold that Cave is not a member of the House of Assembly, where is the point of proceeding with this Bill this afternoon? I would suggest that the honourable member let it stand. At the same time would the honourable gentleman undertake to inform us how these two Ministers, the Minister of Education and Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, were appointed to these offices. I assume they were appointed by the Government, but I would like to know under what authority?

HON. MR. McGRATH:—Of course, that may be, but at the same time I presume there is some Minute of Council. You will remember that when the Department of Shipping was created the authority for the Executive's making that appointment was the War Measures Act. Now while I can quite believe there is ample justification for the step the Government has taken in this matter, still I am not familiar with the procedure that was adopted. I know that in a parallel instance in England, when Sir Eric Geddes was appointed Minister of Ways and Communications—what we would call Minister of Railroads in this country—he was not appointed to that office until after a Bill for the creation of the office had passed the Imperial Parliament, and in the meanwhile he sat in the Executive as a Minister without portfolio. It is a proceeding of which I think it is desirable to have the facts related, because of course, while it is obviously possible for the Government to-day to create two departments by Executive authority, it is possible for another Government to create two others, and while the Legislature may ultimately validate that procedure, still I think it is just as well that we should know just exactly what was the procedure and the reasons why these persons were appointed at that time instead of waiting for three or four months until the Legislature created the Departments in the ordinary course and they were appointed Ministers in the ordinary way. I do not raise this point in a contentious spirit, but merely that we might have the facts in this regard. If the honuorable member could get the facts for the next meeting I would be obliged.

The Comittee rose, reported progress and asked leave to sit again.

The House went into Committee on "Outport Street Lighting Bill."

HON. MR. SHEA:—This Bill, as Hon. members will see, is to enable people in the outports at their own cost to provide for lighting. The cost of that light is to be procured by the imposition of a tax on coal paid into the revenue in lieu of revenue and will apply to any outport that choose to establish such a system.

Committee rose and reported the Bill without amendment, and it was ordered to be read a third time on to-morrow.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Gibbs, the House went into Committee on the Stipendiary Magistrate and Justices of the Peace Bill.

Hon. Mr. Milley in the chair.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—The object of this Bill is to increase the jurisdiction of Stipendiary Magistrates, by granting them powers to try cases of carnal knowledge of persons under the age of consent if the person elects to be tried summarily.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—It is a very proper and reasonable amendment I agree, but I think our Magistrates should have some acknowledge of the seriousness of such cases. My attention was called some time ago to where a person guilty of rape was fined $20.00 or $25.00 by a Magistrate and let go at that, when he should have got three years.

The Committee reported the Bill without amendment, and it was ordered to be read a third time on to-morrow.

House went into Committee on the Death Duties Amendment Bill, Hon. Mr. Winter in the chair.

HON. MR. SHEA:—This bill is brought in at the request of the Judges of the Supreme Court and is to provide for letters of probate being granted by Judges in Circuit which does not exist at present. Great dissatisfaction has been caused by people having to come on here to get that probate. It provides for bonds being given for the payment of Death Duties.

The Committee reported the Bill without amendment, and it was ordered to be read a third time on to-morrow.

House went into Committee on the Registration of Midwives Bill, Hon. Mr. Grieve in the chair.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—I may say that this Bill refers to a very serious matter. Ever since I have been practising, I think, I have seen valuable lives lost and people maimed for life through ignorance on the part of women practising Midwifery, and to try and correct that is some of the objects of this Bill. As I said on the second reading, the practice of Midwifery is a science. While there may be escapes from accident by amateurs in 99 cases out of a 100, in the other case there may be fatal accident to both mother and child. The object of this Bill is to have some control over Midwives, and the operation of the Act will be in the hands of an influential Committee both of men and women. Now it might cause hardship in certain people in outports where there is no doctor, so to cover that I propose the following amendment:—(read).

It is our intention to try and educate the midwives in outlying sections in the country in aseptics, in cleaning the hands and in the ordinary medical aids for the preservation of life. The Committee will take the matter in hands, and midwives will have to show certain qualifications and be registered in the Public Health Office or some other place. That is the object, and I think it a step in the right direction. It is done in every other country and we are only bringing ourselves up to date in passing this Bill.

HON. SIR PATRICK McGRATH:—Might I ask is there registration for nurses generally at the present time.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—There is a Nurses' Association and they have registration of their own, and they are very strict and keep up the ethics of the profession. A nurse is not recognized as a trained nurse unless she has a certificate from a recognized school. Any other woman practicing midwifery is not considered unless she goes under our examination.

HON. SIR PATRICK McGRATH:—Then they have no standing.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—No they are what Hon. Mr. McNamara calls the handy women.

The Committee reported the Bill with some amendment, and it was ordered to be read a third time on to-morrow.

House went into Committee on the Susu S. S. Co. Contract Confirmation Bill, Hon. Mr. Shea in the chair.

HON. MR. SHEA:—This bill is to confirm a contract made by the late Government with the Susu S. S. Co. for a coastal steam service North. There are one or two slight alterations in the contract which have been accepted to the contractors, and which do not amount to much.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendment.

The House went into Committee on Bill entitled "An Act Concerning the Registration of Midwives."

Committee rose and reported it had passed the same without amendment.

It was ordered that it be read a third time to-morrow.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea the House went into Committee on Bill entitled "An Act for the Confirmation of a Contract with the Susu Shipping Co., Ltd.

Hon. Mr. Steer took the chair.

Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendment.

The House went into Committee on Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 137 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (third series) entitled 'Of the Fire Patrol.'

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—In relation to this Bill I may say its object is to raise the present grant from four thousand to six thousand five hundred dollars. We have found that the wages of patrol men have increased, and the extra vote is therefore badly needed.

A grant was given last year for patrolling along the railroad. Last year seven thousand dollars was expended. Every year money is expended in fighting forest fires. This seems to be an unfortunate state of affairs. Notices have been posted in smoking cars not to throw lighted cigars or cigarettes out of the windows, and many other precautions taken. A large section of the country is now on fire, and a great deal of destruction is caused by these fires. Last year fourteen hundred fires were started. The purpose of this Bill is to increase the grant to enable this matter to be dealt with.

HON. SIR PATRICK McGRATH:—Did you say fourteen hundred fires?

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—Yes, but two only, were serious ones.

The motion was carried.

Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendment, and it was ordered that it be read a third time to-morrow.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea the following Bills were deferred:—"An Act to amend the Income War Tax Act, 1918"; "An Act to Check Profiteering."

HON. MR. SHEA:—I wish to lay on the table of this House a copy of the Customs' Returns 1918-1919.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea the House adjourned till Tuesday 4.30 p.m.

Communication, from Mr. Withers, extending invitation to members to attend public educational meeting to be held in Methodist College Hall May 31st was read.

TUESDAY, June 1st.

House met pursuant to adjournment.

On motion the following Bills were read a thrid time and passed, and ordered to be sent to the Assembly with a message that this House had passed the same, namely:—Act for Lighting of Outport streets; Act Re Stipendiary Magistrates and Justices of the Peace; Act Re Death Duties; Act Concerning Registration of Midwives; Act Re Confirmation of Contract with the Susu S. S. Co., Ltd.; and an Act re Fire Patrol.

House went into Committee on the Legislative Disabilities and Vacation of Seats Amendment Bill, Hon. Mr. Milley in the chair.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—In reply to information sought by Hon. gentlemen I may say that the Departments of Education and Posts & Telegraphs were authorised by Minute of Council a short while after the present Government assumed office, and Dr. Barnes and Mr. Halfyard were subsequently appointed to these offices respectively. Bye-elections were held after these gentlemen had vacated their seats, and they were elected by acclamation. They went of course as private members, but the constituencies were informed that they would be appointed for these departments, and it is for the purpose of confirming the action of the Government that this Bill is before the Chamber. Section three will of course be deleted from the Bill entirely, owing to the turn of affairs in connection with the District of Bay de Verde.

HON. SIR PATRICK McGRATH:—The information is satisfactory so far as it goes, but would it be convenient to let us have a copy of the Minute of Council; that was really what I asked for. I will be glad if he will do that before the Bill goes through the third reading.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—I am instructed to ask the consent of the House for the third reading to-day, and the Governor will be asked to assent to it to-morrow.

HON. SIR PATRICK McGRATH:—This is unusual and objection could be very properly urged against it, and successfully so, because it is against the rules. Personally I do not object, but I would like to point out that on several occasions past objection was raised and I think we ought not overlook the fact that the right lies in any individual member to block the proceedings.

The Committee rose and reported the Bill with some amendments, and with the unanimous consent of the House, it was then read a third time and passed, and ordered sent to the Assembly with a message that the House had passed the same with some amendment, and requesting concurrence therein.

Hon. Mr. Gibbs moved second reading of the Income War Tax 1918 Amendment Bill, and said:—This amendment is to provide for a further allowance to married men with families.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—The amendment proposed here is for the purpose of making provision of two hundred dollars a year for each child under eighteen years of age. The honourable members who no doubt have been following the current literature will notice that in England and the United States there has been considerable agitation and discussion on this subject. Single men have no dependants and are in a far better position than married men who have to maintain families.

The next amendment which the Bill proposes is in sub-Section 10 of the Act. Sub-section 1 of the Act as it is now on the Statute Book has apparently not been working satisfactorily and amendments now proposed is that all that part of the section from "assessment" in Section 10 be stricken out and amendment in the Bill here substituted instead. So that if the tax when due be not paid, a penalty of 5 per cent instead of 7 per cent. be imposed with additional 1 per cent each month that it remains unpaid.

The honourable gentlemen who have to go through these phrases know just what is required. There is no material change in any other portion of the Act except "that penalty shall not be less than two dollars."

The first amendment is of material benefit to persons who have others dependent on them. I move that the Bill be now read a second time.

HON. MR. MEWS:—As one who is interested to some extent in the first section of the Bill I should be delinquent in my duty if I did not say I approve of this measure most heartily.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Is this a Bill or are these resolutions? If these are resolutions it should be so stated, but this should come to us in the form of a bill.

HON. SIR P.T. McGRATH:—I had eyespotted this, if I may use such a term, a while ago. It is just another instance of the slipshod manner in which we do things in the other House. This is a Money Bill originating in the other House. These sections would then have to No. 1, 2, 3. No. 1 Reduce tax, etc.; Resolution No. 2 and Resolution No. 3. When it came to the Bill stage this would have been stricken out. Of course tomorrow when the Bill goes into committee we shall have to strike out section 3.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Can this be deferred? The procedure is not correct!

HON. MR. McGRATH:—We can strike this out to-morrow.

Bill was then read a second time.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—I beg leave to refer this Bill to Committee of the whole House to-morrow.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—In moving the second reading of the Bill entitled "An Act to check Profiteering, I may say that honourable gentlemen know that the principal cause of discontent in the greater part of the world to-day is due to the high prices which prevail for the necessaries of life. There is a feeling existing in the minds of people that undue profiteering is going on. That there is good ground for this there is no doubt, in many cases but not in all. A great deal of criticism appears in the presses of the word and in our own local press. That profiteering has been going on, and is going on to-day is generally recognized. Some criticism is justifiable; all, however, is not. If people believe that profiteering is growing it is best to establish some Tribunal or Board whereby they may lay complaint and have investigation and if parties are guilty of making undue profit some penalty should be imposed. This Bill proposes that Food Control Board shall have power to investigate prices, costs, and profits at all stages, and for that purpose by order to require any persons to appear before them, and to furnish such information and produce such documents as they may require; and that this Board may have power to receive and investigate complaints. If a person makes a complaint that the profit made on any article is unreasonable he will be given an opportunity to be heard.

Section 2 of Bill provides that upon complaint being made that profit upon an article sold is of an unreasonable character that Board should investigate, and as Section 3 states, if as a result of investigation undertaken it appears to the Board that circumstances so require, proceedings shall be taken against the seller before a Court of Summary Jurisdiction; and if it be found that price charged was, in view of all the circumstances, unreasonable the seller shall be liable to fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or in default of payment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months. The next section, No. 4, is absolutely neces sary to enable Board to have orders carried out. If any person infringes an order of the Board he shall be fined one hundred dollars or in default of payment, imprisonment not exceeding one month. The next section is very desirable. If reckless statements are made knowingly—complaints against a person in trade made with a deliberate and set purpose—if statements are made without foundation—not bona fide—then the person making such statements shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine.

The next section deals with companies which may be convicted of offence under this Act. We cannot imprison a Company—the chairman, and every managing director and every officer shall be considered guilty unless he proves that the act took place without his knowledge. If, however, the managing director knew this sort of thing was going on and took no steps to prevent it then he would be considered guilty.

The next section makes the Board liable to costs if costs be against it.

In holding investigation the Board has power to require any person appearing before it or to whom it may nominate, to administer an oath. Section 10 deals with articles which may be sold outside this country or by public auction or competitive tender.

The next section gives power to the Government in Council to establish committees having power to make regulations but not to fix prices, at other parts of the country other than St. John's. Bonavista or Twillingate or some place on the West Coast where persons are contending business is being conducted as it should not be and where unreasonable profit is being made. Committees would be able to investigate complaint made.

No member of the Board or any Committee shall be allowed to act if he is a trade competitor of those affected. The next section deals with persons who have goods to sell and refuse to sell these goods to complainants. The provision in the Bill prevents the seller from practising boycotting. A man who makes a complaint exercises his right in order to have his bona fide complaint investigated.

I move that the Bill be read a second time.

HON. MR. MILLEY:—To the gentleman in charge of this Bill I wish to read an article from the Journal of Commerce of Friday, May 21st. showing the criticism of the press on the Profiteering Act passed in the English Parliament. (The article was read).

HON. MR. MacNAMARA:—The average price of a barrel of flour before the war was eight dollars, the profit then was fifty cents. Flour is seventeen dollars to-day, to figure out the same rate of profit it will be about one dollar to-day. This clause just read states that the profit previous to War should not be deemed unreasonable. Seventeen dollars at fifty cents profit is very unreasonable. There is twice the money invested with half the profit. The same thing applies to other things, pork for example. Cartage and labour, which has greatly increased, has also to be taken into consideration. I think this clause should read "percentage of profit."

HON. SIR PATRICK McGRATH:—This Bill is only a transcript from the English Act passed two years ago in response to the agitation for some measure to deal with steadily increasing cost of necessaries of life. I have had some experience in dealing with the Local Food Control Board. A year ago there was some agitation here, and during the election (I speak personally, for I was made the target at that time) it was McGrath who made the people eat "brown sugar" and "hog feed." Some of the honourable gentlemen who were with me in the Food Control work will agree that profiteers were donounced vehemently. A change of Government it was thought would put an end to the profiteering. There was ample time for the new Government under the "War Measures Act" to make changes. I do not think this Bill will be heard of after it is once passed. Years ago a Bill was introduced dealing with rents. It went through all stages but nobody ever uses it. It is a dead letter.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—It has been pleaded in Courts in ejecting tenants.

HON. SIR PATRICK McGRATH:—How often?

HON. MR. GIBBS:—Half dozen cases or more.

HON. SIR PATRICK McGRATH:—I am glad to hear it. This meeting is utterly impossible to carry this Bill into effect. There is profiteering (if you will) everywhere. Everybody is profiteering. One man profiteers on the necessaries of life, another on his labour, and as we saw here the other day, when lawyers were enabled to double their fees.

The machinery needed would be too cumbersome. I may have some information to give to-morrow when the Bill goes into Committee.

But it was my duty during the time I was Chairman of the Food Control Board to give this matter a great deal of attention, and I think I am safe in saying that we worked out a system for dealing with the problem. We did not do any more than touch the fringe, because we did not have the time nor conditions to admit of our doing it, and in some cases the very people whom you would expect to support you were the very ones who gave you the strongest opposition. But with regard to the matter of this Bill,I think it can be demonstrated when we get into Committee that nobody knows what is going to be done and what will be the result, but I venture to say that nothing will be done if the Bill is passed, because it will soon be made manifest if anybody attempts to put it into operation that it will never cure the evils which it is intended to cure.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Mr. President, following Sir Patrick McGrath's remarks that nothing will be done under this Bill if it is passed I think that the passage of this Bill should be assured because the apprehensions of certain business men as voiced by my friend, Mr. McNamara, will disappear. It strikes me that if everybody who makes more profit now than before the War is convicted under this Act, we might not be sufficient to form a quorum until their term of imprisonment had expired. I think we should define what profiteering is before we can intelligently discuss the Bill, but in my opinion it would safely be left to the Tribunal dealing with the matter to say what is fair and what is unfair profit. I do not think that there can be a very great deal of profiteering done in this country. Profits have automatically increased because of the increases in values in the source of supply. We must determine first what profiteering is before we can enact a law to punish people for profiteering, but I think a great deal depends upon the capacity of the Tribunal before which alleged profiteering is dealt with. First of all, determine what profiteering is before you make penalties. We must either do that or, what is still better, say that undue profit is punishable.

Hon. President read messages from the House of Assembly that they had passed the amendments made by the Council in and upon the following Bills without amendment: Encouragement of Shipbuilding Amendment Bill, Codfishery Information Bill, Survey of Vessels Bill, Standardization of Codfish Bill.

Hon. President read a message from the Assembly that they had passed the following bills, entitled respectively: An Act to Amend Section 9 of Chapter 139 of the Consolidated Stautes of ewfoundland (Third Series) entitled "Of the Encouragement of Agriculture"; An Act Respecting Certificates of Masters and Mates; An Act Respecting the Issue of Certain Debenture Bonds of the Colony; An Act to Regulate the Exportation of Salt Codfish; An Act to Amend 'The Business Profits Tax Act, 1917'; An Act to Authorize the Montreal Trust Company to do business in the Colony of Newfoundland; An Act to Amend Chapter 10 of 9-10 Geo. V. entitled 'An Act with Respect to Existing Tenancies and the Ejectment of Tenants Therefrom'; in which they requested the concurrence of the Council.

HON. MR. MEWS:—Mr. President, before the adjournment of the House, may I ask your permission to make a statement with reference to sugar.

In the interest of the people the Food Control Board have thought it advisable to take over the control of the sugar importations and fix a retail price at which it is to be sold all over the Island. During this year, the price has fluctuated from twenty to twenty-five cents, being sold by some at as high a price as twenty-eight cents.

By an arrangement between the Trade and the Food Board the retail price has been kept at about twenty two cents for more than a month, a circumstance which has saved the people not less than forty thousand dollars, as without that arrangement sugar would probably have been sold generally at twenty-five cents and perhaps more.

Stocks of sugar sufficient to supply our needs for the next two months were secured at a reasonable price, but the market price was continually advancing, and sugar was bought at length by importers for fall requirements, at prices that would mean sugar at forty cents a pound. Dealers in sugar intimated to the Board that they did not feel like buying sugar at this high price, unless they could protect themselves by an advance on sugar, which they were selling at present. Just at this time the Board had an offer of one thousand tons of sugar at a price which was considerably below that for sugar which would have been sold at forty cents.

This lot was acquired and the Board thought it a favourable opportunity to make a pool of the sugar to arrive, which involved a quantity which will more than supply our needs for the balance of the year.

Arrangements have been made to take over all undelivered contract, and all sugar to be imported, and an average price has been arrived at, a price which, if no extraordinary circumstances arise, will remain in force for the balance of the year. This retail price is fixed at thirty cents per pound, and this price must be considered a satisfactory one in view of the fact that it costs very near that figure to bring sugar in the country at the present time.

The Board felt it was in the interest of all, that this average price should take effect at once, because it would be a manifestly unfair position that would allow those with money to purchase large stocks of sugar at cheap prices and leave those who can only buy from week to week to pay forty cents a pound for sugar in September and the months following.

While there may be temporary breaks in the sugar prices, it is felt by all the authorities on the sugar situation that the price will show no decrease for this year, and under these conditions the Food Board have felt that they have done the best for the country in taking over the sugar business.

They felt that with such an essential commodity as sugar, at such a high price, the public must be protected. Competition in sugar has been eliminated this year; supplies have been short, and opportunities to make large profits were such as never before presented themselves to those dealing in sugar. The Board can reasonably say that now the public know the worst as regards sugar prices, and as has been said, unless extraordinary circumstances intervene, we need not anticipate a future increase for many months.

The House adjourned until Wednesday, June 2nd.

WEDNESDAY, June 2nd, 1920.

House met at 4 p.m.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Gibbs the House went into Committee on Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Income War Tax Act, 1918."

Hon. Mr. Steer in the chair.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—Mr. Chairman, last section is either a clerical or a printer's error. I move that last section be stricken out.

HON. P. T. McGRATH:—I meant to deal with this. We could strike out the sub-section, which would send it back amended or we could suspend further proceedings and have Government members of Lower House informed and ask them to send Bill back again to be dealt with anew. Personally I think the simplest way would be to strike out the section. As everybody understands I do not think there will be much difficulty. Let the Bill be amended and then it can go down to Lower House.

The Committee rose and reported having passed same with an amendment, and Bill was ordered to be read a thir dtime to-morrow.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Gibbs the Committee on Bill entitled "An Act to Check Profiteering" was deferred.

Second reading of Bill re Agriculture.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—In moving the second reading of Bill entitled "An Act to amend Section 9 of Chapter 139 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Encourage of Agriculture," I may say that in the Committee stage I shall go into this more fully. The Bill asks a change of grant—to increase the Model Farm grant from twenty to thirty thousand dollars—a difference of fifteen thousand over previous years. Up to 1914 the grant for agriculture was forty thousand then it was cut down to twenty thousand. When Bill reached Committee stage I shall dwell at some length on it.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Could we have Agricultural Report?

HON. DR CAMPBELL:—It was tabled a few days ago.

The Bill was then read a second time.

On motion the Bill was referred to whole House to_morrow.

Second reading of Bill respecting Masters and Mates.

HON. MR. SHEA:—In moving the second reading of Bill entitled "An Act respecting Certificates of Mates and Masters," I may say this is a measure to meet present requirements. There are quite a number of ships at present without masters. There is a difficulty in finding masters and mates. The idea is to appoint a Board of Examiners consisting of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Harbour Master, and Sir John Crosbie, to grant certificates. There is a great difficulty in finding masters and mates owing to war conditions. The Bill asks that Board have power till January 1921. This is just a temporary measure.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—I have no objection to the principle of the Bill. There are matters in connection with it, however, which are peculiar. Regarding the necessity for Bill as pointed out—something in that connection is necessary at least as far as masters are concerned—as regards mates I am not so sure. It will be noticed that it is a temporary measure and discontinues at the end of this year. If it is to be of any benefit there is not much time for persons to receive their certificates and then avail of the advantage. It is apparent to members of the House it cannot apply to masters at the present time. But few are in the port of St. John's at present.

As to the personnel of the Committee proposed—'The Board of Examiners shall consist of Minister of Marine and Fisheries' (this is quite proper—not the Hon. W. F. Coaker)—the Harbour Master of the port of St. John's and the third member Sir John Crosbie.' It is peculiar that he is named as a member of this Committee when it is known that Sir John Crosbie is now on his way to Europe. How long his visit is to last we do not know. Other members cannot act in his absence so what benefit is this Bill to be? and the men it is intended to assist must remain until the return of Sir John Crosbie. Such I submit is the position of affairs if the Bill is put through in its present form. The Board is first to lay down rules and regulations. That is their first duty, and that cannot be done in an hour. It is not my intention to speak at any length upon the Bill at the present moment, but it does strike me that it is a curious Bill in its present form, and I cannot understand why it does not provide that a third member may be nominated by the Governor in Council, and then in the absence of Sir John Crosbie they would have the power to provide for somebody else to go ahead in his absence. There will be some men arriving week by week, but none can avail of it, and those that are here will be out of port in a week or two and so will others. I do not think, Sir, that any benefit or gain will be derived by the passing of the Bill in its present form.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN:—Mr. President, I take this opportunity of speaking on this Bill. I think it is nonsense to talk of such a Bill, because many of us know many of the captains of ships and know that most of them have come up from the lowest rung of the ladder and have to be congratulated upon it. Our men have done as well as men with certificates, and a great deal better. I do not see what is the meaning of this Bill. I think the Lower House must want something to do, and so they brought uo this Bill. I agree with all Mr. Bishop said about it. It is only going to cause inconvenience to the trade of the country to look for men with certificates, and how long it is going to take a man to get a certificate I would like to learn. I have vessels and have men go across with cargoes of fish, and the men have no certificates but they do just as well and better than the men with navigation. When a ship goes down, we blame the captain, but it is often because of the ship. Give a man a good ship and he will bring her across, but when you give him a shell, why then it has got to go down. It is not the captain's fault; it is the fault of the ship, and some of the men who brought in this Bill built some of the rotten ships. I agree with all Mr. Bishop said. I hope the House will not pass this Bill.

HON. SIR PATRICK McGRATH:—Could the honourable gentleman who is in charge of the Bill let us have some information as to the number of men who will be affected? I understood it was something over one hundred, as I am informed that there are over a hundred vessels that there would be difficulty in getting masters for.

HON. MR. SHEA:—I am informed that there are about two hundred and fifty or three hundred men in sight. I would suggest that we let the second reading go through and any information that can be procured I shall be glad to get when we are in Committte.

The Bill was thereupon read a second time, and ordered to be referred to a Committee of the Whole House on to-morrow.

Second reading of the Bill entitled "An Act respecting the Issue of Certain Debenture Bonds of the Colony."

HON. MR. SHEA:—This Bill is rendered necessary because of the fact that in some of the debentures that were issued under the Loan Act of 1919 it transpired that the signatures of Sir Michael Cashin and Mr. Bennett to these deventures were affixed after they had ceased to occupy office, and it is in order to remove all doubts as to the validity of these debentures that this Bill is introduced. I beg to move the second reading of the Bill.

The Bill was then read a second time, and ordered to be referred to a Committee of the Whole House on tomorrow.

Second reading of Codfish Exportation Bill.

HON. MR. SHEA:—In moving the second reading of this Bill I would say that the principle of the Bill is to create a Codfishery Exportation Board which would consist of seven members: the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Chairman; four members appointed by the Governor in Council who shall be licensed exporters of codfish and two members appointed by a majority of the exporters of codfish. The principle of the Bill is the regulation of the exportation of codfish from this Colony to the foreign market. I do not think there can be very much question as to the principle of the Bill, that is, the regulation of the exportation of codfish, whatever questions there may be with regard to the details of the working out of these regulations, and on these grounds, Mr. President, I would ask the second reading of this Bill. When we go into Committee, of course, we would be prepared to go into particulars and take up each paragraph.

HON. MR. RYAN:—Mr. President, I wish to say a few words on the Fishery Regulations which were put in force last October and November. I have just returned from London, and while there I had several interviews with Messrs. Hawes & Co., and got from them some figures as to the quantity of Newfoundland fish held in Spain by them up to the 28th of April.

Mr. Hawes then had his stores filled, and his sales were very small, which no doubt was caused by the regulation prices then in force, viz.:—85/— for Labrador and 90/— for Shore, while our competitors, the Norwegians and French were supplying the market and selling freely at from 10/— to 15/— per quintal under our prices for the Newfoundland fish. In fact sales of Labrador fish were practically stopped.

These are the sales given me by Mr. Hawes for the four weeks in April:

Sales Labrador	Qtls.
1st week	100
2nd week	512
3rd week	none
4th week	350
	962

Sales of Shore for 4 weeks	Qtls.
1st week	1800
2nd week	1700
3rd week	1400
4th week	2500
	7400

Mr. Hawes had in his stores in Spain on May 1st:

Labrador fish	18,675	Qtls.
And on passage about	8,000	"
Making a total of	26,675	"
S. fish in store same date	40,000	"
And on passage about	17,000	"
Making a total of	57,000	"

The figures will show you the quantity of fish held in Spain by Hawes & Co., but had Mr. Hawes reduced his prices to 75/— or 78/— no doubt he would not have his stores blocked as they were. He had to meet competition, and he should have been given a free hand to sell the fish at his own discretion and let it go into consumption, instead of piling it into his store at the expense of the shipper.

At the wind up of this fish business the shippers will have to pay storage, fire insurance, handling, etc., and loss in interest, and no doubt the deterioration in weight of from fifteen to twenty per cent. This was always about the shrinkage, (it may be more or less). I am of opinion sir, that of the fish shipped from Newfoundland since the first of January, that when the shippers get their account sales for this fish next November and December that many of us will have cold feet. I am glad to learn that many shippers have changed their opinions now about the Fishery Regulations from what they were last fall. Fixed regulation prices for fish or any other produce will not work when you have competition to face, and we have more competition in the fish trade now than ever known before.

It was always the custom with the London brokers to advance seventy-five per cent (75%) cash against shipments of fish on receipt of bills of lading to any person who wanted money. Mr. Hawes did the same last fall and early winter, but whatever has happened now he will not advance a cent on any shipment, cargo or parcel.

Mr. President, we all know the cost by sad experience of storing fish in foreign countries to be retailed as against an outright sale. No man of experience will consign if he can make an outright sale, but if a company enters into building stores for that purpose, why surely they don't want to make outright sales, because it may pay them better to store and retail their goods.

The result of consigning fish has always been bad, and my experience is never do it if you can sell outright even at a loss. I hope the Government will abandon any regulation of prices for sale of codfish abroad, but enforce a strict cull this year so that the man who makes good fish will get paid for it, and the fellow who makes bad fish will get paid accordingly. In the past there was no encouragement for the making of good fish, because the talqual system killed it, and the bad fish sold at about the same price as the good. The war is over, and every country is now catching codfish. We must compete with them as to prices in the foreign markets, or our fish will not sell. We cannot afford to put our fish in store now in Spain, Italy, Greece or Portugal, and keep a fixed price on it. We should sell it outright, and let every man sell his own goods, and not be muzzled with regulation prices, it will never work.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN:—Mr. President, I have been dealing with fish for years. We have the same old story—Let the Government enforce a strict cull. Mr. Ryan knows as well as I do that no Government will bring in a strict cull. They are not so foolish as that. Now I am surprised that Mr. Ryan thinks that any Government is going to impose a strict cull. Mr. Ryan and I have slaved time and again to get members elected, and for what, so that they may get jobs for themselves. Last year during the elections I attended to my own business, and I should have done that long ago. Everybody is talking about the regulations and what the Government is going to do. I must quote some Scripture, though I don't suppose we give much heed to that now: "A house divided against itself cannot stand." We have talked about the fish regulations in the papers and everywhere, and the people away think that we have enough fish to supply them for the next twenty years. The man who makes flour in Canada cares a lot about our having fish to sell. Instead of getting together and forming regulations ourselves, the Government has had to form them, and we are all fighting together about them. I think this country has had enough of politicians, and we ought to think about our duty generally and not think about the regulations. Let us be one on what is right and proper and not be fighting one another. Mr. President, I think all this talk will damage us. Coming back to the regulations, I think myself the regulations are good, but all the lies talked about fishery matters naturally reached other countries, and the people say, "We needn't worry about fish; we can get loads from Newfoundland any time we want it." Why do we not get together and agree on reasonable regulations to enable us to market our fish. And then again, why should we send to Spain a lot of fish not fit to throw overboard, with the result that a man who has good fish has got to sacrifice it? I have been shipping fish for years, and every cask I send over is A1, but the rotten fish that goes over to the other side spoils our markets.

HON. MR. RYAN:—I am sorry I cannot agree with my honourable friend from Bonavista in all he has said about the culling of fish, about the regulations and all that sort of thing. He does not know whether it is good or bad. I am sure he is fully aware that the cull of fish until a few years ago was good all round; then some commenced to take fish talqual, and this has resulted disasterously to the fishery interests of the country. Every man now in the outports all round the Island is trying to make as bad as he can, because if John or Thomas or Henry take pains to cure his fish well he gets no more than the man who scarcely spreads it for an hour. He puts it out for half a day and then brings it to Mr. Templeman or somebody alse and says it is the best fish, and the merchant will take it because everybody wants to handle all the fish he can. I am sure the Government has a good motive in these regulations with regard to cull, and as the Minister of Marine and Fisheries is deeply interested in the fishery he will insist upon having a stricter cull. I am insupport of regulations with respect to the cull of codfish. As regards the regulation prices, they were alright, so far as I know, up to a certain date, but when the Norwegian and French insisted upon on putting fish into Spain and other places against ours, the regulations should have been lifted at once and Mr. Hawes, who had charge of most of the fish from Newfoundland, should have had a free hand to sell the codfish he held and compete with those other men and not allow his fish or our fish from Newfoundland to rot, as some of it is doing now in Spain.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN:—There is no good fish rotting .

HON. MR. RYAN:—There will be a great deterioration in the fish which Mr. Hawes has over in Spain and there will be insurance, labor and other charges and the quicker that fish sells, the better, and I am surprised that people in Newfoundland in this combine, so to speak, do not give Mr. Hawes a freer hand to sell the fish. At the time I was in London, Mr. Hawes was suffering greatly; he was a sick man and this fish was on his mind. He had his stores filled and could not sell his fish, while the other people were selling it freely. Hon. Mr. Templeman said he did not know whether the regulations were good or bad, but I know they were bad as soon as French fish came in Mr. Hawes should have had a free hand.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN:—Who bound Mr. Hawes' hands?

HON. MR. RYAN:—You know that. You heard tell of the Big Six last fall. You were not on the ground floor, but on the roof and ought to know who bound Mr. Hawes' hands.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN:—Hon. Mr. Ryan talks about the cull of fish. Well I am 60 years of age and Mr. Ryan is about 70. I suppose he has been handling fish since he was a boy, and so have I. He knows that the late Mr. James Ryan and D. A. Ryan took in many a hundred quintals of slimy fish for No. 1 Merchantable, and I can swear to it.

HON. MR. RYAN:—That was to take it away from you.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN:—That was before I was in business at all, and helped you to make a lot money which you could not make now, because you had a lot of honest men then.

HON. MR. RYAN:—Are we not all honest men? Have you ever met a rogue?

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN:—Hon. Mr. Ryan brought up the question of cull. Now I know the difference between a salmon and a codfish, and between a herring and a caplin, but there are some men sent out from this town now to buy fish and they do not know West India from Madeira, or Cullage from Merchantable. I have turned away thousands of quintals and wish I had turned away thousands more. The cullers are the same as forty years ago, and in fact do not know as much about fish now as then. Where is the Government going to get cullers; experience men who know a codfish from a caplin, and when they do know are independent enough to say which is which. I have been at it for 40 years and cannot get them. I have two and they know too well and are not allowed to cull at all. I should like to see the Government tackle the thing, but am afraid they will not. It is not the cull that requires mending, it is the handling of the fish after it is caught, so that we wont be sending rotten fish to market. I have fish over there that I am not ashamed of, but unfortunately we have a lot of rotten shippers who send over fish not fit to eat. Some of them will get hurt, and I hope they do; but unfortunately I will get hurt with them. Then you get schoolboys shipping fish and flooding the markets and when that happens I think it is time for the Government to take a hand, and prevent that and prevent any but experienced men from shipping fish. How many cargoes are over there now from the West Coast, from people who never shipped a good fish: West India shipped for Large Merchantable, and I can swear to what I say, and I can bring witnesses to prove it too. The Government will have its hands full. I hope they will do something to compel people to handle fish as an article of food and not as if it was manure.

The Bill was read a second time and ordered to be committed on to-morrow.

On motion the remaining Orders of the Day were deferred.

HON. PRESIDENT read message from the Assembly that they had passed the following Bills in which they asked the concurrence of this Chamber, namely, An Act to amend Chap. 35 of the Consolidated Statutes entitled of the Postal and Telegraph Service, and An Act respecting the Preservation of Beavers.

Said Bills were read a first time and ordered to be committed on to-morrow.

House then adjourned until Friday next at four o'clock.

FRIDAY, June 4th, 1920.

House met at 4.00 p.m. pursuant to adjournment.

On motion of the Hon. Mr. Gibbs the Bill "An Act to amend the Income War Tax Act, 1918," was read a third time, passed, and ordered to be sent to the House of Assembly, with a message intimating that the Council had passed the Bill without amendment.

On motion the House went into Committee on the Bill "An Act to Check Profiteering." Hon. Mr. McNamara in the Chair.

HON. MR. STEER:—Mr. Chairman:—Before this Bill is taken up section by section, I would like to make a few remarks concerning it, and I would begin by criticizing its very title. An act to check profiteering would presup-pose that profiteering had been going on to a greater or lesser extent for some time, and this I very much question, in spite of all that has been appearing in sections of the daily Press for some time.

There may have been at times, an extra profit made on beef, pork, flour, sugar or other speculative articles, which are subject to continued fluctuations in price, but such profit obtained on any one article has only served in most cases to offset losses made on other goods of the same class.

Lloyd George, in the British House of Commons in February last during the debate on the Address in Reply from the Speech from the Throne stated that any one, who said that the present high prices were due to profiteering, either was ignorant of the facts or was wilfully deceiving the public, and in my humble opinion he only stated what was true.

The Bill before us does not give any definition of profiteering and, therefore, we are more or less in the dark as to its intention, but we are justified to a certain extent in presuming that its intention is to limit the profits made on any one particular article, and I maintain that such is preeminently unfair to the general trader who, as I have already pointed out, whilst he might be making an extra profit on one particular article, at the same time may be making an extra heavy loss on two or three other lines of goods. In fact, we have had a typical example of this during the past few months for whilst an extra profit has been made on sugar (and not a very great one at that) heavy losses have during the same time been incurred on porks and beefs amounting anywhere from $6.00 to $10.00 per barrel and possibly more in some cases. It, therefore, seems to me that the average profit made by any particular firm can be the only criterion by which you can decide as to whether or not that firm has been profiteering.

Again, Mr. Chairman, in section 3 if we read the last paragraph "Provided "that a rate of profit which does not "exceed the fair average rate earned "by persons in the same way of busi-"ness as the seller upon the sale of "similar articles under pre-war condi-"tions, shall not be deemed unreason-"able," we have no clear definition what may constitute a reasonable or unreasonable profit, although we have here mentioned pre-war rates as a guide, but it does not state whether it is to mean rate per lb. or single article, or percentage rate. If the former, it is manifestly absurd, as I will endeavour to show. Take the item sugar for instance as an example which when costing say 6c. per lb. would possibly have been sold at 7c. showing a gross profit of about 14% (what the nett profit on this would be it would be hard to estimate).

I might have made it cost 5c. per lb. and sell at 6c. and so made it show an increasing percentage of profit but I do not wish to exaggerate the case in providing my point.

It would be manifestly an injustice to those concerned in handling sugar, and would I think possibly in many cases lead to retailers refusing to handle sugar at all, were it to be enforced that because sugar was sold at a gross profit of 1c. per lb. when costing 6c., it should have to be sold at a profit of less than 2c. per lb. when costing over 28c., in the former case returning a profit of about 14% and in the latter only about 4%.

If you take into consideration the fact that all cartage, labour, wages and overhead expenses have gone from between 100 to 200%, the trade is perfectly justified in looking for at least the same percentage of profit, and then they are not netting as much as they did before.

I would, therefore, propose that when we come to section 3, last paragraph, the words "Per Centage" should be inserted (as an amendment) between the words "Average and Rate," making it to read "Fair average percentage rate."

Just one other matter Mr. Chairman, and then I have done. Take the first clause in the Act and section 10.

It seems to me there is a great discrimination here; under the first clause, the producer, handler, distributor for home consumption is to be controlled and penalized, whilst under section 10 the producer, handler, and distributor for exportation is free to get whatever prices he likes. Codfish, herring, canned salmon, lobster, rabbit, produced for home consumption may have prices regulated, but the same articles for export may be profiteered in to the utmost limit. It may even happen that under the able leadership of the present Minister of Agriculture and Mines, we may within a short period have vegetables and cattle to export; would these consumed locally have prices restricted whilst those exported be absolutely free from all control.

Take the Act as a whole, as to whether it is to prove a benefit or otherwise, all depends upon the way it is carried out by the Food Control Board. It may prove a benefit and possibly restrain enigmatical profiteering whilst it may also be the means of perpetrating rank injustice on a certain section of the community, notably the small retailer (and in fact the larger merchant) for while owing to the increased cost of living wages of all classes have advanced so considerably, yet although the cost of living of the distributor has gone up in an equal proportion as well as all overhead expenses, he may not be permitted by the Act to make any increased profit to offset this, which may result in a bankruptcy.

But with the personnel of the Board such as it is with possibly one or two additional, (so that all classes affected may be represented), we can I hope feel reasonably assured that the interest of all concerned will be fully conserved, and that no one section of the community will be penalized at the expense of another.

SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Before we proceed further with that section, Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the honourable gentleman who is Chairman of the Food Control Board if he would give us some information as to what steps, if any, the Board has taken to keep prices within control. If there any article at present under control, apart from sugar; I understand sugar is under control.

HON. MR. MEWS:—The only article under control of the Board is sugar.

SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Has any other article been under the control of the Board since it took office?

HON. MR. MEWS:—No only flour.

SIR P. T. McGRATH:—That is not so much control as regulation. Are you exercising any control over the price?

HON. MR. MEWS:—No absolute control.

SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Are you exercising a contingent control?

HON. MR. MEWS:—In a general way we are watching and know what is going on.

SIR P. T. McGRATH:—But you have no machinery in operation, is that not so? Are you controlling butterine: Have you any control over the price of butterine? or of hard biscuit?

HON. MR. MEWS:—In relation to butterine I may say that one of the factories here is merely keeping itself above water and we found we could do nothing to control the price or make it less. We are not controlling the price of hard biscuit.

SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Then it comes down to this, Mr. Chairman, that the Board of Food Control as we have it now is exercising no control whatever except as regards the matter of sugar which has been dealt with during the last few days. The Board consists of five members. Our Board consisted of three. It is within the knowledge of various gentlemen here that during the time we were working, we, by virtue of conferences with importers of various articles, and by the exercise of the powers which the existing law gave us, were able to exercise, and did so, control over various articles I spoke of. We restricted profits on all these articles and we required the dealers in them to satisfy us as to the justice of their claims for an increase in the prices before allowing any such increase to be made. I do not want to strain the position because it is familiar to everybody, but we were and myself particularly, denounced most vehemently for our failure to check profiteering and reduce prices. Now the hon. gentleman who last spoke questions whether there was any profiteering. I would like to point out to the Manifesto of the Hon. Prime Minister was very strong on that point. He said (extract).

Well now, the House has been in session for six weeks and we are only dealing with the matter now. I pointed out the other day that the Government, if disposed, could have dealt with this matter long ago under the War Measures Act. In proof of that I would cite the fact that yesterday's Gazette announced certain regulations respecting the cost of salt, limitinfi the price to be charged. Now what is the position to-day? I would not speak so strongly about this, but I am sure hon. gentlemen will understand that I feel strongly on the matter in that I was singled out as a target for 90% of the denunciation directed against the Food Board, one member of which was I might point out, a member of the F. P.U., Mr. Geo. Grimes, and I would like to say here that a more zealous, conscientious colleague I have never hay anything to do with in all my ex_perience. Mr. Steer asked for the definition of a profiteer: Well I do not know, but I do know the definition under the English Bill, given by Sir Auckland Geddes, now Ambassador at Washington, which is as follows: (Read).

And he touches on the very point the hon. gentleman made because it excludes from the purport of the Bill transactions in the export trade. One of the gravest charges made with regard to profiteering in the Old Country was against Coates & Co., the famous thread manufacturers in Parsley, who increased the price to something like 10d. a reel. Coates' defence is that they have been selling the article to the British commoner at the veriest margin of profit and the enormous profit realized has been made by profiteering on the unfortunate outsider. The same exists regarding tobacco. The British Government appointed a Committee to investigate into tobacco and other articles, and at its head put Sydney Webb, one of the leading economists in the British Isles, and they reported that the Imperial Tobacco Company had used control of 60% of the domestic trade to keep prices down and quality up, and nevertheless made £4,560,000 profit on the prices charged to outsiders. Now I do not develop that point to claim that it is just to profiteer at the expense of the foreigner, but that is really what everybody is doing: That is the root fact of our fishery legislation we are bringing in here to_day. As to whether there is profiteering in this country at present is a matter of which there are various opinions. I may say as a result of my two years experience that attempts were made. Some very flagrant cases were brought to our notice but the difficulty was to get somebody to come forward and give evidence. A magistrate in an outport made a complaint to the people accused. They supplied an explanation which reached us at a time the magistrate came here on a visit. I asked him to come in and he immediately backed down. He did not want to get into any trouble with his neighbours and the result was we could go no further. My personal conviction is this Act will never be availed of, and no prosecutions will be initiated. I can sympathize with the point of view of the hon. gentleman across the floor. He was a member of one, if not more, Committees representing the dealers in food stuffs that worked with us in the old Food Board and I think he will admit we tried to do the square thing by all. Sometimes people were hit hard, but I think on the whole in dealing with a difficult subject we managed to hold the balance fairly even. Another hon. gentleman appointed was connected with the manufacture of articles we had to take under our purview, and I think he will say the same. If I may be allowed to say so without offence to the hon. gentleman who succeeded me, the Food Board to-day is not functioning. With the exception of sugar, which when action could be no longer postponed, nothing has been done to control prices. I think if the Board were to take up the matter of regulating prices as we did up to last year there would be more satisfactory results to the general public than by passing such a Bill as this.

HON. MR. MEWS:—Might I ask did freight rates come down while you were investigating conditions?

HON. SIR PATRICK McGRATH:—No, but we compelled the railway and steamer companies to come before us and submit the costs of running the same and give all information we considered necessary.

HON. MR. MEWS:—Of course it would be hardly fair for us to take credit for the fact that to-day rates are going down. I know from our own operations that rates are going down.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Do you claim that rates are down compared with what they were on the first of April?

HON. MR. MEWS:—That to my information.

HON. MR. STEER:—The last speaker, Hon. Sir P. T. McGrath, made reference as to what is being done as regards hard bread and butter. I may tell him for his information that the public are getting the benefit of competition to such an extent at practically cost. As far as butter is concerned the factories are doing so badly that one of them went into insolvency.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—The hon. gentleman says the people are getting the benegt through competition in hard bread. That is not creditable to the Food Board. My position is that the manufacturers of hard bread were never allowed to increase the pirces until after they had submitted figures showing the cost of production, and we did not permit so great an increase as asked for.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—Will you please enlarge on the hard bread, as I am particularly interested.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I would be quite willing to have the hon. gentleman state the position as he is better acquainted with the facts.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—As we are on that perhaps the history of the hard bread business might be known. When the war began the hard bread manufacturers—Harvey and ourselves—laid in a very considerable quantity of low priced flour, and kept ourselves, as far as finances would allow, well stocked up, and the price for two and a half years. I think it was kept at pre-war prices, and finally when we asked the Food Board for an increase we could only show for the previous six months a profit of 20 cents per bag. We asked, as flour had gone up several dollars per barrel, that we should be allowed a somewhat further profit, and the reply was that if we were satisfied with twenty cents per bag profit previously why now should we look for a higher rate, and they refused to allow any further increase. Imay say that it was at the request of the trade we asked this increase; it was not for myself; but at their request after a meeting with Harvey and ourselves as to the price on bread. Of course the trade did not believe us as to what we were making and how we had given them the advantage of two and a half years cheap flour; they never do, if they do not get their own way, and the consequence was that some of them started in on another bakery and developed the trade bakery and imagined they were going to make a fortune out of hard bread. Of course at present there are very small profits on bread and will be until of course someone goes under. As far as Harvey and ourselves are concerned we never had any controversy. We got together at the start of the war and determined to keep going and we never made more with the exception of a short time when I was away through ill health there was some little larger profit on bread, but immediately on my return in October last the price was reduced. I do not mind anybody seeing our returns, as they will show we did not pay any profit tax. My income came from outside my business.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I am quite satisfied that that substantiates the position I took that the late Board utilized the machinery it had to keep prices down. I may say as regards Hon. Mr. Browning and also Mr. Harvey we found they were imbued with the spirit to be satisfied with a minimum profit. And it is true also the trade on Water Street wanted a larger profit. Mind you I do not say that was profiteering, because it must be remembered that with 20 cents profit on a bag of bread costing $4.00, they would be entitled to 40c. on $8.00 bread, but we did not give it to them. The same with butterine. On at least three occasions they approached us for permission to raise the cost, and in every instance we gave them permission but not to the extent they asked, and before doing so we had the Auditor General go over their books and make a report as to conditions and what increase he thought justified. According to the report made we dealt with the situation. And it was the same with everything else. The gentleman opposite who is an importer of flour knows this.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—He also imports baking-powder.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I hope his operation in this will be as successful as his operation in flour. Now that disposes of these two matters. I say that the whole situation is a reflection upon the agitation against the late Food Control Board, of which I, in the last election, was considered the worst character, for making the people eat 'hog feed.' I saw in an advertisement, I do not want to do an injustice, but I saw the Food Control Board had an advertisement to issue permits for Government Standard Flour. This is not pre-war flour, but Government Standard is good flour.

HON. MR. MEWS:—It was simply the Food Control Board making an agreement to get pre-war, that is white flour, we were not licensing war standard flour. The general concensus of opinion is that we do not want war flour.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—There has been no grading of flour of Canada since Armistice was signed.

HON. MR. MEWS:—They are not using pre-war flour.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—They are using equivalent to it. I am subject to correction.

HON. MR. WINTER:—Standard grade is higher than war-war-standard.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—There are 6 P.C. and 4 P.C. and 2 P.C. The worst is the 6% extraction. Is that flour being sold here now? To_day we can get into Newfoundland all pre-war flour from Canada.

HON. MR. MEWS:—A concession has been granted. We can get white pre-war flour. We are getting a better flour than that allowed to be used in Canada.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Yes, I know that. But why issue permits to bring in second grade Canadian flour? Can we charge the same price as for better flour.

HON. MR. MEWS:—The object in advertising the issuing of permits was to find out whether Government Standard or pre-war flour was required. No permits have however been issued for Government Standard Flour. In case of the outports we have written a letter requiring whether pre-war or war standard was intended in their applications. In most cases the reply has not come yet, and for this reason more details cannot at present be given.

HON. MR. STEER:—I thought these remarks of the hon. member a criticism of the Food Control Board. What has Food Control Board to do if not to regulate prices which are going up.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I did not wish to criticise Control Board. I have been bombarded for so long I wished to make my case clear. I meant nothing in the nature of striking below the belt. I recognise the difficulty of the subject to be discussed; personally it is a matter of unfastening points. With respect to two items we have the statement that nothing has been done. I did not know the price of butterine was higher. The price had not increased before we went out. I do say that the gentlemen are taking no steps with regard to other things of hard bread. The Food Control Board is not functionating except with regard to sugar.

HON. MR. WINTER:—I wish to make a few remarks in connection with butterine. Had the price continued as made by Control Board all factories would be closed up. Hon. Mr. Steer stated that one closed as a result of the restrictions put in force by Food Control Board.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—It was not alone because of restrictions.

HON. MR. WINTER:—Because of losing money. The second would have closed up if permission had not been given to increase price. They would have had to go out of business because they were manufacturing at a considerable loss. As many of you know a considerable quantity of creamery butter is used in the manufacture of butterine. The price was raised from fifty to sixty cents. Canadian cream_ery was bought for sixty-seven to seventy cents. Was it possible to manufacture butterine for forty cents a pound and put seventy cent butter in it? The mere fact of two factories having to go out of business was good evidence that there was no profiteering. The third factory paid a small dividend due to their being fortunate in making purchase of raw material. The fourth factory I am not in a position to know of. There is no profiteering in butterine. It is the worst paying industry in the country. No industry paid smaller dividends than butterine factory. This does away with the idea of profiteering. To-day we are buying butter for forty-five cents a pound in the making of which seventy cent butter was used.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—One or two factories went out of business. I do not know to what extent we were responsible. There were other causes operating besides our operation. The factory on the West Coast (I hope I am not bringing in private affairs) I know at one time asked permission to put up the price. One difficulty was in procuring cattle and another the inability to get raw material. Our Food Control restrictions may have been the last straw. They were not responsible entirely. We were between the devil and the deep sea, trying to keep price down on the one hand and to keep price up on the other for the operatin of the industry. We tried to hold th balance evenly. This manifesto shows what thanks we got for it. However, unless occasioned to explain anything I do not purpose delaying the Committee longer.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—When this Bill was introduced I asked "What is profiteering?" What is profiteering is left to the arbitrary decision of the Committee. It appears that the manufacturer is not allowed to exact even due profit. I will quote a case. Last year I imported one thousand bags of sugar. This was all taken away from me. Two hundred bags were re-sold to me at a considerably higher price than mine, the other eight hundred bags were distributed to my opponents in business. My foresight and enterprise had put me in a position to make money out of this a legitimate business transaction but I was debarred from doing so by the Food Control Committee. There is no definite regulation to this effect. We have heard to-day that one party went out of business on account of arbitrary control on account of this control, and this is why I object to this measure. We have only their own judgment to go by. If we are going to pass a Bill of this kind we should know what is meant by "profiteering." At the end of the year we make a living profit of five or seven per cent in pre-war times. Expenses are doubled or trebled since then. If we not get a percentage of profit we cannot live. If those people who do a general business dealing in pork, beef, etc., lose on one article they could not increase profit on another. Before discussing this Bill in a reasonable way we must know what "profiteering" is. Then we can deal with it in an intelligent manner, and formulate a scale of prices by percentage or otherwise.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—The hon. gentleman has not studied the Bill sufficiently well. The Board has not arbitrary control. There is right, given under the Act, to appeal from the decision of Board to the Supreme Court. The function of the Board is to investigate complaints made with regard to unreasonable profit, and to protect the public interest. The Board determines what reasonable profit is. If party is not satisfied he may appeal to the Supreme Court. It is a question of reasonableness. Parties have to give a fair account of what is reasonable, what is fair under the circumstances. Profiteering is the making of unreasonable profit. When the facts are known in connection with importation, cost at landing, cost of getting into store, expenses in connection with sale of article, what is a legitimate profit for seller to charge to the consumer, that should not be a very difficult matter to determine or to deal with, provided all facts and circumstances are brought out before court.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I was reading an outstanding case on this side of the water during the past few weeks, arising out of the operation of the original Food Control Board of Canada. A Court of Commerce was set up to decide all these questions.

This Act is word for word the English Act.—The necessity appears to exist in England too—rate of profit not percentage of profit.—One of the first matters the Court was called upon to deal with was that of the Canadian newspapers re the manufacture of paper—the price was too high. The Court decided in favour of newspapers. If decision given against manufacturers was not satisfactory it could be refuted by Supreme Court in two weeks. No man can be injured by this. Obviously it would be unfair for the Board to act in its own case. The Board lays complaint before a magistrate. It has a right to fix certain prices under certain conditions. If the retailer is dissatisfied he goes up to the Supreme Court and gets satisfaction.

HON. MR. MEWS:—I just intend making a few remarks very briefly. I think Sir Patrick will acknowledge that while he was Chairman of the Food Control Board I was in the same boat with him, politically, and I tried to get a fair view of matters. In the first place the old Food Control Board took up operations in the general clamour for something to be done; war had come. Matters that were extraordinary came up. Flour went up considerably in price. The public got wind of it. That brought them into investigation into those industries in which flour and other substances were used and in which advances had been made. As a result they controlled the industries and were in a position to ask these industries to seek from the Food Board any increase in price. As a matter of fact, the Food Board has more to less to function along that way. I mean they cannot go down into every shop on Water Street and find out the price of every article that is sold in order to say that they are profiteering. The machinery is not there, and it is impossible for a Board to do all that it perhaps should do in that way, but that the old Board had these things under control, and, as has been evidenced this afternoon, under very drastic control in which no profiteering was done, in a way prepared the ground for the new Board, and unless anything very drastic occurred in prices it was not necessary to go to all the trouble they had. I may say that as Chairman of the Food Board I made it my business to inform myself on lots of these matters and to approach some of the men who were interested in industries and food stuffs in order to find out if there were any grounds for action. It is perhaps preferable to work in this way sometimes. As to the Board not functioning, well, I guess Hon. Mr. McGrath knows what time they spent and what meetings they had, and perhaps he can imagine that we have not been altogether sitting in our office day after day without doing something in connection with the Food Board and the duties we are supposed to do. We have meetings many times a week. The charge that we are not functioning is scarcely correct for the honourable gentleman to make, as he himself has pointed out that we had an investigation into the price of milk, as he also had in his day. From the evidence that we got we found that it seemed to be a perfectly legitimate rise in the price and we sanctioned the increase. In one week for our own information we took up the matter of dry goods and as far as possible we classified dry goods and had the importers appear before us and see what profit they put on these goods. With regard to the Profiteering Bill, I do not propose to say anything much. Sir Patrick McGrath thinks there will be no complaints at all under it. If so, I do not think we should worry very much about what the honourable friend at my left wants with respect to reasonable profit. Of course, one would naturally go into the circumstances of each case and the defendant would be at liberty to bring in all the evidence he wished in regard to it. With regard to general control, there has been a great outcry against it, but I think that in many instances the Board can show that it has kept prices down. Business conditions in Newfoundland to-day are not quite what they have been in the last three or four years, and I take it it is not the duty of a Food Board either to take upon itself the duty of regulating all the business or attempt to interfere to such an extent that it would seriously injure the trade of the Colony. To my mind the matter of profiteering is something that should be taken up now in order that the public may be satisfied one way or the other whether their demands or their clamour is correct. As to bringing complaints to the Food Board with respect to profiteering, as I stated on another occasion when Sir Patrick McGrath was not present, if the Consumers' League that was formed some weeks ago comes into operation that would form a central body to which anyone could make complaints and they, being impersonal, might place the complaint before us, and in that way people would not be afraid of bringing complaints when the complaints were thought to be justified.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—As to percentage increase, if the increase is allowed on a percentage basis the people will be making much more profit than before the war. Some time ago when the cost of putting out bread went up we were not allowed any more profit per bag than we were allowed on the bread when it cost only half or not half as much. We wanted to increase our profits and the discount to the trade. We went to the Food Control Board and placed the circumstances before them, and their reply was, "No, we will not allow it." They allowed us to make twenty cents per bag only and the same amount they allowed to the trade for selling it, in spite of the fact that the cost had increased very much.

HON. MR. STEER:—But you were not asking for any more profit. You were merely asking for the same profit on the same capital invested.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—If on a given quantity of bread in a year I make a profit and on that turnover for the next year I am allowed to double that profit, surely I am making twice the profit. Supposing I put out 50,000 bags upon which I make 20c. profit per bag, and put out next year 50,000 bags upon which I make 40c. per bag, surely I am making double the profit.

HON. MR. STEER:—Yes, exclusively of trade discount.

HON. MR. BROWNING: — All charges of whatsoever sort are added to the cost of a bag of bread, whether discount or anything else, labor, raw material and everything, and over and above all the cost you are allowed a profit that is 20c. a bag. If you are allowed 40c. you are surely doubling your profit.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I think there is some misunderstanding in this matter. It is quite correct that when these gentlemen came to us saying they were entitled to more profit we said in effect, "You may be entitled to get it, but you are not going to get it." Now if in Newfoundland at that time there had been a Board of Commerce to which these gentlemen could have gone, that Board of Commerce might have reversed our decision, but there was no higher authority to which they could go, and we got away with it.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—Does the honourable gentleman press his amendment?

HON. MR. STEER:—No.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—I would ask the honourable gentleman in charge of the Bill to explain what section 11 means.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—A Board appointed under the Act will be composed of persons living in the city of St. John's. Now if a complaint be made from some extern section of the country there would not be any opportunity for the Board to investigate the complaint and they may delegate their power to a Committee in that place or the Governor in Council may appoint Committees in places where complaints have been made for the purposes of investigating them or for the purpose of doing everything which the Board may do.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—I take it that that would not apply to St. John's.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—The Bill says "Local and other Committees." This Act is a copy of the English Act and this is part of the machinery created under that Act for its carrying out. There is a Minister of Food in England and then there are Committees in every town and almost every village, County Boards and every other kind of Boards to carry out the details of the Act (Section 12) I would suggest to the honourable gentleman that this section be amended. While in the previous section it will be noted the Governor in Council may appoint these local committees, under Section 12 the Board may make regulations as to the constitution, powers and procedure of such committees and these regulations without any approval of the Governor in Council become equivalent to a section of the Act. I think the regulations that are made by these Boards ought to be approved by the Governor in Council, the regulations having effect as though enacted in this Act "On approval by the Governor in Council."

Amendment carried.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Now there is this Section about excepting cases, "and in cases where local proceedings are taken, for the purpose of such proceedings." What is the meaning of that? I would suggest that that Section be deferred until we get some information.

Committee rose, reported progress and asked leave to sit again.

On motion the House adjourned until Monday next at four o'clock.

MONDAY, June 7th, 1920.

House met pursuant to adjournment.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Gibbs House went into Committee on the Bill entitled An Act to Check Profiteering. Hon. Mr. McNamara in the Chair.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Before the Bill passes I should like to refer to statement of the hon. gentleman now in charge of the Food Board a few days ago that freight rates inward were reduced. I gathered he had his information from Mr. Gosling, and I took the trouble to call up that gentleman this morning and was informed Hon. Mr. Mews must have misunderstood him. He said he understood the hon. gentleman to ask if freight rates inward had increased and he said "No," except as to outward. He then referred me to Mr. Cornick and he said no also, but freight rates outward had increased 20%.

HON. MR. MEWS:—Of course I have to take Mr. Gosling's explanation, but my recollection certainly is that he told me freights were coming down, and we were not talking of the Red Cross Line but of rates from Montreal and he certainly gave me the impression that if not down now were coming down and gave me an instance or two where rates were lessened.

The Committee rose and reported the Bill with some amendment, and it was ordered the Bill be read a third time on to-morrow.

HON. MR. GIBBS moved the House into Committee on the Encouragement of Agriculture Bill, Hon. Mr. Cook in the Chair.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—In explanation of this Bill I may say that it is an amendment to the two statutory laws at present in existence in relation to the expenditure of the Agricultural Vote. Previous to the war there was a vote of $20,000 for Agriculture and $20,000 for a Model Farm. This Model Farm seems never to have matured, but the money was absorbed in the General Agricultural Vote. Of course $20,000 is a ridiculous expenditure for such an important industry when you consider that the Game and Inland Fishery Board has an annual expenditure of $26,000. We are now asking for a small advance, $25,000 for the annual vote and $30,000 for a Model Farm. We are again reverting to the policy of Sir Robert Bond. Now perhaps the thought is running through the minds of hon. gentlemen that this is not an agricultural country. I admit that in part, but not in toto. I say that with what the climate and the soil can produce we can support one million of a population. I have compiled figures, and they are astonishing. I wil give you Dr. Talmies' figures for Canada last year. The total agricultural wealth was estimated at $7,379,299,000. The cause of that high figure is that everybody produces a little. While Newfoundland is not an agricultural country, I will give yau an estimate of our agricultural stock in trade. We have horses of the value of $2,401,-350; horned cattle, $2,398,620; hay, $2,431,191; potatoes, $3,131,490; turnips, $239,977, a total estimate of $10,-602,828. This does not include sheep, pigs, poultry, eggs, meat, fodder, oats and other produce, which, if added, would give a total estimate of twelve and a half millions of dollars for the year. Those figures are astounding to people who pronounce this not an agricultural country, but I think they are correct. It is our second industry, next to the fishery, yet this department is floating along with a grant of $20,-000 a year. Cumparing these figures with minerals and timber; timber of all kinds were valued at $1,006,231; paper pulp exported, $2,020,522 and minerals at exporters' valuation $627,-823. And if these figures are not correct and a little below par, still agriculture is our second industry and should be encouraged. We hope to encourage it and propose to encourage it and know it will be a long hard drive and will take years to do what should have been done long ago, that is to feed the people with what the soil will produce so that we will cease importing what we can produce ourselves. Now taking the question of vegetables, we might safely begin at the potatoe question, which is certainly a burning one with us, and I may say that there is no hopes that the products of the soil will be reduced in value for some years. We have some figures of Sir George Foster on this as follows:— During the Napoleonic war it took the world nine years to come down to normal, and there was an advance in prices then of something like 75%. During the Civil War in the United States, it took 12 years to come down to normal, and the advance was 100%, and now it will take 12 years, and prices have advanced from 120% to 300%. Consequently with these facts in our mind and the products of the soil increasing possibly, it is up to the people of Newfoundland to produce as much as they can during the next few years. The question of potatoes is most urgent at present. The production las year was ——— barrels, whereas imports were 35,084,2/3 barrels, so that another little push along would give us enough potatoes and importation would cease. We have tried in every way to encourage production. We investigated and found thirteen of our electoral districts infected with canker and we have approached the British Board and they have advised a canker-proof potato and we have imported 800 barrels of those and hope they will prove canker-proof in Newfoundland. They may prove a failure, but we can only give them a trial. Coming now to the subject of Model Farm we are following the footsteps of Sir Robert Bond, who I consider the best farmer in Newfoundland. We are asking for this small grant from the Government to start a Model Farm and stock-raising here in St. John's. There has been a good deal of stock at one time or another brought into the country. I am sorry to say that during the past ten years they have been a total failure. Cattle imported into the country should be hall-marked. We should not take any in future unless they are guaranteed.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Thirty thousand dollars seems a small amount of money to spend in the purchase of stock and the erection of buildings?

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—We are going to begin to crawl before we walk. It is our intention to erect but one building this year.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I congratulate the honourable member on the Annual Report of Agriculture which I enquired about a few days ago—(I read it with great interest)—and also on the industry and energy exhibited in the work of his department. I do not think that the amount of money stated however will be sufficient to accomplish what he has in view. Before the war forty thousand dollars was granted for agricultural purposes—twenty thousand for a Model Farm. This was used for agriculture generally. The Model Farm was allowed to drop and was ultimately eliminated altogether. Forty thousand then was as much as eighty thousand now. That amount won't represent as much in actual cash nor won't do as much as amount provided before the war. As far as expenditure of thirty thousand on a Model Farm is concerned, after he gets some buildings, registered stock, etc., I don't see that he will have much wherewith "To make white the South Side Hills with sheep." The present Government criticised the late administration—(I'll refrain from reading another extract from the Premier's Manifesto)—just as strongly in this connection and made a declaration just as detrimental to it as it did to the Food Control Board. The country will be disappointed—fifty-five thousand, which in round figures is twenty-seven thousand before the war, won't accomplish all he has in view, and I am afraid his expectations won't be realized.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—My hon. friend said at one time that model farms were no good. It is the boast of Canada that it has thirty-four; however, Sir Michael Cashin, another friend of mine, said we did not want any more fakes. Mr. Bennett, who knew all about agriculture, having got his earliest inspiration from Lord Morris—(he belongs to that school of agriculture called the 'Two Blade of Grass School')—made similar statements. Sir John Crosbie wanted us to vote a huge sum. We have taken over farm operated by the Lunatic Asylum, also the stock, and do not intend purchasing any buildings this year. We have also an excellent piece of land adjoining Mr. Steer's property. It was asked for about ten years ago for the purchase of building sanitoria for consumptives. I remember and some of the gentlemen present, no doubt, also remember—this was in the days when as a result of the return of the late Government Reids were going to give eighteen sanitoria to the Colony. We all went out there on the occasion of the laying of the corner stone. The Duke of Connaught laid the stone. It is there still. Next year I hope to grow a crop on this ground or have cattle on it belonging to the Model Farm. They call our Model Farm a fake! If they want to talk fakeing this $3500 piece of land will furnish them with material. It is a scandalous piece of fakeing. We hope now it will become a benefit to the country. We are going slowly and at the same time carefully. We propose putting a small demonstration farm on it, similar to the one at Great Slane Lake, Canada. I do not propose allowing those people to blackguard it, so I make this explanation.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I am not agriculturalist. I spoke on general principles. I am sorry that my remarks lead to such strong language from the hon .member. With reference to Sir Michael Cashin and Sir John Crosbie, they may not be agriculturists but they have probably done as much as the honourable member in this respect. I would be sorry to suggest that he knows all there is to know of agriculture. That they do know something is a question the House will probably be able to pronounce upon.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—I cannot agree with you on this point. They should not condemn policy of Model Farm when they know nothing about it.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I was never able to satisfy myself that beneficial results accrued from Sir Robert Bond's policy. The hon. gentleman opposite may be more successful. Now with reference to the sanatoria. They were offered in good faith. I do not think they were a fake. There were a variety of circumstances which prevented the plans being put into execution. The Duke of Connaught laid the corner stone only one month before war began. And however desirous the Reid's may have been to carry out the policy they may have been unable to go on with their programme. I think enquiries will show the Canadian authorities for the Model Farm were appointed through political influence.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—One is a veterinery surgeon!

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—He was a politician in the Federal Parliament at Ottawa. With regard to the thirty-four Model Farms. I have been amongst them. I spent a week with Professor Robertson negotiating for a visit to Newfoundland. It is generally admitted that model farms have proved a success in Canada, it being an agricultural country. Whether the hon. gentleman thinks the same thing will apply to a small fishing country like Newfoundland is another matter.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—It is our second industry.

HON. SIR P. T .McGRATH:—Except in a few districts in the neighbourhood of St. John's. Nobody in this country raises a ton of hay.

HON. MR. MEWS:—Oh, yes, there are many people who do.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Yes, in districts near St. John's—Torbay and other suburbs but in Bonavista Bay, Placentia and there abouts there are not. If gentlemen like Sir John Crosbie and Sir Michael Cashin express opinions, these are at least entitled to respect. The hon. gentleman does not know everything about this subject that there is to know. Both these men have had some experience and probably know as much about the subject as the hon. gentleman himself. However, if plan outlined is to be carried into effect on fifty-five thousand dollars and results attained he will have his hands full.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—My hon. friend made reference to Dr. J. W. Robertson. Here is what he says a month ago re Model Farms:

Toronto Globe, May 17th.

MODEL FARMS.

"On the productive side of her agriculture Canada is, as yet very imperfectly and incompletely organized. Locally it seemed to him there should be a Neighbourhood Improvement Association, grouped around an illustration farm, in every community of farmers in Canada. That would be one means whereby the people would organize themselves so that the ability of the Natural leaders of the locality would be brought into full use and play for the benefit of the neighbours, the development of the leaders themselves, and the improvement of the community."

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—The people of this country are not farmers.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—I congratulate the present Government on plan outlined to develop the agricultural industry of the Colony. I hope it will be the means of bringing down the price of potatoes. It was stated that 800 barrels of good seed potatoes had been procured presumably from Scotland, where some of the finest seed potatoes are to be obtained. With regard to the coal question. This country is being fleeced with the price of coal. I hope an effort will be made to reduce it. Matters can hardly be improved while we have such coal-carriers as the Neptune and Eagle, ships which can carry only 550 or 650 tons. It would be within the bounds of possibility, however, if we had steamers such as the Bonaventure and Bellaventure which could carry from 1300 to 1900 tons. It is true we have very few deep water piers but Shea & Co. and Furness Withy can accommodate large steamers and United Coal Company pier has 18 feet of water. Now Mr. Chairman, if some arrangements are made whereby we can get coal at lowest price from Belgium, France or Canada we are entitled to it. It has been sold cheaper behind the scenes and the sooner the Government gets behind the scenes the better. Coal could be sold much cheaper. The various expenses are not as large as sometimes thought. Two thousand tons of coal can be imported into this country and sold for $13 per ton. The person who gave me these figures imports more coal in one month than both my learned friends who disagree with him, do in one year. Now that means that for 2000 tons of coal we have to pay landed $23,085. If we add to that a profit of 10% the coal can still be sold at $25,000. Give a further $1000 or even $1500 for incidental increases and you will be able to sell the coal at $13 per ton.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Why not go into the business?

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—I am just telling what could be done. Suppose you can even sell it for $16.00 you will be doing something. But my hon. friend says 600,000 tons of ore were exported during the year; and it is on that I base my calculations. The situation is really better than that. That amount is only a make-believe. It is only the passing of an export entry on which 7½ cents per ton is paid as an export entry on ore. If you are sending Bell Island ore to North Sydney see that they send us in return decent coal. Here you have a company reckoned as being worth over $500,000,000; which can go to the monied interests of London and on that raise money. Probably the actual value are getting our ore, and are making absolutely no returns. It is time I urge, that the people of this country woke up to this fact. They are now being swindled with coal at $20.80 which is not fit to be called coal. Now, Mr. President, I congratulate the Hon. Minister of Agriculture and Mines on the ability he has displayed in the handling of his department; and here is one subject in relation thereto which I trust he will take up. He is big enough I am sure to grapple with it, and he knows as well as I do that this amount of $627,000 is a make-believe; arrived at for the benefit of export entries. I do hope that when he comes here next year and asks for $100,000 for agriculture, he will have had an opportunity to go into this matter. We will support his agriculture policy; and trust that his efforts in the direction I have mentioned will be quite as successful

HON. MR. BISHOP:—Mr. Chairman, I feel quite sure the figures of the Minister of Agriculture and Mines are very interesting; and I am sure we all hope that the policy outlined by him will be very successful. It is a great pity that for many years past as I understood him to say, we have had to import so much farm produce; and if we have in Newfoundland sufficient ground on which to grow sufficient vegetables for our own consumption; I am sure that the efforts of his department to have this done will meet with the support of all. I am quite aware that the question of coal and the price of coal is a sore point at the present time, but I submit that if any hon. member of this House goes into this matter in detail and supplies figures; these figure sought at least to be approximately correct. I ordered half a ton of coal to-day, (all that I am permitted to order at one time), and that half ton was delivered at my residence at less than the price at which I imported coal yesterday. That coal which was imported by me yesterday and is now on my wharf, cost more than did this coal landed at my premises today. It is all very well t otalk about compelling the coal companies to give us coal and to say that shipping should bring coal at such and such a price; but you cannot induce anybody to bring in coal for $4.00 per ton; nor can you make the companies give us coal. But the fact remains that coal is being sold here cheaper than the price at which it can be imported.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—It may be that my hon. friend cannot import coal to-day at $7 or $8 per ton; but if we had reciprocity with the companies at Bell Island, there is no reason why that could not be done. They have the coal and we have the ore. We should get the benefit of our ore. With regard to my figures, Mr. Chairman, I may say that these have been examined by those in the trade—I am not and never was in the trade—and I have been told that they are very reasonable.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—Somebody has been pulling your leg.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Well then they have a long leg to pull; and they won't have much success. If the facts are wrong then somebody else is wrong.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—The facts are right but the figures are wrong.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Perhaps they may be slightly wrong; but the facts do remain. There is no commodity we more need to-day than coal and I am here to see that the best interests of the people are protected. Ore is shipped out at the tax of seven and one-half cents a ton. That tax is hopelessly insufficient. The tax from this ore ought to be sufficient to pay some of the other expenses of the Government. Yes, Mr. Chairman, the figures may be wrong, figuratively speaking they may be wrong; but the basis on which they are prepared is correct. They have been given to me by those in the business; and while it does not make any difference to me whether coal is obtained for $7 or not; the people of this country are entitled to a first class business arrangement with these companies in which their rights are safeguarded. As far as the figures are concerned they are accurate; and allowing a maximum o f$2.00 per ton difference in these you will still have coal selling at $15.00.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Mr. Chairman, in the course of the debate if any hon. gentleman has facts to disclose, I think it would be better to state them than to commence quoting figures. It is all very well for the hon. gentleman to occupy and waste the time of this House by the speech that he has just delivered; that if you do such and such, the result would be so and so; but by doing so no help is being given the subject before the chair. What coal has to do with agricultural problems submitted to this House by the Minister of Agriculture and Mines I do not know. But the Hon. Mr. Anderson is entirely wrong; and he should take the remarks of the Hon. Mr. Bishop; serious remarks, to heart. When he talks about requiring a company doing business here to do this and that he is wasting time. Surely there is competition enough in our business here to give the man who is satisfied with a small margin of profit an opportunity to do his own importing, and get us coal. Now at the present time we can get no coal from Nova Scotia. We will not be able to get any for one month. Sixty or eighty vessels are there or to arrive; and these will require all the coal available for that period. But as I have said we are not now discussing this question. We are debating the question as to what is the best way of conducting an agricultural farm. We must keep to the subject before us diligently and not prolong the debate unduly by going outside the subject.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Mr. Chairman, I am deeply indebted to the hon. member for what he has said. The facts however still have to be faced that 627,000 dollars worth of ore were shipped last year and for that ore we should receive reciprocity. This year the outcome will probably be greater, and the greater it is the more do we deserve better treatment. The Bell Island company plans to develop their work a great deal this year. It is said their intention is to expend something like from three to five million dollars on the industry. Now if they find our ores sufficiently profitable to justify such an enormous expenditure, it is up to them to give us a square deal.

The facts and figures I have quoted are correct, absolutely correct and have been prepared by people in the coal business. They may be prefaced by "ifs" but all the modern developments were prefaced by ifs, and if they had not been faced on that assumption, they could never have been realized. I am sure this is a matter which will receive the very best attention of the Minister who has been so active since his assumption of office; and that just as it is his intention now to improve our agricultural conditions, he will during his administration improve the condition of all the people of this country so far as coal is concerned.

HON. MR. McNAMARA:—Mr. Chairman, I am heartily in support of this Bill as introduced by the Hon. Dr. Campbell; but I agree with Sir Patrick McGrath that the amount voted is very small, and not sufficient to guarantee very large results. Reference has been made to the $26,000 given to the Game Board; but I would say that if this money voted to agriculture is as successfully spent as is the money left with the Game Board, it will be well spent, for with that money the Game Board polices the rivers of the country while the members of that Board give expert advice free to the country without any monetary compensation whatsoever. One question however I would like to ask the Hon. Dr. Campbell and it is re his valuation of horses at $2,000,000.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—This was arrived at from the 1911 census and the increases reported by the Societies. There was a Seymour report in 1911 and another in 1901. These figures have been brought nearly up to date by returns from our Societies. We have not the same advantages here as they have in Canada. There they have a census every year. We only have one in ten.

HON. MR. McNAMARA:—I was not referring to this matter, but more especially to the importations from Charlottetown and Toronto, from which as is well known we import largely. However, if this agricultural policy will be successful in increasing the output of vegetables in this country, it will be worthy of our fullest support. Our firm is to-day probably the largest importer of vegetables and at the present time we are almost ashamed to ask the price we have to pay. Anything which will remedy this would be welcomed. At the same time I hardly think the model farm is the best way out of the difficulty. The worst of that is that it is a benefit only to the immediate neighbourhood. In the remote districts they are not going to get any benefit; and I do not think as a whole it will be of the service stated. In this way I would also like to say that a policy of land clearing would be better than the idea of a model farm.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—The question of land clearing and bounties is one which needs to be carefully considered. It is my opinion that a bonus should not be given per area of land cleared. It should be given I think on the amount of hay grown the first year; or in some other way. The practice has been I think to clear the land just for the sake of the bonus; and then to let it sod over. That as will be understood is worthless.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN:—The one thing I can't get at Mr. Chairman is where the outports come in under this Bill. You cannot get young men to-day interested in farming, and if it is your intention to train young men, where are you going to get them? I have never been able to find any.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—I have been in pretty colse contact with all the farms in St. John's East and West; and though their politics have been poor I find their industry and ability as farmers are quite up to the ordinary; and that they would be a good field from which to obtain results. They would be made quite interested I believe in the working of a model farm; and this farm, established as an experiment, would be duplicated wherever needed, should it meet with the success that we all expect. We will then secure the best parent stock for the country and with the male products of that farm will gradually grade up our animals. Our animal husbandry is at great fault, and the A B C of it is stock registration, and this is the first Government to make any pretence at that. The first thing I did was to get up a stock book of animals, as they have everywhere else. We have now registered in that registry many thorobred animals. We will prevent the running at large of scrub bulls or any other animals but the pure thorobred animal in localities. We have a propaganda on to have people grade up their animals and cannot do this by introducing scrub stock. Every animal owned by the department will be registered and must have the hall-mark for the department.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN:—Might I ask the Minister when this good stock is going to be placed around the country?

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—We have not got our vote through yet, and they have to be selected and brought here. Bonavista has already applied for two and they will be good ones too. I may explain another thing too. I have a record in my department where an executive member of the late Government made a demand last year for a man to be allowed $60 for allowing two scrub animals to run at large, when he should have got 60 days.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN:—What my hon. friend is talking about is all right, but I want to know when we are going to get them. Coming back to farming. I have been through the East and West of St. John's a good bit and I should like you to point me out a piece of green land turned up within the past 12 months. I do not see any, or in Trinity or Bonavista. They are turning over the same land all the time, in many cases what was then grandfather's land. That is the kind of farming done in the outports. I may say the young boys are not allowed to do the work now.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—We hope next year to have down experts in agriculture and animal husbandry. We are going slowly and will then be in a position to take in young men from this country and get the advantage of expert knowledge.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN:—Why should we in the outports pay for a Model Farm in St. John's?

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—Well we will give you one in Bonavista if this is a success.

The Committee reported the Bill without amendment, and it was ordered to be read a third time on to-morrow.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—In moving the second reading of the Act to amend the Business Profits Tax Act, 1917, I desire to point out that it provides firstly for an explanation of the Act for 1920; secondly the option formerly given banks or banking corporations to pay taxe either on business or upon profits is now given the Minister of Finance; thirdly for an extension of the time for returns until May instead of February; fourthly instead of a penalty of ten per cent. for not making returns, it will now be ten per cent., plus one per cent. for each month until paid. These amendments are not of a radical change and do not make any material change in the Bill.

The Bill was read a second time and ordered to be committed on to-morrow.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—In moving the second reading of the Tenancies and Grants Amendment Bill, I may say it is merely to extend the provisions of that Act for another year.

The Bill was read a second time and ordered to be committed on to-morrow.

HON. PRESIDENT read a message from th eAssembly announcing the passage of Bills respecting Licenses to Cut Hardwood and Concerning Foreign Enemy Aliens; also that they had passed the Council's amendments to Bills concerning the Registration of Midwives, Act relating to Death Duties and an Act relating to Legislative Disabilities and the Vacation of Seats in the House of Assembly.

The foregoing Bills were then read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

House then adjourned until to-morrow at four o'clock.

TUESDAY, June 8th, 1920.

House met at 4 p.m.

On motion of HON. MR. GIBBS the Bill entitled "An Act to Check Profiteering" was read a third time and a message war ordered to be sent to the House of Assembly saying this House had passed same with an amendment.

HON. MR. SHEA moved the third reading of Bill entitled "An Act to Amend Section 9 of Chapter 139 of the Consolidated Statutes of the (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Encouragement of Agriculture.'"

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Before the passing of this Bill I wish to make a few observations. I am not desirous of occupying the time and attention of this House without its being a benefit. The figures I stated in this House yesterday are absolutely correct. Mr. Bishop did not agree with me on one point regarding cost of shedding. I find upon enquiry that the stevedor is paid one dollar, and 40c. is the cost of shedding. So that my figure which was $1.40 is exact. Now, Mr. President, the coal situation is alarming. Whether an effort is to be made to get coal from North Sydney or elsewhere I do not know, screened coal is at present $17.75, domestic coal of lower grade is quoted at $17.25. Last year (and I presume its being done now) a certain number of gentlemen started the Mary to go to Bell Island for a cargo of coal and landed it in St. John's at $12. This was retailed in St. John's at $15. If it is not convenient to land coal from large ship in St. John's why not bring it to Bell Island? If any preference is to be given at all we are entitled to their coal. In an address delivered by a member of Parliament in London a short time ago it was stated that the company in control of that vast industry at Bell Island was capitalized at five hundred million dollars. No wonder such a vast company can be floated. This country is the largest contribution to the assets of that company. Surely between all the steam ship companies—the Dominion Coal Company with others—surely at least they can provide ten cargoes of coal for St. John's. If it cannot be landed at St. John's then let it be landed at Bell Island. When a cargo does arrive half the time it is retailed out in quarter tons. Why can't whole town store coal as it comes in. It would mean only the same expense. Something ought to be done to relieve this situation. But the situation to-day is this, that something must be done. I think the situation as we find it to-day is worthy of serious thought, no matter from where it emanates and no matter whether we waste twenty minutes in this House or half an hour. I stated here yesterday that some twenty-eight steamers were waiting at Sydney and the honourable gentleman said he understood some time ago there were sixty waiting their turn to be loaded with coal. This is addiog the cost of the wages of the men and all the expenses of the schooner to the cost of the coal. We will never bring down the price of coal in this way, but I think that something should be done to bring down the price, and whatever we can do in this way I am ready to support.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—I am not going to contradict the remarks of my honourable friend opposite, nor do I wish to waste the time of the House on this matter. It is quite true that I said yesterday in retort that somebody was pulling his leg. I am convinced now that, finding that so simple an operation, his informant has since pulled both of his legs. He asserts and reasserts that the figures that he quoted are absolutely correct. I simply place my statement against his that they are absolutely wrong, and I am ready to meet his informant at any time suitable to him and show him who is right and who is wrong. In one item yesterday I was wrong. When my honourable friend quoted forty cents for trimming coal I said $1.40 was nearer the truth. The exact figure is $1.20, not $1.40. To that extent I correct my remarks of yesterday. It is not my desire to trespass upon the time of the House, but I will be glad to meet my honourable friend and his informant at any time that suits them.

On motion the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on the Bill "An Act respecting Certificates of Masters and Mates." Hon. Mr. Templeman in the Chair.

HON. MR. SHEA:—Mr. Chairman, when this Bill was before the House on second reading I endeavoured to explain generally what the principles of the Bill were, and I would like to say that at present according to Chapter 169 of the Consolidated Statutes it is an offence for uncertificated masters and mates to be in charge of any vessel over one hundred tons for trans-Atlantic voyages, or for anyone to employ them, and the Customs are forbidden to give them clearance. This is the law as it stands at present. I am informed that there are about one hundred and seven vessels of this class at present sailing out of St. John's and the outports, and out of that one hundred and seven vessels with one hundred and seven masters are are not more than ten or fifteen masters with certificates of any kind whatever. Now that is the position of masters as they stand to-day. In other words, if the law were put into effect to-day these vessels would be prevented from sailing and practically the whole carrying trade of the Colony would be jeopardized. It is in order to get over this temporary difficulty and meet the exigencies of the present case that this Bill has been formulated. It is a Bill which will be in operation for twlve months only, but it is to meet the requirements and bring these captains and vessels within the limits of the law as the law stands. The Commission so appointed, as you will see, consists of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, the Harbour Master for St. John's, and Sir John Crosbie, who is an authority on shipping, and apart from his own mercantile standing in the community has a knowledge of shipping, being late Minister of the Shipping Department. As the Hon. Mr. Bishop said, it is somewhat unusual to have a commission of this kind named in the Bill, but it was thought desirable to do so to give the public the opportunity of knowing the class of men who are at the head of the Commission. Now the selection of suitable masters from these men will be in the hands of this Commission, and it is assumed that no men who are unfit to go as masters will be granted certificates, but I look upon the whole measure as a temporary one and one to meet the present exigencies. Something has to be done. The law at present is disregarded and serious consequences might ensue if the law were put into effect. The men that are in the ships are on the whole a good class of men, and I understand the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who had charge of this Bill in the Lower House, said it was with the suggestion of the Board of Trade that this course was taken, a kind of temporary measure to meet the present needs.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—I spoke a few words respecting this Bill at the second reading. It appeared to me to be unusual legislation to name an individual in an Act of Parliament, and I thought that was not only unusual, but in the present instance undesirable, for the reason that while I have no objection whatever to any of the persons named in the Bill and I do not think any more capable men could be secured, I would say that in view of Sir John Crosbie's having left St. John's for an indefinite period and there is only six months to elapse before the Bill becomes inoperative and in view of the fact that half of the men that are uncertificated cannot possibly be in St. John's and obtain certificates within that time, the naming of such a Commission is undesirable. I have a master in a vessel now at my wharf. He will be at sea very soon, and it is extremely unlikely that he will be in St. John's again before next January. If a Commission were sitting he would get a certificate, but he may not arrive in St. John's before January, and after that date he cannot receive a certificate. He will not be able to avail of the provisions of the Act because he will not be in St. John's. Now I submit if there is any benefit in the Act at all it should extend to at least twelve months and that it should commence its sittings immediately. I think that while the measure is a good one and a necessary one, it has been nullified as it stands by confining the Commission to the three persons mentioned in the Bill, because two cannot act and if you put the Bill into effect as it is nothing can possibly be done.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I think this a Bill which should be dealt with by a Select Committee who could discuss it with the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who knows what he wants and why he wants it. I would like to say with respect to Section 2 there is no provision that these rules should be approved of by anybody. I do not think that any Board should have power to make rules not to be approved . Then I submit that it is possible for the Board to be sitting all New Year's Day passing people who did not get here in time to get passed on before, and I think that should be remedied. It seems to me that the same thing may happen as happened in connection with the Liquór Act. Prohibition was to come into effect on the 1st of January, but it was possible for the liquor shops to sell on New Year's Day. I think this is a Bill which should be sent to a Select Committee, particularly in view of the fact that Sir John Crosbie is out of the country and will not be back for several weeks. Likewise if the Minister of Marine and Fisheries were away, the position would be just as ii ts with Sir John Crosbie. The Board cannot do business unless the three men are present. t may be desirable to put in a clause "or any two of them," but I do not think the Bill can be remedied in that way.

HON. MR. SHEA:—I have no objection to referring it to a Select Committee, and I would therefore move that the Committee rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again.

The Committee thereupon rose, reported progress and asked leave to sit again.

On motion the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on the Bill "An Act respecting the Issue of Certain Debenture Bonds of the Colony." Hon. Mr. Power in the Chair.

HON. MR. SHEA:—Mr. Chairman, this Bill is simply to legalize a number of Debenture Bonds that were signed by Sir Michael Cashin and Mr. Bennett after they had ceased to occupy the offices of Minister of Finance and Colonial Secretary. To remove any doubts as to the validity of these bonds it was considered necessary to bring in this Bill.

The Committee rose, and reported having passed the Bill without amendment. It was ordered to be read a third time on to-morrow.

On motion the Bill "An Act to Regulate the Exportation of Salt Codfish" was deferred.

On motion the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on the Bill "An Act to Amend 'The Business Profits Tax Act, 1917.'" Hon. Mr. Mews in the Chair.

HON. MR. McGRATH:—Mr. Chairman, before this Bill goes through I would like to know of the report on Income Taxation by the Commission representing Great Britain and the Colonies. I understand Newfoundland was represented on that Commission. Could the honourable gentleman in charge of the Bill let me have a statement of the position of Newfoundland with respect to that. I think there should be an official report in the Colonial Secretary's office.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—I do not know of any report, but I will make inquiries.

Committee rose, reported progress, and asked leave to sit again.

Committee on the Business Profits Tax Amendment Bill rose and reported having passed the same without amendment, and it was ordered the said Bill be read a third time on to-morrow.

House went into Committee on Existing Tenancies and Ejectment of Tenants Amendment Bill, Hon. Mr. Milley in the Chair.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Before the Bill passes I should like to make a few remarks. I do not think this Bill has been a great success so far as its carrying out, because hundreds of people have come to me complaining of being continually harrassed in reference to their rents being increased, and rather than object they have paid them. I am sorry the Bill did not get more publicity. I know that a similar Bill in the Old Country was handled without mercy. There is no question that has created more unrest than the housing of the people, the high cost of living and the price of coal. I wish that hon. gentlemen who occupy seats in this House could have had occasion to listen as I have during the last twelve months to the most awful tales of conditions in St. John's, but it is well known to all of us that it must be very bad because many of those old rookeries have been tumbling down since I came to the country half a century ago. Many a Saturday night I have gone into houses with one or two others and helped to nail canvas over the ceilings to keep the water and wind out. An effort will be made at an early date to improve those conditions, but unfortunately there are people here who imagine houses can grow like potatoes. The vilest references have been made, but many things must be done before all will be right. But I hope the passing of this Bill will be the means of improving matters and I hope the papers will give publicity to it that it is illegal to raise rents. And I hope also that now effort has been made to improve the condition of the people and I hope that before long many of them will live in better and more comfortable homes. But we must not feel content and satisfied not to make the effort to reduce and assist the people to more comfort, better homes, less cost of living and of coal.

The Committee rose and reported the Bill without amendment, and it was ordered to be read a third time on to-morrow.

HON. MR. SHEA moved the second reading of the Montreal Trust Company Authorization Bill and said: This Bill is a duplicate of that given the Eastern and Royal Trust Companies when they came here to do business, and is to enable the Montreal Trust Co. to come here and do business of the same kind.

The Bill was read a second time and ordered to be committed on to-morrow.

HON. MR. SHEA moved the second reading of the Post and Telegraph Service Amendment Bill and said: This Bill is to give the Minister limiting his liability for loss or injury in the transmission of telegrams, and increasing the registration fees from three to five cents, and also for making a charge of five cents on parcel post. That is the principle of the Bill.

Said Bill was read a second time and ordered to be committed on to-morrow.

HON. PRESIDENT read message from the Assembly re having passed the Council's amendment in and upon the bill entitled An Act to Amend the Income Tax, 1918," without amendment.

House then adjourned until Thursday next at four o'clock p.m.

THURSDAY, June 10th, 1920.

House met at 4.00 p.m. pursuant to adjournment.

On motion of the HON. MR. SHEA the following Bills were read a third time, passed, and ordered to be sent to the House of Assembly with a message informing them that this House had passed the same without amendment: An Act Respecting the Issue of Certain Debenture Bonds of the Colony; An Act to Amend "The Business Profits Tax Act, 1917"; An Act to Amend Chapter 10 of 9-10 Geo. V entitled 'An Act with Respect to Existing Tenancies and the Ejectment of Tenants Therefrom."

HON. MR. SHEA laid upon the table of the House report of Select Committee on the Bill "An Act Respecting Certificates of Masters and Mates."

On motion of HON. MR. SHEA the Bill "An Act to Regulate the Exportation of Salt Codfish" was deferred until to-morrow.

House went into Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Authorize the Montreal Trust Company to do Business in the Colony of Newfoundland." Hon. Mr. Anderson in the Chair.

HON. MR. SHEA:—This is a Bill similar to the Act of the Eastern Trust Company and the Royal Trust Company. It is to enable the Montreal Trust Company to do business in Newfoundland along the same lines.

Committee on Montreal Trust Co. Bill rose and reported the same without amendment, and it was ordered to be read a third time on to-morrow.

House went into Committee on the Postal and Telegraph Service Bill, Hon. Mr. Murphy in the Chair.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—Will the hon. gentleman in charge of the Bill kindly explain what is the limit of the liability of this clause.

HON. MR. SHEA:—I believe there is a limited liability at present. I think about £10 or $20. I can get the information if required.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—It is a very important matter, I submit. It does not seem reasonable to me that the department should be excused for neglect.

HON. MR. MEWS:—The liability is printed in the forms at present and I think this section is to make it legal or more binding. I think the Anglo Co. bind themselves to $50, and I think the Postal is the same.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—That may be all right, but I think we should know about the legislation we are passing.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I agree that the Act at present does not contain any clause empowering the P.M.G. to limit the liability of his department, and altho' such a limitation is expressed on the back of the telegraph forms it is possible for anybody to come in and sue the Government for any losses incurred through the miscarriage of the messages, and the Government is not entitled to plead on the strength of the telegraph forms, because it is not legal. Therefore the Government at present is liable for the full loss anyone may sustain for miscarriage of any message. This is put in in order that there may be some clause in an Act so that the Government could go into Court and show authority for putting this clause on the back of the telegraph forms.

HON. MR. SHEA:—As I am advised, there is a clause at present on the telegraph forms to the effect that the Government is not liable for loss on non-delivery of messages, and the question has been raised as to whether this clause has any legal power behind it and it is in order to give the Minister that legal power that this is now introduced. It is not a question of liability but to give the Minister power to put it in.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—I think the other companies have a clause on their charter which protects them but the highest amount they pay is to say "We are very sorry."

The Committee rose and reported the Bill without amendment, and it was ordered to be read a third time on to-morrow.

House took recess until arrival of H. E. the Governor, who having arrived and summoned the members of Hon. House of Assembly was pleased to assent to several Bills.

The House re-assembled and went into Committee on Bill entitled "An Act Respecting Certificates of Masters and Mates." Hon. Mr. Winter took the Chair.

HON. MR. SHEA:—Before asking the House to consider this matter again, I wish to draw attention to the change made in the original Bill. In clause 1 "There shall be a Board of Examiners consisting of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, the Harbour Master of the port of St. John's, and Sir John Crosbie, K.B.E., who shall have power to conduct examinations of applicants for certificates of service as masters and mates of sea-going ships." Any two, according to the change, may constitute the Board. The difficulty before was Sir John Crosbie's absence from the country.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Has not this report to lie on the table twenty-four hours unless permission be given formally by the House to act otherwise?

HON. MR. SHEA:—The hon. member is correct.

Committee rose and presented report, asking leave to sit again.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—A Committee once having risen and reported and asked leave to sit again, cannot go back into Committee to-day.

HON. MR. SHEA:—In moving the second reading of Bill entitled "An Act Respecting the Preservation of Beavers," I would just like to state that the Bill is one to authorize the trapping of beavers, under certain conditions. Secondly that all license must come from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. Further the contents stipulate that the money derived from the sale and export of beavers "shall be paid by the Department to the Treasury and appropriated by it to a fund to be named the "State Insurance Fund."

This Bill was read a second time and was ordered to be read a third time to-morrow.

HON. MR. SHEA:—In moving the second reading of Bill entitled "An Act Concerning Former Enemy Aliens," I may say that this Bill is to prevent an enemy alien from landing,—three years after the passing of this Act,—in this Colony, or if he should land without permission it is to prevent him from remaining without the permission of the Colonial Secretary, and such permission is to be limited to three months, unless upon special grounds this permission be renewed. It prohibits him from holding property, or share in any company, or from becoming an officer or member of a crew of a British ship registered in this Colony. I beg to move the second reading of this Bill.

Bill referred to Committee of Whole House to-morrow.

Committee on Bill entitled "An Act to Regulate the Exportation of Salt Codfish" and second reading of Bill entitled "An Act respecting Licenses to cut Hardwoods" were deferred.

HON. MR. PRESIDENT:--A message has been received from the House of Assembly to the effect that they have passed the following Acts and request the concurrence of the Legislative Council: "An Act to Amend Chapter 162 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Prosecution of the Seal Fishery,'" and "An Act to amend the St. John's Pilotage Act, 1917."

On motion of HON. MR. SHEA the following Bills were read for first time: "An Act to Amend Chapter 162 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Prosecution of the Seal Fishery," and "An Act to Amend the St. John's Pilotage Act, 1917."

House adjourned till 4 p.m. to-morrow.

FRIDAY, June 11th, 1920.

House met pursuant to adjournment.

On motion of HON. MR. SHEA the Montreal Trust Co. Authorization Bill and the Postal and Telegraph Services Bill were read a third time and passed, and ordered to be sent to the Assembly with a message that this House had passed the same without amendment.

House went into Committee on the Masters and Mates Certificates Bill, Hon. Mr. Steer in the Chair.

Committee rose and reported the Bill without amendment, and it was ordered to be read a third time on to-morrow.

House went into Committee on the Exportation of Salt Codfish Bill, Hon. Mr. Milley in the Chair.

HON. MR. SHEA:—The subject of this Bill was fully discussed some short time ago in the Lower House, where I understand it passed without division, and for some considerable time past it has occupied a prominent place in our newspaper press, and hon. members present will be fully conversant with all its details. I may say that these regulations are part and parcel of the policy of the present Government in connection with our fisheries. They are necessarily of an experimental character, and it is hoped if they are efficiently carried out they will result in substantial benefit to the trade of the Colony. It is hoped they will have the support of the trade generally who should be willing to give them a fair trial. The Board will be composed of exporters and therefore it will be presumed that all will be done to make them successful for the community's interests.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—It appears to me that the whole Bill is so detriemntal to the mercantile interests of the Colony, and the best way to deal with it, I think, after reviewing the various clause is to move that it be read a second time this day six months. On the face of it there appears to me to be some idea of fair play, but seeing that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who is practically the Government in this matter, has the appointment of four members, and that only two of this Board will be appointed by the exporters in St. John's it appears that the dictum of the Minister will pass, and any suggestions we may urge on him to deter him from the course he has mapped out, will be futile. Any restrictions on trade are objectionable. During the five years of war through which we have passed there was probably a good excuse for restrictions being put on. Now that we return to a normal state it is difficult to calculate the tamper of business and damage that would be done by the enforcing of these regulations. The institution of high rates enables competitors to step in and undersell us, and also encourages our competitors in Iceland, France and Norway to invade markets which before the proclamation we considered our prerogative to trade with. These markets have been invaded and we shall have hard work to get them back. These regulations were made probably with the best intentions, thinking they would be a good thing for the country, but the result has proved quite the contrary. I want to speak fairly in this connection. It is not altogether the result of these restrictions, but they have added immeasurably to the condition we find ourselves in to-day. In some cases last year's voyage has not yet been disposed of—owners were unable to sell at a satisfactory price—others were compelled to take a very low price. If then, with the knowledge we have now, we put on the Statute Book, legislation of a similar nature we are handicapping the industry of the country. Not merely the exporters but every man who does business in connection with the cod-fishery is effected. Ours is essentially a fishing country and the whole body is influenced and in my humble opinion injured by an Act of this kind. We have no guarantee that there won't be flagrant instances of breaches of this Act, as there were of the other regulations, by people who ought to know better. I single out the Minister of Marine and Fisheries—people have undersold the price established by law—his committee deliberately winked at the breaches and took no action whatsoever to bring the guilty parties to task. Two or three days ago I received a letter from my agent in Brazil a portion of which will be interesting as sustaining my contention. (In paragraph read it was stated that a cargo of fish had been sold in Brazil at 98 shillings.) Now about the time that cargo had been sold at 98 shillings I had a cargo I wanted to export to the Brazilian market; I wanted the privilege of being allowed to speculate. On arrival of my ship, I wrote to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries and he was agreeable that I should have that privilege but on submitting it to his Board they sat down upon my application, and refused to grant it. Here we have an Advisory Board cognizant of breaches and taking no action to check same or give explanation, and I am by the same Board penalized and not permitted to export my fish and make a satisfactory profit.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—What was regulation price then?

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—102 shillings. Now if that be done now by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries and his Advisory Board what security have I got, and every honourable gentleman in the same line of business, that they will not be handicapped by the want of care, on the part of this Board, we propose to establish, in seeing that rules are carried out. Here is a case of an outport merchant who was loading a cargo of good fish to the westward. He was offered 76 shillings less 1% but he was not allowed to sell as regulation price was then 80 shillings. The best offer he has got since is 52 shillings. Just what that man may get I cannot say but it will result in a serious loss to him. A St. John's merchant tells me that he was offered, at the time of proclamation, 84 shillings but it was subject to a rebate of ¼%. He was not allowed to sell. He finally sold this cargo at 75 shillings and lost thereby. Now if these things have been done under proclamation, they can be repeated. There is no security whatever for a man who buys fish and exports it. In effect the result of this measure will be, if I am speculative enough to buy twenty or thirty quintals of fish the Minister of Marine and Fisheries tells me that by proclamation I am not to ship that and when time comes to sell, he is to name the price. It has to be vended through a special agent of his own. Human nature is human nature —and Hon. Mr. Coaker as Minister of Marine and Fisheries will probably see that stocks are large and that it is expedient to sell quickly, he will export his own and I shall have to wait until he has disposed of his stock. There is no rule laid down that he shall give others a chance of shipping. If he wills it there is nothing to prevent him from selling his fish first. Now not very long ago within the last three weeks a friend of mine in St. John's was offered 107 shillings for a cargo to be shipped to the Brazilian markets and to be paid when vessel arrived. This was contrary to regulations, and offer was refused. I contend if this man was willing to take the risk he ought not to have been refused. The Brazilian market to-day is as low as one hundred. An honourable gentleman in this House sold recently, he will be able to correct me if I miss-quote. The whole result is a muzzling of the trade of the country. There is no precedent. It is for all the world like one of our buyers going home and finding that owing to a strike among the cotton spinners the price of that article is very high, he telegraphs New York and finds he can buy cheaper there. He consequently makes his purchase in New York. Our buyers will go to Iceland or to Norway or to France, or to Great Britain, which now has trebled her fisheries since the war ended. Fresh fish in the Old Country is now one cent per lb. Now it appears to me that if we accumulate stocks here it will be suicidal.

We must not suppose that our customers do not know what stocks we hold, for by a recent Bill passed here we were to give monthly statements of quantity in our possession. If this Bill is passed we destroy competition in the fisheries. And the statement made by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries that he expects twelve dollars for shore and ten dollars for Labrador fish many gentlemen would scout at as impossible, and nothing short of a miracle. What has been the safeguard of the fishermen all these years but the competition of one merchant with another. We are going to drive a number of our large exporters into doing next to nothing. I have on the authority of three or four that they are not going to run the risk of production if they can make money and are refused by the autocrat in charge —Mr. Coaker, not as the Hon. Mr. Coaker but as the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. I can conceive he has an honest desire to benefit the fisheries of the country and when he was head of the sealers organization he was of untold value to the people he came to help, in sustaining the price by competition of trade, but as an exporter of codfish, one of the famous 'graballs' like Mr. Ryan, Mr. Templeman and myself. As soon as he became an exporter and consequently a 'graball' he could not serve two masters. He could not keep the price of fish at figure to give profit and drive it up to the utmost limit of its value. For these reasons we cannot seriously advocate this Bill. To sustain the price we require competition, we require to give those who are willing to run the risk of exporting a free hand. This Bill will ruin competition. Mr. Chas. Duder read an article from a Nova Scotia paper in the Board of Trade a while ago which stated that the opinion entertained there was that their fisheries had been improved considerably since Newfoundland had put arbiturary price on fish. We have now two thousand quintals of old fish overlapping the new fish. This must be disastrous to all parties—merchants and fishermen. For these reasons I am justified in moving as an amendment to this clause that we read this Bill six months from this date. If I wished to take the easiest course I could say 'Let it go,' for in the fall of this year the disaster would be so universal that it would condemn itself. I reduced my buying, when first the proclamation came out, fifty per cent. I shall limit my shipments to my own connections, that is, those to whom I have given supplies and those who have been in the habit of doing business with me, but I shall not be a competitor. If we persist in passing this Bill I view it as a great political blunder and a greater commercial blunder. I move that this Bill be read this day six months.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—Mr. Chairman, when first this matter of the Codfishery Regulations came up before the House, and the Hon. Mr. Grieve spoke on the measure I remember remarking that because of his great experience his opinions were entitled to a great deal of respect. I repeat those words, and I am sure this House will regard all the opinions expressed by the Hon. Mr. Grieve touching this or any other matter relating to the fisheries of Newfoundland. I cannot, however, agree with the argument of my honourable friend. I am prepared to admit at the outset that the regulations formulated last year were far from perfect regulations, and I do not see how it could have been expected of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries or any other man adopting a measure of that kind for the first time to provide a perfect measure. There seems, however, to me, sir, to be considerable safeguards in the Bill which we are now considering. In the first place, instead of the matter being entirely in the hands of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, as my honourable friend would indicate, there is to be a Board composed of seven persons every member of which we are assured is to be a codfish exporter. The Governor in Council has the right to appoint four members of that Board, and we are told by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries that these are to be exporters of codfish. Two others are to be nominated by the Board of Trade, and surely that will form a very fair representation of the exporting interests of the Colony. That Board will first of all start to recommend rules to the Governor in Council for

(1) The issue, holding, suspension and cancellation of licenses to export salt codfish.
(2) The conditions and terms of sale abroad.
(3) The minimum prices for the sale of salt codfish in particular markets at particular times.
(4) The maximum quantity of salt codfish which may be sold for or exported to any particular market at any particular time.
(5) The Board may also from time to time recommend the modification, suspension, or repeal of any rule already approved and published in The Royal Gazette.

so that the duties devolving upon the Board are broad and very clear, and any rule or any price that the Board may decide to adopt and have put into effect can be modified or changed the following week if necessary. That the Minister does not act as arbitrarily as my honourable friend would suggest was proven by a statement of his own that a short time ago when he approached the Minister upon a certain matter affecting his own business he understood the Minister acceded to his request, but that afterwards, a day or two subsequently, that tacit admission was withdrawn. This seems to me to prove, Sir, that the Minister does not act arbitrarily, but in that case in the meantime consulted some of the other members of the Board who thought that the permission that was asked for should not be given. Anyone who has any knowledge whatever of the export of fish will realize and appreciate the reason for that refusal. An attempt has been made and a serious attempt in the best interests of all concerned, to prevent the exportation of codfish to Brazil on consignment. It is generally accepted that to too many markets already do we export codfish on consignment, and I think it was a proper refusal, although it may have proven a considerable hardship. My honourable friend also referred to an outport man who was offered a price whcih he was prohibited fro mtaking, and that subsequently he had to sustain a very heavy loss upon a cargo of fish which he thought he had the chance of selling. Now, Mr. Chairman, my honourable friend knows that there is nothing new in quotations being made in the course of correspondence regarding the sale of codfish and the price intimated, but that it sometimes happens before the final closing of the negotiations that the thing falls through, and where a man might have sold for 110 shillings he will probably have to take 100 shillings or less. There is nothing new in that. And, furthermore, in reference to a cargo of Brazil fish which might have been sold, my friend says at 170 shillings, I have the same to say. Anything could have happened. I believe, as a matter of fact, I could have sold a cargo of Brazil fish not so long ago at 170 shillings, 6 pence; I sold it at 102 shillings, 6 pence, but I cannot blame the regulations. At first an attempt was made to obtain cash for the full value of the fish. That was a mistake. Now ninety per cent cash is to be got. You have to obtain payment to ninety per cent and ten per cent remains unpaid until satisfactory delivery in Brazil. But surely that is very much more satisfactory.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Might I ask at this point in connection with the Bill, will this interfere with cash advances of banks here?

HON. MR. BISHOP:—That is entirely a question for the banks themselves as to what paper they will handle and upon what terms they will advance money. That is entirely apart from the regulations. To point out the value of the regulations I would refer to a quotation read by my honourable friend from a copy of an English paper. I do not know whether the honourable member took notice of that. It drew attention to the fact that an extremely low price for fish obtained in London at the time, and the article stated that this deplorable low price was due to want of organization. What does that mean? That if the trade had the proper organization they would be able to regulate the sale and price and obtain more for their fish than at present.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:--I do not want to interrupt, but I have gathered from the Debates of the House of Commons that the lack of organization is lack of transportation due to railway difficulties in the old country.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—Perhaps that is so. I am not going to occupy much more time of the House. With the prediction of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries as to price for fish, I do not agree. I cannot see what there is in the present indications to justify the assertions from any source that it is probable that we shall see a price of $12.00 for Shore fish and $10.00 for Labrador. I really cannot see any hope of our obtaining $10.00 for ordinary Labrador codfish. Moreover, I submit that should such price be obtainable for Labrador fish, then we might get $14.00 or $15.00 for merchantable Shore fish, which is about the relative value with $10.00 for Labrador. If people can get $10.00 for fish practically without cure and have to sell it dry with a loss of ten per cent, it is evident that nobody is going to the trouble of handling and rehandling codfish for many weeks when any man who gives it a couple of days' sun gets $10.00 a quintal. I think it is a serious mistake upon the part of the Minister b,ecause it is sending the fishermen away with false ideas. As to the statement that there will be no buyers for codfish next fall because of the regulations, I do not agree with that for a moment. days' debate in the Board of Trade the resolution that was passed there affirmed that regulations were necessary.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—What for?

HON. MR. BISHOP:—For the export of codfish. S urely the honourable gentleman remembers the resolution that was passed, and it was set out distinctly that certain regulations were necessary for the proper export of codfish.

HON. MR. GRIEVE,—The resolution set out that they were essential.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—Yes, essential. Then there was a prediction some time ago that there would be no supplies this spring. Now, I would like to ask how much less supplies were given this year than last year.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Thirty per cent.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—Well, perhaps that is so. It will be somewhat less than last year, I admit, because many men will find employment that they think safer. They can get good wages in different directions, and I am surprised that they are taking advantage of it. But the chances are that we will find we will have to deal with a voyage of codfish which will not be materially less than we have handled in other years, and I admit that with the competition of other countries it is going to be a very serious problem, but in spite of that, Sir, I think there is a better hope that we will be able to market our fish without disaster if these seven men that are to be appointed will work together in the general interest and fromulate rules, and regulations in their own interests as well as in the interests of the country generally. We will then find at the end of the season that we will be better off than if we continued the practice of allowing everyone to go on his own. I am of opinion, Mr. Chairman, that, speaking generally, the care that will be exercised under this Bill (Provided a Bill can be formed and you can get seven or eight exporters to agree to work upon that Board and sit down together in the earnest endeavour to market this year's produce of codfish) will cause us to think much better of regulations and the Board than some of us do at the present time.

HON. MR. RYAN:—Mr. Chairman, the Bill before the House is with regard to the exportation of salt codfish. Well, Sir, I agree with my honourable friend Mr. Grieve in all he said with regard to these regulations. I consider we have had enough of regulations, or rather, too much regulations, as to the sale and exportation of codfish in the past year, and now to bring forward another Bill is too much of a bad thing. We have more regulations than we know what to do with. I want to state a case as to the regulations of last winter. I had 110 casks fish which I wanted to sell in Liverpool. I wired my brokers in London to get the best price obtainable. I got a message back after two days saying that 65 shillings was the best they could offer. The regulation price was 70 shillings. I was quite willing to accept 65 shillings. I applied to the Advisory Board for a permit to be allowed to ship that fish. That was about the first of March, just before I left here on the sixth. I applied to the Advisory Board to get a permit to ship that fish, and in doing so I took a copy of my cable message which I sent to my brokers and their reply and showed them both those messages. I could get no permit to ship the fish. The regulation price was 70 shillings. I was quite satisfied to accept 65 shillings, but they would not allow me to ship. Mr. George Barr was one of that Advisory Board, and Mr. Barr said that 70 shillings could be easily got in London for that fish. I asked Mr. Barr if he would take it at 65. He would not buy it from me at 65. I said I would pay the expenses to Liverpool. No, he would not take it. I offered to seel at 60. I wanted to sell the fish and get the money. No, he would not take it at 60, but at the same time the regulation price was 70 shillings. They would not buy it at 65 or 60, but I had to send it to Liverpool and get 70. I had to ship it through Hawes and Company, which I did. When the fish got to Liverpool by the steamer which sailed from here on the 14th or 15th March, they could not get 70 shillings. It was shipped to Alicante and when it was opened there it turned out good, but it could not be sold. I called upon Hawes & Company several times to get the money for that fish, but I could not get it. They sent it from Alicante to Valencia, where they were going to sell it quickly. I called upon Hawes & Company's agent here on the nd2 of June and asked him to cable London to Hawes & Company to know if they had paid my brokers for that fish and got an answer back from Hawes' agent here saying: "We beg to inform you that our senior advises us under date of the 3rd instant that Ryan's 110 casks not yet sold." I cabled the day before yesterday to my brokers to know if they could get the money from Mr. Hawes for this fish, and got an answer to-day saying the fish was still there unsold, but they could get no money. Now this will show you about the regulations. I daresay the regulations were alright up to a certain time last winter, but when Norwegian fish, French fish, and Iceland fish came into contact with Newfoundland fish they were useless. Mr. Hawes still kept his regulation price up, and I do not know if it is up to-day or not. However, there is this about it, that he has the fish in his store in Spain. Norway, France and Iceland came in and sold their fish broadcast. I am given to understand that Mr. Hawes got a fine lot of money last year from several of the exporters to build fish stores in Spain, Italy, Opporto, and Greece to put Newfoundland codfish in and keep it there I suppose to look at. Now if there were no regulations last year or they were lifted on the last of January I could have sold my fish at 65 shillings and got my money. Now I am without it, and there are scores and scores of shippers in the same position as I am. They were not allowed to ship their fish through anyone except Mr. Hawes on account of the regulation prices, and if Mr. Hawes had been given a free hand after the first of February he would not have as much fish in his stores in Spain as he has to-day, and it would have let the fish go tnto consumption and the money for that fish would be cabled over to St. John's. The Banks can tell stories if they want to. Now this is only one case and this is a case of my own, but there are scores and scores in the same position as I am with their fish over there unsold. The facts are simply these, that the regulation prices are wrong when you have to meet a lot of competition. You have to reduce the price. You cannot stick to the one price, because others will come in and sell under you. You can keep your goods if you want to. I agree with the remarks of my honourable friend Mr. Grieve in every particular. I know exactly what I am talking about with regard to the Advisory Board. I second the proposition of Hon. Mr. Grieve that we give this Bill a hoist of six months. The man who has fish over there in Spain unpaid for know more about this Bill than the man who has no fish.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I am a man who has no codfish, and I was expecting that some other gentleman connected with the staple industry of the country would make some observations, because I am a bit diffident about taking part in this discussion because I am not familiar with the exporting of or handling of fish. At the same time as a member of this House I feel it incumbent upon me to give a vote on this matter according to my best judgment, and I am not satisfied as yet as to the situation. This whole situation has arisen and developed during my absence, during the past 6 months, and I have never been able to get a real grasp and I am going to address a few questions to the Hon. Mr. Bishop if he will be so good as to answer them:— (a) If the regulations already in force were having any good results; (b) if the countries competing against us, like Iceland, Norway, France, etc., had any such legislation; (c) if, as the regulations were partly intended to prevent sales on commission, what was the explanation of the case cited by Hon. Mr. Ryan; (d) if we put these regulations into force would not the result be that Canada and other countries would be able to undersell us in the foreign markets, and would not this be disastrous. Then I was very much struck with what underlay the observations of Hon. Mr. Ryan this afternoon as I gathered that one of the main objections to these regulations is that it does away with selling fish on consignment in such fashion that the money will not be obtained for several months after it leaves here. Ibelieve that practice is particularly applicable to Brazil and I admit that it would be much more desirable to adopt a scheme whereby people here could get cash against documents issued for the cargo. But according to the hon. gentleman the system of selling fish through Hawes is still in effect. Now what is the object of having regulations to put our fish in Hawes' hands and allow him to effect such a situation as that, namely, that Hawes has fish for several months and my hon. friend says he cannot get the money for it. Another thing is this: When these regulations were enforced—I was away but I think I am correct—the Board of Trade enforced the regulations and certain gentlemen accepted posttions on the Advisory Board in carrying them out. I find now that virtually every man who endorsed them last fall is gone back on them. I think it was since my return that two meetings of the Board were held at the first of which one gentleman expressed himself as favorable to regulations on which this scheme is based, but at the next meeting that gentleman went back and the whole of the fish exporters lined up in opposition to this scheme and declared rather for some scheme which they would handle themselves. I am free to say that of teh two propositions, that if it be a matter of handling through a bill administered by the Government, or by the fish exporters themselves I am for the Government, but I would like some explanation as to why all these people who were strong last fall for these regulations declared against them in the spring.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—They have seen the working of it.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Well, that may be, but there may be some other explanation. The Hon. Mr. Grieve in speaking of a cargo of fish which he says was sold at 98/ does he mean that somebody connected with the administration of the regulations owned that fish?

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—No, I said that despite the regulations the cargo had been sold at that. It was in the full knowledge of the Board and as far as I know, no action was taken.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Of course if that sort of thing is possible the whole thing would break down and Ithink we ought to have some statement by the hon. gentleman in charge of the Bill in reference to that cargo which would make clear the manner under which sold, because if that sort of thing is allowed to continue it is just as well we go no further. To my mind we are approaching a situation in regard to our fisheries that calls for the most careful consideration of every member and I am sure it is getting that from every man interested in the fishery business. Yesterday I obtained a copy of the Annual Report of the Board of Trade for last year and I think it a pity that hon. gentlemen connected with this organization and with the fish business do not perhaps give as much attention to this matter or to the literature on the subject as they might. Apparently last July the Board of Trade adopted certain resolutions in regard to the handling of codfish by such a process as is suggested here, and prior to that, in April last representations were made by the Secretary of the Board of Trade with a view to the Government having something done in the way of scientific research, and secondly, securing an improved cure. That letter was received and acknowledged by Hon. Mr. Halfyard, then Colonial Secretary, but apparently nothing followed. Now the Board of Trade, the policy of which I suppose I am safe in saying, is dominated by the Fish Exporters, wanted something and got something last November which was then satisfactory, but this is apparently not so satisfactory now. In the meantime the situation has worstened very seriously, as I see it.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—The proposed regulations were submitted by Mr. Coaker to a minority of the exporters.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I do not know when they were submitted, but they were put in force last November. It was not necessary for him to submit them to anybody.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Matters were finally adjusted in the office of a solicitor in St. John's at which the Minister of Marine and Fisheries was present.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—The fact remains the fish resolutions were endorsed by a meeting of the Board of Trade in January after two or three days debate. The Board declared in favor of some form of regulations. New regulations have since been put into effect and the fish exporters are a unit against them. I do not think I am mis-stating the position as to what happened at the last two meetings. Certainly hte Board declared against this Bill. Amendments have since been made which may have modified that.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Nothing to do with this bill.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Pardo nme. At the last meeting the general features of this Bill were submitted and the meeting adopted resolutions declaring for some form of regulations arranged by themselves. One of the reasons I see a difficulty in venturing upon this novel policy is the fact that we are likely to be faced with keener competition in regard to our fisheries than ever before in our history. Some discussion arose here with regard to the enormous amount of fish being brought into Italy. I have here an authenitative statement made in the House of Commons less than two months ago, which I propose to read to the House. I follow perhaps more than anybody else the deliberations of the British Parliament. The Secretary for Agriculture and Fisheries was presenting the estimates for his department, Sir Arthur Boscasen, and I am sure the House will pardon if I read somewhat lengthy from his observations. (Read extract). Now this is briefly the statement, and the point I wish to make is this, that they are going to have in England for sale or consumption very much more fish than for years, and I take it that some of that fish is going to come into competition with our fish. I was present in the Board of Trade a few years ago and the subject discussed and one of the points made was that we would be threatened with more competition after the war than before. What has happened to that fish which owing to lack of proper transport has not reached the people it was intended to? Only about ten days ago a large quantity of it was actually taken out to sea and dumped overboard, it being impossible to convey it to the consumer. With these conditions, already mentioned, facing us, is it right or desirable that we should have legislation which would put it in the power of any Board to say when men should sell their fish? Nova Scotia competes with us on this side of the Atlantic, she does not on the other side, to any great extent. The most of the competition is in South America and the West Indies. Once or twice during the war cargoes were sent to Europe—to Mediterranean ports by Nova Scotia. If we are going to enforce these regulations agains t our people selling fish in the West Indies, the Canadians are going to undersell us and take the market away from us. From another report I have received it is implied that Newfoundland has virtually lost the market in Northern Spain. It is explained that as a consequence of the shortage of fishing in the North Sea we had been able to gain that market now we were in danger of losing what foothold we had, through keen competition. If this legislation is going to help us, if Ican be satisfied of that, I shall support this Bill, if not I won't. We should have more information on these matters. Why not raise committee for this afternoon and take up matter next sitting. If we are not I should like to suggest an amendment in the first section—it makes no provision when or how the appointment ought to be made—that if convenient the first day of September should be chosen, otherwise we have no machinery for doing the business, likewise we have no provision for filling a vacancy, likewise no provision for any quorum if others do not get there. The whole administrative machinery should be on as absolutely unquestionable a footing as possible.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—I agree with the suggestion that committee be raised if there is to be any discussion. I should be glad, Mr. President, to have it stated with authority, whether this is a Money Bill or no. I do not consider it a Money Bill, myself, but others may think differently .

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—On the question whether this is a Money Bill or no, I may say, there was a time, Mr. Chairman, when this Bill might have been construed as a Money Bill. That time is past. Two years ago the Government called another session—and passed a Bill—known as Legislature Act of 1917—which dealt with the manner in which a Money Bill should be treated. The Bill lay fallon for over two years past August 1917. A few days ago for some reason, I don't just know, there was a proclamation in The Royal Gazette that the Legislature Act was going to be brought into effect. If this be a Money Bill it is not susceptible to amendment in this House. A Money Bill according to this Act should have appended a certificate of Speaker of the House of Assembly that it is a Money Bill. There is no certificate attached to this Bill, consequently this is not a Money Bill.

Committee on Bill entitled "An Act to Regulate the Exportation of Salt Codfish" rose and reported it had considered Bill and asked leave to sit again.

On motion of HON. MR. SHEA the remaining "Orders of the Day" were deferred.

House then adjourned until Monday 4 o'clock.

MONDAY, June 14th, 1920.

House opened at 4 p.m. pursuant to adjournment.

On motion of HON. MR. SHEA the Bill entitled "An Act Respecting Certificates of Masters and Mates," was read a third time, and it was ordered that a message be sent to the House of Assembly, that this House had passed same with some amendments.

On motion of HON. MR. SHEA, the House went into Committee on Bill, entitled "An Act to Regulate the Exportation of Salt Codfish."

HON. MR. MILLEY took the chair.

HON. MR. McNAMARA:—Mr. Chairman, I would like to make a few observations on this Bill and whilst I am not a fish exporter or fish dealer I am in common with all others deeply interested in our fishing industry, as I realize the fact that on the success or failure of this enterprise depends a good deal of the prosperity or otherwise of this Dominion. When we take the results in connection with last year's regulations of the fish markets into account I am convinced that the average citizen will be forced to admit that not only were the fishery regulations not a success, but that their enforcement will go down in Newfoundland history as a disastrous failure. What are the results? First there are roughly 180,000 qtls. of last year's fishery in the Dominion unsold—there are roughly 150,000 qtls. of last year's catch in the foreign markets unrealized making a total of 330,000 qtls. on this fish at a conservative estimate, there is likely to be a loss of not less than $6.00 per qtl. or aggregating in all a total of approximately—two million dollars. I do not say that all this due to the fishery regulations nor do I say that a good deal of it is, and further that if our fish had not been held up by fixed prices we could have unloaded our stocks like Norway, France and Iceland and would possibly have saved a goo ddeal of this money but for our want of foresight in demanding prices that market conditions did not warrant. When you will notice that our fishermen are traversing Water Street with yaffles of fish in their arms looking for purchasers at any price—most of our journeymen coopers are out of work owing to their being no demand for casks and barrels—Then again mill owners are hampered due to the fact that they cannot sell any of their cooperage stock—which they attribute to the absence of demand on account of no fish being exported in casks. I am prepared to admit that good may come of some of these regulations such as standardization and improvement of cure, and I go further and say that I believe the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, the Hon. Mr. Coaker, is earnest and sincere in his efforts to better fishery conditions but I claim as I already stated in this Chamber that you cannot satisfactorily control the price of a food product by legislation and I think it will be admitted that our present attempt to do so has resulted very much to the disadvantage of this country. I would like to inform this House that one of the greatest men this country ever produced—the late Sir Ambrose Shea—uncle of the present Leader of the Government here—and in later life Governor of the Bahamas—stated that the least legislation you had about the fishery the better, as conditions were continually changing and what suited this year did not apply at all to another season. With your permission, Mr. Chairman, I should like to read an extract or two from an interview in Saturday's "Trade Review" had with Mr. W. A. Munn. Mr. Munn is a large exporter of codfish to the Mediterranean and as he has just returned from viting Italy, Spain and Greece, this interview will be found of great interest at present juncture. Speaking of his experience with fish importers in these ports he says:—

"One important theme that I always kept to the front was that we now had a fisherman's Government in charge of our affairs, who intended to make things better than they have ever been in the past. They asked me how we intended to do this, and my reply was that we were going to improve the cure and ship them the quality of fish that they were looking for, so that they would have no further trouble with discontented customers. The invariable question was, 'what does your govern-'ment mean by fixing prices and forc-'ing us to make our purchases through 'one man?' It was a question that I could not answer, and neither can anyone do it satisfactorily, so I had to revert to the Scotchman's perogative by asking another question. The following is an interesting conversation from my diary with one man, who understood the situation very well. I asked him if he did not think some control would be beneficial and he replied,—'What your Givernment is attempting 'is a 'Capitalist Control,' and if they 'think this can be carried out, they 'must 'corner' the fish market, and pur-'chase all the Norway, Iceland and 'French fish before they can dictate to 'us what price we must pay.' 'I am in 'favor,' he said, 'of an 'Intelligent Con-'trol,' so that the fisherman are shown 'how to put up a better cure, and with 'a proper inspection before it leaves 'Newfoundland, you will find that it 'will be money in your pocket as well 'as ours.' I asked him if he was in favor of having outright sales,' or sending the fish 'on consignment' to be disposed of to best advantage. He replied, 'No intelligent man would need 'a reply to that question. You kill your 'trade by sending fish forward unsold; 'there is only a very small quantity that 'can be sold in this way to good ad-'vantage each season. Then large con-'signments arrive and the buyers will 'get all they want at their own price.'"

A good deal in this interview agrees with statements made by me a short time ago in discussing these Fishery Regulations. For instance you will notice that it is claimed that in order to fix prices we would have to control the catch of Norway, Iceland, and France or in other words "corner" the fish of these countries and with our own fish endeavour to dictate prices to our customers in the Mediterranean, this was the very contention I upheld—that it is useless to fix prices of a food product unless you control it as Greece controls the currant industry for instance or as Manilla controls the raw rope industry. As far as consignments of fish are concerned I would control them to a certain point—but if the consignee would advance say 75% or 80% on the value of a cargo I would not prevent consignments on this basis although I would not be in favor at all of sending consignments free and to be at the mercy of the consignee for what he may be disposed to give in payment of your consignment. I am not in favour of these Fishery Regulations and will support the amendment of the Hon. Mr. Grieve.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—Mr. Chairman, if one could judge by the pessisimistic tone of the remarks of the hon. gentleman who has just sat down, one would imagine dire disaster was going to overtake this country and the people as well. But the hon. gentleman's arguments are not borne out by facts. The hon. gentleman is sufficiently well versed in trade and business as it is being carried on in the different parts of the world to know that many countries have fixed a price upon the goods produced of a food commodity. In reply to that I might say that Canada has fixed the price of wheat. A price for sugar has been fixed and the countries producing same control both wheat and sugar. They find it necessary to do this in the interests of the country. In support of his arguments he read an interview with Mr. Munn in The Trade Review. I presume it is well known that Mr. Munn was the first to sell fish in the foreign market at a low price when there was no necessity for it. He could have obtained as high a price for his fish as those who had sold fish prior to him; but because of some circumstances which had arisen, he chose to undersell the fish that was being exported from this Colony by five or ten shillings when there was no necessity whatsoever. I would consequently remind the hon. member that when he quotes Mr. Munn as an authority he should not forget the fact that this is the gentleman who undersold the trade here when there was no necessity, and the regulations were put in force for the purpose of keeping men lkie Mr. Munn from depreciating the price of fish and thereby causing loss to those engaged in the trade. Now the hon. gentleman who proposes an amendment to the Bill in support of the position he takes makes assertions, but these he does not bear out by facts or arguments, and in the absence of both of these, his assertions must fail. For instance he tells us that the making of regulations is at the dictum of the Minister. The presumption from what he says is that nobody else will have anything to say and that the matter will be in the hands of one person. Now the untruth of this must be manifest to all who have taken the trouble to study this measure; and if the hon. member will study the first section of the measure he will see wherein he has erred. It provides that there will be a codfish exportation Board consisting of seven members; the Minister of Marine and Fisheries ex-officio; four members, exporters of codfish appointed by the Government and two members appointed by the majority of the exporters of codfish. Members will notice that the members of the Board must be exporters of codfish; according to the assertions of the hon. member one must infer that men who are financially interested in the successful sale and marketing of our codfish are going to jeopardize the property and money which they have invested and bring loss upon themselves at the behest and dictum of the Minister. Could any position be more ridiculous? Could anything be more absurd than the suggestion that exporters themselves interested in the exportation of codfish are going to be so foolish as to barter away their own interests as fish purchasers and injure exportation. That is the position when my learned friend's assertion is worked out to its logical conclusion, and it is the most ridiculous one he could make use of. It is asserted that this Board immediately it is appointed will pass and require to be carried into effect certain rules and regulations without more. But that is not the case and hon. members who will read Section 2 will see that all rules made will have to be passed and approved of by the Governor in Council; and without this approval they cannot be put in full force and effect. Now can it reasonably and sincerely be assumed that the Government of the country in whose hands the destiny of the country is placed; whose hands the prosperity of the country must be a first charge upon, is going to deliberately pass rules and regulations and put the same into full force and effect, when these regulations are such as will have the effect of bringing loss upon the people of this country. That is Sir, the effect of the assertions of the hon. member who has just taken his seat. It is seriously suggested that the Government of this country is going to sit down and deliberately bring loss to the people of the country. You would not hear anything more revolutionary out in Russia. Do the hon. gentlemen opposed to this Bill presume that nobody has the interests of the country at heart except themselves? That nobody cares what will become of the country and whether its industries will be carried on at a profit o rat a loss? All are interested in the export trade of the Colony, becausecause it is on that trade that a country must live. If you cannot carry on business at a profit, but continue to do business at a loss; then you must very soon close up because in that respect the trade of the country is like the business of an ordinary man. Now this Bill I contend deals with very necessary safeguards, and provides power to deal with situations as they may arise. This is demonstrated by Section 3. This section provides that new rules and regulations made will not effect any previous contracts entered into under rules previous and contrary to these. Safeguards are consequently in the bill which will protect the exporter of fish who may have entered into a contract under other regulations. Then Mr. Chairman, the idea that the working of this bill is to be at the dictum of the Minister is false, and that is very clearly shown by Section 5 of the Bill. There is nothing arbitrary about this Bill and this section shows this to be the case. The other assertion that the return to normal trade has taken place is equally unfounded. How the hon. gentleman could take that position I am at a loss to understand. Why, Sir, the United States Government is to-day considering taking over the United States railroads because of abnormal conditions. Not because of strikes and labor difficulties; but because of congestion in the moving of freight. A return to normal conditions with Europe seething with discontent? How can we expect normal conditions with conditions as they are. Hon. gentlemen know very well that it will be many years before we return to normal conditions; and until this time comes we will have to maintain regulations and control. Another contention of the hon. gentleman is that arbitrary fixing of prices will enable competitors to undersell us. He does not give us any particulars. But I would ask the hon. member: Can the people of Nova Scotia catch fish cheaper than those of Newfoundland? Are wages cheaper and less in Nova Scotia than in Newfoundland? Does it cost more to catch a quintal of fish in Newfoundland than it does in Nova Scotia? Does it cost less in Norway than in Newfoundland? Have the prices of commodities not advanced all over the world to even a greater extent than they have in Newfoundland? Are not some commodities being sold here to-day cheaper than the price at which they are being sold in Canada? The assertion of the hon. member that the arbitrary fixing of prices will enable competitors to undersell us, is not therefore capable of being borne out by facts.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—It has been amply proven already.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—In the case where unsuitable fish has been shipped, maybe; but not with good fish. One of the serious objections of the hon. member to this bill is that he feels he ought to be allowed to get for his fish whatever price he can. The sentiment of the hon. member was the sentiment of a good many people last fall. They thought they ought to get whatever price they could for their fish. But it was to prevent them getting any price they could that these regulations were introduced; and as a result they have been the means of doing a great amount of good. The hon. gentleman admitted that regulations were alright up to a certain period. His limitations have not been, as I have already said, borne out by the facts. The hon. gentleman must not forget that wages are higher in Europe and that therefore our people must receive what they earn.

HON. MR. RYAN:—Men's wages are cheaper in Norway. I have shipped men from there for the past 16 years and their wages are much cheaper.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—I think the hon. member must be in error. The wages of men in Norway are higher than in Newfoundland. The hon. member spoke of sending fish on consignment and getting a good price for it; but what does it mean? A delay of five, six or even nine months for our money. Why should we send fish on consignment: If we want to buy goods in the United States, have you not to put up your money in United States before they send you the goods? Why not treat our own goods the same way. There is no reason at all why our Newfoundland fish should be offered to the market by consignment. There is no reason why we should do in the future what our old men have done and our young men have seen done in the past. We must become modern in our business. The hon. member then makes another assertion that this bill will control competition. But he does not say in what way. He does not attempt to reason why. This bill only fixes a minimum price at which fish is to be sold, so that the fishermen of this country will know before they prosecute the fishery just what price they are going to get for their fish. But I would point out to the hon. member that there is nothing here to limit the amount they can receive for their fish. There is no mention made of any maximum price. And then the hon. gentleman says that if the bill goes on the Statute Book, he will curtail his trade, and will only export certain fish, and I presume supply certain dealers, and not go into it generally. Well, of course that is the hon. gentleman's own business, but that is not going to deter the Government from dealing with this question should the necessity arise. The curtailment of the hon. gentleman's business while it may affect some gentlemen will not affect, I presume, the attitude of the Government in regard to what should be done in the interests of the trade of the Colony. The hon. gentleman who seconded the motion admits that the regulations were good up to a certain date, but when the time arrived for him to sell a quantity of fish in casks, the regulations stood in his way. He could get a certain price he tlels us but that price was a few shillings a quintal under the regulation price, and of course when the regulations interfered they were no good . That was the sum and substance of the hon. gentleman's argument. Well the hon. gentleman ought to take a broader view point of matters and look upon the world not so much for ourselves, but to make the world better than we found it. We must not live for ourselves, but reflect on the fact that even if we do meet a loss on an article that if that loss is in the general interests of the Colony we should bear it readily. If we live for ourselves alone we are performing a very small part in the world in which we live. The hon. gentleman should also take into consideration the fact that if the Board finds it necessary to make recommendations to the Governor in Council and the latter finds it necessary to follow the Board's advice that if there be a big catch in Norway or France, that all such circumstances will be taken into consideration; the question of what fish has to be marketed by the different peoples engaged in the production of it, the quality, &c., it will then arrive at what is best to be done under the circumstances. Now could anything be more reasonable or common sense than that? Is it possible to conceive of a bill that limits powers more than this bill does? And these powers will only be used when it becomes necessary, because that is the purport of the Bill. Another hon. gentleman quotes the congestion of fish in England as being a reason why we should proceed warily in matters of this kind. Well the price quoted by him at 2d. a pound is about the price we pay for fish at the fish stands here, so that the price is not a low one. A man may say I have a right to run my business as it suits me; what right has anybody to interfere with me as to the manner in which I conduct my business? But gentlemen engaged in business must remember that they are members of society and that they have duties as well as rights, and no man has a right to carry on trade or business to the detriment of the community in which he lives, or of those engaged in it. If a man so conducts his business so that it results in loss to those engaged in it, he should not be permitted to carry it on because a wrong is perpetrated on the community. Take the Labrador fishery in days gone by. What is its history but one of loss, of insolvency, of the men engaged in it? And why? Because there was no regulation or control over the manner in which it was run. Large quantities of fish were caught and each exporter rushed his fish to market, and the places where Labrador fish is marketed were often congested, there was twice the supply to meet the demand and there were all kinds of losses and rebates whereas if shipments had been regulated and controlled many a man who had to get out of it would have made money. But because all were trying to get the first cargo over there was congestion and men were ruined. It would have been a good thing for the carrying on of the Labrador fishery if they had had regulations of the kind in force last year. We must take into consideration in matters of this kind the chaotic condition that prevails in many of the countries to which we send our fish; that many of them are on the verge of bankruptcy. Conditions are unparellelled and we cannot expect trade and industry to be carried on with these countries in the same manner as heretofore. Governments the world over, rich and poor, are regulating and controlling trade and almost every department of the economic and industrial life. Nobody is anxious to control trade of course, except it be for the general good and well being of the country and people. Nobody wants to restrict the man or company in the way he carries on his business but if the Government permitted people to trade with countries verging on bankruptcy without some control, they would be very remiss in their duty. And it cannot be denied that the marketing of fish last fall was a very serious matter. Normal conditions of trade, with the enhanced inflation of paper currency in Europe more especially in markets where we sent our fish; the depreciation that has taken place; the high rates of exchange, make it absolutely to have control, and it is only a question of what is the best to be done. And I feel sure the Government is going to do what is best under the circumstances taking all the facts into consideration. Every country to-day is stock-taking so to speak to see what conditions are like, and after the signing of the Armistice the stock-taking of some of the countries shows them to be chaotic. No doubt there is a demand for food commodities of all kinds, more especially in Europe, and the only difficulty is the wherewithal to pay. Now I remember when the regulations were first promulgated I went down to see the late Hon. Mr. Goodridge and had a long talk with him because I wanted to get the benefit of his years and advice and he looked upon the regulations as very necessary, and though they were very essential, and that it might be necessary to have some sort of regulations for the coming year. I can quite appreciate the feeling of some hon. gentlemen in regard to the sundering of business and personal ties that must take place between those who have been carrying on trade and business here for years and what effect it must have on them to suddenly sever those social and business ties, but we must not forget that such changes are necessary and the motives must be good for the country. Fear and distrust have been argued as another reason, but who has sown the fear and distrust? The whole thing, as the hon. leader of the Government said a few weeks ago, has been made a political football of, and have been misrepresented and distorted. Another statement of the hon. gentleman is that there is no precedent for the regulation and control of trade. Well the hon. gentleman cannot have read the history of his country because if he had he would know that the most prosperous time the people of England ever had was when its trade and industry was controlled. As the poet says:—(Extract). When the price of almost every article was controlled and profits fixed which each could make. Every department of its life, economic and industrial was regulated and controlled and that is the time the poet refers to.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Not export prices.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—Certainly in the 14th and 15th centuries. We should endeavour to look upon this question from as broad a view point as possible because for the past five years we have been engaged in destruction, and now we are attempting a reconstructive period and it may be necessary to reconstruct in some manner the trade and business of the country ,and I know it is a delicate matter for hon. gentlemen to change opinions and ideas as regards the manner in which the trade and industry should be carried on. Men who have grown up with them, and they have been part of their very being for years. It is only reasonable to expect that they will view with disfavour any changes from the manner in which they have carried on their own business in the past. But I would point out that the present time is a time when all who have formed any serious notions as to the duties put upon them should forget differencies and unite not only to put away dissensions amongst us but bring home to people a realization of their needs and necessities. And one of the needs of this country to-day is a profitable export trade, and how that is to be carried out. I feel this Bill is the best and most reasonable that could be devised and I trust hon. gentlemen will see that and give it their hearty and united support.

HON. MR .BISHOP:—At the last sitting of the House the Hon. Sir P. T. McGrath seeking information I assume to enable him to give an intelligent vote on tis mihprottan pre 123456 123 vote on this important bill, directed one or two questions to me with a request that I should endeavour to answer them. Now I suppose it is well known to every member of this House tha the Italian Government last year with the object no doubt of procuring a food supply at the cheapest possible rate; decided to form what is called a Consorzio, what we should call a combine and selected a certain number of prominent codfish importers in that country to act in that capacity, proclaiming that codfish could not be imported into Italy except through the Consorzio. When that became known in Newfoundland exporters were naturally concerned and wondered how the situation could best be met, and after a good deal of consideration it was decided that fish export regulations must be promulgated and put into force and effect. We were up against a stone wall of opposition and that combine could only be met successfully by a combine at this end. A combination apart from Government control would have been, as previous attempts, useless and summoning certain members of the trade to his counsel and assistance the Minister of Marine and Fisheries decided upon certain rates that would be asked for our codfish. The price fixed, however, was not acceptable to the Consorzio and for a considerable time there was a deadlock. They said the price asked here was higher than they could afford to pay.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—I may say it was not a question of price but of terms. I can explain it if you like.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—The hon. gentleman has had a good deal of explaining already. I would submit however it was a question of price. Some what later in the season Mr. Hawes proceeded to Naples and had been there not more than 48 hours in consultation with the Consorzio when he wired that he had sold or could sell 150,000 qtls. of Newfoundland codfish. Up to that time not a cod's tail had been sold. There was then about that quantity of fish suitable for Italy afloat and all owners of those cargoes if so disposed could send them forward to Italy and the greater number of them went forward. Furthermore following the cargoes, as far as I am aware, all suitable cargoes and which have been available have been sent forward to Italy and realized on the whole fairly satisfactory results. If there had been no such decree in Italy respecting codfish, there would, I submit be more reason for the objections raised by certain exporters against these regulations, but it will be remembered that a meeting was called in February at the Board of Trade, all members being summoned, and a debate lasting three afternoons in which this matter was thrashed out very fully, and a vote then taken showed the decision of the Board as follows:—(Read extract). And I might say that prior to that time any exporter was at liberty to sell cargoes or part cargoes in any country with the exception of Italy. There was no restriction providing they obtained the minimum price, and I may say it is to my knowledge that fish was sold higher than the minimum price. Now there is the resolution passed by the Board of Trade after three days discussion.

HON. MR. WINTER:—Unanimously.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—Well I did not know that, but I know it would have been a very small minority if any. Now, Mr. Chairman, another question asked was should we have legislation at present in view of the competition: I would say it is because of the competition that the fixing of a minimum price is essential, and in support of that let me say that the House of Assembly deliberately passed this unanimously. This Bill has come to us after considerable debate in the House of Assembly, where it was unanimously voted for.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I understand that Bill was considerably modified. There were objections to the original Bill.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—The objections were remedied, and the Bill, as we now have it, was unanimously supported.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Sir John Crosbie and Mr. Bennett dissented.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—In the Board of Trade only.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Sir John Crosbie made a strong speech against it in the Lower House but when division came he was not present. There were certain modifications made in the meantime.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—I will read the whole resolution passed by the Board of Trade. (Reads). The Bill that comes before us to-day was considered with due cognizance of that meeting of the Board of Trade. It does provide that all the members of the members of the Board be fish exporters and that a meeting be called the first week in September. (Every member has an opportunity accorded him to vote). In view of these facts I do not see how in any degree of justice it may be claimed that these regulations are contrary to the interest of the country or that exporters have not been safeguarded as far as is humanly possible. It is evidence that after hearing the explanation of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, the members of the House of Assembly were satisfied, and were prepared to give the Board a trial.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—One other point—that was with reference to my hon. friend's cargo of fish—the consignment to Liverpool.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—The price in Liverpool was 70 shillings per swt. Several parcels had been sold at 70sh. I do not know exactly by whom, but I assume these people were in the same boat as I was myself. I had a parcel of fish to dispose of. My agent wrote me saying he could not attain 70sh. now but could probably sell at 68. Having no authority to do this he did not sell. I wrote him saying he must hold it for 70sh. Mr. Ryan's agent sent fish to Spain expecting he would get an equivalent price there or better. I subsequently sold my fish in Liverpool at 70sh. I do not know what happened Mr. Ryan's fish, he thought it was sold, but found it was not and suffered a loss. This is the fortune of war. His agent acted as he thought to his best interests. He might have gotten more than equivalent of 70 sh. and Mr. Ryan would have been very pleased indeed.

HON. MR. RYAN:—My agent had nothing to do with it. It was done without my consent. They sent it to Alicante from there back to Valencia where it is now.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—This is evidently a disagreement between Mr. Ryan's agent and Mr. Hawes, and has nothing to do with the regulations. Reference made to the cold storage on the other side reminded me that in the early months of 1919 Mr. Wm. Ashbourne sent forward a large cargo of fish to an Italian port, and being unable to obtain a bid, there being no sale, decided to send it back to Alicante. The sale for Labrador fish was over so it was then put in the cold stores, to which Mr. Ryan refers, and through this action of Mr. Hawes on behalf of Mr. Ashbourne, he was able to sell his fish and get a price which must have saved him from a loss of $100,000. If during those hot months it had not been taken care of in this way it would have rotted. But for those cold stores it would have been at the bottom of the sea. It is a fortunate thing for Mr. Ashbourne and others that Mr. Hawes had the foresight to provide cold stores in Alicante. I feel, Mr. Chairman, it is quite unnecessary to spend more time in defending the Fishery Regulations after the lenthy debate. The unanimous decision of the Board of Trade that the regulations of the price of fish was essential. The House of Assembly passed this Bill with unanimity. It is now before us for our action, I cannot fear, that in view of these facts that the members of this Chamber are not going to see that the action of the Government and particularly the Minister of Marine and Fisheries is in the interest of the fish industry of the country. The Board are watching from month to month and week to week and altering regulations if necessary from time to time. I feel sure, Sir, that this House is going to support this Bill.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN:—I wish to make a few remarks on this subject. We have heard a lot outside. There have been lots of rumours. I was in favour of these Regulations, but I was not satisfied that they had been done just in the right kind of way. We must remember it is easy to pull down but it takes strong men to build up. It is all right to criticise. Some have suffered from those Regulations. I do not myself like the idea of having to ship all my fish to one concern. I believe, however, the Regulations were wisely gotten up. Our competition with other markets must be considered. We must not be out-distanced or undersold by our competitors, or we shall be left behind. Loss in some cases has been due to storms, and the Regulations have been blamed. Before Regulations were made 70 sh. was often the price paid for fish. Now the price goes to 85 or 90 sh. or over. There is no good in blaming the Regulations. The main market they affect is the Brazilian market, and there we have been outdistanced by our Halifax friends.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—It is Newfoundland fish they have sold.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Cannot our people sell it as well as the people of Halifax?

HON. MR. BISHOP:—I shall answer that question presently.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN:—Now then we have to crawl before we walk and walk before we run and in the process of learning we have many falls—we make lots of mistakes. It is the same with the Regulations. Mr. Coaker according to this first paragraph is subject to his Board, he is not able to do as he likes: He has to abide by the decision of his Board. Looking at the Bill from that standpoint one man does not "rule the roost." We all know that this past year the fish was caught much later than other years. Now, Sir, if we are sincere and honest the Regulations ought to be a great benefit. Quarrelling does not do much good. People are not satisfied to give a true account of the amount of fish—the newspapers are a curse—there is no need of deceiving people. Some years ago there was great talk about sending over a proper kind of scale to weigh the fish on the other side. Sometimes a cargo is four hundred or two hundred quintals short. A old-fashioned scale, their grandfathers had, they are weighing fish with in Italy now. In Leghorn, Fairbanks' platform scale is used. The shortage in the weight could be remedied if proper scales were used. Since sitting here this afternoon and hearing what has been said I am more in favour of the Regulations. I cannot say I suffered in any way with regard to them. My loss has been due to storms. I do not believe though in putting all our fish into one hand. Why should we go back on people who have been doing their best to please us for the past twenty years? On one occasion Mr. Hawes telegraphed asking permission to sell at 28sh. 6d. a quintal less. We saw a signed agreement. Some claim this was not legitimate. It would be a good thing if we had inspectors from Europe, from the different markets to inspect our fish here before going across. There is one good thing the first section says,—"There shall be a codfish exportation board."

HON. MR. BISHOP:—In answer to the question asked by Sir P. T. McGrath in regard to the fish exported to Brazil from Halifax. If a firm in Brazil bought a cargo of fish, for many years the bill was payable after the arrival of the ship in the port of Brazil, by a "ninety day bill," the Fish Regulations demanded that 90% be paid down. One large importing firm had kicked against the Regulations and would not buy a cargo and have not bought since. They applied to the large fish handlers in Halifax, which were prepared to sell them a cargo, at what price I do not know, I presume an equivalent one to that which we were asking. They came to some terms afterwards with Halifax concerning the sending of cargoes to Brazil and not having fish enough to supply she had to buy from Newfoundland. Our own vessels freighted it to Halifax.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I wish to express my thanks to the hon. gentleman opposite for the light thrown on this subject, to my very great satisfaction. I have a much better grip of the matter than I had on Friday. There is just one question which he did not answer, that in a measure involves a problem if this scheme is to be a success—that is—whether our rivals and competitors have any machinery of this kind in existence. If they have not I should think that is going to operate seriously against the experiment. After hearing discussion, I am disposed to support the Bill.

HON. MR. MEWS:—I should imagine Norway has Government control, as there they have Government factories.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I am not sure that they go so far as that; but I think one people catch the fish and another lot cure it.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—As regards the Government regulations I am unable to say anything; but it will be noticed that a consignment of Norwegian fish has just been landed at Oporto. That was put there by the British Government.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I think that is generally understood. This is fish bought by the British Government during the war to keep it from reaching Germany. Now they are dumping it on the market to realize on it. From the hon. gentleman's argument I gathered that the Consorzio started only last fall. He must be mistaken. The Board of Trade report says that it was formed shortly before the armistice in the fall of 1918. Our struggle continued all the summer of 1919. No regulations of a Government character were introduced, but the Hon. Sir John Crosbie worked out a system. This system continued to work until 1919 when new regulations became necessary. The Consorzio refused to buy.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—I can explain that. In the early part of 1918 the Italian Government agreed with a number of merchants and formed a Consorzio. At that time Hon. Sir John Crosbie was Minister of Shipping. The trade generally objected to the terms upon which the Consorzio agreed to buy. They offered us the price but demanded a retension of 20 per cent. until the cargoes were landed and approved. In other words if short of weight or inferior, the bankers retained 20 per cent. on the value of the sale. The trade here would not agree to that and consequently we lost all business with Italy that year. In 1919 the Consorzio still held out until in October Mr. Hawes visited the country and he made arrangements whereby he undertook to sell large quantities of fish to Italy subject to his sole control. He held out that he would receive payment in full, but he afterwards sold subject to twenty per cent. retention. In other words what was done in 1919 was practically the same as that done in 1918. Only for that period the amount sold was about one hundred thousand quintals, for which they paid eighty per cent cash and held the remaining twenty per cent. over. I am inclined to think moreover that most of that twenty per cent. was deducted.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—In other words then if I understand the hon. member correctly, Mr. Hawes sold the fish at terms which had been refused by our shippers.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—The difference between the terms arranged by Mr. Hawes and the other offer was that under the Hawes agreement the full payment was deposited in London, and the twenty per cent. instead of being held in Italy was held in London. When once Mr. Hawes was appointed no fish could be sold but through him; therefor no individual shipper was free to export to Italy. But all shippers had an equal chance, and no discrimination was practiced at all.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—However, with regard to the main issue, it is correct as I pointed out the other day the Board of Trade and Fish Exporters favoured regulations. As far back as July last they met and called for them. In November regulations were put into effect and an attempt made to deal with the question. At the time there was a great deal of criticism and the next development was in January or February when a three days discussion took place as a result of which it was agreed that regulations were desirable. Later in May a different position was taken, namely that the trade should have control. Well, as I said here before, I would prefer Government control to trade control at any time. I would prefer the Government to have control than the merchant. It is true as has been stated here that there was substantial unanimity in the other house when this bill passed but I was struck with the fact that the two or three points set forth when the bill was introduced into this Chamber were points introduced as a result of the criticism in the other House. In the original bill this committee consisted of five members: three to be appointed by the Government; the Minister of Fisheries, and one appointed by the Trade. As a result of the criticism this Board was enlarged to seven, as follows: The Minister, four appointed by the Government and two by the Board of Trade. But now all those so appointed have to be codfish exporters. The next point was with regard to contracts already in being, and this bill shows a very material change in this respect. Thirdly in the original bill there was no provision for a meeting of exporters generally. This is an amendment secured by the opposition. So it will be seen that very good amendments have already been added in the other Chamber, and I have no doubt but that when we get into the details of the bill we will be able to still further improve it. I do not know whether this bill is going to have the effect which the Minister has hoped. As I have said this is legislation of an experimental character; and because it is bona fide introduced with an idea of improving conditions, it is a bill which will have the support of this Chamber. I must confess that I doubt whether the other bill of this nature will have the success hoped for, especially in view of the fact that whatever may be said, it is not going to be a very easy matter to make an experiment of that kind successful. Fish is different from wheat. The price of wheat was raised because there was not nearly enough wheat to go around. That is why Canada came in and added forty or fifty cents to the price. That is the difference between Newfoundland and Canada. The next question referred to in this connection was the question of sugar. The situation in sugar was practically the same. Ihappen to have some knowledge of this matter as a result of my experience with the Food Control Board. Virtually the great mass of sugar is now produced in Cuba. During the war the control was not by individual governments. There was formed an International Sugar Board. I had to get in touch with that Board and it was only because it was international that they could do anything. There is another way of dealing with the Consorzio in this matter and that is by polling our fish, selling it and distributing the proceeds pro rata. However within the next two or three years we will have an opportunity of seeing just how this plan works out. If it works out we will all get the benefit; if it doesn't we will have to pay the price. For this reason I am going to support the Bill, but as I have already said to the hon. member I hope to suggest several amendments when we take up the Bill section by section. Before I take my seat I might suggest that the motion before the House be amended or withdrawn. A motion for the second reading six months hence is not in order at this stage of the Bill.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—I recognize that this motion is not in order. However I do not press it.

The Committee rose, reported progress and asked leave to sit again.

The remaining orders were deferred.

The House rose until to-morrow at 4 o'clock.

TUESDAY, June 15th, 1920.

House met at 4 p.m. pursuant to adjournment.

On motion the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on the Bill "An Act to Regulate the Exportation of Salt Codfish."

Hon. Mr. Milley in the Chair.

HON. MR. RYAN:—Mr. Chairman, I wish to reply to the remarks made by the Hon. Mr. Bishop last evening as regards the great sale of fish made by Mr. Hawes last fall when compared with the sale of two or three cargoes by Mr. W. A. Munn. Mr. W. A. Munn sold two or three cargoes of fish, I understand, at 85 shillings per quintal net. He sold his fish talqual; the money was remitted direct to the Bank of Montreal here, Mr. Hawes made a sale of a large quantity of fish at ninety shillings and a very short time afterwards those who had fish on that steamer were called upon to agree to a reduction of two and six per quintal on the cargo, which we all agreed to. Then we would get 87s. 6d. for the cargo of fish. I have in my hand now account sales rendered by Mr. Hawes for some of that fish, and I find instead of getting 87s. 6d. which we thought we would get, a rebate was taken off the greater part of the cargo. First to commence with, there was a rebate of 6 shillings a quintal off some of the cargo, then 1s. 9½d. demurrage. Take that from 87s. 6d. and you have the price that he sold the fish for in this one case. In another case 2s. 6d. per quintal was taken off. Add to that the 1s. 9½d. and you have 4s. 3½d. off the 87s. 6d. Another account sales shows an abatement of 8s. 6d. Add to this the 1s. 9½d. demurrage, and you have 77s. 2½d. for the fish. These are only a few cases, but I have heard of others who had 4 shillings abatement, some 3 shillings and some 5 shillings. So, to compare Mr. Munn's sale with Mr. Hawes', why certainly Mr. Munn made a great sale. He sold these two or three cargoes talqual for 65 shillings, having the money remitted to the Bank of Montreal. We got from Mr. Hawes 75% on that fish when it left here and the balance was paid a few months later. I was informed in London in April on pretty good authority that two or three cargoes of fish had been sold at two shillings per quintal under the regulation price. I do not know if this is correct, and I beg to ask the honourable the leader of the Government if he can get this information for me, because I would like to know whether it is true or not. The man outside is generally in the dark as to what is going on on the Advisory Board. But if one man is allowed to sell his fish at two shillings under the regulation price, then it goes to show that there is no fair play in it. I contend, Sir, that every man should be allowed to sell his own produce and handle his own goods as best he can. I am opposed to any regulation prices in the foreign market, because they will not work satisfactory. We have too much competition now with other fish, and one must be prepared to meet them in prices, otherwise we will be driven out of the market. Now, as I understand it, Mr. Hawes last April cabled here to Newfoundland asking to be given a free hand to reduce his prices. He saw the fish lying in his stores while others were selling, and he asked that he be given a free hand, and he did not get it. I am opposed to the Advisory Board and also to the Fishery Regulations, and I shall thank the honourable leader of the Government if he can give me this information which I ask for, if it is true that two or three cargoes of fish had been sold by an exporter at two shillings below the regulation prices.

HON. MR. SHEA:—Last winter?

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—In what market?

HON. MR. RYAN:—Well, in a foreign market. It went to Spain, I believe. I got it on fairly good authority, but I would like to know whether it is correct or not. If one or two can sell cargoes under regulation prices, where are the others? Are they to be handicapped? They would not allow me to sell 110 casks at 65 shillings; they were going to get seventy, and now they cannot sell it at all. We have had enough of regulation prices, and I am of the opinion, Sir, that next fall you will see lots of fish in St. John's in November that will be unsaleable. Time will tell.

HON. MR. ANDERSON: — Mr. Chairman, I want to make a few remarks on the Bill before the House. Ever since the Island was discovered very little regulations as to the catch and cure of fish have been formulated, and never has any interest been taken by any Government as to the regulation of the curing and export of the produce of the country. I have in my hand three Bills that have passed the Lower House, and these three Bills are the three reasons why I support the Bill before the Chair. In the first place we have a Bill that passed the Lower House unanimously. I refer to the Bill with respect to the standardization of fish. We had a second bill, an Act to provide for the better obtaining of information respecting the codfishery, which is a sequence to the first bill. After the fish is cleared and the quality prepared, the Minister denies information from all around the country as to the catch and quality. The bill before us to-day is for the regulation of the export of codfish. So far as I am concerned, I can only re-echo the explanation given yesterday by Hon. Mr. Bishop. In the export of a food commodity, more particularly the national commodity of this country, we must at least have some regulation as to the price we should get in the foreign market. There should be the greatest harmony and good will amongst the exporters, because we want co-operation in the exportation of this national product. I must admit there are objectionable features in the bill, but it is of an experimental nature in the fixing of prices on our exports. As I have stated this is an unusual bill but at the same time I am prepared to support it in its entirety to give it a trial. So far as I am concerned I have no direct interest in the exports of the country, but believe a united effort should be made to uphold in the foreign markets a standard price for our fish. It is the only time to my knowledge in the history of this country that an earnest endeavour has been made to standardize the quality of fish and export it at a price that will pay not only the exporter but the catcher of the fish. With these few brief reasons I support the Bill.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—I would like to make a few remarks regarding section one which provides for the appointment of an Advisory Board to work in concert with the Minister. Having worked for about nine months on a similar Board which was recruited from the ranks of the exporting merchants, I can speak with some authority on the nature of the business they have to undertake. Added to our own onerous duties as citizens which we have to discharge in different services, we had to take on this duty of the Escasoni's cargo which took us four or five months to accomplish, involving three meetings a day sometimes and even meetings on Sunday. We found at the termination of our work that three of the members of this Advisory Board were so completely worn that they needed a rest. We were handling 60,000 qtls. of fish, and found the duties very onerous. This Committee which is proposed to be established will be required to give their attention to 1,500,000 qtls., and that onerous job will not, in my opinion, be as well carried out as under the present system of twenty or thirty people managing their own business. Therefore if these me nare not prepared to give up their usual association, and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries is not prepared to divorce himself from residence in Catalina and stay in St. John's, my opinion is that the work will be very incompletely performed, and I have not come across any clause in the Bill which compels the Minister to be governed and guided by a majority of the views of his colleagues. If therefore the views of a majority of his Advisory Board does not accord with the views of the Minister, I have not read in this Bill any clause by which he has to give attention to their views, and he will then be an autocrat, Minister on the one side, and Hon. Mr. Coaker, President of the F.P.U., on the other, and I do not know, but I shall think that the interests of the F.P.U. will not suffer at the hands of the Hon. Mr. Coaker, and rather the interests of the country at large will suffer than the interests of the organization under his control. It appears to me from the remarks of hon. gentlemen that this Bill is going to pass this House, based on a variety of opinion, one of which has been voiced by two hon. gentlemen, Hon. Mr. Bishop and Hon. Mr. Anderson, who are prepared to give it a chance. Well it appears to me that the stake with which we are gambling is a very big stake, and we are jeopardising the interests of the Colony for an experiment which may turn out badly. There are no specific reasons adduced why we should do this. We are starting out on a new country. Hon. Mr. Gibbs stated it had been tried in the 13th century in Great Britain and did not tell us if it had succeeded or failed.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—It was a complete success for centuries up to the 15th century. The hon. gentleman will find many writers who stated that trade was carried on better than since.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—As to export prices?

HON. MR. GIBBS:—Yes.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—It was tried in recent years in Norway; I am speaking on the authority of the Norwegian Consul. What I feel on this matter is this, that if we hold the unbrella over the heads of those who are competing with us, we shall be left at the end of the season full of a perishable commodity, while our competitors, Norway, France, Iceland, Canada, America and Japan, all largely producing and increasing every year, will profit to our discomfiture. That is what I am afraid of. I stated earlier in the session that if I were a politician and wanted to see the present Government injured by the passing of such a bill, I would support it, but I am convinced outside of politics that this Colony will suffer if it passes the measure. I had intended to refer to the statements of Hon. Mr. Bishop and others yesterday but do not want to delay the House. I am speaking now on the principle of the Bill which I consider a very bad one which I do not find attempted in recent years in any adjoining country, and that we should essay such a step at this time is in my opinion a very dangerous proceeding.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I wouldsuggest to the hon. gentleman in charge of the Bill that as the debate on the main principles of the Bill is pretty well exhausted we ought to consider a variety of amendments which ought to be made. Now as regard section one, while it provides for a Board, it does not say how or when. My suggestion was that they should be appointed at the meeting in September when the Minister calls the exporters together. Then there is no provision for filling up temporary or permanent vacancies. That is a provision I think we should all recognize, that every member of the executive board has been out of the Colony since the regulations were put into force. I think I am safe in saying that there was no time when there was not one or two away. I suggest that power should be given for somebody to act in place of those who may be away. All these matters should be gone into before the bill leaves this House; otherwise it might prove unworkable in some cases. In section 3 there is provision that when rules are changed there should be immediate notice. I think there should be a requirement there that that should be done by telegraph. In section 4 it provides for licenses to be granted to any applicant who complies with the rules made under this Act. I do not think that that is what is intended, because it is obvious that they cannot comply with rules before the season because they do not know what they are. Sub section 2 sets out that licenses shall be in force for one year only from date of issue thereof. It might be that you would have people operating under licenses of different periods and I would suggest that licenses be issued for one calendar year or fiscal year. Sub-section 3 provides that licenses shall be suspended or cancelled by the Governor in Council for non-compliance or breach of the rules. Apparently the only penalty is cancellation or suspension. There may be other offences and there should be provision for a fine for nominal or technical breaches of the Act. Section 5 I suggest should have a clause added which would enable the exporters to appoint the two men to be on the Board. They are to be appointed by a majority of the fish exporters of the country holding licenses under this Act. They are to meet once a year and I suggest that is the time to appoint their representatives. Section 6 I might say meets the contention raised by Hon. Mr. Grieve as to the powers of the Minister. Neither the Board or the Minister can do anything, but the power rests in the hands of the Governor in Council. The Minister is bound under that section to respect every decision of the Board. He is not bound nor is the Governor in Council to act upon them. Otherwise it would destroy the whole principle of constitutional authority under which the Colony is governed. The Executive Council and the Governor in Council must be the last authority. That is so well established a principle that I do not think it can be disputed. Section 7 however seems to me to be the most peculiarly constructed in the Bill. (Read section). Now on analysis that will be seen to be a most preposterious composition. Suppose there are fifty exporters and at $50 each that is $2500 altogether. There is no appeal clause such as in the Bill which we passed for Securing of Information Regarding the Codfishery. It might be well, if after others who wish to speak have spoken, in order to expedite matters, to send this Bill to a Select Committee.

The Committee rose and reported that it had made some progress and asked leave to send same to a Select Committee.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—The Committee has not asked leave to sit again. When it goes into Select Committee what becomes of it after that? If it is to come back to this House must we not ask leave to sit again?

HON. MR. PRESIDENT:—I take it this Bill is not disposed of by the Committee sitting on it now.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—No such motion is necessary. When Bill is sent to a Select Committee it usually means to kill it. There is no intention that it should come back, in the first place. In the second—the Committee on its own account may decide to report.

HON. MR. BISHOP:—The Committee must report.

On motion of HON. MR. SHEA the House resolved itself into Committee on Bill entitled "An Act Respecting the Preservation of Beavers."

Hon. Mr. Templeman took the chair.

HON. MR. SHEA:—As I stated when moving the second reading, this Bill authorises the killing and trapping of beavers in certain areas. Any person wishing to hunt, kill or trap beavers must secure license to do same from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries from whom all licenses must come. The Bill has been introduced at the request of the inhabitants of Bay Despair and St. Barbe District where beavers are increasing to such an extent as to do damage. We are looking to the value of these skins to form a nucleus of a fund to be named the "State Insurance Fund." I am not in a position just now to give much information regarding this fund. The profits of this business is to establish this fund, whereby fishermen may take out insurance.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—There shall be no trade in beavers but through the Department of Marine and Fisheries. What inducement is there to kill the beavers. The intention is to cut down the number of beavers and the inducement is that when they have killed them they are to send them to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—So that we can keep control of the killed, we can do that. The skins have all to be sold to the Department of Marine and Fisheries.

HON. MR. MEWS:—Section 2 provides for the limiting number of beavers to be killed.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—The Government has not adopted any policy beyond this?

HON. MR. SHEA:—No.

Committee rose and reported having passed this Bill—without amendment, and it was ordered to be read a third time to-morrow.

On motion of HON. MR. SHEA the House went into Committee on Bill entitled "An Act Concerning Former Enemy Aliens."

Hon. Mr. Mews took the chair.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Is this sent out by the Imperial authorities?

HON. MR. SHEA:—It is a Bill corresponding to that Bill passed in Overseas Dominions.

Committee rose and reported having passed this Bill without amendment, and it was ordered to be read a third time to-morrow.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—In moving the second reading of Bill entitled "An Act Respecting Licenses to Cut Hard Wood," I may say it is a Bill to encourage a new industry. Within the last couple of years there has been a demand in the world for birch and witch-hazel veneer. These woods make an excellent veneer, and there is already one concern operating. Our object is to encourage this industry as it is one of some promise. I beg to move the second reading of this Bill.

The Bill was then read a second time and referred to Committee of the whole House to-morrow.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—On moving the second reading of Bill entitled "Of the Prosecution of the Seal Fishery," I desire to point out that the intention of this Bill (Section 3 o fthe Act already in force) provides for the proper kind and quality of the food to be supplied sealers prosecuting the seal fishery, but it does not provide the machinery for the purpose of seeing the provision of Bill carried out. A case came up before court, some time ago, in which some sealers were arrested in connection with the prosecuting of the seal-fishery after a certain length of time. During the course of the evidence given some things were stated concerning the condition under which these men worked. The conditions were of such a character that I think some provisions of this Bill are the outcome. This Bill provides that no steamer shall be cleared for the seal fishery unless it be provided with proper food ,a certificate to this effect has to be given by the inspector who is to be appointed under the Act. Sub-section B provides for the inspector. He shall be regarded as a member of the crew, but shall be entitled to the same share of seals, he shall not be requested to do any other work but such duties as are defined in this Bill. These duties are,—he is to superintend the loading on board the steamer of regular supplies, he is to inspect the quality of food. He is to inspect the sleeping quarters, if necessary take it upon himself to draw up rules and regulations for the sleeping quarters, and he is to see that regulations are carried into effect. He shall be entitled to such assistance as may be necessary to give effect to these rules and regulations. The next important provision in Bill is that no seal shall be killed after a certain time. I propose to offer an amendment when Bill goes into Committee, this section is not full enough. I move that this Bill be now read a second time.

Second reading of Pilotage Amendment Bill.

HON. MR. SHEA:—I beg to move the second reading of this Bill. The object of this Bill is to change the maximum pilotage payable from $60.00, which it now is, to $80.00, so that large vessels will pay $80.00 instead of $60.00 as now.

HON. THE PRESIDENT announced that he had received a message from the House of Assembly acquainting him that they had passed the following Bills, entitled,

An Act Respecting the Maintenance of Certain Public Roads;

An Act to Provide for the Observance of Commemoration Day;

An Act Respecting Local Affairs in Outport District;

An Act to Amend Chapter 108 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled "Of the Protection of Animals," and requesting the concurrence of the Council in the same.

On motion the Bills were read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

HON. THE PRESIDENT read a communication from His Excellency the Governor informing the House that leave of absence had been granted to the Hon. Mr. Steer for the remainder of the session.

(Names of Committee on Salt Codfish Exportation Bill).

On motion the Council adjourned until 4 p.m. on Thursday, June 17th, 1920.

THURSDAY, June 17th, 1920.

House met at 4 p.m. pursuant to adjournment.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—Before proceeding with the order of the day I should like to ask for further information in reference to the question I asked on April 29. I may say that from the beginning of the war to the taking over of the department by the Minister of Militia, I was actively engaged on the Executive of the Finance Committee, before whom all the bills of the department passed and were initialled by the members thereof. That work was done by Major Howley and a few clerks, but was very efficiently done, and on taking over the departmen by the Minister the returns were absolutely correct in every particular and the Committee have a clean record from the Auditor General. On the 29th of April I asked for returns of the medical department and the services for which the expenditure was made. I have a portion of that which so far as it goes is fairly satisfactory, but there is another portion which I have been asking for and the leader of the Government has handed me what purports tobe the returns. I will read the accompany letter of Lt. Col. Rendell. (Read letter). I may say that that does not in any way fulfill what I asked for. The chief point regarding my question is the services rendered for the monies paid. I do it because of the knowledge obtained on the Executive Committee of the Patriotic Association. On that Committee the bills of the Militia Department were passed before the Executive members of that Committee consisting chiefly of Mr. Grieve, Sir Michael Cashin, as Chairman, Sir Patrick McGrath and the late John Munn and myself. We did the work of that Committee; others occasionally dropped in and I know something of the department, and I may state that if the leader of the Government will be good enough to place this matter in the hands of Major Howley I will get what I require in a very few hours. I do not want to comment on any others but I know Major Howley is only too well acquainted with what I want and know what I want it for.

HON. MR. SHEA:—I may say I will have much pleasure in adopting the course the hon. gentleman suggests.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—Thank you.

On motion of HON. MR. SHEA the Bills respecting the Preserving of Beavers and Concerning Former Enemy Aliens were read a third time and passed and ordered to be sent to the Assembly with a message that this House had passed the same without amendment.

House went into Committee on the Bill respecting Licenses to Cut Hard Wood, Hon. Mr. Power in the chair.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—This Bill is to encourage a new enterprise in our lumbering industry. Within the past year certain parties in the Colony have attempted the manufacture of veneer from birch and witch-hazel and have met with splendid success. They have found that these woods make a splendid veneer and have found a ready market for their output in England and the United States. There is nothing in the Crown Lands Act by which we couldgive them these woods. The object in introducing this Bill is to give the sole right to these people, to whom licenses have been granted, of cutting birch and witch-hazel for the purpose of manufacturing veneers. It does not permit ship-biulders from cutting these woods, but it would prevent other veneering concerns from entering on these particular areas. It makes provision against the common idea of timber gambling wit hregard to these woods. This Bill is really an amendment of the Crown Lands Act.

Committee rose and reported having passed Bill without amendment, and it was ordered to be read a third time tomorrow.

On motion of HON. MR. GIBBS the House resolved itself into Committee on Bill entitled "Of the Prosecution of the Seal Fishery."

Hon. Mr. McNamara took the chair.

HON. MR. PRESIDENT:—Mr. Chairman, I have had some experience in this business, being interested in it for the past twenty years. This matter came up before the owners of steamers —there had been no complaints made against the food—and the majority of shareholders agreed that there was no need of such a measure as that before us to-day. Last week when this matter came up the Hon. Mr. Grieve agreed it was not necessary. It is to the owner's interest to have good rather than inferior provisions placed on board those steamers. It is a matter of some credit that we have not heard for many years of inferior food going on board the steamers. It is hoped the Superintendent to be employed will make the crew have a picnic on several evenings of the week when there are no seals to be killed, and see that provisions made in Bill be carried out. As a shareholder, personally I think it is unnecessary to proceed with a matter like this.

HON. MR. RYAN:—I understand there are inspectors now to see if the food is a good quality. The merchant or companies who supply these ships know it is to their advantage to give the best food they can get—number one flour, number one bread and good molasses, etc. There is a great difference between conditions now and those of twenty years ago. I went to the seal fishery with the late Capt. Murphy, there was no such thing as inspection then. The food was not the same quality as it is now, but the crew ate it, there were no complaints. When they got into the seals every fellow tried to beat the best man. I do not think there is any occasion to have an inspector on board the steamer to see that sleeping quarters are kept clean, etc. We have been jiddling with Bills for the past couple of years. The more Bills that are passed the worse the fishery is getting. In my time with Mr. Murphy in the "Master," the firemen used to go out and haul seals with the crew. Now the inspector, it appears, in this Bill is to see that the sleeping quarters are kept clean, and is to report about the food. He is to be entitled to the same share of seals as any member of the crew, but he is not allowed to haul them. The men nowadays going to the ice are able to keep their places clean and the inspector can see before the ship leaves there that they are given No. 1 food. Therefore I do not think an inspector to see that quarters are kept clean is necessary.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—I have never been to the ice, but as quarantine officer it is my duty to examine ships and crews on arrival here, and on more than one occasion I had to clean up these steamers and free them from disease. I therefore have had an opportunity of studying the conditions on board. This Bill, I say, is a step in the right direction. There is no reason whatsoever why the men on board these steamers cannot live much more comfortably. One, two or three men with careless habits could disorganize the whole ship. Inspection is carried on now by the medical men on board, but if he wishes to have quarters kept in better condition he has to have a fight every morning to make the men clean up. An inspector with a legal status is what is needed. I have also had an opportunity, while inspecting the cleaning out of those ships, of seeing the quantity of food which is wasted. An inspector would prevent this waste. This will be a good thing for the ship owners and for the men themselves. The quantity of food destroyed and wasted is appalling. It would be a good thing also for the health of the men and it should make the seal fishery more attractive. It would do one good to see the quarters on the American ships—the comparison is astounding. These men live in luxury and comfort on the same expenditure of money. This is not a bill introduced by the Government to which I have the honour to belong, but I give it my support for I know it to be a step in the right direction.

HON. MR. COOK:—I agree with the remarks made by the Hon. Dr. Campbell. I have some experience with regard to the seal fishery. What we have had to clean up after voyage was over would not be nice to tell. No doubt many of those men kept their quarters clean but there are many others who would not unless complaints were made. Inspection even for that would be a good thing.

HON. MR. GIBBS.—In Section 2 of Bill I propose to make a slight amendment. The section now reads "No seals shall be killed after twentieth of April in any year." It does not say by whom. I propose that "By the crew of any sealing steamer" be added.

HON. MR. PRESIDENT:—What about sailing vessels?

HON. MR. GIBBS:—It does not apply to sailing vessels. The moving in the next section is not sufficiently clear that any of the crew violating any rule or regulation will be liable to penalty. I should suggest that after "Act" on third line be added "And in violation of any rule and regulation made by Inspector aforesaid." That will make it abundantly clear that should there be a violation of such rules or regulations by any person he should be liable to a fine not exceeding $100.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—Who is to draw up these regulations? If it is left to the inspectors on each ship there will not be uniformity and this will be a serious matter. What would be a rule on one ship would not be a rule on another. In relation to general cleanliness these would prevail all through. I would suggest these rules be drawn up by Fishery Board or Governor in Council or better still by the Public Health authorities.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN:—Any owner who expects his men to work without proper food is unreasonable. I thought captains were the inspectors of the crews. I would not be in favour of paying an inspector. We seem to be continually dealing with Bills on the seal fishery. Who is responsible for bringing this one in? It seems a School Boy's Bill.

HON. MR. COOK:—If this Bill is carried out it will be a benefit to the owners and compel men to keep their quarters clean. I consider this absolutely necessary after seeing conditions of steamers that have come in.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—Let us clear up the rules and regulations otherwise all the ships will have different ones. I suggest that the making of these rules and regulations be entrusted to the Public Health Department, or else we shall have one inspector enforcing his own ideas and another may pay no attention whatever to his duties.

Committee rose and reported progress and asked leave to sit again.

On motion the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on the Bill "An Act to Amend the St. John's Pilotage Act, 1917."

Hon. Mr. Anderson in the chair.

HON. MR. SHEA:—The object of this Bill is to increase the maximum pilotage from $60.00 to $80.00, so that the larger vessels coming in will pay a larger amount than the maximum pilotage at present nam,ely, $60.00. The maximum under this Bill is $80.00.

On motion the Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendment. It was ordered to be read a third time on to-morrow.

In moving the second reading of the Bill entitled "An Act Respecting the Maintenance of Certain Public Roads" the HON. MR. GIBBS said:—Mr. President, honourable gentlemen know that for some time past a discussion has been going on in the Press as to whether power should be given certain private persons for the purpose of making expenditures upon public roads for the purpose of improving them and utilizing certain taxes which members of the Motor Association voluntarily placed upon themselves. This Bill only covers a certain section of Newfoundland, that section which is accessible by road from St. John's. The object of the Bill is a good one. In all the world over to-day Motor Associations are becoming the pioneers in good road-making and good roads are as essential to the proper development of a country as any other public facility, as a railroad or anything else of that character. If you have good public roads, properly constructed and properly maintained and extending throughout the country, greater development can take place. One of the difficulties in life in this country in many sections is isolation. You have a railroad extending from one part of the country to another, but the railroad is only good as a means of transportation for passengers and freight from certain sections. The man living fifteen miles from his neighbour is just as inaccessible as if he were living one hundred miles away. Now if we can cultivate the idea in the people of this country that good roads are necessary and essential to the proper development of the country, we are accomplishing a great deal. And this Bill is just one step in that direction. The members of the Motor Association have made up their minds to tax themselves voluntarily in order to aid themselves i nthe making of good roads. At the present time as regards the roads outside the municipal limits of St. John's, there is no means of making a proper road. There is no road making machinery, and until you get the implements necessary to make good roads you are not going to have good roads. The gentlemen who are going to administer a great portion of the taxes have as one of their objects the purchase of road-making machinery to make good roads. It is a splendid idea and I feel assured it is one which commends itself to the honourable gentlemen in the House. I beg to move the second reading.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Mr. President, I rise with a great deal of pleasure to support the second reading of this Bill, and I think it is a step in the right direction. If all the money that has been appropriated in the last twenty years for roads had been faithfully expended in the making of highways, the country would be in a very much better condition than it is. The primary object of the Bill, as I understand it, is to have roads well made for the money that is to be spent, good value for value received. In all countries after the war vast sums of money have been spent in the improvement of the highways. The Motor Association are going to tax themselves to do this work, and in doing so I hope they will extend the roads so that we will be able to go all over the country in cars. I notice sub-section (c) of Section 2 says "In the District of Placentia, the road from Holyrood by way of Salmon and Colinet to Placentia." Now there is what is called the Old Placentia Road. I went over about five miles of that road a little over a week ago and it is in very, very good condition, taking into consideration the fact that very little has been done on that road for a number of years. This Bill is very good because we never know but the motorcar may become some day supplemental to the railroad, between St. John's and Harbor Grace or St. John's and Brigus, or in the case of a strike as happened in the Old Country some time ago, the utilization of motor cars may be of very great value. I think, Mr. President, that the Motor Association by taking a step o fthis kind is doing good for the country, by opening up roads, whether in the city limits or outside of them. The second reading of this Bill has my hearty support, and I hope that the people of the country generally, as well as those who use motor cars, will get much benefit from it.

The Bill was then read a second time aid ordered to be referred to a Committee of the Whole House on to-morrow.

In moving the second reading of the Bill "An Act to Provide for the Observance of Commemoration Day" HON. MR. SHEA said:—I beg to move the second reading of this Bill, the object of which is merely to set aside a day in the year as Commemoration Day of the deeds and sacrifices of those men and women of Newfoundland who took an active part in the late war.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Mr. President, I would like briefly to refer to this Bill. I was in London shortly after the first of July, 1916, when those who were wounded were being brought to various hospitals in London, and I shall never forget many of the sights in the hospitals there. I think the idea of fixing the first Sunday in July as Commemoration Day is an excellent one. During July and August of 1916 I visited many of these young men in the various hospitals, and I am very glad, indeed, Mr. President, that the Government has seen fit to perpetuate the memory of that sad occasion.

The Bill was then read a second time and ordered to be referred to a Committee of the Whole House on to-morrow.

In moving the second reading of the Bill "An Act Respecting Local Affairs in Outport District" HON. MR. GIBBS said:—Mr. President, in moving the second reading of this Bill I desire to point out to the House that the Bill aims at giving further powers and greater control to representative bodies elected by the people in the different parts of the country. Honourable gentlemen are aware that until a few years ago the expenditure and control of public moneys were vested in Road Boards nominated by the Governor in Council. The country had outgrown that system, and it became necessary to place more and greater responsibilities in the hands of the people, and a few years ago an Act was passed respecting Local Affairs in Outport District in which the control and expenditure of road moneys were vested in public bodies elected by the people i ncertain sections. If the electors of any section of the country wish to avail of the Local Affairs Act as it now stands they simply petition the Governor in Council to have an area declared an dan election held within that area. Under the Act as it stands the election must be presided over by a Stipendiary Magistrate, Justice of the Peace, Chairman of a Road Board, or some person appointed by them. In the sections of the country where the provosions of the Act have been availed of, it has been found to work satisfactorily. In other words, greater returns for the public moneys placed in the hands of those elective boards have been given ,and this Bill is to confer still greater powers upon elective bodies of that character, so that they may have not alone the expenditure of road moneys but also expenditure of moneys upon marine works. The expenditure of moneys upon marine works has been in the hands of the elected representatives of the district, and honourable gentlemen know very well how hard it is to resist applications that are made upon the representatives of districts from individuals for small grants to do certain work, and the curse of the system is that those small grants have practically absorbed the greater portion of public moneys which were voted to do certain work and very little return was given for the money expended. This Bill then is an amendment upon the previous Act and provides machinery for the carrying out of it where the other Act did not, and it vests the control of all public moneys in the hands of those who are elected by the people to expend that money, so that each and every elector will be interested in the proper expenditure of public moneys as the persons who will have charge of the expenditure will be elected by the votes of the people in the area that will be set out and defined, and the marine works as well will be placed in their hands, so that we will not in the future have the spectacle that has been exhibited in the past or tens of thousands of dollars being placed in the hands of private individuals and very little return given for it. I beg to move the second reading of this Bill.

The Bill was then read a second time and ordered to be referred to a Committee of the Whole House on to-morrow.

HON. MR. SHEA in moving the second reading of Bill "An Act to Amend 'The Society for Protection of Animals Act 1914,'" said:—Mr. President, the object of this Bill is simply to prevent the owner of any animal who has been convicted under this Act and whose animal has been confiscated and sold from being in a position to purchase that animal again indirectly or directly. I beg to move its second reading.

The Bill was then read a second time and ordered to be referred to a Comtee of the Whole House on to-morrow.

HON. THE PRESIDENT announced that he had received messages from the House of Assembly that they had passed the Bill "An Act to Amend Cap. XV of 9-10 Geo. V, entitled 'An Act Respecting Elections in the Present Year,'" and requested the concurrence of the Council therein.

The House then adjourned.

FRIDAY, June 18th, 1920.

Pursuant to adjournment the House opened at 4 p.m.

On motion of HON. MR. SHEA the House uanimously consented to the second reading of Bill entitled "An Act Respecting Elections in the Present Year."

HON. MR. SHEA:—This Act, Mr. President, has to do with the elections of the present year. The first four sections deal with the voting privileges given to Volunteers in this year's elections. Section 5 states that list of voters now being made shall be list used during this year's election. I beg to move the second reading.

On motion of HON. MR .SHEA the House resolved itself into Committee of the Whole on this Bill with the unanimous consent of members.

Hon. Mr. Anderson took the chair.

Committee rose and reported it had passed same without amendment.

On motion of HON. MR. SHEA the Bill was then read a third time.

A message was then ordered to be sent to the House of Assembly to the effect that this House had passed the same without amendment.

On motion of HON. MR. SHEA the Bills entitled "An Act Respecting Licenses to Cut Hard Wood" and An Act to Amend St. John's Pilotage Act 1917 were read a third time, and it was ordered that a message be sent to the House of Assembly to the effect that this House had passed same without amendment.

On motion of HON. MR. SHEA the Bills entitled "Of the Prosecution of the Seal Fishery" and "An Act Respecting the Maintenance of Certain Public Roads" were deferred.

House then went into Committee on Bill entitled "An Act to Provide for the Observance of Commemoration Day."

Hon. Mr. Milley took the chair.

Committee rose and reported it had passed this Bill without amendment.

On motion of HON. MR. SHEA Committee on Bill "An Act Respecting Local Affairs in Outport Districts" was deferred.

House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on the Bill "An Act to Amend Chapter 108 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Protection of Animals." Hon. Mr. Cook in the chair.

HON. MR. SHEA:—The purport of this Bill is to prevent any person from repurchasing an animal which he has been convicted before the courts of ill-treating and which has been confiscated and sold. This Bill is to prevent him from again buying the animal, either directly or indirectly.

Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendment.

On motion House adjourned until 3.30 p.m. on Saturday, June 19th, 1920.

MONDAY, June 21st, 1920.

The House opened at 4.30 p.m. pursuant to adjournment.

House went into Committee on the Seal Fishery Bill.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—Mr. Chairman, I would move this Bill be adopted as read. It has been amended to meet many of opinions expressed when this Bill was before us on Friday. Provision has been made whereby the Public Health Officer will make the rules and regulations prescribed by the Act, and not the Inspector as formerly.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Why not, Mr. Chairman, have this Bill printed? I cannot say that I approve of it as it is at present. Take for instance the question of ventilation. If this Act is not carried out who is to be prosecuted? The owner or the men. When ships leave St. John's at the present time they are equipped with an elaborate ventilation system. One of the first acts of the men when they get out is to plug up these and so stop the draught!

HON. MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE AND MINES:—Mr. Chairman, I believe this Bill ought to be entirely re-constructed. The inspectors in the past were the medical men. They used to inspect the quarters not once but 3 and 4 times per day. Iknow whereof I speak for when I was port medical officer, upon arrival of these ships I examined the diaries of each medical officer and found that such was the case. I would suggest that these powers be vested in that medical officer. At the present time these medical men do good work but have no absolute power. They are dependent more upon moral suasion than they should be in their position.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Mr. Chairman, why not make the Bill as suggested by Hon. Dr. Campbell. The present officials seem to have no power.

HON. MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE AND MINES:—This whole Bill is a bungle, and should be entirely re-constructed. The doctors on these ships know their business, and they should have more to do in connection with a matter which is directly in their line as is this.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—I object to any man other than the medical officer having control. He is there and has the knowledge, and so is the man for this work. I think the proper thing to do would be to rise the Committee and send this Bill to a Select Committee where this and other matters will be looked into.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—I have no objections, Mr. Chairman, to the motion that a Select Committee be asked to consider this Bill.

The Committee rose and reported the Bill recommended to a Select Committee.

Committee on Public Roads Maintenance Bill. Hon. Mr. Milley in the chair.

HON. MR. MURPHY:—I would suggest that another clause be added to this Bill in connection with these wooden culverts. I have no doubt do everything they can, but as the time whatever but that this Committee will passes it may be left to the Road Boards and that will mean a continuance of past customs. To keep wooden culverts in repair at present cost of material and labor is far more expensive than it would be to use concrete culverts or iron pipe. You can make them with the material right on the spot and I would suggest that all small bridges up to say five foot span where required to be renewed should be replaced by concrete or iron pipe. They can be made very much cheaper than wood and would be there for always. If the parties in charge are inclined to do that then there will not be any harm in putting it in the Bill; it will provide for that being carried out. Some years ago I saw Mr. Charles Henderson up at Reid's and he told me after they had made a mold each culvert cost $1.50, three feet long. Supposing it cost $2 to-day that would be cheaper than lumber. I believe even cast iron pipe to-day would be cheaper than wood, and I know it is the cheapest and best thing we can put down. If the new road board do not handle it that way they will be making the same mistake we have always made, but if the Bill requires them to do it they will be saved further expense in the future.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—Suppose we proceed further with the Bill and consider further whether we can put that in because I question whether we can as this is not a contract we are considering. The parties concerned have just as much interest in doing the work right as the hon. gentleman and if they find that concrete is better I am sure they will have that done. I know you will find iron pipe on some of the roads and that as rapidly as possible wooden culverts will be replaced by concrete or iron. This Bill is an inovation and in order that good and proper work will be done the Motor Association and gentlemen interested want to have control of the work and see that the work is well done. The suggestion is a good one.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—I quite agree with Hon. Mr. Murphy for two reasons; first of all the culverts made of cement or iron are the most serviceable as they can be buried under ground, and secondly they are cheaper and better in every way. And another reason is that politicians will not be able to dig them up at election times. Last fall there was not a culvert or bridge in the district of St. John's West that was not destroyed or dug up; some of them perfectly good. Clear of that I think it is more up to date to build them of concrete or iron pipe as they do in Canada and the United States.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—As to whether this clause can be put in I do not know at present, but as to whether it is better to have them I do not think anybody can dispute. Of course we can conceive of cases where it may be impossible to do this but where it is possible to introduce concrete or iron pipe I think unquestionably it ought to be done. I saw some examples of that in Ferryland district when the railway there was being built; they put in concrete or iron pipe and the same policy was adopted by Sir Michael Cashin in regard to the main lines very largely and with success. Before we pass this I would like to ask the hon. gentleman in charge of the Bill whether it is intended to spend these moneys on the Colinet Road. I know it is in bad condition but whether we should use the moneys of the Colony on that road to the detriment of more used roads is to me questionable. I think we should get a special grant for it. In the old days it was a famous road and people used to drive to Placentia over it, but the coming of the railroad killed it and it has not been much used since. It can only be used for a limited purpose and I suggest that its needs should be met by a special grant of the legislature.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—The outports are getting motor trucks. I used a motor truck to bring a load of men to the woods when fighting the forest fires. The one we had belonged to Holyrood.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—According to this an arbitrary sum is to be paid back to the Municipal Council.

HON. SIR P. T .McGRATH:—The Municipal Council is entitled to have the motor licenses. The Council wants to get the money to spend it on the city roads. This scheme was devised by enthusiastic gentlemen—Mr. Ayre and Mr. Collishaw—who on behalf of the Motor Association are prepared to pay the costs. St. John's will get five thousand five hundred dollars, plus the fees on motor trucks.

The Committee rose and reported it had made some progress and asked leave to sit again.

On motion of HON. MR. GIBBS the Committee on Bill entitled "An Act Respecting Local Affairs in Outport Districts" was deferred.

The following Bills were read a first time:—"An Act to Confirm a Contract on the Subject of the Manufacture of Paper Puly and Wood Products" and "An Act to Amend Chapter 127 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of Companies.'"

House then adjourned until Friday 4 o'clock.

FRIDAY, June 25th, 1920.

House met at 4 p.m. pursuant to adjournment.

House went into Committee on the Maintenance of Public Roads Bill. Hon. Mr. Milley in the chair.

HON. MR. MURPHY:—This is not intended for large bridges. My proposal is only for small culverts up to a span of five feet. I contend you can supply cement or pipe cheaper than wood to-day. Then we can perhaps get the pipe cast here and make them in several lengths. They cast five bars, &c., and could do this also. As regards bringing undue hardship on the present Committee taking charge I do not see that. They have to replace those bridges and it would be better to do it in the best and cheapest way as I have suggested. It only compels them to do it instead of the way it is now. At present it is looked upon as a little perquinte for the political heelers who want to make a few dollars on a few old Harrigans. That sort of thing has been going on too long. However if it is the intention of hon. members here to let it go on that way, I am satisfied.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—I rise to support the suggestion of Hon. Mr. Murphy. When this Bill was up last sitting I knew little about it, but I have made some inquiries. If carried out this Bill will be the first time in the history of road making in this country that an effort was made to carry it out in a substantial manner. And Hon. Mr. Murphy's suggestion providing for concrete or iron culverts instead of wooden is a question in economy. Last year, 1919, the tax amounted in round figures to $10,600. Out of that sum, half, that is, $5,300 is paid the Government. It is estimated that with the increase of motors the revenue will be $12,000. The motor car subscriptions or taxes for 1920 will double that amount, making a gross revenue of $24,000. They will contribute $7,000 to the Municipal Council, making a balance of $17,000. Then the Government proposes to give an amount not exceeding $10,000. Add this to the $17,000 and we find it makes a total of $27,000. The Motor Association is going to import, at its own cost,—trucks for spreading broken stones, gravel, etc., the cost of which is estimated at $20,000. Take that from $27,000 and we find a balance of $7,000 is left to make roads with, this coming season, with a further offer from the members of the Automobile Association,—the contribution of private individuals,—of $13,000 in round figures which will give a capital of $20,000. Half of this amount is to be used in improving the main roads of outlying districts and half is to be used here.

Ido not imagine it is the intention to superintend this work by going to the various parts of the country. The point I wish to make is this: This work is to be performed outside the city limits, and consequently not the work of the Municipal Council, why not supplement the various road grants where the roads are to be improved, or why should the machinery necessary for road-making be provided by the Government? The members of the Association have been very liberal in volunteering to tax themselves and I hope the Government will see its way clear to provide the money for repair costs and other necessaries regarding machinery to improve these roads. I hope before the end of 1920 to see great improvements both East and West. With reference to the suggestion of the Hon. Mr. Murphy re iron or concrete culverts, I believe this to be the intention of this Committee. I support the idea embodied in this Bill and I wish it every success.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—The suggestion made by the hon. gentleman, was spoken of the first day the Bill was in Committee. No doubt it is desirable, and every one wishes to see it carried out in work of that kind, but the hon. gentleman must know that this is not a contract between a public body and a government, to perform a certain work for a certain sum of money. If it were this kind of Bill we could draw up a specification of kind of work to be done and the amount of money to be paid for same. But this is not a Bill of that character. We cannot impose an obligation on a body of men except we give them sufficient funds to carry out the obligation imposed on them. The power of this body is limited. If we do impose obligations and duties of this character upon them, we force them possibly to over expend. If they then do not fulfil these obligations they are indicted, even if they have not the funds wherewith to carry the obligations out. This is a public body, without salary, without commission, we cannot, looking at it from a legal standpoint, impose any obligation upon htem. The hon. gentleman in his argument points out that this work will be in the hands of the Road Boards, and that the work will continue to be done in the same way as it has been done in the past, and that there will be little or no change. If he reads the Bill he will see that with the funds at their disposal this Committee shall exercise and perform similar duties to those which are by law vested in or discharged by the Road Boards but not a dollar of their money can be expended by Road Boards. The object aimed at is good roads and they cannot be made unless suggestion mentioned be carried out. Costly machinery will be used by them and as soon as the wooden bridges fall into disrepair they will be supplanted by iron and concrete ones. It is to their advantage and it is also the aim of this Bill to have better roads in certain sections of this country than there have been in the past. This Bill then as I have pointed out is not a contract or a corporation to perform certain things for certain sums of money. If we make an agreement of this kind we can impose obligations and make specifications, etc. It is a Bill by which the Government calls into existence a public body to do certain public work for which it is not paid a dollar. This public body is in the same position as Road Board as far as duties are concerned. The Road Board is not bound to keep bridges in repair. There is no contract to this effect. The Road Board may have a certain amount of money this year and it may not have a sufficient amount the next to keep these in repair. When the machinery, to be imported for the making of the roads, is set to work we shall have roads in the country similar to those in the city.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—An occasion may arise where it is impossible to comply with the terms of the Act. If we allow this year and next year to pass and see what these people are doing and then if they do not put the steel culverts let us in this House put an amendment, but they may do this in every case. If it is proved in their operations they persist in putting up wooden structures then it will be incumbent upon us to take measures to remedy the situation.

HON. MR. MURPHY:—As far as this goes they will not be called upon to do more than the funds at their disposal will allow, but if they have the money they are to spend it to the best advantage.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—If you put an obligation on them and they fail to fulfil it they may be indicted, even though it be due to lack of funds.

HON. MR. MURPHY:—According to that, it is a very strange law if it compels them to spend more money then they have. In the case of where a wooden bridge has given out the culverts to replace the wooden ones should be of iron or concrete.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—You have to assume they will do that. It is to their own interest to do so.

HON. MR. MURPHY:—We have seen how the money has been squandered. This after all is only your opinion.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—Pardon me. I am not giving an opinion. I just state that as a matter of law, we cannot put an obligation of this kind in this Bill.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—I agree with what Hon. Mr. Murphy has said. I think that this body of men ought not to be left to do just as they please in this matter. It is better to do a small piece of road thoroughly well than to do or try to do a great deal indifferently. The country roads are a disgrace. It is plain to everybody that iron or concrete can be used in repairs for practically the same amount of money. Why not if we are given the power to tax the motors, why should not motor holders see that they are getting something for their money. The main trouble is with the culverts. The wooden culverts smell with the rain or frost and with so many cars going over them they cannot remain long in good condition. I endorse what Hon. Mr. Murphy has said that iron or concrete be used instead of wood. If this body of men would be liable to indictment before the Supreme Court, could not a clause be inserted to avoid this. Iron or concrete should be used, a wooden culvert must be attended to every year, a half a dozen motors passing over it will damage it.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—The hon. gentleman assumes this body of men is going to put down wooden culverts again. We have no right to assume this. This is not a political body, the only axe it has to grind is the making of good roads, and we cannot have good roads with wooden culverts.

HON .MR. BROWNING:—The disposition in this country is to do a great deal of work imperfectly, to endeavour to accomplish a lot, instead of doing a little, well

HON. MR. GIBBS:—The object of this body is to remedy that very thing. It intends to start out on a track all its own and to make reforms in road-building.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—Where then is the obligation to stating this in the Bill?

HON. MR. GIBBS:—We cannot put an obligation of this sort into this Bill. The Government is not making a contract.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—It has given them power to tax.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—We are raising the tax.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—The Legislature imposes the tax in order that better roads may be made in the future than there have been made in the past. You cannot impose obligations. Section 2 will show that.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—I think the position taken by my learned friend is the correct one. He is pleading for a principle. The other is pleading for a byelaw, saying roads should be built in such a way. If you insert a clause like this you usurp the powers of the Commission. I do not see how you can demand this anyway. It is very possible that in the interests of the Colony this Committee would put down culverts as indicated. While I would not put anything in the Bill in connection with this matter I feel that by our discussing it as we have we have given sufficient indication that we unanimously favour iron culverts. It might not be wise to insert in the Bill a proviso which would likely be a bye law.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—On the legal point raised I think none of us is competent to pass. I think it is quite possible that even a wooden bridge may improve the road. What I object to is against compelling this Commission to put down iron where less than five feet wide. I have personally seen in District of Ferryland several of these culverts, but well as they may work I do not think we would be acting wisely in making it necessary that no other kind be used. I can conceive of a case when in the interest of the country it might not be practicable to put down these, and in such a case with this proviso, nothing else could be done. I think we had rather be content with registering our desire that wherever possible these be laid. I do not think we ought to go further because conditions might arise where these would not be possible. For that reason I think we ought to hesitate.

HON. MR. MEWS:—I am not a motor owner so I think after hearing the debate I can be neutral. When this Bill first came up, it came up at the instance of the Motor Association who asked to be appointed to spend the money allocated to the roads in the best interests of motorists. But the Government did not acced to their request altogether, but appointed a Commission—three of whom represent the motor owners. The Bill is now before us, and as my hon. friend to my left has said we could go on making suggestions but I think we can safely let the matter receive the attention of the Road Commission. As the hon. member introducing the measure has said, this is not a political measure; and the idea of a good Road Commission is to see that money spent is well spent, and the Commission I suppose will be composed of men who would not need to be told whether to use iron or concrete but would use what they know to be the best.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—This is a big matter, and the Commission in charge has a lot of work ahead of it. But they have considerable money and yet I feel no authority to work outside city limits. Would it not be a good idea to work this Commission in conjunction with those spending monies on the main lines through St. John's West, Brigus, Hr. Grace and Carbonear. Then also the Holyrood and Salmon Cove Road to Placentia. By these means the whole main line might be put into condition.

HON. MR. MURPHY:— Icannot see any objection to this clause being inserted. It would only apply to where the road was worn out and the bridge had to be replaced. There is unanimous support for the idea, so why not put i tin the Bill? There is no reason in the world why it shouldn't be there. What I ask is not that opposed by Mr. Grieve. I do not say that they shall be compelled to spend more money. If they get this done it will mean less money, and they should be compelled to do this by the Act. I have no doubt but that an intelligent commission would do this without our asking, but at the same time I would secure it. However if hon. members think differently, I will withdraw my amendment.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendment

The House went into Committee on Bill respecting Local Affairs in Outport Districts.

Hon. Mr. Templeman took the chair.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I notice by the Bill that if there is any objection to the first election the Minister must call a second election within ten days. I would suggest that this be amended. Surely ten days will not be sufficient?

HON. MR. GIBBS:—If this matter will stand, I will take it up with the Department.

HON. SIR P. T .McGrath:—I only raise the point and place myself on record. Take St. Barbe for instance, and ten days could not possibly be sufficient.

Committee on Bill respecting Local Affairs in Outport Districts rose and reported progress and asked leave to sit again.

On motion of HON. MR. SHEA the Companies' Amendment Act Bill was read a second time and ordered to be committed on to-morrow.

HON. MR. SHEA tabled Reports of Public Schools under Church of England and Roman Catholic Boards for the year ending December 31st, 1919.

House then adjourned until Tuesday next at 4 o'clock.

TUESDAY, June 29th, 1920.

House opened at 4 p.m. pursuant to adjournment.

On motion the Bill "An Act Respecting the Maintenance of Certain Public Roads" was read a third time, passed and ordered to be sent to the House of Assembly with a message informing that body that the Council had passed the same without amendment.

On motion the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on the Bill "An Act Respecting Local Affairs in Outport Districts." Hon. Mr. Templeman in the chair.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—Mr. Chairman, when this Bill was in Committee a day or two ago Sir Patrick McGrath stated that there may be a possibility that sufficient time was not given in the section with regard to notice of the holding of an election. Since the Committee rose I had a conference with gentlemen representing outport districts and they say that they gave that matter due consideration and are of the opinion that ten days' notice is sufficient under the circumstances.

Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendment. The Bill was ordered to be read a third time on to-morrow.

On motion the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on the Bill "An Act to Amend Chapter 127 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of Companies.'" Hon. Mr. Anderson in the chair.

HON. MR. SHEA:—Mr. Chairman, as I have already said in connection with this Bill, it is a series of minor amendments to the present Companies' Act. They are all of mild character and are of more interest to the legal profession than to the general public. I move the adoption of the first clause of the Bill.

Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendment. The Bill was ordered to be read a third time on to-morrow.

On motion of the HON. MR. SHEA the second reading of Bill "An Act to Confirm a Contract on the Subject of the Manufacture of Paper Pulp and Wood Products" was deferred.

HON. THE PRESIDENT informed the House that he had received a message from the Assembly informing him that they had passed the Bill "An Act Respecting the Appointment of a Temporary Commission for the City of St. John's and for Other Purposes" and requesting the concurrence of the Legislative Council.

HON. MR .SHEA:—Mr. President, I would ask the House to pass this Bill through its three stages to-day, for this reason that honourable gentlemen will see that the term of the present Municipal Council expires to-morrow and it is desirable that that term should be prolonged for some time. This Bill provides that the powers vested in the Council shall continue until the of the present year of 1920. The intention of the Government is, I believe, that a Bill shall be brought into the House during its present session with regard to the charter of the Municipal Council, and this is a temporary measure to take effect in the meantime. Iwould therefore move the first reading of the Bill and with the permission of the House ask that the Bill be put through its stages to-day so that it may be complete.

The Bill was thereupon read a first time and on motion was read a second time.

On motion of the Hon. Mr. Shea the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on this Bill. Hon. Mr. Winter in the chair.

HON. MR. SHEA:—Mr. Chairman, I would say with regard to the first clause: The statements of estimated revenue and expenditure of the St. John's Municipal Council for the year 1919 shall be of full force and effect as if complete statements had been laid before and not disallowed by the legislature. Ia appears that there were some irregularities last year and advantage was taken of the irregularities by some people who refused to pay taxes, and it is in order to meet that that the first clause is put in.

Committee rose and reported the Bill passed without amendment.

The Bill was then read a third time, passed, and ordered to be sent to the House of Assembly with a message informing that body that the Council had passed the same without amendment.

Hon. Mr. Shea laid upon the table of the House the Sixth Annual Report of the International Grenfell Association and the Report of the General Hospital.

On motion the Council adjourned until 4 p.m. on Friday, July 2nd, 1920.

FRIDAY, July 2nd, 1920.

On motion of Hon. Dr. Campbell the Manufacture of Paper Puly and Wood Products Confirmation Bill was read a second time and ordered to be committed on to-morrow.

Hon. President read a message from the Assembly that they had passed the accompanying Bill respecting the Dominion Corporation Building Assn. Ltd., in which they requested the concurrence of the Legislative Council.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea the said Bill was then read a first time and ordered to be committed on to-morrow.

House then adjourned until Tuesday next at four o'clock.

TUESDAY, July 6th, 1920.

The House met pursuant to adjournment.

On motion of Hon. Dr. Campbell House went into Committee on the Pulp and Wood Products Contract Bill, Hon. Mr. Mews in the chair.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—This is a contract entered into by the late Government and the Terra Nova Sulphite Co. represented by C. W. Storm and others. It provides for the erection of a pulp and paper mill at Terra Nova which will utilize the timber of the Terra Nova Basin which they have received by right of purchase from Ellis, Curran, Hopkins and others. We have only amended the original agreement in one respect, in regard to water powers. Previously this valuable utility has been granted without charge, but it is now recognized as a public asset which should be charged for and we are charging at the rate of 25 cents per horse power which is the same as charged in Quebec province.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Have you any idea what the H.P. will be?

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—We will have an inspector to supervise that. They propose to have a mill to turn out 100 tons of ground or sulphite pulp per day.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—As I understand it when these companies start their dams, penstock, &c., they do it on the basis of a certain definite H. P. The Albert Reid Co. at Bishop's Falls are of 14,000 H.P. I think and have a capacity of 100 tons a day. That would give a revenue of about $3,500 a year which would be very welcome I think. What is the reason for the difference in verbiage as regards sections 10 and 11?

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—Section 10 was put in for the reason that the principals of this concern were chiefly of foreign birth and there was a suspicion there might be German money in the concern and to guard against this, the section was put in and properly so, by the late Government and we left it there. It stands alone with no reference whatever to the general working of the Bill.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Section ten is not sufficiently comprehensive. We cannot alter a schedule nor can we alter an agreement which is signed and sealed, but we can add a provision. There is a conflict of terms here which ought to be reconciled.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—This Bill passed the Lower House which is bristling with lawyers.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Lawyers are more concerned about principles and don't give much attention to details. We had an example a little while ago, when a Bill supposed to be a Money Bill ran the gauntlet of the Lower House. Let the honourable gentleman take it up with the legal members of the Government so that if it is changed it will be with the concurrence of the Government.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—What amendment would you suggest?

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I should like the language of these two sections to be brought into conformity. This is sufficiently worth while to let it stand over for another day.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—We are in the Dog Days now, and this session has been a long one, however, we shall let the Bill stand over until to-morrow.

Committee rose and reported it had made some progress and asked leave to sit again.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea the House went into Committee on Bill entitled "An Act to Regulate the Exportation of Codfish."

Hon. Mr. Templeman took the chair.

HON. MR. SHEA:—Mr. Chairman, the hon. members will remember that this Bill was before the House a fortnight ago and was referred to a Select Committee, which now reports in favour of the Bill with certain amendments. The House is now asked to consider the amendments.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—With reference to this Bill I should like to say, this is the famous Bill on which we had so much discussion some time ago, and as a number of suggestions for alterations were made by me, perhaps it might be as well if I explained, that in this Select Committee we agreed to make most of the changes, suggested by both sides of the House. The most important one is—"A vacancy in the Board shall be filled in the same manner as the original appointment was made, and in the temporary absence, through any unavoidable cause, of a member, the Governor in Council or the licensed exporters, as the case may be, may appoint a substitute to act in his place during such absence." Provision is also made to inform codfish exporters by telegram of what is done. One amendment I personally should have liked to be put in, but this the Government did not see its way clear to do would allow an appeal to the Supreme Court on suspension of concession for codfish exportation. I am not personally interested. I merely mentioned it here the last time the Bill came up. People engaged in the fish exporting industry may have sufficient interest to keep in touch with what is being done but at present no evidence of such interest is noticable to me. Gentlemen exporting codfish may find themselves in a bad situation, as a result of indifference, for this Bill gives arbitrary power to cancel or suspend license. Any breach of the regulations no matter how unimportant, it is optional to suspend or cancel offender's license, and suspension or cancellation means he may be put to a very substantial loss. If suggestion made for amendment was carried out this would not happen. Having said this, I have done my duty. I repeat if the people interested in this industry are prepared to take this risk it is their affair. Under the Bill as it stood originally it was possible for money received to be expended from the Marine and Fisheries Department, which would be similar to the Post Master General's taking the money received from the sale of stamps and paying the salaries. I think we justified the fact that we have been able to correct this Bill so that there is better legislation. I am sorry they could not see their way clear to make an appeal allowable.

HON. MR. SHEA:—I am sorry with regard to the "appeal" that the Government could not allow it. If a man were to be suspended it might lead to confusion. A man suspended, is hanging between fire and water. We thought it would be better to see how it would work for a year. It may be considered later on. If a man on the Board broke a rule and had his license suspended and an appeal to court had been made, he would be neither one thing nor the other, and if two or three were in this condition it might be confusing. As the Bill was framed this way we thought it better to let it stand at that.

The Committee rose and reported having passed same with some amendments, and it was ordered to be read a third time on to-morrow.

Second reading of Bill re "Dominion Co-operative Housing Bill."

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—In moving the second reading of the Bill granting certain concessions to the Dominion Co-operative Asocciation

Ltd., at the outset of my observations I wish to say that I have been in the public eye for over thirty years, I have taken an active part in debates in this House and the Lower House, I have taken an interest in many bills which have been submitted for the consideration of honourable gentlemen. This bill is a simple one, composed of five sections, there are only three principle parts, embodied in it. First, we ask a concession from the Government for a grant of five per cent on the cash capital paid up. We ask for free entry of building material, that we cannot find in the country. There is also in the bill that the Government appoint one third of the directors of the Company. Mr. President, after a few years of weary effort made from time to time to try and improve the social and moral condition of the citizens of St. John's our efforts have at last been consummated by a Bill of this nature, which is before this House. Questions from time to time, during the debate on this Bill in the Lower House, were asked as to who were the members of the Dominion Co-operative Association? What capital had it? and many such questions as these. Mr. President, for the information of the country and for the information of the citizens of St. John's workingmen in particular. I propose with the consideration of the House to lay before the House a complete and comprehensive account for publication throughout the length and breadth of the country, what is the meaning of the Dominion Co-Operative Association and what is its objective.

The Association is an incorporated body under the Company's Act, and is capitalized at two million dollars which would be divided into twenty thousand shares of one hundred dollars each. This Company proposes to offer to the public ten thousand shares of one hundred dollars each, amounting to one million dollars. It is proposed to call up ten per cent of the capital each year 100,000—one hundred thousand dollars paid up yearly will be about as much as the Company will be able to handle in building operations. We are now a registered Company, and have complied with every demand under the Company's Act. The following programme is set out for the work of this great Company. We hope during the coming year to enter into large contracts for lumber all over the country.

DOMINION CO-OPERATIVE BUILDING ASSOCIATION LIMITED

Capital, $2,000,000; 20,000 shares, $100 each, $2,000,000; offered to the public 10,000 shares, $100 each, $1,000,000, in payments of 10% per annum; interest 5% on the paid up capital guaranteed by the Government.

Directors—Hon. J. D. Ryan, K.C.S.C., M.L.C., President Legislative Council; Hon. M. G. Winter, M.L.C., Hon. John Anderson, M.L.C., James Parker, Esq., Harold McPherson, Esq., Eric Bowring, Esq., James McGrath, Esq., Dr. Brehm, Lieut. Col. Bernard.

Manager—Registered Office.

Bankers—The Royal Bank of Canada.

Solicitors—Hon. M. P. Gibbs, K.C., M.L.C.

Auditors—G. N. Read Son & Watson, Chartered Accountants.

Architect—W. D. McCarter, Esq.

Capital, $2,000,000; 10,000 shares $100 each offered to the public in shares of one hundred dollars each, payable in 10 years.

		First Call 10%.
1st year		1920	$ 100.000
2nd year		1921	100,000
3rd year		1922	100,000
4th year		1923	100,000
5th year		1924	100,000
6th year		1925	100,000
7th year		1926	100,000
8th year		1927	100,000

9th year	1928	100,000	Interest	5 %	$ 75.00
10th year	1929	100,000	Ground Rent	¾%	10.00
			Insurance	1¼%	18.75
		$1,000,000	Taxes	¾%	11.25
			Repairs	1¼%	20.00
			Management	1 %	15.00
				10%	$150.00 Rent

Six hundred houses for workingmen to be built in 10 years at a cost of one million dollars.

Estimated Cost—

250 Houses	$1500	$ 375,000
200 "	1500	300,000
75 "	1800	135,000
50 "	2000	100,000
25 "	2500	62,500
600 "		$ 972,500
	Surplus	27,500
		$1,000,000

House to cost $1500.
Ground rent $20.00 per annum.
Freehold $300.00

Interest	5 %	$ 75.00
Grount Rent 1	1/3%	20.00
Insurance	1¼%	18.75
Taxes	¾%	11.25
Repairs	1 %	15.00
Management	2/2%	10.00
	10%	$150.00 Rent

10 years surplus, $27,500.
Surplus average per year, $2,750.

It is proposed to build—

Year	Houses
1st	60	$1500	$ 90,000
2nd	60	1500	90,000
3rd	60	1500	10,000
4th	60	1500	90,000
5th	60	1500	90,000
6th	60	1500	90,000
7th	60	1500	90,000
8th	30	1500	45,000
	450
8th	30	1800	54,000
9th	45	1800	81,000
9th	15	2000	30,000
10th	35	2000	70,000
10th	25	2500	62,500
	150		$ 972,500
	Cr. Balance		27,500
			$1,000,000
	Cr. Balance		27,500

House to cost $1500.
Ground rent $10.00 per annum.
Freehold $150.00.

House to cost $1800.
Ground rent $20.00 per annum.
Freehold $300.00.

Interest	5 %	$ 90.00
Ground Rent 1	1/9%	20.00
Taxes	¾%	13.50
Insurance	1¼%	22.50
Repairs	1 %	18.00
Management	8/9%	16.00
	10%	$180.00 Rent

House to cost $2000.
Ground rent $20.00 per annum.
Freehold $300.00.

Interest	5 %	$100.00
Ground Rent	1 %	20.00
Taxes	¾%	15.00
Insurance	1¼%	25.00
Repairs	1 %	20.00
Management	1 %	20.00
	10%	$200.00 Rent

House to cost $2500.
Ground rent $25.00 per annum.
Freehold $375.00.

Interest	5 %	$125.00
Ground Rent	1 %	25.00

Taxes	¾%	18.75
Insurance	1¼%	31.25
Repairs	1 %	25.00
Management	1 %	25.00
	10%	$250.00 Rent

The Company has been formed to build for workingmen. These houses will be let to tenants at reasonable rentals or will be sold to tenants on easy terms of payment within a period of twenty years.

Further objects of the Company are: To remove tenants from houses which are unfit for human habitation to homes of health and comfort; to destroy all hovels within the city; to adopt a proper town planning scheme; to lay out modern streets with a perfect system of sanitation; and to rebuild certain sections of the town gradually so that workingmen can live with their families in decent and cheerful surroundings.

The proceeds of sale of houses bought by tenants will be reinvested in Government securities as a redemption fund to pay off the capital.

LAND.

Leasehold or freehold on Merrymeeting Road. After corresponding for some time with Hon. J. D. Ryan, the Company succeeded in making arrangements with that gentleman, and secured the land known as Nunnery Field, this beautiful site will take sixty houses, thirty on the front street and thirty facing a proposed new street, each house will have a frontage of 20 ft. by 27 ft. the full rearage of the land will be 100 ft., this will allow a garden for each clear of about 60 feet.

The Company has the option of an open lease, or fifteen years purchase of the freehold, houses built by the Association will be rented to workingmen, based on the lowest cost of construction, and sold to tenants at actual cost, upon easy terms of payment. It is estimated the rent will not exceed ten per cent of the cost of the house, including all charges.

Cost of land for 30 houses:

1st lot, 20 ft. frontage, 50c. per foot.... .. ..$ 10.00

15 pears purchase $10.00, freehold.... .. .. 150.00

Cost of land for 30 years:

2nd lot, 20 ft. frontage, $1.00 per foot.. .. 4 .. ..$ 20.00

15 years purchase $20, freehold.. .. .. 300.00

His Grace Archbishop Roache in giving his consent to this land, made one stipulation, that in no consideration would the ground be let for any other purpose, than for the erection of better homes for the citizens.

On behalf of the Company and the public, I take this opportunity to thank His Grace for the magnificent field placed at the disposal of the Association at a nominal rental, either on lease or freehold. Adjoining this field there are other plots of land, that will be suitable to build sixty more houses.

We hope to complete during the present year thirty houses or more if at all possible. Mr. McCarter, the architect of the Company, thoroughly competent in every way to carry out the great work, has the full confidence of tthe directors and the Company. The plans laid out for this year were entirely prepared by our architect, who was instructed to order the material for immediate operations. During the next year we hope to ask for tenders for large quantities of lumber all over the country. Ordered for immediate delivery.

110,000 ft. Mill run matched.

79,000 ft. Mill run rough.

8,000 ft. Mill run Random lengths.

14,000 ft. Mill run 2x4" Random lengths.

12,000 ft. Mill run 2x4" 14/15 lengths.

24,000 ft. Mill run 2x7" 14/15 lengths.

10,000 ft. Mill run 2x3" Random lengths.

6,00 ft. Mill run 2x3 Random lengths.

40,000 ft. 5" Dressed Can Spr. and Fir Clapboard.

3,000 ft. 7/8x5 to 8" Dressed Sort Pine.

WINDOW BOXES AND SASHES.

We append below our specification of boxes and sashes, all F.O.B. cars or schooners St. John's.

60 Mullion frames and sashes, 12 lights 8x12".

60 Mullion frames and sashes, 12 lights 7x9".

30 Single frames and sashes, 12 lights 7x9".

30 Single frames and sashes, 2 lights 16x16".

For hanging top sash of mullion windows and single.

To prime and glaze sashes of mullion windows, 8x12", 7x9"; single windows, 7x9" 16x16".

Sashes 1 3/8" Pulley styles 6 outside castings 6" sills 3" and drip to be solid.

DOORS AND JAMBS.

30 Doors 2'8"x6 '8"1¾ with sash for glass.

30 Doors 2'8"x6 '8"x1¾ with 5 cross panels.

30 front doors and jambs complete, jambs to be made from 1½ stock with bracketed drip and pillastered castings, doors to be same as above.

30 back doors and jambs complete, jambs to be made from 1½" stock with solid drip and plain castings, doors to be same as above.

210 doors 2'6"x6'6"x1½" 5 cross panels.

60 doors 2'6"x6'6"x1½" 5 cross panels.

210 doors same as above with 1x6" jambs fitted with ½x2" stops and ⅝" x4" birch thresholds.

60 doors, same as above.

SASHES, FRAMES AND DOORS.

60 Mullion frames and sashes 12 Lt. 8x12.

60 Mullion frames and sashes 12 Lt. 7x9.

30 Single frames and sashes 12 Lt. 7x9.

30 Single frames and shashes 12 Lt. 16x16

DOORS AND JAMBS.

30 Front doors and jambs 2-8x6-8x1 ¾ plain crossing with hood.

30 Back doors and jambs 2-8x6-8x1 3/8 cross panel

60 Closet doors and jambs 2-4x6-6x1 3/8 cross panel

In addition to the above we have 50,000 ft. lumber delivered.

We placed orders months ago for 200 rolls roofing, 400vBls. cement, 30 baths.

CITY ELECTRIC CAR SYSTEM.

I have interview the President of the Reid Newfoundland Co. as to the extension of the street railway; I have been promised that every consideration will be given to an improved service, that the system will be extended with the increased expansion of the city, and a promise to issue workmen's car tickets at a stated hour by special cars to carry out a programme of this kind, will of course require the co-operation of the Government and the Municipal Council.

Mr. President:—The Prime Minister in his Manifesto said of

WORKINGMEN'S HOMES

"Closely allied with the matter of public health is the housing problem. The home is the basis of our Christian civilization. I propose to assist in any economically sound proposition to make easier the erection in suitable centres of homes for the working classes. The workingman in St. John's and the outport workingman coming to St. John's cannot possibly find sufficient capital with which to purchase homes for themselves, nor can decent dwellings be rented at a reasonable price. Many public-spirited citizens, including leading employers of labor, have already interested themselves in the housing problem. This is a problem which has been faced in other countries and worked out with much satisfaction.

"I propose that this matter shall be dealt with by the Government in co-operation with the public spirited citizens and employers of labor who are prepared to invest private funds for the public benefit in this important program for the betterment of the working classes, so that the present housing conditions, which tend to the degradation and suffering and not to the uplift and comfort of this large and important section of our country's life may be put upon a satisfactory basis. No man compelled to live under the squalid conditions in which many of our best workmen are forced to live because of present conditions has a reasonable chance to rise to a high standard of independent, honourable citizenship and bring up children who will themselves make good citizens. The marvel is that our citizens have done so well, under existing circumstances. The first duty of a Government to its working classes and of capital to its labor is to look after the home conditions of the workmen and to help to improve these conditions in any manner and under any arrangement which can stand the test of sound economic principles and the good sense of the community generally."

Mr. President:--Through this House, I wish to inform the country, and the citizens of St. John's, workingmen in particular, that every concession asked for by the deputation, Hon. M. P. Gibbs, Mr. James McGrath and myself were acceded to without reservations of any kind, we put a business proposition before the Prime Minister and his Government, we asked for a guarantee of 5% and free entry for such articles not produced in the country. The bill now before the House is the best evidence of the Government's good faith to carry it out.

AN ACT RESPECTING THE DOMINION CO-OPERATIVE BUILDING ASSOCIATION, LIMITED.

1. The Minister of Finance and Cuctoms hereby authorised, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, to pay tto the Company, out of the public funds of the Colony for and during the term of twenty years from the 1st day of January, A.D. 1920, any sum by which the net earnings of the Company shall be less than five per centum upon so much of the capital of the Company as shall be actually paid up in cash and engaged in and about the building of dwelling-houses in this Colony.

2. No payment shall be made under the preceding section except upon the certificate of the Auditor General of Newfoundland. In order to obtain such certificate the Company shall furnish to the Minister of Finance and Customs at the end of each year, during the said term of twenty years, a full and correct statement of the receipts and expenditure of the Company for the preceding year, and shall afford all proper facilities to the Auditor General to make a complete examination of the books, accounts and vouchers of the Company, in conjunction with an Auditor to be appointed by the Company. In the event of any dispute arising between the two Auditors in relation to the said statement, the same shall be referred to the determination of a public chartered accountant as umpire, to be appointed by the two Auditors. The award of such umpire shall be final and conclusive.

3. All construction and building materials and machinery imported into this Colony by the Company for use in its said business, which are of a kind and description not manufactured in this Colony, shall for a period of twenty years from the first of January, A.D. 1920, be admitted free of duty.

4. One third in number of the directors of the Company from time to time during the said term of twenty years shall be nominated by the Government; and if by default or neglect of the Company the number of directors so nominated shall be permitted at any time to fall below that proportion, the amount guaranteed under section one shall be liable to be forfeited at the option of the Government.

5. This Act may be cited as "The Dominion Co-Operative Building Association Act, 1920."

The Importation of articles duty free are for workingmen's houses and are not to exceed a cost of $2500.00.

Mr. President:—In the month of January last the memorandum and articles of Association of the Dominion Co.Operative Building Association, Limited, were prepared by the solicitor, Hon. M. P. Gibbs, K.C., and on January 5th, 1920, was registered as a Company with the names of thirty shareholders representing about forty thousand dollars capital.

The following gentlemen have consented to become shareholders of the Dominion Co-Operative Building Association, Ltd.:

His Grace Archbishop Roache, The Lord Bishop of Newfoundland, Rev. Dr. Curtis, M.A., D.D., M.B.E., Rev. Dr. Jones, Rev. Gordon Dickie, M.A., Rev. Dr. Bond, Rev. E. W. Forbes, M.A., Rev. D. B. Hemmeon, B.A., Sir Edgar Bowring, Sir Joseph Outerbridge, R. R. Goodridge, Esq., Fred. Hayword, Esq., Hon. Judge Morris, Thomas A. Pippy, Esq., R. A. Job, Esq., Hon. W. B. Grieve, T. M. White, Esq., Wm. Linegar, Esq., T. H. Griffitths, Esq., W. R. Goobie, Esq., Hon. S. Bell, W. H. Hynes, Esq., John B. Orr, Esq., H. A. Anderson, Esq., John Murray Anderson, Esq., Harold Mitchell, Esq., Ernest Watson, Esq., Jas. Power, Esq., Llewellyn White, Esq., William Graham, Esq., W. J. Edgar, Esq., J. E. Taylor, Esq., Hon. W. C. Job, John Withers, Esq., A. J. Harvey, Esq., A. MacPherson, Esq., Hon. S. Milley, William White, Esq., Brian Dunfield, Esq., Capt. Campbell, Joseph Fitzgibbon, Esq., H. E. Cowan, Esq., Andrew Carnell, Esq., William A. McKay, Esq., Geo. Carter, Esq., Hon. F. McNamara, Jesse Whiteway, Esq., Hon. R. K. Bishop, T. A. McNab, Esq., R. A. Templeton, Esq., J. M. Devine, Esq., W. P. Shortall, Esq., F. B. Wood, Esq., A. McNamara, Esq., J. M. Spearns, Esq., C. J. Ellis, Esq., Hon. Tasker Cook, H. D. Reid, Esq., Rev. Dr. Green, Wm. R. Howley, Esq., K.C., Chas. H. Hutchings, Esq., O.B.E., Inspector General of Police, Denis Galway, Esq., Thos. Fitzgibbon, Esq., D. M. Baird, Esq., Hon. Philip Templeman, Robert Saunders, Esq., Fred. Emerson, Esq., Philip Hanley, Esq., C. F. Bond, Esq., Samuel Ryall, Esq., Michael Stafford, Esq., J. J. Mulcahey, Esq., John Barron, Esy., S. O. Steele, Esq., Jas. T. Phillips, Esq., Charles Pippy, Esq., C. L. March, Esq., J. B. Mitchell, Esq., A. Carnell, Esy., Walter Collymore, Esq., P. H. Cowan, Esq., C. R. Steer, Esq., T. H. Steer, Esq., John G. Steer, Esq., Matthew Prim, Esq., Lloyd Woods, Esq., Joseph Perez, Esq., P. L. Kent, Esq., William Larner, Esq., Robert Searle, Esq., A. J. Frost, Esq.

In addition to the above names of citizens, and numerous others, we have the support of every Union of Labor and Labor Organization in the city.

COUNCIL'S REPORT ON HOUSING

During the year, 109 permits for dwelling houses were issued, of which fifty-one are completed, thirty-two are under construction, and twenty-six not yet begun. This is a refreshing change from the stagnation in building which we have had during the past four years, and allows one to hope that conditions financial and practical will permit people to provide themselves with houses which will not be a menace to the health of the city. In regard to this it must be mentioned that the determination of the Council not to allow any house to be erected which could not be provided with proper sewerage, has been vindicated in the Courts.

The Council, after several years' effort, was at length enabled to carry out its scheme of building houses for those who were unable, either from lack of sufficient capital or other reasons, to do so for themselves. It was late before a beginning could be made, and it was deemed advisable not to embark immediately upon an extensive programme. Arrangements were therefore made for twenty houses, but twelve only were actually begun and are now nearing completion. The cost of these six-roomed, semi-detached houses is about $2,000.00, which seems high compared to pre-war prices, but the Council is confident they are cheap at the price to-day. These houses are not for rent but for sale, on terms of deferred payment, with an initial payment of, at least, $500.00. No great rush was evidenced to buy them, but all have been practically engaged and four are already occupied.

The houses are built upon Crown lands on Quidi Vidi Road. The site is an excellent one, and when streets are opened and water and sewerage mains laid will accommodate altogether thirty to forty houses.

The Council has in contemplation taking over certain lands in the West End of the city, for the purpose of erecting houses for workingmen. The Council proposes to continue to build houses if orders for the same are given beforehand, but will not build on the chance of selling. A modification of the plans of last year has been decided upon which will effect a saving of about $200.00, but it is feared this will be offset by increased cost of materials and labour.

The Council believes that a great deal of harm to the housing situation has been done, and can still be done, by ill-considered housing schemes promising people houses at impossible rentals. Since the days of the Cave Men it has been the object of every man to provide himself with a home, and it is certain that three quarters, at least, of all the houses built in St. John's will be provided by individual initiative and effort. It is most important that this initiative should not be abated by the action of an outside agency suggesting that houses can be provided at less than cost. Again it is important that people should own the houses they live in, thus giving them an interest in the community, and an object in keeping their houses in good repair. Provided that dwelling houses are built under proper supervision, with proper safeguards, (such as are provided in the Building Regulations contained in the Charter), it is most important that every man should own the house he occupies.

Mr. President:—I regret His Honor the Mayor and his associates in the Council should have been so much perturbed, about housing schemes, doing them an injury in carrying out their programme of building houses for sale, the last paragraph in the annual report of the Municipal Council, under the heading of Housing . I propose to deal with it, in a spirit of benevolent sympathy, and point out to the Mayor and members of the Council, that their scheme will be no solution of the housing problem, and that the ordinary workingman will never be able to occupy these houses built by the Council under the conditions laid down that they have to buy.

I welcome any scheme either public or private that will provide decent homes for our people. I welcome any support either public or private that will assist the Council in building houses or that the Government may support as a business proposition.

In a city like St. John's, outside of private enterprise, which is very limited in building work men's houses, there is only room for one company to grapple with the situation of a housing scheme, wide in its scope, to tackle hundreds of houses, as the Prime Minister has wisely said, let us clean up the town of all slum houses and hovels, and give the workinman a decent home to live in, at the outset of our campaign for improved conditions we asked the co-operation of the Government, Municipal Council, and the people, if this had been done four years ago to-day we would have had not less than four hundred new houses to our credit. What is the scheme of the City Council?

SCHEDULE A OF THE CHARTER.

Form of agreement for the erection and sale of working class dwellings:

The following agreement has been concluded between the City of St. John's, and James Smith, hereinafter called the Lessee.

THE CITY AGREES to lease to the Lessee the lot indicated on the annexed plan consisting of 20 ft. of frontage on Royal Street, at the rate of 50c. per foot of frontage for the term of ninety-nine years, the Lessee to have the privilege of purchasing the freehold of the said lot at any time during the currency of the lease by the payment of a sum equal to twenty years rental $200.00.

THE CITY AGREES to build a dwelling house according to the plan and specification submitted herewith on the land so leased for the sum of $2000.00, and the Lessee agrees to repay to the City one-fourth of the cost of the said house upon the completion of the same, and the balance of the amount together with interest at 6% in equal quarterly (annual) payments for a term of 10 years, and also fire insurance upon the whole amount until the same shall have been repaid to the Council.

AND THE LESSEE shall give to the City of St. John's a first mortgage on the house so built for such amounts as may remain unpaid.

AND THE LESSEE shall maintain the house so erected in good condition and shall promptly and without objection make all necessary repairs, and other works which may be deemed necessary to the proper unkeep of the same, in accordance with the orders of the Council, to whose supervision the Lessee shall be subject.

THE CITY SHALL have the right to repurchase the said house at a valuation to be settled by arbitration as provided in this Act:

(a) Whenever the Lessee, his executors or administrators, shall have. been in arrears with one of the stipulated payments for a period of six months or more.
(b) In case and as often as the Lessee, his executors and administrators desire to let the said house at a rate in excess of the amount fixed by the Council.
(c) In case and as often as the Lessee, his executors, administrators or assignees desire to sell the said house during the term arranged for payment of the cost of the same.
(d) If the Lessee fails to inhabit the house himself in spite of being notified to do so.
(e) If the Lessee fails to keep the house in good repair as above provided.
(f) If distraint is proposed in respect t othe said property.

Take a house built by the City Council to cost $2000, and follow the payments for ten (10) years, if in twenty (20) years half these amounts.

House to Cost	$2000.00
By Cash 25%	500.00
	$1500.00

By ten (10) yearly payments

$150.00	$1500.00
1st year's payment	$ 150.00
Interest 6%	90.00
	$240.00

Payable Quarterly $60 every month. In addition the tenants has to pay—

Fire Insurance 1¼% $2000	25.00
Estimated Ground Rent	10.00
City Taxes	15.00
Repairs 1%	20.00
	$ 310.00
Annual Charges	$ 70.00
2nd Years Payment	$ 150.00
Interest	81.00
	$ 231.00
Annual Charges	$ 70.00
	$ 301.00
3rd Years Payment	$ 150.00
Interest	72.00
Annual Charges	$ 70.00
	$ 292.00
4th Years Payment	$ 150.00
Interest	63.00
Annual Charges	$ 70.00
	$ 283.00
5th Years Payment	$ 150.00
Interest	54.00
Annual Charges	$ 70.00
	$ 274.00
6th Years Payment	$ 150.00
Interest	45.00
Annual Charges	$ 70.00
	$ 265.00
7th Years Payment	$ 150.00
Interest	36.00
Annual Charges	$ 70.00
	$ 256.00
8th Years Payment	$ 150.00
Interest	27.00
Annual Charges	$ 70.00
	$ 247.00
9th Years Payment	$ 150.00
Interest	18.00
Annual Charges	$ 70.00
	$238.00
10th Years Payment	$ 150.00
Interest	9.00
Annual Charges	70.00
	$ 229.00
Cost of House	$2000.00

Total Cost of House in ten (10) years:

By Cash on Cost	$ 500.00
10 Yearly Payments $150	1500.00
Interest	495.00
Ground Rent Freehold	200.00
	$2695.00

Estimated Annual Cost of Municipal Council Houses for Workingmen:

First Payment in Cash	$ 500.00

Instalment and Charges:

1st year	$ 310.00

2nd	"	301.00	charges of $80.00.
3rd	"	292.00
4th	"	283.00
5th	"	274.00
6th	"	265.00
7th	"	256.00
8th	"	247.00
9th	"	238.00
10th	"	229.00

I understand the twelve houses built by the Council are erected on Crown land for which was paid a nominal price, and that the buyers of these houses will have to pay a perpetual ground rent of $20.00 per annum. Now Mr. President, let us take another case of these houses built by the Council, for sale and not to rent. How many workingmen in St. John's are in a position to carry out the Council's instructions as laid down in Schedule A of the Charter. Take the $2000 house to be paid for during the period of five years:

House to cost	$2000.00
By Cash 25%	500.00
To balance	$1500.00
By five (5) yearly payments, $300	$1500.00
1st yearly payment	$ 300.00
Interest 6¼	90.00
	$ 390.00
Payment quarterly, $97.50, every three months. In addition the tenant has to pay:
Fire Insurance 1¼%—$2000.	$ 25.00
Estimated Ground Rent	20.00
City Taxes	15.00
Repairs 1%	20.00
	$ 470.00

You will note I am putting down $20 for ground rent included in the Annual charges of $80.00.

2nd Years Payment	$ 300.00
Interest 6%	72.00
Annual Charges	80.00
	$ 452.00
3rd Years Payment	$ 300.00
Interest 6%	54.00
Annual Charges	80.00
	$ 434.00
4th Years Payment	$ 300.00
Interest 6%	36.00
Annual Charges	80.00
	$ 416.00
5th Years Payment	$ 300.00
Interest 6%	18.00
Annual Charges	80.00
	$ 398.00
Cost of House to the Council	$2000.00
Total cost of House to the buyer in five yearly payments:
By Cash on cost	$ 500.00
5 yearly payments $300	1500.00
Interest	270.00
Ground Rent Freehold value	400.00
	$2670.00

Estimated Annual Cost of Municipal Houses for Workingmen:

Fist Payment in Cash	$ 500.00
Instalment and Charges:
1st Year	470.00
2nd "	452.00
3rd "	434.00
4th "	416.00
5th "	398.00

I have no desire Mr. President to find fault or condemn the Municipal Council in their housing programme, but to point out how impossible it will be for the ordinary workingman to occupy these houses.

Iunderstand a Bill, an Act to amend and consolidate the Laws in relation to the Municipal affairs of the Town of St. John's will be introduced this session. This Act may be cited as The St. John's City Charter. I was one of the members who assisted in the preparation of the Charter. The original Charter itself is not unanimous. I am not aware to what extent it has been altered either by the Citizens or Parliamentary Committees. The printed copy of the Charter contains 398 sections and 301 Sub-Sections, these will certainly require to be taken up and given thoughtful and careful consideration. I will, for the information of the House, draw the attention of hon. gentlemen to housing section 225. Every building in the occupancy of the owner, hereafter erected or which has been erected within the ten years immediately preceding the passage of this act, shall be assessed for the City Tax as follows:

Every owner of any building as aforesaid shall when called upon to do so, make a declaration on oath before the Secretary, Treasurer, as to the cost of such building including therein the value of the ground if the same is freehold, the cost of all materials used, and the value of the labour incurred. On Frame Buildings the annual rental value for purposes of taxation shall not be less than 10 per cent, on cost under $2000; 8 per cent on cost from $2000 up to $5000; 8 per cent on cost from $5000 up to $10,000; 7 per cent on cost from $10,000 up.

When the Charter comes before the House, I hope to deal with this section later.

HOUSING BONDS.

Campaign Starts in the City of London Junt 7th.

The Guildhall meeting in support of the Housing Bonds scheme which had been postponed from April 12, was held on Monday, June 7th, when banking insurance, and other City interests were well represented. The Prime Minister, who had asked that the meeting should be postponed until that date owing to his attendance at the Supreme Council at San Remo, was unable to be present owing to his indisposition, and ihs place was taken by Mr. Bonar Law.

In a letter to the Lord Mayor, who presided, Mr. Lloyd George said:— "The interests of public health and humanity are at stake. Adequate housing will ensure happy homes, which are the surest guarantee any country can provide against agitation and unrest."

Mr. Bonar Law's speech was an appeal to local patriotism to make the scheme a success. He made the following points:—

If every effort was not made to improve the conditions of the people, there would be a discontented, sullen, and perhaps angry nation, which would be fatal to trade, industry, and credit.

Schemes for 180,000 houses and tenders for over 100,000 had been finally approved. Work was in progress on 30,000 houses.

Progress was being hindered for want of financial means.

He appealed to local authorities to stimulate local patriotism and feeling.

The clashing of interests between the demands of the State and the terms for local housing was more apparent than real.

The State had ceased to borrow money, and he hoped and believed that, in his lifetime at least, the State would never be a borrower again for State purposes.

A Committee had been set up to prevent localities competing with each other.

Districts unable to raise all the money themselves, but which had done their best, would be assisted.

Every local authority with a rateable value over $500,000 should issue housing bonds.

He was not afraid of revolutionaries, but there was nothing more dangerous than continuance without effort to improve housing conditions.

Although this meeting was looked on as the official inauguration of the campaign, the scheme has been before the country for some time, and local authorities in many parts of the Kingdom have been going ahead with the work. The bonds are issued in amounts of $25.00, $100, $250, $500 and multiplies of $500. They will carry not more than 6 per cent interest, and will be repayable at par.

Mr. Bonar Law's speech on Housing Bonds at the Guildhall, London, last month may be regarded as the official opening of the Housing Bond campaign throughout the country, although local authorities in many parts have already been hard at work familiarising the general public with the scheme.

Mr. Bonar Law, in the course of his speech, declared that the appeal which was being made for bonds for the State was not new borrowing. The money the Treasury was asking for was at the rate of five per cent, to be varied according to the Bank rate. The Housing Bonds were at a fixed rate of six per cent.

"Under the scheme as arranged at present," said Mr. Bonar Law, "local authorities with a rateable value above $1,000,000 wer to raise the whole of the money. The Government recognised that there were some districts which could not raise all the money themselves, but they must try.

"They thought that every local authority with a rateable value of $500,000 upwards should start an issue of Housing Bonds. Already 260 out of between 400 and 500 such authorities had done so, and he believed others would follow suit."

Among the many Housing Companies of Great Britain, The Alliance Housing Association, London, of which Lord Holdon is President, has arranged for the erection of 1000 houses and bungalows for $3000.00 each in Southend, Westcliff, and Leigh, wherever suitable plots can be obtained. As many as possible will be made ready for occupation by September, they will be allotted by ballot.

Mr. President:—Although during the past four years I have, in the press and from the floor of this House, advocated that an effort should be made to improve our housing conditions, no attention was paid to my cry, a deaf ear and personal abuse from some quarters were my reward and those associated with me. In a small country like Newfoundland we cannot expect the great things of wealthier nations, but in a small way we can make a beginning. I am much interested in every change and move of the housing problem in the Mother Country. The latest Saving Certificates and housing, a new Alliance.

In the House of Commons on Wednesday, June 23rd, in reply to a question, the Chancellor of the Exchequer said:—"On the urgent representations of the National Savings Committee I propose, if the House will agree to the necessary legislation, that 50 per cent of the proceeds of Savings Certificates bought after October 1 next should be made available for loans to local authorities. Arrangements are being made to work out a scheme under which each area will be able to borrow from the Local Loans Fund in proportion to the amount of its subscriptions to certificates."

Lord Islington (Chairman of the National Savings Committee) issues a statement welcoming this announcement, and adding: "During the war the savings movement received the active assistance of local authorities. The Savings Certificate, with its absolute guarantee against depreciation of capital value, and its facility for withdrawal, is undoubtedly the best security for the small investor who will be now able to play his part in assisting his own district in raising the money so urgently needed for housing and other local purposes.

"Though its appeal to the small investor for this purpose must be deferred until October 1, my Committee is prepared to ask the local Savings Committees to render every possible assistance to local authorities from now onwards in their campaigns for the sale of housing bonds among those classes of the community for whom the bonds are a suitable investment.

"I confidently anticipate that this alliance between the savings organisations and local authorities will have beneficial and far-reaching results, both in promoting the success of the various local financial campaigns and in stimulating the interes of small investors in local finance generally.
vestors in local finance generally.

The wealth of a nation is its people. At last, if slowly, we are coming to realize that the real wealth of a nation is its people.

In the past we set up a god of material wealth ,and made human sacrifice to it; but to-day war has taught us what it seems we could not learn from peace, that healthy, happy, and therefore, efficient people cannot be born and reared amidst miserable surroundings, and that, though the cost of improving those surroundings will be great, the cost of producing a sickly and degraded people is greater.

With co-operation, thrift, and common sense, a proper business housing scheme will not only fill an urgent need, but will acceleate demobilization and reduce unemployment. If a further reason be wanted for a progressive housing policy, there is one more convincing than all others it is that, as a bare measure of justice, every man who has given of his best in working for his country should be regarded as entitled to a decent home in pleasant surroundings.

The housing situation has become serious, and the importance of dealing rapidly and effectively with the problem at once cannot be exaggerated.

Bad and inadequate housing seriously effects on both social and industrial conditions. It is one of the chief causes of the spread of disease, of infant mortality, and of physical deterioration, and also of social and industrial unrest.

As regards the plans for the construction of houses and the laying out of the land, the first duty of the Company will be to build six hundred houses for workingmen.

These houses will be rented to the working class and our artizans at a minimum rent upon the actual cost of construction.

We propose to build these houses, if at all possible in broad clean streets, bordered with substantial buildings of modern design, with plenty of space and air, houses that will be well made, well kept and well lighted, with a perfect system of drainage, and a magnificent supply of water; every home to be fitted with the most up-to-date fitting for sanitation. In time the town of St. John's should become a veritable garden city.

The evils arising from the "insanitary and insufficient accommodation" now prevailing are pretty generally recognized. Thousands of our fellow-citizens are compelled to live under conditions which are a scandal to civilization. They are housed in confined, dirty, evil-smelling lanes and streets, deprived of fresh air and sunshine stringers to the sight of grass and trees and flowers, and without opportunity for healthy recreation.

All this inevitably tends to produce moral and physical deterioration. It is almost impossible for people to maintain a high standard of character and physique where all the conditions are adverse and we have only to visit the places described in order to see how disastrous are the results. Little wonder if, while many battle bravely against their surroundings and rise superior to them, a small number succumb, and go to swell the mass of vicious, criminal and diseased humanity, which is a disgrace and menace to our city.

Here, then is the problem to be faced: Population overcrowded in houses, houses overcrowded on land; streets and houses in innumerable cases in a shamefully insanitary condition.

The type of dwelling required in ordinary circumstances is the self-contained house; occasionally there may be a demand for accommodation of a limited character, e.g., accommodation for newly married couples or for aged persons without a family, and in such cases it may be desirable to meet the demand by the provision of two storey houses, consisting of two self-contained dwellings; but, generally, it would seem desirable to avoid the erection of blocks of buildings containing a series of tenements.

A distinguished prelate of this city has said: "The housing conditions in certain sections are a disgrace to the city. This is a matter that would seem to call imperatively and immediately for united effort and action on the part of all interests and sections in the community, as well as for the assistance of the State, amongst whose most valuable assets must ever be reckoned the health and happiness of its citizens. It surely should be possible for corporate enterprise, with the active sympathy of the State, to evolve some comprehensive system whereby the housing problem could be dealt with on an extensive scale, and better homes at reasonable rentals provided for large numbers of our people in St. John's. Until this is done, despite the commendable efforts that are being made by the health authorities to bring about a decline in infantile mortalty and to combat the spred of tuberculosis, we must inevitably continue to pay our heavy toll in disease, misery and death."

Bad housing conditions affect not merely physical health, but the general standard of life. How is it possible to keep a home clean and comfortable if it consists of two rooms only, while the family number ten? How is it possible to maintain deceny when there are insufficient bedrooms to separate the sexes, or when, as is not uncommon in hundreds of houses, there is no sanitary conveniences of any kind.

In many respects the demands of the intelligent women living in a town like St. John's vary but little. They ask for a house rather than a flat, though some admit that, for the sake of reducing the cost, the two-flat house might be adopted, while most agree that, for old people, and single people, blocks of dwellings are not objectionable; but the ambition of a woman with a family is a house with a small garden in which the children can play, the washing can be dried, and in which is a shed for storage of coal and other things, for which it is difficult to find a place inside a small house.

If parents have only slum houses to bring up children, what else can we exect but a high percentage of infant mortality. What is the use of lecturing mothers on the science of motherhood if you continue to let them live in a hovel?

It is not only the children who die that we must consider, but the children who live, halt and maimed and sickly, the boys and girls who survive the perils of childhood to grow into unhealthy undersized, miserable specimens of humanity. The wealth of a nation is its people.

The first aim will be to remove those who live in houses not fit for human habitation to homes of health and comfort.

With the end of the war comes the return to Newfoundland of our soldiers and sailors. Thousands have returned. Are we to keep them, or will they leave their native land in disgust?

They have seen other countries, other conditions and other possibilities, and they are not prepared to face the sordidness of a dull lief in a miserable and hopeless home, when they can find better conditions and equally good employment in almost every other country on earth. The time has come when something must be done to attract and keep our discharged soldiers and sailors. A good beginning can be made by providing them with fit houses to live in, and making the present city of St. John's better conditioned in other respects and worthy of the men who risked their lives for their country.

We have all read of the wonderful accounts of the sufferings which our heroes have undergone in the trenches. If we sat still now and did nothing, to let them come home from horrible water-logged trenches to some houses little better than a pigsty here, would indeed be criminal on the part of ourselves and would be a negation of all we have said during the war, that we can never repay what they have done for us.

Those who have suffered the hardships of war and the long bitterness of separation deserve of us better than to have to pass their lives in a slum. It is only by the co-operation of all that the ideal of building houses for our workers will be achieved.

WORLD'S HOUSING CONGRESS. GREAT MEETING IN LONDON.

At the Inter-Allied Housing and Town Planning Congress held at the Central Hall, Westminster, London, last month, many important and far-reaching schemes were discussed.

Delegates appointed by Governments, local authorities, and national organisations came from France (35), Spain (20), Norway (45), Sweden (40), Holland (50), Belgium (25), Finland (53), Denmark (20); other representatives were present from Australia, New Zealand, Canada, Cape Colony, Egypt, Italy, Czecho-Slovankia, America, Japan, Poland, Rumania, Siam, Switzerland, and Yugo Slavia.

One of the most important discussions was the possibility of securing the preparation and official acceptance by the Government of each country of a housing programme, to be carried into effect by the State acting in co-operation with municipal and other agencies sufficient in scope and character to secure within 20 years that every family shall be housed under proper conditions and surroundings.

Mr. President, why was Newfoundland not represented at the World's Housing Congress held in London last month. I will tell you why, every honest effort that was made to improve the housing conditions of our workingmen, soldiers and sailors during the past four years were turned down, until taken up by the present Government, every concession asked for by the Dominion Co-Operative Building Association Limited were granted. We have every assurance from the Government that they are determined to co-operate with the Company and see that the citizens of St. John's are provided with Better and healthier homes in decent surroundings.

THE KING OF IDEAL HOMES.

The King at Buckingham Palace received a deputation from the Inter-

Allied Congress on Housing and Town Planning, which has been sitting in London and inspecting housing and town-planning schemes in various parts of the country. Dr. Addison, on the delegates behalf, handed an address to the King.

"I was gratified to learn that this important Congress, to which so many nations have sent delegates, was to assemble in this country," said the King in his reply, "and I am glad that the Housing and Town Planning Council, which has been responsible for its organisations, has afforded the delegates an opportunity of visiting housing schemes which are now in progress here, so that they may see something of the work upon which we have begun.

"I have read with much interest the resolutions passed by the Congress and have been struck by their eminently practical nature. The preparation of a definite programme must surely be the first essential of comprehensive housing before in any country.

"It is particularly noteworthy that the Congress has been able to establish in some detail an ideal standard of accommodation and comfort in all the houses to be provided.

"The proper solution of the housing problem lies not merely in the provision of more and better houses and the clearance of slum areas, but in the far-sighter planning which will put on proper lines the development of our centres of population.

"The meeting of the Congress and this expression of their views is a significent demonstration of the awakened feeling which is animating the people in all countries.

"This Congress is a testimony of the realisation that the provision of improved housing is fundamental to the health, happiness, and progress of all the peoples, and the proceedings of the Congress must be a great stimulus and, of course, value to all who are grappling with the problem.

"I am glad to have the opportunity of again evincing my personal interest in this vital question."

It is well-known that in England enormous strides have been made, as in other countries, in the matter of building houses for workingmen. Already some 20,000 (?) have been erected, but as there are over 700,000 (?) required it will be several years before the shortage has been met.

The Government of Great Britain realizes as our own now does, what an important factor in the well-being and prosperity of national life good social conditions for the workingmen mean. His Majesty the King has shown his approval by repeatedly visiting centres of industry where building is in progress and by public utterances has signified his satisfaction at the way the question is being tackled.

When he was in Newfoundland last summer the Prince of Wales evinced considerable interest in the housing problem, and asked for information on the subject.

We are all aware that His Excellency the Governor is alive to the importance of our local needs, and I am sure he will be as pleased as anybody to know, in due time, that a number of houses have actually been built and that the kind act of Lady Harris in turning the first sod on our building site has been consummated in the appearance of comfortable houses for our poorer brothers.

Mr. President, it is beyond my ken to prophecy to what extent and limit this Dominion will require to borrow money for future state requirements, and what interest we will have to pay for our future loans. With so much money in the country invested at 3% there should be no difficulty in raising the necessary capital required by the Dominion Co-Operative Building Association at 5% guaranteed by the Government for twenty years.

Rates of interest on our public debt:

Loan at 3	per cent....	$1,581,666.66
Loan at 3½	per cent....	8,905,346.65
Loan at 4	per cent....	9,002,432.29
Loan at 5½	per cent....	5,000,000.00
Loan at 6½	per cent....	7,543,400.00
Loan at 5½	per cent....	1,000,000.00

The Bill under review. The Government have in no way restricted the operations, of the Company, except in one way, that is, material imported for workingmen's houses are not to exceed the cost of $2500. This section is right and proper. It may be in the interest of the Company to build a better class of house for young men in stores and other occupations, to float the balance of the capital 10,000 shares $100.00—$1,000,000.00—or it may be in the interest of the Company to make loans to persons having land of their own to build.

Loans on a carefully thought-out scheme, as to principal and interest $500,000.

Second part of the programme will be to erect a better class of house suitable for clerks, and young men who are about to get married, balance share capital $500,000.

Estimated cost—

105	Houses	$2500	$262,500.00
25	"	3000	75,000.00
20	"	3500	70,000.00
20	"	4000	80,000.00
			$487,500.00
		Surplus	12,500.00
			$500,000.00

The programme outlined by the Company is a colossal task, it means the erection of 770 houses, and the loaning of $500,000 to assist others who wish to build themselves on land of their own.

Mr. President, we can never tackle successfully a job of which we are afraid. Our effort must be equal to the task. We must handle the housing problem, we ask all classes to assist in this great work of reconstructing the city of St. John's. Politicians, politics, mixed with political mud, are not the elements to be used in the reconstruction of a city or building up a country, this is the work of a statesman who is a politician of the highest class, an architect in public life, a moulder of character, an example to the subjects of a nation, and the builder of an empire.

Mr. President, I have much pleasure in moving the second reading of a Bill, An Act Respecting The Dominion Co-Operative Building Association Lid.

HON. MR. POWER:—The Council houses are all occupied by outport men, and there is not a workingman in one of them. Now you made some reference to me some time ago and I want to say I have twenty-five tenants to-day and have not raised the rent one dollar on any of them, and I challenge you or anybody else to visit them to-day and you will find them all tenantable. It is all right for you to make charges but what do you charge for your material? You are making a dead set on an industrial man and his antecedents. What have you done. You never made any attempt to build up the town.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—I fear the hon. gentleman has misunderstood my remarks.

The Bill was read a second time and ordered to be committed on to-morrow.

HON. PRESIDENT read a message from the Assembly that they had passed the Bill respecting the giving effect to certain treaties between His Majesty and certain other powers in which they requested concurrence.

Said Bill was then read a first time and ordered to be read a second time on to-morrow.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—I beg to move the first reading of Bill to amend the Patriotic Fund Act 1915. We have an Act already under which we are operating but now that the strain and stress of war are over we wish to spend the rest of the money in our possession to meet cases which are not provided for under the Pensions Act.

Said Bill was read a first time and by the unanimous consent of the House, a second time, and ordered to be committed on to-morrow.

HON. MR. SHEA gave notice of Suspension of Rules on to-morrow.

House then adjourned until Thursday at four o'clock.

THURSDAY, July 8th, 1920.

The House met pursuant to adjournment.

HON. MR. GIBBS tabled report of the Select Committee on Bill entitled "An Act to Amend Chapter 162 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Prosecution of the Seal Fishery.'"

HON. MR. SHEA moved the third reading of Bill entitled "An Act to Regulate the Exportation of Salt Codfish."

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Before this goes past and becomes law, I wish to make a few remarks with regard to my views in respect to this Bill. In Committee, I gave expression to my sentiments, I feel very strongly that it is a measure that will not benefit the Dominion. It is detrimental to its best interests. I rise at this stage of the Bill to object to it. We have no precedent in any country for such a course as is proposed to be adopted now and to become the law of the land. A similar thing was tried for a short period by the Norwegians but was dropped as not being workable. My feelings have been strengthened by the experience of the last six months. The placing of an arbitrary price on the produce of the country will enable our competitors to undersell us. I submit that our position has been weakened by the carrying out of this measure during the period to which I have referred. This Dominion finds itself with a considerable quantity of old codfish—last season's catch—and a considerable amount on the market deteriorated owing to the fact that we were not permitted to meet with the competition of men of other countries, who were able to dispose of their catch and produce, while we had to hold ours. Those limitations were placed upon us when 50% of last year's catch was realized. My convition is that if we applied these rules to the whole catch of the country we should find ourselves in this position that a large amount of our fish would not be marketable or we should find ourselves with a large quantity of fish going into competition with the cheaper products of other countries.

It is well-known to hon. members in business, it is common property, that France and Great Britain, the principal powers in the war are making a strong effort to get demobilized soldiers back to their pre-war situations, and every opportunity is taken to get them to return amongst other pursuits to the prosecution of the fishery, so as to increase the number engaged to the fullest extent. At the present time the three-fold increase of the British fisheries has produced such a condition of affairs that fishermen find it unprofitable to land, and are dumping the proceeds of their labour. They cannot find a market for it. This has largely to do with fresh fish. Large quantities of the common fish from the North Sea and the Irish Channel and other fishing grounds is adapted for salting. Already in England and Ireland a large portion is being salted and is going into competition with fish of this country in Italy and Portugal. Our competitors in Nova Scotia have an abundant bank fishery this year. The Japanese, an energetic and thrifty people, are invading the Italian market. They are bringing fish across the Pacific by way of San Francisco and New York and placing it on markets which hitherto were ours. If we allow those people to undersell us and dispose of the whole of their catch it appears to me that when we come to realize on a normal fishery we shall find ourselves confronted with greater difficulties.

One honourable gentleman in the course of his remarks said "Give it a trial." Why should we, if it is going to injure the country. Another hon. gentleman—one unacquainted with that branch of the business for which I am pleading, said so many hon. members in the other Chamber had voted upon it he would support the measure. This is not a worthy argument. If it were upon a minor product, and in view of so many honourable gentlemen being in favour of the Bill I would withdraw my opposition, but I feel that we are tampering with legislation the consequence of which will be very serious. I am foreseeing a few months hence when the large bulk of the labour of the people is placed upon the market—I foresee a deadlock. We should all like to see the whole produce realized.

I feel that if I am to be refused to clear my vessels at the Custom House and if the sale of my produce is to be relegated to a channel to which I have no connection, and if I am to be told the price at which to sell this article I do not see, with the liberty of the subject taken away, what the end will be. It will create a feeling of want of confidence, not only on the part of those who have supported the Bill but will quickly extend to those who like myself differ from it.

If these predictions which appeared in one of the Government papers that ten dollars and twelve dollars was to be the respective values of Labrador and shore fish, if in the fall of the year, due to these arbitrary enactments, competition is destroyed, confidence will fail altogether. The success that has attended the realization of the produce of this country has arisen out of competition. If we destroy competition and destroy initiative, we injure this industry.

I cannot give my assent to the Bill and I desire to place on record those opinions. I view with much apprehension, the investing of the Board with power to do practically what it wishes. And while we give them credit for aiming at improving matters, we can see the temptation that will beset them. In dealing with their own vessels, it will be human for them to look after themselves. But on the broad principle that you fetter the enterprise of a community which for centuries has been carrying on this business on the present basis, frame the measure without any precedent from other countries and alter the condition of affairs of a country, and when you are instituting a course that a large country would not dare enter upon and for which there is no precedent in any trade, and when you leave open to jealousy the laws of supply and demand, which, after all, govern prices in every country, and in every trade, you are taking a course which in my humble opinion will be detrimental to the country. Consequently in placing myself on record as opposed to this measure I do so because I honestly believe it will be to the prejudice of the Colony and not conducive to its welfare.

HON. MR. RYAN:—Mr. President, I wish to say a few words on this Bill. I fully concur with the remarks of my honourable friend, Mr. Grieve, and I know something of the regulations since last November. I had only a small lot of fish, which I handed over to Mr. Hawes last March. I wired to Mr. Hawes, who is supposed to be the great man for Newfoundland, on the 19th of June, and on the 27th of June he had the politeness to reply to my message. I therefore on the 4th of July cabled my own brokers in London to know from Mr. Hawes if this fish of mine shipped on the 14th of March last were sold, and, as I expected, the message which I now hold in my hand says: "550 quintals Labrador fish Hawes reports nothing sold." Now that is caused by the fish regulations. I could have sold this fish last March, the early part of March, at 65 shillings in Liverpool. I was prevented from doing so because the regulation price was 70 shillings in Liverpool. I offered it, as I said before here, to Mr. Brooks and Mr. Barr for 60 shillings. I was quite willing to accept 60 shillings, but neither would buy this fish from me. I offered to land it in Liverpool, but although they prevented me from selling at 65 shillings they would not buy themselves at 60. My fish went over there; went from Liverpool to Alicante, from Alicante to Valentia, and it is still there. We have heard a great deal about Mr. Hawes and what he was doing in selling these steamers' cargo last year. The people have not got their money yet. Now that is caused by the fish regulations prices, and any man who shipped fish know it. On the Buchanan there was an allowance made to the purchasers of that cargo of from 1s. to 8s. 6d. per quintal, and Mr. Hawes allowed the rebate; and also the exporters of the cargo had to pay 1s. 9½d. demurrage while the steamer was held up. Such a thing we have to do under the fish regulation prices, and if the Government intends to have regulation prices, why certainly those who export the fish will know more about it after the thing is over. They will have to meet their losses and smile, and I am fully aware that when those men who exported the fish that is now in Spain and Portugal get their Account Sales next December and January they will smile the wrong way. I am quite adverse to fixed regulation prices for fish and shall certainly vote against the Bill now before this Chamber.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Before the motion is put, Mr. President, I would like to say a few words, because when the Bill was going through I did not happen to be present, and moreover developments with respect to one aspect of this matter have arisen to which I would like to call attention, and as I think I was the speaker referred to by my honourable friend opposite who said this was an experiment and he was prepared to take a chance on it, I would restate my position. I have always regarded the Bill as an experiment. It is part of a series of measures presented in this House with the object of regulating the price of fish. I personally have no expectation that these measures will realize anything like the success that is hoped for them, but at the same time the matters involved are so great from the point of view of the public interest that I did not see that I would be justified in refusing to support the Bill, because, after all, if this policy proves a disastrous policy, then the evidence of that disaster would be seen sufficiently far ahead to enable those who are entrusted with the carrying out of the measure to avert the worse consequences from the country. There is no legislation of the kind in any country in the world at the present time, nor have I been able to find anybody who knows of similar legislation in the past. The Hon. Mr. Gibbs spoke of conditions in the Middle Ages, but without the knowledge of the peculiar circumstances surrounding that legislation it would be difficult for me to judge of its value, and moreover, it will hardly be urged by anybody that conditions which applied during the time when the Western World was unknown and when trade was done within the confines of what is only the Western part of Europe could be applicable to conditions at the present time. During the course of the War we had legislation of this character, designed to deal with conditions arising out of the War, but every country is trying to get away from that legislation as fast as possible. United States has gone out of the control of one of the principal exporting commodities, wheat.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—That is not so.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—The honourable gentleman says that is not so in the United States. I can only say that Government control of the wheat crop at Washington ended on the 30th day of April last. I brought along with me the Montreal Gazetter of Monday, the 25th of June, which gives details of debates on the passage of the Wheat Bill. The Bill continued for a further twelve months the control of the Wheat Export Board of Canada. Sir George Foster, who was in charge of the Bill, says that it provides for the extension of the Wheat Board beyond the present summer if needed. He explains that the Act would not necessarily be put into effect, but the Government would have the necessary authority. I am not going to read it in detail, but the sentiment of the House was aginst the continuance of the regulation of the export of this commodity, and this Board was extended for the present year because of the conditions which existed in connection with contracts and because it was felt that it might be desirable in view of the situation that the Government should have power to deal with emergencies, but there was a general recognition of the fact that this wheat control should not be continued beyond the present year. In view of these facts I think I am safe in saying that other countries are abandoning the policy of the control of commodities as rapidly as possible. Whether this policy will be successful or not only time can tell. My opinion with regard to that aspect of the Bill is that the idea in the minds of the public is that Government control can fix prices and maintain them in competition with other parts of the world, and that therefore it is desirable in everybody's interest that this question should be settled once and for all. The legislation is there; it is complete so far as the Government feels it requires it. The necessary machinery is there to apply all the principles in the fullest extent and to derive therefrom the greatest benefit which those who favor this policy expect to derive from it. If the policy brings about the results expected to follow from it, then these gentlemen will claim, and deservedly claim, the credit; the country will get the benefit. On the other hand, if the policy fails, these gentlemen will have to assume the responsibility, and I hope in that contingency steps will be taken sufficiently far ahead to avert the worst consequences that will ensue. Within the next year or two it will be demonstrated conclusively whether this policy is feasible or not. I have no expectation that it can be made the success that is expected, because I do not see how, with the war-stricken area of Europe trying to produce codfish and other food necessaries and being satisfied with a lower standard of living, we can successfully compete with these countries, particularly if our exporters are to be subject to Government control as to price. However, this is question, as Mr. Asquith says, where "We must wait and see." With regard to the collection of nearly half a million dollars to be expended in carrying out the Bill, there is something to be said. I think most people are agreed, but I believe on a mistaken premises, that it is desirable to spend a lot of money for that is regarded as scientific research. If I may say so, in my opinion all that money is going to be wasted. To begin with, we cannot hope, with the limited money at our disposal, to get the class of man we should have. In the second place, the work is being done by our neighbours on both sides of the Atlantic. The United States maintains an organization at the cost of millions of dollars for studying all these aspects of the industry, and this we are now to attempt to undertake, with two men and a boy, figuratively speaking. I do not think any man we employ will give us anything like an adequate return for the money we are going to spend. Some gentlemen will remember a Professor from Norway having come across the Atlantic in company with Mr. Harvey, an eminent English scientist, to study sea and fish conditions. They produced a book. I have a copy of it which they sent me. It was a very exhaustive study of such questions as currents and temperatures. We are now going to start in and do all this again. Our Canadian neighbours have a Department with a specialist in charge to do exactly the same work. Six weeks ago the Canadian authorities brought on a scientist from Scotland to study the matter, and all this material is available, and why we should spend hundreds of thousands of dollars with the idea that we are going to get anything of any value passes my comprehension.

Having said these things, Mr. President, I would say in conclusion—I say for the purposes of going on record, because I believe that it is well that when one has strong feelings on a matter of this kind he should make the position perfectly clear—that the argument was put forward in a recent bye-election that the Bill was supported in the Upper House. Well, everybody here knows the view I took and the efforts I made to have this Bill made ful, I am glad to say. My position on clearer—efforts which were successthe general principles remains the same. It is an experiment, and because the people who want to conduct the experiment are, I believe, sincere in it and hope for the best, I am prepared to give them, so far as I am concerned, my support, but I have no expectation that the experiment will be anything like the success that they believe it will. I give my support to the measure with that qualification.

Committee rose, and reported the Bill passed with amendments.

It was then read a third time and ordered to be sent to the House of Assembly with a message informing that body that the Council had passed the same with amendments.

On motion the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on the Bill "An Act to Confirm a Contract on the Subject of the Manufacture of Paper Pulp and Wood Products."

Hon. Mr. Cook in the chair.

Committee rose and reported the Bill having passed without amendment. It was then read a third time and ordered to be sent to the House of Assembly with a message informing that body that the Council had passed the same without amendment.

On motion the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on the Bill "An Act Respecting the Dominion Co-operative Building Association, Limited."

Hon. Mr. Bell in the chair.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Mr. Chairman, I am very anxious indeed that in connection with this Bill the fullest information which is in our power shall be given. I have brought with me, Mr. Chairman, the plans of the houses that we propose to build, and I shall table it. I have also with me plans of the land laid out for the first part of the scheme, which I shall also lay on the table of the House. I shall briefly refer to the fact that it is the intention of the Company in the first part of its program to build six hundred houses. Two hundred and fifty of the houses will be built in blocks of five, and the Committee will see that each block is of different design. The second part of the program I do not intend to make reference to just now. The guarantee sought is the ordinary guarantee given by the Government to companies; it is to provide that—

No payment shall be made except upon the certificate of the Auditor General of Newfoundland. In order to obtain such certificate the Company shall furnish to the Minister of Finance and Customs at the end of each year, during the said term of twenty years, a full and correct statement of the receipts and expenditure of the Company for the preceding year, and shall afford all proper facilities to the Auditor General to make a complete examination of the books, accounts and vouchers of the Company, in conjunction with an Auditor to be appointed by the Company. In the event of any dispute arising between the two Auditors in relation to the said statement, the same shall be referred to the determination of a public chartered accountant as umpire, to be appointed by the two Auditors. The award of such umpire shall be final and conclusive.

Now the auditors of the company are Messrs. Read, Son & Watson, who are well recognized auditors in the community.

The Bill provides that—

All construction and building materials and machinery imported into this Colony by the Company for use in its said business, which are of a kind and description not manufactured in this Colony, shall, for a period of twenty years from the first day of January, A.D. 1920, be admitted free of duty and that one-third of the directors of the company shall be appointed by the Government.

That, Mr. Chairman, is a brief outline of the Bill. I beg to move that section 1 be adopted.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Before the first section is put I would like to make a few observations. I am sure everybody will agree with the idea of having houses built, and everybody, I think, is disposed to give praise to the gentlemen who have assiciated themselves with this project, but I do not think, and I am not speaking in a critical sense, I do not think this measure is going to accomplish anything like the results that are expected to come from it; for this reason: it tries, as I see it, to "sit on two stools," which is proverbially an invitation to disaster, because it has a philanthropic side and it has a practical side, or, as I see it, no practical side. Now I understood the honourable gentleman to say yesterday that he or his company had about $40,000.00.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—We have $50,000.00 in cash.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—As I see it, this money that is given is philanthropic money that is being given by people with the object of assisting the public. I do not think, but I am subject to correction, that the honourable gentleman can expect to get a dollar for this project with the idea in the mind of the man who gives it that he is ever going to get any substantial return, because the highest interest that is offered is only five per cent., and a man can go down to-day and buy Government bonds at five and a half per cent., and he has no risk whatever. A man was telling me this morning that he was buying bonds at five and a half, and with the premium on that, he would make about six and a half. That absolutely bars the honourable gentleman from getting any money except philanthropic money, and the amount of philanthropic money he is going to get will be limited.

In saying this be it understood I am not criticising the scheme of the hon. gentleman or the support which the Government gave him; I think the Government could do no less. I think tho', the Government ought to have done somewhat more, that is, assisted other people. They ought to have made it possible for builders to undertake the same thing as my hon. friend, and in order to prove my case I am going to show what they are doing in England. There has recently been published a journal of parliaments of the Empire and the January edition, page 66, deals with the housing problem in the Old Country and shows the support which the British Government is giving. I may say, broadly speaking, the British Government is prepared to give any building contractor or association undertaking to put up houses of an approved kind, i.e. to say workingmen houses, the sum of £130 or say $650 as a bonus for a cottage containing living room, two bedrooms and comprising not less than 700 superficial feet of floor area; for three bedrooms $700; for living room, parlor and three or four bedrooms, 920 feet, $800. The hon. gentleman said yesterday the British Government were proceeding on his program, and that in no case were communities in the Old Country of over $100,000 getting any support from the Government. The N. Y. Times of Sunday, June 27, has a very exhaustive and interesting article on this very subject. It is written by Captain ———? and is well worth anybody reading it and will give an idea of what is really being done. I will read a section. (Read extract).

In that case the British Government recognizing the absolute need of the situation and the fact that to-day the cost of a house which before the war cost approximately $1200 there is now about $4000. They have realized as you will see that it is not possible to get this housing problem solved without giving very substantial subsidies which range from $600-$800—according to the class of house which is going to be built. Now I think the Government in addition to supporting this scheme ought to have done something of a larger character because I am satisfied it will not be possible to accomplish by this scheme what is hoped. The argument has been made that this scheme so far as being beneficial will injure. I do not give this as my view, but that of the Mayor and the Municipal Council which was embodied in the petition presented to the Lower House a few days ago. The argument is made that because the hon. gentlemen has come into the field offering houses for rent, it will be useless for the Council to build houses for sale, because no one will want to buy one when they can rent one of these, and no outside builder will build houses for the same reason. Now that is the position and therefore it is easily conceivable that the hon. gentleman will get a certain amount of philanthropic money to build houses and when that is exhausted then the Municipal Council efforts will have been nullified in the meantime and we may actually find ourselves worse off than we are to-day. Now that is the objection to the Bill as I see it to-day. In order further to show the difficulty on this side of the Atlantic I would like to read something of the Board of Trade report of the City of Toronto where on page 15, this subject is dealt with. They have an unpaid Commission of seven members dealing with the problem. It says: (Read extract).

This Committee went out on the quiet and bought a lot of land at a low figure and through that fact and the fact that they were giving their services for nothing it has been found possible to give the people houses at a low figure and deal satisfactory with it. The Canadian Government has given $25,000,000 divided amongst the provinces, and the provincial governments have also given monies, the idea being that people be aided by monetary assistance. The municipalities are dealing as best they can and nowhere has much more progress been made than our own Municipal Council is doing, except in Halifax where conditions were extraordinary, due to the explosion which wiped out the workingmen's section of Halifax altogether, and the Dominion Government recognizing it as a war obligation voted a very large sum to the rebuilding of it, and appointed a Committee to carry out the work, with Thomas Adams, the greatest expert of modern times, and here in the N.Y. Times they have a plan showing it. But these aspects do not concern us, but this I know, if the Government could see its way clear to giving assistance to building contractors, the same facilities as given to the hon. gentleman's company, we would get further along. I asked a builder a few days ago about this matter and he estimated the advantages the hon. gentleman was getting as equivalent to about $400 on a house, and he said no man would build houses now because people would want to get one of these houses. And the idea that they are ever going to build 600 houses I think we ought to demiss from our minds as a phantasy of the extremest kind. But assuming that these houses are built, how does the hon. gentleman expect to deal with them? If for rent, we will not get much further because the least desirable class in the community I think all will agree is the renter. If the houses are to be sold people would have a continued interest in them, and would see they are looked after. I think it is the experience of all that the people renting houses and jumping from one place to another are the most destructive class to have for houses. I asked yesterday if he was going to sell houses and he said yes, and I asked how and he said as the tenant wishes. Well that is a very visionary and unsatisfactory way to deal with a problem of this kind. He criticised the Municipal Council strongly because of the draft lease which the Council has embodied in its charter.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—I have all the statistics. We are dealing with a housing problem in a small country and are making a very small effort to try to put the position, as it ought to be. There are 975 houses in St. John's not fit for human habitation and it is a very humble effort we are making to try to relieve that. I have not the slightest doubt we will get the capital.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—The hon. gentleman says he has all the statistics, and I think that is all the trouble. He has too many statistics. I would remind the hon. gentleman that a year ago he had entirely a different plan.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Just the same plan exactly.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—He had a scheme of getting people to take shares of 20c. a month.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—If you have a better scheme let us have it.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—That is not the question. He wrote the papers about a scheme whereby people were to contribute 20 cents a month. Now what has become of that scheme? Is not the reason why because the hon. gentleman got such a poor reception he abandoned it. He advocated a scheme to build houses and it came to nothing.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—The reason it came to nothing is because the Government turned it down.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Well I know nothing about that. But the hon. gentleman had this scheme and I do not know what became of it. I am not here as an apologist for the late Government or a critic of the present oGvernment, but to criticise this scheme on its merits. I know the hon. gentleman may say it is all very well to criticise and I recognize that is a fair retort, but after all that is what we are here for and I should be very sorry to outstep the limits of reasonable criticism. But the hon. gentleman has taken the position that this is the only scheme and I do not think that a correct position to take.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—What I said was this: (Read extract).

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—That is very well as far as it goes. Now let us analyse it. The hon. gentleman says he is prepared to build houses for working-men, the Municipal Council is building houses also. The hon. gentleman's house, as I understand, is to cost $1500, the Municipal Council's house is to cost $2000. I do not know that there is any serious difference in the character of the houses, they may be a bit cheaper. The hon. gentleman says that working-men will never be able to buy the houses because the Council's terms are too excessive. This is a matter for analysis. The Municipal Council puts its cards upon the table. They intend to build houses not to rent but to sell. The terms of sale are so and so. The man wishing to buy will pay 25% of purchase money on cash mortgage, to cover payment over certain years. This is a business proposition. When I ask the hon. gentleman on what terms he proposes to sell, he answers, "On any terms, within twenty years." Does he think people are going to take this seriously. I do not think it a feasible proposition. How is he going to sell the houses on any terms? The hon. gentleman must have a cut and dried plan by which he intends to seil. If he is only going to rent and

HON. MR. GIBBS:—According to the agreement of the hon. gentleman who has just finished speaking no money will be invested in this scheme for building workingmen's houses except it be that of philanthrophists. The hon. gentleman is entirely wrong. There are a great many working people in this city prepared to invest on the weekly, monthly and quarterly installment plan in this association in order that a home may be provided for them, others are prepared to subscribe to its capital stock, as soon as the Association actually commences operations. The hon. gentleman found fault with the provisions of the bill because a higher rate of interest will not be paid to the shareholder. He evidently forgets that there are millions of dollars on deposit in the Canadian Banks doing business in this country upon which but three percent interest is paid. The security which the Canadian Banks offer is no better than that of this Co-operative Association. When the interest of the public is aroused the stability of this organization will be reassured. The public will be induced to subscribe to the capital stock as they will get two per cent more upon the moneys invested than the banks would pay. It is all a matter of properly conducted propaganda. The aims and objects of the Association will be explained to the public. When this will be done, ample funds will be found to carry on its objects. The hon. gentleman says no man will buy a house when he can rent one. The recklessness of his statement is only too apparent. The desire to own a home is inherent. It is one of those things implanted in us by nature which induces good order and adds to the stability of society so necessary in those turbulent times. Any man who can possibly procure a home for himself is going to do so. This Association is going to afford him the ways and means to own a home. The manner in which this will be done is purely a matter of detail. The hon. gentleman who introduced this bill cannot now state what the directors of the Company may do in the future, or how they propose to enable a man to purchase the house he is living in. It is not a very difficult matter to work out the details of a scheme by which a workingman paying certain weekly, monthly or quarterly amounts extending over a period of ten, twelve or fifteen years may become his own landlord. The Association has in view such a scheme, it is not intended that the profits of the Association will be as great as i fa Loan & Investment Company were engaged in similar business and operated for the benefit of shareholders.

Another objection of the hon. gentleman was that the provisions of this bill will restrict building operations by private enterprise. My answer to this objection is, should human beings be forced to live in hovels and await the pleasure of private enterprise to remedy the evil. Are we going by our action to compel people to live in unsanitary houses for years until private enterprise solves the problem. Nobody can seriously contend but that private enterprise has failed and that because of its failure the state is asked to apply the remedy which is the aim of this bill. The manner in which Great Britain is attempting to solve this problem it is argued by him should be applied here. Conditions there and here are different. The housing problem in England is universal. It exists not alone in the cities and towns but in the rural sections as well. The housing problem in this country applies solely to this city. The people living outside this city are their own landlords. We have no land-owning class in the outports of this country but in England it is the contrary. If we go back a few centuries in English history we find a desire upon the part of the landowner to be freed from the obligations of feudalism. There was a desire also on the part of the King to be independent of Parliament, in his income. The result was that the landlords in return for being freed from the obligations of feudalism were to contribute to the King annually a tax equal to one-fifth on the then rental value of their land. To this was added an excise tax with this object of relieving the land of the barons from taxation, and place the burden of government on the backs of the poor. A century later advantage was taken of the French wars and an Act was passed by which the landlords annual contribution was fixed at two millions of pounds, subsequent enactments reduced it to one million two hundred thousand pounds at which sum it remains to-day. The land has never since been revalued. It is estimated that it has increased in value nearly two thousand per cent since that time; but those who own the land has never permitted it to be re-assessed. Were the land held by those landlords revalued as is the land in Canada and United States this land-owning class would pay forty million pounds a year instead of one million two hundred thousand pounds. The local rates in England are assessed against the tenant. They are paid by the occupier. The tenant pays the landlord his rent and then pays the city all of the taxes. The landlord reaps his harvest by the growth of population and industry which enables him ultimately to exact an monopoly price. England buys her dairy produce from Denmark and Holland not because her land is unfertile but because the landlord is under no incentive to make use of it himself or permit another to do so. The result of this system is overcrowding in the city. There the slum is encouraged while he who labors is punished for his energy. The result of all this is that living conditions are horrible and the condition of the masses to say the least deplorable. Statistics which I shall quote will demonstrate these facts.

In Liverpool according to a paper read before the Royal Sanitary Institute in April 1905 by Mr. Fletcher T. Turton, the Liverpool Deputy Surveyor, there are still 8,600 back to back houses standing, the death rate in their area being 60 per 1000.

In Leeds there are many of these back to back houses without ventilation or yard or private sanitary arrangements, let at rentals varying from 35 and 6d. to 7s. 6d. per week. As many as three and four houses join at one closet. The closets are frequently in yards, forty yards from the house. In wet weather rather than carry waste water from the bedrooms the length of the street; women may be often seen pouring it down the streets gully. On Sundays when the inhabitants are all at home, the difficulty as to sanitary accommodation is intensely aggravated.

In Sheffield in the Potteries, and many other places those abominable back to back houses are to be found. Few workers houses in the potteries have more than two bedrooms. The back to back houses in Sheffeld number 15,000 and sometimes as many as eight or ten persons are to be found in three little rooms. If we take only seven persons to the house there are 105,000 Sheffield people living in these dens.

In Marylebone, Southwark, St. Pancras, Holborn, Bethnal Green, Shoreditch, Stepney, and Finsbury upwards of thirty per cent of the inhabitants live in tenements of one or two rooms. In Finsbury the proportion reaches 45 per cent. In Shoreditch and St. Pancras 37 per cent. In London there are many squalid areas which contain greater aggregations of the poorest of the poor than can be found in any other part of the country.

According to the investigations of men like Mr. Roundtree and Mr. Charles Booth thirty per cent. of the population are under-fed, on the verge of hunger. Thirty per cent. of forty-five million equals thirteen millions.

Number paupers relieved one in eighteen of the population.

Over sixty-five relieved one in every three.

Distribution of national income, that is prior to the war. The income was approximately about £1,710,000,000.

1,250,000 persons owned £585,000,-000 of the income.

3,750,000 people owned £245,000,-000, and 38,000,000 the balance 880,-000,000.

2,500 persons own one-half the whole area of England, while 38,200 persons own three-fourths of the area of England and Wales. Therefore, three-fourths of the rent go to the landowning class.

400 peers and peeresses 5,729,970 acres.

1288 great land owners 8,479,699 acres.

2529 squires 4, 319,271 acres.

The West Minister Review:—"No thinking man much less one who has the slightest idea of the source of wealth and prosperity of a people need be told what must necessarily be the result of such a system especially upon a people like the English, whose laboring people have reached a point of degradation unequalled in any civilized nation on earth."

The following are extracts from a report of a Royal Commission investigating housing conditions in England:

"High death rates; a pitiful increase

"in infant motality; terrible suffering "among little children; scrofula and "congenital diseases; ophthalmia, due "to dark, ill-ventilated, overcrowded "rooms; sheer exhaustion and inabil- "ity to work; encouragement of in- "fectious diseases; reducing physical "stamina and thus producing consump- "tion and diseases arising from general "debility, were some of the evils of "overcrowding."

"Here typhoid, tuberculosis and "other infectious disease thrive. From "these centres contagion spreads. Here "sweatshop work is done and here "abounds 'the courage of consumption "which doctors and boards of health "wrestle with in vain; while dying men "and women sew on coats with their "their last gasp and sew the death "warrant of the buyer in the lining.'"

In the miserable surroundings of the tenement appetites are diseased and the most degrading forms of poverty appear. For the tenement is the cause as well as the result of poverty. Foul and unsanitary conditions devitalize life and drag down the worker and in time destroy his ability to meet the competitive condition of industrial life.

From reliable statistics it appears that no fewer than 2,500,000 of London's population require better housing conditions. In Scotland twenty-two per cent of the families live in single room homes if such they may be termed, while in Glasgow the proportion runs up to thirty-three per cent.

Statistics could not exaggerate the description of Mr. Frederic Harrison, who confessed his own despondency over modern city life in England as follows:

"To me at least it would be enough to condemn modern society as hardly an advance on slavery or serfdom, if the present condition of industry were to be that which we behold; ninety per cent of the actual producers of wealth have no home which they can call their own beyond the end of the week; have no bit of soil, or so much as a room that belongs to them; have nothing of value of any kind except as much furniture as will go in a cart; have the precarious chance of weekly wages which barely suffice to keep them in health; are housed for the most part in places that no man thinks fit for his horse; are separated by so narrow a margin from destitution that a month of bad trade, sickness or unexpected loss brings them face to face with hunger and pauperism. . . . This is the normal state of the average workman in town or country."

What produced these conditions in England? Land monopoly, concentration of wealth in the hands of a few, apathy and indifference on the part of the ruling classes, and a denial of the rights of human beings.

It may be said that conditions among the people here can never reach that deplorable level which exists in England. While that is true, nevertheless we should keep before our minds that we have a housing problem in our midst and profit by the outcome of indifference of public men elsewhere.

To me, Mr. Chairman, this bill is the most important which has come before this Chamber for a great number of years. Other bills have been introduced here which have dealt with trade and industry but this is of greater importance. One of the ends attained by the passage of this bill will be better citizenship, and if we create such conditions trade and industry must flourish.

The family is the corner stone of society, the foundation upon which it rests, that foundation cannot be secure if certain natural rights be denied it. One of these rights is that it be given an opportunity to live in reasonable frugal comfort. Can we in all sincerity say that this opportunity is afforded the people as a whole in this city? Such is not the case.

Millions in the world are denied this opportunity and are compelled to live under conditions which do not tend to the good order and stability of society. Thousands of people here are living in homes which are the breeders of discontent and disease. In such homes family duties cannot be performed nor can the training of children be properly carried on. The most important period of a child's life is when it needs the care and attention of its mother. This attention cannot be given if the home be unsanitary and unfit for habitation, or if industrial conditions are such that the mother has to leave home to supplement the earninsg by work. It is often at the expense and suffering of the boy or the girl that industry is developed and we little regard what the cost is.

To have one sweet home that is safe and true, ten garrets must reek in the darkened streets.

"It is not our fault" says the rich ones,
"No, 'tis the fault of a system old and strong,
But men are makers of systems;
So the cure will come if we own the wrong."

There are certain instances in which the State does grievous wrong. Take for example the mother who is rearing children. Look at the care and attention she bestows on them. She tries to raise them healthy and strong, and she succeeds in doing so. She sends them out into the industrial life of the city to earn their living and to work at whatever their occupation may be, and very often she has to see these children dying of town disease, because of the unsanitary conditions under which the State forces them to live, dying because of the foul atmosphere which they are compelled to breathe. What right has the State to expose the offspring of that woman to disease and to premature death? Nevertheless, it goes on day after day, week after week, and month after month, and will go on until a scheme of this kind which has been proposed by my hon. friend, the gentleman in charge of this bill is brought into effect and an effort made to remedy the evil. There must be an effort made. If the hon. gentleman does not succeed in all his hopes he will have the satisfaction of knowing that he made an honest and sincere effort in trying to leave this city better than he found it. If we look at the question of housing from a purely materialistic standpoint, it is absolutely necessary that people should have proper houses. What is the greatest asset of a country? Is it its trade? Is its mineral resources? Is it its shipping and export trade? No, it is none of these. What is then? The greatest asset of a country is the boy and the girl, because without them neither the mine would be worked nor the trade or industries of the country carried on and the ships would rot at their anchors. And applying that reasoning, it is absolutely necessary that this asset should be protected, preserved and given a chance to develop along proper lines. Supposing you are the owner of something you prize very much. What do you do? Do you expose it to danger of being lost? If it is something very valuable, what do you do with it? You place it in an iron safe. Well, then there is the boy and the girl, far more valuable, and still they are exposed to risk and danger of dying of what is now known as town disease. We all know that it is only the healthy and vigorous who can keep pace with the constant strain which present day industrial conditions demand. If by our apathy, we produce a weak race, trade and industry must decline. This question of housing has become one of decent human existence the world over. As I have said, in England it has become an Imperial problem, because it was found that not alone does it affect the question of the ability of the English workman to produce as compared with workmen in other parts of the world, but the Army and Navy found they could not get men to measure up to the standard required according to the regulations. We cannot argue from the standpoint that because England is doing something so vital to the welfare and safety of the nation that we should act in a similar manner here. If we could do it, I would be only too glad to see it being done, but I submit it would hardly be fair to ask two-thirds of the public living outside the city to contribute a proportionate amount, but I say it is only just that the State should be asked to contribute along reasonable lines, and when that is done, I think it is doing all that is reasonably required. Personally, I do not like too much State interference. I think the less of State interference the better, but when that interference becomes necessary, such as in a matter of this kind, then the aid of the State should be invoked. This Association has asked the Government for certain concessions. These concessions have been granted. We got no less than we asked, and for that, those connected with the scheme are grateful, grateful because they feel that much good will be accomplished in the future. A number of the workingmen of this city have invested in the capital sotck of the company in the hope and in the full assurance that their hopes are going to be realized, that they will in the future be the owners of their own homes. As to details, nobody can say exactly upon what lines they are going to be worked out, because that is a matter of discussion for the directorate. The directorate there will be clever business men who are used to dealing with finance and matters of that kind, and who will work out upon reasonable and practical lines the question of how a man may purchase his own home.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I do not wish to prolong the debate. I merely ask the indulgence of this House for a few brief observations. The honourable gentleman said in the first place, with regard to the question of security, that the fact that there were millions of dollars in the banks at three per cent, and this company will give fire per cent, is a sufficient answer to the statement that money will not be invested. Well I meet that argument in this way: The security of the concern, he thinks, is a good as the security behind the Canadian banks. Well, possibly he thinks so; I doubt whether he will get many people of the country to agree with him. In the second place, I would like to point out that for whatever the Canadian bank security is valuable, it is valuable both for the principal and interest, but in this case the Government only guarantees five per cent interest for twenty years and there is no question as to when the man is going to get his money back. Then I am told there are millions of dollars at three per cent while securities of five and a half and six and a half are going begging, but the answer to that is that the people who put their money at three per cent do it for two or three reasons. Some of them have a certain amount and want it available for business and other purposes when they require it. Some are hypersentitive on the question of security and would rather have their money in the Government Savings Bank or in the other banks than invest it in anything else. I think that is not an extreme position. We found that obstacle in connection with the First Victory Loan at six and a half per cent; millions of dollars still lay in the Government Savings Bank and the Canadian banks, the security behind the debentures that were paying twice the interest being the same as the security behind the Government Savings Bank. Consequently, I submit, the class of people who put their money in the banks is not the class who will take it out to buy stock in this proposition. Now the next point my honourable friend made was that he asked, should building be stopped under this scheme because private enterprise will not come into the field. Well I say, No. I do not say any project should be stopped; but I say this project ought to be assisted on the same footing as other companies may be.

The honourable gentleman then gave us a very interesting dissertation on the Peers and Charles the First and the arrangement between them by which the landed classes were to get certain concessions which incidentally cost that monarch his head. The honourable gentleman then brought us down to comparatively recent times with a description of the conditions which existed in England up to recently, but he stopped—I do not say he did it purposedly—he stopped short of the latest development. Ten years ago Lloyd George, as every reader of world politics is aware, launched a scheme for the revaluation of the land of England. He conducted a most vehement campaign against the landed classes and there was to be a complete valuation of land. Well, I wonder if any honourable gentleman knows what has happened. The scheme was abandoned within the last month, on the ground that there would not be enough money received because of the revaluation to pay the expenses.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—Because the landed classes and the manufacturers can do what they like in England.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—That may be the explanation, and I am not saying this as criticism, but merely to say that there is another side to the question. But that is the fact, that Lloyd George, after taking up this scheme, had to abandon it.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—Like many other schemes.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I do not know of anybody who has abandoned more. The honourable gentleman then spoke of the dreadful conditions in England. I might say I had the papers and the Hanzard here last year in connection with the question of renting houses, and I intended to read some extracts from the Royal Commission, but they were too horrible to put on the records of this House, and I will simply let it pass by saying that conditions in certain parts of the British Isles are too terrible to contemplate. But where does that get us? The honourable gentleman then went on to say in one breath that because conditions in this country were not as bad as in England we ought not to go as far.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—The argument advanced was that because the Government in England was giving so much, then something along these lines might be done here.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I thought that some consideration ought to be given to building societies and building contractors so that building by other agencies might proceed at the same time. But then the honourable gentleman having taken the position that because conditions were not as bad here, we should not do as they are doing, went on to say that thousands were living under filthy and unsanitary conditions. Well if that is so, that is an argument for doing the utmost possible. Are we doing the utmost possible?

HON. MR. GIBBS:—Yes.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Perhaps we are. Then, assuming that we are asking the whole country to assist the town of St. John's, are we doing too much, because, remember, that is what we are doing. The housing problem in Canada to-day is the housing problem in Newfoundland—not housing for rural districts, but for cities, and the Canadian Government is asking the whole country to help.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—It is a problem for the whole of Canada.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Pardon me, but I say the principle is sound that if the Province of Canada, if the Federal Government of Ottawa, is contributing money to build houses for cities, not for the rural districts, and if Provincial Governments are contributing money to build houses for the cities, surely it is not too much to ask that this country should contribute something to building houses for the city. I do not think progress could be made as rapidly as the honourable gentleman suggests. I understood that he said these houses would be ready for Christmas. Well, I do not think they will be. I think they will be lucky if they get them ready for next Chirstmas, and in saying that I am not throwing any doubt upon his good faith, but the Municipal Council took nearly that time to build twelve houses, and he has to build thirty. But while we are discussing this thing in the aspects which it presents to us, I think we ought not to forget that while we all agree with what the honourable gentleman has said in his very illuminating closing of his remarks about the moral, social and material aspects of it, there is this fact, that if there are nine hundred and seventy-five houses in St. John's that are unfit for habitation at present, and if there is the unrest existing that is suggested, with the natural increase in population and the influx upon us of people from other parts of the Island, there will very speedily arise a condition when people who have not houses and who cannot see any houses in sight except what houses may result from this project, may take measures that are more vigorous to see houses are provided, and I think it is a matter that those gentlemen who are responsible for the measure ought to give careful consideration. I do not think I am saying too much when I say that one can see evidences that many in this community are now taking the view that if they cannot get through peaceful means what they think they are entitled to they may take other means to secure it. In my judgment, I hope this is all I will have to say on the matter, the time is approaching when this problem will have to be grappled with in a more comprehensive manner or else we may see troublous times as a result of our failure to do so.

HON. THE PRESIDENT:—I intended to say something on this matter, but owing to the lateness of the evening I will confine myself to two or three words. I wish it to be understood that this was not ever intended, so far as I am aware, to have any political element. I was entirely to be free from politics; otherwise I would not have undertaken the share that I did take in it. The land was secured for the purposes of helping the people who needed houses. It was secured at a very nominal rent owing to the nature of the houses that were going to be built. This company does not contend with the Municipal Council. We wish them the best of good luck. We had nothing to say to them. If any friction came in, it was unjust to many people who were concerned. We wish them all good luck, and if they put up nine or ten or twelve houses, we will only say that we wish they had put up fifty or a hundred, so as to enable the city to have better housing. But I would say that if we put up only thirty houses, and if we do not make them a financial success, I think the parties who have offered the money will be glad if we put in these houses thirty families for the winter, even if they do not get any interest at all, but if we are in the way of any corporation or private persons, I as one of the parties would have nothing to do with it. We hope that there are plenty of builders in this city that if they had no business now have plenty of room to go on with other building. To have this turned down because many will not take out money from the Savings Bank at three per cent and put it into an undertaking like this where there is a Government undertaking of five per cent, is not a matter for congratulation to the holders of moneys in the Savings Bank, while they can help their neighbours and make five per cent on their money at the same time. I wish to congratulate the energy of the gentleman who has charge of this Bill because he had some adverse times in connection with it, but I hope that his activity will meet with success. I purposed to make some other remarks, but as the hour is so late I will not now.

The Committee on the Dominion Building Bill rose and reported the same without amendment.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Anderson the said Bill was then read a third time and passed and it was ordered that a message be sent the House of Assembly that this House had passed the said Bill without amendment.

On motion of Hon. Dr. Campbell the Paper and Pulp Products Co. Bill was read a third time and passed and a message was sent the House of Assembly that this House had passed the same.

Hon. Mr. Gibbs moved that the report of the Select Committee on the Seal Fishery Bill be referred to Committee of the Whole House on to-morrow.

House then adjourned until to-morrow at four o'clock.

FRIDAY, July 9th, 1920.

House met at 4 p.m. pursuant to adjournment.

On motion the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on the Bill entitled "An Act to Amend the Newfoundland Patriotic Fund Act, 1915."

Hon. Mr. McNamara in the Chair.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Mr. Chairman, on the second reading of this Bill I would briefly explain the purpose of the amendments to the Act now on the Statute Book. The War having come to an end, the verbiage, at least, of some of the classes would have to be altered ,and also some of the powers which applied to affairs then existing require to be re-established, and this Bill is simply an amendment in that direction. Section 3 is repealed and the following substituted therefor:

The objects of the corporation shall be to collect, administer and distribute the fund hereinbefore mentioned for the assistance, in case of need, of the wives, children and dependents of officers and men, residents of Newfoundland, who, during the late War of 1914-1918 were on active service with the naval and military forces of the British Empire and Great Britain's Allies.

By comparing that with the clause in the original Act we see we are dealing with a new condition of affairs. We want the amendment so as to enable us to deal with dependents when the War ended, not with dependents when the War was in progress.

HON. MR. MEWS:—Might I ask whether this covers anyone outside the Newfoundland Regiment and the Newfoundland Royal Naval Reserve. The section reads "Residents of Newfoundland."

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—The section includes residents of Newfoundland who served in connection with the Newfoundland military and naval service.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—If you read the Bill very carefully you will see it provides for those dependents of Newfoundland not alone who served in the Newfoundland Army and Navy forces, but who served with the Naval and Military forces of the British Empire and the Allies. It is comprehensive enough to take in all these. During the operation of the Patriotic Fund for the past six years those dependents of Newfoundlanders who served with Canadians were cared for by the Canadian Patriotic Fund and the Canadian Patriotic Fund appointed the Newfoundland Patriotic Association as its agents, and we disbursed money from month to month and got a refund from Ottawa. As to those who served with any Allies, it would be possible under this Act to assist them, but of course we have no such cases. In Canada they have assisted them.

The Committee on the Newfoundland Patriotic Fund Act 1915 rose and reported the same without amendment.

Said Bill was read a third time and passed and ordered to be sent to the House of Assembly with a message that this House had passed the same without amendment.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Gibbs the House went into Committee of the Whole on the Seal Fishery Amendment Bill.

Hon. Mr. Winter in the chair.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—When this Bill was last before the House a Select Committee was appointed for the purpose of considering certain amendments whereby the Bill could be made more workable, practicable and beneficial than it was. That Committee has had the Bill under consideration and have recommended certain amendments which the Committee feel will commend themselves to hon. gentlemen.

The Committee rose and reported the Bill with some amendment.

The Bill was then read a third time and passed and ordered to be sent to the House of Assembly with a message that this House had passed the same with some amendment.

HON. MR. SHEA moved the second reading of the Treaties Bill and said:—This is a copy of the Canadian Act and it is for the purpose of giving the Governor-in-Council power to take the necessary steps for carrying out the treaties of peace entered into between His Majesty's Government and Foreign Powers.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Might I call the attention of the hon. gentleman to the fact the Canadian Parliament dealing with this matter the other day obtained power to ratify and carry out the other treaties, with Bulgaria, &c. Why not make one job of it? At the prorogation at Ottawa a week ago to-day the following reference was made to this very subject: (Read extract).

The Bill was read a second time and ordered to be committed on to-morrow.

HON. THE PRESIDENT read messages from the Assembly that they had passed the amendments to the Codfish Exportation Bill, without amendment; also Bill to amend the Education Act; An Act relating to amendment to the Law re Keeping of Dogs; An Act to provide for the Collection and Distribution of the Estates of certain Esquimaux deceased and an Act relating to Trustee Investment; in which they requested the Council's concurrence.

Said Trustee Investment Bill was then read a first and second time, and House went into Committe of the Whole thereon; Hon. Mr. Steer in the chair.

The Committe rose and reported it had passed the Bill with an amendment.

An Act to amend Chapter 143 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled "Of the Keeping of Dogs" was read for the first and also a second time and was then referred to Committe of the Whole House.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—It is very appropriate that this Bill should come up in the "Dog Days" of the session. Hitherto the law as it stood made it lawful for persons other than police constables to destroy dogs when not in call or control of their owners. The amended section 32 excepts shepherd dogs and collies, "and all such dogs not so excepted may be killed by any person whomsoever; and it shall be lawful for any person to destroy any dog kept in contravention of the provisions of the said section." The next section makes it lawful for any person to keep properly trained shepherd dogs or collies.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—What constitutes properly trained shepherd dogs or collies? I know of only two trained collies in Newfoundland. This will lead to a lot of shooting.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—The keeping of these collie dogs when untrained and in many cases of mongrel breed would be to take advantage of the Bill.

HON. MR. SHEA:—Does this apply to the dogs in the outports?

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I would suggest that the Department of Agriculture and Mines issue certificates with respect to properly trained dogs. This would protect the dogs and at the same time make it possible for untrained or uncertificated dogs to be shot.

HON. MR. SHEA:—A man may have a valuable dog untrained. If a policeman were to come along and shoot this dog, what redress would the man have?

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—I remember on a previous occasion this dog question provided considerable discussion. At that time it was suggested to refer them to the Council of Higher Education to see if they could pass certain examinations. This is a new Bill dealing with collie dogs. What about the "Spot on the Crackie?" The trouble is he is not at large. He is referred to a Select Committee. I hope the greatest care will be exercised to distinguish the pure breed shepherd dog from the mongrel. The policeman should be instructed to distinguish the difference. These shepherd dogs when trained should look after a hundred sheep, and are really of service to a man who is a farmer of sheep.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—There are dogs in St. Mary's Bay which are very useful to the fishermen. Does this Bill give anyone the right to shoot these dogs? These dogs are valuable to their owners and I have never known them to be alleged destructive.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—If not on stated area.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—We are going to have a tall war if this Bill goes through as it is. These dogs are harmless and to shoot them would be a serious matter. Under this Bill all these dogs can be shot. It would be more satisfactory as Sir P. T. McGrath suggests that the Department of Agriculture register these shepherd dogs and collies. The policemen would not be able to distinguish.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—I agree with the Bill as to the trained shepherd dogs and trained collie dogs. There is no greater nuisance, however, than collies untrained. Any dog untrained ought not to be permitted in the country. They are a menace to children, and vicious. I certainly object that persons should be allowed to shoot dogs indiscriminately, on his own property may be all right but to go into his neighbour's grounds and shoot his neighbour's dog is monstrous. All untrained dogs should be shot but especially the collie, for it is the most vicious dog there is.

HON. MR. BELL:—I do not think a thorough-bred collie dog is dangerous. I have two and would not like to lose them. They are as intelligent as human beings, and I have yet to know any case where they have been vicious or attempted to bite in any way.

The Committee rose and reported it had passed Bill with an amendment. It was then ordered to be read a third time.

The Bill was then read a third time and it was moved that a message be sent to the House of Assembly to the effect that this House had passed the same with an amendment.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea "An Act to provide for the Collection and Distribution of the Estates of Certain Esquimaux, Deceased," was read a first time.

HON. MR. SHEA:—In moving the second reading of this Bill I may say, it will be remembered that last year an epidemic spread over the Labrador coast and in the Moravian settlement. The inhabitants of Okak, Hebron and Saglek died of the infection, leaving estates. There is no one to deal with them. This Bill is to give power to administer. The Moravian Missionaries will probably take the matter up. They are anxious to deal with these in a legal manner. To do this, this Bill is brought before this House.

The Bill was then referred to a Committee of the Whole House.

Hon. Mr. Templeman took the chair.

On motion the Bill "An Act to Provide for the Distribution of the Estates of Certain Esquimaux, Deceased," was read a first time, read a second time; the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on the Bill; Committee rose and reported the Bill having passed without amendment; it was thereupon on motion read a third time and ordered to be sent to the House of Assembly with a message that the Council had passed the same without amendment.

On motion of the Hon. Mr. Shea the Bill "An Act to Amend The Education Act" was read a first time.

HON. MR. McGRATH:—Might I ask the honourable gentleman in charge of this Bill would it be possible to have the Bill, and also the Municipal Bill printed and distributed.

HON. MR. SHEA:—I have given instructions that that be done and that the Bill be distributed to the offices of the members.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Before the adjournment of the House may I ask in what position we are as to night letters. To the Dominion of Canada and the United States we have been sending night letters, but not to Great Britain. Now that the War is over and things are becoming normal, there is a great possibility of doing trade with the Old Country, and I would suggest to the Leader of the Government that an effort might be made to get back to the old idea of Night Letters instead of paying large sums of money for telegrams, and I think an arrangement might be made between the Government and the companies to re-establish the old system, if it can be done.

HON. MR. SHEA:—If the honourable gentleman would give notice of that formally I would be glad to take it up with the Postal Department and the Government.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—In supporting the motion on adjournment I would like to repeat my regret and say that I think, now that the dispute between the Commercial Cable Company and the Government has been settled, we ought to consider resuming relations with the company. I think that while the Anglo is a very good company, it is a mistake to depend on one string. That is one aspect of the matter. The other aspect is this, that the Government has some two hundred and fifty Postal Telegraph offices in outports all over the country, cut off from communicating with the outside world except through the Anglo, and every message from any place, originally put into any of these offices has to be handed over by the Postal Telegraphs to the Anglo to be forwarded outward or inward, and the Postal Telegraph Department, so far as I know, gets nothing whatever for doing that. It simply acts as a collector and distributor of messages for the Anglo-American Telegraph Company without getting any remuneration therefor. This Colony put down a cable between Port aux Basques and Canso at a cost of $150,000.00. That cable has been lying unused for two years. That may have been a very sensible step to take, but now that the issue has been set tled and the Privy Council has pronounced that we were right, I should think it ought to be possible to take steps very promptly to reopen communication with the Commercial Cable Company and let us have two strings to our bow.

With reference to the matter of night letters, I am not so sure that we can get that concession, because I understand it has been cut out between the New World and the Old World within the past few months, as a result of post-war conditions, and I do not suppose that the Anglo Company, particularly while it has a monopoly in Newfoundland, is going to give us that concession when the Western Union, of which the Anglo is a branch, will not give the same concessions to people in Canada and the United States doing business with European countries. During the War while we were dealing with Militia matters, we got cablegrams at five cents a word; messages in relation to soldiers, casualties, how soldiers were progressing in hospital, and when people sent money to them, the messages went at a five-cent rate. Then there were week-end messages, deferred messages, and all that sort of thing, but that has been cut out and we are back to the rate of twenty-five cents. We ought not to continue that position very much longer, particularly in view of another fact which I might cite, that in the United States the Commercial Cable Company and its auxiliary, the Postal, cut the cost twenty per cent less than the Western Union. You can send a message from New York or any other American city to-day for twenty per cent less by the Commercial Cable Company than by the Western Union, and therefore I think that on these grounds the Government ought to try to open up that connection again.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—I quite agree with the honourable gentleman who has just sat down that it would be very desirable that some steps should be taken to see if business relations cannot be again brought about between the Commercial Cable Company and the Colony on a basis satisfactory to both. As he states, we have a great number of Postal Telegraph offices in this country and the people using them are completely cut off from doing business with the outside world except through the Anglo, and, as he properly remarks, messages handed in have to be handed over to the Anglo without the Colony's receiving any benefit of any kind. As has been stated, we have a cable across the Gulf and a station at Port aux Basques and a station at Sydney, and there are operators maintained at one at least of these points. That amount of money is another aspect, and it is this, that the Postal Telegraph business is being operated at a very serious loss to the Colony because of the lack of cable service. I should say the loss of revenue to this Colony because of the cutting off of the cable connection is not less than $125,000 a year. It must be a very considerable amount.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—In connection with the loss in the Postal Telegraphs, that is because of the negligence of those who receive the messages. The Postal office being very close to mine, I have endeavoured to send all my messages there, and with very bad results indeed. In fact, two weeks ago I sent a message at about half past ten in the morning to Grand Falls to a customer there. The following day about a quarter to twelve they sent back to ask me the street address at Grand Falls. I did not know there were so many streets in Grand Falls. And it took them twenty-six hours before they asked for the street address. How can the Postal expect to make their system pay?

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN:—I endorse what the honourable gentleman has said on the subject. I had a similar experience. Once this year I sent a message from Bonavista to 49 Duckworth Street, where I have been living for years, and where we are always sending messages when we are at Bonavista, and they came back with the statement that there was no such place in St. John's as 49 Duckworth Street. As to night letters, they are not much use to us at Bonavista. The offices in the outports close at eight o'clock, and if a message is received after the office opens in the evening there is no time to reply to it that night. I think that the offices in the important outports, at any rate, ought to be open until nine o'clock. For instance, if a message is sent from St. John's about half past five it does not reach Bonavista until probably half past seven; the office is closed at eight, and we have to wait until the morning and the answer is received here about ten or half past ten. We may lose contracts at any time and lose the sale of fish because of this. I think, too, that the cost of the message is too much. If instead of charging twenty cents for a message the charge is ten cents, you will find that people will do all their business by telegraph and the Postal would be making thousands of money instead of losing it.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Not so very many years ago I was waiting for a particular invoice from Manchester. It arrived in due course. The envelope was addressed in the usual way,

John Anderson,
Merchant,
Water Street,
St. John's, Nfld.

Across the envelope was written "Not known here. Try St. John, New Brunswick." It arrived in St. John, New Brunswick, and was sent across to London, opened at the Dead Letter Office there, and sent on to Manchester. It was readdressed to me in another envelope and when it got here I made many inquiries, but could never get any light thrown on it.

HON. THE PRESIDENT:--That was before the Daylight Saving Bill.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Yes; if it happened now, we might be able to trace it. When one year I was coming home I sent a telegraph message saying when I would arrive. I got the telegraph message two days after I reached here. As to the matter of night letters, I do not think there is any necessity for a formal motion, but it is sufficient that the Government look into the matter.

HON. MR. SHEA:—It will give me very great pleasure to see what can be done. I shall give the Government's synopsis of this debate and if that does not move them, nothing can.

HON. MR. MEWS:—I may say that when I was in conversation with the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs recently he mentioned the fact that this Commercial Cable Company matter was one of the things on which he was working, as he recognised the wastefulness of letting the cable lie there when it could be of some use to the Colony.

HON. MR. SHEA:—I would confirm what the honourable gentleman has said. I heard the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs say the other day that he was negotiating some arrangements. I have no doubt that before long some action will be taken.

The House then adjourned.

MONDAY, July 12th, 1920.

The House met pursuant to adjournment.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on Bill entitled "An Act for giving effect to the Treaties of Peace between His Majesty and Certain other Powers."

Hon. Mr. Browning took the chair.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Is this Act based upon the Canadian Act o flast year which asked the Canadian Parliament to ratify the Peace Treaty with Germany and all of those enemy nations? By an amendment, power was given the Government to ratify any future treaties without the delay that would be inevitable if the treaties had to wait the subsequent assent of the Canadian Parliament. I would suggest the same course with regards to this Bill.

I wish to call attention to the fact that this is the first time that the Parliaments of the Dominions Overseas or Imperial Parliament has been called upon to ratify a treaty. In the British Parliament the Sovereign signs a treaty by virtue of his own authority and of the Government who advises him to do so. The Imperial Parliament hitherto has had no relationship with treaties at all, but under this new system and as a result of the stand taken by the people of the Overseas Dominions during the Great War this new thing has been adopted. We are a small colony to take part in the signing and ratifying of a treaty and I do not think for one moment that there would be any serious consequences if we refused to sign it. If Canada with its prestige, refused it would be a more serious matter.

Who ever expected four or five years ago, that Newfoundland would reach this position? It is due to the valuable services rendered by our lads both in military and naval affairs during the war, and I hope it will be a long time before treaties will have to be ratified by the same conditions. When they have to be ratified, however, I hope Newfoundland will be able to put her mark upon them.

The Committee rose and reported it had passed the Bill with an amendment.

The Bill was then read a third time and it was ordered that a message be sent to the House of Assembly saying that this House had passed the same with an amendment.

HON. MR. SHEA:—Mr. President, in moving the second reading of this very important Bill, entitled "An Act to Amend the Education Act," I should like to draw the attention of the House to some of the alterations and amendments proposed to the Education Bill. $n the Bill now before the House the most important one is the establishment of a Department of Education under the direct control of a Minister of the Crown. Considering the expenses paid from this department are eight or nine hundred thousand dollars, this is a further reason that it should be under the direct control of the Government. The principal point in the Bill is the provision for the establishment of a Normal School, one hundred thousand dollars being allocated for that purpose. An Advisory Board is to be appointed, the members of which are to be unpaid. The primary function of this Board is to keep questions clear of party politics. The work of the supervising inspectors is to keep the teachers as it were, on the hop, and to protect and help the trained teachers in the field. Twenty-five thousand dollars is the amount of money to be devoted to the assistance of teachers through the Normal School. One thousand dollars is provided for the purpose of enlarging the teachers salaries, and twenty-five thousand dollars are to be devoted to the equipment and renovating of schools, this is an increase of ten thousand dollars. Two thousand dollars is the sum to be used for the purpose of assisting broken-down teachers who may be in need of funds, and who were not included in the general scheme.

There are other alterations in the original Educational Bill, which do not call for any special comment from me at present.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Mr. President, I am not going to make extended remarks. It has been stated that it is proposed to close this session to-morrow afternoon. I have felt, and others also, that this is short notice to deal with this important Bill. In telephone communication with the Premier I expressed my views rather strongly, pointing out, that as far as I could see, the Education Bill was bristling with points which call for explanation, and possibly amendment. He asked for any suggestions I might have to make, and I said on my own account that the House would like to have an opportunity to get any explanations necessary from the Minister of Education himself. This is no reflection on the hon. member in charge of the Bill, the Minister will be able to go into the technicalities which others could not be expected to.

Provision is made for the appointment of the principal of the Normal School, it does not say who is to appoint the other remaining teachers. There is provision made for the taking of the annual census of children between the ages of 6 and 14. Why is this necessary? There is no provision for the cost of this. On page 2 the Minister is given power to suspend or cancel the certificate of any teacher under certain conditions, apparently the denominational power is abolished. This is not clear to me, I should like to have further explanation of the subject. The same may be said of Sub-Section (f). At present the examination of teachers is carried on by the different denominational organizations. I wish to be clearly understood, as to the denominational aspect. I am not making any reflection, I am merely saying we should have further explanation on the matter. Then the Minister has power to see that all educational appropriations are properly distributed amongst the various religious denominations. I should say that the different denominations would be more interested in seeing that they get their share of the money themselves, than the Minister in seeing that they get it. I should like also to have some light thrown on Sub-Section (h).

It is an extraordinary fact that the Superintendents are receiving more money than the Judge of the District Court here in St. John's. Sub-Section (i). Does that mean that new certificates will be issued to those who are already teachers? On page 3 sub-section (b) I notice no provision is made for the teaching of navigation. I know of nothing more necessary than the teaching of this subject. You say it will be taken up in the Normal School. This school is to teach teachers how to teach. Are we to imply that there is nobody able to teach navigation now? I think provision ought to be made for the teaching of this subject. What is badly needed is a large navigation school where most of our shipping congregates. The Normal School does not solve the problem, it won't be erected for about two years and it will be about two anh a half before it is functioning. Then if we are going to teach teachers navigation, they will be two or two anh a half years before they go out. The subject is on the curriculum of the C.H.E. Yes, I know of one—a woman—who passed successfully the examination set in this subject some years ago. She answered all the questions on the paper.

HON. MR. GRIEVE:—Did she go to sea without a mate?

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—She was the sister of the late James McGrath. On page 5. The Advisory Board shall elect its own Chairman. Why should not the Minister be Chairman of this Board? He is evidently not to be on the Board at all. I do not see what the Board is to do if any issue should arise or if as a result of controversy representing elements withdraw. At present if any contentious question arises the three Superintendents deal with it. (Most of this is Dutch to me). You cannot run an Advisory Board comprised of eleven or twelve without things leaking out.

On page 6. The Board of Examiners are to be sworn. In what terms? Why are they to be sworn? What do they want to swear in examiners for? This ought to be specified. Sub-section (d) further down the page provides that the Advisory Board are to approve of plans of school buildings. Are teachers residences contemplated? No doubt all this can be explained. I might go on page after page in this way. I would just point out on page 8, section 22, sub-section (d), makes provision that a candidate for Supervising Inspector shall possess certain qualifications, and further on it states that a man or woman who has abandoned school-teaching for two years may be taken. Now I think it only right that if a plum is to be given it ought to go to the one who has stuck by the job. There are other things which we shall have to take up in the Committee stage, if not before. The Minister of Education, as I suggested before, might give us the information upon these points. I should like the House to be assured that we shall be able to get those points explained.

HON. MR. SHEA:—I have asked the Minister to come up and furnish the information asked for. Only one closely connected with this matter would be able to give the explanation required.

The Bill was then read a second time.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I would suggest that we defer the Committee stage until we have had the opportunity of hearing the Minister on this matter.

On motion of the Hon. Mr. Shea the Bill "An Act Respecting Certain Retiring Allowances" was read a first time, read a second time, and the House resolved itself on a Committee of the Whole on the Bill.

Hon. Mr. Murphy in the chair.

Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendment. On motion the Bill was then read a third time, passed and it was ordered that it be sent to the House of Assembly with a message that the Council had passed the same without amendment.

On motion of the Hon. Mr. Shea the Bill "An Act Sixty-one Victoria (1898) Chapter Eight, entitled 'An Act Respecting Salaries," was read a first time, read a second time, and the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on the Bill.

Hon. Mr. Bell in the chair.

Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendment.

On motion the Bill was then read a third time, passed, and it was ordered that it be sent to the House of Assembly with a message that the Council had passed the same without amendment.

On motion of the Hon. Mr. Shea the Bill "An Act for the Raising by Loan of a Sum of Money for Railway and other Purposes" was read a first time. In moving the second reading Hon. Mr. Shea said:

Mr. President, I may say generally that this Bill is for the raising of $1,000,000 towards the improvement of the Newfoundland railway and $500,000 for the development of the coal areas of the country. Both subjects have been fully ventilated within the last few days and the House is fully conversant with the pros and cons of the general situation. It is not necessary for me to say anything further here, but when we get into Committee details will be furnished.

The Bill was then read a second time and ordered to be referred to a Committee of the Whole House at a later hour.

On motion of the Hon. Mr. Shea the Bill "An Act Further to Amend the Revenue Act, 1905," was read a first time, rea da second time, and the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on the Bill.

Hon. Mr. Templeman in the chair.

Committee on Bill entitled "An Act Further to Amend the Revenue Act, 1905," rose and reported the Bill without amendment. Said Bill was thereupon read a third time and passed, and it was ordered that a message be sent the Assembly that this House had passed the same without amendments.

House took recess at 5.35 p.m. until 6 o'clock.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea the Public Service Bill was read a first and also a second time. It was then referred to Committee of the Whole House.

Hon. Mr. Anderson took the chair.

The Committee rose and reported it had passed the Bill without an amendment.

The Bill was then read a third time and it was ordered that a message be sent to the House of Assembly to the effect that this House had passed the same without an amendment.

On motion the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on the Bill "An Act for the Raising by Loan of a Sum of Money for Railway and other Purposes."

Hon. Mr. Mews in the chair.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—In view of the Round Table Conference we had outside I do not propose to make any extended remarks on this Bill further than to say for the benefit of any gentleman who may not have been in the conference that I think we are entering upon a risky experiment. I can quite see the position of the Government, that the Government's hand was forced, that nothing else was possible and that this money has to be provided in any event; rolling stock was necessary and certain other supplies to keep the railroad as a going concern for another twelve months, but I feel bound to reiterate what I said as to the desirability of taking the utmost precaution from a legal standpoint to see that anything that is done in this connection will not prejudice the country. This commission of seven will include three nominated by the Reids, and it may be that the minority will acquiesce in conditions that they cannot control but will nevertheless see to it that they can avoid any liability on the part of the company for anything that may be done by this commission. We have had a sad experience as to what arbitration between the Reids and the country means. When the reads got the telegraph it was supposed that it was as much as the company could do to make both ends meet, and at last the country had to meet $1,500,000 to compensate the Reids for what they were supposed to have lost. Now we are to a greater or less extent taking from the Reid Company the control of the railroad. The directors may acquiesce; they have no other alternative. But at the same time they may protect themselves in some fashion I am not familiar with, but by some legal process, so that there may be material provided for some substantial arbitration thirty years from now, or more recently. The Canadian Government found itself during the period of the War while McKenzie and Mann were running the railway compelled to give large sums of money to them, and large sums to the Grand Trunk, and ultimately had to take these concerns over, with the result that the country lost $47,000,000. Now if we are to be faced with that, or even the remote prospect of it, even a remote contingency of proportionate loss, it becomes a very serious matter for the Government, and therefore I am glad to note from the Premier's statement that it is the intention of the Government to get a capable English company lawyer to deal with this matter, because I think everybody will agree that we cannot afford to pay many more millions now for experiments to railroads, particularly experiments in the nature of arbitration. I simply say this to place myself on record as recognising that the Government has to face a condition which renders some action imperative and that at an early date, but, on the other hand, unless the greatest care is exercised by the Government, the country may find itself in an awkward predicament.

HON. DR .CAMPBELL:—I may say, Mr. Chairman, that I wish to go on record on this question, that it is with no light heart that the Government to which I belong has taken hold of this proposition. For the last three months I have been a member of a sub-committee of Council investigating the Reid concern and the Reid operations, and it is only to save for this country a transportation system of some kind that we are asking for this loan. It is not for any love that the Government has for the Reids; it is no favor given the Reids, but it is our duty as a Government to keep this country with a transportation system. We may be caught in traps, and I think myself if the Reids, if the Reid Newfoundland Company, devoted more attention to legitimate railroad operations than in setting traps for the Government and people, they would have a better railroad and make much more money. They have been meddling in politics, and they have been as big a failure in politics as in railroading. During the general election I found around me Reid emissaries continually on the prowl night and day. The Reids were contractors of the Government and their duty was to be trying to run the railroad and boats which their contract called for instead of trying to make Governments and break Governments. I think the day of the Reid dynasty is done in this country, but it is only done when they are absolutely and totally defunct. I have no sympathy with them. I do not think the people have any sympathy with them. It is not for any sympathy or endeavor to help them out, but it is to assure to this country a transportation system that we are bringing in this Bill. We cannot in this twentieth century be without a railroad, without any bay services, and we are asking the people of this country for this money to assure this, and not to keep the Reids in this country.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Mr. Chairman, I might say that I am not here as an apologist for the Reids, and do not say whether this legislation is for them or against them. I simply say that the Government found themselves faced with some such situation as the honourable gentleman has said. The point I wish to make is that it is necessary to make clear that the greatest precaution must be exercised by the Government; else we may find ourselves in a worse condition than we are now. We may be faced with claims, arbitrations and enormous leglilation. The gentleman I think is sincere and patriotic and desirous of protecting the country's interest. Many years ago the Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Bond undertook to make railroad contracts and deal with the situation. There are some in the other House, and I am not sure, but there may be some in this House, who were associated with him at the time. His intentions were of the best, his motives of the purest, his standing in connection with the matter was unquestioned, but the result was very disastrous to the country. It may be said to me in retort, Well, what better can you do? I do not know. I do not know the circumstances. I do not know the condition of the Reid Company, but I do say that we have had a painful experience here of what it means to have arbitration or connections of that sort with the Reid Company.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—I admit, with my honourable friend, that we are playing with the Devil's Fire, but our choice was having no railroad or securing this money to help patch it up. The Reid Company is defunct through a career of wasteful extravagance, not devoted to railroad operations. We are forced to this position very regretably, and I have no doubt that while we are here voting this money, they are setting traps to catch us, but we are doing our best.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Without any desire to prolong the debate I would point out that the facts I have cited with regard to Canada apply here. The people who were running the Canadian railroads may have been just as incapable as the honourable gentleman thinks the Reids are. The railway owned and worked by McKenzie and Mann and the Grand Trunk both went to smash in the same fashion. We see the Reids going to smash here. Whether mismanagement or politics, prehaps both, did their share in bringing about results in Canada, I do not know, but I do not think it follows that because members of the Reids family, are, as the honourable gentleman suggests, interested in politics, the condition of the railroad is due altogether to that. I think consideration may be given to the conditions the War brought about. I think those helped to some extent. I believe that caused the situation in the case of the Canadian railroad, but the fact remains that if, as the honourable gentleman says, the Reids have got the railroad and allied services into the condition they are because of their personal ignorance of railroading, the fact remains that in all other countries in the world, in all English-speaking countries, Canada, the United States and Great Britain, the railroads have got into a somewhat similar state.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—I would like briefly to refer to this Bill. I congratulate the Government that an effort is being made to improve the condition of the railroad. From my experience of the last few years, I think that something should be done. For the last four years we have imported large quantities of goods from the United States that arrived at Sydney, came across to Port aux Basques, taken back to Sydney for the want of proper facilities for drawing and proper tracks to carry it to St. John's. I am glad to find that it is the intention of the Government to give a portion of this loan to build a store at Port aux Basques that will accommodate the goods and that when the railway is in proper running order they will be able to carry these goods and bring them to St. John's in a safe condition, because I am safe, Sir, in making this statement, there have been thousands of dollars lost to the trade in breakage, and goods destroyed, and pilfering. So far as the railway is concerned, the freight trains must themselves have lost enormous sums of money in transport, but, of course, I am not in a position to state what they must have lost during the period of the War, but with strict attention to the running of their railway, they must have lost hundreds of thousands of dollars. If you get a package sent to-day and it is received in a month here, or six months and sent back, you get no satisfaction as to what became of the goods. I welcome, Mr. Chairman, a Bill of this kind. I note the loan is to be floated at six per cent. I presume that will be at par, and when a country raises a loan, six per cent. is enough at any time. I quite agree with the Government's making an effort to have the railway put into such a condition, and I hope the money will be well spent.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN:—Mr. Chairman, I do not wish to delay the House on this Bill. I am very sorry we have to pass it. We are supposed to vote a million and a half to patch up the railway when we ought to vote seven millions in order to make it good. It is only throwing money away. I am very sorry to hear of the condition of the Reid Company. I have not very much against the Reids. They have been always good friends of mine. Referring to the traffic on the railway and the transportation of goods, about a year ago I sent a cargo of fish from Bonavista to St. John's. It was sent to Port aux Basques, and when we located it it was shipped back to St. John's, but we lost delivery of the fish and lost our contract. The railway business is more serious than any other. Therefore I think it requires the energy of all the men connected with it from the principal down, and even then there will be plenty of trouble and lots of mistakes. Now so far as the railway is concerned, we have a branch going to Bonavista. Before that branch started I was running six schooners. I said, now that the railroad is done we can do without the steamers, and we cut them down to two. Now to-day we have eight. What is the reason for this? It is largely due to the poor satisfaction that the Reid Newfoundland Company gave us on the Bonavista branch line. I hope this million and a half will be of some benefit, but I am afraid it will not.

House went into Committee on the Education Bill, Hon. Mr. Anderson in the chair.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Before the Bill passes I would like to say, and I think the House will agree with me how much we appreciate the manner in which the Government met us in discussing the details of this Bill and the satisfactory explanation of the various sections made. We secured the acceptance of the Government to an important amendment which will be dealt with when we come to it, but I think it will be agreed generally that no case has been made out for the creation of a Department of Education. There was no general demand for it, it was not promised in the Premier's Manifesto, and it seems to be a case of finding a place for a member of the Government. I agree that if a department is necessary we could not do better than appoint Dr. Barnes at its head, but at some future time some other Government having some capable blacksmith or fourth rate lawyer because of having been elected by a large majority and because of denominational or some other reason may get the appointment, but so far as the Bill itself is concerned in the creation of the department it appears to provide no very important duties for the Minister except those formerly done by the Deputy Head of the Colonial Secretary's Department, and the overseeing of the Normal School. Now all these will I have no doubt be carried out very carefully by Dr. Barnes but I do not think any case has been made for the expenditure of some $30,000 on a department staff or army. Another argument put forward as a justification was that a sum of $350,000 was being spent and some Minister should be appointed to supervise that expenditure. Last spring when I was at Sydney trying to get back to St. John's, I met Premier Murray of Nova Scotia, who was there ill, and I had opportunity of discussion with him, and amongst other matters we spoke of Education. Nova Scotia has various educational an honor to it, and she should be proud of him, and I was sorry to note when he was here a few years ago he was not honored by his native land. We honored him in Canada. The children of this country had the brains and let us spend our money to devvelop those brains and give them a chance.

institutions amongst others. Dalhousie, Windsor, St. Farnics Xavier at Antigonish, Technical School at Halifax, Normal School at Truro and others, and every form of school down to the small elementary school, and Nova Scotia has no Minister of Education; Mr. Murray himself who in addition is Provincial Secretary-Treasurer is likewise Minister of Education and the educational department is under the supervision of a capable expert, Prof. McKay. That province spent last year on education against our $350,000, $2,097,000 without any Minister of Education, and I do not think we need one in this country, and I may say the same thing applies to New Brunswick.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—What about Ontario?

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I will come to that in a minute. Ontario has about three million people, and I quite agree that if Newfoundland had that many we would be justified in having a Minister too. But I am dealing with communities closely akin to our own in population, resources and circumstances. New Brunswick has several universities and technical colleges and everything down to elementary schools and have no need to create a Minister of Education with a large staff. I think it is another case of putting the trappings of an elephant on the back of a cat. My hon. firend shakes his head; I would not expect him to do anything else. Now that the Minister is created I presume Dr. Barnes will do the very best possible, still I think in that respect as well as in the matter of spending the revenue we have a long way to go before we shall see any result. I think we are multiplying the officials and with less of them much better work could be done if steps were taken to issure a full day's work from all the employees. I have been sitting in my office for some years past watching School Inspectors going up and down the hill, and I have a full day's work done before some of them go to work. I say that without meaning to be offensive to the gentlemen concerned. They are not the only ones in that respect; that is the characteristic of the Government official who goes to work at ten and quits at one. Back at three and quits at five, and while you have that sort of thing going on you will have lots of room to add to your staff, but if the work was done as lots of business people here do theirs, you would have more done and more satisfactorily. I instanced this afternoon the amounts these Superintendents are getting, who in addition to their salaries have been able to add several thousands more in extras, and some of them are getting more than the Judges of the Supreme Court. I come to a class of people who get to work earlier, such the Superintendents of the Lunatic Asylum or the General Hospital, and they do not get as much salary as these Superintendents of Education. I am not going to delay the Committee, but want to put myself on record as regards the Bill. I think the department unnecessary and the amount of money spent on the staff too large, and the returns, not alone from the monetary point of view, if we get any, but the returns in increased efficiency will not measure up to the expense.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL:—I am sorry I can never agree with my hon. friend. We do not seem to agree on anything. However I must say, as an old teacher, that every dollar spent on education is money well spent, and that the state has no excuse to-day for allowing one of its children to grow up without education. We have asked for a large grant I admit, but we have put that grant under the most capable man in Newfoundland, who we very luckily had in Newfoundland at the time, Hon. Dr. Barnes. The next Minister might be anybody but I wish to point out that it is not the Minister in the department who does the routine work, but the permanent head, the Deputy Minister, and we shall see that the permanent head sarll be a capable man. The next thing he said was that Hon. Mr. Squires' Manifesto made no reference to a department of Education, but I would say he pointed out that the curse of illiterary must be wiped out in Newfoundland and we have taken the bull by the horns and hope to wipe it out. Now I never thought I should live long enough to find my hon. friend going to Nova Scotia for his standards. I can stand New Brunswick or Ontario, but I always thought Nova Scotia the blackest place outside of Hades, and I cannot stand that. My hon. friend is getting inflicted with this Canadian buy; I think, from his many sojournings abroad I have been so long out of Canada that I have lost that. But I think it unfair to have comparison all the time with Canada; I am sick of hearing that; I am meeting it part of every day and some of the night. I think we have a very happy choice in our Minister, as during the constructive period it is most important to have a Minister who is an educationalist. If there were loafers in the days of the late Government that is not our fault and if during those days my hon. friend saw supporters getting down late, he should not be reprimanding us, but should have attended to it then. I wish to give this Bill my support, and do it from my heart as I will know the advantages of education and how it heped me. I was sent here by Dr. Roddrick, one of the greatest Newfoundlanders the Island ever produced, and an honor to it, and she should be proud of him, and I was sorry to note when he was here a few years ago he was not honored by his native land. We honored him in Canada. The children of this country had the brains and let us spend our money to develop those brains and give them a chance.

HON. PRESIDENT:—I desire to say a few words on the Bill before the House and all the salaries we are voting out for the department, but would say I am not looking for any of those positions. But I think I might take some credit for myself with some twenty-four others some 45 years ago for bringing education here to what it is to-day. In 1875 we were very low down in educational matters, and some 25 of us in one denomination, many of them humble men, mechanics and tradesmen and we got together in an united manner and put up a building where we have 700 children and have no room for any more. Other denominations had to do likewise. We got a staff of teachers and thought we were made and forever, but when those teachers came along we found the building we then had far too small for the requirements. It was about 70 years old and after three teachers were here for a short time they reported to their superiors in the Old Country that it was a pity they had such a small building, with the result we put up the building. I first referred to which cost over $80,000, and now we have fifteen teachers in that building and its surroundings. That I attribute in great measure for those men, and that denomination did not stand alone, because our brothers of other denominations had to do likewise, so that now all the denominations are vieing with each other in a friendly way to put out the best elements they can because they had as I know from the teachers as good an element among the boys here as you can find anywhere in the world, and we have some teachers there who have been in Canada, Australia, England, Ireland and elsewhere and they find the best material here. I congratulate the Government, altho I do not know any job that will be in keeping with my requirements, on this Education Bill, because when we spend money on education I think it is the best way of spending our revenue. No doubt we may have some slackers who may not do their duty in connection with this educational matter, as well as any other, because when it is a Government affair it is a slack job. But I do not think, because of what I know of the head of that department there will be any slackness because the requirements are so urgent; we require more education and all the facilities we can get and I think it is in the hands of the right man in the head of the department. I speak more particularly of the workingman's boys; the man who can afford to send his son to college has no need of assistance; but the son of the workingman is the one we have to depend on in this country. I am glad of this Bill and it should be given a fair chance by all people. I have much pleasure in supporting it.

HON. MR. MEWS:—I think the status of education in this country is justification enough for the Government's creating a department. If Government institutions are rotten as my hon. friend says, then this educational institution we have had so far has been extremely rotten in that all the nominal heads have been going in different directions, never reaching one point and have not been responsible to anybody. They have in a sensebeen responsible to the Governor in Council, but that fact has made for some confusion. My hon. friend also suggested in his paper that we have a parade of the Inspectors, and I think at the present time when there is a convention of teachers, it would be welcome by them who would then see that Inspectors are not a myth but a reality, because so far as some of them are concerned, they never see an Inspector from one year to another.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Do you think they will now?

HON. MR. MEWS:—Well I am satisfied under Dr. Barnes they will, and I think they will do good work under Dr. Barnes. They are going to be appointed for ability and not for political pull. They will survey the educational standing of the community in such a way that their reports will give us more information than we have gathered in years from the reports of the Superintendents, because their reports year after year have to say that they have not visited this school, and hundreds of schools in the same way. There are even schools in St. John's that have not seen an Inspector for years. It was also referred to that the Premier's Manifesto did not promise a Department of Education. My hon. friend is politician enough to know that any reference to education would start such a riot that would not down in a generation. I do not say that it was left out on purpose, but education has been used too much as a bugaboo and a football by politicians and I hope to see the day when we shall have better opportunity for the poor boys as well as the rich, as the President has said. We have not reached that stage yet. The C.H.E. does not provide for the boys of poorer grades to get on, there is no opportunity for his advancement further on as the boys of rich parents have. If that could be wiped out we shall go a long way to improve the status of education.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—First with reference to the hon. gentleman opposite that I am always quoting Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. That is because the counties are similar and conditions mostly like our on and I do not know why it isn't more proper to quote Noca Scotia and New Brunswick rather than Ontario where conditions are so very different. With reference to what the President said in reference to the undertaking some years ago; I have heard it with much pleasure and can endorse it because I happen to be one of the boys who had the opportunity of enjoying the facilities placed at our disposal then which I would not perhaps have enjoyed otherwise, and no expenditure for education that I consider likely to attain similar good objects will have any criticism from me. I do not object to the expenditure for the purpose where education will be of benefit to the school boy or the teacher generally, but my objection is offered to the amount spent in creating a department which I consider unnecessary, and for the appointment of officials for which I find no need.

I fail to see anything in the general scheme which offers promise of anything substantial, except what will be brought about through personal effort. Dr. Barnes is, no doubt, an estimable man. There may be others, however, as well suited to this position. I am not prepared to say he is the best man for the job. What I said was, if the same amount of money expended in this department were applied to education generally, it would bring about as good results. The Minister of Health could have occupied this position, only that the political wheel went round and there was no need of creating a new position. Joking apart,—I would reiterate what I said as far as the department machinery is concerned, it is unnecessary.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN:—This is a very interesting Bill and one that should appeal to all of us. Education is neglected and sorely neglected. I can say this from experience.

Ten thousand dollars for night schools is a very small amount. Night schools are most necessary. There are thousands walking about the streets who could be better employed at night schools. It is surprising what advance can be made in these schools by those who have been unable to go to a day school. Provision is made for the shepherd but the sheep are forgotten. Children cannot go to school, if they want to, for there is not sufficient accommodation for all. It is just as bad in the outports as it is here. There are more children out of school than there are in. The same schools are being used that were used forty years ago. There is no provision made for building schools. There is one hundred thousand for a Normal School but what about the elementary schools? If a chance to get an elementary education is given to a boy he will earn his own way. I do not know anything about the Normal School, but I am strong in favour of Night Schools. What about the undenominational system? I thought we were going to have common schools. I do not see a word about it in this Bill. It seems to me it is all inspectors and no schools; I do not agree withall this Bill says. There are certain things I should like to see in it, which are not there. Dr. Barnes, I daresay, will do some good, but he does not strike at the root of the matter.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—I just wish to say a few words on the education question. It would, of course, occupy many hours to discuss it. There is no better capital we can send into the world than a man with a good education. I hope the development during the next quarter of a century will be of such a nature that no one will be able to say that his lack of education was a serious handicap to his progress. Education will be in the twenty-five years to come, the salvation of the country, and it will place our young men in positions that have been before unknown. Compulsory education is not mentioned in this Bill. Every boy and girl throughout the length and breadth of this country should have at least, an elementary education. I hope after the experience of one year's operation of this Bill the Minister will see his way clear to deal with compulsory education. Many children at the age of fourteen leave school, through no fault of their own. There should then be a compulsory night school for them to attend up to eighteen years of age, which should compel them to attend school not less than eight hours a week. The salaries of teachers are disgracefully low, they range in many cases, from $250 to $350 up to $500. I say more money is consumed in cigars than we pay the teachers of the schools of this country.

The Committee rose and reported it had passed this Bill with an amendment.

The Bill was then read a third time, and it was ordered that a message be sent to the House of Assembly that this House had passed same with an amendment.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—In relation to Municipal affairs. I wish to point out that most of us are familiar with the reason why this Bill is introduced at this session of the legislature. It is really not a permanent Bill, because there may be amendments made at the next session. Except we pass this Bill we have no Muncipal Council after the 31st day of December next. No doubt there are some sections which do not meet the wishes and views of some of the hon. gentlemen in this Chamber, but as pointed out, this measure has been before the late Government and previous Government for some years, and for some reason or another has not been dealt with—due probably to its voluminous nature. Only some person who has made a particular study of legislation and of this Bill is capable of explaining it in detail, so that the hon. gentleman may get knowledge of it. I ask that this Bill be taken up and passed in order that the term of the Council may not expire and so that the city may not be without representation. I will endeavour to take up and give whatever explanation I am able, as to the meaning and purpose of the different sections of the Bill.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—I replying to the hon. gentleman introducing this Bill, I do not wish to detain the Bill, but there are a number of sections not acceptable. In his opening remarks the hon. gentleman said it is a temporary Bill and amendments are anticipated. The election of the Municipal Council depends upon the passing of this Bill, I presume in its entirety.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—Not necessarily. It is not a Government measure. It is the result of a deliberation commission which sat some few years ago.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—Seeing it is not necessary that the Bill pass in its entirety, why not leave out the clauses likely to be objected to, till another session, and pass that portion which will legalize the election of the Council for next year—that portion of the Bill that will legalize an election and the formation of a Council next year at the expiry of the Commission. They can work under bye-laws until such time as the Legislature has an opportunity of considering these several clauses. Once we pass these clauses many of them will not be amended. I for my part think many of them most radical and that the Mayor of the City will be a greater autocrat and have more power than the Kaiser had. I do not want to take up the time of the House, but would ask, is it necessary that a Bill should be passed that an election may be held in December, and then in January have this Bill brought forward and discussed. I ask the honourable gentleman if it is not reasonable that we legalize and send down to the House of Assembly a Bill that will legalize the holding of an election next year, and defer the other clauses. As the Bill goes through Committee stage I would object to very many of the clauses, but I think that we can very easily pass some of them.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—Mr. President, when the honourable gentleman in charge of this Bill introduced it he gave very satisfactory reasons so far as I am concerned why the Bill should pass this session; otherwise I would simply object to many sections of it. The Bill that I hold in my hand is the work of a Commission of which I was a member for three years. Since that time it has been put before a Committee of Citizens. The original charter contained 398 sections and 301 sub-sections. The amending Bill which is supposed to be the Charter of this Bill has 391 sections and 280 sub-sections, a lack of seven on the one side and twenty-one on the other. I also hold in my hand, Mr. President, a letter that was written to the Minister of Finance and Customs by the Citizen's Committee on the 9th of July. In this letter the Citizen's Committee while they are in favour of the passing of the Charter at this session object to many sections of this Bill.

Sections 10, 11 and 12 open up the question of plural voting, to which the Committee objects.

Section 15. For 1922 read 1920. Otherwise there will be no voters' list prepared for the election this year, with the consequent disfranchisement of the majority of the electors.

Section 11. The majority of the Citizen's Committee objected to biennial elections on the ground of expense.

Section 40. Advertise Council's bye-laws and regulations in at least two daily papers.

Section 46. The Committee strongly recommended that no monies be voted at secret meetings of the Council. Neither should contracts be entered into at such meetings.

Section 57. The northern boundary of Bannerman Park has been omitted, probably by a printer's error.

Section 75. When intending to open up lands for building sites, the Council should advertise in two city daily newspapers.

Section 76. The Committee strongly recommended that care should be taken that "only the owners of the freehold of the property on which the improvements are made shall pay for said improvements and that owners of adjoining property shall not be taxed directly for said improvements."

Sections 78, 79 and 80. These sections should apply only to new streets and not to old streets where people have been paying taxes for years. Note also that the words in 78 "or adjacent thereto which may be benefitted" should be also inserted in 79 and 80. This will prevent building sites near hte Railway Station being taxed for improvements made near the Customs House, for both places mentioned are on the same street.

Section 90 (a). The Committee has probably registered its objection to this "prescribing the class of house" on the grounds that it may create restricted areas.

Sections 102 and 107. The cost of repairs or renewals of these pipes should not be borne by the owner of the house, as he should not be responsible for faulty work performed by the Council's employees.

Section 120. The turning off of water for non-payment of taxes. This might make the tenant suffer for neglect of the landlord to pay his taxes.

Section 130. The owner of property should not be compelled to pay half the cost of the curb and gutter in addition to half the cost of the pavement. The former should be paid for altogether by the city.

Section 132 (c). See note on Section 130.

Section 160. The Committee's recommendation as to this Section (160 in former Bill) was accepted by the Joint Committee of both Houses of the Legislature. This made it clear that the Section will apply to new streets only or extensions of old streets. Why has this been changed back again?

Section 185. Put "Suitable receptacles" for "Metal water tight covered" ash cans. Why should an ash can be watertight?

Section 220. This quadruples the tax on merchandise in stock.

Section 238. January 15th is too early for a new Council coming into office on January 1st to complete its estimates. January 31st is better. The Governor in Council is given only two weeks in which to disallow increases in taxation. This does not give Citizens or the Governor in Council much time to consider such increases. Make it four weeks.

Section 243. The Secretary-Treasurer is given too free a hand in issuing warrants of distress. He should receive instructions from the Council in each individual case. The Citizens' Committee is especially insistent on this. It was one of the chief reasons for its coming into being.

Section 248. The Commission to collect arrears should not be remunerated for collecting any 1920 taxes.

Section 249. This leaves it doubtful as to whether tenants, who pay their taxes indirectly in the rent, are not also liable for the Poll Tax of five dollars.

Section 264. This Tax of two per cent. on fire insurance premiums has been charged by the Companies to Policy holders.

Section 283. For the date see note on Section 238.

Section 229. See that sanitary carts are legibly numbered.

I wish to draw the attention of the honourable gentlemen to Section 192.

person to slaughter cattle, the flesh of 192.—It shall not be lawful for any which is to be sold for human food, in any building within the city limits unless the same has been authorized and approved by the Council for the use and purpose of a slaughter house or abattoir. Any person contravening the provisions of this section shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars or in default to imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months.

Now, Mr. President, I have every respect for anyone who goes into a business of this kind and invests capital. I believe that we should have slaughter houses and that they should be well managed and well equipped and cleaned with a perfect flow of water.

Now what is an Abattoir—(French abattre to slaughter) a public slaughter house. The first abattoir were those of Paris, established in 1818, on the recommendation of the Commission of 1810. In the construction of an abattoir careful consideration must be given to the selection of the site. It must not be near dwelling houses; it should admit of extension, and control should be had, if possible over every building in the immediate neighbourhood; it should be easy of access adjacent to the cattle market and railways, a good water supply is most important. The abattoir must include accommodation for lairing, killing, dressing, cooling, inspection of suspected animals and meat, and various buildings for the treatment of the feet, intestines and blood. The slaughter house proper ought to be separate from the rest of the building—and in no case should an Abattoir be built near where people live.

The best abattoir that I have known builtin the Old Country is in Birkenhead, and when the question was brought before the authorities there they said "Well you can build it, but we will tell you where to build it, and it is a long way down the River." Now, Mr. President, I am not going to occupy the time of the House, but as I have got the assurance that it is the intention of the Government to handle this Charter at an early date during 1921, I readily consent, so far I am concerned, to support, and assist in any way possible anything that will be the means of keeping the Commission in power for a general election at the end of the year. I wisn, Mr. President, to be perfectly clear that I was one of the Commissioners that had to do with the original charter, and it was not a unanimous charter, because there are many sections throughout that are only a huge joke; some sections are only bye-laws, and why should we have in an Act of Parliament bye-laws to guide the Secretary-Treasurer of the Municipal Council, the Solicitor, the Auditor, the Medical Officer, and Sanitary Supervisor?

I am going to inform the House that I wish the building and housing regulations in this Charter to be wiped out, and I tell you why. It has been submitted to committees, but not to committees of builders and contractors, and many of the housing regulations are only bye-law regulations. My friend, the Hon. Mr. Browning, has referred to the sections of taxation. As he has pointed out, these require the greatest scrutiny, but there is one here, Mr. President, to which I want to call the attention of the honourable gentlemen 263.—Every Bank doing business in the City, except the Newfoundland Savings Bank, shall pay to the City on or before the fifteenth day of February in each year a tax of one-sixteenth of one per cent. upon the volume of business done by the Bank within the City during the preceding year. Such volume of business shall be ascertained by adding together the amounts standing on the books of the Bank on the thirty-first day of December preceding, as returned to the Minister of Finance and Customs under the Consolidated Statutes, 3rd Series, under the following heads in the Schedule to said Act, namely:—

(1) Current loans to the public.
(2) Current loans to the Government.
(4) Amount of bills and notes under discount.
(5) Deposits bearing interest, payable after notice.
(6) Deposits not bearing interest.
(7) Deposits in Savings Bank Department.
(8) Deposits by the Treasury payable on demand.
(9) Deposits by the Treasury payable after notice.

Provided that in no case shall the tax payable by any such Bank be more than three thousand dollars annually; and provided further that no bank hereafter commencing business in the City shall be liable for the said tax until the fifteenth day of February next after one complete calendar year shall have elapsed from the date of such commencement.

The point I wish to make, Mr. President, is that when you tax banks you are going too far, and I further object, Mr. President, t otaxation by a corporation. I can readily understand the Government of a country through the Minister of Finance, the Prime Minister or the Executive, taxing people, but why a public corporation should ask information from banks is beyond my comprehension.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Is not legislation like that effective everywhere?

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—I do not mind so far as the Government is concerned. I am not advocating any point here on behalf of the banks, because the banks are well able to look after their own interests. If the Council wants to tax the banks, let them, but why should a public corporation ask for such information as is here? The Municipal Council owes $1,500,000. If the want to incorporate, let them raise a loan of $2,000,000, pay off the Government, and then incorporate the city. They still owe the Government one and a half million.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Could you give us some idea of the general financial condition as indicated by this Bill?

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—That is a very hard job for me.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Not for you, I hope.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—During the last three years, because I am safe in saying I know of many houses today that are paying $160 and $200 that before the war were not worth $25, so that the owner of the house will have something substantial to pay, and serve him jolly well right for putting up the rents so much. Stock brokers on margins. Well the amount of money passing through these people's hands must be enormous and if anyone is in a position to pay a decent tax it is that class of people. Commercial travellers not domiciled in the Colony $20. When I was in the Council under Hon. George Shea as Mayor, an effort was made to put a tax of $200 on Commercial Travellers and I strenuously opposed it then as I oppose $20 now. I should put on a tax to bring them in, not to keep them out, because we need them. Now I support this Bill or charter on the one condition, that if a Commission has been appointed to run the city government until the end of the year we shall have an election and immediately after whether in January or February it shall be dealt with in a proper spirit and go into the details as we have a right to. Under these conditions I support the second reading. There is one other matter, and that is Schedule B on page 93 re Warrants and Distress. Is the Council going to give plenary power to the Secretary-Treasurer on his own responsibility to sell when he likes? I say no. If the Council are not prepared to take the responsibility upon themselves to give instructions to do so, then I say cut Schedule B out. They must take the responsibility as a whole and not give it to one man.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—Does the hon. gentleman know what is the revenue now?

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—The estimate revenue for 1920 is $345,055, and I shall draw the attention of hon. gentlemen to the fact that the interest provided for is $72,000, and that provision is made for an expenditure in Sanitary Department alone of $80,000 to carry away filth, and muck and mud, enough of money to, capitalized at $1,200,000 @ 6% to give everybody in the town water and sewerage connections.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—This is about the "witching hour of midnight, when churchyards yawn and graves give up their dead." I think it is time we should bury this bill. It is the most remarkable example I know of governments legislation. It is five or six years now since this question of a Municipal Charter or reformed Municipal Bill was first under discussion in the Lower House but invariably when it came to the point, some pretext or excuse sufficed to put it off for another year. I have been constantly as a journalist protesting against a Bill of this capacity of 390 sections being brought into the legislature in its last hours of a session, and I submit now it is most unfair for an institution calling itself a deliberative body in the last moment without having had opportunity to consider this Bill and pass its various clauses. It is a Bill that affects some members of the House very considerably and all of us somewhat. None have had opportunity of discussing it, and speaking for myself I am not prepared to take a bill of this kind and agree to putting it through without having had opportunity of discussing it and maybe amend it. From a cursory glance I have been able to give it seems to me the machinery is altogether too elaborate. I do not know why it should be necessary to have a bill of 390 sections to run the affairs of the town of St. John's, or why it should not be cut down to about one third. Somebody said a number of sections in the charter seem to be of a character that would be more appropriately bye-laws that would be made by the Council, published in The Royal Gazette and obtain the force and effect of law, like so many more of the provisions contained in Acts of Parliaments which we have been passing here. If the bill had come in early in the year I am sure members of this House would have been glad to give the time necessary for its consideration. We have already passed an Act providing for the carrying on of Municipal Government, and I think the proper course to adopt would be to continue that Commission for another six months, and put this bill over until the early days of the next session and I think could be introduced in the form it stands now. These bills might be locked up and put on our desks next session and could be discussed then as it ought to be. I have never in an experience of this legislature in one capacity or another of nearly 30 years, seen a bill of such a nature offered for consideration of the legislature in the last few hours. I am not saying this as a reflection on the Government, but on the other hand I think this House will be abundantly justified in declining to make a farce, if I may say so, of its functions, by undertaking to deal with a measure of this kind in an hour or two. I therefore move that this Bill be read a second time this day six months.

HON. MR. MURPHY:—I second the motion. I do not think we can do justice to the bill or to ourselves by taking it up at this late hour, and the best thing I think is to hold it over till next session.

HON. MR. MEWS:—As one of the members of the Citizen's Committee appointed about four years ago, I much regret the fact that it is left to this late hour to bring the bill in. I have read it several times since then and once during the last 24 hours and there are sections in it that I know would not appeal to many members of this House, but during the day I took the position it would be all right to let it go through and then the public would lnd out any anomalies and during the election in December would be able to voice any objections they have, and which I think they would have to some of the clauses. I now simply rise to regret that some of the members I find are not willing to let the bill go through as it is. Not being a property owner I perhaps do not feel as strongly as those who are fortunate enough to own property and unfortunate enough to be taxed, as no doubt they feel they are, somewhat heavily.

HON. MR. GIBBS:—I have to admit that there is a great deal of force and argument in what has been adduced by hon. gentlemen against having this bill passed during the closing days of the House. The bill is certainly one of magnitude and the many provisions in it and sections dealing with property rights and civic government require a good deal of care and attention, but we must not forget that this bill has been before the city for some years and it is unfortunate that it cannot be considered and discussed in all its details and given all that consideration which the importance of the measure deserves, but as the sentiment of the House is certainly not in favor of passing this bill in its closing days I am not therefore in a position to offer very strenuous objections to the motion that the bill be read this day six months. I regret the House is not in a position to consider the bill in all its details. Having been for four years Mayor of the City and knowing that the city cannot be properly governed and the many problems which the city possesses cannot be handled and solved except a bill of this character be passed, it is unfortunate we are not in a position to deal with it as its importance deserves.

HON. MR. BROWNING:—As I started this affair possibly, perhaps it would be well to give an expression of my own feelings and I think the feelings of this House. Now there is no disposition on the part of any member of this House, on the business community whatever, and I think all will realize it is very necessary that the town of St. John's should have much greater funds than is at its disposal at present time. We all regret the many disadvantages the town of St. John's is under owing largely to the incapacity of those who had the handling of the affairs of the town, previously. But I think we have arrived at a stage when the people generally are taking interest and would like to have the town made so that we would not be ashamed to take strangers in any part of it ,and I do not think any person in this town who is taxable would have any objections to be taxed in a reasonable and equitable and proper manner. But there are many things in this Bill that appeal to a man of ordinary business experience that are not of that nature or disposition that would encourage or aid proper city government, and that disposition we lack in this country very much; the patriotic disposition and the endeavour to improve things and have our town beautiful and made so that we may be proud of it. Nobody can be proud to-day of St. John's. It is absolutely a filthy hole, and we are ashamed to bring strangers within it. Nobody can contradict that. And the community at large now are disposed to put their hands in their pockets and make this town what it should be, a very beautiful and capable city, which it should be if we get the proper legislation and the funds to carry it out. I support the motion of Hon. Sir Patrick McGrath; there are a large number of sections I oppose, not fully, but would rather amend, and I think it would be well, and wise indeed that this bill be put off and taken up next session in plenty of time that the full attention and the best endeavour of the members be given to the framing of a proper city charter so that the members of the Council would feel dignified in occupying the position and honour by being members of that body and give their best endeavours. Under this I do not think that would be, but next session the bill could be brought in and inspire the members of the Council with some enthusiasm and the endeavour to improve the conditions in St. John's.

HON. MR. ANDERSON:—I wish briefly to state in taking part at the outset the requiem of this bill as I started at the outset, I am a sort of father, altho it has been considerably amended since 1916. In a few hours we shall be called here to the closing of the House, and in the dying hours of this session we are asked to devote our time and give our interest to a bill containing hundreds of sections, this is more than human beings can handle. I am satisfied, Mr. President, if it is the wish of the House, that it should remain until next session. I support the motion that this Bill be read six months hence.

The motion being put, it was carried accordingly.

HON. MR. SHEA:—Mr. President, looking to the fate of the Municipal Bill, and in view of the fact of the recent legislation passed here which only provides for the government of the council up to December (?), it is important that some arrangement be made to provide for this contingency. I therefore move the first reading of the Bill entitled "The Appointment of a Temporary Commission for the City of St. John's."

On motion it was read a second time and the House then went into Committee of the Whole on this Bill.

Hon. Mr. Bell in the chair.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH:—I have strong sentiments with reference to the contemplated building of an abattoir within the city limits. I have feelings that such ought not to be permitted in a main thoroughfare, where it is likely to prove not only an eyesore but perhaps a nuisance, this depends on the character of the institution to be erected. On general principles I feel that such buildings ought not to be allowed within the city limits. In the past the law required all slaughter houses to be built beyond the city limits. Manufactories and establishments of this character should be sufficiently far away to remove objections, which exist with reference to them, and to make our principal streets so that it is possible for people to pass to and fro, especially streets used by passengers going to or from ships.

HON. MR. PRESIDENT:—I should like to say a few words on this matter. Butchers have been prevented by the Municipal Council from slaughtering cattle within the city limits. Whether slaughter-house or abattoir be the name given I don't think the nature of the regulation changes. Butchers have had to abide by the regulation and if slaughter-houses are forbidden, I do not see why the same thing, only called by a nicer name, should be permitted to be erected. I hope the Government won't allow that to take place.

HON. MR. SHEA:—I may say that the Government will accept the amendment made by the hon. member.

The Committee rose and reported it had passed the Bill with an amendment.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Shea the Bill was read a third time and it was ordered that a message be sent to the House of Assembly informing them that this House had passed this Bill, and to request the concurrence of that House on this matter.

The House then adjourned until 2.45 to-morrow afternoon.

TUESDAY, July 13th, 1920.

The House met pursuant to adjournment.

His Excellency the Governor having arrived, and being seated on the Throne, Hon. the President Commanded the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod to summon the members of the House of Assembly to the Bar of the House, and they being there assembled, His Excellency was then pleased to assent to the Bills passed during the session. His Excellency then read his Address from the Throne.

After which the Honourable the President of the Legislative Council, by command of His Excellency the Governor, declared the General Assembly prorogued.

INDEX

ADDRESS IN REPLY.

Motion for, 11.
Committee on, 16.
Presentation of, 51.
Governor's Reply, 51.

ANDERSON, HON. MR.

On Resolution of Condolence, 8.
Speech from the Throne, 28, 32.
Food Control Bill, 48,
Agricultural Bill, 118, 122.
Housing Bill, 173.
Municipal Bill, 224.

AGRICULTURAL BILL, 97, 99, 122.

BISHOP, HON. MR.

On Speech from the Throne, 28.
Certificate of Masters and Mates Bill, 124.
Exportation of Codfish Bill, 131.

BROWNING, HON. MR.

On Speech from the Throne, 9.
St. Lawrence Timber, Pulp and S.S. Co., 62.
Municipal Bill, 227.

BUSINESS PROFITS TAX, 97, 122, 126.

BEAVER BILL, 104, 128.

COMMISSION OF INTERNAL ECONOMY, 28.

CONDOLENCE, RESOLUTION OF

On Death of Hon. George Skelton, 6.
Hon. A. F. Goodridge, 6.
Hon. John Harvey, 6.

COMMISSIONS.

Hon. J. D. Ryan, President, Legislative Council, 4.
Mr. George Shea, 5.
Dr. Alexander Campbell, 5.
Mr. Frank Steer, 5.
Mr. John Browning, 6.

CAMPBELL, HON. DR.

On St. Lawrence Timber, Pulp and Steamship Co., 68.
Agricultural Bill, 114.
Railway Loan Bill, 216.
Education Bill, 220.

CERTIFICATE OF MASTERS AND MATES BILL, 97, 99, 127.

COMMEMORATION DAY BILL, 156, 161.

COMPANIES BILL, 165.

DEPT. OF PUBLIC WORKS BILL, 28, 38, 51, 53, 54.

DEPT. OF MARINE AND FISHERIES BILL, 51, 53, 61, 62.

DEPT. OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS BILL, 51, 53, 54, 104, 126.

DEATH DUTIES BILL, 84, 89, 93.

DEBENTURE BONDS ISSUE BILL, 97, 100, 126.

DOMINION CO-OPERATIVE HOUSING BILL, 170, 172, 206.

DOGS, KEEPING OF DOGS BILL, 208, 209.

EXPORTATION OF CODFISH BILL, 97, 101, 127, 194.

ENEMY ALIENS BILL, 122.

ELECTION BILL, 162.

ESTATES OF DECEASED ESQUIMAUX BILL, 209.

EDUCATION BILL, 212, 214, 223.

FOOD CONTROL BILL, 19, 17, 28, 38, 50.

FIRE PATROL BILL, 84, 89, 93.

GRIEVE, HON. MR.
On Speech from the Throne, 11, 19, 34.
Information respecting the Codfishery Bill, 85.
Agricultural Bill, 120.
Exportation of Codfish Bill, 130, 190.
NEWFOUNDLAND PATRIOTIC FUND BILL, 206.

GIBBS, HON. MR.
On Resolution of Condolence, 6.
Profiteering Bill, 95.
Exportation of Codfish Bill, 142.
Housing Bill, 198.
Municipal Bill, 223.

GRAND BANK HARBOR BILL, 83, 88, 90.

GOVERNOR, HIS EXCELLENCY
Opens Assembly, 4.
Assents to Bills, 127.
Prorogues Assembly, 231.

INDUSTRIAL SOCIETIES BILL, 28, 38, 48.

INFORMATION RESPECTING CODFISHERY BILL, 51, 53, 54, 89.

INCOME WAR TAX BILL, 94, 104.

JUDICATURE BILL, 61, 62, 66, 67, 84.

LIGHTING OUTPORT STREETS, 84, 89, 93.

LEGISLATIVE DISABILITIES BILL, 84, 89.

LICENSE TO CUT HARDWOOD BILL, 122, 155, 162.

LOCAL AFFAIRS BILL, 156, 161.

MUNICIPAL BILL, 170, 223, 230.

MacNAMARA, HON. MR.
On Speech from the Throne, 25.
St. Lawrence Timber, Pulp and S.S. Co., 70.
Exportation of Codfish Bill, 139.

MEWS, HON. MR.
On Food Control Bill, 39.
Profiteering Bill, 112.
Education Bill, 221.

MILLEY, HON. MR.
On Exportation of Codfish Bill, 80, 82.
Profiteering Bill, 96.

MONTREAL TRUST COMPANY BILL, 97, 126, 127.

McGRATH, HON. SIR P. T.
On Profiteering Bill, 106.
Exportation of Codfish Bill, 137, 193.
Housing Bill, 195.
Education Bill, 213.
Railway Loan Bill, 216.

NEWFOUNDLAND MEDICAL BOARD BILL, 38, 48.

NEWFOUNDLAND PATRIOTIC FUND BILL, 206, 207.

PROFITEERING BILL, 89, 104, 122.

PUBLIC ROADS BILL, 156, 159, 169.

PROTECTION OF ANIMALS BILL, 156, 162.

PAPER, PULP AND WOOD PRODUCTS BILL, 165, 194, 206.

PUBLIC SERVICE BILL, 215.

PRESIDENT, HON. MR.
On Resolution of Condolence, 8.
Education Bill, 220.

PETITIONS.
Bishop, Hon. Mr., 73.

REGISTRATION OF MIDWIVES BILL, 84, 89, 93.

RETIRING ALLOWANCES BILL, 214.

RAILWAY LOAN BILL, 215.

REVENUE BILL, 215.

RYAN, HON. MR.
On Exportation of Codfish Bill, 101, 103, 134.

SHIPBUILDING BILL, 51, 53, 58, 61, 90.

STANDARDIZATION OF CODFISH BILL, 51, 53, 54, 61, 84.

SURVEY OF FOREIGN-GOING AND LABRADOR VESSELS BILL, 61, 62, 64, 84.

ST. LAWRENCE TIMBER, PULP AND STEAMSHIP CO., LTD., BILL, 61, 62, 67, 72.

SUSU STEAMSHIP COMPANY BILL, 84, 89, 93.

STIPENDIARY MAGISTRATES BILL, 84, 89, 92.

SEALFISHERY BILL, 128.

ST. JOHN'S PILOTAGE BILL, 128, 156, 162.

SALARIES BILL, 214.

SHEA, HON. MR.
On Speech from the Throne, 17.
Judicature Bill, 72.
Certificates of Masters and Mates Bill, 123, 128.

STEER, HON. MR.
On Speech from the Throne, 11.
Profiteering Bill, 104.

SELECT COMMITTES
On Address in Reply, 16.
Standardization of Codfish Bill, 61.
Information respecting Codfishery, 61.
Shipbuilding Bill, 61.
Certificates of Masters and Mates Bill, 125.

TENANTS BILL, 97, 122, 127.

TRUSTEE INVESTMENT BILL, 207.

TREATIES OF PEACE BILL, 212.

TEMPLEMAN, HON. MR.
On Certificates of Masters and Mates Bill, 100.
Exportation of Codfish Bill, 101.
Education Bill, 222.

WOMEN'S PATRIOTIC ASSOCIATION BILL, 51, 54.

WINTER, HON. M.
On Speech from the Throne, 37.
Profiiteering Bill, 110.