it, but where two persons are alone it is impossible and in the district of White Bay today I find many families depending on the small sum of $5 a month. I believe, Sir, the honourable the Minister for Welfare is not in the Chamber, but I have previously taken the subject up with him and I believe arrangements will be made or consideration given whereby this will be taken into consideration.

Health: Health is a very important thing in connection with the people of our Island. A nation's health, they say, is a nation's wealth. But in the past though areas of our country have been neglected; I am going today to pay a tribute to the honourable Minister for Health in connection with the extension of the health services in Newfoundland since we joined union with Canada. This House will agree that within the past eighteen months the health services have been expanded in Newfoundland perhaps more than they have been for the past fifteen years. We will find people who say that the health of our people is being neglected, but for one, I have travelled around Newfoundland and I find and know that that is not so. We have more hospitals, doctors, nurses, hospital boats scattered around the country than ever before. In the district of White Bay alone, which I represent, there is a doctor and hospital boat, or will be very shortly, as well as two nursing stations which have never been there before. A year ago I was a patient at the sanatorium for three months and in paying tribute to the honourable Minister of Health I will say this, that there was not a week passed that that honourable gentleman was not a visitor to that institution. I will ask one thing, Sir, of the department concerned, and that is that they will encourage and assist the patients of the Sanatorium, who have been discharged from that institution, in rehabilitation. That they will encourage the person in charge, the rehabilitation officer, to find some suitable employment for patients who have been a victim of the white man's sickness, T.B., when they come out and help them in a position and give them a chance to earn a decent livelihood. Now I know that patients who come out, while in St. John's have been given assistance, but when they go home they have just been paid the allowance to receive treatment. That is not sufficient. I believe that between the honourable Minister for Health and the honourable Minister for Welfare they should foresee that these patients or people should get sufficient allowance to build them up to where they become strong enough to overcome their disease and have a better outlook on life.

Fisheries: Not so very long ago, Mr. Speaker, just after the House of Assembly came into session there was a Fishermen's Union formed. In speaking to the Address in Reply I gave my wholehearted support to it simply for the reason that I believe in it. I don't know what good it is going to do but I hope for the best, and I believe that some good will come out of such an organization and as a result of such a union. In the District of White Bay we have two thousand eight hundred fishermen. If we follow the 1945 census we will find that White Bay has the greatest number of fishermen for any district of Newfoundland. The District of White Bay has the greatest number of small fishing boats in the island by many hundreds. Our people depend on the fisheries for their livelihood. They are not lazy, they want a chance to earn an honest living. They don't want dole. They don't want to come down to the days of the early thirties, nor down to dole and degradation. But they do want a chance to stand on their own feet and fight their own way as they have always done, and take their place in society with any other people or any other part of this country. They are honest, intelligent, hard-working, industrious people. But, Sir, I am not very well versed in the fisheries of this country as far as marketing is concerned. I don't know and I am not ashamed to admit. That is one thing you will find, anything I know very little about I won't speak of, but if I should find I know something of it, then I will try to take my part in it, but I would like for this Honourable House at some future date before it closes—I hope it closes pretty soon as I imagine we are all tired of the comments and the arguments and it is becoming monotonous to everyone, even monotonous listening to me—but I hope that we can set apart a day whereby the Government and the Opposition may discuss the fishery problems of this country; find if we could make floor-prices; if a guarantee can be given. Well I don't know if it can be given or not, but if we, at some time, got together to discuss the matter in a friendly manner we might all understand the situation of the fisheries of this country so that we may be in a position to tell the people whom we represent just where they stand, because we have a lot of people today ready now to embark upon the fishing season who don't know what to do, if it is better to seek employment elsewhere or whether they will go and drag their living from the sea. So, Sir, as far as the fishery is concerned I would for one like to be put straight. I don't want to argue the point. I don't want to go asking silly questions but I would like to know the truth and I think that when our people know the truth, then I think they will be satisfied.

Now we come to the last, Economic Development: We have heard the cry of blue ruin but I am not going to say "blue ruin" or any other colour. Every man has a right to his opinion and I for one have the right to mine, but I am going to say one thing on behalf of the man who is the Minister of Economic Development and it is this: In travelling around Newfoundland we all have often heard people say "Why doesn't somebody do something for us, why doesn't somebody come out and begin something, give us a chance to live? We have never had anybody come down and take the little man up." We have often heard that. Well, alright, we have a Government of which one time I was a member, and though I am now not a member of the party, I have often heard the words: "Why does not some one come down to the little man and give him a chance to live, there is never a man to do this." How often we have heard this. But we have found a man today to give us the chance. I don't know if it is so much giving the chance as taking the chance. But I give credit where credit is due. We have found him and today we have a man who has come out to try and expand, to uplift, to give the little man a chance to live, to find himself. We could have a bunch of men who though not keeping them down, yet don't give them a chance to get up. Now we have often found that but on the other hand if they do nothing the people say: "Why don't they do something?" We talk about the surplus they are spending today. I am not against spending it if it is to be spent in the interest and for the benefit of the people of this country, to put food in their mouths and give them clothing and education, then by all means spend it. That is one side, and now that you are spending it you are the worst people in the world. The money belongs to all of us and my reason for supporting this is that it is going for the best interest of the common people. I am not altogether in favour of the Birch Plant. My knowledge is very slim with regard to the industrial development of our country but what I am worried about is, will we be able to get enough material to throw into this plant and market the products to compete, but if those that know better than I do think that it can and that it will be a success, then, time alone will tell and who am I to judge.

Well, Mr. Speaker, I am afraid that is just about all I have to say. I have covered in a very few words what I think and I have given expression to my feelings as far as the Government is concerned. I would like, Mr. Speaker, to see the resurrection of the people of this country to a new life and to a better way of living.

During my life there were two things that struck me very forcibly. Two phrases I should say and I think I could pass them along as advice to the present administration. One was when I was a student teacher at the Memorial University, and I have used this phrase here in an address in reply. It was, Dr. Paton, of the University, the president at that time who said this. He called us in one day for a lecture and we were to take notes. I was not very attentive to the lecture which was ably given and when I glanced down at my notes I had written: "Give them a chance to set free the imprisonment of their souls." That was the year 1933. I would recommend them to the present administration to work to give the people of this country the chance to work and set free the imprisonment of their souls, and to find a way to a better way of living. The second thing was; last autumn I received a telegram from a very great friend of mine, Reverent Father Walsh of Conche in White Bay which said: "Work with confidence in yourself and faith in God and you will not know failure." So I will close my remarks, Mr. Speaker, with those words to the administration: "Today you are a body of men elected by the people and it appears to me the destiny of this country rests with you. I am supporting you in everything you do for the betterment of mankind in this Province, but as you work, do one thing, work with confidence in yourselves to do a good job, to work for the betterment of mankind to help uplift and give assurance to them of a decent livelihood, because we need it where Communism is rampant we must have a people who are happy to off-set that and people are only happy when they are employed, getting a decent livelihood, well fed and clothed. That is the greatest weapon you have."

MR. SMALLWOOD: Before the honourable member finishes his speech and sits down, allow me to direct a question to him? After delivering one of the finest liberal speeches I have ever heard in this Chamber, I am wondering what the honourable member is doing over there. Why he is not over here among the Liberal Party members? Why not come over and convince us you are as Liberal as you are talking?

MR. DROVER: Mr. Speaker, I will ask one question. With confidence in God and faith in yourselves you will do a good work to uplift the people of this Province. But, Sir, I would like to direct the question to the honourable Premier, if you will allow me. If I cross the Chamber, for the District of White Bay, will I be guaranteed that my people, five thousand seven hundred of them, will be given due recognition of their rights? If I get that guarantee I will come across.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I could not have more pleasure in anything than to guarantee this, that as long as the honourable gentleman is in our party and fights for his district, we like him all the more for it and the same with every man here.

Mr. Drover takes his seat on the Government side of the House.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I am going to ask my colleagues to give three cheers for Sam Drover.

MR. SPEAKER: You understand the entire House is out of order.

HON. S. J. HEFFERTON (Minister of Education): Mr. Speaker, in looking at a Government Budget the first thing that strikes one, is the great difference there is between the individual preparing the balance sheet, and the Government doing the same thing. The individual is aware of his probable income and budgets accordingly, the Government in preparing its Estimates must take first of all into consideration the service it must give to its people that elected them, and having weighed the pros and cons and decided on what services to render must look for ways and means of providing for these services.

These are two basic factors which must be taken into account when the Finance Minister is trying to prepare a budget. One: what services we shall give to our people, and two: How shall we find the where-with-all to pay for these services. After listening to the lucid and able Budget Speech our present Finance Minister presented a few days ago, I think all of us agree he has anticipated those questions exceptionally well. Naturally in the presentation of the Budget there are so many imponderables that it is not only difficult but impossible to forecast accurately just what the expenditure or even the revenue will be in the forthcoming year.

On the expenditure side it is fairly easy to forecast the ordinary expenditures but it is impossible to provide for contingencies which may arise such as when the Government finds it has to provide special projects to help people who had not, through their ordinary channels, earned sufficient to tide them over for the year. These unforeseen contingencies may of course make the expenditure side top heavy as it does in retrospect last year.

Similarly when it comes to the revenue side, again it is impossible to forecast accurately the trend of trade or industry in the course of the year. Last year, because of world conditions, our export trade enormously increased and naturally our revenue side showed the benefits.

Before I go any further, I want to deal with two or three things enumerated by honourable members on the other side of the House. First of all I want to deal with the question which was raised by the honourable member for White Bay, who has so willingly come and been accepted once again in the ranks of the Liberal Party. He referred to the question of teachers' salaries and I have every sympathy for his views. He was quite correct in asserting that in the latter years of the Commission of Government the teachers in the isolated districts such as the North Coast and Labrador were given a bonus payment. But he forgot to add that the bonus was given as an enticement for teachers to go to these districts, and also helped to retain them in these districts. For teachers who were fully qualified the new scale of salaries inaugurated shortly after I came into office destroyed some of the appeal of the bonus payment. It must also be borne in mind that in order to set a scale for teachers and pay them a salary scale commensurate with their qualifications, we have inaugurated a scale applicable to the whole country. And in answer to the honourable the junior member for St. John's East who spoke along similar lines: in the teaching profession it should be borne in mind that salaries though an important factor in the consideration for every worker, where teachers are concerned, salaries are not the only thing, and one big difficulty we have had in the teaching profession is the environment or conditions under which teachers find themselves in some of the smaller settlements. I have just one other answer for the honourable member for White Bay. He should be entirely interested in this. I believe he spoke of the necessity of rehabilitation of patients who have been released from the sanatorium. That is a question which has been given some serious consideration even by our own Department, and quite recently we in the Department of Education authorised by the Government have made an agreement with the T.B. Association whereby training courses will be set up in the very near future just as soon as the equipment can be brought in and a room prepared; and a teacher who is qualified and has had wide experience has ended his present agreement which will be somewhere around the end of June, can be brought in to take care of that new department. He will be brought in on a contract for three years. It is anticipated that during these three years, twenty or twenty-five or even thirty or more patients will be given a course of training in horology or watch repairing, and can go back to their homes and carry on that work.

When we look at the picture represented in the Budget covering last year's efforts, we can see that practically the only dark spot in the industry of the country resolves around the salt cod fishery. When you look back on conditions, you see there was a noticeable increase in forestry and mining activities, and increased exports of these products helped considerably to bring about a higher level of prosperity throughout our Province, and our people as a whole are much better off in spite of the fact that the salt cod fishery last year constituted a dark spot in the industry. Our whole national income was some 15 percent higher than it was in the previous year, which was largely due to the increased demand for our products. We believe that with the increased demand for our pulp and paper and the Government aided industries, that the national level and the provincial level of employment will this year again be in excess of that of last year.

It is true that in the Budget, the current revenue for the current year and the expenditures for the current year both show a decided increase over the figures of last year, but when we look at these increased figures there is one thing we should bear in mind which has been ignored in all our arguments pro and con, and that is our population has increased very rapidly at the rate of a net increase of six to seven thousand a year which means of course an additional cost for services. Because of the fact that our revenue and expenditure has shown a decided increase, the surplus has come in for a great deal of criticism. Not the surplus as such but our management of it and amongst the many things said about the surplus there were one or two suggestions put forward. One that the surplus should be kept in its entirety and that we should get along without it, leaving it in the bank possibly for expenditures by some successive government in the far off years which lie ahead, or another that the present government go on a glorious spree and spend all within the compass of one or two years. Thus two arguments are advanced, one that we should keep our expenditures down to the minimum leaving the surplus intact, or that we should let our expenditure exceed our revenue. The Government, after due consideration of both of the questions, has settled for neither course. It feels that the surplus which was collected from our people should be spent as wisely as possible in the interest of the toiling masses. To do that there are two things open to us and the emphasis we place on those two things is shown by definite amounts which were spent, and we are spending, and so far as the surplus is concerned we have spent roughly one third for economic development and the other two thirds on the extension of the social services. When we make a comparison of conditions as they exist in this Province and the conditions as they exist elsewhere we can see the utter necessity for some extension of our services in the Health and Welfare, Education and any other field you may wish to take. When we recall, as recall we must, that in the past we had been subject more than most to the variations which beset those whose people are geared to an economy based on primary industries, only we can see how necessary it is to do something in order to prevent our people from being so much at the mercy of outside economy and market peculiarities. That is why this Government has done its utmost for the implementation of the necessary services to lay our cause before the financiers of the world and ask them to come in and help us to develop the latent resources of our Province.

The honourable member for St. John's East made a plea on the imposition of the 3% sales tax and gave some figures during the course of his talk which certainly bear some study before we are prepared to accept them as a true representation of the facts as they are. For some years we have had a Federal Sales Tax of 8% but that Federal Sales Tax applied only in small part to the necessities of life. As a matter of fact that 8% sales tax applies to only a part of the goods consumed, building products and fuel are exempt from that sales tax and if we accept the figures of the member for St. John's East that our imports are $80,000,000, we can see at once it must be reduced considerably in order to get some fairly accurate estimate of the amount on which we would have to pay.

Now the honourable member not only took eighty million but multiplied it by some figure of his own imagination and arrived at a total of four million dollars which we would have to pay each year because of the imposition of that sales tax.

The honourable member for Harbour Main in his speech on the Budget suggested that at least a portion of the surplus should be taken and spent as a subsidy on fish. He mentioned, or suggested the possible expenditure of one million or one and a half millions for such a project. But I am personally convinced that free trade is the mainstay of economy and the law of supply and demand should govern trade. I can tell you this, that the suggestion put forward by the honourable member for Harbour Main-Bell Island is not as good as the alternative which has been provided by this Government, which it had started during the year under review and is continuing this year when we have advanced loans to separate companies and have still others under consideration whereby they have taken thousands of fish off the salt fish markets and that fish taken off the salt fish markets has given to people engaged in the salt fishery a better chance of being able to get a more favourable price for their own particular article. This does not make any specific demands upon the finances of the Provincial Exchequer, on the other hand it does bring about a diversification of the fishing industry which is all for the good and we believe in the main a diversification of the fishery will do a great deal to help the fishermen of this Province. We are particularly interested, some of us, in the North East Coast because we represent constituencies of the North East Coast, and we know that although different factories erected on the North East Coast during the last few years have had great difficulty in getting sufficient supplies, we have hope that now under our policy of economic development and encouragement it may be possible to continue, and possibly even extend, their activities and thereby help the fishermen of the North East Coast.

The honourable member for St. John's East tried to comfort and solace himself by saying that we are taking credit today for plans laid down by the Commission of Government before they departed from office and he spoke of a ten year plan in the Educational Department. Now strangely enough the reconstruction policy of the erection of schools did start in 1938-39 and it was supposed to come to an end in 1948-49, surely before we came into office. Yet in spite of an expenditure of some three million dollars by the Commission of Government in that particular sphere, since we came into office we have spent and budgeted for one and a half million dollars, just about half the amount the Commission of Government spent in ten years of office in that particular line of work. If I might elaborate a little further on the doings of the Educational Department, I would point out that in 1944 the Commission of Government amended the teachers' salaries. This amendment was such that within six months the teachers all over the country made representation to the Government about the unfair and discriminatory effect of that particular salary scale but the teachers got no satisfactory reply from the Commission of Government until some two and a half years later when the Government granted them a bonus, but it remained for this Government after we came into office to put into effect for the first time in our history a salary scale based on qualifications and experience of teachers. We do not pretend the scale is all that it should be because I agree largely with the sentiments of the honourable member for White Bay, but we have gone a long way to correct some of the defects of the past.

For some years the Commission of Government had argued about the possibility of turning Memorial University College into a university, but it remained for this Government during its first session to make that a reality.

MR. CASHIN: You ought to make a job of it while you are at it. What has been done is a joke.

MR. HEFFERTON: The Commission of Government started a rehabilitation school for veterans coming from the war. It remained for this Government to decide after the veterans had been rehabilitated and gone out, that the vocational education school should remain as a distinct part of Provincial education system. The honourable member for Ferryland has criticized this but there are certain things we ourselves criticize because we have not been in the position to augment and put forward the things we have had in mind, but this school remains there to the credit of this Government. One might go further into detail of commitments made by the Commission of Government and brought to completion by this Government but enough has been said to prove that whereas naturally any government would be prepared to complete any commitments made by its predecessor if it was for the good of the country or for the Province or the people; they would follow a new policy if necessary.

Now, our new policy—and our budget is based on it—is a policy based on giving to the people of this Province expanded social services much better than hitherto and to raise money in order to give those services within the capacity of the people to pay. If we are going to grumble at the imposition of sales tax which we can collect on only a small part of the goods which we ordinarily consume, then we are forgetting another great source of revenue to this province. The honourable member for Ferryland said the other day that comparatively little is being expended on war services in this Province.

MR. CASHIN: I did not say that.

MR. HEFFERTON: It is too early for us to say, but by any increase in defence expenditure over the year, a considerable part of our national revenue will come from the effect of these operations and expansions.

MR. CASHIN: That is nothing to be proud of.

MR. HEFFERTON: On the other hand we build up our armed services as a defence from communism which is becoming world-wide.

Mr. Speaker, after reviewing the situation briefly in the short time at my disposal I feel that the budget gives promise of a better day for this Province.

MR. SPEAKER: I would like to remind the honourable member he has until six o'clock.

MR. HEFFERTON: I have finished, Mr. Speaker.

MR. SPEAKER: The Motion before the chair, is that I do now leave the Chair. Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means, Debate of the Budget Speech. The honourable Minister of Education has completed his speech. Is the House now ready for questions?

MR. MILLER: I move the debate be adjourned.

MR. JANES: I second that motion.

MR. SMALLWOOD: On that motion, Mr. Speaker, may I ask when my honourable friends opposite think they will be ready actually to proceed. Yesterday the honourable and learned Leader of the Opposition moved the adjournment of the debate and in doing so said it was not done for the purpose of his being first to resume the debate. If it was his intention to speak today he has not done so and my honourable friend the member for Placentia and St. Mary's has now moved the adjournment without saying, whether he is doing so to get first place tomorrow and might we therefore assume it is his intention to speak, in spite of the fact that the honourable Leader of the Opposition yesterday did the same thing and did not speak?

MR. SPEAKER: The motion is that the debate be adjourned.

MR. SMALLWOOD: And by precedent, Mr. Speaker, the honourable member moving the adjournment will be the first to speak when the debate is resumed, and in the absence of any statement to the contrary that is what is normally expected. I wonder if the honourable gentleman could say when he intends to resume the debate?

MR. MILLER: I am sorry, Mr. Speaker, if I have caused any confusion of the House's Orders. I was not here yesterday when the debate was adjourned but I am quite willing to go on now.

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable the Premier is wondering, I think, if it is the honourable member's intention to speak tomorrow.

MR. MILLER: Tomorrow.

Moved and seconded this debate is now adjourned.

Committee of the Whole on Supply:

MR. SPEAKER: Yesterday leave was given for this Committee to sit again today, I shall now leave the chair.

MR. HEFFERTON: Education—610: There is a change in 610-04, Mr. Chairman, because there was an allowance for two years' payments last year, but this year we have not only those we appointed last year, but those continuing from last year as it is a two year scholarship,

MR. HIGGINS: How many Provincial Scholarships are there now? That is quite an extension in this one.

MR. HEFFERTON: Last year there were no votes for machinery and equipment as we had enough supplies on hand at that time to take care of it. This year we hope to put in certain other services and we shall need certain machinery and supplies for these particular services. The number of instructors have been increased and we hope to put in a Radio and Wireless Service and Refrigeration Service and Sheet Metal and Welding Services and instructors for such. The vote is a little more than twice the amount of last year.

MR. CASHIN: How many students?

MR. HEFFERTON: Somewhere around eighty-eight students.

MR. CASHIN: What was it last year?

MR. HEFFERTON: About the same number and something over one hundred night students.

MR. HIGGINS: About 180 students. Where was the school conducted?

MR. HEFFERTON: On the South Side. Navigation was transferred from Memorial College.

Carried.

MR. HIGGINS: Extra Assistance was $6,000 more than last year.—On page 69—

MR. HEFFERTON: That is because of taking on casual employees and extra instructors for night classes.

MR. CASHIN: Mr. Speaker, in connection with the vote, I agree in principle but I do say this and I am speaking from knowledge again. In the last six months I have found the course in Diesel Engineering is absolutely inadequate. There are some good men but not practical; when they come down to business they cannot do the job. I have had experience and I know that these fellows just don't know the job after they go there for nine months.

MR. HEFFERTON: The course is supposed to be nine months.

MR. CASHIN: Well it is not enough. They cannot learn enough in nine months. It takes nearly five years to become a qualified marine engineer to go aboard a steamer. These engineers are turned out on an assembly line, so to speak, and come out and go on board and do the best they know how, and some of them have never seen the inside of a ship, and I know more than they do. Still that is the position and they are classed as operators of diesel equipment. I know it costs considerable money but if you do it, do it right, give them a real course, say two years. Nine months is not enough. We have practical men here in Newfoundland, you will find them at the Dock and some are on boats who have had many years' experience. Now I know one man in particular (from Port de Grave) who never went to a vocational school, and that fellow can teach in a practical way any of those students they turn out over on the South Side. The funny thing is when they do come out they think they know it all and if it applies in this particular field, it applies to all—to carpenters, bricklayers, etc. Trades of that kind can't be learned in nine months, you got to start properly and take two or three years and work up. If the Government is prepared to find the necessary money to do that it is a wonderful thing but to put these men out on the market in nine months is not only bad for business but for the individual himself. He gets in trouble and in many cases he does so because he does not know the job and right at a time when he is particularly wanted. I think we realize a young fellow leaving school always thinks he knows it all to begin with and lots of them know more than the boss. The result is they get fed up and quit the job but a man who starts at the bottom and works up for three or four years in the trade knows his job when he is finished. We have such men of practical experience right here; I am looking right at one, the Minister of Provincial Affairs who is a carpenter and bricklayer. He did not learn his trade in nine months but got 20c. or 25c. an hour when he started and knew his job when he was finished. Those fellows can't do it and it is just as well to close it up and pay them the money and forget about it; when they come out after nine months they don't know anything. Now I am not a diesel engineer. I know nothing about it. But I did have experience with them that cost me a lot of money. Put a man aboard a boat for Bermuda and find he knew nothing about a diesel engine and had to spend time and money on repairs. Came out again and had to put into another port in the West Indies because there was something wrong with the tail shaft and had it fixed up and had to go back to Bermuda again, and all because of inexperience. I point this out not with any degree of criticism but I would suggest to the Government to consider that they can't make a diesel engineer over-night. Give them a longer time, say two years. They should know something after two years. There are a lot of young fellows from the Army and some of them are down there for pocket money. But put them at sea and they can't go in and take charge, and they should have the necessary qualifications in order to take a ship to sea. That is not so at the present time. Here is what is happening today. There is a scarcity, perhaps six or eight qualified men in that business in the country who really have a kick. Here is what happens: I am operating a vessel. I want a diesel engineer. I go up to the Dock and they tell me that so and so is fully qualified and is a good man. I take him on their word and get hold of this fellow who says; "yes" he will come with me. He comes on the job and the next thing I have to get an order from the Federal Inspector down there asking him to give the man permission to go chief of my boat and I take the responsibility, not the Department of Shipping. I have to take the responsibility, but I can't get anyone else and have to take the next best. I contend we have to bring in good diesel engineers from the mainland, and our people will then be trained and the only way is to have them spend two years on the South Side under competent individuals. Now, I don't know if the instructors are competent or not, the Minister of Education knows that. But I make the suggestion that there are men in this country who could do the job, practical men not theoretical and they are up at the Dock, Newfoundlanders who know the job inside out. If I wanted a job done tomorrow I would get Mr. Meadus or Mr. Healey who are both men highly competent in their jobs. They know marine engineering besides diesel and any man who wants to know about a diesel engine can go up to the Dock where Mr. Meadus is in charge.

In all good faith I pass these suggestions along to the Government; they ought to try to do something about it. To take men out after nine months and let them loose is not good for the individual and is certainly going to mean a lot of expense to operators.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, the Government has quite a lot of sympathy for the views expressed by the honourable and gallant member. We have so much sympathy for them that we have been trying to plan something about it. Our plans are quite ambitious, indeed they are so ambitious as to be perhaps more ambitious than those of any other Province of Canada with one or two possible exceptions. We begin with the convictions that if ever there was a place that needed efficient, practical, vocational training, Newfoundland is that place, and when we think of vocational training for diesel engineers it is just one small phrase of the whole picture. We think of vocational training in a much broader sense, we think of navigation, particularly of navigation. We believe that Newfoundland should have in all Canada, if not all North America, the best school of navigation and our ambition is to have the best school of navigation, and that school will be part of the vocational institution to be inaugurated. We have made enquiries about the schools of navigation in Canada and we find that the best one is in British Columbia in the city of Vancouver. We believe we will not have very great difficulty in establishing a better navigational school here in St. John's than the one in Vancouver, which would make our school the best in Canada. We intend also to have a school of fisheries. In various parts of Canada they have schools of fishery. In the Province of Quebec they have, I think two schools. One at St. Anne Pocatiere which I had the opportunity of visiting last summer, and the other, I think, at Rimouski, there I speak from memory. Recently we had in St. John's a visitor from Nova Scotia, who helped to establish very fine schools of fisheries in Quebec and in Nova Scotia which are not nearly so important areas put together as Newfoundland, on any account or by any test; in quantity and quality we are way ahead not only of Quebec and Nova Scotia combined but combined also with Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick. We produce more fish than those four Provinces combined and we have more fishermen in Newfoundland than have those four Provinces. So, clearly, if they are justified in having schools of Fishery, Newfoundland is even more justified in so doing and we plan in the new Vocational Institution to have a very fine school of fisheries. Now that school is not in fact intended to be a higher learning school to train fishery research scientists. On the contrary it is to be a vocational school into which we hope to see, each winter, several hundred young men enter for courses of study in various practical things connected with the fisheries.

Now if the Committee will turn to page 130 of the Estimates, appendix 4, they will see an amount of $500,000 there for the current year, 1951-52. Department of Education, Vocational High School $500,000. Now the story back of that vote is this. The Government of Canada through the Department of Labour makes capital grants to Provincial Governments desiring to establish modern vocational institutes, and the Government can get from the Department of Labour in Ottawa the sum of $282,000 which is a free grant for the building of a new vocational school or institution, providing the Government here matches the grant, and so there we have in the Estimates an item of $500,000, as much as we could hope to spend on that purpose in this present financial year even if we began at once the construction of a new vocational school. But, Mr. Chairman, it is not our hope to erect a new vocational school at all. Our hope is that the money provided by the Department of Labour, $282,000, will be matched by this Government out of surplus, because of course it would be a capital expenditure and quite properly drawn from the surplus. This money is not to erect a new building at all but rather to purchase a building already built and the building we have in mind is the present Memorial University Building. What we hope to do is to take that $292,000, match it, which would make a total of something just under $600,000, and use it to buy the present Memorial University Building for the purpose of a vocational institution, and the Department of Labour has at this moment representatives in St. John's, examining that building to determine its suitability as a vocational school, and if their technical authorities here from Ottawa agree that that building is suitable for a vocational school, that is that the structure is strong enough and the ceilings high enough and the floors strong enough, to contain a variety of machinery that would be needed for a modern vocational school, if they agree the building is suitable from these standpoints, then I have good reason to believe the Canadian Government, through the Department of Labour, will agree that their grant of $282,000 when matched by us will not be used to erect a new building but rather to purchase that existing building, which is presently the building of the Memorial University, for the purpose of a vocational school, whereupon the present vocational school on the South Side of St. John's Harbour would be abandoned as such by this Government and the equipment moved from it to the present Memorial University. Then the question actually arises: what about the University? What will the University do for a building?

Here we come back to the contention of the Department of Education, held firmly by that Department and confirmed quite recently by an expert opinion from Doctor Newton, who was brought here by the Board of Regents of the University for the purpose of advising the board and the Government on the needs of the Newfoundland University. Dr. Newton confirmed the Department of Education in its view that you can never have a good university, sufficiently good, while it is housed in the present building, on the present Memorial University Grounds. So, therefore, if we are able to take this $292,000 as a capital grant from the Department of Labour, and match it, and we can then add still more money to it, I think we can proceed without delay the construction of an entirely new university building.

MR. HIGGINS: Is $600,000 the value of the present Memorial University College?

MR. SMALLWOOD: My honourable friend will appreciate this fact, that after we have bought, if we buy, the present University Building for the purpose of vocational school, that building will still belong to the Government as it does now. It is not a matter of buying the school and passing it over to the Government of Canada or anyone else. As a vocational school it will still be the property of the present owner, the Government of Newfoundland.

MR. HIGGINS: That does not answer my question. If the building is worth a million and the Government gives $600,000 then the College does not have a building.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That would be fine if we could put up that much but we are limited by certain considerations. The limit of the capital grant for this purpose is $292,000 and to get that much we must match it ourselves.

MR. FOGWILL: It is paid on a per capita basis.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Something of that order. Now we have at the present time something in the order of a quarter of a million dollars which has been contributed by people on the Mainland of Canada to the University, and was sort of a good will offering to the new Province. Now with that amount of approximately $600,000 which we can get from the sale of the present building for a vocational institution, add to it the sum of a quarter of a million dollars available from that other source, and another amount of a quarter of a million dollars which the Government recently got from the Government of Canada for the Laboratory Building in Maggoty Cove in St. John's which it recently sold to the Government of Canada, we would have a total of eleven hundred thousand dollars. Surely my honourable friend has no objection to the historical name of Maggoty Cove. It is in St. John's East, it is indeed Water Street East and is still known as Maggoty Cove, that is its name.

That would be a total of one million, one hundred thousand available for the erection of a suitable building for the University, and I draw the distinction between the singular and the plural for very good reasons that I am told that the modern theory of university housing, university accommodations, is that a number of smaller buildings is preferred to one large building so that on the new campus of the University, you would have a group of buildings properly spaced. The site we have in mind for that new campus is Halliday's Farm on the North Side of Elizabeth Street in the Housing Corporation Area, as it is commonly known.

MR. CASHIN: I hope it will be better built than the housing.

MR. SMALLWOOD: As this Government is better than previous Governments; I promise you that anything this Government does will be better than the previous one. Now, will a million, one hundred thousand dollars put a suitable and adequate building or buildings on that new campus for a University that will be a credit to the heroes of World Wars I and II in whose memory it is to be erected? Will it be a credit to the people of Newfoundland generally and to the Province of Newfoundland if it is built at a cost of one million, one hundred thousand dollars? I take leave to doubt it and I do not think that that sum would give Newfoundland the kind of university that we, all of us, I am sure, believe we ought to have in Newfoundland and which Newfoundland deserves. But I do know this, that it is essential that the University to be, should be born full blown. It cannot begin at one scale and end up in the course of time as a larger college. Another great field of financial assistance for that University still remains to be tapped. I refer to the people of Newfoundland. For I see no reason why the people of Newfoundland, thousands who have more than they need and even many who have less than they need, I see no reason why they would not contribute generously to the building of a new university for the people of this Province. One Company has already promised me personally, on behalf of the University, the sum of $25,000, one local firm in Newfoundland. Another local firm promised at least to match the amount from the first firm and I think indeed their contribution will do much more than merely match the one from the first company. So we can see at least a good possibility of raising a quarter of a million dollars here within this Province for the purpose of this new University, and so, Mr. Chairman, I could not resist the temptation to draw attention under the heading of this vote to the rather ambiguous plan in the Government's mind in respect to this new vocational school. Surely if all this is done and the Vocational Institution is housed in the present Memorial University Building, that resulting vocational school will at once become one of the finest in the whole Canadian Nation because there are not in Canada today many of these schools so generously housed as this one would be, if housed in the Memorial University Building.

Now what else would be on the present campus of the University besides the Vocational Institute? I do not know whether anything else would be there or not. Certainly we have two facts; one is that the present campus can never be adequate for a good university and two; that a vocational school will never need a campus so generous in proportion as the university would require. So whether or not anything else would ever be placed or be permitted to be placed on the existing campus of the University is a matter on which I have no firm opinion at the present time, and certainly I have no definite knowledge.

My honourable and gallant friend from Ferryland can appreciate therefore what I have said and the interest with which we listened to his remarks on the matter of vocational schools. He did not perhaps realize it but thus speaking as warmly as he did on the need for good vocational training in Newfoundland, he was expressing the sentiments of everyone on this side of the House.

MR. CASHIN: I got agreement for once in my life.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We agreed more than once. It is not because we are on opposite sides we must disagree with everything on the other side.

HON. E. S. SPENCER (Minister of Public Works): Every time you are right we agree.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Yes, every-time you are right we agree. That is not as often as we would like it to be, but it has happened more than once.

I thought the Committee would like to have these facts about our plans for vocational education. But when will these things happen? Certainly we could not move the Vocational School activity into the Memorial College until that building becomes available for this purpose, or until the new university is built, so that things may move smoothly and without interruption from the old building into the new to make room for the new Vocational School. Maybe that would all happen sometime between the beginning of the school year and the University year of 1952. So that we have this present year and all the spring and summer of 1952 and it ought to be possible to make this change and improvement at the beginning of the University year of 1952-53.

MR. FAHEY: Mr. Chairman, I am sure the Committee appreciates the explanation given by the honourable Premier, but I would like to remind the honourable Minister of Public Works that last night he told me I was taking up too much time of the Committee. I hope he does not consider these last 35 minutes too much time taken up with the explanation of the Premier.

MR. COURAGE: I don't think that remark is at all in order. I don't think any member of the Committee has tried to limit necessary explanations.

MR. HEFFERTON: 612 is a grant similar to that which we gave the Jubilee Guild last year.

613: I don't know if it is necessary to make very much comment on that, Mr. Chairman. There is one addition to the Staff, a field secretary whose chief purpose will be to act as the under-study for a field secretary that we hope to engage in the next month or so, and the cost for the next two years will be borne by a grant we received from the Carnegie Foundation.

MR. HIGGINS: How many centres are there in the Adult Education?

MR. HEFFERTON: We have no centres, we have a variety of teachers, spending three months in one centre, and three months somewhere else, about 20 per year, roughly.

614: Increase in salaries is due to the increased number of teachers and more teachers qualifying for higher grades.

614-04: That is the normal increase due to the normal increase in classrooms.

MR. HIGGINS: Is the augmentation out now for teachers?

MR. HEFFERTON: Yes, it went out last year with the new salary scale.

614-05: That figure is to be changed to $15,000. In 1949-50 we gave to Dalhousie, and last year five thousand in response to representation received, recently we have increased that amount making it $15,000 this current year. We have 28 students, medical and dental attending at the present time.

MR. HIGGINS: Is this in addition to fees? In other words Dalhousie is taking some of our students.

MR. FAHEY: I would like to ask the honourable Minister if that amount does not offset the fees of students in any way?

MR. HEFFERTON: That is a grant we pay. It is a sort of an affiliation fee. It is a grant to Dalhousie because of all the Mainland universities it is the one which caters most to our dental and medical needs, taking a large quota of our students.

MR. FAHEY: How many students do we have in there for this fee? I understand there are a lot who can't get in. Can you explain?

MR. HEFFERTON: We have 28 at the present time. That is 28 students studying either medicine or dentistry. Also we have quite a lot of other general students.

MR. RUSSELL: That is $10,000 which should be added to the total and, Mr. Chairman, if we keep on adding on we may end up with a deficit after all.

MR. HEFFERTON: 615: This item is about the same. There is an increased vote for radio education. Last year for the first time we spent $5,000 in placing radios in the schools and this year it is increased to 10 thousand, and we might say we have requisitions already in the office to take care of that amount.

MR. HIGGINS: With regard to visual education, I presume the teachers go all over the Island. A vote of this kind is supposed to be Island-wide; $20,000 seems to be small.

MR. HEFFERTON: We send the field man and projectors out.

MR. RUSSELL: Page 69—Could you tell me what happened to the Audio Visual Supervisor?

MR. HEFFERTON: $3,300 is correct, it was $3,200 last year, but the man appointed went up one step in the scale so that he is now $3,300 on page 49.

MR. FOGWILL: Are all positions in the Department filled? What is the total number employed?

MR. HEFFERTON: I could not tell you how many, there are four or five which are vacant and two or three in the Audio-Visual to the best of my knowledge; there is one in Public Examinations, one shorthand-typist which I believe is vacant, making nine.

MR. FOGWILL: About nine or ten vacant?

MR. HEFFERTON: I give that figure subject to correction.

616: Public Examinations: There is a difference of $14,000. The public marking of exams has been carried on for a number of years by the Council of Education and the marking has been done by individual teachers. They mark them on their own and that has been the subject of a great deal of criticism for a number of years. We have not adopted a panel board system and the increased cost is more than off-set by the general satisfaction derived from such a system.

617: Encouragement of Cultural Activities. This item covers certain activities along cultural lines.

MR. HIGGINS: There is to be an additional $10,000 to be added to the total.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, it is not important that the total in the Departments be correct. It has occurred to me at least as late as yesterday that I was forgetting that, what is really passed is the Appropriation Bill, which is the correct totals. We are not really passing these estimates but a total amount for each Department. We are not tied to these estimates, but we are tied to the Appropriation Bill.

MR. HIGGINS: If an amount of say $100,000 were granted and you spent more than that amount you would have to account for the grant.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Yes by a supplementary Supply Bill. We take the amounts as corrected from here.

Department of the Attorney General:

HON. LESLIE R. CURTIS (Attorney General): 701: Same as last year. 702: Same as last year.

703: The same as last year except a slight adjustment in salaries.

704: St. John's Magistrates Court: We have increased the salary of the District Magistrate and we call him now District Magistrate and Clerk of the Peace. Salary scale from $3,300 to $4,500.

MR. HIGGINS: What would a County Court Judge get?

MR. CURTIS: We cannot begin to touch these salaries. The Magistrate of St. John's won't have as much to do, if County Court Judges are appointed. There will be a lot of motor and other cases taken off their hands. The position is not quite clear as yet as to what is going to happen.

MR. HIGGINS: They are worth quite a lot of money.

MR. CURTIS: We appreciate that and it is why we raised the salaries over the ordinary District Magistrates to $4,500.

MR. HIGGINS: The County Court Judges won't have much work.

MR. CURTIS: We are hoping we might actually do without some of them if the District Court Judge is also a Magistrate. There may be two more in St. John's actually four in the neighbourhood.

705—Magistrates: We have provided for five districts instead of six and reduced the number from 13 to 12. We have, as the honourable member knows, just put through a Bill about family courts and we have made provision here for payment and a District Magistrate's salary would enable us to get a good type man. We hope to obtain a lawyer for that position. The remaining items on 705 are the same as last year.

706—Deeds and Companies: We have made two salary increases here. We have put the Registrar of Deeds and Companies on a higher scale from $3,800 to $4,200, the same scale as a Divisional Head and have increased the Deputy Registrar of Deeds and Companies from $2,000 to $2,400. He is a very faithful and conscientious worker.

707—Constabulary: I am still not satisfied that the Constabulary Vote is as small as it should be. It is costing us roughly $15,000 to police St. John's for the amount we are getting done. We are policing the rest of the country with the RCMP. In other words three hundred thousand people are being policed for less than the people of St. John's which is costing us $15,000. That should give the St. John's members food for thought. We are getting it down gradually by having one thing and another reduced. We had not figured on maintaining all the men we have, but because of the RCMP taking over we find ourselves with more men than we need. They are gradually moving into new positions. Take for instance the total on page 71 is down from 263 to 190 which is 73 fewer than last year and we are continually and constantly working in an effort to transfer men to other departments.

The RCMP: The actual amount is $196,000, last year we only paid half and because their year ending is different from ours, this year's will be $235,200.

Fire Department: 709: The only difference is in salaries. We have made provisions for three additional men. The men in the fire station for some reason have one day on and one day off and the sergeants two days on and one day off, in other words the higher paid men were not treated so well. In order to remedy this, we had to take on three additional men so that now the Sergeants are treated the same as the other men.

710: H. M. Penitentiary and Gaols: The salaries are up a bit, details on page 72. There is no difference in the Superintendents, but we have increased the number of wardens from 24 to 30. We have not actually made the appointments yet but we have increased the number in order to enable them to go on a better shift than they have been having hitherto. We have been handicapped by a short staff and we are now remedying this as shown under this sub-head.

711: Miscellaneous: The same as last year, with a slight reduction in investigations. We have cut down the conveyance of prisoners by $2,000. The other items as the honourable members can see are practically the same.

712: Consolidation of Statutes: That is for printing and making provisions for printing of the Statutes through the consolidation committee.

MR. RUSSELL: Will this actually finish it?

MR. CURTIS: The staff is cleaning up the Acts as you know with great pains. It is a tidying up job.

713: Transportation: Royal Commission, no vote. But $6,000 to the Maritime Board of Trade, a board consisting of all the Maritime Provinces and they look after our freight rates also providing $10,000 for the Board of Transport. We don't know if we will need it or not, we never know when we will have to make corrections with respect of freight rates. I may say, Mr. Chairman, that the Attorney General's Department spent $4,000 less than voted, and for that reason we are asking just as much as last year, the difference being a revote for equipment which we provided for but did not actually buy. I move the various headings be adopted.

MR. FOGWILL: Mr. Chairman on page 72 the total number—389—is that the actual number at this time?

MR. CURTIS: No, I think we have not as yet appointed the extra sergeants and wardens, and we hope to be able to recruit them from the surplus police and as this number goes up therefore the number of police will come down.

MR. FAHEY: Salaries 702, Page 70, Legal Assistance?

MR. CURTIS: I forgot to explain that. At the moment we only have one and we have been struggling and struggling. I can't tell you how difficult it is to get along with only one. We have a lot of legislation, about 25 Bills there now, which may actually delay the House. We have about 25 more Bills to come forward and it is impossible to get through all the work. We are providing for two additional assistants, one for replacement of Mr. Myles Murray, the other one is proposed for the Department. I understand the Department of Fisheries and Cooperatives would like to have the use of them and very many boards of the Government need lawyers.

MR. HIGGINS: With so many Bills coming up we won't close until the end of June.

MR. CURTIS: I can tell the House the Department has been short staffed with two legal assistants reduced to one, trying to struggle along with one and have not been able to do it. We are making arrangements to have three.

MR. FOGWILL: We were wondering what was causing the great delay and now you tell us there are quite a lot more bills to come up. I hope we get away for the races, that is all.

Carried. 703, carried. 704, carried. 705, carried.

MR. FAHEY: I would like to ask the Minister about living allowances to Magistrates in rural districts, $1,600; is that in the form of bonus or cost of living or in addition to the salaries already mentioned?

MR. CURTIS: I have already explained to the Committee salaries were up to $4,500.

MR. FAHEY: But here again we have an amount for $1,600,—that is a bonus, is it?

MR. CURTIS: We always give the magistrates a grant or additional salary because of additional cost of living.

MR. FAHEY: What is the other $1,600 for.

MR. CURTIS: I don't know. It is the same as last year.

MR. FAHEY: I would like to find out. In Corner Brook they get $4,700 and in St. John's $4,500, is that right?

MR. CURTIS: I think the Corner Brook cost of living bonus is higher than St. John's.

Carried. 708, carried. 709, carried; through 713 carried.

MR. CHAIRMAN: It being now 6:00 o'clock the Committee will rise until 8:00 o'clock.

NIGHT SESSION

8:30 P.M.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, the next order of business is the Department of Natural Resources, but unfortunately the Acting Minister of Natural Resources is absent from the Committee as is also the Minister of Health. They are both present at a function in the Pitts Memorial Hall and will not be present for the evening. The Department which follows after the Department of Natural Resources in the Estimates is the Department of Public Works, and though my honourable friend was not expecting to be called on just yet tonight, I think he is as usual ready and can proceed.

Department of Public Works:

MR. SPENCER: Mr. Chairman, in opening the estimates for the Department of Public Works for the fiscal year 1951-52, I shall endeavour to go along as far as possible. I had arranged to have my Deputy Minister come along about 8.30 this evening as I did anticipate some work, but I think it is possible to get along fairly well and if there is some point not quite clear we can defer it until such time as my adviser arrives.

901: Minister's Office: Honourable members will notice there is no particular difference from last year. There is a slight increase in 901—02 due to additional postage.

902: General Office: If the honourable members will turn to page 75 they will find the distribution of salaries under 902. There will be a change under Deputy Minister as had already been explained in connection with other departments. That will make exactly one hundred dollars difference in the total in as much as the Deputy Minister has reached the top of his bracket for some little time past and he is now entitled to one increase. The total then is practically the same merely taking into account the additional remuneration allowed. The Assistant Deputy, there is an increase already provided for and is in accordance with the scale which has been changed.

903: Accounting Office: There is a reduction in the total, as the accounting has been reduced due to the change over in the Accountancy system.

904: Registration of Motor Vehicles: Again on page 75 is to be found the distribution of salaries. The honourable members will perceive a difference in the salary of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles who has been working up to the present on an ordinary first grade clerk's salary which has apparently been an anomaly. Strictly speaking, in the opinion of some of us who know the work that officer has been performing, we feel a change should have been made possibly some two years or more ago, and that officer should have been raised, as he now has been, to the status of a divisional head. Consequently, the scale is now $3,800-100-4,200. The clerks have been changed. There are now one clerk grade two, and three clerks grade three. There is one additional shorthand-typist. The House will surely agree there has been a large increase in the amount of work in this particular office and that the increase is very well justified. The total additional cost is just under $5,000.

If further details are required, I have with me a document which shows that up to the end of April this year alone, the revenue collected in the Registration Department amounted to over $364,000 for the month of April alone and that has involved a very considerable amount of work during the latter part of March and April. It has been customary in the past, and has still been carried out this year, to allow 30 days of grace for motor registration. The fiscal year ending March 31, did not in any way interfere with motorists to compel them to take out 1952 licenses, and I am happy to say that most motorists through the country were decidedly co-operative, and a very large percentage—already 13,000 vehicles have been registered this spring which means a tremendous amount of work for this particular section of the Department of Public Works, and I would like to pay a tribute to the officers in charge for the initiative in planning their work with very little cost in taking care of the work in the two large industrial centres of Grand Falls and Corner Brook. This year we did arrange for a temporary assistant at Headquarters, and an officer was sent to Grand Falls where he in turn was given some help by other officials under Government pay, such as police officers, and the same thing was done in Corner Brook, and the officer went on to Harmon Field where vehicles at the American Base were looked after, as I remarked a moment ago, at very little cost to the Department and with great convenience to the people in those two districts which saved them the necessity of making out licenses and sending to St. John's for license plates. I am very happy, as I said before, to pay tribute to the officers in charge and feel they have done a very good job.

906: Buildings: The staff has been increased from 69 to 74. This is due to the addition of one clerk, grade 3 and four additional caretakers for the various buildings.

907: Roads and Bridges: The change there has been due to no particular increase in salaries but we had to plan for some additional help in the Division due to the additional work caused by the Trans-Canada Highway Project. Honourable members will notice the increase is from $147,000 to $167,000, and on page 76 they will find the break-down. The Chief Highway Engineer's salary is the same as before. We have provisions for three resident engineers in the Grade One Class which we did not have last year, and three resident engineers, Grade II. We have appointed two, the third has not been appointed up to the present time although provisions are made in the Estimates for it. Further down we find one additional grade two clerk in Roads and Bridges and one additional grade three clerk, which has caused an increase of $2,000 in one case and about the same amount in the other. Actually three of these men were civil servants transferred to our department from the Department of Public Welfare. One was put into this division of Roads and Bridges, another in the Motor Registration. The total then for the Department of Roads and Bridges is just $20,000 higher than the previous year.

908: Miscellaneous Services: The vote is exactly the same as the previous year. The gross total of the Department estimated for this year has unfortunately been reduced from the amount of $10,808,600 to $10,167,200. Honourable members may possibly question why the Department of Public Works which has such a large number of projects has been actually reduced from the previous year, whereas some of the other Departments have had slight increases. Very logically that can be explained in this manner. Honourable members have already been given some information that due to the request of the Federal Minister of Finance in his Budget Speech to all Provinces to curtail where possible expenditure for the coming year, and our Department of Public Works is one which controls and handles a lot of expenditures in comparison to other Departments and probably came in for the largest share of the cuts. We actually estimated for, or planned, rather, that we would spend some four and a half million on the Trans-Canada Highway this year, but we are trying to fall in line with the Federal suggestion and that sum has been cut in half, and in connection with the construction and improvements of roads 907-08, we have planned a much larger vote and that too has been curtailed. However, we feel that the maintenance will not suffer too badly in spite of the fact that this year has been an abnormally bad one, and people who come in from near-by suburbs or across the Avalon Peninsula have good reason to complain of the conditions of the roads this year, but most people will agree it is to be attributed to weather conditions. There was very little snow to cover our roads during the past winter and the fact that we did not have that protection for the surface was no doubt a contribution to the present condition, as the frost has been coming out of the ground and heavy traffic was moving practically the whole winter with heavy chains; naturally during the mild weather our roads had to suffer. As a matter of fact paved roads all over the North American Continent suffered badly, particularly throughout the Maritimes, as we have first hand information from some of my friends of the various roads divisions in the Maritimes as to just how badly their roads suffered. Consequently we may take a certain amount of pride in the fact that our roads did not suffer more than they really did. During the past three weeks our life in the Department of Public Works has not been worth living with calls from various individuals who wished to get through to the Burin Peninsula which was recently connected with the Highroads in the Districts of my honourable colleagues, the honourable members for the districts of Burin and Fortune Bay, who were no doubt very happy last year when they were able to get the connection through, but before very long we had many headaches and complaints from people of the Burin Peninsula, and we tried as best we could to allay their fears with the encouraging hope that soon Old Sol would get busy and dry it up a bit when we could get a grader out on it and endeavour to make it more pleasant for all concerned. That same condition applied all over the Avalon Peninsula where we have dirt roads. However we are now getting them in a bit better shape and we hope as the season advances the condition will be remedied considerably and our friends will not have many reasons to complain. The total vote then in the Department of Public Works has been decreased from last year to $10,167,200, for the fiscal year 1951-52. I don't know that I need say much more at the present time but I feel I cannot help expressing my viewpoint on these demands made on the Department. I feel I would be remiss in my duty to the Department, were I not to point out that with this curtailed expenditure with actually a half million dollars less than last year it must be fairly obvious, with the increased mileage of roads built, that our work would rather be extended instead of curtailed and as a result we must try and measure the garment according to the cloth. No doubt the Minister of Public Works and his staff, for this fiscal year, will come in for some criticism when we are unable to agree to the many demands which will probably be made upon us. However this is our job, and we intend to do the best we can, and I think possibly at this juncture I can say I have every confidence in the staff of the Department and now as we have been fortunate in securing this extra engineer to get along with our bridge work. He is very busily engaged at this moment designing and planning various bridges we hope to build. The House will appreciate that the supply of steel is very essential in the construction of concrete bridges and of which we use a large amount, but we have now no assurance that we will be able to obtain this much-needed product. At the request or rather on the advice of the Premier some months ago when we were endeavouring to formulate plans, we took the matter up with the authorities on mainland only to be told that in the event of defence requirements they thought it likely they would have to supply that demand first, and as there has not been any lifting of restrictions and we have not received any directive from the Department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa, therefore we have no assurance that steel will be forthcoming. Several other avenues of coming. Several other avenues of supply have been tapped and we are hoping that the supply of steel for our bridges for this year will be forthcoming but we have no definite assurance at this time.

Mr. Speaker, we might possibly start at 901 and I move we get along with this particular vote.

Carried.

802-903—Carried. 904 :

MR. FAHEY : As I understand last year for motor registrations the amount was $13,900, and this year it is $18,800, or roughly an increase of 35%. I would like the honourable Minister to explain that.

MR. SPENCER : I did not figure it out, but that is practically correct. 905, 906—Carried.

MR. RUSSELL : The honourable Minister gave some explanation about the salaries, but if we turn to page 37—906—we will find a very big item, and I would like to have an opportunity to first look at the various pages of details further on in the book and have some explanation from the honourable Minister. For instance 906-03. Maintenance of Public Buildings.

MR. SPENCER : I understand there is some direct point the honourable member wishes to refer to.

MR. RUSSELL : Page 101. That item, Home for Aged and Infirm $5,200, is that just a beginning, not the total amount?

MR. SPENCER : For the information of the honourable member and the House, I am very pleased he raised the question. The item of $5,200 referred to for the Home for the Aged and Infirm is something that we hope will relieve our minds at least to some extent over the existing conditions now and that have existed in connection with that institution which is over-crowded, goes without saying. My honourable colleague, the Minister of Welfare, and I with one or two others recently visited the building and if we were to enter into a description of it, it would not help matters an awful lot. I think frankly the time has come when we in this Province must do something about that home for the aged and infirm. While the honourable member for Bonavista South suggests that $5,000 will not take care of the whole project, the purpose this year is to endeavour to provide a building to take care of one section of the inmates there to try and house them with greater care and security, and the Department of Welfare is hoping for the time being to arrange accommodations for the other section of the inmates in private homes and houses such as boarding or something of that kind. Whether we can accomplish it in its entirety we do not know, but there is a tremendous dread hanging over the head of the Department of Public Welfare since this Government took office, and no doubt our predecessors felt somewhat the same way, but did not do anything about it. The present administration is endeavouring to do something and we hope to build this year one section to take care of, I believe it is, the male section of that institution, and it could be the other way about, in any case the honourable Minister reminded me it is to reduce the number because the place is over-crowded and we are striving to reduce the number by placing some out in private homes and providing a more secure building which the present administration hopes to do, we hope to give them a safer residence and a higher standard, and we think we will need $20,000 for that purpose. $5,000 is provided for this year and it may prove inadequate. The honourable member knows the position. However,

$5,000 has been provided this year and we hope we will get going on that building in the not too distant future.

MR. RUSSELL: That is not to take care of all in there, but it is hoped to build something to relieve the overcrowding.

Another item on page 103: Department of Natural Resources, Forest Fire Patrol Whitbourne $15,000. It was $25,000 last year. That will mean the renovation.

MR. SPENCER: Yes the Department of Natural Resources now advises us they will be fairly content with the renovation of the building as recently put forth. I think the honourable member knows about that and the $15,000 is largely then for the purpose of renovation and fitting that building. The fact that $15,000 is voted this year might possibly be the affect of the reduction due to curtailment in general all the way down the line.

MR. RUSSELL: $47,000 for Cottage Hospitals—Springdale—is that the final amount for the actual completion of the Springdale Hospital? Last year there was $125,000 voted and only some $90,000, I believe, spent. The total cost for the Springdale Hospital was estimated to be $165,000. The expenditure up to March 31 this year was $113,000, which leaves a balance of $47,000. This also applies to the Channel Hospital, a figure of $140,000 was estimated to complete that.

MR. SPENCER: I think it might be well for the House to know that we have run into conditions at Channel which have boosted the actual cost of that Hospital to possibly some $15,000. I have personally on behalf of the Department criticized the site on two occasions. The site chosen turned out to have a very heavy deep section of muskeg or black muck. Some people in Newfoundland will understand what I mean and we had to put in about, I should think, two or three thousand feet of concrete flooring there which ordinarily would have been laid with a normal fill on the surface to bring it up to the required height, but this muck or black muskeg would not permit that, the result was that we had to dig an excavation after the foundation of the building was laid and the frame work was set up as much as 12 feet deep under the whole of that area which would have cost us a very considerable sum. The result was Public Works recommended another survey and put in some additional concrete and arranged to pour our floor on that rather than dig out the black muck with a resultant saving of probably $8,000, but the position is now that it is going to cost a total of $170,000 rather than the original estimate and we hope the $140,000 voted this year is to complete the job. The Fogo hospital is by now practically completed. We have a final estimate of $16,000 to take care of it and unless some unforeseen circumstance presents itself, the Fogo Hospital will be then completed for that sum of $16,000 now estimated. In connection with the item for the Ferryland Hospital, the site is yet unknown. The honourable member for Ferryland is not present or he would probably bring me up on this. We are all well aware of the fact that the hospital is to be built, we have a sum provided for it and when a decision is reached by the Department of Health we have the money if and when that time comes. I think that answers the points.

MR. HIGGINS: 906: Who is the Chief Engineer of Building; does he correspond to the old government Engineer?

MR. SPENCER: In reply to the honourable Leader of the Opposition. We have not at present a chief engineer of building. At one time we had a chief engineer of the Department of Public Works. That does not conform to the present arrangements. At that time the Chief Engineer was in charge of all Public Works. At the present time we have an engineer in the Building Division who has been classified as Acting Chief on the retirement of Mr. Robinson, just over a year ago and now we have, as the House is well aware, an engineer for roads division and an engineer for the building division in two separate bodies so that it does not correspond to the original chief engineer of the Department of Public Works.

MR. HIGGINS: How do you draw the distinction in salaries then between one engineer and another?

MR. SPENCER: In an attempt to explain one could very easily step on somebody's toes. The actual position is that most people employ an engineer to take care of certain duties or to perform a certain service and on that basis the difference appears. If the honourable member is referring to the Chief Engineer of the Trans-Canada Highway in our Highroads Division, his salary does differ from the Acting Chief Engineer of building. Different expenditures are controlled by the Chief Engineer of the High Roads, some fifty or sixty millions of dollars. whereas the actual expenditure for the building division is very much less and probably does not extend to more than a million and a half in any one year. I think that in itself pretty much explains the position. Salaries to engineers vary, depending on the responsibility of the office.

MR. HIGGINS: Following that question: You had a road engineer here in 1947 and the classification, road engineer has been replaced and was changed over in the autumn of 1951, to the classification of Chief Highway Engineer. Who was the road engineer last year?

MR. SPENCER: The same gentleman as the year before, who has been with the Department for eighteen years.

MR. HIGGINS: Where does Mr. Knight come in?

MR. SPENCER: Mr. Knight happens to be referred there as Assistant Chief Highway Engineer. Previously he was classified as Engineer for Surveys and Design. Mr. Knight is now Assistant Chief Highway Engineer.

MR. HIGGINS: Who is the Building Engineer?

MR. SPENCER: The Building Engineer referred to there is a son of John N. Howley, a very young man classified as second grade engineer. He takes the place of Mr. Whelan who was our Building Superintendent and transferred his allegiance to the Municipal Council. I think that is the one referred to.

MR. HIGGINS: I was wondering where Mr. Knight came in.

Carried.

MR. RUSSELL: 907: On page 38, Mr. Chairman, there are one or two things I would like to check on. I am glad to see the grant for local road committees up a little. These committees are doing good work. But 907-03-04, Construction of new roads: This is not as bad as it sounds, I hope.

MR. SPENCER: There has been no vote but we kept the heading in as under the new arrangement, 04 and 03 are taken care of in one item, $2,000,000 for this year.

MR. RUSSELL: There is no break-down in the end of the book.

MR. SPENCER: No, it is not provided. We have a tabulated list for presentation to the Government at some future date, in fact inclusion in the list is no assurance of the work being done, our planning is in accordance with the Government and the people. As far as the honourable member for Bonavista South is concerned, in my Department he is just one of various representatives of the Government who has made the odd call on the Minister of Public Works, on our Department, and in justice to him, that while considerable work was going on in the District he represented, I will say that he was not at all obnoxious as far as my Department was concerned, and had he remained so with all and sundry, he would not find himself today in that undesirable situation he is now.

Therefore the position is that 03 and 04 are all together in one vote.

MR. HIGGINS: I am wondering, Mr. Chairman, there are some foreign gentlemen here who have been taken on for work on bridges, are they included in this?

MR. SPENCER: In reply to the honourable and learned Leader of the Opposition with regard to the three engineers he referred to in the House some little while ago. A draftsman and another, I think, are not classified as civil servants, they are only here with us on a contractual basis. We hired one only additional road engineer on the standard of a civil servant and that is the gentleman we managed to get from Saskatchewan, one last year and one this year, two actually. The former whom we in the Department were very proud to find, is well qualified as a road engineer. The other is not listed in the budget as he will be paid from the Trans-Canada Highway. In other words the same as bulldozer operators or anyone else.

MR. HIGGINS: You have a bridge architect in connection with the Trans-Canada Highway.

MR. SPENCER: Yes, and his salary is not voted, but if you would like to know we would be very glad to tell you.

MR. HIGGINS: I may say I was talking about the difference between two engineers, I was not trying to find fault with Mr. French's salary. I have been told that Mr. French's qualifications are high, and his work of such value to your department that he cannot be dispensed with.

MR. SPENCER: I agree with the honourable member it would be very difficult to replace him.

907 carried.

MR. HORWOOD: Does that mean that Civil Servants are not covered by the Workmen's Compensation Act?

MR. SPENCER: I would like to point out in reply to the honourable member for Labrador, that the Department of Public Works has $15,000 for Workmen's Compensation Act in order to avoid paying a much higher premium to some insurance company. The Workmen's Compensation Board was not set up at the time of these estimates and we had no assurance that it would be set up and working. As far as I know our workers are covered by the Workmen's Compensation but that sum is there, and any amount, as the honourable member knows, not spent at the end of the year becomes a drop balance. I would like to say, for many years when all conditions were applicable to workmen's compensation, that all claims have been met when the various proofs came in from doctors and others. We have made awards meeting all claims, and the Department can take very much pride in their safety margin, but I leave that for the public to judge, yet we are happy to know that our accident record has been very low indeed and we are proud of it. I am not quite sure as to that sum. If it is placed there as the result of a decision of the department, I am not at the moment in a position to say whether we go under Workmen's Compensation or continue on paying under the same conditions as before.

Carried.

MR. FAHEY: I would like to point out in reference to the total, the honourable Minister said in his remarks there was a difference of a half million dollars; now if you subtract $10,167,00 from $10,517,000 that was not a half million when I went to school. Furthermore the difference between the total now and 1949-50 shows an increase of nearly three millions, yet the Minister will get up and contend you are saving half a million dollars.

MR. SPENCER: The honourable member might be justified; I appreciate the point but he is slightly in error when he referred to saving. What I stated was that the vote for the Department of Public Works this year is less than last year, true, I said a half a million, but I did not refer to it as savings. I have a bigger grudge than the honourable member as my Department is cut down so low that we will have a strain to meet the demands of the public, but we have endeavoured to keep it as low as possible due to a request for retrenchment, and the vote is less than last year.

MR. FAHEY: It is three millions more than 1949.

MR. SPENCER: In 1949 we were not in office all the year and the votes were very small.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, in the absence of the Minister of Health we might let that Department stand over until later and the same with regards to Welfare. We might now take the Board of Liquor Control. This I think comes under me and I am probably the first teetotaler to be responsible for the Board of Liquor Control.

MR. HIGGINS: Does a gentleman drink when he is a teetotaler?

MR. SMALLWOOD: I take a glass of wine, but I have yet to taste my first drink of hard liquor since I was born. I may have missed something but nevertheless I am glad to have missed it.

MR. HIGGINS: And some of us boast we have taken some.

MR. FAHEY: And some of us boast when we take some.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is true of honourable members and others who take it.

MR. HIGGINS: I hope you taste it before you die.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I never made a practice of tasting carbolic acid either, and I must confess, I don't miss rum any more than I miss carbolic acid. I never tasted either. I have not a thing to say against my honourable friend if he enjoys it.

MR. HIGGINS: You are trying to tell us that they are the same thing but we are not alone as shown by the Liquor Board.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Carbolic Acid and Liquor, I have never tasted nor don't miss but far be it from me to say a word against my honourable friend the Leader of the Opposition if he enjoys a hot toddy, and he can't say he is alone in the world, as the figures on this page seem to indicate. There are others who also take an occasional drink from year to year and even from day to day.

MR. HIGGINS: I hope when the occasion comes, the honourable Premier will realize the difference between a drink of rum and taking carbolic acid.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I only hope I may never know the difference and I am sure my honourable friend, the Minister of Provincial Affairs will agree with me on that.

I do not know what explanation my honourable friends may desire to have on these estimates.

MR. HIGGINS: Are they full-time jobs?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Yes, full-time.

MR. HIGGINS: And they are not supposed to do other work?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Well, I will tell my honourable and learned friend quite frankly that the Chairman of the Liquor Board was the Assistant and Campaign Manager of Confederation, and played a most prominent part in winning Confederation as my right-hand man, and ever since that time he has been a close and intimate friend, both personal and political friend of mine, and I have called upon him on more than one occasion in the course of a month to do various things for me as Premier of Newfoundland. He was for a time my Executive Assistant, and I shall continue to call upon him when I have occasion.

MR. HIGGINS: I was not talking about that at all but—

MR. SMALLWOOD: If my honourable friend is referring to political work that Mr. Gregory Power continues to do at my request, political work for me.

MR. FAHEY: I thought Civil Servants—

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Power is not a civil servant. He is one of the brainiest and ablest, and one of the most brilliant men in all this Province today. I am exceedingly proud to call him my friend and proud he calls me his friend.

MR. FAHEY: He is not a Minister of the Crown and not a member of the Parliament and he gets paid $5,000, yet he is not a civil servant.

Gross Total $209,000.

MR. FOGWILL: How many motor vehicles are owned by the Board?

MR. SMALLWOOD: As far as I know only one. They may have more.

I am not too familiar with the mechanical operation of that Board. I rarely go in the building and so there are without doubt things in the day-to-day operation with which I am unfamiliar. I do want to say this that practically the whole public of Newfoundland has given high marks to the Board for the splendid work they have done since they were appointed, by way of cleaning up what was a terrible mess in the matter of taverns in Newfoundland. I think every fair-minded citizen who was familiar with the state of these taverns before this Board took over and has seen the improvement made since then, every fair minded citizen will give the Board very high marks for the work they have done. They deserve a great deal of credit. The taverns in Newfoundland were not much of a credit to Newfoundland before the improvements were put into effect but I think the average tavern in Newfoundland now stands up very favourably in comparison with the taverns in other parts of North America. That is entirely the result of the policy and work of the Liquor Control Board.

If there are any further explanations the honourable members would desire to have, I would be glad to give any information I have, and if I have not surely I can undertake to get the information, if possible, for the Committee.

MR. HIGGINS: 1203: Page 95. Nineteen Salesmen, starting on $1,050 and going to $1,900. What is meant by putting in $1,400?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Perhaps some honourable Minister who is more familiar with the Civil Service could answer that far more readily than I. I think my honourable and learned friend will find the same practice scattered throughout this book. I think if he comes on after 25 years of age, he starts at the higher point.

MR. RUSSELL: Assuming all this is correct, and we have no reason to doubt it, we know the public agrees that the Board has done good work but now that that Board has done the work and has put the taverns and so on, on a higher basis, is it the Government's intention then to retain the Board?

MR. SMALLWOOD: To that very question raised by my honourable friend, some thought has been given as to whether or not there will be need to continue the full membership of the Board indefinitely. No decision has been taken but I would not say that their work is yet finished. There remains yet things for them to do, the bulk of it, I admit, is finished, but there still remains more improvements for the Board to make. The point will undoubtedly be reached when the Government will have to consider carefully whether there is need to continue the full Board presently numbering a Chairman and three members. They undertook a most important piece of work and have gone well along but when the point is reached where the work is completed, careful thought will have to be given as to whether it is or is not necessary to continue the Board with the present number, namely a Chairman and three members.

MR. HIGGINS: Should not the General Manager of the Institution which brings in five millions here be in the same position as a Deputy Minister at least?

MR. SMALLWOOD: I am exceedingly sorry, I don't know if the printed estimates show it, but the Manager has had a salary increase quite recently. It is shown here in the printed estimates as $3,800-100-$4,200, but he has recently been granted the scale of a Divisional Head. This salary is now an increase over the salary he was getting up to a matter of three or four weeks ago. He has been increased to the scale of a Divisional Head. While I am at it I would like to say that on all the evidence, Mr. French is a very experienced and conscientious, competent manager and a man who has had a good record and who deserves well of this Committee and this Government.

MR. FAHEY: On page 95-1201, we have a Chairman of the Board at $5,000 and two members at $4,000 each, that is a total of $13,000. I know it has just been explained to the Committee all the good work which has been done and the work of cleaning up the taverns, putting them in shape and so on. But in my opinion, this Board did not do that, it was the inspectors who have taken care of that and with that in mind I do not see the necessity of any Board. There was in my opinion, $13,000 wasted, and I would make an amendment where it reads $14,220, to be reduced to $2,300.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is a new thought, to me quite novel, quite unique, quite interesting, that the credit for the very fine work, admittedly fine work of the Board, is to be given to the Inspectors. That is a novel idea to me that they should be given the credit for cleaning up the taverns, introducing policies and carrying out a program. It is new to me and quite novel, and entirely untrue, as a matter of fact there is not a scintilla of truth or foundation in it, nevertheless it has been given as a theory.

MR. FAHEY: Who inspects?

MR. SMALLWOOD: The Inspectors. Nevertheless that theory is quite untrue; in fact, it is so far fetched and novel that I am lost for words, I am left speechless.

MR. FAHEY: It is the first time in my life I have made history.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Frankly he has left me speechless. There are three Inspectors appointed by the Board to enforce the policy of the Board, and that the Inspectors and not the Board should get the credit is so novel, it has left me speechless.

MR. FAHEY: Mr. Chairman, history has been made in this Chamber already today. You were not in the Chair at the time when one member who left that side went back again. It is good to see we have made history a second time in one day in so far as the Premier has been left speechless. I think this should be History day in Newfoundland.

MR. FOGWILL: I am entirely in accord with the honourable Premier as to what he said in regard to the taverns being cleaned up. There is no doubt at all it must be a source of great satisfaction to him and to the Government and the public generally to have them now fit and clean, and citizens now are able to visit them and it must be a source of satisfaction to the Government, particularly to the Department of Finance, to know the improved scale of the taverns gives them quite a lot more revenue than they had in the past.

MR. CHAIRMAN: Was that an amendment or a suggestion?

MR. FAHEY: It was made as an amendment, Mr. Chairman, the amendment was that the Board be reduced by $13,000, thus making it $2,300.

MR. SMALLWOOD: With respect to that proposal of my honourable friend may I remind the Committee that a few days ago in reply to a question directed at me from the other side of the House, I stated that the sales for the Board for the year had been something of the order of five million dollars. The retail sales of beer, wine and hard liquors in Newfoundland for the past year has been something of the order of five million dollars, and the whole vote for this Board as shown on page 54 is $209,000 which is the total cost of the operation of a business which had sales of five million and that is a very reasonable cost for the operation for the staff in the various buildings and shops or depots of the Board, which has a central store on Duckworth Street, one in the West End at Springdale Street and one East at Holloway on Duckworth Street, the Liquor Store at Corner Brook and another retail store on Water Street, all of which are included in these amounts; that is the people who handle it, bottle it, the clerks who serve it over the counter and the mail-order department, which fills the mail orders and wraps and ships them, and the accounting staff, the stenographers, the clerks; the whole thing is $209,000 and the actual administration accounts for only $14,220. In short the administration of a five million dollar business is altogether less than the salary of one man. There is not a man on Water Street handling anything like that volume of business in an administrative capacity who is not getting $25,000 or $30,000 a year. The administration of a five million dollar business is a job far more important than routine supervision. It is a job which involves careful study of public opinion, of public needs and of public policy. It is not just a case of buying liquor, putting it up and selling it retail. Far from it, it entails careful study of public sentiments and public requirements and needs, and to talk of reducing it, $13,000 and what the shorthand-typist, grade three receives, and the cost of living bonus, brings it up to $14,220. A most modest administration cost, in my opinion, for so huge a business which involves so many people in Newfoundland. The honourable member then is talking of reducing the vote.

MR. FAHEY: My amendment was to this extent, that a Chairman receiving $5,000 a year and two others receiving $4,000 each which is $8,000, a total of $13,000, and my amendment reduces that to $3,000. In other words cut out the $13,000, for this reason: it is an absolute waste. The Board is not doing all the work, the work is divided evenly as is the responsibility, and this Board does not do anything in my opinion, it is absolutely $13,000 wasted. In my humble opinion it is wasted and you can't twist it any other way. There was a Manager in Commission days and the same man is still there, and the same staff is there, and what does the Board have to do for $13,000? It is a pure waste of money and it is sheer nonsense to tell the Committee that this Board is doing all the work. We know the staff is doing the work. A sheer waste of $13,000 and does the Premier agree we should waste money like that?

MR. FOGWILL: I am in accord with the honourable member for Harbour Main-Bell Island who has just spoken, but I realize too that the Board has another very important function. At one time in the Controllers Department they decided how much water to put in the rum, now the position is to see how much rum to put in the water. That is very important.

MR. CHAIRMAN: The amendment is that the figure of $13,000 be stricken out and $3,000 inserted in its place.

Motion is lost.

MR. FAHEY: Division.

MR. CHAIRMAN: If two or more members ask for a division—

Carried.

MR. RUSSELL: 1203: I heard a suggestion made here about the possibility of changing the hours when the liquor stores are open and there was a suggestion that the Government might give consideration to the possibility of later hours for these stores, to make it more convenient for some members of the public who can't get off at the proper hours to take advantage of the fact that these shops are open. Is there any indication in the number of the staff that it might be done in the next twelve months?

MR. SMALLWOOD: No, Mr. Chairman, there is not any such indication in the Estimates. I take note of that suggestion made in this Chamber and elsewhere from time to time and I have heard that the RCMP have suggested that it was one way to reduce bootleggers in St. John's, to keep the liquor stores open until, I think, they said nine or ten o'clock at night.

MR. RUSSELL: But only from nine until ten.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I have not heard it that way. But I must say frankly that the Government, as a Government, has not considered it and so have not passed on any instructions or directive to the Board. But that thought has been in the air and there may be something in it, and I would like to hear the arguments by the people most concerned and who know most about it.

MR. FAHEY: While that subject is being discussed, I don't propose to be one of those who know most about it, but I understand the staff are kept there now until 8:00 o'clock clearing up, and though during the week it is closed to the public at 5:00 o'clock, the staff rarely get clear until 8:00 o'clock. We talk about eight hour days and modern ideas, although I disagreed a few minutes ago with the waste of money, in this case I would say the staff should not have to work longer than anyone else, and if the Government is anticipating anything in the shape of longer hours they should take into consideration that the staff of that department are employees of the Government, or Civil Servants, and should not have to work more than eight hours in any one day.

MR. HIGGINS: I quite agree. Something should be done, because after all, it is a terrible thing to see bootlegging going on in the first place, and in the second place people pay too much money; paying $9 for a bottle of rum. I certainly would not pay it and if prices ever go to $8 I will buy no more rum.

MR. SMALLWOOD: What will you buy?

MR. HIGGINS: I will buy nothing. There is no liquor worth $8 a bottle. We can't have prohibition, it has been a failure all over the world, but we have to try and stop the bootleggers. Whether we are going to stop the drunkard or not with the new Act, I don't know but we could certainly stop the bootleggers by making liquor easier to buy. People in professions can't leave and go down any time it suits them or at half past four in the afternoon. They are working from nine to one and half past two to five and can't possibly get a bottle of liquor if they want it. It is not a question of morality, but we have to deal with this to try and stop bootleggers. In the old days of prohibition, if a man had one bottle of liquor and invited a friend, he stayed until the bottle was finished as he never knew when he would get another drink, now when he has a bottle he can have two or three drinks. To offset the bootlegger, the thing is to make liquor easier to get, so that a man does not have to go to the bootlegger and pay a terrific price for it.

Carried.

MR. SMALLWOOD: My, Chairman, could we pass on to the Department of Fisheries and Co-operatives?

Department of Fisheries and Co-operatives:

HON. W. J. KEOUGH (Minister of Fisheries and Co-operatives): Mr. Chairman, I wonder if in proceeding with the estimates, instead of making an overall statement, you would call the sub-head and I could make the explanations as we go along. I have rather full notes here and I could answer any question which may arise.

MR. CHAIRMAN: Certainly.

1401: Minister's Office: No change, same as last year.

1411: General Office: Post of Assistant Deputy dropped and the post of Administrative Officer created and total increase in the vote is $4,740 accounted for in the reorganization of the office of both the Fisheries and Cooperatives, which called for the establishment of Administrative Officer, one grade two clerk and one additional shorthand-typist, and additional salaries in accordance with the increased staff.

MR. RUSSELL: May I ask who is the Administrative Officer referred to?

MR. KEOUGH: The post has not been filled yet.

MR. HIGGINS: Is there any reason for the jump from 1401 to 1411?

MR. KEOUGH: There was a re-alignment for the estimates whereby the Department was divided in two and the sub-heads were dropped out of the picture altogether.

1421: Fisheries Administration:

MR. HIGGINS: Who is the Deputy Minister? Is that Mr. Planta?

MR. KEOUGH: Mr. Planta. That vote calls for a salary of $12,000 a year and there is an allowance to him of $3,000 and provides for a secretary for him.

Carried.

1422: Fisheries Engineering and Development:

MR. HIGGINS: Who is the Director?

MR. KEOUGH: That post has not been filled. That provides for employment on a contractual basis of a competent individual to advise the Government, through the Department, on the enlargement and construction of fishery processing plants and construction of new boats, and gear and equipment. Moreover this advice to the Government would involve the implementation as far as the Government of Newfoundland recommend, arising out of fishery development, with regard to the centralization of fisheries and in conjunction with other departments, vocational training of fishermen and education in new methods of fishing. The position is not filled yet.

MR. HIGGINS: Who is the technologist?

MR. KEOUGH: Mr. Colin Storey.

MR. FOGWILL: What are his duties?

MR. KEOUGH: He has been sort of general utility man up to now.

MR. FOGWILL: Well, you would not call him a utility man on that salary.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is in a restricted sense.

MR. HIGGINS: Has this Department being set up yet? Is there anybody employed?

MR. KEOUGH: The only employee at the present moment is Mr. Storey.

MR. HIGGINS: What is he doing now?

MR. KEOUGH: He will be assistant to this Director of Fisheries, when appointed, and will do whatever specific duties the Director assigns to him. During the past year he has been engaged in such activities as supervising the operation of the Icelandic Fleet, and the construction of the Matthew II, and things of that nature.

MR. RUSSELL: I take it, Mr. Speaker, it is not expected to get a local man to fill a position like that?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Perhaps the honourable Minister probably feels a little hesitant to speak on behalf of the Government, and he might not mind if I add a word. We are presently negotiating to obtain the services of the one man in all the Canadian nation who is widely known to be the outstanding man in that field, a man who is a scientist, a chemist and an engineer, a man who has designed many fish drying plants, invented and designed fish dryers, and who re-designed many freezing plants in all of North America, and who is responsible for one of the largest freezing plants in all North America which is to open in the coming few weeks—a man with a very remarkable record of achievement. We are not at the moment prepared to name him, because if we are not successful in obtaining his services it might prove embarrassing to him, were we to name him now. But he is a man about whom I think every member of this Committee will agree that he is the outstanding man, at least they will agree that his record is well known, and he is the man we are trying to get to head this Division—a man who will be able to go into any fish plant in Newfoundland and assist the owners of the plants to improve their design—a man who can tackle the physical, practical problems in any fish plant and worry over them and experiment and come up with a solution or a practical suggestion. I may say that the later thought is that if he can be had by the Government to head up this Division his services will not be exclusive to the Government of Newfoundland. Other interests in Newfoundland would be glad to get his services as well and the up-shot may be a sharing of his services and sharing of his salary between the Government and certain other institutions in Newfoundland. I am not able, I am sorry, to say more at the moment. But the need for a man in our Fishery Department who has derived knowledge, rather than merely experimental knowledge, is very great, very great indeed. In seeking such a man we are endeavouring to get the man most qualified of all in Canada in that field, and that is reaching high as in fact he may be the man most qualified in all of North America, in the great United States across the border and all across Canada and use him here in Newfoundland to assist the fish trade and owners of fish plants in Newfoundland. He has indeed visited Newfoundland at the request of several fish firms and has studied their problems and has come through with improvements for them, so that he is well known even to the trade here in Newfoundland.

MR. HIGGINS: We are trying to develop a brain trust.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is what we are trying to do. The Fisheries, which was never a large Department, was reduced quite severely as the result of Confederation, and the Department of Fisheries of Canada has come to have jurisdiction over a considerable portion of the fishery fields of Newfoundland, but the remaining part is under the jurisdiction of the Newfoundland Government and to cope with that responsibility what the Government needs is not a large but a highly competent fisheries department made up of men outstanding in ability. Now in Mr. Clive Planta as Deputy Minister we think we have one of the outstanding men in all Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific, not as a scientist but as a practical administrator. We think Mr. Planta is the outstanding man in all Canada in his field and this other man of whom I spoke a moment ago is an outstanding man in more than one field namely: science, economic research and practical planning and production and machinery and engineering problems, an outstanding man, and we will be very proud if we can get him.

MR. RUSSELL: If he turns out as useful as Mr. Planta has already proven in his, that would be one of the things I won't ever have to criticize the Government for.

MR. HIGGINS: It seems to me Canada is getting very delinquent, allowing these men to come down here.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We did it by offering a bigger salary. My honourable and learned friend, I think, will agree with me when I say this, generally speaking, we will get outstanding men to come to Newfoundland from more populous and advanced parts of the world where conveniences are far greater than here, and come to Newfoundland to work with us only if we pay them more and offer considerably more than they can get there. They will not come for the same pay or anything like it.

MR. RUSSELL: Our problem is, will we be able to pay them more?

MR. SMALLWOOD: The right man is worth his salary many times over.

1423: Fisheries Economic Research:

MR. KEOUGH: Director and Chief Inspector (Contractual) covers the appointment of Mr. Bruce Feather, who is now acting as Royal Commissioner, Public Enquiries Act, and on completion of his duties of Commissioner he will perform the duties in connection with statistics and economic research, marketing and cost accounting. While rendering this assistance to the Department of Fisheries and Cooperatives he will perform duties of a similar nature for other Departments of the Government by consent of the Executive Council.

MR. RUSSELL: Does the Government really feel —

MR. SMALLWOOD: May I add a word to that? Marketing of fish and markets for fish and prices for fish in the markets are all within the jurisdiction of the Federal Department of Fisheries and are the responsibility of the Federal Department of Fisheries and do not belong to the Government of Newfoundland, and we could say this Federal matter does not come under our care. We choose, however, not to take that attitude. Suppose the Federal Department of Fisheries fails or neglects or refuses to give our fisheries and the marketing of our fish that proper care and attention and time that we Newfoundlanders think ought to be given them? Suppose that happens? Then we will be left in the position where the Federal Government is doing nothing about it, and we are not in a position to do anything about it, or I should say, not fittingly equipped to do anything about it. So that we will try therefore, with the Newfoundland Fisheries Board and with NAFEL, a Merchants' Corporation, though we are not responsible for the export and marketing of fish, yet we feel the Newfoundland Government cannot escape its ultimate responsibility in this matter and ought therefore to equip itself with the right men to know what is going on, and probably to help shape what is going on. But if we don't, now somebody said here in this Chamber that the Minister of Fisheries ought to know from day to day and week to week and month to month the position of fish, how many fishermen are engaged, what the market price for the various grades and varieties are, and have all that kind of statistics, and I am inclined to agree with him that such is true; we ought to have it certainly, we have no machinery, no equipment within the Government today to get hold of that kind of information. This Section, Fishery Economic Research, is designed to do exactly that. Now that does not need to be a big division, but possibly one man concentrating on that job with probably a stenographer to do the typing for him.

MR. RUSSELL: Mr. Chairman, in paying too much attention to salaries we have been overlooking bigger things. Part of 1422 has been brought to my attention and I would ask if we may refer back for the purpose of making an amendment on one important item, but I would like to ask a question about it for further information. The Aerial Survey, was that the one this Spring?

MR. KEOUGH: Yes.

MR. RUSSELL: And was that the total net expenditure of the Government or is there a refund?

MR. KEOUGH: The item covers the maximum amount the Government undertook to contribute; in the event that the sealing operators were not able to meet the cost of the Aerial Survey, I don't know if we would be called upon to pay that or not, we have not paid any yet.

MR. HIGGINS: How much did the whole thing cost?

MR. KEOUGH: I believe it ran to $20,000 this year. That would be the maximum the Government would be prepared to contribute. We have not been called upon to do so yet. The other $13,000 is borne by the operators.

MR. HIGGINS: Have the Norwegian ships got aerial receiving sets? I suppose they map out and point out to our sealers where the seals are but —

MR. SMALLWOOD: We do not broadcast to the sealers where the seals are.

MR. KEOUGH: No, they have a code from plane to ship telephone and a code system.

MR. HIGGINS: Then it is possible the Norwegian ships would hang on to ours and just follow them. If the aerial survey is good, they should know no ship would follow a course unless told by the operator of the aeroplane.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The best evidence we have is that they did not follow this year.

MR. FOGWILL: Before we go off that vote I would like to ask a question as to what is meant by 03—Convention, $20,000.

MR. KEOUGH: That is to provide the cost of travelling and living expenses of delegates who attended the union meetings of the Fishermen's Convention. The sums paid to date amounted to some $15,265, the total is not available as we have still to get accounts from delegates in outlying districts.

MR. FOGWILL: $15,000 Newfoundland Fishermen's Federation.

MR. KEOUGH: That is a grant-in-aid, the cost of the Head Office, expenses, salaries, travelling expenses and statistics for services to fishermen. It is a direct grant to the Newfoundland Federation of Fishermen.

MR. RUSSELL: Is there any provision for an arrangement on a fifty-fifty basis to match funds that might be raised by locals in their Federation?

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is not in mind. There is no provision here; this fund is an outright grant which would form part of that but they were penalized as they did not have a cent, and this $15,000 is to help them get started. This sum has been granted to be part of a matching grant if a matching grant is given.

MR. FOGWILL: On the next item—Ice Cutting, Storage, etc.—Some time ago I gave notice of question on that. Would the honourable Minister tell the Committee the weight of ice cut and where it is stored?

MR. KEOUGH: I am afraid I cannot give you the weight of ice cut at this moment, but I suppose about 600 tons and it is stored at Arnold's Cove and Holyrood.

Carried.

1423: Carried.

1424: Shipbuilding.

MR. KEOUGH: That covers salaries of the Chief Inspector of Shipping and one Inspector; actually Mr. Harry Long is our Chief Inspector in connection with shipbuilding and we have two inspectors. There was an error in last year's estimates, the salary of the Inspector was noted in full. It is actually a contract whereby the Government pays 55% and Lloyds 45% plus cost of living bonus. Actually the figure last year was incorrect.

Carried.

1425: Fishery Development Committee.

MR. KEOUGH: That is the amount of finance the Government is contemplating providing the Fisheries Department Committee during the coming year to defray expenses of the Fishermen's Representatives who are being paid $5,000 a year each. The balance is to cover stenographers and such records as may have to be published, the travelling and out-of-pocket expenses of the Chairman and members of the Committee, and transportation of the Committee to visit possible outpost areas.

MR. RUSSELL: Does the Federal Government have to pay?

MR. KEOUGH: The Federal Government supplied some specialists but we may possibly want to call in some locally.

MR. FOGWILL: They are not appointed yet.

MR. KEOUGH: Yes, they were appointed some time ago. Sir Albert Walsh is Chairman. Lloyd Soper, Executive Secretary. The Government representative of Canada, Mr. Gushue, Chief Supervisor; Hazen A. Russell, President of North Atlantic Fisheries; Capt. Clarence Williams; H. A. Dawe, President Fisheries Union Trading Co.;

Mr. George Groves.

Carried.

1451: Co-operative Administration:

MR. KEOUGH: That sub-head covers salaries of the Deputy Minister of Co-operatives and his Secretary, and incidentally that scale should be going up to $4,500-200-6,000. I don't know how it is to be adjusted here, that will have to be finalized by Finance.

MR. HIGGINS: 1452: What is the Director, Co-operative Fish Processing doing there?

MR. KEOUGH: This is not a new position. The Director of Co-operatives has been dropped and this position of Director, Co-operative Fish Processing, has been transferred from the Fisheries Division, and this post created because of the need of technical advice to fishermen. The present incumbent is a graduate of the Quebec School of the Province of Quebec and is well qualified to advise fishermen with respect to canning, exporting, etc. The work so far has been confined to surveys and to intensive work in only one area. He has proven to be a competent and conscientious worker and will be of great help in the future to get projects started and give training in Co-operation in addition to his technical qualifications.

MR. RUSSELL: I don't know, he may be quite qualified to do the work but if you are lucky enough to get that man on a contractual scale, as the Premier mentioned, you should then be able to dispense with the service of the man in 1452, as surely the work would overlap, as such a man would be able to take in the technical and co-operative angles as they have entirely the same technical needs for operation. It may well be that a year from now we won't see him there at all. Maybe he won't be necessary.

MR. SMALLWOOD : Except that that man, if we get him, may not be able to do as much field travelling as he will be associated with other organizations besides the Government.

MR. RUSSELL : That would make a big difference and in that case Maynerd, the field man, would not be duplicating, but supplementing the work under the director. Maynerd is a very practical fellow.

MR. FOGWILL : A native of Quebec?

MR. SMALLWOOD : He has been trained in fishing districts along the Gaspé Coast, the only part of the mainland of Canada which produces an inshore light salt fish resembling Newfoundland light salt fish, and got his training in fish dryers in the Provinces of Quebec along the Gaspé Coast where they have that type of fish. I visited myself the three dryers, one in Grand River, one in Gaspé and one in Rimouski. He worked in all these and is a product of these only modern dryers in North America today curing light, salt fish, and for that reason the Minister of Co-operatives secured his service. He is not a scientist, not a chemist, but a practical man and quite competent to carry out orders of this director if we can get him. As a matter of fact, he will be of more value when directed by the high class man we are trying to get.

Carried.

1453: Registry of Co-operative Societies:

MR. KEOUGH : I think the only addition there, Mr. Chairman, is the addition of two inspectors. It is contemplated that in time the registration of co-operative societies will be the main core of the Department and that work of co-operative extension and education will be undertaken by Newfoundland Co-operative unions, when they become advanced enough to finance such work. The Registrar is required under the Act, in addition to looking after such things as annual audits and returns, to see that societies are enrolled and instructed in co-operative methods. We had two last year and find that we needed two additional inspectors this year. The Registrar is Mr. F. R. Dove who has been there right along for years.

MR. RUSSELL : I hope you are not overlooking that there are four registrars in these Estimates; vital statistics, motor vehicles, deeds and companies and Co-operative societies. Now, two have been stepped up and the other two left. This might be an oversight as it sometimes happens that one is put up while they forget about the other. Now, I would like to call the Committee's attention to the fact that two have been raised.

MR. SMALLWOOD : The Minister of Fisheries and Co-operatives will not mind, I think, if I say he recommended the increase for Mr. Dove, and the Committee will appreciate the consideration of the Estimates extends over a period of time, and at the moment the Minister recommended the increase for Mr. Dove, the mood of the Cabinet was very definite in the direction of refusing increases and so Mr. Dove's increase was not approved. Now, had the Minister recommended this at some physiological moment, probably he would have received an increase at the same time the other two were stepped up. I think it is a matter which might be rectified in the Estimates that follow this a year from now. Those who know Mr. Dove agree with the former Minister of Natural Resources that Mr. Dove is an able man and one who occupies an extremely responsible position in the Co-operative movement, and while I cannot speak for the Minister of Fisheries and Co-operatives, the Minister has already recommended an increase for him, and I have no doubt will gladly do so again, when the matter comes up again.

MR. HIGGINS: That is a terrible admission to make: that it depends on the whim of the Cabinet and not the good of the cause.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The Cabinet is like anyone else and has its moods. These Estimates were considered over five or six weeks and any group will vary in mood and there will be times when they are especially tough and times when they seem to have things worked out when they are not so tough. Unfortunately for Mr. Dove the request came at the moment when we were tough and not when we could see daylight. If my honourable and learned friend could imagine the Estimates coming into the Cabinet originally calling for an expenditure of millions of dollars, literally millions, and could see the Cabinet working on these estimates, it is enough to say that at the outset of the consideration of the Estimates, the Cabinet is very tough, but once they got things licked into shape they are not so discouraged and feel happier about the whole thing.

MR. FOGWILL: You never feel discouraged.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Of course I feel discouraged. Each Department has a list of what it thinks it should do and by the time the Ministers of Public Works and Welfare and Health and all the others give their estimates and all these estimates are printed and received by the Cabinet, it takes a brave man not to be discouraged when he sees that if what they think out to be done is done there would be a deficit of three, four or five million dollars on current account and it takes weeks and weeks of hard work to get them licked into shape.

Carried. The total has to be revised due to one amendment.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We could now go on to the Department of Economic Development.

1502: Economic Development.

Salaries, there are no salaries listed. I think they are in the Minister's Office. Travel $1,000 and office expenses $500, mostly postage.

1502: The Deputy Minister is up like all others. Office expenses, postage and telephones. Mr. Short is the Deputy Minister.

MR. HIGGINS: Who is Secretary of Research and Conservation?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Claude Howse.

1503: Tourist Development:

There is a note there (a) Sub-head title changed.

Salaries on page 98: One Assistant Head, Miss Godden. We have raised Miss Godden's salary to a new scale. I certainly don't need to say one word in this Committee about Miss Godden, everyone knows her capabilities.

MR. HIGGINS: You should apologize for the smallness of the salary.

It has been increased, but it is still not enough. Miss Godden is a highly regarded and able and valuable servant of the Government. There are two shorthand-typists and a cost of living bonus $5,300. This is a very busy office and the mail is large, they get letters from all over the world.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Publicity and Investigation; Development, Special Investigation and Documentary Film $54,500. General Publicity is for general public advertising in publications on the Mainland, the printing and distribution of pictures and pamphlets of Newfoundland. Development $10,000. It is difficult to say just what that is. It is an amount we may or may not spend in the course of twelve months. Special Investigation has been dropped. Documentary Film is the one which some honourable members of this House had evidence because the camera man was here and took some shots of scenes in the House. But that was a small part of the picture. They are making a three-reel half-hour picture and it will show quite a variety of things in Newfoundland. New industries, the work of the new hospitals, the work of the logging and mining operations, and generally it will be a picture which will show Newfoundland as it is, a progressive Province with lots of activity going on, lots of new departures, new activities and local development. The people who made it are to provide us with one, I think, printed standard size which can be shown in this Province in motion picture theatres and one print of a smaller size for showing in film councils and all 16 mm. projectors. The one on the 35 mm. can be shown on any motion picture theatre anywhere. When it is completed, this film will have cost Newfoundland very considerably less than the cost had we had anyone else do the work.

Newfoundland Industrial Development Board. There is no amount for that. Now, Economic Development: Salaries, page 99. Dr. Valdmanis, the Director General, heads the list of names. Now one official in that Department, Mr. Barron, recently appointed, is not shown here in the Estimates and I think his name probably ought to be added because we have retained Mr. Barron, B.Sc., graduate of the University of McGill and a native of the city of St. John's, recently working as chemical engineer in the employe of Bowaters at Corner Brook. His salary $4,800. Travelling $4,000. Office $1,000. Investigations, general, not specifically allocated $50,000. Hydro-electric Survey by the Power Corporation of Canada. That survey begun last year will be completed within the next few weeks. This $150,000 we are pretty sure is more than is needed. The Power Corporation of Canada completed the basic survey last year but they still have to do some drilling at substation and dam sites and canals and power houses. The drilling is going forward right now and that drilling will provide the final confirmation of the Department, estimate of cost of harnessing the electric power in Bay D'Espoir. They will get five hundred thousand horsepower and the cost per horse-power or per kilowatt hour to determine whether industries based on that hydro-power will be economical or not. We will have the final answer to that great question in a matter of the next few weeks.

Then 1505: Economic Development: The Cement Mill, Gypsum and Birch Industry, Secondary Industries, actually the Buy Newfoundland land Campaign. These amounts for the Cement Mill, Gypsum and Birch Plants are amounts over and above what was spent last year to complete the Cement Mill, Gypsum Mill and Birch Factory.

MR. FOGWILL: That would be the full amount then?

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is to pay the final cost of these three factories. Total amount for these industries is $4,600,000. Gross Total $4,923,300, of which $67,600 is current account to which is to be added $4,800 for this additional employee, Mr. Barron.

Carried. 1501. 1502.

MR. HIGGINS: 1503: Mr. Chairman, if Miss Godden were a man, she would not be where she is, you know what I mean. She is a character in herself and if an outsider were brought in the salary would be commensurate with the service, and I think the Government should offer her that salary. For years and years she has been making contacts with the poorest and the common man and millionaire; all have been served by her and she is an institution in herself, and that salary for her is altogether too small. She could get a salary more in keeping with her qualifications on the mainland, but I can understand why she does not leave Newfoundland.

MR. SMALLWOOD: She will not leave Newfoundland.

MR. HIGGINS: Well, we ought to feel if she want to stay here and does not want to leave, her position ought not to be jeopardized on that account.

Carried.

MR. SMALLWOOD: 1504: No amount to be voted here.

1505: Two adjustments, one to bring the Deputy Minister up to the new scale and the other to add Mr. Barron $4,800.

Carried.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, I move the Committee rise and report progress and ask leave to sit again tomorrow.

The Committee rose and reported progress, and asked leave to sit again on tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The hour being quite late, I move that all remaining Orders of the Day be deferred.

Carried.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I move that the House at its rising adjourn until tomorrow at 3:00 of the clock.

The House adjourned accordingly.

WEDNESDAY, May 16, 1951

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon, pursuant to adjournment.

MR. SPEAKER: I would ask honourable members to note that the Order Paper is the same as yesterday with this difference, the last Orders of the Day take precedence over all others.

Presenting Petitions

MR. MILLER: The Budget Speech is the report on the Province and the Report of the Government on how it stands and where it stands and the policy which they have sustained. If we look at the position of the country or the Province we might say today we are fairly happy. The Province has extended its work in the major industries on a very high level. There is a lot of construction work taking place and we can only compare that with the boom of war days. That is something to be grateful for, to my mind it is an easing period which gives this Government a chance to get some more long-range policy developed. And the Government, I feel, must admit that they must be very happy because of it.

An analysis of this situation, however, does not tend towards greater confidence. It is a passing boom. We in this country have had a very recent example of that in the war days when prosperity rose to a great peak and then it sprang back to the days of 1949 when we all became worried and we on this side at that time were really worried and we can well imagine the Government was more so. We have been subject down through history to these spring-backs after war booms and while we are not now actually in a war, nevertheless, that is the nature of our present prosperity.

Knowing the history then of our country, it is the duty, and we are warned that they must progress in this manner, of this Government to set some new example of pulling the country out of that spring-back which will eventually come our way again.

Now this afternoon I am not going to be too long and particularly I am going to refrain from financial discussions and will leave that to those better able. I recognize that this country is in a trial period; I recognize the obligation that the Government has to the country. I am content rather than to go into a lengthy discussion of the Budget to let the Budget be as it is and I am content too, for the reason that when our surplus is all gone—and I would not view that day with alarm if the money is well spent—I am content to reason that be they Liberal or CCF, when the Budget comes in for review by the Royal Commission and later makes recommendations to the Government of Canada, be they Liberal, CCF or PC's, I believe a proper judgment will be made and a fairer and more equal basis will be arrived at. I will go further and say I hope that when that day arrives, when the surplus is all spent, it won't be projected too far into the future. Why do I say that? Because I have never felt the terms were fair and equitable and because if we stagger along for a period of years perhaps it will give authority to the argument that they were, and not without some foundation. Therefore, I would not subscribe to that policy of dragging along year after year and ignoring the backward condition of this country. Some day, in my opinion, the balancing of this Provincial Government Budget will be nothing more or less than a mechanical piece of finance. We will have set for us a certain figure within which we will work knowing the taxable capacity of our people and beyond that we will not be able to go. Consequently it will be merely a mechanical transaction.

It has been argued by some that this country, the people of this country could be prosperous and yet the Government financially in difficulties. Now that is a position not to be fully desired but on the other hand supposing we had a government that could not pay its way along and our people in financial difficulties, then we would have something to really worry about. And in these years as we go through, as I say, this trial period that is what we must guard against.

With respect to the Provincial Budget I am content to let it drift down the tide of the Ottawa River until we come to pier 29 to be reconditioned and made seaworthy, but as to the condition of industry I am not content to let that drift, that comes right home to the Provincial Government. If it has ever come home to any Government it should come home with a greater responsibility to the present. Why? Because the present Government has been entrusted by the people and committed by the Government, the Federal Government, to enter into an economic period in this country and has been provided with ample funds in the surplus to undertake and to try their hand sometimes in small matters and sometimes in great matters and I recognize that they are in the middle of the stream, half way through in their policy and in my mind this is something that goes before politics because of the fact that we have entered into very weighty transactions running into millions of dollars, things never tried before, a bold policy and what if they should fail? They must go forward with deliberation and I think it would be a terrific thing on the part of this side of the House if, with the millions that are in jeopardy today, anything should happen from here to bring on a chance of failure. We are all in this and none can gain if we lose.

I don't propose to go any further on that subject. I would, however, like to say a few words once again in the interest of the fishing industry. The fishing industry has gone on in this country and has met its problems and we have found ways to get around them and gradually remedied them as they came. Just such a one of these instances was the conversion of the sterling. I am happy today to learn that the sterling to the extent of four million dollars is arranged for in this year ahead. But that does not fully answer the question, the old trouble still remains, we are still dealing with countries where we cannot sell, and more and more our interests are settling away from the sterling area and I now think it well that it should be so. The fishery today is more hopeful, I recognize, that last year's situation and last year's catch is to be disposed of at an earlier date than last year, probably by mid-summer, whereas last year in the fall we had old fish on the market and new fish being withheld from the markets and that was not a good situation. But we will have, I believe, this year a greatly reduced quantity which will help to make our fish go out in better state and in my mind it will be more hopeful from this date on. Then there is the question of floor prices which is to be dealt with on the Federal level and they are to study the matter. That I think is very fine and I think we can afford to do that this year, because I think prices will be considerably higher than last year.

This question of sending our fish into the sterling markets, are we going to remain tied to it, are we going to tie the future of this country and the fishermen to that? I feel we cannot. There was a time when I advocated a floor price and I said for five years, and I said together with that goes a study by top level representatives of the Federal Government who will engage in an investigation not into the affairs of this country but all the tariff agreement and currency agreements entered into by Canada to arrive at the true position as to how all affect, and how they will affect, for many years to come, the sale of Newfoundland fish in the sterling markets. I have come to the conclusion that we face there an impossible situation and I arrived at that conclusion now without the help of that commission of enquiry which I have previously suggested, I fear there is no hope for the future. We have been in a very mean position, we have been trying to trade in competition with the Provinces now and before that with the Great Dominion of Canada and the United States. As a little country we had to sell our main product to poor struggling countries. That situation went on and left us poor and to continue will still leave us poor. In fact, I am quite sure it will leave us poor. Most of our trading today and tomorrow must be done with the United States and Canada. We must enter into a period when we shift our weight from that one food carried on in the sterling area and go over to the dollar area. But all this can not be done overnight. Can it be done in five years? And virtually, I say, the Government sitting opposite us have to change this position of things as they were in 1949 when we went in that spring back I mentioned to the boom days. Now that the pressure is taken off the fishing industry they have the money to do it with and have all the money to gamble, sometimes recklessly, and if they gamble recklessly in the fishing industry, I won't blame them too much.

A year ago I said the men cannot go fishing but that was called blue ruin. Today I say I really thought they would not and they did, so that I was guilty of blue ruin. But today the position is that they have not gone fishing, they are not interested in the fishery and the younger men have moved away and there is tragedy for our country in that, first because of the loss to the industry and secondly the loss of our young men because we can never hope to find sufficient jobs for all who move out this year and they have to go elsewhere to the mainland. So that is the task, as I see it, that the Government has ahead of them, and they are midway in their program and to condemn unnecessarily would be perhaps to bring derision on ourselves. I hold that in five years they will have a fair trial, they have sufficient money to do it and I am content to wait today and see the issue as it unfolds.

The problem of this country is to arrive at a solution to the sale of our products in sterling markets. I feel we are too small, I feel that Canada is not interested in us to that extent even though she may have quite an interest in us. It would throw the adjustment out of balance too greatly and consequently it would be cheaper on their part to subsidize the fishery and that brings me back to floor prices.

In the plan which I have envisioned we would have subsidized fisheries for five years but if it had to go on and on I fear I would be greatly against a policy of permanent subsidization. It is a false way of economy. It would not have to be adopted permanently. however at present it is an absolute necessity. I cannot for a moment imagine what prices they should arrive at but when they do arrive at floor prices for Newfoundland shore fish I do hope it will be higher comparatively than the Labrador fish settlement of a year or two ago. I think that price was too low and I cannot see anything less than the prices of two seasons ago for the shore fishery to be anything like satisfactory. We could drop then these European markets in the five years we have allotted, drop them gradually and adopt a new policy. It has been a little appreciated fact that this country of ours is a food producing country. In a depression, men may not build but they must eat. We have the fish in unlimited quantities or almost unlimited, and yet we have been trading it where it has not brought us ample net returns for those who follow the industry. That situation is today one of the reasons why the fishermen are going away because all those who work to produce are highly unionized and have a high level of pay all out of proportion to the fishermen who is left with nothing, that is half the cause, and secondly our fish is sold in European markets and cannot give us a fair yield. Therefore the tendency for today must be to develop trade in the dollar area of the United States and Canada and meet the demands of the markets there. All this is going to take time and a lot of men will leave the fishery and perhaps never return. Nevertheless the sound policy, I believe, is to deal in more stable markets with fairer prices from which returns to the actual fishermen will be more profitable and they will be more content and the country more at ease. That is the problem, as I see it, and they must concentrate on the fishery which I believe gives the greatest distribution of wealth to the people all around our shores. All around this country, people I have met, say: "Well, we might not have much money but we live along happily." And today that is not so and it is a way of living we ought to reach out very far in order to help and also to try and preserve. I think we are going to have hard times yet in the fisheries but I think eventually if we go about it and follow up the trend we have started it will bring us that return we need. If we can get that then when we arrive at the day of a spring back we have not too much to worry about.

MR. CASHIN: Mr. Speaker, I did not intend to speak this afternoon. I had as a matter of fact prepared nothing. I did not have time to study the Budget. At the same time I am not going to ask for an adjournment for that special purpose because I don't want people to tell me later that I am trying to hold up the business of the House. There is not any business before the House today with the exception of the estimates and as far as I am concerned there is not going to be—there is no notice of any important piece of legislation coming in here, none whatever, apart from Supply which we are now discussing, not along the Budget but Committee of the Whole on Supply.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I would like to extend my best congratulations to the Minister of Finance for the able manner in which he delivered the Budget. It is certainly a weighty document and the Premier did it justice. He made just a couple of small errors for which I forgive him. He could not allow himself to forget the political aspect and took the opportunity to have a dart at some one here or there in two or three places which I would think if he had left out would have added considerably to the dignity of the Budget Speech because a budget speech is not one of those full dress debates to deliver. It is actually a statement of the finances of the country or Province or whatever you like to call it. It is in a sense an outline of the policy of the Government which is also supposed to be outlined in the Speech from the Throne. As a matter of fact we can discuss the Speech from the Throne and the budget at one and the same time, which wastes considerable time, but it has gone on ever since the days of Responsible Government up to 1932 and I imagine it is going to continue.

The Government, Mr. Speaker, seem to think they have done a wonderful job by announcing a surplus for the year 1950-51 of practically one million dollars. But that is not so, there is no surplus. One must look at the second page, I think, of the Budget Speech, or rather the third page, where it says: "We have an increase of $100,000 in Public Works, $75,000 to motor vehicle licenses, and a million dollars in Public Welfare revenue was due entirely to recoveries from the Dominion Government on account of Old Age and Blind Persons' Pensions, and of this sum, some $700,000 represented recoveries in 1950-51 of expenditures incurred in 1949-50, where for a variety of reasons, it was impossible for us to transmit claims for reimbursement in time to effect recoveries and to bring them to account in the year of origin." Now, take the Auditor General's Report for 1950-51: the Auditor General says we have a deficit for 1949-50 of three million, seven hundred thousand. This is shown here as a surplus for 1950-51 and actually it should have been taken out of the deficit for 1949-50 and your deficit for 1949-50 would be three millions and your accounts would be practically square for the year 1950-51. However it would take considerable time to find whether they were or were not. It would take more time than I have at my disposal and I venture the opinion that when the Auditor General's Report does come out and that will not be until the end of the year, when we check the figures in that budget, we will find them different.

Then the Premier goes on to forecast another surplus next year. The surplus this year or the so-called surplus was derived because of additional revenue from the Federal Government in the vicinity of six millions, allowances vary from year to year and may vary next, dependent on a lot of things and we have no guarantee whether they will or will not. There is a fixed minimum. What is the fixed minimum laid down in the terms of union. Six and a half million dollars. A million and a half is less than eight, so we are back on a deficit right away.

HON. J. R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): If my honourable friend will allow me, I would like him to be quite clear on this: There is a fixed minimum but the actual amount payable by the Government of Canada today is determined by two factors: The gross production of all Canada and the population of Newfoundland in relation to all Canada but spread over a three year average. The payment received is an average of three years, so that it is physically impossible to fall to the minimum of anywhere near the minimum in view of the gross national production of 1950, 1949 and 1948. It can't possibly fall.

MR. CASHIN: That is quite all right, I am not talking about 1948-49-50. That is passed but what of the future? When you come to get what will ultimately come and hope it won't come, but in my opinion tomorrow, if the world were at peace, we would have to have some slump in this world particularly on the North American Continent and where will the gross values be then? Today, on the matter of the population, the honourable member for Placentia-St. Mary's told us they are leaving for the Mainland, and that the young fishermen are hauling up their boats and not going fishing any more. Now what is that going to mean, depopulation? However, I am still of the opinion that for the next two or three years the financial position of Newfoundland will be in a poor condition but the prosperity of the people, their financial condition will be good. Why do I make that statement? Because today, as my honourable friend, the member for Fogo, forgot to tell us, the reason why some boats are turned bottom up on the beach, they are hauling them up because they are living off the Government.

MR. JANES: No. Because they want more than $10 a quintal for fish.

MR. J. G. HIGGINS (Leader of the Opposition): Where are you going to get it?

MR. JANES: They could have been paid more last year.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is what we are finding out.

MR. CASHIN: Yes, that is what we are going to find out. There was an announcement made the other night, that the merchants robbed three million dollars off the fisheries, by an individual who never saw a fish. So you denounce NAFEL. Now I have no brief for NAFEL, but I realize that a lot of people who know nothing about business are the first ones to criticize.

MR. JANES: Do you want to know the vendor's price? $15.75 a quintal and it was bought for $7.00.

MR. CASHIN: Now I am going to put you through your collar. They bought small Madeira.

MR. SPEAKER: Order. When an honourable member wishes to interrupt, he must rise and ask leave from the member who has the floor.

MR. CASHIN: The vendor's price you say was in the vicinity of $15.

MR. JANES: The vendor's price was $15.75, a quintal.

MR. CASHIN: Alright $7.00 a quintal was paid for that fish, the same fish, the same lots in advance right here in Newfoundland. Alright, fine. But who paid the freight on it? I know, I was in that business but you were never in that business. You know nothing whatever about it. Mr. Speaker, they come in here with particular cases. If you want to go in business and there is such a lot of money, why not go into it?

MR. SPEAKER: I have already ruled I am not going to have conversation taking place unless the gentleman who has the floor gives permission.

MR. CASHIN: Yes, Mr. Speaker, it turns my stomach, people speaking on this know nothing, will talk about it, yes, but know nothing, never did and never will and simply get after the merchants. Now I am not here as a representative of the merchants, not the school teachers nor anyone else but I am here to say what I know about it. I have been in the fish business, went broke in it. How many go into the fishery business in Newfoundland and go broke at it? They know nothing about it. Take Water Street as it exists at the present time and then go back 45 years. First when I left school to go to work, I will start on the East End: Harvey and Company, not in the business today, sold out the other day.

MR. SMALLWOOD: They are in the business.

MR. CASHIN: They don't buy a quintal. Then we come up to Job's: They went broke half a dozen times. We come along Water Street; Baird's speaks for itself. Baine Johnston and Company: In financial difficulties. Come along a little more, we have passed Baird which is a memorial to the fish business. Bowrings are not in the business any more, the biggest firm in Newfoundland and the biggest private firm in the world. They are not in the fish business anymore. Come along a little further, Goodrich a firm which some forty or fifty years ago had some 35 or 40 sailing vessels. Where is that today? Gone. Come along a little more, go up to C. H. Bennett, Monroe Export at the present time, they are practically out of the dry fish business. Now go along a little more Steers Brothers, they are in it. A little further on Jackman, out of the fish business entirely, gone but not forgotten. These are the merchants that robbed the fishermen. If they did such a successful business of robbing the fishermen why are they out of it today? These are facts of the fishery. Now, I am just as strong an advocate of the fisheries of this country as any honourable member, but I hate to see people get up prating about something they know nothing about. I am the senior member of this House and such funny things happen in my absence these days, fellows going over from one side to the other and the day after going back again. Talk about politics, it is the most foolish type of politics I ever witnessed, never before known in the history of Newfoundland—coming over here tomorrow and going back the next day. They don't know where they stand.

Now I asked a question a couple of days ago—I am going to wander on this Budget Speech, Mr. Speaker, and you will have to bear with me—I asked a question a couple of days ago relative to loans made by these various Loan Boards. A very short question, as a matter of fact, and I was told the information was contained in the Budget Speech. I have the two questions that I asked here somewhere. However, the sum and substance of it was that I asked what loans the Board made. Now listen to the answers: I got a document here which I did not ask for. Number one on Industrial Development Loan Boards for Newfoundland for a period ending March 31, 1951, I did not ask for that.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I always like to give more than I have been asked for.

MR. CASHIN: Very seldom, Mr. Speaker, has he ever given more than he has been asked for when he is not giving someone else's away.

A review of the Board's activities up to and including March 31, 1951, shows that 117 communications were received in the first few months, and 123 letters dispatched. During the same period the Chairman and Secretary between them held 47 recorded interviews with prospective applicants. Out of a total of 48 application forms mailed out, some 27 were completed and returned. The Board's first regular meeting took place on December 15, 1950. Two other meetings have since been held.

A breakdown of the 27 applications calling for consideration by the Board is given hereunder:

	No.	Amount
Not approved due to various reasons .....	7	$53,200
Approved .....	7	88,000
To be further considered .....	9	64,300
Not yet considered .....	4	48,600

Loans finalized None

Reviewing the seven requests which have been approved, shows that four amounting to $25,000 pertained to lumber operations, one for $50,000 concerns a printing plant, one of $12,000 relates to extending the facilities of a florist nursery, and assistance for one small industry was approved to the extent of $1,000. Arrangements covering details of security and various other matters have not yet been brought to a point where any of these loans can be availed of, but it is expected that most of them will be finalized soon.

There is only one answer he did not give me. How much salary is paid? This is a review of the Boards activity up to and including March 31, 1951. Mr. Speaker, what a joke! a nursery. What are they going to grow, flowers to put on their graves when they pass out of here? To approve a loan for the raising of flowers!!!

MR. SMALLWOOD: Not flowers, bulbs.

MR. CASHIN: It says flowers.

The financial statement is not attached to this document, but I find the Board has approved and sent to the Government for final decision seven loans amounting to $88,000, for a printing plant and $10,000 for flowers and assistance for one small industry amounting in all to $88,000. In other words to pay people there $15,000 for a period of ten months. I asked the question about all the Boards and this is only one. If they answered all of them it would take the rest of the afternoon to read them, if I had Mr. Baxter's long winded answers to my questions. Then there is no salary laid down in the Estimates for Mr. Baxter or none has been voted. We voted an amount of one million and a half in last year's Estimates for this purpose and it has been voted to that Board and they can vote themselves the salaries.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Would the honourable gentleman allow me. The House passed an Act creating these Loan Boards and in the Act, stated the salaries should be paid out of the funds. Subsequently the House itself voted to the Board an amount and under the Act passed here they are drawing their salaries. What is wrong with that?

MR. CASHIN. This House did not vote their salaries. Find it in the Estimates, either Mr. Baxter or the Secretary. It is irregular and indecent legislation. There is $88,000, in all and $10,000 for Mr. Baxter who often advanced more than that in one morning in the Royal Bank, but this is a cushy job for which the country is getting no value whatsoever, except a flower shop and a printing press. Mr. Speaker, how many printing plants are in existence now, not subsidized by the Treasury but some Canadian Company is getting $50,000 from the Government to operate a printing press. It is the worst piece of sculduggery I have seen in my 28 years coming around here.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Don't exaggerate.

MR. CASHIN: It is true. Why should these people buy a printing press and be subsidized by the Government? Why not subsidize the "Evening Telegram" and the "Daily News."

MR. SMALLWOOD: They have not asked.

MR. CASHIN: No, because they are able to operate on their own feet, but someone interested in this printing plant obtains a building on Water Street and comes to the Government looking for money. I wonder if they paid for the building in the first place. I think the Minister of Public Works might probably inform me if it is paid for.

HON. E. S. SPENCER (Minister of Public Works): As you know, it has been paid for.

MR. CASHIN: Did they get the $50,000 and hand it back to you. The date is not set down. Mr. Speaker, go down to any chartered bank in this city and you can't get a dollar advanced on real estate. No, Sir, they won't take it if you go down to a bank tomorrow, but Mr. Baxter, if he were a banker in the Royal Bank and you went down to him tomorrow and say I have a house worth $25,000 can you advance me a loan on that house? You can have a mortgage. He certainly would not, he is not permitted under the banking Act of Canada, but here if you come to him he says "fine;" he is real civil, he has money, he can do what he likes with a million and a half dollars, can take his own salary out of it as much as he likes as far as the Legislative is concerned, they have voted nothing for him nor the secretary. No, Mr. Speaker, I am trying to refrain during the last five minutes from losing my temper, one of the greatest defects I have had in the past, but when I realize that kind of stuff is going on I want to tell you it takes all my time to hold myself. Taking a man from the Royal Bank of Canada and in addition to his pension he now has $10,000 from the Government and tomorrow or next day, when we go broke as far as finances are concerned he can take bag and baggage and go to British Columbia or somewhere else and live off his pension after hooking the Government of Newfoundland $10,000 a year for doing nothing, but writing out a lot of forms. He did more work in the Royal Bank in one morning. I know he was a good banker.

MR. SMALLWOOD: He has been given authority to loan the people's money and—

MR. CASHIN: And paying his own salary whatever he likes to pay. This should contain the salaries of every man, woman and child in the Government service, and he ought to be ashamed to take it. I can tell him the salary he is receiving now is illegal and ought to be authorized by this legislation. If you are going to run this country by Minutes of Council we should close here now. I would almost make a motion we close the House immediately. It is a joke this man getting $10,000 without any authority from this House.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is not so, in the Act.

MR. CASHIN: Bring out the Act. Alright, Mr. Speaker, we will have the Act. Can you find the Act? Mr. Speaker, would you mind asking the Clerk about the Act which created the wonderful Loan Board last year. I don't remember but I want to see where $10,000 was granted to Mr. Baxter in that Act. I say it is not in that Act to give him $10,000 a year. Then why give it to him?

MR. SMALLWOOD: The authority to pay him out of the fund is in the Act.

MR. CASHIN: Did it say the salary would be in these Estimates or otherwise? And that is not all in these Estimates should be taken out and revised and I understand that last night or recently, that all Deputy Minister's salaries have been raised. Is that so, Mr. Speaker? Might I ask that question? Why is that not in the Estimates? It is not.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The decision to increase the salary rates of Deputy Ministers was made by the Government since the printing of the estimates, and it is a decision subject to the desire of this House and since the estimates came before the House the amendment has been made and the changes have been made in the estimates.

MR. CASHIN: Well, I was here for three departments and I listened to them. But there was never anything said about it or I am going nuts or something.

HON. S. J. HEFFERTON (Minister of Education): In answer to the honourable member when the Education Department estimates came up it was inserted.

MR. CASHIN: I am sorry, I listened to your remarks and I am prepared to accept your word but I certainly did not hear the Provincial Affairs.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I will read the Act and then pass it to my honourable friend.

(Reads the Act on Loan Boards.)

MR. CASHIN: As determined by the Lieutenant Governor in Council but you cannot pay one dollar without coming in here and asking for authority first.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is so.

MR. CASHIN: And you took $15,000 out of this which has never been revealed to this House nor there is nothing contained in the estimates. Now a decision has been made to raise the salary scale of the Deputies. What date was the decision made?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Within the last fortnight.

MR. CASHIN: When the estimates were brought down it was not included in the estimates then? Are there any others not in here now? Well, what are we here for, Mr. Speaker?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Does my honourable and gallant friend suppose for one moment that the printed estimates tabled here merely for the guidance of the House must be final and may not be amended in ink or pencil as it is considered here? That is all there is to it.

MR. CASHIN: Is there a record here in the Committee now to show the full amount for the Deputy Minister of Education, what that total was?

MR. SMALLWOOD: We are not in Committee.

MR. CASHIN: Very well, let us look at the Department of Education. Mr. Speaker, we are doing a little auditing on our own around here.

Department of Education 601: What is the amount called yesterday, $70,200, and no change was made in that figure yesterday. The amount called in committee was $70,200 and now the Deputy Minister received an increase and the amount should be greater by that amount.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Will my honourable friend allow me? It is not to increase the pay but rather to raise the salary scale and as time passes they will get their increase under the new rate. In mostly all cases it was not necessary to vote more money at all, they won't get more for a year or more.

MR. CASHIN: No. But the point is, what I am trying to get at is that this is all out of order, there should be shown in these estimates an amount calling for that and the Educational Department does not show any wages up to $6,000 a year and there is no indication in that budget that salaries are increased. None whatever and I ask why they are increased?

MR. COURAGE: To a point of Order, Mr. Speaker. The honourable gentleman is entirely mistaken in the case of the Estimates called out for the Department of Education and in all other cases where departmental salaries were called they were carried as amended. This can be shown in the record kept by the Committee of the Whole House and can be shown by the Clerks records and the records of that Committee and I have it shown in this book, and it has been filled in each and every case as an amendment which was made in Committee.

MR. CASHIN: Well, Mr. Speaker, I was here today and did I look like I was intoxicated. Yet I did not hear it. I don't care what anyone says, I did not hear it and I think if that amount is increased it should be shown in the Estimates. If you turn to page 67 here the amount changed to $6,000 is not shown.

HON. J. J. SPRATT (Minister of Provincial Affairs): We have it.

MR. CASHIN: It is not in here. What are you trying to hide it from us or from me, I am not a member of any party here. Am I to assume that only the Government got those and the other members are kicked around so to speak?

MR. COURAGE: You can refer always to the clerk here. Here is the report which I as Chairman of the Committee made and there is a list of the amendments. The whole lot of them have been amended.

MR. CASHIN: I will give you back this later on.

MR. COURAGE: You had as much information as I had.

MR. CASHIN: I certainly never had. I am dumbfounded. But I am referring to these estimates and I want to know why they were not put in the first place. I am telling you it is irregular, I know, I brought in three or four lots of estimates in this House. The point is the Deputy Ministers and a couple of Provincial Lawyers in the Justice Department and the doctors, in Health, are forming a union and they all get higher salaries.

HON. JAMES R. CHALKER (Minister of Public Health): Point of order, Mr. Speaker, not in Health.

MR. CASHIN: The Deputy Ministers were getting $5,500, what are they getting now? What is the Deputy Minister of Health, who is a doctor, getting?

MR. SMALLWOOD: I would like to tell my honourable friend there were three scales for Deputy Ministers. There was what is called the Provincial Officials scale, that is doctors, the Deputy Minister and Assistant Deputy Ministers of Health are both medical men. Then the Deputy Minister of Justice or the Deputy Attorney General is a lawyer and they have a different scale from all the rest of the Departmental Deputy Ministers. The others have just the one scale. Now what happened was merely this: Just after the Estimates were in the hands of the printers the Cabinet decided to bring in a new scale for Deputy Ministers and also Assistant Deputy Ministers. These were not in the printed Estimates but that does not mean a single thing as the Cabinet could have brought in typewritten or handwritten estimates or corrections on the printed copies and brought the Estimates as corrected in here. There is nothing to stop the Cabinet from revising the scale for Deputy Ministers and each one has been or is being debated in this House and passed or not passed.

MR. CASHIN: I will tell you what is wrong with it. Just now, I said in the Department of Health, the Deputy Minister has more money, so he does. The Minister of Health tells me he did not but here is what he did get in this Chairman's copy which should be right. I certainly appreciate the generosity of the Chairman to give me this copy and I think probably I will hand you back mine as I might get a little more information from yours. Your Deputy Minister has $7,200 a year. Yet he says there is no increase in the Deputy Minister of Public Health. Now it seems the other fellows have ganged up and said: "Look here, we are doing our job just as efficiently as your doctors are," some of them down there are doing nothing, more of them are doing a good job.

HON. DR. H. L. POTTLE (Minister of Public Welfare): Mr. Speaker, may a member rise to give information relative to the point? I have no special information to give except an elaboration of the information already given by the Premier. There is nothing to say the date on which the Estimates have to be printed and during the process of printing, the Executive Council probably make many decisions which are reflected in the Estimates when a decision is made which bears directly on the Estimates although they have been printed, one should expect to come into the House and find these corrections. This is not a final record of expenditures. That is the first point and the second point is relating to the honourable and gallant member's reference to the fact that the Chairman of the Board under consideration has no salary given here. We have many women and children receiving allowances in the Welfare Department, should their names appear here? The Premier made reference to the Act which enabled the Lieutenant Governor in Council to set the salary. That is the principle and the same applies to other votes; if you look through the Estimates you will find the Loan Development Board are not the only ones. I started to count up and there are at least five or six votes for extra assistance amounting in all to one hundred and fifty or two hundred thousand dollars, I don't know who they are but this House voted, for example, the Department of Public Works. I have no doubt the Lieutenant Governor in Council shall appoint such staff, but they are not mentioned by actual title and there is a great amount of extra assistance, and the principle is already laid down here and hundreds of thousands of dollars were voted last year in the Estimates.

MR. SMALLWOOD: This House, last session, voted $300,000 to that Board. That was voted by this House not by the Government and it was unanimous, not one dissenting vote and a vote has been passed and given Royal Assent stating that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may out of that fund pay the salaries of these officials.

MR. CASHIN: There is going to be a lot more about it. I have heard a lot of nonsense in here too and I have seen transactions here in the last two or three days, plenty of nonsense, tom-foolery and trash. This Act was passed for the purpose of creating that Board and appointing a Chairman and Secretary but did not include the salary they were to get and an Act had already been passed to create an Auditor General and Comptroller of the Treasury and their salaries are under statutes, why is not this one? It will probably show in the accounts next year but it is this year we are talking about now.

MR. SMALLWOOD: There is nothing that the Government did not tell this House.

MR. CASHIN: I was given the answer but I contend it is wrong, it should be given in the Statutes.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Why did not the honourable member say so when the Act was before the House?

MR. CASHIN: I have no memory of what happened at that time. I know it should be in the records whether I said so or not but I say now without hesitation that it is irregular, absolutely irregular. Now in respect to the Deputy Ministers, they have ganged up on the Government and said they were just as good as these professional men and now they have an increase in pay but the rest of the civil servants, three thousand of them, got nothing. They are creating little dictators out of these people, they walk in and say to the Government, "Do this or else." Is that fair to the other members of the civil service? I am not talking politics; there were no civil servants down there who voted for me, they are all against me. I do not belong politically in this territory, but why pick out the Deputy Ministers and give them a raise in salary and the other individuals getting nothing. Why not? Are they not as intelligent as the others getting large salaries. I know there may be some of them incompetent and some of them who don't know their job, but there are Deputy Ministers brought in to the job who know nothing and now they gang up on the Government and say we want so much increase in salary or else. Mr. Speaker, a half dozen of them called on you a little while ago, what else does it look like? The rumour around the city is that they ganged up. I want to say right here and now that it is a poor tribute to the Heads of Departments to come in here and recommend this and leave their other people out. The cost of living we have heard so much about has gone up and they get a raise in salary based on the cost of living certainly not on the cost of efficiency while the other people are absolutely ignored. That is some encouragement to people to try and become real civil servants. Why some of the Departments are absolutely mis-handled. Yesterday we heard the Premier talk about a University. I made a statement one time that got me in political trouble. I made a statement here a few days ago and it has been slapped at me many times about local industries going to burn them all down. Why not burn down the Memorial College and forget it. Why educate people any more? We have efficient people discriminated against. Individuals who have high education are shoved in with people having none and getting better salaries. In the Educational Department itself we hear much about discrimination, if an individual does not stand in well with the close little clique. Everyone knows the Education Department and not only through this Government, I can trace it back for thirty years—little manipulations going on all the time. Since I have been in public life that place has been manipulated by cut-throat tactics. One fellow has a degree and the other has not. The whole place needs reorganization, it is improperly and inefficiently operated and the same applies to many other Departments and I don't care who hears me say it. It is discrimination and there is no justification for bringing in an increase in salary for these Deputy Ministers and not bring in increases for the remaining three thousand civil servants; they have to pay their bills and eat but they are not considered at all; no consideration whatever is shown in here for them, none. I say again these Estimates are improperly handled though I am told they were handed in here and these changes were made after they were printed. Well that is not as it should be.

There should be no changes made until voted on in the House.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Nor are there.

MR. CASHIN: We find them here, find them all over the pages, changes made in them but I think I said enough on this skullduggery, going on with respect to the Deputy Ministers. I say to the Government now, in all decency and sincerity, if they do the right thing by these people then go down and give these people their 10% or whatever those others got.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Do you know what that would cost?

MR. CASHIN: I don't know what it would take but they are just as much entitled to it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The Deputy Ministers get an increase in scale but that increase is spread over the next four years, they get a raise each year but let us take the others, the little fellow.

MR. CASHIN: But what justification have you got for giving the Deputy Ministers an increase of 5% or 10% and not the others?

MR. SMALLWOOD: One costs a million dollars and the other costs a thousand.

MR. CASHIN: Here is the position: We want two big bosses with us, we got to buy them but the other people, the underdogs, there is nothing for them and don't think I am playing politics, but many of those people really know their business and some of the Deputy Ministers don't know their business, know no more about their job than I do. It is a disgrace to have them appointed to their positions, some of them are prostituting their positions, and the Government knows that is true.

Now that took quite a time, Mr. Speaker, for me to get that off my chest and I don't begrudge these Deputy Ministers any salary raise they get but if there is an increase for Deputy Ministers, I want to hear an argument why other people don't get their raise just the same as they. I am not going to argue, only going to say the Premier says it is too much money, a million dollars, but if the Deputy Ministers are increased because they are efficient, do I take it that these under-dogs, these clerks in the various departments are inefficient? Do they know their jobs? Do they know them as well as the Deputy Ministers know theirs? They do and consequently they are entitled to increases as well as the Deputy Ministers. I wonder what the honourable member for Fogo thinks of that? I heard him preach the other day about education and here is an instance. Why should they not get their raises as well as the other fellows?

MR. SMALLWOOD: I think they should have it but we can't afford it.

MR. CASHIN: You can afford a thousand but not a million. I say if you can't afford to give them a million you can't afford a thousand.

The House recessed for ten minutes.

MR. CASHIN: I must apologize to my honourable friend the honourable member for Fortune and Hermitage, I have here his records in this copy of the Estimates and the Deputy Minister of Provincial Affairs has been raised to $6,000 and I certainly apologize to the House if I erred, but I still contend those other civil servants are just as much entitled to a raise in salaries as those people and it is an injustice to them and we as members of this House should not permit it to pass without any comment whatsoever, and as the Deputy Ministers are getting a raise I think those other people should get just the same in proportion and if they don't get it then these others should not get it, it should be all around. It looks very suspicious to me, particularly in view of the remarks made in this country about the toiling masses. They don't get much there—the top men get it and the toiling masses are told to go to blazes. I have no more to say at the present time on that until Committee on Supply when I will probably have a few more words.

Now I will revert to the Budget Speech and the Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure. It is very difficult and I challenge any member on either side of this House to properly digest that Budget within the short period we have had. We have to have the Auditor General's Reports in order to do it, but I say without reservation that there is no such a thing as a surplus on the current account and if there is it is very, very small and not nearly a million dollars. Three millions come from the previous year and this year's surplus one quarter of a million, and if it were in the old political days, the Minister of Finance would be told by the Opposition he manipulated figures in order to show a surplus. That is what he would have been told. Now we really do not know what the expenditures are going to be because the Estimates are not final, and God knows what might happen to throw the Estimates between now and when they are passed, anything might happen.

The point we have now to get at is the financial position of Newfoundland before we talk of any new industries at all. But the Government at the end of this fiscal year has in the vicinity of $14,000,000 in cash left. The honourable member for Placentia and St. Mary's said this afternoon, and I believe with a certain amount of accuracy, the sooner the surplus is gone the better for all concerned, as a Royal Commission has to come here then, unless you go out and borrow money or the Government is able to dispose of the Birch, Gypsum and Cement plants. Now, in the Premier's discussion on this Budget with respect to establishment of these industries, he laid all the credit not to the Government but to Dr. Valdmanis.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The credit we take is being smart enough to get him.

MR. CASHIN: And you are paying good and plenty and he has not brought one solitary dollar in here. In answer to a question I tabled here the other day we find the sum of $8,000 as travelling expenses, but that is not half the story, his expenses to Corner Brook, if my memory serves me correct, cost eighty odd dollars.

MR. SMALLWOOD: And board while in Corner Brook.

MR. CASHIN: Well his other expenses do not include board. Well I know, I travelled on business and know what it costs and I pay board and pay my bills, and that one is not shown here.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is the total.

MR. CASHIN: He did it very reasonably. I don't believe he did it,

$8,000 and odd dollars in a period of eight months but he did not bring a dollar back with him. Not one cent. This cement plant was thought of years ago, the Minister's plan was not original and the Birch Plant, that was Mr. Dawe's idea.

MR. SMALLWOOD: No, mine.

MR. CASHIN: Mr. Wilfred Dawe had the idea years ago before you or I became members of this House, he had that idea for that Birch Plant and I say now the Government has to go slow because it cost a million dollars originally. They have a Cement Plant and this Gypsum Plant and I say now as I said the other day when talking to the amendment to this Budget, I advised the Government strongly if it is possible to sell anyone of these plants for cash, take the money and get out. I have been told there are people interested in them. There was a man here the other day, I know of him, he is interested in eleven such on the other side and he came here. I don't know if he concluded any negotiations or not. I have no idea, about the details of this transaction. The information has not been tabled here. And I say now the Government acted wrongly by voting that money by Minutes of Council, this House should have voted that money but it was done while the House was closed, an expenditure of a million dollars was involved and the Government assumed responsibility for it on Minutes of Council and made a great fuss about it. It was done on Minutes of Council and the expenditure was incurred without the authority of the Legislation. It is not right. They could have called a special session of the House and laid their cards on the table but at the present time there are no cards on the table not even a joker. There are no cards here we can see the details of, but some of us know and I say now get rid of them. Just imagine, Mr. Speaker, a cement plant here and on the Mainland they have the biggest in the world or in the Dominion of Canada, Canada Cement Company, my friend Beaverbrook started it. Do you mean to tell me a company like the Canada Cement Company is going to sit idly by and watch their business taken from under their noses by a little mill in Corner Brook. That is Dr. Valdmanis's idea but it does not cost him any money and the salary of Dr. Valdmanis—I say he is not worth it. He did not get it in Ottawa. He worked in the Department of Commerce in Ottawa before he came here. If he was such a wonderful man, I know very little about him, but if he were such a wonderful man, why part with him? Could they afford to pay him $25,000 a year? The Prime Minister of Canada only gets $18,000 a year. The Chief Justice gets $25,000 a year, the highest man in Canada. The Governor of the Royal Bank of Canada gets $30,000. The President of Canadian National Railway gets $75,000 a year and he is well entitled to it and that brings up another matter. Speaking of Railways, since Confederation we have worse service than ever under the old system. As a personal experiment I took a parcel and addressed it to myself and mailed it to myself while at Belleville five weeks ago and got it yesterday. That is a candid fact and I had the devil of a time poking it out, up in the shed and that is what we get for service. I venture to bet a Newfoundlander will never be manager of that railway here in Newfoundland, they are not going to give it to local men. We have a better man, a Newfoundlander, up there but he will never get the job; and that brings me around to freight rates.

We should never have had to go to Court, so to speak, that was political, this ruling, if the Canadian Government were honest about it in the Terms of Union, when our people negotiated, and should have been adjusted by Minutes of Council and not go to this Royal Commission and God only knows what it cost. I suppose it cost $25,000 or $30,000 when the bill is all paid, to get justice and then we lost a million dollars in revenue. Then we could have, probably had, a surplus if we had gotten what we should have but they did not make it retroactive, merely gave us the Maritime Freight Rates from the First of April or March of this year instead of from the date of Union, and consequently that money in addition to the cost of the decision should have been returned. I admit it was impossible to return it to the individual who paid freight rate, but it did not belong to the Canadian National Railway, and should have gone back to the Provincial Treasury of the Provincial Government of Newfoundland. You certainly should have gotten that but you did not, they robbed you every time they got an opportunity and they are doing it right now on the Terms of Union. I am speaking on the Terms of Union because it is history now and it is all over and water under the birdge but certainly the more you read them the more suspicious you become. Consequently in order to discuss the financial situation of Newfoundland, half intelligently without any preparation, we have to go over part of these Terms of Union. After the discussion the other day on Term 29 the honourable the Attorney General wound up the debate and we don't know if the joker is up our sleeve or under the table or on the bottom of the pack; he might be able to slip it from there in a game of poker, but I can't. There is no joker there. The Canadian Government does not have to give you any consideration whatever. They can tell you to go jump in the lake no matter what the Royal Commission recommends and I noticed in this morning's paper that one of the Ottawa Delegates was trying to insist that such a paragraph or clause should be inserted in the Terms of Union and the Canadian Government or the Representative definitely refused to do so.

MR. SMALLWOOD: If my honourable friend will allow me: I have sat at every moment of every conference throughout and I have no knowledge whatever of any delegate making such a request, or of having made it and been refused. I know nothing whatever. I read that thing myself this morning with great interest.

MR. CASHIN: If they did not they should have and there was a need in this transportation clause, there was certainly a need of negotiations and you will find, at the end of two years more when you have gone in debt for the highway across the country and you have not the money, you will have to go with your hat in your hand again. Mr. Speaker, I know about going with my hat in my hand looking for money for Newfoundland Government. Watch this time because the terms are not properly negotiated. This person who was supposed to have made this statement wanted that clause inserted in clause 29 or another clause saying the whole thing was fixed, or something to that effect so there must be something in it. Why at that time a man whose opinion you now laud in the budget speech in the person of Mr. Thompson whose views and figures were taken no notice of, charged $30,000 for his opinion which was not accepted. He made a statement of how great each year the deficit would be under union with Canada and under the subsidies and he gave us five years, if my memory serves me right, before we were busted. He is now a wonderful individual, putting this new system in. I agree it is a good one. Why did the delegates who negotiated the Terms of Union with no authority from the people, selected and sent up because they were known advocates of union with Canada and the man who picked them, you heard what I said about him the other night and I hope I don't have to be there to shovel coal on him. That is the creature who brought Newfoundland to degradation and was honoured for it by a peerage. They must be getting them cheap over there. Regarding our surplus itself, members have crossed swords quite a little on that and I contend it was gall on the part of the Canadian Government to tell us what to do with our surplus. The Premier in his reply said the delegation asked them to do it. If they did why are those terms not carried out?

Financial Surplus:

"In this Term the expression 'financial surplus' means the balances standing to the credit of the Newfoundland Exchequer at the date of Union (less such sums as may be required to discharge accounts payable at the date of Union in respect of appropriations for the Public services) and any public moneys or public revenue (including loans and advances referred to in Term twenty-five) in respect of any matter, thing, or period prior to the date of Union recovered by the Government of the Provinces of Newfoundland subsequent to the date of Union."

"Newfoundland will retain its financial surplus subject to the following conditions":

- (a) One-third of the surplus shall be set aside during the first eight years from the date of Union, on deposit with the Government of the Province of Newfoundland only for expenditures on current account to facilitate the maintenance and improvement of Newfoundland public services, and any portion of this one-third of the surplus remaining unspent at the end of the eight-year period shall become available to the Province of Newfoundland without the foregoing restrictions;

What a joke; there were $20 million deposited at Ottawa and supposed to be still there and deficits should be taken out of the balance, as I see it.

- (b) The remaining two-thirds of the surplus shall be available to the Government of the Province of Newfoundland for the development of resources and for the establishment or extension of public services within the Province of Newfoundland; and
- (c) No part of the surplus shall be used to subsidize the production or sale of products of the Province of Newfoundland in unfair competition with similar products of other provinces of Canada, but nothing in this paragraph shall preclude the Province of Newfoundland from assisting industry by developmental loans on reasonable conditions or by ordinary provincial administrative services."

That brings me to development. I have heard a lot about people being interested in development of a mill or mills in either Labrador, or in Bay D'Espoir to be fed with wood from Labrador. I think the statement was made here that I was ignorant and this I do know that people making that statement should first find out what they are talking about. In respect to construction of a mill on Labrador for which you have had a survey, I understand. I tell you it is not political but IBEC or Rockefeller Financial Interest against the construction. The Government can't bring in any legislation this year covering the development of these mills because financial interests who have an interest in that mill will have to have a survey before they put a dollar in here and how long will it take to get water power, probably from the Government. But how long will it take to survey the timber on the Labrador?

MR. SMALLWOOD: We have that. We have one made by Air Photographic Surveys of Toronto two years ago, the first year we came into office. I know there was one made by Bowers in 1937. Forty thousand square miles of it, the survey is complete.

MR. CASHIN: It cost about one hundred thousand dollars.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Fifty thousand, it was done the year before we came in and there was fifty thousand the year after we came in and these people received $100,000.

MR. CASHIN: I have never seen a report going through on account of any Toronto survey of wood on the Labrador. But if that outfit are interested in a mill on the Labrador they have to have a survey if you won't give them the IBEC Report because you said you would not give the IBEC Report to anyone who wanted it. The IBEC people made a survey; that reminds me of a story, Mr. Speaker, about a survey on the Labrador area down there owned or leased by a group of people in St. John's—eleven hundred square miles—that area was up for option to Bowaters in 1937 for $150,000 and they had a survey made by surveyors; about four years ago they went down and came back in two months and made a report to these people telling them there was something like ten million cords of wood in that area; and it transpired that in 1937 the late W. I. Bishop said it was a sin for the Government to be taking the reports on it as there was nothing on it. Now what that man did, he went down there with a camera and multiplied the whole business by eleven hundred square miles and came to a conclusion as to how many cords were there without going over it at all. The same thing applies to the twenty-six hundred on the Southern end of Labrador and to the twenty-two hundred just north of that. Ask the honourable gentleman sitting next to you about that photographic survey. I tell you, you can do nothing about it until you have a proper survey.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We have the proper survey.

MR. CASHIN: They may have it done themselves and we don't need to, but I do know this: When Corner Brook was established, some years previous to that the promoters of that project, the Reid Newfoundland Company, had to get outsiders, a neutral interest to confirm their figures of what wood was in the area of Corner Brook before they would do anything about it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is to say they thought the owners had an axe to grind.

MR. CASHIN: That is what I mean, the report should be laid on the table of the House for information, but we are told that is not in the public interest.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I will do anything anytime you ask for information, but I won't table the IBEC Report on the Paper Mill. I will be glad to table the actual survey and air photographic survey of ten thousand square miles and the ground survey and the written report by the Air Photographic Survey of two or three years ago.

MR. CASHIN: Bowaters practically did that themselves and we had a survey during the convention and in 1917 the Government were given a copy and it was destroyed or lost or they did something with it. So I hold, Mr. Speaker, that there is a possibility of the development of a pulp and paper mill to be fed from wood on the Labrador. I am entitled to my opinion although I am ignorant. If I accept that I am ignorant the honourable member that made that statement has not accepted what I told him the other day: to find out about marine insurance before talking about a mill on the Labrador and those are the people who are going to decide whether a mill on the Labrador is a possibility. Apart altogether from the extra cost of the construction of that mill, marine insurance companies are the people to determine that and not the member for Labrador nor the so-called ignorant member for Ferryland. It would be better for such people to go and learn something before coming in here conducting a night school. Come in here and get up and prate about labour, some of them never did a day's work in their life, never nor don't intend to, so long as they can get up and prate, and they are ignorant themselves.

Now I hold that a mill of five hundred tons is too much at the present. Five hundred tons daily involves a huge expenditure, probably seventy or eighty million dollars or probably more. I hold a mill of one hundred thousand tons would be more economical at the present time, would be easier to finance with a Government guarantee in addition to private capital. I would guarantee 20 millions if I had to do it tomorrow for a 150,000 ton mill. I would be prepared to guarantee $20,000,000 of Newfoundland securities for construction of that mill but first I would find out if we could market that quantity of paper. It would be foolish to guarantee a mill until we first find out the market, the quantity of paper, the water power and so on. How is the market for newsprint at the present time? We would probably be able to find that out also from the honourable member for Labrador. He does not know anything about it? Does he know whether the market is stable or not? I am trying to get information. I am ignorant, a clownish individual trying to get some information from those so-called literary individuals.

Now, what do we have to have for a one hundred and fifty ton mill? How much water-power must we develop? I am looking for information. I will ask the honourable member for Labrador; does he know how much water-power is necessary for a five-hundred ton mill? How much money will it cost to put it there? These are factors and probably ignorant people might know a little more about it than literary geniuses from Labrador. Ignorant! I have seen more ignorance since I came in to this House regarding the country's affairs, absolute ignorance, than in the previous twenty-five years I came here. As I said here, some of these political children are not yet free of the nipple. Talking about the affairs of the country. I resent being told by a junior member who never did a stroke of work in his life that I am ignorant. Nevertheless, I have done a day's work and worked darn hard, too, Mr. Speaker. I am not tolerating that any longer from anyone. I came here, treated decently by the Premier, and have tried to be decent to all of them. I criticized them, yes, severely at times and they have done the same with me. I am prepared to take it but one of them had the impertinence and gall to call me ignorant, a clown so to speak, in my absence, someone who has yet to do his first day's work or produce a nickle's worth of anything. Probably it was only ignorance on his own part. That ends that.

Now with respect to this mill, I feel that it is a good proposition but I see obstacles in the way. Recently I noticed in the press, when occasionally I do read it (there is someone trying to get in here, Mr. Speaker, maybe some of those poor unfortunate civil servants not getting a raise in salary).

MR. SPENCER: Some of those public works people.

MR. CASHIN: Probably my two hours are up, Mr. Speaker.

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable member has exactly twenty minutes more.

MR. CASHIN: I won't go on very much longer because when we come back to the Estimates again I am going to give you the time of your life as far as that is concerned. I was speaking of this mill when my attention was drawn to the fact that my time is probably up. I don't know, I don't intend to look at my watch and I would appreciate your telling me, Mr. Speaker.

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable member does not have to speak the full time.

MR. CASHIN: No, but I am going to speak and I have had considerable interruptions and have yielded the floor and I feel additional time should be given me. I should have a refund so to speak.

MR. HIGGINS: May I rise to a point of information. There is a two hour limit, but what about a speaker being interrupted?

MR. SPEAKER: If the honourable members wishes to speak the full limit, I think we can grant the honourable member extra time for interruptions.

MR. CASHIN: Now, Sir, with respect to this mill. A one hundred and fifty ton mill would cost from forty-five to fifty million dollars to build in Bay D'Espoir. Now I know that the Water Power Survey is not going to be completed in a couple of weeks. They have considerable statistical reports to finish to that survey and it will not be completed before autumn. However I do know at least there are a hundred and fifty thousand horsepower in that area. I have known that for some twenty years because

W. I. Bishop's Survey was made in 1928. At that time incidentally he took over the interest from Harry Crow when he sold out the property in that area to the A.N.D. Paper Company and, Mr. Speaker, if I do say it myself, the Government may thank me for having that water power. In Crow's agreement made a way back during the first war, the Department of Natural Resources may look it up, they agreed to develop that water power. War came along and they got side-tracked and then they sold out in 1927 to the A.N.D. Paper Company who made a deposit of $75,000 as a guarantee they would develop. They left the guarantee there, never took it. Finally we went broke and the Auditor General came in to me one day and pointed out we had an extra $80,000 belonging to Crow which could be confiscated as he had not carried out his contract. I, as Minister of Finance, took the $80,000, stuck it in the treasury and the A.N.D. Company did everything in their power to try and get that. We confiscated the water power, took it back and they had paid exactly $80,000 for it. They put up the money and they paid for the water and timber rights and we confiscated the $80,000 in cash and the water power reverted to the Crown. So if I have done nothing else in all my long political days, I did have something to do with getting that back for the country and the records are there and I made very bad friends with many people in the A.N.D. Company but they never could do anything because they never had a leg to stand on.

It is now a question of location in the area to build the mill. There are various places up in Bay D'Espoir—I have never been there—recommended as places to build that mill, but competent engineers no doubt have reported on whether the wood is available in Labrador, and might say to me it is a long water haul. I agree and I say you have no more than four months navigation on the northern end of Labrador, and belonging to the Crown sixty or seventy million cords of timber. True there are a million cords in Bay D'Espoir owned by Bowater's but the Government could probably make a deal to swap that for some other property owned by the Crown and adjoined by Bowater's. That should not be a difficult proposition because of the cost of operating in Bay D'Espoir at the present time.

Now how much timber is required to operate a one hundred and fifty ton mill? I wonder. Now I am going to become ignorant again. I would like the honourable member for Labrador to tell me how much timber is needed for a one hundred and fifty ton mill? Six or seven million cords altogether. If you have a one hundred and fifty ton mill, eighty thousand tons of newsprint a year, something like that, and that is multiplied by two. It takes a cord and a half to make a ton of paper but they generally cut two cords. That is quite a lot of wood one hundred and fifty thousand cords a year. Cut fifty thousand in Bay D'Espoir and the other hundred thousand on the Southern end of Labrador. The fifty thousand in Bay D'Espoir will last over twenty years and God knows what king will reign then, and the mill will be paid for in that time. But if you build a five hundred ton mill you will have more trouble and I have statistics to show that that is the cost. They have to haul about two hundred thousand cords of wood for a five hundred ton mill. That is a hundred thousand for a two hundred and fifty ton mill and they only have navigation for about four months in the year on the average. You might have six this year but generally speaking it is four, and if an early winter set in which is not an unusual thing in this country and a late spring—We know now that a hundred thousand cords of wood from Labrador cost practically $10 a cord, I could make a contract for that tomorrow. How much does it cost Bowaters to take wood round the North East Coast, down through the Straits of Belle Isle and up to Corner Brook? It costs close to $10 a cord and there is very little difference in mileage. There is one advantage probably we may be able to have longer navigation as Botwood closes up very early. However, I would suggest as a beginning a one hundred and fifty ton mill with plans laid down for extension of that mill later on. It could be laid out like Corner Brook which was originally planned for four hundred tons a day and today it is roughly eleven hundred tons because it has been expanded as the market demanded. I figure on a $45,000,000 or $50,000,000 investment and on $50,000,000 at the most you can make a net profit, after paying interest and depreciation and sinking fund of probably two to three million dollars a year but I know, I am not IBEC, I am ignorant.

Now, Sir, one other point before I sit down. My time is getting short and I am getting fed up with people practically telling me to close my mouth and I may probably leave the House when I sit down and not come back any more this year, and if I leave and walk out, I will not come back any more until next year. I have intended to do that because of the injustice perpetrated in here to the Civil Servants but if you remedy this injustice I will come back though I am ignorant. Otherwise I am not coming back this year. It is a mockery, the whole thing. That was the thought that just struck me, flashed like that through my mind. Why should I come in here and vote money to people unjustly who are not entitled to it when others who are in the same category do not get it? I don't want to be a party to it and I am not going to be. You may pass these Estimates as far as I am concerned, but I am not going to vote for them because it is rotten, rotten. And I say to every member opposite me, I have no particular feeling against them one way or the other, they are a party to it individually.

However, I was going to say a few words on the fisheries although I am supposed to be ignorant of that too. Unfortunately I got punished for it in the fishery, lost my shirt, went broke. I was once in a smaller way like the gang I mentioned on Water Street. Now I am one of those who want to see the fisheries advancing. I am from a fishing settlement. My father started as a fisherman, my grandfather was one of them and even though I am ignorant I spent one summer in a trap skiff. There were no motor engines in these days and I know what it is. That was the only year that I had anything to do with it and I was young and foolish and was put through my collar and probably deserved it. Now, no honourable member is going to get up and tell me I have not the interest of the fisheries at heart when I come from a District where there is no other industry but the fishery and where there are first class fishermen, just as good as in any other section of the country. They are all good fishermen. But I do know this, Mr. Speaker, and I say it now, though it may not be to my political benefit, that these young men are leaving Ferryland and other sections of the country, or not going fishing any more and staying home because they are living on family allowances and old age pension. I fear that these family allowances in certain instances have deteriorated the industry of our people. I want it understood I don't want to take anything from a child and I think the honourable members of this House realize that it would be quite the reverse as far as I am concerned but I do not want to see the industry and initiative of our people destroyed and it is heading that way fast. I know it is so in Ferryland and it is the same in every other district. Yes, give those people help who need it, but if a man is able to work and go fishing there is no two ways about it, he should be able to earn a decent living and should not be subsidized for his family. God put him on earth and put him there to raise and support his family. If a man is up against it, it is alright to help that man and to make provision to help that man, that is my idea and I don't care who hears me. The people may be opposed to me politically because of that, it may be to my political disadvantage—I am fading away out of here unless you rectify that injustice I have been speaking about.

With regard to the fishery I take my hat off for guaranteed loans for expansion of the fisheries. It is the only way by which we are going to get anywhere in the fishery as the dry fishery is finished practically and will be wiped out in the next twenty years or practically so. I see it coming down to not more than half a million quintals a year. Europeans can't buy it, they haven't got the money. By the way, I noticed in the newspapers this morning or yesterday that Canada has given four million dollars to convert to sterling and took it out of their own money and how much does that mean per quintal? To me it means about $10 a quintal for shore fish and I hope they get it. My honourable friend from Placentia-St. Mary's who is in the business now, thinks it is going to be better this year.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That four million dollars you will find is actually considerably more than that.

MR. CASHIN: That is the figure announced, if it is more, well and good. If it is not more we will have to figure $10 a quintal. The merchants are supposed to be getting $15 for it and, please God, I am going to investigate that business to find out what the story is. Is there any merchant, I don't care who he is, who bought a quintal of madeira fish from me, for $6 or it was bought last summer for $7, and sold for $15.00?

MR. JANES: Yes, and $5 a qtl. on the culling board, good trap fish, four shore fish.

MR. CASHIN: The fellow did not know then we would get $15 for it. No merchant ever makes $10 or $11 on a quintal of fish. They may have done so during the first war, but not at the present time. As a matter of fact the merchants pay the freight on the fish and paid in advance $6 and $7 a quintal and paid for the handling, take all those things into consideration. Hold on now.

the man sells me that quintal of fish off the culling board and I put it in my store at $6 a quintal. I got to pay for the salt, I got to pay for the packing, the loading, the cartage, the insurance, I got to pay the freight on it and you know what all that amounts to. Better go figure it out, I know.

That reminds me, Mr. Speaker, in 1916 or 1917 when a fellow got the signal, two minutes more. But as I said before when I am finished I am going out and won't come back any more while unjust legislation is being passed in this House.

MR. JANES: Mr. Speaker, I had not intended to say anything this afternoon and as a matter of fact, I am not going to take up much time. However, the honourable and gallant gentleman from Ferryland has been in the habit of speaking on Wednesdays and we on this side of the House have grown accustomed to regarding Wednesday as Cashin Day, and it is nothing unusual for us on this side of the House to sit and listen to the honourable member. I have heard the same speech in 1948 except that he left out this time any talk of graft, he did not mention any this time. However he spent an hour and a half talking about the Deputy Minister's salaries and I listened and wondered if the Government had left that out of the Budget. What he would talk about! Looks like they left it out intentionally to give him something to talk about. The rest of the time was spent talking about the boards, the loan boards, and the question I would like to ask is: Was it possible that Mr. Baxter would not give him a loan? Is it possible the Loan Board did not think much of the Clarendville Boats as being a good proposition? There has been an awful lot of talk.

Mr. Speaker, it was a long talk and with that I am going to leave the honourable member and come back later. There was one other thing he kept harping on, in every speech he made here, how much he knows and how little everybody else knows. That might have been alright back in 1928 but twenty years have elapsed since then and there are an awful lot of people reading newspapers and listening to the radio which the honourable member in the old political days here did not have. People are informed today. The thing I wonder about is why he sits here in this House at all? Why does he not demand a salary of $25,000 or $30,000 a year, whereas he is in receipt of a sessional pay of $1,500. It is a little fantastic. Also the honourable junior member for Harbour Main-Bell Island while speaking here a few days ago—I made a few notes of what he was trying to say and I have never heard anything like such a contradiction of facts. The honourable member of the PC Party was contradicting himself from the time he started to the end of his talk about subsidizing farmers, subsidizing the fisheries, the very thing which the private enterprise system, which he lauds, does not encourage. A contradiction of the facts and lastly in speaking of competition, he advises the Provincial Government to subsidize the fisheries, to take a few million every year out of the Treasury and subsidize the fishery and even a dollar a quintal on prices paid for fish to our fishermen would not help our fishermen very much financially this year, and that would be one million dollars gone down the drain and we would not have helped the fishermen to go fishing by doing it. But does he realize that in subsidizing the fishery we are also subsidizing the living of Italians and Portuguese by that fish? And I would ask him can the farmers and miners in Newfoundland afford to subsidize the living of the West Indies and Brazilians? Surely we have sufficient problems here to take up our time, Sir?

The junior member for St. John's East spent a considerable time in telling us what the Government has been doing and said the Government is only carrying out a policy laid down by the Commission of Government. I will agree in part with him that more than any other Government accomplished in Newfoundland was accomplished by the Commission of Government, because the political history of this country, the Civil Servants of this country, never had a policy like the Commission of Government laid down, and it is to the credit of this Government that they did not interfere but carried on; that was a great tribute to the Government. He said the Government has done nothing new. Was it not this Government who set up the Loan Boards. Was it not this Government who accelerated hospitalization and health services in this country? The Commission of Government inaugurated these services but they were inadequate. Would he say the Commission of Government embarked on a program of economic development, with experiments carried on in the fisheries? Would he say that the present Government has not accelerated the surveys in minerals and forests in this country? Would he say the Commission of Government inaugurated the Labour Code in the Labour Department today? Would he say the Commission of Government turned the Memorial College into a University? So, Mr. Speaker, let us give the credit where the credit is due and we regret the surplus is not large enough to enable these services to be extended still further. The Government is going to have its failures, has had its failures in experimentation. No people ever yet tried to do anything but at some time or another failed. The Icelandic boats failed but there are a lot of fishermen who think they were not a failure and if there is anybody in this country who can judge surely it is not the people sitting in office, but the fishermen. These are the people who know when something is fit to go afloat. The fact that the Icelandic Boats did not produce does not mean that experiment itself is a complete failure. I would like to see a hundred million dollars go into a venture of the Icelandic type, it might put us ahead fifty years even if we lost fifty million.

That brings me to the Terms of Union: Everybody says the terms are inadequate but nobody ever said yet that they were adequate. I doubt if any member in this House, the delegation to Ottawa or the Federal Government were capable of determining whether the terms were adequate or inadequate. Who was going to venture a guess in this House of what the public services of Newfoundland would cost if we put them on a higher level because nobody knew and nobody knows now what it is going to cost to build the roads before we break the ground. Nobody knows that it is going to cost to have the hospitals and doctors we need in this Province, nobody knows. At the best it was a guess, a well-informed guess, perhaps but to say the terms were inadequate and to blame the delegation that helped form the terms and to make a fuss about it is popycock and foolish. It is nice and somebody mentioned here the other day that it was no credit to anybody to have hind-sight.

I must congratulate the honourable member for Placentia West on a very fine speech. I don't always agree with what he says, but I do try as most of us do to get to the bottom of things at least. He speaks of this Province as a happy Province today, he speaks of our population as happy, it is true but we have a big section of our population, the fishermen who are not happy and I know of no period in our history when they were happy and I see no period within the next twenty years when they are going to be happy. Do what you like about it, the big job ahead for the fisheries is to decide whether people are to stay in it or not. I don't know, it depends upon the other types of employment offered. If they come out and find other types of employment by all means let them come out. The Province, as the honourable member said, is passing through a boom and that boom is being caused by production for war and our prosperity is equivalent to, if not, a war boom. If that is so, Mr. Speaker, whether the war comes or not it is my firm belief, I don't say this boom can be continued but I will say this, people of the world have grown up a generation since 1939—in twelve years you have a tremendous number of our population who have known a continuous boom since the first day they have gone to work and who is going to upset the economic system under which they live? Are they going to take the risk of upsetting it if they do, and by them I mean ourselves who live under that economic system under co-operative living—if that system fails, in the name of God, we have to have, we have had 13 years of it and it should last for another year or two and the whole population has known a constant boom in their lifetime. Suppose it does collapse, what then? I would suggest, Sir, we cannot afford to let it collapse, the Government of the world cannot afford to allow it to collapse. We would pay for it and our children, years hence, would pay for it. But our concern is our living today and not what is to happen in fifty years. They are not concerned nor can they afford to be concerned, they have stomachs to be filled and need houses to be built and clothes to wear, most of them.

The Terms of Union might be inadequate but that is beside the point; they were based on inadequate information but we are part of a nation of twelve million people, part of a people who represent a way of living that is not going to collapse.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of the debate until tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, in view of the lateness of the hour and the fact we have no night session, today being Wednesday—

MR. SPEAKER: May I anticipate the honourable Premier who is about to defer the remaining orders of the day just to remind you no orders have as yet been called.

Orders of the Day

Second Reading of Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Newfoundland Association of Architects."

MR. SMALLWOOD: I move that order and the remaining orders be deferred and the House at its rising adjourn until tomorrow, Thursday, at three of the clock.

The House then adjourned accordingly.

THURSDAY, May 17, 1951.

The House met at three of the clock in the afternoon, pursuant to adjournment.

Presenting Petitions

Honourable the Minister of Provincial Affairs presented a petition from the St. John's Municipal Council re Enactment of Legislation.

Reports of Standing and Select Committees

MR. VARDY: Mr. Speaker, would it be in order to ask the indulgence of the House to remit the report of a select committee?

MR. SPEAKER: Yes, quite in order after the appointment of a committee to consider this petition just presented by the honourable Minister for Provincial Affairs. I will name the following honourable members to constitute the select committee to see if the rules of the House have been complied with.

Hon. the Attorney General

Hon. the Minister of Provincial Affairs

Hon. Mr. Vardy,

Hon. Leader of the Opposition

Mr. Fahey.

MR. VARDY: Mr. Speaker, the report of the Select Committee on the petition of Mr. James Forbes, Marine Engineer (retired), is as follows:

1. That the petitioner be granted a Pension in accordance with the Pension he would have received had his service with any one branch of the Government of Newfoundland been continuous for his entire period of service, and that such Pension be retroactive to January 30th, the date of his retirement.

2. That a Bill be introduced to give effect to the prayer of the Petition.

(Sgd.) Oliver L. Vardy
S. Drover
L. J. Miller
P. J. Canning
A. B. Morgan.

HON. LESLIE R. CURTIS (Attorney General): To a point of information: During the period of service. We might be well advised by what is meant by period of service. Is it the entire service as engineer or ordinary service with the Railway and the Government?

MR. VARDY: The petition reads, Mr. Speaker, "Had his service with any one branch of the Government of Newfoundland been continuous for the entire period of his service", inferring that that period of service with the Newfoundland Railway be considered as service with the Government of Newfoundland. That is the report of the Committee.

HON. J. R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, the adoption of the report is, I understand, accepted on the recommendation by the House. It would then be necessary to have a Bill presented to the House and for the House to adopt it or pass it or—Who will prepare and bring in that? Probably, Mr. Speaker the lawyer of the House as it is a Bill of the whole House.

Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means.

MR. COURAGE: It is not my purpose, Sir, to give a very long speech but since there were one or two things in the budget which bear directly upon the district which I represent, the District of Fortune and Hermitage, I felt that I would be delinquent and indeed ungrateful if I did not say a few words in connection with the Budget Speech.

I should like to pay well deserved tribute to the honourable the Premier who as Minister of Finance brought in one of the very finest budget speeches ever to be heard in this House or for that matter anywhere, I should say.

Mr. Speaker, we have heard some very strong criticism of the budget speech. It has been said even that there was no surplus. I maintain that there is a surplus, that no country in the world knows the difference between expenditures on current account and expenditure on surplus account. I should think it very strange if any country in the world today were to embark upon a program of building up capital resources without having either to borrow money to do so or, if it is so fortunate as this Government is, to withdraw money from its savings. And, I maintain that there is a surplus, and that the Government should be given credit for it.

Now I heard a very strange thing said in this Chamber not long ago. It was said in the heat of debate, and I believe the honourable gentleman who said it was not aware of the way in which it might be taken. He said, people won't fish because they are living off the Government. Now I represent a District which is nearly all or largely a fishing district, and in fairness to my constituents I must say that is not so. It is a gross insult to the fishermen of Newfoundland. The people of Fortune Bay and Hermitage Bay are fishing today almost to a man, and the few who are not fishing are those who have for some reason or another very little in the way of fishing gear, or others who are young and have not yet been fishing and might probably like to try some other employment. But by and large the people of my district, and I will go further and say almost all of Newfoundland are struggling hard to earn their living as they have done for many generations.

One member on the opposite side said, that the way of living of our outport fishermen should be preserved. I agree with him, and I will go still further and say that the way of living of our outport fishermen should be made better. There is a great deal of talk today, and rightly so, about the price of fish. The price of fish, ever since the time of John Cabot, has been an important subject of conversation in Newfoundland. But I maintain that as important as the price of fish is there is still something that is more important. Because, Mr. Speaker, even if fish were to be raised to $20 a quintal it would be very difficult for our fishermen to live. I will repeat that: it would still be very difficult for our fishermen to live even if prices for fish were $20 per quintal until the number of quintals of fish caught by the average fishermen are increased. I make a very conservative estimate or rather a very optimistic rather than conservative estimate, when I say the average catch for fishermen is 50 quintals a year in Newfoundland, I am very optimistic when I say that. I know many fishermen though I have never been a fisherman myself but my grandfather was and I have hundreds and hundreds of friends who are fishermen and I know something about the fisheries. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, if the fishermen received $20 per quintal that would only be $1,000 per man, and if they take away the cost of operating from that, which would be somewhere around $300 say, which would only leave $700 to live on and that is with fish away up at $20 a quintal so that the problem which faces the Province today and the problem this Government is concerning itself with is the modernizing of our fisheries so that each fisherman's share may be greater.

We have only to see what the men are doing on the trawlers to be able to get some conception of what I mean. The men on the trawlers are averaging around $2,000 a year. The Premier has corrected me and said $3,000 a year, and I am glad to say that when I go visit the trawlers I see so many friends from my own district that it is a pleasure to go aboard a trawler in St. John's, and I visit them quite often.

That is the problem: to modernize our fisheries and increase our products so that each individual fisherman will earn a greater share, and it is only by doing this that we can give our fisherman a standard of living which he deserves and desires.

Now, Mr. Speaker, my friend, and I say my friend advisably, because I think quite highly of him, the member for Ferryland has walked out of this House yesterday in something of a huff because the Civil Servants' salaries were not raised. Now, I have many friends in the Civil Service and amongst the Civil Servants are many friends whom I regard highly. The Civil Servants are a fine body of men and I know hundreds of them personally, but let us look at what the Civil Servants are receiving. Let us look at what the very lowest of them get. Clerk, Grade 3, I am speaking about the men, we won't talk about the women, Clerk Grade 3, if this clerk is 25 years old, he gets $1,400 plus three hundred and sixty to begin or in other words $1,760 to begin. And he will go up by increases of $70 odd dollars a year until he reaches $2,280 dollars. That is the lowest scale for the Civil Service for men 25 years or over, $2,280. A grade 2 clerk starts at $2,160 and goes to $2,800 and grade one begins at $2,960 and goes to $3,700, which while I admit it is not high yet nevertheless it is comparative to the salaries received by the Civil Servants of Canada, by the Federal Civil Servants. It compares favourably and I know what I am speaking of. Mind you, I would like to see the salaries raised but we must, as has been often said here, cut the garment to the cloth and when the lowest salary of any male Civil Servant of 25 years or over is $1,760 can we in justice to the fishermen and labourers in this country who are so much below, raise their salary at the present time? And my honourable friend said he was not playing politics when he walked out of this House and said he was not coming in any more until the injustice was rectified, well I say he was playing politics. I hope he does not make a martyr of himself and go on a starvation strike like Ghandi did. Now I am going to refer you to a statement which was made on April 24, 1931, in this House by the honourable and gallant member for Ferryland when he came in here, when he was Finance Minister and reduced the salaries of Civil Servants by 10% and he was quite proud of it. He later pointed out to the country with some pride, "Many cuts have been made in addition to the proposed 10% reduction." That is the record of the man who today stamps out of the Chamber because justice is not being done to Civil Servants. I am sorry he is not here to hear what I say, as I hate to talk about it behind his back. I say that when he walked out he was only joking or playing politics, probably joking.

He said something else which struck me very, very forcibly when he suggested we burn down the Memorial University, I wonder if he would prefer it before or after the exams which are going on up there today. Mr. Speaker, I know he was joking when he said it but I take this opportunity to say that the Memorial University, now the Memorial University of Newfoundland has been a great asset to this country and I would like to pay tribute to the staff and the very fine work that they have been doing up there and are still doing. I know, I attended that College for several years and I am glad to be able to boast, I say boast because it is something to boast about, that I am the first person in Newfoundland to be awarded the degree of Bachelor of Arts of Education by the Memorial University of Newfoundland and I was awarded that degree at the first convocation, and I will always regard it as a high point in my life. I deliberately waited as I could have taken it at another university, in order to have the honour of receiving that degree. I think that the Memorial University of Newfoundland has been a very potent factor for the good in the lives of our people, and I am sure that it will continue to be so. I have great pleasure in paying tribute on the floor of this House to the present staff of that fine University and I am very, very glad that the Premier here and the Government have taken such an interest in its welfare.

I know something about teaching too. I started teaching in 1933. I was sixteen years old at the time and I gave up when I entered this House two years ago. I taught in nearly all the various types of schools, I held every teaching grade from the lowest, well I was ungraded when I began, from the lowest to the highest. The teachers of Newfoundland are one of the finest bodies of people that can be found anywhere today in the world. I am happy that one of the first things this Government did was to give them a sensible salary scale. It is not what they deserve now, what we would like to give them, but at the present time it is all that we can afford. Later we may be able to do that but I am sure, Mr. Speaker, and I know the Government will back me up in this; no Government in the history of this country ever had the welfare of the teachers more at heart than this Government. As I see it, some day there will have to be Federal Aid for our schools in order that the children of Newfoundland will be given anything like equal opportunity with the children on the mainland, and that the children of some sections of Newfoundland will be given anything like equality of education with those of some other parts of the Mainland.

Now, please don't think that I am advocating that the Federal Government should come in and take over our system of education or even interfere with it at all. I don't think that is necessary. We have here in Newfoundland a very good educational system. It is a system which has grown and changed to meet the needs of our society, a system which has proven itself over the years, it is not the same system now as 20 years or 30 years ago. Our system of education is stepping up today and if the Government of Canada wished to make a grant in aid to schools in Newfoundland it would merely have to pass to this Government to pass on to the Department of Education any sum of money which it thinks fit to contribute. It is a very simple thing and the day is going to come when people are going to agree with me.

The Greatest Teacher said: "Feed my lambs," he did not say: "Feed them in proportion to what their parents can pay for their schooling." He did not say that, nor did he mean that. If we are going to have the educational system in this country that will give our children equality of educational opportunities with the other Provinces. I am afraid we will need Federal help. Now I speak for myself, I am speaking as I think from my own experience. Someone mentioned Adult Education the other day. I would like to pay tribute to the work done in that field of education and I wish more were being done. The Adult Education Centre here in St. John's is one of the finest adult education centres anywhere in the world and one of the largest. I was president of it from the time when it had nineteen students until when I left, when there were 700 amongst the finest young people of Newfoundland. I could tell you a story which would amaze this House. The night before last at a graduation of nurses in the Grace Hospital a young lady graduated and won the Dr. Policoff Medal for the most progress in three years. That young lady enrolled at the adult centre some years ago and started in Grade 7, worked here in St. John's and completed her Grade Eleven and took up nursing and I can tell many similar stories of people. I would like to pay a tribute to the staff and Mr. Wilfred Decker at the Adult Education Centre, who have done a very fine job and I hope the Government will consider the great need for more adult education teachers to be sent out to help our people in the out-ports.

MR. J. G. HIGGINS (Leader of the Opposition): It was not attacked.

MR. COURAGE: I did not intend to give the impression it was attacked. A member merely asked a question about it, and I dare say the honourable member thoroughly approved of it.

I must thank the honourable member for Ferryland for his interest in Bay D'Espoir and I must say I agree with him in what he said about Bay D'Espoir. I know it very well, its people, I believe in its potentialities, I believe Bay D'Espoir is the Bay of Good Hope not of despair. It is the bright hope of the South Coast and one of the brightest hopes of Newfoundland today. Not only has it great resources of water-power undeveloped but it has some of the very best farmland to be found anywhere in the country. As a matter of fact the Director of Agriculture tells me it is the best land he has seen anywhere. He made some tests of soil up there. I hope some day we will have a town there, and that dotted around the outskirts of that town there will be prosperous farms to help feed the population of that land, I hope I may be spared to see that, I know I, and the Government, will do everything possible to bring that about. I say everything possible.

The honourable member for Ferryland said: "I take my hat off to the Government for guaranteeing loans for extension of the fisheries industry." So do we all; certainly that is one thing which everybody must agree with. I think as I said in the beginning of my speech we have to extend the fresh fish industry in this country. I was glad to see Grand Bank and Gaultois mentioned as two places where fish plants may be established. Grand Bank is in Burin District but I am fond of telling my honourable friend, the Minister of Supply, that when any schooner goes to sea it has to carry Fortune Bay men as crew and this will reflect itself in my District. Gaultois is in my district, a fine harbour and it is an area which has outside it one of the largest beds of rose fish anywhere in Newfoundland waters.

Mr. Speaker, I will not take up any more time of the House but in closing I would like to pay tribute, one more tribute to the Government. I am not a member of the Government but a member of the House of Assembly and of the Liberal Party and I sit on this side of the House and support the Government but am not a member of the Government. Once or twice I have heard in this House a very famous quotation "Of the people, by the people and for the people." A Government of the people, by the people, for the people." But I have never heard it said yet as Lincoln said it "Of the people, for the people, by the people." This Government does not emphasize the ofs and bys and fors but "The People."

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Speaker, at the outset I would like to try and answer some of the remarks of the honourable Minister of Education criticising the figures produced by my colleague of the East End in connection with Federal Tax. The Federal Minister's Budget shows the increase in Federal Taxation and the sales tax last year was $495,000,000, and he is expecting an increase this year of $150,000,000, which forecasts a collection of six hundred millions. Now according to per capita population our share would be $13,000,000. Perhaps we may not buy as much commodities as people on the Mainland do, but we will still pay considerable. In 1949 we imported $150,000,000 worth of goods and this year with the increase in wages forecast by the Premier, we should import say $125,000,000. On a large proportion of this we pay no Federal taxation, on food and on some other imports, but not all are free of taxes. We also make and sell in this country $25,000,000 worth of commodities and that would bring the whole up to $150,000,000, and we will have to pay Federal taxation on all but 35%. If this is added on at the source; then the shopkeeper will have to add on something himself in order to meet bad debts and will probably charge 40% which will add up considerably and we will be paying approximately $13,000,000.

Yesterday in the House the honourable member for Ferryland said Mr. Crosbie said he asked that the report of the Royal Commission be guaranteed to be accepted and the honourable the Premier said he never heard a word about this in Ottawa. Now I have a letter which Mr. Crosbie wrote giving the reasons why Mr. Crosbie did not sign the terms.

Mr. Crosbie refused to sign the terms and gave as one reason that no assurance was given. Now there is an other matter ordinarily not brought up which I am going to mention now. I was surprised to find this morning that in spite of all talk of what is going to happen in the future, Fort Amherst is going to be torn down. An old fort built about 1738 thrust aside to make place for a modern light-house. On the Mainland they are making every effort to save old buildings of historical significance and such buildings are put in first class condition and have caretakers who show them to tourists. I must admire the people who do that. But they are making no attempt at all here, we hear we are going to get this and that done but here is one of the old monuments of this country being destroyed.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is not to be taken down now. They have decided not to take it down.

MR. HIGGINS: Now let us return to the Budget which shows the Government with $1,900,000 more than they expected or than they budgeted for. In other words they had $1,900,000 more to spend than anticipated. On the face of this what one would have expected to see is that they would have carried out more in the way of public services than they did. There was over $1,000,000 spent on back bills for relief in the Province in the previous year, however, they still had a surplus of nine hundred thousand dollars on hand which only proves therefore that the services promised in last year's estimates were not put into effect. In the Budget Speech a lot of time was taken up comparing the standard with that of the Maritime Provinces and talk of themselves as very hard working, still they were not able to get on with the services hoped for. Is it really true the Government can only go so far because Newfoundland can stand no further under the Terms of Union than they have done.

Now last year the Government made a big song and dance about the speed with which they must proceed with the fisheries. The honourable Minister of Co-operatives and Fisheries talked about the great work that was going to be done for the fisheries. What do we find, unfortunately, the speculation in the Icelandic Boats Venture so much advertised, where are they gone now, gone with the things of the past with no real advantage to Newfoundland but a loss of $412,000. Fifty percent of the provisions made for fisheries and other loan boards were not used for fishermen at all. It is true the regulations made under these loan boards are so stringent that the fishermen themselves who need the assistance most, are unable to get it and those who get it from some other source have come to that conclusion.

In the Public Works Department we find under the construction and extension of Public Buildings, improvement and construction of roads and building of the Trans-Canada Highway, a large reduction. The Government spent also $215,000 on a building for storing liquor. I don't doubt for a moment the building is worth it but was there a necessity of spending that amount of money just for a building for storage for the Controller's Department, but did it not help that this building was owned by people who were great supporters of the Party?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, to a point of order. That is contemptible, that observation. It is beneath contempt and I am surprised at my honourable and learned friend making a statement like that—and entirely out of order.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Speaker, I do not want to be interrupted, maybe it was a point of privilege. I say that building, we know who owns that building, and we don't see any reason why a press in this country should be subsidized where there has been a number carried on for a number of years, either.

MR. CURTIS: A loan, not a subsidy.

MR. HIGGINS: I say why should they?

MR. SMALLWOOD: I say why not?

MR. HIGGINS: There is no necessity for it, there are already printers here.

MR. SMALLWOOD: What do you know about it? I am a printer, are you?

MR. HIGGINS: I read books but I am not a printer.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Well, I am a printer.

MR. HIGGINS: The Premier is a printer, knows all about printing, books, presses and everything else but other people can talk about books besides himself. And I hope I am not going to be interrupted any more, Sir.

Now, one thing to be sure that appears clean on the expenditure for surplus is this: in order to give $2,000,000 to pay the cost of the cement mill the Government must be limited in expenditure for essential services, and that is in spite of all protestations made last year. We must build up our services to the level of the more fortunate Maritime Provinces.

With regard to the Accounting Re-organization there is surely an explanation due from the Minister of Finance and that the new accounting system with the great improvement in the keeping of Government Accounts and expenditure of Government Funds must mean there are people in the Accounting Department who will become unnecessary. It seems to me we should be given assurance that these be transferred to other duties in other departments and are not thrown out of work while other people from outside fill positions.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I can give that assurance now.

MR. HIGGINS: Now the administration with regard to the revote last year should have been an object lesson to them to tighten up by some form of control.

Under general prospects the Finance Minister waxed eloquent in the description and praises of the general economic and financial position and the prospects of this Province, and there is a carefully compiled estimate of wages and salaries to be paid out for 1951 and we are told the sources from which these figures are compiled. For the purpose of the present argument it is not necessary to quarrel with the main contention that there will be more money paid out this year than last year, but it does concern me very much to find only one side of the picture presented to the public in the budget in spite of the fact that the Government spent $60,000 or $70,000 on a Royal Commission to enquire into the cost of living, not one word was brought up in the budget. Due to increased activity in the country now it is likely that a vast number of the people will be enabled to make more money than last year, and may move from one occupation to another but it is a fact that the bulk of the people will be no better off than in the past because of the increased cost of consumers' goods and consumers' taxes. We don't have to compile this to find out the truth of this. It can be seen in any paper and any housewife will tell you. All you have to do is go around to any group of workers to find this out. Ask the man with five or six children if he is any better off, ask the clerks in the Liquor Controller's Department, on their feet twelve hours a day, who are not getting $2,200 but $1,700 a year. Ask the miner, the civil servants generally if any part of this increased wages applied to them. I say, take out the newly appointed deputy ministers and the few high-priced civil servants and add up the amount paid to the rest of the crowd and see what is left for the other three thousand civil servants. See what they get when you take into account the increased cost of goods and taxes.

What about the teachers for whom the Government had been showing so much solicitude, are they going to get any of the increase, any part of the $20,000,000? Now it cannot be denied that the salaries of the teachers in Newfoundland are much lower than that of any part of the Mainland. I have a book which sets out the teachers' salaries in all the Provinces and Newfoundland is the lowest.

Now, let us return to the list on page 10: We will come to the fishermen later. I cannot pass by the words in this budget that the only safe sure accounts are derived from industry. When we look at the records of the depression any of us can realize that industry can be hit worst of all and the people affected worst of all were the people in industry, worse than the civil servants or anybody else.

I would like to show now the cost of living on the Mainland at the present time. Read from McLean's Magazine, "Why are women going out to work?" Women for the most part are not working because they like to, or as a gesture of emancipation. They are working because they have found it hopeless trying to balance the family budget on their husband's income alone. In March 1951 the cost-of-living index reached an all-time peak of 179.7, on Mainland generally.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is not just Canada but North America generally. Women, I suppose, don't go out to work anywhere else but Canada?

MR. HIGGINS: I don't know about that but this just shows the increased cost of living in Canada generally which does not come up with the increased cost of taxation.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Does it anywhere?

MR. HIGGINS: There is no mention of teachers, what increase are the teachers getting?

MR. CURTIS: They got a big one last year.

MR. HIGGINS: They got the same as last year, they are not coming under that $20,000,000.

MR. SMALLWOOD: There is nothing in that about increased pay but the increased amount of wages.

MR. HIGGINS: Don't teachers get wages?

MR. SMALLWOOD: It does not mean increased wages but an increased economy, there could be more people working.

MR. HIGGINS: On page 12 it says: I think more has been accomplished in the past year than any other similar period. What does that mean? Apart from a little program of development of the Humber District.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Was that done in two years?

MR. HIGGINS: Let us look further and turn to page 26, and see what is being done with money collected by the Commission of Government and handed over by the Commission of Government to this Government. First item, capital for three development loan boards, so far nothing of any consequence has been done. Hydro-electric development: Why spend this in view of section No. 45 of the Terms of Union?

(1) Should the Government of the Province of Newfoundland institute an economic survey of the Province of Newfoundland with a view to determining what resources may profitably be developed, and what new industries may be established or existing industries expanded, the Government of Canada will make available the services of its technical employees and agencies to assist in the work.

(2) As soon as may be practicable after the date of Union, the Government of Canada will make a special effort to collect and make available statistical and scientific data about the natural resources and economy of the Province of Newfoundland, in order to bring such information up to the standard attained for the other provinces of Canada,

MR. SMALLWOOD: We are doing that.

MR. HIGGINS: What proof have we got that any money has been spent that way or if any progress has been made by the Federal Authorities in order to provide these services promised by the Terms of Union? Now the Fishery Development—that is, I presume, a continuation only of the policy of the Commission of Government and is carried on out of funds provided by the Commission of Government. The Development of the fisheries had started first with the development of processing that was done and the Commission of Government made loans to certain people, to certain firms, to develop the fishery and all the present Government has done is to continue that program. The fishing industry has been going on for years.

Industrial Development, that is very nebulous. Six million dollars of the surplus has been spent so far on industrial development. Now the policy of the Government has been laid down with regard to the property now known as the Birch Factory. There was a report on the Birch Industry compiled by Mr. Moffat brought down by the Government, which in my estimation damned it with faint praise. On page 6 of the report he says:

"Starting new industry is difficult but it can be started if intelligently approached, good equipment is used and above all proper management with the "Know-how" of the industry. Newfoundland has a very difficult terrain with raw material supplies scattered throughout the Island. A good percentage of the raw material stands cannot be reached during the winter and due to the bays freezing over cannot be transported to markets during the winter months. Unfortunately, birch does not float in water for any length of time so that it cannot be driven in rivers and lakes similar to pulp mill operations. With very few roads on the Island, material is frequently transported with difficulty while most of the roads that are available are closed during the winter months.

One of the most apparent difficulties of the Industries is lack of efficient and proper equipment. Hardwood industries in Newfoundland are going to develop around the bays and outports and not so much at the few well equipped mills run by the bigger and more qualified operators. Sufficient profit must be kept with these operators, so that they can "plow back" a percentage of their earnings into plant and equipment. They cannot do this if the price is not satisfactory. It is therefore most obvious that as plants are developed the financial arrangements should be such that an efficient operator can write off his machinery and replace it at the proper time.

With the finest of birch and the best of equipment an industry will fail if not properly supervised especially in this particular case where inexperienced operators will cut in scattered parts of the Island. If goods are to be sold in the United States and in Britain they must be made right and if not hardwood manufacture would soon eliminate itself from the field. The most important of all essentials is that some central body or the Government obtain immediately a qualified man with as much Wood Products industrial training as possible. If possible, he should be a Professional Engineer and should be familiar with the marketing, fabrication and procurement of raw materials. Without this qualified person the industry will probably fail so that it is much better not to start than to meet disaster two or three years hence. Operating production costs and quality must be competitive. At the start Newfoundland industry will be slow and inefficient and it will be the problem of this general supervisor to direct the small operators and to show them how to operate. To do this, this person should spend some time this winter on marketing and observation of utilization of wood and in the spring show operators how to become qualified on the sawing processes.

VI Proposed Development

Consideration of costs will be reviewed later in this brief but the greatest factor of all is the quality of the birch and the amount of black heart. This information is not known and data should be gathered on this and also the growth of local birch by the Department of Natural Resources as quickly as possible in conjunction with one of the mainland Provinces or Universities. It might be possible for your Government to borrow a man from the Department of Lands and Mines of New Brunswick to assist in the procurement of this data.

With lack of authentic information the writer stresses caution in too rapid a development programme until some idea of actual costs tie in with the variable birch quality which can be obtained. However, sound development can be proceeded with immediately, without this data and the general plan can be outlined as follows:"

That is not the broad policy the Government has undertaken now.

"(c) Veneer Mill

Great diversity of opinion exists as to the suitability of Newfoundland lumber for veneer. The field is so tremendous that it cannot be passed over lightly and the problem should be discussed and studied some time as a separate problem.

It is pretty well agreed that Commercial Veneer for plywood does not exist to any extent in Newfoundland. It has not been proven nor has the writer seen sufficient laye timber to pass a serious opinion that a veneer mill for boxes is feasible or is not feasible. However, it is quite well known that Wire Bound Box concerns which use veneer in plywood are in rigid competition with corrugated carton manufacturers and costs are a serious factor in consideration of a box veneer industry.

Another field of interest is softwood veneer. Where thin wooden boxes are usual such as in orange crates, standard sawn wooden boxes are not competitive as veneer is cheaper.

The writer has frequently quoted prices in the West Indies for Box Shooks but found that veneer made boxes from Southern Pine could always underbid the box suppliers who make their own boxes in the usual manner. It is quite possible that Newfoundland might combine softwood veneers with hardwood veneers and develop an industry, but this needs considerable study before an intelligent decision can be made.

The whole question of a small box board veneer mill needs further study, but it always should be kept in mind that a veneer mill cannot take all the large trees and leave the dimension mills with only logs 6" and 7" in diameter."

That is, in view of the Government's entering into a proposition which costs over a million dollars. The contract is made between his Majesty the King, the Crown, and Mr. Chester Dawe, the Operator. Now it is clear the Government is putting up all the money for the building and equipment of this plant. The preamble reads: "The Government leases to the Operator at an annual rent of one half the net profit." If there are no profits the Government gets nothing.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It does not say that. There is more than that to it, that is not right.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Speaker, at least I might be allowed to finish. There is the rent and later on the Operator says he will pay the Government the depreciation which would be allowed by the Department of National Revenue. That would be 10% I presume on a reducing scale. Now after 15 years there would still be left about 25% to be depreciated, the whole depreciation will not be taken up for the full value of the building in fifteen years. Now all the Operator puts into this is the sum of $25,000. I do not know if he has taken $35,000 in shares or some other consideration for the $25,000. I do not know if he gave any building or paid $25,000 in cash.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is on the capital account, the Newfoundland Hardwoods $25,000.

MR. HIGGINS: Cash, $25,000.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is cash.

MR. HIGGINS: He puts $25,000 cash in the company. I take it he paid the actual cash.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Yes.

MR. HIGGINS: Now, I presume the Government will pay half the tax. That is, the Government has half the profit. Now, the Government is to advance the sum or sums of money for use of working capital. Now after signing over a million dollars the Government is bound to give the operator whatever money he asks for not to exceed $400,000; the Government has to pay all wages and everything else, in other words finance the whole industry, "and the Government has also to advance certain further money to operators to enable them to supply competent mill owners. Now the contract gives the whole running of this business into the hands of this one man, I do not care if it is a company or not. He has not alone control over a factory that cost over a million dollars, but apparently he can call on the Government at any time and there is no cancellation clause in this. They cannot turn around and say he is not doing the work right and turn him out, there is not a word about it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The Government has a director.

MR. HIGGINS: What can one director do?

MR. SMALLWOOD: There are certain veto powers.

MR. HIGGINS: How are you managing about the $400,000?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Lent at interest.

MR. HIGGINS: On what security?

MR. SMALLWOOD: On such security as we may demand.

MR. HIGGINS: I am reading the document and it says nothing about securities. What security has the Government?

MR. SMALLWOOD: The veto is in the hands of the Government.

MR. HIGGINS: He comes to you and says so much money is necessary to run the factory and you have no security.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We have the inventory.

MR. HIGGINS: What is that? Does the bank loan money on the strength of an inventory? That is not good enough here either, the bank will not loan on an inventory. You have established a mill all in the hands of one man and if it fails, particularly in view of that report which actually condemned any vast expenditure of money and suggested the Government should act very conservatively—

MR. SMALLWOOD: We have an engineer.

MR. HIGGINS: Employed by the Newfoundland Hardwood, Ltd.?

MR. SPEAKER: Would the honourable gentleman care to pause here for a recess if this is a suitable breaking point in his speech?

The House recessed for 10 minutes.

MR. HIGGINS: I was referring to the work which the Government is doing under various headings, under economic development and social development. The night school and library are only a continuation of the work of the Commission of Government who built up the library here in St. John's and the travelling library books to be sent around to various parts of Newfoundland and they built certain libraries also in various parts of the country. It is only a continuation therefore. Hospitals and Public Buildings were mostly started by the Commission of Government and the work is being finished by the money raised by the Commission of Government here. For instance the two in Corner Brook, the General and the Memorial, two started by the Commission. The General Hospital was there long before I was born and the Mental has been in existence a long time too. They only continued the building of the cottage hospitals. The policy of the Government is not a new one, but only a continuation of the Cottage Hospitals of the Commission of Government.

HON. JAMES R. CHALKER (Minister of Health): We are putting them there faster, that is our policy.

MR. HIGGINS: It is entirely possible to go too fast with money at your disposal in surplus account. Local Government assistance is only a continuance of the work of the Commission of Government who started these local governments and set up various town councils throughout the Island, but they would have to be accelerated against the day when a Royal Commission goes into action.

Roads: Well, after all, roads have always been here and the work carried on was only a continuation of the work of the Commission of Government. Workmen's Compensation Board has not been just started, we always had it here but it is probably a little more elaborate.

Now, according to the utterance of the Premier abroad some time ago, Newfoundland in Confederation is getting too little; it is not sharing Canadian prosperity, and according to the press, Ottawa looked upon the Premier as a nuisance, but at one time they did not look upon him as a nuisance.

HON. DR. H. L. POTTLE (Minister of Public Welfare): Do you have a text of the Provincial Dominion Conference?

MR. HIGGINS: I am only quoting what is said in the newspapers.

MR. SPEAKER: In quoting from books or newspapers it is not in order to quote newspaper comments with reference to utterances or statements made by a member. I am not ruling out of order, but just refreshing the memory and in answer to the honourable Minister of Public Welfare.

MR. HIGGINS: All I can say now is that the newspaper is setting out what was said. I know the one on the Conference, but that is not the one I was referring to. Now, I think one can see from the various statements that the Premier is beginning to realize the bad consequences apt to come out of Confederation and must do his best to try and save the country from that consequence. We have often been told what this big vast country of Canada was going to do for this poverty-stricken Newfoundland. Mr. Bradley used to preach thus about the gains of Confederation which would drag Newfoundland from the inertia and isolation she always lived under. We were told of the wonderful future that was ahead of Newfoundland, there was never such a future guaranteed before with three jobs for every man and the cost of living going down 40%, the wonderful improvement in transportation, and Canadian Capital pouring in for new industries and the people living in this country, a country with the smallest per capita debt in the world, with revenue still rising, believed it, but where is the Canadian capital, where are the millions promised to be poured into this country? The cost of living has advanced, taxes have not become burdensome so much as over-burdensome and more are anticipated in view of the national problem of defence. The Prime Minister stated that under Responsible Government we would be now bankrupt. Well let us see; the year after the war, there was a revenue increase, the year after that still another and the year we entered Confederation the highest of all. We would be able to pay family allowances and social security with work on the U.S. Bases stepped up and at Goose Bay and the Gauder, which went to Canada with Confederation. We are told the Canadian Government paid out $75,000,000 because they made a bad contract with the farmers of the West, but does the Canadian Government give us money to carry on our fisheries; allocating an amount for the sterling, yes, but the farmers of Canada got $75,000,000 because they are a big block and we are only a small country and only small pawns on the chess board of Canadian politics.

Now, we come to the amounts spent for hospitals and roads by previous Governments. From page 33, that part of the Budget Speech dealing with the amount of expenditures during the past sixteen years for hospitals and roads, from that it is clear-cut that the present Government only carried out the policy of former governments and are only accelerating the plans in most cases because of the huge surplus accumulated by former administrations. Furthermore the policy of the Commission of Government as learned in the National Convention days was to go as far as possible bearing in mind the tremendous problem of maintaining these public services once instituted. This part of the problem of Newfoundland seems to be deliberately neglected by the Government, at least there is very little or any sign that this Government is aware of this aspect of future governments of Newfoundland.

With regard to Term 29 of the Terms of Union, the Government in debate recently before the House argued that Term 29 is of the utmost importance and it was necessary to get public services up to the highest possible standard before the Royal Commission comes down for an inquiry into finances. I wonder what the public interest has to do with the cement and gypsum plant and there is only one course open and that is to sell them as quickly as possible and get the money and make it available to carry out public services program, according to a statement made by one honourable member, I do not necessarily agree with that and my business is only to point out inconsistencies in their conduct. Now has the Government any clear-cut policy at all on the question of these projects as to what to do with the birch plant and the cement plant and gypsum mill? Is it the intention of the Government to accelerate service or tie up ten million dollars in economic development?

Now let us come to the cost of living. There is no mention in the Budget of course of the cost of living, and that is a matter of some very great importance. In 1949 there was a commission appointed by the Commission of Government, and I had to go in to an enquiry headed by Professor Smith, and in 1948 there was a survey on retail prices, and last year a Royal Commission enquiry into the high cost of living. Now, there is no doubt that a large part of the increase has been caused by world conditions and a lot is due to the fact that we are cut off from the markets in the United States and England. We can get goods far cheaper in the United States than in Canada, electric and radio products and other stuff, but the duty rates are up and they are up on other things. They could be brought very much cheaper from the United States than from Canada but if we buy now we have increased duties. Now the Canadian cost of living reached a new high according to the Bureau of Statistics reports, there has been a climb in the price of food stuffs. The cost of living has now reached so high that the increase of wages have not kept up and worst of all we have further taxes, and if the threat of war continues the taxes will go the limit. England has suffered with heavy taxation and no one could have foretold before the second world war that England would be in the position she is today, and that point will also be reached by us. It has been hinted recently the 3% tax is to be increased and that the items on the free list will be removed and we will pay full taxation. As my colleague from St. John's East said, this will mean a further increase because the shopkeepers will add it on to the total. To say that the social security tax will not increase, that is a very trite remark, when we have tobacco up from 27c. to 60c. That is an important matter for the fishermen; it is almost a food for fishermen. I remember the time the Commission of Government intended to supply fishermen to carry on the fishery and when they had Beaver tobacco on the list the Commission indignantly refused, but after consultation they decided it was the most necessary of all and put it on. The Commission of Government found that for fishermen that was just a important as food and anyway it was given to them.

Now as to the fisheries in general. Everyone agrees with the Premier that every Newfoundlander is concerned about the fisheries and that the standard of living of all of us is largely determined by the state of the fisheries. As to the importance of the fisheries in Newfoundland, nobody has the least doubt. The Budget expressed a lot of ideals, a lot of talk, but what have they done for the fisheries except talk? They are too concerned with economic development and too little concerned with the fisheries. Everything we can do under a long range program should be done, there is no question about that at all but what we want to know is what has been done in the immediate crisis of today? There is nothing to show in that Budget at all that the Government has been progressing on floor prices which would make a lot of the fishermen a little more secure in their hour of need. It is common knowledge that the fishermen approached the Government but they made no promises on that score. The Prime Minister says it cannot be done. We say it can.

MR. SMALLWOOD: What did I say?

MR. HIGGINS: You said the floor prices could not be established.

You suggested in the House here that the fishermen catch the fish, cure the fish; we cannot create the price paid but we can see the fishermen gets what he earns.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We are doing that.

MR. HIGGINS: Now then there were three ventures in the fisheries. I would like to return to these; first of all the Icelandic Venture, now known to be a complete failure on admission of the Government themselves and the cost so far has not been less than $400,000. The loss of that money is bad enough, goodness knows, in this small country of Newfoundland, but the Government went in recklessly and without sufficient thought; and the people wonder if there is not some truth in the widespread idea that there is wild speculation on the part of the Government on the same insecure basis, in view of the past and the report of Mr. Moffatt and the sudden movements of the Government which leave a doubt that the Government is giving sufficient study to projects started on Government funds, because it costs them a lot while starting and we only hope people will not suffer. What about the Caraqueet Druggers which were brought in here, as I understood, to be operated by a well-known and experienced firm and they turned out to be a complete failure.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I happen to be misrepresented, you have nothing to go on.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Speaker, may I ask for protection in this House, I do not want to be interrupted and I hope this is the last interruption. The Prime Minister is talking too much about the dignity of the House and is not carrying it out himself. We find that these draggers are suited only for relatively shallow water and have now been loaned to a well-known firm on the South West Coast for further experiment. On the other hand the long line fishing out of Bonavista is entirely a Federal matter and I hear that the experiment is a colossal failure. This was a Federal experiment and declared to be a colossal failure. It is truly too early yet to say whether it was such or not, but at least they explained in detail what they had hoped to accomplish especially in view of the fact that other boats maybe were built on similar lines.

Now with regard to floor prices, the honourable member for Fogo said we were the sponsors of private enterprise. We agree with that, we certainly are and I would like to ask the Prime Minister if his party is in favour of private enterprise. If we are to take the word of the honourable member for Fogo it would mean that they are not the exponents of private enterprise.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Why not make it communistic and go the whole hog.

MR. HIGGINS: Yes, it is communistic. Mr. Speaker, I ask you, Sir, the next time the honourable the Prime Minister interrupts me—

MR. SMALLWOOD: Don't ask me questions then, I do not want to answer.

MR. HIGGINS: I do not like it, Sir, and I do not like him disregarding the rules, Mr. Speaker, Now that does not mean that as such we do not favour public ownership in the present crisis, we are really in favour of a subsidy or floor price or both if necessary. Now they can say that will not be done, let NAFEL pay whatever prices they get, but that is no reason the Government cannot act for the fishermen. The member for Fogo said that even a dollar a quintal on fish means a million dollars down the drain; what does he mean by that, does he mean a million dollars wasted? That is not wasted, it is given for a good purpose. What did he mean by it? I say that if it were given it would be given for a good purpose, and there is as much truth in that as there is truth in some of his other remarks.

MR. JANES: Mr. Speaker, a point of order: I did not think it was a million dollars thrown down the drain. I said it would not help out our fishermen this year. I said nothing about the drain.

MR. HIGGINS: I will withdraw it, Sir. But the honourable member told me the other day that they got only 50c. a day for the soldiers, is that true?

MR. JANES: Yes, that is true, I was one who got it, but not through the whole war which lasted for six years.

MR. HIGGINS: I wonder how much you got when you got back?

MR. JANES: We got twice as much from the Canadian Government under Confederation, as gratuities, if you want to know that.

MR. HIGGINS: Now in the budget speech there was no mention at all of subsidies for fish. Now what are you going to do about it? What happened in the House of Commons last year regarding this price of fish? One member got up and was very long-winded about the matter and three others avoided the issue entirely; yet two P.C. members favoured it very completely and an ex-Minister of this Government the member for Bonavista South, advocates it. We are now taking a strong stand in this matter and a speech delivered on the radio by Mr. Cheeseman advocated it very strongly. I know the Federal authorities have taken up the matter but it is not due at all to the efforts of the Government here. The Government decided it was not possible nor feasible, as has been proven by public utterance and silence in the budget. I advocated it in a speech to the Convention of Fishermen.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Would you make it clear when you announce that this Party is opposed to a floor price whether it is Provincial or Federal floor price, which is which and which it is opposed to and which supports which?

MR. HIGGINS: I do not care which. I say if the Federal authorities put a floor price, this present Provincial Government should egg them on and play a bigger part in Federal affairs in Ottawa. For instance, in answer to a question as to how much money is taken out of Newfoundland we are told it is a Federal matter. Why should we not know? It is most important to the people to know how much money is taken out of here by Ottawa. I am saying that the Government should make recommendation to the Federal Government for a floor price or a Canadian subsidy or should give subsidies themselves to the fishermen.

Now I turn to the seal fishery. There was no mention of this in the budget at all except I think one word on the top of one page. Now I am told it is a Federal matter and does not concern the Government which does not take enough interest in Federal affairs. But why not get information about this matter. In my opinion the seal fishery will eventually be no more. A conversation with a practical sea captain who has been at the ice this year convinced me. I understand some 12 or 15 more Norwegian vessels were at the seal fishery this year and were on the ice killing seals before the young were born, the reason being that an unborn seal is better fur than a whitecoat and they go in and take these seals instead of waiting for two or three weeks because of the value of the fur. Now in all the years of seal hunting there were laws against fishermen killing before a certain time, because the seals were not at their best as regards to fat. Now the hard part is, the Norwegians are killing seals in the shade of Grey Island, White Bay and all along the French Shore—and all this is territorial water. Grey Island belongs to us and they cannot go within three miles of the shore; it must be more than three miles from headland to headland and not within three miles of Grey Island, but I know this, most of them are within two or three miles out of the bay and not three miles off the land head. Now they are making use of our spotting planes. I know they cannot pick up the messages when they are in code but they can follow our ships and they know when our ships move, they are moving on information from the plane. This captain told me that he received information about a certain herd of seals but there were three Norwegians near and he did not move, but later slipped away in the fog and when the fog cleared they came right by and he said the most terrible part of it was the Norwegians started shooting seals, and the bullets came so near our sealers they had to go back on board the ship. He said some of the men wanted to go out and fight them. That is very serious and next year the sealers say they are not going to stand it. What is worse, the Norwegians go around at night-time picking up the pans, and no doubt they are picking many of our pans. First the Norwegians are our competitors in the cod fishery and now in the seal fishery, and they start in the first of March and go away up north and go on until June following the seals, I understand, away up north, and they will, without a doubt, wipe out the whole seal fishery. Now I must say I think it is time that this House should take steps to enter a protest to the Federal authorities in Ottawa against this condition, and if they do not come to an agreement with the Norwegians the seal fishery will be wiped out in Newfoundland.

I am afraid we are too much taken up with devious things and are not taking stock of the things at our feet; talking about prospective business when we can just carry on the industries that God allocated us. First of all there is the salt cod fishery, and no matter what anyone said to the contrary, the people are going to fish from the shore—why raise the number of people that will fish in trawlers away from home? Most fishermen go home and fish from there. And when we are talking about the price and the number caught, the fishermen must be divided in two groups, those who fish part-time and those who fish full time. Whether they fish for four to five months or for ten months, that must be taken into account, and another thing to be taken into account is that a part-time fisherman is also a farmer who grows vegetables and does not buy them. Secondly there is the seal fishery and thirdly there is the salmon fishery. The preservation of wild life and the preservation of the forests necessary for the preservation of wild life are being considered, but now some serious attention will have to be given to the preservation of the salmon rivers because through the mistreatment of watersheds and the cutting of the trees around the banks of the rivers, (from the City standpoint we have to interfere in such matters) our rivers today are deprived of water. Rivers become mere tricklets of water eventually because the community respects neither beauty nor the rights of posterity. Now many years ago we had a fish and game association which made many recommendations to the Government and many were accepted, or the odd one was. But I would draw the attention of the Government at the present day to one very important matter—the destruction of the rivers by the cutting of trees, and if this happens everybody is going to suffer as we will not be able to drive logs. This is very important and it is perhaps the first time the Opposition has given constructive help to the Government, and this Committee feels the matter of the banks of rivers and lakes being denuded of trees in the past is still carried on today, and there is no attempt being made to stop it.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the old Game and Fish Association years ago made recommendations which if not taken into consideration by the present Government, may mean some of our rivers may turn out like some of the rivers on the West Coast, which one time flooded over the banks and are now like a big wide open space, like a big desert, and the river only has a trickle of water after a heavy rain. Harry's Brook has been destroyed and this means not only destroying the river and the soil, but destroying the possibility of carrying on logging.

There is only one other remark I want to make, Mr. Speaker, I regret taking up so much time, but it is difficult to curtail, and I hope that the rosy dreams that are outlined in the budget speech will be realized and that we will be better people financially, and otherwise, than I anticipate.

DR. POTTLE: Mr. Speaker, I realize as the honourable House does, that it is now late in the afternoon and I shall not attempt any long speech at this time. I should like to be able to assure the House that while it will not be a long speech it may have some virtue of depth, but cannot even assure them to that extent.

MR. SPEAKER: Is it your intention to speak now as the time may be carried over to the evening session of the House? You have two hours.

DR. POTTLE: I assure you, Mr. Speaker, that I will not spend any considerable fraction of two hours, I thank you nevertheless.

In my humble estimation the budget speech, whatever criticism was made against it by the opposite side of this House, was nevertheless a remarkable statement both for the fact that it was a comprehensive review of the past, and a realistic statement of the present, and both a realistic and optimistic statement of the future. There are other virtues in the budget speech which I will refer to briefly before I close.

The structure of the budget speech above all raises questions of cost as relating to the independence of our economy, the state of markets and in this case the state of the province. We have heard some statements, some declarations of independence in this House, but I would say that these statements reflect a personal point of view. These statements about independence do not reflect the province's point of view because the province can never be independent under any form of Government, as I see it, for after all, independence is a relative matter. No nation is entirely independent any more than any man is entirely self-made. The most wealthy state or nation today is not independent. We live in one world, in different degrees of dependence, and there are all too obvious degrees of dependence, and Newfoundland also experiences severe degrees of dependence. Now the Government, no government, can resurrect Newfoundland to a point of entire independence. What the Government can do, nevertheless, is to try to enable the Province to reach to the highest degree of independence possible and the success of any administration might well be judged by the degree by which it raises the people, for the economy, to a state of high independence. I have said this before, Sir, and I should say it again. When I first came into this House I came in with high hopes about many things, and one of these hopes was that we might take all the advantages we possibly could of the fact that we were a member now of a larger family, and I hoped that in our discussions here we might never forget that we are part of all that we have met, and that we would not, because we are a province, become too provincial. Hansard also has those words and I might say them again. I hope that we might not become too provincial in our thinking. As I have said, our stage here is small, our canvas small, but that is no justification for our not thinking great thoughts, it is no justification for our becoming provincial in our ways of living and it is no sign of weakness if we lean on strength.

Now, Sir, there is strength in diversity and Newfoundland is now in a family with a diversity of wealth and diversity of strength. I have always hoped that the Federation of Canada and Newfoundland might reveal itself to us in this way, that it would mean equalizing opportunity across the Dominion for our children and our children's children. I think that can be done and I hope that we in Newfoundland will always keep that emphasis alive, the federation consists not in wealth accumulated in one quarter and poverty in another, but the essence of Confederation consists in enabling people everywhere to maintain, to get, to secure and to maintain, as high a standard of living as possible. That is the position we have taken in more than one conference in Ottawa and I shall refer again to the last time it was taken.

Now, Sir, I understand, as the House understands, that in this state of emergency the resources of Canada—the natural resources—are to be mobilized as they were never probably mobilized in peace time, and that one Minister, the Minister of Trade and Commerce and Defence Production, the Right Honourable C. D. Howe, has enormous powers to deploy wherever he will, immense resources for the greatest good. If that is done with regard to natural resources, I submit that it might very well be done without detracting from sovereignty of the individual in the field of human resources, and I am going to explain that in a minute.

We are experiencing in various quarters a depression in the midst of plenty because our human resources, our man-power, are not properly deployed. In Newfoundland that is the case because our industries today are not locked together as they used to be locked together. There was a time when fishermen, after they fished and did not receive good returns for fishing, could go to the lumber woods in the winter and spend their time, summer and winter, in that way. That is not so feasible today because so much of the cutting is done in the summer and when they look around in October for a job in the woods they cannot find it as they used to. Furthermore there is more technical logging beginning to be practical, so that in Newfoundland itself, through no fault of any one person in particular the industries of Newfoundland are not supplementary, not locked together as they used to be. Now that means that our labour force is dislocated and the trend is going in that direction. Well, I would suggest—or before I say that, I would say this, that some two years ago the Minister of Labour of the Federal Government sent a circular to various large industries of the Dominion trying to find out what men were available and what labour was available and what labour they employed in their industries. But that does not give us enough information. Because if what I have said is true of Newfoundland, how much truer or how true is it likely to be of the whole of the Dominion? My suggestion is that in this day of grace it need not stink of fascism or any other "ism" or detract from man's dignity, if Canada, through some Federal Minister, should know where her people are, what they are employed at, and if they are employed. And where they are not employed there is a responsibility of industry here, Sir, to lock together. It is not only the responsibility of the Government, certainly it is the responsibility of industry which should not stop at extracting, though, heaven knows, it does do a good deal of extracting; extracting minerals from the earth and from under the earth and the sea, extracting woods from the forests, fish from the waters and too often extracting the very stuff of the human spirit. The honourable and gallant member for Ferryland a few days ago dramatized how he perspired at the bow oar while the firms of Water Street evaporated; one after the other went bankrupt. That was a mild description of what happens to the Newfoundland fisherman. If my friend across the floor can describe the bow oar there are others in the House who are just as familiar with the oars of the trap skiff as he is and we know the fate of the Newfoundland fishermen is just as tragic as bankruptcy. There is here a great responsibility of industry, not merely to extract the product from the earth or sea or air, wherever it comes from, but to see to it that while wealth accumulates men will not decay. That is the responsibility, I say, Sir, of the vast industries, it is the responsibility of the Federal Government, it is not the sole responsibility of the Provincial Government. I think it is our virtue to bring to light what can be done but also to draw attention to what we cannot do. Now this question of human resources brought right down to every-day level in terms of public welfare is concerned not merely with dispensing benefits to individuals to enable them to get by, but to get behind the scene to see what is happening to our people and try to show up some of that. We ran up against some of that a few months ago and since then I have been very much concerned with just what is happening to St. John's. That was the very question I asked some months ago and in order to point up, to answer, that question, I had a survey made of the able-bodied men who are on relief in St. John's over the last three years, and I should like to give the House a few sets of figures. In the first instance they are healthy, young men, one third of them under 30 years of age, one half of them under 40 years of age. Another fact of importance is that they are nearly all from St. John's. "Oh," you say, "that is to be expected." There are from 314 families practically all born in St. John's, very, very few, almost a negligible number come from outside St. John's. They were born here, a generation of young men who spend more than half their year on relief, and I say that is because it was extended over a three year period and this is what happens: A man who is on relief six months one year tends to be at least six months in one or both of the next two years whereas a man who has kept off relief for ten months in one year is likely as not to keep off relief for ten or more months during the next two years.

Now, Sir, these figures quoted here are men who we presume are able to work, they are able-bodied but there is no work for them to do here. But must they stay here? Is there any virtue in hanging on to the rails on Duckworth Street all that time? I assure you the men who hang on the rails at Duckworth Street are the most aggressive of the lot, the ones not so aggressive are not hanging over the rail at three o'clock in the afternoon looking out the Narrows; after all there maybe a ship there, at least they are looking out the Narrows and getting work now and then. A great many of them have not only unemployment but are unemployable. Now, Sir, on the other hand, Premier Frost told us last fall at the Provincial Conference of one work project alone that will involve the expenditure of probably one hundred million dollars with the use of six thousand workmen in a locality where there is little possibility of getting any workmen. Would it be any slight on the strength of the federation of Canada if the Newfoundland workmen who can't find work in Newfoundland can find it elsewhere? Would it be any slight on us if they find it there? The strength of the federation does not lie in each unit being independent in its own right but rather the strength of the federation is in the fact that we may lean on the strength of one another.

Now, Sir, I would like to be a little more specific on our public welfare matters as far as they appear in the Budget or the Estimates itself. We find the Department of Public Welfare is down as the largest spending Department of the Government which may be one crude way of putting it. At the same time it is one of the Departments which brings in relatively high revenue. Speaking on the side of old age pensions, we have spent a half million on statutory benefits and able-bodied relief estimates but nearly half of that comes back from the Federal Government on repayment of Old Age Pensions. About $25,000,000 or more comes into Newfoundland each year now on benefits out of social security taxes, and there are no other millions of dollars coming into Newfoundland which are so wisely and properly distributed as that twenty-five million dollars. But when you say that, you have not the whole story, this impact of twenty-five million dollars on the Newfoundland economy is a tremendous event; and I doubt if any other society in North America have had anything quite like it happen in modern times. The sudden impact on our little economy of this twenty-five million dollars in benefits to our people which they did not expect, did not earn, has been great and its effects far-reaching indeed. It has numerous virtues, it has bolstered our economy in ways we cannot measure but at the same time it carries with it a concept that is important and not only important but vital for public welfare. I shall bring that up in a moment.

Now the opposition has taken care to point out in many respects that while possibly we have many improvements this was all done by the Commission of Government. I shall not argue that now but I will say this: that of the innovations that have come with the new form of government what has happened in Public Welfare is one of the most outstanding achievements. What happened in Public Welfare in its own right in the Province is a tremendous thing, and I say that without any desire to detract from them, as I happen to know something of the virtues of the Commission, having being one of the members; I know the story from the inside through my small part in it during the fading days. I say this, it had its virtues and defects like any other form of Government, but I would covet the virtues of the Commission of Government for any government. I will say this, too, that as far as welfare was concerned it was a negative kind of thing. Welfare was something you did when you could not help doing it and it was mostly identified with able-bodied relief, kept from them as long as they could. That was the sin of Commission, in this respect it was the sin of omission, in other words it was notable for what it failed to do in this one respect.

Because, what has happened since looks so tremendous, and when we look at it this way, we can see the relatively little done before. This was one of the defects of Public Welfare in former times, in other words there was a great tendency for welfare to work against health. In other words a great tendency for people to be left in a condition where their standard of living deteriorated to a point where they eventually had to come around to taking care of them in hospitals, whereas the problem would have been simplified if attended to earlier. The broken bone is more serious than the broken man. But they tended to take care of the broken bone and leave the broken man to take care of himself, which tended to broken homes which by sinister degrees brings on disease. Under these conditions it was quite possible for the welfare policy to work against the health policy. I am happy to say that under this present administration, my colleague in the Health Department and myself are trying to work together so that we may not overlap unnecessarily but merge together the whole scheme into a working partnership.

However this twenty-five million dollars I referred to just now has come from family allowances which have been considered here as immoral by one member at least, of the House. Are the administrations of England, Sweden, Canada, the United States, Australia, New Zealand and practically every civilized nation in the world immoral? But family allowances do many things, they tend to equalize opportunity for all children everywhere and make up in a remarkable way for inequalities which industrial wages do not make up for, and it is one of the finest bulwarks against radicalism.

Now, Sir, I come to provincial benefits, mothers' allowances, dependents' allowances, old age pensions and able-bodied relief. When they came into being we had a surplus of so many million dollars and we had to decide as to how that surplus could be best utilized for the good of our people. We had to think not only of people able to work and of those, we have not a few, and will always have people who in the economic race and the scourging and bludgeoning of time are left behind—in the terms of John Masefield, the lame, the halt and the blind in the rain and the cold. We must think of these too, because society is all of a piece and we are not stronger than the weakest member and we have to think of them as well. Now then, speaking of the Opposition, and I say if they had the administration, suppose they were on this side of the House and had to try and distribute benefits to people, how would these be disposed of? First of all they would have to think of everybody who was in dire need and come to a decision, laid down under that category; widows, people with children and insufficient earning power, people of seventy and over incapable of earning their own way, who have earned their living all their lives and are beyond it now. What shall we give them? If we take the trouble to write out the cheque, surely we should try to write out one with some semblance of giving a reasonable chance of livelihood to the individual. If we were to write out $5 it would still have to be supplemented in some other way. So we try to get somewhere near a reasonable scale and one close to reality. I tell you our legislation is such that it covers the matter more comprehensively than perhaps any other Provincial legislation. Now that sounds like a boast. I have said that because we do want to make sure that now, the needy class is not utterly omitted. Having done that, we could not make great benefits at this time and endeavour to cover everybody in a comprehensive way and have a wider scale of benefits. We made sure of one thing, all needy classes are covered, but we could not do the other and give all, but we have a policy, and we have with considerable courage kept up the standard we started with and try to complete what we have started out to do. We believe that is the only thing we can do.

Now, Sir, before I close, I would draw attention to an issue brought to the notice of this House, that in some respects these benefits are demoralizing our people. The Opposition cannot criticize us for covering this widely and comprehensively, and justly cannot criticize us for making the allotments we did. We were not lavish, Heavens knows, but they could criticize us and take the ground from under our feet if they say that by doing so we have demoralized people. That would be the unkindest cut of all. To say that because of public benefits people are refusing to work, becoming spineless and leaning on the Government and becoming weaklings would be the unkindest charge of all. If that were to happen, we would do what we are trying to avoid. It is not easy to draw the line, it is not easy to go the middle course, and that is why the impact of each $25,000,000 handed us is in a measure a shock, they carry betterment but also carry a grave responsibility for Public Welfare, and believe me, we are awake to that and possibly the saddest thing that could happen to us would be the loss of our will to work. But I am rather relieved to know that it is more generally felt that it is not doing that kind of thing at all. I think the people who do misuse it are few in number, but they tend to become exaggerated and if we see it misused by one we forget five hundred who do not misuse this money. The tendency is for the one who tends to misuse it to come to light, but my experience is, in the Department of Public Welfare, and I think it will be borne out by other honourable members, that these benefits are wisely used and I know, with considerable conviction, that they are being appreciated.

Now, Sir, that is not all. We are looking ahead into the future and we realize that we have a considerable responsibility here. We have to have our eyes on the Terms of Union realizing that a considerable number of our hard earned dollars are going into those homes in the way I have indicated but we want to make sure we are doing the right thing. We don't want to go on endlessly giving out and eventually find we are on the wrong track. We have to make sure our house is as completely in order as possible, before the Royal Commission reviews the situation.

In a month from now we are having a team of qualified people come to us to survey our whole policy of public welfare services, to help keep us on the right track in terms of revenue, and that committee will be the one to tell us what kind of public welfare services we need in Newfoundland in keeping with our capacity to pay for it. That is very much in keeping with term 29 as it will tell us what we can have in terms, of what we are able to afford, and what kind of legislation to have, in order to implement that kind of services.

Now, Sir, I close, but before doing so I do want, because the opportunity does not come to one often in this way, to say we are trying to maintain a balance in this matter, not only within public welfare but within the whole scheme of the budget. All the time we are trying to get the people a chance to work but we have people who will never be able to work, and there is a balance we are trying to strike in the whole budget, and if I have to pay I am very glad to do so and it is well for us all to think about it and agitate and concern ourselves about it day after day, and I am glad to say that in all our planning for public welfare the Premier is not only up to us but ahead of us, and there is no greater figure in this field. I am very happy to say that at this present time.

We are trying to carry out the ordinary principles of ideas mentioned in this matter and we are always sensitive to criticism from the outside which indicates we are not doing a good job, and we will try to do it within our means.

A great writer said: "If anywhere in the country any child lacks opportunity for home life, education, moral and spiritual development; if any child anywhere lacks any of these things the strength of the nation is a libel." Now, Sir, that ideal, we can, insofar as it enters in the budget this year, have in mind, as something for which we strive, however impossible, it may seem.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I know, Mr. Speaker, I have only a few minutes before dinner and I propose to close the debate on the budget speech today and that means that most of my remarks will have to be made when the House reassembles at 8:00 o'clock tonight.

Now, first I would like to thank very sincerely the members of the House for the kindly references made on the Budget Speech. Every member of the House, with one exception, who spoke in the debate was kind enough to pay some compliment to the budget speech. The one exception, I regret to say, was my honourable and learned friend the leader of the Opposition. My honourable and learned friend, to judge from his remarks, sees no good whatever in the budget speech. That is not too surprising because the same honourable and learned gentleman sees no good in Confederation either. I have yet to hear him in this Chamber utter even one word for Confederation. He can find holes to pick in it, find defects, find flaws, but not even a syllable can he find it in his heart to utter in favour of Confederation and he is unique in that regard because he is the only member of the House, including the Confederates and anti-Confederates, the only member who has not been able to say at least some kindly word in favour of Confederation. It is not too surprising because my honourable friend celebrated Confederation by flying his flag at half mast, and a black flag, on the day of Confederation, in front of his home, and from such a gentleman who would welcome a great and historic event in the fortunes of the people of Newfoundland by flying his flag half mast and a black flag of mourning, how can we expect half a syllable in favour of Confederation or a budget speech delivered by the first Provincial Government of Newfoundland?

I have endeavoured merely to occupy the time to six o'clock when we may rise until eight o'clock when I shall endeavour to deliver my speech to close the debate on the budget.

MR. SPEAKER: It is only 5:59.

MR. SMALLWOOD: If the Honourable House wishes me to continue for the next sixty seconds it would not be too difficult.

I was extremely interested in the honourable and learned leader of the Opposition's contention that the sales tax will take from the people of Newfoundland twenty-three million dollars, and particularly was I entranced by the reasons he gave for that contention. It was based, I concluded, on per capita consideration. Now, although he did not develop the argument I assume what he did was something of this order: The population of Canada is actually eighteen and a half million people, the total amount of taxes raised, six hundred million. Divide one into the other and get some number per head of population of Canada and multiply that per capita amount by the population of Newfoundland and that means the people of Newfoundland have to pony up $13,000,000 and hand it over to Ottawa just for sales tax alone and that is what he meant by sales tax. It is a fine example of an utterly futile type of argument as was used against Confederation and is still used by my honourable friend against this Government.

MR. HIGGINS: I never said that—I never said it.

MR. SPEAKER: It is now six o'clock and I will leave the Chair until 8:00 p.m.

NIGHT SESSION

HON. JOSEPH R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, we rose for dinner, I spoke just for a few minutes and I was saying that I was very grateful to all the honourable members who have taken part in this debate for the fact that, with but one exception, they all expressed a word of congratulation on the Budget Speech. The one exception, I was sorry to say, was the honourable and learned Leader of the Opposition who in his speech closing the debate for his party was not able, apparently, to find one word of compliment to utter about the Budget Speech and if we can judge by the remarks he made, he sees in the Budget Speech nothing whatever worthy of a word of commendation or congratulation. Now in that I am happy to see he differs considerably from his colleagues in his own party every one of whom spoke, expressed grateful words of appreciation and congratulations of the Budget Speech and I went on to say that it was not after all a very surprising thing that the honourable and learned gentleman found nothing good in the Budget Speech because in that regard he is exactly the same as he is with regard to Confederation itself.

Not even once since this House began three sessions ago has the honovable gentleman uttered even one word in favour of Confederation. He had not admitted that he sees anything good whatsoever in Confederation. He has not admitted that there was in Confederation any advantage or benefits whatsoever to the people of this Province of Newfoundland. On the contrary he has not spared himself very much in finding flaws in Confederation, in picking holes in it, in pointing out its mistakes and its weaknesses and if the people of Newfoundland had nothing whatever to go by except what my honourable and learned friend has said publicly they would come to the conclusion that Confederation is of no benefit whatever to the people of Newfoundland. Now any impartial observer, any person not a confederate or any confederate who was not even in Newfoundland during that famous battle on the subject of Confederation can observe the difference in Newfoundland today and the improvement since those days. I wonder what it was that caused the improvement? He would not be long coming to the firm conclusion that if it were not Confederation that had brought this great change and these great improvements in the lives of some of the people then it must be a miracle. Very few classes of our Newfoundland people have failed to share in the net benefits of Confederation. To list the classes one by one who have benefited from Confederation is virtually to include all classes of the population. There is scarcely a person under this ceiling, in this Chamber at this moment who has not derived benefits from Confederation. There is scarcely a family in this entire Island and along the Coast of Labrador which has not benefited directly or indirectly from Confederation.

There are very few families in all this Island today who can honestly claim that. As the honourable Minister of Public Welfare stated so well in his speech this afternoon, the impact of Confederation upon the lives of the Newfoundland people has been not only impressing but startling and he pointed to the sum of $25,000,000 a year coming into Newfoundland from Ottawa and distributed very equitably, very widely amongst the thousands of our population. Twenty-five million dollars a year, two million dollars a month, every month, distributed twelve times a year in cash, throughout every nook and corner of this Province. How is it possible for that huge sum of money to be distributed in that way, twelve times a year without raising appreciably, noticeably, remarkably, the standard of living of tens of thousands of our population in Newfoundland? How is that possible, and how can a man be so prejudiced, so blind as not to see the benefits of the distribution of that huge sum of money? It is a fact well known to every Newfoundlander who travels, who has any knowledge of life in our thirteen hundred various settlements stretched along thousands of miles of our coast, follows the tortuous line of our bays, thirteen hundred settlements nestled along the cliffs and the sea-shore. Anyone who knows anything about Newfoundland is aware of the fact that there is more cash in circulation, more money falling into the tills of many hundreds, if not thousands of shopkeepers large and small, amongst business men it is a well know fact that there is more cash trade being done throughout this Island in what used to be the dead winter season than formerly was done in the busy summer season. How can a man be so blind, so prejudiced, so bigoted as to wave all that aside and concentrate on picking holes here and there and flaws and weaknesses in that vast reality of Confederation.

Let me say what I have said before in this Chamber. Any politician, I say any politician, who imagines that he can win politically in Newfoundland by endeavouring to capitalize on the scattered elements of disappointment that Confederation has brought is basing his political career on a rotten foundation. There is no future in it. There is no percentage in it. Because when it comes down to testing, 90% of the women in Newfoundland will vote against the man who by arguing against Confederation puts himself in the position of arguing against hard cash, family allowances that she knows about because she receives it for her children every month of the twelve months of the year.

Now, I was saying also that my honourable and learned friend the Leader of the Opposition—he is absent and I would like him to be here and hear this—argued in his speech this afternoon that the sales tax imposed by the Government of Canada some years ago, applicable to Newfoundland since we became a Province, and now in the recent Canadian Budget increased from eight to ten percent collects from the people of Newfoundland huge sums of $13,000,000 a year and he told us how he arrived at that figure. He said it was on a per capita basis, it is thirteen million dollars a year from the people of Newfoundland. Now here is how he worked it out: The tax is estimated to raise the sum of $600,000,000 a year for the Government of Canada. If you take that $600,000, 000 and if you take the population of Canada, which is something between thirteen million and fourteen million souls, and divide one by the other that gives you an average per capita amount that is collected from every human soul from the day old infant to the hundred year old veteran, paid to the Government of Canada by way of sales tax. Now the honourable and learned Leader of the Opposition takes that per capita or average amount and multiplies it by the three hundred and fifty or three hundred and sixty thousand souls in Newfoundland and comes to the amount of $13,000,000. Now, I don't know, I have not bothered to take the six hundred million dollars and the fourteen million persons in Canada and divide it and find out the per capita average amount that every human soul in Canada pays in the aggregate in sales taxes, I have not bothered to work it out, so I have not bothered to check my honourable and learned friend's table of sums in arithmetic, but this I do know: a sum worked out accurately and arrived at correctly on the average figure per head and on the multiplication of that figure by our population amounting to a figure of $13,000,000 as an argument is false, is unreal, is fantastic as the figure itself. The Department of the Ministry of Finance in Canada does not, in imposing taxation on the people of Canada, make a per cap. of taxation, does not arrive at the average per head and say to the Minister of National Revenue; "You shall collect from the people." He does not do that, there is no poll tax collected, no head tax collected by the Government of Canada, imposed or collected. To say that we in Newfoundland pay what is the average of all Canada is ridiculous, simply ridiculous. What we pay is dependent upon what we buy amongst the many articles subject to the taxation. It depends upon the proportion of all we buy, that is what the tax is paid on, the total of all we buy and if one is a low income person and in a class that does not pay these sales taxes one's contribution to the Treasury of Canada is small, smaller than that of another man whose purchases are of the order or kind subject to that sales tax. Of the total amount then how much is taxable and how much is exempt from the tax, and it is unrealistic to strike a straight average for every human soul. Now the hard fact of the matter is, in the House of Commons only the other day, within the last two weeks the Tory member for St. John's East, Mr. Gordon Higgins asked the Minister of National Revenue a question as did the Tory member for St. John's West, Mr. Browne, both asked questions as to how much revenue had been collected in Newfoundland by the Canadian Government in the year 1949-50: When they tabled the answers I listened to them: In 1949-50 the Government of Canada collected in Newfoundland, income tax and succession duties, what we call death duties, 4.9 million dollars, Customs Duties $3,470,000, Excise Duties $1,340,000, Excise Taxes $901,000, Sales Taxes $1,866,000. The total for the year 1949-50 was $12,700,000 or exactly $12,679,000. That was the first year of Confederation and the full impact of Confederation taxes in Newfoundland was not felt because the Canadian Government only collected 4.1 million in income tax and succession duties. Now 1950-51: For Income Tax and Succession Duties: $11,880,000. For Customs Duties for eleven months, they did not have the final month, $3,467,000; Excise Duties $1,409,000. Excise Taxes $801,000. Sales Tax $1,040,000. That is a total of $18,500,000 but the largest item of the lot is income tax and succession duties collected for the whole year whereas the remaining was for eleven months only. Now the remaining items total $7,500,000. One-twelfth of that would be roughly a half million to be added to the eighteen and a half which gives nineteen millions for the full year collected in Newfoundland. That is not the total that was collected in respect of Newfoundland, because we Newfoundlanders pay taxes that we do not pay immediately and directly to the Government of Canada. If I go down to the Royal Stores or Bowrings or the London New York and Paris and buy clothes, I pay no tax on that, that I know of, nevertheless I pay a tax because of Federal Taxation and to the Provincial Government I pay 3% Security Assessment to help pay old age pensions and widows' and mothers' pensions and cripple persons' pensions and the like, but in Federal Taxation I appear to pay nothing whereas in fact I am paying the national tax paid on the profit made on that suit of clothes by the manufacturer in Quebec or Ontario, and when we arrive therefore at a total of $19,000,000 collected within Newfoundland itself by the Government of Canada, we have not arrived at the grand total of taxation derived in Newfoundland in respect of Newfoundland by the Government of Canada. We have not arrived at the grand total of taxes the people of Newfoundland pay to the Government of Canada.

Now, I am inclined to think that you can double that figure because the biggest single item of course is income tax and succession duties and it is collected right here in Newfoundland, collected here and paid here and that is the end of it. That is the largest item. When we take customs duties, excise duties, excise taxes and sales taxes then we have broken the back of Federal Taxation other than income tax and succession duties and the total of that is about eight millions collected within Newfoundland; then treble that and you have approximately what the Government of Canada gets out of the people of Newfoundland under those headings, say twenty-five millions and another ten or eleven millions from income tax and succession duties and you get about $37,000,000. If the Government of Canada collects from the people of Newfoundland $40,000,000 a year I will do what my honourable friend from Fogo said if the honourable member for Bonavista South turned Tory; I will eat my hat. If the Government of Canada collects $40,000,000 a year from the people of Newfoundland I will eat my hat.

Now the Government of Newfoundland collects from the people of Newfoundland something of the order of seven or eight millions of dollars, so that there is less than fifty millions a year collected from the people of Newfoundland by the Government of Canada and by the Government of Newfoundland put together. Less than $50,000,000 a year. The Government of Canada is paying into Newfoundland more money each year than the Government of Canada and the Government of Newfoundland put together are taking from the people of Newfoundland. In short the net result, as strange as the statement may sound is that the people of Newfoundland are not paying any taxation whatsoever. The net position is that if you could imagine the people of Newfoundland as all one man, I know they are not but if you could picture the people of Newfoundland as collectively as one man then the net position would be this: That the Government of Canada collects taxes from that one man and the Government of Newfoundland collects taxes from that one man, the Newfoundland people would pay taxes to the Newfoundland Government and the Government of Canada so much all together, call it $50,000,000 but that one man would receive from the Government or rather from one of those two Governments, the Government of Canada more than he pays to both governments put together, therefore we are not paying any taxes. The net position is that we are better off. Now, I know the Opposition would debate that, like the old lady who visited a penitentiary and speaking to one of the unfortunate men incarcerated there said: "Remember, my good man, stone walls do not a prison make, nor iron bars a cage." He said in reply: "You would have to be hypnotized." And I know the kind of hypocritical statements that have been made in debate that the people of Newfoundland are not paying any taxes, I know the kind of play we can make on that for political purposes and they could actually say, they must have me hypnotized. But the fact is the Government of Canada pays into Newfoundland each year more money than the taxation of the two Governments together, don't take as much money out of the people's pockets as the one government, the Government of Canada, puts in. What is the estimated amount this year $19,000,000? They pay $10,000,000 in Family Allowances, and $6,000,000 in Old Age Pensions that is $16,000,000 in Health they pay one half million, three millions in Veterans Allowances and another three and a half million to the railway. Unemployment Insurance Assistance and the salaries to some thousand, I think Federal Civil Servants, that is around a million and a half, the half million for Housing this past year and all kinds of odds and ends of grants for the Department of Natural Resources, the Department of Education and they pay a large net loss on the operation of Gander; they spend something of the order of a million dollars a year to Public Works, wharves, breakwaters, lighthouses, new construction of wharves and piers and other public works, add it all up and you will find that the Government of Canada are paying into Newfoundland, to the Newfoundland Government, through the Federal Civil Servants, through the Railway, through Public Works, for Housing and all the rest of it, are paying into Newfoundland more money each year than they and the Newfoundland Government are taking out. So that the net position is the people of Newfoundland are not paying any taxation whatever to both Governments. That is the net position, if the people of Newfoundland could be considered as one man. Now that argument is at least as valuable as the argument of my honourable friend the Leader of the Opposition, when he works out the average and says the Newfoundland people are paying $13,000,000 sales tax, a highly fantastic figure.

Now, I was very much struck by the remarks this afternoon of the honourable Leader of the Opposition on the question of floor prices for the fisheries. He had me just a little confused for a while by his having advocated the floor prices and the Ex-Minister of Natural Resources having advocated floor prices, my advocating against and various people in favour of it and various people against it and I became a little confused and I got up and asked my honourable and learned friend what prices he was in favour of and what I was opposed to? Did he mean a floor price to be put under fish by the Federal or by the Provincial Government? Now, I asked the same question of the honourable member for Bonavista South when he spoke of it in his speech in this debate and he made it clear that he thought it should be the Federal Government, and I admired him for it. But my honourable and learned friend, the Leader of the Opposition, did not make it clear and I still don't know what he meant and no one who sat here knows what he meant, whether he meant he was in favour of the Federal Government putting floor prices on the fish or the Provincial Government doing it.

Another thing that rather struck me throughout this debate has been the sort of grinding chorus from my honourable friends across the way begun by the honourable junior member for St. John's East, to this effect: "What is this Government boasting of? What has the Government done as to building hospitals except continue the work started by the Commission? They have built some schools, but that was started by the Commission of Government—don't give them credit for that, they have done nothing."

Now there is one flaw in that argument, one serious flaw. If my honourable friends were as familiar from reading and in other ways with the history of this House, as some of us are, they would not say this Government is merely carrying out the Commission of Government's policy, would not say that all this Government is carrying out is a policy formulated in 1932. True this Government did not originate the policy of building roads, let us admit that and if any of us are inclined to take credit for originating the policy of road building let us divest ourselves of all such pride and give the credit to the first government elected in Newfoundland and they have only to give us credit that we have not stopped doing it. We have not originated the policy of building hospitals because the first hospital was built in Newfoundland before we had a government at all. Dr. William Carson, whose portrait is the second from the left here in this Chamber who was once Speaker of this House, founded the General Hospital before there was a House of Assembly at all. So let us not take the credit for originating the policy but give us the credit for building hospitals for carrying out the policy of our great predecessor, Dr. William Carson who was also the father of road building and built the first road from St. John's to Portugal Cove in 1825. We carried out the program laid down by that first great Liberal in Newfoundland, a good solid Liberal policy and we have followed in his foot-steps and are proud to do it, but if you call us plagiarists and copyists and imitators, give us credit for being good imitators for the past two years. We were in office two years on 31 March past and in these two years this Government built and rebuilt one quarter of the eleven hundred miles of road built and rebuilt in the last sixteen years. We did that in the last two years, one quarter of all the roads. In sixteen years the sum of $27,000,000 was spent on roads in Newfoundland to the end of March, 1947, and one-third of that this Government spent and accomplished the building and rebuilding of one quarter of all the eleven hundred miles done in those sixteen years. If we are imitators we are pretty good ones. In the matter of public health to the end of this year, March 31, 1951, the end of the third year of office for this Government at the end of these three years we will have spent the major part of the millions spent in the sixteen years starting in 1935. So it will have to be admitted that we are pretty good imitators. Now, my honourable friend spoke of the Loan Board as also did the honourable Leader of the Opposition. The Loan Boards were not constituted until the month of November last. They have so far lent about $90,000 in five or six loans. They were constituted in full towards the end of November of last year. Give the Loan Boards a little chance, give them a chance, they will lend the money alright when they can find applicants that they can consider favourably. They are certainly not going to lend it out right and left and centre to anyone who wants it for anything, to go fishing, to start a grocery shop, to buy a van to distribute goods. They are not allowed to do it under the Act we passed unanimously in this House, unanimously I may say concurred in by my honourable friends opposite, and that very Act prohibited them from making loans in either one of the three boards except for certain purposes and under certain conditions, that if you want to lend money for anything you can lend it in millions, hundreds of millions, thousands of millions, there is no end to the amount of money you can lend if there is no limit and no conditions. But there is a limit and there are conditions on the money we have handed to these three loan boards. One of the three loaned $90,000 and the Board only started towards the end of November of last year. So where is the legitimate complaint?

Now, I will talk about the Printing Plant and I am delighted to do it, and very pleased to do it and I am thankful to the honourable gentleman for reminding me of it. One of the ablest Newfoundlanders that we have produced in this Province, in this Island, is Ewart Young. I remember when he came up here from Labrador, landed in St. John's and went to work for the Daily News. He worked with them some considerable period of time as a newspaper reporter and throughout the whole period his writings were noted amongst all the readers of the Daily News as outstanding. At the same time he wrote for foreign papers, the Montreal Gazette and various other newspapers. He finally left St. John's and went to Montreal and worked on the Montreal Gazette. A poor man, a young man with no money. While in Montreal he founded the Atlantic Guardian in which, I may say, the photograph of my honourable friend, the Leader of the Opposition, appeared, as did also the members of the Opposition and the members of this party as well. The magazine has been a credit to Newfoundland—no one denies that, no Newfoundlander. It has been published in Montreal and printed in Sackville in the Province of New Brunswick. Ewart Young decided to move his publishing activities back to St. John's after a period of five or six years, and he came back to Newfoundland, his native home. He wanted to print the Atlantic Guardian here in Newfoundland not in Sackville and he wanted a plant capable of turning out a first class printing job, but it was not only to print the Atlantic Guardian but also a number of other magazines as well, such as the Journal of Commerce for the Newfoundland Board of Trade, and the Newfoundland Lumbermen's Association magazine, and a number of other Newfoundland magazines and pamphlets and newspapers, in association with a group of other Newfoundlanders.

I think he had in the publishing establishment in Montreal several other Newfoundlanders, key men, and he brought them all back and assembled them here in St. John's and wanted a loan to purchase or lease up-to-date machinery and things like that to print it here in Newfoundland and keep the money here and employ men here. He wanted a loan to help him to do that and so the Loan Board, not the Government, examined the position very closely and carefully, I have no doubt, and making sure they had security for the loan, the Loan Board decided to advance him $50,000. Now he will employ from 55 to 60 men in that plant. What is wrong with that?

MR. R. J. FAHEY: Will the Honourable Premier yield? I am sure this House appreciates your explanation but is the Government aware that that same Loan Board refused a loan of $40,000 to a mine in Long Pond, Manuels, to give employment to 75 men. It is the best talc in North America and the owner was prepared to go ahead and that same board turned it down.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I am aware of that, I am aware of the whole story from start to finish. Before the Loan Board started at all the gentleman in question was in contact with me both in person and by letter and I have taken extensive efforts to get that talk operations going, have taken strenuous efforts to do that, but there are complications, notwithstanding which, I am still trying to get that plant reopened and that mine in operation. Obviously, I am, as it is my job; that is what I am here for. But as for the Loan Board, I think quite properly, Mr. James Baxter, Mr. Frank O'Leary, Mr. Hal Luscombe, Mr. Short, the Deputy Minister of Economic Development and Mr. Callahan, if they have done it I think there is no doubt they have reasons which are probably not known to my honourable friends opposite.

MR. FAHEY: You are Minister of Economic Development.

MR. SMALLWOOD: But I am not a member of that Board or familiar with the working of that Board and I would not restrain Mr. Baxter who is well known as a former banker of the Newfoundland Branch of the Royal Bank of Canada; I would not retain his services very long if I began telling him what to do. If I began interfering in the work of those Boards, or the Government did, I am afraid it would not be long before he would walk out and we would be looking for another chairman and new members. I do not, and the Government does not, interfere.

MR. FAHEY: As Minister of Economic Development you are interested in development.

MR. SMALLWOOD: There are complications about which my honourable friend is not familiar. Now then my honourable and learned leader of the Opposition (he has left again) spoke of the cost of living. Let us have just a little common sense about this cost of living question and try to be fair. And let us try to be objective and realistic about it. The cost of living is high. It is uncomfortably high and for some people even unbearably high. Of that there is no doubt, no room for argument, no room for dispute. But it is not as high as it would be if we had not gotten Confederation, but that will not be admitted. Would it not have gone just as high as it has gone on the Mainland of Canada if we had not joined Canada?

MR. FAHEY: That depends on where we buy from.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Wherever we buy from the prices have gone higher. Wherever you go now in the world and buy, prices are sky high and prices are higher in the United States than in Canada, we can surely agree on that, and if Newfoundland had not joined Canada and become a province the cost of living in Canada would be just as high as it is now, the cost of living in Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, Quebec and Ontario and all across Canada to British Columbia is not higher because we are a province of Canada, surely they are no higher or lower, they are at exactly the same point they would have been had we never become a province.

MR. FAHEY: This is going to be good, you only told the House since 8:00 o'clock all the millions the Federal Government is pouring into Newfoundland. If we did not become a part of Canada therefore the cost of living would be cheaper in Prince Edward Island and out West.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I have the honourable gentleman's point but the gross national products of Canada this present year is twenty thousand million dollars. Not twenty million, not twenty hundred millions, but twenty thousand millions, and if they pour into Newfoundland forty or fifty or sixty millions a year, what fraction is that of the total? Surely no one will argue the cost of living has gone up in the United States because Newfoundland became a province of Canada; nevertheless it is a fact that on the Mainland of Canada and in the United States and in Mexico and all down through South America and in Central America, the West Indies, the cost of living has risen, gone up steeply and sharply—there is no doubt of that.

It is a known fact today the highest cost of living in the entire history of that republic is the cost of living today. There is even a rumour here and there that it has gone up in Great Britain and that the cost of living has gone up all over the world. Now that is either so or it is not so. Will anyone here in this Chamber deny that in the last year or year and a half the cost of living in Canada and the United States and all down through Central and South America and Mexico and on the Continent of Europe has gone up? Will anyone here deny that? Is there anyone who has not heard of it? It is known to everyone.

MR. FAHEY: It was known to us some time ago when you spent $40,000 to make an enquiry on the cost of living.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I could not make an enquiry into the cost of living on the Mainland but rather in Newfoundland and it was more than six months ago that that enquiry was made.

MR. FAHEY: Did Confederation

bring down the cost of living in Newfoundland?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Here is the Report of the Royal Commission for January 1950. We became a Province of Canada on March 31, 1949, and that was ten months after we did become a province and here is what happened.

Decrease in flour: St. John's, 12.7%, Bell Island 11.8%, Carbonear 15.7%, Bonavista 15.7%, Twillingate 18.6%, Green Bay District 16.8%, Burgeo and Ramea 21.1%, Burin 15.6%, Corner Brook and suburbs 9.8%, Buchans and Millertown 11.2%, Grand Falls 15.7%. So that ten months after Confederation the prices of flour had dropped in Newfoundland from 9.4% up to 21.1%. Now that was a drop, not an increase, but a fall. That was flour, now take sugar. I won't read the names of places: 12%, 11.5%, 15.5%, 19%, 15.5%, 12%, 11%, 4.6%. Now, Beans: 21.5%, 21.5%, 18%, 28%, 29%, 31%, 28%, 21.5%, 32%, 28%. Margarine: 12.8%, 12.5%, 15%, 7.5%, 7.5%, 5.15%, 5.15%, 15%, 7.5%. Rolled Oats: 25%, 18%, 25%. You can't take it, stop and listen. 18%, 25%, 23%, 25%. I will say he is a good sport, Mr. Speaker, anyhow, 25%, 25%. Raising Soap, and not soft soap at that. Cocoa: Why go on? The Royal Commission brought in these prices.

MR. FAHEY: May I go now?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Clear evidence that ten months after Confederation the cost of living had dropped here in Newfoundland very appreciably. The price on dry goods on the average fell 12% to 22%. 22% less in the group Carbonear, Bell Island, Buchans and St. John's, Port aux Basques, Green Bay and Grand Falls, Decrease in materials now: Blankets, cotton 21%, window blinds 16%, purple heather wool 16%, floor canvas 36%, linoleum 30%, broadcloth 33%, boots 23%, caps 26%, men's combinations 28%, cotton work shirts, 19%, and so on and on. All these decreases came after Confederation—ten months after we became a Province the cost of living had fallen.

MR. FOGWILL: What was the index that month?

MR. SMALLWOOD: The Newfoundland index is practically worthless as my honourable friend knows. He is well aware of the worthlessness of that indeed. Personally we in the Cabinet receive it each month but we pay no attention to it—it is utterly worthless. So that the immediate effect of Confederation was a fall in the cost of living.

MR. FOGWILL: What percentage?

MR. SMALLWOOD: 20% to 30%.

MR. FOGWILL: That is wrong.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It may be less, may be more. The position is that whether it was 15% or 30%, the immediate result of Confederation was a fall in the cost of living, there is no doubt of that, as everyone in Newfoundland knows; the shopkeepers know. In fact there was a great wail from the shopkeepers that they were going to be ruined, caught with stuff on their shelves on which they had paid duty. They were going to be ruined and one after another they came to me in my office telling me about the ruin which faced them because they had paid the duty and the new goods were coming in duty free from the rest of Canada. There is no doubt about it, the cost of living fell at once with Confederation and ten months after Confederation in January 1950, more than a year ago we felt the effect. Now it is no news to this House that since then in Canada, in the United States and Europe and all over the world, since January of last year, the cost of living has risen steeply, in fact there has been a frightful increase. Is that news, am I making that up? Is that something I dreamed? What happened is this: the immediate fall in the cost of living in Newfoundland brought about by Confederation was shortly after swallowed up by the world-wide inflation, the world-wide increase in prices. There is no doubt of that and every honourable member knows it, every reasonable member knows it. In the United States now the index is 189, the highest in the entire history of the United States and on the Mainland of Canada, 181, the highest in the history of Canada, higher than at any time in her whole history. What would the cost of living be in Newfoundland today but for Confederation? What would it be, how would it be? How would the ordinary family live in Newfoundland? Let us picture it. First of all there would be no ten million dollars coming into Newfoundland at all for family allowances, that would not be so, and the old age pensions would be $30.00 a quarter and starting at the age of 75, and a man must struggle along somehow until he is 75 years of age, then if he had a wife he would get $30.00 a quarter and if no wife $18—$6 a month. That was before Confederation. Up to the very day we became a Province, that is what we paid in Newfoundland. No family allowance no widowed mothers' allowances, no crippled persons' pensions, and the old age pension was $30.00 a quarter, starting at the age of 75. How quickly we forget; two years after, a gentleman can stand in this Chamber and speak for hours and not see any good at all in Confederation, not a scrap, just crying blue ruin and utter catastrophe. Well, I won't take any more time on what my honourable and learned friend said in his speech but there are a couple of other points, I think. I would dignify a point made by my honourable friend from Harbour Main - Bell Island with a reply. He wanted to know about this business of Government spending five million dollars to find employment for five hundred men and to him that did not seem to be good business. Five million dollars. Five million dollars to find employment for five hundred men. Carry it out to its logical conclusion and here is what you get: Five million dollars gives five hundred men jobs and by the same token ten million dollars gives one thousand men work and one hundred million gives ten thousand people jobs. Now if he were Premier or if he would prefer not to be Premier but were a member of the Government and he had to cast a vote in the Cabinet—what would he do? Here is a Government that has no surplus, nothing at all, just what it is taking in from day to day and week to week and month to month on current account, barely balancing its budget, year after year, and the members of that Government know there is no surplus, no cash in the till and he is to cast a vote on this decision. Will he be for one hundred million dollars to create industry that will employ ten thousand men at full time work, would he vote yes or no to that?

MR. FAHEY: Well, in the first place I would like to put the Honourable Premier right; what I actually said was this: Should the honourable House consider voting five million dollars to give employment to five hundred people or should this House vote one million to give employment to 28,000? In other words, I uttered words to this effect, should the House authorize the Government to spend that amount when in my opinion with a subsidy of a million and a half you could give employment to 28,000 fishermen and later I added, we could give employment to 30,000 farmers and fishermen.

MR. SMALLWOOD: All right, we will reduce it now to a hundred men for a million dollars. So it is the same thing. It is good business for the Government of Newfoundland to spend a million dollars to give employment to one hundred men, full time new jobs to be created, one hundred new full time jobs for one million or five million dollars for five hundred jobs, and ten thousand for one hundred million dollars. I ask him the question: If he were a member of the Government that had no surplus, was just balancing its budget from year to year, which is the normal position of Governments all over the world, and they are mostly very lucky if they do balance their budget, if he were a member of such a government and a proposition made to float a loan for the amount of one hundred million dollars to spend on creating an industry that will give employment to the ten thousand, would he do it? Would he consider it good business from the standpoint of the Government and from the standpoint of Newfoundland? I think his answer would be "Yes."

MR. FAHEY: Of course it is yes. I would take a million and take care of 28,000 fishermen. If that were brought up in the Cabinet so would we all, gladly.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Yes, of course we would. This House when none of us were here, not one of us, this House voted twenty million guaranteed to Bowaters for a pulp and paper mill and the British Government voted ten million principal and interest on the same, that was $20,000,000. We took second mortgage on it and that was when Newfoundland was collecting something of the order of eight million dollars a year and could not balance the budget and did not for years and years. They did it at that time to create a five hundred ton mill which is today the biggest in the world. At that time, if my memory serves me right, the total number of employees in that mill was something of the order of six hundred, it may have been seven. That was full time. There was something of the order of two thousand men who got part time work in the woods. Now the Newfoundland Government of that day took that chance; and when I say we should spend fifty million to create five thousand jobs it is good business. The only difficulty is this: can we find enough operations, enough new industries and go on and create a hundred million dollars worth of new industries employing ten thousand men? If we find them and do it and create the ten thousand jobs and if we spend a hundred million, would it not be equally good business to go and repeat it and have twenty thousand new jobs at two hundred million and the thirty thousand new jobs at three hundred million and forty thousand new jobs at four hundred million?

MR. FOGWILL: Hold on now, you are going to have a shortage of labour.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I hope so. My honourable friend, I am sure if ever he were in the Cabinet, he would vote exactly along that line.

In the Chamber, this afternoon, there were two visitors who arrived in Newfoundland at 2:00 o'clock this morning. They have a proposition that will employ one hundred men here in the city of St. John's at somewhere around $250,000 or $300,000 a year in wages. One hundred men and it will cost about half a million dollars. Would it pay this Government to put up this half million dollars to find new jobs, create new jobs for one hundred men? We have to decide that shortly. Personally I don't think we can go wrong and no country or province is in the position where it can go wrong so long as it gets industry. Industries pay for everything. The old saying: "The consumer pays for all" and my honourable friend knows that industries pay for all, taxes, schools, hospitals, roads, public services, all come out of industry. We can't have enough industries, certainly not too many and if the people have to assist these industries to be born, if to get these things started the public credit is needed to be used, what is wrong with that? What is wrong with it? I dare say if we do not do it in the course of the next thirty-five or forty years or fifty years time it will come anyhow, if there are any people left in Newfoundland to enjoy it. It is a race between new industries and losing our population.

Now, I have only two other points; just two other points to make: Neither of these points was raised by the honourable Leader of the Opposition but they were raised by the honourable and gallant member for Ferryland and some of them were raised by the members of the Opposition Party.

First of all, the honourable and gallant member for Ferryland said we had no surplus at the end of this year, that we ended the year without a surplus. Now he was a former Minister of Finance—at a time when things were a lot different from today. That was the famous time when the Premier of the day sent for another member of the Cabinet, and one member of the Cabinet, a large man with a big stomach who used to smoke cigars and spit out through the corner of his mouth said to him, "So you are the one who has been giving us all the trouble and he was a good honest, decent, God-fearing gentleman who was living in fear and dread. Now these were the days they paid little attention to the Auditor General—he was a minor official. Well, a former Minister of Finance says we have no surplus. He takes up the Budget which shows a surplus of nearly one million dollars, looks at it and says: "You have no surplus." Then he goes about proving it and this is how he proves it: He says "It is right in the Budget, last year you spent more on this and that and then you figured, you took in more on this and that, about ninety thousand dollars more than you estimated in that Department, and in the Department of Welfare you took in one million more than estimated and in this department as much more." Now he said: "Take that amount that you took in, in Public Welfare, you were not expecting seven hundred thousand of that, and that should go in, in respect of the previous year." That is to say in the previous year the Newfoundland Government spent that amount on behalf of the Government of Canada and it came back in the second year, not in the first year, therefore, it is credited to the first year, not to the year in which it came. I wish he were here, how I wish he were here right now. I don't enjoy going for the honourable and gallant member behind his back and unless he is here to enjoy it, I have no heart for it. But of all the nonsense. Take any company, Ayre and Sons, Bowrings, any big firm; they close their books say the 31 of January, the end of the fiscal year and the books are closed and they have started a new year. It is now the first of February and the following January 15, a year later they have taken in some money that was owed them by my honourable Friend the Minister of Welfare who went down and bought a suit at Ayre and Sons and they sent him a bill a month later and he forgot or did not get around to paying it, and a year later after the books were closed he goes down and pays the bill. What is Ayre & Sons to do, will someone tell me? What should they do with $50, that was owed in 1949 but did not come in until 1950? What should Ayre & Sons do with that $50? How should it be entered in the books? They should enter it in the year in which they received it of course, what else? But my honourable friend says no, you should credit that to the year before. Utter nonsense, open up last year's books and slip it in between somewhere. If that is the kind of public finance they used to have when he was Minister of Finance, well no wonder Newfoundland went on the rocks, no wonder a Royal Commission came out to save us, no wonder. Now, he said, there was a deficit that first year of Confederation of $3,700,000 and now he says, "Take $700,000 from this year and credit it to the first year and reduce the deficit of that year from $3,700,000 to $3,000,000 and instead of a surplus this year we have a deficit." Well, I will say I am sorry he is absent; we could have a lot of fun with that if he were here. But let me tell my honourable friends another point about that surplus, we had a surplus of $1,900,000, but actually we had a much larger surplus than that thanks to my honourable friend the Minister of Welfare again. There was for years past by the Commission of Government and by this Government and for our first year in office the same thing, viz., in the Department of Welfare at the end of every year there is actually quite a bit of money for relief which is paid during the following year. They do not pay in the year the debt is contracted, but pay in the following year and that runs to $600,000, or never less than a half million. Now, here's how it happens: There are relieving officers in some parts of my district, and in all districts who issue relief to the people who need it and these bills finally circulate back to the Department of Public Welfare and they issue the cheque in all cases. But what happened was, by the time the year came to a close the financial year, there was a large amount of money still not paid off, as bills were not sent in by the local outport merchants to the big business on Water Street, consequently they had not been sent in to the Department and they are outstanding. It is never less than half a million when the year closes. But how much do we have now? Now not a dollar. We caught up with that in the past year that is another half million which added to eight hundred thousand which is our real surplus in this year past on current account. We caught up with that and started the new year not owing a dollar. That is good financing, that is good business and that is what we did. But it was not so in the old days. Every year they came into this House with a money bill to get authority to go out and borrow money, eight and ten million dollars each year and every year without a break for twenty years. They did not fail once in twenty years to seek authority to go out and borrow money in New York in Montreal and always the Bill said "Capital Development." What was capital development only a polite way of fooling financiers in New York and Montreal, asking them to lend money for capital development. Were the brokers fooled or not? We don't know, but the time arrived when they would lend no more and we went broke. Year after year there was a deficit and an Act was brought in to go out and borrow money. But they could not borrow on current account, therefore it was for light-houses and this and that and the other thing, all capital development, trying to hide deficits year after year after year on current account and by juggling, by manipulating financial figures they got away with it for many years. In those days the system of auditing was absurd and ridiculous. There was really no system of auditing, no system of financial control. Why in those days the members would sit around this Chamber here and the members of the Opposition would say to the members on this side, "What are we getting this year?" A quarter of a million dollars for all Newfoundland for roads. Do you know what was done with it? The Government handed to each individual member of the House the individual money of his district—handed it to him and the honourable member for that year put it in his pocket, went down to his district and said to some old man: "Here is a hundred dollars, now you hire some fellows and fix up the road."

The old man took the money, hired two or three or four people and paid 30c. an hour and got five or ten dollars for himself. If he took the money and put it in his pocket and did not spend a dollar in his District he did not go to jail, and it happened right here in this Chamber, it was done by a member of this House of Assembly. He was given his district money for roads and the district never saw a cent. That was the kind of finance going on, when my honourable and gallant friend was Finance Minister. It was very suspicious. We were living in another age, but it is gone and this new system is here; before that there was neither head or tail. No wonder he is not interested and hardly bothers to read the Budget, this system is gone way past him and he does not understand, control of the Treasury and a new system of auditing, and new conditions. He does not understand now or appreciate it but there is no fun in saying that when he is not here. The good old days, the good old days, those glorious traditions ! ! !

My friend opposite had me feeling very shy and embarrassed here a number of times and I felt like getting up and apologizing to the House for having a surplus. They actually berated us for having a surplus, saying we ought to be ashamed of it.

MR. RUSSELL: For last year, not for next year.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Our honourable friends opposite made us feel we should get up and apologize to the House and the Province for having a surplus of eight hundred thousand dollars. I wonder if the same honourable gentlemen would be congratulating this Government today if we had a deficit? How they would make the welkin ring if we had ended the year with a deficit I know one honourable gentleman in this House who got the surprise of his life though it was not as great a surprise as it might be if I had not tabled the answers to questions on revenue and expenditure for the year. When my honourable friend, the junior member for St. John's East, tabled a question in this House as to the expenditure and revenue of the government for the first eleven months, I tabled the answers which showed a deficit of one million dollars. But he subsequently tabled another question as to the revenue and expenditure for the month of March 1951. I will tell the honourable gentleman, I hesitated and delayed in giving that answer as I wanted a surprise to come to a certain gentleman. But in the end I brought down the answer and that honourable gentleman was quick witted enough to see it at once, he saw it and so did my honourable friend see it too.

MR. FOGWILL: Long before that, don't fool yourself now.

MR. SMALLWOOD: For the first eleven months we had a deficit on the actual record at that time of a million dollars, but when we came to account for the final month we had a surplus of a million dollars, so that we dropped a million in eleven months and ended up with a surplus of a million dollars. They thought we would balance our budget but one thing the honourable gentleman did not anticipate was that we would end up with a surplus of nearly a million dollars. That is the last thing anyone expected.

MR. RUSSELL: Including the Government.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I told the same gentleman in the month of January that we were going to balance our budget, and he did not believe me and I knew by the end of March that we were going to do more than balance our budget and I announced in the Cabinet that we would do more than balance. Now so much for that. We don't apologize for the surplus for we are proud of it and sorry it is not bigger. Sorry, that instead of being able to place nine hundred thousand accumulated to spend on economic development and development of social services, we were not able to put a million there, and sorry it is not two million rather than approximately one.

Now, when this current year is ended and someone brings down the Budget a year from now, I wonder what stand my honourable friends opposite will take then. They will only be rehashing the old stuff if there is a deficit but will they remember berating us for a surplus, will they remember they berated us, almost demanded we apologize for having a surplus? Will they remember that if we have a deficit a year from now? Well I would not want to give them that pleasure.

Now one final point, and I am through. This point I would like to make very clear, as clear as I know how to make it. When Bowaters at Corner Brook decided to put in that paper mill machine and to install other machinery in their mill so as to increase their output, their production, where did they go to get the money to do it with? They went to the Bank of Montreal for $12,000,000 and with that borrowed money they enlarged their mill. When Dosco decided to enlarge their mines on Bell Island, what did this company do about getting the money with which they wished to enlarge and improve their mine on Bell Island? They went out and borrowed it. When the North Atlantic Fisheries here in Newfoundland wanted to establish a new industry at Grand Bank, what did they do about getting the money? They went out and borrowed it or at least part of it. When John Penney and Sons in Ramea wanted to build a new dragger, what did they do about that? They came to this Government to borrow the money and we were very happy and proud to lend it and when various other firms wanted to expand, what did they do about the cost of the expansions? They borrowed the money. Now that of course is a perfectly normal and conventional thing to do. If firms did not do that there would be no bond houses in the world, there would be no need of those bond houses and financial houses, and banking systems. If the normal way of expanding financially speaking were to do it out of current revenue, there would be no bond houses and the great insurance companies would have no outlet for investing sums of money that accumulated from their policies. If those companies had to wait until they could, out of their own profits, slowly accumulated year by year, finance their expansion of the mine at Bell Island and the Steel Mill at Sydney, if they waited out of their own savings year by year to do that out of current account, then there would be no expansion in Bell Island nor in Sydney and if Bowaters waited to build up year after year out of ordinary income enough to finance the extension of their mill, they would wait a long time and but for the fact that it is normal and conservative, ordinary and usual to finance expansion and development out of borrow money, then expansion would be on a microscope scale and indeed industry and commerce would come virtually to a stand-still. We would have stagnation instead of expansion. Whatever we may say about these organizations, these great financial institutions, they are the means of industries expanding and going on. Now these private companies, Harvey and Sons, Chester Dawe, Dosco Co., Bowaters, John Penney and Sons, North Atlantic Fisheries, S. W. Moores, North Eastern Fisheries, Arthur Monroe, Fishery Products, all those are existing companies, how did they expand? How did they go in for capital development except by borrowing the money to do it? That is the first point. The second point is: That is how Governments normally do it. That is the normal way for Governments to do it. That is how a Government expands. If prudent, a Government is expected to raise enough every year to pay its ordinary current account expenses. That is what a Government is expected to do, indeed if the honourable House cares to take time off and read some of the history of public finance, the House would discover this fact. In this, my honourable friend the member for Bonavista South is more correct than any. He is more correct than he realized. The principle of public finance is this: that a Government ought not to collect from the people in taxes, money for capital expenditure, for instance this Government gets from the Government of Canada sixteen millions for which it does not have to tax the people, we get that handed to us this year, $16,000,000. But a Government ought not to collect by taxes more than just enough to balance its Budget on ordinary current expenditure account, that is to say operating account, and if there should be a surplus as a result of taxation on current account revenue over and above current account expenditure there is only one thing to do and that is to reduce taxation because the Government is supposed only to tax the people enough to raise by current revenue sufficient to meet current expenditure. Now that being so, one can see how unusual it would be for a Government to try and finance extension of capital development, capital investments out of current revenue because current revenue is supposed to be only enough to meet current expenditures and if there is more the Government is supposed to reduce taxation. Now, that principle goes back into antiquity under our British Flag.

It is normal, I say, for private firms and for Governments to finance capital development, capital expansion by means other than current revenue, and everybody in the world is happy when the Government takes in enough money in the year, in current account, to square its account on current expenditure, making the account balance. Talking about apologizing for a balanced Budget, formerly and during the Convention we talked about current account, that is all we talked about and asked did the Government balance its Budget? The Budget can and should show only one thing, current account, yet the Daily News came out the morning after the Budget Speech with a headline "The Government Ended the Year with ten and a half million deficits." It has been a long time since we have had politics in Newfoundland, and a lot of young men, young newspaper men have grown up without the advantage of having listened to my honourable and gallant friend the member for Ferryland, while he was Finance Minister and a series of Finance Ministers and without studying the subject of finance, so we can imagine a headline writer quite sincerely writing in his newspaper there was a deficit of ten million dollars. This Government has a surplus of $903,000, because it has an understanding of the essential division of surplus and current account. A Budget deals only with current account on expenditure and revenue and either balances or does not, shows a surplus or deficit or is exactly in balance, nothing else, surplus account is something entirely different. Now what happens is this: Here are several Budgets from different provinces across Canada, and what they have done is this: Take the headline across the Evening Telegram of yesterday, I clipped it here in the House: Victoria, B.C., the government of British Columbia expects to borrow between forty and fifty millions in the United States. Required, yes the funds are required, to meet capital expenditure. Now that is about the same amount as we are spending relatively, our population related to theirs, about the same amount the Newfoundland Government is spending on capital development. They are borrowing it. Will the newspaper in British Columbia, in respect of this year, denounce the Government and say if, let us say the Government have a surplus of a million dollars and they borrow forty millions during the year, will they come out and say the Government ended the year with a deficit of $51,000,000 or $41,000,000 or $49,000,000 as they borrowed $50,000,000? But if they had a surplus of a million, would the newspaper be so silly as to come out and announce a deficit of $49,000,000? Of course not. They had a surplus of one million dollars. Are they to take up the Budget Speech of the Government of British Columbia and say, here is the Budget Speech and then take up capital account and treat them as one account? No, they separate them, one has nothing to do with the other. Capital Account has to do with surplus and is always spent for capital account and there is quite a distinction between current account and capital development. The same thing applies to all the Budget Speeches I have here. If the Daily News comes out and talks of a deficit last year after we have shown a surplus of nine hundred thousand, and if we have spent some of our accumulated cash surplus and taken in some and they added the two and subtracted nine hundred thousand dollars and get a deficit of ten million dollars, it is absurd and contrary to all common sense concepts of public finance and there is no head nor tail nor sense to it. Take Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario all provinces of Canada, how do they build roads, how do they get their hospitals? Prince Edward Island has more roads than we have here, how did they get them? How did Nova Scotia get her roads? How do the Provinces of Canada expand and develop these resources, by paying out of current account? No, they pay it by borrowing. That is why it is we have a public debt of only $14 a head, and New Brunswick $267 a head. That is why they borrowed to build roads, build schools, hospitals. We are not doing that but the day will come when we will, like them, but not now —we pay it out of our accumulated surplus but the time will come when we will borrow again and if we do so we are doing what every government in the world does. Now, I will live to see the day, I have no doubt, when the Government of Newfoundland will borrow, but this Government won't do it. Let me make that plain, this Government will not borrow because the Government has a surplus but the day will come in Newfoundland when other Governments in Newfoundland will borrow, and so take their place with all the normal governments of the world. Mr. Speaker, that is all I want to say about the Budget Speech, we are very proud after the dislocation of the first year of Union, which was a great and historic day in the history of Newfoundland, after four and a half centuries of going along or trying to, we merged our identity with that of Canada which was a great shock to the sentimentality of some of our people but even more of a shock to the public economy and finances of Newfoundland, suddenly to find ourselves a Province of Canada, suddenly to find ourselves without all the normal and ordinary sources of revenue to which the Governments of Newfoundland long were accustomed, suddenly to find ourselves not knowing where we were, and after a year of that adjustment and dislocation, at the end of the year we had a deficit of $3,700,000, of which a great amount was contracted by our predecessors and paid by us out of accumulated surplus. Now at the end of the second year, this is our first complete year, when our Budget is unaffected by the dealings of the previous government we ended this year with a surplus of practically a million dollars and budget for practically a million in this year. We are proud of that, we worked hard to do it and there have been times without a doubt, within the last two years when this Government felt they were just a pack of galley slaves working night and day, Sunday and Monday, day in and day out, no relaxation, no holidays, just work. I don't know if men were meant to work like that, like galley slaves, but we punched in two years of it and we are exceedingly proud now that we have ended our year with a surplus, and we are budgeting to end the coming year with a surplus.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I repeat what I said at the outset, here in this Chamber, we fight and snarl at each other and scratch and row and fall out and become bad friends and patch it up and become good friends again, but over-riding all that, one thing is enduring, people change, we come and go and get elected and get defeated and run again and get kicked out and all the rest of it, but one thing is enduring and that is the people of Newfoundland, the ordinary common people whom I like to call the toiling masses because they are masses and they do toil and work hard—sober, frugal, industrious, simple, not complicated, not sophisticated, but hard-working, simple people with simple tastes and in that I know my honourable friend the Leader of the Opposition agrees with me a hundred percent; good stock, good breeding as fine as you get anywhere in the world, deserving of a break. It is for them surely we are here in this House. It is for them this Government are here—working for them, the people we sprang from, the common people, ordinary people. I know, God help me, there is nothing of the aristocrat about me, not a trace, not a drop of blue blood in me. All my brothers are working men, working with their hands at common ordinary jobs, ordinary people, common people, working-class people. Other men here in this Chamber came from families of fishermen, some of them had a bit of luck, and became school teachers, the others are probably from a small family and got a better break but all of us, who are we? There is not an aristocrat amongst us; rolled all in one, we would not make half an aristocrat, the whole lot of us. The most aristocratic man here is the Minister of Health.

HON. JAMES R. CHALKER (Minister of Health): That is not fair.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Well, my honourable friend and I have one thing in common—pigs. I raised them and he killed them. I got in their pounds and swept them out and I don't know of any life that is more down to earth. You won't ever know until you have gone in and swept out after the pigs. Four years ago I was doing that, just four years ago. With a big broom and mop cleaning up and sweeping out after the pigs. I remind myself of that every now and then, so that I won't get a swelled head. I keep reminding myself that just four years ago I was cleaning up after pigs, a lot of them, six hundred of them and spending the day cleaning up after six hundred pigs is not one bit aristocratic, and before that I cleaned up after a thousand hens. I went into the hen business and it took me one entire day to clean out hen houses, often a thousand hens, a lot of work just to clean out the hen houses, and I am afraid I took Sunday to clean out; that is four or five years ago.

MR. HIGGINS: What happened to the pigs and hens?

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is a long story and if it were not as late as it is I would entertain you with that story. It is a sad story, I lost my shirt. The pigs got cholera and were all carried away.

Well, here we are and it would be nonsense for any of us to pretend to be anything but what we really are, all very common people, coming from very commonplace families and not very far removed from them, not a very wide gulf between us. Some of us may walk out of this Chamber into ordinary simple homes. I am a little bit ashamed of the house in which I live. It has thirty-two rooms and I need a guide to get around. I heard one day a family had moved in there two weeks ago and I did not know they were in the house. There is even a wine cellar. Well, let us keep our feet on the ground and remember we are just very common people and we can be flung out on our ear and be looking for a job the year after next, after the next general election; if we are defeated we are back where we began. We remember that here on this side and there is no trash or nonsense amongst us. We keep our feet on the ground and remember who put us here and what is expected from us and who can put us out when they feel like it. If we remember that, we will stay here for the next twenty-three years. Two years have gone and we have twenty-three to go, if we remember that. Just so long as we are true to the people they will send us back here.

MR. SPEAKER: The motion is I shall now leave the chair.

MR. CHAIRMAN: The Committee on Ways and Means have considered the matter to them referred and asks leave to sit again.

Orders of the Day

Committee of the Whole on Supply.

DR. POTTLE: Mr. Chairman, I am not quite sure how far the committee has progressed.

MR. CHAIRMAN: We had allowed Dept. of Natural Resources, Health, Public Welfare, and Supply to stand. If the Committee agrees we could begin at 1101—Public Welfare.

DR. POTTLE: In making such a motion, Sir, I take the liberty to make a few remarks as a preamble, to the estimates as a whole for the Department of Public Welfare. In presenting the estimates we have striven to maintain the standard and the services set out last year, changing them only to the extent required under the statutes where the number of applications increased from month to month, and in the second respect with regard to regional welfare services, a service to which the House agreed last year and voted sufficient funds to maintain the service as set up last year under statutes. These are the services shown under 1106 which by stages is substituting for services under 1019, namely relieving officers. That change started last year and has been maintained throughout the year and we have just about gotten half way through the change-over, so that we have to provide for the remaining services under relieving officers who will eventually drop out and be replaced by regional officers. Now when we come to that regional welfare service under 1104 it shows a substantial increase to be set off against 1109 where, as indicated it will gradually decrease and it is now anticipated that in the course of the present year the relieving officers will vanish altogether.

Under 1108 there is substantial provision under 03 having to do with children in foster homes, where I may say we provided last year $125,000 of which only $60,000 was spent, but we have maintained the vote at $125,000 because by Minute of Council the Government approved a new rate for foster children. The Committee may have considerable more details if it wishes.

Now, Sir, the orphanage grant 1115: The vote last year set a total of $45,500 and this year it is set away back to $43,000. By Minute of Council since that item was set up it has been agreed that the rates to orphanages per child would be increased, normal but important increases because it is a matter of principle, for $10 a month per child to $12.50 per month per child. That is a contribution by the Government toward the monthly maintenance of children in orphanages.

Now, Sir, there is not much more detail, I can give further information, as we proceed. If the Committee will agree, we might pass 1101.

1102—Deputy Minister salary scale adjusted to new scale. Director of Professional Training, amended scale $3,500-100-$4,000.

Motion carried.

There was one male clerk upgraded to Administrative Officer. The post was filled in the course of the year and is now down in the estimates as such. One Grade 2 Clerk has been added and one additional shorthand typist.

1103—There is a reduction in this section due to the centralization of accounting.

1104—There is an increase of one in the staff. The fact is the person designated as utility man was already on the staff as a temporary officer. He has been carried by the department for many years on a temporary basis from month to month, and is now set down in the estimates as an officer. It is not a real increase in staff.

1105—This looks again like an increase but the fact is if you note on page 78 there is a similar service we operate. We operate jointly with the Department of Health and share the expenses, last year on the basis of 1/6, this year it is more realistic because we have the real proportion of service the Department of Public Welfare takes to the total service. The proportion is  $\frac{1}{4}$ .

1106—This has to do with Welfare Services and the table is given on page 92. Now this should not be looked at it by itself, but we should look at the total services which is partially under relieving officers. This, I may say, is a maximum number because we did not want to take any chances and we have left the relieving officers long enough to the job for the new men to become familiar with it. There is just one point. The estimates last year provided for fifteen which carried us along, I believe, not too badly. For travelling, the original estimates had down thirty-five thousand but in a moment of weakness I cut back my estimates to twenty-five thousand. Am I likely to hear some very critical comment if I suggest it might be raised to thirty thousand? We won't travel any more. It is just a matter of not having to come back for a supplementary supply. Twenty-five thousand deleted and thirty thousand inserted.

MR. RUSSELL: Do you realize what all this is doing to the proposed surplus for next year?

MR. HIGGINS: Why apologize about the increase? You act as though it were for yourself or something.

DR. POTTLE: I am that kind of person.

1107—This is divided into two parts, salaries to begin with on page 92. Again it looks like an increase. What we have done is put a number on the temporary staff, five in fact, who were under extra assistance which you will note was cut down to $2,070. What we have done this year is cut down the number of the temporary because the work of the board is stabilized now and we have absorbed temporary staff, not necessarily the same people, into the main staff so that it is not a real increase.

Now, Sir, under 1107-03 comes the state allowances. Last year we voted $2,390,000. It was a shot, we may say, out into the unknown, as we did not know what the actual expense was. We budgetted for $1,265,000 and the actual expense was $1,420,000. We have budgetted this year for $1,500,000. Last year we budgetted for $1,125,000 for Mothers' Allowances which was a remarkable estimate. We spent $1,112,000. We are budgetting this year for $1,250,000. That is all the comment I have on 1107. The Committee may have details if it should want them.

Carried.

1108—Child Welfare, Staff on page 93: The Committee raised a point regarding the Director of Child Welfare. There will be a reorganization relative to court services and a Bill will be introduced shortly, has already been introduced to the House for second reading for family courts. This reorganization will affect the position and status of the Director of Child Welfare, original salary was $4,000-100-

4,800, which has been set back to $4,500.

MR. RUSSELL: Why, if it is the intention to take another function?

DR. POTTLE: It is the intention eventually to have someone there on the $35,000. It goes back to Division Head Statutes.

The staff dropped from 20 to 18 because there had been kept up one or two positions there that did not need to be filled.

Now, 1108-03—Maintenance of foster children: Part of that vote we may say is given to the Salvation Army home for girls, which houses about thirty girls or so. We pay for the whole amount of time $1.00 per girl and 50c. per day per child, while the mother is living there and 75c. per child after the mother leaves. The total amount is somewhere around $15,000 to $20,000 a year. About 75% or 80% of the total cost of the building.

MR. FOGWILL: I would like to ask the honourable Minister in respect to foster homes, is there not in fact two other foster homes being operated more or less by a grant or money in respect of each child kept there? How much does the Government contribute to the children there?

DR. POTTLE: It would go into hundreds, but this would be a guess. I can get it for you from the Director of Child Welfare's Report which was circulated here. On page 10 of last year's report of Child Welfare the number of foster homes has increased from twenty-seven to one hundred and twenty-eight and the number of children averaged 2.6 per home last year.

MR. FOGWILL: Is there not one or two homes you maintain?

DR. POTTLE: I know it is not to our credit, but we have begun a campaign for foster homes: you have probably heard it over the air. It is a welfare problem which tends to concentrate on St. John's and we have difficulty finding accommodations in St. John's and we are doing all we can to put children in homes outside but it is difficult to get the children in the outports which we want to do.

Carried.

1109—Salaries on page 93: The decrease is due largely to the relieving officers and in that we have provided for twenty relieving officers full-time. That will vary in the course of the year, downward, as they are substituted by welfare officers. Travelling is again down as a result of the welfare officers being appointed. We have split the relief vote in two, relief persons as such and relief under board and lodging which is not statutory, so as to show the hard core of relief payments under 03, 04 will appear more realistic.

MR. RUSSELL: May I say the great amount voted last year was all spent or over-spent.

DR. POTTLE: Last year the amount spent was $1,862,000. It would not be advisable to indicate more than that amount to be spent on relief this year.

MR. HIGGINS: How do you work out the average?

DR. POTTLE: On receipts on the basis of pay cheques. As you know we have to take the whole problem into account. 05, $100,000 that is to maintain people for a short time who do not qualify for statutory allowances, but for perhaps a couple of months when they are utterly out of action but do not qualify under statutory allowances. We have all kinds of special cases where people need to be supported for a little while, for instance while going to hospital.

MR. FOGWILL: What section does it come in under?

DR. POTTLE: Normally under 03 or under old age pensions.

MR. FOGWILL: The point is this, Mr. Chairman, there are quite a number of people covered there.

DR. POTTLE: We have a great number of people aged and infirm whom we board and we have from three up to ten in a house as members of the family.

MR. FOGWILL: I happen to visit a boarding house where the people kept there are ill, and I want to point out that I hope the Department has sufficient inspectors to see that those people in those places are looked after. I visited one place last winter and the conditions there were not all they should be, in fact there were very sick people there, patients tubercular and none too particular.

DR. POTTLE: That would be in the St. John's area. We have in the home for the Aged and Infirm a number of incurable people sent over to us from the various hospitals, the General and so on. Now what we try to do is get as many of these people out from the institution as we can but in doing so we do not always remedy the condition, as we have an appreciable number still waiting to get in and if we had more homes we should be able to solve the problem.

MR. FOGWILL: I would suggest to the honourable member that if they have not sufficient inspectors to inspect these places, I recomemnd he employ a couple more in that respect as I know it is necessary.

Carried.

1110: Salaries on page 93: Again it looks as if there is an increase, but that is not the case. There are, as you can see from extra assistance the vote has been reduced but we have absorbed into the staff, people who were last year carried as temporary. There is a change made in line two: We have employed a clerk, grade I, who assists the Chairman and is the office manager. The expenses are down for the reasons I gave just now as more of the work is being done by welfare officers at large. Office expenses are up, as last year was quite speculative as the House well knows. On statutory payments these figures are fairly firm. Last year we had set the old age pensions at $4,900,000 and this year we have set the old age pensions at $5,600,000 and $150,000 for the blind, making a total of $5,575,000 against which we received a Federal grant of $4,312,000. They come on at the rate of 30 every month, people becoming 70 at that rate. We have an increase of 317 in the blind; these are increasing fast because of the examinations.

Carried.

MR. HIGGINS: 1111—In the staff here, are these registered nurses?

DR. POTTLE: Yes and no.

MR. HIGGINS: It is a small salary for a nurse.

DR. POTTLE: They live partly in and partly out and they get an allowance for living out.

MR. HIGGINS: I notice a seamstress at $700, is there a lot of work all the time?

DR. POTTLE: That is the standard salary through the service for such work.

MR. HIGGINS: Is there no living allowance outside?

DR. POTTLE: It is a part-time job and as a matter of fact, I am not sure, I believe the seamstress is an inmate.

Now, Sir, there is an increase of staff, mainly the result of people on eight hour shifts.

MR. HIGGINS: Are these people bed-ridden?

DR. POTTLE: The ones there now are bed-ridden or in the ambulatory or if they can be at all they are let out in homes, such as they are.

MR. RUSSELL: Is there no possibility of a new building being built? I discussed it with the Minister of Public Works, if one were built for $5,000 what difference would that make to the comfort of the inmates?

DR. POTTLE: As long as we have the present building we will have to keep up the present staff.

MR. RUSSELL: With a new building perhaps more.

MR. HIGGINS: That depends on the type of services set up.

DR. POTTLE: It is our aim to set up a one story building, easy to get out of in case of fire.

MR. FOGWILL: How many people have you out there now?

DR. POTTLE: Anywhere between 118 and 122.

Motion carried.

There is no particular change in 1111, 1112, or 1113, or 1114.

Motion carried.

MR. HIGGINS: Do orphanages get the family allowance?

DR. POTTLE: No, they are not considered as homes within the meaning of the Family Allowance Act.

MR. FOGWILL: How many boys are in the training school?

DR. POTTLE: About 42 on Bell Island and about 14 at Whitbourne. The number fluctuates and I can't say exactly at the moment. Somewhere around 55 altogether.

The Committee rose, reported progress and asked leave to sit again.

Orders of the Day

Committee of the Whole on Supply.

MR. SPEAKER: Leave was given yesterday that this Committee sit again today.

HON. DR. H. L. POTTLE (Minister of Public Welfare): 1114—Girls' Home and Training School: There is no change except in provisions. Details on page 94.

Carried.

1115—Orphanage Grants: I gave notice last night, Mr. Chairman, that since the votes were set down as they are now, a minute of council has approved the raising of the contribution of the Government to denominational institutes from $10 per month per child to $12.50 per month per child. That is a direct contribution and has no direct relation to the overall operation of the institution, in view of which I ask that last year's vote be restored. Now this grant is for children already in these institutions. I suggest therefore that the amount be restored as set down last year. The amount actually spent depends upon the number of children in the institutions, it does not increase the number of children if we increase the funds.

1116—Miscellaneous: Most of this item is a continuation of last year. There was a sum of $10,000 which is out this year. I will come back to this in a minute. Assistance to shipwrecked crews is a nominal sum which may or may not be required. This is a Federal Responsibility which we may have to work out with the Federal Authorities in case of emergency, but it is a symbol of our intent to help in such emergency. 07 and 08 are largely revotes not spent last year. 05: Miscellaneous: The Government is aware of a number of voluntary bodies, I could name one or more of these bodies who might legally be helped through Government assistance and that we might be in a position to encourage these organizations as we may see fit; the vote has been set down at $5,000 more. That is the only change suggested under 1116, Sir.

MR. FOGWILL: 1116-09: Would the Minister explain that?

DR. POTTLE: Under 09—Professional Training—contains such items as these: There is the matter of bringing in our Welfare Officers for training for about two weeks. We did this last summer and that course of training was given by members from the Canadian Department of Welfare at Ottawa. This year we hope to lengthen out the school instead of sending our pupils abroad for a year or two to bring all together here in St. John's. That provides for travelling expenses and hiring of persons to do the work of teaching the courses.

MR. FAHEY: I would like the Minister to give us an explanation on 1116-08: Welfare Surveys.

DR. POTTLE: I indicated yesterday, in my address regarding the Budget, what was involved under 08. We hope in June to have a team of probably two people from the mainland in the field of public welfare to come here to conduct surveys of public welfare with a view to two or three things: To determine what scale of public welfare in keeping with our capacity to pay and suggest to us the nature of the legislation we should have in that service.

MR. FOGWILL: 07: Education, etc, of the blind, deaf and dumb. Does that just mean academic education or does it include vocational education?

DR. POTTLE: That vote takes care of about 70 children in institutions, one in Halifax and one in Montreal. It is vocational in the narrow sense of the word. We take them very young and hold them as long as we can at a cost of nearly a thousand dollars a year per child.

MR. FOGWILL: The reason I raised the point of the deaf and dumb; the blind people do get some vocational training and many are in useful occupations. Now, I am acquainted, myself, with several young people who are deaf and dumb and some of them are very bright. In fact, there are some very smart young people among those deaf and dumb who have no occupation. I suggest to the Minister if it is possible, for him to consider a certain sum on account of vocational training for those young people who cannot work at ordinary work. For instance, the blind are occupied by quite a lot of work; the deaf and dumb, whom I am personally acquainted with, are very unhappy because of the fact they have no work and they are handicapped because of being deaf and dumb but they are healthy and able to work.

DR. POTTLE: I consider that an excellent point, and we all feel that the handicapped persons, which include the mental defectives as well, are given very little systematic attention. Mental deficiency alone is a very considerable problem and we have not near the return in many educational institutions because many defective children are clogging up the system through no fault of anybody but it is largely a question of cost and being overloaded. As a matter of fact it is difficult to find means to do it all.

Amendment in 1116-05: That $5,000 be changed to $10,000.

1117: Family Court: If the Committee needs any explanation here I shall be glad to give it. There is a Bill already on the Order Paper for setting up of a family court in St John's to take the place of the Juvenile Court. The judge will be a magistrate. The provision is not a token provision, it is the full provisions anticipated. As indicated from yesterday's discussion he will take over all domestic concerns from the magistrate here who is not full-time.

MR. HIGGINS: Where is it placed?

DR. POTTLE: In the second floor of the Miller Building, set aside for that purpose.

1118—Detention Receiving Home: This is not a token provision either but more like a realistic provision and is set down at $2,500. That is the Home in St. John's which is taken care of by a competent man and takes care of children picked up by the police or any emergency who need special care. We have tried but have not been able to secure any such home but the provision is there in the hope we can, and will be reserved for children who have deserted their homes under any kind of emergency.

The total will be affected by the amendments.

Carried.

HON. LESLIE R. CURTIS (Attorney General): I understand the Chairman of the Committee reports item by item to Mr. Speaker, reports Welfare Department so much, and I think it would be well to make the total.

DR. POTTLE: I can give you a pretty close approximation.

Carried.

MR. FAHEY: I would like to get one point clear, there was an amendment last night making an increase of $5,000 and today's increases make a total of $11,700. Now, I understand later we will have the Appropriation Bill brought in, which will have the corrected total which will be taken again for each Department and these will be the true totals having been checked by Finance. As I understand it the totals here are just tokens. How is that done, does the Committee or the House give the totals to the Department of Finance?

MR. CURTIS: We pass the individual item and the actual total is only a matter of mathematics but we pass each item separately. The Ministers' salaries have not been altered in the totals, but the increments have been just put up one scale. The true totals will come in with the Appropriation Bill. These have to be put again before the House, this is just a token vote, it is not customary and it is not necessary to do it now.

MR. FAHEY: Why pass on a token vote if the amount can be altered in bringing in the real estimates? If we pass a total here, I don't see how the Department of Finance can change that, unless we alter the totals as we go along.

MR. CHAIRMAN: There will be an Appropriation Bill come in here and we will have to vote on it. All the Department of Finance has to do is add up the totals. We cannot add up the totals as there are one or two items we are not quite sure about so therefore we just pass the scale.

MR. FAHEY: Does this Committee or the House notify Finance that we have changed certain items as we go along, which gives them authority to alter the total?

MR. CHAIRMAN: Yes.

Department of Natural Resources:

DR. POTTLE: I might say by way of introduction that I will need all the forbearance of the House as I struggle along.

801: Minister's Office.

MR. RUSSELL: Mr. Chairman, speaking to 801, the Committee will no doubt not be surprised to find me making some comment or showing some interest in the Estimates with regard to the Department of Natural Resources. After all I was very intimately acquainted with the Department for a considerable time. But I will relieve the minds of the Committee by saying that after I have made a few comments on 801, I will make no further comment whatsoever on any other item in the eight hundreds. I know them intimately, studied them, but apart from this one item I am not going to make any further comment. I think there are two or three posts there a bit increased, maybe the importance of the posts justify that and I am not going to pretend I am indignant because there has been nothing done about the others. It would be pointless as the Committee is well aware, and everyone is well aware, a private member has no right to move it anyway so why try to make a virtue out of necessity. There are two or three policies there that I have been connected with in their early stages which I note have been curtailed a little, I refer to land clearance and mine development, and I have good reason to believe there is ample justification for that because we lack the assurance of certain Federal assistance, which we hoped to get, so I am not going to take up the time of the Committee other than to remark on 801: I am going to favour that proposal with one slight reservation. I have been asked by a number of people outside on numerous occasions as to who I think is going to be appointed to that position. I have answered as I answered long ago when curiosity was expressed about another position; it is entirely the Premier's prerogative to recommend to the Crown who he thinks is the best and most suitable for the position. I am glad to see the post is likely to be filled and I would support whole-heartedly the filling of the position. But I wish to say a few words to the honourable gentleman who will fill it. I have no idea in the world who he is but I wish and I feel that if he will not regard what I am saying as sort of woolly headed or homespun homily, I feel that after I have completed what I have to say I might have still more reason to support his appointment, whoever he may be. The man who takes that position, Sir, is going into a position where there are some bright sides and some not so bright, is going into an old and well established Department where divisional heads and people in general, heads and sub-heads, have been there a long time and are thoroughly familiar with their work. In fact the Department is a machine, an efficient machine, and the Minister will find that his most important work is to step up that machine sometimes or to turn it this way or that way in accordance with the policy of the Government of which he is a member. He will find another bright spot. He will have with him a private secretary who is certainly as capable, if not more capable, than any other private secretary in the Departments of the Government. She has been there a long, long time and carries around in her head probably more knowledge of the history of Government activities during recent years than any other public servant, with the exception, of course, of our one and only Bill Carew; he will find she is there every morning at about eight o'clock and by the time he arrives at nine o'clock or ten o'clock the days work has been made completely easy for him.

Now, Sir, those of us who have lived around outports where there are big fishing businesses have heard the local talk with reference to the employees of that business. Some are outside men and some are inside men and I suppose in a Cabinet, Sir, there are outside men and inside men, and I want to say this, in my opinion, Sir, the Minister of Natural Resources is one of the outside men. If I am here a year from now I hope to be back and hear the Minister of Natural Resources' experiences. And if he says he spends seven days a week, year in and out, in the office all the time, I will tell him to his face he has not done his work. The work of the Minister of Natural Resources with an efficient well trained staff is very easy in so far as the office work is concerned. It is mainly the gearing of that machine, adjusting it to new and more progressive policies. But probably 95% of the expenditure of that department lies in the out-of-doors, and in order to know the Department as I learned to know it, he has to go out doors and see what is going on. There is an item of more than fifty thousand dollars spent every year in a tree planting nursery in Salmonier where young seedlings are planted and distributed all over the island. He should go to Salmonier and see the tree nursery and assess for himself whether or not the policy is worth continuing, and if that policy is criticised in the House at the end of the year he should be able to defend it or agree it is no good.

Land Clearing: I have spent two whole days touring the Avalon and watched clearing operations. I felt like inviting the Leader of the Opposition to go out there with me, when I heard him mention the cost of clearing, so that he could see some of the Government machinery in action, lifting out boulders of perhaps ten tons, shaking the top soil off gently and depositing them by the side of the field at a cost of less than a hundred dollars an acre.

He should visit sometime the garage where that machinery is stored and serviced during the winter and see at first hand, not take the information second hand, the facts about them.

When beaver is being shipped to Labrador to try and replenish the fast waning stock down there, he should do as his predecessor did and go and have a look at such an interesting piece of Government business.

Visit the shop at Whitbourne and see the forest fire fighting equipment and assess for himself the need for a new building to house that equipment. And when the Department spends money to urge people to build barns, go out and see some of them, as his predecessor did at the Goulds and other nearby farming areas. Visit for himself the areas where they are burning land to promote the blueberry industry. He would find all that pleasant, but now, Sir, for the dark side of the work :

If he spends so much time away from his office he has to be prepared, in a world such as this, for certain people who are bad enough, I am not going to use any severe adjectives, but people evil-minded enough to concoct dirty tales, and carry those tales to very high places and whisper poisonous filth and slander into those ears in high places, trying to give the impression, I presume, that the Minister, instead of staying in his office, God forgive him, in his office all the time, doing his work, is going out around, off duty doing I don't know what. Because there are so many gods and goddesses we have to be prepared to have that happen, but I hope for two things : first, that such filth will not be believed, and secondly that if it is, we may be able sometime to catch those who originate it and see they get their just desserts. But in spite of all that, he will find he has a very interesting department, one of the most interesting in the Government, and I wish him every success.

801—Carried.

DR. POTTLE:

802 : General Office, details on page 82 : There will be the change in the Deputy Minister's salary as in the other departments. There is no increase in the number of the staff. It is proposed to upgrade a male Grade 3 to Grade 2. That is all.

Carried.

803 : The Committee will notice a reduction in this section due to the centralization of accounting, and an arrangement has been worked out between the Department of Natural Resources and the Department of Finance.

Carried.

804: Forestry: Salaries are given in detail on page 74; There is an increase of one District Inspector and an increase of three District Wardens, and one clerk as a result of last year's legislation. These are all the increases. There is an increase in travelling expenses which were actually $35,000 last year and this year are set down more realistically. The office is set down at $3,500 on the basis of postage, telegrams, etc., expended in last year's experience. The Forestry Expenses are reduced this year because we have two forestry surveys in the field this year instead of three as last year, and supplies are reduced accordingly. Under 04 the increase is to provide for new fire equipment and increased cost of repairs and maintenance and travelling. Protection of Fisheries and Game, there is a slight reduction. 06: Grant to Fire Protection Association is a standard vote. 07: Forestry Conservation and Development, no increase.

MR. HIGGINS: What is 05; Protection of Fish and Game? Is that not paid for by the Federal Authorities?

DR. POTTLE: The sea fish are Federal, inland fish Provincial.

MR. HIGGINS: Do we have to pay game wardens? Who divides it up, the Chief Game Warden?

DR. POTTLE: Yes. All salaries here are our salaries.

MR. HIGGINS: Whom do the Federal Authorities pay then?

DR. POTTLE: There are about forty officials taken over for six months by the Federal Authorities. they pay six months and we pay six.

MR. HIGGINS: I presume then they engage them Summer and Autumn, and we pay the rest of their salaries.

DR. POTTLE: We pay in full and get a rebate. No. It is the other way around; they pay and we repay them. We pay 37 men at $2,136 a year, that is paid directly to the men concerned.

08: Is in the main the development of mink, including, I think, three cold storage plants, 10 freezing units, training for forty students and the beginning of ten new farms together with administrative travel for the purpose of extra assistance.

MR. FOGWILL: Freezers will be paid for by mink operators?

DR. POTTLE: Yes, under supervision.

MR. HIGGINS: When is the Book on Newfoundland Bird Life to be finished?

DR. POTTLE: It is in its last stages now. I have a change to recommend under that item, namely: The eleven thousand dollars last year was not spent, only about $4,000 was spent and so we should revoke it and finish the job. So that $11,000 should appear under 12.

MR. JANES: May I ask the honourable Minister, I understand the Federal Authorities are responsible for the River Wardens, might I ask who determines the number of wardens necessary for the protection of rivers?

DR. POTTLE: It is entirely a Federal matter.

MR. FOGWILL: Before we put a motion for page 73, there is only one mechanic in that department, I understand. Would not the Department have a lot of machinery, bulldozers and motor vehicles for this one mechanic?

DR. POTTLE: That is just for the forestry section alone.

Carried.

805; Agriculture:

DR. POTTLE: Before we go on, under 805:02, travelling is set down as $20,000. This is a typographical error and should be set down more realistically at $25,000.

Under 01—We have only two students compared to eight last year who are taking training at Truro University. Training lasts about six months.

02—Demonstrations and Experiments, same as last year.

04—Grants to Agricultural Organizations: For some time past it has been the policy to give grants to Agricultural Societies on the basis of $40 for each Society, plus $1.00 per member up to a maximum of $100. It has been found that the assistance is of greater value if provided for more direct and specific aid such as land clearing, improvement of livestock, and support for the Farm Produce Marketing Board.

05—Health of Cattle including compensation: For prevention of TB in cattle we have already set up a survey of cattle in the Humber and there has been no positive reaction. It is our intention to extend this over the Province including cows on Avalon where we have most cattle, and it is expected that it will be started soon as an order in council has been received from Ottawa.

MR. MAKINSON: Mr. Chairman, may I comment on that? I would like to ask the honourable Minister and the Government if they would consider doubling, possibly trebling this vote? The reason for that, if I may be allowed a few moments of comment—soon after Confederation a petition was circulated by the Federal Authorities in regard to testing of all cattle in Newfoundland for detection of TB, and two-thirds of the farmers agreed to this test to be conducted and they were to be given TB bovine tests and any reactors had to be immediately destroyed. It was the policy of the Federal Government in pure breed animals to give them an amount of $100 in compensation for any animal, which had to be destroyed for reasons of bovine TB and $40 to any unregistered animal. Now as I understand it, every section of Avalon accepted it, except in the immediate vicinity of St. John's. When they came to me I signed this petition, but more or less under protest, and turned it over and made a note to the effect that I was not at all satisfied with the compensation paid and I indicated what in every respect this honourable House realizes that four or five years ago an animal could be imported for $150 to $200, but now the prices have risen to $400 and $500, really a great increase. Now for any dairy farmer having a number of cows there is a great chance taken in having his cows tested and there are few men in Newfoundland with very many cattle outside the Avalon Peninsula; they have one, and possibly two cows, in most instances one cow, a family cow, and as I understand it, every family who had one cow was quite agreeable to have this test as they did not want to be consuming milk and have their children who consumed it, affected by TB. However, it is a little different case when it comes to the dairy farmer with a number of cattle—around St. John's and some places on the Avalon Peninsula where he has fifteen or twenty-five milking cows, and as seen in some Provinces, he submits his herd to the TB test and is practically ruined, and a farmer may possibly overcome the effect of this as it is possible for the majority of his cattle to be healthy and one cow in his herd contract TB and be the source of TB to the whole herd of twenty or twenty-five cattle or more who are reactors, but with the compensation now paid he would be ruined. So I think, if it is possible, this sum should be bolstered up and in the case of severe reactors I think it is not by any means severe. Now in the Avalon Peninsula, down here in the vicinity of St. John's, I understand the dairy farmers have not given consent and do not have to have their cattle tested as they considered it too big a risk under the compensation being paid. I understand on the Mainland they have the abattoirs, the cattle affected, if the TB is localized, are sent to the slaughter house as the meat is good after the affected part is taken out, and the proceeds from that are sold to bolster up the $100 in case of pure breed, and $40 in the case of unregistered cattle. However, here in Newfoundland both for localized TB and for generalized TB an animal is condemned and I understand the Federal Government for a retainer will pay more than the $100 or the $40 as the case may be. However, this point has not been cleared up and I have no information on it whatsoever. Now, maybe you will say here that the farmers in St. John's were not humane enough to consent to have their cows tested as their milk is used for human consumption, but it is a little different in the case of the man who has one cow and is very anxious to have his cow tested so that his children are running no risk of disease.

However in the St. John's area the dairy men sell the milk and in nearly every instance it is pasteurized and in becoming pasteurized the TB germ is killed, that is how the dairy farmer in the St. John's area figures it. But the position is this, if this milk is not thoroughly pasteurized, instead of preventing TB it actually spreads TB amongst the children of this country, and there is always the possibility some of this milk will not be properly pasteurized and get around undetected, and bovine TB could result. Bovine TB affects only the very young and although bovine TB and human TB are both found in human bodies the bovine type of TB attacks the glands and joints, not so much the lungs. So in this case we must do something about the health of our people. It is no good here in Newfoundland to put our efforts behind the control of TB, and then on the other hand encourage it for the sake of not having a few dollars with which to pay compensation to the farmer.

Now the Federal Government, as I understand, here in St. John's has an area which can go free of the test, and I maintain the test is no good here in Newfoundland unless it becomes province-wide. Now for instance, as I understand, on the West Coast recently some four hundred cattle were tested and out of this four hundred they did not find one single reactor which I think is a wonderful advertisement for livestock and agriculture in Newfoundland. I think myself that this is chiefly due to isolation of our stock as there is not such a possibility of animals contacting disease where they are isolated as it is on Prince Edward Island or in Nova Scotia where cattle population is much greater. However, I would certainly like to see some consideration given to increasing this vote, as I say, it is useless having the TB test on the West Coast and part of Avalon included and part exempted. Now every cattle owner, I think, in and about St. John's would be quite willing to have his cows tested if compensated for any loss. Now the reason why I say it is no use to have part of Avalon exempted, while cattle are tested for bovine TB in another area, because it would be very easy for cattle to be taken over from one district to another, though according to the Act a penalty is attached to it and they are not supposed to do so. What is to prevent me this evening going to Holyrood and taking a calf and taking it in the back of my truck and going home, who is going to know? That is what happens, it is different with cattle brought in from the Mainland as since Confederation cattle coming in have to be tested for bangs disease and TB; however, they are for immediate slaughter permitted to come in without these tests and in many instances this was abused, they were taken into the districts and the heifers were not used for immediate slaughter but held and used for breeding purposes, which was absolutely contrary to every effort being made at that time. Now I would ask the honourable Minister and the Government to carefully consider increasing this vote.

HON. J. R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): I wonder, Mr. Chairman, if the honourable gentleman who has such knowledge of this whole subject, greater probably than that of any other member of the House, would care to go into some little detail on the amount by which he thinks this vote might be increased, it is now, I think, $5,000—and secondly the exact scale by which it would be increased, what rates of pay would he suggest, etc. If he could give us some idea—The Federal Government pay $100 for pure bred cattle and $40 for unregistered to which the Provincial Government adds $50 and $20 which makes a total of $150 for pure bred and $60 for grading. Now with this thought in mind, what would the honourable gentleman suggest as the rate of increase on the part of the Provincial Government?

MR. MAKINSON: Mr. Chairman, today it is impossible to get a cow, and not a good one at that, for $250 or $300. That is the replacement value. However, I am not asking the Government to consider that, as I think anybody would surely be very pleased to have his cattle herd cleared up and I imagine if his loss consisted of one cow, he should be quite willing to stand the loss. But whereas even the poorer fisherman-farmer may be willing to stand the loss of that one cow and lose the value rather than have his family subject to TB, and be willing to forego the cost of that animal; when it comes to the man with from ten to twenty, it is a little different. I would suggest that any one farmer should not be called upon to lose more than one cow. This test is for the welfare of the country therefore he should not be expected to take the loss of more than one cow and the replacement then should be in the neighbourhood of $300.

MR. SMALLWOOD: By what amount payable?

MR. MAKINSON: It would have to be taken into consideration whether or not it is a pure bred animal, the very cheapest pure bred is $500 whereas you can get grades from $250 to $350.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Now before my honourable friend resumes his seat. The Government of Newfoundland presently paying $50 on a pure bred and $20 on a grade. That is in addition to what the Federal Government pays. Now what really does my honourable friend suggest that the Provincial Government should pay on first; a pure bred and second; a grade. We now pay $50 and $20. What should we pay to be reasonable, not to compensate fully but to be reasonable?

MR. MAKINSON: I say $400 and $200. And then, mind you, the farmer would still have quite a loss as cattle cannot be replaced at this particular time and he is going to go in the hole quite a lot due to the business he is carrying on. If he wants to buy a pure bred animal on the Mainland today, not taking transportation into consideration nor insurance, he has to pay $500 and for a grade he will pay $300 or $350, so that I would say they should be compensated $400 and $200.

MR. SMALLWOOD: How much of that should be Provincial?

MR. MAKINSON: I think the matter should be gone into more fully with the Federal Government, as in some cases, I understand, they compensate people more than that $150. The Federal Government may double that. However, in the event we go into the matter and find out they will not double it, then, and then only, would I ask the Provincial Government to assume that responsibility in order that cattle be tested throughout Newfoundland and not have a reserved operation in St. John's area. I know I would like the Government to give it every consideration.

MR. HIGGINS: May I ask the honourable member, if a cow has localized TB, and as I understand the glands become affected with TB generally, what happens to the meat, is it thrown away in this country?

MR. MAKINSON: That is a very good point. On the Mainland, as I said, this goes to arbitrators and meat that is fit for human consumption is used and the money is given back to the farmer. However, here in Newfoundland there is no packing house and if a cow is condemned for having TB with only one little small part of the gland affected, the animal is condemned and will not be used here as meat, as there are no packing houses and butchers will not handle it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I can add a little to this. Once again, I happen to have knowledge of this. When I was raising pigs in Gander I endeavoured to sell to the U.S. Forces and also the Canadian Forces at Gander. I had 800 pigs there and slaughtered and dressed 40 an hour. And it was very desirable that I should be able to sell to the forces. I had no difficulty whatsoever with the RAF but the largest body of men there was the Canadian and Americans, not the RAF. They would not buy except upon government certificate of eatibility and that was impossible to get in Newfoundland because the Government of Newfoundland never did have any system of inspection of slaughtered pork or beef. But I raised the matter with the Commanding Officer of the RAF, Group Captain Anderson, who with me went to the Commanding Officer of the Royal Canadian Air Force and we had a discussion with the result that Wing Commander Siffon, the Head of the Banting Hospital, Medical Officer in Charge of the Hospital, was called in and undertook to introduce the system of inspection in the slaughter house, and Mr. Godson who operated Godson's Hotel, or Road-house, now, and was then security officer of the RAF was seconded by the Commanding Officer of the RAF to collaborate with the Head Doctor of the Hospital. So both appeared at my piggery one morning when I was about to slaughter fifty or sixty pigs, both in new coveralls, the Wing Commander in charge of a large hospital, and the security officer of the RAF. The pigs were slaughtered and they did what is done in every packing house across Canada, but done by the Federal Government. They inspected the carcasses. Now, in fact, they did not actually inspect the carcasses but the organs were removed from the hogs, the lungs and certain glands as big as the top of your finger. This Dr. Siffon with his knowledge of anatomy and physiology, very carefully with rubber gloves, took these glands and split them with a knife and with one look he knew whether they were diseased or not. If they were diseased, certain parts of the body were healthy. I think there are two glands in a pig's body which when examined and found to be healthy are final proof that the carcass is quite healthy. I followed them, and Godson was supposed to learn from Wing Commander Siffon, because I took quite an interest and saw it done a number of times and I learned from Siffon at the same time; though I could not go ahead and inspect my own pigs, yet I learned to do it. Now, he condemned an occasional carcass, not wholly, but one part, and except for that one part the rest was perfectly healthy, and that part would be put in the furnace, in a large 25 ton steam boiler and destroyed. I saw the same thing in Canada Packers, in a large plant in Toronto, and in Swifts canning plant in Toronto and again in Wellington Packers at Guelph. It is the same system exactly as the Federal Inspection of pigs; and a very small portion is condemned and the remainder of the carcass is perfectly healthy. But, as my honourable friend says, here in Newfoundland I have known the butchers to lose many carcasses. I know of one case in the town of Bonavista, a butcher there named Harry Pearlstein carried on the business as part of his regular business, bought local cattle, slaughtered them and carried on a meat business. He is himself, Jewish, and like most Jewish people had a positive horror of diseased meat. With Jewish people healthy meat is most important, and they have their own butchers and to be a butcher is almost equal to being a rabbi involving a special training and if you go into a butcher shop the difference in the smell is positively startling, the smell is so much more wholesome. So with this inherent disgust and horror of diseased meat, now he as a businessman bought cattle and slaughtered it and sold it to the public. Again and again condemned cattle after having been paid for, were a dead loss to him. He not only lost what he paid out for that cattle but also the considerable sum of money he had to pay to buy gas, and wages to a couple of men to drench the carcass with gas and burn it. That was a dead loss to him but he did it because of his instinctive horror of diseased meat. He did not know, however, that he could have condemned part of the carcass and saved the rest. He did not know enough scientifically and medically and as my honourable friend says, many a carcass is condemned in whole when they could be condemned only in part. I have seen that done in the finest packing house in Canada, Canada Packers in Toronto. They employ about twenty men, trained graduates, they examine the individual carcasses coming in and out of a shipment of carcasses, they may condemn two or three in whole or in part. That is the sort of thing we lack in Newfoundland. I am going to suggest, Mr. Chairman, that the honourable Minister of Natural Resources will leave the details of what payment should be made to be worked out departmentally.

MR. HIGGINS: I suggest the honourable Premier give up the trade of printer and become a mythologist.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Now what proportion would be paid? We are going to take a heavy burden there but might not that be just left to the Department if the Committee just votes the total amount?

DR. POTTLE: I think the point is quite well taken. The amount is voted and the details of the compensation can be very well worked out between the Federal and Provincial Departments.

HON. P. S. FORSEY (Minister of Supply): I understand the Federal vote on cattle is to be increased.

DR. POTTLE: We can enquire further into that. It is a token vote and we can't possibly know what the outcome will be. It is only a token vote and if made $5,000 we may still have to increase it later.

I wish to make a comment on two other points No. 12 and No. 13.

HON. E. S. SPENCER (Minister of Public Works): Might I interrupt a moment before leaving that point. I do not wish to enter into it with any knowledge of cattle and dairy farming but as the honourable member has already so ably said, it can not be done only in some sections of the Province, so I suggest, Mr. Chairman, the indications are, from the remarks made, that a thorough survey should be made and probably the honourable Acting Minister would be prepared to say that the Department would take that in hand and try to find out where we stand.

DR. POTTLE: I understand that this is really principally a Federal matter, that the Federal law provides that any area becomes an excluded or free area for cattle testing if two-thirds of the residents of the cattle owners in that area decide in favour of the tests.

MR. SPENCER: I think that we on Avalon are entirely prone to contact bovine TB because the cattle on Avalon may carry it and the people on Avalon do not allow the test because they feel they will not be compensated and also because the milk is pasteurized. I contend that if the Federal Government or this House or any other House makes exceptions, they should make a job of it and otherwise it is not worth a thing to me.

MR. MAKINSON: As I understand it, the survey has been made by the Federal Government to get the permission of the farmers throughout Newfoundland and it is going into effect on the West Coast, and the Humbermouth Area is presently being tested and after they are through with the West Coast they will come to Avalon and outside of the St. John's area the cattle are to be tested. However the St. John's area, where they did not have a two-thirds majority, the cattle will not be tested and I maintain in order to make milk safe and free from TB throughout the Island, if compensation was such that the farmers in the St. John's area would not be liable to lose so much that it would cripple them, they would be quite willing to have the test, as a matter of fact, they would welcome it. But as it stands at the present time the grant given is so small they will not take that chance, consequently, here in the St. John's area all the children and adults as well may be exposed to bovine TB.

MR. SPENCER: What about the meat coming from the adjoining areas?

MR. MAKINSON: The same thing applies there, our agriculture with regard to packing houses facilities for local beef and licensing of handlers is far behind and many things along those lines could be improved. But with regard to this matter of animal health it is not only important from the standpoint of farmers and cattle but it is most necessary to ensure a healthy people.

DR. POTTLE: Without cutting short the discussion, I think the House is quite fairly informed of the issue involved and the honourable member for Port de Grave might prepare a statement as to what he thinks desirable and let the Government have the benefit of his views. Is that agreeable? I think we have gone pretty fully into it and we have here only a token vote. The details are a matter of importance to be worked out.

Under 08 the vote has been increased for land fertility schemes, $30,000, which represents an expenditure of ten dollars a ton for a thousand tons of lime. The farmers concerned expect to spread two tons of lime per acre and we reimburse them $1.50 per ton and they get $1.25 from the Federal. Under 13, Commercial Farmers' Loans, which is a technical service, I believe I should perhaps better read the notes of the Director of Land Development, and then I will not have to repeat myself.

Details of Assistance to Commercial Farmers

The proposed plan is to assist a total of 100 commercial farmers over a period of four years beginning in 1951 with 25 units a year.

The plan provides for the development of farms of at least 50 acres of arable land with not less than 40 acres in improved hay and pasture. It is felt that the average acreage to be cleared on each farm will reach 30 acres—total 3,000 acres.

For the establishment of grass on the 30 acres of newly cleared land, it is felt that the farmer will need approximately $3,000 capital. For this purpose a loan fund must be established.

Following the development of 30 acres of new land, the farmer will then be in position to take advantage of the Canadian Farm Loan Policy for further capital and development. Cost of Assistance to one Commercial Farmer:

Land Clearing	Cost	Farmer's Contrib.
30 acres at $60 per acre.....	1,800.00	$360.00
Lime—60 tons, $8. per ton.....	480.00	90.00
Loan .....	3,000.00	recoverable
Total .....	$5,280.00	$450.00

Now under 04, Development of blueberries: Over a period of recent years the Mutual Food Exporters, a combination of firms in the blueberry industry, sought to take a lease on private land by arrangement with the Government. Eventually it was cut out. The Government has now taken over the plan and we are going to burn and fertilize the blueberry areas by systematic plans. It is the thought that the Mutual Food Exporters will still be quite free if they wish to operate out there but we will not lease land. By the Fall of 1951 we anticipate about $15,000 revenue and will spend $5,000 on fertilizing.

MR. JANES: There are a few things here I would like to say. I don't want to amend anything here but there is something I would like to say with regard to agriculture and I would like to say in passing, I am not going to make an amendment or anything of that sort.

MR. CHAIRMAN: We are considering 805—Agriculture:

MR. JANES: I would like to say a few words in regard to agriculture. I say them because I am interested, and I say them because I think the biggest problem of Newfoundland and of the world is to provide people with enough food to prevent starvation, rather than with sufficient food to eat. Of all the giddy things in Newfoundland, all the aimless things in Newfoundland, I think agriculture is the most aimless. The present administration is not to blame for that. I don't know when in the history of Newfoundland—certainly not within the past ten years—there has been an agricultural policy. I travel around this country a lot, I know most of it with the exception of the South West Coast. I have travelled and lived in homes of the people who live on an acre or two of land with a cow or two, people trying to earn a living solely from land and I sometimes ask myself what is it all heading up to and where are we going? Agriculture in Newfoundland, Sir, presents two faces, one is turned towards the Avalon Peninsula and the other turns right about and faces the Codroy Valley, but if it gives Bonavista Bay a nod on the way and says hello to Eastport, and mind you, Eastport is a community as well as the Avalon Peninsula and as well as the Codroy Valley. A terrific amount of money—I don't know just how much, I don't think anybody in this House knows, I question whether any civil servant in the Department of Natural Resources knows—has been spent for agriculture in the Avalon Peninsula and the Codroy Valley and a few other centers, and a few settlements founded by the Commission of Government, I doubt whether anybody knows the amount of money actually spent to produce these communities.

On the Avalon Peninsula there is a nice market in St. John's, the best market that P.E.I. ever had and on the west coast there is Corner Brook and between that nothing. We forget that there is good land, agricultural land, the natural agricultural land of this province, good natural agricultural land in territory never touched. Avalon Peninsula, as I see it, is tons of rocks and very little else. The natural bay is Bonavista Bay and the land on Fogo; Musgrave Harbour produced hundreds of head of cattle before the Commission of Government we sever thought about, Gander Bay, Victoria Cove, where the Commission of Government thought at one time there should be a land settlement; they did not put it there because it was too much trouble to build roads. Come up off the Avalon Peninsula, come up to St. Barbe, the very natural home of cattle, and Cow Head and Trout River in Port Saunders to Bonne Bay which has never been touched. We go on subsidizing the Codroy Valley and the Avalon Peninsula. Do you know why it has not been touched? Because the good agricultural lands are a day or two away by roads. Cattle in Cow Head and Musgravetown and Carmanville where they never see an agricultural fieldman, are on the decrease. They are on the decrease for the simple reason that the Government and the Commission of Government and all the Governments before never gave them any assistance.

Now, Sir, my reason for making these few remarks is to bring it to the attention of this House. I said at the beginning, as far as I am concerned, there is no agricultural policy nor has there been one over the past ten years, but giddy, aimless action accomplishing nothing; it is not accomplishing what it should be accomplishing, namely an attempt to provide the people of this Province with food. We have the whole of Notre Dame Bay down through Fogo District, and apart from the few barrels of potatoes and carrots and turnips, and what comes from the few land settlements, apart from that the rest is imported and yet down there in that stretch from Angle Brook to Musgravetown to Gander Bay we have some of the finest agricultural land in any province. The only bit that has been cleared has been cleared by hand and not by tractors. The Commission of Government spent a million dollars at Cormac and the most they accomplished was to cut down the birch there and clear out the trees and try to provide a commercial area for which the country is not ready. Such an attempt at rural organization, as could have been foreseen, was crazy. In Cow Head there is beautiful land, anybody who has ever been out there realizes that, for miles from Bonne Bay to Port Saunders there is a strip something like five miles wide right up that coast, good grazing land and the people of Cow Head and Trout River became so fed up they don't even think of raising cattle any more, as there is no way of getting them out.

The people of my own district in Musgrave Harbour won't think of raising cattle as there is no way of getting them out. Yet the continuous subsidizing of agriculture on the Avalon Peninsula and the Codroy Valley goes on and on and is going on today. There is $50,000 in the estimates for Commercial Farmers, loans this year and this grant, as I understand it, is solely for the purpose of getting more land into production. I would like to bring to the attention of the administration and ask if this land is to come into production on the very rocky Avalon Peninsula or into production on the Codroy Valley where we have already spent millions in trying to provide a rural economy or is it going to go into all areas. I notice we have, apart from Avalon and Codroy Valley, few farmers who are commercial farmers, not because we haven't any people down on the Straight Shore or Fogo or St. Barbe, Cow Head and Trout River who would not become commercial farmers, so I suggest we go down to either one of these districts or the District of Twillingate and encourage farming but not here on Avalon. I don't know, Sir, where the land on the Avalon Peninsula is, the agricultural land, I don't see the justification for continued expenditure of funds to subsidize farms on Avalon and on the West Coast while there is good agricultural land in this Province being ignored and denied the right of cultivation for centuries now, while the people of Newfoundland continue to subsidize pretty heavily the agriculture of Avalon and the West Coast.

Carried.

DR. POTTLE: 806—Land Development: Details of salaries on page 74. There has been no increase. Land Clearing is made up as follows: It provides for the clearing of twelve hundred acres of land and maintenance and storage of equipment. Construction of Post-War Land Development Areas $87,000. This is for the remainder of credits for veterans and travelling and supervision. Lourdes Land Settlement is a revote of $8,000 for compensation under the Land Development Act, $5,000.

MR. HIGGINS: When was that done?

DR. POTTLE: About twelve or thirteen years ago.

MR. HIGGINS: Why has it not been paid yet?

DR. POTTLE: Some of the land was held by absentee owners and it was a question of expropriation. This should clear up the whole matter.

MR. HIGGINS: Some has been paid?

DR. POTTLE: No, it is a revote. There are six or ten holdings involved.

Carried.

On 808 there is one addition in salaries, page 74:

MR. HIGGINS: Who is Director of Crown Lands now?

DR. POTTLE: Mr. Burridge.

MR. HIGGINS: A good man alright.

DR. POTTLE: There has been no expenditure under 02. Under 03 Instruments, Equipment and Supplies this is a maintenance vote. There is only one new vote in this group under 09—Aerial Photographs, purchase of: It is the intention of the Department to have a complete library of aerial photographs or maps for the Department and with possibly duplicates to service other departments, and this $5,000 is provided for this purpose.

Carried.

809 Mines: The staff has been maintained at its last year's level and there has been no increase. There is an amendment under 03-01. There is a supplementary vote of $25,000 required there to survey an area of six thousand square miles in the interior of the Province. I make this proposal in view of the Government's policy in regard to a survey of the area. Also that 03-04 be restored to $70,000 in view of the necessity of doing increased drilling in the gypsum and limestone area, in regard to the proposed new industry in the Corner Brook Area.

MR. FAHEY: I would like to have one explanation. On 809-04, that was $70,000 in the Estimates last year and $50,000 in this year's Estimates and now there is an amendment to put it at $70,000 again.

DR. POTTLE: It was not at the time anticipated that we would have to do increased diamond drilling in the limestone area in order to make the prospect of the sale of the cement plant there more sure. We have to do further drilling in order to insure that. At the time the Department reduced the $70,000 down to $50,000 this was not realized and now we want to have it restored to that amount again.

MR. FAHEY: You reduced it from $70,000 last year to $50,000.

DR. POTTLE: I see your point but we only spent $45,000, it is largely a revote.

MR. FOGWILL: On page 74-809: Geologist—I understand that is Mr. Howse. On page 98-1502—The Secretary of Research and Conservation under the Department of Economic Development there is a gentleman, C. Howse. Is it the same gentleman?

DR. POTTLE: Yes, his total salary, that was provided for last year. That is not new for these Estimates.

MR. SPENCER: I would like to bring a matter up again. I have done it before perhaps not in the House of Assembly but certainly in connection with this vote 809: 03—Salt Survey: I would like to ask the honourable Acting Minister, I appreciate how difficult it is for him to bear with me in this case, but I have to get the information from somebody. For the past six or eight years or more there has been the same exact amount that this House has been called upon to pass a vote on which is indicated here under 809-03, Salt Survey. In my knowledge of the Island and the work undertaken by the Department of Natural Resources and the Geological Section of the Department of Natural Resources, I have yet to find where one dollar or fifty cents or ten cents or even one cent has been spent in actual surveying for salt. To me it is a camouflage. I regret to have to say this as I feel it is unfair to the honourable Minister in this case. This point to my mind should have been thrashed out before but I would be glad if the honourable Minister could give me some information as to just what is intended under 809-03. If we need that money for inspection or investigation of minerals or something else let us be straight about it and put it where it belongs. I don't mean there is anything crooked, but I mean let us be honest and put it where it belongs. There is no such thing as a salt survey, but I would be glad if I could be shown the difference of that.

HON. C. H. BALLAM (Minister of Labour): I think that question came up last year and we had an explanation, I think, from the Minister that it is just a revote and no money had been spent on it.

DR. POTTLE: We only spent $4,557 last year on a drilling survey conducted on the West Coast in St. Fintans Area and results, while not promising, nevertheless were encouraging enough to prompt further exploration. You know what prospecting is like, after all we are just as much criticized for withdrawing after eight years of survey. At least as long as there is a possibility that there is a vein there and the drilling indicates there is enough to justify further drilling, we should continue the work.

MR. FOGWILL: The criticism came from your own side of the House.

MR. SPENCER: I appreciate the explanation given by the honourable Acting Minister and I am now informed that there is actual drilling being done, and that $4,500 has been spent for that. That is to my mind the first work done and I think I was not speaking in the tone the honourable member for St. John's East may think. Since the question came from this side of the House he could probably have told me that, had I done my duty in Cabinet, I would not have to ask and I could say he would be right. But I questioned this vote and questioned it for two years, I contended it was camouflage but the honourable Minister has shown me now and since it was spent there must be some reason for it but it is the first actual explanation I have had.

MR. HIGGINS: Is there any salt here in this country?

MR. CURTIS: I hope there is $4,000 worth.

MR. HIGGINS: Is salt not naturally in water?

MR. SPENCER: There is a difference in sea salt and mineral salts.

MR. HIGGINS: I know cows go to the river and lick the rocks to get the salt. Where does that salt come from?

MR. CURTIS: That is from the soil. There must be some indications of salt or we would not have the survey.

DR. POTTLE: Under 05 the word should be "magnetic."

Carried.

810: Carried. Total carried.

MR. CURTIS: We might go on now to the Department of Supply.

MR. FORSEY: 1301—no change—carried.

1302—There is an increase there under 04 for the Rent Control Board to do some work in Bonavista and Corner Brook, mainly in Corner Brook.

Carried.

1303—Price Control: There is a considerable reduction due to the fact that some of the office staff got positions with the Federal Government and others with Social Security Assessment Division, and there has been no replacements because we have made some appointments to the Department of Local Government, and we propose to use those officers when in town to do some work on price control.

MR. FOGWILL: This is the section dealing with the cost of living index?

MR. FORSEY: Yes.

MR. FOGWILL: Because now, presumably, you are not going to carry on that work.

MR. FORSEY: That is done by a simple form; there is not very much to that actually, and price control work is mostly going around town and checking on prices, and seeing books, and interviewing importers and so forth.

MR. FOGWILL: I wonder if the Department is going to continue the work, after the words of the Premier last night, that is was worthless. Is there an indication the Department might do it for its own use? After all, if the index is continued it should be done in a proper way if there is one.

MR. FORSEY: I don't agree with the Premier.

MR. FOGWILL: I am glad to hear it.

Carried.

MR. FORSEY: 1304: Purchasing: There is no increase there, Mr. Chairman.

Carried.

Under 1302 moved and seconded, salary of Deputy Minister be amended.

1305—There is an increase in Printing, Stationary and Office Supplies due to requirements of the Social Security Assessment Division, and in office equipment due to the same division requiring an extra machine, and the Social Security Division and the Board of Liquor Control need a machine with another compartment, and that amount covers the cost for the items.

Carried.

1306—There is an increase in salaries, Mr. Chairman, due to the fact that we have had to increase the personnel of that division. As I said before, the personnel are going to do some of the work under price control, and there is an annual grant to town councils which has been increased due to two factors, one: the number of town councils have been roughly doubled, I think it was eighteen last year. We made provision this year for thirty and we will have forty by the end of the year and also the initial dollar for dollar grant has been increased to new councils to a dollar and a half for every dollar raised locally during the first three years. The Special Assistance Grants have been decreased for old town councils. We have discontinued giving special assistance and we have given authority to issue bonds for about eight or ten towns to give them a revenue producing project; and having done that we propose to discontinue any further assistance along the line of special grants so that this amount will gradually go down year by year, until it disappears altogether.

MR. FOGWILL: Under 1306-01, who is the person who holds that position at the present time?

MR. FORSEY: Mr. Brennan has always been the engineer, but prior to this year he has been paid out of the Department of Public Works.

MR. FOGWILL: What are his duties in setting them up?

MR. FORSEY: Making surveys of water and sewerage systems and when they are installed check them for the Town Council and the Government.

Carried.

1307,—No revote. Carried.

MR. CURTIS: I think, Mr. Chairman we have made good progress this afternoon, we have only the Department of Health now and Labour. We could now take the Department of Labour, page 62.

MR. BALLAM: 1601—There is no change there, Mr. Chairman.

Carried.

1602: There is no change there except the Deputy Minister's salary, which involves no addition.

MR. FOGWILL: Who is the present holder of the position of Labour Relations Officer?

MR. BALLAM: Mr. George Dyer. He has been there quite a number of years.

Carried.

1603: You will notice a big vote for the Workmen's Compensation Board. This vote is there to get them started. They have already started and I don't think we will actually use this money because the assessments are coming in so rapidly from the firms that it may not be used at all, but it is there just in case it is needed until they get going and it will be returned if not used.

MR. FOGWILL: What is the assessment set by the Compensation Board?

MR. BALLAM: The percentages of assessment are in different classifications, and more hazardous the higher the assessment.

MR. FOGWILL: How does it run, what is the minimum?

MR. BALLAM: In the woods I think it is three or three and a half percent, I just forget the amount but of course for office workers and that type of work it is very low, probably one-half to two. I could get the information if you require it.

Carried.

1604: Under this section you will notice there is one chief boiler inspector that is required under the Act, but actually up to the present we have not been able to get one but we anticipate having one, also a couple of engineers; we anticipate getting them as soon as we can.

Carried.

Total—Carried.

The Committee rose, reported progress, and asked leave to sit again on tomorrow.

Orders of the Day

Third reading of a Bill "An Act to Amend the St. John's Housing Corporation Act, 1944."

MR. CURTIS: With the leave of the honourable Minister of Provincial Affairs, I move the third reading of this Bill and I wish to make a nominal amendment to clause 22. "Where any development was made by corporations in the Housing Area before or after the enactment of this Act comes into force." It is just a change in the wording.

MR. HIGGINS: The present section reads before and after, but you are just making it read a little better. Does that clarify the situation as to who is liable?

MR. CURTIS: We have not altered the principle of the Bill, on third reading we could not make an amendment except a verbal one.

MR. SPEAKER: Might the Clerk read the clause? The motion is to remove the word "was" and set in "is" and the word "before" and add the words "comes into force."

HON. JAMES J. SPRATT (Minister of Provincial Affairs): Pardon me, Mr. Speaker, as I was responsible for the bringing in of this Bill, and this suggestion was made by the honourable the Attorney General; I would like to have him explain it as I am somewhat in ignorance of it; is the power vested in the Housing Corporation retroactive in regard to property owners who have had property and sold it? Between the property owner who sold it and the property owner who had the improvements effected and still owns it, there is a difference and I may be called upon as the one who is responsible for it, and I may be made to appear ridiculous in the eyes of persons who ask for information and I would not be able to give it; I would like to have it explained.

MR. SPEAKER: As I see it, it is purely a matter of grammar because the Act says before or after.

MR. SPRATT: It has a wonderful significance, I understand that part of it, but the improvements may be made when I own the property and I sell it to someone else. The question was asked by the honourable Leader of the Opposition, if the person who sold it, would be responsible for the tax that would be placed on it by the Housing Corporation or the person to whom he sold the land, or would it be for both? That is something which I might say I do not like.

MR. SPEAKER: Substitution of "is" for "was" has no effect whatsoever on the Act. The motion is to delete the word "was" and substitute for it the word "is." The motion is now that the word do stand part of the question.

MR. FORSEY: What is the motion, a verbal amendment to the St. John's Housing Corporation Act to remove "was" and insert "is"?

MR. SPEAKER: The members who wish it deleted will vote against the motion.

Motion is lost.

MR. SPEAKER: Moved and seconded the word "is" be there inserted.

Carried.

Insert the word "either" between the words "in the Housing Area" and the words "before or after."

Carried.

The motion is to remove the words "the enactment of this Act" and substitute therefore the words "coming into force."

MR. SPRATT: Before putting the question, Mr. Speaker, I would really like to say I do not like the manner in which this is being done. I do not understand it and I might say my brain is average. I do not care, I do not want to be associated with something I do not understand.

MR. CURTIS: I do not know if I am allowed to speak again as I have already spoken on third reading. I do not want to speak again and close the debate. The position is, as I would like my honourable colleague to understand, we are not altering in any way the section that we agreed upon in committee. All we are doing is just changing the grammar, not altering the substance in any way, shape or form, simply taking the draft of one member and substituting the wording of another member, merely a grammatical change.

MR. SPRATT: One is past tense and the other is present tense which makes a difference in interpretation.

MR. CURTIS: No. I can assure my honourable friend the effect of this word will not change the sense. I do not care whether the amendment is made or not, it is purely to make the Act read grammatically.

MR. SPEAKER: Motion is the word "enactment of" do stand part of the question. Noes have it.

Motion is the word: "Comes into force" be substituted. Ayes have it.

Moved and seconded this Bill is now read a third time.

Bill read a third time and passed.

Second reading of Bill "An Act to Provide for the Establishment of Family Courts."

DR. POTTLE: I have much pleasure in moving the second reading of this Bill, "An Act to Provide for the Establishment of Family Courts." I may say summarily that legislation of the Canadian Dominion on this matter is forty years old and in the Report of the Royal Commission of 1938, who investigated the system in Canada, recognition and praise for the important work of family courts formed an important part of that historic document.

Now, the point of view of family courts is that in the first place it is an extension of the work of the juvenile court and in this particular instance it takes the place of the juvenile court. It seems to me to be a very laudable work we are trying to do in this Province in trying to stabilize the law with regard to the protection of children and families who need special care under the legislation. The juvenile court was set up and it is proposed now that the work of the juvenile court should come under the family court in its entirety, and all the work of the magistrate's courts relating to domestic matters will come under the preview of this court. Our point of view is that, as far as the protection of children is concerned, the court has to deal with families as a unit because families are a unit within our culture. In other words, it is our point of view that a great many cases come under the previews of the courts which are really not matters for the courts as courts at all, and this particular court will have all the power of the magistrates' court and will be concerned also with guidance and with consultations with the Department of Health, and will be as much concerned with getting at the heart of the trouble as with the disposition of the case. As a matter of fact its fundamental concern will be trying to get at the heart of the difficulties concerned. In that sense it is a social service, but at the same time it will benefit by all the powers of the magistrate's court so that it may lean on that authority.

The more precise jurisdiction of the court is indicated along the following lines: It has to do with children and family welfare, has to do with the care and protection and disposition of cases of neglected dependent and delinquent children, the adoption of children and all matters relating to domestic relations that would ordinarily come under the formal court, and general offenses of adults against children. It has all the functions of the juvenile court and also extends its jurisdiction to matters relating to the child and the family which ordinarily comes under the juvenile court but will now come under the family court. The court will be set up in this way: It will primarily be the concern of the Attorney General who is the chief officer of the Court, and a magistrate will be appointed solely for the purpose and will be assigned to the Attorney General's Department to whom, as chief officer of the court, he will be responsible to under the Department of Public Welfare, as I indicated a day or two ago.

I am happy to introduce legislation of this kind and to explain what we are striving to do in the field of social welfare for the past few years. I have no illusions that it will be a cure-all, but consider it as another factor in the total job. It is the nature of a preventative in the pattern of social service. I am happy to collaborate with my friend the Attorney General, and we have discussed it for some little time and are now trying to lessen the difference with the Mainland and in the hope of procuring a staff to do justice to the cause. I am happy to introduce this Bill for second reading.

Read a second time, ordered to Committee of the Whole on tomorrow.

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Speaker, I move the remaining orders of the day be deferred and that the House at its rising adjourn until tomorrow Monday at 3:00 of the clock.

House adjourned accordingly.

Orders of the Day

Committee of the Whole on Supply,
Department of Public Health:

HON. JAMES R. CHALKER (Minister of Health): Mr. Speaker, in presenting the estimates of the Department of Health, I would like to say a few words on last year's activities. You will have noticed that the estimates for this year asks for an increase of approximately one million seven hundred thousand. The major item comes under General Health Services, board and travelling of patients and attendants and the General Hospital, provincial nurses and salaries. We have not increased the nurses' salaries but, from the lowest point to the highest, we have re-arranged the scale of payments so that nurses can be promoted a bit quicker and are therefore more interested in staying in the profession. As you know, in these past years we have had a lot of problems keeping nurses, and therefore this new scale put in effect for the nurses and approved by them makes their position more attractive. I would like to advise the House that the Government has seen fit to pension nurses who after ten years become eligible for pensions and the age for pensioning nurses is sixty, and on an average there are two or three pensioners a year.

We have new cottage hospitals, one at Fogo and one at Springdale and one in Channel, which will account for practically one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, in additional estimates, and one, a general nursing station at White Bay where we have arrangements with the International Grenfell Association to look after a nursing station at Englee and also a boat and doctors to serve White Bay area this summer, costing the Government approximately $16,500. Grant to Notre Dame Bay Hospital, $75,000, to replace the boat the Bonnie Nell which the House knows has done wonderful work in Notre Dame Bay. Western Memorial Hospital, we have advanced them $150,000, to more or less put them on their feet to run the hospital out there. There is also a capital expenditure of $100,000 to complete the nurses' home. Expansion and increasing our existing health services and health grants received from the Federal Authorities, approximately $100,000. That amounts to practically $600,000 in increments and salaries. The Premier in his Budget Speech mentioned that Newfoundland is far behind the Maritimes with regard to hospitals and health and facilities and we are presently making up the difference and should in the not-too-distant future hope to become equal with the Maritime Provinces.

Since this Government came into power we have made many advances in health, especially in the General Hospital. When we took over, the General Hospital had an antiquated accounting system with one or two people looking after four hundred patients. During the fiscal year we have admitted 5,244 patients due to better organization and an additional thirty-five to forty being added to the staff.

The clinic, formerly operated at the present headquarters for Health has been removed to the General and now, imagine, that clinic just opened this year is as modern as anywhere on this side of the Atlantic. To give you some idea of the work: In March there were 3,600 patients treated in this clinic. We are also working on more adequate control of stores and cost so that next year when we bring forward the estimates we will be able to present you with the cost per person per meal of all the institutions. The outstanding fact of the organization at the General Hospital was that revenue increased practically 50% and this year, the year just ended, they had taken in over $150,000, practically double what they did before.

Another fact very interesting to note, is that more than one half the patients admitted to General Hospital were outside the districts of St. John's East and West.

In the sanatorium we have four hundred patients in residence now and this number is steadily increasing as we find additional staff and equipment. To take care of the West Coast we have the West Coast sanatorium which is receiving its finishing touches in the latter part of this month and it is our intention to admit one hundred patients the first of June. The Medical Side of the Department stresses the importance of only admitting a small number at this time due to the fact it is unfair to patients if they are over crowded at the very start.

Hospital for nervous and mental diseases; the two new wings are now rapidly nearing completion and it will be possible to relieve the overcrowding and admit additional patients. The total number of beds available for mental patients at the present time is roughly seven hundred.

Cottage Hospitals and nursing stations; there are additional hospitals to become available at Channel, Springdale and Fogo. We are making an effort to increase the staff in existing cottage hospitals and consequently increase in revenue from this source. It is interesting to note the revenue from all cottage hospitals is up this year anywhere from ten to twenty-five percent.

Expansion of existing health services; this vote covers health grants reimburseable by the Federal Government; the treatment of venereal diseases, cripple children, training courses for doctors, nurses and other personnel, additional staff for the treatment of mental illness, expansion of TB services, continuation of present survey of hospital facilities. Expansion of public health includes doctors, nurses and health services. Air ambulance services last year made two hundred flights practically, 51 to White Bay alone and each flight meant definitely the saving of a person's life. We had some unfortunate experiences due to weather over which we had no control. A woman was taken suddenly ill in Notre Dame Bay, and we tried for several days to get a plane out but due to inclement weather it was impossible and the woman passed away just about an hour previous to the arrival of the plane.

1002—Increase of one shorthand typist, no other change—Carried.

1003—Accounting Office; there is a decline in that section from 17 to 12 due to the same thing as happened to all other departments when the work of the department was taken over by Finance Accounting Service.

Carried.

1004—Registry: Fees payable $10,000 for stamps and fees paid to the Minister for registering the various children born, deaths and so on.

Carried.

1005—Ambulance and Transport Service: That is shared with the Department of Public Welfare and we pay our proportionate cost.

Carried.

1006—Ambulance and Transport Service: That is another item we share with the Department of Public Welfare. You may see our cars often taking nurses to various sections of St. John's. There has been complaints of cars sending people home at lunch hours. That is not so, but there are possibly one or two cases. These cars also meet all the trains and boats picking up Government patients and take them to hospital to which they have to go.

Carried.

1007: Headquarters Medical Staff: That is within the Department.

Carried.

1008: Nursing Services: That is a nursing service throughout the entire Province. We have roughly 72 nurses this year. We hope to get more if we can, but they are very difficult to obtain. We could still stand at least another fifteen.

Carried.

1009: Tuberculosis Control: That is at headquarters here in our Department and you will note, Mr. Chairman, grants from the Government include Grenfell, Notre Dame Bay Memorial and Newfoundland Tuberculosis Association.

MR. FOGWILL: There is a reduction?

MR. CHALKER: Yes, they have been moved down to the clinic and are attached to the General Hospital Staff now, so that Headquarters are there.

Carried.

1010 Health Inspection: This covers the entire Province and there is a change there, Mr. Chairman.

1011: Business Management: There is a slight change there. Due to having more patients at all the institutions we had to put on a grade 2 and a grade 3 clerk. That is a very busy section of the Department of Health.

Carried.

1012: Central Laundry: This is attached to the Mental Hospital and does all the laundry for all institutions in St. John's, and a lot of the cottage hospitals will send their surplus in here to be laundered at these headquarters.

HON. LESLIE R. CURTIS: Attorney General): Do the inmates work at that?

MR. CHALKER: No.

MR. FOGWILL: Do any patients work?

MR. CHALKER: Sometimes but very seldom. We have had a little trouble there and found it better to do without them, but they do work sometimes.

Carried.

1013: Central Pharmacy: We have a staff reduction there and due to better organization, it does not actually come under the General Hospital but under the new system of control beginning to work there now. Distribution of all drugs for all cottage hospitals. There is a reduction due to the General Hospital having its own pharmacy, that being our biggest unit outside the mental hospital. We have opened up another pharmacy there and have taken three men and put them in that, so that we employ all the personnel for all hospitals in the Central Pharmacy in the Orthopaedic building.

Carried.

1014: Central Stores: You will notice a decrease there. The Central Stores were originally started to take care of surplus goods passed over to the Commission of Government by the Canadian Forces at the end of the last war. As these stores have been diminishing continuously we have found it is not necessary to have the stores there at the same rate as before. We have taken them out of a large building and put them in one section of the Orthopaedic Hospital.

Carried.

1015: Unallocated Equipment and Supplies: That is just a vote not charged until the end of the month when it is distributed under its proper heading.

1016: Prosthetic Services: That is artificial limbs. We have a new leather worker down there and we are very glad to have him as last year we ran into difficulties and we persuaded the man to stay.

1017: General Health Services: That is the general service stipends paid to various doctors throughout Newfoundland; there are fifty this year, they take certain areas and get practically $1,300 to $1,400 a year from the Government. It also includes the Lady Anderson and two additional watchmen for relieving in institutions during holiday seasons.

MR. FOGWILL: Those medical men are not on retainer basis?

MR. CHALKER: That is right. Carried.

1018: Venereal Disease Preventive Services: No. change.

Carried.

1019: Public Health Laboratory: The expenses there are about the same. Dr. Josephson is in charge.

1020: Radiologists: The salaries mentioned are the lowest at which we may retain a radiologist. They are servicing the entire Province. Radiologists all come under the General Hospital.

MR. HIGGINS: Is he paid by the hospitals?

MR. CHALKER: No, he is paid now as a civil servant; and we are having a bit of trouble there. We have made investigations on behalf of the Government and find for the radiologists on the Mainland the smallest salary earned in our sister Provinces is in the neighbourhood of $14,000 per year.

MR. JOHN G. HIGGINS (Leader of the Opposition): How much are they paid here?

MR. CHALKER: They are paid by the government approximately $5,500. There are only two in Newfoundland. Dr. Bliss Murphy and Dr. Higgins. As you know radiologists are greatly in demand.

MR. HIGGINS: Are they allowed fees?

MR. CHALKER: No, not under civil service regulations. Under the regulations they are not permitted to collect fees. Dr. Higgins is not a civil servant. He has been given to us by the Federal Health and does not come under civil service regulations. He does the outside work and Dr. Murphy does the General Hospital.

1020: General Hospital: I might explain that increase there is between the minimum and the maximum so that it won't take too long to get a good salary. Details on page 81. We have reorganized the staff down there.

Carried.

1021: Fever Hospital: The same as last year except a little improvement in salaries for nurses and increments. This hospital fortunately is not used very much, usually five or six patients, but must be carried along in case of an emergency or an epidemic breaking out.

Carried.

1022: St. John's Sanatorium: You will note that generally the vote for provisions for all those hospitals is down and we are hoping this year to keep it that way, though rising prices over which we have no control may tend to drive them up, but we have made a definite effort to curtail them last year without dropping the scale of meals served. In other words we cut out waste which ran into a lot of money and in the General we saved $10,000 on the vote and in the Sanatorium we saved $20,000. We are voting now for approximately what we had last year but we are not sure we can do it if prices increase any higher.

1023: This institution is not open yet and that is more of an estimate of what it will cost to run it. We had difficulty getting a staff but we finally have sufficient now to take one hundred patients in on the first of June. The vote for last year was all drop balance.

1024: Mr. Chairman, you will also note there a substantial drop in our provision Bill. We are saving $40,000 more or less by stores control and by more efficient control in the kitchen and better buying by the Department of Supply. There was definitely wastage. We have a hospital secretary in there now who is proving very efficient and it may be quite possible to continue with that vote this year.

Carried.

1025: As you know, Mr. Chairman, we decided to close that hospital this year and to move the patients, mostly war veterans and merchant marine personnel, to the third floor of the General Hospital and turn the Merchant Navy Hospital into a nurses' home for students. There has been a lot of talk about the veterans not being properly taken care of if they went to the General Hospital, but recently I have visited them and they are very happy at the change-over and quite naturally as they have the entire personnel of the whole hospital at their disposal and at the present time there have been no complaints of the change-over.

Carried.

1026: The same as last year. There is a drop in provisions, if you will notice.

Carried.

1027: I may say the revenue is up in both those hospitals. The service is up too, Sir.

MR. FOGWILL: Out of all those provisions you expect to save over one hundred thousand dollars for the whole health vote?

MR. CHALKER: We hope we can unless there is an unforeseen increase.

MR. FOGWILL: Some of the votes are almost cut in two.

MR. CHALKER: I may say, too, that before this control came in our last year's estimates were in their preparation merely estimates, as it was our first year of actual operation, and now we are asking for what we actually spent last year with a slight increase to cover anything unforeseen.

1028:

MR. HIGGINS: Why such a terrific difference between this year and last? That is in 1028—Equipment and Supplies?

MR. CHALKER: That is for the three new cottage hospitals. We don't expect to get them in operation for a full year period. That is also for new cottage hospitals.

1029: International Grenfell Association, $40,000. That is the same as last year. Grace Hospital and Notre Dame Bay Hospital. That is an amount for the Grace Hospital voted by the Legislative last year and they did not employ men to build. I understand they intend to start in a few months' time.

MR. HIGGINS: Under what circumstances do you allocate?

MR. CHALKER: To the International Grenfell Association by direct grant each year to take care of in one case for TB and in the other for looking after Northern TB patients under Government control. We can send patients there and charge it against this vote.

MR. HORWOOD: Under the grant the proposed new sanatorium in St. Anthony does not appear.

MR. CHALKER: That is not so, has not been brought up yet, the nursing stations are on the previous page.

MR. HORWOOD: I am referring to this new hospital now expected to be built.

MR. CHALKER: No, it is not included in the vote.

MR. HORWOOD: I gather, the travelling clinic from Twillingate spent this year from $2,000 to $7,000.

MR. CHALKER: That is right.

MR. HIGGINS: What is the difference between the Corner Brook General and the Western Memorial Hospital?

MR. CHALKER: Actually that is a mistake, it should be the Western Memorial Hospital. The extension is for the nurses' home. The old hospital originally owned by Bowaters has been donated to the Western Memorial and has been converted at a cost of $100,000 into a nurses' residence.

Carried.

1030: Extension of existing health services. I gave a summary of those activities which will show as a credit as all are recoverable from the Federal Authorities.

Carried.

1031: Geriatric Centre: That is for aged mental people who are not so mentally ill as to be kept under guard; we have 140 of them now at the Orthopaedic Wing and separated from the mental. We will eventually build one or two geriatric centres there in the mental hospital where we will have sufficient spare beds to take in the balance of the people mentally ill, or more or less senile.

Carried.

Mr. Chairman, before concluding the vote, I would like to advise you that the doctors in St. John's have arranged for one of them to be on duty twenty-four hours a day; regardless of where the call has come from, they may have to go. The doctors themselves were not looking after calls they were not getting paid for, and we have seen some write-ups in various papers. We now have an arrangement with the switchboard, and doctors may be contacted at night time or anytime during the 24 hours. I may say junior doctors are doing the work.

MR. FOGWILL: Where are they to be contacted, the General Hospital switch board?

MR. CHALKER: Yes. I think that something we should recognize is the good work being done by the doctors. I know we in the Department of Public Health are glad to see it happen.

MR. FOGWILL: It was very much needed, I think.

Carried.

HON. J. R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): Mr. Chairman, there was one item left out in bringing in the estimates in the Department of Provincial Affairs. An amount of $10,000 voted as a grant to Bowring Park. Now the Deputy Minister of Finance says this should go in the Public Works vote. Page 38-908, Miscellaneous Services. It would be called a grant to Bowring Park or another way to do it would be to increase the amounts in 908-01.

MR. SPRATT: Pardon me, Mr. Chairman, this was originally intended for Bowring Park, exclusively for improvements within the park, and if it is set up for any other purpose the Public Works may take it for any other ordinary expenditure to fix up walks and that kind of thing to meet the requirements of the general public but it is exclusive to Bowring Park and the Council has nothing to do with it. The vote was made for Bowring Park and dare not be interfered with by the St. John's Municipal Council though His Worship the Mayor is the Chairman of Bowring Park. It was for the purpose of improving Bowring Park and we should apply the vote to Bowring Park, it has nothing whatever to do with general revenue or city funds.

MR. SMALLWOOD: In view of the comments by my honourable friend, the Minister of Provincial Affairs, I think now it is best to put it under 908. Grant to Bowring Park Committee, $10,000. That makes the total of that sub-head $55,000 instead of $45,000, and will of course increase the grand total of the Department accordingly. I move that, Mr. Chairman.

Carried.

Now there remains an item in, I think, the Department of Finance to which the honourable the junior member for St. John's East referred. Page 18, 404-04 Railway Pensions. Amount $275,000 and my recollection is that my honourable friend the junior member for St. John's East desired to have this item stand while something was checked, I forget the details.

MR. FOGWILL: It was in relation to some of the people who were previously employed with the Government of Newfoundland that come under this heading, whose services terminated in 1949 and are now civil servants transferred to Canada, I understand their employment terminated in June but apart from those transferred to CNT, the services of those previously employed in the post office had their services to Newfoundland terminated April 1, 1949. Has the Government any information in respect to the application of them, in respect to those employed in regard to services after 1949 when they were taken over? That is why I raised the point. I know quite a number have been pensioned since and some will be this year and probably next. What is their pension after two or three years of service to the CNR, not only the CNR but the CNT employees as well? Persons who at the date of union had twenty years with the Government of Newfoundland and will have twenty years after that with the Canadian National Railway, what are the conditions in the last period of service? They understand the Government of Newfoundland is responsible for all pensionable service prior to 1949 and these people are anxious as to the application of them in respect of their service. There was a minute of council passed on June 23rd in respect to civil servants dealing with former employees of the Government of Newfoundland but not paid directly out of government funds. Their position is rather obscure.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I can say this at the very least, this Government is highly desirous of giving any possible help to the railway men and employees of the CNR in the position described by my honourable friend, and the responsibility of insuring the rights of these men or women under the Terms of Union is a responsibility, I would think, in the first place, of the Government of Canada through the organized representatives of these men. By that I do not mean this Government would even wish to escape any responsibility which may lie upon it and is certainly most anxious to help in the matter. What occurs to me is the desirability of the organization of these men conferring with the Government, the Newfoundland Government, in an effort to have the matter raised at a high level with the Government of Canada, not with the CNR, but rather with the Government of Canada, and I would like it to be known that the Government of Newfoundland would be most willing, most anxious to be of any possible help in that regard. This vote of $275,000 is in respect of pensionable service by railroaders up to the date of union and we asked the House to vote this sum to pay pensions to railway men in respect of their pensionable service with the Government of Newfoundland which service ended at the date of union. We are liable for those pensions and so ask the House to vote this $275,000 to enable the Government to discharge its duty to those men. Now with regard to pensions earned by them or not, as the case may be, since the date of union, that is a matter surely between the men themselves and the CNR and the Government of Canada, and a matter surely between the Government of Canada and the men. Now the men are represented by their various organizations, very fine trade unions they are, and these unions in turn have a joint board representing, I believe, all of these railway unions and if not all then nearly all. They are also citizens represented by the Government, the House of Assembly. We have no desire in the world to shirk any responsibility that may rest upon us but just exactly what that responsibility is, I am a little unsure, but with all the goodwill in the world we are prepared to meet with my honourable friend the junior member for St. John's East and the senior member for Harbour Main-Bell Island who are both railway men, union men, both prominent for years in the railway trade unions movement and if they care to confer with us we are happy indeed to meet them. If on the other hand the railway and unions wish to confer with us again we are happy to meet them, and if my honourable friend in collaboration with the unions or joint board of the unions desired to meet with us we would be happy to meet them and if it is desired by the unions, the joint board or the honourable members named to have the Newfoundland Government make official contact with the Government of Canada again we would be happy to do that. What we would like, I think I can say this for the Government, is to be briefed by the men most concerned directly or indirectly either by the organizations or the honourable gentlemen who occupy seats in this House. Now that being the case I wonder if my honourable friend desires to have this vote stand or is prepared to vote the appropriation.

MR. FOGWILL: We only asked the vote to stand for the moment to see if there was any information at all on it, if the Government had anything on this question. The vote can go ahead as far as I am concerned. In respect to the honourable Premier's invitation to collaborate with the Government and so on, I only raised the point as a member of the House not as a railway man. If the workers desire to meet the Government they may do so and appoint their representative and whoever they like.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I am glad to hear that, and believe me I do not say it with any desire to evade giving any assistance that may lie in our power in that field, we need only to be asked and will be very happy indeed to do it. I realize the living of a lot of men is at stake in this matter and it is a matter positively needing to be cleared up and we are glad to do anything we can do to help. I move the adoption of 404.

Carried.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Now does that clean up the estimates?

MR. FAHEY: We did not vote the total for finance and on account of that 404 was held over.

Total Finance Vote carried.

MR. SMALLWOOD: With the concurrence of the House I would like to revert to the Department of Provincial Affairs, main estimates page 21 and the salaries page 67. It will be noticed the Deputy Minister of Provincial Affairs is put at the new salary scale for Deputy Ministers. Now further down on the page 505—Housing the title of Administrator $5,000. That is Mr. Lew Crummey. Mr. Crummey was until shortly after Confederation, secretary of the Department of Public Health and Welfare, which meant that he was virtually the Deputy Minister of that joint department. Now shortly after Confederation that Department was divided and made into two units or new Departments. One, the Department of Health and the other the Department of Public Welfare, making two new separate departments. Mr. Crummey did not become Deputy Minister of either of these two departments but he did enjoy the position and salary scale of a Deputy Minister up to that time. A new Deputy Minister of Health was appointed in the person of Dr. Miller and a new Deputy Minister of Public Welfare was appointed in the person of Mr. Fred W. Rowe. Mr. Crummev went in as administrator of the Public Works Relief Program and was subsequently appointed Administrator of Housing which position he occupies at the present time. Now his salary scale has been the salary scale of a Deputy Minister up to the present time so that it is thought that the scale of the Deputy Ministers having been raised, his scale should change accordingly and be still that of a Deputy Minister, so I ask the Committee to make that change, making it $4,500-200-$6,000, and I so move.

MR. HIGGINS: What is his work?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Administrator of housing, that is to say he is under the Minister in charge of housing authority. My honourable and learned friend will bear in mind that there are now two separate housing organizations, first the Housing Corporation, the personnel of which changed a few months ago and consists at the present time of certain members of the Cabinet together with His Worship the Mayor of St. John's and the City Engineer of St. John's, and in addition to that the Housing Authority, which is a body set up to administer such housing as comes under partnership arrangements between the Government of Newfoundland on the one hand and the Central Mortgaging and Housing Corporation of Ottawa on the other hand. That is a partnership in building of houses or a system of loans on which housing may be built, carried out necessarily under Canadian law but by a housing authority set up by the Province. Such a Housing Authority was set up under the administration of Mr. Crummev and under him are, I think, others who bear the title of surveyor. I think there are two men who bear that title and a much more modest salary, I may say. I may say with regard to all three of them, Mr. Crummev and the two surveyors, one Mr. Callahan and one Mr. Duffett, the salaries of all three are paid, three quarters by the Federal Government and one quarter only by the Newfoundland Government. The Federal Government pays three-quarters of Mr. Crummev's salary, or $4,000 and the whole of the amount is borne by the Newfoundland Government, but with regard to the surveyors three-quarters of their salaries are paid by the Federal Government, now where they appeared I do not know. They are not civil servants, they are temporary, unestablished and non-pensionable, so that they do not appear here. Mr. Crummev is a civil servant, pensionable civil servant and former Deputy Minister. That is why his position appears here and the others do not.

MR. HIGGINS: I don't see how that position is the same as Deputy Ministers. It is surely not as important and in my estimation it is not as important as the registrar of deeds, and I notice he gets a much less salary, and the magistrate of St. John's who works day and night gets a salary about three quarters what this is and if he is going to be raised, that salary, there is no reason why the others may not be raised as well.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The fact of the matter is he is actually receiving $5,000 a year, is presently on the salary of a Deputy Minister $4,000-200-$5,500. He came into his present position from another position of Deputy Minister and we felt he ought not to be demoted after many years.

MR. FOGWILL: What happened to him in the other position, was he unhappy there?

MR. SMALLWOOD: No. The Minister of Health did not want to have Mr. Crummey or any other layman as Deputy Minister of his new Department and the Minister of Public Welfare did not want to have Mr. Crummey as Deputy Minister of Public Welfare, he desired to have an entirely new man for that position and did in the person of Mr. Rowe. That left Mr. Crummey, who had been Deputy Minister for both departments, without a position as Deputy Minister but with a salary of Deputy Minister and there was never a thought or suggestion in the Government of reducing his salary scale below that of Deputy Minister so that, therefore, his salary becomes known as personal as are the salaries of a few others in the civil service, for some special reason their salary scale is at a level higher than perhaps the job itself requires or calls for. There is always some special reason and in his case the reason being he had attained the status of a Deputy Minister and he remained at that level but went at other work and is presently at other work, but still has the status of a Deputy Minister from the standpoint of salary, and that scale having been increased, we desire to increase his scale in accordance so that he will remain at the scale of a Deputy Minister.

MR. FOGWILL: If his salary is increased now it will eventually go to six thousand?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Yes, finally. I don't think he will be there long enough to reach that really.

MR. FOGWILL: He is not a young man.

MR. SMALLWOOD: He is not exactly an old man, but I think he has four or five years to go before he retires.

MR. FOGWILL: What department does this job come under?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Financially under the Department of Provincial Affairs, administratively under one of the Ministers without portfolio, namely the junior member for St. John's West.

Amendment carried.

MR. HIGGINS: I was talking a moment about the magistrate in St. John's. It is certainly a very important district and he has much work to do. You are not going to get a fairly important one and there should certainly be a big increase in that.

MR. CURTIS: I may say that when the committee rises it is still kept going, so that the matter and perhaps other matters which might have to be brought up for consideration may be. We actually do not disorganize the committee.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I was about to move the Committee rise, report progress and beg leave to sit again. Just in case we may need to sit again.

The Committee rose, passed resolutions and asked leave to sit again. Ordered received and adopted.

Third reading of Bill "An Act to Amend the Slum Clearance Act, 1950,"

Bill read a third time and passed.

Third reading of Bill "An Act Further to Extend the Operations of the Shipbuilding (Bounties) Amendment Act, 1945, and of the Shipbuilding (Bounties) Amendment Act, 1947."

Bill read a third time and passed.

Third reading of Bill "An Act to Amend the Co-operative Development Loan Act, 1945."

Bill read a third time and passed.

Third reading of Bill "An Act to Amend the Local Government Act, 1949."

Bill read a third time and passed.

Third reading of Bill "An Act to Provide for the Acquisition of Lands for the Purpose of National Parks and for the Transfer to the Governor General in Council of Lands Acquired for Such a Purpose."

Bill read a third time and passed.

On motion the Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act Respecting the Safety of Workmen in Mines" was deferred.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act Respecting Elections in Municipalities."

Clause 24 and Clause 92 allowed to stand.

HON. LESLIE R. CURTIS (Attorney General): We have now an amendment to be made to that section. The Supreme Court when it sits, sits by an Act like this, sits as a special court and therefore only has the powers we have given here, if we give it to them, so that section 92 (1) is quite in order and is copied from the National Convention Act. We are giving the election court the same powers as the Supreme Court has. So I move that section be passed.

Carried.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendment.

Report received and adopted. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

Committee of the Whole "An Act Relating to Wild Life."

Amendment: "Stationed in New foundland" be added as sub-clause in (k) and inserted before the word "included" in (r).

Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendment.

Report received and adopted. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

Committee of a Whole "An Act to Provide for the Establishment of Family Courts."

Section 1 read and passed.

Section 2 read and passed.

Section 3 read and passed.

Section 4 read and passed.

Section 5 read and passed.

Section 6 read and passed.

HON. DR. H. L. POTTLE (Minister of Public Welfare): Part four deals with children and it is not proposed immediately to pass these over to family courts because of the work involved. If it is found the family courts can do it, it is proposed to have power to make that in the future.

MR. HIGGINS: What is the meaning of 3?

MR. CURTIS: That is actually taken from the Quebec Act. It means he can adjourn a case.

MR. HIGGINS: "Any matter pertaining to the legislation of a Province' should be cut out there.

MR. CURTIS: I think we may have that stand and see what it is all about.

Committee rose, reported progress, and asked leave to sit again.

Second reading of a Bill "An Act to Amend the Co-operative Societies Act, 1939," was deferred on motion.

Second reading of a Bill "An Act Further to Amend Chapter 127 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series) and entitled 'Of Companies'."

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the second reading of this Bill. It is not of very great interest to ordinary members of the House but would be of more technical interest to the honourable Leader of the Opposition and those associated with him. The effect of the amendment proposed is to enable companies incorporated under the law to make gifts and support funds created for the purpose of helping employees and general charities. I will read the section:

"14A. Every company incorporated under this Chapter has, and shall be deemed to have had, subject to specific restrictions, if any, in that regard contained in its Memorandum or Articles of Association, the power and capacity, exercisable by or under authority of its Directors, at any time and from time to time, to establish and support or aid in the establishment and support of associations, institutions, funds, trusts and conveniences intended or calculated to benefit employees or ex-employees of the Company or the dependents or connections of such persons, and to grant pensions and allowances, and to make payments towards or for insurance or for any other object or purpose like or similar to the foregoing, and to contribute, subscribe or guarantee money to or for any charitable, benevolent or educational object or purpose or any other object or purpose deemed by its Directors to be of a public, general, or useful nature"

The effect of this is that every company now has this power as if it were inserted in the charter unless there is a clause in the article saying the company shall not have that power.

This Bill also provides, Mr Speaker, for issuance of redeemable preferential shares that are issued by the company and sold for cash but capable of being paid off. In other words not like the ordinary charges of a company which when once issued must remain issued without any order of the court. Under this provision any company now can issue preferential shares and redeem them out of new shares offering or out of profits. I would move the second reading of this Bill.

Bill read a second time; to be referred to a Committee of a Whole on tomorrow.

Second reading of Bill "An Act to Provide for the Operation and Control of a Fund to meet in Whole or Part the Cost of Replacement of Government Property Destroyed or Damaged by Fire or Other Destructive Hazard."

MR. CURTIS: This is a Bill, Mr. Speaker, that enables the Government which does not carry insurance to pay the sum every year into a fund to be known as the "Replacement of Government Property Destroyed or Damaged Fund." The Bill is very short and the principle is set forth in paragraph 2. This is the main clause. The Bill then goes on and deals with management of the fund, trustees, earnings and issues out of the fund. I do not think there is need for any further remarks. It provides that an audit of the account shall be tabled by the Minister of Finance at every session of the Legislature.

Bill read a second time; to be referred to a Committee of a Whole on tomorrow.

On motion the second reading of Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Newfoundland Association of Architects and to Regulate the Use of Architect Designations in Newfoundland," was deferred.

MR. HORWOOD: Am I permitted to speak to this motion now, Mr. Speaker?

MR. SPEAKER: The motion has been moved deferred. That is the end of the Order Paper.

MR. CURTIS: To a question of privilege. I have had a request from the solicitors sponsoring this Bill, requesting permission to appear before the House and plead in favour of it and I would like to know what the reaction of the House would be in that matter, and if it would indicate whether or not the solicitors in cases like this, should appear at the Bar of the House and address the House.

MR. SPEAKER: The proper place for pleading of the case is either in person or by counsel before the select committee appointed after the Bill has received second reading. I would not be prepared at this time to say what the position would be toward private individuals appearing before the Bar of the House.

MR. FORSEY: It has not yet been determined whether the Bill is a private Bill or a Government measure. That should be brought out on second reading, on principle.

MR. SPEAKER: As far as the Chair is concerned the Bill disappears from the Order Paper. Motions called and not taken up are dropped.

MR. CURTIS: I withdraw my motion.

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable the Attorney General is right and the honourable the Minister for Provincial Affairs has spoken and therefore the motion is before the House.

MR. SPRATT: I never got a chance to speak, Mr. Speaker. On that occasion, the second reading of the Bill, to my mind, was not completed, because I took exception to a suggestion the honourable the Attorney General made. I did not agree with him there, and then on that I heard the gavel and I had to sit down, and that was that.

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable Minister has now the privilege of speech. I just said the second reading had been moved by the honourable the Attorney General and the honourable Minister for Provincial Affairs was speaking.

MR. SPRATT: You see, Mr. Speaker, at the time the honourable the Attorney General was making reference to section 28 (1), and said that should be kicked out, I took exception with him on that, and I would like to explain my reasons why I did that. If you will pardon me I will read the section: "Whenever any building or like structure is constructed, altered or enlarged and such work involves public hazard or the use of structural calculations of a specialized nature, or whenever such erection, alteration or enlargement involves the expenditure of a sum in excess of fifteen thousand dollars, the services of an architect shall be employed in connection with any such work provided however this section shall not apply to any works of an engineering character as defined by paragraph one, section (e)."

Now, Mr. Speaker, I would like to point out that my reasons for not agreeing that the entire section be stricken out is that, from my own professional experience there are cases where human life is involved with regard to certain building constructions. Now take for argument's sake, right here now before our eyes this evening you have a perpendicular support keeping up that gallery and the Government decides to replace the perpendicular support by a horizontal, that alteration may not occasion the expenditure of one thousand dollars and yet in that instance you require an architect. Now, I would suggest that taking these things into consideration, I respectfully submit now, Mr. Speaker, that I am speaking from practical experience, where the perpendicular supports of some of our public buildings to be taken away and the burden of responsibility rested upon me to do that and perform that work and have it satisfactory to the safety of all concerned, I would not do that without an architect. The architect would have to design the horizontal girder to replace the perpendicular column. Now, Sir, in giving that matter serious thought this suggestion should remain if we are to consider this Bill to finalization. My suggestion is that it should read "when any building of like structure."

MR. SPEAKER: I could not take a motion to amend or in any way alter the Bill. The principle of the Bill is, should we permit the architects to incorporate or not.

MR. SPRATT: There must be qualified conditions, we must have a reason for saying "Shall we" or "Shall we not," to justify a reason for having them or to my mind, well—I would not like to say what is in my mind at the present time—But if we are going to accept the architects we must have a justification for so doing and vice versa and if we are going to reject them or their Act we must have justification for that also and who is going to decide intelligently if we are not to express an opinion on it? I can't see it. Who is responsible for the Bill? There must be something in the Bill to justify its getting the serious attention of the Parliament, and I right here now have it before me and I know what I am talking about. Bring in all the lawyers in Newfoundland, and I think, clear of a point of law, I will talk intelligently to them on building matters. Now, therefore, I know what I am talking about and I say that in itself would justify the existence of the gentleman concerned, the architects. There might be other parts that would not justify their existence, and as far as architects are concerned I would say, yes, there are cases where they are required and cases where they are not required. In respect to alterations to buildings where human life is at stake, yes. While the layman, probably a dumb-bell like myself, may undertake to build a house without an architect, I have built houses without an architect, often altered them and performed operations on them without an architect, but there were times when I proposed a change and had to get an architect. Some problems can be solved mathematically and some can be solved by fellows with ordinary education, but there are times when one has to seek someone who knows more than he does and in this case that is what we must realize and there is no person concerned in this Act who knows more than I about whether they should or should not be there. But there are limitations where we as representatives of the people must try and protect the people and not have people come in and make a lot of money on a job where they are not required. That is the other side of it so, Mr. Speaker, the question is very important and one requiring the serious attention and thought of every member of this Parliament. I have no personal interest in it, none whatsoever, but we are here to administer the law and give justice to everyone and give attention to the safety of our people both from the monetary and physical standpoint.

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable member for Labrador has the floor but before he begins, I would just say this regarding the difference on second reading of a private and a public Bill. A public Bill is based on the policy of the Government to which the House is prepared to give its assent. A private Bill is not founded on the policy of the Government at all but is based on allegation of facts and if it decides to give that Bill a second reading, it does not follow that the House will pass that Bill. It might be opposed to every clause. It means that the Bill is accepted conditionally upon it being immediately referred to a select committee.

MR. FORSEY: Point of information: I want to stress the fact that it is not a private Bill at all.

MR. HORWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I regret that I am not able to agree with the honourable Minister of Provincial Affairs in this matter. In fact I felt it my duty to the public, the general public affected by this Bill, that I should not permit it to pass into law without using every legal means at my disposal to prevent it. I regard this Bill, Mr. Speaker, as an unprincipled attempt on the part of a small group of building contractors to set up another monopoly for the purpose of milking the old and long suffering cow, the consumer. The cost of building today is high enough as everyone will admit, far too high, and this Bill proposes to add another 10% to the cost of erecting homes and buildings. I wonder what kind of fools these petitioners take us for or what level of intelligence they think this House has sunk to when they offer a Bill of this kind to us for our consideration. It is not, Mr. Speaker, merely what it purports to be. It purports merely to be a Bill to establish by legislation another association. But I regard this Bill as an attempt to set up a legalized racket and asks this House to enter into a conspiracy for fleecing the public, directly to increase the cost of living and making it more difficult for people to build homes.

Now, I want it understood that I have nothing against the architects. Some of these petitioners are personal friends of mine and have been for a number of years and I have certainly nothing against architecture itself. Architecture is one of the fine arts. It is deserving to rank beside music, painting and sculpture, I would not say beside literature but besides the other plastic arts as one of the nobler conceptions of the human mind.

Since I was a boy I have spent much of my time in the study of those nobler conceptions, and quite frankly it makes me see red when one is debased and dragged in the mud and exploited and used as a means of penny catching and levying another toll on the pockets of the public.

Architecture is probably the oldest of the fine arts flourishing over three thousand years ago when Hammurapi the great legislator in Assyria, founded several cities and built two magnificent temples in the City State of Elk. A thousand years later, three thousand years ago, under the great Assurbanipal of Assyria, architecture reached a level of perfection which has rarely ever been surpassed. Assurbanipal was the great emperor who rebuilt the great city of Nineveh and founded the greatest library of the ancient world, a huge building containing scores of thousands of volumes written on cloth. A thousand years later than that, no, I think it was actually the same time, King Solomon of Israel founded and built the first temple of Jerusalem and brought architects from all the great cities of the Near East and employed them to help build it, and in the time of Christ, Herod built the third temple, a building larger than the Government birch plant at Donovan's, supported on 180 pillars 18" in circumference. He brought one thousand architects from all parts to help in building it and the historic records of the learned Jew, Josephus, which contain an account of it are still studied today by students of architecture for knowledge and enlightenment.

Now my opinion is that architecture is one of the fine arts and has survived for four thousand years and more without any special legislation.

It has run on its own steam and survived on its own merits, and its practitioners received varying rewards according to their varying talent and throughout four thousand years survived and succeeded without any special legislation, sanction or approval, and make no mistake about it, Mr. Speaker, this Bill is presented to this House for the sole purpose of securing special privileges which could not be secured by any other means. If they want an association I am not against their having it, associations have been formed by any number of other groups without coming to this House and asking us to set it up. They can form for themselves a guild, a trade union, a secret society, any number of societies without a special Act permitting them to, but they come to us asking us to establish them to incorporate them by legislation. That is the only way they can write into their charter clauses covering special privileges; that is the only way they can force people to employ their services whether people want them or not. Preventing other artists from practicing their art without their special permission. That is the only way to secure for themselves a closed shop. That is why they come asking us for special incorporation.

Now, Mr. Speaker, there are 31 clauses in this Bill and I wish to call attention to standing order No. 75 which reads as follows:

"No important amendment may be proposed to any private Bill, in a Committee of the Whole House, or at the third reading of the Bill unless one day's notice has been given."

Now, Mr. Speaker, I have studied this Bill with some concern as some other honourable members have gone through it clause by clause, and considered each separately, and I have come to the conclusion that should this Bill ever reach the Committee stage in anything like its present form, under the provisions of 75 I should feel called upon the day before to give notice of 31 amendments and taking all those factors into consideration and purely as a means of saving time for this House I propose the following amendment.

I move that the motion be amended, the motion as I understand it be read a second time—that the word "now" be stricken out and the words "six months hence" be added.

MR. FORSEY: As far as I am concerned, Mr. Speaker, the principle of this Bill is involved in two clauses, No. 28 and No. 4. Clause 28 has already been read but, incidentally, as it includes the imposition of taxes upon the people, in my opinion, that makes the Bill a money Bill and it therefore should be introduced by regular legislation of Committee of the Whole House. Clause 4, Mr. Speaker, which was not read before, says:

"Any person not otherwise qualified as hereinbefore mentioned residing in Newfoundland and who may desire to become registered as a member of the association may make application to the council for that purpose and upon passing such examination, oral or otherwise, as the council may prescribe shall be admitted to the registry as a member of the association on payment of the prescribed fees."

Clause 4 proposes to delegate to this particular association the power to grant licenses. In 1910 in the House of Commons in Britain there were a group of apothecaries who, in-cidentially, like those architects in this Bill were already qualified and certified but sought power to grant licenses in other respects and it was introduced as a private bill. Mr. Speaker of the House of Commons drew attention to the fact that power to grant licenses was outside their jurisdiction and ruled that such should be dealt with by a public Bill as it affected the public and effected certain members of the public. My suggestion is that all those self-educated and self-made architects who comprise a considerable portion of the public would be affected by this Bill. One, it is a money Bill; and two, it can be classified as a public Bill and I contend the Bill is not a private Bill and should not be introduced as such into the Legislature. I second the motion of the honourable member for Labrador.

MR. SPEAKER: The question is—The Bill is now read a second time. There is an amendment to the effect that "now" be deleted and "six months hence" be added.

Motion is that the word "now" do stand part of the question.

I cannot decide—divide. Call in the members.

MR. FORSEY: Mr. Speaker, is it in order for me to ask for a ruling?

MR. SPEAKER: The question is that the Bill be read a second time, the amendment is to the effect that the word "now" be deleted and "six months hence" be added. The question is the word "now" do stand part of the question. Those in favour stand.

MR. BALLAM: Point of information. If we vote that the word "now" stand it means this Bill would come to second reading.

MR. SPEAKER: You are voting against the amendment proposed by the honourable member for Labrador.

MR. BALLAM: If, for instance, we did that, then it would come to second reading. Could not the matter be then referred to a select committee to bring in a report on this and then if necessary have the amendment?

MR. SPEAKER: That is a hypothetical question, no matter what I answer the question will have to be put. But for the information of each honourable member—To vote aye to this motion is to vote against the amendment. Those in favour of the question please stand—That the word "Now" do stand part of the question.

Favour: The Attorney General, Minister of Labour, Minister of Education, Minister for Provincial Affairs, Honourable Leader of the Opposition, Mr. Fogwill.

Against: Honourable Minister of Supply, Minister of Fisheries, Mr. Morgan, Minister of Public Works, Mr. Button, Mr. Drover, Mr. Courage.

MR. SPEAKER: The "noes" have it and the word "now" is deleted from the question. The motion is that the words "Six months hence" be added.

Carried.

MR. CURTIS: I move, Mr. Speaker, that the House adjourn until 3:00 o'clock tomorrow.

HON. E. S. SPENCER (Minister of Public Works): Before we rise I would like to draw attention to the fact that we have visitors in the gallery, which I very much appreciate, but I would like to call attention to the fact that for the safety of the House and those who attend, I am perfectly happy to see young men come to the House and listen and follow up the debate, but I am very concerned about their welfare in leaning on that rail. I have no objection to their doing it only for their own sake.

The honourable Minister for Provincial Affairs referred a few moments ago to the architectural structure there; it is fairly substantial but as Minister of Public Works I can give no guarantee that rail will bear the weight of a group of people leaning against it. With all the good will in the world, I advise people from leaning on that rail, there is a danger there for which I am not prepared to accept the responsibility. I would be glad if the honourable Mr. Speaker would suggest that.

MR. SPEAKER: I will ask the Sergeant at Arms to see the individuals are informed that visitors do not lean on that rail.

Adjourned until tomorrow, Tuesday, at 3.00 of the clock.

TUESDAY, May 22, 1951.

The House opened at three of the clock.

Presenting Petitions

HON. LESLIE R. CURTIS (Attorney General): Mr. Speaker, I give notice that I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act Respecting Liability in Accidents for Damages where more than one Party is at Fault."

HON. E. S. SPENCER (Minister of Public Works): Mr. Speaker, I give notice that I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act Relating to Use and Operation of Vehicles on Highways and for Other Purposes."

Also I give notice that I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act Respecting Automobile Insurance."

HON. C. H. BALLAM (Minister of Labour): Mr. Speaker, I give notice that I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Amend the Labour Relations Act 1950."

Orders of the Day

On motion Committee of a Whole on Ways and Means, and Committee of the Whole on Supply were deferred.

Third reading of Bill "An Act Respecting Elections in Municipalities."

Bill read a third time, and passed.

Third reading of Bill "An Act Relating to Wild Life."

Bill read a third time and passed.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Provide for the Establishment of Family Courts."

MR. CURTIS: This Bill was deferred, at least the committee had under consideration paragraph 8 of the Bill, and my attention was drawn to sub-section 3, referring to Clerk of the Court. "He may when any matter pertaining to the legislative authority of the Province is concerned and when there is no judge." That was faced from the first Bill and followed literally the reading of the first. It is not very clear, so I would suggest striking out the comma after "may" and the words "when any matter pertaining to the legislative authority of the province is concerned" so that it will read "He may, when there is no judge present or able to act, perform any act or procedure of an official character, but he cannot render any judgment or pronounce sentence."

This gives the clerk permission to sit during the judge's absence.

Amendment carried.

Section 9 read and passed.

Section 10 read and passed.

Section 11 read and passed.

Section 12 read and passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act Further to Amend Chapter 127 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series) and entitled 'Of Companies'."

MR. FAHEY: Before we start on this I wonder if the Chairman notices there are now only nine members in the House. Yes, perhaps there are only two members of the Opposition, the Government members appear to be more worried about the Opposition.

Section 1 read and passed.

Section 2 read.

MR. JOHN G. HIGGINS (Leader of the Opposition): I presume this is meant to give to companies the right to carry out these aims if they are not—

MR. CURTIS: The effect of this clause is to put this in every article of associations automatically unless there is a clause in there restricting it.

Section 2 passed.

Section 3 read and passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendment. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Provide for the Operation and Control of a Fund to meet in Whole or Part the Cost of Replacement of Government Property Destroyed or Damaged by Fire or other Destructive Hazard."

Section 1 to 10 read and passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendment. Ordered read a third time on tomorrow.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act Respecting Safety of Workmen in Mines."

MR. CURTIS: There was only one section deferred in this Bill, section 270. The amendment I would suggest is that we follow the present section 270 to be 270 (1) and have sub-section (2) written in. "The manager shall remove or cause to be removed any person referred to in sub-section (1) from the mine, working place or machinery, as the case may be, and if he knowingly fails to do so he is guilty of an offence."

That clears the point raised by the honourable Minister.

MR. HIGGINS: If he knowingly fails.

MR. CURTIS: Then in relation to the penalty clause; I think it is all right, $20 minimum fine.

MR. HIGGINS: That is later on in the Act.

Section 270 passed.

Section 271 read and passed.

Section 272 read and passed.

Section 273 read and passed.

Section 274 read and passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

Second reading of Bill "An Act to Amend the Co-operative Societies Act, 1939."

HON. WILLIAM J. KEOUGH (Minister of Fisheries and Co-operatives): Mr. Speaker, the intention of this legislation is to eliminate certain anomalies existing between the present co-operative societies and the existing regulations and to bring it in line with the legislation in other Provinces and to effect certain changes which are desirable. The amendment provides an amendment to give legal sanction to the use of the words "Board of Directors and Governing Body" of registered societies and the use of the word "President." Clause three is to rectify a mistake in printing in July 1949 in the amendment; there was provision for societies' liability and the word "society" should have appeared. There is an amendment under section 4; in 1949 the Co-operative Societies Act was amended to permit Agricultural societies to register without using the word "Co-operative." These societies have given little or no indication of a desire to register and the purpose of this Act is to repeal and now provide registered cooperative Societies bear the word "Co-operative" in its name. Under section 4, no society shall be registered under a name identical with a name already in use by an existing society or so near it is likely to deceive. The amendment under section 4 includes an amendment to change the name if an error in registering exists in regard to registration of two societies by the same name. Amendment 4: existing legislation provides for transfer of shares from one member to another. This would prohibit withdrawal of all shares from one member to another. This would prohibit withdrawal of all shares being written off by members when a society is in distress. This legislation is common to the other Provinces. It is felt this properly should be authorized by the legislature. Existing legislation requires a society to issue free of charge a copy of its constitution and every amendment. It is proposed here to amend this because it is felt the cost involved would bring hardship to many societies were it enforced.

Section 6: Existing Section 30 of the existing Act is repealed.

Section 8: The existing legislation provides that loans may be made by registered societies to others but only with the sanction of the Registrar; this is amended, so that registered societies may make loans to other registered societies without the sanction of the Registrar.

Section 9 refers to section 39 of the existing Act and amends this because no society with liabilities may now be registered.

Section 43 of the existing Act requires that officers be bonded if the constitution so requires and it is proposed here to make it compulsory. Such legislation is common to the other Provinces. I think that pretty well covers it and I move the second reading.

MR. RUSSELL: Probably the two points I am about to raise might be raised just as well in Committee of the Whole. I know the answer but since it might possibly concern the principle of the Bill, I will bring it up now in order to ask the honourable Minister for further explanation. I agree with everything in the Bill except two things of which I am a little in doubt and I would like a little information.

Section 4: As the honourable Minister has explained that was repealed and an amendment inserted. Last year when I was attending at the board of agricultural societies, and as far as I know there has not been any great wave of enthusiasm on the part of agricultural societies in general to become incorporated in this Act, but there was one that did become registered under the Co-operative Societies Act and that is The St. John's Area Agricultural Society, and it was not so much they objected at the time of corporation but their official name then would be about that length. St. John's Area Agricultural Cooperative Society Limited or something, and they at the time felt they could do better and carry on the spirit of co-operation without using the word. I will bring up the other point before I ask the honourable Minister to answer that question. I just like to remind him of that point and I feel in all probability if the wishes of that society had been consulted, the next is a bit more curious. Section 4, sub-section 3: Now I am thoroughly familiar with the first part of that sub-section. It prohibits societies being registered with the same name or nearly the same name, but a society is not allowed now to use a name which is likely to deceive or cause confusion or for any other reason would cause objection. It is to be in the opinion of the Registrar actually, or who is going to decide on what is or is not objectionable, or would the honourable Minister enlighten us if there has been a case that a name was used that was objectionable and if so, to whom?

I can well see where one Government might be in power and a society might be turned down politically for some name on the grounds it is objectionable, but a different government might think different. There are just these two points then: Are the societies reconciled to the use of the word co-operative, and two: what is the point of that phrase "or for any other reasons objectionable?" To whom and on what grounds?

MR. KEOUGH: Mr. Speaker —

MR. HIGGINS: I was wondering if these words were legal under the Companies' Act? Does the Companies Act apply to these Companies now that the word "Limited" is used?

I asked because of Section 30, subsection 3. Now that is contrary to the rules of the Companies Act in production in capital.

MR. KEOUGH: It does not apply. With regard to the points raised by the honourable member for Bonavista South, I raised that specific point with regard to the St. John's Society with the registrar, and I understand from him that their position will not be affected. They will be able to incorporate in whatever status they wish, use that or transfer the registration to some other; they will be able to do so. With regard to two: I understand the provision is there for this. It has been put to me this way: The situation may arise where a society is registered, probably only a small credit society, using the name of the chief place in the locality where it is situated and it may subsequently develop at a later date three, five or ten years; a larger producer comes along or some other society develops in that place wishing to register with the name taken from the community and the registrar feels there must be some justification to require the registered society to forego the name and make it available to the larger one.

MR. RUSSELL: It would be in the opinion of the Registrar?

MR. HIGGINS: They can't use the word "Royal" for instance.

Bill read a second time, referred to a Committee of the Whole House on tomorrow.

MR. SPEAKER: The last item on the Order Paper is an Act to Amend the St. John's Municipal Act.

MR. CURTIS: I move that order be deferred as it is not printed yet.

Motion carried.

MR. CURTIS: Yesterday afternoon the honourable Minister of Public Works gave notice he would on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill the Highways Traffic Act. I wonder if the House would be prepared to have this Bill introduced forthwith with the unanimous consent? It is largely a consolidation of previous Bills and if the House would consent to its being introduced and read a first time now, we could probably proceed with the second reading or would it infringe the rights of any honourable member who thinks we are going too fast?

MR. SPEAKER: Does the House agree to the suspension of Standing Order 56 which says a Bill may not be advanced two or more stages in any one day?

Leave is granted.

Moved and seconded read a first time. Ordered read a second time now.

MR. SPENCER: I realize fully, Mr. Speaker, that this Bill has just been distributed to the honourable members of the House and as a matter of fact it might very truthfully be said that some members, in the short time the Bill has been in their possession, may be more familiar with some of the details of the Act than I am as Minister of the Department which brings in the Act. It was not anticipated that we would require the immediate presentation of this Act but it so happened, and here I wish to say that I gave notice to the honourable Premier about a week ago, unfortunately or fortunately, that I wanted to be out of town from tomorrow Wednesday until probably the end of this week and the Premier very kindly agreed to make the necessary arrangements for me. In the meantime this Bill becomes ready for presentation. For that reason the honourable the Attorney General moved to present it as quickly as possible with the consent of the House as I may be absent for a few days and it follows I should have something to say about it. In presenting the Bill for first reading, I would merely say that it be read a first time with a view to having it read a second time immediately. I only want to point out the main reason is that I shall be out of town during the next few days, and it is the hope of the Government and all the members of the House that we may be able to prorogue by the end of this month, I do not know the exact date. I have not asked the Premier about that but a lot depends on what we do here. The Bill looks rather pretentious from the point of view of clauses and pages, but I would point out briefly that it is merely a consolidation of the Highway Traffic Acts from the time the first Highway Traffic Act was instituted back in 1921 or 1922 or something like that. 1906 was the original one but in 1925 it was made more in the form of an Act to control highway traffic such as motor cars. Since that time there has been numerous amendments which have been brought in for enactment in this House and the idea is to consolidate and bring the Acts under one heading. I am sure my honourable and learned friend, the Leader of the Opposition, appreciates that point as he, some little time ago, made reference to similar numerous amendments, very difficult for men dealing with documents of this kind.

This Act is now presented to consolidate all of these Acts and Amendments under one Act and it is hoped it will serve for some considerable time. There may be some small items to be brought in again but that is the main purpose of presenting it in this form. Probably, before I proceed further, I should ask permission of the House if it is in order to proceed with the second reading of this Bill when I will give a little more detailed information about it.

Leave given.

MR. SPENCER: I am grateful to the House and to His Honour the Speaker for guiding me in this matter and I shall now make every effort to give you as briefly as I can the details of this Bill. There are many pages and I do not propose to go into it as fully as perhaps otherwise I might, on the purpose of the Bill, and one might go further and say there does not appear to be anything of a contentious nature in this Bill as it is merely a consolidation of what we have had before with very few and slight changes which could probably be checked out in the Committee stage.

In the 25 years since the first Highway Traffic Act in this country there has been, as we all know, a very substantial increase in the mileage of motorable roads and there has been a tremendous increase in the number of vehicles in use, for example in 1925 there were a total of one thousand vehicles on the roads. In the registration of the year just passed we had upward of sixteen thousand vehicles in use. In other words the fact is, as not so many people may have noticed, one out of every 32 people in the Province of Newfoundland at the present is driving or operating a motor vehicle. And with regard to driving licenses it is a fact proven by statistics in our Department that one out of nineteen citizens possesses a driving license. In other words some thirty-five to forty thousand people will this year apply for licenses to operate vehicles.

The Bill that has just been placed before you represents a complete revision of everything from the 1941 Act to the present day.

Now I am going to skip on over some of these pages so as not to take too much time, these pages will be referred to again in the Committee stage. But I would like to point out a few things that I picked out in glancing through this document today, I notice sections 15 to 25 inclusively in the Bill deals with the subject of dealers licenses. These sections are identical with the provisions of regulations previously made under the Highway Traffic Act but will not be embodied into the Act itself. They set out the conditions under which licenses may be issued and the conditions under which dealers plates may be issued. It prohibits the use of dealers plates on vehicles used for private purposes or hire and require that dealers' plates bought for dealers be registered separately. Now on that point I do not wish to have it conveyed that dealers generally through the city and the province have been taking advantage of the dealer's license plates but regrettable as it may appear it is true, very definitely true, that some, and I am very proud to say only a small number have been in some measure getting around the Act and taking advantage of the dealers' plates for their own personal use. At this moment, I do not intend to stress this matter except to say it is regrettable that this Department may even be unable to prevent it and the particular clauses dealing with that Clauses 15 through 25 will, under the present Act, we feel make it more difficult for anybody to circumvent the Act and consider himself a bit of a smart alec by saving $15 or $20.

Section 26 provides for license identification plates and permits as the property of the Crown. This provision is new but very common in all motor traffic legislation and is necessary, we feel, for effective carrying out of the safety provisions of this Act.

Another clause to which I wish to draw attention is Section 34 which requires that the driver keeps this license in his immediate possession and produce it if so required to do. This is the sum total of former legislation. Any other points that may crop up which might be of a contentious nature, I shall be glad to endeavour to deal with in the committee stage.

I now want to refer briefly to what is known as safety responsibility which begins on page 48, section 63. This particular part of the Act deals with motor vehicle liability. It is generally recognized today that there should be legislation to protect innocent sufferers in respect to what is termed "judgment proof" drivers. That is, persons not having the financial resources to satisfy any judgment given against them on account of injuries to persons or damage to property which may be caused by reason of their operation of a motor vehicle. They should of course be responsible for damage caused. I need not stress that fact very much, Mr. Speaker, I have quite a number of arguments regarding the well known fact, all too many of these drivers are probably hiding under that certain clause and have neither the means nor the desire to accept the responsibility for their liability for the safety of the public on the street. That, too, is very well borne out by the very excessive rates which motor drivers are called upon to pay in this Province and it has been said that the Department might be more strict probably in the issuing of licenses. In this particular connection I feel that the Department has done even more than has been expected of it. When they find a vehicle presented to them for registration they have already power to send it to some qualified mechanic to test the machine, and until such time as the owner can bring back a certificate to show the machine is or could be operated safely, he does not get a license. There is no desire to step on people who may be trying to get a little pleasure out of life when they get to the stage where they may be able to buy a second hand vehicle. Not very long ago I was very happy to have the advantage of buying a vehicle too and possibly was not able to buy a new car, I have not such a big one yet. However, it is the case when people see the road there and see other people getting around in cars which gives them a certain amount of pleasure, it follows that citizens are going to endeavour to enjoy that pleasure as well, so they raise a small sum of money, probably between a group, and buy maybe a second hand car, some unfortunately in a very dilapidated condition. This Bill is not with a view to taking these people off the road but in justice to the greater population, the large number of people in and about the City or on the Highways or in communities where motor roads are used, it stands to reason that the greater number of the population must be protected from the driving fiend who drives without accepting the responsibility. So this clause for safety responsibility is brought in. Section 83 down to 112 deals with this particular item.

There is a clause referring to unsatisfied judgment, in fact, several clauses. Some of the members of the honourable House are well aware of what an unsatisfied judgment clause means. There has been practical cases illustrated here, I expect in the memory of most of us, of those responsible and without the means to meet it. I would like to try and give as briefly as I can a practical example. Take my own case, John Jones, I go out and drive a vehicle around, a vehicle

I have obtained in some way or another, drive around and before getting very far am the cause of a very serious accident and as a result am taken before the courts and judgment is given against me. Probably it is not for reckless driving or maybe not drunken driving; I have not been arrested and judgment is given against me in favour of the plaintiff whose car I have perhaps seriously damaged with may be loss of life. The point is that I am irresponsible in as much as I have no means to meet the judgment. If it be that the owner of the vehicle had his car smashed beyond recognition and seeks redress through me and I am similar to the turnip without blood. An old adage says you cannot extract blood from a turnip. The same applies to me, I cannot meet the judgment, I am unable to pay it; my assets are probably few and nothing can be obtained from disposition of everything I possess. In such cases an unsatisfied judgment fund is set up in some Provinces on the Mainland and is serving a very fine purpose. Now you may inquire how that fund is brought about. In Ontario there is something like a million and a quarter drivers. There every driver in purchasing his license year after year pays a small assessment that can be made to vary to suit the conditions of the Province but since they have a million and a quarter drivers their assessment is well able to take care of unsatisfied judgments so that in the event of a person being unable to meet judgment responsibility the cost is met by the unsatisfied judgment fund. In Nova Scotia there are about one hundred and twenty-two thousand drivers and there too they build up a fund and are well able to take care of their needs in this particular instance. We have in Newfoundland practically thirty-five thousand drivers and it is hoped that we may arrive at a decision to assess a certain amount on the drivers license in the first instance which will, we hope, build up a fund necessary to take care of our needs. We do not want to build up revenue from this. It is not the desire nor the intention to obtain a revenue from it but we feel the public must be protected and it is hoped we may tackle it in this way and build up a fund. Now this thing follows in proportion: if there are a million drivers it stands to reason there are more accidents than we will say in Nova Scotia where there are one hundred and twenty-two thousand drivers and we think the same thing follows in Newfoundland, though I fear and the thought I have in mind, based on the fact that our insurance rates are so very high, perhaps the accident rate in this Province is especially high. I don't know if it is so or otherwise but it should be in proportion.

If we can start a fund in this way it will raise sufficient to take care of what is called the unsatisfied judgment fund, I believe, Mr. Speaker there will be general satisfaction felt through the Province particularly by motor owners and possibly by the public as well over the institution of this clause. There have been many, many demands for it and since it has been my privilege to work in the Department of Public Works I know of no end of requests for something of this nature. Recently the public has seen an article published in the press by the St. John's Lions Club. They were concerned, and have been for a long time, by this particular question. They did not know that the Provincial Government or the Department of Public Works of the Government had been dealing with it now for some time and only about three or four days ago there was published in the press a letter they had also sent to my department dealing with this very point. I subsequently replied and assured them that the matter was already under consideration by the Government and that in fact we had then a Bill at the printers which dealt with just such situations. One other point I would like to refer to and possibly quote from an article recently in the press regarding drivers in the Province of Quebec. May I quote? "Quebec Drivers Responsibility under the New Law." "A Bill before the Quebec Legislature provides for highway financial responsibility similar to Ontario and Manitoba and most of the other Provinces. The Bill lays down procedure to be followed when an accident occurs requiring the parties involved to notify the authorities, and motorists found responsible for accidents must satisfy any damage judgment against him and give evidence of future financial responsibility before being allowed to drive again. Evidence of financial responsibility may further be insured by posting a bond, making a deposit of funds guaranteeing it." Now on this point I will refer to one more thing than I think I am done. That point is: Should a driver be convicted and judgment given against him the public may very well say: "Oh well, John Jones had judgment given against him and had nothing to pay so they simply took it out of the Unsatisfied Judgment Fund." But John Jones is going to think twice, possibly more than twice before taking a chance and doing such a thing again. The Act also says he may never again obtain a drivers' license in this Province until such time as he has made good to that unsatisfied judgment fund every dollar paid out on his behalf. When such a clause is made so plain and clear, Mr. Speaker, I submit that people will think twice, and in this way possibly we may help to reduce the number of traffic accidents this little Province is experiencing.

I have much pleasure in moving the second reading of this Bill.

MR. FAHEY: Mr. Speaker, as to the principle of this Bill, I must confess that I did not have much time to go through the Bill as it was only tabled and distributed about twenty minutes ago. But I understand from the honourable Minister introducing the Bill that there will be some sort of fund created for all drivers to take care of unsatisfied claims, so to speak. Now, I am not quite sure, I cannot say definitely, I did not have time to go through all the clauses of the Bill and I am not quite sure I agree with this particular set up in the Bill.

In some states, or in some countries, I understand, I don't know about the different Provinces of Canada, different Provinces I know on the Mainland people get compulsory insurance. Now the idea of that is a person may go buy a car for four or five hundred dollars and that is all they have in the world. They would not have to insure and may go out and have an accident, sometimes fatal or costly, or otherwise and in some cases the bread-winner of the family is laid up for twelve months or it even could be fatal. That person has nothing in the world but five hundred dollars tied up in a jallopy and nothing can be done about it and for that reason there is compelsory insurance brought in and before he gets a license he must produce his insurance by some company satisfactory to the Department, otherwise the Department itself issues on right there and then—and the Department, I may say, gets quite a lot of revenue from that. But they are not permitted to drive cars without insurance. As an example of this, if you want to go on the American Bases, you are not allowed in without insurance. I don't know the exact way it is being done in some other countries but according to this setup explained by the honourable Minister, if I have my car insured I have also to pay into a fund to pay someone else's insurance. There is a fund created and from that fund money is taken to pay unsatisfied judgment claims. That may be a good thing, but I don't think all the people who run cars and pay insurance should turn around then and pay for other cars by way of an assessment—pay for people who don't want to insure.

Now, I think compulsory insurance should be carried on motorcycles. They create more damage and cause more accidents than any other vehicles. That is another matter I think might be taken care of in the Act, I did not have time to check it through yet but I say it is unfair to have motor car owners pay insurance and because 20% are unwilling or unable to pay they have to pay an assessment besides to take care of those who won't pay, so that they may get judgment and if they have no money, (as the honourable Minister said, you can't get blood from a turnip) the amount will be taken from the Unsatisfied Judgment Fund. I don't agree with that policy; I think a policy of compulsory insurance would be much better than to have others pay for those who do not want to pay.

MR. CURTIS: I have listened with a great deal of interest to the last speaker, the honourable member for Harbour Main-Bell Island, but I think it is impossible at this time for us to bring in a Bill providing for compulsory insurance. I don't think the time is ripe yet. The Department over which I have the honour to preside has been looking into the matter for some time and the Commission of Government gave the matter some considerable attention and there are several objections to it. In the first place the position is if you have compulsory insurance limiting the issuance of licenses to insured cars—in Saskatchewan they introduced, I think, a Government insurance scheme but I think it subsequently had to be abandoned—

MR. SPENCER: No, it has not been abandoned but it has run into difficulties and they are trying to straighten it out.

MR. CURTIS: The objection to compulsory insurance and policies issued by these companies is that they have in all their policies a clause to say the insurance is void if the operator of the car is drunk or under the influence of liquor. Now, if I have a car insured and that is my only asset, and I meet with an accident caused by me while intoxicated, then the company is freed of its obligation because of the fact that I am intoxicated. What protection is there for other parties until an insurance company issues a policy that will give full protection to the other party? Unless it does, it is not much good as an insurance policy. Now the Americans down on the Base got over that. You will remember some time ago the question came up as to our permitting the Americans to try their own members in their own courts and one of the reasons which led us to agree with their contention was the fact that they insisted in all cases where American Servicemen driving cars carry insurance and with this clause deleted. In other words an American driving a car must be insured and secondly the insurance policy he has must be a policy that protects anybody whom he injures or any property damaged irrespective of whether or not he is drunk when driving the car. Now, you can see, Mr. Speaker, the value of such a policy and it seems to me we have reached the stage where we have to insist that insurance companies will not put that clause in the policy or it is not worth the paper it is written on, should there be an accident due to negligent driving or to intoxication. We will bring up another Bill dealing with automobiles, with automobile insurance and when that Bill comes before the House we may more properly discuss that matter.

I would like to say that I favour the adoption by the Provincial Government of the clause creating a fund out of which to pay unsatisfied judgments.

MR. FAHEY: Is that going to be compulsory?

MR. CURTIS: That fund of course will be compulsory. There is no fee named in the Act, presumably it will be either 50c. or $1.00. In other words when you or I go to take out a license we will be charged 50c. or $1.00 more than previously. I understand the license is $3.00 and that $1.00 is not going to hurt anyone but will create a fund of $35,000 to $36,000 at the present rate of licenses and it would be a godsend in the case of an accident in which a driver with no insurance or who has no assets is involved. Now, I had a case three or four years ago when I was allowed to practice law, where a car had been stolen and the thief of the car ran into and demolished another car. Well in that case, Mr. Speaker, the insurance was not any good as the car had not been lawfully driven by the owner or a member of his family or a person authorized by him. In this case the thief driving the car ran into and demolished a car worth at least $3,000 owned by a taximan who himself could not afford to take the loss but had no alternative. The fellow had no assets. Now had there been this fund he would have been eventually able to claim against this fund but, mind you, Mr. Speaker, this is not a sort of catch-all. Anybody who comes in and makes a claim against this fund must satisfy the courts, before whom he takes the case, that the defendant is action-proof and he has to have issued a writ of collection against the defendant and he has to make every possible effort to collect from the guilty party and only when he finally fails will this fund become available to protect the other motorists and the general public. The man who had been guilty of not paying the claim will not get a license and will not be allowed to drive a car unless he pays. I think it is good legislation and I think upon consideration, members will agree that it is good, and if it does cost a dollar a year for one, two or three years it is protecting everybody who is entitled to it.

MR. FAHEY: It is protection to the one who won't insure his car.

MR. CURTIS: Even if he were insured he may not be protected. The provision is when it reaches $150,000 the Minister will thereupon stop collecting this extra dollar and set some amount to keep the fund up to such a state that it will be able to assume any claim made against it. Now, I might say further that if my honourable friends will look at the section in question they will see that this portion of the Act does not come into force until it is proclaimed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council. In other words it may not be possible to apply it in the remaining part of the year, it may or may not, all licenses have now been issued and therefore it may not be possible to bring it into operation this year; but this Bill is a consolidation of the Law, it is only fair and proper to make provisions for it and if this Bill passes the House the provision of this section can be brought in only after the Lieutenant Governor in Council decides the time has come when the provisions of this article might be put into effect.

MR. RUSSELL: May I ask the Attorney General if there is any danger that the setting up of this fund will encourage a certain group of drivers not to get insurance, and in the case where the defendant has first of all to prove it is not collectable, would he have to prove he had tried to get insurance and could not?

MR. SPENCER: In that case he would not get a license.

MR. RUSSELL: He can't get a license if he tried to get an insurance and can't?

MR. SPENCER: In reply I have not at my finger tips the full knowledge nor all the details here but it is the principal of the Bill to which the honourable member must refer.

MR. SPEAKER: I must remind the honourable Minister, if he now speaks he closes the debate. However the honourable Minister has assurance of the House he may be permitted to answer a question. Proceed, I am merely pointing out the fact that if the Minister speaks again he closes the debate.

MR. SPENCER: I do not wish to deprive myself of closing the debate on this Bill. The point raised by the honourable member for Bonavista South with regard to the possible encouragement of individuals trying to get away with something, if he reads the clause he will see that is taken care of. Actually this is to discourage rather than encourage as has been pointed out by the honourable the Attorney General. It is problematical if we can put it in effect this year because we have 18,000 licenses issued, but the point is that an individual who will not provide sufficient proof that he has provided insurance or could provide it will be refused a license. That is part of this Act, I cannot exactly point out where but I am sure that is so.

HON. J. R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): There are just two points I would like to make in connection with this Bill. First, in reply to the honourable the senior member for Harbour Main-Bell Island, who, I gather, is against the principle of the unsatisfied judgment fund which this Bill would set up—in reply to him I would point out that all or nearly all of the Provinces of Canada have exactly that legislation. I know certainly of two of the Provinces that have it, that same scheme in effect, one the Province of Ontario and the other the Province of Nova Scotia.

Now I was also very much interested in what the honourable gentleman said on this question of insurance, and I am beginning to come to the conclusion that a job has to be done by someone in Newfoundland, perhaps the Government, to investigate the whole question of insurance and the costliness of insurance in this Province of Newfoundland. I had a visit recently from Father Meegan, one of the Redemptorist Fathers at St. George's. We spent the best part of an hour discussing things in general and in particular the problem of education, and above all the problems of schools in his own immediate area of St. George's and he has come fairly recently to Newfoundland from one of the Prairie Provinces, the Province of Alberta, where, so he told me, insurance on churches and schools in his parish against fire for three years at a time costs less than he now pays for the same type of insurance, exactly the same type of insurance on his churches and schools in the neighbourhood of St. George's, for one year. So that exactly the same type of insurance is costing him in Newfoundland 300% above the cost of exactly similar insurance in the Province of Alberta, under almost exactly similar conditions so far as fire hazards are concerned. That is to say that in Alberta he insured churches and schools in an area that lacked fire protection in the same way exactly that his property in the area of St. George's lacks protection against fire hazards. So that in comparison of the cost of insurance in the area of Alberta from which he recently came with the area in and around St. George's to which he recently went, we are comparing like with like, the conditions are almost identical, and yet in Newfoundland he pays three times as much for the same service that he paid in Alberta. I am asking myself how much longer it would be just to go without finding out why it is that insurance, fire insurance, and possibly motor car insurance is costing so much as it does in the Province of Newfoundland. Now I am not going to utter any reckless challenges on profiteering, still less of racketeering, but I do remember compiling the figures over a period of ten years, the years when I was editing the year book and I do recall vividly that for that period of ten years after you subtracted the total sum paid out by insurance companies in Newfoundland from the total amount they collected in premiums—collected from the people of Newfoundland—it was a huge amount and ran, I believe, into millions of dollars. In that period of ten years approximately millions of dollars were drawn out of the pockets of the Newfoundland people under the heading of fire insurance. Now motor car insurance is carried, if not entirely, then I believe certainly mostly, by agents of Insurance Companies and Companies who deal also in Fire Insurance. I imagine that these agents represent companies who deal exclusively in motor car insurance, as they represent other companies also who deal exclusively in fire insurance, although there may be some direct connection between the two types of companies; on that I cannot speak with any knowledge. But knowing as we do the high rates charged for fire insurance in Newfoundland, may we not at least presume that the rates for motor car insurance and vehicle insurance are equally unjustifiable. Now in the Province of Saskatchewan they have made motor car insurance compulsory by law and they have made that type of insurance a state monopoly, in exactly the same way as this Province recently made workmen's compensation insurance a state monopoly. That is to say the Province of Saskatchewan created an insurance office or department or company or division of the Government of the Province with the sole and exclusive right to carry on the business of motor vehicle insurance. From the later indications I have seen that scheme has not been altogether successful whether because the premium rates charged on the motor vehicles were too small or for some other cause or reason I don't know but from the latest indications it seems that the Treasury of the Government has had to make up some losses in the operation of that motor vehicle insurance operation. Now that may be a matter of a temporary misjudgment or miscalculation of the size of the premium they ought to charge, it may be a matter quite easily remedied by increasing the premium rate chargeable to the customer and it could be until that larger rate is charged they could be temporarily embarrassed in their finance to the extent that the Treasury of the Province had to make good the deficit. I am afraid I could not inform the House as to exact and accurate details of the cause but I have recently seen a strong suggestion in more than one Canadian newspaper—particularly the "Financial Post" which is a finance, business-man's paper and rather noticeably unfriendly to the socialized government of Saskatchewan and hence probably not entirely unbiased in its comments on what is basically a socialized insurance scheme operating in Saskatchewan—that it has not come up to expectations, and from other evidence I have reasons to believe that the scheme has not proven to be successful or to be a solution to the problem, so I do suggest to the House that before we proceed to adoption of the principle of compulsory motor vehicle insurance in Newfoundland, perhaps the House, perhaps the Government, perhaps some public body will do the job of delving into the whole scheme of motor vehicle insurance rates with a view to determining whether these rates are as reasonably low, as we have a right to expect them to be, and that in the meanwhile the present Bill, which can be amended next year or the year after if the House should desire to do so, be adopted.

Now on the other principle, surely on mature thought there can be very little room for difference of opinion on this unsatisfied judgment fund which is conventional and almost traditional in the other Provinces of Canada. I know that no member of the House is going to take the stupid stand that we in this Province do not need to pay any attention to what goes on in the other Provinces of Canada. To take such an absurd stand would indeed be short-sighted and merely prejudiced because human experience wherever it is can always be of benefit to human beings wherever they are and if the Governments of the neighbouring parts of the Mainland of Canada have practical experience in these matters then we would be wise, I think, to learn from their experience as in this matter. That is sound, as they have proven to have had unusual success with damages which have been found to have occurred as a result of motor car accidents.

I would be quite frank, Mr. Speaker, not only have I not read this Bill through but I have no intention of doing so unless I am driven to it. Life seems really too short for a man to read every word of every Bill which comes into this House, even if we do homework and carry them home with us at night, life is still too short for every one of us to read every word of every Bill legislated. However, I hope some people will read every word and that the House will have the benefits of the study which I know the honourable Leader of the Opposition will give the Bill in its entirety and the honourable the Attorney General will undoubtedly give the Bill close study and the honourable the Minister of Public Works with the benefit of his staff undoubtedly will have given the Bill itself in its entirety close study so that if the House is led in this matter by these three honourable gentlemen I think we can feel quite safe in not insisting each one read every last word of it. Now it is my understanding that it is not the desire of the honourable Minister of Public Works to ask the House to do more than give the Bill second reading at this stage of our proceedings, it is not his intention to ask the House to go into committee of the whole. In committee of the whole, when the Bill finally goes there, we can examine it closely clause by clause in such detail as the honourable the member for Bonavista South and other honourable gentlemen may desire, point by point, as they arise.

MR. SPEAKER: I understood that it was not to go into Committee of the Whole today, but I learned from the honourable the Attorney General he would be rather disappointed if it does not go ahead.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I don't insist. If the whole House agrees, far be it from me to delay it. We are all anxious, I think, to complete the business of the House as early as possible and I assume we will have a night session, and if it is the will of the House to move on into Committee of the Whole House and get through as much as we can, I would be happy.

MR. HIGGINS: We have to look at this Act from the standpoint of citizens who may be ruined, personally disabled or financially ruined probably by the act of an irresponsible person. Regarding this it is very difficult to say just what should be done. I am sorry to hear the so-called socialized state of Saskatchewan has failed to settle the question. Something ought to be done and I understand the position. There is no question about it, persons ought to be insured. There is but one thing if a driver meets with an accident which he is liable for, he never gets insured again, no company will give him insurance and that is why he must be careful. There are two things to guard against. One: a person who does not insure his car against damage to another person is a menace and there is too much of it today. All lawyers know what unsatisfied judgment is and the person who will laugh at you when judgment is given is laughing at the poor unfortunate who has to suffer. It is time something should be done with regard to highway traffic accidents. Here is a man, healthy, and earning good money, giving his family a respectable rearing, and because of an accident all his prospects are ruined and he becomes a burden on the state. I am glad some attempt is being made to offset such consequences. If a man is injured and can't work let him get some compensation to get some of the comforts of life. I know it is impossible to put such a man back in his original position but something should be done. I really cannot understand why the motorists here have not formed up an insurance. We all insure our houses and pay far more than $2.00 a house which could be damaged by our own neglect and sometimes through no fault of our own but in the case of being injured by some motorist that is just as possible for us as anyone else.

I presume I have to go over this Act again according to the dictates of the Premier who throws the burden upon the Attorney General, myself and the Minister for Public Works and we can leave any controversial section remaining over, for instance page 48, section 83, I would like to do a bit of home work on this Bill as I have not much else to do these days and can spare some time. Is the Automobile Insurance Act 1951 printed yet?

MR. CURTIS: It will be here tomorrow.

MR. HIGGINS: Would it not be better if we had a copy just to know what it is about?

MR. SPENCER: I think it is in connection with—

MR. SPEAKER: Order, the honourable Minister may speak only once. Questions are not properly asked at this stage but are asked in Committee of the Whole, otherwise a Committee of the Whole debate may take place. This is only for the members own protection. Is the House ready for questions?

Bill read a second time.

MR. SPENCER: May I now request the authority of the House to proceed with the Committee of the Whole stage of this Bill?

MR. SPEAKER: Leave is granted to Committee of the Whole on this Bill.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act Relating to the Use and Operation of Vehicles on Highways and for Other Purposes."

Section 1 read and passed.

Section 2 (a) read and passed.

Section 2 (b) read and passed.

Section 2 (c) read and passed.

Section 2 (d) read and passed.

MR. HIGGINS: What is the difference between common and public highroads?

MR. CURTIS: It means the same thing.

MR. SPENCER: It is brought down from the other Act.

Section 2 (e) read and passed.

Section 2 (f) read and passed.

Section 2 (g) read and passed.

Section 2 (h) read and passed.

Section 2 (i) read and passed.

MR. FAHEY: Under this clause are there any regulations to take care of bicycles and motor cycles?

MR. SPENCER: Under (i) I doubt very much.

MR. FAHEY: They use the highways frequently.

MR. SPENCER: One thing we cannot seem to control is that bicycle business; we do not know what to do about it. A bicycle is not classified as a vehicle.

MR. FAHEY: The reason I drew it to the attention of the Minister, no matter where we go there is always a bicycle in front, sometimes going against the traffic, crossing the roads and flaunting regulations which all other types of vehicles obey. I do not see it.

MR. HIGGINS: Like cats and dogs they are a menace and get in the way sometimes.

MR. FAHEY: I have nothing against a bicycle, I think children are entitled to have a bike for transportation but they should be governed by some regulations. For instance, I saw a man walking along the street one day and I stopped the car and asked him why he did not walk on the sidewalk and he answered, "I don't have to." Yet if I got in there on the sidewalk in a car I would be arrested. Well the same thing applies with a bike, we make regulations for a car and we must be governed by certain speed, stop signs and so on, but I have seen on Rawlin's Cross recently, when all the traffic was stopped for a red light, a bicycle went on through and it is a wonder there are not more serious accidents.

HON. S. J. HEFFERTON (Minister of Education): On page 73 there is a section which deals with bicycles.

MR. HIGGINS: I think we had better go ahead.

MR. CHAIRMAN: It is very difficult to give people the floor unless they rise and address the Chair. It is very difficult otherwise to know who is speaking or who has the floor.

HON. JAMES J. SPRATT (Minister of Provincial Affairs): How about strangers coming in, who would not be aware of the existing law, would that be any difference?

MR. SPENCER: Everybody knows he has to comply with some law.

Section 2 (n) read and passed.

Section 2 (o) read and passed.

Section 2 (q) read and passed.

Section 2 (r) read and passed.

Section 2 (s) read and passed.

Section 2 (t) read and passed.

Section 2 (u) read and passed.

Sections 3 to 15 read and passed.

MR. HIGGINS: What is the meaning of number 15?

MR. SPENCER: That is in connection with dealer's license plates to dealers for demonstration purposes but not for their own personal use, one of the things I referred to in second reading.

Sections 16 through 28 read and passed.

MR. HEFFERTON: We have the age of 18 as the age for obtaining a motor licence, but there is a clause there which permits drivers coming into the Province a year younger.

MR. SPENCER: If they give proof they have operated for three months and they are legally licensed in another province.

Section 29 read and passed.

Section 30 read.

MR. HORWOOD: I would gather from that clause a motorbike is a safer vehicle to operate than a car.

MR. SPENCER: The answer to that is rather difficult but it always has been the practice that a motor license for a motorcycle be issued at a younger age than a license for a motor car.

MR. HORWOOD: What is the logic for it?

MR. SPENCER: I am afraid that is hard to answer but it has been the case, as a matter of fact we raised the age here to 17 years.

MR. HIGGINS: They are more dangerous than a car.

MR. MAKINSON: More dangerous to the driver but not to the general public.

MR. HIGGINS: If you give it to younger people under this clause the boys here will wonder why they are not allowed to drive.

MR. MAKINSON: For a point of information; I do not see any provision made that a tractor must be licensed. Was there not in the old Act some provision whereby a tractor might operate between fields using the highway?

MR. SPENCER: If they have to cross the highway they must have a license.

MR. CURTIS: Just get a permit to cross and things like that?

MR. MAKINSON: Do you mean to say a farmer with a tractor going a limited distance perhaps a mile or a half mile whose farm extends along a mile or so of the highway has to have all his equipment licensed?

MR. SPENCER: There is some special permit dealing with that. With respect to the point raised by the honourable Leader of the Opposition all I can say is that motor-bike operators, since these machines have been in the country, are allowed to operate down to seventeen years of age. It was down to sixteen but I hesitate very much to change it under the present situation. We might bring in something to restrict their taking advantage of the Highway Act and speeding far more than motorcars; they are getting pretty reckless, it may be necessary to do something about that.

MR. HIGGINS: Under 29 (3)—what is meant by character?

MR. SPENCER: I think we have to give legal sanction here. We had a case very recently, last year, where the operator was a victim of epileptic fits and was involved in an accident due to his physical condition and of course his license was cancelled. The individual has probably recovered somewhat and has not had a relapse and he recently applied again and we still refused. We have authority to refuse under this Act and when we refused him he went to a medical practitioner who passed him as being physically fit and said we should issue a license. He sent that along and we were not satisfied and we sent it to our medical officer, to the Deputy Minister of Health and he came back with a ruling that in accordance with all the regulations he was unfit to receive a driver's license and two days later we received a cable from the medical practitioner that he had had another fit and "for God's sake" do not issue him a license. It covers just such cases as that and the word "character" does not enter in so much except that a person shows himself to be entirely unfit.

MR. CURTIS: We have to be very careful. I happened to be solicitor in that case and I found the Commissioner was stupid and arrogant. The doctor in the Department of Health gave the decision without looking at the evidence and gave an affidavit which mis-stated the facts. I just say that because we must be sure it is not abused.

MR. HEFFERTON: Section 30 (2)—could you tell me what is the system in the other provinces? I could have gotten a license in Halifax but in New Brunswick it takes a king to get a license there.

MR. SPENCER: The laws differ in the various provinces and as to your personal experience in New Brunswick last year I do know that in other provinces that was not so. I was engaged just a few years ago on the mainland with a contracting firm moving all equipment to Quebec and Quebec is supposed to be most difficult to deal with on that matter, we went in to have some work done for a contracting firm and we had to have all vehicles re-licensed and pay the fee in Quebec. Regarding the question I can merely say it is a difference in regulation in the various Provinces and we extend the same courtesy here as do the other Provinces near us.

MR. MAKINSON: Not for business purposes?

MR. SPENCER: A permit for three months if they are licensed on the Mainland.

MR. CHAIRMAN: It being now six o'clock we will leave the Chair until 8:00 o'clock.

NIGHT SESSION

The House met at 8 o'clock.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act Relating to the Use and Operation of Vehicles on Highways and for Other Purposes."

MR. CHAIRMAN: I think we just completed section 30—page 15.

Sections 31 to 34 read and passed.

Section 35 (a), (b), (c), read and passed.

Section 35 (d) read.

MR. RUSSELL: In section 35 (d) it is an offence to refuse to surrender upon demand. What about if it is just requested to be returned?

MR. SPENCER: The understanding is that the Minister of the Department would not ask for the return of the license without jurisdiction for it, for instance if the owner's condition rendered him an unsafe person to hold a license.

MR. RUSSELL: If you are going to have section 25 you must have a penalty.

MR. SPENCER: Penalties come on page 79, section 119.

MR. HORWOOD: We understand from this section that from the day a man is charged with an offense his license is automatically cancelled? I am not making a mistake. It is not when convicted but suspended when charged, whether he is guilty or not. Is that the intention of this clause?

MR. SPENCER: In reply, the situation now is that as soon as a man is charged his license is automatically suspended by the Department. If however, he is subsequently not proven guilty his license is returned. The main reason for that particular clause I understand in many cases in the past, I do not know about many, but certain cases, where persons have been charged with possibly manslaughter or something of that kind and there was nothing whatsoever to prevent that person from immediately going out and causing another manslaughter case so that, no, we are suspending the license and as soon as a man is proven innocent his license is returned.

MR. HIGGINS: Was there not a case a little while ago where a man up on indictment before his trial committed another offense?

MR. HORWOOD: I cannot say I entirely agree with the clause. It could be regarded as suspending a right and consequently would be a form of punishment.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is not a right.

MR. HORWOOD: No, in a sense it is a certain privilege granted certain persons.

MR. FAHEY: The point I would like to make is: supposing a driver's license is suspended and the trial did not come off possibly for six months, he could be inconvenienced all that time and be still proven innocent.

MR. SPENCER: Yes, that is the actual position.

MR. HIGGINS: That has to be, if a man up on indictment went out and before trial killed another person, what would anybody say?

MR. SPENCER: In the meantime the court has jurisdiction to say whether the offence was serious enough to justify taking away the license.

Section 35 (d) passed.

Section 35 (e) read and passed.

Section 36 (1) read.

MR. RUSSELL: In section 36—why does it refer to the Criminal Code?

MR. SPENCER: In case of drunken driving.

Section 36 (1) passed.

Section 36 (2) read and passed.

Section 37 read and passed.

Section 38 read.

MR. FOGWILL: What is meant by the word "Misconduct" in Clause 38?

MR. SPENCER: We more or less explained that clause this afternoon when the honourable member referred to the word "character." It is pretty much the same here. If the license be suspended for misconduct the Minister has power under that clause of misconduct to suspend licenses or cancel them if necessary. It is very much the same as the explanation of the word "character" the honourable member for St. John's East referred to this afternoon. It is not meant for ordinary misconduct which might not affect a driving license in any way.

Section 38 passed.

Sections 39 to 41 read and passed.

Section 42 read.

MR. FAHEY: I would like to ask the Minister under 42 (c)—fees to be paid for such licenses—does that mean that the Minister, through rulings with the Lieutenant-Governor in Council can issue the fees on motor cars?

MR. SPENCER: Only with the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

MR. FAHEY: It means the Lieutenant-Governor in Council can increase the fees at any time. Increased them last year and raised them 50%.

Section 42 passed.

Sections 43 to 54 read and passed.

Section 55 (a) read.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, before you adopt section (a) of clause 55 I would ask the Committee to turn to page 31, at the foot of the page. It has become traditional in this House that no session of it should pass without a Dog Act and I see no likelihood of a Dog Act coming in this session and so that the dogs may not be ignored I suggest the insertion of the word "dog" in that section. I do not know if that is the best place to insert the word "dog" and probably the Minister of Public Works or the Minister of Labour thinks I am just joking, whereas the rest of us are very serious. I do not insist on it, and if the honourable Minister of Public Works can think of a better place to put it, we should do so.

MR. HIGGINS: I think we will spend many dog-days here before the House closes so that I ask that everything that is connected with dogs be suspended.

MR. SPENCER: The honourable Leader of the Opposition has expressed my thoughts but in the reading and passing of lengthy legislation of this type, I think, with all respect to the honourable Premier, he is endeavouring to bring a little humour into this session for the benefit of the members sitting here. With reference to the inclusion of the word "dog" here I think it is much better dealt with when it is brought in from time to time by the Department of Natural Resources, and we in the Department of Public Works have sufficient to do to try to look after vehicles, to worry much about dogs.

MR. HIGGINS: It might be suggested you add elephants, ostriches and other animals.

MR. CHAIRMAN: I rule the word "dog" out of order.

Section 55 (a) to (x) read and passed.

Sections 56, 57, 58, read and passed.
Section 59 read.

MR. HEFFERTON: Section 59—does that mean all Traffic Orders must be published in the Newfoundland Gazette and otherwise? Should it not be and/or otherwise?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Formerly it was published only in the Gazette but Statutes are now published in other papers and may be produced as evidence in court.

MR. HIGGINS: The great advantage there was that the Gazette is a small paper and anybody wanting to find an item, it is handy. That is all. If I pick up the Telegram or the Daily News I would not know where to find it. People are supposed to know the law. That is the only advantage.

MR. SPENCER: The reason for this in the clause is principally to provide the authority for the Chief of Police regulating traffic in the City on special days, such as Regatta Day, or special holidays or when special functions are taking place, and I think that has been very well dealt with. We in the Public Works merely approve of the action taken and are glad to pass that authority on to him. Having done this we do not need to worry so much about the publication, according to this Act it has to be in the Gazette but in addition it is published in the daily papers, as everybody is well aware.

MR. MORGAN: Is the word highway taken to be street in the City of St. John's?

MR. SPENCER: Yes.

Section 59 passed.

Section 60 read and passed.

Section 61 read.

MR. FAHEY: Under 61—suppose any person converted an old car or vehicle into use for a convenience round the farm, would he not be permitted to have the same concessions as farm equipment? Are there licenses to go with that or are they just left to the Minister's discretion?

MR. SPENCER: The honourable member will find the clause has some elasticity in this sense; if the owner uses such vehicle merely for use on his own farm and not on the highway the fees are remitted. In the matter of crossing the highway, say his farm is on both sides of the highway and adjoining to it, he could obtain a permit to cross the highway, he is not supposed to use it for transportation purposes, if he does he is liable for regular fees.

MR. MARINSON: He is allowed to cross but not to travel at all? That is a point which I think is very important. Does it not mean a vehicle may proceed along the highway which is bordering the farm, otherwise the farmer will have to get a permit for each of these vehicles or trailers going between farms and travelling perhaps a distance of half a mile thus paying three times the license that others do.

MR. SPENCER: In such cases as the honourable member for Port de Grave referred to there is a special fee for a farm tractor, a very nominal fee actually, I believe about $3.00, and if a trailer is used and attached to such tractor, it is about half the fee of the tractor. So there are regulations to cover it but it is also obvious that nobody may use either of those vehicles along the highway or any portion thereof without paying a regular fee for it. On page 89 (2), "In respect of motor vehicles, being a traction engine not ordinarily used on a highway but which is required to be driven upon a highway in order that it may be moved to or from any place where it is ordinarily used, a license may be issued on such terms as the Minister may determine."

I take it that clause shows that a motor vehicle which must travel on the highway has to pay a nominal fee of that type but it does not demand that farmers or other owners have to pay what is considered a nominal fee for such vehicles. In other words they are not crippled there.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I think this: I once had a farm tractor at Gander and used it for farming and saw-milling and I had occasion from time to time to move the tractor from one farm to some other near-by farm, and indeed I did some custom plowing with it, and for that purpose I used the highroads and I remember very definitely I did not have to pay any fee for that, nor did I have to have a license plate. This part of the regulations is something new. How long has that been the practice?

MR. SPENCER: Since the original Act in 1935. Perhaps you were breaking the law in not having a license plate.

MR. HIGGINS: It is statutory barred now.

MR. SMALLWOOD: If so, I plainly confess I broke the law—if that was the law. Surely a farm tractor ought not to be subject to any tax for moving along the road and I am quite sure the honourable Minister will be very sympathetic with that viewpoint and I would not be surprised were he the first to move that it be stricken out. I know he is completely sympathetic to the development of agriculture in Newfoundland and farmers should be exempt from this tax, for, after all, a man with a farm does not ordinarily use the road and would not use it more than one percent of the time and nearly all vehicles are rubber-tired, and only move from one farm to another. I know a case of a farmer doing a considerable amount of custom plowing with his own tractor and he has of course to move from one farm to another, work perhaps for eight hours on a farm, perhaps at night using headlights and often works until past midnight cleaning up a job on a farm and moves maybe ten miles to another farm and works there a day or two, and actually his use of the road is purely incidental, and surely Newfoundland is not so badly in need of revenue or so eager to get revenue that we need to impose that burden on farmers—surely that is the feeling of my honourable colleagues too.

MR. SPENCER: I would like to say that is exactly the position I take myself, dealing with that clause.

MR. HIGGINS: I do not see why regulations should be brought up here. We pass an Act and the regulations may be changed overnight. If we pass the fee here there would be no power to change it in the regulations. You cannot change a fee set.

Sections 61 passed.

Section 62 read and passed.

Section 63 read.

MR. SPRATT: I would like to ask the honourable Minister if the Municipal law in any way conflicts with the erection of signs. According to this Act would it not be better for the Department to set up signs uniform throughout the Province? I see here the signs delegated to the City may be different than on the highway. That may not work out, as I see it.

MR. SPENCER: In reply to the honourable Minister of Provincial Affairs I wish to point out that signs on the highways are definitely under the jurisdiction of the Department of Public Works and it is covered in section (4), on page 37, which reads:

"(4). A municipality to which the Minister has delegated the power to make regulations under sub-section (1) may, subject to the approval of the Minister, provide in the regulations for the erection of traffic signs of the kinds and descriptions approved by the Minister and the provisions of sections 47 and 51 shall apply mutatis mutandis in respect of such signs."

The actual position being we have control over the signs and our whole object is to work towards uniformity, and the Municipal Council may not place any sign within the city regarding the streets which have not been approved by our Department.

MR. RUSSELL: With regard to piling of logs on the side of the highway; if they are piled parallel to the highway they can constitute a hazard whereas at right angles it is much safer. Is there anything here giving power to regulate that?

MR. SPENCER: It is covered under Public Works Act; in fact we had occasion to remove telephone poles with the ends sticking out on the highway.

Section 63 passed.

Section 64 and 65 read and passed.

Section 66 read.

MR. HIGGINS: I wish to draw attention to one point in clause 66,

It includes moving the injured which perhaps could be the worst thing that could happen. In case a person has a broken back it is better to leave him alone; if a person is placed in a car while suffering from a broken pelvis or back, it could be fatal. If it is known to be law people will do it and that is dangerous. A person who is injured should be left until the doctor comes.

MR. SPENCER: It happens to be identical with legislation throughout the Dominion. The odd case may be detrimental, but in the great number of cases the need is to get the injured to medical aid as soon as possible.

Section 66 passed.

Sections 67 through 79 read and passed.

Section 80 read.

MR. HIGGINS: Under clause 80. Why gross negligence, why not say negligence?

MR. SPENCER: That is in our Act.

MR. HIGGINS: There is no such thing as gross negligence; negligence is the same thing. I understand it has been debated for a long time and each time it comes up the ruling is that the word "gross" does not change the meaning in any way, but it does not seem to do any harm and if we leave it there it will have little effect.

MR. FOGWILL: How would this section work out where a person was riding a vehicle with the owner who because of drinking, met with an accident, and the person was injured?

MR. SPENCER: Under the law there is no charge recognized unless there was negligence.

MR. HIGGINS: That is just a re-statement of the common law that if the owner and the driver of a car, through negligence, causes the guest to be injured, the guest has an action against him in any case.

MR. SPENCER: I wish to point out to the Committee that we are now approaching the sections of the Act regarding safety responsibility, and I feel we should read some sections not in before so that they may be able to approve or perhaps detect some flaw. I am fortunate in having the Assistant Deputy with me who is quite familiar with the construction of the Act.

MR. SPRATT: In section (2)—"the Minister shall suspend the driver's license in such cases," I think should be inserted there.

MR. SPENCER: That really applies to a case of one person being convicted there.

Section 80 passed.

Sections 82 through 84 read and passed.

Section 85 read.

MR. FAHEY: No. 85 (c)—Criminal Code—will the Minister explain that?

MR. SPENCER: I understand, in reply to the honourable member for Harbour Main-Bell Island, 284 covers where grievous bodily harm may be done, 285 covers drunken driving and 377 is applicable or refers to theft of motor vehicles.

Section 85 passed.

Section 86 through 88 read and passed.

Section 89 read.

MR. FAHEY: It says here on page 55, that any money deposited will be with the Minister of Finance. How is he taking care of that. Is he only given the right to hold on to it? Should there not be a clause that it should not go into general revenue?

MR. SPENCER: It is only held for the other person's account until such time as the action is satisfied.

MR. HIGGINS: What happens to the interest, as he is supposed to deposit $5,000.

MR. SPENCER: I understand the person for whom the money is held for any length of time would get the money including his interest. He is entitled to what he paid in, plus interest.

Section 89 passed.

Sections 89 through 105 read and passed.

Section 106 read.

MR. SPENCER: Section 106 (2) —the amount $15,000 should be $150,000.

Section 107 to 125 read and passed.

MR. SPENCER: Prior to rising the Committee, I would like to express, if I may, my appreciation of the co-operation given in getting through this rather lengthy piece of legislation. I realize it is a laborious job sitting here and reading every one of these Acts, but I realize too the necessity of editing them since we have not had time to do so, since they came from the printers. In that regard too, I wish to express my appreciation. It has been pointed out by the honourable Leader of the Opposition that we have the power under the Act to make regulations and it is not necessary to read all these; they are merely in for the benefit of the Committee, and I would be quite satisfied to read them if it is wished and if we pass this set of regulations here in the House this evening, we still have power to make slight changes.

The Committee rose, reported progress, and asked leave to sit again on tomorrow.

End of Order Paper.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I move the House do adjourn until tomorrow, Wednesday, at three of the clock.

The House adjourned accordingly.

Honourable the Minister of Public Works to ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act Respecting Automobile Insurance."

Bill read a first time. Ordered to be read a second time on tomorrow.

Orders of the Day

Second reading of a Bill "An Act to Amend the St. John's Municipal Act."

HON. J. R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, on this motion may I say that the House finds itself in a very unfortunate position as a result of a fire that took place last night in the building of the King's Printers, who, as the House is aware, prints the Bills for the House. There are some 25 Bills, more or less, in the hands of the printers at this moment for printing and we still do not know where we stand in regard to these Bills as a result of the fire. It may be that we will be considerably delayed in getting these Bills here in the House. Just what arrangements can be made I do not see as yet. I do not know if the Bills were set up in type and partly printed and the paper severely damaged by water or whether the Bills were merely set up in type and the paper has been damaged by water. If the latter is the case it is merely a matter of moving the type itself to another printing office and get the actual printing done there. We will not know about it until the day is over. In the meantime as the House would not normally meet on Saturday, and tomorrow is a holiday, and in view of the situation at the King's Printers, I propose to move today when we complete what business we have, the adjournment of the House until Monday, in the hope that we will meet, for we cannot do business if the Bills are not printed. This fire is just an unfortunate incident which has cropped up and may cause some delay. I move that the order be deferred, Mr. Speaker, and that the next two orders also be deferred and that we defer Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means and go on to the third readings.

Motion carried.

Third reading of Bill "An Act to Provide for the Establishment of Family Courts."

Bill read a third time and passed.

Third reading of Bill "An Act Further to Amend Chapter 127 'Of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series) and entitled 'Of Companies'."

Bill read a third time and passed.

Third reading of Bill "An Act to Provide for Operation and Control of a Fund to Meet in Whole or Part the Cost of Replacement of Government Property Destroyed by Fire and Other Destructive Hazards."

Bill read a third time and passed.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act Relating to the Use and Operation of Vehicles on Highways and for Other Purposes."

HON. LESLIE R. CURTIS (Attorney General): It is agreed last night to call the regulations by number as those passed now may be amended by the Minister at any time.

MR. MILLER: The thought has just struck me with respect to No. 5: as it is now compulsory to carry a license on one's person we might have a second one.

MR. CURTIS: It is always a good idea.

MR. MILLER: Then one would not have to think about getting it every time.

MR. SMALLWOOD: To have two issued at the same time is merely a matter of administrative detail for the Department itself. If there were enough pressure for that and it was known to be useful no doubt it could be arranged. It need not be inserted here but would be an administrative arrangement.

MR. CURTIS: I got a second one last year when I lost mine.

MR. JOHN J. HIGGINS (Leader of Opposition): Under 7 (D) does that also mean tricycles?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Just motor cycles. It does not include vehicles used by human power, they have to be motor driven.

Carried.

MR. SMALLWOOD: In respect of motor vehicles, being a traction engine not ordinarily used on a highway. . . . A license may be used on payment of a fee of $3.00, and the fee included one set of identification plates. That is in regard to farm tractors of which we spoke yesterday and while I have no possible objection to issuance of licences for such vehicles or machines, it does seem to me that there ought to be a charge for that licence and this clause provides for payment of a fee of $3.00, and the issuance of a set of identification plates. Now in the nature of things they don't need to have identification plates and ought not pay a fee of $3.00 and if the honourable the Attorney General, with or without the assistance of the Leader of the Opposition, who are both lawyers, would suggest an amendment.

MR. HIGGINS: How much do identification plates cost?

MR. CURTIS: Replacements are $2.00.

MR. SMALLWOOD: But what is the need of farm tractors having identification plates? In days of Commission of Government they introduced a coloured gasoline for use by fishermen and they provided also that farmers would be licensed to receive the pure Acto. I know, I had a licence myself for Acto for a tractor, permitting us to use Acto. Surely we cannot charge the farmers a fee for his infinitesimal use of the highway. Why charge him anything, he is not driving for pleasure or profit, merely moving along because it is the only way he can get from one farm to another.

MR. HIGGINS: That is not the point. Is it the intention not to give identification plates?

MR. CURTIS: It seems to me a vehicle like that may well block traffic and may not be driven properly on the road. Take "Concrete Products"—they are moving tractors all the time.

HON. JAMES J. SPRATT (Minister of Provincial Affairs): Could you not add something to it as section (4)?

MR. FAHEY: I know farmers who have old trucks converted for use on the farm but not operated on the highway. The reason is in some places they can use old trucks and get them fitted up for that purpose. I think we should have a reference to equipment used for farming.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Obviously we will have to draw the line between a truck and a truck-converted tractor for I know cases where trucks are used virtually as tractors, the truck is loaded with rocks and chains are put on the tires and it is put in four-wheel drive and in some ways it is better than a tractor, but the same truck driven around on the roads without the chains is exactly like any other truck and if a truck is used in that way to abuse the privilege I have all the sympathy in the world for the idea of the honourable gentleman, but I think he will see on reflection if it includes motor trucks; it would be impossible to know whether it was being properly operated on the road or not.

MR. FAHEY: I had in mind cases where I know people who have old trucks and cars and have them converted for farm equipment, and sometimes have to cross the roads and go along them to get to another section of their farm. I had a complaint, in fact, from one member in my district who was not allowed to go through a certain section without a license and he had to pay the full license and I saw the truck—he could not use it on the road. If it is a matter of identification plates, could they not be issued a type of plates which could not be used for general purposes?

MR. SMALLWOOD: The special plates cost very much more.

MR. FAHEY: Suppose some motor manufacturers, General Motors or someone else, put, out the tractors in the shape of a model T Ford, would they be considered as tractors?

MR. SMALLWOOD: If they were farm tractors, yes. My honourable friend gives an example of a truck converted into some sort of farm tool, useless except as a farm tool; now I have already given an example of a four-wheel drive truck being used as a tractor for farm purposes by putting on chains and filling the truck with rocks; it has weight, traction and power, but there is nothing in the world to prevent the owner of the truck from going anywhere on the road. How are we to draw the distinction, we are going to be lost if we include more than tractors, home-made or not, but they should be tractors.

MR. CURTIS: I wonder if we just left the words on page 79 and struck out the words "On payment of a fee of three dollars and the fee includes one set of identifications;" and add the words "On such terms as would give him the latitude to give it free or make conditions of use." It is quite possible some people would abuse that and these things are hard on the road if they are allowed to go indiscriminately. I suggest that because the less we alter the construction for the printer the better.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Of course with Order in Council the Minister can be instructed to make a certain regulation. If the Committee would be willing to trust the administration in that matter and accept our good faith and desire to be of help in this matter to the farmer, the suggestion of the honourable the Attorney General would be a good one and at least while this administration is in power they will continue to have the same sympathetic attention. So that a license may be issued on certain terms.

MR. CURTIS: You take a man with a lot of machinery which he moves along from place to place. You must have control of those things.

Amendment moved and seconded.

HON. S. J. HEFFERTON (Minister of Education): I have been in all sorts of cars, some with no meter or speedometer on them. I just wonder what attempt is made to check up on the deficiencies in a car?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman before the honourable the Minister of Public Works replies to that, what the honourable Minister of Education has said is that he requests legislation against his own neglect, he has just confessed driving a car without rear vision or speedometer or fenders and presumably with some type of elementary brake on her and he thinks he ought to be protected against it.

MR. HEFFERTON: That is right in part.

MR. CURTIS: I think he will have to take a chance on that and when he is involved in any offense he will be checked up for it.

MR. HEFFERTON: Under Sub-section 4—Section 52—public vehicles should be equipped with a lot of things, yet yesterday afternoon I happened to drive up immediately behind a pick-up and in it were some ten or twelve men and some standing and two or three on the tail-board and it was for me a most uncomfortable drive from the driveway here to the entrance of Prince of Wales Street. It seems to me there should be some consideration given to this type of thing. A person may be jerked off and the driver behind has no time whatsoever to keep from piling on top of him; and looking at this regulation I can't see anything to cover that point.

MR. MAKINSON: In some Provinces on the Mainland nobody may be carried in that type of pick-up other than helpers. Here in Newfoundland it may be impossible, to enforce. However, it is dangerous as some Provinces have found out.

HON. E. S. SPENCER (Minister of Public Works): I appreciate the point raised by the honourable member the Minister of Education and referred to by the honourable member for Port de Grave in connection with hazardous driving but the trucks in this Province, as has been pointed out by the honourable member for Port de Grave very often, make it convenient for people to get out in the country and it might be very well left to the regulations. I will take note of it, as I am aware there is not a particular clause in the regulations thus far referring to that particular clause raised, but on page 101 (h) there is a clause covering the seating capacity which indicates that those who drafted the regulations are sufficiently aware that these will be glad to make a note of it, and will find out if we cannot get some regulations published which might probably help to save a life or something of that kind and should certainly prevent accidents. All we may be able to do would be to say "people carrying passengers under those conditions should not carry them at the risk of injury or hazard to people so carried." I appreciate however the point raised by the honourable Minister of Education and will, as I say, undertake to have a clause drafted and published with a view to trying to eliminate such hazard.

MR. SPRATT: I think we will be reaching the maximum when we accomplish something that will deal with the matter of trucks carrying men. I have had quite a long experience with regard to trucks carrying heavy loads, particularly human life, men coming home in the evening. You get many men working on a building and some have a long distance to go and when a truck is going along the route it is only natural for a man to get a drive home and the truck driver is not going to refuse taking a man, tired after a hard day's work. There is no use in making laws a laughing stock, it is a waste of time and money and strikes me as ridiculous to be inserting clauses and passing regulations cannot be enforced, and this is one of the instances where they will not be carried out.

MR. HIGGINS: That is all right until someone is in an accident. I remember coming from Bell Island years ago and seeing the boats so crowded that some people said they were going to sink, but there was not a word said until many people were drowned in an accident.

MR. SPRATT: They might be killed walking home.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The thought occurs to me, as I glance at some of these clauses, that they are all very sound and very desirable but that the average motorist is not likely, except when he contravenes one of these laws and is apprehended and brought into court, to know very much about them. They are a dead letter insofar as the average motorist is concerned. Would it not be practical and a good thing to have a sort of a recapitulation of the more immediately important of these regulations compiled and printed in a small booklet to be issued to the motorist when he gets his driver's licence. Would that be a practical thing to do? Could the most relevant and important of these regulations be drawn up in simple language in a booklet and given to drivers. For example take Clause 76, page 108 "Shall not permit the vehicle to remain in a stationary position on the highway whether for the temporary taking up or discharging of passengers or goods or for any other purposes, except upon the right side of the highway and in any one of the following positions: (a) (b) (c). Now take those two items: how many times have each one of us driving over the highway seen that principle violated? Every one of us has seen it violated scores of times and it may well be that those who violate it are not aware of it. That just occurs to me now as I read these clauses.

MR. HIGGINS: If it is a reasonable law, a reasonable man is expected to do it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Many people are probably not aware that they are actually breaking the law when they fail to do it. Now, I wonder if the honourable the Minister of Public Works would not agree that he would be rendering a first class piece of public service if he were to order his Department to prepare a synopsis in simple language of the more important of these regulations and issue to all motorists and distribute to them on getting their driver's licence. Now further, I think he would be justified if he charged a small fee to cover the cost of the printing. I agree you don't do that ordinarily when a law is passed, don't make a precis of the laws and print them as a pamphlet and sell them to the public, but here is a case where life and limb are at stake and if it is justifiable to refuse a licence to a motorist, except under certain circumstances and conditions, certainly it should be justified that he purchase at a modest fee of say, 25c., a booklet prepared to give an outline of these regulations and I think it would have to state that any omission of reference to a certain section of the law, was not to be regarded as exemption from that law, or something of that order. I don't mean to press the honourable Minister to commit himself on that except insofar as he feels like doing so but I would ask him to give it his mature consideration and I think, if he would it would be a signal public service in Newfoundland and might be the means of saving half a dozen lives in the course of the next five or six years, in which case he would be a life-saver as well as Minister of Public Works.

MR. SPRATT: I would like to draw attention to Section 76 (a) where it reads "The right front wheel and the right rear wheel shall be within eighteen inches of the edge of the driving surface of the highway." This is an actual, specific distance, this should read more or less because after all a man may park within the law and not be exactly eighteen inches and he could be prosecuted in the court for a violation of that law.

MR. SMALLWOOD: A note has just been handed to me by a gentleman in the press gallery which says there is a booklet "The Motorist Manual" now obtainable from the Motorists Organization and can be obtained from the Motor registration department; it is not however as complete as I suggested. It appears my honourable colleague has already issued something of the nature of a booklet and has been hiding his light under a bushel.

MR. SPENCER: I am sure we all appreciate the point raised by the honourable Premier and the comments by my honourable colleague the member for St. John's West, but I think if I might deal with the last one—first 76 (a): I take it the interpretation there might be more clear, as he suggested, that the words were written as "not less than 18 inches;" I think the word "within" covers it. Maybe we could insert there "not more than 18 inches." I would like to point out further that the honourable Premier has already discovered through the kindness of somebody from the press gallery, that there is already such a booklet; true it is not complete but to go further and compile and publish a pamphlet with all the regulations here would be a rather expensive undertaking and whether or not the department would be justified in publishing a booklet of that nature I am not competent to say, but I rather feel that the public is supposed to make itself cognizant of the law. However, I appreciate the point raised by the honourable the Premier and his idea to make it as clear as possible to all motorists. It might well be that some organization such as the Motorists Organization might be inclined to do something further along that line. However, I am glad the point has been raised and we are only too anxious to co-operate with the driving public with a view to having them as familiar as possible with the regulations. It is standard practice, most members will readily understand, to publish regulations in the Gazette and once they are gazetted they are law. But if it would help to get somebody interested sufficiently to publish still further information we would be glad to do so. Now, I think, Mr. Chairman, we should refer to section 76 (a) for classification.

We could have the word "within" striken out and the word "form" inserted in its place.

MR. HORWOOD: There is something I would like the honourable Minister to explain to me: This regulation forbids cars to park on the left side of the road. I have often wondered why parking on the left is more dangerous than on the right, as a matter of fact it is very commonly done and the only difference is the way the car is headed.

MR. FAHEY: You have to cross the traffic to get there and back again.

MR. HEFFERTON: I might add—

MR. SPENCER: Of course, Mr. Chairman, it is rather difficult to deal with the point in the Municipality of St. John's, there are certain streets on which you may not park on either side of the street and in certain places parking may not be done at all. Now on Water Street there has been a regulation for some time to try and prevent parking on the North side of the Street whether right or left. It does not say right or left but merely says "On the North side of the Street," and the same thing applies to the reference of the honourable member for Labrador as to parking on the left or right; he may be referring to certain places out along the highway, certainly not in the city.

MR. HORWOOD: Suppose a car were proceeding West on Water Street, what harm is caused while still facing West to park on the South side of Water Street? It is no more dangerous than parked with the right side to the curb. One place, in front of the Government Offices behind Newfoundland Hotel you park wherever you happen to be on either side of the street. It is the only way to avoid the drain.

MR. SPENCER: I don't propose to enter into a general discussion, Mr. Chairman, although I don't object to the point raised by the honourable member for Labrador, yet I don't propose to enter into a general discussion regarding the parking of vehicles in the city of St. John's. There is a traffic committee appointed to deal with that matter and they are having a difficult time. One point raised by the honourable member was that he did not see anything wrong with parking with the left side of the car to the curb and that going West on Water Street there is nothing wrong with the car heading West but obviously it is wrong to be there when one must drive on the right, that is in itself a breach. However, the honourable member will appreciate we are not trying to readjust traffic in the city of St. John's and these regulations are definitely not meant to be applicable to St. John's, but really to try and regulate traffic bordering the highway and I would say, in the main, outside the Municipality. There appears to be two or three governing bodies for the rulings and regulations concerned and only yesterday morning a committee of the Cabinet met and held a meeting with the Municipal Council and His Worship the Mayor and all the Councillors and the Engineer and Secretary, etc., and during the course of that meeting the main point under discussion was traffic. It is generally considered by the Municipality that we of the Public Works are a short-stop for any lack of control or anything that goes wrong within the city of St. John's. We in the Department of Public Works are not responsible for the city of St. John's traffic, it is a nightmare that does not belong to us at all. The responsibility has not been placed where it should be and nevertheless that situation has been brought about largely by the fact the Municipal Council did not have powers broad enough at one time to take control and are now financially handicapped and feel they cannot take any additional responsibility until they have the necessary funds, and until such time as that is properly ironed out I confess to the honourable committee or the honourable member who raised this point, I do not desire to get into a contentious argument. It cannot be settled here as far as traffic in the city of St. John's is concerned. The honourable member is a citizen who probably lived here most of his life, I don't know, but he knows the city as well as I do and until such time as arrangements can be made for the Municipality to take control of this function which rightfully should belong to it, signs, and traffic, and that sort of thing, it is going to be difficult. Right now if they want a sign up, they come to the Department of Public Works and we have to go down and put it up in order to avoid accidents or something of that kind. However, I sincerely hope that in the not too distant future things will be ironed out.

MR. SPRATT: Not in the way of criticism, I would like to call the honourable Minister's attention to section 76 (c). The rear wheels of the vehicle shall be as close as practicable to the edge of the driving surface of the highway and the front of the vehicle shall extend across the highway, but so as to interfere as little as possible with traffic. Now, to my mind, I don't think that is the right way to have that written. My suggestion would be that it be amended to read: "The rear wheels of the vehicle as close as practicable to the edge of the driving surface of the highway and the front of the vehicle shall extend across the road not so as to interfere with traffic." Not "little as possible." That to my mind would be the better way of putting it. I would move, Sir, that alteration be made.

MR. HEFFERTON: I don't see any particular objection to the amendment but I think the word "now" should be inserted between "as" and "to" and that "as little as possible with" be deleted.

Motion carried.

MR. MILLER: I think if you look at (b) I think the amendment would apply also to (b).

Carried.

MR. HIGGINS: No. 88. Does that come under the Department of the Attorney General, the speed limit? If it does, I recommend they take some better means to see the law is carried out, better than at present. The speed limit is broken day after day as any citizen can see, hundreds of times. The worst part of all is the lower part of Military Road and the junction at the top of Military Road and to go up there at 35 or 40 miles an hour on Military Road seems a terrible speed.

MR. HEFFERTON: All this is for outside St. John's.

MR. HIGGINS: Neither inside nor outside the city of St. John's is any attempt made. Only yesterday a man was telling me he is afraid to send his children to school every day and I know at 9 o'clock hundreds of children and vehicles come close to the curb. At one time I was struck in the arm near Barnes Road; it is a recognized bottle-neck, and if children going to school are considered, fifteen miles is fast enough. I have seen cars going 40 and 50 miles an hour. No wonder parents are frightened out of their lives. I have one boy and I am afraid every day he will be killed. I would suggest that with these regulations made, whether inside or outside the city, there should be proper equipment given to the police, a small motor car the same as in other countries. Get a few drivers and that would stop it. It is foolish to make regulations without seeing they are carried out.

MR. CURTIS: I am very glad this point has been brought up. It is our intention to police the city by patrol cars just as soon as we reduce the police force. The cost of policing St. John's is too great.

MR. HIGGINS: And I don't mean sending motorcycles out on the road. I remember once going to Harbour Grace in heavy weather and seeing a motorcycle police in the snow and ice who had no protection. I offered him a drink but he would not take it and he had to drive on then for 25 miles in that raging snowstorm, so I took a chance on offering him a drink, and if I broke the law I thought the authorities were not charitable and I would sooner break the law than be uncharitable. To send a man out on a day like that is unnatural.

MR. CURTIS: The speed limit in the city is ridiculous, 20 miles an hour for the city of St. John's is in my opinion crazy.

MR. HIGGINS: There is nothing gained by a higher speed except about a minute.

MR. CURTIS: A decent car does not go that slow and I think there would be less stalling and less accidents and the traffic in the city would be 100% better if drivers were not expected to keep in a twenty mile limit.

MR. HIGGINS: I don't think anybody ever bothers about the 20-mile law.

MR. CURTIS: It is unfortunate to have to break the law every time a man goes from his home to his office.

MR. HORWOOD: We all break it every time on a highway, under this section 88. I don't believe there is any member of this House even tries to keep to the 25 miles an hour limit on the highway, slow down on curves yes, but, my gosh, if you can see 200 yards ahead you proceed until you see a car approaching from the other direction, then slow down.

MR. HIGGINS: That law was passed when the roads were narrower.

HON. JAMES R. CHALKER (Minister of Public Health): The average speed around the Bay is 40 miles an hour except on Sunday afternoons.

MR. HIGGINS: On narrow roads that is very dangerous.

MR. CURTIS: The speed limit around the Bay is much higher.

Motion carried.

MR. MILLER: I think that a speed limit of 35 miles an hour should be made in case of some roads. Surely on a narrow gravel road 35 miles an hour might be alright to keep traffic down to that, although I would like to point out that for many of the larger settlements running between eighty and one hundred miles from St. John's if a motorist kept to a speed limit of 35 miles an hour it would mean four hours drive to get to the city and unless a man gets up very early it would be eleven or twelve o'clock when a lot of people are already lined up at the Controllers. I have in mind the American highway, a very wide road, and I consider that 35 miles there in respect to that road can't be compared and if motorists were permitted to do 35 miles an hour before that road was built, why today it ought to be wide open. But I really do think when roads are beyond a certain width to actually touch fifty and get by at sixty where a motorist has not to be much concerned with passing traffic is all right, and I think some instructions or authority ought to be given to put signs up whereby the speed on just such roads may be increased.

MR. CURTIS: I think we should let 35 stand, I think there is a lot in what the honourable members said and it is ridiculous to drive a car from here to Placentia and not exceed a speed of 35 miles an hour, even if it is an opposition District, we are not punishing them.

MR. HIGGINS: On any unpaved highway—Does that mean to say where it branches off at Whitbourne, the Hodgwater Line, you are not allowed to go over 35 miles an hour. On the Hodgwater Line it may be enough.

MR. HEFFERTON: You are not allowed on the Argentia Road either, I agree too there should be a width but we might let it stand and when the Minister comes in we may pass this.

MR. HIGGINS: In any case on the Placentia Road they all go along at 50 and 60 miles and have to slow down in many places so that there is an average of 35 miles an hour.

MR. CURTIS: I understand the honourable member for Placentia-St. Mary's would like to increase this limit. You will find the man who drafted this Act probably does not drive a car.

MR. SPRATT: That is a matter which requires very serious attention and consideration; anyone driving over the Avalon Peninsula at a time when traffic is so congested can go 25 miles an hour and be in great danger. I know I have been over and am going over every day and night and the time is come when there should be great care taken in making rules and laws and regulations for the safety of the public for it is nothing but an anomaly in mind, making laws on the one side and encouraging accidents on the other. It is an outrage. There is no need for 40 miles an hour.

MR. MILLER: I think the honourable Minister of Provincial Affairs will appreciate the fact that there are 30 odd miles of that road, where I say 25 miles is not presently safe, but the burden is on all the motorists and if anyone wants to have a real trying experience let him ride that run on Sunday night from 8:00 o'clock to 10:00 or 11:00 o'clock and that will be something to remember. I have seen more cars forced off the road by pedestrians any time I came in during the Convention days on Sunday nights. It is difficult to avoid the people on the road, and until such time as real stringent laws are enforced to ascertain whose right it is, the right of the motorist to get along or a gang-up of pedestrians who get in the way, then one might as well sit down and wait until twelve o'clock to come in when the pedestrian traffic has moved off. Consequently, you are always going to have that condition until such time, in my opinion, as the Trans-Canada Highway does not come through these settlements, then these settlements will have the burden of keeping up the roads. It is a mess for that 20 odd miles but when you do open up the wide open road in the country it is too ridiculous to keep to a somewhat similar speed to that used through the towns.

MR. SPRATT: I fully appreciate the remarks of the honourable member for Placentia and St. Mary's and I would be the last to put an impediment in his way but the point I want to make was this: that we have to be particularly careful about the speed of the motorists. I have been in cars myself when I have had to call on God to protect me. I know the danger, I am not a preacher, I am speaking common sense and there are people here driving 80 and 90 miles an hour and who is the protector of the public? We are supposed to be looked upon as trying to make laws and regulations and get inspectors to help the public and protect the public and that is what I want to see. Any man going in the country to enjoy himself and take his wife and children wants to enjoy himself with safety, doesn't want to be subject to nervous prostration all the way along the road with cars passing you at how many miles an hour? I would like to find the gentleman to tell you—it is a case of where a desperate measure is needed, a desperate remedy, and one thing I am sorry for today is that I am on the wrong side of the equator as far as life is concerned, but for that, Mr. Chairman, I would revolutionize this city. I would. I think this is the time when great men are needed, men who are fearless and not afraid to express their opinion regardless of whom they offend. I have sat here for a long time, but the water is beginning to boil in me now, Mr. Chairman, and I can only express my regret we are at the end of the session and I hope God will spare me for another session.

MR. CURTIS: Page 62, clause 95 sub-section (2) is amended by the following words being added to this clause: "And the Minister may cancel licences issued in respect of any such vehicle if the vehicle is not covered by the insurance required by the Minister."

Motion carried.

Report received and adopted. The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments.

Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Amend the Co-operative Society Act, 1939."

Sections 1 through 3 read and passed.

MR. KEOUGH: Section 4—Sub-section (5). There was a line dropped in the printing of that Bill and I move it be inserted. "Request in writing the Registrar will effect the change."

MR. HIGGINS: You don't want the change to be made public?

MR. KEOUGH: The law requires that a person who becomes a member of the club must have certain qualifications.

Section 4 passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with no amendments.

Report received and adopted. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

MR. CURTIS: As the honourable the Premier has informed the House, as yet we do not know where we are due to the fire which took place on Duckworth Street in the King's Printers Office. This morning I was in touch with Mr. Moore who is in charge of the printing establishment and I went through the plant and, fortunately, I don't think any of the manuscripts have been destroyed but it was a mess. It may be used again and certainly everything will have to be cleared thoroughly. There is water on the floor and the whole place is covered with water and the linotype has been injured, and I don't see much object in having the House meet again until the Bills are ready for us, I move the House at its rising adjourn until Monday, at 3:00 of the clock.

House adjourned accordingly.

MONDAY, May 28, 1951.

The House opened at three of the clock.

HON. DR. H. L. POTTLE (Minister of Public Welfare): Mr. Speaker, I should like to present to the House a statement on the recent Dominion-Provincial Conference relating to old age security, with special reference to this Province.

Last December the Provinces, in consultation with the Dominion, adopted recommendations of the Joint Parliamentary Committee on Old Age Security. These recommendations were briefly as follows:

1. That a flat, uniform benefit of $40 a month should be made available to all persons seventy years of age and over. The scheme, administered by the Federal Government, should be based on a system of contributions and eligibility determined solely by age and residence qualifications.

2. That for the age group 65-69 a plan of old age assistance should be introduced, subject to an eligibility test similar to the one now in operation for the over-70 group, and financed on a 50-50 basis by the Federal and Provincial Governments.

The December Conference also agreed, in the words of the Honourable the Prime Minister of Canada as given to the Press,

"That a continuing committee should be set up to consider the character of the legislation which would be appropriate respecting persons between the ages of 65 and 69 and to what groups thereof and under what conditions it should be made applicable in each Province."

It was to achieve these objects that the Conference of last week gave its full attention.

The sessions of the Conference throughout were conducted in a spirit of cordiality and co-operation. While no provincial representative could commit his government to major decisions, all expressed serious intention to work toward harmonious agreement. For my part, representing the Government of Newfoundland, at the opening session I stated a number of principles which I considered the Conference in its discussions ought to follow :

1. That whatever plan of old age security might be worked out, it should be adopted as closely as possible to the special circumstances of each province so as not to bring undue hardship on the Province in financing such a plan.

2. That the plan for the age group 65-69 should be a matter of assistance not of pension. The idea of pension gives the impression that earning power is at an end, which is undesirable at 65; whereas the idea of assistance suggests that the person is still expected to work and that the government benefit is a supplement to his casual earnings.

3. Further I maintained that in any plan of old age security there should be no more overlapping between the Federal and Provincial Governments than absolutely necessary. This point was endorsed by other speakers.

In more particular, all the Provinces agreed on important details of the legislation and of the kind of eligibility test (commonly known as the means test) that should be applied.

In the House of Commons on Friday last, May 25th, the Minister of National Health and Welfare stated that the Federal Government hoped to proceed with all the necessary legislation this year—that is, applying to persons over 70 and to those between 65-69, as well as to the blind.

In order, now, for us in Newfoundland to be in a better position to judge how, when and to what extent this legislation may apply, here I shall quote for the benefit of the House and our people at large part of a statement made to the press by the Minister of National Health and Welfare at the close of the Conference.

"It is naturally our hope," he said, "that all provinces will take uniform action on this matter, not only in the interests of equitable treatment for all Canadians but also in order to avoid the administrative complications which may otherwise arise. "Nonetheless," he continued, "if any province comes to the conclusion that it cannot, for reasons of its own, implement this part of the program (to the 65-69 age group) in its jurisdiction at the present time, or that it can only do so on a limited and partial basis, this will not affect the Federal Government's offer, as it applies to the other provinces."

If we apply this statement to Newfoundland then this is the situation :

The fact that the Federal Government will grant pensions to all persons over 70 does not thereby obligate the Government of Newfoundland, at the same time or any time thereafter, to put into effect a benefit plan for needy persons aged 65-69. Furthermore, any such plan may begin at age 66, 67, or 68. At whatever age it may begin is a matter for the Government of Newfoundland to decide by agreement with the Government of Canada. Still further, what classes of persons will qualify, whether handicapped only or on a wider basis, is likewise a matter for the Government of this Province to determine and likewise by agreement.

Another Conference will be called later in the year to work out the entire range of details to be covered in the body of regulations.

In the meantime the officials of my Department are already taking the necessary steps to assist the Federal Government in preparing for the introduction of the universal pension for persons over 70, and to follow up all others matters of importance arising out of the Conference affecting the administration of security for the aged and blind in Newfoundland.

Giving Notice of Motions and Questions

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Speaker, I give notice that I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce two Bills, one "An Act to Amend the Chapter 61 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) Entitled 'Of the St. John's Fire Department,'" and a Bill "An Act to Repeal Certain Newfoundland Statutes."

HON. P. S. FORSEY (Minister of Supply): Mr. Speaker, I give notice that I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Authorize the Lieutenant Governor in Council to Guarantee Payment of Bonds Issued by Town Councils." Also a Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Water and Sewerage Corporation of Great Corner Brook."

HON. E. S. SPENCER (Minister of Public Works): Mr. Speaker, I give notice that I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Amend the Department of Public Works (Amendment) Act, 1951." This is a very brief Bill.

DR. POTTLE: Mr. Speaker, I give notice that I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act Further to Amend the Land Development Act, 1944."

HON. J. R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, I give notice that I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Make Provision for the Granting of Loans to Certain Companies."

Orders of the Day

Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means, deferred.

Committee of the Whole on Supply, deferred.

Third reading of Bill "An Act Relative to the Use and Operation of Vehicles on Highways and for Other Purposes."

Bill read a third time and passed.

Third reading of Bill "An Act to Amend the Co-operative Societies Act, 1939."

Bill read a third time and passed.

Second reading of Bill "An Act Respecting Liability in Action for Damages for Negligence Where More than One Party is at Fault,"

MR. CURTIS: I beg to move the second reading of this Bill, Mr. Speaker. I think this Bill permits the courts in cases of motor car collisions, where more than one person is at fault, to assess the degree of fault in each case and give judgment accordingly, as it is now, the Court has to determine which party is liable and that party is responsible for all the loss. Under this Bill, if both parties are guilty it can be thrown out. Now under this legislation it is possible for the Court to determine the degree of responsibility for both parties and make both parties pay their share of the total loss in proportion to their liability. It is a measure the Courts have been asking for some time and I move the second reading of the Bill.

Bill read a second time.

MR. CURTIS: I wonder if the House would be prepared to go into Committee of this Bill now? I do not want to rush the Opposition and I am very nervous of the "Daily News" who seem to be critical of this, but nevertheless we still run the House. I move that we go into Committee of the Whole on this Bill later.

MR. SPEAKER: You may defer it, it is not a motion.

Second reading of a Bill, "An Act to Amend the Labour Relations Act, 1950" was deferred on motion.

Second reading of a Bill "An Act Respecting Automobile Insurance."

MR. CURTIS: I beg to move second reading of a Bill "An Act Respecting Automobile Insurance." At the moment we have in Newfoundland no insurance Act or Act respecting automobile insurance which provides that all policies are to be uniform. The result is that various companies in Newfoundland adopt their own conditions or they adopt statutory conditions which have become recognized in other provinces or countries.

The effect of this Act is to make all statutory conditions on automobile insurance policies similar and that is the effect of this Bill. Statutory conditions are set forth on page 20 of the Bill and there are features of the statutory conditions which are modified by the Bill itself. Honourable members will remember, Mr. Speaker, when we were considering the responsibility clauses of the Highway Traffic Act; provisions were made in certain cases where a motorist could produce as security his insurance policy and it was pointed out at the time, it seemed very objectionable in view of the policy being void in the event of the driver being under the influence of liquor. That is remedied in this Act and now if a car is insured a company is still liable for $1,000 in case of property damage, and $5,000 for injury to one person, and $10,000 in case of more than one person. The Act is a great improvement over present statutes and at the same time brings the law into conformity with the other provinces. I have much pleasure in moving the second reading of this Bill.

MR. JOHN G. HIGGINS (Leader of the Opposition): This is just the same now as the Act which makes uniform fire insurance; for instance we can call these the statutory conditions. There is nothing outside the conditions of the policy, you can be insured anywhere, this only lays down uniform conditions?

MR. CURTIS: That is right.

Bill was read a second time. To be referred to Committee of the Whole on tomorrow.

On motion the second reading of a Bill "An Act to Amend the St. John's Municipal Act, 1921, and Acts in Amendment Thereof and for Certain Other Purposes" was deferred.

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable the Attorney General asked leave for Committee of the Whole on a Bill "An Act Respecting Liability in Action for Damages for Negligence Where More than One Party is at Fault."

MR. HIGGINS: We consent and are ready for Committee now.

House goes into Committee.

MR. CURTIS: I would like to say, Mr. Chairman, in asking the House to go into Committee on this Bill I do not want it to be thought for one moment that we are trying to push the legislation and if any honourable member wants it deferred, we are only too happy to do it. I think this has always been our attitude but it has been suggested that we are pushing things through. It is a case of using the moments as they go.

MR. HIGGINS: Yes, that is all right. Supposing there are three motors cars and two were at fault, would that make one man liable if there were only one damaged?

MR. CURTIS: Yes, that is right.

Sections 1 through 4 read and passed.

MR. HIGGINS: Might we refer back to number 3. If there were three cars and two were found guilty; one for 3/10 and one for 7/10 of the damage—

MR. CURTIS: That would make both equally liable.

MR. HIGGINS: Suppose one is a pauper, then the other has to pay all the damage?

MR. CURTIS: Then they are protected under special provision of the Highway Traffic Act so that the party not worth anything when his obligation is proven and he has nothing, it must come under the Financial Responsibility provision of the Highway Traffic Act and he gets paid out of that fund.

MR. HIGGINS: I do not see that each is liable for the full amount.

MR. CURTIS: If you will read the clause carefully.

MR. HIGGINS: It says liable. That does not say the other man may collect, if one party has nothing and he cannot collect from him, then he would not have a contribution under the Financial Responsibility clause.

Suppose now, I parked my car two feet from the curb, it is against the law and I am consequently guilty of negligence. Therefore that is an offense and another car comes up fast and slams into me and drives away and into another car and damage is done, what is the responsibility? If I am liable 1/10 the other man is responsible 9/10; that man is a pauper and the car injured collects from me?

MR. CURTIS: I think in that case the car owner unable to pay definitely comes under the Financial Responsibility clause of the Highway Traffic Act, but on the other hand it is jointly and severally. I think we should let section 3 stand and check up on the law in the other provinces.

MR. HIGGINS: I think we should. It is rather serious.

Sections 5 through 7 read and passed.

Section 8 read.

MR. HIGGINS: What is Section 80 of the Highway Traffic Act?

MR. CURTIS: "No person being transported by the owner or operator of a motor vehicle as a guest without payment for such transportation or entering or getting on the motor vehicle to be so transported or alighting from the motor vehicle after being so transported has a cause of action for damages against the owner or operator for injury, death or loss in case of accident unless the accident was caused by the gross negligence or wilful and wanton misconduct of the owner or operator of the motor vehicle, and unless the gross negligence or wilful and wanton misconduct contributed to the injury, death or loss for which the action is brought." That is a clarification of the law. I think there has been different decisions about it.

MR. HIGGINS: Does that mean if I am driving a car and have a passenger, and I am negligent, there is an immunity? The person in my car can get after me but not after the other car?

MR. CURTIS: That is not it. Suppose I were driving and met an accident and were 10% liable. In other words, you are riding in my car and are injured, you can sue the man who ran into me, even if the Court assesses that I am 10% responsible; you cannot get after me, but you can cover the balance from the other party.

MR. FOGWILL: No passenger is protected?

MR. CURTIS: Yes, he is protected, but it must be gross neglect or wilful or wanton driving.

MR. FOGWILL: This includes a man's immediate family but exempts all other persons.

MR. CURTIS: Exempts him except in the case of gross neglect; apart from that I do not think he ought to be liable.

HON. JAMES J. SPRATT (Minister of Provincial Affairs): As I see it, the owner of the car will not take a person in if he is held responsible.

MR. HIGGINS: It is only so in case of negligence. It must be negligence before the passenger can claim damages.

MR. MAKINSON: How about a collision?

MR. CURTIS: That is a different matter, this constitutes driving only.

MR. MAKINSON: In other words the owner is paying for insurance he would not be getting the benefit of.

MR. CURTIS: Unless someone has a case against you the insurance company is not going to pay it.

MR. MAKINSON: It is sometimes pretty hard to prove gross negligence.

MR. CURTIS: My words are not gospel, but I am afraid the honourable the Minister of Provincial Affairs will have to walk home after this, I am certainly not going to insure him.

MR. SPRATT: I feel now that if any individual owner of a car takes a number of children out for a run in the country and injures them while driving, I claim the owner is responsible and I would like to have the opportunity to present such a claim to a court. I would take it up tomorrow against any lawyer. That is my reaction to it.

MR. CURTIS: We shall let section 8 stand, and return to it.

Section 9 read and passed.

Section 10 read and passed.

MR. CURTIS: I move, Mr. Chairman, the Committee rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again and reserve sections 9 and 8; if the honourable members would like to have them considered in Committee again. I am not trying to push these things. This is a Bill which has been handed to me and is not my Bill.

The Committee rose, reported progress, and asked leave to sit again on tomorrow.

Honourable the Attorney General asked leave to have the House go into Committee of the Whole on a Bill "An Act Respecting Automobile Insurance."

Section 1 to 30 read and passed.

MR. SPENCER: I would like to point out though, I think the honourable the Attorney General is well aware, that section at the foot of clause 20, sub-section (b)—"unless the coverage is expressly extended under section 22." The honourable members may not know exactly what that is to take care of. We had some discussion in Committee a few minutes ago and that clause is to permit the owner to take coverage for special purposes set forth in clause 20, if it is so desired. For instance in (b) "The insurer shall not be liable under his own driver's policy for loss or damages to relatives, but if the insurer or owner so desires he can make application to the company and get coverage for that particular case as well by paying an extra premium." That is the main reason for that clause.

MR. HIGGINS: Schedule (i)—"any change in the insurable interest of the insured named in the policy on the automobile by sale, assignment or otherwise, except through change of title by succession, death or proceedings under the Bankruptcy Act;" Does that make an awful lot of difference; what is the meaning of that?

MR. CURTIS: When a person is insured the insurer wants to know that, and if he has been the victim of an offense before and if the insured dies and the car goes to his son and the son may be a blackguard, surely the company is supposed to know that, or if the man dies and the car goes to his wife who is maybe a poor driver. Supposing I had a policy for fire on my car and I died tomorrow, and obviously in the event my successor decides to use the car—

MR. HIGGINS: Under (6) on page 25: What is the meaning of "Sound Value"?

MR. CURTIS: I think it is the actual value not based on, for instance, a shortage in a certain year. The sound value is the real value.

MR. SPRATT: On page 21—1 (b). I feel it should read this way. I do not see why there should be any exception there.

MR. HIGGINS: I have already brought that up and the Attorney General is going to find out tomorrow. I could not see it either.

The Committee rose, reported progress, and asked leave to sit again on tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I move that the House at its rising adjourn until tomorrow, Tuesday, at 3:00 of the clock.

The House adjourned accordingly.

TUESDAY, May 29, 1951.

The House opened at three of the clock.

HON. J. R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, before you call the Orders of the Day, I think it might be useful if I gave the House some indication, in as far as I am able to do so, of the position and the possibility of prorogation. Now I believe every Member of the House is anxious to do two things: First, to give every necessary and careful consideration to the Bills coming before the House, and secondly to bring about prorogation quickly, consistent with that careful consideration of the business yet to be done. We have, I think, something in the neighbourhood of 25 Statutes or Bills yet to come before the House. Now most of these are what we term formal Bills, short amendments to existing legislation or else new legislation of a character that could not truthfully be described as fundamental or of grave importance. There are, however, in those 25 Bills two, three or four which are of pretty considerable importance and one of what I would describe as of supreme importance. There is the Crown Lands Act which is largely a consolidation of existing Acts with, however, some new principles which have been introduced. That is quite a long act, something like the traffic Act already passed here. There is the amending Bill which is providing for amendments to the Alcoholic Liquors Act which was forecast in the Speech from the Throne. There is a Municipal Act, that is to say an Act to provide for amendments to the City Charter, I suppose you would call it, at all events to the St. John's Municipal Act, in response to a petition from the City Council already before the House. There are one or two other Bills of importance, and finally one of what I call supreme importance, an Act on which the Government has been working for many months and which in its formal, final aspect is expected to be ready to go to the printers three or four days from now. The final draft of it, from the law firm drafting it in Montreal, is supposed to leave Montreal today by airmail and should be here tomorrow and ready to go to the printers on Thursday or Friday. It seems to me, in so far as I can hazard an estimate, that if the House is prepared, with the formal motion or not, to suspend the rules, or rather dealing with each Bill as it comes along for consideration, as the House has been doing, indeed, for the past week or more; it seems to me that by the end of next week we might be ready to complete our business and be ready for prorogation. Now I appreciate deeply the active co-operation of the Opposition in this and I appreciate, also, that they are not less anxious than we on this side to complete the work and arrive at the prorogation.

Honourable the Attorney General asks leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Repeal Certain Newfoundland Statutes."

Bill read a first time.

HON. LESLIE R. CURTIS (Attorney General): This Bill has, I think, Mr. Speaker, been distributed and I just wish to say that the effect of the Bill is to clean up some surplus statutes so that when the Acts have been consolidated they will not be included. With the consent of the House I ask that this Bill be read a second time now. The honourable Leader of the Opposition referred to the Bill yesterday. It has been distributed this afternoon and the other was distributed yesterday. It is purely a formal Act to clean up the Statutes.

Bill read a second time. It was moved that the House go into Committee of the Whole on this Bill now.

MR. CURTIS: If any member would like an explanation or has any questions, I shall be glad to answer them at the Committee stage.

MR. JOHN G. HIGGINS (Leader of the Opposition): Why are they being repealed?

MR. CURTIS: They are all outmoded.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Repeal Certain Newfoundland Statutes."

Section 1 read and passed.

Section 2 read and passed.

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Chairman, I suggest that the various honourable Ministers who have copies make sure their own Bills are included in order to have them repealed.

HON. JAMES J. SPRATT (Minister of Provincial Affairs): Pardon me, Mr. Chairman, but it is necessary to get some explanation as we go along as we have to be sure we are in favour or not and personally it is double-dutch to me.

MR. RUSSELL: Salaries Act, is that being repealed?

MR. CURTIS: These Bills, Mr. Chairman, have all been submitted to us by the various departments, and I particularly recommend they be repealed and not be included in the Consolidated Statutes because all these Bills have fallen into disuse mostly by reason of Confederation and others by reason of the passing of the situation which necessitated the Act. I may say I don't propose that the Committee rise and report having passed the Bill in full, but I thought we might finish the reading of it and rise the Committee so that every Department and the honourable members would be able to study it until tomorrow. The Legislature Act, 1917 was an Act curtailing the privileges of the Upper House. In the olden days the Upper House held up legislation and killed it. By the way, the first Act I ever drafted—The Upper House by this Act had power only to hold up a money bill for one month and to hold up other legislation temporarily. If the House of Assembly passed a Bill and continued to pass it for three sessions it was made law whether it was passed by the Upper House or not. That is the Newfoundland duplication of the Parliament Act.

C-65: The Rebuilding of Carbon-car—After a fire forty or fifty years ago and I presume it is an old Act and that was one of the ancient fires.

HON. JAMES R. CHALKER (Minister of Public Welfare): This seems to be rather a recent Act—Rebuilding Harbour Grace—and if it is not the intention to close the Committee this afternoon I would like a chance to go into it.

MR. CURTIS: I move the Committee rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again tomorrow. Meantime I would appreciate if any member interested in this Bill would make sure they are not being improperly repealed, if they are repealed, or some departments may otherwise find themselves in trouble.

Honourable the Attorney General asks leave to introduce a Bill "An Act Further to Amend Chapter 61 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) Entitled 'Of the St. John's Fire Department.'"

Bill read a first time.

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Speaker, I would now move this Bill be now read a second time. The object of this Bill is to provide that where a building within the city or within one mile of the city is a dangerous fire hazard, the Chief Officer may declare the same to constitute a public nuisance and may order the removal of the building if he sees fit. Honourable members will appreciate why such order may be given approval and I ask that this reading be deferred until later. I want to say that such order shall not be made without the prior approval of the St. John's Municipal Council. It further provides for the service of the order and empowers the Newfoundland Constabulary to carry out the order, and if not obeyed provides a penalty for refusal to abandon it, and I consequently move second reading.

Bill read a second time.

MR. RUSSELL: It may not be made without prior approval—Does that include the removal? In other words does sub-section (i) give the Chief Officer of the Fire Department power to remove the building or only to endeavour to get the Council's approval? If that is the meaning it seems to me a little thought may be required. Order removal or demolition.

MR. CURTIS: I will discuss that later in committee.

Referred to Committee of the Whole on tomorrow.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Speaker, I don't mind all this; I ask the Attorney General to consider the honourable member for Bonavista South, but there is one thing I am going to object to, and that is leaving it entirely in the hands of the Chief of Police; and every matter should refer to the prior approval, first of Minutes in Council. I am aware we should not be in a position to have building hazards to ourselves or our neighbour but I would not like one man to decide. The Municipal Council is an elected body to take care of every man's case here and after it is heard have it referred to the Chief of Police.

MR. CURTIS: I must say, Mr. Speaker, that is the reason I asked to have it referred to the Committee on tomorrow.

Honourable the Premier asks leave to introduce a Bill, "An Act to Make Provisions for the Granting of Loans to Certain Companies." Read a first time. Ordered read a second time tomorrow.

Honourable the Acting Minister of Natural Resources asks leave to introduce a Bill "An Act Further to Amend the Land Development Act, 1944."

Bill read a first time. Ordered read a second time on tomorrow.

Honourable the Minister of Supply asks leave to introduce a Bill, "An Act to Authorize the Lieutenant Governor in Council to Guarantee Payment of Bonds Issued by Town Councils."

Bill read a first time. Ordered read a second time on tomorrow.

Honourable the Minister of Supply asks leave to introduce a Bill, "An Act to Incorporate the Water and Sewerage Corporation of Greater Corner Brook."

Bill read a first time. Ordered read a second time on tomorrow.

Honourable the Minister of Public Works to ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Amend the Department of Public Works (Amendment) Act, 1951."

Moved that this motion be withdrawn.

Orders of the Day

Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means.

Committee of the Whole on a Bill "An Act Respecting Liability in Action for Damages for Negligence where more than One Party is at Fault."

MR. CURTIS: I ask that this be further deferred.

Committee of the Whole "An Act Respecting Automobile Insurance."

MR. CHAIRMAN: All this Bill was read and passed except the Preamble and the Title.

MR. CURTIS: In this case, Mr. Chairman, there was some objections raised on page 21. I have checked this up since last sitting and I find the same clause is in the Nova Scotia, British Columbia and Alberta legislation. I don't think it is a matter involving the insurance company and I have no objection to an insertion there but I move we leave the section as it is without amendments.

Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendments. Ordered read a third time tomorrow.

Second reading of Bill "An Act to Amend the St. John's Municipal Act, 1921, and Acts in Amendment thereof and for Certain Other Purposes."

MR. CURTIS: I move this order be deferred.

Second reading of a Bill "An Act to Amend the Labour Relations Act, 1950."

HON. C. H. BALLAM (Minister of Labour): Mr. Speaker, this is an amendment found to be necessary through our experience last year and the purpose now is to amend certain sections of the 1950 Act. Section 2 Sub-section 8, refers clearly to organized slow-down and as it stands at the moment it is difficult to determine what other activity might be referred to. Section 3 repeals (6) of Section 9, that a union had to comply with the Trade Union Act before it could be certified. Section 4 is amended by sub-section 11 precluding a section that labour relations revoke a union if it failed to comply with the Labour Act. Section 6, repeals the provisions—If application for certificate before the board might order suspension of collective bargaining until a decision is made and it is considered that negotiations should not be held up while the board is considering. Section 7 includes a provision from other Provinces which is intended to speed up negotiations in the case of employers with a board of directors outside the Province. There were some instances in the past where local negotiations had to wait for replies from such directors and general managers who are in other parts of the Dominion and thereby drawing out negotiations. Section 8 reduces the penalty for a trade union. We had a heavier fine there we find than in any other Province or in the Federal Act, as a matter of fact, and this section reduces the penalty to correspond with others. I move second reading of this Bill, Mr. Speaker.

Bill read a second time.

MR. RUSSELL: I would like to ask the honourable Minister two or three questions. One at a time, he and I won't get involved then.

Section 3, he said, repeals the provisions of the Organization Act and the Organization is the Labour Relations Act and Trade Union Act linked together in a rather unnatural way, and the penalty for not behaving under trade union is now under this. Now if that be removed and another penalty substituted are we removing the penalty which puts a sting in the Trade Union Act itself? It seems to me there might be some consideration given to the possibility of amendment to the Trade Union Act which might be made by this which was, in fact, a penalty on trade and if we did not do so trade unions could be sort of punished by non-recognition under this one. Under section 6: I am not quite sure of the point there, but I believe while waiting for, or while the board is deciding whether or not certain certified unions, awaiting negotiations which are pending between that union and the employer thus the organization is sort of hung up until the board makes a decision. Let us suppose negotiations are going ahead between this union and the employer, and the board finally decides not to certify the bargaining, has not a great deal of time been wasted there if the unions is not eventually certified at all? Would it not be just as well and a great deal less painful to hang the thing up as the Organization Act provides for?

MR. BALLAM: The honourable member will recollect last year the Trade Union and Labour Relations Act were tied together, and by having them in that manner there was a penalty in the Labour Relations Act for non-compliance with Trade Unions and vice versa and this is being looked after now. It is our intention to divorce the two Acts by bringing in an amendment to the Trade Union Act to look after the point in this section. Section 6 repeals a provision where if application is made for certification the Board might order suspension of collective bargaining until a decision is made. We now consider that negotiations should not be tied up while the board is considering an application and the board might not certify them, but that is very unlikely and we found that this section as it was in the last year's Act was a hindrance rather than a help, and I think there are other sections in the Labour Relations Act that regulate the board's activities and give them a chance to get over this point without having this in the Act. It has been recognized by the Board and also has been suggested and recommended by the Federation of Labour that this should be changed, and we feel that it would be to the advantage of all concerned to change it as suggested in the amendment. I think that covers the point.

MR. HIGGINS: Must the employer be consulted too?

MR. BALLAM: This actually does not affect the employers.

Bill read a second time. Ordered to Committee of the Whole now.

Committee of the Whole: Section 1 read and passed. Section 2 read.

Amendment Section 2 (8). In the third line cut out the word "Activity" and insert the words "Organized Slow-down" and in the fourth line the word "Primarily" is deleted.

Section 2 passed. Sections 3 and 4 read and passed. Section 5 read.

MR. FAHEY: Would the Minister explain that section 5?

MR. BALLAM: We are just striking out some words in the Labour Relations Act pertaining to Trade Unions Act and taking that part out because they no longer apply in the Labour Relations Act.

MR. FAHEY: Previous to this the Trade Union had to comply, or if it failed to comply with this provision of the Trade Union Act, they may not get the bargaining rights and now if they fail to comply they may still have the bargaining rights.

MR. BALLAM: Yes, the Trade Union Act looks after itself and this Act looks after itself.

Section 5 passed. Section 6 read.

MR. RUSSELL: It is well known today in all labour circles that one of the main issues in labour relations is the problem in some cases where unions are certified as bargaining agents in certain industries. This is a very hot subject right now, and the question is now which is the better procedure. The Government is anxious to find the best possible and probably this is it. Here we have probably two very powerful unions each maintaining its own bargaining agency, the A.N.D. and Bowater's, in the meantime going blissfully on making working agreements. You say this is just (to clarify it but I still maintain that the best bargaining seems to me to be if they knew the board would get to work and do it quickly, but meantime the board can just postpone a problem and sweep it under the mat for a while and delay what is probably the most important of the two issues. The honourable Minister said there were other things in the labour relations Act which, in practice, were found to be a bit of a nuisance. I would be interested in having elaborated that and other things in the Act at the outset. I am probably all wrong and am only asking for information more than anything else. It seems to me that probably paragraph 6 might be better left alone.

MR. BALLAM: Well, this is going in for the benefit, Mr. Chairman, and it has been gone into very carefully by the Department and by the Board and by the Justice Department and we all agree that we would probably get on better and expedite the business by repealing this section. The Federation of Labour is also in agreement on that. I might say in regard to the point just mentioned there for certification, all unions, before being certified, are investigated by officials and can only be certified as bargaining agencies if they have a certain percentage of membership, and before that is done both the union and the company's payroll is checked and there is an agreement then as to who is the bargaining agent for that particular company. That would be no indication at all.

If fifty are on the payroll and this union here say has thirty-five or forty members employed with this company therefore they would be the bargaining agent, if they are the required percentage of the total employees.

MR. RUSSELL: Under the present law, Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the Minister—Supposing a good strong union merged as a collective bargaining agent with the employer, would it be possible under the present law for anybody, e.g., Buchans Mining Co., to say we have the right to certify it. Could that be done under the present Act?

MR. BALLAM: It has happened and we find it one of the reasons why it is repealed.

MR. RUSSELL: I take it this clause means saving the union representative from having to go to the Mainland or other countries, where the board of directors are appointed here, and sign on behalf of the company and that is final. The only thing it bars the union officers from having a trip.

MR. BALLAM: The purpose is, very often negotiations are tied up indefinitely because the local manager has not the right to sign the agreement and it has to be taken to the general manager and he has to take it to the Board of Directors, and we have experienced that already during the year, so that negotiations have been tied up too long. We contend they should give the manager, the local manager, the power, or should appoint some person who could conduct negotiations and conclude them.

MR. FAHEY: In other words the delay is deliberate.

MR. BALLAM: We don't say it is but it could be.

MR. RUSSELL: I wonder if (c) is necessary at all?

MR. BALLAM: Yes, I think it is. We thought this section up ourselves here in case we had a little trouble in this matter, and then we started looking through the other Provincial Acts and we find it is in at least one, word for word with this here as we have it.

MR. RUSSELL: Ours as a rule are drafted better than theirs.

MR. BALLAM: I quite agree and we are very proud of that fact.

MR. CURTIS: There are two ways, Mr. Speaker, of looking at it, (I think it is good drafting) to say after, if he does not do it he is guilty of an offense. I note the point and it may be a good one but we want to have it clarified beyond doubt and therefore that is the form the Department adopted.

MR. RUSSELL: If we would have to proceed by way of a summons I think it would be better left as it is.

Section 6 passed.

Sections 7 and 8 read and passed.

Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments. Ordered read a third time on tomorrow.

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Speaker, I give notice that I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act Further to Amend the Alcoholic Liquor Act" also "An Act Respecting Civil Defence."

I would like to take this opportunity to say to the House that we have about fifteen Bills now in the hands of the Ministers, the rest are now in the hands of the printers. The only thing is, the printing is hopelessly out because of the fire and one of the reasons I am glad of an early adjournment is that I may go down and see if I can't untangle it and if any Bills are ready, I may ask to give notice and introduce them at the same time so as to clear the decks.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I move the House at its rising adjourn until tomorrow, Wednesday, at 3 of the clock.

House adjourned accordingly.

WEDNESDAY, May 30, 1951.

The House opened at three of the clock.

Thereof and for Certain Other Purposes."

MR. CURTIS: This Act, Mr. Speaker, is at the printers and I understand the prints will be available at 3:30, so I move the order be deferred until a later hour this day.

Motion carried.

On motion the Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means and the Committee of the Whole on Supply were deferred.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act Further to Amend Chapter 61 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of the St. John's Fire Department'" was deferred.

Section 1 read and passed.

Section 2 read.

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Chairman, when this Bill was up for second reading, the honourable member for Bonavista South drew attention to an error in sub-section 2 of paragraph 2 and I would therefore suggest that on the second line of sub-paragraph 2, before the word "alterations" put in the word "Closure" and remove the words "All or."

Carried

Section 2 passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments.

Ordered read a third time on tomorrow.

MR. CURTIS: I move, Mr. Speaker, this Order be deferred.

Motion carried.

Second reading of a Bill "An Act to Make Provisions for the Granting of Loans to Certain Companies."

MR. CURTIS: In the absence of the honourable Minister of Finance I would ask the clerk to have the Order stand deferred until later on in the afternoon.

Second Reading of Bill "An Act Further to Amend the Land Development Act, 1944."

MR. CURTIS: In the absence of the honourable the Acting Minister for Natural Resources I move the second reading of this Bill. I am informed by the Ex-Minister that that is purely a formal bill and frankly I have to accept his word for it. This is a Bill which is designed to amend the Land Development Act of 1944 by providing for a grant to a settler to whom no licence or lease was issued.

H.C.—Subject to the approval of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, the Minister of Natural Resources may, for such consideration upon such terms and subject to such conditions as appear to him to be met, issue a grant of land in any development area or any part of the land to any person.

That is a very short Act, Mr. Speaker.

MR. JOHN J. HIGGINS (Leader of the Opposition): What is the meaning of "No such licence" in section (b)?

MR. RUSSELL: I can explain that. The facts are well known to me, Mr. Speaker, the original Land Development Act 1944 was designed mainly for Cormack, where it was proposed to settle a number of war veterans and it was also the aim that the Act be made to apply to certain other land settlements. They were to go up there for one year at Cormack and during that year had a kind of a licence of occupation for one year which gave them time to find out if they liked the life or not. If at the end of the year they did not like it or their wives did not like it, they left and went somewhere else and there were no hard feelings. The licence of occupation expired at the end of the year and perhaps may be given to another, and at the end of that year, if he liked it, he was given a licence of the same sort as the ordinary prospective farmer gets for a piece of land which he holds for five years, and if he has a certain amount cultivated during that five years he gets an outright grant. That is the main thing, but many settlers gave up and left and other settlers went in, and I know in a good many cases they have no licence of occupation and others have no settler's license for five years. Now unfortunately, the Act says they can't get the licence for five years because they should have had the other. The amendment would say that if they did not get those things it was not their fault, it may have been neglect on the part of the last Government anyway, why penalize the settlement for the neglect of the Government? All this happened long before my day. This amendment will remove this hardship to well deserving settlers.

HON. E. S. SPENCER (Minister of Public Works): The honourable member for Bonavista South very clearly explained the effect on settlers in Cormack and Markland and maybe some others, I don't know, and I wonder if I may be enlightened if it was the intention with regard to houses there, to give them to those living in them the same way. Would they get them this way, I wonder. Certain settlements were set up and the Government spent money for houses and people moved in and I wonder now if the grant for land, with which idea I am perfectly in accord, and which they should have but I wonder if it includes the buildings?

MR. RUSSELL: Yes, the buildings but they are supposed to pay back $500 to the Government for the rest.

MR. HIGGINS: I was asking the question; there were no licences for occupation and no licences under section eight or no such lease under section 12. What is the meaning of that 'such' there?

MR. CURTIS: I wonder, Mr. Speaker, if we might let that stand until committee and have the discussion then?

MR. SPEAKER: Yes, it could not be answered by the honourable member for Bonavista South who has already spoken.

Bill read a second time.

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Speaker, I move, in view of the fact that this is an unimportant measure, that the House proceed and go into Committee of the Whole forthwith.

Committee of the Whole on Bill, "An Act Further to Amend the Land Development Act."

Section 1 read and passed.

Section 2 read.

MR. RUSSELL: I think the point troubling the honourable Leader of the Opposition is clause (b) "To whom no licence for occupation." The original Act provides for licences for occupation, or for a licence during the second one after the licence of occupation has expired, and as far as I am concerned it means the same thing. Those words "No such" does not change the sense, it would mean the same thing if they were not there at all. There were only two kinds of licences permitted under the Act, under Section 8, and I don't think it matters whether those words are there or not.

MR. CURTIS: I don't think it is any harm to leave them there. Apparently a settler went in and got a licence after a period of time—"To whom no licence has been issued" "and no such licence"—it does no harm and there may be a reason for putting it in. I have no copy of the original Act here. Probably we should let it stand and after the Committee reports the Bill we can check on these words.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendments. Ordered read a third time tomorrow.

HON. J. R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, might we revert to a Bill "An Act to Make Provisions for Granting of Loans to Certain Companies."

Second reading of Bill "An Act to Make Provisions for the Granting of Loans to Certain Companies."

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, in the session of last year we brought forward a Bill along very similar lines and it was most important. The Bill last year gave legislative sanction to loans already granted up to that time by the Government and so in all or nearly all of the cases listed in the present Bill, legislative sanction is sought for loans already granted by Order in Council.

The first one to Fishery Products, Limited, $350,000 to enable the company to purchase two new draggers. The House is probably aware of the fact that these two draggers were bought and brought to Newfoundland and one shortly afterwards capsized. Mr. Arthur Monroe is the principal officer, I think, of the company. They have plants at Burin, Burgeo, Isle au Mort and Burnt Island. They have four plants. One of the draggers capsized on the Banks, fortunately without loss of life, and the insurance on her enabled the company to purchase a new dragger to replace her. That they did, of course, only by permission of the Government because the insurance on both boats was in the Government's name. North Eastern Fish Industries, Limited, is the firm of which Mr. Sy Moores is the principal officer. They have a plant at Harbour Grace and are now erecting a very fine fish plant at Fermeuse on the Southern Shore. The purpose of this loan of $350,000 is to purchase two new draggers in the United Kingdom to supply their new plant being erected at Fermeuse. Up to date they have not availed themselves of this loan but it is expected they will do so. The next amount, $35,000 to the Northeastern Co-operative Fisheries Society, Limited, which is a society at Change Islands in the District of Fogo where the co-operative society has been reorganized along these lines namely: The different financial societies have been separately organized, so that now I think there are two societies, one dealing with consumers, a consumers society, the other a producer or Fishery Co-operative. The purpose of this loan is principally to enable one to purchase the property of the other. The next is a loan for $125,000 to Arctic Fisheries Products, Limited, at Dildo, Trinity Bay. That firm has cold storage facilities and other facilities and they, as the House is doubtlessly aware, are engaged in the business of capturing and purchasing fish in Trinity Bay for manufacture at Dildo and in addition are engaged in the business of purchasing, packing and freezing blueberries. Actually, I think at the moment, of the $125,000 they now owe the Government, $60,000. In fact, they made a heavy repayment as they have had an exceptionally fortunate and successful year in 1950. I am informed that they did not, in fact, draw on the whole of the loan or the credit granted but rather did so only to the extent of $60,000. John Penney & Sons, Limited, at Ramea, $125,000 to enable them to construct a new dragger, one new dragger. It was not to pay the full cost of the dragger but partly to do so that an amount of $125,000 was made. They have not actually drawn any of it yet but I understand it was planned to order construction of the new dragger at Clarendville and it is presently under construction. Then there is an amount of $675,000 to the Northlantic Fisheries, Limited. That is the firm that—how shall I put it—the firm that controls Job's Cold Storage and Fish Processing of frozen fish business on the South Side; Bona-vista cold storage plant and to some extent the cold storage plant at St. Anthony, and when I say cold storage plant I mean fish freezing and filleting plants. The purpose of this loan is to assist the company to finance a large new development on the South West Coast in the fishing town of Grand Bank. The total investment in the plant facilities and druggers is to be of the order, (I am speaking from memory), of $1,400,000. Now the loan was made to this company, guaranteed to them and made available by Bank credit. So far they have spent $230,000 only. There are a number of conditions, one of which is a most interesting feature, a condition that the people of Grand Bank should themselves subscribe to the purchase of shares of the company to an amount of not less than $200,000. The strength with which the people of Grand Bank have subscribed for shares in this new company is most impressive, to say the least, and most encouraging. People of modest means have invested as little as a few hundred dollars and people of more ample means have subscribed of course in amounts considerably larger. That is to be an exceedingly modern fish filleting and freezing plant and the Federal Government are assisting the plant, incidentally, and not only the plant, but harbour and breakwater facilities, which are being effected at Grand Bank. Then there is an amount of $45,000 to Dunphy's Limited in Curling, Bay of Islands. That is to assist the company to purchase and equip a new vessel for the purpose of operating purse seining for herring and trawling, and thereby hangs a tale, namely the experiment in which people engaged for many years in the herring fishery industry of Newfoundland are beginning to see and accept the urgent need for more breaking away from the old conventional methods of prosecuting the herring fishery, namely the gill net and the bar seine and are going out in deeper water, farther from shore, to get the herring by means of the purse seine. This is an echo of the ill-fated Icelandic Herring venture which as the House knows ended unsuccessfully, though I have seen in principle, and verbally heard, the argument that it was far from being a failure. At all events there is increasing evidence that if we in Newfoundland are to develop on a large scale the fish meal and herring oil industry, we must break away from our dependence on that small portion of the large bodies of herring in Newfoundland waters that actually come in to the shore so that they may be taken by the gill net and bar seine and instead an effort must be made to seek out the herring in the deeper water. As the House may be aware Herring Un-Limited, in collaboration with James Baird Limited sank something in the nature of a quarter of a million dollars of their own money in the search for herring in deep water, and the desire is to do here in Newfoundland what has been done in Iceland, Norway and British Columbia, that is to say to locate the herring in deep water, to find out where they are and to be able to forecast each year where and when they will appear, in what amount, and in what age group and then to be able to follow them to shore and extend the period of catching herring by many weeks, and indeed many months, each year, and thereby insure a very large yield of herring to serve modern, new herring plants producing fish meal and herring oil. So far very little success has attended the various efforts by the Government of Canada in collaboration with the governments of the various maritime provinces and Newfoundland, the efforts of the Newfoundland Government through the Icelandic venture or the efforts of Herring Un-Limited or the efforts of various other private interests. But those who know best profess to have faith in the idea which is completely unshaken and undiminished, and I admit that I share their faith and have confidence in the idea that Newfoundland can build a huge herring industry. When we became aware of the fact that bodies of herring along the coast of Newfoundland had been measured by the fathometer or echo-sounder and recorded on paper as running to one hundred and fifty thousand and two hundred thousand ton, not barrels, but tons, and when we remember the almost unbelievable quantities of herring taken in other countries, British Columbia, and along the coast of Iceland and Norway and the Baltic countries and in the North Sea and the European Waters, the incredible, inconceivable quantity and tonnage of huge takes in those waters, it seems to me at least reasonable to expect that the coastal waters of Newfoundland, and I don't refer to the inshore waters along the fore-shore but the coastal waters within fifty or perhaps a hundred miles off our shore, that quantities in that area would be equally as great. This we know, from studies made today in Newfoundland, the average size is greater, the average weight is greater and there are scientific indications that our herring bodies are under fished, that they need to be depleted with a view to reducing the size of the herring. Large fish of that type in large numbers are a good indication of underfishing. Well, we have loaned Dunphy's Limited this amount to procure a vessel, they have not yet taken delivery of the vessel but we have agreed to loan them the sum to assist them and enable them to go out after the herring and not depend on those that come in to the fore-shore.

Then there is an amount of $125,000 to Hollett Sons & Co., Limited, to enable the company to purchase two carriers for use in connection with the fresh fish industry presently established at Burin to prosecute the halibut fishery. That is rather interesting too, Mr. Speaker, Holletts have been quite successful in the halibut fishery but like other halibut fishermen in Newfoundland they have to ship their halibut to Sydney and Halifax at which ports they are taken by refrigerated conveyance to Boston and New York, at which ports they sell the halibut at prices appreciably lower than are to be obtained in the actual markets themselves. So Hollett's conceived the idea of discontinuing the practice of shipping the halibut merely to Sydney or Halifax and selling it there but delivering the fish themselves to the actual markets for which purpose they needed two things, first a plant at Burin from which boats would operate and into which halibut is brought and processed and iced, not frozen, and secondly fast carriers which would be refrigerated and used to convey the iced halibut from Burin to Boston, New York or other markets. They have availed themselves of the full amount.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the terms of these loans are about the same in all cases. What we aim at doing, we guarantee the loan for capital development in the fisheries and confine the loans to begin with to that purpose, capital development, the building or extending of existing plants or plant facilities, the acquisition of new equipment, new boats for the purpose of engaging in the fishery, and secondly we try to fix a limit or we have been trying to fix a limit of eleven years. That is to say in the first year the borrower repays only the interest but nothing by way of reducing the principle and then each of ten succeeding years pays to reduce the principle by one tenth together with the rate of interest so that at the end of eleven years the loan is repaid in full, with interest. There is another principle that we have tried to follow in connection with any such venture which is requesting a loan, and that is we aim at providing not more than half of the total capital necessary for the given enterprise. We prefer to advance not more than 40% and leave it to the private enterprise involved to advance the remaining 60% but we do go and are still prepared to go as high as 50% of the cost of the whole investment. By that I mean an equal status or better but take a highly potential firm, as an example, John Brown and Sons who are in the fishing industry and their investment consists of a quarter of a million dollars. At the moment they want to do something which will cost $100,000, acquire a dragger or further equipment or build an extension to their building. In that case we don't necessarily require that such a barrier be put up, $50,000 of that $100,000 additional expenditure, leaving us to put up $50,000. That limitation does not apply to that $100,000 but is rather added to the quarter of a million already invested making it $350,000, in which case we are prepared to guarantee the full amount of $100,000, provided, however, and here comes the third condition of the loan, we take a mortgage on the whole thing so that we become covered, the Treasury has as collateral the value created by the loan itself plus other values already there. In short we endeavour to cover our loan at least by 200%, the 100% of the loan and another 100% with it. Now we have been able in every instance to achieve these three aims though actually we have failed to keep loans limited in time to eleven years, therefore, there is a variation in years running from eleven years to fifteen or sixteen years. The Northeastern Industries, Limited is for sixteen years and the Northeastern Co-operative Fisheries Society, Limited is for one year pending a rearrangement of the Arctic Fisheries Products. Eleven years has been arrived at as our ideal. John Penney & Sons is for eleven years, Northlantic Fisheries, Limited, five years, in five equal amounts or annual installments together with interest. Hollett Sons & Company, Limited, eleven years. Interest rate is the same throughout, namely three and a half percent.

Mr. Speaker, I have one other thing to add, a rather serious fact. In all of these loans what we have done is guarantee at some bank the principal and interest of the loan amount in question and the bank then makes the loan and the dealing is between the bank and the borrower, but the Newfoundland Government guarantee is behind the principal and interest of the loan. The transaction from that point on is one between the borrowers and the bank and the Government appears on the scene only in case of default in repayment of the principal and payment of the interest,

We can no longer do that under the directive received by the banks from the Bank of Canada—credit is not permitted to be given for more than a year. I may say that I sent a telegram to the Prime Minister of Canada protesting that ruling in so far as the banks in Newfoundland proposed to make it apply to fishing industries. I pointed out that the Government of Newfoundland is most anxious to assist the fish industry to move further away from the salt cod, dried cod, industry towards the modern technique of freezing and shipping fresh fish and going in for other kinds of fish besides cod—haddock, rose fish, halibut, herring, and in the pursuit of that purpose the Newfoundland Government had been making loans through the banks to various Newfoundland firms to assist them in achieving that purpose and that this ruling of the Bank of Canada, which is the central bank of Canada, cut across our purpose and threatened to paralyze the policy of the Government in that matter. I asked that loans guaranteed by the Government of Newfoundland through the chartered banks to fishery firms and fishing organizations, which included co-operative societies, be exempt from the ruling of the Bank of Canada which the Chartered Banks were required to carry out. Mr. St. Laurent was quite sympathetic but in fact it was not a matter falling within his jurisdiction as I knew when I sent the message, but I sent it to him with the feeling that in passing it to the Minister responsible it would get a bit more attention than if I had sent it direct to the Minister in question. Mr. Abbott the Minister of Finance replied expressing a considerable amount of sympathy with the viewpoint expressed in my telegram and pointed to the fact that in an effort to prevent inflation in the present impending war situation this ruling had been made and he was afraid it could not be broken, which left the Newfoundland Government in this position: We can no longer guarantee loans for more than a year to fish firms or other industries or business firms through the chartered banks. That means of financing is cut off from us and the only means left is either to advance the cash out of the surplus as loans for such purposes or else to guarantee bond issues so that a borrower instead of receiving a cash loan from a bank as a result of our having guaranteed the loan principal and interest, raises the money by selling bonds of his company which bonds would be guaranteed as to principal and interest by the Government of Newfoundland. Now there is one unfortunate thing about that and that is the rate of interest on bonds has, as the House doubtlessly knows, increased considerably within recent weeks. Central mortgages on housing just increased the rate to 5% interest and the Industrial Development Bank, a subsidiary of the Bank of Canada, set up by the Bank of Canada to assist in financing industries that Chartered Banks would not normally undertake, raised its rates to 5½%. Municipal Bonds and Company Bonds recently increased their rate to an extent as to make ordinary commission loans not entirely feasible.

Now, we at present are negotiating with one or two companies desiring financial assistance for development and expansion. I refer to fish companies specifically at Bonavista, St. Anthony and Englee, we have indeed been negotiating with these three companies and Northlantic Fisheries, Limited, for some months past. We think we have it worked out but this can be done only by means of bond issues to be floated by the three companies, each a separate bond issue and aggregating a quarter of a million among the three in three sets of bond issues guaranteed by the Newfoundland Government. I don't know if there is anything else I can add.

There is in the bill still another amount of a quarter of a million dollars to the St. Lawrence Corporation of Newfoundland, Limited. I must be careful there, I am never quite sure which is which. There are two companies in St. Lawrence both mining fluorspar. The St. Lawrence Corporation of Newfoundland of which Mr. Siebert is the principal officer. Last year, the House may recall, we guaranteed at one of the banks a loan of credit to that company to a maximum, I think, of a quarter of a million dollars. We have, of course, taken a mortgage, every kind of mortgage I can think of and many other precautions and securities on the mine and mill both in Newfoundland and in Wilmington, Delaware, and on Mr. Siebert's life insurance, his home and a number of things to cover that quarter of a million. The result is the mines, instead of closing, continued and within a year of the advance or guarantee has paid out more than the amount of the loan in wages and indeed the prospects for the company for years to come are excellent and the demand for fluorspar is increasing rapidly. It was a good loan and for an excellent purpose. But then they ran into difficulties and ninety days passed in the past Fall without the Company having shipped a ton, they just could not get shipping. Mr. Siebert came to see me in New York City when I was there in January and talked about it. The Attorney General was with me and for ninety days, at that point, they had not had a ship to take a ton of it to their customers who were pressing to have it and they had no prospect of getting a ship. I phoned Ottawa and talked with the Maritime Commissioner, and with Mr. Howe, Minister of Trade and Commerce, and they did not know where to get shipping and it seemed the whole purpose of our loan would collapse. We came to the conclusion, the Attorney General and I, that there was really only one thing to do, only one solution and that was for the Company to buy a boat, indeed when he approached us he said he could buy an L.S.T., I think you call it, which was especially good for the purpose, self-propelled, with large carrying capacity and ideal for the purpose of holding this fluorspar. We returned to St. John's and put the matter before our colleagues who agreed there was an emergency and we ought to do something to prevent that mine closing. We therefore guaranteed a loan of a quarter of a million to the same company for the purchase of that boat. Now the deal made was this: We had already secured our first loan with everything they had and there was no new security to give us except the boat which our money was to buy. So besides taking a mortgage on the boat which incidentally is now worth a hundred thousand dollars more than was paid for it—it is now worth at least $350,000—in addition we as a government have a deal whereby after the boat is paid for we share in the profits. Once the quarter of a million paid for the boat is repaid, the Government share 50-50 in any operating profit the boat may make or the profit realized on the sale of her.

Obviously when shipping becomes plentiful again there is no intention on the part of the company to continue as ship owners and operators and they will promptly sell the vessel and if it is done at the right time there might be substantial profit made, half of which comes to the Government. On the other hand if they don't sell but continue to operate for some time after they have repaid the purchasing price, the Government gets half of the operating profits. The Attorney General reminds me that in addition we have taken a further mortgage on everything. I don't know how good that is, as the lawyers tell me they already have everything mortgaged but it is now mortgaged again. That is probably good. I am not a financier and don't know.

If there is any further information required by the House we can give it in Committee of the Whole where it will be debated and any member may speak as frequently as he wishes and ask any questions.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Speaker, this is another one of those cases where the House is told they must vote an amount because the Government has already voted the amount of the Bill itself. Now, I am going to serve notice to the Government we shall be under no obligation to support money paid guaranteed by the Government until we know fully all about the loan, who the parties are, what are the assets, what is the financial position of the various companies or projects or group who need money either paid or guaranteed. After all no company can get a loan of any description until a balance sheet is shown and their financial position certified by an accountant. I am saying the House has certainly not have all the information here. Certain names like Si Moore; who is behind that Moore interest? Co-operative Fisheries; what business people are behind that? Who is running the project? Now, we are told a mortgage is taken on all this property. We don't know if it is all or only some. What kind of mortgage? Has the Government any right to call in the loan if it sees the company is failing, not carrying on the business properly? Have they any right to interfere for eleven or fifteen years, or must they wait for that time before any step may be taken to call in the loan? What kind of mortgage is it? All these matters should be known, we should know the position. I asked, for instance for the accounts of Lourdes Corporation and the accounts of the Buy Newfoundland Goods project to which $50,000 was allocated and I have not been able to get either yet. Consequently, full information should be given. Now, in the first place what should have been told here is if those people have already received money from the Government? How much, if any part of the loan has been returned, given back to the Government? I will admit it is advisable when the first loan is given to add that to the mortgage, as part of the security. If the company has a million dollars worth of assets and the Government has a five hundred thousand investment on mortgage the Government is only protected for that. If they advance another loan and the company's assets are then only five hundred thousand, if however the second five hundred thousand dollars is added to the mortgage then if the assets realize a million, the government will get the whole million back and I presume that is what is meant by what the Attorney General said. Now, the St.

Lawrence Corp. got $150,000 last year and we are not told if it has been paid back. I understand North Atlantic Fisheries received money before. Has that been paid back? Or the Monroe Export, have they paid back any money? I understand there are two or three amounts besides this and I don't know what amounts the other companies got. Now I notice there is for the Holletts $150,000. Are these the two Clarendville Boats sold by the Government for a smaller amount to another party and would it not have been cheaper if the Government had held on to them, and why they did not I don't know?

Now we are dealing here with $2,800,000, and such an amount, even to this Government, is in this country a huge amount of money and in our estimation the House should be given fuller and better information in cases of this kind and I serve notice now that if we are not given the information and facts we are under no obligation. We should be able to ascertain what loans are given, what securities are given, what guarantees and all that type of thing pertaining to them so that we can decide if they are good, fit and proper and indeed otherwise we are forced to vote against the Bill.

Bill read a second time.

MR. SMALLWOOD: If the House is agreeable we might go into Committee of the Whole on this Bill where it can be discussed with greater freedom and questions asked and answered and any information desired produced. I move this Bill be now referred to Committee of the Whole.

Carried.

Sections 1 and 2 read and passed.
Section 3 read.

MR. CURTIS: I wonder if it would be wise to say, with or without interest, because in some cases we have not had to guarantee the interest. So I suggest we put in "with or without the interest." The point I am trying to stress is in these words on the fifth line "guarantee repayment of loan without or with interest by any of the companies." That is of course the maximum loan. In some cases it may not be necessary, for instance we may make provision for three draggers and the company is only able to get two. These are maximum amounts and they won't be allowed to use the balance except for the purpose for which the loan is given. In all cases it is given for acquisition of draggers. I may say while here it has been the practice, or ideal as far as possible, to give the same security for the Government as if acting for a private individual. All the loans are copper-fastened so that if there is any default at any time interest is due the whole amount comes due automatically.

MR. HIGGINS: Suppose you get a new management, how do you make that out?

MR. CURTIS: There is no provision for that. The only way to protect against that would be to have a government director and we don't want to go that far too often. In some cases we have appointed a government director.

MR. HIGGINS: Fifteen years is a long time, anything may happen.

MR. CURTIS: I know, but the practice had started with the Commission of Government and we have cut it down to eleven years and if possible to ten. On the other hand it is not much good to assist with one hand and on the other hand cripple, and although we have the terms for 15 years it is always our understanding that if the business allows, payment will be made before that. In many cases we are hoping for a lesser period than the time fixed.

MR. HIGGINS: My point is this, you investigate certain people and are going to hand them money and there is just a chance another management comes in to run the company who don't like the first crowd. Suppose they sell out all their shares what do you do then?

MR. CURTIS: I think that is a contingency we have not been able to protect ourselves against. I don't think we can protect ourselves against a change of ownership. True we have made loans and do make loans on the strength of personal integrity of the management and I presume in cases of very heavy investment they are not going to allow their interest to pass into the hands of irresponsible persons. I think that is a practical impossibility.

MR. HIGGINS: There is always a time when a company—

MR. SMALLWOOD: Surely, Mr. Chairman, in a firm like Job Brothers, Moores or Penney, it won't matter very much when they pay it back, will it?

MR. HIGGINS: Now talking about that, 15 years is a long time to look ahead.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Job Brothers have been here since 1780.

MR. HIGGINS: I know but none of the others, for instance, Dunphy's and Holletts.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The loan for Fisheries Products is for five years.

MR. HIGGINS: And for Northeastern Fish Industries Ltd. Some of those companies have been here a hundred years but some have been only a short while. What is going to happen here. Fifteen years is a long time. The son may take over and the father go out, there may be a change in management. I move therefore that line five be amended by inserting the word "or" between "with" and "interest."

Section 3 passed.

Sections 4 and 5 read and passed.

MR. HIGGINS: I wonder how many of these companies have second loans. I would like to get that information, and in what amounts.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I wonder if the honourable learned Leader of the Opposition means any Government of Newfoundland? I think the Fisheries Products had a loan from the Commission of Government which was paid off, I believe.

MR. HIGGINS: How many loans are on hand now, I mean?

MR. SMALLWOOD: We gave them one last year for another purpose and they have altogether $150,000.

MR. HIGGINS: That is the only outstanding?

MR. SMALLWOOD: All the old Commission loans have been paid off. Northeastern Fisheries, yes, they have a loan from the Commission of Government of $280,000 which has been reduced to about $250,000 and this is the first loan we have given them. Arctic Fisheries has had only one. John Penney & Sons had a loan from the Commission of Government and paid it off. I think this is the first loan they have had. North-lantic, I don't know if they have ever had a loan before. Job Bros. have had but not for Northlantic. I think this is the first loan.

Carried.

Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with one amendment.

Ordered read a third time on to-morrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, may we have a recess for ten minutes.

Second reading of Bill "An Act to Amend the St. John's Municipal Act, 1921."

HON. P. S. FORSEY (Minister of Supply): Mr. Speaker, I move this order be deferred.

Second reading of a Bill "An Act to Amend the St. John's Municipal Act, 1921 and Acts in Amendment thereof, and for certain other purposes."

MR. CURTIS: A week or so ago, Mr. Speaker, a petition was presented to this honourable House by the members of the Municipal Council of the city of St. John's which set out certain facts. This Bill proposed an amendment to the said Act which the Council deems necessary for the clarification of the Act and for the purpose, among others of the efficient operation of the administration of the city itself.

I may say, before going further, Mr. Speaker, that I have been asked by the Council to withdraw the application for a motor car tax and withdraw section 13 which provides for a poll tax.

Now, Mr. Speaker, in pursuance of that petition the Council submitted a Bill, but that Bill has now been re-drafted and has been circulated among honourable members who will find the proposed Bill in their desks. I may say in moving the second reading of this Bill that first, this is not a Government measure and the members behind me are at liberty to oppose it as much as they like, and my honourable friends opposite can sponsor it as much as they like without the fear of being asked to cross the floor.

MR. FAHEY: We may oppose it or sponsor it.

MR. CURTIS: The Bill tries to remedy a situation which has been developing for the past five or six years in the Council; throughout that period the Council's deficits have been in the nature of a hundred thousand dollars annually and as we all know from the petition they lay a measure of blame upon Confederation, but I really do not think an examination of the situation will show that that is strictly correct. It is true that for a number of years the Council collected one hundred thousand dollars a year coal tax, a dollar a ton on hard coal and 50c. a ton on soft coal or some such figure, but long before Confederation, Mr. Speaker, the use of coal in the city of St. John's decreased very considerably and I doubt if that sum were collectable today, I doubt if the Council would be able to collect anything like that amount of one hundred thousand dollars which they did in the old days. The honourable the Premier tells me they were down to $80,000 before Confederation and a lot of citizens have put in oil since then. On the other hand if the Council are to run the city they must have the necessary revenue—you can't make brick without clay. Obviously no Council can run the city without money. It is true the criticism may be made that the money has been wasted but that is hardly a matter that should come within the scope of this House. If our mayor and councillors are wasting money, surely the proper and only recourse is to defeat them when they come up for re-election, and put in councillors and a mayor who will not waste funds. I am not making any suggestion against the present mayor and councillors; apparently the deficits took place before the present mayor was elected. Then again there is criticism of the Council because they say the taxes on city property are not fairly apportioned, some houses are not paying the taxes they should and other houses are paying the limit. That too, 'is hardly a matter which this House can deal with. The Council Act provides for appraisers, for a court of revision also, and while we are perfectly satisfied the taxation is not as well balanced as it should be, nevertheless I don't think that is a matter of which this House should take cognizance. That is a matter which the voters of the St. John's city should through the Mayor or Councillors, seek to remedy. In other words they cannot have a Council that is building up debts to the extent of $60,000 or $70,000. Therefore, I feel in introducing this Bill—I want to repeat it is a private measure and this House should give serious consideration to the request of the Council for permission. Mr. Speaker, the effect is not to impose any taxes but this is a permissive Bill empowering the Council to increase taxation or use other forms of taxation which up to the present have not been permitted by them. Now I do not think

I need to refer to the first few sections of the Bill which are purely, one might say, formal. For instance, in section 3 it defines Quidi Vidi Lake as being now part of the city, held by the city in trust for the public as a public park. Likewise, some of the succeeding sections are purely nominal and formal and sections to which we could have no objections. Section 7 goes on to make it an offence to litter up back or front yards, or any others, with old motor cars or any unsightly machinery. This is a section which enables the council to keep the city clean and tidy. Section 8 deals with tenants of Crown property. This is a new section which I will read:

"8. There shall be inserted in the Principal Act immediately after Section 213 the following as Section 213A:

213A. Any person being the tenant of any land or building owned by the Crown in right of Canada or in right of Newfoundland (except a person occupying the same as tenant in an official capacity under the Crown) or being the owner of any land or building in which the Crown has an interest, or the tenant of any such land or building, shall be assessed in respect of such land or building as if the land or building was owned or the interest of the Crown was held by such person and shall pay to the city half-yearly in advance on the first day of January and the first day of July in each year an annual city tax which shall be fixed, established and imposed by the Council at such rate per centum on the annual rental value of such land or building, including therewith the annual rental value of the land on which the said buildings are erected and all land appurtenant to the said buildings, as the Council shall determine, and all the provisions of this Act relating to appraisalment for the purposes of taxation shall be applicable to the tax imposed by this section, and, in addition to the liability of every such person to pay the tax imposed by this section, the interest, if any, of every person, other than the Crown, in such land shall be subject to the provisions of Section 265 of this Act."

I presume the effect of this section, Mr. Speaker, is to make a tenant of the Crown like other tenants from the point of view of taxation.

MR. HIGGINS: If the Government owns land and uses it itself there is no taxation, but if it is rented to outsiders for offices, for instance, the tenant pays taxation the same as any other person.

MR. CURTIS: I think that is correct. That is how I read the section. Then the other section, number 9, deals with small amendments to the principal Act which are not important but should be necessary. Going on to section 10 we come across a section under which the Council asks power to tax water.

"224A (a) The said tax may be based upon and form such percentage of the appraised annual rental value of the building or premises or part thereof as the Council may determine, or, in the case of any owner-occupier, may be levied in the form of a surtax on the city tax payable by such owner-occupier."

In other words the Council may say there is 10% tax on existing city taxes now or on a tax of $45 for six months the water assessment is $4.50 for the same period.

"(b) The said tax may be determined by the number of demand water taps or outlets located in any such building or premises or part thereof and charged at flat rates for specified total numbers of taps or outlets or at a rate per tap or outlet fixed by the Council."

They are going to count the taps now in houses and charge so much a tap for six months and then again, Mr. Speaker, the tax may be based upon the quantity of water used and if that is done, meters will have to be installed. Obviously the last method is the fairest method of imposing water tax because if you are taxed according to the water used you will not waste the water and one of the reasons for this requested legislation is to conserve our water supply.

MR. HIGGINS: Don't take too many baths.

MR. CURTIS: Don't take showers.

MR. HIGGINS: A leaky tap uses much more water than any number of baths.

MR. CURTIS: If one knew the accumulated wastage from such taps! However the Council asks permission to tax water now. Frankly, I do not see why the Council asked this, because under existing legislation they can assess under the city tax, our property for as great an amount as they wish, but they have decided this year not to make the City Tax 20%, but to retain it at 18%, yet they now ask for permission to put on water taxes which might be 10% of the City Tax which is to make the tax payable not 18% but 19.8%. If they had gone ahead with the ordinary system and made the tax 20% they would have exactly the same revenue but they prefer to have it this way and have asked us now to put on a water taxation or allow them to, in the hope, presumably, that by putting on such a tax they will eventually conserve the use of water and certainly stop the wastage for water. There is a lot to be said in favour of the proposal of water taxation. I understand all other Canadian cities have this particular form of taxation as distinct from the main tax, and the water tax is $18 a year. Well if the tax is based on the number of taps in the poorer houses it should not be very heavy. On the other hand, it would be more substantial where there are a number of outlets. The suggestion now seems to be in residences only and the House should give very careful and serious consideration to inserting it.

The next section, number 12, deals with a proposed tax which the Council wishes permission to levy on fuel oil. There is an amendment to the petition to insert this taxation in lieu of motor and poll tax. They ask in lieu of these to be allowed to impose a tax on fuel oil and other oil. As the Bill is at present, section 12 would authorize the Council to impose upon and collect and levy a tax not to exceed one cent a gallon. It does not impose that taxation but simply authorized the Council to impose such a tax if it deems it necessary on such fuel oil not to exceed one cent a gallon and the following subsection sets forth the details as to how it may be collected.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That would give them about $125,000 a year at the present rate of consumption.

HON. JAMES J. SPRATT (Minister of Provincial Affairs): That is more than the annual deficit now.

MR. CURTIS: Now it is realized, Mr. Speaker, that there are interests in Newfoundland outside St. John's which use fuel oil which may be brought from St. John's and there is a saving clause to section 12 which refers to tax exemptions on fuel oil. If the honourable members will refer to the last sub-section of Section 12 they will see that tax exempted fuel oil means oil purchased or received in St. John's for use or consumption outside the limits of the City. So if any oil is to be used outside the city it is tax exempt. But this does not include fuel oil delivered to operators of any ship other than a ship engaged in Newfoundland Coastal Shipping Trade, or any fishing vessel, or trawler, the catch of which is processed in Newfoundland, nor to any railway, but such ship or railway would be outside the limits of the city.

The other clauses of the Bill are not serious. Every Commercial Traveler has to pay a tax of 25% now exempt from that by reason of a tax agreement between this Government and the Government of Canada. Section 14 provides the Council, in lieu of entertainment taxation on circuses, which they have found very difficult to collect, are now empowered to licence circuses and the Council feels the limited sum per diem amount will bring in more revenue than did the entertainment tax.

Section 16 is a new section and the effect of it is that no action in respect of all taxes, rates, assessments or debts, payable to the city or Council shall be barred in any court except by the lapse of twenty years.

MR. HIGGINS: That is unreasonable.

MR. CURTIS: In other words it is extended by this from six years to twenty years. There is some question as to whether or not the law was not 20 years, I don't know what experience my honourable friend opposite has had but it seems to me it is always a question of what does the original question in the original charter mean by this clause. We have been asked to extend this clause to twenty years instead of six. I think that is the effect of the present section. The other amendments are purely formal and I don't think it is necessary to discuss them at all.

In moving the second reading of this Bill, Mr. Speaker, I think it is only fair to tell the House, the Council is our baby. We have created it, not this Government, but the legislature has created it, and I think it is our duty to see that that baby has sufficient revenue to keep going, sufficient milk.

MR. RUSSELL: I think it is time to wean it.

MR. CURTIS: If we don't allow the Council to impose sufficient taxation to maintain itself we have to vote it money. Now the first year we came in office in 1949 we realized the Council met certain losses and we voted them $100,000. In the year 1950 we did not vote them any money but we lent them $100,000 free of interest. Well, if we don't allow the Council now to finance itself we are up against the same situation year after year of having to lend or give them money. Therefore, we felt, Mr. Speaker, the House should give this Bill very serious consideration and should in doing so remember that the Council must have money with which to operate. If the people of St. John's want a clean city and a decent city, it is up to them, the people of St. John's, to pay for it and it is not for us as a Government and Legislature to vote the money year after year.

In closing I would like to say, Mr. Speaker, that when you compare St. John's with the other cities you must remember that St. John's is in a different position from all other cities in the other Provinces. In the city of St. John's the Government pays all the education costs, other cities have to contribute toward education. In other cities they have to pay for their police services. The Government of Newfoundland, at a cost of some half million a year, pays for the policing of St. John's. In other cities fire protection and prevention is at the expense of the city but in the case of St. John's the Government pays a quarter of a million dollars a year to maintain the Fire Department. So you see, Mr. Speaker, you can't exactly compare St. John's with any other provincial city. At the same time one must admit the city must be kept up, the roads have to be maintained, and where possible improved, and therefore it is felt that if it is at all possible we should accede to the wishes of the Council in their request that they be allowed to collect taxes as set forth in this Bill.

I move the second reading.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Speaker, before going any further I would like to pass one remark. It is no use to compare with the Mainland but if St. John's does not pay for police services neither does any other outport, therefore every part of the Island is treated as one. The Police are not paid by the outports but out of general revenue. St. John's does get one help, the Fire Department, but I presume that is because of the large number of Government Public Buildings. The St. John's Council has to get money somewhere, there is no doubt about that. If they turn around and say we can't run the Council without more taxation, they have to get more. Now, I quite agree with the remarks that we should have a clean and decent city. I don't want a wealthy city, if people are to lose their houses due to heavy taxation, and houses become vacant because people can't pay their taxes. I don't want to see a first class city. This is not a first class country or Province. Not a first class city but just good roads and a clean city, not have taxation so high every one of us is going to lose his house.

MR. SPRATT: I first want to congratulate the honourable the Attorney General for his very able presentation of the Act. If he were to have the idea of standing for mayor of the city he could not have done much better. He has gone the limit in supporting this Bill which is not a Government Bill. Now, I want to have it made clear that I am not opposed to the city council. I have more experience in the actual working of the city council, I suppose, than any living man today. I spent 16 years as a member of the city Council. When the revenue of the city was less than one-third of what it is today, and down through the number of years that have passed since I was a member and during that period all the civic improvements in the way of roads in particular were made during the period while I was a member I am not saying this to take any credit, but for the first eight years

I was a member of the City Council we had a credit balance having done all the work out of current revenue. It was only with the past five or six years that the city really took upon itself financial responsibilities which they could not meet and I would like to point out, Mr. Speaker, and honourable members of the House of Assembly, that a great deal of this expenditure could have been avoided. The point I want to bring up here today is that it is not necessary for the Council to have increased taxation today. The honourable the Attorney General says this Bill does not mean that there is going to be increased taxation but only gives the power to do so. To my mind there is only one thing behind that statement, the Council wants power to increase taxation as set forth in this Act. Now let us bear in mind that the city can not be run without money, but if you want to run a business economically you do it with the money existing and the energy you supply yourself. The same applies to any city. But I say right here and now that there are ways and means that this city can be run without any further increase to the people who are living here, and serious thought should be given by the members of the Council to the fact that people do not want something they cannot afford to pay for, they must take into consideration that the comparison drawn with the cities on the mainland, compared with Newfoundland, there is no comparison whatsoever. Their population is greater, their income is greater, they can contribute to all the wonderful things they have and I would ask the members to give this matter very serious consideration because there are other ways out, and even though my voice may be lost on the desert air,

I undertake to take the whole on myself tomorrow. I may not go down with people, they may think because I am in the twilight of my life that I am getting nutty and don't know what I am talking about but I have practical experience. I could tell to-day where the money went and where the money that is owed today was spent, injudiciously, very injudiciously spent, and so they find themselves in debt today and I ask you again to be very careful in imposing a water tax. I am prepared to do anything to help the Council, give them all the time at my disposal that the Government would grant me permission to do and I think I could tell them there are ways and means. I know the working people, I lived, moved and had my being amongst them. I was born in the slums of the city or what is now the slums of the city and I am not ashamed of it. I know working men with six or seven children who can't meet ordinary home requirements who have a little home and can't afford to have it painted. Do these thoughts ever occur when we are making legislation? Are we making it for a highroad to allow motor cars to pass and people to enjoy them on easy street. Now the poor you shall always have with you, as the Lord said. But we must do something to help the people of Newfoundland, the fishermen of Newfoundland, we are calling out today to do something to bring in a policy, we appeal to the people to help the fishermen and to help every other man as well. That is what I am in this Government for and I must say first that my remarks may be misconstrued but I am proud to be associated with the Premier and his associates as far as that is concerned. I don't want it understood that I am opposed to the Council, I want to help them but I am saying right here now, in my honest opinion from practical experience, with a little shifting here and a little shifting there they can balance their budget without imposing taxation on taxation. I am against the Bill as it is now, Mr. Speaker.

MR. RUSSELL: There is very little that I can add to what the honourable the Attorney General said in moving the second reading. I am in agreement almost entirely with everything he said and in fact he said one or two things I would not have thought of, but I agree with them just the same.

Now I hold no brief for the City Council, I have hardly been a resident of the city long enough to be entitled to a vote but I do support the Bill one hundred percent.

Now, Sir, I agree with every item in it and where there are three classes of ways to collect the water tax I may have definite views as to which is the best of the three. As a matter of fact while on that matter of water taxes, I disagree with the mover of the second reading in that I believe it is a wise idea for the Council, if they wish to collect additional revenue on the water supply, I believe it is a wise move to ask for this amendment, which now gives them the right which I hope they eventually use for the raising of this tax by installing water meters and thereby not only increasing their revenue but doing what is at the same time something much more important, concerning the water supply. I am not afraid of the water tax, Mr. Speaker, for years when I lived in the northern outports I paid amounts monthly to a boy to come every evening and fill a water barrel in my back porch and it was more than I pay altogether now in city taxation. And I feel that I am getting a great deal more value in that one phase of city services, namely, water supply, I am getting a great deal better value for that alone, ignoring altogether the many other services I get, I am getting a great deal more for that money than I did from having to finance keeping my water barrel full.

What is the alternative to the Council's proposal? If it is our baby it is time to wean it and take the diapers off, let it loose from the apron strings and allow it to run its own affairs. I am sorry for the City Council, not only because of its financial embarrassment at the moment, but because of what almost amounts to humiliation when they have to come to us and ask us for permission to run their own affairs. I am like the Attorney General, not concerned whether they are wasting money of the taxpayers who elected them, that is for them to take appropriate action at the next municipal election. Apparently they are hard-headed, or taking a hard-headed realistic view of the problem, and I believe they are sincere and sensible in their proposals.

Now, Sir, there is one point I must stress, the last one, if we don't want to let them run their own affairs we have to continue what we have been doing for the past two years. If we ever have to do that again, give them an outright grant as we did one year or an interest free loan as we did on another occasion, I want to say right here and now I will resent it. To give an outright grant of provincial funds belonging to everybody in Newfoundland rather than get it by water taxes, is asking the very poorest people of the district I represent to help pay for services I am getting here in St. John's. Even when I had to have the water barrel filled I paid for it myself and I did not want poorer people to pay for it for me and I don't want it now. I don't think it is right to be spending provincial funds until the city has paid all, at any rate they are willing to pay to maintain their own services.

Sir, I am for the Bill but there are one or two things I might mention in Committee, but I support the Bill entirely as it is.

MR. FAHEY: Mr. Speaker, in this Act, as I see it, we are giving the Council power to levy taxes. Now there are a few things we should analyze on that basis. It is true this does not put on taxes but only gives the Council permission to raise taxes and within the last few years the city raised the taxes from 16% to 18% and then again there was a discount of 10% if taxation was paid on or before the first of June which was cut to five percent, and in addition to that again last year a readjustment was made of all property which came into effect this year and which drove the taxes on people quite a bit. This Act is now asking the Government to give the Council further power to increase taxation. Now I will agree the Council must have money to exist. It has been stated here that the Council had a debt of $100,000 last year and the Council claimed that was brought about due to the fact they lost one dollar a ton royalty on coal. It says that people have substituted oil for coal and the Council asks the right to tax the oil to offset the revenue lost by the coal. But I think the Council could do a little better in some cases in the assessment of property, I think there are sections in this country covering half a square acre and perhaps there is more taxation paid in the centre of the city on a 20 ft. frontage than some of those properties pay. I have my opinion on that and I will stick to it and I think they should adjust their own affairs, clean house as it were before coming to the Government and asking them to give them power to increase taxation. The Government would probably say yes, the Council must have taxation and the House may therefore give them the power but when we speak about water taxes I am opposed to that entirely. As a member of this House I am interested in revenue and if water is taxed the Board of Liquor Control won't show the same profit and for that reason alone I am against it.

Now we are told the Council is our baby, created by this House. If that is true let us look at it in the right way. The motorcars that are registered by the Ministry of Public Works are somewhere in the vicinity of 15,000 and I think 90% of these cars use the streets of St. John's and the Provincial Government collects 14c. a gallon on gasoline. I think the Government is getting the biggest share of revenue through taxation and they are subsidizing the Council to the extent of $100,000 because the Council is putting up the streets for the cars from which the Government is collecting the taxes, and it is only fair that the Government should return the Council $100,000 outright. I don't say the people should pay more taxation, they are paying enough now and if it is the desire to help the Council along then the Government should look over their own shoulder and say, well we are getting quite a lot of revenue from gasoline tax and the Council is keeping up the streets and but for that there would not be so many cars, therefore, my contention is the Government should assist the Council—and the people are taxed heavily enough already.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The question before the House, I think, is one of allowing the Council to balance its budget or of forcing the Government to balance it for them. Now, as far as the Government are concerned, we don't want to be forced to balance the budget for the City Council. This year in the estimates we asked the House to grant a large sum of money to the city to balance its budget or help to balance it and last year we asked the House to grant a large sum and to lend a large sum to the Council for the same purpose. We certainly do not want to come in here next year and the year after and again ask the House to vote money to help the Council balance its budget. We don't think that the Government nor this House ought to be concerned with the budget of the City Council, at last I don't think so. And if we are not prepared to balance the city budget we ought I think to allow them to do it themselves. Now there we have them completely at our mercy. The City Council can impose no new taxation whatsoever under the law and we pass the laws. They can collect only what we will allow them to collect, not a cent more. They can impose only such taxation as we permit them to do. If we are not prepared to grant, year after year, sums of money to them to enable them to balance their budget then we ought, I think, to be prepared to allow them to do that by passing the laws that will allow them to impose the taxation they need and I must say I take the view directly opposite to that of my honourable and learned friend the Leader of the Opposition. I have lived in St. John's about half my life, I am not a native of it. But I am not content to have St. John's just a clean city, simply clean and decent. I am not content that any Newfoundland town should be merely clean and decent. I would like to see St. John's and every Newfoundland town, as Corner Brook: I would like to see St. John's be just about half as progressive and modern as Corner Brook. I would be very pleased if St. John's were nearly as progressive and modern and up to date as Grand Falls, but even if it were I would not be satisfied. I see no reason, basically, intrinsically, inherently why the Provincial Capital of Newfoundland should not be a thoroughly modern, up to date, progressive city and I am thinking in that respect of the purely material things pertaining to the city as a city, sidewalks, gutters, pavements and lighting. I see no reason why the capital of this Province should take second place to the capital of Nova Scotia or Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick or of the Prairie Provinces with the possible exception of the Province of Alberta. And my ambitions for St. John's goes away beyond that of my honourable and learned friend the Leader of the Opposition. I believe he is a native of St. John's, but with a difference; he, as I observed before, walks forward with his head turned over his shoulder looking with affection on the good old days.

MR. HIGGINS: And hates to see a man losing his house. Mr. Speaker, I don't like that.

MR. SMALLWOOD: If my honourable and learned friend is offended, I apologize to him. I certainly had no intention of offending him and I don't understand why he is so touchy. We are getting a little bit case-hardened; when we are called a pack of grafters, and racketeers we are not made touchy even by that, but if my honourable friend is offended by this I will promptly drop that line of explanation. He is like everyone and does not wish to be misconstrued and I would hope not to misconstrue him, but actually I might not find it always easy to do it but I hope to be able to do it with some little assistance from him.

Now, I don't think for one moment that St. John's is as up-to-date or modern or progressive as it ought to be, but I think also that the system of taxation in St. John's and the absolute amount of tax imposed and revenue collected is inadequate. The honourable the Minister of Supply surprised me very much by remarking the other day that there are four towns in Newfoundland where the average per capita taxation imposed by the Town Council is higher than that imposed by the City Council of St. John's. That is to say if you take all of the revenue collected by the Town Council in each of the four towns in this Province and divide it by the entire population of each of those towns the average per capita taxation is higher than that imposed by the City Council of St. John's. I don't agree with my honourable and very highly respected friend, the Minister of Provincial Affairs. I don't agree with him at all in that matter, I disagree with him completely. I think that the Municipal taxes ought to be higher in St. John's, referring to the total amount collected, not referring to any particular taxation. I am not suggesting the tax rate at 18% is not high enough. I say that it is far too high in certain cases. I know a member of this House whose home is appraised by the city at $30 rent a month, $360 a year and that same honourable gentleman told me, and I am not naming any names obviously, that if he were to leave his house and rent it he could do so easily for $70 or $75 a month yet he is paying taxes at the rate of $30 per month. The point made by the senior member for Harbour Main-Bell Island is, I think, a very valid point of big spaces in the city of St. John's privately owned and occupied which are not properly appraised. One of the greatest weakness of the city taxation is an unfair and highly unscientific system of appraisal. A proper system would yield much more taxation and that is my own opinion. I am not the mayor of St. John's nor a member of the City Government and I am here as a member of this House; it is none of my business how they impose their taxation, how many people they exempt from it, how fair or unfair their system of taxation is. That is their business and the business of the citizens of St. John's.

MR. FAHEY: You pay taxes.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I am not here as a taxpayer of the city of St. John's. I am here as a member for Bonavista North and I am speaking here as a member for Bonavista North just as my honourable friend is speaking for Harbour Main-Bell Island and just as the Minister of Provincial Affairs has spoken, not as a citizen of St. John's, not as Minister of Provincial Affairs but as a member of this House and it is in that capacity and that only we should speak to this subject and as such it is not my business how they impose their taxation and what system they have. This is my business; as a member of this House I don't want to be called on year after year to finance the City Government or help do it and certainly, as leader of the Government, I don't want to be in the position of having to ask the House to vote money year after year to the City Government, and further, I will go further, and as the honourable and gallant member for Ferryland says, I will go further now and say, I do not intend to be bringing in that recommendation by the Government year after year to this House. Let them finance themselves. That is what they are there for. That is why they were elected, that is what those who elected them expect them to do, balance their budget. Now if this House knows it has not given them sufficient legislation to do so, let us give it to them, and if we give it to them they know it is no good to come back to us as a Government asking for grants and until we have given them authority to raise their own revenue, by their own taxes, they must come back to us because by law they must balance their budget. Now if Newfoundland were on the downward grade, if we were facing a depression in Newfoundland then I would say let the City Council begin to cut and clean and retrench. But Newfoundland is not on the edge of a downward trend but on the edge and well on the edge of an upward trend and I don't see any call for the city to try to be just a village, a glorified little hamlet clean and decent. Let it be a modern, pulsating, progressive city. It has a population of fifty thousand, about the tenth or twelfth largest in the whole of Canada, this whole nation. This city of St. John's is not going to be a glorified village. If it is a city we have to make it so but they must have authority to have it so and I for one am going to vote for this Bill and I am willing to go along with those changes on the principle of the Bill that the City Council have authority to impose new or additional taxation. I am in full agreement.

Now, if they don't do it right the taxpayers of St. John's will know what to do about that—it is none of my business, except when it comes to voting as a taxpayer of St. John's—but here in this House I do not take that stand. They stand between the devil and the deep blue sea, on the horns of a dilemma like the man on the roof, they are not allowed to balance their budget and they have to do it. I vote for this measure.

MR. FORSEY: Sir, I thoroughly agree with the principle of the Bill, namely, if people want services they should expect to pay for them. The position as I see it is this: There is a man living on one of the streets in St. John's with a house valued at $5,000 and the St. John's Municipal Council maintains for him, a water system, the St. John's Municipal Council maintains for him a system of sewerage, it puts a paved road in front of his House. The St. John's Municipal Council collects garbage from his door. These are four services and the St. John's Municipal Council will charge that man who owns $5,000 worth of property in the city $3 a month, a small sum. If he goes to a private company and says I want a phone which I will use ten or a dozen times a day, when he asks the price the charge will be identically the same.

The assessment of property in St. John's is ridiculously low, about one-third what it should be to conform with assessment of property on the Mainland and if we have citizens of this city expecting services they must expect to pay for them.

MR. JANES: I have to agree with the Minister of Supply, Sir, but it is a matter which we as members of the House are not very much concerned with, but here we are faced with a city not paying its way and the last thing I want to do, Sir, is to have the people of Fogo Island help to pay for maintenance of services in the City of St. John's. It has been done before and part of it is being done now, even the police force. There are fifty thousand people here and in Fogo ten thousand and they have one policeman. At that rate St. John's should have about five or six; I am not concerned with that, we have the police and we have to make use of them and there is no better place than the city of St. John's for them. With regard to water taxes, Sir, I am hoping that when it comes to Committee it will be amended. The matter of charging for water should be by meter rather than by an assessment on rental values. I have one impression of St. John's I am not going to forget very quickly. I was away a few years and on St. Patrick's Day, 1946 I came back. I had seen a few cities during my absence but this was the most disgraceful city ever I had seen in my life, and as I went up through St. John's I had the feeling the city was down on my head. The citizens of St. John's should not be satisfied having a city as good as anywhere else. There was a commission to report on the Council, what happened to that report, how much of it is being implemented? I don't know, all I see is occasionally a two-ton truck going around picking up paper with three men employed on it. I do know that is going on, I see it every day. To me that is a wastage of time and labour, but we are not here to decide that. The Council cannot balance its budget, well then there is only one thing left to do; give them the power to do it or give them the money and I am not prepared to give them the money.

MR. FAHEY: To put another truck on Elizabeth Avenue.

MR. JANES: Yes, so long as Fogo does not have to pay for it, and that is if they want another, but I know how I will vote next time if I think they have too many trucks.

If the Council is our baby give them the power to balance their budget and operate on their budget and balance it rather than come back here year after year and look for more money.

MR. VARDY: Mr. Speaker, I was sorry that I did not hear the remarks made in the early part of the debate. This Bill is a matter in which I am very keenly interested both as a representative of part of the city of St. John's and also as a citizen, and as one who over some years had experience as a member of the Municipal Council so that I should have acquired at least a slight knowledge of the circumstances, which brought about the conditions which necessitate the Bill which is before the House today. I think, Mr. Speaker the difficulties of St. John's cover a great many years because of the commitments made by representatives of the citizens who were committed to no increase in taxation yet the citizens expected those same individuals whom they elected on a claim of no increased taxation to provide full services for every nook and corner of the city. And when I say municipal services, Mr. Speaker, I mean services on a par with any municipality in North America. The citizens of St. John's are not satisfied with anything less than the finest type of services that can be provided and any municipal council or group of people attempting to restrict that service in any manner soon found themselves in hot water. Now, Mr. Speaker, it was stated here in the debate you cannot have those services until they are paid for and someone has to pay for them and who more logically than the citizens who are enjoying them? That is a fundamental principle accepted all throughout the history of municipal government, local democratic governments, that citizens can only get what they are prepared to pay for and cannot expect to have New York Metropolitan services on a penny pocket book. We must be prepared to shell out for these services, and in making that statement I do it advisedly as a property owner of St. John's, and as one with some small interest in business and likely to suffer as a result of increased taxation and I feel, I speak for a very large proportion of the people when I say, they have come to the realization and conclusion that in order to maintain St. John's on a par with sister municipalities throughout the rest of the Dominion there has to be a complete revision of our approach to this property and business taxation. We cannot continue as we have been doing in the past. In view of the fact, Mr. Speaker, it is now nearly six o'clock and I have a few other remarks I would like to make on the same subject tomorrow, I ask the debate be adjourned.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, it being now six o'clock I move the adjournment of the House until tomorrow at 8:00 of the clock.

The House adjourned accordingly.

THURSDAY, May 31, 1951.

The House opened at three of the clock.

HON. P. S. FORSEY (Minister of Supply): Mr. Speaker, I wish to speak to a point of privilege; yesterday there appeared in the Evening Telegram a letter which I will read for the edification of the House.

"CLAIMS NO TENDERS ASKED

Sir,

Will you please allow me space to make the following observations.

I wonder if the honourable Mr. Smallwood is aware of the fact that at least some goods are purchased from a manufacturer on the mainland and shipped direct to the Department of Supply, and without tenders being sent to local dealers or suppliers, who are not given a chance to quote.

I publicly state that the Department of Supply are now getting in substantial shipments of Mouth Wipes direct from a manufacturer on the mainland and that no tenders on this item have been sent out to local business firms this year.

I challenge the Minister of Supply to deny or refute this statement through the local press.

Does one have to be a member of the Cabinet or a Senator in order to get any Government business? It seems that this is so, in any event it certainly smells of rotten party politics.

If the honourable Mr. Smallwood has the interest of having a clean house at heart, I submit that he direct the Minister of Supply to send out tenders for Mouth Wipes and that the lowest tender submitted with quality be accepted and to have the present obnoxious method of buying this item discontinued.

Yours truly,

LOCAL BUSINESS."

The facts of the matter, I can say, are as follows: A requisition was sent to the Department of Supply from the Department of Health as follows: Requisition—Sub-head No. 102233, Item 1.—250 dozen cartons of Mouth Wipes manufactured by Hygiene Products, Ltd. I may say, as a matter of fact, I never see requisitions except when they are questioned in the House or some member of the organization or Department of the Gripe phones me during the day in connection with some particular gripe. But this came over to the Department of Supply and the officer concerned had it. Apparently the doctors in the San had had experience with different types and preferred this particular kind, and without impinging on the honesty or the integrity of the people concerned, the Department of Health and medical practitioners in the various institutions concerned probably placed the order as requested by the Department of Health. This morning I asked for comment from the Department of Health and the following was submitted to me by the Deputy Minister:

"Re Hypo-Mouth Wipes: I am advised by the business manager that this type was used exclusively up to about 1942 and the only kind found fully satisfactory. After 1942 it was difficult to secure them and another type were used. However, when Hypo again became available and a local agent was appointed in St. John's by the Government, and as this was the only source of supply, the order was directed there by the Department, and further, there was a grave danger of a shortage of supply and it was necessary to make requisition for a supply for a long time."

This is the answer I have to give to the gentleman who wrote this letter in the Evening Telegram and I refuse the opportunity of denying or refuting the statement to the local press. I am making the explanation through the proper channels, namely this honourable House.

HON. J. R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): I would like to make a statement on that same matter. I had given orders to the Department of Supply as the Premier of this Province and leader of this Government that all purchases by the Department are to be made at the lowest possible prices consistent with quality. When I say order, the proper word is instructious or directive, because from the honourable Minister in his Department—there has been no objection or hesitance whatsoever to carry out that directive. If there is one thing this Government are proud of, it is that the many hundred, indeed, many thousands of articles necessary for us to buy, are bought in the lowest markets. That means that some of the bitterest opponents we have politically get a very considerable slice of the public business. There is a young man named Jimmie McNab who passes his time calumniating me yet who nevertheless, despite that fact, gets large orders from this Government. I am not ashamed to admit it, though in the old way of political thinking, McNab should not get one dollar of business from this Government until at least he learns to shut his mouth, but because his prices are lowest he gets the business. The same thing applies to firms all along Water Street that hate our guts, despise us, look upon us as filth and dirt, only fit to soil the sole of their shoes. Nevertheless because they tender lowest they get the business from this Government and we take great pride in that. But as these purchase run into literally millions of dollars a year and are made up of many thousands of items for delivery to many institutions, every penny-half penny two-by-four commission agent who tenders and does not get the orders, jumps at once to the conclusion it is all graft and bribery and corruption and the life of the Minister of Supply, no matter who he may be, is a life of hell on earth so long as he occupies that ministerial post. As I say, every little cheap commission agent who tenders and does not get the order jumps to the conclusion, and frequently spreads the rumour about the town that it is all graft and corruption. Admittedly it was so in the good old days gone by, whereas in actual fact we would give the business to the devil himself if his tender is best and consistent with the quality of his goods. Now the Government does not buy sulphur but if it did, it would not mind going straight to Hell for it, though we know the Devil spends most of his time opposing this Government. Now there are cases where it is most economical and in the public interest to order direct from the Mainland. In such cases the order is placed with the Mainland manufacturer. Now, we have one preference however. Our preference is in favour of home manufacturers and we are prepared to pay a bit more for goods manufactured or grown or processed here in this Province so that local industry may be helped and encouraged and for that reason and no other we do place orders with local manufacturers and local processing concerns and producing concerns in preference to firms handling goods other than home products. Now the customary thing in the past has been that when any one had a gripe he went to the member of the Opposition and asked that member of the Opposition if he would table the question in the House and ask if the Government purchased such and such article, if so when and from whom and at what price were tenders called, to produce the other tenders and that is usually one of the functions of the Opposition. Now we have a new one, the scurrilous filth and dirt in the public press written anonymously to the public press, a public press which has not hesitated to suggest that a loan made by a subsidiary body of this Government, a semi-independent body, a loan board was made because some Government member is a director of the Company receiving the money, I wonder if the writer of that editorial was aware of the completely insulting character of that suggestion? I said to the honourable Leader of the Opposition that it was a contemptible suggestion, beneath contempt. If we pride ourselves on anything in this Government more than the program of economic development it is the fact that we are honest and clean. No Government in Newfoundland's history after the year 1900 could pretend to be as clean as we are.

MR. FOGWILL: What is the question before the House?

MR. SPEAKER: The Ministerial statement made by the honourable Premier.

MR. FOGWILL: I understood the point to be a question made by the honourable Minister of Supply.

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable the Premier said he wished to make a statement regarding the same point.

MR. FOGWILL: It is rather peculiar.

MR. SMALLWOOD: My honourable friend would not consider it peculiar were he to study parliamentary procedure and understand it as well as some of us, then he would cease to regard it as peculiar and regard it as quite normal. And so I say, Mr. Speaker, it is probably inevitable that the thanks we will get for being honest is to have those imputations made against us. Now one thing I assure the House is this, and this is said in connection with this matter today. We have no intention whatsoever of spending the rest of our time in office answering silly anonymous accusations made in print, either anonymous or otherwise. We are completely conscious of our own integrity as a Government; there may come a day when it is prudent and necessary to do so, but we are too busy a Government to play party politics, too busy with things too vital for the people of Newfoundland to play party politics and we have come to the conclusion the best politics to play is not to play politics.

Presenting Petitions

None.

MR. FAHEY: Do I understand it is in order to make a ministerial statement.

MR. SPEAKER: That is perfectly in order, the Minister of Supply made a complaint of breach of privilege and did not ask the House to take any action. The honourable Premier asked to make a Ministerial Statement which was absolutely in order, there was no motion for the Chair.

Giving Notice of Motions and Questions

HON. LESLIE R. CURTIS (Attorney General): Mr. Speaker, I give notice I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Further Amend the Public Utilities Act, 1949."

HON. DR. H. L. POTTLE (Minister of Public Welfare): I give notice I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill, "An Act Respecting Live-stock."

HON. C. H. BALLAM (Minister of Labour): I give notice I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill, "An Act to Amend the Trade Union Act, 1950," also a Bill, "An Act to Amend the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1950."

MR. FOGWILL: In view of the fact that the Government is shortly to introduce legislation involving the expenditure or guarantee of public funds in connection with timber in Lake Melville, I give notice that I will on tomorrow ask if the Government are now prepared to table the IBEC Report so that we may study it in connection with the proposed legislation.

The honourable the Attorney General asks leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Amend Certain Newfoundland Statutes."

Bill read a first time.

MR. CURTIS: This, Mr. Speaker, is purely a formal Bill tidying up a lot of acts in the consolidated statutes and so I will ask leave that the Bill be now read a second time. If honourable members will refer to the Bill they will see the amendments are purely formal; there is no matter of policy involved in any of them but is merely a bit of tidying up of legislation which can be discussed more fully, if honourable members wish, in Committee.

Bill read a second time.

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole on this Bill, in view of the fact that I have informed the honourable Leader of the Opposition that when the Committee reads the Bill I propose to suggest we raise the Committee and not report so that he may have a chance tomorrow to ask us any questions.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Amend Certain Newfoundland Statutes."

Sections 1 and 2 read and passed.

Section 3 read.

MR. FOGWILL: Will the honourable Minister explain?

MR. CURTIS: This refers, Mr. Chairman (I hope the honourable members won't ask me about all the Bills as I don't pretend to be familiar with them all)—this refers to the Supreme Court of Newfoundland. We have to make this change because the judges of the Supreme Court are now appointed by the Governor-General in Council and the change is to embrace the judges of the Supreme Court.

MR. FOGWILL: In reference to the honourable the Attorney General's suggestion that we not ask too many questions, we will ask all we want.

MR. CURTIS: I know that but I may have to defer the answers.

MR. FAHEY: Will the Minister explain?

MR. CURTIS: These are all Federal now.

(H) Comes under the Board of Liquor Control. (F) Public Printing comes under Supply.

MR. CURTIS: This I may say is one of the Acts in suspense, we are keeping it there in case we do not sign the Tax Agreement. Next year this Act I think will become operative.

Section 3 passed.

Section 4 read and passed.

Section 5 read.

MR. CHAIRMAN: We will let clause 5 stand.

MR. CURTIS: We better let six stand also, Mr. Chairman, as I don't know why that should be repealed unless there are two, certainly that fund is not dead.

MR. CHAIRMAN: Clause 6 stands.

Section 7 read.

MR. CURTIS: Instead of Privy Council it is now Supreme Court of Canada.

MR. FOGWILL: Will the Minister explain?

MR. CURTIS: Just while the law clerk is looking up that section, I would like to refer again to the Permanent Marine Disaster Fund, only section 9 is being repealed and that is the one providing for franking of letters. We cannot give them that privilege now so it is very obvious it must come out. It is just a case of tidying up the schedule, it is exactly the same in both Acts. This is just a matter of form. The Landlords Taxation, Chapter 1, only one section in that chapter. Now under this section the amendment puts in the word "Ground" so it shall be the Ground Landlords Taxation. That is merely clearing up what was meant. I may say this amendment is made retroactive to the Consolidation Committee's work.

Sections 8, 9 and 10 read and passed.

Section 11 read.

MR. FAHEY: What does Section 11 mean?

MR. CURTIS: We are just writing out that clause as it apparently does not mean anything.

MR. FAHEY: People will still get married.

MR. CURTIS: Unfortunately. That is just a readjustment it puts our own instead of the English Act. Under Section 18: Instead of Dominion of Canada—"Any Province of the Dominion of Canada."

I think instead of exportation we should say shipment. Replace the word exportation with the word shipment. That clause gives them the right to bring in the stuff duty free and is valueless now.

Section 18 is one of those things, I recommend the Committee let it stand.

Sections 13 to 16 read and passed.

Section 17 read.

MR. FAHEY: Mr. Chairman, I would like the Minister to explain—Does the Minister of Provincial Affairs take the place of the Colonial Secretary?

MR. CURTIS: Not in buying stationery, the Minister of Supply does all the buying for all the Departments.

MR. FAHEY: I always thought the Minister or Secretary of Provincial Affairs, whatever he is called, in each province more or less takes the place of what we used to call the Colonial Secretary?

MR. CURTIS: Yes, you see, Mr. Chairman, all the stationery is bought through the Department of Supply but when that Act was passed in 1926, at that time, the Colonial Secretary's Office or Department used to do all the buying.

Section 17 passed.

Section 18 read.

MR. FOGWILL: What would be the position there if it were necessary to exhume a body, what is the position in regard to the police?

MR. CURTIS: Permission would always have to be obtained from the police. But it would have to be done with the co-operation of the Department of Health. I think the decision is really with the Minister of Justice, the Attorney General but we have not had one since I have been here. At the same time I think the idea is to join with the Minister of Health to be sure there is no infection or infectious disease involved. That means the Minister of Health would have to supervise it.

MR. FOGWILL: What I have in mind is in case of crime.

MR. CURTIS: That does not alter it, it would be discussed with the Minister of Health as there is no chairman of the Board of Health now.

Section 18 passed.

Sections 19 to 22 read and passed.

Section 23 read.

That had better stand I would like to check up on that one.

Section 24 read.

MR. FOGWILL: I would like an explanation of 24—All of section 75 of the Education Act except paragraph (u) and part (b) of the schedule according to that Act are repealed and added in the new amendment. Does the Minister know what that Act is?

MR. CURTIS: We had better have that stand and check up on it.

HON. JAMES J. SPRATT (Minister of Provincial Affairs): I would like the honourable the Attorney General to go back to Section 5 and explain it, I do not understand the sub-section of section 35, Chapter 51. What does that mean? For argument's sake after taking out Newfoundland and substituting Canada then we are working under chapter 51 of the Consolidated statutes of Canada, are we actually working under that?

MR. CURTIS: I shall be glad to answer that as soon as the book is brought down from the Library.

MR. CHAIRMAN: That clause was not passed, it was allowed to stand at the request of the Committee.

MR. CURTIS: I will deal with that section tomorrow. I move the Committee rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again tomorrow.

Carried.

Third reading of a Bill, "An Act Further to Amend Chapter 61 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of the St. John's Fire Department.'"

Bill read a third time and passed.

Third reading of a Bill, "An Act to Amend the Land Development Act, 1944."

Bill read a third time and passed.

Third reading of a Bill, "An Act to Make Provision for the Granting of Loans to Certain Companies."

MR. CURTIS: I move this order be deferred. I move the next four orders on the Order Paper be deferred which will bring us to the St. John's Municipal Act.

Carried.

MR. VARDY: Mr. Speaker, in discussing the principle of this Bill yesterday afternoon I indicated, I think, in the brief remarks I made that I was very emphatically in favour of the principle, viz., that the St. John's Municipal Council is asking the permission of this House to grant it powers to finance its own operation so that it may keep its own affairs in order. And I think in supporting that principle, Mr. Speaker, it is only fair and reasonable. Now, it does not Council and those of us who are in favour of the proposal that we should justify the stand we take in contending that the assertions of the Municipal Council that they should be granted additional taxation powers are fair and reasonable. Now, it does not necessarily follow that if these powers are granted to the St. John's Municipal Council they are going to be put into effect. That is not for us to determine, that is strictly and entirely a matter for the St. John's Municipal Council, a body elected by the citizens of St. John's, to determine in their wisdom as they will be the ones, in the final analysis to answer to the citizens who put them in office. But I think it is only fair to make a few comparisons between the taxation situation of the city of St. John's and that of comparable communities, and I think the most comparable is the city of Halifax.

Now, it is true it is a City with a completely different population problem than we have here in St. John's and all their methods of operation are somewhat different; that is I think where the great distinction arises, and I think it is only fair that that distinction should be brought in to focus so that we might see exactly what it is. For instance if we were residents of the city of Halifax today we would be participating in and continuing an expenditure which entails an overall cost of $5,667,000. Now the statistics I am going to quote with relation to the city of Halifax have to do with 1949 year ending, so these statistics being made available, I believe, at the end of March 1950, just a little over a year ago. I don't have in my possession the statement for 1950 but I take it the difference won't be very great. That is computed, Mr. Speaker, on a population of 100,000 and for argument's sake we will place the population of St. John's at 50,000. It is, I contend, closer to 65,000 but in order to simplify the position we will cut the figures in half. In other words in the city of Halifax and the city of St. John's the proportion of population is only half and if we were paying taxation in St. John's on the same proportion we would be contributing roughly $2,800,000 instead of one million as at the present time.

Now the citizens of Halifax have to pay for these services: They have to pay for their central government which involves an expenditure of $519,000 which would mean roughly $250,000 for the city of St. John's; Fire Protection for which they provide another $547,000, they have police protection, another $321,531, also their City Court and City Prison, corrective Institute which costs an additional $65,800, for Wire inspection, $15,000, for Street Lighting, they pay the Public Works $262,000 for maintenance and that might be somewhat lower than paid in the city of St. John's, but it does not provide for capital expenditure. They provide another $284,000 for garbage collection and street cleaning, surface maintenance and snow removal. Now here we come to an item of primary importance to us: For contribution to health, contributions for Health Department $121,000, $13,000 miscellaneous expenditures making a total of $137,000 paid in the city of Halifax. The taxation pays for education, to the school board $1,120,000 and an additional amount to teachers' pension fund and municipal school fund making a total of $1,200,000 paid by the city of Halifax to education alone which is more money, in fact, than is collected by all the taxation annually in the city of St. John's. They pay for recreation and community services and the recreation committee spent in that year $23,700. They provide public baths and pay to maintain them for $14,000. A City Market costing roughly $3,000 and a public library $7,417, making an additional grant of $10,000. For the Bi-Centenary Celebrations they spent $25,000 and on other municipal items $25,000, in all reaching an expenditure of $107,000 in that year alone. Now we come to other items in the city of Halifax, they provide their own Public Welfare and for that they spend $85,000 a year. Their welfare department alone costs them $34,000 and their Child Welfare $50,000, then hospitalization and medical services are paid for by a grant by the city of Halifax. They spend $67,000 on indigent sick, in other words those sick people who could not pay their own hospital bills and to cover this, there is a hospital grant of $19,000. There is a city owned Hospital and a TB Hospital also, costing them to operate during that year $145,000; infectious diseases Hospital costing $33,000 to maintain and those amounts alone make a total of $265,000 for those four items, as the gross cost of operating these, and besides they make a grant to private charitable organizations of an additional $24,000. They also maintain their cemeteries, Mr. Speaker, and their interest on bank charges and so forth. I won't recite any more as it is enough to say in the city of Halifax they maintain all these services at a total expenditure of $5,680,000 as against the roughly one million that is provided by the city of St. John's through direct taxation.

Now, I have one point yet, I have heard some of the speakers make various comments on it, and I think it was the honourable Leader of the Opposition who said, I am not quite sure, that he did not disagree entirely with the Bill but was opposed in part since he did not want to see any poor people in St. John's lose their homes as a result of increased taxation. Well, Mr. Speaker, I agree entirely with that point of view, but I would like to point out at the same time that in the city of St. John's at the moment there is a very large amount of arrears due from delinquent taxation and the city of St. John's has at the present time the power to foreclose on any of these properties and sell them in order to recover the taxation due but we have a very considerate Council with a policy which has been in existence all through the years and they have never invoked that power or took advantage of it. I was rather interested to note, yesterday, a comment made by the honourable member for Fogo regarding a report which was made available to the Municipality some years ago at considerable expense, around $15,000 or $20,000 and I must say it provided some rather startling information and made some very startling suggestions which would have startled the citizens of St. John's had this report ever been made public.

Now, Mr. Speaker, that is all very well but it further goes on to state "It may be in the best interest of the Municipality to have the present Municipal Government as it exists wiped out completely and replaced by the present central government with the municipality being administered by a separate committee. Now, I don't think it is the thought of the Provincial Government to take any steps in that direction. I have never heard it suggested but I merely raised the point to show that, for a long time, the difficulties experienced under the present municipal status have been realized. It has been recognized for a long time that it is necessary, and will be increasingly necessary in the not far distant future, to have a completely new charter set up so that the organization can run its own affairs within certain limits which exist in all subordinate of all governmental bodies. That is to have a clear line laid down, and once that is done the organization should be able to absorb and take on its own shoulders much of the services provided now by the central government. I don't think it is fair, and I think I am speaking for a large number of the taxpayers of the city of St. John's; I am at a loss for words to describe this situation which exists at the present time whereby the citizens of St. John's who are contributing very largely have to come with their hats in their hand and ask for grants again from the Central Government. They should know exactly where they stand, what resources are open to them, what they can do with the money available to them. If it is necessary for the city of St. John's or the St. John's Municipal body to operate their own fire and police department, I believe means should be made available for them to do it whether by taxation or by increased grants. Because after all it is obvious to all of us in the Provincial Government a fire department and police protection for St. John's cannot be provided without spending the money or having a definite and specific grant made available to the Municipality which should assume the responsibility of administering their own affairs themselves.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I don't want to labour this point too much but I do, however, want to answer another point raised by, I believe, the member for Harbour Main-Bell Island which referred to water meters. I would like to read what this report has to say regarding that. I just thought that for the information of the House I would raise that point in connection with it. I do entirely endorse the principle of this Bill that the Municipality should be given the power to levy taxation to conduct its own affairs. My only feeling is that the municipality is not asking sufficient power, at this time; it cannot conduct its own affairs without complete authority to do it and in order to do so the Council must have financial independence and that can be acquired in two ways, by direct grants or increased taxation. I think that is something for them to determine as they would be the ones to answer for it to the taxpayers. I don't think this is ever going to be the community we all want it to be until the step is taken, and I would be the first to support it if it were brought forward.

MR. FOGWILL: I would like, Mr. Speaker, to make some few remarks on this Bill. I would first like to say I was very much interested in the remarks of the previous speaker, just now ended, when he quoted some very impressive figures in relation to the city of Halifax. These very well may have been true, the city of Halifax may have been going on for a long time, much longer than the development of St. John's, although St. John's itself is an ancient place in point of occupation by people from Europe, yet nevertheless we are impressed with the figures presented in respect to the burden of taxation on the people of Halifax, and we probably may take it this way, I may be wrong and I may be right, but the opinion is very strong on what is taking place in Newfoundland that the pattern of taxation for our country is taking a gradual change and the change is taking place in all taxation forms in all the towns and villages in Canada the change has been taking place since 1867; their pattern was laid down then and has developed from that time.

We are different in this old city. We have been having taxation at a minimum, of course, for the past forty years and there has been a great development in our city with regard to services of water and sewerage and other facilities. I remember the time myself, not very long ago, about 40 years ago, there was only one paved street and I recollect very distinctly the rest of the streets in St. John's were ankle deep in mud and many a youngster earned a penny by taking a broom and sweeping it clear so that people could get across the street without getting their boots or shoes soiled. I earned many a penny myself doing that. But I want to repeat this because it has been said by many before, the people of St. John's and all the other people in the towns and villages of Newfoundland have to prepare themselves for a new system of taxation, altogether something entirely foreign to them and suddenly forced upon them, not gradually as it should be. Now, it is not very long ago, Sir, when we had no town planning at all. Only in late years have we had town planning and the reason why the Council is now asking for the right to impose new taxation probably can be put down to one or two facts, the increase in the cost of the city itself, the spreading out into longer avenues and streets and the cost of servicing of the streets, the laying of sewerage and water and the demand from the taxpayers for more and better services.

There was a remark made by the honourable member for Fogo here yesterday that he saw a council truck going around with three men picking up paper. I would like to say to him they were doing more than picking up paper, they were cleaning the city, clearing the garbage and working all hours in the night and when there was a broken water main in Portugal Cove they worked all night up to their knees in mud. I resent any reflection upon the employees of the City Council. They don't work hard all the time nor easy all the time but they give a good service to the people.

Of course we have another fact, the loss of revenue due to Confederation. It may be the opinion of some members that there was not a great loss. Then we have the increased cost of material and the downward trend or the devaluation of the dollar itself. In passing I would like to make a remark in support of what my honourable friend, the member for Harbour Main-Bell Island, said about the enormous amount of water used by the controllers. It would be a good guess that the Controllers mix a little rum with water and I don't believe they sell less than one million dollars worth of city water a year. That is evidenced by reports brought in during the last couple of years. They should have a meter paying not so much per thousand gallons but by the gallon. They are getting well paid for it.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I think this Bill will merit all the consideration we can give it. I am not entirely in accordance with all the clauses but I do realize the city must have money to carry on and I am doubtful if I would vote against the principle entirely but I think many clauses are objectionable and until such time as the Council gets its own house in order and lets the people know what is going on, how they are spending money and what value they are getting for it, I don't feel it is correct to impose more taxation on the city. After all the city of Halifax may earn more money, may be in a position to pay a higher taxation than the city of St. John's. The people of St. John's are poor people and the greater burden of taxation will rest upon the poor people who probably, many of them, work only seven or nine or ten months a year. If we are to have increased taxation it should be spread among those people who can pay for it and no further burden should be placed on those unable to pay this taxation. Mr. Speaker, I support the principle of the Bill but I assert I am opposed to some of the clauses in that Bill in relation to increased taxation, which may bring a greater burden upon the poor people. Thank you.

Moved and seconded this Bill now be read a second time.—Carried.

MR. CURTIS: Before we decide what to do about this Bill, I wonder if we might have our recess.

MR. SPEAKER: Before recess, may I remind the House of standing order 66—Private Bills read a second time are referred to Committee.

Recess.

MR. SPEAKER: The Municipal Bill which has been read a second time is referred, according to Standing Order 66, to a select committee. I would suggest to the House that the committee previously appointed to study this Bill; the Honourable the Attorney General, the Honourable Minister of Provincial Affairs, Honourable Mr. Vardy, the Honourable the Leader of the Opposition, Mr. Fahey, and I suggest the addition of one other Honourable Member, Mr. Russell.

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Speaker, would it be in order to move this be not referred to select committee, but to have the rules of the House suspended, would it be in order to make such a motion?

MR. RUSSELL: I second that motion.

MR. SPEAKER: Moved and seconded that standing order No. 66 be suspended and this Bill be now referred to a Committee of the Whole House.

Committee of the Whole on a Bill "An Act to Amend the St. John's Municipal Act, 1921 and Acts in Amendment Thereof and for Certain Other Purposes."

Sections 1, 2, 3 read and passed.

Section 4 read.

MR. FAHEY: Will the Minister explain Section 4?

MR. CURTIS: I may say this Bill was not drafted by the Department of the Attorney General but by the City Solicitors and they have some wording strange to us.

MR. SPRATT: I would like to point out that that Act as read had to be changed during the period that I was in the Council as it brought a great hardship to the people. As a matter of fact it was not done and down on Duckworth Street where it was paved the Council had considerable trouble in collecting the money, and did not collect, and there are people living on that street who could not by any stretch of the imagination pay it. They had to pay on that frontage and it was impossible to do it, with the result that certain members of the Council objected to its being carried out, and that went on for years, some people paying installments and after four years, through my continued objections and with the support of the majority of the members, the Act was changed and the money collected was handed back to the people who had paid it. Now I would wish, like every member of this Government, to see the Council progress, but I should like to see the taxation levied in a manner that would not put too great a burden upon anybody, particularly the people who can't afford to pay and I don't care who agrees with me or who does not.

I have a fundamental knowledge of civic works and I am prepared to take a challenge from anybody on that matter. I know the work. They say you are getting water and sewerage but you are paying for them when you build your house and for the curb, every foot of it. And so it is with everything you get. What do you get for your taxes? You pay for the gutter, the sidewalk and now they want you to pay for the King's Highway belonging to everybody. I think it is too ridiculous, that is what is it. We are talking behind closed doors. I don't know if we are permitted to talk outside or not. But I think a law of that kind should not be allowed to pass. There are ways and means to run the city intelligently and give the people what is required. I want to be fair. There is one gentleman in the House today who was associated with me for eight years and he should know I am serious in expressing my opinion and whether I know what I am talking about or not. I would ask, Mr. Chairman, that the terms of that section be seriously considered and I believe every right-minded person will admit that it is not right for a person to pay for a street which is a public highway. People from all over the Island of Newfoundland and from foreign countries walking on a street you paid for and you have no claim on it any more than they have! It is not right. If the taxation is not sufficient to give the streets to the public then by all means let them secure the taxes in a manner where it is not applied to the people whom it will hurt most. I oppose that section.

MR. CURTIS: I think we should allow this section to stand. I cannot find the reference to Section 82 in the Bill and I can't find it in No. 32. I think we had better let it stand.

HON. E. S. SPENCER (Minister of Public Works): Just before that vote, I wonder if that refers to five.

MR. SPRATT: George Pond has a large number of residents near it and the same applies to Windsor Lake.

MR. VARDY: That is not the water shed.

MR. HIGGINS: The watershed is any hill leading down into the lake.

MR. SPENCER: I take it, the purpose is probably to prevent any further building and it may be a good idea. I wonder if anybody could enlighten me?

MR. SPRATT: I think that is ridiculous to have that there. I don't see why it is necessary at all. Nobody could build on the watershed as it is owned by the city. It is the city's property. The thing appears ridiculous to me. Everybody knows you cannot build on the watershed as it is the actual property of the city, bought and paid for from holders of the property. You can't call Portugal Cove Road the watershed. There are parts of it within it but there are no houses to affect the water. But if you went in on the Thorburn Road, the road is considerably nearer the lake and all the horse offal and everything from the road washes into Windsor Lake. I know Windsor Lake too. But you can't build on the watershed.

MR. VARDY: It provides additional protection.

MR. CURTIS: The object is purely to stop future building.

MR. SPRATT: The point I want to make is this: if I own a piece of property no one can build a house on it.

MR. RUSSELL: They had better do something like that up on Signal Hill.

MR. CURTIS: I move the Committee rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again, on tomorrow.

Carried.

Second reading of a Bill "An Act Further to Amend the Alcoholic Liquors Act, 1949."

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I move the second reading of this Bill. The Speech from the Throne announced the intention of the Government to introduce this Bill to amend the Act passed by the House in 1949, the first session of this General Assembly. The Bill of 1949 was intended, as I said at the time, to bring about a greater degree of temperance and to reduce the consumption of intoxicating liquors. The Bill has had an affect because since it came into effect and the new board was appointed and the new liquor policy of that Act carried out, the consumption of liquor has very definitely decreased as have also offenses against the Act. The number of persons arrested for offenses against the Act, that is to say for being drunk on the public street, being drunk while driving a car or in charge of a car, and for other such offences, has decreased and figures have been presented to the House showing the actual volume by which the consumption of hard liquor has decreased in the past two years. Now this new amendment is designed further to encourage temperance and to decrease the consumption of alcoholic liquors in Newfoundland.

The Bill has two or three principal features designed to accomplish that purpose. These are principally introduction of local operations providing that in any settlement in Newfoundland or a combination of two settlements there will be a tavern for the sale of beer and wines or a store for the sale of hard liquor only if a number of the qualified voters in the area agree to have it, and not if they do not agree. And with that in mind the Bill provides that any person desiring to have a tavern license for the sale of intoxicating liquor in any given place shall advertise the fact in the public press and it provides further that twenty percent of the qualified voters of any such area may by petition to the Lieutenant Governor in Council pray that a plebiscite be held on the question of whether or not that licence should be granted in that area. Such a petition having been received and signed by not fewer than 20% of the qualified voters of the area, the Lieutenant Governor in Council must arrange for the holding of a plebiscite which will be conducted in exactly the same way as the electing of a member to the House of Assembly is conducted. That is to say, a returning officer will be appointed, a day appointed for the holding of the plebiscite, booths provided, ballots printed and cast secretly. The decision will be that of a majority of the votes cast in that plebiscite. Now that is the first principle laid down in this amending Bill to provide for local operations. It does, however, provide that in any area where a majority of the qualified voters decide in a plebiscite that there shall be no tavern or liquor store, the board may nonetheless grant a licence for a hotel or tourist establishment, or I think a club.

Another provision of this Bill is to limit the number of bottles of hard liquor which may be purchased from the Board by any citizen. At the moment there is not a limit and my understanding is that any citizen may purchase any number of bottles from the Board of Liquor Control at any of its stores. The board at one time was limited by law in the sale of hard liquor to a bottle a week, and I believe, at another time, two bottles a week. Just before the Commission of Government went out of office they either passed an Act or repealed one, I forget which, that had the effect of removing all restrictions whatsoever on the number of bottles of hard liquor purchased by any citizen. This Bill, if made into a law, would limit the number of bottles which any citizen might purchase to three a week, three bottles in any one week. Another provision of the Bill is to prevent any brewer or distiller or agent or servant of a brewery or distiller from supplying orders for the sale of alcoholic liquor from any person other than the Board itself.

Now these are the two main provisions of the Bill, first to provide for local operations and second to limit the sale of hard liquor to any one person to three bottles a week. There are, however, several other features on which I might comment. I think I have mentioned the fact that before a licence can be granted the applicant must advertise his intentions to establish such an establishment. Whereupon 20% of the qualified voters in the area concerned could by petition request the holding of a plebiscite and from that point on the machinery is provided for the holding of such plebiscite. Another provision; no person shall purchase beer or wine in any tavern in respect of which a licence has been issued under this section except for personal consumption in the tavern and no person employed shall sell any beer or wine to any person except for personal consumption in the tavern. That is the no drinking clause, so called. But it may be sold only for a person's own use and consumption in the tavern. There is another provision here to the effect all samples lawfully taken and confiscated or seized for laboratory test may be disposed of as the Board may direct and the proceeds, if any, of such disposal shall form part of the revenue of the Board.

Now, there is another section here on page 2, towards the bottom of the page, section 7 is to be added. The magistrate trying the case may, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, infer that liquor is alcoholic from the fact that the witnesses describe it as alcoholic, rum, whiskey or any other name commonly applied to alcoholic liquor. The purpose is this: At the moment when liquor is seized and the case comes up before a magistrate even though the involved agrees it is liquor and that fact is not disputed the liquor has nevertheless to be sent to St. John's for analysis at the Government Laboratory. The purpose of this section is, where there is no contention that it is not liquor or any witness says it is liquor, then the magistrate may infer that it is indeed liquor. If, however, anyone contends it is not liquor the magistrate must then do as now, must in such cases send the sample forward to St. John's for analysis. I think, Mr. Speaker, I have now described the main provisions of this amending Bill. We bring this Bill before the House in the hope that its adoption will indeed further the Government's purpose which is to limit the consumption of hard liquor or to promote the cause of temperance, which are the main purposes of the main Bill to which this one is an amendment.

MR. HIGGINS: I don't know that the last alcoholic bill brought about lesser consumption or that it did not. Personally, I think the high cost brought down the consumption and, as I said before, if the liquor goes up, the ordinary decent man will not pay the price. The man who has to drink will pay the price but there is one section there I am rather glad of. That is the fact it should be purchased by a person himself: No person shall purchase beer or wine except for personal consumption in the tavern. That should be a special section and I don't see why it should not apply to clubs too. I think there is nothing one can suffer more from than the liberal practice of treating a man to a drink in a club or tavern. When I take a man to my house I give him a drink and when you go to a club you have to take four or five or until you pass out. The drinks are passed around and each one has to pay for a round of drinks, I don't mind having to pay for a drink but hate to have to take four or five drinks and I think the "No treating" clause is the best section here. Years ago Archbishop Howley suggested a "no treating" regulation and that did away with heavy drinking. What happened in those days was that a man came down in the morning and wanted to have one drink only to be met with the plea, "Oh come on, Bill, have one on me," he had a drink on him which meant he was expected to stand a drink and the result was the poor devil who wanted one drink found himself with four or five. Now I go into a club and have one drink and pay for one and want no more only to find myself with three or four where I only wanted one. How are you going to offset that, where you have six men, in terms of "A drink on me," there are six drinks handed around and then stand another and a man is half soused, whereas he went in with the best of intentions and finds himself with six drinks. It is terrible and that is what they found in the olden days when a man went in for a drink and found a friend and had to have five or six. I think it would be a good thing to put that section in for both taverns and clubs. I think it is the best antidote against too much drinking and I think it would be a good thing not only for the country at large but for every man.

MR. FOGWILL: I support the hope and wish of the Premier in this Bill that it will result in less drinking although, Mr. Speaker, when it was brought in in 1949 the alcoholic Liquor Bill was introduced by the Premier as a temperance Act; yet he did quote figures in this House in reply to my question and made reference to it today that the result of that Bill was that there was less liquor drunk but that does not show in the revenue because in 1949, Mr. Speaker, the actual revenue was $3,000,000 which the Government received as profits on liquor and in 1950 there was $3,000,000. Now I can't see how the Alcoholic Act resulted in any lessening in the consumption of liquor but rather the higher prices brought about the reduction in the consumption of hard liquor. Now everybody knows, and I know myself personally, I am acquainted with people who have not the hard cash and they buy beer and wine commonly referred to as "Pinky", I think the House is aware of the huge quantity of "Pinky" consumed. Beer and Pinky and you have the most glorious load any man ever wanted.

Mr. Speaker, I rise for the purpose of supporting the Bill and I am very happy that the honourable the Premier has intimated the willingness of the Government to accede to the suggestion of the honourable Leader of the Opposition and make the "No treating" clause a wider clause and applicable in respect of clubs in addition to taverns. I do know this; that people in Newfoundland can't afford to pay five million dollars a year on liquor or on the water they buy with the liquor, the more water the better in that event as they are not getting drunk as they would get if the liquor were stronger.

MR. CURTIS: I do not forget, as I said the other day, that the people of Newfoundland as a people put themselves on record as being in favour of prohibition and extreme form of temperance and I think therefore any Bill designed to bring temperance to the people will be acceptable to the country as a whole and to this House. The Bill covers some loopholes which have been found since the Bill was introduced last year or in 1949 by the honourable the Premier and I think the amendments suggested will greatly improve the Bill and will cut down the consumption of liquor and will be a real benefit to the community and I am particularly happy about the "no treating" clause which I think will be particularly valuable in lessening the huge consumption of liquor. I trust that if the Bill passes that the effect will be to strengthen the existing law to the advantage of the whole country. I have great pleasure in supporting the Bill.

DR. POTTLE: I rise briefly, Mr. Speaker, merely to add vocal support to the Bill in principle. I don't wish to make any speech and I have no remarks to make except to say that this legislation, as already indicated, is designed to restrict the consumption of alcoholic liquors and to make the drinking of alcoholic liquor probably as decent as it can be. This legislation is designed to meet these ends but I think it will have to be realized by the House, as it is being generally realized probably more and more, that one cannot legislate very effectively in this field of drinking, it is a matter which hardly can be controlled to any very effective extent by the passing of legislation. I shall say this Government is very sensitive, and will remain sensitive, to the majority, the expressed wish of the people regarding the whole matter of drinking and the whole House seems to be fully in support of the principle enunciated in this Bill. The purpose is to restrict and control the conditions under which drinking takes place and is designed to make the Act as workable as possible. One may only hope the end the legislation has in mind in theory will be achieved in practice.

MR. SPRATT: Mr. Speaker, I deem it my duty to support the Bill and to congratulate the honourable Premier on the principle involved. Now, I have no occasion to have any clause made for me to keep clear of strong drink.

MR. HIGGINS: I object, it is not supposed to apply to us.

MR. SPRATT: You may say what you like to me and I can take what is coming. Now, the point I want to make is this: The principle of giving the people the chance to say whether they are to have strong drink or not, that is the point I appreciate. I don't believe myself in restrictions at all. I believe if you had rum running out of the tanks after a while you would get a lot of sober men. Now, that is my honest opinion and I know myself, I have it in my own family right from the time of infancy. My father drank a gallon a day, I often brought four noggins for him, what he used to call his morning toddy when old Tom Bailey was in the business before most of you were born. Now I had experience myself. I took the pledge 69 years ago and I was a member of the Total Abstinence Society during my whole life. Twenty-six years ago I was employed by the Government of the day to superintend the construction of a public building in Corner Brook. I was born with only four senses and when I made that statement once that I was born with only four senses and did not have the sense of smell, one lad said, "Well what the Almighty took off your nose, he put on your tongue." However during the time I was in Corner Brook, I was invited out and, as the honourable Leader of the Opposition says, there were a number of strange people came along and invited me to have a bottle of beer. It was a hot evening in the summer and I used to drink that Haig Ale they sell around in the stores when you get thirsty. Prohibition was on at the time. I went in with them and I took a bottle of beer. I was quite thirsty but I did not think it was different from any other beer for the time being, but when I began to sip it, I said, "That is rather strong beer." I never drank anything as strong as that before. They turned around and told me it was Bass Ale the strongest kind of beer. I said, "Gentleman, I am a teetotaler or at least I was, but am no longer." There I was, a lifetime of total abstinence gone in the twinkling of an eye. I went out and sent a telegram: "A life of abstinence gone in the twinkling of an eye please erase my name from the roll." Then I went back and drank 20 bottles of beer. It had such an effect on me as it was the first drink I ever had, that I bought shoe-shine and hair oil and moonshine and everything I could find afterwards. I learned a lesson, I went from one extreme to another and I realized that if I carried on ultimately disaster would overtake me. Immediately on coming in to St. John's I knelt down at Fr. Pippy's knee and people did not know but that I was asking for his blessing. But I had this experience and I know something about drinking and it is the nervous system that calls for it and nothing else. And let me tell you this, there is an acid in some person's body accentuated by alcohol and in others that can benefit by it. Some men can take ten glasses of rum and not notice it and another only one and be drunk. So, gentlemen, I support the Bill before the Chair and trust my few rambling remarks have been amusing anyhow.

MR. VARDY: Mr. Speaker, I feel I would be derelict if I did not join with my honourable colleagues in supporting the principle of this Bill. I can not do so either as a total abstainer or as a prohibitioner but I do support it in the cause of moderation. It is unquestionably the idea behind the Bill to eliminate as much as possible the bootlegging and law violations that are so prevalent and have been brought to the fore so much lately by the law enforcing agents. As for the limitation on the number of bottles, Mr. Speaker, I am of the firm conviction the freer alcoholic liquor and the more readily accessible, the less violation and less abuse there will be. I think that has been proven by those who have already done it. We may not be ready for that yet but it will have to come in time. I am partly in agreement with the idea of extending the privilege to any community to determine for themselves whether they should or should not have the sale of alcoholic liquor within its border. I believe, without a doubt the drafters of this Bill have given it a lot of thought and I don't believe anybody can doubt its sincerity in the cause of temperance and the practical manner in which it is being approached. As the honourable Minister for Welfare stated a few moments ago it is impossible to deal with a matter like this through compulsory legislation and it is only on the fundamental basis of such a measure, as we are trying to do at the present time that any equitable control can be achieved. I have great pleasure in supporting the principle of this Bill.

MR. SPENCER: Mr. Speaker, I, too, rise to support the principle of this Bill. I don't propose to go into any lengthy discussion as to the use of alcoholic liquors but I can say that as a youth on Bell Island many years ago I was probably one of the most ardent sponsors of prohibition of that day. I have lived since to learn that we do not get exactly what we then endeavoured to obtain on that occasion, but I do think progress was made and since then I have formed very pronounced views regarding the uses of intoxicating liquor. The whole purpose of this amendment, referred to in a great many cases, is to minimize the use of alcoholic liquor and to minimize the sale of it. Whether or not the Bill is accepted by the public, and I believe it will be, it is a move in this direction. Whether or not all our honourable friends in the Opposition will agree the Government are endeavouring to produce a Bill which will really reduce in some measure the consumption of alcoholic liquor in the Province is something which rather remains to be seen. In my opinion, as has been said, it is very difficult to legislate, to absolutely control 100%, the use or abuse of what is often called the social glass. I don't think we can accomplish it but I do think we can help. As far as the principle of the Bill is concerned, I have much pleasure in supporting the Bill. There are some clauses in the original Bill with which I am not in accord but that can more properly be dealt with in Committee of the Whole. I feel possibly, for one who has taken part so little in the uses of the social glass, that my experience has been somewhat worthwhile and I feel the Committee will have the opportunity to see just what is contained in the Bill. I think it is a right move particularly when we realize we have a report from the Justice Department, a few days ago, of many people in the bootlegging business here in St. John's and elsewhere around the Province and we do have a report of one home which was found to contain five or six hundred bottles and I think that should be remedied and it is my sincere belief we can help to curtail the sale and consumption in such a manner.

MR. MORGAN: Mr. Speaker, I would like to put honourable members at their ease. I do not intend to use the full time at my disposal in this Bill but having the honour to represent the District of Green Bay, I feel that I should give my support to this Bill. I am very happy to do so because the District of Green Bay is one of the few districts in Newfoundland where we have no tavern, no club, or as a matter of fact no place at all where hard liquor or beer can be obtained. I am very glad to give my support to the Bill. I would particularly mention one section of the Bill which provides for local operation because I feel that if, at the present time, we have no tavern or hard liquor stores with the provisions of the local operations there will not be for some time. I support this Bill.

MR. FAHEY: I don't rise to support the Bill as previous speakers have done this evening. I can't see what purpose this Bill serves. It is like a sieve, full of loop-holes, to my way of thinking. Take for instance the amount is cut down from whatever amount one wants to buy to three bottles a week. We had that before and what happened? People went and got seven and eight books and if you went in to the Controllers there were men buttonholing you and asking "Do you want a bottle, I can get it for you for an extra fifty cents and pass it over to you." The same thing applies for instance, in case of a party in a house, where they want to get four bottles, and may not need any more perhaps for the next six months. All I see is that it is creating a hardship on citizens and I don't agree with it and I don't think that clause will stop people or confine them to three bottles a week. The only thing it will do, people who can't purchase hard liquor will buy more beer and it will bring up the beer revenue. Now I could tell you a story on that; I had a trip to the United States in 1928 when prohibition was on and they were spending millions of dollars to keep the country dry and every house I went to they pulled out a drink of "hooch", they called it, moonshine or whatever it might be and every one would ask "what is the recipe?" That is all the talk I heard there about liquor or how to make it and it finished up with the country going wet again. That is how it was. I had occasion to go back again when the country was wet and nobody ever asked me to have a drink and I went to dozens of houses. That is an example, the more you cut down the more anxious people are to get liquor and if you went into the Controllers somebody would ask if your book was filled out and those who can't get hard liquor will consume more beer. So what is the difference.

Now this matter of treating, I agree with that. It will save me a few dollars in the run of a year and I wonder about one thing. Is a citizen not allowed to treat his wife? I know that may be a save, too, I will agree with the Honourable Minister of Public Welfare. Now I honestly think that clause will never stand up. It may for a week or so but after that it will die out. But I very definitely agree with the clause the people in the various districts should have the right to say whether they should have hard liquor or not. The only thing I disagree with is that one-fifth of the people may decide.

MR. SMALLWOOD: No, over half.

MR. FAHEY: I am sorry, in that case I agree with the measure. The people should have the right to decide, based on democratic rights. That is all I have to say only I think that clause of three bottles a week won't stand up and the no treating clause won't stand up. It would be a good thing if it could be enforced but I don't think it can be done.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I have not very much to say, specifically in reply to the honourable gentleman who has just spoken; I may remind him that the Act which is now proposed to be amended, that is the original Act, contains provisions whereby any citizen may obtain more than three bottles a week by special permission of the Board when he wants it for some particular purpose such as a wedding, a banquet or any other special occasion. That is already covered in the original Act we passed in 1949. If there is any conflict between the original Act and the amendment that can be taken care of in Committee of the Whole.

Now there are just two points I would like to make before the vote is put. One has to do with a request made on the Mainland of Canada to the Prime Minister of the appointment of a Royal Commission by the Government of Canada to investigate and examine the whole field of liquor consumption in Canada which of course includes this Province. I had a visit the other day from the permanent full time general secretary of the Canadian Temperance Association or the Canadian Temperance Federation, a Federal body which is made up of units all across the Canadian nation, and he informed me of his having waited upon the Prime Minister of Canada with the request for the appointment of that royal commission. The Prime Minister expressed his complete agreement with the idea but pointed out that as liquor is a matter controlled entirely by the Provincial jurisdictions, he felt that before such a royal commission were appointed the Provincial Governments or Legislatures ought to express their agreement whereupon the Government of Canada would be quite happy to appoint the Royal Commission for that purpose and I was able to assure Dr. Linton, General Secretary of the Canadian Federation that I felt that the Government of Newfoundland would join with the other Provinces in an expression of its desire to have the Government of Canada appoint such a royal commission

MR. HIGGINS: Is this for prohibition?

MR. SMALLWOOD: No, purely temperance. It is for the appointment of a royal commission to study the rather alarming increase in the consumption of liquor and that it is alarming I think any thoughtful man will agree be he teetotaler, moderate partaker or any other than an unfortunate outright alcoholic, and perhaps he would agree more ardently than any, that the consumption of liquor is becoming alarmingly high. Anyone, I feel, would agree that a Royal Commission should look into it and make recommendations. It is a matter beyond dispute. But I assured him that if the resolutions were properly drafted I would feel it an honour to have it introduced into this House and have it go not from the Government but from the Legislature of Newfoundland.

Now, there is one other point, I must utter this word of caution to all in Newfoundland who abhor the consumption of liquor and there are many who do. They must not expect this legislation, still less the Government, to do the work which they were never intended to do, which they are unable to do, and which it is some one else's duty to do, namely to develop in the people of Newfoundland a positive desire for temperance and to conduct constructive education amongst the people of Newfoundland particularly the younger generation. Education along the lines at least of warning the young on the dangers of drinking and certainly the danger of excessive drinking. Now that is not the job of the Government or the Legislature but there is a job along that line that badly needs doing—very badly needs doing. I told Dr. Linton I would consider it an honour to move here in this House a vote of fifteen or twenty or twenty-five thousand dollars a year of public funds to some citizen's organization (it would have to be that—a citizens' organization) which was non-sectarian, which was open to all citizens who cared to support it, to be used by such an organization to carry on a constructive educational program for temperance in Newfoundland and campaign along the line of at least drawing to the attention of our 80,000 school children the danger of drinking at all, of even beginning to drink. I hope to have the honour, probably not in this session, to introduce such a motion as that, probably a year from now.

Bill read a second time—referred to committee of the whole on tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I move the remaining orders be deferred and the House at its rising adjourn until tomorrow, Friday, at 3:00 of the clock.

Carried.

The House adjourned accordingly.

FRIDAY, June 1, 1951.

The House opened at three of the clock.

Presenting Petitions

Petition received and forwarded to the department concerned.

Reports of Standing and Select Committees

Giving Notice of Motions and Questions

HON. J. R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): There is on the order paper today a question addressed to me by the honourable the junior member for St. John's East asking, in view of the probability that the Government will shortly introduce legislation involving the expenditure or guarantee of public funds in connection with timber areas in Lake Melville, is the Government now prepared to table the IBEC report so that the House may study it and discuss it in connection with the proposed legislation? I have already said that in the view of the Government it would not be in the public interest to table the IBEC report at the present time. When that report is tabled, it will, of course, be available to the public press and undoubtedly a resumé of its contents will appear in the public press. It would not at the present time be in the interest of the public to have the information or at any rate to have certain of that information in that report summarized and given publication. However, if my honourable friend is agreeable or at all interested, we would have no objections whatsoever to providing him or his leader or all of his Party with a copy of the IBEC report, two reports in fact, one on the possibility and practicability of a pulp and paper mill in Bay D'Espoir and the other dealing with the same question in Labrador, for their own private information but that would be only, and could be only on condition that publication be not given to the report. That is that it be not released to the press but used only for the information of my honourable friends opposite; I would be glad indeed to pass over a copy of the report. Now I do hope my honourable friend will think there is not anything capricious or trifling in my reply. This is a very genuine reply and we mean very finally that it would not at the present juncture be in the public interest to have certain information published to the world, but there is no reason in the world why the honourable member may not have a copy for his own information as a member of this House and I do suggest this, that it would provide certain background for them in the consideration of legislation which is, as he suggested, likely to come before the House at the present session.

Orders of the Day

Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means. Deferred.

Committee of the Whole on Supply.

Third reading of Bill "An Act to Make Provisions for the Granting of Loans to Certain Companies."

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, we would like to have that Bill deferred. I think, Mr. Speaker, there are additions that we would like to make for which reason we would like to have it recommitted to Committee of the Whole and we are not ready at the moment to do that.

Committee of the Whole, "An Act to Repeal Certain Newfoundland Statutes."

MR. CHAIRMAN: The clauses were read and passed in this Bill.

HON. LESLIE R. CURTIS (Attorney General): I think, Mr. Chairman, that being so, I move the Committee rise and report progress and ask leave to sit again. There are no changes to be made but I would like to be absolutely sure the Bill is all-inclusive, therefore my motion the Committee rise and ask leave to sit again.

The Committee rose, reported progress, and asked leave to sit again on tomorrow.

MR. CURTIS: I believe, Mr. Speaker, there is an item omitted from the Order Paper, Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Amend Certain Newfoundland Statutes." In fact, I believe that was meant to be the Committee which just sat. I move the House now go into Committee of the Whole again on a Bill "An Act to Amend Certain Newfoundland Statutes."

Motion carried.

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Chairman, two sections were allowed to stand. The last one, let us go backwards, deals with Teachers' Pensions and the Minister piloting the Bill would like the Committee to consider Clause 24 first, which is the last clause. "29. Subject to Section 26 of this Act, all of Section 75 of the Education Act except paragraph (u), and Part B of Schedule K to that Act and the Act No. 35 of 1939 are repealed but such repeal does not affect anything validly done before the passing of this Act."

An amendment to this clause consisted of these words, "and the Act, No. 35 of 1950 are repealed but such repeal does not affect anything validly done before the drafting of this Act." That was an error on the part of the draughtsman that when repealing the Bill, to repeal an Amending Act Section 29. It does not affect it but is just a tidying up amendment which I move.

Motion carried.

MR. CURTIS: Now we can refer back to No. 5: This is an amendment to the section that deals with women of disrepute going aboard ships and refers to Newfoundland ships in the Nuisance Act and there being now no Newfoundland ships the expression is changed to Canadian ships.

Carried.

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Chairman refer to Section 16—"An Act Respecting the Reporting of Missing Vessels"—Act 8 and 9 George V, Chapter 23 of the Statutes of 1918. The first section is not being repealed.

Now the section which is being amended in this Act is Section 3 which is being deleted which says: "It shall be the duty of every Customs Officer . . ."

We cannot legislate for Customs collectors because it is Federal and they are Federal officials so we are asking to have Section 3 stricken out.

Clause 20: The Town of Windsor Act, 1942. When the Act was drafted in 1942 there was a slight error in Section 45 (1) "The licence fee upon every person or Company doing business within the limits of the town shall be . . ."

Unfortunately a previous section 43 sets forth that the Council may prescribe an amount not exceeding $100 under the provisions of this Act. In order to make the clauses read the same, the amendment is to delete the word $10 and $35 and substitute the words $5 and $100 respectively, the idea being to make the Bill uniform. Section 43 which I quoted but did not read in full as it is a very long section—Under the Business and Entertainment Taxation a license fee of $5 and not more than $100, so I move that amendment.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I ask you to refer to Section 14 of the Bill which I would ask the Committee to reconsider. Originally the draft stated: As amended by inserting after the "Exportation to" the words "any province of." We changed yesterday the word "exportation" to "ship" but looking into the matter since I find that when fish leaves the Province of Newfoundland for any other province of Canada it is referred to in Federal Statutes as "exportation" so that the word "exportation" as originally drafted is perfectly in order and I move the amendment be deleted.

MR. FAHEY: Does that apply to all products leaving Newfoundland for other parts of Canada or just fish only?

MR. CURTIS: I do not think that would be a general interpretation but from the point of view of fish it is exportation. I move the Committee rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again.

Motion carried.

On motion the following items were deferred until later in the day:

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act Respecting Liability in Actions for Damages for Negligence when more than One Party is at Fault."

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Amend the St. John's Municipal Act, 1921, and Acts in Amendment Thereof and for Certain Other Purposes."

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act Further to Amend the Alcoholic Liquors Act, 1949."

Second reading of Bill "An Act to Authorize the Lieutenant Governor in Council to Guarantee Payment of Bonds issued by Town Councils."

Second reading of Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Water and Sewerage Corporation of Greater Corner Brook."

HON. P. S. FORSEY (Minister of Supply): Mr. Speaker, I move the second reading of this Bill. I will point out that this Bill provides for the setting up of water and sewerage corporation in Greater Corner Brook Area with the powers to acquire, supply and distribute water to the residents of that area and also providing adequate sewerage system for the same people. The Corporation will be administered by a board consisting of representatives of each of the Municipalities that constitute the area of Greater Corner Brook. The day to day working will be carried out by the management appointed by the Board. In order to enable it to achieve its objectives, provisions are made to grant it the following powers: Acquire the necessary property and rights by purchase or expropriation and where recourse is had to expropriation, prices are to be fixed by arbitration. To make regulations and by-laws to control the discharge of sewerage and industrial waste to sewers and rivers flowing through or adjoining the area. Three, to impose water and sewerage rates subject to approval of the Lieutenant Governor in Council and to require all persons to use it after it has been constructed. To secure the necessary funds to install, as well as a short time loan to meet current operation expenses in anticipation of collecting annual revenue. Lastly to add any municipality which may be served in the area by the water and sewerage system. These six points contain all the issues in the Bill and I would move the second reading.

Read a second time. Moved the rules of the House be suspended and the Bill be now committed of the Whole House. Motion carried.

Committee of the Whole on a Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Water and Sewerage Corporation of Greater Corner Brook."

MR. JOHN G. HIGGINS (Leader of the Opposition): What is meant by water licence?—And to be exempt from cancellation? If the water company ceased to function what would happen then?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, in Clause 2: "Proper and reasonable allowance should be made in the estimates," ought not that to read "Shall"? It sounds like a bit of advice instead of a law.

Amended.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I notice in a number of Acts going through here, Chartered Accountants are specified should not that be—either/or, one or the other, chartered or certified? It seems like a bit of discrimination. This House chartered an association of certified public accountants and in other legislation provides specifically the work should be done by Chartered rather than Certified Accountants, ought it not to read "Chartered or Certified? Will the Minister consider that point?

MR. FORSEY: I don't think the Certified Public Accountants are capable of doing this work.

HON. JAMES R. CHALKER (Minister of Health): 90% of the work is done by public certified accountants.

HON. JAMES J. SPRATT (Minister of Provincial Affairs): I agree with the Premier, I think it should be amended.

MR. HIGGINS: Number 3, Page 14, what is the meaning of that? Is there something left out? Fourth line from the bottom of the page.

MR. CHAIRMAN: We could let that stand.

MR. FORSEY: On page 14 there are some words left out at the side. It should read "Power to enter and inspect," and down below, No. 4, the word sewerage is used everywhere else and sewage is used here.

MR. CURTIS: Sewage is what goes through the sewer.

MR. FOGWILL: In the case of people really unable to pay for this service, for instance—

HON. C. H. BALLAM (Minister of Labour): I think there is a clause, if I may say so, looks after that in the Bill. Section 49.

MR. FORSEY: I think part of section 50 looks after that. Or it is covered by section 46.

MR. HIGGINS: Under the St. John's Municipal Act for persons not able to pay, the Council puts in sewerage and water and allows them to pay so much a month. What is going to happen here where people are poor? I imagine there are a lot of poor people in Corner Brook as well as in Humbermouth.

MR. SPRATT: I might add the sum of $10,000 was set aside for the provision of installation of water and sewerage in homes where people could not afford it and that went on and on and was never increased. It was paid annually and I feel when the Council is set up they won't be hard on the people.

MR. BALLAM: If you would go back to Section 45 and Section 46.

MR. SPRATT: Mr. Chairman, there is one point I would like to raise in connection with occupiers when the occupier is not the owner and does not come within the recommendation of taxation, city taxation at all. If you own a house and rent it to me, you are the one responsible for the taxation and not the tenant and there is something wrong with that to say in the event of default of tax the occupier is held responsible for the assessment of the house. It is not just, it is ridiculous.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Chairman, do you mind referring to Section 50: Are there any 99 year leases in Corner Brook. If there are 99 year leases the owner of the land pays nothing, the tenant really owns the property. A man with a 99 year lease is regarded as the owner of the property.

MR. FORSEY: The owner and lessee make an agreement between themselves.

MR. HIGGINS: I suppose that only applies to 99 years, I think they rent them all on long leases, and the Company should not be called upon to pay.

MR. CURTIS: They have agreed to.

MR. HIGGINS: I don't think it applies to houses they already own and rent but to houses they give to people on 99 year leases.

MR. VARDY: The whole service is being taken over.

HON. DR. H. L. POTTLE (Minister of Public Welfare): I suppose we can take it this Bill has been carefully read over and the numbers could be called rather than word by word.

MR. VARDY: Mr. Chairman, in support of the suggestion of the honourable Minister of Public Welfare, I think it is realized this Bill has been drafted by the legal advisers of the parties concerned and is the result of a very long period of discussion between the representatives of the four councils involved out there and it has been considered and sent back and forth between the Justice Department and the advisers in St. John's and in Corner Brook, and they have given it very careful consideration and have arrived at these conclusions which is an arrangement agreeable to all parties concerned, and I think our going over and questioning the relativity of certain clauses is entirely superfluous.

MR. FORSEY: Yes, the draft was prepared by Mr. Muir, K.C., on behalf of the Council and later modified after consultations with the Solicitors for Bowaters.

MR. HIGGINS: I think, Mr. Chairman, we might go over it to find out if there are any mistakes.

MR. CURTIS: I think the printed copies were only received this afternoon.

MR. HIGGINS: We have the responsibility, if we sent out the legislation and it is not correct, we get the blame.

MR. VARDY: Is it in order to ask if we may go back to page 22: The arbitrators shall attend in some convenient place—If this Committee did die what would be the effect?

MR. HIGGINS: It cannot be corrected once it is passed here, can't correct it at all once the Act is certified.

MR. CURTIS: What we could do in a case like that, Mr. Chairman, is for the members to read it through and it could be edited over the weekend by Department of the Attorney General, to make any final corrections.

MR. CHAIRMAN: It is entirely up to the Committee. The honourable Minister of Public Welfare made a suggestion, it could be put to a vote and the Committee may decide.

DR. POTTLE: The only corrections so far are of omission rather than substance.

MR. CHAIRMAN: Is it agreeable the numbers be called and then of course any honourable member who wishes to speak may do so.

Agreed.

MR. SPRATT: I don't agree with that, I may be wrong but if any person is supplied with water and fails or refuses to pay the rates properly charged to him—

"35—(1) The Corporation is hereby empowered to control by by-law, acquire, purchase, or compulsorily to take and expropriate lands and timber, within or without the district, continuous or adjacent to the source or sources of supply of water, or within the watershed area or sources of the supply of water, used or intended to be used by the Corporation for part of its waterworks and sewage disposal systems or for the purpose of protecting or preserving such source or sources of water-supply; and the Corporation may thereafter sell or lease or dispose of so much of such lands and timber so acquired, purchased, taken or expropriated as aforesaid as shall afterwards be found or deemed not to be required for the purposes of the Corporation.

"(2) In the event of the Corporation compulsorily taking or expropriating any lands or timber under the provisions of sub-section (1), the amount of compensation which shall be payable in respect thereof shall include not only the value of the lands or timber but also any loss or damage thereby occasioned to the owner or holder of the lands or timber in respect of expenditures theretofore made in the construction, equipment, and placing of works and equipment for the cutting, removal, and shipment of timber."

Now, I think, this is giving too much power in this case. For argument's sake, I am looking upon a man who owns a house, a man who may not have been in the vicinity for a year or so but the tenant is forwarding the rent to some agent or someone. Because the owner of the house is delinquent in his taxes the people who do not owe anything are penalized and the water is cut off. It is too ridiculous to my mind.

MR. BALLAM: I would say this—

MR. SPRATT: As far as I am concerned I would look upon those as actual penal clauses, that is what it amounts to. We are going too far with it to my mind.

MR. BALLAM: I would suggest to our honourable friend that this has been gone over by all of the four or five councils concerned and they have agreed on this and regardless of what has been or may be done in the city of St John's or any other city this is what they wish to have. Therefore, I would suggest that instead of going through this thing section by section we go through it by numbers.

MR. SPRATT: Mr. Chairman, I am sincere, I don't believe in vesting in any one particular group arbitrary power to penalize the ordinary person and I am prepared, if ever such thing came about, to lead an army myself, to combat it.

MR. BALLAM: I am sorry I did not know we agreed to carry on this by numbers.

MR. HIGGINS: I might say I quite agree that twelve years is too long to allow a person to sue. If a council is so lazy and so indifferent not to take proceedings in six years it ought to be dashed well ashamed of itself. Twelve years is too long.

MR. CURTIS: I agree with the honourable Leader of the Opposition. The idea of altering the statutes of limitations for a man too lazy to collect the bills—

MR. SMALLWOOD: What is the statutory period for everybody else?

MR. HIGGINS: The position is that they can sue a person for five years and if the person does not pay get a judgment for twenty years and that is why very often judgment is taken because statutory limitations come into effect and the year before take a judgment.

MR. FORSEY: What is the effect if you name it for six years only?

MR. BALLAM: I move we let the section stand.

MR. SMALLWOOD: In parliamentary language stand means to stand over, it does not mean to let stand and pass as is.

MR. BALLAM: I move the section be carried as it is.

MR. CURTIS: I don't think the honourable Minister understands the motion. If he owes the Town Council an amount for five years and pays one dollar it is good for a further six years, and if he pays another dollar the bill is good for another six years without any payment on account. It is unreasonable.

MR. FORSEY: On the other hand if he does not pay it?

MR. SMALLWOOD: The ordinary statutory period is six years.

MR. FORSEY: This Bill has taken months of preparation and the various town councils and solicitors have all gone into it, spent months at it and I don't think we can just wipe out anything.

MR. CURTIS: This does not affect the Bill at all.

Carried.

MR. CURTIS: It looks to me something has been left out in the printing, I ask the Minister to suspend or explain section 61 the sub-section there.

MR. CHAIRMAN: It seems to me the one and the hyphen before it should come out.

MR. CURTIS: Will the Minister accept that as an amendment?

MR. HIGGINS: What about the interest of 4%?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, I think the Minister ought properly to give us some assurance on that matter. Here we are dealing with section 65, I take it. I notice the banks are only paying 2½% interest on deposits, savings accounts deposits and the bank rates now, I think, have been raised considerably, I don't know if that comes strictly within the jurisdiction of the Minister of the Supply Department. I think probably we ought to have some assurance on that question. It is all very fine to ask us to vote to pay large rates of interest to banks but what about the rates they pay us? There might be a ceiling on it.

MR. FORSEY: The ceiling is here, Mr. Chairman.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Well, in that case, by the same token can't the Minister insert a clause here fixing the rate the banks will pay as well as charge?

MR. CURTIS: I think the Minister ought to change the section.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I think the Committee is entitled to an explanation.

Carried.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I would like to know what the difference is between debenture and temporary, I would ask the Minister to explain that.

Mr. Chairman, this is a serious point, could we refer to Clause 73? The proceeds of debentures. Is not that entirely contrary to the practice in the Government Finance Department? All finances received by the Government either for loan or other sources are paid into the consolidated fund and it is contrary altogether to Government practice to have funds, received from any particular source, kept separate from the main body of the fund.

MR. VARDY: It is contrary to municipalities.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The purposes for which the money is to be spent is quite a different matter but the receipts in the first place surely ought to go into one consolidated revenue fund out of which, on authority, payments are made. But it should all go into one fund in the first instance surely.

MR. BALLAM: Mr. Chairman, I think the idea of this, the proceeds of debentures or other securities should be paid into a bank for the credit of the Corporation so that they would not be able to spend it for another purpose. Put it in a bank and create a trust fund and then it would be paid to whoever gave them a loan if there was such a thing. This just prevents them from investing it, put it into a chartered bank and pay the account from that.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is provided here in the Bill that that fund in the normal course is deposited in a chartered bank. Well presumably this committee or commission would deal with one bank there in the area and it would be but one bank they deal with. If it should be necessary to have two banks out there, it is a matter where they will deposit the proceeds. The point is the ordinary receipts of the corporation are to be deposited somewhere and the Bill provides for that. Similarly the proceeds of any bonds they sell are to be deposited at some bank. Now, why was the principle whereby they are ordered in this Bill to keep the deposits made up of proceeds of loans of debentures separate in the bank from the proceeds of other kinds. Why the separation? Why not a consolidated revenue fund for this fund?

MR. FORSEY: Because it is easier to keep separate the expenditure on capital and current account.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It does not refer to expenditures but refers to receipts. By the same token a Government might segregate receipts under different headings into various funds, returns from taxes into one fund in the bank, returns from the Government of Canada deposited in another fund, in our case, returns from loans, if any, in another fund. But that is exactly what we are not permitted to do. What we are required to do, is to deposit all monies in the one fund. That is the whole of receipts is deposited. Now on capital expenditure or purchases or any other kind of expenditure, these expenditures are as laid down but are drawn from the one fund. All Government funds are in the one fund, and what difference is there in this corporation, a semi-government body.

MR. FORSEY: It is staffed by officers competent to deal with that sort of thing.

MR. HIGGINS: I do not know what the Government does but every company and every lawyer keeps two funds and this money does not belong to the company no matter what you say, it was gotten under trustees and brought down for certain purposes and I presume the only reason the money is kept in a separate account is that the company does not own it but in a limited sense. It should not be mixed up with a current account which the company owns completely. This, for instance, is set up for the building of sewer pipes in certain districts, therefore it must be used for that. This is a trust fund, for instance, I receive money for a client and put it in a trust fund. I can't touch that. My current account is kept separately.

MR. SPRATT: They only have one account in the Municipality, what other revenue have you got?

MR. HIGGINS: That is not revenue.

MR. SPRATT: If I go to you tomorrow and borrow $1,000 from you, well, I owe you $1,000, I must have some revenue or you would never get it back with the interest due you.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That has nothing whatsoever to do with it. Will my honourable friend allow me to explain. To insure that proceeds of the loan are spent only for the purpose for which the loan was made it is not necessary to deposit the proceeds in a separate account, nor is it even desirable if it is the property of the Government, it is required by law that all receipts whether of taxation or grants, shall be deposited in one account and that is the result of proven experience and good sense of governments throughout the world, notwithstanding the fact that some governments spend money on many varying purposes and those varying projects can still be achieved even though the money is deposited in one account. Surely if that is so it ought to be safe and prudent for a water company.

MR. HIGGINS: No, I don't think so, a Government is in a different position, the money is controlled by the Controller of the Treasury. You must realize we must protect the public and there is no other reason.

MR. BALLAM: I think we are on Section 73-1 which says it will be paid into a chartered bank until required for the intended purpose and may from time to time be reinvested or invested. Until such time as it is decided to use it for the given purpose it must be put in a chartered bank.

MR. SMALLWOOD: There is no doubt it should be in a chartered bank but that is not all that clause provides, of course it ought to be deposited in a chartered bank and of course it ought to be spent for the purpose for which it was made. There is no doubt about that, the only doubt is in the wording and here I quote "And shall be kept separate from other funds of the corporation." This I question because I find it a little startling to find a public body, elected by the public, handling public funds, not only required, but must keep separate funds whereas it is the practice all over the world to have a consolidated revenue fund all in the one fund regardless of the source. I don't know why the difference on this point, sinking fund and all that is beside the point. It is not a sinking fund if you sell a half million dollars worth of bonds for a certain purpose, you spend it on this purpose; the interest and the sinking fund are a matter of the time, but the point I am getting at is the banking procedure of a bond issue—you sell bonds and get cash, and when you receive the cash you certainly are not going to carry it around in your pocket nor in a cash till in the office but deposit it in some chartered bank. That is right. That is proper. That is as it should be, but why in doing so segregate these receipts from others. Why not put them all in a consolidated fund?

MR. FORSEY: Suppose you look at the practical proceedings. There are two sections over there, it has one hundred thousand dollars in bonds which is supposed to be spent on capital and another twenty five thousand on current account, $125,000. The next month current revenue is $7,000. Who is going to control them to see they do not spend that? The bank does not care about it, but if it is in another fund, they know when the account is overdrawn.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Exactly and the same argument applies to Government consolidated revenue fund. Presumably this company involving millions of dollars will have some kind of fixed control. Is there not provided elsewhere in the Bill some system of financial control apart from the audit? The audit happens after, control of finance before the transaction takes place. Is there not some system of financial control or does the Bill control, and who enforces the Bill?

MR. CHAIRMAN: I think the honourable Premier's point is that he is only talking about the debenture or other securities and his point is, what about the rest of the money, should the company make money? If you look further along in section 78 we have not come to it yet.

MR. HIGGINS: That is a common thing, the company must be protected.

MR. BALLAM: If we had read the Bill right in the first instance.

Carried.

MR. SMALLWOOD: In section 87 the side title, the last line seems to be redundant. Cut out the word un-maliciously.

Moved the committee rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again tomorrow.

Motion carried.

Second reading of a Bill "An Act Respecting Civil Defense."

MR. CURTIS: I beg to move, Mr. Speaker, the second reading of this Civil Defense Bill. This is a Bill which provides for the appointment of an advisory council and defines civil defense and makes provisions for civil defense committee and a director of civil defense. I may say we have found it very difficult to get a precedent to go on this civil defense program as it came on us more or less unexpectedly but in Saskatchewan which is the only Province which has a civil defense legislation they have passed a Bill more or less on these lines and we feel we should have such a Bill as this. We may not use it or all the clauses or all the powers given to us by the Bill but by having the Bill we will, at least, be able to follow such measures as may be necessary. There is no need to read the Bill. It provides for an advisory committee, civil defense committee and gives the Minister appointed by the Government certain powers and also gives the municipality certain powers and protects their authority for anything they may do in connection with civil defense under the authority of the Bill.

Read a second time. Referred to Committee of the Whole on tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, it has been suggested to me, I was frankly not expecting to meet tonight, but it has been suggested to me by a number of the members, in view of our desire to bring about prorogation we ought to meet tonight, especially in view of the fact that Monday is a holiday and there is no session tomorrow. I don't know what would suit the convenience of the House best, to have a session tomorrow or to meet again tonight.

MR. FOGWILL: Why not let us do both?

MR. CURTIS: Have we enough work to do, we have only the Municipal Bill.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Well, if we meet tonight we might be in a better position to meet tomorrow when we see what progress we have made and what Bills have actually been printed. If we could meet at 8:00 o'clock.

Recess until 8.00 of the clock.

NIGHT SESSION

MR. SPEAKER: The Orders of the Day have been completed except for certain orders which were deferred and I think the next to be called was Committee of the Whole "An Act Respecting Liability in Action for Damages for Negligence Where More than One Person is at Fault."

MR. SMALLWOOD: I move that order be deferred.

Carried.

MR. SPEAKER: Committee of the Whole "An Act to Amend the St. John's Municipal Act, 1921, and Acts in Amendment Thereof and for Certain Other Purposes."

Section 7 read.

DR. POTTLE: The word is unsanitary rather than insanitary.

MR. FAHEY: Does the Council have to remove rubbish from their own yard as well as anybody else.

MR. CURTIS: Yes.

Section 7 passed.

Section 8 read and passed.

Section 9 read.

MR. FAHEY: I would like to get some information on that clause. There does not seem to be anyone piloting the Bill through. In these cases where there are two buildings or two businesses carried on in the one building, I presume as in some instances where a grocery store is divided off for confectionery in the night time. Is the tax paid for the confectionery or just the grocery?

MR. SMALLWOOD: You can have half a dozen businesses in one building. In the Board of Trade there must be twenty.

MR. FAHEY: I would like to know exactly what is the amendment.

MR. HIGGINS: I think that refers to 18, personal business taxation and one building run by the same party with three or four businesses, one a jewellery, one a haberdashery and both pay the same. For instance one is taxed on the jewellery and may be only a small portion and the haberdashery may have to pay double the taxation, is that right?

MR. CURTIS: If there are two businesses in the same building, under the same ownership and one is a jewellery it carries a treble rate and one a drygoods which pays a double rate, instead of taxing the two at treble rate they divide the rent and assess so much to each business and the jewellery business has the higher rate and the other business the lower rate. Just a more accurate way to do it.

MR. SPRATT: I would not consider it intelligently employed at all because it is not a business tax according to this Act which is now a rental tax. The owner, as I tried to point out to my colleagues this afternoon, the owner of the property is the one known in the Council and no other. And the owner is assessed on the actual rental value of the house or the rent the owner is receiving and in this instance where I have a house or building, call it what I like, and I lease it or let it to two parties, one a grocery and the other some other kind of business, it does not matter whether it is a watchmaker or dress-maker in applying a business tax you apply it on the business but here there is no reference made to it at all. The house is already fully appraised and assessed on the actual rental value. Now if two people were to go into the same house, use it and not have a business the owner would be assessed on the actual rent received for the property. There should be a special tax then for people being there and operating a business. That would be an exclusive tax as I see it, and I have been looking for answers to my questions and can't get them. Nobody cares. The same thing applies here. I will be accused of trying to obstruct this Bill as I am accused when I am doing what I can to have proper taxation applied intelligently without hardship on anybody. That is all and surely goodness I am not such a dumbell after a lifetime in civic affairs and giving serious thought to it, and right now I venture, if it would not be out of order to make a bet, I am right. I would put up the cash and always would all my life-time. But, Sir, I respectfully submit, and I don't want to make a joke out of it either, that the setup of that Act is not concerned with and within the application of the law as it should be. Further on I will have some more to say on that.

Section 9 passed.

Section 10:

MR. SPRATT: Mr. Chairman, before we go any further I would like to make a few remarks on that.

MR. CHAIRMAN: I wonder if we might read the section first.

Section 10 read.

MR. SPRATT: I make now an appeal to my colleagues and members on the other side of the House to have this proposal with regard to an extra tax on water stricken out. Now, I have a serious reason for so doing. I am not against the Council, I have no hatred or ill-feeling or anything but only want to help just as well as any other member of the House and I do feel, with the knowledge that I have, that it is not necessary to apply this taxation. During and before our advent into union with Canada I was a member of the City Council. We had a revenue, as I said here at a recent meeting that if properly handled we could carry on the city intelligently and to the satisfaction of the taxpayers. Now by joining with Canada the Council lost a considerable amount of money in taxation. I know it lost practically one hundred thousand dollars and since that time they have received government financial assistance and in the meantime their income has increased considerably. There has been a wonderful expansion in building and the more houses that we build the more revenue the Council receives. Now there is a false impression about that, the Council are handicapped by having to build new roads and water and sewerage. But every inch of it is paid for by the taxpayer, every foot of curb and gutter is paid for by the taxpayer, every bit of concrete sidewalk is paid by the taxpayers. Now what then? What are we getting for our 18%? They have a revenue of more than a million dollars and three hundred thousand dollars, perhaps three hundred and fifty thousand and is able to carry on the city in all departments. Now you have one hundred thousand dollars or a little more to pay the instalments to liquidate a loan and the interest on it. Now what are they doing with the other four hundred, five hundred, six hundred or seven hundred thousand dollars. I claim with judicious and technical operations that you can run this city without imposing further taxation. I know people who don't mind, I know people who can drink champagne when someone else drinks beer or do without a drink at all. So it applies with the underprivileged person. I know, and I take the blame the same as anybody else, I don't know all, I am not a know-all nor a dumbell nor an idiot but I do know a whole lot about civic work and I tell you, Mr. Chairman, that I have had experience during my period in the Council. An absolute crime, so to speak, has been brought about through ignorance and a lack of knowledge of proper application to the duties which involve the Council. Take a road; a contract is entered into and an amount paid for to carry out that contract in a first class manner. Three or four months later there is an upheaval and the road has to be done over again and again and again and like the song, as long as they had the money to jingle. When the money was there somebody found a way out to get it. A man takes a contract and that contract is specific and should be guaranteed and was guaranteed and I am one of the ones who let a red herring be dragged across the trail always and a way out always for the contractor and if anyone wants the proof I can give it to them. Right there on Water Street there was $360,000 which could have been done without and I have the proof right in my office and the public can see it. I know what I am talking about and with such conditions as that existing is it right or fair or honest to impose a taxation on people? I don't think it is. I don't think it is right. I am really serious, I am not getting anything out of it, I want to do what is right and fair and I am prepared as I said this afternoon to lead an army in defence of the people, I am not a yes man and never was, if I give my word, it is my word. If I am out of order and doing anything and the Premier comes to me and tells me I am willing to abide by the law.

MR. SMALLWOOD: You are not out of order.

MR. SPRATT: I was told in this morning's "News" that I let the people down. I was for eighteen years active in the Council and when I was opposed to anything it was because I knew the money was not being spent judiciously, I have no ill-feeling for the Council but I make this appeal, against this tax because the Council does not need it. The Government has given them certain privileges and they are going to collect at least $125,000 on oil taxation and therefore I see no necessity for this. If it were necessary surely goodness I would not stand up here in cold blood and try and impress an audience or those in authority to listen to me, but, gentlemen, this is an appeal from the bottom of my heart and I know, as others know as well, that this is going to affect 70% of the working people in the city of St. John's.

MR. RUSSELL: Mr. Chairman, with reference to section 10, there is one thing about it I do not agree with. I may say I am in agreement with the section as a whole, I do not disagree that there should be a water tax. I think that was made clear on the debate on second reading and those of us who support the principle do not necessarily support all the taxation that is not actually proposed but inferred by the Bill. What I do support is the right to impose taxation if the Council sees fit and I cannot somehow be in the position whereby, as a member of this House, in supporting this Bill I am letting loose some evil monster on the poor unsuspecting people of St. John's. That is not so. The City Council as far as I am concerned is the citizens of St. John's themselves. Since they can't all go down to City Hall and do business they select a Council to do it. The City Council may or may not ever impose a water tax, I hope they won't, if they do I will have to pay it. Maybe they won't need to. It does not follow they will if they are given permission to do so. I am not supporting the tax, I am supporting the right of the City Council to impose it if they wish. Now, in this section here they asked for three different methods whereby they might impose this taxation. Now, I disagree entirely with these first two. Supposing we pass this Act and the Council eventually find they need to impose a water tax, it seems to me there is some logic in imposing a taxation in proportion to the area of the premises because though it does not always follow yet generally speaking if a certain residence is valued twice as much as another one very frequently the owner or occupier of that premises is in a better position, probably twice as good, or it has a tendency to work out that he is in a better position to pay the tax. It seems to me that the installation of the meter is the logical way, the more water you use the more you pay for. I only wish there were some way the rates could go up very drastically so that those who did not do their part in water conservation could pay through the nose. I can see a lot of logical sense in (c) but to give the Council the right to enter a house and count the number of taps regardless of the building and the amount of water used and to set a rate per tap, there is no rhyme nor reason in that. It is an idea I disagree with entirely, in fact I will go so far as to move an amendment that (b) be deleted and (c) be number (b).

MR. FAHEY: I second that and in doing so I would like to say a few words. First of all there is an old saying that "cleanliness is next to godliness."

MR. HIGGINS: That applies to the soul.

MR. FAHEY: It is all right to have cleanliness of body too if it does not cost too much. I am more inclined to agree with the Minister of Provincial Affairs on this account. For instance the water supply to this city does not cost a great amount of money due to the fact it is gravity fed, there is no big outlay or pump or supply.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Except that the whole system here has to be replaced.

MR. FAHEY: I am talking about the actual cost of supplying the water day after day. It does not cost any great sum to maintain the supply, practically not a nickel. Now for a person going to get water in a new building, I know a citizen who only last week, who had a frontage of something like 40 ft., made application to get water in and because of the fact the Council paved the street before he had built he had to pay his proportion of the cost or $154 and a spur run in where the pavement had to be dug up, he had to pay $30 extra for that after buying the copper pipe and sewerage pipe from a firm in town. The Council charged another $30 so that now the amount is something over $200 for a 40 ft. frontage. Now, I don't know if that is due to the fact the individual when he applied for water had to pay for frontage and the spur and that is why the House is being asked for an extra tax on the water. I support the motion made by the honourable member for Bonavista South. There is this to say for the tap system, some people have in for their convenience three or four taps and the Council can come in and charge $3 or $4 each or whatever the rate may be. It is very easy to impose that tax it would not conserve water whatsoever. For instance a tap in the basement for washing a car, it would be very easy to turn it into the kitchen tap but that does not save water. I think the better system is to pay for what I can use. You can use just as much water with one tap as two so therefore on that basis I support the motion. To me it looks ridiculous.

DR. POTTLE: Mr. Chairman, my remarks will be quite brief. I could not support the amendment because I believe for the same reason the member for Bonavista South gave for declining to approve that it may be used on (c) where the tax can be issued upon the quantity of water used and the quantity may be in proportion to the class of building and class of occupant. I was not here at the time of second reading and I would like to take advantage of this occasion to make a few remarks. My remarks will issue from this point of view, that if the Council feels that a certain system of taxation is necessary for the operation of proper business, then unless there are good reasons that I can discern to the contrary, as we consider the proposals, I shall have to agree to the proposals they make. I think it is advisable to say that in St. John's the Council does not have to provide the same services as other Canadian cities of equal populations. It does not provide for fire protection, for police or for education services and all of these and more besides the city is relieved of. For instance, Toronto has a tremendous system of welfare in its own right. These services and more besides the Province here provides so I look upon it as a matter of relief used in a different sense when the City Council comes in and makes a proposition of this nature. I consider it a good sign with all deference to my colleague, the Minister of Provincial Affairs, where as ten years ago candidates would be elected by promises of reduced taxation they were not elected on that basis in the last election, and they said nothing about it and those who said the least got the most votes. That is a good sign because it is becoming to be seen that people get only what they pay for and when they reach that level of education it is a good sign. Now the facts of Confederation are mixed. I am not saying that with any political implication but to say it with regard to the fact that the system regarding taxation has changed since Confederation. I think myself that Confederation did not change the picture in the matter of nature but in the matter of degree just accelerated what was already taking place. Brought about the necessity at a greater speed for services to be paid for and through some such revenue as the Council seeks. Now reference has been made in the early part of the debate to the domestic affairs of the Council, that is their own business, ours is to deal with those things set down before us and not to meddle with their affairs but on the other hand when bringing forward proposals of this nature my suggestion is, other things being equal, if I hear nothing to the contrary to agree to the proposals.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Chairman, I support the amendment. I am in sympathy with the remarks of the last speaker but I must say I think the City is most fair in one way but when I consider a meter system, I think it puts a burden on poor people. Now take the poorer houses where the water has to be kept running in winter because the pipes would freeze. That would be a burden on the poor people. Some houses have one tap and another house has ten taps but the same amount of water would be used, there may be a basement tap which may be used once or twice a year. I think that is the most equitable way. There is no logic in (b) at all, the same amount of water may be used no matter how many taps there are, they are going to take baths and boil kettles. I agree with the Council saying people must pay for water they use. It is more than that, I think the people who have the bigger houses should pay more not in the sense they use more but are more able to pay and may be the poorer people will use just as much water because in the winter they have their taps running and should be encouraged to use the water and the poor people cannot afford to pay as the richer people can. That is why I support the amendment. With (a) and (c) I agree but not with (b).

MR. FORSEY: I am under the impression (b) is included because it takes some time before it is practicable and feasible to install the meters.

MR. HIGGINS: And they could use (a) up to then.

MR. SMALLWOOD: May call it a good weather, foul weather —

MR. HIGGINS: Well, they call it water tax, so much for use of water.

MR. VARDY: I think it is only fair in dealing with the amendment and the clause, we should emphasize the point I tried to make in my remarks yesterday. We are not being called upon to impose or assess taxation, we are not the determining body, all we are being asked to do is to confer upon the St. John's Council the right to run their own affairs in the manner they see fit to do it. There are three clauses here to gain additional revenue, they don't say which one they will use or propose to use, all they really ask is permission to use any or all if it is found necessary to do so. In the first instance they point out the simplest form of collecting, merely placing a surtax or property tax, namely a property tax of $90 or $50 a year whatever the case may be and pay 10% of that which would be termed a water tax. If the tax is only $50 a year then there would be an additional $5 as water tax. Now that can be fair in a sense and unfair as the people of the poorer houses and cheaper areas do not pay as much taxation but if put under the present tax system it does not always apply. It is possible a poor type of house is being rented and the taxation is based upon the rent whereas a much better type house being occupied by the owner is being appraised at a much lower value so it does not mean the first one is going to be more equitable. As far as (b) is concerned that could be equitable in the degree of the services that the house provides. It is very obvious, Mr. Chairman, that a house with one tap in the kitchen is not luxurious, whereas an establishment with probably two in the kitchen, two in the bathroom, and a shower, two more, and two in the basement and so on are conveniences which come with better class houses and the owners may in proportion to the facilities available be more able to pay the taxation. As far as (c) I think it was indicated yesterday, largely as a result of a reference made to the Report from the Malcolm Pinnie & Associates that was brought down here to make that survey that while the meter system is the fairest and most suitable and satisfactory the initial cost of installation precludes it from being used at the present time. But all the Council asks is authority to install some sort of assessment if it feels it is necessary and it gives three classes that may be used, they don't say they will use any one. I cannot support the amendment.

MR. HIGGINS: In other words a factory which makes beer or mineral water and has only ten taps but uses one hundred times as much water is rated the same as any other person.

MR. VARDY: They could pay under a meter.

MR. HIGGINS: Then it is expensive.

MR. VARDY: Then if the meter is expensive make everybody pay under (a).

MR. HIGGINS: But if you take two houses, one with two taps and the other six or eight yet using no more water.

MR. SPRATT: The water is running all the time night and day in the winter time in the poorer class houses.

MR. BALLAM: I think, Mr. Chairman, the point is we are not asked to decide the virtues of (a), (b) or (c) we are not asked to decide this at all but rather we are asked to approve this Bill to give the right to the Council to decide which one they would use.

MR. FOGWILL: I want to register my non support of the whole section. I don't believe in it at all. If it is to tax the use of water I say the purpose of using water is for people to keep clean. I say use the water all right but for business houses using hundreds of thousands upon thousands of gallons of water and selling it in bottles I don't believe in it then and particularly the Board of Liquor Control, we might have a meter down there, they probably take three quarters of a million bottles of water a year and put in a little drop of rum and make money, I don't believe in this tax at all.

MR. FAHEY: If they have to pay for water they will go broke down there.

Motion is the section be amended by striking out (b) and renumbering (c) and (b).

Motion lost.

Section 10 passed.

Section 11 read and passed.

Section 12 read.

MR. FAHEY: I wish to state that I am entirely in disagreement with that clause altogether. I would like to outline that in the first place the reason given for the water tax was that the Council lost a lot of revenue through the coal tax when people turned over to oil and they now ask for permission to put one cent a gallon on fuel oil to offset the coal. If a lot of people have changed over I don't see why in the world a lot of them may not change over to electricity next year, will we then have to charge one cent a kilowatt hour burned in homes? Because of that I feel the clause is worthless and I am entirely opposed to it altogether and I think the people in the smaller income bracket pay enough now without an extra cent. First when they started to burn oil it was at a cheap rate and year after year as there was more demand the price has gone up treble what it was when people started to burn it, and now the Council wants to add another cent.

MR. SPRATT: They should burn birch junks instead.

MR. FOGWILL: Encourage home industry.

MR. FAHEY: That would be local industry, would that come under Economic Development?

MR. SPRATT: People in the lower income brackets are paying more for oil than it is worth and I think the Council, if they looked after their affairs, would get along with the revenue they are getting, in my opinion.

MR. FOGWILL: I wish to register my non-support of the Provincial Government's Social Assessment Act, which I think is now 5% and I think it is not equitable, and should be wiped out.

MR. RUSSELL: It looks as if the City Council got you anyhow. If you burn oil they charge one cent a gallon and if you save oil and run the water they charge you for the water. Henry VII had a scheme of taxation whereby he could get you anyhow. If you looked poor you were a miser and had to pay up and if you looked rich you could afford it and had to shell out; it looks as if the Earl of Marden is back again.

Section 12 passed.

Section 13 read and passed.

Section 14 read.

MR. HIGGINS: That is an enormous amount of money, $500, that is beyond the taxation, that is a penalty. I don't see any reason why we can't oppose the Council if we want to as members for St. John's and I think $500 is a penalty not a taxation. There are companies I realize it would be good to keep out but there is one company I know, Lynch's which is a very honest one and a very charitable one.

MR. VARDY: There are places on the Mainland they are not allowed to operate.

MR. CURTIS: They are all gamblers.

MR. HORWOOD: I don't disagree anyway with the Council collecting a tax from circuses. I think it is a perfectly legal way of getting revenue for themselves, but I do question their right to impose it outside the limits of the municipality. That matter arose last year when another amendment was made here to an Act and in each case when the Council tried to impose a tax outside by amendment in Committee that right was taken away from them. I don't know where the circuses customarily operate when they come here, whether it is within the city limits. I have never been in the city in recent years when one was operating here.

But I do think it is establishing a bad precedent to give the right to impose taxation without the limits of the municipality and taking that into consideration I move this clause be amended by cutting out the words "within one mile of the limits of the city," which occurs in the clause in line three. In clause 11 and clause 12, and line three and four of sub-section 1, and 2.

MR. BALLAM: I may say I am sorry but I am in disagreement with my honourable friend the member for Labrador, it has been proven that when they are prevented from operating in the city then some area must be set in some kind of legislation and it should be not one mile, but should be three miles. I have seen cities on the mainland with circuses clustered all around the outskirts of the city and are more often a nuisance than anything else. I say if you want to change this clause change it to 3 miles though I do agree that the City Council should not be able to legislate for anything outside their boundary. But looking at it another way these things are more of a nuisance, either accept them in the city and give them room to work or keep them further removed, that has been proven many times over.

MR. VARDY: I agree with the last speaker and would also like to point out the City Council have control of the buildings within this Charter within one mile of the City Limits, they have to assume that responsibility. But there is something left out which might very well be advantageously included, and I would agree with the honourable Leader of the Opposition that the imposition of $500 is too high. If we allow them to come in and they are of some benefit to the children and the population at large from an educational point of view not the low grade carnivals, I would say $500 a day is only chicken feed for what is taken out from poor people, the ones we are here to protect. I think it is a disgrace and I move, Mr. Chairman, that the word carnival be inserted, the owner, agent or manager of a circus or carnival in the city or within one mile, because I believe by including the word carnival these carnivals now operating under the label of circus may very well revert and call themselves carnivals and thus exempt themselves from the provisions of this Act, and it would be unfair abuse of the good offices of the Municipality.

MR. CHAIRMAN: There is another amendment before the Chair. It has been moved and seconded that that section 14, sub-sections 2-6 and 3 be amended by striking out the words "or within one mile of the City Limits."

MR. HIGGINS: The Council has control of one mile outside the city limits, we can't take that out.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, I was impressed by the argument used by the honourable member for Labrador until the honourable the junior member for St. John's West made his statement that the city has control for the margin of a mile surrounding the city but now I am wondering just what that means. Could someone, perhaps the honourable Leader of the Opposition—could we be told the meaning of that statement and just what it controls?

MR. VARDY: It controls buildings.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Not taxation.

MR. CURTIS: There is no taxation.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Have they now the right to tax for the distance of a mile outside the city?

MR. FAHEY: They do tax I think a nominal fee of $1 a month for supplying water.

MR. CURTIS: That is not a tax, it is a service.

MR. SMALLWOOD: They do now enjoy the right to tax outside the city limits so is it proper in this section that this committee give them, is that proper?

MR. VARDY: Yes.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Now, let us not be diverted from the principle. I am in sympathy with what my honourable colleague says when he says there has been a strong sentiment in St. John's lately and indeed in the other parts of the Province that these low class carnivals, gyp joints, that is the proper word, that have been coming here ought to be taken and taxed very heavily, indeed not allowed to come here. Now, that is a good point but one that has really no bearing whatsoever on the principle of whether they shall have the right to impose taxation outside their taxing jurisdiction, it is or is not fixed and that fixing does not include a margin of a mile outside their jurisdiction. If it does not should we give it to them? That is what the clause does. Extending my honourable colleague's case we might add a number of things such as horse races, dog races and list out a number of things they would be permitted to tax but the fact that it is a carnival or a circus is not of itself sufficient reason surely to justify us in extending to the City Council the right to impose taxation beyond their territorial jurisdiction if they have not got it now. If they haven't got it now, are we prepared in this Committee to give them the right to impose such taxation. Now, I am not talking of collecting a service charge for delivery of water or something of that character any more than of the right of the Newfoundland Light and Power to collect charges for services they may render. I am speaking only of taxation and they either have or have not the right now to impose taxation beyond the border of their territorial jurisdiction. If they have not are we going to give it to them? I would think not. I would personally feel that they ought not to have the right if they have not already got it. Can we have it established here in Committee for the benefit of all of us whether or not the Council has any right at present to tax outside their immediate boundary?

MR. FORSEY: As I see it, this House is called upon to delegate certain powers to the City Council and in this particular instance the power is going to be delegated anyway, if we delegate to the City Council either to collect taxation outside the city or delegate to them the authority that no circus or gyp joint may operate to evade taxation by going outside the city.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is no argument. Will my honourable friend allow me? If the city does not tax them someone else may, it does not follow by any means that if the city is not given the right in this Bill to tax them there they will escape taxation. That does not follow. The right of this legislation to impose provincial taxation on them is not in dispute. Now, most Provinces have an entertainment tax and this Province should have such a tax, and I feel it indeed should have such a tax and at the next session of the House it may well be that the Government will recommend to the House a tax on entertainment outside the jurisdiction of the City and Town Councils which would cover the case of carnivals or circuses established outside a city, or outside a town's jurisdiction. I don't think that factor ought to influence us at all in our consideration of the question whether or not we will now authorize the City Government to impose taxation beyond their jurisdiction.

MR. FOGWILL: I think that was passed a few days ago that the Council may assess land improved by civic work.

MR. VARDY: That was the Slum Clearance Act.

MR. FOGWILL: I think it was improvements made by the City Council.

MR. VARDY: There were two acts, the Housing Corporation and the Slum Clearance Act. The Slum Clearance affected outside, the Housing Corporation within the City Limits.

MR. SMALLWOOD: If we give them the right to tax within a mile beyond their territorial jurisdiction why not five miles, why not three and a quarter or two and five eighths? Why one mile, why any?

MR. FORSEY: For control but the Legislature is supreme and can change the control when desirable.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is quite true, if they were that ill-advised. The Legislature has to see the Provincial Government gets some revenue and I seriously feel we ought not to rush into this and give the city the right to tax beyond their jurisdiction.

I am not afraid of a carnival moving outside the city boundary to avoid extra taxation, I am not one bit apprehensive about it.

MR. SPRATT: I think we ought to be particularly careful about how far we go in giving power to the City Council to impose taxation and why should unjust taxation be imposed, why should we keep anybody out who come in here and pay a reasonable taxation? What are we going to make out of our country? It is not unusual for circuses to travel through the great cities of the world, what is wrong with it? They are mostly enjoyed to the fullest extent by the young people and the kiddies particularly and then they have aided materially in helping the war veterans in this country and I see no reason why they should be kept out. What is the reason for it, what are we getting for it, what is the result of the embarrassment of people coming in here and making them feel like criminals as though they were coming in to take our birthright from us?

MR. FORSEY: Why should there be any taxation at all, Mr. Chairman?

MR. SPRATT: Would you like to go down and purchase clothes not worth $50 and pay $200? It would make you sick. It is unfair, that is. What we want in the world today is a square deal and it is not a square deal to impose such taxation, and when we touch every salary and everything in the country we are going too far with taxation particularly in the City Council and I am always talking about it. I know what I am talking about and I will prove it. I know what I am talking about and I can build a city with my own hands, I am a mechanic and if you give me the brick and mortar and stone I will build a subway and I know how to add and subtract and divide as well as any member of this Cabinet and I can talk and have been talking for fifty years and I have often heard "Look out for Spratt, he is a dangerous fellow." But I tell you, Sir, the day will come when they will say I was right, and I hope I will be in the land of the living and just as well able to handle myself physically and mentally as I am tonight. I think we are going too far and giving them too much power. I say again they have wasted millions of dollars and you can take me and put me in as one of the guilty parties, millions of dollars wasted in the City of St. John's from the period when I was a member of the Council and I say, I plead guilty as anybody else and it behoves this Government to be particularly careful not to give legislative authority to a body of men who will not get just returns and who won't apply and spend that money judiciously, that is all. I could talk here until I grow sad and then if somebody said something nice to me, I could soon answer that but I would get nowhere.

DR. POTTLE: Would it be in order to suggest that the sensible thing would be that the lawyers of the House consult with the solicitors of the City Council and something might be arranged?

MR. HIGGINS: I was going to suggest that. The area within the limits of the city of St. John's and for a mile outside, but it should be referred to the law officers.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It occurs to me that if this clause is passed and the city has the right to impose taxation within that area of a mile outside the city limits what is to stop a circus from moving a mile and a quarter, or a mile and six or seven feet outside the area of the city?

MR. VARDY: They would not get the business a mile outside the city.

MR. BALLAM: There is one thing I would like to say about this section: I think my honourable friend the Leader of the Opposition mentioned it before. For years we have had Bill Lynch's circus coming to Newfoundland and he has paid more money and given more contributions to war veterans than any other association that I know of. He has always paid whatever fee he is supposed to pay the City Council but we include here everybody who owns, operates or manages a circus, that includes the bad as well as the good and for a charge of $500 a day. I think it is outrageous, but I would make that limit three miles. The city controls the buildings within one mile, so therefore the Council would be the party who would have to permit the operation either in or outside the city if they were not outside the one-mile limit. Give them the permit and then set the rate they would pay, not lay down that every person operating a circus should pay $500 a day. I think that is an imposition. It would mean the good outfit, not the gyp one, would never be able to come in here and operate under these conditions at all. Not in addition to what they pay the veterans. I think we should reconsider this section.

HON. MR. CHALKER (Minister of Health): I believe the idea of the Municipal Council in drafting this Bill is to keep the circus and carnivals and whatever else you call them at least a mile away which is quite a good idea. The circuses that come here are not a nice thing in any city or town, I am making no reference to Bill Lynch, but I know he is barred from certain cities of the Maritimes and no circus is allowed within three miles of them. And I quite agree with the City Council on this tax and I must say I concur with them in trying to keep them outside the City Limits.

HON. E. S. SPENCER (Minister of Public Works): I do not wish to prolong this discussion but I have one brief thought regarding it and when I express that thought I do not want to be accused of posing as a puritan. I can take my place at the table and play a game of cards or throw a dice or perhaps bet on horses if the opportunity offered and it would not worry me very much. There are certain points in this clause with which I disagree. One has been referred to by several speakers including the honourable the Premier regarding the distance outside the City Boundary. I agree with him entirely when he says if we state specifically one mile, they can go one mile and one yard and be within the law. I agree with that point and may be some other way has to be found to deal with it. I too, think $500 is a pretty heavy taxation within the city limits but what we should bear in mind, Mr. Chairman, is the character or type of carnival or circus we allow to come within the city limits. I feel we have to have some other legislation to control the dissipation and I am referring to the gambling and I guarantee you I am no puritan. But I refer to the gambling tables they set up and by which they extract far more than is recorded and paid for in the legislated tax. I feel possibly the word 'gyp joint' may be applied, I don't say it does but think possibly that it may. My suggestion is that we find some other way to deal with these people whether the circus is named Lynch's or any other name since in most places on the Mainland they operate three miles outside the boundaries of small towns and cities. I think we should try and prevent the extent of some of these gambling tables and, like the honourable Minister of Provincial Affairs, I know what I am talking about, when I refer to gambling tables. I feel that system should be controlled. That is one point I would like to interject here, i.e., the actual amount of taxation I think that possibly may be controlled in some other way if we get a tax or system or law to control them. Up to this time there is nothing to say who will control them if they go a mile and a half outside the city there is nothing to say what should happen out there, and I hope there will be some legislation brought in some time to control that and stop the drain that is being made on people by this system of gambling which takes a far greater sum from their pockets than the price of visiting the circus.

MR. RUSSELL: I am going to vote against the motion and the amendment, because there is in this clause a sentence that to me is objectionable and entirely contrary to the whole principle of the Bill. I have argued all along in supporting the Bill and other members of the Committee have argued the same way. We are not imposing taxation, we are merely granting to the Council the right to impose certain taxation and certainly this here is entirely different and if they set down here now that every circus entering the city shall pay a license fee of $500, if we adopt this we are not giving power, we are ordering the Council to charge a specific sum of money and it is entirely contrary to the principle of the Bill and I am not going to support the motion which should read a license fee of not more than $500. I am not going to support the motion nor move that second amendment, I think there is already a motion before the Chair and I have wasted a lot of time with amendments already tonight.

DR. POTTLE: I would like to press a point which I have made before recess. This is a concession clause and it seems to me the best way for the time being would be for the Attorney General and the Leader of the Opposition to consult. It may involve the legality and may run contrary to other phases of the tax and the validity of the whole thing become a matter of doubt.

MR. CHAIRMAN: Is that an amendment to the amendment?

DR. POTTLE: I just ask to let it stand.

MR. VARDY: So that we will not have to go all over it again, I wonder if the Committee would be agreeable to include the word "carnival" in about eight different places in the four different sections?

DR. POTTLE: Only the question of whether the tax is legal or valid will stand over.

MR. BALLAM: Certainly my honourable friend does not mean to tell me that every club in the city which has a carnival such as an ice carnival or any kind of summer carnival, that he wants to include them in here and prevent them from doing a little social job such as they usually do. You will have to add something else if you want carnivals added here.

DR. POTTLE: For the purpose of this section—

MR. BALLAM: Exactly.

Agreed to let the section stand.

Section 15 read.

MR. HORWOOD: I wonder if some member would enlighten us as to what this clause means, is this imposing a retroactive tax back to January, 1949 or what?

MR. CURTIS: The reason for that, I think you will find, Mr. Chairman, the policy holders are paid annually; it is a case of getting the insurance to pass over what has been collected as tax. We did the same thing with Government taxation last year—the insurance company has collected the money and don't know what to do with it.

MR. HIGGINS: Now, I am going to speak more strongly on this one. One hundred years ago it was decided in England to place a limitation on actions for debts and such things and for a simple debt six years was laid down and the Lord help those who did not collect in six years. Six years is long enough because after six years the evidence may be destroyed, the person dead or the receipts lost. Now if any person ran a bill 18 years ago on Water Street and was sued for it and owes a firm there $100, eighteen years ago, the evidence is gone, the records are gone, how are they going to collect it? Take for instance I may have a dispute with a company about an amount and let it run and forget all about it, my witness is dead, everybody connected with it is dead, except myself, and I have no receipts, nothing to show and all the court has is the record on the books down there which may not be right. The real reason for this limitation is because after six years it is presumed the evidence will be destroyed. Can you imagine yourself in the position. Suppose you lived in the city all your life and you found yourself sued for $200 arrears and you find it happened fifteen years ago, you can't prove anything after fifteen years, the evidence is gone, but if in the interval you paid so much that keeps the debt open, shows you do owe some money and after six years you can give written acknowledgment and hold it open for another six years or the judgment is clear on the record that you do owe but if a debt goes for more than six years, what is the position? Some poor unfortunate individual finds his receipts gone, his evidence destroyed and probably a year afterwards a document appears that would have proven his case. I don't think it is right. The Council have their own limitation, I think it is in twelve months they have to take an action. Why wait for 20 years, you can't tell what happened fifteen years ago, it is hard enough after six years. Now in certain cases you have to take an action in three years, assault and battery actions in three years but for ordinary common debts are statute barred after six years. I don't know what is in the old Act but it is absolutely unnecessary because if the Council wants to collect the money they should do so as soon as possible and I am going to tell you candidly, I doubt if the Council knows, but I think I told the Mayor, I said it was a damnable outrage and I said I am going to oppose. But maybe I should not say that, maybe the implication did not hit him at all when he read it.

MR. FORSEY: What is the limitation on municipal actions?

MR. CURTIS: There is a lien for six years but it takes the position that debts due the Council are statutorily and continuously entitled to 20 years. I think this is a matter which might well be referred to a select committee to find out, why make such a ridiculous request?

MR. FAHEY: You mean we have to keep receipts for twenty years.

MR. CURTIS: I think we should let the section stand and go before the Committee.

MR. FAHEY: I know if it went through we would have to keep receipts for twenty years.

MR. CHALKER: Does that mean that delinquent taxpayers would lose their property and the city would be forced to foreclose and the taxpayer would lose his property after a certain time?

MR. HIGGINS: No, they could collect $5 or $10 and open up the debt for another year, if it is collected it runs from the date of payment. Suppose it goes five years and then it is paid, then it is opened up for another six years.

MR. CURTIS: They can protect themselves.

MR. FORSEY: They have hundreds of thousands of dollars in uncollected taxes.

MR. SPRATT: For more than ten years, some are twenty years and more.

MR. CHAIRMAN: It is moved this clause be referred to a Committee.

Sections 16 to 20 read and passed.

Section 21 read.

Section 21 amended by striking out the words "Not less than one dollar"

Section 21 passed.

MR. CURTIS: I move the Committee rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again.

MR. CHAIRMAN: The amendment is to strike out the words "As may be agreed upon between the Council and the owner," and have the clause read "As may be determined by the Council."

MR. FAHEY: What happens to the owner?

MR. CURTIS: The owner is not to be consulted if this amendment goes through.

MR. FAHEY: I think there ought to be some debate as to just what the amendment is. I don't think we can decide a question in this manner until we have all had a chance to agree and if there is a difference of opinion I do think the question should be debated.

MR. CURTIS: If the honourable member would like to be sure what he is voting on and would explain his point—

MR. FAHEY: I know it is a private Bill, I don't care how they vote but I would at least like to know what is being voted on and for that reason, I move that the Clause be now reconsidered so that we at least know what it contains and I think that is reasonable. On the other hand if you want to take the majority vote or divide, I am willing, but how are we going to divide on a question when we don't know what we are talking about?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Is there a motion to reconsider?

MR. CURTIS: I move we reconsider this section so that we may know what we are voting on.

Moved and seconded the regular orders be suspended and this section be reconsidered.

MR. FOGWILL: I don't think that is quite in order.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I say, Mr. Chairman, the Minister piloting a Bill has the right to recommit any section of the Bill until the Bill is adopted and the Chairman of the Committee has reported and that has been done, and he can move to go back into Committee of the Whole and reconsider the Bill, any part of it.

MR. HIGGINS: I doubt that.

MR. FAHEY: This case is a bit different, the Chairman made the decision and the only thing that can be done according to the rules then must be a call for a division. After that I agree the honourable the Attorney General may move we go back again. At the present time I say, I can't see how the honourable member can make the motion.

MR. CURTIS: Do you mean to say no one can move. Certainly the House can do what it likes.

MR. FAHEY: I happen to be a part of the House. I am speaking on the rules of the House adopted here a short while ago, and it says when the Chairman makes a decision there can be no further debate except that any two members may call for a division. Now we may have the division and after that is done, the Minister may get up then and refer back, to do otherwise would be to break the Rules of the House. Are we do adopt them one day and break them the next?

MR. CURTIS: We will vote in favour, whatever it is.

MR. BALLAM: We asked that this section be read because we did not hear it, we could not hear it over here, and do not know what the talk is about.

MR. CHAIRMAN: Divide:

Favour: Forsey, Keough, Smallwood, Pottle, Chalker, Vardy, Curtis.

Against: Higgins, Fogwill, Fahey, Russell, Horwood, Spratt.

MR. HORWOOD: According to the rules of the House every member must vote.

MR. BALLAM: And I say I will not vote. I asked twice to have it repeated and until I do hear I am not voting.

MR. SPENCER: These are my sentiments. Rules or otherwise, I did not hear and I definitely am not going to vote on something when I don't know what it is. It is all very well for the gentlemen on the opposite side who are directly opposite, they may know what they are talking about and the honourable member for Bonavista South may have heard but I did not and I refuse to vote.

MR. FORSEY: I suggest, Mr. Chairman, that you act in your dual capacity of Chairman and Party Whip and make the members vote.

MR. CURTIS: I may say for the information of the House if it were read they would be none the wiser, it refers to five other sections and until they are also read—

MR. SMALLWOOD: The matter is closed, the motion is taken.

Committee rose, reported progress and asked leave to sit again tomorrow.

MR. FAHEY: Before we go on, on a point of privilege, I would like to report to you Mr. Speaker that while in Committee the rules of the House were broken due to the fact that all the members did not vote on a division.

MR. SPEAKER: I regret I cannot take the point, the speaker cannot give a ruling on any matter which happened in Committee. Only the House can give a ruling, and the Committee should deal with these matters, the Speaker cannot.

MR. FAHEY: The House is supreme over the Committee, the House has to deal with the Committee and as the Committee violated the rules of the House, that is why I report it to you, Your Honour, as I think I should.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, to that same point of order, I believe the motion is until the Committee adjoins for the particular purpose of referring the matter to your Honour for judgment or decision, it is out of order.

MR. SPEAKER: The House can deal with a matter only if the Committee reports the matter. The report of the Committee was received and adopted and leave was given to sit another day.

Committee of the Whole on a Bill "An Act Further to Amend the Alcoholic Liquor Act, 1949."

Sections 1 and 2 read and passed.
Section 3 read.

MR. FAHEY: Mr. Chairman, I would like to make an amendment and insert the word "six" instead of "three." I feel it is all right to modify the present law permitting a person to go down and get 26 or 56 bottles. It is all right to modify the Act but not to modify it too much as it would be "three." I think "six" would be better. Once before there was a law permitting a bottle a day and three to my mind is too fine altogether. One week a man might not use any and then the next week-end would like to go off troutng and I would like to make an amendment to delete the word "three" and insert the word "six," in paragraph 3.

MR. SMALLWOOD: This, of course, is a Government Bill and Government have decided on the amount of three bottles and I am afraid we cannot accept the honourable gentleman's amendment. We have to stand on the figure three.

MR. FAHEY: I quite understand that it is a Government measure but in Committee I have a right to make an amendment.

Motion moved and lost.

MR. FAHEY: I am glad we have a good temperance bunch anyway.

Section 3 passed.

Section 4 read.

MR. SPENCER: I would like to have some information, can the manufacturer deliver to any other than the Board of Liquor Control?

MR. CURTIS: That is answered in the Bill itself "May deliver in any manner instructed by the Board."

Section 4 passed.

Sections 5 to 8 read and passed.

Section 9 read.

MR. HIGGINS: I think it is only a waste of time to get up and say anything no matter how reasonable a remark is made.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Now, that is not necessarily so but there is nothing to prevent the Government from rejecting or accepting an amendment. The particular amendment made by my honourable friend the member for Harbour Main-Bell Island we are unable to accept, but it does not follow from that that if there is another amendment we will not accept it. I suggest the honourable members make any suggestions or propose any amendments and they will be judged on their merit.

MR. HIGGINS: The remark was made the Government stands on it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: On that clause.

MR. HIGGINS: I don't care, I am going to explain my point. I don't like 1, 2 or 3. I consider one-fifth of the voters is too small a proportion and in other words, of 20% of the people come in and sign a petition and say we demand a plebiscite. It should be more than that, I say 35% at the very least. One fifth is too small a number to put the country to the expense of a plebiscite. I would say 35% or 40%. I would move it be one-third.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Move it a third and we will accept that. I accept for the Government the suggestion of my honourable and learned friend the Leader of the Opposition and I move it be one-third rather than 20%. I think it is a practical and prudent suggestion.

Moved section 9, sub-sections 1, 2, 3 be amended.

MR. CURTIS: The drafters put in one-fifth as that was in 1899 Temperance Act and I agree with the amendment, in fact I would go so far as to make it 50%.

MR. FAHEY: Must we have a motion in order to continue after 11:00 o'clock?

MR. SMALLWOOD: I move we rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again tomorrow.

Motion carried.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I move the House at its rising adjourn until tomorrow at 3:00 of the clock.

The House adjourned accordingly.

TUESDAY, June 5, 1951.

The House opens at three of the clock.

Presenting Petitions

HON. P. S. FORSEY (Minister of Supply): Mr. Speaker, I have a resolution here presented by the Town Council of Grank Bank road, which I should like to bring to the attention of the House. (5) Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Amend Certain Newfoundland Statutes."

Carried.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, Mr. Gardiner has arrived in the building. Perhaps the Leader of the Opposition will accompany me and we can escort him into the Chamber.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, it is a very great pleasure today to have present with us in this House one of the really great statesmen of Canada in the person of the Right Honourable James G. Gardiner, the very famous Minister of Agriculture of Canada. Mr. Gardiner for the past 16 or 17 years has been a Minister of the Government in that same important portfolio and I think that it is recognized throughout the whole of North America that Mr. Gardiner is one of the greatest authorities on agriculture in all its aspects. He himself is a farmer with a farm of 460 acres in his own Province of Saskatchewan. Before going into the Government of Canada, Mr. Gardiner was the Premier of Saskatchewan and I understand he has been in public life either provincially or federally for some 39 years; and what will interest all of us in this House, I think in all those 39 years not even once has he been defeated at the hands of the electorate. That is an inspiration of achievement which I am sure every member of this House will take unto himself.

Mr. Gardiner is visiting Newfoundland for the first time having arrived here on Sunday night, and having spent all of yesterday travelling by car around through some of the farm sections during this forenoon, I believe he intends to see even more during the remainder of today and tomorrow. Tomorrow night it is his intention on invitation, to address a public meeting of farmers in and around St. John's and any other citizens who care to attend that meeting which will be in the Memorial University. Now there is one thing if Mr. Gardiner would feel like answering the House would like very much to know as we have recently become a Province of Canada and we admit very frankly we are amateurs, completely, indeed green horns in the business of getting money out of the Federal Government: getting what we would like to regard as our just and proper share of the Federal Funds, and so being green horns and political amateurs we have a great advantage in welcoming one of the great masters who, shall we say, put a slight sum of fifty-six millions of Canadian funds into the pockets of some of the farmers, to wit, the Wheat Growers of Canada. If Mr. Gardiner cares to give us the inside story of how that was done we would deeply appreciate it, and I assure them we will apply it industrially for the remaining period of our term in the House.

I know that the House would be delighted to hear Mr. Gardiner speak and I propose to invite him to do so, but I think perhaps his education on Newfoundland would not be entirely completed if I failed to tell him just a little about this Chamber in which he meets us here today. The building was completed just a little over a hundred years ago, and always since then this Chamber has been the Lower House, and through this wall on the other side there is another Chamber about the same size, which was the home of the Upper House, the appointed Legislative Council which was abolished when we became a Province of Canada.

Now this Chamber had some little refurbishing. Behind Mr. Gardiner, Mr. Speaker sits in a very beautiful chair made in Toronto hand carved and presented to this House by the Legislature of that Province. On the table beside Mr. Speaker, is a very fine gavel presented to the House by the Province of Prince Edward Island. At the foot of the Table is the Mace presented by the Legislature of British Columbia. I think it is the most beautiful Mace in North America and perhaps in the world, certainly in North America—twenty-one carat gold and costing I think something over $10,000. But it came from a very rich Province and is made of native British Columbia gold. The clock over the door was presented to us by the Province of Manitoba and the Sergeant-at-Arms is wearing the sword which was presented by the Province of Saskatchewan, made in London by the King's Armorer. The Province of Quebec is sending a Table to replace the present one, hand-made in that Province and it has not yet arrived. So that slowly and gradually we are being furnished at the expense of our Sister Provinces.

Now on this wall are hung portraits of all the Speakers the House has ever had with the exception only of Mr. Speaker of today. These have been painted within the last year and hung on the walls of the Chamber. The painting of the ceiling would interest Mr. Gardiner. In 1890 there arrived in St. John's from Poland on his way to the United States or perhaps to the Mainland of Canada, one who stopped over here at St. John's and got into some difficulties with the result that he ended in jail.

MR. CASHIN: I hope that does not happen to Mr. Gardiner.

MR. SMALLWOOD: While he was in jail during these two years the Government of the day decided the building needed to be painted inside as did also the Government House and someone remembered that down in our jail there was a man who claimed to be a painter whom they did not need to pay. He was allowed to come out each day and it didn't cost a penny and if Mr. Gardiner has seen Polish pictures or reproductions of them elsewhere he will notice the strong similarity in the style of art on this ceiling to the Polish art treasures now held somewhere, I think in Ottawa or elsewhere in Canada. He did the job and then I believe they were considerate enough to shorten his term and released him and we never saw him afterwards. Now this has been repainted or retouched every year but following the original design and we are very proud of the story attached to it.

There is one other story which in conclusion I might tell about the Mace which was first used when the Legislature met in 1832. They had a Mace someone carved out by hand, out of birch, I hope, or if not birch at least some other Newfoundland wood, and painted it up by hand and so they held their first session. There was no building so the session was held in a house, a boarding house a woman kept here in the city and they held the session. When it was over they had forgotten to vote money to pay the rent for the use of the boarding house, consequently when they met again they had nowhere to meet as the boarding mistress would not let them meet until they paid the rent, furthermore she seized the Mace and hid it, and they could not meet without it, and could not pay her until they met as no money had been voted. It was a complete deadlock. The deadlock was severed by the Government of the day paying the bill out of their own pockets and the boarding mistress yielded up the Mace. They met in her boarding house and voted the money, the Government was paid back and that is how they carried on.

MR. SPEAKER: I have the great honour and pleasure indeed to introduce to the House the Right Honourable James G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture of Canada.

MR. GARDNIER: Mr. Speaker, Mr. Premier and Members of the Legislature. These words I have been speaking most of my life as a member either of the Legislature or the House of Commons. During that period of time I have learned one thing if not anything else, and that is the great care with which those who are given the responsibility of conducting situations of this kind must exercise in extending invitations to anyone to speak on the floor of the Legislature or the House of Commons. I therefore acknowledge the honour which you do me in permitting me to speak here. The occasion is one of a visit here which I have been planning to make to Newfoundland ever since it became the tenth Province of Canada. I found it difficult to come before, I was going to find it difficult to come later this summer so I took three days away from the sessions of the House of Commons to be here now. I will arrive back in Ottawa on Thursday next to continue with my efforts to get as much money out of the treasury as I can. My estimates are before the House at present. But while I am here, I would like to say to you that I came from one of two sister Provinces which were the youngest members of Confederation until you joined us as the tenth Province. My home was in what is now the Province of Saskatchewan, before it became Saskatchewan and was still part of the North West Territory, and so on the 5th of September, 1905, I had the privilege of attending the inauguration ceremonies in connection with the setting up of the Province of Saskatchewan. From that time until very recently we were one of the two latest in the development of Canada, we were not the earliest British Colony in a manner as you know, you have a much better claim to that right than those of us who live on the Mainland. But Canada over a long period of time has been associated first with the British Empire which later came to be called the British Commonwealth of Nations and 84 years ago we formed what was known as a Confederation under the British North American Act. At that time only four provinces signed, Prince Edward Island, Manitoba, then British Columbia and later Saskatchewan and Alberta became members, raising the number to nine. When Confederation first came I think everyone associated with it on the Mainland had hoped Newfoundland would become a part of that Confederation. It had not happened however. But on each occasion that other Provinces came in it was hoped again the question would come up in some way or another and that Newfoundland would become a part of the Dominion of Canada, but that did not happen; but in the time between 1867 and the time when you did raise the question a great many things happened. First going back beyond that period there is one main reason why Cabot came to this Island when he made his way across the Atlantic and that is because it is the shortest distance between the populated part of Europe and the nearest point, the first point to be reached, is on this Island. That is a fact that no one gave much consideration to in the earliest days and more particularly did not give very much consideration to it after steamships started to travel. But in more recent times, in 1901 to be exact, when we found that there were new methods of communication being developed, Marconi found the nearest point from which to send forth his messages to the more densely populated areas was on this Island, in this city as a matter of fact and then at a later date when means of transportation for human beings at least was developing from that of fast motion on the ocean by steamship, or on land by train, to airplanes in the air, it was again from this Island that those took off who were attempting to prove they could fly non-stop across the Atlantic Ocean. All of those facts which probably did not register very much with those who were living on this Island or off it but when we entered the last great war and it became evident that the moving of air transports across the Atlantic was going to make a difference between winning and losing the war, the location and there is not need to recall it to your minds, resulted in the great activity that at once sprang up on this Island. Now, I do not know what effect that had upon the minds of those of us who live in Canada but outside Newfoundland.

During the period I spoke of a moment ago, namely 1905, when our Province first entered, up to 1935, our population rose from less than one hundred thousand to almost a million people and nearly all of the migration which resulted in the settlement of the Western Provinces passed through the Straights of Belle Isle in the North of this Island and you would be surprised at the conversations taking place by people from European Countries, not the British Isles. They know the stories about the people who came from the European Countries who passed by this Island and up the Gulf of St. Lawrence and wondered why it was not a Province of the Dominion of Canada, the new country to which they had come and most of us did not realize the real importance of it being a part of Canada until we had our experience of the last war. During that time it was found that if we wanted to go from California to the centres of the conflict in Europe by the most rapid route we flew to Gander or Goose and then took off from there across the ocean. If you wanted to come back in the opposite direction you did the same thing. That is of the greatest importance for two different reasons: In the first place this particular colony, in the days when it was a colony, was perhaps the first move that was made toward an influence exercised upon civilization by the fact that all trade or all important trade, passed over the British Isles. You know there was a time when the greatest city in the world was Bagdad but that was in the days of caravans between the East and West. There was a time when the greatest cities in the world were on the Mediterranean, that was in the days when trade moved in galley ships, and there became a time not so long ago when all of the important trade passing between a population running into hundreds of millions was located on the Continent of Europe and passing over to a new land being developed on two continents to the West but by far the greatest part of that trade passed through and over Britain and she became the best known land in the world, the greatest trader in the world, fed more people compared with the amount of food she could produce than any other country in the world, and became a leader in spreading the idea that people ought to trade with one another, they ought to build up a peace based on friendly pursuits rather than warlike pursuits, with the result that we have in the world today a British Commonwealth of Nations. An association which is a controlling influence over about three quarters of a billion people, people who when they have difficulties sit down and talk about them and decide about them and don't talk about fighting. When they have trade problems they sit down and discuss them and try to make one another happier by resisting the inclination to go and fight and take things from people that other people think belong to them.

When I was out at Gander the day before yesterday, in twenty-five minutes I saw one of the greatest carriers of mankind and one of the greatest carriers came in with the name Saskatchewan; it remained for a few minutes before going out again. Then I saw the Flying-Dutchman come in and do the same thing, then a few minutes later another plane came in, I don't know yet where it came from as I could not read the language on it. It might be China, India or it might be Israel, I don't know, but some of the passengers at least came from India, in other words it was obviously a plane from the central Mediterranean Area. There you have three ships coming in, in twenty-five minutes extending over the whole western cities of the European Continent and when we realize there are four hundred million people living west of the Russian Boundary Line to the West Coast of Britain and that these ships represent the trade that comes from those people with the Continent of at least North America and probably the Continent of South America as well, we can only dream about what the importance of this place is.

I came here to look at your agricultural land. You will all agree with me immediately that the area is not very great but I was on a farm yesterday; I am not going to say whose it was, you can probably guess, as he is here, it is a beautiful little farm in a beautiful valley with rocky land all around it. It has a number of dairy cattle on it, luscious grass to feed them, has the clearest and purest of water, and I learned that the milk that those cows produce is being sold to the American establishments that are here because of the facts I have been mentioning in the last few minutes. Then again when I was flying in the other day I passed by a pulp mill away in the central part of the Province and I got a glimpse of another over toward the coast, and of a cement plant. All of these have their importance. If one travels through this Province, in any part of it, and is familiar with the Highlands of Scotland and when one recalls the result which the method of living in that area has had upon mankind generally one realizes what the final development of this area will mean and the influence it will have. What I want to say is this: the greatest influence in the world for peace and harmony and good will amongst men is the British Commonwealth of Nations representing some three quarters of a billion people who do not fight, abhor fighting, as it is with all others who become acquainted with them in a greater or lesser degree and over a period of time. And they are a greater influence towards that end in the world today, maintaining that kind of organization. The fact that the northern part of the North American Continent is a part of that organization and the fact you are the important link between this Continent and the European Continent is important insofar as people who are in a hurry to get ideas across and get somewhere else are concerned, and is going to be a greater influence on the development of this Province to my mind than any other thing, and when I recall that many parts of those British Isles are just as rough, with many parts of them composed of solid rock as you find in this Province, I must realize that there are some other things which are of importance besides rich agricultural lands. Food can be brought here by means of transportation but it is most important that where you have most excellent scenery to look at while engaged in some pursuits of pulp, birch wood into plywood and the development of some of your rocks into cement, while you are engaged in all this you can develop homes in areas where the growing of food is possible. And insofar as the Agricultural Department of the Dominion of Canada is concerned we want to help in that development. Now I am not going to try and tell you we can develop this island into one of the greatest agricultural areas in the Dominion of Canada but I may be able to tell you in the years ahead our effort in cooperation with yours may produce some of the finest agricultural spots in the Dominion of Canada where people are living on agriculture in comfort and getting along as well as people anywhere. But the most important fact as I say again is this: you are a part of the Dominion of Canada. No matter what we thought when talking about it, you know when we formed the Province of Saskatchewan in 1905 we had one of the most bitter political campaigns I ever listened to. We finally formed the Province and we still have some of the discussions we had in 1905 but nobody ever thinks of not having a Province. I have no doubt as the years go by here many who took one point of view and emphasized it will have given a contribution towards the future strengthening of the Province, and men who have taken the other side will also have made a great contribution and in the end the Tenth Province in Canada will have many reasons for believing they did more by joining us to strengthen Confederation, from one end of Canada to another, than they actually thought when they went into Confederation. But most of all I think the greatest single fact in the development of the last two or three hundred years was the building up of the British Commonwealth of Nations. To my mind it is doing more today towards the establishment of permanent peace in the world than any other one thing and you will help yourselves by becoming the known centre of all the transportation activities that take place through this area and that applies more in peace time than it can in war time and you here will benefit by all that but we outside will be benefited just as much as you and if we all co-operate together we should be able to accomplish these things.

Now to answer the Premier's suggestion and in conclusion, I am going to tell you now we got $65,000,000. The $65,000,000 belongs to the farmers in the West and we had to convince the House of Commons and the Government of Canada that that $65,000,000 at least did belong to the Western farmers and when we found out nobody else would pay it to the farmers, we decided someone ought to pay it, and finally the Government of Canada decided to pay and have it over with. I don't know if that means the question is settled or not.

I am going to tell you a little story: When I became Premier of Saskatchewan a group of fellows in British Columbia thought they should march to Ottawa and tell Mr. Bennett, then the Prime Minister, how to run the country. As it was rather a long walk they got a train there and ordered the crew to take them to Ottawa. Well, when Mr. Bennett heard they were coming over he had the Mounted Police lined up across the track at Regina and stopped the train and got the men off the train, and put them in the exhibition grounds. I wondered, as Premier of the Province, what right Mr. Bennett had to stop those British Columbians in the Province of Saskatchewan on their way to Ottawa by the Mounted Police of the Province of Saskatchewan. I went to the Commissioner and said "Who is running this Police Force, Mr. Bennett or I?" He said "Give me an order and see who is running it." I said to him: "Well, I want the guard taken off these fellows and the exhibition grounds and let them go down town for dinner." All right, we got in the car and ordered them all off down to dinner. Then one of them said to us, "What are you going to do to us?" I asked them "Men, would you like to go home?" They answered "Yes." I said "All right, we will send you home." I don't need to go into the details; we had a little trouble getting transportation—one group on C.N.R. and one on C.P.R. and we loaded them all on. Well, Mr. Davis was the Attorney General at that time and I went down to the exhibition grounds at night acting as station agent and issued all the tickets, enough to eat up $40,000 and we sent the bill to Ottawa. Well, Ottawa would not pay, so we paid it.

I was invited to Ottawa within six months of that time to become Minister of Agriculture and when I got there I submitted the bill for $40,000 to the new government and they paid it. Well, I don't know if it is always going to remain so but if this Government would not pay the $65,000,000, I was hoping there would be a Government who would probably pay it, if they do the $65,000,000 will not go to the wheat growers but to the taxpayers in general, in other words the treasury. But to make a long story short we do not think the people who had supplied wheat at a low price in order to feed people when in need should be asked to pay the whole bill and we made that story stick with the Government first, and later with the House of Commons and finally we submitted it when it was passed all three parts of the Government the money was paid. That is the whole story, and all I am going to say to you is this: If Newfoundland at any time thinks like the farmers, you have a good story to present, you will find some one in Ottawa, if not me, someone else, who is prepared to do battle. Now in all the Houses I have ever been in before I have been accustomed to speaking to the Government on my right but I find you don't sit that way in this House and I am going to say this: on occasions of this kind one appreciates the fact that the Opposition and the Government alike have agreed to permit a talk of this kind being made and I hope that anything I have said may be of help to all parties in the House. Thank you.

MR. JOHN G. HIGGINS (Leader of the Opposition): I have much pleasure in supporting the welcome given by the Premier to the Honourable Mr. Gardiner who has come here today. You will have noticed, Sir, that the Premier took advantage, in giving you the history of this House, to express appreciation of the various gifts, the wise men from the Provinces brought here, the clock, the gavel, and particularly at the end drew attention to that beautiful mace sparkling and glistening in the eye of the wealthy Canadian Federal Minister. Wealthy in the sense that you take under your control the farmers' vast millions of dollars and I know you feel you will go away with its glitter in your eye to remind you of $65,000,000 and make you realize perhaps the time will come when we might become the recipients of some $65,000,000. Can you imagine what little bit of comfort $65,000,000 gave to the wealthy farmers of the West? If it gave them a little bit of comfort, imagine what comfort and strength and wealth it could bring to a little, under-populated country like ours. Why, it would make us the mecca of all places in the world.

Now, we have had other visitors coming through, there were two others both of whom were Progressive Conservatives and we were beginning to wonder if there was a single Liberal on the Mainland. At last we had one. But all those others sat on our side and even the High Commissioner of Australia sat on our side too to swell our numbers, boost up our morale, but may be we have all come to the realization that no matter what happens in the House we are on the right. Now, Mr. Gardiner being a Liberal had to make some sort of a stand and not being bigoted decided to be neutral and where he stands seems only natural indeed but whether you are Liberal, Progressive Conservative or Independent, you are welcome just the same. I am sure your speech down at the luncheon this afternoon must have been very good and I am sorry I did not hear it, however, my reasons for absence were not half as important as the reasons that brought me back here for I must forego pleasure for the call of duty and we on this side very often make up a quorum, and have to be sure to be here.

Now, Sir, we are very sorry your stay is so short, somehow two days seem too short and it seems we have thrust upon us the honour of welcoming the speeding guest. Sir, ours is the welcome, yours the speed, we are not hurrying you away at all. I am sure quite a lot of farmers would like to spend a lot of time with you to discuss the various agricultural problems and show you the necessity of strong support to this poor country.

Now, I want to thank you very much indeed for your speech, I am sure every one here, the members of the House and the audience, enjoyed it and if this were a half holiday and they knew you were coming I know this Chamber would be crowded. Yours was the story of the romance of civilization in a small compass and particularly drew for us the importance of our country so very important in the history of the world as we join together the American and European coasts. Time does not permit me to speak on that subject except to say thanks, thanks and still more thanks.

House resumes normal business.

MR. CURTIS: I move the first five orders of the day be deferred, and that the House will now go into Committee of the Whole on a Bill "An Act Respecting Liability in Actions for Damages for Negligence when more than One Party is at Fault." This matter, Mr. Chairman, the honourable Leader of the Opposition and I discussed as lawyers and we thought we might let the clauses stay as they are.

3rd clause passed.

8th clause passed was allowed to stand carried.

MR. FOGWILL: May I ask the Honourable the Attorney General to explain to us section "A" as I am not familiar with the clause?

MR. CURTIS: The position in connection with clause "8" is this: If I am allowed to refer back to it, we have passed it but the position as to the man who is driving, his wife and family, he is not liable for injuries received unless he is guilty of wanton neglect. The effect of this section is this: that if a passenger is injured in a car the liability is on the part of the driver of the car if the passenger is a guest in the car. If there is another car involved the court is allowed in that case in finding who is responsible for the injuries to place it between the two of them and say the driver of the car with the passenger is liable to one-third and the other car two-thirds of the damage. The effect is this, that the party injured can recover only from the driver of the other car and not from the driver of the car in question in which he is a guest, in other words if I take the Honourable Member and we drive home in my car and the Minister of Welfare being under the influence runs into us and as a result my honourable friend is injured, let us suppose the injury amounted to $10,000, and he sues both of us. Well, I have not been responsible, I have not been grossly negligent, true I did commit a breach of some traffic regulation with some slight carelessness but not sufficient to make me responsible for more than 25% and I am not guilty enough to be responsible under the "Highway Traffic Act." In that case if the court held $10,000, liability between myself and the Minister of Welfare, I would be 25% and he 75% and instead of recovering $10,000 he would get only the 75% and I would not be called upon to pay my 25%.

MR. FOGWILL: Where one party is at fault, for argument's sake, you drove me home and ran into a bridge, this Bill applies to where more than one party is at fault only. I see.

Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with no amendments.

Bill read a second time. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

Committee of the Whole. A Bill An Act to Amend the St. John's Municipal Act, 1921, and acts in Amendment thereof and for Certain Other Purposes."

MR. CURTIS: Clause "4" was allowed to stand, that is on page "13" Mr. Chairman, at the request of the Council we suggest the following amendment to section 4, instead of having the section written within one mile of the City Limits to pay the Committee fee of $5.00 they ask now that it read: "The Council is empowered to impose upon and levy or collect from every person, operator, manager, or owner."

MR. VARDY: Does it make any reference to the question of carnivals?

MR. CURTIS: No.

MR. HIGGINS: A circus and a carnival as there might be such a thing as a rink carnival under the auspices of some organization which would render it awkward. What is to be done in that case? Is the Council to make it read circus? I suggest we stick to the strict wording and if there are instances that won't cover it, it will be their headache.

MR. VARDY: The only thing I suggest is that if the term circus is going to cover some of the gyp joint owners operating for so long in the past, there should be a definite definition as to what constitutes a circus. A circus on the Mainland and in Europe is generally a highly reputable organization and does not have as a rule associations with the sort of thing we have inflicted upon us, the public of St. John's by groups of, I don't want to use too exact a term, but I don't think there is too strong a term, that we have had here robbing us right and left. I make that statement and I have seen so many people go without bread and inflicting hardship upon the business of the City because the poor unfortunates go down there and through the lack of understanding permit themselves to be fleeced. That is not the sort of organization associated with a reputable circus and there is a very long distance between the type of low grade carnivals in the City of St. John's and circuses as employed here and I think if it is going to remain in the Act to cover both types of organizations there should be a specific definition of what is meant by a circus in future and not pass for a carnival and so avoid taxes by coming in and labeling themselves as a carnival.

MR. HIGGINS: First, Mr. Chairman, I do object to the word "gyp." I think Lynch's circus is most reputable in spite of the remarks of the honourable member for St. John's West, and most of all it has a good reputation in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. I know Lynch and have a very high opinion of him and so does the Honourable Minister of Labour. Whatever the usage in other places the word "Carnival" only applies to amateur efforts, fancy dress balls, and it is not a circus in that sense and it is better that the word "Circus" would be interpreted as always here, I think that is right.

MR. CURTIS: I think the committee should rise and give the Council one more opportunity to discuss the matter. In the meantime this is what they asked us to pass and they feel it covers it, so I suggest that we report progress and give them an opportunity in the meantime to define the word "Circus."

The motion is that sub-clause 2 of clause 14 be stricken out and the following inserted as sub-clause 2.

MR. HIGGINS: The Council would say this and expect us to give them the power of discretion to grant such licenses.

HON. E. S. SPENCER (Minister of Public Works): Mr. Chairman, before that amendment is passed I appreciate the position. We have as a House felt this afternoon that the Honourable the Attorney General in piloting this Bill and there has been a comment made here by the Honourable the Junior Member for St. John's West and at the last session here he discussed this same viewpoint and I raised the thought on that occasion that one feels the necessity of these various bodies. Everybody knows, and the House knows, what I am talking about and it is not necessary, as I said, to pose as Puritans but the position is that there are a series of gambling tables run by these various circuses here which is a cause for complaint. I certainly have no intention or desire to pose as one who thinks that in order to make this City a safe place to live in, it is necessary to eliminate such things, there is no such thing in my mind nor do I hope to attain those standards, but I do feel that it is very important that we take note of the complaints and I am wondering, if we do pass this clause, that if at some future date we can do something which will limit the gambling which is the cause of trouble, I will admit I am prepared to take a chance now and again, but I like to have a fifty-fifty chance. I regret to go along with it and it seems to me we should have some assurance. It seems to me the City wants it, the public wants it, we want assurance that these people coming in with a circus we will welcome them if they don't gyp us. I think it has gone a little too far and I submit possibly we can do something about it. I am quite prepared to pass that clause but I do want to have assurance that if we do this, at some future date people will not come in here running ten or a dozen gambling tables and gyp everyone who comes to them.

MR. VARDY: I support the amendment but with the thought in mind that care would be taken as to the manner in which these people would be allowed to carry on their gambling and other parts of their programme and I agree with the previous speaker that something should be done. There should be set in the Act something specific guarding against the unfair manipulations of gambling in such places whether it be dice or cards or what not, and I suggest it is not good for the province or its people. I maintain it would be different if properly organized circuses or even a part of a circus which could be available in assisting, for instance, war veterans or any charitable organization and they run their fair in a perfectly legal manner, then I say I am in favour of them and I think it is incumbent upon the Government to see that proper laws are instituted to guard against any unlawful irregularities.

MR. RUSSELL: How, Mr. Chairman, is the circus to raise $5.00 a day unless they have gambling?

MR. VARDY: By a charge of 15c. for a five cent drink and 25c. for a 10c. hamburger.

MR. RUSSELL: If it is going to bring gambling to the City, I maintain there is too much of it.

HON. JAMES J. SPRATT (Minister of Provincial Affairs): What is the amendment, Mr. Chairman? I know it was read but what about the details we are voting here and almost railroading the law through and once it is passed, it is passed, and the amendment means almost nothing—it does not say what is unlawful and what is not.

MR. CURTIS: The section is not supposed to say that it is just as before, a circus coming here has to pay a licence fee of an amount not exceeding $5.00 a day.

MR. FOGWILL: What have all the previous speakers and myself been talking about?

MR. CURTIS: You have not really been talking about this section at all, this section deals with licence.

MR. SPRATT: But the other speakers made reference to gambling and I was speaking along the same lines.

MR. CURTIS: I am not making a complaint against the honourable Minister, I am not trying to rush it through, if the honourable Minister wishes to speak.

MR. SPRATT: I don't wish to speak, Sir, but there has been some comment on the desirability of having the circus come here at all and there have been other complaints given vent to by various speakers as to the form and manner under which they operate and if they should be allowed certain gambling games taking money from people unlawfully. I feel now that there is nothing in that Act to prevent them from so doing, that is what I am saying and if there is not, why not? Here is the place to do it, if it is not done here and the Act is passed as it is, it is too late then until further legislation will give us the power to amend it. We are here dealing with it now and surely we can deal with it intelligently at the present time giving circus owners the right to come in.

MR. VARDY: I wonder if the position is not that all these gambling games are illegal anyway, and I would like for the information of the House to know how they are to collect $5.00 a day if the gambling games are eliminated, I think it is only fair the council does not collect tax on admissions to so called side shows and to the grounds and the Council collected an amusement tax on these things but it is now impossible for them to collect that under the new set-up and therefore there is a specific licence fee of $5.00 a day. The equivalent was collected formerly in the form of an amusement tax, a percentage of admission so that eliminating of the gambling won't reduce the Council's revenue to $5.00 a day.

MR. RUSSELL: It would be some job to eliminate gambling.

Motion carried.

Section "4" was allowed to stand.

MR. CURTIS: The Council has asked to be permitted to make the following amendment:

No duplicate or substitute card shall be issued by the City Clerk for any reason whatsoever.

Motion carried.

Clause "16" in the Act is deleted and the following is substituted therefor:

MR. FOGWILL: That is an amendment to take the place of the 20 years, it is reduced to 10 years.

MR. CURTIS: Yes.

MR. RUSSELL: I am as generous to the Council as any member of this House but I am not going to support this amendment. I still think 6 years is sufficient, in fact with 6 years there is no need of the section at all because the Statutes of Limitations would refer there. I am not in favour of even the 10 years.

Motion carried.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments.

Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Speaker, I have just been in touch with the Council and the amendment we just passed is not in accordance with their full wishes, I would ask therefore that the House go into Committee of the Whole again on this Bill.

The Motion is: "That the Motion to adopt the report of the Committee of the Whole on the St. John's Municipal Act, 1921, and Acts in Amendment thereof and for Certain Other Purposes; be rescinded, and the Bill be recommitted to Committee of the Whole."

House goes into Committee.

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Chairman, I move we reconsider section "14" of the Bill. I understand the Council intended to continue on after the word "Operation" the words that are written in the original draft. We are putting in the new clause but the rest of the section shall continue as it is. I move we add those words appearing in the original Bill.

Motion carried.

Committee of the Whole on Bill: "An Act to Amend the Alcoholic Liquor Act, 1949."

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Chairman, since our last session we have been looking in to the proposed amendments to the Alcoholic Liquor amendment Act, and I suggest that we should refer to Section "2" and I would ask that this clause be amended in this way.

Motion carried.

MR. CURTIS: Now the next section, "The board shall not sell to any person more than three bottles in any one week. It seems that if we adopt that it would be impossible for a man to have a cocktail party such as we are hoping to attend in another hour, therefore, it is suggested we should add to that, that the Board may subject to the Minister authorize the sale of spirits in a greater quantity than three bottles weekly to such persons, institutions, clubs, hotels, or other bodies as the Board shall see fit. The reason for that amendment, Mr. Chairman, is that under the present Act the Board can give special permits in certain cases for banquets, dinners, weddings, and if they are limited to three bottles a week that clause would be not so that we have this amendment to Section "3."

HON. H. L. POTTLE (Minister of Public Welfare): I would like to raise the question if it should be issued to persons as persons but to such socials as parties.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Take for instance today, the Chief Justice is entertaining the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario at a reception to which doubtlessly members of the House have been invited. Now I have no doubt there will probably be three hundred persons and there will be a glass of wine, no doubt, for those who like a glass of wine. Now, that has to be purchased by the Chief Justice, for such an occasion. Therefore it his Honour the Lieutenant Governor entertains on any occasion in his official capacity and so with other individuals not only for weddings but on other occasions such as receptions of one kind and another and we are not hypocritical enough to pretend that at such receptions liquor is not served. It has been the practice from time immemorial to entertain the members of the Legislature on Opening Day and for the Minister of Finance to entertain the members of the Legislature on Budget day and it is sometimes necessary to purchase rather sizable amounts of liquor for such receptions and occasions and the purpose of this clause is to give such individuals that right. Now it would be quite useless for a bootlegger to go to the Board and ask for a permit to get a large number of bottles, more than three a week.

MR. FORSEY: Mr. Chairman, speaking to that amendment, I was wondering if I come under that heading? I would like to bring up the point that there are a number of clubs in the city and various district which I presume have the right and privilege to open during meal periods and on Sunday and different holidays.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is covered in another amendment coming up now.

MR. CURTIS: I think, Mr. Chairman, we might let that clause stand for just a moment and we will. Section 56 is amended by adding thereto, sub-section 6 the following: "The board may by order prescribe that any club licensed to sell alcoholic liquors under this Act shall not remain open for the sale of alcoholic liquors at such times as are set out in the said order."

MR. HIGGINS: You mean the Board can apply any hours to any club it wishes.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is intended to cover the point raised by the honourable member for Harbour Main-Bell Island. It is intended to cover that point without being inflexible. If it is inflexible as the Committee will appreciate, there are cases where there can be no possible opposition to a club being open on certain days, and there are cases where there are good reasons for opening, these cases are well known to the Board and some flexibility seems to be desirable in this. Now if it is absolutely rigid and inflexible it seems to us that it would work very definite injustice on some clubs, on others however it would not and so it is thought very desirable to make that amendment.

MR. FAHEY: Mr. Chairman, what I had in mind was this, that this amendment now brought in by the Attorney General, I agree with it to a point. If the club can't keep within the bounds so to speak, the board has the power to say you must close on such a day, but the point I had in mind is actually a little bit different from that. For instance, I may not be a member of any club and probably may not be admitted to some club and I am not sure whether I want to be admitted. The point is this: there are some citizens or people of this Province who may or may not be admitted to such clubs, it is all very fine for anybody who wants to take care of these on Sunday. For members of the club it is open from one o'clock to three o'clock and five o'clock to six o'clock and it would be all right for hotels and things of that character, I would not say taverns as such should have the same privileges. For instance if I happened to be over on Harbour Main Highway or Trinity Bay District and I went into a hotel and it had a license and I ordered dinner there or liquor whatever the case may be and I can't get it because it is illegal for the hotel to sell—I contend a hotel or any place opened with a license where people are served should have the same privileges as clubs, and I was wondering if the Attorney General could take care of it by adding an amendment due to the fact that we should consider that everyone in the Province is a member of a club.

MR. SMALLWOOD: This section applies only to clubs. In short the restriction in this new amendment is a restriction applicable only to clubs not hotels. Hotels have certain rights in the main Act and they are not restricted by this amendment. So that so far from restricting hotels there is no further restriction on them only clubs, and power is given in this amendment to place restrictions on clubs not on hotels.

MR. FAHEY: I agree with the remarks of the Premier, but I don't know if the Committee got my point. To make it a bit plainer we have people with taverns and hotels, I am not speaking especially of the City but about various districts where I travel and perhaps Sunday is the only time they can do any business; during the week they may sell a dozen bottles of beer and they are called upon to pay a licence the same as anyone else but during the routine everyday life they sell only perhaps a dozen or so of beer, and the only time they can get to do any business worthwhile is when the local tourists are travelling back and forth, part of the tourist traffic. I was wondering if the Government would consider that point on the same basis as clubs' licenses.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I am not afraid. With all the good will in the world and all the good intentions in the world we are trying to accomplish two purposes; not be silly or foolish on the one hand and on the other hand I think we cannot consider opening taverns on Sundays. It is not done to my knowledge anywhere. Now whatever case there may be for allowing private clubs to open on Sundays and hotels there is certainly no case you could imagine for permitting taverns to open on Sundays. I am aware that there is a tremendously wide gulf in the thinking of some people on this whole question of beer, wine, liquor, a tremendous gulf and never the twain perhaps shall meet. Personally I like to steer a course reasonably in between these extremes and not to attempt the adoption here of fanatical and impossible restrictions that will challenge and invite violations and make the law a mockery and yet not open her up and I think that in Newfoundland as in most parts of Canada, especially the older parts of Canada and the Maritime Provinces, the thought of opening taverns on Sunday is far from the thinking of most people. Now there would be the occasional man who would like to take his drive around the Bay, Sunday afternoon, and drop into a tavern and have a bottle of beer or have it with his meal. I am not going to say that is a terrible thing to happen but to open taverns on Sunday would run absolutely contrary to the general feelings of the Newfoundland people—I think the vast majority, and that cuts across all kinds and classes of people and when I say kinds and classes, I mean all kinds and all classes. There are some people in all kinds and classes who would say open them but the vast majority would say "No," not on Sunday, I don't think we can accept such an amendment.

Motion carried.

Now section 6 shall be numbered 7; and 8, shall be numbered 9, and 9 is now 10 and in that section, I would like to move that we insert this clause 6 (a) after the period: "Which shall not be less than 30 days."

Motion carried.

Insert a side note "Only electors shall sign."

Sub-clause 2—Side title is now "New Plebiscite."

Sub-clause 7—Is cut out altogether.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I am going to ask that 7 and 8 be stricken from the Bill as there is time enough for that when we get tourists. Instead of that there will be a new clause 11, "Date of Coming into Effect." This Act shall come into force on a day to be fixed by proclamation, of the Lieutenant Governor in Council. That is there, Mr. Chairman, because it will take the board some time to get books printed and it would be impossible to keep track. Now reverting again to No. 3:

MR. FAHEY: Suppose a citizen goes to the Board for a permit for a wedding or some sort of a function or as a representative of an organization which may require some spirits for some sort of function and the Board turns him down. What appeal has he? If the Board's decision is final the Board can easily use their position to play politics. We are giving them the power to do that.

MR. CURTIS: I do not think the Board will turn down a reasonable request.

MR. FAHEY: I would not like to have to make an amendment to a man going down and looking for a half dozen bottles for a function tomorrow.

DR. POTTLE: The situation is that the clause is being made more liberal, that is all. This suggestion makes it more wide and liberal than it was.

MR. RUSSELL: It gives the board wider powers of decision and gives them all sorts of opportunity for discrimination.

MR. CURTIS: I think that is the only thing the board will worry about.

MR. FAHEY: If I got the money, honey, I will get the liquor, the Board will never stop me, if they want to discriminate they can. I am not saying they will but we are giving them the power, there is no appeal, the Board says no and that is final.

MR. SPRATT: Why not make it "Shall." It would make it more pleasing, unless you want to invest dictatorial powers in the Board.

MR. CURTIS: You have to give dictatorial powers to the Board or you will have the thing wide open. Lots of people get a permit. It can't be proven that some are not bootleggers. The only objection is the Board is too anxious to give it out. I don't think any members need worry about the Board.

MR. RUSSELL: Well, you have the board and also have to give them something to do.

MR. FAHEY: Play politics.

MR. CURTIS: I may say that is copied from the former Act. The Act says persons and we made it parties instead of persons as it is only for social purposes. Otherwise it is defeating the purpose. You have to show you are putting on a party.

MR. FAHEY: If that is the case the bootleggers should have a wedding every week.

Motion carried.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

Committee of the Whole: "An Act to Incorporate the Water and Sewerage Corporation of Greater Corner Brook."

Clause 3—sub-clause 3 was allowed to stand.

MR. FORSEY: This clause should be passed as it is. If they proposed to buy a particular water works the present actual value is as assessed, say at $40,000 or $60,000 and the system would last about 80 years, and it is already 20 years old then one fifth of its value would be depreciated so that they would actually pay $40,000 though the system when it was built cost only $20,000, so there is no objection to that clause as is.

Motion carried.

Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendments. Ordered to be read a second time on tomorrow.

Committee of the Whole: "An Act Respecting Civil Defence."

DR. POTTLE: Clause two—Amendment "In this Act or any other regulations made thereunder."

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with no amendments. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

Bill read a second time. "An Act to Authorize the Lieutenant Governor in Council to Guarantee Payment Issues by Town Councils."

MR. FORSEY: Mr. Speaker, when the Commission of Government introduced the idea of Town Councils they instituted the policy of giving Town Councils special grants for particular projects in those areas. Over the years I think they disbursed in that manner something between three and four million dollars. It is now proposed in the case of certain of the larger towns to discontinue that policy and instead with these various town councils to have a revenue producing project which when installed will enable the particular town council to be weaned away from Government special grants. The Government proposes by this Bill to authorize the guarantee of bond issues by the Town Council. Actually if the servicing of the bonds for a particular town council, that is the sinking fund and the interest amount to $5,000 the town council provides to meet, at least at a maximum, half of that amount and the Government provides up to the other half. The principle of the Bill as I say, Mr. Speaker, is contained in the text and I move the second reading.

MR. RUSSELL: I regret very much, Sir, that I have to express my opposition to the principle of this Bill. I may be wrong in continuing what the Minister of Supply said just now regarding the principle of the Bill. If the principle of the Bill were as simple as that outlined in the copy. There is nothing wrong in principle with the Government granting a guarantee of interest and principal in part of in whole of bonds issued by Town Councils but the principle here, it seems to me, is a little more serious than that. The question is not so much who is in favour of guaranteeing a bond issue or the principal on it or the interest to any particular town council but whether or not we are going as a House to be willing to give to the Government what would amount to a sort of a blank check so that the Government would be in a position to guarantee bonds here and there as it seems fit without having to come for prior approval or come later on to the House for ratification. I am not going to refer to other bills as it is out of order to refer to them without reopening any argument on them, but it is a well known fact in this House that we have been asked to approve guarantees that the Government had made in the past or contemplated making. And I have heard some honourable member give notice he is not going to be bound to support each and every such guarantee for application. Now, Sir, if a Bill like this goes through it seems to me too late then to talk about whether or not we agree with the specific uses the Government made of the powers given to them.

It is not a bit of good to give power to do certain things and later making a terrible uproar about someone's salary or some loan made by some board that is for a proper purpose or not. A lot of that, to my mind, is all nonsense,—all this we are arguing about or trying to regulate. The House gave the Government the power and if we pass this Bill, Sir, accepting the principle it is no good next year going out from this Assembly and asking some questions framed like this: To ask the appropriate minister just what bond issues, for what town councils and for what purpose voted and to what extent the Government guaranteed? And from time to time here in the event that some money becomes payable under section 4 there will be some criticism for this Bill passed and if I voted for it I should later on feel that if the Government guaranteed a bond issue and finally had to close it out I would have no right to criticize. Mr. Chairman, the whole subject of guarantees is far too important to bring up in rather insignificant measure of this sort. I am going to cut my remarks short by just saying I think the principle here is a principle with which we may become fairly well acquainted, asking the House to give away powers which the House and the House only, to my mind, should have; to give them to the Government so that it will be able to say at any time—a long one,

I hope—that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may from time to time appropriate funds from the consolidated revenue fund for such purposes and there would be no need for the House at all. As a member of the House I feel I have a responsibility and I feel I should weigh every case brought to my attention where public funds are to be either spent or involved and I consequently doubt that I have the right to delegate that authority or responsibility to the Cabinet and as a member of the House I demand that I and the House be cognizant of every matter; I want to know when the Government guarantees a bond issue or part of one to a town council, what town council, the financial status of the town council whichever one it might be, their ability of eventually maturing it, the purpose for which they need it. I want to know all this as a member of the House and I feel it is my duty then when I know all these things to judge as to whether or not I agree. I don't think I am unjust and otherwise I would be shirking my responsibility as a member of this House. If I am permitted to make the motion now I move the adjournment of the debate as I would like to continue tomorrow for a few moments.

MR. CURTIS: I second that motion.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I move the remaining orders be deferred and the House at its rising adjourn until tomorrow, Wednesday, at 3 of the clock.

WEDNESDAY, June 6, 1951.

The House opened at three of the clock.

Presenting Petitions

HON. J. R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, for some days past, representatives of the fishermen and the fish merchants have been meeting in St. John's to discuss prices which the fishermen should receive for fish produced in 1951. These meetings were held at the Newfoundland Fisheries Board at the request of the Salt Cod Fisheries Association and invitations were extended by the Board to the Fishermen's Organization, and the Trade too had representatives present. These meetings did not succeed in establishing prices which the fishermen's representatives felt they could recommend to the fishermen or the Federation representatives feel they could recommend to the merchants. No agreement could be reached. The later meeting held at the invitation of the Newfoundland Fisheries' Board was equally unsuccessful in establishing prices which the various representatives felt they could recommend to those whom they represent. The fishermen's representatives felt the fishermen would need to get $12.50 for small Maderia and so stated. It was agreed, however, to recommend to the fishermen an opening price of $11 for Maderia on the undertaking that the subject would be examined again on July 25 and every month thereafter. The merchants' representatives would not agree to $11 as an opening price for small Maderia but offered to recommend $10.25 instead. This the fishermen's representatives refused to accept especially as they had been informed that some outport merchants intended to pay $11 as an opening price for small Maderia this season.

The representatives of the fishermen and the merchants met this forenoon for another attempt to come to an agreement, but no agreement was reached. The merchants' representatives stated they could not recommend more than $10.25 as an opening price and the fishermen's representatives stated they would not recommend a price lower than $11 a quintal to open with. The Government know as much as the merchants about the prices paid for fish to fishermen last year and the prices received by merchants when the same fish was sold in the markets.

In a few weeks time the Government will have received a full and detailed report by the Royal Commission who have been investigating last year's prices to the fishermen and the merchants. The Government are aware that market prices are expected to be brighter than last year. There are only about 12,000 quintals still left unsold from last year's catch whereas a year ago there were over 200,000 quintals still left unsold from the year before. Not very often in the past, at this time of the year, was Newfoundland so bare of unsold fish as she is at this moment. The prospects for successful marketing are brighter than last year and the Government are fully aware that even if the market prospects were no better than last year, $11 could be paid for small Madeira as an opening price this year. But there are even better prospects than existed last year and even if they were not better the merchants could without difficulty or hesitation agree to pay $11 for small Madeira this year. The Government have given the closest possible attention to the situation and do not hesitate to express the frank hope that the merchants will agree to an opening price of $11 subject to review on July 25, 1951.

A year ago, speaking for the Government, I stated the Government considered it to be their duty to see that undue profits were not made on the fishermen's fish, and that was not an idle promise, as shown by the fact that we appointed a Royal Commission to find out exactly what was received by the fishermen and what was received in the markets. The Government feel that they have still that same duty to perform and when the full report on last year's fishery is received it is our intention, should the need arise, to order another inquiry into prices paid this year and the profits made on fish with the purpose of taking the same action as may be taken on the report of last year's transaction. The Government are unanimously convinced that the fishermen should receive a just price for their fish and the merchants a just profit, and it is our intention, as far as our authority will permit, to see that both receive a just price or profit.

MR. VARDY: I have the honour, Mr. Speaker, to present a petition from some seventy-five residents of the community of Kilbride in the District of St. John's West praying that consideration be given that a hydrant be placed on the waterline at some convenient place as an emergency water supply in the case of fire in that district or vicinity. In presenting this petition I would say it is rather an unique suggestion while it is not a matter of very great moment involving any great amount of expenditure to have a hydrant placed there for the convenience of a large group of residents of that particular district who desire to have their property protected, it is unique in this respect, that same petition was presented as far back as 1944 to the then Commissioner of Public Works.

Apparently the request became side-tracked though I do understand there is a fairly strong sympathy in the Department but nevertheless it has not been possible up to the present time to have any action taken on it and the residents are very much concerned, Mr. Speaker, over the situation that exists in their particular locality especially in view of the fact that the number of buildings and residents in the particular community are increasing very rapidly and thus the hazard of a serious fire as a result of which they would be completely wiped out is adding to the concern. In presenting this petition, Mr. Speaker, I have very much pleasure in tabling it and asking that it be referred to the Department concerned and I urge that all possible be done to have a hydrant placed in that particular location.

HON. JAMES J. SPRATT (Minister of Provincial Affairs): I have much pleasure, Mr. Speaker, in supporting this petition. I am well informed of the situation and I endorse everything my honourable colleague has said. It was made incumbent upon me since being a member of the Government and representing the district of St. John's West to call to the attention perhaps in an informal way of the Public Works Department and not directly, on the first occasion, but on one occasion I had called the attention of the honourable Minister of Public Works in a rather informal manner and I feel that he is seriously interested, or at least interested enough that he will acknowledge that the request is not an unjust one. I have much pleasure, Sir, in supporting the petition and hope favourable results will accrue.

HON. E. S. SPENCER (Minister of Public Works): Is it in order, Mr.

Speaker, for me to have a word in connection with this petition? As the honourable member for St. John's West said a moment ago this situation is very well known in the Department of Public Works. It may not be well known to the members of this House generally or to the public that this community referred to lies just outside the City Limits of St. John's and there are no servicing lines there with the exception of a private line brought from some of the little lakes on the South Side to supply water to the Mental Hospital and to the Sanatorium. There has been during the past number of years, I don't know how far back, numerous requests on the part of private citizens along this road to be permitted to tap that line all of which I suppose have been considered. But it appears the Engineering Department are not satisfied that the supply is sufficient to warrant putting in additional connections for all and sundry who apply. The matter of this fire hydrant is one which the Department will consider very seriously. We must, however, be guided by the knowledge of the Engineering Department who are cognizant of the facts and of the need of the supply for the institutions referred to. There is no intention or no desire on the part of the Department of Public Works, I may say, to refrain from granting the prayer of this petition providing that the supply is sufficient and will not in any way interfere with the supply for the Mental Hospital and the Sanatorium. I merely felt that in the light of the facts of this petition presented in 1944 which is one of many perhaps that received scant attention, or at least which the Department apparently found it would be unable to grant, and it is only natural it would now come up when we, the representatives of the people, have to deal with it. As far as the Department is concerned, Mr. Speaker, we will give the utmost consideration to this petition and it will depend, as I have already said, on the report of the Engineering Department responsible for the water supply for those institutions and we will be happy if the prayer can be granted.

Presenting Reports of Standing and Select Committees

None.

Giving Notices of Motions and Questions

HON. W. J. KEOUGH (Minister of Fisheries and Co-operatives): I give notice, Mr. Speaker, that I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Newfoundland Federation of Fishermen."

MR. SMALLWOOD: I give notice, Mr. Speaker, that I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act Respecting the Public Revenue, the Raising of a Loan Authorized by the Legislation and the Auditing of Public Accounts," which is more familiarly known as the "Audit Act."

I also give notice that I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Amend the Income Tax Act, 1950."

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable the Premier asks leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation, Limited."

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I would be very frank and tell you this was second reading and it has already been given first reading. I wonder if the House would permit me to move second reading today, not in the least with any intention of rushing or hurrying anyone, but my purpose would be merely in moving the second reading to explain the Bill and deliver some remarks that would assist the House to understand the Bill and then to hold over the debate, not to proceed with the debate today, but merely begin the second reading today and enable me to explain the Bill so that members of the House may perhaps more readily understand what it is all about and therefore be able to give the Bill more consideration for the purpose of their contribution to the debate. For that purpose and no other, merely that I explain the Bill but not proceed any further with the debate, I ask the House's permission to give it second reading today. I must say the hope of an adjournment this week as far as I am personally concerned has been abandoned. I do not see any hope of prorogation of the House this week. This Bill is very important and requires considerable thought and study by the House and we have other Bills as well.

MR. JOHN G. HIGGINS (Leader of the Opposition): I have no objections, if I may be allowed to say, a second reading is all right today providing this Bill is not rushed through. Looking at this Bill it strikes me that it could not be gone through without two or three weeks' study—each paragraph needs study. It is by no means an easy thing to understand, and I imagine, I say this deliberately, it must have taken the lawyers months to prepare, it is most complicated and difficult and we should be given plenty of time to go over this and I don't think it will be finished for weeks yet. It is a serious Act and it would take us weeks to go through and appreciate it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I am very proud indeed to have the privilege on behalf of the Government to move second reading of this Bill. I think it is one of the most important pieces of legislation ever brought into this Chamber, and I say that with the full knowledge of the very great importance of many pieces of legislation brought in here in years gone by. Certainly it is, I think, the most important piece of legislation yet brought to this House by the present administration and I am personally very proud indeed that it should fall to my lot to introduce it.

Now, Sir, the House and I, possibly the Province are fairly well aware of the fact that this Government have taken more than usual interest in a programme of economic development. Indeed we place economic development in the very forefront of our policy and intentions. As a Government we regard the Economic Development of Newfoundland as being paramount and as deserving more attention and energy than any other function of this or any Government in Newfoundland possibly deserves at the present time. The present Bill is brought before the House in line with the Government's policy and programme of economic development. It is part and parcel of our policy, it is, I submit, a necessary part of our programme. Now, Sir, it is a matter of very great regret to the Government and I believe to the House and to the people in Newfoundland that former governments placed so little value on the public domain. Huge tracts of public domain were given away to private interests and to private individuals for nothing or next to nothing.

Those members of this House who were members of the National Convention will remember the dismay of many of us in that Convention to learn of the huge slices of our public property that had been given away almost literally for nothing, huge potential hydro-electric powers, alienated from the Crown for payment of one pepper corn; huge tracks of valuable timber land given away in fee simple for nothing and unconditionally, so that at this moment while I speak there are in Newfoundland and Labrador great areas of what was formerly public property, belonging to all the people of Newfoundland, which no longer are public property but have been given away for literally nothing or next to nothing by former governments running back for half a century and more, which are today owned by private interests who are not required to develop them and who sit on them doing nothing, and allowing no one else to do anything to develop them. A most depressing proportion of the public domain has been alienated from the people—I will not go so far as to say cheated from the public—but certainly alienated without due thought and without due recompense to the public. This Government, however, for some time past has been giving very considerable thought to the recovery to the Crown of all alienated public property both in Newfoundland and Labrador, and we have been taking legal advice in that matter and have strong hopes of bringing legislation in here to remedy at least in part the terrible blunders in that regard in the days gone by.

Now, fortunately, not all of the public domain has been lost to the public, the people of Newfoundland; the Crown in short, still owns very large and very important tracks of public lands containing very valuable timber stands, very valuable water powers, and we hope and we believe, extremely valuable deposits of minerals, and the question naturally arises what can be done to bring these under development, or to develop these natural resources, of the people of Newfoundland, to bring them into development or production? To that question this Government has given a great deal of thought. Now last year we spent, on authority of this House, some of that authority was given beforehand and some of it subsequently, a grant of a total of probably something more than half a million dollars out of the public treasury for what we call economic surveys. That is to say in some attempt at measuring some of the natural resources still left in the name of the Crown.

This year we will have spent by the end of the year, another quarter of a million dollars and next year if we spend less than a quarter of a million dollars we would not have done much. But I suggest, Mr. Speaker, that it is in fact beyond the financial capacity of this or any Government in Newfoundland to go on spending such huge sums of public money on these various economic surveys, badly needed as these surveys are. Because the House is thoroughly familiar with the fact that it is precious little that we know about the actual extent or character of the natural resources that are still left to the Crown because so little has, in fact, been done in days gone by to find out just what we have and what would be needed financially speaking to procure profitable development of them. This Government, last year, with great boldness set forth on a policy of such surveys and spent, as I have said, more than half a million dollars of public money which was the largest sum spent perhaps in that one year than had previously been spent in twenty-five years before we came into office. But, Sir, it is, I submit, beyond the sound capacity of this Government of Newfoundland to go on spending money at that rate each year and in short, in other parts of the world that kind of expenditure is normally paid by private enterprise.

It is the practice of most large, profitable mining corporations to set aside approximately 10% of all their profits to be spent in the further search for minerals and I doubt not that the great mining companies or corporation of the United States and Canada among them spend each year, and more particularly these recent years, sums running into hundreds of millions of dollars a year of their profits in the search for further workable deposits of minerals. Very little of that is spent in Newfoundland, that is why last year the Government of Newfoundland so boldly spent half a million dollars of public money in a drive to measure some at least of the minerals and water powers potentialities of this Province. Now we had in the back of our minds the hope that at least one result of last year's survey would be the discovery of new potentialities in those areas surveyed to interest private capital in the possibilities of this Province.

But, Sir, the Government have in addition to this work they may do by way of economic development, also a staggering amount of work to do in other directions. Perhaps the work the Government have had to do in the past two years is more diversified and rather heavier than earlier governments had to do because of the fact we have become a Province and a large number of new matters have cropped up. Certainly it is a great burden and a very great strain on the Government to have to give so much of its time and its energy to both classes of work; on the one hand a greatly increased volume of ordinary public affairs and on the other hand an unprecedented amount of time and energy to this great drive to bring about economic development.

And so, Sir, it has occurred to us as a Government that it might be sound if the Government created and instituted a weapon, an organization through which in matters of economic development it might operate and thereby place the actual negotiations of new industries one step removed from actual intimate Cabinet activity into the hands of a separate and semi-independent organization altogether. In short, after considerable thought about development bodies of one kind and another which are known to exist in various parts of the world or to have existed in the past, after considerable thought about the famous East India Company, the Great Hudson Bay Company and other famous and some of them infamous, I am afraid, notorious development organizations that have existed in the past in various parts of the world; after considering indeed a large number of possible ways to go about this business of economic development, the Government came at last to the idea of creating a development corporation which should be not merely another Department of the Government, not merely another public body nor for that matter a mere private company, a mere capitalistic enterprise but a combination of the two.

That is to say we came to the conclusion that the wisest course we could pursue was to organize a corporation in which both the Government and private enterprise might unite in some form of partnership for the carrying out of these aims. And what we have here in this Bill today is a Bill that would incorporate a corporation to be known as the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation. The mandate of the corporation is set forth in the preamble. In short, Mr. Speaker, the general and broad purpose of this corporation are identical with the broad purposes of the Government itself and I have no doubt of the House itself, because it must surely be the desire of all of us to bring about economic development of this Province and raise the standard of living of our people and these are the purposes set out in the very front of the Bill as being the purposes for which this legislation is created, this Corporation. In short that is the broad mandate that this corporation would receive from this legislation, a mandate to develop Newfoundland and help thereby to raise the standard of our people's living.

Now, Sir, I have no intention whatsoever today to go into all the multifarious details of the Bill itself, rather, I think it would be useful if I tried to explain its proceedings. First may I say this, if the Government set up a corporation to develop Newfoundland which of course includes Labrador to develop this Province and own that corporation wholly then that corporation would be something very largely in the nature of state socialization. I don't think there can be any room for doubt on that. We would then have state socialism in effect in Newfoundland, that is to say a corporation wholly owned by the State and industries and other economic enterprises, that would in deed be state socialism. Now, on the other hand, if we were to assist in the creation of a private corporation wholly owned by private enterprise we would be doing precisely the thing set down further along in this same Bill, in the granting of the concessions that the Bill has in mind and the Bill sets forth precisely the things for which we have so roundly condemned Governments of the past. Therefore I point out that in the first place this Corporation is neither a Government corporation nor a private enterprise, it is a combination of the two.

In the second place, the corporation is to have an authorized capital of three million dollars of which one million dollars are to be subscribed forthwith but with authority to sell the remaining two million dollars of its shares or any portion thereof. So that it would begin with a capital of one million dollars cash in the company's treasury. Now, Sir, of the one million dollars to be provided for the purpose of one million shares at a dollar a share the Government itself will purchase nine hundred thousand of the million shares by paying a dollar a share into the treasury of the Corporation but what of the other one hundred thousand shares? These too are to be sold but not to the Government of Newfoundland. These one hundred thousand shares are to be sold at the same rate naturally, a dollar a share, by the corporation to certain private interests whom I will now proceed to describe.

These private interests are namely three corporations, two American and one Canadian. One of the two American Companies, namely Harriman Ripley Company of New York, happens to be one of the greatest financial houses in all of the United States of America and therefore one of the greatest of the world. The other American firm, the Cement and General Development Corporation is neither as large nor as important as is the firm of Harriman Ripley & Company; the Canadian firm is the firm of Wood Gundy Corporation who are the largest bond house in the Canadian Nation; larger than Dominion Securities, larger than Ames Co., larger indeed than any other financial house in the Dominion of Canada. And a firm, I may say, in very close touch with close financial association with the Wall Street firm of Harriman Ripley & Company, indeed each is the other's correspondent in Canada today, Wood Gundy Corporation is the Canadian correspondent of the Harriman Ripley and in the United States the Harriman-Ripley are the American correspondent of Wood Gundy Corporation and the two work in very close financial association. Now, I cannot describe the firm of Harriman-Ripley as being in the United States what the firm of Wood Gundy are in Canada, for Wood Gundy are the largest firm of their kind in Canada, whereas Harriman-Ripley are only one of four or five largest firms in all the United States. It will give the House some idea, however, of the size and importance of the firm of Harriman-Ripley of New York when I name some of the industrial giants of the United States who have been financed in whole or in part by this firm of Harriman-Ripley. Merely to recite the names of those firms is to recite a catalogue of American industrial and financial might, because these are names that are household words virtually throughout the world: American Locomotive, American Tobacco Co., Amco Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Continental Can, Dominion Chemicals, Dupont & Co., Eastern Airlines, Eastman Kodak, General Foods Corporation, General Motors Corporation, B. F. Goodrich & Co., Gulf Oil, Maceys, Pan American Airways, Shell Oil, Standard Oil, American Telephone and Telegraph, (these are only some of the companies). There, Mr. Speaker, I have shown, more or less at random a mere handful of companies from the pages of names of some of the greatest industrial and financial projects of the United States. So that this firm of Harriman-Ripley are admitted undoubtedly to be one of the largest of the world and how large they are can be seen in the fact that between 1934 and the end of 1949 that firm had raised or assisted in raising twenty-eight billion dollars of funds, without including the operations of last year or those of this year. Last year for instance this company financed the building of the railway in Labrador from Seven Islands to Nobb Lake at a cost of one hundred million dollars.

Now, the other company is the Cement and General Development Corporation which is a much smaller concern but it so happens that Cement and General Development was the first American Company with whom the Government came in contact and through that Company the Government came finally in touch with the firm of Harriman-Ripley. The Cement and General Development Corporation of New York were established by three men who are exceedingly well known: The late Edward R. Stettinius who was ambassador to the United Kingdom, I believe. General Donovan, better known to most of us as the Head of the Cloak and Dagger Office of the United States special services, whom the Attorney General and I had the pleasure of meeting a number of times in New York in recent months, and Sir William Stevenson, the gentleman who in the late war was head of British Intelligence and Intelligence for the whole of the Western Hemisphere. He is a close personal and intimate friend of Mr. Winston Churchill and during the days of the last war he crossed the Atlantic forty-seven times to confer privately with Churchill, in the midst of world war two. There is one other director in the corporation in the person of Mr. Lytton B. P. Gould of New York, an independent financier who has been of very great service and value to the Government in all its negotiations.

Now, all of these companies between them will buy in the aggregate ten percent of the shares of this Corporation and the remaining nine hundred thousand or 90% being bought by the Government itself and the ten percent is split between these various corporations in certain proportions which will have the result of giving Harriman-Ripley and Wood Gundy, two companies so closely associated undoubted and undisputed control of the minority interest of the ten percent. In short the two between them will own, I believe, something between sixty and seventy percent of the ten percent.

Now, the Corporation will have its head office in the city of St. John's and would have a board of directors numbering not fewer than nine and not more than fifteen. The directors at the commencement of the Corporation and until the first actual meeting is held will consist of the following: Hon. Leslie R. Curtis, Dr.

Valdmanis, Chesley A. Pippy, Eric A. Bowring, H. M. S. Lewin, all of Newfoundland, and Claude S. Richardson of Montreal, Lytton B. P. Gould of New York, George M. Mackintosh, New York, and Colonel Harold S. Griffin of Halifax, together with the Premier of Newfoundland who happens at the moment to be the person who is speaking now. The Premier for the time being of Newfoundland is to be Ex-Officio Chairman of the Corporation. To that clause we are going to move an amendment providing that the Premier for the time being is also a director of the Corporation or insert the Premier's name, by name, in section 2 which legislates the names of the directors of the company for the first period of its life until its first annual meeting when perhaps a more permanent directorate would be elected. So that this Corporation with a million dollars subscribed capital in its treasury with head offices in St. John's and with the directors that are named would set up in business for the purpose of procuring and promoting economic development in this Province and the House may ask what development can they do with a mere million dollars, can they start a paper mill, how much can they start with a million dollars? How can they set up industries and enterprises, how many industries can be initiated with this total subscribed capital of one million dollars? That is a fair question deserving of a fair reply. It is not the intention that this development corporation may itself necessarily initiate and own and operate any individual industrial enterprises. The purpose of the Corporation is rather to promote and procure economic development by operating through other companies and bringing them into Newfoundland with their capital.

Now, it may be asked what other reason could the Government have besides the one I have already named for permitting private enterprise to purchase ten percent of the shares of the Corporation? What other reason besides the one I gave, namely if it were not so it would be a wholly owned by the Government and would be a striking example of State Socialism in operation. Besides that reason the Government considered it to be valid and accurate that besides that there is another good reason why private enterprise ought to be permitted to buy in at the same price, ten percent of the shares of the Corporation and the reason is this: Harriman-Ripley and Wood Gundy have connections of their own, corporation connections and personal connections throughout the United States and throughout the Dominion of Canada which if used in Newfoundland's behalf can be of incomparable benefit to this Province. Mr. Joseph P. Ripley, the President of Harriman-Ripley, told us very frankly, without thinking very much of it and not at all by way of inducement or enticement or promise, that he is the director of a large number of Corporations throughout the United States including a West Coast Pulp and Paper Mill and is very intimately acquainted with the paper mill industry. He says quite frankly: "How do you want it done down there, what have you got, you want developed? Is it pulp and paper, is it minerals? Who would you like, what companies do you want, what have you got? What timber companies do you want? We can get you any of these companies if you have anything down there. They are all interested in the possible development, they are all looking for something to buy themselves into if you have anything worth developing." The same thing applies to Wood Gundy. By bringing those two great firms into this Corporation as shareholders and partners we secure from them an interest in Newfoundland which we think we could not hope to secure in any other way.

Now, Sir, let us assume for argument's sake that this corporation is so successful and profitable that it makes and is able to declare a dividend of not less than one hundred percent per year, and that this corporation that declares a hundred percent dividend, let us assume they do actually that, what then can the firm of Harriman Ripley and the firm of Wood Gundy for example expect to make? They expect to make $50,000 to $60,000 a year. And the House has to ask itself why the firm of Harriman-Ripley is interested in lending its name to a corporation and lending one of its principal officers to be a director, in buying shares in the corporation, of being publicly identified with such a corporation, to do all that for a dividend or a profit of $50,000 which is a hundred percent dividend a year. I suggest to the House that what is attracting Harriman-Ripley and Wood Gundy is not the mere dividends or profits on their investment they make in the development corporation, there is and there must be some other inducement to attract such great firms into this partnership with the Government of Newfoundland and what attracts them is this: The opportunity that will come thereby to do financing. That is their business, financing companies, financing corporations, financing governments, financing mines, financing individuals, but they would have to be very important individuals. The firm of Harriman Ripley is noted particularly for this; they are not the ordinary or conventional financiers that sit behind ornate desks and wait for customers to come in. On the contrary they are noted by all American financial houses for the manner and degree in which they go out to promote business, to create interests. One example of that occurred last year with the timber kings of the world who are making millions out on the coast of British Columbia, one of the timber kings of the world there has a vast lumber empire, dealing only in lumber, but there is also beside it a great pulp and paper mill and there was a lot of wood in pulp that would have been wasted for high price lumber and a lot of lumber that could have been used for pulp. Harriman Ripley sized up the situation, moved in and as the amalgamation of the two companies required financing, the financing fell to Harriman Ripley. That is where they made their money; so that as shareholders in this development corporation if they are to make any real money it must be by the financing they are called upon to do in any of the companies or corporations which will be created by this new development corporation. Now, I asked the question a moment ago, what assets would this corporation have? They would open offices in St. John's with the fine name, The Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation. They might have very fine offices and very fine directors and a million dollars in the treasury, and that is not a million to spend, because the Bill provides that half is to be put aside as capital surplus and not to be spent as ordinary capital expenditure so that in fact they have a half million dollars in cash to spend. What assets would they have? None at all unless the House gives them assets and the Bill asks the House to give that corporation certain assets and the assets which the Bill asks the House to give to the Corporation is public domain, public land running up somewhere between five thousand and ten thousand square miles containing timber, minerals and water power. Now, when I say "give" I do not mean to part with the title. It is quite contrary to the policy of this Government to part with title to any land with a few exceptions. We do grant land absolutely, absolute title to land for cemeteries, for schools, for churches and for farmers but no others. We have not given title to one inch of land since taking office except for these purposes. Our policy, as I say, is to retain the title to the public main in the Crown and not to alienate title to any more public land. The Bill does not ask the House to give between five and ten thousand square miles to this corporation but rather to give to them or grant to the corporation a lease for 99 years to these lands.

Now, as I have already said, if they were a private corporation wholly owned by private capital this would be the last Government conceivable that would come into this House and ask to have land granted even for 99 years and recommend the lease of between five and ten thousand square miles to a private corporation. That would be the last thing this Government would do. But it is not a private corporation, it is a public company, a British Corporation, a Crown Corporation. Under Canadian law and in Canadian Taxation Law it is a corporation owned as to not less than 90% by the Crown, and the House may see some significance in that parallel here, a corporation that is owned 90% by the Crown, and there is a Canadian Tax Law which says a corporation which is owned as to not less than 90% by the Crown is exempt from the payment of taxation and if the House sees any striking similarity in those two facts or any connection I cannot prevent the House from seeing it. At all events it will not be subject to Canadian Government Taxation nor will any of its subsidiary companies, provided those subsidiary companies are wholly owned by the Crown Corporation. And it may well be that this development corporation will have one or more wholly owned subsidiary companies. It may well be that it may have one or more subsidiary companies owned only in part and it may be that they will set up subsidiary companies which they will not own in whole or in part. The hope is, and the expectation is, that as a result of our setting up this corporation, this House setting it up really, will be the realization of a considerable number of other companies who will do the actual work.

Now, I come back, Mr. Speaker, to a point made here a few moments ago when speaking of huge sums of money which were spent by the Government last year in surveys and exploration and the rather huge sums which are to be spent this year. Half a million last year and a quarter of a million this year and it may be greater next year, a million dollars hard cash taken from surplus in three years. I have said we cannot afford it, badly needed as it is, badly as it is needed to be done it would perhaps become too rich for our blood as a Province, as a Government, to be doing with public money what is normally done in other parts of the world by private enterprise and so one of the principal purposes of this Corporation is to get private enterprise to spend on exploration and on surveys the money which will have to come out of our public treasury. If this corporation can get firms such as Andoconda Copper, American Metals and other industrial giants to come into Newfoundland with geo-physical prospecting apparatus and air-borne magnitometers and all the other modern means of discovering minerals at their own expense we can accomplish two purposes. First, save the money to the public treasury, and secondly, we can produce development or at least the corporation can produce development because it is not very likely these companies will come into Newfoundland and Labrador and spend considerable sums looking for minerals and other natural resources to be developed. It follows as sure as day follows night that they will develop those resources so that by means of this corporation and the connections which are thereby created with these American and Canadian Firms we fully expect to bring into Newfoundland and Labrador a rather considerable number of important American and Canadian concerns for the purpose of prospecting and doing with their own money what hitherto we have been doing with public money drawn from the surplus. Now, I want to emphasize this point that the Crown Corporation starts off as a Crown Corporation and remains a Crown Corporation. Of the one million dollars worth of shares to be subscribed at the outset the Crown will subscribe nine hundred thousand dollars and any part of the million remaining, authorized capital subscribed will be subscribed in the same proportion or it will not be subscribed, that is to say it will always be a Crown Corporation so that if the House passes this Bill into law and grants to the Corporation these tracts of land in Labrador and Newfoundland for 99 years it will not be passing these Crown properties over to a private company but rather to a company which is a Crown Corporation owned as to no less than 90%, it may be more, it will never be less, by the Government of Newfoundland itself.

And the question the House has to determine is this: Is it worthwhile? Is it a good bargain for Newfoundland? Owning as she does now these five to ten thousand square miles, all of them, is it good business to begin by owning one hundred percent and end by owning ninety percent? Is that good business? Is it a bargain for Newfoundland? Why should we give the right to these private companies to buy ten percent of the shares and therefore draw ten percent of the profits the Corporation may make? Is that good business, what does Newfoundland get out of it? Now, if all we got were the one hundred thousand dollars that they would pay for these shares going into the treasury of the Corporation that would be very poor business. We would be foolish. But that is not all we will get. For giving them the right to buy ten percent of the shares and therefore to take ten percent of the profits what we get is a partnership with two of the greater financial houses in North America. The Government are quite convinced that that is good business for Newfoundland and that that will pay handsome dividends to Newfoundland. The Government are quite convinced that by having Harriman Ripley and Wood Gundy become partners of ours in this Corporation we will thereby bring into Newfoundland, Canadian and American Corporations which otherwise would not come or if they did, would come only after many months and even years of enticement on our part, corporations who will bring with them their own money to do their own exploration and their own surveys and then, if and when they find something worthwhile, develop with their own money. Now, how in that case does the Corporation make their profits? If the Legislature votes to give this Corporation public lands running from five to ten thousand square miles in area in Labrador and Newfoundland for 99 years the corporation will do one of three things: In the first place if any part of that area is not developed, the Government can develop it any time it wishes to do so, that right is preserved in the Bill. Secondly they will either develop it or if they don't we are still in the same position as we are now when we just began. Now, with regard to anything they develop they will do it in a number of ways; they will themselves develop it by setting up a semi-owned subsidiary by coming perhaps to the Government for a guarantee of bonds and one million is provided by the Government so that they may guarantee the corporation bonds up to a maximum of ten million dollars, and if it goes over that, call the House together and lay the request for further guarantee so that the Corporation might develop an industry by creating a wholly owned subsidiary which would be tax free as the Corporation is tax free or it might create an industry by a subsidiary company partly owned by the Corporation and partly by private enterprise or might promote economic development by setting up or probably suggesting the setting up of a corporation none of whose capital was subscribed by the Corporation at all. But in either case the industry concerned is set up on the basis of public lands, minerals and water powers or timber which this House would have ceded to the Corporation and apart altogether from any taxation applied to such industries, taxation of general application, apart from such taxation which would flow directly into the treasury, the Corporation itself would have its own revenue in the form of royalties on the raw material that were being used up in the industries concerned.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I think perhaps I have covered all the essential points in this Bill and I am quite certain that never was anything introduced into this House which got less acclaim from the newspapers. I have watched with great interest the gentlemen of the press who listened with appreciable interest and not a pencil was working and I am curious to know what the public will be able to read tomorrow about this proposition. I know newspapers myself, and I know a story when I see it if others don't. But we are not dependent on them, we are dependent on the people of Newfoundland and we have our own ways of reaching the people. Now they write, they think that is news. That is intelligent that is easy to understand.

Now, there are two other points of great importance in this Bill to which I ought to refer. There are two vetoes, one an over-riding veto enjoyed by the Government, by the Government Directors on the Board of the Corporation. Not alone has the Government a majority of the stock and a majority of the directors, but the Lieutenant Governor in Council as such has the power of veto over all the transactions of the Corporation. In short if the House is apprehensive of the effect of the voting of large tracts of public domain to a corporation owned ninety percent by the Crown, on whose board the Government has a majority of the directors, lest someone in that corporation would make some misuse of these resources ceded to them, leased to them, these apprehensions can be put aside because the final veto is exercised by the Government itself. Now, that is one veto that is an over-riding veto which the Government exercises throughout to the whole of the Corporation. The other veto is enjoyed by that director who represents the majority of the minority, in short that means Harriman Ripley. And the veto is in section 10 (a) page 13. In other words the director who represents the majority of the minority shall have consent thereto by him, through him in writing, signed by him and delivered to the Corporation. Now, the reason for that is this, at least the reason given to us by Harriman-Ripley and it appears to us to be reasonable and fair; Harriman-Ripley for the first time in their lives are partners with a Government which is most novel, certainly unusual for a Wall Street financial house to find itself in partnership with a Government in a corporation and furthermore partners representing only a minority or a majority of the minority altogether owning only ten percent and they say: What if the Corporation, because the Government has a majority of shares, a majority of directors and an over-riding veto; what if the Government decides to bring in some enterprise not of an economically sound character? An enterprise with which we disagree, which we believe to be unsound, are we then to be dragged into it by the Government of Newfoundland; forced to go along with an enterprise which we don't agree with? Then again they asked something like this; it is a Government, an elected government—and I must say that the experiences of most financial houses in New York with governments in the United States in recent years has not been a particularly happy one and they have had particular reason to be uneasy in their minds with regard to how governments may behave in relation to them—They said an elected government may allow political considerations to interfere in their thinking in connection with their starting of this or that company or this or that enterprise. Suppose, they said, the government orders the corporation to start an industry in, say Kelligrews when it should be in Manuels, and they do it for political reasons and we as a reputable banking firm are forced to go along with an enterprise which is not sound in a business sense but may be sound politically. So they asked for that veto that except in regard to industries relating exclusively and pertaining directly to timber or mines, in these they have no veto, in timber or minerals, paper mills, saw mills, pulp mills, logging operations or any kind of mining, excepting these they shall have veto powers because the Government has many ideas of industries which might very well be started in Newfoundland other than big paper mills and mines and all Harriman-Ripley asks is that their director shall be, so far as it does not affect timber and mines, their director shall be satisfied that is is a sound project before the corporation can go along with it. That is the extent of their veto. Now, Mr. Speaker, I don't know whether I have covered all the essential points but perhaps in the few minutes I have left it might be wise if I summarized and then moved the adjournment of the debate so that I might come back to it again in case tomorrow, in the interim, I think of some points I have not covered. I have no notes as the House can see and am speaking entirely from memory, extemporaneously and there may be one or two points so familiar to me that I don't see them today so that tomorrow I will resume the debate. Before adjourning now I will summarize:

The Government feel very strongly the need of an institution such as this Bill provides, an instrument through which we can act, can assemble a number of experienced business men who will act as a board of directors; a corporation which will receive and consider and act upon a variety and number of economic propositions which perhaps a government, a cabinet are not best suited to consider. The Government, I say, feel the need for such an institution. So that we are attempting in this Bill to create that institution and for which purpose we have asked Mr. Eric Bowring, Mr. C. A. Pippy and Mr. H. M. S. Lewin to act as directors along with our own Director of Economic Development, the Attorney General and myself, or whoever happens to be Premier from time to time, to serve as directors together with representatives of other houses, two from the Mainland of Canada and two from the Mainland of the United States. An organization served by such a board as that, with headquarters in St. John's and an authorized capital of three million dollars of which one million would be subscribed and of that 90% would be subscribed by the Government would thus be a Crown Corporation. The intention is that it shall always be a Crown Corporation and if the House can devise any clause on that point to make sure there is nothing omitted that insures it will always be a Crown Corporation with never less than 90% of the shares then we would very heartily welcome any suggestion or any amendment which would achieve that purpose. The Government would have the right to guarantee the bonds of the Corporation up to a maximum of ten million dollars. The legislation cedes a 99 year lease to the Corporation on areas which are laid down here consisting mainly of something approximating toward five thousand square miles of those surveyed in Lake Melville area and another area of Labrador contiguous with the present holding, I emphasise the word present, of the Labrador Mining and Exploration Company in Newfoundland. The remaining portion unalienated of the five thousand square miles surveyed last year by the air borne magnetometer in the Notre Dame Bay area and then another area on which we are doing a survey this year, a sort of diagonal slice running roughly, putting it very roughly, from Cape Freels, diagonally across the Island in a strip which must be more than 10 thousand square miles altogether, about two thousand square miles in this area. That would be eight thousand square miles in Newfoundland and probably two thousand in Labrador. The actual boundaries are given in the Act. That these be leased to the Corporation, only leased, that they not be exempted from taxation of general application, I mean, of course, provincial taxation of general application generally applicable to things of like character will actually apply to these areas as well. That these areas are leased to that Corporation but within these areas, any part of which they do not proceed to develop, the Government can still develop through somebody else, either directly or indirectly. It does not mean that once the House cedes these areas that from that time on no one but the Corporation can develop, that is not the case. It is there that, if and when the Corporation fails to develop, then the Government itself can do so directly or indirectly of its own violation or through other parties with whom they negotiate an agreement. In other words the Corporation can not sit on the area and do nothing and pursue a do nothing policy. Finally, I have to say this, I cannot emphasize too much, we found ourselves in the Cabinet for weeks on end viewing this Corporation as something apart from us, viewing it as if it were Morgan or Eaton or some other separate company and it took us quite a while to familiarize ourselves with the fact that it was still us, the Corporation is Newfoundland; it is the Government of Newfoundland because it is always a Crown Corporation and 90% and not less always belongs to the Crown and what we are parting with we are parting with to ourselves, merely shifting it from one pocket into another, with the exception that it comes out of one as 100% and goes into the other as 90%, and furthermore when we select people to buy that other 10% we selected people carefully chosen to be of tremendous assistance to Newfoundland in development of this Province. In view of the fact that all of us in the House are going down to a reception for Mr. Gardiner which begins at 5:00 o'clock, I move the adjournment of the debate.

On motion, items 8 through 11 were deferred.

Second reading of a Bill "An Act to Amend the Trade Union Act, 1950."

HON. C. H. BALLAM (Minister of Labour): Mr. Speaker, this is a very short amendment and is brought about by the fact that we have sort of separated this Trade Union Act from the Labour Relations Act and in brief, it just gives the Minister the right on request from seven or more members of the union to ask for an audit of the accounts and also in the old Act it said the Minister gives an annual certificate for unions. This amendment briefly will certify a union and that that certificate could be revoked at any time the Minister sees fit. That is the whole of it and I move the second reading.

Bill read a second time. To be referred to a Committee of the Whole on tomorrow.

Second reading of a Bill "An Act to Amend the Workmen's Compensation Act."

MR. BALLAM: This is also a very short Act, Mr. Speaker; in the Act of 1950 it says the Auditor General shall audit the accounts of the Board and we are amending the Act by adding the Lieutenant Governor in Council may appoint an auditor to audit the accounts of the Board and remuneration may be determined by the Board. Which means the Board may call or the Lieutenant Governor in Council may have an auditor audit the accounts of the Board as well as the general audit, when it is deemed expedient. That is the amendment, and I move second reading, Mr. Speaker.

Bill read a second time. To be referred to a Committee of a Whole on tomorrow.

On motion the remaining orders of the day were deferred.

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Speaker, a select committee was appointed to consider a Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants of Newfoundland." This is a private Bill and I have discussed the matter with various members and it is the feeling of the Committee that there is no reason why this Bill should stand over and be gone into by a select committee. I therefore move the rules of the House be wavered and then instead of having this report of a select committee, that it be referred to a Committee of a Whole House.

Ordered referred to a Committee of the Whole House on tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I move the adjournment of the House until tomorrow, Thursday, at 3 of the clock.

The House adjourned accordingly.

THURSDAY, June 7, 1951.

The House opened at three of the clock.

Presenting Petitions

HON. JAMES J. SPRATT (Minister of Provincial Affairs): Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to present a petition on behalf of a large number of business people on Water Street re assessment for pavement of Water Street.

I beg leave to move that this petition be permitted to be laid on the Table of the House for the consideration of the House.

HON. J. R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, I would like to make it clear that the petition brought before the House by the honourable the Minister for Provincial Affairs is brought before it presumably in his capacity as legislative representative for the district of St. John's West and not in his capacity as a Minister or member of the Government. It is the right of any citizen to petition the House and the petition is normally sent or handed to the elected representative of the House for presentation by him. That the honourable Minister has done in his capacity as a member for St. John's West. It is not a Government measure, it is not a Government petition, but it is a petition to the whole House and I would imagine that the House would desire to consider and debate the subject matter of the petition. The petitioners are a sizeable proportion of the property owners on Water Street in the City of St. John's and I would suggest that this petition deserves some debate, some consideration by the House. What procedure they would like to adopt in doing that I do not know, that is a matter entirely for the House to decide.

MR. SPEAKER: The House may take the petition into consideration now or any day it wishes to appoint or refer it to a select committee for consideration, such a committee is in existence. If the honourable member would care to make a motion to that effect.

MR. SPRATT: Mr. Speaker, I accept your ruling that a committee is already in existence, looking after municipal affairs, therefore I do not think it is necessary to make any further proposal.

Carried.

Presenting Reports of Standing and Select Committees

None.

Giving Notice of Motions and Questions

HON. LESLIE R. CURTIS (Attorney General): Mr. Speaker, I give notice that I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Vest Lands Comprised in Certain Fee Simple Grants in the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation", and a

Bill "An Act to Provide for the Payment of a Superannuation Allowance to James Forbes, Retired Marine Engineer."

HON. S. J. HEFFERTON (Minister of Education): Mr. Speaker, I give notice that I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Amend the Education Act, 1927."

Honourable the Premier to ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act Respecting the Public Revenue, the Raising of Loans Authorized by the Legislature, and the Auditing of Public Accounts."

Bill read a first time. Ordered to be read a second time on tomorrow.

Honourable the Premier to ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Amend the Mining Tax Act, 1950."

Bill read a first time. Ordered to be read a second time on tomorrow.

Orders of the Day

Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means. Deferred.

Committee of the Whole on Supply.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, I ask the Committee to return to the Supplementary Supply Bill that has been brought in and passed second reading and indeed all stages. Earlier in the session the Committee will remember that it was asked for an amount of $3,500,000 under a number of heads. The purpose of moving now to Committee again is to deal with votes in the Department of Economic Development, $1,850,100, and to increase that amount to $1,850,200. It is actually a token vote to give legislative coverage for expenditures incurred or to be incurred in the making of a documentary film which is now virtually completed and should be ready for exposure in another two or three weeks. Most of that is paid for out of last year's vote, contravailing savings, but not all of it, some has to be paid out of this year's vote and this $100 in supplementary supply is to give the legislative sanction for the expenditure. If it were not done this way it would have to be done by bringing in a new supplementary bill for the amount of one hundred dollars which would be a little grandeloquent for an amount of that size. I move that the figures $1,850,100 be reinstated as $1,850,200, I ask the Committee to vote an additional $100 which will make the grand total $3,550,800 rather than $3,550,700.

MR. CASHIN: What page in the estimates is that?

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is not in the estimates.

MR. CASHIN: Is it an addition to what is in the estimates?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Frankly, I don't know.

MR. CASHIN: I think, Mr. Chairman, the position is this: The estimates have been voted for Economic Development. This group on page 61 of the Estimates—

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is not affected.

MR. CASHIN: That is what has been voted, whether it is changed or not I don't know, but it was the estimates called for. I take it that would include the supplementary supply Bill brought in before which was for the purpose of paying for these. That is a total of $4,923,300 in the estimates.

MR. SMALLWOOD: If the honourable gentleman will allow me I will explain. Before the estimates were ready to be brought to the House we brought in a Supplementary Bill of $3,550,700 which was passed. I have now asked the Committee to make that $3,550,700 read $3,550,800 which increases it by an amount of $100. Now the reason is that last year that was an expenditure in 1950-51 which was not voted in the estimates last year. It has no bearing on the estimates for this year. Now in that supplementary Bill everything was included for money which had not been voted with the exception of this. Now the cost of the documentary film was met in part out of last year's vote and in this year's estimates but in neither was there legislative provision and that is what I am asking now in the amount of $100. It does not increase the estimates by even a cent, it is merely legislative sanction for something already provided for.

Carried.

MR. CASHIN: In connection with this Committee of the Whole on Supply when do we anticipate the Bill is to be brought in to give effect to this whole thing?

MR. SMALLWOOD: The position is that when the estimates were going through department by department, item by item, there were some increases, as the honourable gentleman knows, and the adding up of these and the correction of the total has been left to the Department of Finance, and the Bill has been printed, I don't know if notice has been given, but anyway it has been printed with the correct total and we are waiting on the Finance Department, and the last time I spoke to Mr. Marshall, it was a very busy time in the last couple of weeks and they have been working night and day. I told him to get the figures from the Clerk, someone must have them as we went along and if the Clerk has not got them the Deputy Ministers have them, he is waiting on them before we can have the Bill, so as to get the new totals.

MR. CASHIN: Who has the new totals?

MR. SMALLWOOD: The Deputy Minister of Finance and they give us the new totals. I do not know if the Deputy Minister is here at present but if the House would give me a little indulgence I could find out in a moment, how we stand. I find, Mr. Chairman, that the position is that the totals have been added up and everything is ready but some additions are desired by the Government to be made to the estimates, for example, some on surplus and some on capital. The Bill brought before the House yesterday, presently before the House for second reading would require an expenditure of $900,000 for the purchase of $900,000, worth of shares in new development and consequently would have to be provided for in the Bill and would come, of course, out of surplus. Then for Civil Defence the Attorney General desired to add $25,000 to the vote in his Department and the Department of Supply decided to add $100,000 for votes to Town Councils and so on. Now as soon as we can get a decision, we have not had a chance to hold a Cabinet Meeting for a week, and certainly this week there is no chance, but as soon as we can get the Cabinet to authorize by Order in Council, we will then move it here in Committee of Supply and if these estimates are passed then the new total can be handed to the Finance Department and we can have the Bill printed and brought in.

MR. CASHIN: I hope I am not entirely out of order bringing up the matter but I was not here for the Estimates for Supply and I would like to ask the Minister of Public Works or the Minister of Health—

MR. SMALLWOOD: I am afraid the honourable gentleman is entirely out of order.

MR. CASHIN: Supplementary Supply is not on the Order Paper, it says Supply.

MR. SMALLWOOD: At the moment the business of the Committee is Supplementary Supply and the honourable gentleman is entirely out of order going back over it.

To a point of order, the honourable gentleman, I hold, is completely out of order. We will come back to the estimates when they are before us, we are now on supplementary supply.

MR. CASHIN: I know the Order Paper says distinctly Supply.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, may I have a ruling?

MR. CHAIRMAN: You were considering the schedule.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The honourable gentleman is not supposed to interrupt the Chair when speaking.

MR. CHAIRMAN: The honourable gentleman is out of order, as it is not in order to interrupt the Chair when speaking.

MR. CASHIN: It was the Premier, himself. Well my point of order is we are in Committee of the Whole on Supply. That is what Mr. Speaker, called, Committee of the Whole on Supply and you were asked to take the Chair on Supply. It was not supplementary supply. As a matter of fact I did not know what it was.

MR. CHAIRMAN: The motion has been passed and all this conversation is out of order. The motion has been passed and all that remains is for the Attorney General or whoever introduced this motion to introduce a motion that the Committee rise.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I move the Committee rise and report progress.

MR. CASHIN: I have no objection to the Committee rising at all. I was merely going to ask a question, a question which I had asked before, but the Premier at that time being very courteous—I want an answer to my question and I am entitled to it but it seems I am not going to get it. However, there is another opportunity coming.

Committee rose and reported having added the amount of $100 to the amount of the Supplementary Bill "An Act for Granting to His Majesty Certain Sums of Money for Defraying Certain Expenses of the Public Service for the Financial Year Ending the Thirty-First Day of March, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Fifty-One, and for Other Purposes relating to the Public Service."

MR. CASHIN: Mr. Speaker, I just want to draw your attention to that Bill which was just passed. We were not given notice on Committee of the Whole on Supply and a Bill was already passed outlining the amount $100 short and which properly should have happened when the Bill was passed some time ago less $100, so it should be resubmitted.

MR. SPEAKER: The motion before the House, the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole reports to having considered the matter to them referred and have added the sum of $100 to the amount granted to His Majesty for Defraying Certain Expenditures for the Financial year, moved and seconded this report be adopted.

Carried.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Now, Mr. Speaker, I move the Bill be recommitted to the House. This procedure must be followed as the measure has actually received third reading and I move the recommitment of the Bill, to receive third reading. It has not received Royal Assent so that it is just a matter of moving that third reading be rescinded.

Carried.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, there is nothing to add to the remarks I made in Committee, it is identically the same Bill and I move the addition of $100 in the vote for Economic Development.

MR. CHAIRMAN: Motion is that under schedule, Economic Development, $100 be deleted and $200 be inserted, and honourable members will notice this changes the total, shall these estimates carry?

Carried.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments.

On motion, rule 261 was suspended and the Bill was read a third time and passed.

On motion the following items on the Order Paper were deferred:

Third reading of Bill "An Act to Make Provision for the Granting of Loans to Certain Companies."

Third reading of Bill "An Act to Amend the St. John's Municipal Act, 1921, and Acts in Amendment Thereof and for Certain Other Purposes."

Third reading of Bill "An Act Further to Amend the Alcoholic Liquors Act, 1949."

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Amend Certain Newfoundland Statutes."

MR. CURTIS: In this Bill there are just one or two amendments I would like to suggest to the Committee before finally passing the Bill. I would ask the Committee to refer to Section 5 "Of Nuisances and Municipal Regulations." I move that section 5 read, 5 (1) and then (2). Sections 24 and 26 of the same chapter are repealed; these two sections deal, Mr. Chairman, with traffic regulations and provide that vehicles keep to the left and that is sufficiently covered in the Highway Traffic Act, and it is no place for that section in a Nuisance Act and section 26 deals with men being drunk in public places so that we are amending and striking out section 24 and 26 of the Nuisance Act. Both those items are dealt with under other Acts and we can see no object in keeping them in the Nuisance Act, therefore, I move sub-section (2) read as follows: "Sections 24 and 26 of the said chapter be repealed."

I now move, Mr. Chairman, we reconsider section 14. I move this entire section be stricken out and the remaining sections be renumbered accordingly. We feel, in my department, that section 14 deals with what is now a Federal matter and we have no right to deal with it so I move that section be stricken out and section 15 be renumbered 14 and so on.

Carried.

Committee rose and reported having passed this Bill with some amendments.

Report received and adopted. Bill ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Amend the Trade Union Act 1950," and Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Amend the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1950."

"An Act to Amend the Trade Union Act 1950."

Sections 1 to 4 read and passed.

Carried.

"An Act Further to Amend the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1950."

Section 1 read and passed.

Section 2 read.

MR. RUSSELL: Mr. Chairman, subsection (1) reads rather funny to me. The purpose, I take it, of the section is to give the Government the Power to impose an audit on the Board, but the wording of the section gives the Board the power to refuse to accept the audit because if they have the power to determine if they should make it, they may not allow it to be done and thereby make it impossible to carry out the Government's order. It says the Lieutenant Governor in Council may call for an audit but the Act says it shall be determined by the Board.

HON. C. H. BALLAM (Minister of Labour): I think you are right there. I think we should cut out that amendment so that the word "determine" may be deleted from the clause.

Carried.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendment.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill "An Act to Amend the Trade Union Act, 1950" without amendment.

Reports received and adopted. Both Bills ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants of Newfoundland."

MR. CURTIS: This Bill was deferred in case there should be some additions made to it, but as there has been no additions I move the preamble be read.

Preamble read and passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendments.

Report received and adopted. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

On motion the following three items were deferred.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Repeal Certain Newfoundland Statutes."

Second reading of Bill "An Act Further to Amend the Public Utilities Act, 1949."

Second reading of Bill "An Act to Authorize the Lieutenant Governor in Council to Guarantee Payment of Bonds issued by Town Councils."

Second reading of Bill "An Act Respecting Livestock."

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, the honourable the Acting Minister of Natural Resources is unavoidably absent at least for part of the session this afternoon and he has asked me to move second reading of this Bill. Now I will confess quite frankly that I am not at all familiar with the contents or purpose of the Bill. The honourable the Acting Minister is quite familiar with it but unfortunately, as I say, he is at the moment absent from the Chamber. However, I have the pleasure, in his name, to move the second reading and I happen to know the honourable member for Port de Grave has made himself very familiar with the Bill and I have no doubt that the House will have the pleasure of hearing from him the explanation of the Bill, which I am afraid I am unable to give.

MR. MAKINSON: Mr. Speaker, it gives me great pleasure to rise to speak in support of this Bill. It is a Bill that is chiefly designed for the protection of livestock breeders in this Province. Up to the present time, I believe, there has been no livestock regulations whatsoever and the nearest we have to it is a Nuisance Act, regarding trespass of animals, which governs the control of our bulls, goats and other animals. Now if this Bill is enacted it rescinds both these former Acts and it is something, I may say, that this Province is badly in need of. The Province has set out the policy of encouraging the breeding and raising of livestock, however the effort is being sabotaged yearly. There are a great number of animals allowed to run on the commons and for one reason or another when it comes time to take them in for the Fall they have disappeared. In some instances they have been killed by trains and there is no necessity on the part of the Railway to report that they have so killed or injured those cattle, consequently the owner not only loses the animals, but also loses months in the Fall in a futile attempt to find them.

Now there are other things in the Bill which will be dealt with in Committee stage by discussion. It defines a legal fence and trespass by animals. The Act states that a good substantial fence shall be erected in order to keep livestock out of enclosed lands. However, there is no definition in regard to fences in this Act, anyone may notice that the Bill does not say "shall." In Newfoundland people have been in the habit in the past of letting animals roam on the commons and it would mean more or less a hardship to suddenly inform them they shall send in information to the Minister so that records may be kept. Now, in order for cattle owners or raisers to get the benefits of services they will have to send in records of classes of livestock and brands they own, and the owner shall cause a record to be kept of such brands and in many instances it will save duplication of the markings, and as time goes on and the people are more or less educated, it will avoid a brand which has been allocated to any person one year, may not the following year be used by someone else.

There are many things in the Act, for instance, attempted rustling and stealing. In some districts at the present time, it is a well known fact that there are many cases of sheep being stolen, disappearing in the Fall, or a group getting together with a truck to make some easy money by going to a farmer and buying say five sheep and while the farmer is being paid around the corner, three, four or five sheep are put on board the truck and taken and sold or killed for resale to people along the Shore. This is usually done sometime in August and the owner of such sheep have no occasion to look for them until they bring them in sometimes in September or later than that actually, and during this time the sheep have been disposed of or the cattle, and in some instances the dealer or the butcher has not thought it necessary for him to keep any records whatsoever and may not even be too particular if he gets the animals, and in many instances they are their own butchers and the hides are disposed of. At the present time they are shipped to Montreal and in many instances before the hide could be brought back to be identified it has been processed.

Now for each of these sections as we go through them in the Committee stages I can give a good reason and I think that would be the proper place and would take up less time rather than elaborating on each section. There is a reason for each one and I feel sure the Honourable House when it has read over the Bill will agree there is nothing in it of a contentious nature, it is merely for protection for those trying to make a living from growing livestock and I have no hesitation in commending it to the Honourable House for consideration.

MR. HIGGINS: We are all very glad, Mr. Speaker, to have an expert in agriculture to explain many matters of this kind but none of us are experts in all things and there is one section here I think very important, No. 9. Why in civilized countries are barbed wire fences allowed, they only serve to rip a person's clothing and injure animals. It looks to me like a piece of cruelty, and another thing, a person is allowed to have run at large mischievous animals and live stock. I have heard many a man calling goats mischievous but there is no such thing as a mischievous animal at all in the Bill.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That can all be handled in committee.

Bill read a second time. To be referred to Committee of the Whole on tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, in connection with the next order, No. 14, "An Act to Incorporate the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation, Limited," I would like, with your permission, and the permission of the House, before moving the order to say a few words with regard to the disposition of this order and of this Bill. I said earlier that the Government had not even the slightest desire to rush the Bill and I repeat that now. On the other hand the Government have a very strong desire, if the House is to consider the Bill at all, that consideration be given without any loss of time, and so, therefore, we are anxious to steer a course between rushing it on the one hand, and leaving the House with adequate time in which to consider it and getting it through as quickly as possible on the other hand, and I will explain the reason for that. We are deeply anxious not to lose a year which we might well do if this Bill is not given the earliest and most expeditious attention possible. Contracts have been made under which large and important American Companies would move into Newfoundland this year if this corporation is set up in sufficient time to enable that to be done. If that is not done, if the corporation is not set up in a reasonable time, in the reasonably near future, then it is entirely likely that certain great corporations which would otherwise move into Newfoundland this year will not move in until 1952 and Newfoundland will thereby lose a whole year of possible economic development.

And in view of the world situation we in the Government feel that Newfoundland just cannot afford to lose even a day, not alone a year, in economic development. Now for our part we are prepared to meet morning, afternoon and night, to abandon our offices, to abandon Cabinet meetings and meet here mornings, afternoons and night for a careful consideration of this Bill which is, we believe, of such great importance for the people of this Province. Now I will ask my honourable friends opposite to indicate if they would, their willingness to do what we on this side are prepared to do and I may say that the members on this side, with the exception only of the members of the Cabinet, face this Bill with the same fresh minds as do the members on the other side, with the exception of one honourable gentleman on the other side. We ask for an indication of willingness to do on their part what everyone on this side is willing to do, to give morning, afternoon and night, including Saturdays, to the consideration of the Bills before the House and particular consideration to No. 14 on the Order Paper of today "An Act to Incorporate the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation, Limited."

Now, Mr. Speaker, before you call the Order, my honourable friends opposite might or might not feel inclined to give some indications of their desire and feelings in this matter.

MR. FOGWILL: Mr. Speaker, I don't want to lose my right to speak to this Bill.

MR. SPEAKER: There is no motion.

MR. FOGWILL: Well, Mr. Speaker, I realize the importance of the Bill, I realize the time and effort put upon the preparation of it, I think it has taken a long while, at least six or seven months, and quite possibly the members of the Cabinet might be conversant with the Bill and all the details of it and it is quite possible they would know all about it and know what they are doing when speaking to it. Nevertheless I am not satisfied as to the principle of this Bill. It was brought in yesterday and explained by the Premier as, if not the most important piece of legislation since this House came into being at least one of the most important pieces of legislation, and I certainly myself am not satisfied and I think the principle of the Bill is something that should be studied by both sides of the House and also by the Public in general. I would not be satisfied to see this thing rushed through at all.

MR. FAHEY: Mr. Speaker, in speaking to the principle.

MR. SPEAKER: Second reading has not been moved yet.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Speaker, I am in favour of what my colleague has said. I passed the remark yesterday that this is a most serious Bill which must have taken many months for a Montreal lawyer, as we have been told, and we have no reason to doubt it must have taken six months to draft.

MR. SMALLWOOD: If my honourable friend will allow me, Mr. Speaker, no, it has taken the Government six months' work, off and on, to negotiate the transaction. The drafting itself took far short of six months, not even a half or even a third of that time.

MR. HIGGINS: Well, if it has even taken a month to draft, and the Cabinet are conversant with it and have been discussing it for two or three, I can't see how we can study it in less than three weeks or a month. I am sorry I am not prepared to argue until I have had the time to evaluate the matter involved, we are a small number on the one side and these are very astute men who make money by keen competition, men who know financing down to the smallest point and must know it. None of us know much about it and we cannot hand the country over to these people. Though the Corporation is run by these directors, it is no use saying to the Government these men are going to do it. Now with all that in view and the whole country being literally handed over to this Corporation it is a serious matter and as the Premier himself said, it is perhaps the most important Act ever to come before the country. Why? Because it comprehends an enormous amount of national interest far more than any other national Bill has comprehended. If the matter had to be carried through this Summer why was it not brought in at the beginning of the Session? That was not done but we are not prepared that the burden be put on us. We have been here since March and now at the last moment we are told this. It was the same thing last year.

MR. SMALLWOOD: There is no last moment about it,

MR. HIGGINS: We have to go out among the public and discuss it and get their separate ideas. We have no chance to get the public's opinion and I don't see how we can do this in less than three weeks or a month and I am afraid—

MR. SMALLWOOD: I now serve notice on my honourable friends opposite that if they don't come we will be here afternoons and nights, we will be here and will be willing to stay from now until Christmas, but we are going to deal with this Bill, we are going to develop this Province or go out of office.

Second reading of a Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation, Limited."

MR. SMALLWOOD: I do not intend to occupy much of the time of the House in concluding the explanatory remarks I made on this Bill yesterday. I believe that in my remarks yesterday I covered pretty accurately the principles involved in the Bill, the details of the Bill will of course receive careful scrutiny in Committee of the Whole House where every word, every line and every paragraph will be read aloud by the Clerk of the House and where every member of the House will have all the opportunity he can possibly want, within reason, to consider and debate every word, every line and every paragraph of the Bill and where the Government will be cheerfully willing and indeed happy to the very best of their ability to explain any part or section of the Bill.

Now, Sir, I have already said in this speech which I began yesterday, not that this is the most important Bill or piece of business ever brought before this House, but that it is the most important one brought before this House in this session, this General Assembly, by this administration. I think that great Bills have come before this House, I think the Bill, for example, creating the Humber Industry was a greater Bill than the present one, I think that perhaps other bills, the Railway Bill, probably more than one railway Bill brought before this House was certainly at that time more important than the present Bill, but I do agree that it is one of the most important Bills, one of the most important pieces of legislation ever brought before this Legislature because it sets out in its very wording, in its very preamble and as the first of a series of objects stated in the Bill itself, it sets out to create in Newfoundland economic development for the purpose of raising the standards of our people's living and anything brought into this House aimed at raising the standard of our people's living is by its very nature of most profound importance to this House as it is to the people of the Province.

Now, Sir, for something like six months the Government, not to the exclusion of all other business, but from time to time have given consideration and some of the government more than some others of it have given additional consideration to the matter involved in this Bill and have had many long talks and discussion on and off for a period beginning some time last summer. Finally, the ideas were clarified and in a final discussion in Cabinet with representatives of Harriman-Ripley of New York and Wood Gundy of Toronto agreements were reached as to amendments and modifications and these have been incorporated by the Montreal law firm who drafted the Bill. It does not follow from that, that weeks and months must need be given by this House to the consideration of the Bill, the principle is simplicity itself. It could not be more simple in principle than it is. I will give the House an example: there has arrived in St. John's today a distinguished industrialist from Europe and there will arrive in St. John's on Monday from Europe another distinguished industrialist, there sits in this Chamber today another very distinguished industrial engineer representing one of the greater corporations in this world which handles financing in half the countries of the world including Newfoundland. There will arrive in St. John's other engineers and industrialists and financiers in the remainder of this month and we have a considerable number of them here now. Now the Government with all the goodwill in the world, with all the desire imaginable to negotiate contracts and business projects and industrial projects for Newfoundland with various people from various parts of the world, with all the good intentions and desires in the world to do that, the Government confesses unashamedly we are not industrialists ourselves, financiers or bankers and confess unashamedly that we are not as competent to negotiate with these businessmen, industrialists, bankers, financiers from various parts of the world for various types of industries and economic projects for Newfoundland as we would be were we a government made up of bankers, financiers, and businessmen so we have, as I remarked yesterday when making this motion for second reading of the Bill, we have felt the need to create an instrument, a business an economic trust through which we can negotiate on far more equal terms with businessmen and traders and economists and financiers and industrialists from various parts of the world. We have, therefore, brought this Bill forward because the Bill does exactly that, it creates an instrument, not an advisory committee, not a Royal Commission, not a political body at all, but a business body, a body of businessmen having their own two representatives of the Government in the person of the Attorney General and myself, who are not businessmen, but it is a board consisting primarily of businessmen, men such as Mr. Lewin who is the Vice-President and General Manager of Bowater's; Mr. Eric A. Bowring, Managing Director of Bowring Brothers; Mr. C. A. Pippy, President and Managing Director of the Newfoundland Tractor and Equipment Co. and director of a considerable number of other business concerns in Newfoundland, to be with representatives of the firm of Harriman-Ripley and Wood Gundy and so on, a business organization which is an instrument of the Newfoundland Government, an instrument through which the Newfoundland Government can operate for the development of the people's natural resources which have gone so long undeveloped.

I will confess to the House that if it were feasible, if I could have that power which a Premier has and not be Premier, I would resign in a moment if I could devote all my time to the business of economic development, all of my nights and days, Sundays and Mondays, and not have to concern myself with the thoughts and necessary details that have to come to a political leader and member of a cabinet. I would cheerfully do it but that is not possible. It is not possible for anyone to have the power of the Premier except the Premier and the Premier cannot give all his time and all his energy and all his thoughts to one job of bringing economic development, creating work, jobs and economic development for the people of the Province, he could not do it as he must use up a great deal of time and energy and enthusiasm on other things, on many other things than the drive for economic development which is the paramount thing of all, so paramount as to make mere politics trifling and ridiculous by comparison. This great drive to pull Newfoundland up out of the backward state that the centuries have left her in, and in a few years get where ordinarily it might take half a century to get, that great drive is a paramount thing and that great drive suffers and must suffer from the fact that the Government is immersed in a thousand other details, whether this road will be built from Joe Batt's Arm to Fogo this year or next year, whether to build or not to build a road from Seal Cove or a highway from somewhere to somewhere else and ten thousand details which must be handled by someone and can only be by the Government. The extent to which the Government's time and energy is occupied and absorbed in all the ordinary routine day to day affairs of Government, to that extent the drive for economic development while it is exclusively the work and responsibility of the Government suffers and must suffer and cannot succeed in what it needs to do in Newfoundland if we are to get the kind of effective development which is the dream of every man on this side of the House and no doubt on that side as well.

Now, I say, let us create a corporation, a big organization through which we can work. You might say "why." Why do you have to do it? Why not private enterprise? Or you might say; Why not do it entirely with private enterprise? The only thing really novel about this proposal is the combination of Government and private enterprise in the project. The principle of the Bill, it seems to me although admittedly the details will require very considerable thought and attention in Committee of the Whole, the principle of the Bill is one surely which surely and it obviously must be debated, and I assure the House it cannot be debated too much to please me, I doubt if it could be enough to please me, I have not yet since this General Assembly was called together by the Government, seen a Bill that was debated enough to please me. I have never been satisfied that anything brought into this Chamber was sufficiently debated, never, not once up to this moment. Bills of tremendous interest and considerable importance have come in here and have gone through with scarcely a word spoken in so far as the words come from that side of the House. I have often gotten on my feet in this Chamber and called on members to speak and have gotten on my feet and registered a complaint because Bills of interest and importance were being permitted to go through without as much as yes or no, so that there is not much chance that this Bill will be debated more than I like to see it debated.

Now, I would like to see the debate on second reading where the principle is under discussion, I would like to see it debated in Committee of the Whole and if the House wants a week of solid debate we are ready, if it wants two weeks debate we are ready and if it wants three weeks debate on it we are ready, if it wants a month we are ready, but we are not willing to wait. If any member on either side of the House desires to get expert opinion from any source or sources on this Bill they are quite free to do so, quite free and that applies to all members in this Chamber. But in the meanwhile the debate will go on. I don't say that it can go to the exclusion of all other business, we have other Bills on the Order Paper and that business will be proceeded with in the normal course, but I for one, Mr. Speaker, if there is any danger of delay in the beginning of the consideration, delay in the beginning of the consideration, of postponement of the day when consideration of the Bill would begin, feel that certain firms of considerable importance in the world may put off until next year what otherwise they might or would do this year by way of sending survey parties in at their own expense, geological and water power, mining exploratory parties, if there is that danger and I hold there is that danger contained in delay, then I am against delay of the commencement of the debate. I don't care how long the debate may take and when I say that, I speak for the Government. The Government does not care, if it is desired, to debate this for the next three months. We have more than three months left in this year and the House may take all the time it desires to have, but the debate will go on.

Motion is the Bill is now read a second time.

MR. FAHEY: Mr. Speaker, in making a few remarks at this time when the Bill is now up for second reading I want to make it clear at the beginning that I do not agree with the Act for different reasons. First this Act was only handed to us yesterday, and we did not have time to study the Act and there may be different paragraphs that we may or may not agree with but in principle I could not agree to the Act which we had not had time to study up to the present time. Now I may say that the Premier made it clear in his remarks yesterday that past governments gave away the public domain of this country and tracks of lands have been leased for little or nothing. That may or may not be so but in this Act before the House now for second reading we are asked here to give practically what is left of Newfoundland to this Corporation for a lease of 99 years. It is a wonder that it was not 999 years, but what may be left of it in 99 years is too far for me to see at the moment or any other honourable member of this House.

In this Act we, the people, are asked to put up nine hundred thousand dollars and the directors or the Corporation will put up one hundred thousand dollars or ten percent. On that basis, in my opinion, we are asked here in this House to give away for 99 years 10% of what the Government themselves are putting up. The Corporation is putting up 10% and we are asked to give away what we hear so much about, public domain. In other words it appears to me that what we did not give away in 1949 we are asked to give now in this Act. This Act puts the finishing touch to it. In my opinion, this is the straw that is going to break the camel's back.

We are asked also in this Act to give the right to the Corporation to raise ten million dollars in bond issues. Now the Corporation through this Act will have the right to float a bond issue to the extent of ten million dollars without having to come back to the House and if that bond issue should fail, the people, or the toiling masses, will have to make it up later. It may not be those of us who are around today but somebody will have to make it up if it fails and through this Act this corporation can do that without even coming back to the House to ask their approval. I say it is ridiculous, the most ridiculous thing I ever heard.

The Premier said, in introducing this Act, all we do is just take some money, one hundred thousand dollars from one pocket, and put ninety thousand in the other pocket, it belongs to the people and the corporation is the people, the corporation is a Crown Corporation as it were. That may sound all right on the surface and we only drop 10% but this Corporation will control it, not the people, the Corporation will control what is left of the public domain of Newfoundland. They will have the right to give it out to different companies and corporations just as it pleases, tracts of minerals, watersheds or anything else we have and then we only take one hundred thousand from one pocket and put it in the other less 10%, it is still the people. But it is not the people who are going to control, who are going to give it out and slice up Newfoundland or that part of it which has not been already given away such as airports and all that given away a couple of years ago now. And I say the honourable members should think very carefully and keep in mind the fact that the members of this House represent the toiling masses and should not vote to give away what belongs to the toiling masses without first giving it careful consideration. It may be said, Sir, that we are not giving away anything now, but we are giving away control of various assets which are left in Newfoundland, all of which will be controlled by a board and we are asked to hand over what is left to this board to do as they may see fit. In addition to that they may raise a bond issue of ten million dollars without even getting approval of the House. Now all this reminds me of a story which a local firm had on a few years ago and there was quite a lot in it about a certain country and what went on in that country in that day and I hope we can face the fact and make sure we are not being misled by this Act now before the House. Let us face the facts. To my mind, this is the last ditch, that which is taking place now. So, I say that we should keep calm and don't be fooled by any smooth talk. There are several talkers of that kind. This Act is really designed, in my opinion, to give over the assets of Newfoundland to this corporation and in future, to my mind, not in the very near future but for many years to come it will cripple the economy of Newfoundland. I don't see any reason in the world that, if any company should come in here tomorrow and want to start a paper mill or a mine of any kind, in the mineral end of it, or any other development, the Government is not so busy as all that even though they do work night and day, they should and could find time to negotiate with such a company directly rather than hand over the control of this country to this corporation.

With those thoughts in mind, Mr. Speaker, I would move that further consideration of this Bill be postponed until one month from this date in order that we all might get a chance to study this Bill and so that members on both sides of the House would see what they are voting on. At the present time we are asked to vote in the dark more or less any more than an explanation was made here yesterday by the Premier and again today and I feel the members should have at least a month to consider that we are giving away the assets of Newfoundland to a corporation to handle when they should be handled here in this honourable House where we are elected by the toiling masses. With that thought I move that it be moved for consideration one month from today.

MR. SPEAKER: The motion is that this Bill be now read a second time and an amendment has been proposed by the honourable member for Harbour Main-Bell Island, seconded by the honourable member for St. John's East, that the Bill be read a second time one month hence.

The motion is that the word "now" in the original question do stand part of the question.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, just before the motion is put, I have already on behalf of the Government announced that we cannot accept a delay in beginning the debate and for that reason we cannot of course accept this motion and for at least one reason, there are others, but one is enough; that is if this Bill is not begun to be considered for another month which would bring us up to July 7th, and is then considered for probably a week or two or three weeks, it would be the end of July before it becomes law. The result inevitably would be to bar out from Newfoundland companies of great importance and resources as are in the United States and Canada who would otherwise come to Newfoundland this year, to begin exploration of our natural resources with a view to developing them, they would be barred out this year and would not come, if they came then, until 1952. The state of the world is such that Newfoundland just cannot afford to lose a year unless she must, if we have no choice, but to lose a year then we must lose it, but if we have no excuse we must not lose it. We must, if it is in our power, bring those concerns to Newfoundland this year, the firms who would be brought here by this development corporation through the good offices of the partners of the Government. We cannot accept the amendment.

MR. SPEAKER: The main question is that this Bill be now read a second time. This motion is that the word "now" do stand part of the question, those in favour aye, contrary nay. The ayes have it.

Division is called.

MR. SPEAKER: I would remind all the honourable members in the House that on a division they must vote.

Motion is that the word "now" do stand part of the question. Those in favour stand.

The Premier, the Attorney General, Minister of Welfare, Minister of Provincial Affairs, Minister of Labour, Minister of Education, Minister of Public Works, Minister of Supply, Minister of Fisheries and Co-operatives, Minister of Health, Hon. Mr. Vardy, Mr. Morgan, Mr. Makinson, Mr. Button, Mr. Janes, Mr. Drover, Mr. Horwood, Mr. Courage.

Nays stand:

Honourable Leader of the Opposition, Mr. Fogwill, Mr. Fahey, Mr. Cashin, Mr. Russell.

MR. SPEAKER: The ayes have it.

Motion before the Chair is that this Bill be read a second time.

MR. CASHIN: Mr. Speaker, I voted that this Bill be left over for a month. Some time ago I did not agree with the principle that the Government discriminate against certain people, and in protest I walked out of this House. I take it therefore that the gentlemen who walked out just now in protest of this Bill being read a second time agreed with the principle the Government announced at that time, the discrimination against the civil servants. However, that is not the motion before the Chair. I listened to the Premier yesterday fairly attentively when he went on to describe the wonderful people who Harriman Ripley were and Wood Gundy. He told us, and mentioned names, of great corporations in the United States. The Premier at that time led us to think that Harriman Ripley put up all that money themselves. They are nothing less than salesmen, good men but they do not find probably one dollar of the hundreds of millions of dollars they finance large corporations with, not one dollar out of their pockets and probably get five or eight percent commission. He spoke very highly of Wood Gundy as the most outstanding people in Canada. Now, I happen to know a little about Wood Gundy. They are also salesmen, they are interested in Bell Island and the Dominion Steel Corporation. Wood Gundy Corporation practically ruined the Newfoundland economy in Canada in 1930 and for reference any member of the Government can go and ask it it is not so. So that now all these big corporations we hear about Wood Gundy and Harriman Ripley are nothing more or less than coming to this House and asking for certain concessions with the idea of going out and peddling them out all over the world and are not putting one dollar in this of their own money but are peddling to other corporations.

They are putting up a hundred thousand dollars and you are putting up nine hundred thousand of the people's money and they are taking that and going out to spend it in promotion. You will acknowledge, Mr. Speaker, and the Government will acknowledge, they have not one business, they had to get Harriman-Ripley and Wood Gundy to get it for them. Now, I notice there are others who are directors of the Board, one the Vice-President and Managing Director of Bowaters and it is very significant to me. Also in the explanation of this Bill I noticed that the right to export fifty thousand cords of wood is given. Now, Bowaters are interested, in 1927 as a matter of fact that Company came to Newfoundland and would have gone to Canada at that time, they wanted a permit from Canada and New Brunswick to export wood to Great Britain and were turned down. They then came to the Government of Newfoundland and got the right to survey certain areas in Labrador and spent $70,000 or $80,000 of their own money down there and surveyed certain territory in Hamilton Inlet and then tried to get hold to the Gander for little or nothing. Now, with the injection of Mr. Lewin into this Corporation, how do we know that any such paper mill as we are looking forward to, which we were hoping to have legislation for this year, is ever going to be constructed in Labrador or Bay D'Espoir? Would it not pay this Corporation well to keep any competition out and here in this Corporation we have a vice-president who will naturally work for Bowaters. Bowaters are paying him and this Corporation will not be paying him. He is down there as a nominal director, whom he represents we do not know. The Bill does not tell whether it is the Government or Bowaters or anyone else. We know who represents the Government; the Premier and the Attorney General, and the rest may or may not be representatives of the Government. The Government acknowledge they are not business men and if the others are the good business men they claim they are, they can certainly put it all over them. That is on their own admission. The only thing is the Government finds the money and the other people spend it.

Now we had dreams of this wonderful paper mill to be erected in Labrador and were to have legislation for it this year but it is as far away as ever now. We are told by the Premier that if we do not pass this Act now these people will go away and never come back again. Surely, the Premier does not expect us to swallow that. They will come back so long as there is a dollar, Wood Gundy in particular, and when I say that I speak with personal experience. I would not trust them with a hot stove, they are not the outstanding financiers in Canada. Reliable? They have been mixed up in more shady deals than any other banking institution in Canada. Go back over the Dominion Steel and the Canada Power and Paper in 1935, 1932. Ask them, and I know, what they did with Anticosti Island? How much money was paid out of Canada Power and Paper which was a total loss? Some millions of dollars which they threw away, went bankrupt and would have taken A.N.D. with them. Then we are told about the great corporation they are. They are the keenest operators in Canada but in comparison with Dominion Securities and Ames & Co., they are not in the same class for reliability.

Look at Bell Island, everything is going smoothly over there now but twenty years ago they were gyped out of money by Wood Gundy, gyped and we are told what wonderful people they are. Now, Harriman Ripley, if you go back into the history of all these corporations, and I realize they need money in order to finance them, but when the Premier gets up and tells us what wonderful people they are, we are going to trace back their history, trace them to the New York Railway and others in the United States and Canada and find where their millions came from. They wear an air of respectability now.

Now there is no man in this House on either side. I am the only one here now and I am pledged to no party but as far as the second reading of this Bill is concerned now, I am going to stay here until it is over and I am going to tell you, Mr. Speaker, and members of the House, that every section of that Act I am going to ask every member on the other side to explain to the House and if he does not know what he is talking about he should. Every inch of it and there are sections there that no one can understand particularly when it comes to manipulation of stocks and that is what this Bill is full of, the manipulation of stocks.

I am inclined to agree with the step the Opposition has taken. The Government has had some six months to work on this Bill brought in here and members of the House exclusive of the Cabinet are supposed to do in six hours what it took six months to draft by a firm of Canadian lawyers. I predict here they are, the Montgomery Firm of whom Claude

Richardson is a member. They are the people who drafted that Act, the Justice Department had nothing whatsoever to do with it. The only little bit they drafted is the little bit at the opening, the little political bit. I never saw an Act brought in like this. "Improvement of the standard of living," put in an Act and a resolution, that is the political part of it. These people are to be brought in here to improve the standard of living of the people of Newfoundland. Why that is an insult to the members of the House; there was never an Act in the Commonwealth Governments with such a thing inserted in it and that is the only section of that Act drafted by the Justice Department, the rest is by the Montgomery Firm. They are the firm of which Claude Richardson is a member and ever since this House opened three months ago we have been promised such legislation as this and now in the dying hours of the House it is brought in here and I am forced to conclude that it is to be railroaded through. Only the Cabinet knows anything about it. Yet it is the most important Bill ever brought in because the Government as a whole. I don't understand it, you are giving away to this Corporation, who are going to be controlled by Harriman Ripley and Wood Gundy, Pippy, Bowring and Lewin and Richardson. I don't know whose representatives, these are the people who are going to control and the Government will have nothing to say because they don't understand business on their own admission, and they will hand it to those people to do what they like; go out and peddle it and in addition give them the mining rights and timber of Labrador which are not already taken up by the Labrador

Mining & Exploration Co. The timber and the water powers not taken up by the Labrador Mining and Exploration Co., as well as what is owned by the Royal Bank of Canada, all the rest is handed over to this Corporation to peddle around to try and make money off in the next five years. Now, no one in here can predict with any degree of accuracy whether anything will come out of this or not.

One of the greatest industrialists of the world is in this House this afternoon, I have not seen him and I don't know who he is but we have had so many of these individuals in here from the United States, famous or infamous as the case may be, and I am getting sick and tired of hearing it.

Now, what about this paper mill on the Labrador and/or in Bay D'Espoir? There is nothing in here to tell us we will have one. The only thing in here is that we are handing over ten or eleven thousand square miles or more of concessions to this corporation to go around and dicker with and if they don't want to do so the Government may step in and develop them. Now, the Government, on its own admission, is not capable of developing it. That is what was said this afternoon.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I said no such thing.

MR. CASHIN: You said you were not financiers, you were not economists, not business men. I ask the reporters if that statement has not been taken down.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I said that.

MR. CASHIN: If you are not any of these you are not competent. You said you were not business men, not economists, not industrialists, not bankers, you said that, you said you did not understand or words to that effect.

MR. SPEAKER: Order, you are not to have conversation between two honourable members.

MR. CASHIN: Well, Sir, when that day is over the two honourable members will walk out, the Premier and myself will bow to you Sir, and take our departure because when that day arrives it is all over.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Life would not be worth living.

MR. SPEAKER: I have allowed you thirty seconds.

MR. CASHIN: I put it to the Government, I want them to understand I could make it so unhealthy for the Government here alone by myself on every section of that Act, and you need not laugh at me either. You would not know what struck you and it would not be the first time, Mr. Speaker. This House has to have some fun. This Act to me, Mr. Speaker is repulsive, not alone for the manner in which it was brought in, in the dying moments of the session, but every section of that Act is contentious and, mark my word, as I said a moment ago, the members of the Government side, as far as I am concerned, every honourable member exclusive of the Cabinet are just voting for this because the Cabinet says so and they do not understand, and should not vote. Therefore they will have to get up and explain every section of that Act for me.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The way to learn is to listen to someone else explaining it.

MR. CASHIN: There is such a thing as your explaining a thing to me and I would not understand it. That is quite possible. You might explain many things to me and me to you too and we would not understand and surely they are not going to vote for something they don't know all about. There are certain things in this they don't know all about, it is poorly drafted in the beginning and I am not a lawyer at all.

Every sub-section written down there will have to be explained by every member of the Government. I am not asking the honourable Premier to explain but I bet him dollars to doughnuts the members don't understand these sections now. Yes, dollars to doughnuts, I will bet him now that there are very few of the rank and file able to get up and explain that Act and then we are asked to vote for it when they don't understand what it is all about and I question if half the Cabinet knows what it is all about.

Now we are coming to the export of pulp wood. They are granted a slice of five thousand square miles of territory in Labrador, incidentally we have not had a map to show us where this territory is. Surely the House is entitled to this information.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That will be given.

MR. CASHIN: It should be given now when the discussion on second reading is taking place. If they are given ten thousand square miles they will go in and take the best and go out and peddle it and see what they can make out of it. Then they are allowed to export 50,000 cords of wood a year. 50,000 cords of wood, Mr. Speaker, that sounds to me, that the hand of Bowater's is in it. They want raw wood exported to Britain, they are hungry for wood and here is a chance to get 50,000 cords a year.

Now I have heard a lot inside this House and outside about the destruction of our natural resources by exporting raw materials. I have heard the Premier talk on it and after talking so much he can change and in this Act give the right to export 50,000 cords a year. That is half a million cords they are allowed to export in five years.

Now what about this mill, this mill which was practically assured? I see a lot of people's hands in this besides Harriman Ripley; when I heard about Sir William Stephenson I said there is another man in here trying to make easy money. There is nothing definite in here about a mill, nothing. Nor is there any indication that we are going to have one. We are told these people are dickering with some people to come in here and do some of this work, this surveying. Why we have a survey of the timber areas of Labrador right here according to this Bill and I understand it has been done. The timber areas of Labrador have been surveyed. Now there is no idea of production but it just gives these people the right to go out and peddle it. There are no people at the present time evidently interested in the development of a paper mill on Labrador. But if you dig deeper into this thing and find out who is underwriting Wood Gundy, what paper companies that would think it a good idea to block it, for which no doubt they would be paid in common stock by those people to operate or develop them. Now we are told we want competition but this Bill to my mind cuts out all competition and all possibilities of another paper mill. We have no indication there that another paper mill is probable at the present time or in the cards. Where is it? I have heard the Premier say there were distinguished people coming in here, Germans, going down to Labrador to develop the paper mill. Where are they now? The property is gone into this Corporation and this Corporation has to go to them now. Although I doubt very much whether these great German industrialists have a dollar in Canadian funds to put up out here. They may have the necessary machinery to put in them which they want to sell out here and get Canadian dollars for it. But to put up actual money, they have not got it in dollars, everyone knows that and there are too many of those people tracking back and forth across the Atlantic peddling Labrador all over the globe.

Certainly it is not anything like the Corner Brook proposition of 1922. It has been said it was the greatest proposition that ever came into this House, we knew at the time the people were to build a mill but we have no guarantee whatsoever in that Act that anything is being done. The only people who have a chance to make any money are the directors, apart from the Government. The Government finds the money, they use the money and they make the money if there is any money made in the promotion of, and the selling of, bonds, the selling of the common stock in the markets. These are the people who are going to make the money but there is nothing to guarantee a paper mill or a mine being developed in this country. That is another thing that ought to be brought in here for the information of the House and Newfoundland, the territory we can give to them, before we go on. Before we go on, I wonder if the Cabinet has that before them showing what part of Notre Dame Bay and all other territory involved is ceded to this corporation. I think the House is entitled to it. If the Cabinet has it the House is entitled to it. Certainly we have been told quite finally in this House that we are only going to get what it pleases the Government to give us. Now Rockefeller or IBEC, made a survey. That is all washed up now, they have done nothing, have not put a cent in here and were paid for what they did and walked out. Now we are handing it over to a new corporation whom we call Harriman Ripley and Wood Gundy. Now Rockefeller has done some work and received pay for it. A year or so ago we were told, we have those people interested in Newfoundland now and everything is going to be rosy. Rockefeller is coming in here and when we get them in the public will be on easy street and now it transpires they got paid for what they had done. None of the Rockefeller Foundation Fund found its way in here.

Now about this paper mill, and I am keenly interested in it, yet I have no faith in Wood Gundy promoting a paper mill in Labrador nor in Bay D'Espoir. I know what I am talking about and I bet you dollars to doughnuts again. Bring him in here on the floor of this House and ask him if he is interested in developing a paper mill in Labrador or Bay D'Espoir. He is a peddler and will take a pack on his back and go out and see what he can find but for him to find the necessary capital in Canada or the United States at the present time is what we need. This Act here gives us nothing, but takes away everything from the country. I think I stated in this House the last time

I spoke here that I would be prepared to guarantee twenty millions to help a paper mill in Labrador or preferably the South West Coast which I feel would be more economical, because I think it is a fairly sound proposition. I have gone into it very thoroughly, I have gone into the market conditions, and I have found the market conditions for Newfoundland newsprint at the present such, that there is a wonderful demand as newsprint is in short supply and if the Government were honest about it, instead of handing this thing out to Wood Gundy and Harriman Ripley they would go into the money markets or appoint someone, clear of those people, to go into the money markets for Newfoundland and say that the Government under certain conditions are prepared to guarantee a bond issue of twenty millions in order to develop a paper mill of two hundred and fifty tons a day in Bay D'Espoir. It would not be economical to have five hundred tons a day. In my opinion five hundred tons is too large, it has to be sounded out first to see how it works but you could lay out your plan which could be enlarged like Corner Brook up to five hundred or in fact to a thousand if it were required. Corner Brook was laid out for four hundred and now it has a capacity of eleven or twelve hundred because it was laid out or planned to be expanded. Bay D'Espoir could be done the same thing with. Speaking of Bay D'Espoir I feel honestly that is the only place to build the mill economically to be fed with ninety percent wood from the Labrador and ten percent from Bay D'Espoir itself, which is now being cut by Bowater's for mostly var or fir wood. You must have a good percentage of spruce and fir in order to make good newsprint. Facilities for a harbour in Bay D'Espoir are open all the year round whereas Labrador has only three months or four months taken on the average, particularly on the northern edge of Labrador, but that does not indicate anything to justify giving Wood Gundy and Harriman Ripley, who are to be the peddlers of the Government, an area of roughly 11 thousand square miles with concessions on mining rights and timber rights to go out and sell them where they can and make a commission on them. I would like to get that kind of business myself from the Government for nothing to put in one hundred thousand and our Government put in nine hundred thousand and five hundred thousand from the surplus. In other words put up five hundred thousand now and next year they are practically gone broke and come back again for more and sell more of the stock and the Government will buy 90% and they will buy 10% and so on it goes.

Now the operations or the intentions the public do not know and have not been informed by the Government as to whether or not there are possibilities or what those prospects are. It is all very well for the Premier; we have to keep that secret but we have nothing concrete, we are voting for nothing as far as Newfoundland is concerned. It is good for Harriman Ripley and for Wood Gundy who are I say the most unscrupulous, and I will say that on a public platform too, the most unscrupulous double dealers in Canada today and if you look up their record you will find out it is correct. The Canada Power and Paper Co; go back twenty years and find out what happened to them and what A.N.D. had to do to get out of Canada Power and Paper Corporation to save their skin.

Fortunately at that time Corner Brook was not involved, the only people not in the International Paper Company, a company to itself. They tried to make a combine in Canada, tried to make a combine to beat the International Paper Co. At this time all the mills in Canada were directly involved and the late Sir Herbert Hope was instrumental in bringing that out and ultimately there was a crash in 1931 and he tried to make it sound which he succeeded in doing. Now we have them here, they have made a lot of money sometimes but when we are told what wonderful people they are it is time to tell the other side and see whether we come out on the debit or credit side of it.

Bell Island is another example. People right in this city today lost thousands of dollars on Bell Island through manipulation of the stocks of that company, when it was handed over in 1926-27 it was a bankrupt company though at the present time it is prosperous, but that is getting away from this Act here, Mr. Speaker. As I said at the outset I am not going to take just the Premier's explanation but want an explanation from every member on the opposite side of the House, every member has to be prepared to get up and answer any question I may ask him because if this is so good I want it to be explained to me so that I am satisfied or half-way satisfied we know what we are dealing with in these various sections. I don't want the Premier to get up and do it but every member over there and if they are not prepared then admit they don't know what they are voting for. It looks as though they have them all whipped into line. I remember distinctly in 1923, the year the Government had discussions in connection with that deal which the Premier admitted was the most important that ever went through this House. And I know the Opposition had many meetings before that Act was passed and it was not passed overnight and to me this Bill is even more important for this reason. The only thing about the Corner Brook Act which was important was the guarantee by the Government of twenty million dollars, to be accurate, they guaranteed ten but there was a second mortgage making it twenty and if they had to go broke they would, in order to protect themselves, have to guarantee twenty million. At that time we had something specific to go on but here we have nothing specific. At that time the Reids who promoted the Corner Brook deal had certain areas which were given to them because of the Railway contract, property given to Reids in 1898 for building a railway across the country but these fellows are getting property now for nothing to go out and peddle it, the Government is not going out to peddle it. Dr. Valdmanis, Harriman Ripley and Wood Gundy are the peddlers and the sooner they take their packs on their backs and start off and peddle it the better for Newfoundland. But I question and I tell them right here, straight now this Act is not decent, they are committing themselves to nothing, there is not one commitment in here, beyond putting up one hundred thousand in cash, and we don't know how much Harriman Ripley or Wood Gundy are putting up between them. We have only two Government Directors here and the rest of them are private individuals, in private business. The Act was framed at Montreal by Mr. Richardson, I say that right now; very well, it is not the first Act he framed in connection with Labrador. There was one in 1939 in connection with Labrador drawn up by the Commission of Government. But this Act here covers not only Labrador but Newfoundland as well. Therefore I say, to the Government, and I think the Premier will agree with me, they should produce charts and maps outlining where this property is. At the present time the Bill gives us boundaries which will be leased for ninety nine years. Now that survey should be placed on the table of this House if we are to discuss the Bill intelligently and those of us who have some interest in it should be told how much timber is down there in those ten thousand square miles. As a guess we are told forty million cords.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Thirty nine million cords.

MR. CASHIN: That is pretty close, a good guess, but we have not seen the survey. Has the rank and file of the Government seen the survey? I put that question to the House. I question whether the Government has a map outlining where these ten thousand square miles are, I question whether they have seen it or not. They are voting on it and don't know what they are voting on. They are a crowd of sheep. These are things which I contend are important. I bet the Cabinet before they talked about this at all had a map before them showing the ten thousand square miles and they should show it to the members of their party and the members on this side, both Opposition and Independent, but you are not going to do this. Surely you are not going to tell us it is not in the public interest to show a survey which the people paid good money, many thousand dollars for.

They are to get 50c. a cord export royalty which is too little. Point one. Why from the Province of Quebec, the Commission Government were offered 75c. a cord in 1939 for wood by a Corporation and turned it down.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We have an offer of $5.

MR. CASHIN: It is not in there. I have the floor. You have an offer of $5 a cord, who is going to make the $4.50. The Premier tells us we have an offer for $5 and this Bill says 50c., where does the other $4.50 go? Mr. Gundy and Mr. Harriman Ripley will reap some of that reward. You have an offer of $5 and still you give the corporation the right to export for 50c. a cord. That does not sound sensible to me. If you have that offer it should go in here and I will give my undertaking right now I will vote for it at once for I know they will never collect it. It would be interesting to know where that offer comes from. I bet it is some fly by night salesman running to Montreal or Windsor, and if from Montreal it is not from any outstanding corporation, it is not Bowater's nor the A.N.D. Company or the Anglo Canadian or any of those corporations.

MR. SMALLWOOD: They have their wood.

MR. CASHIN: They are short on wood the whole lot of them, and the only birch and timber left on the North East Coast is in Labrador.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is why we get an offer of $5.

MR. CASHIN: Will you explain it now?

MR. SMALLWOOD: In my reply I will tell you.

MR. CASHIN: It is not incorporated in here. Are they going to get

$5 and have a rake-off? If it is going into a corporation of this kind why is it not $5 in here?

Mr. Speaker, it is getting near six o'clock and I am getting hungry. Well it has taken you a full six months and I venture to bet that ninety percent of the members can't explain it. The Premier made a brief explanation yesterday and followed it up today but every section of that Act should be gone over by a Corporation lawyer and we have not that kind of man in this House, not one, with all due respects to the two we have. They are not corporation lawyers in the strict sense of the word, they are not trained for it and could never go in to court and explain twisted sentences such as we have here that are Dutch to you and I, Mr. Speaker, as private individuals and therefore we should have an expert lawyer, a corporation lawyer to advise us but we have not got one. However, we do find that the Government has been offered $5 a cord royalty on wood and in spite of that there is only 50c. according to the Act. I am going to talk on that in connection with this Bill and a paper mill in Labrador and Bay D'Espoir for some time. I remember away back in 1927 when the International Paper Company took over the Newfoundland Power and Paper at Corner Brook. At that time the Late Harry Crow had the rights on the Bay D'Espoir timber areas in that section. When the Government were bankrupt or were supposed to be in 1930 we discovered that Crow had made a deal with a previous government in 1912 or 1915 to develop and put up $80,000 to insure this and he had not carried it out and when the International Paper Co., took over they took over his liability to do this work and we confiscated the $80,000 and put it in the treasury to help to pay our bills and they were going to take us to court, and I don't know what else they were going to do but anyway the water power belonged to Newfoundland and belongs to Newfoundland today, despite what the Premier said the other day about former governments giving away the country. However, at that time the International Company had a survey made and it was made by outstanding engineers in Canada, the Late W. I. Bishop who informed me, because he was a fairly close friend of his, that there were great possibilities for development of a pulp and paper mill in Bay D'Espoir to be fed from Labrador.

MR. CHAIRMAN: We will now leave the Chair until 8:00 o'clock tonight, when the honourable member who has the floor may continue.

NIGHT SESSION

MR. CASHIN: Mr. Speaker, before the House closed at 6:00 o'clock I was talking about the possibility of a mill on the South West Coast fed from wood in Labrador and I pointed out at that time that there was no indication in this Act that any such mill is in the offing though we have been told in the House repeatedly during the past few months that the IBEC Group had made a report and while this Bill is being discussed, I hold that the IBEC Report should be available here for the information of the House. But it is not and we are told it would not be in the public interest to disclose it. After all the IBEC people have been paid for making that report and the money has been taken out of the treasury and not from the pockets of the Cabinet. Consequently the public is entitled to know what is in that report. As far as I see this Act here which is now before the House is largely being railroaded through in the dying days of the House, I can't stop it, nobody can stop it and I may not want to stop it, if I knew the full content but I have not been told the full content. In referring to the Humber Deal as being the greatest Bill ever put through this House, it was not brought in in the dying days of the House, but was brought in practically at the opening of the House and the House was notified in the Speech from the Throne that such a Bill was coming through and it came through and was discussed intelligently. That time there was something to discuss, here we have nothing to discuss only a grant of nine or ten thousand square miles of public domain to this Corporation to peddle around the world. We were told also in the Terms of Union, if I might be permitted to refer to them, that if any economic reports were necessary or had to be made the Federal Government would be prepared to give us all possible assistance and that has not been done but rather outsiders have been brought in to make this economic report which the Government now refuses to make public.

Now, with respect to a mill on the South West Coast fed from Labrador I hold, Mr. Speaker, that under the present marketing conditions, the chances of erection of that mill fed with wood from Labrador are not only possible but probable and I hold also that under the present set-up of this corporation that they are not interested in the development of that mill on the South West Coast and will do everything in their power to block it because they have other interests and because some of the directors of this corporation are already in the paper business elsewhere, and naturally and humanly will try and stop any further competition with mills to which they are personally, and I might say, closely connected.

Now, in order to find out whether or not, it would be practical and an economic proposition to have another mill on the South West Coast, and I hold a two hundred and fifty ton mill would cost about forty-five millions to erect, and to put it in production you have to ascertain market conditions at the present time for that additional newsprint and are the markets in condition to warrant that mill?

Now then what are the market conditions at the present time, of the various newsprint mills in Canada? The United States and Great Britain have a capacity of somewhere around ten or eleven million tons of newsprint annually, including Newfoundland, which has a capacity of one million tons or probably more by now. The market conditions in the United States alone will take seven million tons of newsprint annually, apart from what might be going to Great Britain which prior to the outbreak of the great war produced one hundred thousand tons of newsprint annually from timber produced in Canada and Scandinavia and made probably from pulp wood manufactured in Scandinavia and Canada. At present they only manufacture, at the most, six hundred thousand tons a year and in addition import a considerable amount of newsprint when they can find the necessary dollars to buy it, which makes a shortage at the present time of roughly two million tons of newsprint. Now, a mill on the South West Coast produced in such a manner that it could be expanded to five hundred or even a thousand tons ultimately would only fill in the gap for a hundred thousand tons each year so that there would still be a shortage. The price is up at the present time to somewhere around $110 a ton F.O.B. New York and in this morning's paper you will find it has gone up to $115 a ton. Therefore if we take thirty-five million dollars of which $20,000,000 could be guaranteed by the Government and $15,000,000 by subscription in common or preferred stock by outside people would that mill be profitable? How much would it cost to produce and how much could it be sold for? Well, Mr. Speaker, I have made enquiries and as far as I can find out the cost of producing newsprint at the present time including interest and sinking fund to pay off funds outstanding against a corporation in Newfoundland and on the Mainland of Canada would be in the vicinity of $60 or net profit $50 a ton. $50 a ton profit on 1,000,000 tons a year, five million dollars which is quite a profit.

Now there is nothing in this Act to tell us that any efforts are being made to establish a mill. It is all very well to hear the Premier tell us people are interested. We know people have come and gone down and looked at the timber areas on Labrador but the surveys have not been produced in this House and no information has really been given the House in the form of maps or surveys or anything else. All we are told is, here is a Bill, vote for it or oppose it. Now, my position in here is not to oppose everything the Government brings in. If the Government brings in legislation which I think is good for the country I am going to vote for it, and I don't care who likes it or does not like it. On the other hand if they come in here as they did in this case in the dying moments of the session and ask to give to this corporation nine thousand square miles roughly of Newfoundland and Labrador for the purpose of going out and peddling and under no Government control financially, then I say it is not correct. Furthermore the Government says we have control we have the power of veto but if certain things have to be done or have not to be done it is left to the discrimination of the Lieutenant Governor in Council; not the House, but the Lieutenant Governor in Council. Why, Mr. Speaker, if the Lieutenant Governor in Council are going to run the whole country and if they can come in here and because of a Government measure put through what they like then it is just as well in the public interest, if you look at it that way, to have no opposition and there is some justification for the gentlemen who walked out this afternoon. A gentleman came to me and said, I could understand that in three days, I bet he does not understand it now. Three days! Any gentleman who says he can understand that in three days can understand the general principles which are very few in number. A Corporation which is given areas, a guarantee of ten million dollars are two things that we understand, but the rest of it, the manipulation of stocks and the sale of stocks and so forth, no Sir, there is no man in this House or in this country who could understand it in three days and they don't understand it now, many of those who have been dickered with it for six or seven months. I am not here to block any legislation and it would be fruitless on my part to attempt it. But there is not one dollar coming into the country out of that Bill it is all going out to Harriman Ripley, Wood Gundy, Mr. Lewin, Mr. Pippy. Their expenses are being paid though they have no salary.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Nor no shares.

MR. CASHIN: The Government has 90% who has the other 10%? What are they on the Board of Directors for?

MR. SMALLWOOD: We are the ones who put them there.

MR. CASHIN: You put them there and it does not say if they represent the Government or not. They represent Bowring Brothers, St. John's; and Bowaters, Corner Brook, and Mr. Someone else represents someone else and so on. It does not say they represent the Government of Newfoundland in that Act. There are many features of this Act which easily show that these people do not represent the Government of Newfoundland. At the present time they represent themselves and their own financial interests not the Government of Newfoundland. There are two people representing the Government of Newfoundland, the Premier and the Attorney General. And as the Premier said, I think this afternoon, the reason they could not do the business was because they were not bankers, financiers, industrialists or economists or businessmen themselves and these people were so. So they give them this thing to go out and peddle around. Once that legislation is passed these people can take and peddle our resources all over the world which is the worst thing that can be done to this country or any country to give a corporation without putting in any money the right to go out and try to make money on our resources and if they find there is nothing in it, good night. The Bill then will be just another piece of waste paper as far as they are concerned and Newfoundland will be half a million or six hundred thousand dollars out.

Now I would like the Premier when he speaks again to tell us when we are going to get the IBEC Report and if it is not in the public interest to see it, why not before we go on let us see a map outlining the territory to be given to this Corporation in Newfoundland and Labrador? If there is a copy of the survey made by the Photographic Survey Corporation Limited, if we could have that to see how much timber is on that particular territory, which I understand is in the vicinity of forty million cords and undoubtedly the report tells us the feasibility of cutting that wood and the possibility of a mill. These are things which we should know before we can vote intelligently.

Mr. Speaker, after I make these few remarks I may do the same thing as the Opposition and let the Government fight it out amongst themselves. I may not, on the other hand, and if I don't do it every section of that Act will have to be thoroughly explained to the House as we go through it. It is not that I want to hold it up. It is the Government who has held it up. We have been here three months today, since the 7th of March this House has been open and today is the 7th of June and the most important piece of legislation has been held over either deliberately or otherwise until the dying days of the session. I do not consider it right or fair, if it is so important as we are told it is.

Now with respect to that mill on the Labrador or in Bay D'Espoir. The Government has visions of a five hundred ton mill at a cost of fifty or probably one hundred million dollars, but I question whether a hundred million dollar expenditure would be warranted to produce five hundred tons a day, one hundred and fifty tons a year at a profit of $50 a ton which is a half million profit. Now when you take the sinking fund and interest from that, what would be the net profit? There would be very little left to pay dividends or construction on a fifty million or a hundred million dollar mill, and I feel the position at present is not so good because of the high cost of construction and another difficulty which has been overlooked, that is the difficulty of obtaining steel, machinery and equipment, all kinds of equipment for the running of these projects envisioned in this Act such as manufacture of lumber and pulp and paper development, as without steel nothing can be produced anywhere not even fish. You have to have steel to do it. Now what are the possibilities today? Those people who are coming in here, Harriman Ripley and Wood Gundy are close to the Government of both countries who control the steel industries at the present time. Are they in a position to guarantee the steel necessary to construct a paper mill, and if such a thing were possible, are the Government in a position to tell the House that if they had a company ready tomorrow to construct and develop a mill on the South West Coast or in Labrador that the necessary steel would be available? All these things are matters which should receive attention.

Now there is another thing also; let us hope always that there won't be such a thing as a third world war because if it comes, and there are a lot of people who think it will; I only hope it won't, but if it does come then this Bill here is automatically deferred until such time as conditions adjust themselves, and then what happens? The biggest calamity is anticipated that the world has ever known and the biggest slump the world has ever known after this third world war, if it comes. Supposing we eliminated the possibility of a third world war, what would happen then? Do we realize that the boom that is on in Canada and the United States today is attributable solely to the possibility and the preparation for a third world war. The whole economic strength of the United States of America and the Great Dominion of Canada is built up around armunitions, guns, planes and all that kind of thing, ships, warships of all kinds. That is what is giving the employment today, not paper mills so much, not mining so much. Let us go right in to the Great Dominion of Canada, on the Mainland, and find today in Montreal, Toronto, Quebec and all these areas out west are engaged in the shipbuilding industry and we find all these things going full blast because of the possibility of war, building up a defence. Therefore we have to figure out at the present time whether or not it would be possible to obtain the necessary equipment, the necessary steel to construct and put into motion any of these projects which might be envisioned in this Act but there is not one envisioned, not one project, only giving away to the Corporation though I grant it is controlled financially by the Government; a Crown Corporation controlled in a sense by the Government financially but as far as the manipulation and the business is concerned it is controlled by Wood Gundy and Harriman Ripley. They do the work and manipulate the markets while we sit idly by and see the dough they get. And we are expected to come in here and vote for that.

If I could see in this Act any possibility of a mill on the South West Coast or on the Labrador or the development of the mine in Green Bay or if there was any possibility of them and the Government could assure me and if Harriman Ripley and Wood Gundy would come in here and assure me that is what they are aiming at, I would vote for it. Now, the position is that these people, and I include here the Government, are given this concession right now with nothing in view but to go out and sell it to someone outside. That is the position as I see it. There has been no competent company come to the Government and say: "Look we know there are forty million cords of wood on the Labrador, at least the IBEC Report says so," and the Government could say: "Look here is our report, see for yourself." There is all that water power on the South West Coast and the Hamilton Inlet, therefore this power can be developed. Has any company or organization come to the Government and asked the Government this question: You have the wood, the timber, the water power, we have the money and are prepared to develop on a guarantee of twenty million or ten million or fifty million for that matter. Has any company come to us for that?

MR. SMALLWOOD: If any company came to us with that proposition the mill would be underway today.

MR. CASHIN: No company has but when you go to them, will they say, "O.K. Mr. Premier give us that concession and we will go out and try and sell it." That is the answer, there is no company and you went to no company to ask them to build a mill and to offer to give them a concession of twenty or fifty million dollars. No.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Stick to what I said when you quote me. No company came and asked us to guarantee a bond issue.

MR. CASHIN: Did you go to any company and say you would guarantee a bond issue and they refused? That is the question. On the other side I question whether you have or not, I don't know, but it is evident you got no satisfaction from anyone else. This great Dr. Valdmanis has not produced it either but we have all those statistics at hand of development all over the place. I agree with development and that the possibilities are there but the Government are the ones to negotiate those deals, not Wood Gundy and not Harriman Ripley, if there is any money to be paid out to make money. The Government, the Provincial Government won't make any money in any case, no money as far as revenue is concerned, they will make nothing except put people to work creating increased incomes and taxation to balance the budget and they will have to pile on more taxation in order to do it. If you constructed a mill tomorrow it would certainly help you to balance the budget next year or the year after because the people would be earning money. They would have to engage four or five thousand men to construct a paper mill earning an average of four or five million dollars a year on which you could place taxation because everyone is getting taxed to day and can't get rid of it. More money has to be obtained for defense. We can't tax directly therefore we have to put on Social Security Tax and increase it from three to six or ten percent if we want to balance our budget. But if we had the extra earning power we could do it, but there is no indication of that here and that is what I am kicking about. The possibilities, Mr. Speaker, are these, that Wood Gundy and Harriman Ripley Corporation and the Bowater Corporation, because they are represented here and they should not be, they envision a possibility of going out and making money on the sale of these concessions to outside concerns who might be interested in them. That is why we find Wood Gundy there. That is why Bowaters are there. Now we are told they are not putting up any money, Harriman Ripley and Wood Gundy, apart from the Government, are the only ones who are but there is nothing in here to say that, all we know is the Government is putting up nine hundred thousand and these other people, exclusive of the Attorney General and the Premier, are putting up the balance. Now, who do they represent? Mr. Pippy, Mr. Bowring, Mr. Lewin, Mr. Richardson is a lawyer in Montreal who drafted this Act, Mr. Gould, New York, and Col. Griffin, six people to put up one hundred thousand dollars, a mere matter of $17,000 each. The money is put up by Harriman Ripley and Wood Gundy. Cement General Development have no director representing them. They are putting up money without any director. Now, Mr. Bowring can buy a share if he wants to at a dollar.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The Government owns 90% of the shares.

MR. CASHIN: The Government takes 90% and there is 10% for the other people. Now, Messrs. Bowring, Pippy and Lewin are not named as directors appointed by the Government, but here, they represent either themselves or their own companies according to this Act. There is nothing here to indicate anything else, they have been appointed but they have to have a share to be a director, and in order to get a share they have to pay a dollar.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The Act provides that there may be directors without holding shares.

MR. CASHIN: What Act does that come under? I will find it here and read it. "The Corporation shall not commence operations or transact any business until one million of its Common Shares shall have been subscribed and paid for in cash at one dollar per share and nine hundred thousand of such Common Shares shall forthwith be so subscribed and paid for by the Government of Newfoundland." That is a dollar a share and one hundred thousand shares go to those other people and they have to pay for them. It does not say Mr. Bowring and Mr. Pippy or anyone else cannot buy a share.

MR. SMALLWOOD: But it does say a man can be a director without owning a share.

MR. CASHIN: Well I never knew a company yet where a director did not own a share, because, number one, you can't do it. You have to give them one share. If a lawyer were forming a company for me tomorrow, I pay him his fee and we have three shareholders to form a company. That lawyer or a member of his staff is put down as a shareholder with one share, that is how a company is formed.

MR. SMALLWOOD: No, it is not.

MR. CASHIN: Well I formed one myself a short while ago and I know and it was not the first one I have been mixed up in. Three people put up $100,000, $33,000 each. I take it for granted that happened.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Harriman Ripley is putting up just over half, Wood Gundy considerably less than half.

MR. CASHIN: I figure that is a very small amount.

MR. SMALLWOOD: And Gould is putting up a very small amount.

MR. CASHIN: Well, there are three and between them they are putting up $100,000 and the Government is putting up $900,000 and they have the privilege of peddling all over the country, that is their job peddling, there are thousands of them running around in New York and Montreal. I told you this afternoon about some of them. The next time you see Gundy ask him about them. I am going to tell you about this:

In 1922 the Corporation known as Canada Power and Paper was formed in Montreal. That Company was promoted by Wood Gundy, and those industries issued bonds and took in five or six paper companies and made an effort to control the whole paper industry of Canada, and incidentally took in Grand Falls and Quebec but it was with a proviso and they got out from under when they saw situations arising with which they did not agree and the way matters were being run. What happened? The stocks of Canada Power and Paper Company in less than a week in 1935 went from $38 to $50 down to $4 a share, Mr. Gundy might be interested in telling you how these people peddled around Montreal and through the Sun Life Insurance Company and various other utilities and nearly brought the Sun Life down to rock bottom. We all know about the Sun Life mess in 1935 because the president was thrown out because he bought so many shares and many industrial concerns in the United States and in Canada were near bankruptcy. Who unloaded? Wood Gundy. Yes, Sir, they are the best peddlers who ever came to this country, who ever carried a pack, slickers every one of them. You can also ask him about the Dominion Steel and Coal when he took over, what happened to them and how many times they have gone to the Federal Government for financial assistance to keep afloat and at the present time how much money they owe the Federal Government. Some peddlers, the slickest in Canada today though not the only ones. I know Mr. Gundy personally as well as I know the Premier and I would not give Mr. Gundy hot air and as far as I am concerned if I were in the Government today I would not have anything to do with him. I consider his outfit not too good, not as the Premier talked about it yesterday. When you have to set up an outfit to take a concession like that, have the credit and debit to go on St. James Street or Bay Street in Toronto and find out about these people. They will tell you more than I, about the shady deals they have pulled but you won't find that in Dominion Securities or Aimes & Co., they would not be mixed up in anything like that.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the second reading of this Bill as far as I am concerned is about over. The next stage of the Bill will be Committee of the Whole. Every member of this House both on the Government side and on the Opposition, I am not on the Opposition, I am here by myself, should familiarize themselves with the text of the various sections of this Act which is giving away to this Corporation, giving away, I say through the Government who have financial control but still giving away to three or four outfits the control of eight or ten thousand square miles of Newfoundland's territory, five thousand on the Labrador selected out of ten thousand which will be the best down there naturally. If you will check from the IBEC Report and the survey done by the Toronto Company they will select the best and leave what is called the cullage out and select the good spots, which is wrong in principle because they should take the good with the bad and average them up. For instance, in 40 million cords of wood on a thousand square miles there are roughly four thousand cords to a square mile, if my memory serves me right, but there are places in that territory with very little wood at all, probably none, but on the other hand when the Gander Deal and the Humber Deal were put through they did not go out and check, they had to take it as it came. The Reids were given concessions for the Railway in 1888 and there was the Humber and later the Gander deal and on the West Coast of the Island they later bought up other sections adjoining those they had operations on. Before the deal went through the House granted between the two companies, I forget how many square miles between them, practically the whole of the Island excluding these concessions here which is not much as far as I can see it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: How would this compare with the present holdings of the two paper companies in Newfoundland?

MR. CASHIN: Well here is the position, there are forty million cords of wood practically, outlined in that area, that five thousand square miles may have two-thirds of it, say 25 million cords of wood or say 20 million just to make it easier. How many cords of wood now have Bowater?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Eighteen or twelve million cords.

MR. CASHIN: I think I have it here somewhere. We will settle now for twelve. There is 39 millions in the country at the present time, practically 39½ million on the Island of Newfoundland and thirty-one and a quarter millions under the control of A.N.D. and Bowaters at the present time. Now, give two-thirds to this other outfit and two thirds of the wood on the Labrador and they will have thirty million cords out of it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is not so.

MR. CASHIN: That is what I am trying to get at. If you would table the maps and reports then we will know but until such time as you do that in the interest of the House for the information of the country and tell where the wood is located and how much there is and how much they are getting. We should know. Why not table the reports?

MR. SMALLWOOD: I can formally and officially inform the gentleman and the Government what of the ten thousand square miles the Corporation will get. That is why I can assure you it is not so.

MR. CASHIN: Under this Act it distinctly says: "For a term of ninety-nine years from the day upon which this Act comes into force, a timber concession in Labrador in the Lake Melville and adjacent areas (to be selected by the Corporation subject to the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council) in blocks of not less than one hundred square miles each, from the area of approximately ten thousand square miles surveyed by the Photographic Survey Corporation Limited, such concession to contain not less than four thousand square miles and not more than five thousand square miles and to carry the right, throughout said terms of ninety-nine years, subject to fulfillment of the condition set forth in the next following paragraph to the Corporation and its assignees or transferees, to cut timber on such concessions at a stumpage charge of fifty cents per cord."

MR. SMALLWOOD: Exactly.

MR. CASHIN: I grant you exactly. But that is the trouble, Mr. Speaker, "to be selected by the Corporation subject to the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council."

MR. SMALLWOOD: Is the House going to start picking and choosing the five thousand square miles?

MR. CASHIN: It is a job for the Government and for Government control in here, not by me though I am sovereign here by myself. It is a job for the Government yes, but you are giving it to those people, you have financial control I grant.

MR. SMALLWOOD: In every way, we have a complete veto.

MR. CASHIN: I know you have but here is the position: If those people go out tomorrow and sell a proposition.

MR. SMALLWOOD: They can't sell a thimble unless we say yes.

MR. CASHIN: But you can come in here and say we sold this to a Corporation in the United States and Canada, then tentatively until such time as it is approved by the Government—

MR. SMALLWOOD: They can't even sell their own shares.

MR. CASHIN: I am saying they have been given the privilege of going out and peddling all over the United States and Canada.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is exactly what we want.

MR. CASHIN: Yes, and I say they should not be allowed. It is not good for the country. If you have something good show it to the capitalists.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is what you are calling peddling.

MR. CASHIN: To give it to private individuals. Why does not the Government go out and peddle?

MR. SMALLWOOD: They are our agents.

MR. CASHIN: Yes, but they are going to make money out of it. Now, Mr. Speaker, how are they going to make money out of it? In this way: You admitted, I think, this afternoon that you were not business men and so on, but Wood Gundy—

MR. SMALLWOOD: He is no fool.

MR. CASHIN: Perhaps not in the connection of a businessman, but I say this thing is foolish; I would take on Wood Gundy tomorrow and I speak of them knowing what I am talking about. And they are the same outfit, in the United States Harriman Ripley are their corresponding agent. Well they will get a concern interested in here and you will give them a guarantee, I agree with it but how much is Wood Gundy going to get out of it? If they were not going to make money they would not want their name identified with it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: They make their money in financing.

MR. CASHIN: That is what I say, they have to sell the idea to the manufacturers, to the industrialists and the bankers and insurance companies because all their interests are financial interests. The Labrador Mining and Exploration Co., raised a loan of one hundred and twenty millions the other day and they did not get it from the man in the street.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Wood Gundy and Harriman Ripley got it from insurance companies.

MR. CASHIN: How much commission did they make out of it. They are entitled to a certain sum, I am not arguing about that. But I don't want anyone to come in here and say they are not going to make any money out of it. I say they will and they can make it in two or three ways.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We are hoping so.

MR. SPEAKER: Order.

MR. CASHIN: We will never have order in here.

MR. SPEAKER: I think we will.

MR. CASHIN: I will be finished in a few minutes and then order will be restored. I cannot see in this Act any difference whatsoever between giving these people, or any other people a concession in Newfoundland if they were putting up some money for development. You have your surveys and no doubt they have seen them, I don't know if they have or not, maybe it was not in the public interest to show them to them. They have to go out and sell your ideas, they have not said you can sell them. When this talk of a mill was first brought forth I thought the people were right outside the door waiting to come in with the necessary funds to develop it. I was given to understand that from the statement of the Premier when he brought this into the House, but the only thing in there is that Harriman Ripley and Wood Gundy have been given a job on a commission basis to go out and sell a mill for Newfoundland, and if they get suitable terms, the Government will agree with it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: What is wrong about that?

MR. CASHIN: This much is wrong that unless they have something to offer they should not be given concessions. You will find two or three days after this Act passes they will be down in the middle of Wall Street trying to sell this idea, this whole business.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is the idea of the Bill.

MR. CASHIN: There is nothing wrong with it. I have not said I am voting against it, and I am entitled to vote whatever way I like. There is none here can take a whip out and make me vote.

MR. SMALLWOOD: No one ever could.

MR. CASHIN: There are others in here not in that position. All right, when this thing goes through Committee of the Whole, I might vote for this whole thing. I don't suppose you care?

MR. SMALLWOOD: We do care. If you allow me, more than all those other gentlemen put together.

MR. CASHIN: I am not worried about them.

MR. SMALLWOOD: No, nor we.

MR. CASHIN: I am just as much interested in this country as any of you. I don't want only a certain amount of concessions to be given for a mill.

MR. SMALLWOOD: You are not satisfied with one mill?

MR. CASHIN: Too many big ambitions and accomplished nothing yet.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We want a paper mill and also a pulp mill.

MR. CASHIN: We have neither yet. We all want a lot of things, I want a Rolls-Royce but I can't get it. And the Government won't get it. Very shortly there will be nothing left. Here is the Government financing Harriman Ripley and Wood Gundy to the tune of nine hundred thousand dollars to go out and sell ideas.

MR. SMALLWOOD: They don't get a cent of that money.

MR. CASHIN: I think that should have been explained long ago. It should have been explained in the second reading of the Bill.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I never thought anyone would assume it was going to them.

MR. CASHIN: We assume that Harriman Ripley and Wood Gundy are shareholders in this Corporation and put in a certain amount of money and that you put in nine hundred thousand, now we have to find agents to go down to New York and their expenses and so on, the Corporation has to pay that and has to make surveys, the Corporation has to find the money.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The surveys will be made by the companies, who are interested in coming into Newfoundland.

MR. CASHIN: Well why do we have to put up any money. There are nine hundred thousand dollars going to be spent. What are you going to do with it? If you are not going to spend it, why put it in?

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is going to be spent but not handed to Harriman Ripley.

MR. CASHIN: We are entitled to know that.

MR. SMALLWOOD: In this way: If a dozen corporations are started by this development corporation, the development corporation can invest in each of them to the extent of its capital. That is what is going to be done with it. It is not going to be handed to Harriman Ripley and Wood Gundy.

MR. CASHIN: Well here is the position: They will go down to New York tomorrow and find some company interested in this proposition of a mill or a mine.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Give us one thing at a time, don't crowd us out, one mill or a mine.

MR. CASHIN: All right, this crowd comes up here and they have so much money, and you are a holding company now and you are going to buy so many shares in this other company, and they are going out to explore this territory with your money and their money for development.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The exploration will be conducted at their own expense.

MR. CASHIN: All right, it has been explored and everything is going ahead and you are going to buy so much stock or the Corporation is with the Government's money. The other crowd are only putting up a couple of dollars and any profits you receive are tax free for Wood Gundy.

MR. SMALLWOOD: No, any profits they receive they pay taxes on it. If there are any profits they have to pay taxes on them, but the Government does not.

MR. CASHIN: Well, Mr. Speaker, this Bill is going through and I don't understand it at the present time even though I was very much flattered this afternoon by being told I could understand it in three days. I am going to tell you I am so darn stupid I could not understand the principle. I think it is the Government is putting up a certain amount of money and certain concessions. I understand that. Secondly in return for these concessions and the guarantee of this country the corporation will go out and sell it. I understand that. But when it comes to the manipulation of stocks and shares in this corporation I am going to tell you there is not a man in this House who understands, not alone me, and I was highly flattered when I was told I was able to see it in three days.

MR. COURAGE: You are doing all right.

MR. CASHIN: Do you understand it? You may understand the general principle the same as I, but you could be taken in by Wood Gundy.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I don't think Mr. Pippy could be fooled nor are Mr. Bowring and Mr. Lewin going to be easy.

MR. CASHIN: Mr. Lewin was put in there to protect the interests of Bowaters.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is not a warranted statement. He is a good Newfoundland. I wish we had more like him. I wish we had more like Mr. Lewin in this Province, a dozen more.

MR. CASHIN: The Premier has changed his attitude in the past four or five years and I did too. I would not take his word for anything, I had my experience of it and I am sorry he is not here to tell him so to his face. I would not take Mr. Lewin's word for anything. I want everyone to understand that. He is a little god on the West Coast, a little Hitler who rules with a rod of iron and half the people are scared of him but here is one that is not. You cannot take his word, I have had business experience with him and I know what I am talking about. That is one connection I would like to see explained, and why? Mr. Lewin is going to do what he is told by Bowaters, he has to look after his job and he would be a darn fool if he did not.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Any director on that Board who misrepresents the Government is just put off the Board.

MR. CASHIN: He should not be there at all. I don't know if he knows or not but he will overnight and I hope someone will tell him tonight what I have said and I will if I get the opportunity because I am not very diplomatic, especially when it comes to matters of that nature. And I would tell it to his face and he knows the reason why. A man who can't keep his word is not worth talking to and he is one of them. A roughneck, an autocrat, low contemptible, how 's that? That is not worthy of me either. He represents a big company in this country, the biggest we have had here and Bowaters have done a great job.

MR. SMALLWOOD: He did it.

MR. CASHIN: With someone's help; he is a chartered accountant, nothing more, but they have done a lot for the West Coast but nearly bankrupted Bowaters, and if we went into the full details two or three years ago we'd know all that, and the Bankers came down and took over.

Now, Sir, I am just about finished but I want to have this House understand right here and now that I oppose no legislation which is for the betterment of this country, but I don't want to be a party to a lot of tripe and in the main a lot of it is tripe. It is merely giving a concession to go out and sell. All these pages of the Act to cover it are unnecessary. Give them an option one way or the other for three or five years to develop one way or the other and if they fall down well and good but not give it to them in order to go out and make money; go out and sell the idea. But this gives concessions here even though it is under the control of the Government. You don't know who is going to be here tomorrow. We only know some Government is going to be here and these fellows can put it all over them, they did it before, they crucified Newfoundland and well I know it. You are in a happy position, Mr. Speaker, this Government never had to go begging for money but I have been in the unfortunate position when I had to go on my hands and knees to beg for it and what happened? We got a kick in the side and were told we were bankrupt when we were the most solvent country in the lot. That is what you will be up against tomorrow or the next day when you lose the surplus, watch these chaps what they will do.

Now, Sir, I have made a tirade out of this but have not indicated whether I will vote for or against it but as I said, if I stay in the House, every section has to be thoroughly explained and I have to see every point. There is no one over on this side but myself, I am over here alone.

MR. COURAGE: You are doing a good job.

MR. CASHIN: I can cause you more trouble than all the others put together.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The others can't touch you.

MR. CASHIN: I have no political affiliations with any party in Newfoundland but I want to make it quite clear here tonight that any legislation which comes in here which I consider good for the country I will support but I am not going to be a party to railroading legislation through in the dying days of the session and that is what I consider in a great measure this is. It reminds me of a certain company here in St. John's reputed for waiting for the dying moment of the House to bring in a little piece of legislation which could go through under suspended rules. I have not seen any this year but it is not too late yet. I understand the rules are not actually suspended. They waited every year and in the dying moments in they came. That has happened for twenty years and all old politicians here tonight will know who I am talking about. When we were cluing up, in a friendly way, someone would say, so and so has a little Bill ready and in it would come in the dying moments.

Now supposing I walked out of here tonight and left you to fight it out for yourselves, wouldn't that be wonderful?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Don't do that. Help us to hammer it out, clause by clause, word by word.

MR. COURAGE: That is the duty of the Opposition.

MR. CASHIN: I don't care what the Opposition does, I do not belong in it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: You would not do it that way.

MR. CASHIN: I want every member of the House to understand it, not alone the Cabinet. I want to understand it. It is the other sections I am worried about, I know what these corporation lawyers can be capable of and this Montgomery firm are the best Corporation Lawyers in North America, their business is run like an ordinary industrial corporation, occupying a whole floor in the Sun Life Building in Montreal with 21 juniors. The biggest law corporation in the British Empire and they are the ones behind this and that is why I say we have to be very careful with these clauses and there is no nonsense about it. The junior members in this House should be acquainted with every clause of this Act and be able to talk as well as the Premier and if not they should not vote on it. If they do not know what it really means and cannot understand they have no right to vote on that Act and we are not all stupid and it can be gone through in the proper way and I am here to help the Government in that respect. As a matter of fact I may be the only one here all the summer.

MR. SMALLWOOD: You are the only one we want there and we want you there all the time.

MR. CASHIN: I will have put in my two hours in another two or three minutes. In my opinion there are many many loop-holes in the Act here and as we discuss it I think it is going to take some time to pick out way through. I want to hear some other members of the Government express their personal opinion on the principle of the Bill, and I want to know if I have made any statements that may be wrong. As a matter of fact I would not trust Wood Gundy with a hot stove if he said it was correct. Now, there is only one way to do it. Bring that man Gundy before this House and if he is not prepared to come here throw the Act at him, if he is not prepared to come and explain the Canada Power Corporation in 1931, that had to be salvaged after him and is now the Consolidated Paper Company of Canada. If he is not prepared to come here and tell how his company pirated the company in 1931, then I say if he is not prepared to defend himself in that respect that outfit should not be included in that Bill. He is a lovely gentleman to me, I have had dinner with him but I have been very careful to watch whether he would poison me or not. Thank you.

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Speaker, I don't know just what it was we witnessed this afternoon when the honourable members of the Opposition walked out. It looked as though they were attending a funeral of the Progressive Conservative Party, they went out with such dignity and such order of procession. It is a beautiful night, maybe they thought it a good ruse to get away for the evening. I am sorry they are not here but I am very happy indeed that the honourable member for Ferryland did stay because he has shown from his remarks that he is keenly interested in the Bill under consideration, and it will be a pleasure for us to try and assist him in understanding what is in the Government's mind in sponsoring this Bill.

Now, we are not, Sir, in the dying moments of the session. There is no time limit to this debate. It is true we have been here for three months and we can stay another three if it is necessary. We are under no time limit. But I think even my honourable friend opposite will admit that a request for one month's adjournment in order to allow members to study this Bill is a bit thick. I think, and I told my honourable friend so, he could understand this Bill in three days, and if they asked for an adjournment for three days or one week one might have been influenced to think they were being reasonable. But to ask us to close the House for a month and keep all the members in town a month while reading this Bill is, I think, and I believe my honourable friend opposite who voted for them will admit, a little too thick.

I am sorry they are not here because I propose tonight to run through the Bill and assist them and anybody else in the House who might be assisted to understand just what the Bill means. The honourable the Premier, yesterday when introducing the Bill, gave the general picture and I think he covered the Bill very well. However, there may be some points which in the course of his address he omitted to mention. He spoke without notes and did not refer in detail to the Bill at all. Therefore, I would propose at this time to briefly run through the Bill and assist any members of the House who may need assistance to understand it.

Now, of course, Mr. Speaker, most of us know just what a Limited Liability Company is, and my honourable friend told us he incorporated one very recently, and he knows he did not read all the details pushed under his hand for signature when the time came for recording it. Obviously therefore a Bill such as the present one has a lot of clauses which would not interest the ordinary layman. It is the practice, as you know, Mr. Speaker, for matters of this kind to be left to professional men and it is sufficient for the ordinary man to know the meat of the Bill and the general contentions there. When my honourable friend suggested that every member of this House should be able to get up and explain every section of the Bill, he is asking something absolutely unreasonable, something very few members of this House would be able to do.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I would propose to discuss briefly some of the aspects of this Bill. Take for instance the first page; there is not a thing on that first page that anyone could fail to understand. The names of the Company and it sets forth the names of the original incorporators. It is necessary in all Bills of this kind to set forth the names of the incorporators, unless there is such a list no one exists and the very fact that those men's names are mentioned there as the ones who will be in attendance at the first meeting and put the company on its feet. We regret, however, Mr. Speaker, because we have included the names of these gentlemen that they should be held up by my honourable friend to ridicule and contempt and, for instance, I don't think it is fair, Mr. Speaker, when the Government ask men of that calibre whom we have here to represent the country, not merely to represent the company, when they are asked to come in here and represent us, I don't think it is fair, for them to be personally attacked in this House. Mr. Lewin did not ask for this appointment. We asked him. Mr. Bowring, we asked him; Mr. Pippy, we asked him. All these gentlemen, Mr. Speaker, have taken on this obligation as a public duty, just as other men have from time to time in this country subscribed their names and given their prestige and assets to organizations of a patriotic and similar nature. So, Mr. Speaker, let it be clear from the outset that none of these men whose names are listed here have gone into it with the idea of making any money. Harriman Ripley, Wood Gundy and possibly Mr. Gould and the Newfoundland Government have gone in with the possibility of making money but for every cent that all the rest get put together, the Newfoundland Government will get ten cents, for every dollar they get we get ten dollars and for every hundred dollars we get ten times as much. One to ten, which is good enough.

Now, Mr. Speaker, my honourable friend says we need money, of course we need money to balance the budget, to keep this country in good condition. What have we got? Raw timber, an area on the Labrador with miles and miles and miles of it and prospective areas in Newfoundland which may well be developed. What would my honourable friend like us to do? What previous Governments have done; to farm out the territories to all our firends piece-a-piece, here it is for you and you and you, go ahead and clean up. Is that what you would like us to do? We have big industries in Newfoundland, three or four of them. I refer particularly to A.N.D. at Grand Falls. Who made the money on the original incorporation of these companies? Speculators. Who got it from the Newfoundland Government for nothing and sold it at a huge profit? What happened in the case of Corner Brook, where did they get the areas? Bought it and we got nothing for it; and what happened in the case of Buchans? We got nothing and the A.N.D. Co., is sitting pretty getting millions of dollars every year as their share. Now, Mr. Speaker, what is our answer to that? We have those natural resources and want them developed. Are we going to farm them out, give them away to speculators and let them clean up on them? No. We have organized this corporation in which we have 90% interest and this corporation will handle and dispose of these interests. For whom? For the benefit of the country. Ninety cents of every dollar profit will come to the country, the Government and the people. The other 10% can go to the rest. Is not that better than the old arrangement? Is not ninety percent of this profit better than nothing, and that is what other governments got, nothing.

MR. CASHIN: Yes they have.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Taxes.

MR. CURTIS: We will get those too. That last clause is to come out. You know that clause No. 40 will come out.

Now, let us continue with the Bill. On the next page; the Chairman and the Directors are named, the authorized capital is three million dollars. You don't want a month to understand that. The Head Office of the Corporation is to be in St. John's. You don't want a month to understand that. Objects and Powers: The Corporation may carry on any trade, business or act whatsoever within the judgment of its directors as evidenced by the resolution of the Board, should operate, directly or indirectly, to promote the industrial and economic development of the Province of Newfoundland or any part or parts thereof or to develop the natural resources thereof and thereby to improve the standard of living of the people therein. Is that involved? The objects of the corporation are to promote the well-being of the country. Then follow a lot of more clauses which don't mean anything except to a lawyer and are contained in every company's charter. Mr. Speaker, these can be cut down very considerably, we could generalize those objects for four of five pages or they could be limited to ten additional objects but I think anyone will see that they are fully comprehensive and follow the suggestion.

Now, in the next clause comes the commencement of operations. The Corporation cannot transact business until a million dollars has been bought up in capital. Does it take a month to understand that? The next says that out of the one million five hundred thousand shall be and become paid in surplus. The shares have no par value, therefore in order to capitalize the company it is deemed advisable to set aside half of the original million dollars of capital as surplus. But it is there to be used and just means that from the very start has a surplus and if during the first couple of years has to spend very considerable sums in development or any other way it would not impair the company because it simply means the reduction of that much of the surplus.

Now, the next clause: When future shares are issued the same thing happens, so much is capital and so much surplus. I don't think anyone would need a week or a day to understand that or any section so far.

Now, then we come to No. 8: Concessions for a term of 99 years. They get a timber concession on the Labrador to be selected by the Corporation but subject to approval of the Governor-General in Council. They can get up to four thousand square miles and then there are a lot of provisos tacked on which make it expedient that they act and act promptly in connection with these limitations, and remember those concessions are not going to outsiders but are going to the Government as to 90%. What have they got to do within five years? They have to cut timber at an average annual rate of not less than one hundred million board feet, not a thousand, but a million as the figure suggests. A hundred million board feet.

MR. CASHIN: What about the survey?

MR. CURTIS: What survey? The Photographic Survey just shows the area where we can get it; we have ten thousand square miles surveyed.

MR. CASHIN: What about a copy of that survey?

MR. SMALLWOOD: We have never been asked to produce that. We would be glad to.

MR. CURTIS: Now then, Mr. Speaker, what is all this talk of this terrific concession?

MR. CASHIN: What about the 50c. a cord and $5.00 a cord?

MR. CURTIS: I will tell my honourable friend there are two concessions aggregating thirty-five hundred square miles which were given away between 1918 and 1923 to private companies for 25c. a cord and they are there yet and they are not going to be there long, we are going to take them back. Thirty-five hundred square miles given away for $2 a square mile.

MR. CASHIN: Half of it was no good anyway.

MR. CURTIS: Whether it is good or not we are going to see. We have given this corporation four thousand, and out they walked because they have not had a month to consider that.

MR. CASHIN: I am curious about the 50c. a cord and the $5 the Premier talked about.

MR. CURTIS: Suppose it does pay $5.00 and the corporation gets $4.50 profit, we will get $4 of that $4.50 and the other 50c. will go to the corporation.

MR. CASHIN: Where is that agreement for $5 a cord?

MR. CURTIS: We have nothing in writing.

So for that concession we have given to this Corporation, which is ninety percent ours, the equivalent of two grants given away by the previous governments at half the price and to companies so well protected that they have had those areas for the past thirty-five years and apart from the miserable rent we get nothing. This grant is so tied up that we will either get returns from this corporation for these areas or they revert back to the Government and will be given to someone else who will. So much for that.

Now, then (a) on pages eight and nine concessions and (b) exclusive exploration rights for a period of ten years.

MR. CASHIN: Before you go along do you mind if I interrupt, about the export of pulp wood.

MR. CURTIS: $5.00 a cord, if we could get $5.00 for cutting fifty thousand cords of pulp wood a year exclusive of labour, I doubt if my honourable friend would object.

MR. CASHIN: You said there was nothing in writing.

MR. CURTIS: I am afraid if I said we had it in writing you might ask for it and it is not in the public interest to give it to you.

Now then, the next thing; exclusive rights for a period of ten years. What is that? It is simply something similar to what we have done for Buchans and similar to what we have done for the Labrador Mining and Exploration Co., similar to what we are about to do for Falconbridge and something we are prepared to do for anybody giving an undertaking to spend a substantial sum of money exploring our country. What are we giving? The whole of the area for practically ten thousand square miles surveyed by Photographic Survey Corporation. The whole of the ten thousand square miles, and they want thirty days to figure that out.

MR. CASHIN: I would like to know how much the Government gave the Newfoundland Mining and Exploration Co. I tried to look it up before I came in tonight.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Twenty thousand out of which they have to select two thousand. Gave them exploration rights on twenty thousand square miles.

MR. CURTIS: This one private company in whom the country has no interest, no shares, gets twenty thousand square miles and incidentally one of the areas now going to those is twenty-nine hundred square miles they had to abandon under the terms of the concession, they give up fifteen percent per year, and if my honourable friend or any other member will look on page 11, we give this corporation, ourselves as to ninety percent, two hundred square miles which the Labrador Mining Co. abandoned. But in addition to the ten thousand square miles surveyed by the Photographic Survey we are also giving the corporation another four thousand square miles in Newfoundland. Last year we had an area surveyed by the Magnetometer Survey and we are giving half of it practically to Falconbridge to develop, and the other half to our own corporation. Is that not good policy, Mr. Speaker?

And so we go on to (c), page 12: "For a term of ninety-nine (99) years from the day upon which this Act comes into force, all such hydro-electric and hydraulic power rights in, to and in respect of the waters and tracts of land referred to or described in paragraph (b), to the extent not previously alienated by the Government of Newfoundland, as may from time to time reasonably be required by the Corporation, its assignees or transferees, for or in connection with the generation and transmission for use or for distribution and sale of any electric or hydraulic power or energy or any water or water power." We have put in there a proviso: "PROVIDED, however, that the right is reserved to the Government of Newfoundland or its assignee or transferee, at any time to develop power at any rate in either or both of the tracts of land referred to in sub-paragraph (ii) of paragraph (b) if in neither the Corporation shall previously have begun work on such development."

If they have done it we do not want to do it nor no one else but we want power development to take place. So now we are up to page twelve and there are only twenty minutes gone.

On page 13 reads: "The Corporation shall have the power at any time and from time to time, with the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, to assign, transfer, lease or otherwise in any other way to alienate or dispose of, to any person, firm or corporation (in Act sometimes referred to as the 'assignee' or 'transferee' of the Corporation), for such prices or other considerations and upon and subject to such terms and conditions as the Corporation deems proper, all or any property or rights at any time belonging to or held or exercisable by the Corporation, including, without derogation from the generality of the foregoing by this special mention, all or any of its rights in, to or in respect of said timber concession or any part or parts thereof or to or in respect of said exploration rights, mining rights and hydro-electric and hydraulic power rights or any of them." The Lieutenant-Governor in Council has a rope around the Corporation's neck and it must respect the wishes of the country, and the Government of course, protect the interests of the people. So we come to section 9. The Government is empowered to give additional areas to the Corporation. There is no obligation, Mr. Speaker, but it may be necessary to round out lots, or it may be necessary to exchange a piece here in return for something there. This is a general clause which enables the Government of the day to seek futurity.

The next one is not a difficult one, Mr. Speaker, it just means that while the Corporation is owned as to ten percent by other people and private interests they have certain rights. It really means the Government cannot dictate to the Corporation to do something which may not be in its own interest until the Government owns over ninety-five percent of the shares. If they have more than five percent of the shares they must be consulted.

MR. CASHIN: That is a little joker. That is a little reservation they have made to keep the Government from planning something profitable. Then the Government has not the control they talk about.

MR. CURTIS: If by control you mean to take them by the throat and say you have to build a chicken farm in Twillingate; if that is to the detriment of the Government, that is a bad deal.

Now then we will go on, Mr. Speaker, to the Limitation of Liability of Shareholders. That is the ordinary clause of trust companies. What it means is this, Mr. Speaker, the Government has 90% of the ordinary paid up capital and if they decide to increase tomorrow to two million, the Government has the first chance to buy a further 90% of the second deal. It is a usual clause in corporations of any kind.

The allotment of common shares: That, Mr. Speaker, is a clause implemented to give the Company an out, I presume, in case the Progressive Conservatives should get in, but of course they are not as sure of our staying in as we are. The meaning of sales value: We undertake to buy their shares at par plus earned profits, not at par for there is no par value but the value plus profits. That is not a difficult clause to understand. It is defined in No. 15 and in the case of a dispute the decision of the auditor is final.

So that now we are up to page 17, Mr. Speaker.

MR. CASHIN: You are doing pretty good, too.

MR. CURTIS: The honourable member will soon understand then. I think he understands more than he pretends.

Now the section is No. 16 which deals with the transfer of shares. Now we form this Corporation, Mr. Speaker, with Harriman Ripley and Wood Gundy, not because we want their one hundred thousand dollars but because we want these firms to be of assistance to us. There is a restriction on the transfer of shares and they may not tomorrow sell a share to Mr. Bowering, Mr. Pippy or Mr. Lewin, the Premier or myself without first offering the shares to the Government. The Government has the option and if it does not exercise the option those people have the right to sell to one another but they can not sell those shares to any person not approved by the Lieutenant Governor in Council. In other words, the Government has the right to decide who or with whom they are to be shareholders in this venture. It is a very advantageous clause and one which is very favourable to the Government. And so we go on to page 20.

If this Corporation ceases to be a Crown Corporation, Mr. Speaker, none of these restrictions will apply. If the Government loses its ninety per cent or if it voluntarily sells its shares, obviously, it would be unfair for it to expect to receive these rights and so there is a clause there that says this does not affect the transfer of shares by reason of debt or assessment. So that if Wood Gundy go insolvent, as my honourable friend hopes, the people will get their assets on these shares. And so as we go on, Mr. Speaker, there is no transfer of shares unless paid for without the consent of the directors. This is a regular clause in all corporations.

"The Corporation may from time to time, with the approval of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, under authority of a resolution of the Directors—

- (a) borrow money upon the credit of the Corporation;
- (b) limit or increase the amount of be borrowed;
- (c) issue bonds, debentures or other obligations of the Corporation;
- (d) pledge or sell such bonds, debentures or other obligations for such sums and at such prices as may be deemed expedient;
- (e) mortgage, charge or pledge all or any of the real and personal property, present and future, and rights of the Corporation to secure any such bonds, debentures or other obligations or the fulfilment or discharge of any other obligation or liability of the Corporation."

But it is always with the approval of the Lieutenant Governor in Council. In other words they cannot alienate them, they can do nothing without our consent.

The next clause deals with the delegation of powers, the usual clause. No. 18, Dividends, is the usual clause. Liability of Directors in respect of payment of dividends is not so usual and means if the Directors pay out dividends not strictly paid out of profits then they are personally responsible for what they have done. I think, Mr. Speaker, we will just have to take a chance on that one.

So we go on to page 22, the Management and the Board of Directors, Not more than fifteen directors and not less than five, and then it says in the last line of the paragraph, "A director need not be a shareholder of the Corporation." My honourable friend finds it hard to understand why a director need not be a shareholder. I was very recently sitting at a table and found not one of us sitting at the table had a share in the company. So that it is not an unusual thing. It is the general intention that they be retained, but it is not the intention of the Government to pay any fancy directors' fees, that is protected and provided for later when we come to directors' fees.

We come then to the powers of directors and elections in 1952. Annual elections, and it will be seen if the honourable members will read through the next few sections, that the Government has the controlling vote and the Government can elect ninety percent of the directors and the minority directors have the right at best to elect but one director. They are given more in the beginning but the right is there limited to one director and it is interesting to note in the light of the remarks of my honourable friend, how this one director is going to control the corporation and lead it around by the nose and tell it what and where and when to do.

And so we come on to vacancies on page 22 and then to the power of directors on page 23. Section 22 gives power to directors to do certain things; one to allot shares, subject to approval of the Lieutenant Governor in Council. These are just the regular clauses, Mr. Speaker, and there is nothing unusual in this Bill.

MR. CASHIN: What innocent people these are.

MR. CURTIS: So innocent you can't realize it.

The Directors may make by-laws. That is usual. Increase or reduction of Capital, No. 23; my honourable friend is greatly worried over this; how to divide and sub-divide and re-divide and do everything with shares. But, Mr. Speaker, if my honourable friend will see section 24, he will see that the powers granted in section 23 may be exercised only with the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. We don't care who is on that board as long as they are good men, honourable men, men interested in Newfoundland. Under section 24 any monkeying with shares must be with the approval of the Lieutenant Governor in Council. So we go on, Mr. Speaker, to page 27: Restriction on Transfer of Shares: That is the usual clause in every contract. So on page 28: The month is not nearly up yet. We go on to Books are Evidence: This is a usual clause.

Voting by person or proxy: That is a usual clause.

Shareholders other than Government may elect directors in certain cases. This just provides, Mr. Speaker, that when the minority exceeds five percent they have the right to elect one director. That is the only right they have. Then it shows how the voting takes place which is a little complicated, but I think my honourable friend the honourable Leader of the Opposition could understand it in thirty days.

So up to page 30: Minutes of meetings: Minutes of meetings to be kept. That is a terrible thing, only every company does it. Accounts to be kept. They must have a seal and balance sheets are to be submitted. Auditors: The first auditors are to be appointed by the Directors and the Directors may fill any casual vacancies. Remuneration of Auditors: That is an ordinary clause. Reports of Auditors: Auditors have the right of access to books, just ordinary clauses. Non-Liability of Directors is an ordinary clause and now we come to clause 37 which is really the only clause that is contentious at all and that provides, with the consent of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, that the Corporation may from time to time guarantee loans or bonds or other interests of the Corporation or any subsidiary, and that Clause I believe my honourable friend says he agrees with.

MR. CASHIN: If there is anything to guarantee, there is nothing there yet.

MR. CURTIS: But there will be before we guarantee them.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We won't guarantee if there is nothing to guarantee for.

MR. CURTIS: So we go on to the definitions: Subsidiary is defined and there is a penalty clause dealing with anyone dishonest in connection with the corporation.

Then Clause No. 40.

MR. CASHIN: I hope you enforce that penalty clause, then some of them will get the works.

MR. CURTIS: This section No. 40 will come out.

Now there is the Bill. This is the terrific bit of legislation that our friends wanted 30 days to read before starting the debate.

MR. CASHIN: You have been at it for six months.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It may take a year to write a book you may read in an hour.

MR. CURTIS: So I will ask my honourable friend opposite, when this matter comes for second reading and the vote is taken, I will ask him to run through it in the light of what I have said and if there are any questions we will be happy to answer them. We are not asking anybody to take our word for it, but we are saying; here is our proposition, it is fairly reasonable. We want to create this Corporation, not the sort of private speculators we were getting in the past, to protect the country and give the Government the assistance of a group of men of outstanding merit, to give us their assistance. Is not that in our interest? Now, Mr. Speaker, I don't want to delay the House any further tonight but on the other hand I don't think the honourable the Premier would like to close without seeing if the mourners are coming back from the funeral, or they may be back tomorrow after taking the night off.

MR. SMALLWOOD: They may be gone to Montreal.

MR. CURTIS: So, Mr. Speaker, at this juncture I move the adjournment of the debate and its subsequent course will depend on whether or not our friends turn up tomorrow. But I would like to repeat in closing, we are not in the dying hours of the session and there is no rush here as long as anybody wants to stay here. We are not set to any time limit and we will be happy as a Government to co-operate with anybody wholeheartedly. I move, Mr. Speaker, the adjournment of the debate.

Second reading of a Bill "An Act to Provide for the Regulation of Motor Vehicles Used in the Transportation of Persons for Compensation."

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the second reading of this Bill. Since this present Government came into power we have been besieged with applications from every Tom, Dick and Harry who has a bus or public service vehicle for a franchise to operate between certain points and in certain areas. The effect of this Legislation is to permit the Board of Commissioners of Public Utilities to be the board to whom all such applications are referred. This Bill gives this Board power to grant franchises, in certain cases power to demand returns by franchise holders to the Government. They may not give any franchises in any case but will be enabled to and if they do give a franchise no other people may operate a public service vehicle in that vicinity. They must accept passengers and may charge only such amounts as are fixed by the board. I move the second reading of this Bill.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Before that motion is put I feared I would have to do what I have had to do ever since this assembly met. Apparently now I have not to do it, I was going to say what I have been obliged to do ever since this General Assembly met three sessions ago to assist in promoting debate. So many Bills have gone through this House in the three sessions of the House without even a syllable from any one member of the Opposition that it becomes deadly dull, deadly dull indeed. The Government gives considerable time to the preparation of Bills, notice would be given of the introduction of Bills and then the time would come here for second reading, the debating stage, and again and again on literally dozens of occasions, Bills have come in here and have been given their second reading without even the utterance of one syllable, let alone a whole word, even a part of a word from the honourable gentlemen of the Opposition.

MR. FAHEY: Mr. Speaker, is the honourable Premier speaking to the principle of the Bill?

MR. SMALLWOOD: So I say, Mr. Speaker, it falls again to my lot to attempt to promote debate on a Bill at second reading. As the honourable the Attorney General has just said, there is in some parts of this Province a problem which is quite serious, the problem of unrelated passenger traffic by public conveyance from one point or settlement to another, or to another settlement or even passing through settlements. There are no regulations, there is no law controlling the number of such public conveyances as may ply the highroads serving the public, virtually no control over it. Anyone who cares to do so may operate a public bus service by means of his own conveyance or another's and the purpose of this Bill is to vest in the Public Utilities Commission the duty and the responsibility which will give them the opportunity to carry out these very regulations. Now from Corner Brook, Grand Falls, Botwood, Holyrood and other places in Newfoundland we have had repeated requests, indeed really demands that we should institute some kind of control on that kind of public traffic and therefore the purpose of the present Bill is to give power to do exactly that by vesting that authority and responsibility in the Public Utilities Commission. That is the principle of the Bill and I hope it will be debated. I hope that it will pass but only after adequate discussion of the principle has taken place. Because in some ways this Bill is as important as another Bill to which I will make no special reference at this time. I support the second reading of this Bill, Mr. Speaker.

MR. HIGGINS: What Bill, Mr. Speaker?

MR. SPEAKER: An Act to Provide for the Regulation of Motor Vehicles Used in the Transportation of Persons for Compensation.

HON. DR. H. L. POTTLE (Minister of Public Welfare): I did not think a moment ago I would take part in the debate on second reading but it has just struck me the thought that there are individuals all around this Island or parts of it at least who are looking for some such regulations as this, and I think looking wisely for such regulations as this. I do know further that a former government had been asked on various occasions to legislate along lines of this kind and declined doing so. In this Province here, if you institute civil regulations it might look like infringement on the rights of one to grant special concessions to another, but you have only to visualize what is taking place in some settlements which have to be served by car transportation where either by a method of laissez faire and every man for himself and you will find a great number of second rate vehicles with no schedule and giving the people no proper service. That is a situation which by some means of control we should seek to remedy, and under the sections of this Bill today this very thing will happen. I presume that under the provisions of this Bill the Board will give franchises in certain areas and thereby they will be able to build up a service that will be of great benefit and confer a worthwhile service on the people concerned. Otherwise it is a matter of chaos and one has to take one side or the other. Without regulations there is little protection for the people concerned. So let us make some regulations in the hope that order will emerge and I believe the balance of factors, if you like the balance of advantages, is on that side. Therefore I am supporting the principle.

HON. E. S. SPENCER (Minister of Public Works): Mr. Speaker, I can only reiterate what has already been said by the honourable the Premier and the honourable Minister of Public Welfare with the possibility of adding a note or two of personal knowledge which I believe has come to every member of this House and many of the citizens of the Province. There have been several strong demands made to the Department over which I preside since we have come into office and in the early stages of our term of office, this Administration decided since those demands persisted, that indeed something of this nature had to be brought forward. We have all had practical experience of the fine weather taxis and I take it that when my honourable friend referred to the lack of service at all times provided to the general public he had that in mind. In my own constituency in two places at least extending from Botwood to Grand Falls, three actually, since Lewisporte has been connected with Notre Dame Junction so that also comes in and then again at Gander the great airport we all know so much about, we have the same situation at these various places where at certain times and under fair weather conditions, due to lack of control and the fact there is no such legislation as this, you will find the right-of-way from the side of the train literally blocked with cars and buses. Many of us have seen that. And then again on other occasions when you arrive at these same railway stations or perhaps boat terminals it is only to find it may take a long time to raise a taxi or any means of transportation either to a home or a hotel. Why I had the unusual experience, if I am permitted to give a personal one, of coming into St. John's within the past six weeks and arriving at the railway terminal in the West End of the city and on that occasion, which happened to be a very stormy day, rain and bad weather, the train arrived fairly close to schedule; I am absolutely certain there was not less than thirty passengers on that train who had to spend from five minutes to half an hour at the railway station before getting transportation to their homes or a hotel. I personally stayed back to allow a woman and child to take a taxi, I know that is the kind of thing most of us are inclined to do.

With reference to this section in my own constituency, Grand Falls and Gander there are many people who know the situation there. It is not so very long ago that the Department of Transport endeavoured to take a hand in the situation because this thing had really gotten out of hand. They tried to control it but they did not have the power, but in certain cases where taxi men were employees of the Department of Transport they were ordered off the road. However, it was not legal to grant franchises to operate taxis or buses as the case may be. That same condition existed between Botwood and Grand Falls and Windsor on the Railway Line, and the system has gotten out of hand and there have been demands to control it and so we brought in the Public Utilities regulation law, the idea being to provide where possible a suitable means of transportation for the public in these various places, one which could be relied upon in all weathers and not the so-called fine weather bird. That, I take it, Mr. Speaker, is the purpose of this Bill which will, if passed by this House, give power to Public Utilities to grant a franchise and thereby see that the transportation system is carried on in a satisfactory manner and not become overcrowded whereby no one can make a living and so spoil the chances for two or three or four or a half dozen to make a living, as the case may be, but give a franchise to the required number. That is part of the purpose of the Public Utilities Board. I have pleasure, Mr. Speaker, in supporting the Bill.

MR. FAHEY: I don't rise, Mr. Speaker, to support this Bill. However, I will agree that it is all right, under certain sections of the Bill, for the Government to make regulations. But this Bill has gone a little further than that and has entered into the field of franchises. I could tell the honourable members here in the House that I have had an experience some years ago when I went to live on Topsal Road in 1921 and there was one bus on the road and owned at that time by a man named Courtney. It had a seating capacity for about 20 but most of the time he only had about seven or eight. I will agree that since that time up to the present the bus business and transportation generally has become tremendous and calls for regulations. Regulations in so far as how many passengers should ride in the different types of buses or in a car and so on. I believe it is the right of the Government to bring in regulations to that effect but when they enter into the field of franchise, I think the franchise can be easily slanted towards supporters of the Government like many other franchises or licenses granted. We don't have to be very dumb not to see those things. I don't think this Bill is designed so much to make regulations as it is to give franchises, taking them away from private enterprise and as I explained a moment ago, I remember the time when there was only one bus on that road. It has gone up to a hundred now and that developed without any franchise but under free enterprise. That is what builds a nation but when a Government gets down to something so small and contemptible as to create franchises and dish them out to their friends as they do with licenses for beer, or may have in mind with licenses for tourists, and want to take over the transportation end of it, I say it is ridiculous to be creating such franchises for Smith or Jones and don't let us cover it up by talking about bad weather and people who only come out when they see fit. Some of those people have built up bus services over a number of years and did not do it by staying by the radiator in their own homes but by going out in the storm as well as in the fine weather. Don't be bluffed by that sort of tripe. I contend it is all right to make regulations and see the buses, etc., are not overloaded but in the meantime don't like the idea of Government intervention in the field of franchise, giving a franchise to certain individuals and barring others from operating. As I have said before, and I believe that could be a chance to reward government supporters of the day, by giving them a franchise.

MR. SMALLWOOD: A point of order, I request the honourable gentleman to withdraw that. He has remarked that franchises in this Bill will be handed to Government supporters.

MR. SPEAKER: I understood the honourable member to have said "could be." If he said, would be, he would be making charges against the Government and they would have to ask him to explain.

MR. FAHEY: I said could be. And I repeat again it is necessary that the Government make regulations as to the carrying of passengers over roads and in lots of cases they have not even standing room. I believe in regulations, Sir, in regard to that, but I am very doubtful when we come to enter into the field of franchise. I won't say any more at the moment but in Committee of the Whole when we come to the seventh paragraph 3 (3) and (4) and in (6), (7) perhaps I will have a little more to say. At the moment I say I agree with the principle of the Government making regulations but I do not agree with the franchise business.

MR. BALLAM: Mr. Speaker, I rise with my colleagues in support of this Bill, and I am sure even my honourable friend the member for Harbour Main-Bell Island, if he visited Corner Brook West or Curling or Humbermouth would see the great need for having somebody with authority to grant a franchise in that area. As my honourable friend, the member for Grand Falls said, we have a lot of fine weather operators and it is no trouble at all to get bus service when the weather is fine. As a matter of fact almost everybody owning a car or bus is operating a bus service and some of them operate in a dual capacity, not only do they operate a bus when they see a chance, they have a sign there which they turn around and make a taxi out of their bus, and when the taxi business is dull they switch around and go into the bus service. The roads are crowded with buses of all kinds and some old jalopies which should be in the scrap heap years ago and my constituents, in my district, have been urging and requesting ever since we have been in here to try and have the Government bring about legislation of this nature. I can assure you that a thing of this nature, if left uncontrolled will get so entirely out of hand that nothing will ever be done with it. I endorse this measure and give my utmost support to this Bill.

MR. FOGWILL: Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to this Bill too. I don't know what it is exactly, but it looks to me like a West Coast Bill just to protect some indignant citizens in Corner Brook and Grand Falls Areas. We have heard from the Minister of Public Works and the Minister of Labour on the bus situation in their areas, but I think the situation on the East Coast is entirely different. We have in this area here a very different situation altogether and we have some of the finest small operators here in St. John's and around Conception Bay giving good service, running on schedule and charging a very small rate. At the present time by the franchise given in the city by the City Council to a bus company operators here have been forced out of business. They have given good service down through the years and have built up the service from nothing and have taught the people to ride instead of walk which took a good load off the people's feet, though they did pay for transportation. Now, here in this area we have a number of people giving good service right from Harbour Grace to St. John's and even to the North Shore. There may be a few of them with buses not up to the mark but they are mostly good cars or buses as the case may be. Some have already been forced out of business because of the franchise given to the Capital Coaches Ltd. in St. John's and many had to sell their buses.

That clause here, Mr. Speaker (3) under (C) where they are employed solely in taking workmen to and from work on the highway. In other words we have buses operating now from Flat Rock and Torbay and from St. Phillips and Broad Cove and all around the Conception Bay Highway, Kelligrews, Seal Cove, bringing people to St. John's and giving good service bringing them in here by eight o'clock in order to go to work. It says here, adequate transportation. In other words any time the Board of Public Utilities may say the transportation to the city is not adequate and turn these people out and force them out of business. It is entirely wrong to take away the right of free enterprise and I don't believe in one single thing in the principle of this Bill and it is going to get a lot of opposition from all those people who give good service and a lot of opposition from the people who travel on the buses. It is just a West Coast Bill and nothing else.

MR. BALLAM: I take exception to that and if you remember—

MR. FOGWILL: You have already spoken.

MR. BALLAM: This paragraph does not exclude these people.

MR. SPEAKER: Is the honourable gentleman taking exception to certain words?

MR. FOGWILL: He is not on a point of order or privilege.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Speaker, I have not had a chance to read the Bill but just glanced through it. It is an attempt to set up a monopoly. I don't like it; competition produces good service. If we had competition in liquor for instance I believe we would have better liquor. Sir, competition is the spice of life, it gives spice to living anyway. Now as the member for St. John's East, next to me, said, the places around the Avalon Peninsula are very well serviced and around the Southern Shore and from Holyrood on to Harbour Grace and down in the east end all these places are well serviced by a number of buses going all hours of the day and night and carrying people. I have driven in the buses at different times and found them very comfortable and I know they cost a lot of money. As for Corner Brook, I don't know so much about it, I did not live there long but every time I went there I found it easy to get a car or bus running around all hours of the day and night. I found them very satisfactory and would like to have such a system here. Now, the honourable the Minister of Labour drew attention to some old jalopies or run-down cars and I think there should be regulations for the protection of the people to this effect to force the old cars out but not good cars. Now, I think it is unfortunate that people who have borne the heat and burden of the day, should be now thrown out of business while probably a stranger might come in and get a franchise and take away the living of others when they are giving good service to the people. I am quite aware a bus can be dangerous but that is where regulations come in. A lot of transportation is done by motor cars and you can't give a franchise for motor cars and I don't see why you should give it to buses. Now according to this Bill a board will be set up and that will mean more money.

MR. CURTIS: It is already in existence.

MR. HIGGINS: There are to be no extra people employed by the board, I am glad to hear that. I don't know if they have enough work or can attend to this business, but apart from that there will be a charge for this franchise and that means the fares will go up. You can go to Bay Bulls now for 50c., the next thing it will be 55c. or 60c. Competition brings down prices and this Act will bring up the cost of fares. That means the public will have to pay more and fifty cents is a lot of money to some people.

MR. FAHEY: The toiling masses don't mind that.

MR. HIGGINS: I think it would be much better if the Government would bring in regulations at this time rather than granting franchises and doing away with competition.

MR. JAMES: If this is a West Coast Bill, the West Coast should feel very proud of it, at least it shows interest in the thing which is probably more than the representatives of the Avalon Peninsula are showing at this moment. It is not a matter of granting a franchise to any bus company, this Bill is concerned with the matter of transportation of the people, if that should mean anything to the honourable members opposite. You had good transportation here in the city of St. John's too, with vehicles rattling around the streets, and this was an example of what is happening around the Avalon Peninsula which you know just as well as I do.

MR. SPEAKER: Order—Address the Chair.

MR. JANES: We have people, Sir, who want to go places and must travel either by buses or railway. Would the honourable members opposite want to have a dozen railways across Newfoundland and anyone who wanted to do so run an airplane to Gander and Torbay?

MR. HIGGINS: If it would pay, there is nothing to stop them.

MR. JANES: I do not think that we should be endangering the lives of people who travel over the highways in some of the buses which go out from here when they are paying for a better service, and when the Public Utilities Board was formed one of the purposes of that Board was to insure that the public got what they were paying for, and the honourable members of this House would not suggest the people are getting what they are paying for in the present bus service. There is no talk here of a monopoly and no necessity for a monopoly, and there is no reason why all those who operate buses today should not get together and form a company if they want to do so.

MR. FAHEY: They did that in St. John's when all the buses incorporated themselves into a company and went to the City Council for a franchise which it would not give them.

MR. JANES: If bus or coach travelling is such a lucrative service, would it not be cheaper to have a company instead of competing as they do? The same number of people will travel, a franchise will not increase the number of people travelling and if it is profitable now it should be more so when incorporated. The same people will run it as do now. This is all nonsense, Sir, and after spending the night out they come in now and look for something to talk about.

MR. CURTIS: If there is nobody else to speak I will close the debate. I would like to say in reply to the honourable member for St. John's West—"2 (c) 'public service vehicle' means a public service vehicle as defined by the Highway Traffic Act, 1951, but does not include—

- (i) any motor carrier vehicle from any other province of Canada or from the United States carrying only tourists on one continuous trip to, through and from this Province under contract made without this Province;
- (ii) any school bus while in use as such, upon request of the Minister of Education;
- (iii) any vehicle while employed solely in taking workmen to and from their work over a highway upon which no adequate transportation is provided at convenient times for that purpose by a person holding a franchise under this Act conferring exclusive, limited or special rights to operate public service vehicles over such highway;
- (iv) any vehicle employed on charter to carry passengers to a picnic, outing or similar gathering, over a highway upon which no adequate transportation is provided at reasonable times for that purpose by a person holding a franchise under this Act conferring exclusive, limited or special rights to operate public service vehicles over such highway;"

This Bill does not compel the Board to give franchises, but enables them to give franchises, and if my honourable friend will look at paragraph (c) of Section 2, he will see that the franchise does not operate against any vehicle which is employed solely in taking men to work. In any event he will see there are other exceptions too. You see, Mr. Speaker, the position is this, somebody must have the power to issue franchises, someone must have the power. The Government does not want to have to do it, it is far too busy to do it, so that what we have done is appoint this Board of Public Utilities and told them to do it to protect the people. Franchises are given today for everything, you can't get a decent bus service without a franchise. What is everybody's business is nobody's and if you can't appreciate that, look at the vehicles that travelled in St. John's when the Golden Arrow was discontinued, anything that could pretend to move, even hearses like you fellows who walked out this afternoon should have had, even those.

MR. FAHEY: They had real buses to come in and they would not give them a franchise.

Carried:

MR. HIGGINS: Division.

MR. SPENCER: You may bank on it you will be voted down.

MR. RUSSELL: You don't like a debate when you get one, you get sore about it.

MR. SPEAKER: The Chair does not think a division necessary.

MR. FAHEY: I understand.

MR. SPEAKER: If Mr. Speaker decides it is not necessary he will not waste the time of the House by granting a division.

MR. FOGWILL: I will agree, Sir, there is not much doubt.

Bill read a second time. To be referred to a Committee of the Whole tomorrow.

Second reading of Bill "An Act to Amend the Restaurant Act, 1929."

MR. CURTIS: I would call attention, Mr. Speaker, in moving the second reading to an error; it should be 1949 instead of 1929. At the moment, the law of Newfoundland is that restaurants must close at 12:00 o'clock in the night and they are not allowed to open before seven in the morning. That regulation was made in 1929 as the then inspector of police was very anxious to try to clean up the city, and it was very difficult checking restaurants at all hours of the night and in order to close certain places a general law was passed closing all restaurants at 12:00 in the night. There are in the vicinity of St. John's, Mr. Speaker, several restaurants which are not undesirable, in fact some which are quite attractive and it is not in the public interest that such restaurants should have to close at 12:00 o'clock at night and the object of this Bill is to give the Chief of Police of St. John's and Senior Officer of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, outside St. John's, power to extend the hour so that any particular restaurant may remain open and to specify the conditions. Now, Mr. Speaker, this matter was brought to the attention of the Government by the Commanding Officer of the Canadian Army who found that he was unable to feed his troops in the mornings, and they contend the troops have to visit restaurants in the city and it was found they were not allowed to open until 7:00 o'clock and in order to feed troops before eight o'clock these restaurants had to break the law. Well they broke the law, Mr. Speaker, and fed the troops and the matter was reported to my department by the police but we need not tell you no prosecutions took place. So that instead of eight o'clock in the morning the suggestion now is that they be allowed to open at six o'clock in the morning and as for staying open, it is suggested that they remain open until 1:00 in the night but they can do so only with the permission of the Chief of Police in St. John's or the Senior Officer of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police outside St. John's. I commend the Bill to the House and move second reading.

Bill read a second time. To be referred to a Committee of the Whole House on tomorrow.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants of Newfoundland."

HON. P. S. FORSEY (Minister of Supply): Mr. Chairman, in this particular clause I suppose there are some allegations of facts which I imagine the Committee considered and in the list of names, I presume the Committee attested the fact that those people are duly qualified and are in fact members of the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants of Newfoundland but now incidentally the clause contains another fact, namely; some other persons not connected with them are also duly qualified, I wonder if you will advise me how the Committee may insure that those whose names are unknown to it and will be in future members of this Society will be duly qualified.

Clause carried :

MR. FORSEY: Mr. Chairman, point of information, what is the procedure now, the question is completely ignored?

MR. HIGGINS: I quite agree it should have been answered.

MR. CURTIS: Well, if anyone can answer he is welcome to do it, it is a private Bill and the Corporation has a choice as to who will become members and they will protect their own interest. If you incorporate the dentists they are not going to admit anyone but dentists, so I imagine the association is not going to admit any but qualified accountants. I think the suggestion is nonsense.

MR. FORSEY: It is not nonsense. There is a set procedure for private Bills and we waived them in this case. In my opinion we had no right to waive them.

MR. CHAIRMAN: Order. I will now put the clause.

Carried.

MR. HIGGINS: With regard to membership in the organization, I do not know if it is our duty to inquire into the names of people here or not. Anybody can come in here and claim they are so and so, but when I saw the Bill first I knew these names here are accountants, but the question may arise where a number of men may come in and we must accept them. It has only come to my mind now. I know these are all right here, I know practically every one of them.

MR. CURTIS: I think the point of my honourable friend opposite and the Minister of Supply is well taken, especially if those people really asked for any exclusive rights of any kind, but the only rights they seek is the right to call themselves CPA or something like that, nothing exclusive, anybody may act as a cost accountant without being a member of this association so that really it is not worth worrying about—if they want to have it, let them, that is my feeling.

I move the Committee rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again, tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Before we call No. eleven, Mr. Speaker, I would like in moving the adjournment to ascertain if I can, what would be the pleasure of the House, by that I mean all of the House, as to when we should meet again. Normally we would meet at three o'clock tomorrow afternoon but I have already indicated our complete willingness on this side to meet at two in the morning as well as in the afternoon and morning for as many weeks, and as long as the House may desire for ample consideration and debate of the legislation before us. I wonder if the honourable Leader of the Opposition would care to indicate whether it would be satisfactory to him and to his colleagues and what my honourable and gallant friend, the member for Ferryland, if he would care to indicate his pleasure in the matter on the question of meeting at 11:00 in the forenoon. Many days or weeks may be required to give ample consideration to the legislation remaining to be decided. If I could have an indication of the feelings of the House on that matter, I would be in a position to move the adjournment.

MR. SPEAKER: Do you wish to ask the House if it is its pleasure to meet tomorrow morning?

MR. SMALLWOOD I think on this side of the House we are agreeable to do it. I am not pressing for it or anything of that nature. If the honourable gentlemen opposite feel that ample debate can be given without meeting in the mornings that too would be agreeable to us.

MR. HIGGINS I don't think we are in a position to meet tomorrow morning. I want to read the Bill. I can't debate then. I didn't even get time to read this Act.

MR. SMALLWOOD In view of what my honourable friend said, I move the adjournment until tomorrow, Friday at 3:00 of the clock and then we can see how we get on and what is the desire of the House.

The House adjourned accordingly.

FRIDAY, June 8, 1951.

The House opened at three of the clock.

Presenting Petitions

None.

Presenting Reports of Standing and Select Committees

HON. DR. H. L. POTTLE (Minister of Public Welfare): Mr. Speaker, I have pleasure in presenting to the House the first report of the Department of Public Welfare for the year ending 31 March, 1951. I am gratified to be able to present this report which brings the public records of the Department up to that late date. Ordinarily public records are not so up to date but we have made a special effort in order that we might be able to get the report before the House, before the closing of the House. This typewritten report will be followed by a printed report which has been delayed because the printers have likewise the business of printing the records of the House, I understand.

I have pleasure, therefore, in presenting to the House the report of the Department of Public Welfare for the financial year ending March 31, 1951.

Report presented.

Giving Notice of Motions and Questions

HON. P. S. FORSEY (Minister of Supply): Mr. Speaker, I give notice that I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Amend the Harbour Grace Water Company."

Honourable the Attorney General asks leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Vest Lands Comprised in Certain Fee Simple Grants in the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation."

Bill read a first time. Ordered to be read a second time on tomorrow.

Honourable the Attorney General asks leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Provide the Payment of a Superannuation Allowance to James Forbes, Retired Marine Engineer."

Bill read a first time. Ordered to be read a second time on tomorrow.

Honourable the Minister of Education asks leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Amend the Education Act, 1927."

Bill read a first time. Ordered to be read a second time on tomorrow.

Orders of the Day

Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means. Committee of the Whole on Supply.

HON. J. R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, I ask to have that deferred, but may possibly later in the day refer to it as I have certain figures to be added, but not at the moment, to the totals. We might go into Committee on Supply now for the purpose of making some additions in the estimates.

Committee of the Whole on Supply:

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, if the Committee would turn to the estimates, Attorney General's Department, General Heading 7, page 2 we have to add an amount of $25,000 for Civil Defence and that would come as a new vote at the end, Civil Defence $25,000, current account. We might just make the entries and then the Committee may discuss them and vote on them afterwards, or it may be better to deal with them one by one. I move the insertion of a new sub-head under Sub-Head 7, (4) Civil Defence $25,000.

MR. CASHIN: How is that money to be expended?

HON. LESLIE R. CURTIS (Attorney General): It is purely a token vote and we hope it won't have to be spent at all. We may have to have a Director of Civil Defence and if so we will have to pay him.

MR. CASHIN: Have you got a Director of Civil Defence?

MR. CURTIS: We have seconded to the Department a man from the Department of Health but there is no appointment made. The man is Mr. J. V. Rabbits.

MR. CASHIN: Being paid by the Department of Health?

MR. CURTIS: Yes.

MR. CASHIN: Could the honourable the Attorney General give the House any indication or idea of how that $25,000 would be spent for Civil Defence as all defence comes under Federal Authorities?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Just in part.

MR. CASHIN: $25,000 is a lot of money for Civil Defence.

MR. CURTIS: The idea is just to have a sub-head to authorize the Department to make some expenditure if they have to do so. As a matter of fact it is supposed to be looked after by the Municipality and the Provincial Government is not supposed to make any contribution. Only in the city of St. John's the Municipality has no money and it looks that as usual, the Provincial Government has to bear the brunt of any expenditure necessary. So far as I see at the moment the only expense is a director.

MR. CASHIN: What would his duties be?

MR. CURTIS: They are worked out in conjunction with the Municipality. We may possibly vote the municipality the money and ask them to assume the responsibility; we are far too busy to attend to each and every municipal payment. If the Municipality of St. John's accepts the responsibility we would not have any difficulty but appoint a general director with control over these matters. This vote creates a sub-head only to be spent on the order of the Lieutenant Governor in Council and I am hoping that it will be very largely, if not all, a drop balance.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Page 36, Department of Public Works. Now this is an item, Mr. Chairman, which at first sight may seem rather strange to the Committee and yet on second thought I imagine the committee will probably be rather pleased by it. The whole world is short of steel, as everybody knows there is a world shortage of steel to which the honourable member for Ferryland referred last night. The Department of Public Works is one of the principal users of steel in Newfoundland, bridge building, special reinforced steel for bridge building. Now, the sections of the Trans-Canada Highway which have been built and are being built required bridges, concrete bridges which must be reinforced. Where was the steel to come from? By a bit of good luck after failing to get steel, after endeavouring but failing to get steel, the Department of Public Works had a bit of good luck in that an order of steel produced in England for some customer somewhere on this side of the Atlantic became suddenly available and the fact came from Ottawa to our knowledge, came from Ottawa, and the Department was tipped off to the fact and went after the steel. Now, it is very much more than the Government needs, the Department of Public Works could use except for a considerable number of years. I forget the actual figures, I am sorry the honourable Minister is not here as he could say at once the number of tons, but I think it is 25 hundred tons. I could easily confirm that by phone call. This is very much more than the Department needs but it was in one parcel and had to be bought as a unit. Now, we placed the order and got the clearance in Ottawa that we could take it. It is due here shortly, in fact it was due long ago but the ship had an accident and had to go back to England and unload the whole steamer-load of steel and it had to be transferred to another ship and there has been considerable delay but the Bank has informed the Department of Finance yesterday that the steamer is now leaving England and is due here in a matter of days and the bank credit to pay will fall due on delivery of the steel. What the Government proposes to do is to retain some of it, as much as it feels it should safely retain in view of the world shortage and have the balance of it to sell. We will be subject to the steel controller of Canada and if we want to go into the black or gray market for steel we would not be allowed to do it as the steel controller of Canada regulates all sales of steel. The thought is to sell the unwanted part of the 2,500 tons and reserve that amount we need. Now, I am not suggesting we enter here on the revenue side a partly contravailing revenue as I do not know what the revenue will be. It will come into the Treasury and go into the Consolidated Revenue Fund and appear in the Public Accounts. The amount is $500,000 and to be quite frank with you, I don't know under what heading it ought to go, current account or capital because it will be used in capital works which would be otherwise paid out of capital as the building of new bridges would come out of capital account so it seems it ought to be paid from capital account. So that, I suppose, the item could be put in 908, page 38, sub-head 908 as 908-09 Purchase of Steel $500,000. That is on surplus account.

Now, I may say further that we have strong hopes that we may recover by the sale of this surplus steel we don't know the amount of steel we will keep out of this shipment, I think we are saving two or three cents a pound on the shipment of steel we are purchasing. I may say the price of the twenty-five hundred tons is lower than the price at which we are able to buy had we felt able to buy it, the prices quoted us were higher than on this shipment of steel.

MR. FOGWILL: The thought occurs to me that this steel purchase is being charged to capital account. Of course it is quite possible the Minister of Public Works in reinforcing bridges on the highway and ordinary maintenance, some of this steel may be used in the maintenance of ordinary bridges, in other words in addition to the Canadian Highway. Does that come under capital, maintenance of roads and bridges, ordinary maintenance? Some of that steel should be charged to current account.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The amount would be trifling, if any it would be quite trifling.

MR. FOGWILL: There is one other point, in buying such a large amount of steel I think we should be acquainted with the dimensions of the steel and all we know is that it is just reinforcing steel, steel bars or rods as the case may be, is any of steel structural steel?

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is all reinforcing steel.

MR. FOGWILL: In varying sizes, how would the sizes run?

MR. SMALLWOOD: From memory I don't know, but it would be very easy to have the statistics from Public Works. I think it is a half inch up to one and three quarters of an inch, 40 ft. lengths. So my colleague tells me but he is speaking from memory.

MR. FOGWILL: The size of the steel is from one half to one and a quarter; the other point would be how much half inches and how much an inch and three quarters as the case may be. Is there steel in sufficient quantity in the size we require?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Yes, this I do know, without the detail of exact specifications they are suitable for the purposes of the Department of Public Works. I was particularly concerned about that. I did not want to have the Government buy steel and even at a bargain when it did not need it and the Minister assured me it is precisely the specifications needed.

MR. FOGWILL: The Committee has his assurance of that?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Of course, on the word of the Minister who assured me.

Carried.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Now finally, Mr. Chairman, the Department of Supply, page 55—page 56, Local Government Affairs, 106: Special Assistance, we are going to increase that amount by $100,000 which would make it $275,000. That Special Assistance Grant is for Town Councils. Perhaps the Minister would be the better one to explain the position there.

MR. FORSEY: The Committee recently had several matters brought to its attention. The local Government Division, for example Stephenville has advised us that indiscriminate dumping of cans and motor car bodies interfere with radar and is likely to present a serious matter so there is nothing for us to do except after negotiations with the American Authorities and the Local Authorities to take over the area and declare it a Government area. Now, the people of Stephenville, the Town Council, is not at present prepared to accept the responsibility so that the area will have to be looked after directly by the Department of Supply and will cost somewhere in the vicinity of $10,000. It has not yet been approved by the Government. We are just putting it in the estimates in case the Government does approve of the recommendation. Secondly, in Corner Brook they are putting on a survey for the whole area and Bowaters is contributing $25,000 and the Town Council $15,000 and they are requesting the Government for the other $25,000 and the Division of Local Government are going to recommend that amount to the Government. The Bell Island Town Council is also contemplating capital expenditures this year of some $65,000 and negotiations are presently proceeding with the Company who are tentatively prepared to contribute the sum of $25,000 and the Council themselves are prepared to budget for $15,000, and they are asking the Government for $25,000, and we propose to recommend that also to the Government. There is a special project under consideration for the town of Windsor regarding a capital expenditure of $20,000 for a public building and I understand there is a contract with the Federal Government for $4,000 revenue a year and it is our proposal to recommend that. In addition there are one or more towns which are considering and possibly will be incorporating themselves this summer, and it is proposed to give them some assistance at the outset also. As I have said, none of those things have been approved by the Government but the amount of $100,000 is put in the estimates awaiting the decision of the Government to act on these various matters. I think in connection with the one in Stephenville there is nothing else we can do but accept and take over the area and make dumping regulations to remove that hazard to all planes, American and Canadian, flying through.

MR. FAHEY: In reference to the honourable Minister of Supply's remarks, Mr. Speaker, little less than a month ago we voted $150,000 and now we are asked to add an additional $100,000, and the explanation is that due to the fact there is a lot of tin cans dumped up in Stephenville. That is one of the reasons of course, but in my opinion they must be using a lot of tin food as that is a lot of cans to my way of thinking.

Then we get back to the encouragement of Town Councils. That is all very nice on the surface. The Minister in passing referred to Bell Island which I have the honour—I won't say like some member, my District, but I have the honour to represent that district. Put as clear as that I think it is very nice for Town Councils to get along and for the Provincial Government to assist them but I wonder, I just wonder, do those Town Councils realize what they are heading for in ten years from now? Do they realize that they will be called upon to take care of local roads, education programmes and what have you. What I call it is an encouraging grant to get the Town Councils started and I think the honourable members on the Government side just as well as I realize it is only a coxer, if one may use that word, to get them started to foot their own bills in the future and relieve the Provincial Government, when the surplus has dwindled down, of the responsibility of taking care of the obligations they had in the past.

Now, we may be absent from the House occasionally but though we are absent we know what is going on and I would like to remind the honourable members we may be absent but we have little birds, you know. Not only the Liberal Party has birdies over the Province and we know that they too have the civil servants at their disposal.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I will not, since it would be a pity, ask for order, though your remarks are out of order, not being relevant to the matter under debate.

MR. FAHEY: I might say, in dealing with Town Councils, we on this side of the House did not have shall I say civil servants, or certain people at our disposal to campaign at the expense of the Province, nevertheless I think it will help us as time goes along. I don't think because of the fact Newfoundland is known as a Fish Province and because of that fact we are supposed to be gullible that it is true you will always find them as gullible as in 1949. However, I agree with some remarks passed by the honourable Minister of Supply in outlining this increase requesting $100,000. But I will say that I feel it may take a little time for the people to catch up with some of those who smile so broadly now but may not smile so broadly tomorrow.

MR. HIGGINS: These are not loans, they are grants.

MR. RUSSELL: The right word is inducement, the word became famous in the Commission days.

MR. FORSEY: I would like to put the honourable member right.

MR. FOGWILL: That is what I would call just bait.

Carried.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That completes the items to be added to the estimates.

MR. FAHEY: May I ask if we might refer back to 1028?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, on that, if you are about to put the motion I would like to speak, if merely to call the motion, well, Mr. Chairman, the Government had no other reference to make to the estimates and we have no desire whatsoever to go back over the ground again and if it is agreed to have a reversion to one, we would be in a position where we would be referring to them over and over and before we know it would be going all over the estimates again. With all due deference to my honourable friend, I cannot agree on it.

MR. FAHEY: If we in Committee of the Whole are to refer back to the estimates and the Government referred back to two or three different departments, the last one being Town Councils, I think, we on this side of the House have a right to refer back to No. 1028 if we want to discuss it. If the Government wants to discuss two or three others, but what is the use of moving it you have already said you can't agree. I know what would happen and know it would be no use moving it, everybody knows what I mean when I say that.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Whenever my honourable friend finds that every motion carries, he will find himself on this side not the other.

MR. FAHEY: Only a week ago we were not over on that side and carried it.

MR. CASHIN: In connection with that motion, it could be brought in when the resolutions are brought in here giving the total amount of the estimates. Then the whole matter may be brought up and when ultimately brought into the House we can discuss every item in the estimates again because that Supply Bill is certainly not in agreement with the amounts in the estimates at the present time. The total expenditure, I question if even the honourable Minister of Finance can tell us.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The Clerk of the House can do it, and the Minister of Finance in a matter of minutes.

MR. CASHIN: They are shamming, Mr. Chairman.

MR. SMALLWOOD: They are all taken into account including the additions just made.

MR. FAHEY: I want to make it clear, I made a motion to refer back to No. 1028.

MR. CHAIRMAN: The motion is in order and I asked if you want to put the motion or merely made a motion, if you desired it to be put. The Chair will accept it but it is up to the Committee to pass it or not.

MR. FAHEY: I make the motion we refer back to 1028.

Motion lost.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I move the Committee rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again presently.

Ordered sit again directly.

Third reading of Bill "An Act to Make Provision for the Granting of Loans to Certain Companies."

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I move this Bill, "An Act to Make Provisions for the Granting of Loans to Certain Companies," be recommitted.

Ordered recommitted to Committee of the Whole.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, we desire to propose some amendments to the Bill. In clause 3, section three, third line from the bottom insert the words "and The United Church Board of Education in St. John's," because we are proposing to add to the total an amount of $40,000 guarantee of loan to the United Church Board of Education in St. John's. And in the last line of the Clause, after the word Company and before the word in, insert the words "The said Board of Education."

MR. FAHEY: May I ask the honourable Premier if this is the only denomination requesting a loan?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Yes.

MR. FAHEY: I mean if any other denomination such as the Seven Day Adventists or the Salvation Army, requests a loan, would it be granted?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Of course, we have always made loans and special grants on a non-discriminatory basis. According to the Terms of Union when making loans or grants to schools we do it on a strictly non-discriminatory basis. I can assure my honourable friend whenever he sees anything brought into this House by the Government affecting education he may rest easy in his mind we are not going to depart even by a fraction of an inch from a position of strict impartiality and even-handed justice. He need not give it a second thought. I will see to that if no other Minister will, but there is no need of my taking any special interest as it is the view of the whole Government in Newfoundland.

MR. FAHEY: I am happy to hear that statement by the Premier and I hope it will apply to all other Bills coming forward to the House.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is a cryptic remark which could mean anything. Now the schedule, in the last item there, the St. Lawrence Corporation of Newfoundland, the amount shown is $250,000 and we now propose changing that to 287,500. The additional $37,500 is for the addition of diesel power to the Mine and the cost in U.S. Dollars $287,500.

MR. FAHEY: In addition.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Yes, the purpose is the installation of diesel electric power in the mine. There is a terrific shortage of hydro-electric power in that whole peninsula. The existing development of hydro-electric power cannot give the power needed and in the main development the United Towns Electric Co., is quite incapable of giving the two mines and other industrial customers in the area the power needed, so that, unfortunately, some of them have to install their own power. That is mainly what this increase is for. My honourable friend, the Attorney General, informs me that both mining companies at St. Lawrence are now quite independent altogether of the United Towns Electric Power although at considerable cost because they must run to about 5c. a kilowatt hour for diesel.

MR. FOGWILL: No.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The rate is high, however, I don't know the exact rate.

MR. FOGWILL: Diesel power is very cheap.

MR. SMALLWOOD: At Gander and other places in Newfoundland diesel power is costing quite a bit. I don't know what hydro-power costs.

MR. CASHIN: Has the St. Lawrence Corporation received this money yet?

MR. SMALLWOOD: I expect so, several months ago, we gave the guarantee to the bank subject to confirmation.

MR. CASHIN: In other words your other amount was an error.

MR. FOGWILL: If this total amount has already been expended.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The credit at the bank has been guaranteed by the Government subject to the confirmation of the House. How much has actually been drawn, it must be the bulk of it because the bulk of it was for the purchase of the ship to carry the concentrates to market and that alone took nearly all of it and the rest of it is for the installation of this diesel power in the mine.

MR. HIGGINS: What is the increase obtained from the Government?

MR. CURTIS: It was just a mistake in the Bill.

Carried.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I propose an addition in the schedule, "United Church Board of Education, St. John's $40,000."

MR. CASHIN: Have they received this money or is this a new amount?

MR. SMALLWOOD: I honestly don't know. No, as I recall it came up in Cabinet a few weeks ago, they got it from the bank on our guarantee and have not used all of it yet.

Carried.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Now finally, Olsen Sealing and Whaling Limited, $50,000." I will explain the purpose to the Committee. The position there is this: Mr. Chairman, the company had obtained from the Government as the Committee will recall, a bank loan more than a year ago for $350,000, a year and a half ago. They are now about to start operations again under conditions vastly improved over what they experienced last year. Last year they had a very unfortunate, in fact a series of unfortunate expenses. To begin with they had contracted in the normal course for the sale of the whole output at a price which was very considerably below the price to which the oil usually went. The market prices rose in the course of the summer but they were tied to the lower price and they had to deliver their output at prices which were way below what they could have gotten had they not been bound by contract. In addition to that, one of their ships blew up and due to this accident they lost a whole month of whaling with the result that their catch was only 155 whales for the year. This was 45 whales below the average production of the six years previous. So that with a smaller output as a result of the accident and the sale at lower prices than the market price, they had indeed a very unfortunate experience last year. Now, this year their prospects are quite bright. They have sold their output for this year subject only to production for a figure of, perhaps it would not be fair to name the figure, but it is considerably higher than the figure for last year. Their ships are in good condition and the prospects are excellent. But one of their unfortunate expenses is that they did not and have not yet been paid for one extremely important part of their catch of last year, I refer to their fish solubles which they marketed in the United States to a value of something getting up to $100,000 and for which they have not yet been paid. We have taken for security of this $50,000 loan at the bank which we propose to guarantee and are asking the Committee to ratify, as security for that we have taken that debt in U.S. due to the Olson Whaling and Sealing to the extent of the full repayment to the bank through the bank at Boston and the bank in St. John's acting in our behalf. The first payment falls on July 15 and at the bank here will be credited to our account and thereafter on the fifteenth of each month until the $50,000 is fully repaid with interest to the bank on interest they charge. The payments as received will be credited to the Government. Now, that has had the effect of preventing the closing-down of Olson Whaling and Sealing Limited and the loss of employment of about 200 persons in the factory. I can say that if we did not guarantee this loan this industry which has expectations this year to wipe out their losses of last year and to get on an even keel, would have been obliged to close down and we felt we could not, we owed it to Newfoundland in general to try and prevent that and at the same time cover the advance from the bank with security that we thought was adequate and we are quite confident we have that.

MR. HIGGINS: May I ask how much of the original loan has been repaid?

MR. SMALLWOOD: None has been repaid.

MR. HIGGINS: We are lending them $150,000 now what security have we?

MR. SMALLWOOD: We have everything they have, over one million dollars security.

MR. HIGGINS: Is the financial position of the company good?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Basically yes, but their liquid position is very bad. If we could have been sure that some other company would move in, operate it as a going concern and not have it parcelled up and scattered and the industry become lost to Newfoundland, the position would be different.

MR. HIGGINS: If there is so much money as that involved there should not be any difficulty in selling the place.

MR. SMALLWOOD: There is no difficulty about getting the money back. If we could sell the whole thing as a going concern we would get the money without any difficulty or selling it piecemeal, this to one man and that to the other, whalers are in demand and if we dismantled the plant and sold it piecemeal we would get the money back but there is a very vital reason for keeping it there, I am not in a position to speak of it but before the House closes I may be in a position to speak of it. The Committee has doubtlessly read items and heard rumours about an oil hardening plant which we are indeed working on, an oil hardening plant and we must have a minimum of six or seven million gallons of oil a year and that would make it a very feasible and economic proposition. That means whale, seal and herring oil and whales are a very large part of the output in Newfoundland where we want the oil to be processed not shipped away raw but manufactured into hardened, homogenized, deodorized, graded oils. We have a very special reason therefore to desire the continuation of this company as a going concern. Now we are guaranteeing this additional loan for two reasons, one to prevent two hundred men from being out of work and the industry going down and no oil being produced and because of our further interest in another plant altogether not started yet but expected to be this year, quite a sizeable new oil hardening plant in Conception Bay.

MR. CASHIN: Mr. Chairman, last year the loan for this company was guaranteed and I think it is time they told us. We were told it was to do something with caplin but that was a flop. Now, the whaling business is the most speculative business in Newfoundland history and it is repeating itself again. It seems to me the capital outlay in this company is quite large and it would be too bad to close her down. If they did the Government would not get 50c. on the dollar. Why? Because the outlet for the whale fishery is good and the price of whale oil is away up but getting the fish is another matter. They had a poor year last year, worse than the year before and it would be interesting to watch this year. I don't think the Committee is quite justified in thinking the outlook is good. The market outlook yes, but we can't anticipate how many whales.

MR. SMALLWOOD: For the six years before last year they averaged two hundred a year and last year it dropped to 158. I was most concerned, that is why I asked for the figures to learn whether it was a downward trend, catching a large number and then less and less. There was no downward trend for the six years. Last year it dropped but they lost a whole month due to a ship's boiler bursting, and blew up.

MR. RUSSELL: This is one thing which has been done by the Government since I left, so that I won't feel any doubts when I comment on it. One thought which occurs to me is, this Company has a credit in New York or Boston on account of some money owed from last year's operation and are getting payment so much a month starting 15 July, which is more than enough to cover $50,000 and the bank knows that and it still won't make a $50,000 loan without a government guarantee. I find it hard to believe but it must be true, it is certainly worth commenting on. Would the bank have made it without a government guarantee, if the Government had stayed out would the loan have been made on the security of the money due?

MR. SMALLWOOD: I can assure my honourable friend the bank refused to do it and it was only afterwards we came on the scene.

MR. RUSSELL: Is the bank in doubt of the security?

MR. HIGGINS: And what amount is paid in?

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is a risk the company takes, as a matter of fact the company involved, to whom they sold the fish solubles last year, were simply unable to pay for it except in these monthly payments. They found themselves short of liquid capital though they are worth millions of dollars. It is not fair to mention their name as it is well known in Newfoundland. It is an American firm worth millions who find themselves for the time being short of liquid capital. They have made an arrangement through a bank in Boston and the bank here to pay in five monthly instalments.

MR. HIGGINS: Just so as they pay it back, that is the only reason.

MR. FAHEY: The Premier said that in reference to the last six years there was no downward trend except last year, well that reminds me of the text of the Bible, seven good years and seven lean years. Well, if there are to be seven good years and seven lean years and the Government comes back with an Act and asks the Honourable House to pass an Act that those companies when they have six good years have to put away a sinking fund to take care of the seven lean years, I would support that Bill, but here is a case brought into the House where a company has had six good years with no downward trend whatsoever except one lean year, and yet they come back to the House and in addition to their original loan ask for another amount of $50,000 to bring their amount up to $350,000. Now, I think unless the Government—perhaps they are wiser on that side of the House than we are and may have better advisers on the Mainland or something like that—I think unless the Government is going to continue with the policy of lending money out to everyone they may come along one of those days and ask a loan for some individual to start a bullseye store. I think it would be good Government Policy if every time they lend money to a firm or corporation up in the hundreds of thousands of dollars, they should tell them, during their good years to create a sinking fund so as to get by in lean years and not have to come back and ask the Government to assist them at the expense of the taxpayers. I would call that a good policy and a good Act but at the present time the way we are heading with the loans given out I am afraid that in the very near future they will have to up and say no more loans, and then those people will have to find some way or another during their good years to set aside money to take care of their lean years. I don't see why, although those firms may be giving quite a bit of employment, nevertheless I don't think the Government should go on year after year putting money into private enterprise without seeing to it that these companies during their good years provide for their lean years so that the taxpayers won't be left holding the bag.

MR. HIGGINS: What was the date of the first loan?

MR. SMALLWOOD: That was passed in the last session of the House.

MR. CASHIN: What happened to that money?

MR. SMALLWOOD: They put a considerable number of new plants down there. My honourable friend, the member for Harbour Main-Bell Island, I know he did not intend to do it, misquoted me. I did not say they had six good years, I said that for six years there had been no trend to indicate a falling off in the number of whales caught.

MR. FAHEY: I stand corrected.

MR. SMALLWOOD: If they had had six good years they would not need to come in and ask for a loan. They had six good years from the standpoint of a number of whales but the last two or three years were anything but good, the oil market as you are probably aware went completely to the dogs altogether. Oil became a drug on the market and they had severe losses. That is why they had to come in here for a loan. I see in the paper tonight the whaling operations have begun at Williamsport. There are two ships now ready and the other is on dock leaving next week.

MR. CASHIN: Bought last year? Two hundred whales for three ships in a year is nothing.

MR. SMALLWOOD: As I understand, when a whale is killed the length of time it takes to bring the whale to the plant determines whether or not it is No. 1, 2 or 3 oil. When a ship is able to get the whale in immediately, you get No. 1 oil but it takes much time to come in and go out again and it may lose the whole if it stays out, so they killed the whale and another ship took it in. Now, they have an additional ship for towing the whales and when brought in such a way to the plant the oil is fresher and in that way as in others their prospects are, I hope that I am right, but I believe their prospects are better. I can't guarantee such, all I can do is lend them the money, public money to try and prevent them from folding up and keeping the industry going. If after that they don't get the whales or something else happens, we can be blamed for loaning the money but if they are successful and pay back I suppose we will get some credit for preventing their closing up. What are we going to be in this Province, dizzy from starting industries and dizzy from seeing them fold up? Are we going to have one fold up for every one started?

MR. CASHIN: This is a highly speculative one. You brought out the point I was trying to make that they have to fish a long ways, that they are drifting off the land and you have to go further and that brings us around to the Norwegian way of having floating factories move along and manufacture the whales aboard the ship. I don't think it is an awful lot of difference whether they are brought in tomorrow when killed today, it is towed in, flung upon the slip and the fat taken off and then the carcass is taken and pulled to another slip. Now, in British Columbia 35 or 40 years ago they were chopped up and thrown in tanks and steamed and the number two oil is then obtained, then the bone, etc., is put in the grinder and the guano is made. Now, if they towed that whale in a couple of days after it is killed it does not hurt the No. 1 or No. 2 oil. But it gets more difficult as they have to go further and it costs more to tow and they had a big ship last year costing a thousand dollars a day, I suppose. I wish them every success. I don't want to knock them, they made a mess of the herring business last year and I suppose about $375,000 has gone up in smoke. But if they folded up today the Government would not get a dollar, they have to keep going like the story of a certain business man in town many years ago. The bank was pressing him for money and, as the story goes, he went to them and wanted $100,000 to buy fish, when they refused he handed over the books and he said: "Now all right you are in the fish business." So we are in the whaling business now right up to our necks, that is the position. He can hand over the business tomorrow and the gentleman can say, "All right you are in the whaling business, carry on."

MR. FOGWILL: It is a whale of a business all right.

MR. SMALLWOOD: There is a change in the title: "An Act to Make Provisions for Making of loans to Certain Companies and the United Church Board of Education for St. John's," because it is not a company of course.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments. Ordered read a third time now.

Read a third time, ordered passed and title be as amended.

Third reading of Bill "An Act to Repeal Certain Newfoundland Statutes." Read a third time, ordered passed and title be as on the Order Paper.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, the House might care now to go in finally to Committee on Supply, the final figures departmentally and the grand total we could have thus inserted in the printed estimates and I think the procedure is that the Committee recommends resolutions be introduced to give effect to the Supply Bill. The Committee merely recommends that resolutions be introduced to give effect to the estimates.

MR. FOGWILL: A point of information, are we going into Committee on Supply or Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means after this?

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is the form, to go in and rise at once because the speeches have all been made and the motion put and the Committee goes in and rises immediately as there is no business to do.

MR. FOGWILL: On previous occasions in Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means there was a question period as to how certain items of revenue had been arrived at.

MR. SMALLWOOD: No, when the Committee goes in on Ways and Means nothing happens except the proposer of the motion moves the Committee rise and report having considered the matter referred and not ask to sit again. When presenting the Budget Speech it is made on motion that the House now go into Committee of Ways and Means and on that Motion, the Budget is delivered and on that motion other people speak and when all have spoken the motion is put, the motion on which everyone can speak, that then the House goes into Committee and rises at once. It has nothing to do as its work is completed. That is the universal custom.

MR. CASHIN: I don't know what the rule is now, but I brought in three budgets and moved the House into Committee and we went into Committee and I delivered the budget in Committee which has not been done now. On motion we go into Committee, the budget is delivered but formerly the budget was presented in Committee, we then had the Revenue Act which we don't have today and a schedule of taxation in the budget we do not have today. You have to bring in a special Act today for taxation and it is an entirely different matter than in the old Responsible Government days when we always went into Committee of the Whole to deliver the budget; everyone I remember now for thirty years, everyone would go into Committee of the Whole and all members had the right to speak on the budget, but it is superfluous.

MR. SMALLWOOD: This Committee merely records the amount, then they are printed in the resolutions. Now, Mr. Chairman, if the honourable members will jot them down they will find them in the front page of the estimates. If any honourable member is doubtful about any of the figures I would be glad to repeat the ones of which he is in doubt.

Mr. Chairman, I move these sixteen resolutions calling for the amounts set opposite the various items or heads of expenditure and I propose the Committee recommend a Bill be brought in giving effect to these resolutions.

MR. CASHIN: Mr. Chairman, there is just one thing I would like to ask, something that happened in my absence; unfortunately I was not here when the Heads of Departments vote was discussed. Now, last year there was an item in the estimates for cottage hospitals, a cottage hospital for Ferryland. I have seen it in here again for this year and I just want to get it straight. Is it the intention of the Government to do it this year or to put it in from year to year? If not I would like to see it out as it would be just as well.

MR. SMALLWOOD: May I inform my honourable friend and ask him to believe that it is sincere. From a personal view I am all in favour and want to see it and the amount is in the estimates to pay for it. Now, I don't want to see him get angry with me at all and I hope he won't get angry with some civil servant. I see he is beginning to get angry already as soon as I say the word civil servant. We want to see it built but at the same time we are anxious that our honourable friend won't get one bit of credit.

MR. CASHIN: The government has to get the credit, they have to find the money.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is right and I will let the honourable Minister of Health speak for himself. Only a day or two ago I asked him about it and if I understand correctly, he feels identically as I do and I dare say between us all there will be that hospital but you must allow the department and the Government to decide where it is to go.

MR. CASHIN: So long as it is in the District where it ought to be.

MR. SMALLWOOD: But I would rather let the Minister speak for himself on his views.

HON. JAMES R. CHALKER (Minister of Public Health): Mr. Chairman, it is the intention of the Department of Health to have a hospital somewhere in Ferryland District. We have not as yet decided where. The reason it has not been built in preference to the other three now under construction is due to the close proximity to St. John's and the availability to the people of that district to come to a large medical centre such as St. John's, at the present time compared with Fogo, Springdale and Channel. I am sure the honourable and gallant member will agree with our decision. As I have stated before, Mr. Chairman, we are definitely interested in getting that cottage hospital and I have already talked with several people who have come to see me on the various locations and my intention is to see the honourable and gallant member in a short time, and work out the definite position where it goes. I will give him the credit of his position in the House and we will see that it is built.

MR. CASHIN: I appreciate the statement of the honourable Premier and the honourable Minister of Public Health. I don't want any credit for it and could not get it if I wanted it, because the Government has to find the money, and if they want to keep the credit they can say they are not going to build. I am not going to get angry with any civil servant today no matter what happens and I resent that sort of thing. When we vote in this House and the civil servants say, "No we are not going to do it," their job is to do what this House and the Government tell them. I appreciate the reply of the honourable Minister of Public Health. As to where they want to put it, wherever is the most strategic place for it in the District that is the place to put it, and I think you will find that the people up in that section of the District can't come down to this end, these people have to come into St. John's to try and get in the Hospital and when they come in they are told, here is your notice from the Doctor; come back in about ten days from now, which is mighty unsatisfactory. In the meantime such a person may have a chance to go fishing, when the fishing season is on and is waiting to get fixed up. The hospital in St. John's is no good for them, it is crowded all the time. I understand that and you can't tell me anything I don't know about this hospital business, I have been mixed up with them all trying to get people in and out of them. However, I appreciate the answer and I think the people of Ferryland will appreciate it just as much, as they are to be benefited, not me. I am not looking for any credit for it. They can tell me, if I go back, whether I did my job right or wrong. I will leave it to them and not try to steal political credit, for that matter my political record is there for a long while and I will leave it to them when the time comes if I want to go back there. Maybe I will go somewhere else and give you fellows a bit of a fight.

MR. FAHEY: Mr. Chairman—

MR. CHAIRMAN: If the honourable members will permit me, those totals have not been passed. Last year each one of the items was passed and the total after the item. All items and totals carried.

Moved the Committee rise, report having passed certain resolutions and recommend that a Bill be introduced to give effect to same.

Ordered referred now.

Resolutions now read a second time.

MR. FAHEY: Mr. Speaker, is it now in order to speak?

MR. SPEAKER: No, there is no debate on the adoption of reports.

The honourable Minister asked leave to introduce a Bill to give effect to the resolutions.

Read a first time, ordered read a second time tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, before you call No. 18, I wish to make a very brief announcement on behalf of my honourable friend the Attorney General who is presently speaking to the debate on second reading, and who I assume will now speak again when the order is called and will either complete his speech now or not as he may choose. After he has spoken, Mr. Speaker, I am going to ask him to move the adjournment of the debate for the purpose of enabling him to speak again when the debate is resumed. Whether he avails himself of that opportunity or not, of course, is his affair, but when he moves the adjournment of the debate I am going to ask him to move it until next week, say Tuesday or Wednesday, so that every member of the House will have every opportunity to read the Bill and to think about it, so that when the debate begins in earnest every member will be thoroughly familiar with the Bill and so that again when it comes into Committee of the Whole every member will be fully prepared with the questions and observations to discuss it line for line, clause for clause, and word for word. Now, I don't know if it is any use asking if a Bill of such importance as this should be adequately reported in the press. The Attorney General had the floor for nearly an hour last night and went over the Bill pretty thoroughly, and one daily paper gave it three inches of space this morning and the evening paper gave it one inch. Now, if that is honest, generous service to the public, what is the use of talking, we might as well be dumb. But let me say again what I have said before and which as yet no paper has printed. If you want one week, two weeks, one, two or three months you can have it; if you want to debate it until Christmas you may do so and we are here to debate it as long as you wish to debate it. Will the press report this in common fairness!

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Speaker, when this debate concluded yesterday—

MR. FOGWILL: If the honourable gentleman would yield for one moment—I understand from the honourable the Premier, he has suggested that further debate on this question would be adjourned probably to sometime next week. I would suggest, Mr. Speaker, if the honourable gentleman now continuing the debate, if he will take it in good part or not, I don't know, but I would suggest adjournment until next Friday.

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Speaker, when I moved the adjournment of the debate yesterday I had, as the honourable member knows, tried to discuss the Bill intelligently and in detail.

I have finished my remarks and the motion should be put.

MR. RUSSELL: Sir, I am sorry to have to accept this as what might be the latest opportunity to speak on second reading. Personally, I want to say that although I am only prepared to go so far in my expression of sympathy for the Official Opposition, yet I feel they are entitled to a little more sympathetic understanding than they have been getting here. I cannot at this time contribute a great deal to the debate in two hours, as a matter of fact it seems to me the honourable Premier and the honourable Attorney General are both inclined to oversimplify this question. The honourable the Premier explained at length and in detail certain things about the Bill, explained it lucidly and I am sure when he was finished there should not have been any doubt in the minds of any members who had an average education of say grade nine or ten, as to what the Bill is about. I refer to the actual wording of the Bill, the literary content, the meaning of the sentences in the Bill, if someone had to study it for homework and answer questions on it next day. The Premier described it as if it were an instrument or machine which the Government was building in order to work through to the administration of certain phases of economic development. I use that analogy, a machine, an instrument, a tool. The Attorney General, I understand has since taken it apart and held up to the House each part and said as each part was explained that there was nothing in the world that could be objected to in that. Now, I have some acquaintance with it, with the investigations that prompted the Bill. I had some considerable experience with that before I left the Government. The thing had not been agreed on before I left and even now there are some little changes. As soon as I got the Bill the other day I took it and looked for two or three things to see if there had been changes. Before the honourable Premier began to speak, in one sense I understood the Bill but in another sense far more important, I don't understand it now.

MR. CURTIS: If you had stayed here yesterday afternoon you would understand it better.

MR. RUSSELL: Not a bit, because I am able to go over it word for word and section by section and see what it means. It is something like little Peter when he listened to an old man describing the Battle of Blenheim and when he finally ended up he asked, what good has come of it, all this wonderful battle. The old man said: "I don't know," said he "but it was a famous victory." All we know about this corporation is that it is going to be a famous company but what I want to know is: what is it going to do after it is formed?

Now, Mr. Speaker, getting back again to the matter of time to study this matter. As a matter of fact it is no good for me to make a suggestion, the Opposition asked for a month, but a month is no good for me, if I study it for six months there are still a lot of things I don't understand about it: Exactly why it is set up. What is the machine supposed to do and how it is supposed to do it? The gesture is generous and I believe sincere when we are told the other side of the House is willing to debate the Bill for any number of months but will only debate it within the limitations set down for debate. The honourable gentleman, the member for Ferryland, for instance, did all that the rules allowed him in matter of time and there are only two or three others over here and if they all took up the time and used all the time allowed it would only take two or three days as far as second reading is concerned. One of them has already appealed for postponement and probably lost his right to speak in the debate. I am hoping the House will be generous, he has paid quite a price, when a month was asked for and rejected. I say a month would not be any help to me whatsoever. But what could they do if the Government is not willing to give a month, do as they did and state what they would give because it is rather difficult for the next honourable member of the Opposition to guess what the Government meant, or he could make a motion and have that turned down and so lose his opportunity to speak. So I am very happy to see that it is the intention of the Government to give a little more time to these gentlemen. After all, they represent a party, I represent nobody, I have no one to consult, no advisors, no party leader but they may be in a different position. Anyway let that pass.

Now, I don't know yet, but I want to know of just what benefit if any this corporation will be. We have two statements both from the Government, one is and I quote: "It is expedient for the production of the industrial and economic development of the Province of Newfoundland and for the development of its natural resources and the improvement of the standard of living of the people." The corporation is formed along those lines. And the second statement is that (there I may misquote, I am only trying to interpret the meaning of what was said there): "Industrialists would be companies who would be willing to begin some sort of development in Newfoundland but won't do it or may be delayed from doing it simply because this corporation does not yet exist." Now take that second statement, that there are some industrial companies who would like to begin something in this country. Have these companies been started yet so we can go and contact them. If they are not started we can't start.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Would the honourable gentleman let me explain: Harriman-Ripley has famous and numerous connections as my honourable friend knows with a vast number of firms throughout the United States, and Harriman-Ripley, when the Corporation is formed, has undertaken to contact and get them in here this summer prospecting.

MR. RUSSELL: Well, honestly, I don't lay the same importance on a statement like that by Harriman-Ripley as the Government does. I cannot. It seems to me by this time, even without such a corporation there are companies in Newfoundland today who came here and started industries without such a corporation and I heard of other companies when I was in the Government, in the Office of the Minister of Natural Resources, and I know it is still going on. If they are interested in the development of minerals and resources they are perfectly willing to come and talk with the Government and make the proper arrangements with the Government, but if they find nothing here worthwhile to justify an industry there is nothing they can do about it unless such companies think it is worthwhile to do so. For several months now we have been hearing about the possibility of old mines opening in Green Bay and York Harbour Area and the possibility of new ones being started. These are business people, people anxious to make a dollar when and wherever they can, and are only too delighted if they see an opportunity down here of operating a mine or paper mill and they would be glad to do it. How many others would come because of the existence of this corporation? That is a matter on which I have not the same cheerful optimism as the Government has.

Now, Sir, if I were sure, and I am not, that this Corporation were necessary for the proper development of economic resources, I am not sure, in fact, I am not very hopeful about it at all, if I were certain then I would probably want to weigh the benefits that we will get from this Act against what we are losing. Here is what we are giving away: Section nine of the Bill. I am not so much interested in section eight. I am not particularly interested in maps and whether it is 21,800 or 19,000 square miles, whatever it is. Section nine relieves our minds a lot:

"If the Corporation wishes to have timber up to a maximum of one hundred thousand (100,000) cords annually from the area covered by the Agreement entered into on the ninth day of June, 1951, between the Government of Newfoundland and Doctor Arthur Siegheim supplied to it or an assignee for the purpose of its or the assignee's operations in areas in the vicinity of the said area, the Government of Newfoundland shall, if in its opinion the request is reasonable, instruct the said Doctor Arthur Siegheim or his assignee to cut and supply the timber in accordance with the terms of the said Agreement."

In addition to certain special rights the Government, in accordance with agreements incorporated in the Bill must give the rest of our unalienated crown property, with the consent of the Lieutenant Governor in Council. Now, Sir, I am not willing—

MR. SMALLWOOD: To whom—the Corporation?

MR. RUSSELL: Well then, from then on the members of the House have no further interest, no further jurisdiction over what happens to—yes, all the presently unalienated public domain will be between the Corporation and the Lieutenant Governor in Council, that is the Cabinet. I would like, Sir, to see that every time any important concession is given a company under an agreement between the company and the Government that that agreement is at least brought in here for ratification even if after the agreement is concluded.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Even a Crown Corporation?

MR. RUSSELL: Yes, even if it were the Cabinet itself. I still want to see the House of Assembly have the final say. I am probably getting a bee in my bonnet in thinking the House of Assembly, the people should not be stripped of this authority or responsibility or power and section No. 9 does that very effectively, if and when the Bill is passed. Now, that Section No. 9 not only takes this power from the House of Assembly or the people's representatives but the corporation may assign or may apportion those things to other interests as they see fit. I admit the Lieutenant Governor in Council has a veto power in some things but not in all. But the power is gone from the House of Assembly, and most of the remaining part of the Public Domain is gone under section No. 9.

Now, with regard to public funds and public guarantees of public funds, I am opposed of course to the nine hundred thousand simply because this Act asks us to vote nine hundred thousand dollars to go into the funds of the corporation without knowing what is being done with it after it gets there. It may be a manufacturing plant or a paper mill may end up owning half those shares. As a matter of fact not more than 50% is put aside as capital surplus of the corporation and we don't know where it is going eventually. It will be a matter for the corporation to decide and it may or may not be in that particular the right of the Lieutenant Governor in Council to have the last say, and as far as I am concerned will not have. We are voting money here without knowing where it is going to end up eventually. But can any of us guarantee additional money to the Government to spend outright to a total of ten million dollars? If it should ever be necessary to invest more than $10,000 of course the Government would have to come back to the House probably for an amendment to have an additional amount voted as has been done by one or two Bills passed already. But up to and including ten million dollars we are asked to guarantee. The Government could say to us in effect, "Look it has always been the custom and a right and proper one that before the Government spent or pledged or requisitioned public funds, to come and ask the House or at least if they had to do it in an emergency they would come later on and tell the House and ask the House to ratify and bring in a Bill to justify it. We would do it and the Government could say afterwards when they got away to themselves: "We got away with that but let us be more careful next time, let us make sure before we guarantee a dollar of public money we have a case that even the Opposition will back us up in." That is the sort of thing, the knowledge that the House of Assembly was going to criticize, probably to approve but to reprove gently at the same time. That is the sort of thing that makes for good government.

When I became a member of the House that was a part of my duty not merely to try and get some money for my district, to get some men sent to Seven Islands from my district, or try and get a road, but to join with other members of the House to try and see to it that good legislation was passed, and secondly, that public funds were properly safeguarded and voting for this $10,000,000 has the same effect as saying, I don't care what happens to it, you take it. The Cabinet, the Lieutenant Governor in Council, this Corporation may guarantee it in such a way as it sees fit, maybe on things which if they came in before the House I would not agree with and I am giving away my right to disagree. I cannot do it.

Now, Sir, while we are on the subject of Government Guarantees, I would like to make a comment or two. There is the famous case in our economic history where a large amount was guaranteed in the case of Bowaters. Now, Sir, I say that there is no similarity between the guarantee made then and the one we are asked to make here in this Bill. In the first place the guarantee to Bowaters was voted by the House of Assembly who voted for it and knew what they were voting for. In this case I don't know a thing in the world, I have no idea what type of industry is involved. As a matter of fact, as I will show in a few minutes there is only one industry, only one mentioned in the whole Bill with any amount or degree of definiteness, and I am not sure that I would be willing to guarantee money for that one. Another point, I make this statement and it may sound very foolish but to me it seems very sensible: If we had to pony up a great part of the amount that we guaranteed on bonds in the case of Bowaters, if we had to pony up several millions, the Government of Newfoundland would still be making a wise decision and history would have backed them up, as they would still be making a good bargain in a country such as Newfoundland was then and was up to a few years ago. It would then actually pay a government to invest money in an industry and lose it, it would actually pay a government to guarantee such bonds, Sir, and have to make good on those guarantees, because I suppose if the Government had had to come through when the company was in difficulty or had lost two or three million dollars, what was that in comparison to the revenue the Newfoundland Government received as a result of the existence of that industry? Such revenue as we could not reap today because the sources of those revenues are not longer open to us as a Province. I am not talking against Confederation, I am still a confederate but these are facts. Everybody who ever worked in an industry in Newfoundland up to two years ago brought in things that customs duties were payable on and the Government received the customs duties or the income tax and all the various forms of revenue that were open to a sovereign government. Today, Sir, things are different and I do want to appeal to the Government, in future when thinking about guarantees, to remember that the guarantee of loans and guarantee of bonds is not the fruitful or the wise thing it once was. It may be still wise in some cases but there are some cases—if I had them all listed here, some I agreed with some disagreed with, I am not saying a word against the principle of guaranteeing loans or bonds. When I was with the Government I supported some, others I disagreed with and did not support them on their merits, but I do say, I have listened here and to the National Convention on talks about the country's economy, about all the money the Government was losing on the railway and other ventures. If the Government lost some years a million dollars on the railway and paid out five in salaries and wages and out of that five million got in a million and a quarter back in revenue, that was no loss. That is why a little country like we had could build a railway and acquire only a reasonably moderate debt. That is why it does not hurt the Federal Government as much as you think when they have, from time to time, deficits on certain organizations of that type because they get back an income almost equal or the company does, but the Government certainly gets back revenue from new money that would not have been there to get but for those industries and when you get back more income that way out of new money than you pay in then you can afford to do it. But we cannot finance those industries any longer so blithely as we once did, we have to be more careful. So I urge the Government to keep that in mind. It is not enough to say it will put people to work, putting people to work may or may not be economic, I am as strong for it as anyone else and when it is shown to me to my satisfaction that the passing of this Bill will give a basis for economic development and will result in new industries here which we would not otherwise get here, then I will begin to ponder the next question, if we are not paying too much for it.

The honourable Premier has explained that by our association with these houses, and honestly, Mr. Speaker, I don't know enough to their detriment to say anything bad about them, but by our association with them we keep ourselves from having an outright Crown Corporation one hundred percent owned by the Crown, we therefore avoid the pitfalls of a State Socialism because if we owned it one hundred percent I think it would be State Socialism. Also we will become associated with some of the greatest names of the financial world, but, Sir, just look at section 14 for a moment. Let us see how far from State Socialism it is, if that is what our position would be, how secure and on how firm a foundation is our association with those financial houses. "The Government should be bound, within thirty days after receipt of such notice, to purchase at a price per share equal to their then "sale value" This beautiful mixture of private enterprise and the Government would make it then a one hundred percent Crown Corporation, Government owned. I am not saying that would develop but to those who don't like the idea of State Socialism, which is frowned upon a little bit by the Government when advancing that bit of information as one reason why we own that corporation 90% and 10% rather than one hundred percent, and of course there is the prestige of our association with those great names, yet 30 days' notice and we have to buy it. I cannot leave section 14 without saying something else. "The Government has then to buy them at a price per share equal to the then "Sale Value." Now I believe there is a clause here which mentions one dollar plus. Well supposing they are not worth one dollar, should they be a dollar minus? These big corporations reserve the right at any time by giving thirty days' notice to say to the Government; "Here you buy our shares, you pay us $150,000 for them and take them." At any time in the four years, they may not be worth one hundred thousand dollars but they say: "You pay us $100,000 and take them." It is a case of heads I win, tails you lose.

MR. VARDY: The Government has not to take them.

MR. RUSSELL: It says here, the Government should. It looks like a very strong word. I wish it were, "The Government may," or if it does not, let someone else. But it says should.

MR. SMALLWOOD: What is wrong with the value of the shares, the selling price?

MR. RUSSELL: The value of the shares is at least a dollar and maybe more if the price of shares has gone up, then the Government will have to buy them at an increased value.

MR. SMALLWOOD: If the price has gone down the Government has to buy them at a smaller price, they still have to buy them.

MR. RUSSELL: One of the reasons why I think the second reading of this Bill is so important, and I think the Government honestly agrees with me it is, because with one or two exceptions it has to be passed as it is or not at all when it comes into the Committee of the Whole stage and to ask the Government to amend and change it, it is just as well to be fair and realize there has been long negotiations with people outside the Province and may, when they come here, have some sort of hint from other parties to this agreement, and the House probably will be willing to give way to them. I don't think that is so. I think if we have an amendment in connection with it we cannot do it without having to delay and refer back to the other parties.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We can have them here for that purpose and we are willing to accept any amendment to improve the Bill from the Newfoundland standpoint. That is obvious and I ought not to have to say it.

MR. RUSSELL: I will say this, the statement the Premier made about industrialists not being willing to come here, I will say I think he believes, honestly believes that industrialists can be deterred either directly or indirectly by the fact of having no Corporation. I don't believe that statement but I believe he means it, but I would like it very much if such industrialists were here or are going to be here while this is being debated.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I mean a representative of Harriman-Ripley is here.

MR. RUSSELL: If he has a representative here now I would enjoy very much to dig down and get at the bottom of it and find out why there is any great difference whether there is such a corporation or not.

MR. SPEAKER: I am not quite clear whether the Government wishes to sit again tonight. If it is not your intention to sit again tonight, the debate will have to be adjourned.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Before you call the six o'clock, Mr. Speaker, the honourable member having moved the adjournment of the debate, I move the remaining orders be deferred and the House at its rising adjourn until tomorrow Monday at 3:00 of the clock.

MR. SPEAKER: I have not yet heard the motion to adjourn the debate.

Moved and seconded the debate be adjourned.

Carried.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I move that the House at its rising adjourn until tomorrow at 3:00 of the clock and I do that in the very sincere hope that in the interim honourable members will have some opportunity to study the Bill, think about it so that the debate can continue on Monday and if no one is prepared on Monday to speak the debate will be adjourned until Tuesday, and if no one is prepared on Tuesday it will be adjourned until Wednesday, but I don't think we will want to adjourn after Wednesday. In the meantime on Monday and Tuesday any member on this side who wishes to speak may do so. I have no desire whatever, I keep repeating, to rush the debate.

The House adjourned accordingly.

MONDAY, June 11, 1951.

The House opened at three of the clock.

MR. FAHEY: Mr. Chairman, in dealing with those clauses, mostly all of them from one to five are dealing with franchise. That is the purpose, the Utility Board will have the right to grant franchises to whom it may seem fit. Now, my contention on that score is the fact the regulations are in effect now and if those regulations in so far as carrying passengers are concerned, the conditions of the buses or seven or five passenger cars should be kept up to certain standards and should not be overloaded in so far as to carry more passengers; there is not enough space to seat more than twenty-five persons. It is the part of the Board to see the machines are in perfect mechanical condition with no danger to the public but I don't agree with the franchise. Competition is the life of trade and when you give franchises to any group or individual and stop others doing business you are cutting in on the main livelihood. If a man can afford to get a bus and it is mechanically up to the requirements of the various standards in so far as safety is concerned he should be allowed to operate whether he is going in debt or not. There may be cases where the Board should come in and interfere, it is necessary for the Board to have that right but I am opposed to these particular clauses as they stand.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I take strong exception to the views expressed by my honourable friend. It is rather late in the day, in the century, to oppose giving to a Government or a Government body the right to give or not to give franchises for the use of certain types of public conveyances provided at public expense. In every State of America and without exception, in every Province of Canada, without exception, or I ought to say with the exception of Newfoundland at this moment, authority has been given to the Government or to some government body to give or withhold franchises for certain purposes, telephones, telegraphs, radio broadcasts, the movement of aircraft, the conveyance of freight or passengers or mail by aircraft, the regulation of taxis. The giving or withholding of franchises for taxis is extreme but for ships, ferries, motor buses, motor trucks all of those things in all parts of the United States and all parts of Canada, except Newfoundland are subject not only to Government regulations but to the giving or withholding of government franchises. The giving or withholding of franchise may be done directly or indirectly by the Government or by a body set up under the authority of the Legislature and in this particular Bill it is a body set up under the Legislature of this House to whom the present Bill proposes that the right to give or withhold franchises be given. There is nothing in the world that can be said, not a valid argument used, against the purpose of this clause in this Bill. These clauses follow precedent originated in the United Kingdom, in the United States and in Canada where all bus lines and all buses operate under franchise as do virtually all other means of communication and transportation.

MR. HIGGINS: Exclusive franchise?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Frequently exclusive but not always. This does not give the right only to issue exclusive franchises. There are no doubt occasions when exclusive franchises are the thing to give and there are many occasions when they are not. There will be cases where more than one franchise ought to be given or franchises given to more than one firm or operator.

I will be very much interested to hear any solid, sound argument that any honourable member can produce here in Committee against the principle set forth in this particular clause now before the Committee.

DR. POTTLE: Mr. Chairman, on this clause my point is that there is no provision made under this clause for any franchise given to be reviewed. There is no provision for either revision or cancellation. I think there should be a provision for a review annually or at the discretion of the Board.

MR. FOGWILL: Mr. Chairman, there is one point in the Bill that strikes me. The honourable Premier has pointed out the fact that franchises or exclusive franchises are issued in all other Provinces and in the United States and in England. The fact remains, Sir, that we have a number of bus drivers driving today in their own buses who have built up a business and built it up the hard way. Now, the effect of this Bill to me, Sir, is that those people will be put out of business after investing their life-time savings in a bus or two or three buses. They operate a satisfactory service in the area where I live, particularly St. John's West and the highway coming into St. John's. Now, the effect will be that those people will lose the opportunity to earn a living on something built up by them and if they have built it up and given satisfactory service there is no reason at this time that legislation should be brought in to deny them that right. There is one other thing in connection with this. Under this Bill additional fees are to be charged and, what is more, the fares to be charged the public by the bus drivers are to be set by the Public Utilities Commission and this Bill will have the effect that these people will lose the opportunity to earn a living, the Board of Public Utilities will receive additional revenue and also the public will pay a higher rate for transportation.

MR. SMALLWOOD: There is nothing in the wide world to show that the Public Utilities would increase the fares. You are just as justified in assuming the Board of Public Utilities will reduce the fares. I have had some personal experience very recently of this very matter. I went or I tried to go, at least, one day to the Birch Mill. I spent twenty minutes or half an hour virtually every day in there when the work started in earnest, there were probably one hundred and fifty men employed. Virtually all lived some distance away from the plant and there arose of course the problem of getting back and forth. The contractor, Mr. Day, contacted various bus companies and suggested to them that, as there were one hundred and fifty men working there who had to get back and forth daily, there might be some trade to be done by way of buses in there to move men back and forth, and one or several could come in there to do the job. That was done, with what result? At once, having arranged with one or two bus companies to have there the necessary number of buses to pick the men up at certain points in the city, early enough to land them on the job in time to begin on the job, and return them when the day was over, and be there waiting for them at night when they checked out. Having arranged all that, what happened? The next thing six or eight buses were there, with the result the original buses pulled out, got disgusted as it had now become a scramble and the next thing the bus rate went up from ten to fifteen cents to twenty cents a man. Forty cents a day, all due to lack of control and lack of regulations and my honourable friend must not assume for one moment that this Bill gives authority to increase fares but rather authority to decrease fares. At this moment, except for the City Council of St. John's, my impression is that no one in Newfoundland has any authority at the moment to regulate or confer franchises or fix fares except the City Council within the City Limits, and they can do it only with the authority of an Act passed in this House. This House has already given the City Council that authority to do it within the City Limits, not outside where there is no authority to give or withhold a franchise and that is all this Bill does to give the authority to a public body, a board of public utilities commission. What is wrong with that? What is wrong with it?

MR. FAHEY: What is wrong with it? Lots of men spend a lifetime building up the service.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Who says they are now being stopped?

MR. FAHEY: I say so. Some big firm from the Mainland or some company or some individual in this country is getting it. The toiling masses suffer, for a franchise destroys competition which is the life of trade and I fail to see how when a dozen buses went in, the fare went up at the Birch Plant. I contend there is no need whatsoever for a franchise, we are getting all over the Island today good bus service, better I think than they could get with a franchise. When there is no franchise, competition takes care of it and the public gets good service but there are cases where the fares have been cut so much nobody is getting anything and in such cases, I say, yes, the board should work in fairness to the public and to those operating the buses and I think there is room for regulations. Buses should have emergency doors and so on and no person should be allowed to operate a bus not fit for the public to travel in but I do not, and I cannot, agree with the franchise to give control to companies and run out of business, the small man, who has spent a life-time building up that business.

MR. HIGGINS: Yes, and will be put out of business, to my mind it is nonsense, all of it.

MR. FOGWILL: I express the opinion the effect will be to drive the buses out of business. Now these people are giving good service particularly in the mornings. All you have to do is go out and see them coming in by the dozens. Good clean buses, I know it because I have to get up early to go to my regular work. They come from Pouch Cove, Flat Rock, Torbay and all the Southern Shore and Conception Bay with the people and get them in in time and in winter when the road is not plowed they get out and shovel and get in as they can and very few of these people are late in the mornings and most of them who come in are paid by the hour and have to get in early or lose time. The different bus drivers are giving good service and will be put right out of business.

MR. SMALLWOOD: My honourable friend has no right to assume, I am talking as a matter of logic, we know the honourable gentleman has a constitutional right but he has no right in logic to assume this Bill refers only to St. John's. There are other parts of Newfoundland besides St. John's and the Avalon Peninsula. It is badly needed in Humber, presumably, and I heard the honourable member for Grand Falls declare it was badly needed. This House should not fall into the mistake that St. John's or the Avalon Peninsula are the whole of Newfoundland. There are other parts of Newfoundland besides. The second point is this: The honourable gentleman has no right in logic to assume the passing of this Bill means the Board of Public Utilities will at once drive out everyone from the highways leading into St. John's except one or two. That is what I inferred, probably I am wrong but the inference I made from the honourable gentleman's remarks is that a large number of the bus drivers on the roads in and out of St. John's may be at once driven off the road and put out of business. It is not right to assume so, to assume so is to assume we are full of prejudice and bigotry.

MR. FAHEY: Kindly allow me to make my own inferences. If the honourable Premier makes a statement, so long as I don't misquote him, he must allow me to make my own inferences from what he said and I have made exactly that inference, that you have a board of utilities down there who, if given authority to issue franchises, will at once drive all the small men off the roads.

MR. SMALLWOOD: No, it is not right to make a statement like that or to make that inference. Who are they, and what are they? They are a responsible government body who can be removed by the government, and up to this moment have not been guilty of anything like that and to prophesy they will be a dictatorship and all kinds of dire things are to happen because they are being set up—this afternoon we were told that, at once, as soon as they are given this power they are going to push all the little men off the road and have some foreign organization brought in to be given a monopoly in Newfoundland,—sheer trash and utter nonsense.

MR. HIGGINS: The honourable Premier has said there are other places besides St. John's and tells us that if Grand Falls and Corner Brook want it, it must go through. St. John's including Harbour Grace and all outlying districts, and it is all bunk and nonsense, dictatorial bunk, but there is a possibility that there may be a franchise granted to one party and that activity be given the right for that area.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I have no doubt whatsoever that every one of these arguments have been used on every single occasion in the other Provinces of Canada and in the 48 states of the United States of America when it was proposed to do exactly what this Bill proposed to do, that the government proposes setting up a dictatorship. These were back at the beginning of the century.

MR. HIGGINS: Many actions of the Government have been proven unjust too in the United States and in Canada.

MR. VARDY: Mr. Chairman, in view of the fact that St. John's enters into this, as a representative I think it is only fair the position of the members on this side who favour it and are vitally concerned with the welfare of their constituencies, and the condition of the bus service in St. John's, should be expressed also.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I don't think anybody is very anxious or would be a party to making them a dictatorship. My interpretation of this particular clause is that it gives the necessary protection for a properly run transportation service. It is the desire of a good many of the operators referred to by the honourable gentlemen on the other side, I have discussed it with a number of operators on the Southern Shore, Conception Bay and different parts of Avalon and they have pleaded time after time, why can't we have some protection against the unrestricted competition of fly-by-night drivers not making a living but cutting in when the moment suits them and taking the bread and butter out of the mouths of those trying to make a living from it, and I think it very important that this Act will enable the Public Utilities Commission to provide protection for responsible operators and that is one reason why I support the Act, because it will give protection to proper operators who have over a period of years built up a business conducted in an honest manner and we as the people's representatives have a right to give protection to them to do so. I see nothing in the Bill to have such repercussions. I have every confidence in the board and the administration is not going to permit any board which is a creature of the Government and this House to abuse its rights and privileges and powers bestowed upon them by this House, and this House has the right in time to say if they had done the things predicted and to remove them from office, as the Premier stated. And I would say, as a member of the House, he would be the first one to advocate it if an attempt such as that were made to in any way interfere with the rights of properly conducted bus services so as to discriminate against and put them out of business. I think, Mr. Chairman, the point has probably been over-exaggerated, the Bill is not going to put them out of business but is going to be the means of keeping them in and make a decent living if there is no unrestricted and unorganized competition.

HON. JAMES J. SPRATT (Minister of Provincial Affairs): Mr. Chairman, I thoroughly endorse the remarks of my honourable colleague and while appreciating the serious thoughts expressed by honourable members of the Opposition, I must admit that I was very concerned with the conditions referred to with regard to men operating cars and with regard to drivers who make it their main vocation, very concerned by it, and glad to hear the remarks on the other side and by the Premier, and those expressed by my honourable colleagues that it would benefit the very men who are seriously interested in the business. With that thought in mind and the knowledge that the institution of the law was for the betterment of the people generally instead of ignoring them, I support the matter and do feel, gentlemen, that there will be nothing done that will seriously effect these people or do harm or bring disappointment to anyone.

MR. JANES: Mr. Chairman, it rather amuses me to have the Opposition turn up and champion the cause of the little man, the little bus drivers. It would be well if sometime they would go to Adelaide Street and see the clap-traps that come in over Topsail Road and when we come to this House to bring in legislation to remove them it is a far greater service to the public of St. John's than is the attitude taken this afternoon with regard to a franchise. I think it is all out of order; the franchise was debated in second reading.

MR. CHAIRMAN: No it is not out of order, it is all right.

MR. JANES: No one says a franchise will be given, no one says it has to be given. If the service here on Avalon is a good service, and perhaps it is good in parts, but in parts it is bad and very bad and there is no reason why the Board of Public Utilities, when given power, there is no reason why they should not be able to improve the services and transportation. Supposing St. John's does not want it and Humber and Grand Falls do, they are serving a far greater area and operating out of Grand Falls to the whole of Green Bay and the whole of the West Coast and Corner Brook which is far more than the Avalon. You are going to be lost over here, you fellows, it is just as well to vote for it and have done with it.

MR. FAHEY: Dealing with that franchise, the last speaker made reference to certain claptraps in the bus service. I don't know if the honourable member is aware that before you can get a bus or car licence to carry passengers you must live up to certain regulations which are in existence now: even a private car if more than five years old—this year anyone having a 1942 car has to go and get a certificate from some established garage to say it is all right to run. Now, there are certain regulations for bus services and if there are traps, as referred to, on the road, there are regulations to take care of it and a member of the Government ought to be ashamed to say so when it comes under Public Works by admitting the fact they are not on the job to allow things like that on the road.

In so far as making a division between Corner Brook, the West Coast and St. John's that is old stuff and other people brought it up here to-day too. When speaking about the franchise I am not concerned more with St. John's than with Avalon, Grand Falls or Corner Brook. It may run the people out up there too if certain people are given a franchise, they have to get off the road, those we call free-lance operators, and when a franchise is given they have to get off the road. It might be playing politics to try and make a division between the country or the Province. Now other Provinces we hear have this Act passed long ago, but we are living in this Province and are interested in what is going ahead in this Province here.

HON. LESLIE R. CURTIS (Attorney General): That is why we are so backward.

MR. FAHEY: My dear man, we were told the other day we eat so much more fish on this Island than any Province on the Mainland. The franchise is issued by the Board which is set up by the Government. I don't see why the Government is so anxious to have this Board to give a franchise. I think it would be good government policy to see those machines are in good condition to take care of passengers, and competition is the life of trade, and if I have capital enough to spend a hundred thousand dollars tomorrow, it is my headache if I lose, and I don't see where it concerns the Government at all, excepting I went in and cut the rate and got the franchise in a round-about way. Then I think the Government should step in and set up a rate. As far as rates and inspection of machines are concerned the Government should see to it, but as far as franchises are concerned it is no business of the Government.

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Chairman, there are more things than the type of buses and the fares to be considered when considering the question of franchise. Now, there was a letter in the paper recently, where a bus driver dropped a lady passenger half way to St. John's and left her there and she had to find her own way in to St. John's. When a franchise is given there are conditions to the franchise and the bus must travel at regular intervals and must comply with certain standards, must have certain fares and no higher and the public must get service. It is all right to say the thing is well looked after now but can you say a bus leaves at a certain time and if the bus driver wants to stop and have a couple of drinks have you any assurance, that if he has a franchise he has to carry out the terms or lose it.

MR. FAHEY: Do they run on time in the City where they have a franchise?

MR. CURTIS: I know what it was like before we had the present system. There was anything from station wagons to seven passenger cars to buses not fit to drive in.

MR. FAHEY: That was only a make-shift.

MR. CURTIS: Do you think of the people travelling in St. John's and in the outposts?

MR. FAHEY: That was a make-shift. The Golden Arrow Co. had a franchise and gave it up and in the interim the people went in and serviced the public and then were kicked out. They were prepared to get new buses. As a matter of fact one company had come in and had several more ordered but they did not get the franchise and had to cancel it. When the Golden Arrow gave up those people got in there and gave the service to the public and I think the public appreciated it, but they were kicked out and the franchise given to some other company and I am afraid that will happen to some other people who have spent 20 years building up a business and some big concession will take over a bus service from St. John's to Port aux Basques and our friends from Green Bay will not have to worry then.

DR. POTTLE: The main reason I am rising is to make it abundantly clear that it will be understood in the House and reported in the Press that we are trying to protect civil rights. True it is not the position of the Opposition to be the defender of civil rights and the Government the destroyer but rather the contrary. I think we should be very clear about the two main parties concerned, one, the operators, and two, the public. Now on the side of the operator we are now out to protect him if he is giving good service and not prevent an operator from carrying on, but at the present time there is no protection. We are forgetting or are tending to forget that the people who are served need protection they are not getting under the present set-up. We may have one of two extremes, no regulations whatsoever, that is anarchy, or we may have a dictatorship by one person, that is autocracy, but somewhere in between we have the best system of all, democracy, to get regulations but at the same time not to make them so dictatorial that people have no rights at all. I think, Sir, we have here a middle course between anarchy, no regulations, or a dictatorship or autocracy, regulations by one party. Now, Sir, I see nothing in this Bill which would hamper anyone from carrying on and even incorporating two or three and obtain a franchise for one area. I will illustrate the example given here about a person making an investment and not being protected: Over and over again, I know, in my own District an operator spends most of his savings setting up a system which is well regulated and because he is apparently doing so well others go in and upset the fares, upset the regulations, upset the schedule where a route can accommodate just so many. The result is that man loses practically all his savings and he appeals to us or to the House to bring in some regulations on this matter. He may not get a franchise but this is an example of what is happening over the countryside. I know of instances in other districts which have not been heard from today. Not that we stoop to small politics but it is a matter of decent preservation. Now, Sir, I wanted to rise to point out and consolidate this point: It is not a question of the Government taking away civil rights and the Opposition defending them to the last ditch. The defense of civil rights is here in this Bill; at the present time there are a good many violations of civil rights in this connection. I should like to draw attention to another point of administration procedure in the Bill. I raise the point now that there is no provision for a time limit for franchises. There is another point in sub-clause (5) which refers to returns, I suggest that we make that a uniform matter, we get all kinds of information but nothing standardized. What the Board will need is certain information so that it will have standard information about all franchises. We might put that in the interpretation clause, then when we come down to line five repeat the same order so the Board will get uniform returns from all franchise operators.

MR. FAHEY: Now that we have that full stop taken care of.

DR. POTTLE: I don't think there is any point in a remark like that. I spent ten minutes illustrating a point and if there was a full stop at the end that is important sometimes too just the same as a franchise.

MR. FAHEY: If we were to grant a franchise to everyone in the business, there are cases where supposing they have twenty running from Corner Brook to Humbermouth and from the West Side and that area, how could we grant individual franchises? Supposing we have fifty people from Kelligrews in here or twenty buses, how could we grant twenty different franchises? Some of them have to go out of business and the same thing applies all over, Grand Falls, Botwood, Corner Brook, Humbermouth and buses operating from Trepassey and as far as Trepassey South there are one, two, three or a dozen and in some cases up to twenty or thirty buses and you could not grant franchises to them all. It would have to be granted to one of those thirty and the other twenty-nine would go out of business.

Section 5 passed.

MR. CURTIS: I move the Committee rise, report progress, and ask leave to sit again tomorrow.

Motion carried.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, with the forbearance of the House we might move on to No. 6 on the Order Paper. Second Reading of a Bill "An Act Respecting the Public Revenue, the Raising of Loans Authorized by the Legislature and the Auditing of Public Accounts."

Motion carried.

MR. SMALLWOOD: This is a rather lengthy Bill consisting of 46 pages and divided, I think, into three parts and consisting all in all of some 86 sections.

The Bill, however, is not quite as formidable as its size and the number of sections because, in fact, it is more a consolidation than anything else, though there are some new sections in it. I will outline the principal changes in the Bill. Clause 3 is part of Section 4 of Chapter 23 of the Consolidated Statutes, third series, with no change in principle. Clause No. 4 has no counterpart in existence. This is designed to limit by statutes the terms of issue which might be made on the annual vote of the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

Clause 5 has no counterpart in existing legislation based, I think, on the Mainland practice and particularly the British North American Act. We have been following this actually since the opening of this Assembly, though without statutory requirements.

Provisions are made for the Treasury Board to undertake duties subject to the Lieutenant Governor in Council. This is routine work of Civil Servant workers to be employed awaiting the Board's decision to authorize commitments to pay overtime and the freight rates under the Civil Servants' Act and authorized expenditures in special sub-head divisions where such is covered by countervailing savings.

Part 3 is the Collection and Management of Revenue, general expenditure the counterpart is eleven to nineteen inclusive to be found in section 26 and 28 of chapter 23 of the Consolidated Statutes, second series. Eleven is counterpart of Section 26. Twelve is counterpart of section 19 of the Consolidated Statutes. Clause 13, Section 27 and 14 in section 29 and 15 in section 16, sixteen counterpart section 17, and seventeen as provided in section 28. Clause 18 (1) counterpart, a new provision designed to give statutory sanction for new procedure under the new accounting system. Section 19 is a new provision, the grant for which the House will find self-explanatory.

Part Four has to do with Debt Management and Raising of Loans is counterpart to Sections 5 to 10 of the Consolidated Statutes, third series. The draft Act is submitted by J. P. Thompson dealing with repayment of loans and the payment of interests thereon, renewal or refund of existing obligations which may have the effect of reducing the public debt. Lays down specifically that such refunding operation shall not have the effect of increasing the public debt. In his comments on redrafting, he pointed out where cases may arise where the face value of refunding bonds will exceed the issue to be retired in order that the net proceeds be sufficient to retire the old issue. The Committee consisting of the Controller of Finance, the Auditor General and the Department of the Attorney General, Mr. Newland and the Assistant Deputy Minister of Finance felt there should not be any provisions in the Act authorizing an overall increase in public debt without the specific instigation of the Lieutenant Governor in Council. The reason is obvious and there is no necessity of explaining. If there is an overall increase in the public debt the House will sanction this increase. I am sure the House appreciates if a debt issue comes due say for a million dollars and the intention is to pay it off out of a new loan, then the amount of the new loan must not normally be higher than the amount of the existing debt and that is partly for this reason: If you issue a debenture issue of say a million dollars at a fixed rate of interest, to get the same yield of money needed to pay off the maturing debt it might be necessary to sell it at a discount and the discount would be such as to yield less, in which case it would become necessary to have the nominal amount of the new debenture actually larger than the amount being required. The Bill provides in that case the Government must come to the House to get the necessary authority. That is part IV, Clause 20 to Clause 33, Debt Management and Raising of Loans.

MR. HIGGINS: Where do you find "Come into the House of Assembly?"

MR. SMALLWOOD: The House will find, in Committee of the Whole, I am merely here explaining the principle of the Bill.

Now part five: Clause 34, Counterpart in Act 5 of 1950. Clause 34 (1) has its counterpart in Section 2 of Act No. 19, of 1949 with no change in principle.

With regard to Clause 35 (3) and (4) there is no counterpart existing in existing statutes. The necessity and grounds for these insertions are I think quite obvious. Clause 36 has its counterpart in Section 30 of Chapter 23, Consolidated Statutes and Clause 37 in Chapter 37, which was amended by Act 211, 35 but the amendment then necessary ceased to have any grounds for justification on the passing of the Commission form of Government. Clause 37 therefore follows the provision of the original Act sanctioned by Statutes existing for transfer between sub-heads and heads of expenditure to cover inadequate provisions for services, generally known as countervailing savings. Sub-Clause (2) provides for addition of funds by special warrant to cover expenditure in excess of that provided by the Legislature where inadequate provision was made and countervailing savings cannot be found, and paragraph (a) is for expenditure on services not foreseen and for which no provisions have been made by the Legislature. Now before going on it may be useful if I explain that a little more. The basic clause in this whole Bill is, I think, Clause 4 of the Bill which will be found on page 4, in Part I, and reads as follows :

"4. No issue of public monies shall be made out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund except under authority of the Legislature, save that

- (i) issues of public monies received for special purposes or in trust may be made for the express purposes for which the monies were received without further legislative authority than the provisions of this sub-section, subject however to the provisions of any particular statute dealing with such special or trust monies;
- (ii) issues may be made for the service of the public debt by way of interest payments and the redemption of loans either by way of annual payments into sinking funds or in any other manner;

- (iii) issues may be made in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (10) of Section 21 and of Section 23; and
- (iv) issues may be made in respect of the annual salaries of the Comptroller and of the Auditor General."

These were known as statutory votes. The one dealing with special warrants is on page 19, Clause No. 37, which is actually in two sections. Now, Mr. Speaker, I would like to draw the attention of the House to this fact : Two great principles are laid down and have a very ancient and honourable origin in the British Constitution, a historical one, that all money received by the King shall go into a consolidated revenue fund unless it is otherwise provided by the Legislature. That is the first great principle. All monies received by the King's Ministers on behalf of the King shall go into CRF and there is even a greater principle that all money paid out of that consolidated revenue fund shall be paid out only upon authority of the peoples' representatives, the Legislative representatives of the people. Now, control of the King's purse, which, of course, is administered by his Ministers, in short, the Comptroller of the Treasury which is the modern way of referring to the King's Purse, control by the legislative representatives of the people is one of the greatest principles under the British Flag where democratic, parliamentary government exists, and that must be the rule, at the same time exceptions must be made because in practice what happens is that the King's Ministers come before the elected representatives of the people with estimates of what they imagine will be needed for the next twelve months. Estimates are printed, laid before the House, and if the House feels in the majority that they have not been asked for too much they will vote it to His Majesty, to His Ministers to spend on behalf of His Majesty. That is what we call the Public Service Act, to carry on the public services. That is a very good plan but it is quite impossible in any Legislature, in any Government, unless that Legislature is in session the whole year around to vote the exact monies. Even in the United Kingdom it is theoretical in session through the year but there are the long summer holidays and the long vacation in the Fall and a long Easter recess and it has been found impossible, even in the United Kingdom for the Government to come before the elected representatives of the people just once a year with estimates of what it imagines will be required for the next twelve months, given in such detail and with such explanations necessary as to be able to depend absolutely and entirely on that amount of money. For this reason the House may no sooner be prorogued and the members dispersed and gone off to their various homes and businesses than a week after something might crop up which was not foreseen and could not have been foreseen and for which, therefore, the Government had asked the Legislature for no grant, and for which the Legislature approved no appropriation, for which, in short, there has been no money voted by the House. Now, in cases like that, and it is quite easy for the House to imagine cases like that, quite easy, the obvious cases are disaster, floods, fire, famine, there are the more obvious things that may crop up unexpectedly and for which money is required and which has not been voted and the House is prorogued and the members are scattered and it is not expected to meet again for six months. With that crisis on hand what shall be done in such cases? What is done in here? Every Legislature in the British Commonwealth of Nations beginning with the United Kingdom itself makes provision in the Audit Act for special warrant. In the United Kingdom that special warrant is issued by His Majesty himself, in the British Dominions it is issued by the King's Deputy, the Governor General, and in the Provinces of Canada, that special warrant is issued by His Majesty's Representative, the Lieutenant Governor. That is not all that may happen, other things also may happen and so the proviso is made,

37 (2) (a): "If the subject of the expenditure is one for which the Legislature has made provision but the provision is found to be insufficient, then, upon the report of the Minister that there is insufficient legislative provision and that no countervailing savings are available under other subheads of the Head of Expenditure concerned and of the Minister having charge of the service in question that the necessity is urgent, the Lieutenant-Governor for the issue of the amount estimated to be required, and the amount shall be added to the appropriation under the relevant Head of Expenditure."

Let me remind the House that countervailing savings in one department of the Government may not be used in another department. They can only be used in that same department.

(b) "If the subject of expenditure is one for which no legislative provision has been made, then, upon the report of the Minister that there is no legislative provision and of the Minister having charge of the service in question that in his opinion the necessity is urgent, giving reasons for his opinion, and that if such expenditure is not made grave damage to persons or to property or to the interests of the Crown or the public will occur or excessive additional expense will result from delaying the expenditure until the necessary legislative provision has been made, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, on the recommendation in writing of the Board, order that a special warrant be prepared for signature by the Lieutenant-Governor for the issue of the amount estimated to be required, and an additional sub-head shall be set up in the books of the Comptroller against which expenditure on the service shall be charged.

(c) "In every case under paragraphs (a) and (b) the Minute of Council authorizing the special warrant shall quote the special reasons therefor, and a certified copy of the Minutes of Council shall together with certified copies of the reports referred to and recommendations of the Board, be tabled in the House of Assembly within fifteen days from the opening of the next ensuing session in order that the necessary legislative provision may be made."

Now, I think that is clear as daylight. Something happens, the emergency needs to be met and there is no money voted for it or not sufficient money, and there are no countervailing savings available in that department then the Minister concerned comes to the Cabinet and says, "I've got to have money to do this." If the Cabinet agrees they prepare a special warrant and advise His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor to sign it upon the Treasury for that amount of money.

MR. HIGGINS: You said where the Legislature has made insufficient or no provisions.

MR. SMALLWOOD: (c) deals with that.

Now, Mr. Speaker, this provision for special warrant on the Treasury by His Honour the Lieutenant Governor is on advice of His Ministers and there is nothing new in this procedure. This is from the Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act of Canada passed by the Parliament of Canada, Section 25 (1) "If when Parliament is not in session any accident happens to any public works or building which requires an immediate outlay for repair or renewal or any other occasion arises where an expenditure not foreseen provided for by Parliament is urgently and immediately required for the public good, then upon report of the Minister that there is no parliamentary provision and the advice of the Minister in question that it is necessary and urgent, the Governor in Council may order a special warrant be issued and signed by the Governor in Council to be placed by the Minister to the special account against which the cheques may be issued from time to time in the usual form as required." That is the Parliament of Canada, Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act 25 (1).

MR. RUSSELL: Will the honourable the Premier carry on from there and see if there is anything in that Act similar to (c)?

MR. SMALLWOOD: In reply, the only clause I have copied is the one I have read aloud but the Federal Statutes are in the Library upstairs and any honourable member has access to them and may follow up the clause in question.

In all the Commonwealth Parliaments this provision is made, and further it is made as we do here in our Bill to have these tabled in the House to receive Legislative sanction. A special warrant does not take the place, except temporarily, of the Legislative Grant and the legislative authority must subsequently be sought.

Now the Audit of Public Accounts Act provides in Section 13 (1) (b) :

"If when the Legislature is not in session an accident happens to any public works or building which required a new outlay for repair thereof or any other occasion arises when expenditure not foreseen or provided for by the Legislature is urgently and immediately required for the public good and upon the report of the Treasury" (Treasury is the word there for the Minister of Finance) "that there is no legislative provision therefore, and of the Minister having charge of the service that the necessity is urgent and for the public good, the Lieutenant Governor in Council may order a special warrant to be signed by the Lieutenant Governor."

Out of the British Columbia Public Account Act: Section 24 (3) :

"If when the Legislature is not in session any accident happens to any public works or building which required an immediate outlay for repair or any other occasion arises in which any expenditure not foreseen or provided for by the Legislature is urgently and immediately required for the public good then, upon the report of the Minister of Finance that there is no legislative authority and the Minister in charge of the service in question says the necessity is urgent, the Lieutenant Governor in Council shall order a special warrant to be prepared to be signed by the Lieutenant Governor for the issue of the amount deemed to be required."

The Treasury Act, Province of Saskatchewan: Section 45 :

"If when the Legislature is not in session an expenditure not foreseen or provided for nor sufficiently provided for is urgently and immediately required for the public good, then upon the report of the Treasury that there is not legislative provision or not sufficient provision therefore, and of the Head of the Department having charge of the service that the necessity is urgent, for an expenditure for the public good, the Lieutenant Governor in Council may order a special warrant to be prepared to be signed by the Lieutenant Governor authorizing the expenditure of the amount estimated to be required."

The Treasury Act, Alberta: But I think, Mr. Speaker, I have read enough to show the House; Alberta, Manitoba, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick etc., also have the same clause. I think I have shown quite adequately that the provision in our Bill is almost identical with those similar or equivalent provisions in the other nine Provinces of Canada and indeed in Canada itself. If recourse were had to the Statutes of the United Kingdom, I think it would be found that the Canadian Legislature in this matter is fashioned after that of the United Kingdom.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I think I had better go on and explain the Bill clause by clause. Clause 38: This clause 38 of our Bill, I think, is in substitution for Section 3 of the Consolidated Statutes, third series, chapter 23, the statutory procedure for the new accounting procedure relating to issue of public funds under the authority of the Legislature and provides for commitment rather than expenditure control and does away with the Government Letter of Credit System.

Now, Mr. Speaker, this again is a most fundamental section of this Bill. We have since we took office been acting upon the advice of Mr. J. C. Thompson, who for some time was our financial advisor, Mr. Thompson being a former Auditor General of the Province of Alberta and is now Senior Partner of a great auditing firm, Peat, Marwick and Mitchell of Montreal. On the advice of Mr. Thompson we introduced a new system, a new principle altogether which has taken us virtually two years to get into actual operation so that it did not come into operation until the first day of this current financial year, namely April 1, 1951. This principle is that the Government who expends the money which it is committed to spend in each given year, always knows what it has spent plus what it is committed to spend. Now, we hold that is the only realistic system of public accounting in public financing. It is useless to say at the end of the fiscal year that our expenditure was "X" amount of dollars if in fact we have committed ourselves to the expenditure of another half million or a million or two million and have done it in that year, although the actual expending of the money may not occur until the year following. To come into the House following the 31 of March which is the end of the financial year and report to the House our expenditure for the past year was thirty millions when all that the figure represents is the actual cash expended, and there is left out of the accounts an amount of any given sum of money which although it has not actually been spent in that twelve months is actually committed to be spent, is but a repetition of the past methods. We think, we agree, with Mr. Thompson's views expressed to us that the more honest, if the word honest has any place in this matter at all and perhaps it has not, but certainly the more practical, the more realistic accounting procedure is the system of commitment—expenditure and commitment control.

Now it will work this way: In every department of the Government as soon as the estimates are passed and the supply bill enacted by the House, that department knows that for the twelve months it has "X" amount of dollars to spend. Every cent of expenditure of all departments or divisions of the Government before being spent must now under our new system of accounting and commitment control pass through the Central Accounting and Commitment Office so that at any given day or say up to five o'clock the day before we know the amount by which every department or every section of every department is committed up to that time. Now we are very proud of it. We are very proud of having been public—security minded and progressive enough as a Government to have accepted that advice and agree to have it put into effect, and we hold that in all of the Canadian Nation today no Government has a more progressive or more adequate or a more realistic system of accounting of public funds than we have in effect in Newfoundland today. This clause is to give legislative sanction to a system which we have already introduced as of the first of April, 1951.

Clause 39 gives statutory sanction to the new form of central accounting for issues from the public purse. I cannot allow this opportunity to pass without saying that we are quite proud of our new Central Accounting System. Before we took office, and notwithstanding the clear need there was to do otherwise, all of our predecessors, the Commission of Government and before them various elected governments had the most archaic, the most inefficient system of counting imaginable, practically every department of the Government had its own system of accounting and account books and book-keepers and its own accounting clerks, and its own books and no central accounting and no central control. We have abolished that and have installed the very latest mechanized system of accounting and which the members of the House have already been invited, at any time they care, to drop in and see these machines which seem like wizards in actual operation. There in the Treasury all accounting of Government Revenue and Expenditure are done under the one roof and in one department, and we ask in this Bill for Legislative Sanction for that as well.

Clause 40 continues the method of control system embodied in the Treasury Control Act. The incorporation of this clause in this Bill, of course, will be enacted on repeal of the Treasury Control Act. As has already been pointed out, the main control feature of the Control Act is to continue the present title of Controller of the Treasury with very wide powers of veto of government expenditure programmes without any curtailment of the features felt to be necessary and desirable in the Treasury Control Act of 1932, which has been set aside. It will be observed that control powers are now vested in the Minister of Finance, and the Minister's decision may be appealed before the full Treasury Board or the Executive Council.

Clause 41 gives power to make regulations and here again the principle was embodied in the Treasury Control Act of 1932.

Clause 42, counterpart Section 34; Clause 43, counterpart Section 34 and Clause 44, counterpart in Section 34, Section 7 of Chapter 34. Clause 45 however modifies the existing Act which flatly prohibits the issue of any money to a debtor of the Government. The new clause is more workable and equitable and authorizes the application of countervailing accounts only in cases where the debtor to the Government is in arrears.

Clause 45 has its counterpart in Section 33 (1) (c), (e), and (f), Chapter 23.

Clause 46 is new and is designed to extend statutory authority to issues of public funds on an impressed basis, a practice common to the service for some years but without specific authority.

Clauses 47 and 48 have their counterpart in Sections 79 and 80 of Chapter 23.

Clause 49 is new as it is necessary to have statutory authority for the treatment of bad debts, which should be self-apparent.

Part VI: Public Accounts: Clause 50, Clauses 51, 52, 53, and 54 generally speaking have their counterparts in Sections 35 to 45 of Chapter 23, third Series. Modifications are designed to extend and introduce and recommend costs made in fairly large measures to dominion revenue and Audit Act.

Clause 56 has its counterpart in Section 25. Clause 57 is new as far as we are concerned coming from the Federal Act, Section 44 (1), if my honourable friends would make note of the clause. Clause 57 (2) is based on a combination of Clause 44 (1) and Chapter 46, and Clause 57 (3) and (4) are based on 27 of 23, and Clause 58 is drawn from the Federal Act 45 (1) and Clause 59 is also drawn from the Federal Act. Clause 60, counterpart 65 based on 48-77 of Chapter 23, third series. Clause 62 is based in part on Section 1 of Chapter 23 and on the Federal Act, Section 47.

Clause 63 is based on the Federal Act, Section 48 (1).

Clause 64, counterpart Section 36, Chapter 23, but new wording based on the Federal Act; Clauses 69 to 78 counterpart Sections 61 to 69 of Chapter 23; Clauses 79, 80 counterpart in Section 70 to 77 and 73 of Chapter 23. Clauses 81 to 84 counterpart Section 74 of Chapter 23, and 81 of Chapter 23.

Clause 85 confers on the Government in Council the normal power of making regulations.

Clause 86 indicates the statutes to be repealed and the extent of such repeal.

It will be noticed the enactment of this Bill will eliminate nine statutes dealing with the auditing of public accounts and treasury control as well as parts of statutes constituting the Department of Finance and Customs.

Mr. Speaker, what we have done is to consolidate the existing legislation in the main and then in particular we have brought in some amendments and some additions to some of these amendments, which are merely changed and improvements we think in wording, but some of them are substantive and are of the utmost importance especially those dealing with special warrant upon the treasury. I do not know what the pleasure of the House is, whether the House would desire, in view of the fact that this is mainly a consolidation, to have an extensive debate on the principle of the Bill, but surely there can be little if any disagreement. Or would they prefer to move the House as rapidly as feasible into Committee of the Whole where it will be dealt with line by line and clause by clause. At all events I am in the hands of the House and I have pleasure in moving second reading of this Bill.

MR. RUSSELL: I hope to go to six o'clock on another Bill to be debated and since I think it would be a help rather than a waste of time and hindrance, I have made two or three notes and I am not going to say anything about this in Committee but it may help in the present stage. Section 4, Mr. Speaker, I believe if the honourable Premier had read on a little further on Section 23, page 13, he would have agreed with me that section 4 is all right as it is. Page 5, Section 4, subsection 3, the third type of money that can be paid out with authority of the Legislature. issues may be made in a word, and with revision of Section 23, now if we look at 23, subsection (1) it appears to have no bearing whatsoever on section 4, but (2) does read:

"The Minister may out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund pay, satisfy and discharge any judgment, decree, rule or order of a court in the United Kingdom which, under the provisions of Section 20 of the Colonial Stock Act, 1877, or any amendment thereto, is to be complied with by the Registrar of the inscribed stock of Newfoundland in the United Kingdom."

I think I should point out now to avoid any possible confusion in committee stage, I think Section 23 has to be left in. Then if Section 23 is left in, might we not also add Section 37? In my opinion we should not because if we make amendments of Section 37, in Section 4 it may well mean that money issued under Government warrant does not have to get legislative authority at all, whereas in fact it has to get legislative authority later on and I am very much afraid we would be making a mistake. I believe the financial experts of the Provincial Department would agree with me on that, if Section 23 be amended and Section 37 not amended.

Now, there is one other point, the honourable the Premier quoted from several Acts under various titles. He read the Federal one, the Ontario one and the British Columbia one, and almost word for word the contents were the same as our (b) on page 19. But he did not read anything, except to show that all apply to where no provisions had been made whatsoever. Then if the Minister recommends it is necessary and urgent and there were several specific cases mentioned which all had to be very urgent and for the public good but from those; the Federal, Ontario and British Columbia, we were dealing with cases where no provision had been made at all. Saskatchewan, I think, struck a new note and took our (a) and (b) together: Where none or insufficient. Notice this, Mr. Speaker, they treated none and insufficient in the same way. Why don't we make it easier here to get a warrant when there has been some provision but not enough for it or none at all? And in closing I agree in principle, of course, and will vote for this Bill's second reading but I am going to ask the Government if it might consider when it comes into Committee without the necessity of someone over here moving an amendment and having a debate to take up a lot of time, look on this point I am making of treating (a) and (b) alike just as Saskatchewan and Alberta do and possibly Ontario or British Columbia and the Federal Government.

Moved and seconded Bill be read a second time.

Carried. Ordered to Committee of the Whole.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I was going to suggest a night session and with a view to getting through as much as possible non-contentious legislation, it might be the wish of the House to go into Committee of the whole on this Bill tonight sometime.

MR. HIGGINS: There is another Act of lesser importance to go ahead too, but I want to look up this Act.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Any sections you would wish to have stand could stand until you were ready.

MR. HIGGINS: Have we a lot of Acts?

MR. SMALLWOOD: I am not too sure we are ready for all the Acts on the Order Paper, I can make sure; if we have a night session we may run out of business we can do by day. Probably, Mr. Speaker, if my honourable friend is agreeable, we could leave open the question whether we could go into Committee of the Whole on this Bill later today and if we make fair progress by half past eight or nine o'clock we might go into Committee of the Whole on this Bill on the understanding that any clause which they may wish to hold over, might stand over and we could come back to it. In that case, Mr. Speaker, I suggest it be referred to Committee of the Whole later to-night.

Second reading of Bill, "An Act Further to Amend the Public Utilities Act, 1949."

MR. CURTIS: I would like to move second reading of this Bill, Mr. Speaker. I have before me here the Public Utilities Act, 1949, the Act in question. The first amendment suggested is to Section 2 of the Public Utilities Act as amended by adding to paragraph (c) sub-paragraph (6).

This is a new clause.

MR. HIGGINS: Is that the St. John's Municipal Council?

MR. CURTIS: No, it would deal with Public Utilities where they would supply water. I think the area in question is Clarendville where water is supplied by the C.N.R.

Under Section 5, the Department of the Attorney General has to place at the disposal of the Public Utilities Board Counsel from its department. We have found it absolutely impossible to do so last year with the staff at our disposal and we have not a man available and where the need is urgent we can designate some other member of the bar.

Section 14 is the next amendment and it seems to be largely a case of having it rewritten and this is a matter which will be dealt with in Committee.

Section 15 is a nominal amendment and Section 6 strikes out one thousand and substitutes twenty-five thousand and in Section 34. That is the Section which deals with new construction. We found one thousand dollars too small an amount and ask for twenty-five thousand dollars.

Section 7 is an amendment which states that no Public Utilities may issue shares, stocks, bonds etc., except as provided in sub-section 2 on approval of the Board. There are a lot of sub-sections there and the idea is to add another sub-section where application is to be made to the Board. Apparently the thought is to provide for some compensation to the Board for its services.

The last amendment, Mr. Speaker, covers renumbering the section and adding a sub-section to it. The idea is to renumber sub-section (1) and add sub-sections (2) and (3).

MR. HIGGINS: I wonder if you would refer back and give us some explanation of Section 4, "the amount of one thousand dollars or more." Now what public utility is going to earn one thousand dollars?

MR. CURTIS: That is going to be the minimum.

MR. HIGGINS: Is that meant for a big company or a small one. Would there be such a small company?

MR. CURTIS: I think it is meant to take small companies out of the Act altogether.

Bill read a second time. To be referred to Committee of the Whole on tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, we might now go back to number 4 on the Order Paper.

Committee of the Whole on a Bill "An Act to Amend the Restaurant Act, 1929."

Section 1 read and passed.

Section 2 read.

MR. CURTIS: At the present time they open at eight o'clock in the morning and this amendment would permit them to open at 6:00 o'clock instead of 8:00 o'clock.

MR. VARDY: Before that clause is put, a thought has occurred to me. This amendment is dealing with the closing hours and it gives more scope to restaurants which I think is a very desirable thing, but I wonder about Sunday closings; I think it is a most ridiculous situation that a city of the size of St. John's where it is practically impossible for any traveller or visitor to get a meal within the city limits. Now, what I would like to know, Mr. Chairman, is whether it is statutory and compulsory for restaurants to be closed on Sundays.

MR. CURTIS: That is a point I would be glad to give an answer to before third reading. My understanding is there is no law in force at the present time in Newfoundland to close on Sundays. They close because they do not want to be open. I think in the city some restaurants are open.

MR. VARDY: The only place you can get a meal on Sunday is in the main dining room of the Newfoundland Hotel.

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Chairman, I speak subject to correction, but I understand they are closed not because they have to close. The reason for this amendment here at the present time is the Chief of Police has power to authorize restaurants to remain open after midnight but only on the occasions of special banquets and this gives the authority to give this permission contingent on their behaviour.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It may seem a little thing for the Government to get up and ask questions about, but on the point raised by the honourable member for St. John's West; the Shop Closing Act is designed, I believe, to protect shop workers. What effect will this have on the operations of the Shop Act, viz., these restaurants open after midnight, if they are allowed to remain open?

MR. CURTIS: I think they have their own union.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is not a matter of unions but statutes. Do not the restaurants come under the Shop Act? I think we had better check.

MR. CURTIS: It is a matter we will check up.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, would you be prepared to call it 6:00 o'clock. It is commonly done in other houses, then you can resume the Chair at 8:00 o'clock.

MR. CHAIRMAN: I now declare it six o'clock.

NIGHT SESSION

The House met at 8:00 o'clock.

MR. CHAIRMAN: The Committee rises, reports progress, and begs leave to sit again, Mr. Speaker.

Ordered sit again tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, with regard to number 5, this Bill is being printed and has not as yet arrived in the Chamber and the same applies to number 7, number 8 and number 9.

On motion these items were deferred.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Might we now go on to number 14, Mr. Speaker.

Second reading of a Bill "An Act to Amend the Education Act, 1927."

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I think the honourable Minister of Education is back in the city, but I really do not know if he is back or not. I will be quite honest with the House, I am not familiar with the contents of this Bill but I know the honourable Minister is familiar with it. I move second reading of the Bill. Quite frankly I have not read it and do not know what it is, but I move second reading nevertheless.

Bill read a second time.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is purely a formal Bill and I wonder if the honourable members opposite would mind if we went into Committee of the Whole on it? It is purely an amending section.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Amend the Education Act, 1927."

Sections 1 and 2 read and passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendment. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, the next Bill is a private Bill which is before the House and we might properly go into it now in the hope that later in the sitting when the honourable Leader of the Opposition is present we might go back to number 6.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants of Newfoundland."

MR. CHAIRMAN: All this Bill has been considered and passed as far as Section 6.

Sections 6 to 21 read and passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendment. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: If it is suitable to my honourable friends opposite, Mr. Speaker, we might now go into Committee of the Whole on number 6, with the clear understanding if there are any sections about which the Opposition are anxious to have further information not available tonight or of which they are unsure and would like to wait for further information, would stand not passed. On that understanding we should pass all the clauses we can. This is a rather long Bill but largely very formal, but admittedly a very important Bill.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act Respecting the Public Revenue, the Raising of Loans Authorized by the Legislature and the Auditing of Public Accounts."

MR. FAHEY: A point of information, Mr. Speaker, when the Orders of the Day are compiled should we not follow it through? We are jumping all over the place. What is the principle of the thing? What should be the order of business? If the Government has charge of the time table what is the sense of having an Order Paper?

MR. SPEAKER: The Order Paper merely sets out the business of the day.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is not only that the Government has a majority and can over-ride objections but it is a matter of its having become an established principle that time table is the prerogative of the Government, whether it is because of its liability to out-vote the minority or not, nevertheless, it has become an established principle.

MR. SPEAKER: Motion is I do now leave the Chair.

Sections 1 to 3 read and passed.
Section 4 read.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Perhaps now, Mr. Chairman, the honourable member for Bonavista South would care to amplify the point he made at second reading on Section 4.

MR. RUSSELL: Mr. Chairman, it is merely I thought that Section 4 was all right as it was and there is no need of any change and there was some talk during the opening address on second reading of whether Section 23 more properly meant Section 37. I thought it did not and I think the honourable Premier when he referred to Section 23 read just as far as the sub-section and that has no bearing on Section 4, but further on, No. 6, does. Sub-section 20 of Section 2 and Section 23 amendment is paragraph 3, Section 4, second line, following the word "have." We do not know unless we turn to page 12 and see what it is all about.

MR. SMALLWOOD: "Any sum or sums raised under sub-section (9) shall be applied to repay, renew or refund the said bonds, debentures, stock or other securities without any further or other appropriation than is provided by this Act."

MR. RUSSELL: That is because it is received for a certain purpose and that is also covered under Section 4.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The way it is carried out in the House of Commons is usually this: When a Bill involving a grant of money is brought before the House, the Minister concerned says His Excellency the Governor General has been informed of this Bill and recommends it to the House. Presumably he has been informed and presumably he does recommend it.

MR. HIGGINS: Does that take the right of the House to deal with a money Bill?

MR. SMALLWOOD: No.

MR. HIGGINS: The Cabinet is not the House. If the House wants to give a pension to somebody, the Cabinet cannot stop it.

MR. RUSSELL: We have one like that now about to come up.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I doubt very much the validity of the Bill we have now before us in connection with a pension to James Forbes. I think in British institutions the theory and practice is that the issue of new expenditures must come from the Government. I do not think it can come from the House; constitutionally the initiation of expenditure must be from the Government. Now the provision here in No. 5 is another matter; the initiation of expenditure is from the Government at the request of the King, it is the King also who asks for money, His Ministers come to the elected representatives of the people on his behalf and ask them to vote money to Him. That is the principle involved in Clause 5. But I find we are on reasonably safe ground when I say only the Government can initiate expenditure and this Clause provides that the Government can do it only on advice of the King or the Department.

MR. FOGWILL: It is just a formal procedure.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Yes, but it is preserving the constitution that the King comes to the people's representatives and says: "I need this money." There was a time when He did not do that but merely levied taxation and there was quite a revolution in the British Constitutional Affairs when the people's House interposed between the King and the people and said: "You cannot take the people's Money without our consent." That was the House, the King's Ministers always speak for the King, every time they stand they are speaking for the King. We are the King's Ministers, we are the keepers of the King's purse and all that sort of thing, that is the Constitution and any clause must preserve the constitutional position.

MR. HIGGINS: I do not remember the procedure in England, I think only the Commons can initiate it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I think it was that way from the start, only the Government can initiate it.

MR. RUSSELL: It is not in order for a private member from any side of the House, to move a recommendation involving a petition? A resolution?

MR. SMALLWOOD: A resolution; there is nothing wrong with private members presenting a petition. There is nothing wrong with that but there is something wrong with a private member presenting anything that would on a vote commit the House to spending money.

MR. RUSSELL: There is some restriction on private members presenting petitions when it involves spending money.

Section 4 passed.

Sections 5 to 10 read and passed.

Section 11 read.

MR. RUSSELL: It is not correct, Mr. Chairman, because in Section 1 it says—

MR. SMALLWOOD: I think it is quite clear: "All public monies shall, save as otherwise provided by statute, be paid to the credit of the Newfoundland Exchequer Account through such officers, banks or persons and in such manner as the Minister appoints and directs. . ." Well all of these may be deemed in the next clause to be the proper officers for the discharge of that duty or service and in 14 there is a reference to inspection of records and in 15 they are required to take a note of allegiance.

MR. RUSSELL: There is something wrong with the reading of that section. It says: "Officers, Banks, etc." The Government certainly would not swear in the officers of the bank.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I think it is quite clear. "All public monies shall, save as otherwise provided by statute, be paid to the credit of the Newfoundland Exchequer Account through such officers, banks or persons and in such manner as the Minister appoints and directs." Well all of these may be deemed in the next clause to be the proper officers for the discharge of that duty or service and in 14 there is a reference to inspection of records and in 15 they are required to take a note of allegiance.

Section 11 passed.

Sections 12 to 21 read and passed.
Section 22 read.

MR. SMALLWOOD: In Clause 22 the Committee will note there is a line left out. The following is to be inserted at the end of the third line: "Authorized by any Act of the Legislature and the Minister."

MR. RUSSELL: That refers only to guarantees that have been given by the Act of the Legislature.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Yes.

Section 22 passed.
Sections 23 to 33 read and passed.
Section 34 read.

DR. POTTLE: I wonder if that ought to be the Lieutenant Governor in Council.

MR. RUSSELL: Later on, he has to be removed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council or the House of Assembly.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The position of Auditor General as an officer of the House is appointed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council and even more so should the Comptroller of the Treasury be similarly appointed.

MR. RUSSELL: The Lieutenant Governor in Council cannot dismiss him.

MR. SMALLWOOD: No, the Auditor General may only be dismissed by order of this House of not fewer than a certain number, the whole House is provided for here. "The Comptroller of the Treasury can only be removed by vote of the House." He is appointed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council; he is a servant of the House appointed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council and a servant of this House may be removed by a vote of this House but seemingly the Comptroller of the Treasury is not an officer of the House but rather an officer of the Government but seemingly he may be appointed by the vote of the House and he ought to be removed by it.

MR. HIGGINS: What is the law for the Controller General and the Auditor General, I understand it is two-thirds of the vote in both Houses.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We will refer first to the appointment in sub-clause one which is not adopted yet. It is suggested here by the honourable member for Bonavista South that the omission of the words "In Council" is intentional.

MR. HIGGINS: Let us see how they were appointed before, in the old days. It is the Governor in Council every time.

MR. RUSSELL: In last year's Act it was just "The Governor."

MR. SMALLWOOD: Well, Mr. Chairman, this is a very important point. This House has separated the functions of the Comptroller and the Auditor General; always in the past it was the one person, but we have separated the functions and we now have two separate persons fulfilling these functions as they have in Canada but in Britain the Comptroller and the Auditor General is one person. In the Act of 1950 it is provided in the Consolidated Audit Amendment Act, Page 301, Section 24: "The Lieutenant Governor in Council may appoint the Deputy Minister of Finance commissioned under the Great Seal of Newfoundland who shall be called the Comptroller of Finance. The Lieutenant Governor must act on the advice of the Ministers which means Lieutenant Governor in Council, and the Comptroller has to be removed by vote of the House. The Auditor General is provided for by a vote of one-third of the House.

MR. RUSSELL: It is exactly the same thing with the Auditor General.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The Act of last year provides that the Auditor General will hold office during his good behaviour and is removable by the Lieutenant Governor on address of the House of Assembly, no proportion is named so that it means a majority of the House.

MR. RUSSELL: I wonder if there is any merit in the point the honourable Leader of the Opposition has brought up that there should be a two-thirds majority?

MR. SMALLWOOD: I am inclined to think there is.

MR. RUSSELL: It puts it absolutely free from the party aspect.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is intended that the Auditor General shall be indeed the servant of the House, not of the Government, and has to stand between the Government and the House, reporting to the House on the actions of the Government. There is quite a famous saying regarding an Auditor General, it may be "Blood-Hound" but I don't think that is right. That he should be removable by a mere majority to me does not seem right. That would mean by the Government. Now the Government may be very annoyed with the Auditor General and I think, in principle, the Auditor General should be protected from the annoyance or anger of the Government and it should require more than a majority of the House to remove him.

MR. HIGGINS: It was both Houses before.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I think two-thirds would be a protection.

MR. CHAIRMAN: The officer under consideration is the Comptroller of the Treasury.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman is right, that ought not to apply to the Comptroller of the Treasury, he is a civil servant and a servant of the Government and removable by the House. There I think a straight majority should do it.

MR. HIGGINS: The Government has no control over the Comptroller, over the Deputy Minister of Finance yes, but as controller the Government has no control over him.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That was when he was the one person, the Comptroller and Auditor General, but now he is just the Comptroller.

Amendment: In the first line Clause 34:

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, I beg leave to withdraw that.

Amendment in Clause 34, Sub clause (7), second line the word "and" deleted and a comma inserted after the word "pensions."

Section 34 passed.

Section 35 read.

Amendment in Sub-Clause (1), Clause 35, seventh line, after the word "year," insert "shall elapse and be written off, except that in the case of liabilities incurred during the then existing financial year."

Section 35 passed.

Section 36 read and passed.

Section 37 read.

MR. RUSSELL: What is the meaning of Section (3): Is it in case the Minister gets cranky and won't pay out the money the Legislature voted. Is that a new one or original?

MR. SMALLWOOD: No the counterpart of that is section 30 of Chapter 23. It is a copy of the original Bill.

Mr. Chairman, this afternoon at second reading the honourable member for Bonavista South drew attention to one clause contained here in this Bill. It is contained in two, although I have informed him that in at least three of the Provinces of Canada one of those two clauses is contained. But there is a point in the first clause not contained in theirs at all, that is a matter of countervailing savings. We have a principle which I believe was introduced by the Commission of Government which enables any given department of the government who have a special expenditure under some subhead and a saving in another subhead to apply the saving in the one to the special expenditure in the other, in the same department. Now, that is a principle which we have followed and for which provision is now made in this Bill and so, therefore, in this clause 37 it is provided for two possibilities. One, if something has to be done for which there is no money because the provision made by the Legislature is found to be insufficient, or two, the money to pay it cannot be found in countervailing savings. Now the fact that there are these two reasons, I think, justifies splitting this into two clauses. It is quite clumsy to try and get these reasons in (a) and (b) hammered together in one clause. That is, I think, the reasons why they are in this form.

MR. HIGGINS: What is the present Act on that point?

MR. SMALLWOOD: There is no

Act, unless this would become an Act, providing for utilization of countervailing savings in any one department for any other purpose in that same department.

MR. HIGGINS: Apart from that what does the present Act say where there are insufficient funds?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Clause 37, Chapter 60 which however was amended by Act 21 of 35. By amendment it is necessary to have any ground for justification on passing of Commission form of Government and Clause 37 there followed the provisions of the original Act. It is sanctioned by Statutes authorizing the transfer of funds between subheads of expenditures to cover inadequate legislative provisions generally known as countervailing savings in one department. In sub-clause 2 there are provisions for additional funds by special warrant to cover eventualities in paragraph (a) in cases where inadequate legislative provisions were made by the legislature and in paragraph (b) for expenditure on services not foreseen and consequently for which no provisions had been made by the House.

MR. HIGGINS: What are the two sections there; where the expenditure is one for which the legislature has made inadequate provisions and the other case where no provisions have been made.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Does the honourable gentleman wish me to quote the section just referred to?

MR. HIGGINS: I want to see how it compares to this here, 1933, Chapter 60, Consolidated Statutes, third series.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Now it does not say a word in Chapter 60 about when the Legislature is not in session, and any expenditure not foreseen and provided for by the Legislature if urgently and immediately required for the public good, the following provision shall have effect: This clause is insufficient, clause (a) in our present Bill, but this section was amended by No. 35 (21), and I hope my honourable and learned friend the Leader of the Opposition will support me if I put in a Bill for the Government for legal services.

MR. HIGGINS: You are only reading the Act.

MR. SMALLWOOD: What more do lawyers do but read and tell their clients what it says and that is what I am doing now.

MR. RUSSELL: Knowing where to find it is the thing.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I am finding it. This is the sort of thing lawyers try to make very mysterious and become millionaires by doing so.

MR. HIGGINS: You have looked this up many times before through the years, and the Attorney General probably.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Paragraph (b) has already been revised and is subject to an amendment in the next section of this act, section 4. They revised the so-called amendment by deleting after the word "if" at the commencement of the said paragraph the words "When the Legislature is not in session," which is here stricken out in red pencil. Then it reads: "If any expenditure not foreseen and provided for is urgently." There was no Legislature at that time to be in session so that the reason for that disappeared but now that it is back again under the elected form of Government.

MR. HIGGINS: That is one of the things I want left over, I want to read that.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Unfortunately the Attorney General's Department insisted on the word "if" should go before the word "when" in sub-clause 2.

MR. HIGGINS: That is one of the clauses I want left over.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Why did you not say so, that I might be saved all this digging up?

MR. RUSSELL: By letting it lay over we might all do a little thinking about the point on (a) and (b). My point is that both (a) and (b) provide for where a Government can get a special warrant in the case of need for money while the House is not in session for which no provision has been made and then a disastrous fire occurred somewhere, probably, and the Government has to give some immediate relief, or there may be a flood or a famine or a public bridge might fall down which could not be anticipated and I feel all the provisions are contained in (b) and they are very similar to what the honourable Premier read this afternoon from two or three other Provinces. It is just as well, they are going to come in every year and tell us what great work was done under that section which was in the public good and over here it will be a matter of opinion and a pleasant time may be had by all without too much bad feelings. But where the Legislature voted money for a certain purpose and it was all spent and it was found more was needed, then, I am going to say this, I think we should think about it during now and the time it is brought up again. We have here probably the easiest and simplest legislature in the world whereby the Minister may simply say he needs some more money and it is urgent; he does not have to say even that it is for the public good, if the Minister thinks it is urgent and if the Cabinet recommends it, it is done. And I think that is a little too lenient and when it comes up again we should consider there should be reason other than for the Minister to say he thinks it is urgent in his opinion. He should have to give his reasons that if such an expenditure is not made a grave damage will ensue to persons or property; the interests of the Crown or the Public will suffer from delayed expenditure. But in a case where something had been voted and there was a need for more money, I think that is a little too lenient, there should be a little greater precaution taken and when we come to discuss it again, in the meantime we should try and think of some way to close that gap there that you can drive a ten ton truck through at the moment, that is more lenient than anything read here this afternoon.

Section 38 read.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, could we revert to 38 (5)? At the beginning of sub-clause (5) the following words are inserted: "Save as provided in this Act, no."

Section 38 passed.

Section 39 read and passed.

Section 40 read.

MR. FORSEY: In sub-clause (3) does that mean increments for which nothing has been provided for by the Legislature? Insofar as I know they are automatic insofar as they have to be provided for by the Minister.

MR. SMALLWOOD: As far as I can see my honourable friend is right.

Clause 40 (c) says: increases in salary, other than such automatic increases by seniority or on promotion as are provided under any properly authorized scale or scheme and for which funds have been provided by the Legislature. Now there is no such thing as automatic increases; a person may be on a salary providing for increases annually at $50, $60 or $100 a year as the case may be, but these increases are not automatic, they depend upon the recommendations of the Heads of the Departments and although they are provided for through the salaries of the civil servants it does not necessarily mean these increases unless the Head of the Department recommends the increase. I think we should strike out the word Automatic. This whole Bill, of course, originated with a Committee consisting of the Attorney General, the Finance Department, etc., and it might be better to ask them to suggest the change.

MR. HIGGINS: I am concerned with (a). Clause 40: I don't think (a) is quite clear to me. If you turn it around to the affirmative, does that mean the Department may; that it is quite all right to do it if they had the consent of the Minister in writing who may, if he wish, consult the Cabinet. Is it all right then to incur a commitment in connection with any scheme which involves payment from public funds even if it is not in pursuance of the general policy adopted by the Government and even if no provision has been made by the Department. Could it possibly mean that?

MR. SMALLWOOD: There is a Latin quotation to cover that, unfortunately I don't recall it but I used to hear a famous lawyer say it in Ottawa. The fact that you may not do a thing does not necessarily mean that under other circumstances you may do it, or does it? The fact that you are prohibited from doing it under certain conditions does not necessarily mean that under other circumstances you are permitted to do it.

MR. RUSSELL: I am wondering, in this particular case. Let us read it again.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I will ask the Attorney General's Department to look at it; both this one and (c).

MR. RUSSELL: This involves us in sub-section 1 again which has been deferred.

Clauses 40-41 stand.

Section 42 read.

MR. RUSSELL: Here in 42: The Controller shall see that no payment or commitment for the payment of any public money is made. There are two (a)s.

Section 42 passed.

Section 43 read.

MR. SMALLWOOD: In Clause 43 there seems to me to be something wrong here in (c) "The cost of work plainly provided for under contract, in excess of the amount for which the Government is liable under the contract, even if certified by any engineer or other employee as an extra." It seems to me if the Government enters into a contract with a contractor for performance of certain work and cases arise fairly commonly where the Contractor has some expense certified by the engineer where he has necessarily done more than the contract provided or only what the contract provided but under circumstances beyond his control that drove the cost out of all reasonable proportion, there should be some provision. And under (b) The cost of work for which the Government did not become responsible before the completion of it, unless the work was devoted to saving the property of the Government in an emergency. That is a sensible proviso of course. The answer is, I suppose, if the Contractor or Tenderers for the Contract are fairly familiar with this clause they know where they stand. Yet it is commonplace throughout the world that the Contractor comes back.

MR. HIGGINS: What happens in those cases where extra work is done?

MR. SMALLWOOD: I think the Government is very apt to look upon the matter with some consideration. They can't do it under this and under its present form it would preclude doing so, if it were adopted.

MR. HIGGINS: We had better look that up.

HON. E. S. SPENCER (Minister of Public Works): I think that clause (a) covers the point to some extent. I would like to cite for the benefit of the Committee, a case in point which bears out the remarks of the honourable the Premier, connected with a contract at the present time for the completion of the two wings at the Mental Hospital where a contract was made in all good faith and while excavating for a foundation they pulled up a sewer wall due to which they found the water cut off in certain sections of the hill farther up. They had to tunnel through underneath that wall and the Contractor had to call the matter to the attention of the inspectors on the job who are hired by the Government for our welfare. The work could not possibly be held up so they had to go ahead and put in an extra wall and a ditch to divert the water outside the wall of the building. It was entirely outside the ordinary work of the contract and it stood to reason he had to be compensated and under the present Act there must be authority for it. However I authorized the payment for it if it was wrong.

MR. HIGGINS: I think if it was not covered by the contract it was fair and just. I think (a) covers it.

MR. FORSEY: (c) would also cover it because it could not be foreseen in the contract.

MR. SMALLWOOD: No, it cannot be paid under (c) even if certified.

MR. RUSSELL: Let it stand over.

Section 45 read and passed.

MR. HIGGINS: It would not come under 45 would it? No one can foresee all the contingencies that may arise, it cannot be done.

Section 46 read.

MR. RUSSELL: Is that the first time that becomes law? I have been issuing them for fifteen years.

Section 46 passed.

Section 47 read.

MR. RUSSELL: Clause 47: Sub-section (1). Suppose someone was fined $100 and afterwards found it was remitted, does he lose his $100?

MR. CURTIS: Yes, they lose it. The informer won't get it unless the fine is collected.

Section 47 passed.

Sections 48 through 54 read and passed.

Section 55 read.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Now, in 55 (3). The Auditor General is paid an annual salary of eight thousand dollars. I wonder what the Committee would think of putting the Auditor General on a par with the Controller of Finance in the matter of salary.

MR. HIGGINS: We asked that the last time whether we should put each at $8,000 or each at $9,000 and I quite agree. He should be, he is a chartered accountant.

MR. SMALLWOOD: And he is an extremely efficient servant of this House and of the Province.

MR. CURTIS: It is just and fair that it should be the same.

Amendment is that the clause be deleted and should become the same as clause 34 (4), that is Comptroller of the Treasury.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Amendment is sub-clause (4) Clause 55: Two-thirds of the members of the House.

MR. HIGGINS: I have never seen his report.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It has never been over-ridden. There has been no such occasion.

MR. HIGGINS: That is the only time he reports to the House?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Yes.

I move committee rise and report progress and ask leave to sit again.

The Committee rose, reported progress, and asked leave to sit again on tomorrow.

On motion the remaining orders of the day were deferred.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I move the House at its rising do adjourn until tomorrow, Tuesday, at 3:00 of the clock.

The House adjourned accordingly.

TUESDAY, June 12, 1951.

The House opens at three of the clock.

Presenting Petitions

HON. W. J. KEOUGH (Minister of Fisheries and Co-operatives): Mr. Speaker, I ask leave to present a petition on behalf of the residents of St. Theresa's in the Electoral District of St. George's, Port au Port that some attention be given to the roads in that vicinity, signed by some fifty odd names and I would point out there are about four miles of road which have received no attention within 25 years. The petition goes on to indicate that there are 25 families who have no means of getting a bag of flour without bringing it on their backs. The school children are very often out of school because they can't get through the mud and water on what passed for a road. The people of this area feel it is bad enough, putting it mildly, to have only four miles of road in the first place, and this goes nowhere in particular and has had no attention in a quarter of a century. It is a bit thick, I submit, Mr. Speaker, and the prayer is not at all unreasonable and I refer to the proper department for serious consideration and immediate attention if possible. I ask leave to lay it on the Table of the House and have it referred to the department to which it relates.

Petition received and referred to department concerned.

Presenting Reports of Standing and Select Committees

None.

Giving Notice of Motion and Questions

HON. H. L. POTTLE (Minister of Public Welfare): Mr. Speaker, I give notice I will on tomorrow introduce a Bill "An Act entitled 'An Act Further to Amend the Crown Lands (Mines and Quarries) Act, 1951.'"

I give notice I will on tomorrow introduce a Bill "An Act Further to Amend the Welfare of Children Act, 1944."

MR. J. G. HIGGINS (Leader of the Opposition): Mr. Speaker, I give notice that I will on tomorrow ask the honourable the Minister of Public Works:

(1) To state the names in full, former domicile, nationality and salaries of all aliens at present employed in his Department.

(2) To state their qualifications and the work or activities in which they were engaged from 1939 to 1945.

(3) To state the amounts paid for the transportation from their former domiciles to Newfoundland of all the aliens (and their families) now employed in his Department.

To ask the honourable the Minister of Public Works—

(1) To table all correspondence respecting the purchase of steel for which he requested a vote of $500,000.00.

(2) Was the steel purchased through any agents in Newfoundland, and if so, to state their names.

MR. HIGGINS: To ask the Honourable the Premier—

(1) Did the Government receive any independent financial advice in connection with the Bill regarding the Newfoundland and Labrador Development Corporation.

(2) If so, what is the name of the firm or Company or party?

To ask the Honourable the Premier—

(1) Do the parties mentioned in the Bill, the Newfoundland and Labrador Development Corporation know of the IBEC Report and have they perused it?

(2) If they have why is it not made public?

(3) Who will profit or lose by its not being made public?

HON. J. R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, in reply to questions 113—114, I wish to make the following answer:

How many aliens are employed in the construction of the Cement Mill, Gypsum Plant and their allied projects in Corner Brook?

(1) There are three engineers, a chief engineer at $6,000 a year.

(2) They are university graduate engineers.

HON. THE PREMIER: To ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Ratify an Agreement made between the Government and Dr. A. Seigheim."

Bill read a first time. Ordered to be read a second time on tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, before you put the motion, I wonder if the House would agree to this: That the Bill be given second reading, I don't mean actual second reading, only that I make the motion to give second reading and in doing so explain the Bill. If the House is then not ready to proceed with the debate it would be adjourned until the House is ready for it. I do this only that the Bill may be explained and any consideration the House would give to it before the debate began would be at least, in part, based upon the explanation given of the intention and purpose and the achievements expected of the Bill, I ask the House's concurrence in this procedure only so that I may make the explanation which the House will need in this debate it cares to give to the Bill and not at all having in mind any thought about proceeding with the debate today unless the House cares to proceed. I think that would be a matter possibly for my honourable friends across. It is only that I might make an explanation so that they will have the advantage of the information I may be able to give in speaking on my motion that it be read a second time. But the thought is not to have it read a second time until after the House has had all the opportunity in the world to debate the Bill.

MR. JOHN G. HIGGINS (Leader of Opposition): I am quite willing on the assurance of the Premier. I don't want this thing to rush through. There are parties interested in this Bill and there are people who should know all about it. I am quite willing to have the explanation on this distinct assurance.

MR. SPEAKER: The motion is the honourable Premier has leave to introduce second reading of this Bill.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I rise to propose that this Bill be now read a second time and as already explained that is moved by me, not at all with any desire or intention that it be read a second time today, but rather that it be explained today and that debate proceed on it when the House is ready, by which I mean within a reasonable length of time. If the House desires to have three or four days to consider the Bill before actually commencing the debate on it, that is quite satisfactory to us, and then having begun the debate the House wishes to have a week or two or three or four weeks to debate it, again that would be satisfactory to me.

Now, Sir, when His Honour the Lieutenant Governor opened this House a year ago or more, he said in the Speech from the Throne he used these words, and I quote them exactly: "It is unfortunately the case that much of Newfoundland's natural resources have in the past years, been alienated from the Crown for long periods and for little returns to the Public Treasury. A very large proportion of the Province's public domain lies in private hands which have done little or nothing to turn it to advantage for themselves or the public at large. My Government are giving active thought to the problem of bringing about that desirable result; it will, in due course, be laid before you for your approval. My Government are considering also a problem created in Newfoundland by the fact that very considerable parcels of land are lying idle and unproductive because the title in them lies in persons who have removed themselves from the Province. In many of our towns and settlements we have the most desirable sections of valuable land lying idle for this reason. It is hoped to find a practical solution for this problem to the end that such idle land will be brought eventually into profitable use."

Now, Mr. Speaker, the section of this clause which is relevant to my remarks today, is the section dealing with public lands which have been alienated from the Crown and have remained unproductive, and as the Speech from the Throne said last year, have laid in private hands which have done little or nothing to turn it to advantage for themselves or the public at large. As the Speech said last year, so the Government today wish to lay great emphasis indeed upon these next sentences in the Speech from the Throne of a year ago namely: "My Government are giving active thought to the problem of bringing such areas into productive use."

Now, Sir, Newfoundland like most Governments in the United States and in Canada went along for a very great number of years attaching little or no value to public domain. All down through those decades the Governments throughout the United States and Canada and Newfoundland were in the habit of deriving most of their revenue by indirect means. That is to say they depended mainly upon their custom and tariff revenues, their customs duties and excise duties to raise the necessary revenue. However, in the course of time, more enlightened thought was given to the subject of taxation and heads of governments throughout the world, including North America, leaned more and more on the principle of raising revenue by direct taxation and less on indirect taxation. From the moment that governments in North America, Provincial and Federal and State began to look to direct taxation, their thoughts turned also to the public domain as a possible source of revenue for the government. Now up to then the practice was throughout North America to ladle out the public domain in huge tracks and acreages and mileages for little or nothing. However, on the Mainland of the United States and of Canada some thirty, forty or fifty years ago that idea came into disrepute and they ceased to regard the public domain, that is to say timber lands, water powers mineralized areas as something fit only to fling away to a private interest for little or nothing. That thought began nearly half a century ago on the Mainland of this Continent and the practice was abandoned. Not so, however, here in Newfoundland, and we find that here in Newfoundland that it was left to the Commission of Government to begin at least to lean more heavily on direct taxation and less heavily on indirect taxation. As the House is well aware the Commission of Government reduced the rates of duty on many items imported into Newfoundland and at the same time increased direct taxation especially the Income and Corporation Taxation.

I must give the Commission of Government credit also for this, that more than any previous government in Newfoundland's history, they hesitated to ladle out large tracks of public domain for little or nothing. For the first time in Newfoundland's history after 1934, the Government hesitated to dish out, to hand out, to fling out, large tracks of public land almost to anyone who might ask for it. But Newfoundland woke up in this matter very late, very late indeed. So that today, if you take a map of Newfoundland and see the parts of this Island and of Labrador that have been parted with by the Governments, parts that were formerly public domain and now are not, parted with in free simple grants, giving away altogether complete title to them, or else leased them conditionally. The House would be surprised indeed and people of this Province would be more than surprised to know what a large proportion of Newfoundland had been almost literally given away. It was inevitable that this Government coming into office in Newfoundland in this more enlightened age should be faced by the fact that in the matter of the public domain they are not masters in their own house. The Government of Newfoundland today are not masters in their own House because it finds its predecessors, running back to the 19th century, gave away light-heartedly what is probably the bulk of Newfoundland and Labrador. So that today, the Government are not able, in fact, to do anything whatever about industrializing, the utilization of minerals, water-power, and very large tracks of timber areas of this Province. If private holders of these areas do not choose themselves to develop, no one can compel them to do so. They are on the land either fee simple or on leases.

Now, Sir, this Government objects strenuously and indignantly to the use of the words employed by the honourable and learned Leader of the Opposition just before I began. If there is one we repudiate it is confiscation; it is expropriation; it is forfeitures; it is confiscation. For two years this Government have been in negotiation with various financial and industrial interests across Canada and in the United States, in Great Britain and on the Continent of Europe, seeking to interest them in the development of Newfoundland's resources, natural resources and again in the offices of these people in those places I have been asked if the Government in Newfoundland would confiscate or expropriate these alienated public lands. I recall, last summer attending a dinner given, in fact by bankers, financiers, and industrialists, including some of the very greatest of the United States in those fields; those luncheons and dinners were attended also by the Attorney General and as they asked me what we had in Newfoundland capable of being developed, I had to confess to them that the bulk of Newfoundland was alienated to private interests who were doing nothing whatsoever to develop it and I was asked if it was the intention of the Government to confiscate or expropriate the property and on every occasion without fail my answer was "No." We had no intention of so doing, none whatsoever. I spoke the Government mind in that matter and I speak it today when I say that we repudiate any suggestion whatsoever of confiscation, of expropriation, and I ask my honourable and learned friend the Leader of the Opposition and his party and my honourable friends the Independent members and indeed the whole House, to be fair and to keep an open mind and not jump to conclusions suggested by that word.

Now, Sir, first of all this Bill has nothing whatsoever to do with fee simple land; for example, the Reid Newfoundland Company were paid to build a railway and they were paid in two ways, so much a mile in cash and so much a mile in public domain, public land. The public land that they were paid was fee simple, the ownership of it becoming theirs unconditionally and as a result the Reid Newfoundland Company today owns a very large part of Newfoundland in blocks, alternating blocks, no two of them continuous, I understand, taken up by them and the checker board effect is owned by them fee simple untaxed and held by them unconditionally as long as the grass grows green or water is wet. Forever, for all time, for all eternity. Other people have land fee simple which is their own. This Bill has nothing to do with such land nothing whatsoever. This Bill has to do only with leased lands. That is leased lands that were leased before the new Crown Lands Act, came into effect, that is to say lands leased before 1931 and furthermore lands leased conditionally and lands leased on two conditions in fact, one that they should develop the areas in question. Now I want to show you the shocking terms of these leases, I have a photostatic copy of them here now, the originals are up in the Department of Natural Resources. Here is one photostatic of one grant, one lease, and if the honourable members have good eye-sight they will see it is a printed document that has handwriting appearing every few lines. One is shocked, as a Newfoundlander desiring the good of Newfoundland, in reading these leases to discover what were the ideas of the Government of those days about development. They could light-heartedly grant for ninety-nine years or longer a thousand square miles of public domain on conditions: one, paying a certain modest rental every year and on conditions they would develop it, but that development turned out to be microscopic development. How does this one go: They have two thousand five hundred square miles and they are required to saw 15,000 feet of lumber every twenty four hours. That happens to be a big one, as it is a rather large production and is not a good example of the point I am making. To be precise, however, the point I make is this, that we refer in this Bill only to land leased before 1931 and in the second place land only that was paying rentals and secondly development. This Bill merely calls on them to develop, that is all it does. Calls on them to live up to those conditions. They have not lived up to them.

Now, past governments for the past quarter of a century were apparently quite happy in connection with such leases in fact, with the trifling amount they got for rentals, $2 a square mile, $2,000 for a thousand square miles a year, one night's poker money for a well to do man. $2,000 a year rental to the Government and they owned a thousand square miles. But there was no development whatsoever. Now, the heart of this Bill is in the preamble which I will read: If they don't fulfill those conditions after all these years, and some of these were issued back in 1902 and they have never cut as much as a single stick just ignored us: Grand River Pulp and Lumber Company. This has only to do with Labrador, the present owner, Royal Bank of Canada location Grand or Hamilton River. This lease is 187 square miles for fifty years from January 14, 1902. Fortunately that is one that will elapse next year, the Royal Bank of Canada, has it now and have asked the Government for renewal and the Government has told them they had no intention of doing so. No. 2: This again is the Grand Bank Pulp Company, Royal Bank of Canada, time fifty years; 54 square miles. Now further grants to the Grand River Pulp and Lumber Company two square miles for fifty years, 1901. That is only 287 square miles and Goose Bay Airport is built on part of that area. There is one good thing, it automatically reverts to the Crown this year. No. 5, J. Ellis, present owner of Estate of J. Ellis and Company; J. Foote, one hundred square miles; Labrador Pulp and Lumber, Lake Melville, 150 miles, 99 years, 1981; J. K. Hefferton, present owner of his estate, location Lake

Melville, 99 years from the 23rd., November 1923, date of issue, May 10, 1927.

Now there we have over four thousand square miles in Labrador, just in one area of Labrador. Four thousand square miles which are not turning in to the people of the Government of Newfoundland one dollar, except a paltry rental, not a dollar, not a copper, four thousand square miles in that one area alone. Now will we confiscate? We will not! Will we expropriate? We will not. What will we do? We will say to the companies: "Carry out the terms of your lease." If there is a default let it be the default of the companies. Let it be their default. If there is a violation let it be their violation. I hope they will observe the terms of their leases, will give full performance of the terms and conditions under which they were granted these lands.

Now, this Bill applies, however, not only to Labrador, it applies to the whole Province in respect only to timber-land leased under conditions prior to 1931. Mr. Speaker, last night here in this chamber, the Minister of Supply did some figuring while the debate proceeded on another matter, and he figured this: If those concessions whose names I have just read covering that four thousand square miles had lived up to the conditions imposed upon them when they were given these leases with conditions which they accepted when the leases were given had gone ahead with the development which they accepted as conditions of the leases, they would have turned in by now to the Treasury of Newfoundland as royalties at the very most the modest figure of 25c. a thousand feet of lumber. I think the two paper companies charge $2 is it not, to saw-mill men who go down there?

MR. HIGGINS: It used to be $1.25 but I think Bowaters now charge $2 to Newfoundlanders who move in on their areas to cut logs for their saw mills.

MR. SMALLWOOD: $2, I speak subject to correction. 25c. a thousand feet and at that rate the Treasury of Newfoundland has lost $999,000 a million dollars in royalties through non-performance by these companies, of one of the essential conditions of their leases, not to speak of the employment there would have been in logging and saw mills to produce the lumber that they required to produce and never did. Now the Treasury received none of this money, Newfoundlanders have received none of that employment.

Was it by any chance the fault of this House? Can any of these companies point to the House of Assembly and say: "But for you we would have fulfilled the terms"? The answer is they could not. Can they blame the Government? Can they point to the Government and say: "But for you we would have fulfilled the terms of our leases"? No they cannot. Can they turn to anyone in Newfoundland to blame for not living up to their contract, for breaking their contract? No they cannot. Who then is to bear the blame? Obviously those who broke the contracts. Who were they? The concession owners. And we ask the House in this Bill, the Government asks the House in this Bill, to announce to these concession owners that we insist upon their fulfilling the terms of their agreement. We do not come into the House with a Bill with a thoroughly good case to confiscate, we don't come in and report to the House here that those concessionaires have violated their agreement, we will confiscate, do you agree? We do not do that. We would be well justified if we did but we do not. We have no intention of suggesting it. But we do come and say let us tell those concessionaires we insist that from here on they fulfill their agreement and if they don't they having themselves violated the terms of this agreement, the agreement falls and ceases to be and the position that was before is restored. Thirty or forty years ago our predecessors made a deal with you, gave you a thousand, five thousand or one hundred square miles on conditions you have not kept since they were given to you. Today we say, you have broken your agreement and the status quo is restored. Status quo ante. They should have been told this twenty years ago.

MR. CASHIN: They were told it twenty years ago and the Privy Council said no, back in 1931.

MR. SMALLWOOD: In 1918 the Act was first tried. I know that was the subsequent result but I think 1918 was the first; Honourable Sir William Lloyd brought legislation in along the same lines only theirs was confiscatory legislation, which ours is not. They declared the leases null and void, which we do not and in the Supreme Court that legislation was upheld. It was upheld by the full bench of the Supreme Court on appeal but was not upheld on appeal to a jurisdictional committee of the Privy Council and that having happened no Government thereafter until now has seen fit to do anything about it.

MR. HIGGINS: 1930 was the year of appeal.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Since that event in the jurisdiction committee of the Privy Council no government of Newfoundland has seen fit to do anything about it until now and we ask for wholehearted and unanimous support of the House, regardless of what party one sits on, in this sound and worthy action.

Bill read a first time. Ordered to be read a second time on tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I move the adjournment of the debate, not for the purpose of speaking again but for the purpose of adjournment.

MR. CASHIN: I can see the point and I agree with the Premier's main remarks. The Bill is merely for Labrador, there is very little in Newfoundland anyhow. But he read out the leases and there were also three hundred square miles to the Dickey people who did start an operation in Labrador some years ago and exported timber and it was the Dickey property that brought around the Labrador Boundary Dispute in 1900, I think, and they ultimately went bankrupt and the Royal Bank or some one took over the property and continued to pay the rental until now. Also the Royal Bank, if my memory serves me right, has a lease on the water power of Musgrave Falls which is for 99 years. Now they have been paying the rental on that three hundred square miles for some years but they sold a portion of it to the Canadian Government to build Goose Bay and I imagine the Royal Bank of Canada has left about 190 or 200 square miles out of the three hundred and undoubtedly they got enough money out of the one hundred square miles to pay any one out-of-pocket expense through the dicker with the Canadian Government when they took it over for Goose Bay. We then come along down to Hamilton Inlet and go into the river where the Labrador Pulp and Lumber Co. has 150 square miles which is a good area. I talked with parties who surveyed it or somewhere around it in 1938, and it is a well wooded area with probably a million or a million and a half cords of wood on it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: About 12,000,000 cords.

MR. CASHIN: That 12,000,000 cords do not belong to those people they have one hundred square miles, ten thousand acres with about a million cords on it at the most roughly, and then we come along to the one owned by Hefferton. From what I understand about that property, Mr. Speaker, the Government should be sued for taking money under false pretenses. It is not worth talking about nor the timber on that area is not worth taking about. Bowaters surveyed it in 1937 and it was a joke. W. I. Bishop told me the Government should be ashamed to take the rental. They did not give it up because I understand the people who take leases in this country or anywhere else average about ten times as much wood as possible. It was a joke, a man came out here, and took a week to survey it, estimated, looked at one spot and multiplied it and made it eight or seven hundred cords of wood and when it was flown over there is not two million cords of wood in the whole area. Then to come to Ellis. I think that was operated a few years ago by a small company. It is not a difficult place to operate and it was operated for a short time. Then we come further South and find the MacMartin property with one hundred square miles roughly surveyed by surveyors about 40 years ago in a somewhat similar way as the other and the surveyors said there was ten million cords of wood in it, but there was no definite survey on it at all. It is supposed to be a good profitable location. Now those people have lots of money. They are identified with the Labrador Mining Company, so they must have plenty of money, they own 20% of the stock of Hollingers. Their income out of Hollingers is about $40,000, $60,000 or $70,000 a year and is paid for by a trust company in Toronto, whether or not they will get it back or not, I don't know. The Governments of the past were not so bad after all, they tried to get those leases back in 1930-31 and the Privy Council turned us down but the Commission of Government made no effort, in fact, they made an effort to give it away. They gave away the best part of Newfoundland; the bases, the airports and everything else for nothing. Talk about anyone giving things away, why, the Commission of Government gave more away in Newfoundland than all the other Governments in our history.

However, I am going to vote for the principle of that Bill because I feel these properties good or bad should be returned to the country. On the other hand I don't want it returned to be handed over to Wood Gundy or Harriman-Ripley. The government are getting $2 a square mile. How much money did they get in the last forty or fifty years? At least $200,000 in rentals. How much has it cost these people if they took the money and compound the interest at 3% over forty years? Roughly a million dollars, making a guess, which those people paid in rentals to Newfoundland directly or indirectly and foundland directly or indirectly and—basis what would a million dollars royalties amount to?

MR. CASHIN: The Government never received any money but the others were paying it out and, why were they granting these concessions? In 1901 or 1902, Dickie was granted these concessions by the Bond Government and they tried to operate it and were stopped by the Quebec Government who put him into bankruptcy. Then came the Labrador Boundary Dispute and our governments, every one since that time has been giving leases on property they had no title to in the Labrador areas at all until 1927, I think it was on that point that these people won their case. They were supposed to erect mills on this property and failed to do so because the property was in dispute until 1927. But they did not start, after 1927, to carry out their contract and as a result the Government took action, and the Privy Council turned us down. Now, as to this, I do not know what the legal situation is but I do as a result the Government took action, and the Privy Council turned us down. Now, as to this, I do not know what the legal situation is but I do not want to see the Government get in another tangle with the Privy Council or the Supreme Court of Canada. All those people belong to the mainland and have more influence with Ottawa; not with the Supreme Court, I refer to Timmins and his crowd etc. They have the money and are the biggest subscribers to the Liberal Party which controls your Government in Newfoundland at the present time. They do control you. You have to cower to them and have ever since you came into office. I do not, I am not in a Cabinet and I do not want to have anything to do with Ottawa.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Yes, we want a lot more money and we are going to get it sometime.

MR. CASHIN: That is not the point, the Government is forcing those leasers to carry out the contract and they will probably come back and say they will not or will not answer you at all.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The Bill says the lands revert to the Crown.

MR. CASHIN: They hand them back and then you are going to lease them to someone else, some companies who say they are prepared to develop. Now, you might find yourselves involved in a law action right away. If they start operating on a property in dispute the original people like Mac Martin may come along and say "Get out, this is ours," and then you are into another mess.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We are not that soft, we are not leasing any now that are in dispute.

MR. CASHIN: I do not want to see you getting in deep, I hope you do not, but I see it differently. Any lawyer can tell you that they are not going to give up without a fight. For instance they have paid in $150,000 rentals but have paid no royalties since they have had this property, actually they have no intention of developing but are holding on in the hope some day it might turn out to be good.

MR. RUSSELL: I do not think there is any need for me to keep this on my mind overnight, Sir. The Government knows already of the Bill. I do hope, as my honourable friend on my left, that it will not involve the Government in any legal difficulties. I want to make this perfectly clear, although I do hope and will do everything I can to encourage it, that these properties come back into possession of the Crown, I still reserve my right to express my own opinion as to what the Government should or should not then do with them after they get them back. Meanwhile I support the Bill entirely in principle and detail and I wish the Government every success with it.

HON. S. J. HEFFERTON (Minister of Education): I move adjournment of the debate.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Before you go on with the Order Paper, I think we should have a recess of ten minutes.

Ten minutes' recess.

Honourable the Acting Minister of Fisheries asks leave to introduce a Bill, "An Act Respecting the Sale and Distribution of Fishery Salt."

Bill read a first time. Ordered to be read a second time on tomorrow.

Honourable the Acting Minister of Natural Resources asks leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Authorize the Government to enter into an Agreement with Falconbridge Nickle Mines, Limited."

Bill read a first time. Ordered to be read a second time on tomorrow.

Orders of the Day

Third reading of Bill "An Act Respecting Livestock."

Bill read a third time and passed.

On motion the third reading of Bill "An Act to Amend the Education Act, 1927" was deferred.

Third reading of a Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants of Newfoundland."

Bill read a third time and passed.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Provide for the Regulation of Motor Vehicles Used in the Transportation of Persons for Compensation."

MR. CURTIS: I wonder if the House might resolve into Committee now on Section No. 5.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendment.

Report received and adopted. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Amend the Restaurant Acts, 1929,"

MR. CHAIRMAN: This was all passed except the title.

MR. CURTIS: We withheld this Bill yesterday because some honourable member asked if the restaurants were closed on Sunday by reason of any law which compelled them to remain closed. I made enquiries and as far as we are concerned there is no law requiring restaurants to close on Sundays.

MR. HEFFERTON: Is there a law in certain areas where the need might arise? I suggested some time ago there is need for some all-night restaurants.

MR. CURTIS: In reply to the honourable member I can say that the senior officer of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police can, under this Act, give permission to any restaurant to remain open all night on any particular night or any night in the year.

MR. RUSSELL: I think what the honourable the junior member for St. John's West has said should be taken note of, since it is a fact that there is no law that prevents restaurants from remaining open on Sundays; it should be as widely known as possible. First, all restaurant owners should know, but above all the public should know as that might induce them to remain open. I have heard people as far away as Victoria, British Columbia, when they heard where I came from Newfoundland say, "Yes, that is the place where you cannot get a meal on Sunday." We have become notorious for it and I think the remarks of the honourable members should be given all publicity possible.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendment. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act Respecting the Public Revenue and Raising of Loans Authorized by the Legislature and the Auditing of Public Accounts."

MR. CHAIRMAN: We have considered as far as 57, page 31.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, I wonder if we might return now to page 17, part (5), Section 4, Sub-clause 6: "The Comptroller holds office during good behaviour until he attains the age of sixty-five years but is removable by the Lieutenant-Governor on address of the House of Assembly." Now the wording is identical with the wording of the equivalent clause dealing with the Auditor General which, last night, we amended to read: "On address of two-thirds of the members of the House of Assembly." Now, I find the Comptroller of Finance is a title given to an officer who fulfills part of the duties formerly fulfilled by an officer bearing the title, "Comptroller and Auditor General," from which we get the familiar initials C. & AG. We have separated the functions of that office so that now the functions are performed by two men, rather than one man as formerly. So that the Comptroller of Finance is in almost exactly, if not exactly, the same class as the Auditor General and is clearly an officer of the House. He is a servant of the House, of the Legislature, as is the Auditor General, he is removable by the Lieutenant Governor on address of the House of Assembly. That makes him a servant of the Legislature in exactly the same way as the Auditor General is a servant of the Legislature. I propose there that we make to this sub-section exactly the same amendment as we did last night to the section dealing with the Auditor General that is sub-section (4) of Clause 55 which the Committee will find on page 30, "But is removable by the Lieutenant Governor on address of two-thirds of the members of the House of Assembly." The effect of my amendment would be to have sub-section 6 of clause 34 read exactly the same except only the word "Comptroller" would appear rather than the word "Auditor General." Now that puts the Comptroller of Finance in exactly the same position as that of the Auditor General. As a matter of fact, Mr. Chairman, I think the Committee will see the justice of that. If there is a just cause for putting the Auditor General beyond the power of the Government to be dismissed by making it two-thirds of the members of the House of Assembly, by the same token and for exactly the same reason, only more so, the Comptroller of Finance should be put beyond the power of a majority of the House to be dismissed and for this reason, whereas the Auditor General lives a more or less exclusive official life, the Comptroller of Finance deals daily himself with all the Departments of the Government and with all the Ministers of the Crown and it is very easy indeed for the Comptroller of Finance under this system to offend Ministers and heads of Departments because we spend most of our time grinding our teeth at this and that over him, and he necessarily has to be tough, and I think it is only fair play and prudent policy, Sir, for a general government to do the right thing to move this amendment, as I have done, on behalf of the Auditor General.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Chairman, I must say I agree with this but I was amused last night when the Premier got up and said the Comptroller was a servant of the Government. Last year when this matter came up I said the Comptroller was in a very unfortunate position in the role of Comptroller of the Treasury and Deputy Minister of Finance of the Government and it was dangerous to put such a man in such a position. The Government would not and could not interfere with a servant of the House. Now, last night he was a servant of the Government and I suggested a two-thirds majority but I am very glad they have come to their senses in the matter as he should be protected against a Cabinet rich government just as much as the Auditor General, and he should not feel his position is in jeopardy and I agree with this amendment.

MR. CURTIS: I was wondering where the honourable the Premier got the idea where two-thirds of the House is necessary to dismiss either the Auditor General or the Comptroller. Surely this House should have power to do it by a majority. In this House in the old days judges and the Auditor General were removable on a majority of the House and as a Government can exercise that right, but why limit it to a party who happens to control two-thirds of the House. I was wondering where the authority for this two-thirds originated, I doubt whether any other Province has it, surely the majority should act.

MR. CHAIRMAN: In answer to the Attorney General, it occurs to me that while the Committee may pass this amendment, it will not make much difference because no parliament can in any way limit the power of the majority. This amendment may be passed saying two-thirds, but it may be repealed by parliament by a majority of one and then any official or civil servant may be dismissed.

MR. CURTIS: But it is only a joke.

MR. HIGGINS: No, this House may be changed any time now.

MR. SMALLWOOD: There is an awful lot in the argument of the Attorney General I must admit; after all, it can be thrown out by a majority of one, this Government can be thrown out at any time by a majority of one member of the House, so that there is a lot in what the Attorney General says. That is probably what we might agree when we reflect that not all governments but only Liberal governments got majority and will have a larger majority in the next general assembly, but we are going to be in office only another

23 years, another 22½ to be exact, and I think we might here in this Bill be very generous on the side of this principle of putting the Auditor General and the Comptroller of Finance as officers of the House, very efficient and very important officers of the House beyond a mere majority of the House. Now there is a great principle at stake there, it may be pointed out that in other provinces and in the House of Commons of Canada and the United Kingdom a majority only is required. That may be the case, I do not know, and have not checked on it. Surely, if we were making it two-thirds, we do not expect to have any difficulty with the Auditor General or the Comptroller of Finance as evidenced by the fact that we are the Government who have adopted the principle of central accounting, we are the Government who have accepted and introduced into this House the principle of limited control in public expenditures. We are the Government who have brought in this legislation into the House; we are the Government who I think have shown quite clearly our anxiety to put the Auditor General and the Comptroller of the Treasury in an almost impregnable position, and as such a Government we are least of all likely to have any difficulty with these gentlemen who occupy these positions. I think we are looking far enough into the dim future when the Liberal Government is no longer in power when we make legislation now today for the unlikely event of Toryism raising its head again in this Province and by some fatal and ghastly mistake or some temperamental aberration Toryism be in office again. We might legislate against that, and the Auditor General and the Comptroller of Finance be put beyond that too ugly feature of Toryism. Now is the time to be Liberal and truly generous, and I hope my honourable colleague the Attorney General will agree with me along that line.

MR. FAHEY: Point of order, are we debating this point or having a full-dress debate on Liberalism?

MR. SMALLWOOD: We are debating.

MR. CHAIRMAN: I think the honourable the Premier was probably wandering a bit.

MR. FOGWILL: This has nothing to do with Toryism or the next campaign.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The honourable gentleman seems to be very touchy about my reference to Toryism. You claim you are not Tories why be touchy now when I talk about Toryism?

MR. CURTIS: How is it going to work, two-thirds of what?

MR. SMALLWOOD: On address of two-thirds of the members of the House of Assembly.

MR. CURTIS: How are you going to work that if the House wants to fire the Attorney General, you say two-thirds of the members of the House of Assembly. It does not function by members but by a motion, by a resolution. Now how are you going to say a resolution of two-thirds and the address is by the House of Assembly? Do you mean to say you have to put in an address and two-thirds have to sign it? I do not like it, particularly as we or any majority can amend the Act, we can repeal the Act.

MR. RUSSELL: Apparently all the members of the Government are not so generous as the Premier. They should make no laws until they can get together on them.

MR. CURTIS: Well it is not a matter of principle.

Amendment carried.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I think the honourable Leader of the Opposition asked to have Page 19, Clause 37, stand, Mr. Chairman. I wonder if he still wants to have it stand.

MR. HIGGINS: No, I am ready to debate it now.

MR. SMALLWOOD: May I say that these two sub-sections (a) and (b) of 37 are almost identically the same as in the Consolidated Statutes and the Comptroller of Finance tells me that in connection with (a) his impression is that it is identical with that of the United Kingdom. I have already pointed out that (a) is identical with the legislation of the Provinces of Saskatchewan, Alberta, and Manitoba, and maybe others. I don't know, but I do know that (a) except for a matter of countervailing savings is identical with the principle set forth in the legislation of the Province of Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba and not, as far as I am aware, with the Legislation of other Provinces.

Motion 37 (b) be passed.

MR. RUSSELL: Mr. Chairman, I am sorry but I have to delay a few minutes because Section 37, like a great deal else in the Audit Act, can stand all the discussion and explanation that we can give it. It is in four parts and I propose to move an amendment to it in a few minutes time as I consider it is a means whereby a Government can get money to spend for certain purposes even though such money was not voted specifically for the purpose by the previous Legislature. It is necessary because no Government can possibly anticipate how much money they want for every detail and specific provision. We have to have a Section 37 and as I say this one is in four parts. The last part (c) of 3 I am not going to refer to because it just deals with getting the necessary backing from the Legislature afterwards. But the first three I must refer to very briefly.

Section 37 (1): That provides for what we call countervailing savings and it is like this: In the Department of Natural Resources for example, the Minister has received from the House authority to spend one hundred thousand on timber surveys, he might well find that during two years that the timber survey is completed and that he would like to have more money to carry on, $20,000 to carry on before the end of the season to buy a diamond drill or some such equipment. Now it is all surveys, all in the common good, all necessary, and he has only spent $80,000 on the timber survey. Why not transfer that $20,000 from timber to the Mines survey? That is what we call countervailing savings. That is all right yet it can be carried to excess, but so long as that is administered wisely there is nothing wrong with it, but it can be done only within a Department. If money is being saved down in the Public Welfare Department, the Department of Supply cannot get that money for a project no matter how badly it is needed. That is quite right and proper. For instance the Division of Mines was down in Public Works until a few years ago and they used money they had not spent for mining, for building a bridge. That is all right in general.

Now, the next two are very interesting. They described ways by which the Government may get new money not voted at all by the Legislature. There are two kinds of occasions on which they may get new money and it is explained very carefully by those two sub-sections (a) and (b). On the first occasion the Minister finds that the money for providing lime to farmers, for example, is all gone. Now, ordinarily he could take it from any other vote in the Department where there was saving, countervailing savings, but supposing the money is all gone and they still need money for some project and the House won't be opening yet, for several months and they need the money. There is a way. They can get a special warrant from the Lieutenant Governor in Council and get the money for this purpose. They can get more money for a purpose than was already given for it where it is all spent and they cannot get more from countervailing savings, in any other part of the Department, and in my opinion the path by which they get that money is much too lenient, much too easy in this sub-section.

Now the Minister is likely to be tempted to say it is urgent. If the Assistant Deputy leans and breaks the back of his chair, is that urgent? He asks the Minister of Supply for a new chair, and he says the money is all gone, go out in the other office and get a chair. But the Minister tells him we are not expected to go all over the place looking for furniture, it might happen that the Minister would say it was urgent and would want a warrant for it, the Lieutenant Governor issues a warrant. Now, in my opinion it has to come to the House later on and the duty of the Opposition is not to approve everything that comes in but to question and criticize and ask "why"? The Government reply would be that the Minister thought it was urgent we could think not, the public could think not, but the only all-satisfactory reply is that the Minister thought it was urgent, and the Cabinet agreed. Now, it is just as well to be realistic, when you see the board described in the Act you imagine a board consisting of three or five glum-faced men sitting around a table cold-bloodedly, like judges, handling requests for something urgent dealing with public finance. Actually it is not so, in this Government or any other. These men meet every day with the Minister concerned and probably the Minister himself will be tough or decide if the Comptroller of Finance.

Now, Sir, in the second case where there is no provision made at all, something the Government entirely overlooked, for which they made no provisions; to replace a building which had been burned (I don't want any to be, but if they were) and had to be replaced by a new one and money would be needed for it. Now, Sir, I do not see any difference between a Minister wanting more money for a purpose which he has already been allotted money to spend, or money for an entirely new thing that he did not think about at all, nor the Government did not think about when the estimates appeared before the Legislative Assembly. I am not at all in agreement with what the Premier says about the United Kingdom Act, nor the three quoted; the Federal, Ontario and British Columbia Acts, which have no provisions similar to what we have in (a) at all. I don't know how they get on but they must have some provision for when they over-spend a subhead and can't get it from countervailing savings. There must be something very like our (b), which specifically mentions public works being destroyed or damaged during the year. Saskatchewan has (a) and (b) in one, and made restrictions like we did in (b). I would like the Government to accept the suggestion that we do the same. I will do it this way, as aware that this (a) was passed in 1931, we have it almost word for word, but I would also remind you that in 1931 we had a man called a Controller, I think and he was here on behalf of all our creditors. Nothing could be done under (a) consequently that changes the picture a little regarding (a). Now, Sir, if in (b) after the word "Made" in line two, add these words, "But in or for which insufficient legislation had been made or for which countervailing savings are not available under sub-section one of this section," then cut out (a) altogether and renumber (c) as (b), the effect would be nothing more or less than this, to make it just as difficult for a Minister to get extra money for a thing that he already had committed and for which he needed more, which might happen to anyone, and could not get countervailing savings, since monies under all other sub-heads were used up. This would make it just as difficult for him to get as if it were entirely a new project like (b). It would have one other effect, then all warrants could be questioned by the Opposition when brought before the House, which would not be told simply that the Minister thought it was urgent. Such questions asked and answered excepting where grave damage had been done to persons or interests of the Crown involved, where additional expenditure is involved, would take a little time but would be in the interest of good debate and public information. I have a copy written here, Mr. Chairman.

MR. HIGGINS: I second that motion. It is to be noticed in the Consolidated Statutes.

MR. SMALLWOOD: What is the amendment?

MR. RUSSELL: If the subject of the expense is one for which no Legislative Provision is made, that brings in (a); or for which no countervailing savings are obtainable or available, or under section one, that one covers every possible case where a special warrant is issued and make two the same for both.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is where you have gone wrong, I will show you that.

MR. HIGGINS: Refer to the Consolidated Statutes. (a) is applicable to where Legislature is not in Session and some unforeseen accident occurs such as a building falls down. Now, that does not mean to spend an enormous amount of money and if in 1933 it was changed, it was changed because we were in a very bad position and the Government wanted action immediately and at the same time we did hear the honourable member for Bonavista South remind us there was a watchdog in the form of Sir Percy Thompson to see no money was rashly squandered. Now, this section is dangerous because the House here may pass and give authority for an expenditure of a small amount of money and the Minister when it is allocated feels it is not sufficient. If the House passes a thousand dollars and the Minister says: "I am going to spend twenty thousand," then there is a lot of difference in the two amounts not merely in dollars but one of principle. It would be just as well to take it and say two hundred thousand. There should be some check here. The Minister, if he feels he has encouragement, can ask this money be allocated and ask the Cabinet to pass it and all the Cabinet has to do is to show the Minutes of Council giving reasons that it was urgent, the same as we were told of the cement factory. Now, I agree that both situations should be the same. What is the difference in spending enormous amounts in addition to what is passed by the House and spending more new amounts in cases where there is no allocation made by the House at all? What is the difference? It is the very same thing. Under this section (a) hundreds of thousands could be spent, it does not say 20% more to be spent or thirty or forty or five hundred percent, or even one hundred percent, just say it was urgent and say I had a plant down here and had to have a surveyor down here and now I am going to keep him down here. The whole idea of this Audit Act is to see that everything is properly done with the money of the Province, looked after carefully, nobody should have any authority to spend money except for some great reason in accordance with the Audit Act. Now, in this case the Controller has no control at all. The watchdogs, the Auditor General and the Comptroller of Finance, have no control, they are free and away from any fear from any government, but they are kept out of this entirely, they have nothing to say about it, they have to do what they are told, they can do nothing at all about it. There is no use in having two watchdogs if they cease to be of any effect, they are made silent and their bite stopped in matters which may involve millions of dollars. This Act will go for future governments and it is putting the money of the country in the hands of three or four men who will decide for their Departments, not the House. I am therefore going to second that motion.

MR. SMALLWOOD: There is no need of such a motion being seconded, in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. Chairman, the honourable member for Bonavista South argued eloquently on a slightly foolish premise and a complete misapprehension of the basic principle of Parliamentary Government and Public Finance. Indeed not often have I seen as elegant an example of an honourable gentleman displaying his complete failure to grasp the basic principle of Parliamentary Government. I think he will probably be the first in the House to see it when I point it out to him. The first point of all is the fact that (a) and (b) deal with two different kinds of situations. The whole clause sets up a number of positions in either one of which the Government may issue a special warrant on the Treasury on advice of the Lieutenant Governor in Council for the payment of certain sums of money out of the Treasury. First in (a) there are two kinds; one, that the House had provided money but not enough. Two, that no money in countervailing savings is available in the given department. Now following that procedure in that case, or that double-headed case, the Lieutenant Governor issues his Warrant.

Now, we come to (b). This is a case where expenditure is needed to be made, so the Cabinet thinks and the Government thinks, but the Legislature had made no provisions for it at all; none whatsoever. A procedure is provided there whereby the Lieutenant Governor may issue a special warrant on advice of the Government. My honourable friend suggests that the procedure in (b) is more complicated and beset with more restrictions than is the procedure in (a) and he is perfectly right. One needs only to read it to see that it is much more difficult to get a special warrant issued under (b) than it is under (a). But why? Has the honourable gentleman asked himself, why? I doubt it. He ought to be bright enough to see why. In (a) the matter in question had already been before the House and voted on and adopted in principle; and in (b) it has not, it has never come before the House. It is entirely a new matter than (a) on which a vote was taken by the House, a pronouncement had been made on the principle involved and the House agreed that money be voted but it has turned out to be insufficient. This is where the difference in procedure is made and when no vote has been taken in the House and the principle involved has not been approved by the House there is a more complicated procedure required whereas there is a simpler procedure in the case where the matter has been before the House and the principle involved has been voted on and adopted but insufficient money voted. My honourable friend has ignored these basic considerations. I will read the Saskatchewan Act. That is what the honourable friend wants in Newfoundland. Now, I will read the Alberta Act. Now, I will read Manitoba.

But Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan are wrong and we are right. And, as I have already told the Committee, I cannot say the Parliament of Canada or these other Provinces provide for or against these matters. I cannot say, I do not know, my honourable friend does not know, no one in the House at the moment knows whether or not those other Provinces cover this one point of insufficiently voted or amounts not voted at all. Sir, Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan do and in so doing put in one clause and one procedure for either. We have separated them, we have taken the stand in this Bill, that one case requires a simple procedure. So we are right, we are sound, absolutely so. I can give the Committee an example: Take the case of (b), "If the subject of expenditure is one for which no legislative provision has been made, then, upon the report of the Minister that there is no legislative provision, and of the Minister having charge of the service in question that in his opinion the necessity is urgent, giving reasons for his opinion, and that if such expenditure is not made grave damage to persons or to property or to the interests of the Crown or the public will occur or excessive additional expense will result from delaying the expenditure until the necessary legislative provision has been made, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, on the recommendation in writing of the Board, order that a special warrant be prepared for signature by the Lieutenant-Governor for the issue of the amount estimated to be required, and an additional subhead shall be set up in the books of the Comptroller against which expenditures on the services shall be charged."

Now, take a case like this, last year a certain piece of work was done by the Government, money was voted for the expenditure not on a special warrant but a normal expenditure of the Government and the job was completed. Now after that the Government come into the House with estimates for the coming year and no provisions can be made in respect to that job last year because it is complete, but in this year coming something happens and although the hundred thousand were spent on it last year unless twenty thousand is spent on it this year the whole hundred thousand may go down the drain. Now there is a case where no provision has been made and yet if the Government is not authorized to spend that twenty thousand the result mya well be the loss of the one hundred thousand. Yet the House has not voted it, there is no Legislative provision made for that twenty thousand dollars, and obviously the Lieutenant Governor should be able to act on the advice of the Cabinet, and on the advice of the Cabinet should issue a special warrant. But, if it is not provided for and there has been no vote passed in the Legislature then obviously the procedure ought to be more complicated than in the case where it is already voted but not of a sufficient amount.

MR. RUSSELL: Why not apply it to that?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Well, if you persist in not seeing or failing to see it,

MR. HIGGINS: I do not see it either.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I did not say because those Provinces of Canada do it one way and we do it another, they were right, I did not say that; I said in passing that we have adopted the proper procedure and they have adopted the improper procedure.

MR. RUSSELL: I say the opposite.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I know the honourable gentleman is going to stand by his amendment, he must justify himself as the honourable gentleman always does. I have told the Committee what is wrong with it, if he does not see it is not my fault. I think I made it clear as daylight. If he cares to re-study the difference and ask himself the reason for it, definitely, he cannot help but see, unless he is wilfully trying not to see, he cannot help seeing the sound reason for the difference in the procedures. We cannot accept that amendment.

MR. HIGGINS: I say the idea of principle is all nonsense. I may vote for a Bill in principle allocating one thousand dollars for some expenditure; why then should the Minister or the Cabinet make it ten thousand dollars when probably a large number of the members would have voted against the ten thousand dollars. All we ask is for the same form and if it is right, if it is just and proper that money should be used by the Government then why should they fear the formality, the Comptroller or the Auditor General or anybody else and if the Auditor General or the Comptroller does not think it just and equitable that would end the matter. Someone must be the judge.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Certainly not, except the Legislature.

MR. HIGGINS: They have a right to pass an audit on all amounts, they certainly have that right.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Don't forget the Government are the Government.

MR. HIGGINS: It is immaterial about that, certain formalities have to be undergone, and they are stronger in the second than in the first. I say, the matter of principle is all nonsense. The amount to be spent could be out of all proportions to that voted by the House. If the Comptroller can control in one case, it must be for the public good. Why not the same thing there?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Can you not see? I will put it in basic English and very simply: Now, it is a Bill of the House but becomes an Act of the Legislature, so that it is a directive of the Legislature to the Government. Right, yes. And the Legislature says to the Government: "You shall spend only the money we vote you to spend, with a couple of exceptions and there are two exceptions, one: Where we voted you money but you wanted to spend a bit more than was voted, and two: Where we did not vote any money at all." Surely it must be obvious that the House's directive to the Government as to what it may or may not do with approval will make a distinction between what the House itself has approved in principle, namely (a) and what is it has not approved at all as in (b) and surely the directive of the House to the Government in (b) affecting matters where the House has not given authority at all than in the case of (a) where the House has directed it be done.

MR. HIGGINS: That may be so in most cases, but I say, cases may arise where the difference may be enormous because the Minister says it is urgent. In most cases it is all right, but in other cases it may not be so obvious and there may arise some extraordinary occasion where they need to spend an enormous amount of money, the Minister might think it is urgent, but if this section is used here, there will be some check on it. That is what I say.

MR. RUSSELL: All the House has done just now when it passed the estimates is to give the honourable Minister of Public Works, say $10,000 in different items which add up on the Supply Bill to $10,000,000 and if he wants $10,200,000 it is exactly the same to me whether he wants it for something new or for something that was included in the estimates. It affects that total of ten million dollars and I want to get that point across.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is an excellent point and here are two entirely separate points there.

MR. RUSSELL: When the Minister wants more money, under (a) there now and what I propose putting under (b) for some head of expenditure, what has been voted is all gone, he can get it with the approval of the Board or the Cabinet and come to the House later on. He should give more reason, in my opinion, than that it is urgent. I don't like the Government making it as lenient as possible and depending on the opinion of the Minister and approval of the Board.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The Treasury Board and the Minister of Finance and the Minister concerned and the Cabinet. What is lenient about that?

MR. RUSSELL: What is wrong with having it the same as the other Provinces and I suggest the stricter the better?

MR. SMALLWOOD: There are very severe restrictions now, in my opinion.

MR. RUSSELL: Not in mine and I move the amendment and stick by it.

The amendment is that 37 (b) be amended by inserting, after the word "May be," in line two, the words:

"Or for which insufficient Legislative provision has been made, or for which countervailing savings are not available under sub-section one, of this section."

MR. FAHEY: In rising to support the motion—

MR. SMALLWOOD: Would my honourable friend allow me: There is some suggestion that we have no session tonight as a dozen members of the House are anxious to attend the United Church Conference and strong pressure has been brought to bear not to have a night session. Therefore, I would rise and report progress and ask leave to sit again.

Ordered sit again tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I move the remaining orders be deferred and the House at its rising adjourn until tomorrow, Wednesday, at 3 of the clock.

WEDNESDAY, June 13, 1951.

The House opened at three of the clock.

Presenting Petitions

None.

Presenting Reports of Standing and Select Committees

Giving Notice of Motions and Questions

MR. JOHN G. HIGGINS (Leader of the Opposition): Mr. Speaker, I give notice that I will on tomorrow ask the honourable the Minister of Labour to table a statement showing the number of aliens (together with their names, nationalities, professions or trades) at present employed by the contractors for the cement and gypsum mills at Corner Brook both in the offices and on the works.

HON. J. R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): I would like to say I will have the answers to the questions asked yesterday by the honourable Leader of the Opposition, as quickly as possible, and while on my feet, in answer to number 114:

(1) Did the Government receive any independent financial advice in connection with the Bill regarding the Newfoundland and Labrador Development Corporation?

Answer: The Government did not receive any independent financial advice.

(2) If so, what is the name of the firm or company or party?

Answer: None.

(3) Do the parties mentioned in the Bill, the Newfoundland and Labrador Development Corporation, know of the IBEC Report and have they perused it?

Answer: No.

(4) Who will profit or lose by it not being made public?

Answer: I could not say; possibly speculators.

Notice of Motion

Honourable the Acting Minister of Natural Resources to ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Amend the Crown Lands (Mines and Quarries) Act, 1951."

Bill read a first time. Ordered to be read a second time on tomorrow.

Honourable the Minister of Public Welfare to ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Amend the Welfare of Children Act, 1944."

Bill read a first time. Ordered to be read a second time on tomorrow.

Orders of the Day

On motion Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means was deferred.

Third reading of Bill "An Act to Amend the Education Act, 1927."

HON. S. J. HEFFERTON (Minister of Education): With the concurrence of the House, I ask that this Bill be recommitted to Committee of the Whole.

Motion carried.

MR. HEFFERTON: I would propose an amendment that the word "overseers" be taken out and the word "superintendent" inserted, they are the chief officers now under the Department. Secondly, the last eight lines should be deleted, after the word "board" and add "other than religious denominations of the Board." The deletion is necessary as there is a redundancy in as much as that under other sections of the Act provisions already made govern those.

HON. DR. H. L. POTTLE (Minister of Public Welfare): Could we have the reading of the clause now as finally amended.

Carried.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments.

Ordered read a third time now.

Bill read a third time and passed.

Third reading of Bill "An Act to Provide for the Regulation of Motor Vehicles Used in the Transportation of Persons for Compensation."

MR. FAHEY: I would like to make an amendment, that the word "now" be stricken out and that the words "that this Bill be read six months hence" be inserted. This is the Bill giving a franchise is it not?

MR. SPEAKER: The motion is that this Bill be now read a third time. The amendment is to the effect that the word "now" be deleted and "six months hence" be there inserted. The amendment will be put in the form: The word "now" do stand part of the question.

Motion carried.

Bill read a third time and passed.
Third reading of a Bill "An Act to Amend the Restaurant Act."

HON. LESLIE R. CURTIS (Attorney General): Before this Bill is read a third time, I move an amendment in the wording of the Bill. Section 1 of the Restaurant Act, 1949, paragraph 2, should be 1929. I think also in the new Section 3, "the Chief Officer of the Police in St. John's and the Senior Officer." I think that should be "or," Mr. Speaker. I move this be adjusted before the Bill is read a third time.

Carried.

Bill read a third time and passed.

On motion the following two items were deferred.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act Respecting the Public Revenue, the Raising of Loans Authorized by the Legislature and the Auditing of Public Accounts."

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act Further to Amend the Public Utilities Act, 1949."

Second reading of Bill "An Act for Granting to His Majesty Certain Sums of Money for Defraying Certain Expenses of the Public Service for the Financial Year Ending the Thirty-first Day of March, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Fifty-two and for Other Purposes Relating to the Public Service."

MR. SMALLWOOD: The Bill, I think, Mr. Speaker, is largely formal and I wonder if the House would agree to go through the final stages, short only of the Royal Assent.

Carried.

MR. FAHEY: Total amount $44,900,000. Which is approximately three-quarters of a million in addition to what was voted in Committee as it went through. These were additions added by the various departments. I was just drawing that to the attention of the House.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Not only added; we not only added some amounts as it went through Committee of the Whole, but we subsequently brought in several entirely new items; one a half million dollars for the purchase of steel. That is, of course, a gross amount and the net effect is something more than we know and we have not shown any revenue to counter-balance that in any part of it.

MR. CHAIRMAN: The totals are the same as the resolutions.

Committee reported having passed the Bill without amendment.

Ordered read a third time now.

Bill read a third time and passed.

On motion second reading of Bill "An Act to Amend the Mining Tax Act, 1950" was deferred.

Second reading of a Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Newfoundland Federation of Fishermen."

HON. W. J. KEOUGH (Minister of Fisheries and Co-operatives): Mr. Speaker, in April of this year something happened in Newfoundland that has no precedent in all our long past, and if the consequence should prove to be all that was hoped for in that hour, then the event will loom largely in the years that lie ahead as a marking point when our social economic history took a new direction. Certainly those of us whose sense of history was alive to the potentialities of that hour marked it as a historic moment.

It will be remembered that from bays and coves and harbours all over the province, fishery representatives came and gathered in St. John's and their coming together from all the remote and near-by places was for us a unique phenomenon. After they had come together and after they had consulted amongst themselves for a little while, they determined upon the formation of a Fishermen's Federation. It may perhaps be a matter for some wonder that after some four hundred years of fishing it is only in this day and age we have seen the Fishermen's Federation emerge. In other lands fishermen have found the advantages of federation long before now. But, it must be noted that in this Island there were, until quite recently, there were many obstacles in the way of doing so, and in Newfoundland we have always taken our time about moves in new directions. Until those latter years there was no compelling sense of urgency which stirred us to attempt the new and untried. In Newfoundland we have fished for four hundred and fifty years almost, Sunday and Monday.

Now, I have said those with a sense of history marked that moment of decision to form the federation as a historic moment and the introduction of this Bill leads largely out of that moment.

The intention of the Bill is obviously to provide legislative sanction for the incorporation of the Newfoundland Federation of Fisheries and since its contents is self-explanatory there will be little need for me to concern myself specifically with the contents at this time. I should like, however, if I may, to avail of this last opportunity I shall have during the present session of this House, to clear up a misunderstanding that appears to be current and concerns the Government Co-operatives and the Fishermen's Federation. Rumor has spread through several sections of the community that the Government's concern with the well-being of the fishermen is evidenced by the education and establishment of the co-operatives and the participation in the creation of the Federation is an outward manifestation of the Government's intention of establishing one big co-operative to embrace and cover the whole fisheries. But every person who understands the fundamentals of the co-operative movement knows that such can only be regarded as gross ignorance as are many of the smoke screens to cover the deficiencies of the authors of such drivel who claim they will be forced into recession of inaction by the threat of restrictive government measures.

Now nothing can be clearer than the statement of the Government's policy in regard to co-operatives that was made during the Budget Speech and I do not intend to concern myself with that again at this time. But today those who cry out with statements of repression and restrictive action and Government control and pretend indignation are calamity criers who should be treated with the same contempt as the cry of war-mongers leveled at the democracies by Stalin and his satellites. The day has past when rumor is sufficient to set the stage for business relationship. I personally have the highest regard for those businesses. In the main and in point of public interest the fish merchants and exporters are a very vital part of Newfoundland's economy. They always have and always will command a position in keeping with the manner and degree with which they uphold the dignity of individual persons in their dealings. Some of them deserve great credit for the part they have taken down through the years and their contribution made to the development of our fisheries and some of our fishermen. Unfortunately, they are too few in number and the policies in the main have not resulted in business and industry in all parts of the Island operating in the same manner. There are some merchants, some pharisaical merchants who exist only because of the decent standards of the fishermen they supply and such merchants and business agents can survive only under such conditions, and they will find no place in the scheme of things to come when action of the Government and forward enterprise and the fishermen's federation and co-operatives are able to lift the fisheries out of its original category to the full status of the primary industry of this Province, on a level belonging to the second half of the twentieth century. They know the death of the economic slavery of the Newfoundland fishermen means their own demise and oppose such strongly so as to perpetuate their pattern of continuous credit instead of cash payments and just prices.

It has been the purpose of this Government to advise and assist the fishermen in becoming organized in order that there might be established a medium through which all the fishermen of Newfoundland would be represented at the conference table with the Government and independent exporters. In an effort to do so, and find fishermen councillors capable of conferring with both Government and industry, the Federation of Fishermen has been established as that medium. The Newfoundland Federation of Fishermen is an occupational organization. The Federation will not engage in business but it will serve as a forum wherein fishermen may expose their problems and express their thoughts, where they may hold discussions with the trade and the Government, where they can unite to protect their rights and accept their responsibilities. Now it may well be that in view of their problems the fishermen will decide they must organize to export. Should they do so, then it will be an organization distinct and separate from the Federation, and will be on their own initiative. The Government has no intention of forcing the fishermen into co-operatives, but should they do so, the fishermen as an organization may accept from the Government in the way of funds considerations exactly what they could expect if organized in private companies, no more and again no less. I don't imagine that anyone would question that that is fair and just. However, the form of organization on which the fishermen may determine is in the future; what we are concerned with here is the formation of the organization they have already decided upon and in that regard I have every confidence in the Federation and that it will grow in strength and importance as we move forward in development of our fisheries and, may I add, that it would become the executives of firms engaged in the fisheries if they were to herald this trend as marking the beginning of a new era in management and the operating of our fishing industry. It is my earnest hope that the new era which must come in the fisheries if we are to maintain the industry will be shaped in such measures as it probably should be by the thinking of the fishermen themselves. For centuries the thinking of the fish industry has been done in the city of St. John's, done by the owners and executives of big fishing firms who were supported and confirmed in their policies, and controlled the Government which they elected in national conventions in institutions which incidentally I am quite convinced will be dealt with more generously by history than by those sitting for three years in the National Convention when I heard what was for me the first verdict on the Governments of the past. And as I sat there the thought occurred to me that in those days, Governments consisted of merchants with lawyers and of lawyers with merchants and a change of government amounted to nothing more than Government by tweedle-de-dum instead of by tweedle-de-dee. With the formation of the Fishermen's Organization, a new element has been introduced into our thinking for the fishing industry of the future and we shall have the fishermen's views on all these things which arise in the fishery, and who will say that that is not as it should be; that the fishermen themselves should point the new direction and participate in pointing the new direction that we must take. No longer will our fishermen live unto themselves alone, working out their lonely life upon their lonely seas. Instead joined in the Federation of all their fellows they can face the future with new certainty, in a position to bring to the development of their own industry the contribution of their enterprise and their genius.

It is not without a feeling of having been privileged in my own time that I move, Mr. Speaker, the second reading of this Bill.

MR. FAHEY: Mr. Speaker, in speaking to the principle of this Bill and looking through it, to me it only means the fishermen adopted their own organization when they had their convention and the honourable Minister in piloting it through did not give any explanation for any of the clauses worthwhile, only to tell us how past governments have acted in this country. Now, I may say for the Minister, he did not wait all this time to find that out, he is not that stupid to wait until now, we all knew all this, years ago, but to me this Bill is nothing more or less than incorporating an association adopted by the fishermen's convention. If it is the desire of the Government to enact legislation, incorporating the Federation of Fishermen I suppose other trade unions or federations will be later on asking the Government to adopt their constitutions in the way of making it law. That is what this Bill does. But as I read this Bill the objects are designated, membership, duty of officers and so on, I can see the appointment of a secretary. I have every respect for the fishermen and in fact wish their organization the best of luck but I don't know if it is necessary for us to adopt in the form of law to make their constitution an Act. It must be law to be carried out by law of the land and must be kept up by the law of the land. That is all I see in the Act except membership fees. I support the principle of the fishermen's organization and I feel that it is high time that they were organized as well as any other wage earners on this Island but I am doubtful if it is necessary to make it a law or it would be just as applicable to any other organization.

MR. FOGWILL: I want to support the principle of this Bill. I also know the value of organization particularly when an organization is made up of working people organized into a federation like this or a local union affiliated with another larger and parent body somewhere else. Such organization has value amongst the working people. I know very well if the fishermen's organization is such as we have outlined here in this Bill it is something new and I agree with my honourable friend who just spoke when he said I wish them good luck and success in their organization. I do also, but nevertheless, Mr. Speaker, we have had in this country fishermen's organizations before and at one time the fishermen's organization in one section of the Island did have a great growth but unfortunately the good was spoiled because of the fact that politics crept into the organization and thereby it was ruined. I hope no such thing happens to this organization which the fishermen now are proposing to organize amongst them as laid down in this Bill, with the duties of the officers and their constitution and how they will organize themselves, their separate locals all throughout the Island, amendments of constitutions, etc. I wish them the very best of luck and hope they will succeed in what they are doing and I hope their organization when it gets going will be a great help and aid to them.

MR. HIGGINS: I support the Bill very gladly. A federation of fishermen here as I said before is a mere machine for getting together and it does not say everything will turn out rosy and that the dream outlined by the honourable Minister of Fisheries will come true and be realized. I hope this machinery might be the means of bringing good days to the fishermen who are the main workers of this country, but it can only be done by their own efforts, Sir, and I hope now that the Federation will see the product of their good work and their own true, honest efforts as I know they will.

MR. RUSSELL: Of course I support the Bill entirely, Sir, but I wonder in winding up the debate if the honourable Minister will reassure me on just one point once this is passed, supposing the fishermen want to amend their constitution?

MR. VARDY: That is provided for in the Bill.

MR. RUSSELL: They won't have to come back to the House like the Municipal Council?

MR. CURTIS: Look under No. 4 which provides for it and on page one.

MR. RUSSELL: There is a little point puzzling me, and I wonder if someone who is an authority on it would define for me, page 4, Section 3. The Federation shall be non-partisan. Does that refer to Independents I wonder, Mr. Speaker, partisans?

MR. CASHIN: Does it eliminate them from voting?

Bill read a second time. To be referred to Committee of the Whole House on tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I had hoped that I might be able today to explain No. 15 on the Order Paper, a Bill "An Act to Ratify an Agreement Made Between the Government and Dr. Arthur Seigheim" and for that purpose I provided myself with maps and other information. What I had hoped to do was merely what I did yesterday in respect of another Bill. Explain it and sit down and when the House is ready to debate it could do so, unfortunately, I learned on arrival here that it has not as yet arrived from the printers. I wonder if it would be the pleasure of the House that, notwithstanding the non arrival of it, I could make the explanation and the debate could be discontinued until the pleasure of the House in the matter could be known? I am thinking especially of the fact that we have other heavy legislation and I am trying before we go ahead with No. 11, to get through as much as possible.

MR. HIGGINS: Will you be long?

MR. SMALLWOOD: About twenty minutes or a half hour.

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable Premier has asked permission to introduce second reading of a Bill "An Act to Ratify an Agreement made Between the Government and Dr. Arthur Seigheim."

On motion items 10 through 14 were deferred.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, the six largest companies operating in Newfoundland today are Bowater's, AND Co., Dosco, Buchans Mining Co., and the two mining companies at St. Lawrence. Those six companies last year paid into the Treasury of the Government of the Province by way of taxation and other payments a certain sum of money. These came from timber royalties, timber rentals, saw-mill licenses, mining licenses, mining royalties and mining rentals and finally, water-power rentals. The grand total paid into the Treasury last year by those companies under those headings was $855,000. All that the Government of Newfoundland received under all these headings last year from these six largest industrial enterprises was $855,000. The House will understand the reason for that. The reason being that this Government received no income tax, no corporation tax, no customs duties, as these payments went instead to the Government of Canada. That is all Newfoundland got last year in its public treasury from these six large industrial enterprises.

Now, the Bill whose second reading I am moving is a Bill to set going, to authorize, a new logging project in Labrador that will pay directly into the Treasury of the Provincial Government each year the sum of one million dollars. More than twice as much cash as the six largest industrial enterprises pay presently into the Treasury directly. Now, let me make it clear what I mean by direct payment. I leave out wages paid to employees who in turn spend that money and who in turn buy gasoline and pay gasoline tax, buy a bottle of beer and pay profit on it to the Liquor Board; pay the Social Security Assessment and pay many other forms of indirect contributions which come into the Treasury. These I leave out and I refer only to the actual cash paid directly by the company to the Treasury. When I say that this project will pay into the Treasury one million dollars a year, I mean that it will be paid in cash directly apart from any other indirect amount which might flow into the Treasury by means of this project.

The project is that a Swiss Company headed by Dr. Seigheim would have the right for ten years from the passing of the agreement, renewable for ten years but with both parties, the Government and the Company having the right with four years' notice to terminate the agreement—to go into Labrador on a part of the ten thousand square miles carefully photographed and surveyed three or four years ago and containing approximately forty million cords of wood, to go into that area, on five hundred square miles of it or something rather less than five hundred square miles and each year cut two hundred thousand cords of wood, pulp wood, at a charge by the Government of $5 a cord, $5 U.S. Funds a cord, to the Treasury to the owner of the timber, the owner being the Crown and they are to pay to the Government, to the Treasury, the sum of $5 per cord of the cords cut. The Company are required to cut two hundred thousand cords, they may not cut less, they may not cut more except that it is not always practicable, feasible to determine exactly what the cut will be. It is provided that what they cut less than two hundred thousand cords in one year shall be made up in the following year so that no two years, no two consecutive years shall pass with their cutting less than four hundred thousand cords and paying the royalty on them.

Now, if they fail to do that, the contract becomes null and void except that the company in failing to cut can avoid having the contract voided by paying the royalty in any case, even if they don't succeed in cutting the wood. Sir, the Company will employ fifteen hundred men in its operations in Labrador, they will pay the top rates presently available in this Province to the men, to the loggers, to the employees. Will not only welcome the unionization of their employees but will put facilities, normal facilities at the disposal of the woods union organization to expedite unions in organizing the men. The Company will pay out well over one million, closer to two million dollars a year in wages.

Now, Sir, the Company, headed by Dr. Seigheim, has had in Newfoundland and Labrador for the past month a very distinguished engineer of Finland, Professor Chippell, a Finnish citizen who is one of the most experienced and distinguished sylviculturists and forestry experts on the Continent of Europe with great experience in operations in Sweden and in Finland. Professor Chippell is a close and intimate friend, or was, of Dr. Tanner, the brother of the then Premier of Finland. Dr. Tanner is the author of the one book in the world on Labrador, this one authoritative book on Labrador, a copy of which honourable members will find, if they care to, in the Public Library, the Gosling Memorial Library; a book astonishing to most of us who have read it for the richness of the information given in it by Dr. Tanner who spent some years living and travelling in Labrador before the late war and from Dr. Tanner, Professor Chippell learned a great deal about Labrador, its resources, its climate, its geographical conditions and from Dr. Tanner he was able to get all information at first hand for comparison of conditions in Labrador and Northern Finland, and I was personally very pleased indeed to hear from Professor Chippell confirmation of Dr. Tanner's views and his own that logging can be carried on at least in the Lake Melville area of Labrador as efficiently as in Northern Finland or Northern Sweden. Now, Sir, it may be obvious to this House that logging in Labrador has not in the past or up to now been conspicuously successful. The two more recent projects of logging in Labrador ended in lamentable failure and insolvency.

It is the view of some people, shared by Professor Chippell that one of the main economic reasons for past failures in the logging in Labrador is the difficulty there was and normally is in getting men to go to the centre of the logging and having gotten them there to have them remain, to prevent in short a large turn-over in men, a costly turn-over. With that in mind the Company will establish two separate townships with a view to having men come in there with their families so that the families will have homes, schools, churches and other modern conveniences and comforts sufficient to attract them there in the first place and to hold them there when they come.

One of the very first moves of the Company will be to move bulldozers into these two areas to make clearance for townships, to make blueprints and plans for streets, and the like, which must be approved by the Government, to lay out building lots large enough in each case to hold a comfortable house and a garden, a truck garden, and associated with those settlements these people plan a semi-permanent farming settlement. Now, my honourable and gallant friend the member for Ferryland will doubtlessly get a great kick out of the suggestion of establishing a farm in Labrador, but my honourable friend the member for Labrador will see nothing amusing in it any more than I do, having been at least once there, and having seen at North West River quite a considerable farm operated by the Grenfell Mission and having flown at least over Mud Lake and having seen the nature of it, I have no doubt whatsoever that what Professor Chippell says is based largely on Dr. Tanner's words that the continental climate is unlike the climate out on the coastline and farming is feasible there. I personally am not in any mood to laugh at that suggestion. At all events that is the place to establish the farm to bring there from farms in Finland and Northern Sweden seeds and plants that have been produced in practically the same kind of climate.

Then the Company, to assist in this process of getting men to settle and not to be migrating wood workers but settle people, plant wood-workers with their families, will bring in a plan of finance which the Government must approve under which the Company will assist men to build homes in these townships.

Another point, Mr. Speaker: This Company will introduce into this area of Labrador the first project in the history of the North American Continent, conducting logging on the most modern, thoroughly scientific principles, forest management, forest control and reforestation and selective cutting according to the very latest approved and time tested information of forestry methods developed in the home of forestry, scientific forestry, namely, the continent of Europe where it has particularly blossomed in Finland and Sweden and so in that area this Company will introduce modern, scientific forestry to the new world. It will be the introduction of it into the Western Hemisphere and should attract in the course of the next few years Sylviculturists, Professors of Forestry and Forestry Management, Woods Management and experts from the paper companies and logging companies from all over North America. I foresee a veritable track of forestry experts from all over Canada and in the United States into the Lake Melville Area in the course of the next few years to see at first hand the outcome of this novel and indeed unique operation in North America by these Finns and Swedes, the introduction of the modern scientific forestry.

As part of that programme they will introduce in the Lake Melville Area a farm forest or a forest farm whereon the basic principles of scientific forestry will be carried out and demonstrated, at which there will be a school of forestry, a school teaching scientific forestry, forestry management and modern logging practice as developed in Finland and Sweden. At that school, young Newfoundlanders will be trained by the Company at no cost to the Newfoundlanders to be experts in that work so that these young Newfoundlanders will as rapidly as they become proficient replace the hundred or so Swedes and Finns whom the Company would need to bring into the operation to introduce and conduct it according to these modern forestry practices. They must bring in men who know how to operate according to this principle; they cannot get them in Newfoundland, they cannot get them in Canada, they cannot get them in the United States, they cannot get them on the North American Continent, but only in Northern Europe, Norway, no doubt within certain areas, and Finland without a doubt, and so they must bring practically one hundred Swedes and Finns in of a total of fifteen hundred, they must bring in about a hundred from Europe to take charge of this new type of forestry operation.

In addition, as part of that programme, the Company has offered to endow a chair in Sylviculture and scientific forestry at the Newfoundland Memorial University to pay themselves the cost of a chair at the University, but only for the period of the agreement, at least they bind themselves to that, only for the period of the agreement.

Now, Sir, in passing, and before I add to my observations, I would like to make a point very clear, and then having done so, I would like to make a short comment on that point. The point is this: Out of fifteen hundred men who will be working, fourteen hundred practically will be Newfoundlanders, drawn, we think, mainly, and we certainly hope, mainly, from Labrador itself. And the Company has agreed that the men be drawn from these parts of Labrador or Newfoundland, that the Government will indicate to them, the Government will be allowed to use this project at least in part to rehabilitate families in certain areas where up to now it has been quite impossible for them to make a decent living.

Now, I will repeat to make this quite clear. Fourteen hundred of the fifteen hundred employed will be Newfoundlanders, one hundred workers will be Swedes and Finns. Now, Sir, I give that point freely to all those who say the Government is bringing in hordes and small armies of foreigners and aliens, I give that point freely to opponents of the Government and let them make all they wish of that point, but I will say this: yesterday there arrived in St. John's, three gentlemen as a party, one an Englishman, living in London, the other two were Germans, but the three constituted one party, dealing with one project who have come to establish a new industry which would start off by employing two hundred persons in a factory here on the East Coast of Newfoundland. They arrived in St. John's yesterday, from Germany and London to be met almost at the instant of their arrival at the Newfoundland Hotel by a letter in one of the Daily Newspapers, an anonymous letter smirking at foreigners and aliens. If these two German gentlemen, and I doubt not that the House will conceive that they are gentlemen—I suppose if the truth were known there must be even Russian gentlemen, somewhere—if these two German gentlemen and this one English gentleman they are accompanied by, having come here to establish an industry to employ two hundred Newfoundlanders, say 190 Newfoundlanders and ten Germans, ten key men, technicians, turned back in disgust because they had come amongst a bunch of yokels, because they have come into a land where once one of the great artists of the world was thrown out of it because he was thought to be a German spy, they go back, then we can thank the anonymous cut-throat who sent that letter to the newspaper yesterday, yes, and thank the newspaper for publishing it and two hundred Newfoundlanders do not get full-time employment, all the year round jobs. But so far as Dr. Seigheim is concerned he has signed an agreement and has gone back to London on his way to Switzerland. If this House ratifies this agreement no matter what letters appear in the press it will go forward. There are ten other groups of Germans, and Swiss and Belgians coming here from Europe in the next three weeks, they have not come yet, have signed nothing yet so now is the time for the newspapers, now let the cut-throats and anonymous writers have a field day for the next three weeks, see that in every issue there is at least one letter and if the Opposition will help by tabling more questions as to how many aliens are employed, if they help, we may get these ten men here to turn tail and go back and then three thousand Newfoundlanders will go without the jobs which otherwise they would get.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order. The Premier said he would be twenty minutes or half an hour on this Bill.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Is the honourable gentleman going to tell me when to speak and what to say? Well the honourable gentleman is wasting his breath.

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable Premier is speaking by leave of the House, there is no set time. He did mention twenty minutes but there is no authority to hold the honourable Premier to that time.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I suggest a recess for ten minutes.

Ten minutes recess.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I will not pursue a point I was making except finally to express the sincere hope that our Newfoundlanders will not descend any more to such letters in the press for the next few weeks, and I hope that, if they do, the public press on reflection will see the sound Newfoundland patriotism of refusing publication to such filth that can do such damage to Newfoundlanders now out of a job and for whom we are trying to get jobs. Don't make the Government's task any harder. We succeeded in bringing in these men, Dr. Seigheim came last week and has gone, a new group came yesterday, they will be here a few days and another group will arrive tomorrow, another on Monday, and then every few days until there has been eleven in all, each one coming to discuss with us the establishment of new industries. On the 15th there will arrive a very distinguished Swedish industrialist, owner of a paper mill and let us not hear in the press any anti-Swedish propaganda, not if we want industries, want jobs. Are we so big in Newfoundland and so rich and so proud and independent and arrogant that we can do without the jobs and indulge our small-town hatred of anything that smells different from ourselves?

Now, Sir, this Company is going in very largely for mechanized logging, very modern mechanized logging. There are admittedly physical difficulties in logging in Labrador though I know that Mr. Lewin, the General Manager of Bowater's and Mr. Penney the Mill Manager and Mr. Martin the Woods Manager of Bowater's, all agree that if logging is to be successful in Labrador it must be mechanized. Dr. Seigheim and Professor Chippell agree and so they intend to bring in considerable mechanical equipment. The old bucksaw will not be used except there be a man who insists on using the bucksaw. The trees will be felled by power portable saws.

Now, Sir, a Company intends to invest in this project, three million dollars, and I say dollars advisedly.

Switzerland is perhaps the only country in Europe today with free currency, I think they are free from restriction on the convertibility of money in Switzerland; anyway they are investing three million dollars in this project. Now, much of that will be fixed and irremovable expenditure on canals and river improvements; for roads; for hauling booms, buildings and other improvements which by their very nature are fixed and may not be removed. I think the House will agree with me when I point to that fact as very convincing evidence of the seriousness of these people. When they go finally at the end of the first ten or twenty years, or short of the first, when they go they must leave all this behind, a very considerable investment in Labrador that they are not physically able to take away.

I may say also that their shipping is all arranged. They will require sixty ships, not perhaps sixty separate ships but sixty voyages, some ships of course will make more than one voyage.

Now, one other feature to the contract is this; in addition to the two hundred thousand cords that they are permitted and obligated to cut they must also cut at Government direction such other pulp wood as the Government may need. Now I don't mean by that the Government are likely to need pulp wood, but other people may, in which case the Government may direct this company, which is called I think, Labrador Wood Utilization Company or Labrador Timber Utilization Company and with the European, and I might say the American practice of abbreviations they have abbreviated it into LATUCO, they must cut another hundred or two hundred or three or four hundred thousand cords a year at Government directive. The question of the stumpage on wood so cut is a matter not between the Government and LATUCO but between the Government and the customer for the wood, or whom the wood may be cut. They are to cut it at cost plus ten percent. Their books will be open always to inspection of the Government and the Government will know exactly what their costs are and LATUCO are permitted ten percent in the agreement, cost plus a profit for themselves of ten percent. The matter of royalties does not effect them at all. I am speaking now only of what may be directed by the Government for them to cut over and above the two hundred thousand cords.

Now, apart from a million dollars a year coming into our Treasury, apart from an amount getting up towards two million dollars a year to be paid out in labour at the highest prevailing rates, apart from the introduction for the first time into the New World of the most modern European forestry practice, I think the most valuable thing about this Bill is that for the doubting Thomases now on the Mainland of Canada and the Mainland of the United States, it will or it will not establish beyond debate the soundness of large scale logging in Labrador. Now I cannot put too much emphasis on that.

Labrador, Mr. Speaker, it is just as well to face it, Labrador has a bad name today, amongst timber men and pulp and paper manufacturers in North America, it has a bad name for some of the reasons my honourable and gallant friend mentioned in one of his speeches here in this session; the short shipping season, the expense of marine insurance, etc.,

It has a bad name; my honourable friend the member for Labrador does not like to hear that said, he has a loyalty to Labrador and a devotion to it, not too often found in any elected member, rather sentimental, and he does not like a word to be said or printed there that casts any doubt on Labrador. But I say here today, that generally in pulp and paper and timber trades of North America there is a great question mark over-shadowing timber operations in Newfoundland Labrador and the great benefit, I think, of this project is that it will or will not establish the soundness of a large-scale operation in Labrador. Now, I think, because it is going to be done with that almost incredible thoroughness for which Europe is so famous in the world today, Germanic, Tunic, Nordic, whatever you like, that thoroughness, that efficiency for which they are famous will be used to the full advantage to make this logging operation a success and a profitable venture.

Now, let us go on to the shipping which will cost them $30 a cord from the moment it is put on board the ship in Lake Melville, Labrador, until it arrives at Hamburg or Rotterdam, England or wherever it is going. $30 a cord, it has to be efficient if they hope to make money out of it. $5 a cord royalties, which is $35 right off, then the labour, then the drive, then the loading, the booming and loading, then the capital cost, the interest on the money they have to invest on roads and dams and canals and river improvement and all the rest. But they know the cost in Finland down to the last fraction of a cent, they have been at it all their lives; by it they earn their living, it is not just theories. They are hard-headed businessmen and they say we can make a go of it. But it means the introduction of entirely new methods. Now, if they can prove that they will remove the last lingering doubt of industrialists who wish to build in that same area, a one hundred thousand ton paper mill. We have been conferring with the Company for some months past, the Attorney General and I, with Dr. Valdmanis. We conferred with representatives in New York City when they were there on a visit from Germany via Argentina and on their way to Brazil and one of them was here in St. John's. It was kept out of the paper, and we let no one know about it but I think it is now at the stage where it cannot do any particular harm to have it known that we are negotiating with these people. Some newspaper men on the Mainland, I think it was in Windsor, said he heard of these negotiations with Newfoundland, and I say Newfoundland had better be aware they might build a mill which might employ fifteen hundred men. They had better be aware of anyone who might give such employment, I wish the Devil himself would come and help us. Anything that will help the Newfoundland people so long as they are this side of the Iron Curtain, we can take help wherever we can get it to develop Newfoundland. We have a mandate from Newfoundland voters to do that when we were elected.

MR. FAHEY: By the help from the Mainland.

MR. SMALLWOOD: My honourable friend will have a better opportunity to discuss that when we resume the debate on the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation Bill. The help from the Mainland of Canada and the United States, I will deal with when the right moment comes, at the moment we are discussing European. I say we care not where the capital or capitalists or promoters come from so long only as they come from this side of the Iron Curtain. We don't worry who they are from Europe, they are screened by people far more competent than we are or the local press, far more competent than the Opposition, the Government or anyone else in Newfoundland. They are screened in Europe and in Ottawa and any person who arrived here from Europe, arrived only after being screened which sometimes takes days and sometimes takes weeks, but everyone of them, without exception, is most carefully screened and one need not hide a knife under his belt for fear of them. If any old maid in pants is around shuddering lest we be overrun with foreigners and aliens, and if any antediluvians living back in the 16th century want to know what aliens this terrible Government, this dictatorship, here elected by the Newfoundland people with a majority such as Newfoundland had never before seen and will not again till we go back for re-election, they need not worry, we may have much more, give us another month and you will hear something.

MR. FAHEY: Your corporation will be going then.

MR. SMALLWOOD: You will have that amongst other things. I say, Mr. Speaker, that a large logging enterprise in Labrador will do more than merely pay a million dollars into the Newfoundland Treasury and pay about two million in labour. It will do more than that. It will wipe out the blot that is now on Labrador as a result of failure of the Labrador Development Company and the failure of Grieve Brothers, we will wipe it out, please God, with this great development.

Now, there are just two other points and I don't apologize for introducing them, something that will give work to fifteen hundred Newfoundlanders and a million dollars into the Treasury of Newfoundland. I don't apologize, but I thank the House for allowing me to make this statement but don't apologize for any length of time.

MR. FOGWILL: Will they be employed this year?

MR. SMALLWOOD: I was coming to that. I doubt that there will be fifteen hundred this year, I doubt if it is physically possible. If we get this ratified at once, they will begin, that is the last point I have here.

MR. FAHEY: What of the employment this year, you said if we don't employ them this year we won't get the men.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I did not, but probably by the end of 1952 we might have to bring labour in. Give us a little break, a little break and we may have to import labour, we are trying hard enough, and all we ask for from the honourable gentlemen opposite is less sneers and more cheers. (That is a good slogan, less sneers and more cheers). That might help us to do it.

MR. FAHEY: You have twenty shadows to vote.

MR. COURAGE: Point of order. It is definitely out of order to call members on this side of the House shadows, the honourable gentleman is decidedly out of order.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Besides, if the honourable gentleman could sit in sometimes he would see what shadows we have amongst us.

HON. E. S. SPENCER (Minister of Public Works): He may get in the Government some day.

MR. RUSSELL: It will never do the Government harm to let the Opposition think.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The honourable gentleman is eating his heart out ever since he left and before this year is over my honourable friend will eat his heart out even more—this Government heading for bankruptcy—he will find out and what a pleasure that will be to me when the honourable gentleman goes around with a face like a walking graveyard, that will be a pleasure to me. I can forgive anything but treachery, I have no place for it, can't stand it. Let a man fight back and if he is better I acknowledge it and if not let him do the same, and not have a man stab me in the back.

MR. RUSSELL: He stabbed you in the back.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Now, Mr. Speaker, there is only one weakness in this whole Bill I can detect and that is the fact that the wood is to be exported. That is a weakness we must all admit.

MR. FAHEY: Giving away raw timber, instead of having it developed into pulp and paper.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is the weakness in the Bill although I am not forgetting that a year and a half ago, that is not long ago, this Government asked the then Minister of Natural Resources and a very capable businessman in the person of Mr. Steinhauer, one of the largest coal dealers in this Province to go together to London. I sent a cable to the Secretary of State for Commonwealth Relations, we sent more than one cable to London seeking help from the Government, only a year and a half ago we sent those two men to London. For what? To try and work up a deal that we would barter pit props for British coal. It collapsed because the British Government would not release the coal, because they could sell it for cash and buy the pit props so they thought in Finland and Sweden, but it turned out afterwards they could not. But at the time thought they could get all they wanted for sterling and export the coal and get dollars. So they would not release the coal and we did not sell the pit props and thousands of Newfoundland men did not get jobs. That is only a year and a half ago. Ever so often in our history we have been very glad to get a chance to export raw wood although it is to be regretted right now when we are on the pig's back, when there is a paper trade boom such as the world has never seen since the world began. The lowest rate of pay today is a dollar and twenty-six or a dollar and twenty-seven cents for common, unskilled labour in the two paper mills and from that up to $2.00 or $3.00 an hour. The pulp and paper industry is not going to like for the next three or four years the idea of exporting two hundred cords of wood a year and when a Bill is brought in here now to export wood it is mentioned with regret but no one would have regretted it a year and a half ago.

Now, the final point. This is, of course, a map of Labrador. Can the honourable gentlemen see? This is Hamilton Inlet and in here is Lake Melville. This yellow, coloured area is ten thousand square miles containing practically forty million cords of very high-class pulp wood. The ten thousand square miles were surveyed two or three years ago by the Air Photographic Survey of Toronto. The Government has that report, no one in the House has yet asked us to table it. Recently we have ordered additional copies of it and we would be glad to table it. I refer to the original report on which the IBEC Survey was carried out. Now, if the House, and this side also, will notice the yellow boundary that is the ten thousand square miles. Now these two red boundaries are the areas in question, just under fifteen hundred square miles. One is practically on both banks of Trailers River over which the Attorney General and I flew two or three Sundays ago, right up to the head water of Trailers Point or half way, but not just on the bank, it extends west from the bank of the river and this Northern block goes up on both sides of Grand Lakes. I have played on the desk of my honourable and learned friend the Leader of the Opposition a small school map showing the same two blocks and I hope my honourable friend passes it along to the Independents. I have only the two copies. The area is just under fifteen hundred square miles and the stand of timber on the two blocks is something of the order of eight million cords. Although Professor Chippell, after his investigation there, believes it is nearly nine or ten million cords, yet eight million is our own official Airophotograph survey record for the two blocks.

MR. CASHIN: That confirms Rowater's of 1937.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Now, the House and the Province will very naturally wonder what effect will be had upon those two stands by cutting from it two hundred thousand cords a year. We are informed, and I must admit very honestly, we don't know, we cannot say if they are right or wrong, but we are informed that two hundred thousand cords, with proper forestry methods applied would represent only the growth, the average growth, that is to say, that the forest would be treated as a park and the forest would be farmed and not mined and there would be no cut in the operating capital at the end of ten years of taking out even two million cords. There would remain the same original number of cords originally there. Now, if that is so the House will appreciate the simply tremendous significance of it because we are told by Bowaters that they have nineteen million cords in Newfoundland and by AND Company that they have eleven million, that is thirty million between them. Last year these two companies cut from this area more than a million cords, more than a million out of thirty million. Let that sink in, let the House ponder the meaning of that. My honourable and gallant friend will remember in the National Convention—he was Chairman, I believe of the Forestry Committee and he had much to do with writing the report—he will remember that Mr. Lewin and other witnesses then appeared before him giving their figures of their holdings and that is what it came to, thirty million cords, perhaps a little over, between thirty and thirty-one millions. These are the figures given the Government in the Department of Natural Resources and last year they cut more than a million cords of a stand of thirty million, one-thirtieth of it. Now, remember in Newfoundland there is no scientific forestry and it makes one wonder whether there is a depreciation of capital, forest capital going on, one wonders and one is therefore all the more impressed when informed that on a stand of eight million cords, which they contend goes closer to ten million, they can without depleting the capital stock of forest take two hundred thousand cords a year. That is a tremendous fact. Now, making an allowance for the fact that the timber in Labrador is of a slower growth than in Newfoundland, if you can safely cut more than a million, I think it was 1.1 millions last year, for a thirty million stand can you not with equal safety pursue the same technique and cut a million cords from forty? One would think so. The growth is admittedly slower.

MR. HIGGINS: What is the growth in Newfoundland?

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is rather a misleading question, though I know it is not intended to be. It depends, seventy years, but it is highly contentious, industrialists engaged in that business tell me seventy years, but the same company has gone in and cut pulp wood on areas which they logged 48 years ago. So that in fifty years, in that instance, it was reforested.

MR. FOGWILL: Were the trees the same size?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Amply big for pulp wood.

MR. FOGWILL: As big as originally?

MR. SMALLWOOD: I don't know.

MR. HIGGINS: Fifty years is supposed to be the minimum growth.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Depending if it is a completed depleted area. If you have an area well forested and go in there and log and hack and slash and denude it, probably it would last fifty years but if you go into that same area with scientific forestry, highly scientific cutting, even though the forest be of slow growth, you can on the average take, say two hundred thousand a year from a stand of eight million cords. The Government have no doubt that taking eight million from the forty million cords will leave not only ample timber in that area for the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation but also ample timber for supplying another mill and not only timber but ample waterways and to serve the need of everyone. In short, if Newfoundland with thirty millions can support two mills, one the biggest on the earth, twelve hundred tons a day, Corner Brook, and the other, one of the biggest in the world, 750 tons a day, that is nineteen hundred and fifty tons a day from thirty million cords, we have grounds to think that forty million cords will support three mills, this two hundred thousand cords area and the two hundred thousand tons for the pulp mill which we expect to see here in Lake Melville and also amply and handsomely support a pulp and paper mill we hope to see in Bay D'Espoir. So that we are not afraid that this cut of two hundred thousand cords will damage our prospect for a pulp and paper mill either in Labrador or in the Island of Newfoundland.

Now, Mr. Speaker, if I have said anything in the heat of argument, and I have, I admit I have, will the House forgive me the things I said in anger. These things have been inside me for weeks and I have to get it off my chest or it will fester and become a running sore. I apologize for any heat in my words but I honestly, sincerely believe, the Government sincerely believe, the party sincerely believes that all this balances out the good with the evil, the pluses out with the minuses, and there is only one minus, the fact of exporting wood, and there are many pluses, and we confidently commend the Bill to the House and don't ask for debate now. We are ready to begin but unfortunately it has not yet been received and we would have lost this afternoon, which is a half-holiday, but by law we have to do all our printing in the one office and unhappily they had a fire with damages and we are suffering here through nobody's fault, can't blame anybody and so we have not the Bill, Mr. Speaker, I move the second reading and so do with no intention of speaking again. I move the adjournment of the debate unless any honourable gentleman wishes to speak.

MR. CASHIN: Mr. Speaker, I support the principle of this Bill that is to come around here very shortly. I have an idea what is in it because actually I was interested in a matter along the same lines as this Bill indicates and that is the export of wood from Labrador. There are a few, what will I call it, clauses though I have not a Bill to explain yet but why worry about that? Personally, I don't believe that any company is coming in here to pay $5 a cord export royalty on wood. You have to show me. Now, this area outlined, surveyed by Bowaters, and I spoke of it on many occasions here, in 1937. It was produced for us in the course of the National Convention and it shows considerable wood on that area and there was a proposition from a company in 1940 for the export of wood of the same area and at that time those interested in the export of pulp wood there indicated a hundred thousand cords and if my memory serves me correctly they were prepared to pay 50c. or $1 royalty on such wood exported, not to go to any particular place, I do not know where it was to go to, either Europe or North America and it is immaterial where it went. We get $5 now. I have tried to figure this out at random and it takes between fifty and sixty ship loads to take it out in four months. Now up in that area the season is four and a half months, and it is questionable whether you can do it or not. When making a contract you have to take all those things into consideration. Those who charter ships don't come and ask me or the Premier nor the honourable member for Labrador about how long they can figure on without any doubt. Two weeks is neither here nor there, but I figure four months and that is equal to fifteen ships a month which is considerable loading. Now, those ships will carry roughly over three thousand cords of wood, a six thousand ton ship, and sixty ships is say thirty-five hundred cords, very well, and $35 a cord freight—nonsense, arrogant nonsense to use the Premier's expression. If a firm or a corporation or a company enters into this kind of an agreement they are not going to pay any $40 freight, they are going to charter ships and carry coal to the St. Lawrence and on the return voyage bring back the wood. It would take three days to load with modern appliances, two to three days, you have to count on three, you are going to run up against bad weather, you don't get wonderful days all along. Three days to load, ten to twelve days to cross to Europe, a couple of days to unload. That is nineteen days, half a month, reload and come back up the St. Lawrence and back down to Lake Melville. I don't know what the rates of coal are at the present time and am not prepared to discuss it but I do know, say anyone told you $20 a ton, I will go $20. Why up to a few years ago when shipping was up we were not paying anything like $30, such fairy tales, fairly make me sick. However, I am supporting the principle, because I believe in the possibilities of export business in Labrador. Now if you get $5 a cord royalty it is just as good as a paper mill as far as the people are concerned. It takes a ton and a half of wood to make a ton of paper which is $150 a ton, we are not getting anything like that out of it now.

Now, the Premier in his remarks indicated that for the past half century, for a number of years at any rate last year he got at the rate of three or four hundred thousand revenue out of all our natural resources, roughly that was paid into the Provincial Treasury, and half of that came from Bowaters. $150,000.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We did not get that.

MR. CASHIN: You gave that away when you negotiated the terms.

MR. SMALLWOOD: In lieu of taxes which they are now paying.

MR. CASHIN: The more we go into this thing the more we learn. Bowaters are paying today in Federal Taxes about a million dollars annually out of Newfoundland and the A.N.D. Co., as much if not more. Certainly DOSCO in which Wood Gundy is interested owe the Government so much money, it is immaterial how much they pay, but Bowaters and A.N.D. Co., pay $3,000,000 a year in the form of income tax and corporation tax that belong to Newfoundland and we gave away when we went into union with Canada. Now, when we had our own Government, these companies were paying their own taxation roughly one hundred and fifty thousand dollars from Bowaters and the ordinary profit tax by the A.N.D. Company in addition to which we had all the buying power created by those two large companies.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Buchans alone pays 20% of all the revenue of the Newfoundland Government.

MR. CASHIN: I don't know, I have not the exact figures. I put it this way, Buchans and the AND Co., at least paid into the Treasury of Newfoundland when we had our own Government, $300,000, more than they do now from all three of them and in addition we had the labour giving people the purchasing power to buy goods on which they paid taxation in the form of customs duties who now contribute also to paying customs taxation and sales tax on Canadian goods.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Don't wave your hands, it will be described in the paper—don't do it, it is bad.

MR. CASHIN: I am something like the Premier and don't worry what the papers say about me. However, I would like to support this Bill and I hope it is going to be successful, I might be dubious about the $5 a cord as it looks too much like a boomer to me and $30 a cord freight I am doubtful of that, so doubtful of that, Mr. Speaker, that before this Bill is through this House I am going to find out what the freight actually will be, in other words, I will call New York or London tomorrow, some outstanding broker in the shipping business and ask him to give me a rate on transportation of so many thousand cords of wood from Labrador to Rotterdam either a time charter or a straight freight rate because I am anxious to find that out. I cannot believe it is $30 a cord and if I am wrong, I am something like the Premier, I will come in and confess it like the Premier, but if I am right, Dr. Sticker or whatever his name is, and I don't know what it is, there are so many strange names these days everyone feels confused, should have come around and told you $30 a cord to Europe and I suddenly find it is $15 or $20, he had better keep out of here.

MR. SMALLWOOD: He told us $30 U.S. Funds. It does not concern us if it is fifty dollars or one dollar but in passing he figured the freight would be $30 and I jumped to the conclusion that it meant freight, it may have meant freight and unloading at Rotterdam and via rail to the paper mill somewhere in Europe. I don't know, but that figure is the landed cost at the mill.

MR. CASHIN: We are going to find out, because, Mr. Speaker, a short while ago one of these fly-by-night brokers pretending to have influence with the Government acting for an intermediary came to me and asked me if I were interested in transshipping or handling a hundred thousand or two hundred thousand cords of wood to Europe at a freight rate of $20 a cord and the party who came to me who incidentally does not know the stern from the bow of a ship offered $20 a cord. Now, I am trying to add all those things up and if those people are going around here getting information and so on from a beer tavern ships broker, to try and charter ships for two hundred thousand and cords of wood, well they are crazy.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I know who it is now.

MR. CASHIN: Well, that is the position and when they say $30 a cord that is making it worse, that is what is making me leery. I think $5 a cord, personally, and if that crowd mean business, I am going to be honest about it, I don't think they should pay $5 a cord, I think it is too much, in the Province of Quebec, you pay $15 roughly and New Brunswick something about the same rate, Crown timber, yes that is what they pay for it. Paper companies will buy the wood on Crown Lands at so much per cord and cut it themselves, that is the same as this.

Now, the point is if these people are prepared to pay $5 a cord royalty then why bring Legislation before us asking to give it to someone else for 50c. a cord. Now, that does not add up to me or make common sense. If such an outfit is in existence and is prepared to make a deal, I don't care whether he is black or white, German or anything else, I don't care. But what I would like to do is take a few dollars off those Germans, they took a slice off the top of my head and I would like to get the worth of my money out of them. I believe when we get down to brass tacks it looks too bright and I am always nervous of propositions that are too bright, and are built up as wonderful deals, Mr. Speaker, I think I can tell you I have been mixed up in such deals and thought I would become a millionaire overnight. I can understand the Premier standing up and holding forth on it but wait and see, as one bright politician said "wait and see" and see what happened, he got fired out.

Now, you say there are forty million cords of wood on Labrador, there is more on Labrador because you have forgotten the Southern edge which has another five or six million cords. Now if I were in the position of those people tomorrow and a businessman which I presume they are, I would never go to any government to pay five dollars a cord. I will tell you what I would do. Look up your leases, those people holding the Labrador Pulp and Lumber, look at their leases and see the terms.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Don't forget the Act brought in yesterday.

MR. CASHIN: You are just giving them an opportunity to carry out their contract. They can say, well all right then, we will carry out our contract; why take the Mac Martin lease on that map, there is a million and a half cords of wood on that property and they don't pay any $5 a cord royalty on that wood but so much a thousand, about 12½c. a cord. Sure they can go down and say I'll sell them that at a price and make money because if they come to you and give you $5 a cord that is a million dollars a year, but that property of Mac Martin's is only 12½c. a cord.

MR. SMALLWOOD: There is more to it than that. It is not that simple.

MR. CASHIN: It is, they pay 12½c. royalty to you if they carry out their contract to put that place in production; 12½c. a cord and two hundred thousand a year would mean how much, $25,000 a year,

MR. SPENCER: Who is going to give you the permit to export?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Who is going to set the conditions of actual logging, who will set the sizes of trees that may be cut?

MR. CASHIN: That is where we have them.

Now, all they have to do is put in an application and operate that place and cut timber and pay 12½c. a cord and now they must pay you $5 a cord. I wonder—when you come along in here and tell me that some outfit has come in here and offered to pay $5 a cord royalties to the Government. Mind you I want them to pay that.

MR. SMALLWOOD: They don't get it.

MR. CASHIN: All right I don't believe they are honest about this five dollars a cord. I believe real business would have gone to an outfit like Mac Martin, Labrador Pulp and Lumber, the property surveyed by Bowaters in 1937 which has probably a million and a half or two million cords on that property and they could get that tomorrow, I bet, for a quarter of a million dollars.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The concessions on the Kenmanu River, the Labrador Pulp and Lumber Company is the same outfit and of all the timber in Sandwich Bay they have only half a mile on each bank of the River running up the shape of the river a half mile back, a million and a half cords, but that site is in the middle of five million cords. I flew over that area and I saw with my own eyes, one continual block, miles of it, one unbroken stand consisting of about thirty million cords, so what is a million and a half. The million and a half this property will control, is on the river and the most important part of it.

MR. CASHIN: You have to cut your timber and pull it through Mac Martin's property to get it into the river.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We cannot be stopped.

MR. CASHIN: You will have more Legislation to introduce then. The thing I am trying to get at is this, I hope it is good, I hope it goes through but the thing is this, it looks too good to me and when a thing looks too good I get suspicious.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Would you be surprised if I said that is the feeling the whole Government got about it.

MR. CASHIN: I don't think $3,000,000 will involve much more than building homes and I suggest, Mr. Speaker, that my friend, the honourable Minister of Provincial Affairs might induce the Housing Corporation Officials, particularly the ones that built that place inside here, I suggest he go to the Bench of the Supreme Court, if possible, and induce one of the members of the Supreme Court to go down and lay out that townsite for people on Labrador and how much of the $3,000,000 do you think will be left by that time?

MR. SMALLWOOD: They could put up the rent.

MR. CASHIN: $3,000,000 is not sufficient capital to open up an operation of that nature on Labrador, establish homes for fifteen hundred people. They would want at least from five to ten millions. Mr. Speaker, up to a few years ago the A.N.D. Co. did not get more than 200,000 cords a year and had set up, at least in the woods operation, $5,000,000 and I guess Bowaters and A.N.D. have at least twenty millions tied up in paid for equipment, all kinds of equipment. Equipment runs into money.

MR. SMALLWOOD: They have their own equipment in Finland.

MR. CASHIN: They put it down on their books as a certain amount of money, however, Mr. Speaker, when this Bill comes up and after I get some further information on it, particularly on this freight rate, we will be able to go into it in Committee when we see the actual Bill itself and I imagine we will have that Bill here tomorrow afternoon, Mr. Speaker. In the meantime I am prepared to give it sympathetic consideration particularly in view of the fact we are dealing with very simple people aiming to give away $5 a cord. I am most sympathetic, would do anything for them and in the meantime I will cable New York and find out about the freight rates on pulp wood and return freight rates on coal and see just how hay-wire that outfit is. This may take two or three days, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that it is getting up towards six o'clock and there are some other matters to be dealt with.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Don't you think we should have a night session?

MR. CASHIN: Well I adjourn the debate on this matter until tomorrow, I move the adjournment of this debate.

MR. HORWOOD: I second the motion, Mr. Speaker.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Before calling the next order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to ascertain if the honourable members of the Opposition are yet ready to proceed with the debate on the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation Bill.

MR. HIGGINS: You said you had a couple of members to speak.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I said that, but I also said if my honourable friends were not ready I would not mind going until Wednesday of this week.

MR. SPEAKER: I will remind the honourable Premier when that order is called the honourable member for Bonavista South has the floor.

MR. RUSSELL: I have quite a few things to say on it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: In that case we might probably meet tonight and the honourable member could speak and anyone else on either side, and the Opposition might be ready to go ahead and if not we could adjourn until tomorrow, our objection is only to a long adjournment before beginning the debate. Mr. Speaker, would you be prepared to call it six o'clock?

MR. SPEAKER: With great pleasure.

MR. FAHEY: This is Wednesday.

MR. SPEAKER: The House may only continue sitting after six o'clock with special permission of the House. Is it the pleasure of the House to sit again at 8:00 o'clock tonight?

Ordered sit again at 8:00 o'clock tonight.

MR. SPEAKER: It now being 6:00 o'clock, I leave the Chair until tonight at 8:00 o'clock.

NIGHT SESSION

Second reading of Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation."

MR. RUSSELL: Mr. Speaker, since it has been about five days ago since I gave the first instalment of my remarks on this Bill I think the House will pardon me if at the outset—

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I am very sorry, I intended to distribute the maps.

MR. RUSSELL: Mr. Speaker, if at the outset I am guilty of a little repetition it is not with the intention of being boring but rather that I feel I have forgotten where I ended up and more than likely the honourable members have forgotten not only that, but everything I said. Now, Sir, in opposing this Bill there is a great difference between opposing the Bill and the Government that introduced the Bill; I do not necessarily oppose the Government but I oppose some measures they bring in and I support others, and when I support their measures, as I have, and receive from them a little sign of outward commendation, as I have, I receive them with pleasure but with equilibrium, and when I oppose other measures and receive the exact opposite of commendation, I receive that also, Sir, with equilibrium. Now, I have supported, and will support, such measures as I agree with, I oppose and must continue to oppose such measures as I do not agree with. I was informed only recently, Sir, that I am playing a part in Government affairs out of all proportion to my desserts. Among the many incentives the Government have for making a success of the affairs of this Province I have lately heard on good authority of a new incentive the one to make me eat my heart out for leaving them when I some day see the great success they have achieved. If that is any added incentive they are welcome to it. And after doing all that and finding I don't play ball with them and are eating my heart out I hope they will forgive my little criticisms and remember, if it helped them to do a better job I feel quite happy about it.

Now, Sir, I am going to say something a little more upon certain points than I have before. If I had not left the Government when I did, I would have had to leave them now. There are in this Bill several points which I mentioned the other day, some of them rather minor but there is one so important that no matter where I sit in this House whether in the seat of a Minister or in the seat of a private member on either side, I could not agree with its principle, I cannot vote for it. I would vote against it no matter where I was. Therefore since it is a major piece of legislation, I would end up now exactly where I ended up two or three months ago with one exception only, in the meantime I might have drawn a cheque or two but there is no other advantage in the long run. That principle, (and this is the only bit of repetition I will be guilty of) is this: We are here twenty-seven members, each elected member representing ten, fifteen or twenty-five thousand people, to the House of Assembly to be the people's representatives to carry on certain important business in the interest of the people. Of those twenty-seven there were thirteen, one left, the first out of thirteen left and went somewhere and then I left, the second out of thirteen and came over here, now there are eleven who say to the others: "Look by passing this Bill, giving to others custody of the public domain, and it is true we have an agreement only to give over certain part to this corporation in which we, the eleven, will play a part, but also the right to give over a great deal more, an unlimited amount, actually all there is. Will you, sixteen members please not bother about it any more, give it to us; we will look out for the public domain and for certain funds, probably three million or eight hundred or two million, seven hundred thousand, which we may use to purchase shares in this corporation, and up to another ten million which we may use to buy shares in subsidiaries set up or guarantee bonds for the same. I can't tell you what for, what the costs are, or what they will do with the public domain. But don't you bother with it any more, we, the eleven, will relieve you of all such responsibility for it."

I was not elected with a mandate to do that. The Government was not elected with a mandate to ask me to do it. And if ever a Government were elected with a mandate to do a thing like that, I would not be a member, would not support that Government, and would do what I could to oppose it. But then if it is not elected with such a mandate and did it by a majority vote of the House, at least I would know that people wanted it, the majority of the people, I would still, if I were in the House be in opposition to it but would realize that I was opposing something that the people had wished whether they understood or not what they wanted. So when these eleven say to the rest of us: "Give us that," my reply is no. I am not interested in what attitude any other private member takes. It is something, as far as I am concerned, that each member has to figure out for himself. Now, when those eleven say: "Give it to us," they add, "look who we got with us." Harriman-Ripley, etc., the names are here and have been repeated before. My reply is, that does not help the case out one bit but only makes it worse. With all due respect to the gentlemen named and Mr. Pippy, Mr. Bowring, Mr. Lewin, the other lawyers in Halifax, two firms, one on St. James Street and another on Wall Street, when they want to have the final say on the disposition of the public domain and funds, let them get elected by the people of Newfoundland, with authority to do it. That is the principle. A principle I cannot agree with and never will. That is why instead of waiting and saying all this in Committee I am saying it now in second reading. I have not a great deal of interest in the Bill in the Committee stage because once I disagree on the principle I don't see much use in patching it up by changing the details.

Now, before I go on to more practical things—I am supposed to be very impractical—I want to say this: To the best of my knowledge it has never been said publicly before, I say it in all sincerity to the Government, that in this world, this imperfect world you can't have everything. If the Government in places like Newfoundland, and the present one which has this driving desire to do something for economic development (I have in mind the clause publicly proclaimed that we must develop or perish, make or break) and we go away to other parts of the world such as New York, Montreal, to try and get industrialists to enter into an agreement with us to pour money in; we can have all that and probably deserve applause of all supporters and even the well wishes sometimes of the ranks of the hostile but we can't have everything, we can't have good banking power.

Now, it appears lately that does not hold so true in dealing with people but I am afraid it does hold true in dealing with people from the United States and Canada, when they hear that someone down here has said: "We must develop or perish," and get the idea that something has already perished and get the odor of death in their nostrils and gather around not for the kill but for what is left. Some day, Sir, some newspaper man is going to combine his newspaper ability with hypnotism and if ever he gets hypnotized he will tell much of what I have already seen, people taking advantage of the fact that we in our need, and I will admit we are letting them know too much about our need, and giving them the hope for a better bargain than they deserve because I consider this Bill a very poor bargain. Listen to this, imagine this being the preamble to a Bill which is in effect an agreement between Wall Street and the people of Newfoundland: "Whereas it is expedient for the production of the industrial and economic development of the Province of Newfoundland and for the development of its natural resources and the improvement of the standard of living of the people, . ." They are not interested in the standard of living of the people, they are concerned more whether it is convenient to reap a profit down here in Newfoundland or a certain percentage on money down here, then they will come down. But for this to be in a preamble for an agreement, like the story of Little Red Riding Hood and the Wolf—in the 1951 edition. Probably it is the best the Government could get, but as far as I can see it is not very good even after sacrificing the principles I mentioned and particularly the one I repeated, to get no better than this. I say the slogan of "Develop or Perish" is good, but it is possible, unless we we are going to hear better news from the East and may be we will, but if the dealings we have are as indicated by this Bill, it is possible to develop and perish.

Well, Sir, I hope there will be other speakers. I am going now probably to display a great deal of ignorance because when I come down to the practical things of this Bill I don't know anything about it. I hope other speakers, it has been hinted there are several from the other side, will convince themselves, if they are unable to convince me that it is worth giving up those principles to get material benefits. Whether we are sure of getting them or not does not matter. The House has a right to all the information available to convince us at least the Bill has practical value. I don't care who gives it, as far as I am concerned the two honourable members who have already spoken may speak over and over again so long as we get information. I suggested five days ago we refer this to a select committee, I would like very much to be able to interview people and ask certain questions, I would like to ask, for instance, some industrialists as to just what particular benefit it will be, how it will help them. Apparently the gentlemen we have been talking about very recently in the House, have come and if everything we have heard is right and they live up to expectations which I sincerely hope, it would mean there is no need of having this corporation set up in order to get what appears to be the best bargain any Newfoundland Government ever got. Fortunately, probably, this corporation was not in existence or it might have meant 50c. a cord going from Labrador to Wall Street. I would like to ask industrialists who are presently carrying on in Newfoundland as to what advantage it would be for them before starting had there been such a corporation.

I have heard that some of the local gentlemen are accepting membership on the board because of the public good it might do, I would like to be on a select committee to ask one of the three gentlemen, or let us say one of the two right here in the city of St. John's, what public good he expects to achieve for Newfoundland by being on the Board. I can tell you his answer, and I don't think I know either one of the gentlemen personally. He would probably say something like this: "O well, you know how it is, I realize and I have watched for two years how interested the Government are in economic development. I admire, whether I agree or not, I admire their activity and they are now setting up this corporation and say it is a great thing. I have not gone in deeply but I am glad to help them if there is anything I can do." Then I would ask him: "What do you think they can do?" And I don't think he could give me any definite answer, if so I would like for him to do it. I don't care who enlightened me or how on certain things but there are certainly a few things I would like to know as I read the Bill and I read it carefully, conscientiously. Two or three members of the House, friends of mine one time, said to me: "I am amazed, you must be putting on an act, surely you must understand it better than that." Well, I don't. And as I read this and that thing in the Bill, of all those corporations that are going to be associated with the Government in it, corporations with all their wealth, their millions, are only prepared to put in ten percent, I am not going to object to that and won't elaborate, but in the measly amount they put in, let us say one hundred thousand dollars, do they do the same as the chap used to do when he threw a penny over the bridge for luck, tie a string to it first? Why are they so anxious for five years to keep a string tied to their hundred thousand dollars? So that no matter what happens within five years they can always get out. Worse still after probably three and three-quarters or four years in this thing with probably two or three ventures they will probably be quite willing and eager and ready to take their share of the profits but they are not willing to take any part of the losses but maintain the right anytime within five years to get out if the shares are worth more than a dollar or whatever they are worth. If they are worth $20, $30 or $50, though I don't think they will ever get out unless they see an awful disaster ahead. But if they have gone down to fifty cents they will want a dollar a share for five years, the Government is asking them to stand by on the edge of the swimming pool while the Government is in clothes and all. And they stand there with the tip of their big toe in the water testing the temperature. I have come to those conclusions; it is just my opinion, and my opinion is just as good as anyone else's, but give me some concrete reason for it otherwise. I think Wood Gundy and Harriman-Ripley have no more faith in this than I have. They know how to show their faith, they put money in. They are putting no money in this. They put their name in to sell Bonds which the Government will guarantee and they won't sell too much that way either. Because there is a limit to the amount the Government can guarantee and guarantee properly.

The next thing, I want someone to enlighten me on this; does the House realize that in return for giving away a concession of from four to five thousand square miles of timber and, I agree with my honourable friend on my left, if the company has the right to cull it the fact that they get half the 10,000 square miles in area, means they get half and probably more than half the total amount of timber, at least twenty million cords in return for giving them a full ownership for longer time than our grandchildren will live; twenty million cords and there is only one thing they have to do under this agreement, just one thing. All they have to do is operate a big saw mill. Just look at the section, I am not much concerned with section 8, outlining the areas we are going to give them but with section 9—Concessions—“9. If the Corporation wishes to have timber up to a maximum of one hundred thousand (100,000) cords annually from the area covered by the Agreement entered into on the ninth day of June, 1951, between the Government of Newfoundland and Doctor Arthur Siegheim supplied to it or an assignee for the purpose of its or the assignee's operations in areas in the vicinity of the said area, the Government of Newfoundland shall, if in its opinion the request is reasonable, instruct the said Doctor Arthur Siegheim or his assignee to cut and supply the timber in accordance with the terms of the said Agreement.”

But there are two provisions to section 1 on page 8, down at the bottom, they can have all the Corporation can now use. It does not interest me any more nor anyone else as members of the House, but it does interest the present members of the Cabinet if ever they become ordinary members, but as twenty-three years' time is a long way to go, it will not interest them then but just this corporation and the latter is borne out by the following clause: “Provided that continuance of said right after the expiry of five (5) years from the day upon which this Act comes into force shall be subject to the condition that the Corporation or its assignees or transferees shall cut or procure for cutting of timber on said concession at an average annual rate, during each and every period of five (5) consecutive calendar years, of not less than one hundred million (100,000,000) board feet.” But one hundred thousand cords, Sir, is just about enough to keep the five hundred ton mill going, if it is a mill, “And shall manufacture or procure the manufacture in the Province of Newfoundland of the timber so cut into lumber or pulp,” It does not have to be pulp, lumber will do, “and if during any such five calendar year period, the average annual quantity of timber cut on said concession and so manufactured shall be less than one hundred million board feet.” That is all they have to do, cut a hundred million board feet a year. That is what it amounts to. It is given in board feet measurements and can be either lumber or pulp wood. Now a bit about pulp wood is provided on the bottom of page 9: “Provided further, that the Corporation or its assignees or transferees shall have the right, at any time and from time to time before December 31st, 1955, to cut not more than one million cords of pulp wood on said concession and to sell it, but not more than fifty thousand cords of such pulp wood shall, except with the approval of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, be exported from the Province of Newfoundland in any one calendar year."

Now, when they talk about pulpwood, they know all about cords but over in the first proviso they talk about board feet, it must mean the same so it may be all right too but the fact is, as I see it, and I want someone to contradict me, I am not satisfied, I may be crazy, but will some good solid person show me I am wrong? So I say; does the Government, does the House realize that there is nothing necessary for this corporation to do on Labrador apart from what other concessionaires might do but as far as this corporation is concerned there is nothing but a saw mill that will saw a hundred thousand feet a year. Now as far as pulpwood is concerned, they can cut it; do one of two things, to export it, I have a little note here to touch on that but I am going to reserve my frown or smile until I get more details, I don't mind a bit. This afternoon knocked a little bit of wind out of my sails. The famous politician said "wait and see," maybe the sawmill is enough down there for this corporation. But so far, the sum total of the plans for Labrador in this Bill does not say anything else. I can see two industries down there but certainly Wood Gundy or Harriman-Ripley are not prepared to do anything else either directly or through subsidies, but operate a saw mill and export pulp to someone else and they are not allowed to cut a great deal more than they are allowed to export, which means they are going to sell it to someone else. Now if they can't export it, and are going to sell it to someone else are those people to sell to the two existing mills, Bowaters and A.N.D.

Co.? I have heard for a long time that Bowaters has about nineteen million cords of wood. I don't know, I suppose it is true. If they said it was not true and it was, it is their own business. But, Sir Eric Bowater, I am sure of this, in addressing a meeting in New Brunswick last Fall said there that his company, I forget the exact words, but there is no doubt whatsoever that his company had ample stocks of pulpwood available for the whole foreseeable future. Maybe he was talking good business and was a bit optimistic with some business of his own in mind to do regarding timber in New Brunswick. Anyway he was not talking make or break, and I assume he was telling the truth. If so and we are going to sell any of that wood the corporation cuts to either existing mill I disagree with it. I don't think the two paper companies today should be allowed to buy wood off the Labrador unless as part of the programme of expansion in the mills they have already, and a gentleman will be on the Board for whom I have the greatest respect and about whom I have never uttered one word of disparagement and I don't think I will but when it comes up about what pulpwood they are cutting next year through the corporation under this proviso, it is difficult to know how Mr. Lewin is going to cut himself in two, and look out for the business interest of the people of Newfoundland, and at the same time remain what he is, an able business man. Or there is a third possibility, they might sell the pulpwood to a new mill on Labrador. Now I say this, if any company, I don't care where it comes from, is going to operate a mill on Labrador, they would much prefer to have their own concessions, their own wood, and let out their own sub-contracts like these companies do than have to buy wood from an existing corporation. I would like to be clear on that point as to whether it would or would not. Otherwise the existence of this corporation with an entailing of at least twenty million cords of wood might be a detriment, a hindrance, rather than a help to the existence and operation of a pulp and paper mill. I repeat : Assuming the company that goes there with a paper mill thinks along entirely different lines from the usual, they prefer not to have to go to the Corporation at all but directly to the Government for concessions and agreements. I can not see what help it is to build this wall between the Government, the House and the public to set up this barrier. I can't see what good it is in principle and I am afraid I can see possible harm in actual practice.

MR. SMALLWOOD : Do you mind if I ask a question? Does the honourable gentleman honestly and for a moment think the Corporation is going logging?

MR. RUSSELL : I have no way whatsoever of knowing what the Corporation or its assignees or transferees shall cut.

MR. SMALLWOOD : I think, if I ask the honourable gentleman one thing—

MR. RUSSELL : Will the honourable the Premier remember this: if the Bill had been given the same explanation, down-to-earth factual explanation as another one was given far more recently, or if (and I may be criticized) I had waited until some one told me, I would have spoken only when second reading was to be voted on. I will assume then, will take it for granted, what will happen. If I guess wrong, you will be happy to criticize me. But if a company goes in to operate a paper mill, then will this Corporation assign certain areas to them?

MR. SMALLWOOD : They might get the mill.

MR. RUSSELL : I do not see how this corporation envisaged here in this Bill can of itself operate a paper mill.

MR. SMALLWOOD : Hear, hear.

MR. RUSSELL : I can not see what the Corporation can contribute materially. In the first instance it is not big enough itself, does not control enough money, and I can't see how any subsidiary can possibly embrace a proposition as big as a paper mill. I would like to know how they are going to do it, but fine if by any chance a paper mill can be started down there without this corporation existing just as a big pulp wood cutting operation, apparently can be started without giving outsiders ten percent in profits. Why for instance give them 50c. a cord, one hundred thousand a year on a deal as large as the one we were discussing this afternoon? Now there was tabled in the House today, I can't refer to it specifically, it has actually not come under discussion yet, but there was tabled in the House today a Bill to ratify an agreement with a company called Falconbridge Nickle. The House is going, I think, to be amazed when it studies the details of that Bill in conjunction with another Bill not yet distributed but on the order paper.

MR. SPEAKER : The honourable member may not anticipate future orders of the day.

MR. RUSSELL : I am going to tell the house that I know enough about a mining company to know that it is an excellent proposition that they have come and put up to the Government, or were prepared to come and put up. Now I think it is in order, whether or not the Government accepts or not I don't know, but it is a company willing to talk directly with the Government without any corporation, does not want any Government finance, does not want any bonds guaranteed, wants nothing but the opportunity to find enough raw material concentrated in a small enough area to support an industry and if they find enough to give them a reasonable hope of profit they are able to get all the money they need. I am entirely at a loss to see what conceivable use this proposed corporation will be in helping Newfoundland to make any better dicker with any mining company than the Government of Newfoundland is perfectly capable of making and probably has made with Falconbridge. We don't need Mr. Ripley to send Anaconda down to us. I know men from Anaconda Copper, they are eager, have been for three or four months, to get a peep at the map of Photographic survey, I know men from Anaconda Co. who have been in my office, or what was mine, very anxious and interested in what was going on down here and anxious, if there was a reasonable chance of finding anything, to go there and spend any reasonable amount of money for developing and producing.

Another thing I am wondering about, we have not heard anything lately about a cement mill and gypsum mill; the Government is not backward in giving out news when they get it and I am hoping that we will hear something, some good news soon. Will there be any connection between this proposed corporation and these mills? The honourable member for Ferryland on several occasions advised the Government to sell and get out of the cement business, the whaling, the caplin, the fluorspar, get out of some of them while they can without losing anything. Will the Corporation handle any of these, if so, how? If not, then why not?

On the basis, Sir, of what I have been able to find from this Bill and what I have heard from other addresses on second reading, I have no more faith in its success than Harriman-Ripley has. Worse still I oppose the principle, I don't think I could vote for it even if I saw some real advantage in it because I don't think that there is enough conceivable material advantage to compensate me for giving while a member of the House, and paid for being a member of the House any assistance to enable the House to pass over all the rights and responsibilities of its own to somebody else.

MR. COURAGE: Mr. Speaker, I am not going to make a fighting speech, Sir, although the honourable member shook his fist at me and I shook mine back at him. I am going to make a very short speech. I have not had very long acquaintance with this Bill, I am not a Member of the Cabinet. It was discussed and was explained here by the Premier. But first I must refute the accusations of haste which have been levied by certain people against the Government regarding this Bill. It does not seem to me the Government is in a great deal of a hurry to put this Bill through. It has been more than a week since my honourable friends over there began to talk—although only the day before yesterday newspaper editorials came out and accused the Government of shoving this Bill through in a hurry. I don't see how they could call that hurry, and I don't see the great difficulty this Bill poses. I am not a lawyer, I am not an economist, but I have no great difficulty in understanding the principle of this Bill. As a matter of fact, sixty per cent of the thirty pages in the Bill is made up of clauses that may be found in the articles of associations of any company. Such things as remunerations of directors, by-laws, audits and penalties, etc. You know, as I see it, the principle of this Bill is very simple and there is nothing new about it. We are setting up here an Act to incorporate the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation by legislation which brings into being a company, a promotion company, a development company, call it what you like, but as the Premier would say, "some peddlers," people who in the last ten years have promoted companies by raising some twenty-nine thousand billion dollars. I think you can call these "some peddlers". I don't think that we need a specific mandate from the people to set this up. The people gave the Government a mandate; when they sent us to this House, it was on the understanding that the Government was to use every means in their power, every legitimate means, to develop this country. That was one of the platforms of this Government.

Now as I said just now, this is a development company and there is a need for such a company. In the first place how are large companies formed? Supposing some firm, some company, wanted to put a paper mill somewhere in this country, how would they go about it? There are no companies that have enough capital, which have enough savings to enable them to draw from that saving in order to put up another mill. They would have to go out and raise the money in some way or another and they would have to go to one of the large companies such as Wood Gundy or Harriman-Ripley in order to have such a company help them to raise the capital. That is as I see it. Now these companies, Harriman-Ripley and Wood Gundy, are well known peddlers.

MR. CASHIN: You bet they are.

MR. COURAGE: And they have promoted new companies, they have helped many companies.

MR. CASHIN: And bankrupted them too.

MR. COURAGE: You keep quiet. They have given many companies money to set up new enterprises and industries and to expand them. Now some of my honourable friends see nothing good in such a company. They see the big teeth of the wolf that ate up the grandmother. But I see in this not a detriment but an encouragement and help because by interesting these large financial houses enough to persuade them to come in with the Government, the Government has insured that these companies are going to be interested enough to go all out to help any company which wants to develop in Newfoundland. That is how I see it. We know they are not in it for ten percent, that is chicken feed.

MR. SMALLWOOD: They don't want to do it free.

MR. FAHEY: They are in for free.

MR. COURAGE: If my honourable friends over there will just stop a moment and listen they might learn something. The ten percent is chicken feed, the one hundred thousand dollars is chicken feed. What is that to a company of Harriman-Ripley's type. These companies, these financial houses would have taken a larger share than ten percent but the Government of Newfoundland won't allow it. The Government of Newfoundland must keep ninety percent of the shares of the Corporation in order that the Corporation may be a Crown Corporation. Here is something else. This ten percent is really worth twenty percent because they don't have to pay any taxes. So that this ten percent they are getting in a Crown Corporation is really as good as twenty percent in any other Corporation.

MR. FAHEY: Are they guaranteed ten percent?

MR. COURAGE: No, their interest in this corporation does not come from the ten percent but it comes from the profit they hope to make in promoting and developing companies which will come here.

MR. FOGWILL: They will.

MR. HIGGINS: They will pay taxes.

MR. COURAGE: Sure, nobody has been trying to say they won't, that is beside the point. I did not say they would not, I beg your pardon, I said the ten percent in this corporation was worth twenty percent in any other corporation. That is what I said, and I know what I am saying I am not going to be rudely interrupted either.

Now, this Corporation, in spite of what some people said, or see, or seem to see, is a corporation of the Newfoundland Government and reputable financial firms, leaders in the financial world today and we were very very lucky that those people would come in with the Government.

I think it is a well known fact that we cannot very well set up a one hundred percent Government corporation. That is a well known fact. It would smack too much of socialism. It is not the way things are done anyway. Now there is nothing new in granting land to companies, nothing new in the world about that. The Commission of Government gave away, you might say, some twenty thousand square miles in Labrador and nobody seemed to say anything about it at all.

MR. FAHEY: And helped to give away Newfoundland besides.

MR. COURAGE: Newfoundland was not given away.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Do not pay any attention to a die hard anti-confederate.

MR. COURAGE: My honourable friend gives himself away by such remarks. There is nothing new in that and this Government does not need a mandate in order to set up this corporation. Some people are very concerned, I read in the newspaper, they are very concerned because there was no way, they said, in this Bill whereby this company could be wound up, they searched in vain for a way out. Well, good gracious, you know a company or a corporation or anything else that comes in as a result of legislation can be just as easily repealed by legislation. I do not need to tell you that, you know it, but I wish to stress that point, a corporation such as this can be wound up in the same way as it has been brought in. This corporation is still the creature of the Government and as such the creature of the House, because the House controls the Government. None, Mr. Speaker, are so blind as those who will not see. If members are going to walk out when questions are being answered can they return and expect us here to go all over it again. My honourable friend, the member for Bonavista South, spoke on page 8 and 9, the clause which says the company must develop or lose its rights; he saw what no one else saw before, that they must produce annually one hundred million board feet or lose their rights and I believe that when he spoke about the setting up of a saw mill, I believe he was joking. It would be really some saw mill, as the former Minister of Natural Resources must know, it would be some saw mill.

MR. RUSSELL: Gigantic, yes.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Where would they get the saw logs to saw a hundred million feet of board; it is not there so they cannot saw a hundred million feet of lumber. It cannot be done.

MR. COURAGE: I do not think the honourable member for one instant thought it could be done. I think he adopted a debater's attitude and I believe it would have been a better speech from over here.

MR. RUSSELL: That is imputing a motive that I was deliberately saying something I did not mean. I was sincere and honest and I will not elaborate on my reason for being sincere and honest, whether or not practicable, that is in the minds of some people intimately concerned about this and whether or not it can be done. It is none of my business but some day I will say more.

MR. SPEAKER: I am quite sure the honourable member for Fortune Bay will accept the honourable member's explanation.

MR. COURAGE: I did not impute insincerity at all. I thought if he made a speech over here it would be better. That does not mean insincerity. I hope that is clear. I have no wish to disparage the honourable member or any other member of this House. I have not called for a point of order when anybody else would do so. So, Mr. Speaker, we see this company must develop or it will lose its rights. Again now my honourable friend the member for Ferryland is very interested in Bay D'Espoir. I give him credit for it, the same as I have; I happen to be the representative of that area. So is the Government interested in Bay D'Espoir. Now, I do not know whether a paper mill will go there, I would not like to have the people build their hopes up too much on that, but I do believe the future of Bay D'Espoir is assured whether or not the paper mill goes there this year, next year, or in four or five years or not, I can assure the people that I, as a representative of the district, and the Premier and other members of the Government are doing everything possible to bring about that development. I know we have a tremendous undeveloped hydro-electric power; I have heard that we have more hydro-electric power in Bay D'Espoir than can be used today in St. John's, Corner Brook and Grand Falls put together and I believe this will ensure the development of Bay D'Espoir. And there is something else to it that is not generally known, it has beautiful scenery, good harbours, good farmland all around Bay D'Espoir.

MR. CASHIN: And a lovely member.

MR. COURAGE: I thank the honourable member. I will say this much, he does give credit where and when it is due, not like some people.

I think the House might stand a little story. A very well known gentleman one day walked up to the bar of a hotel and said; "Bartender, give me a drink." He took up the drink, smelled it, put it down and said; "This drink stinks." Now what he did not know, he had been eating sandwiches and a piece of limburger cheese was sticking to his mustache, under his nose. When he took the drink up and said "it stinks," the bartender was very irritated when the man walked out in a very offended fashion without paying for his drink. In a little while the man came back and asked the bartender for a whiskey and soda. The bartender replied, "You were in here a little while ago and said our drinks stink." "I was wrong," said the man, "I have just been out and strolled around and the whole world stinks." I will say this for the honourable gentleman, he does not go around with a piece of limburger cheese under his nose. In saying this I do not mean anything disparaging, but it is to his credit that he thinks credit should be given where it is due. In the matter of this Bill certain people have not been fair to the Government nor to the Premier whom I think deserves credit for the energy and efforts made.

I will summarize the points made. I am speaking longer than I had intended. In the first place I do not think it very difficult to understand the principle and in the second place I think it is worthwhile for the Government to be associated with two of the largest financial houses in the world in order that they may take a more personal interest in the development or go all out to interest other companies and to assist them in the promotion of Newfoundland, new industries in Newfoundland. I believe in such a corporation, and this corporation, remember, is ninety per cent government, so that we are not giving anything away. The Government is merely, in spite of what some honourable members may say or may think, the three independent business men who are on the directorate are people who go there with the knowledge, understanding, that they go there as Newfoundlanders at the request of the Newfoundland Government. Furthermore, there is an easy way out for this House at any time it wants to bring about an ending to this corporation. The other point I made was that this corporation must develop what is given to it or lose its rights and I think that the Premier, instead of being opposed, should be treated fairly in this matter. After all, we have a common purpose here whether in the Opposition or the Government, Independent or whatever we are, a common purpose and that is the welfare of the people of Newfoundland and we should debate this Bill; it is not a Bill that should be boycotted but debated and it should be given serious thought, and, if it is good support it, and if not oppose it. I believe that it is good, other people are entitled to their opinion, or they could improve it, that is a very good point, and the Premier pointed out that it could be improved.

MR. JANES: I want to thank the honourable member, Sir, who has just spoken for being so patient as he has been to try and aid us who are not used to reading this type of legislation to try and help us understand it.

Now, Sir, all through this debate there has been one trend of thought by the members who have opposed it. I do not know whether it is intentional or whether they have been reading something in this Bill that is not there. The thought has been expressed that the Government, in this Bill, is about to give away the remaining part of the public domain in Newfoundland and Labrador. I have read no such thing in this Bill, Sir, I do not see it there. No concessions have been given in this Bill setting up the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation, no concessions over which the Government has not an over-riding power. Not only does the Government maintain its own rights, but the Government is also the senior partner in this Corporation with the power to veto on every and any project which the Government does not think should go ahead. I do not see, Sir, one bit of difference in what the Government is trying to do so far as the public domain is concerned, I do not see one bit of difference so far as the public property, the public domain of Newfoundland is concerned, it is not changed one bit from what it is now, not one bit, and I do not think anybody could read in that legislation that it is. True, certain rights and concessions have been given for 99 years, but the Government, the senior partner, has the over-riding power in the Corporation, it owns in its own right today, in partnership tomorrow when the Bill is passed. The honourable member for Harbour Main, Sir, brought forward the contention, where he got it from I do not know, but his point was that if this legislation is passed and the Corporation is set up the economy of Newfoundland is going to be crippled. I see nothing in it which is going to cripple the economy of Newfoundland. Would the honourable gentleman tell me what is now happening in areas which the Government is about to pass into the hand of this Corporation at this moment? Tell me if it is possible for the Corporation to go out and through subsidiaries develop these areas, so that the economy of Newfoundland is being crippled by such development?

Supposing that the corporation only cuts one hundred million feet, Sir, of lumber, if it is possible to do it. That is as much as any two hundred saw-mills in Newfoundland is sawing at this moment, which is employment for at least one thousand men, supposing that only is done or in five years hence it is something that is not being done, and probably will never be done unless this corporation, in partnership with the Government, goes out to do it. No one will ever say James is in favour of Wall Street but I see no other way out of it. If I can see the fishermen of Fogo pick up more money through a paper mill in Bay D'Espoir, I cannot see what is wrong with it. They will never get money at fish, not when selling it at $10 a quintal. It is nonsense; nonsense that anyone should argue that because a corporation is being set up whereby development is made possible that the economy of Newfoundland is going to be crippled.

MR. FAHEY: A point of order, if you are quoting what I said on the principle now, you are picking out one point of what I said and laying emphasis on that and forget what it started off with.

MR. JANES: You started off by saying it was being given away and ended up by saying we would be crippled.

MR. FAHEY: You will yield? I said we were giving away the rights of this House to legislate in the future to this corporation, to legislate for the people in the various districts, to legislate for them in this Act.

MR. JANES: Mr. Speaker—

MR. SPEAKER: You yield.

MR. FAHEY: You are taking away that right and the honourable member said that after a man had a drink he said the whole world stank, he must have read that Act and that stinks.

MR. JANES: I covered two points, the first was that the Government domain is not given away, the Act does not say so, I do not read it there. The second one, the economy of Newfoundland is going to be crippled if it comes into being. Sure I covered those two points and said nothing else, I will deal with the other ones later. The honourable member for Ferryland said that if this legislation is passed the possibility for a paper mill becomes less. I still do not see that.

MR. CASHIN: You must be blind, you had better go down to O'Reilly tomorrow.

MR. JANES: I still do not see it. There is nothing in the Act about it. The chance for a paper mill is the same when this is passed as it is now. The requirements for a paper mill as far as I can see are that resources are available, the pulpwood and water power must be available and so geographically situated that it could be used economically. The Act does nothing to change that fact, the second one is that there must be a demand for paper. There is a big demand for paper. The third: Anyone who wants to start a paper mill must be capable of raising the capital to do it. I do not know how they go about that. I have never been able to raise any money for myself, but they have a way to do it; and the fourth point, I would say the corporation's existence is a further inducement to industry and I think the manufacturers of paper who are already engaged in the manufacture of paper, who are an organization or a monopoly or a cartel, or whatever you like, are able to exercise enough influence upon the Government or corporation in the financial world to start or stop them. This Act can do nothing about the requirements for starting, for the economic requirements to start and be able to operate are the same in principle as whether I can go down on New Gower Street and start another grocery store, exactly the same. There is not a bit of difference in the world.

The honourable member for Bonavista South in his first address to the House, argued and so did another member, that the Government was going to get nothing out of this transaction. How much will we get out of Bowaters?

MR. CASHIN: We gave that away.

MR. JANES: Yes, for a paltry hundred and fifty thousand dollars a year, that is what we get out of it. But the Government will get 90% of the earnings of this corporation. They are the 90% shareholders, and supposing the corporation makes nothing, barely pays its expenses, but supposing it is able to set up subsidiaries with the capital provided or at least raised by the other partners in the corporation, it would still be as much as ever we got out of any venture in Newfoundland, if a thousand or fifteen hundred people in Newfoundland secure employment. By supplying regular jobs, earning regular wages, the taxable capacity of the people would increase. What more returns do the Government want?

MR. FAHEY: It goes to Ottawa.

MR. JANES: It does not go to Ottawa.

MR. SMALLWOOD: And comes back again.

MR. FOGWILL: Very little, not enough of it.

MR. JANES: Supposing they did not do that, are we then capable of building our own hospitals? Only the other day there was a million dollars for Public Health in Newfoundland. Supposing there was another Corner Brook, able to raise $375,000. How many areas in Newfoundland are capable of doing that? And what has made it possible? The paper mill in Corner Brook, that is what made it possible, not the timber land dormant on the Labrador or the minerals we might have in Green Bay lying dormant. It was active and economic development which did it and if the people can afford to pay for their own doctors, have regular employment, through development have their own nursing stations and hospitals, isn't the Government getting something out of it? It was only a few days ago in this House we passed estimates for a million dollars for able-bodied relief, people are going to be unemployed in Newfoundland and will need assistance and I will say this: they have to get more than $10.25 for fish or they will want more than four million dollars. Fish is in my blood. The question has been asked, what is the corporation going to do, and the given answer was, nothing. I suppose we know what timber areas in the Labrador we can cede to the corporation, and we are asked in this House what is the corporation going to do and because the Act does not lay down anything specific, they say we are going to do nothing.

MR. FAHEY: What they can do the Government can do.

MR. JANES: A joint endeavour of the Government and capital can do more than the Government can alone. You know that or at least you should. If the Government alone could do what the two together can do we would not have to form the Corporation in Newfoundland today.

MR. SPEAKER: Please address the Chair.

MR. JANES: It is a matter of anticipation, Sir, what the corporation will do, and to say nothing specific is without foundation. The corporation must first be set up, this association must be given its articles of association, must have some capital, must know what resources are to be handed over or temporary concessions and what these resources contain whether there are any there or not before they start. I do not know, they might start mining, they might develop water power, they may develop some subsidiary industries but in this Act to tie them down to what they should do is not conceivable, Sir.

Evolving all around that is the point which has been made, that we are allowing this corporation to have these temporary concessions, that the authority of this House as the House of Assembly has been taken away. It might be more desirable before the Government makes an agreement to bring all the parties in and sit them down there, that probably would be called the democratic way, but it is not the way in which the world operates, it is not the way in which governments operate, not the way in which governments are expected to operate. Negotiations today must be carried on with speed and especially when there is a matter of urgency about them and who would say it is not a matter of urgency to have economic development in Newfoundland today. This corporation, Sir, at least it is my hope, that vested with power with which we have vested it, with resources which is the capital, this corporation will go out and do the job required and whether the Government, through the Cabinet, ratifies anything that is to be carried out or whether every little agreement must be brought in here to the House and discussed first, is purely a matter of procedure and what the Government is doing in this case is taking the resources which we have and placing them wholesale, the whole of them together, in the hands of the corporation which is committed to development, or they will lose the rights to them. That is in the Act, too, although nobody has mentioned that. The Government is faced with either doing that or distributing our resources piece-meal, handing them out as we have been doing for four hundred years.

My impression, Sir, with regard to this Bill is that we are setting up here not only an organization which can handle our resources more efficiently than the Government, but we are setting up what someone has already called it, a promotion agency. Any large corporation sets up a promotion agency and that is exactly what the government has done, set up a promotion agency in this corporation using as partners, organizations of the financial world, Harriman-Ripley and Wood Gundy. I do not know much about them; they probably are a crowd of stock brokers. but to say that Wood Gundy and the others in this business are a crowd of crooks is just to condemn private enterprise.

MR. FAHEY: You have often told us all about the robbers in big business, the fish merchants. You told us here quite often.

MR. JANES: It is only lately you are agreeing with it.

MR. SPEAKER: I must remind honourable members the use of the personal pronoun is out of order. Will the honourable members please address the Chair.

MR. JANES: It has been argued that the partners, Ripley and Gundy, stand to lose nothing according to this legislation. That is true but supposing no development takes place in this corporation at all. Why should Harriman-Ripley and Wood Gundy, and any other people who are not going into actual physical development come in and join hands with us, and if at some time or other they want to draw out because there is nothing in it lose the few dollars working capital they put into it? I don't think it is fair to ask them. That concession is only to 1955, they have the right to ask the Government to buy their shares and why up to 1955? It is being imputed that these people are coming in here with all sorts of ideas of ousting the Newfoundland people and Government and taking over the public domain, the water power and timber. To me, Sir, 1955 is a very significant date. Certain powers, certain concessions are vested in the corporation for the time being. How soon are we going to know what is in them, how soon are we going to know what developments can take place? Look at our record. The A.N.D. Co. started in 1906, The International Pulp and Paper Co. or its predecessor around 1925—roughly 20 years later. It took twenty odd years in spite of the A.N.D. development to open the second mill.

MR. CASHIN: Do you know the reason why?

MR. JANES: The lack of demand for paper tied up these resources.

MR. CASHIN: No, nothing of the kind.

MR. JANES: You tell us.

MR. CASHIN: The A.N.D. Company came in 1905, promoted indirectly by the late Harry Crow. The whole of the timber areas were gotten from the Government of Newfoundland—I do not know if they got them for nothing or not, got them and sold them to Northcliffe interest at that time and established a mill at Grand Falls. The mill opened, I think, in 1910 for production. From 1910 to 1923 there was no further development in this country in pulp and paper even though the Reid Newfoundland Company were making extensive efforts, mind you, to promote that mill on the Humber River. Why did they not promote it? This was the reason, Mr. Speaker, when the A.N.D. Company came in and started in 1910 they were controlled entirely and are yet, in a sense, by a group of newspapers in Great Britain who at that time absorbed all the profit by getting cheap newsprint. The result was the A.N.D. Company showed no profit at that time because at that time the profit taxation in Great Britain was little or nothing. However after the war ended in 1918 the profit taxation in Great Britain soared. What was the result then? The A.N.D. Company then showed a profit for the A.N.D. Company out here and not for the paper interests on the other side who were taking them before by getting cheap newsprint which showed the A.N.D. Company as losing money in Newfoundland, but the papers in England were taking home profits. After that the Reids were able to go into the markets which they did and interested the promoters in developing the Humber area. In addition the British and Newfoundland Governments guaranteed twenty million dollars. So that you can take it from me the A.N.D. Company were primarily responsible for preventing new industries from coming to Newfoundland from 1910 to 1923, by showing false statements, if you like to call it that, of the operations of their company in Newfoundland, and taking the credit in other places.

MR. SPEAKER: I may say if you intend speaking further, we might recess now for ten minutes.

Ten minutes recess.

MR. JANES: Mr. Speaker, when we adjourned, I was speaking on the point that the other shareholders, other than the Government, could withdraw from the Corporation without heavy losses in the process and closely tied with that was the argument that there was nothing specific laid out in the Bill which the Corporation must do. But I would remind the House that the first paper mill came in 1905 and it took 23 years before the second one came and another 23 have passed and the third has not yet come. I believe, Sir, even before 1890 we have had mining development in Green Bay, will some of the members put me correct on this, yet for the last fifty years the amount of development was insignificant and to tie the shareholders down too much in this legislation and say you must do this or something else from the historical point of view would be crazy and they would go home again and I would not blame them.

Now, Sir, in ending up, I want to take the Bill as it is: I want to run down through the Bill to support every argument that I have used so far. If honourable members will turn to section 8, paragraph (a), some of it was read by the honourable member for Bonavista South, but he did not finish it, Sir, it says: "Said right shall be subject to termination on such date, not earlier than three (3) years after the end of such five calendar year period, as the Lieutenant Governor shall fix by Order-in-Council;" The whole argument in this debate has been that the Government has given away the public domain and it was pretended the Government could not take it back, yet right here in this section at the end of a period they have to put it in operation or if not the Government can take it away from them. Section 8 (b) . . . "except if or to the extent from time to time exempted or relieved in whole or part from so doing by the Lieutenant Governor in Council," with the provisions of the Crown Lands Act, 1951. Extensive exploration rights which they can be relieved of if the Government so desires. Paragraph (c) dealing with development, if water-power, the Government has the right to go in and develop if the Corporation has not commenced development. Now these are some of the rights in this legislation, some of the temporary rights which have been passed over to the Corporation, the timber, minerals and water-power, yet the Government has the over-riding veto to go in and take over. Yet it is said the public domain has been given away, and destroyed. In Section 8, paragraph (2)—that section prevents the transfer of any concessions the Corporation has except by approval of the Government as to what public domain may be given away. There is no public domain being given away by this legislation as far as I can see, Sir. Section 4, which is the one regarding the other shareholders in the Corporation does not give anything by transfer of shares prior to 1955, only four and a half years away. Have the right to ask us to come in with us on the plans of the Government and lose on that account. Section 17, restricts borrowing powers of the Corporation except by approval of the Lieutenant Governor in Council and gives the legislation power to approve the issue of bonds by the Corporation. The honourable member for Bonavista South indicates though that even if we had been called upon to redeem the ten million dollars of Bowaters and have lost a million dollars, Newfoundland would still have gained. I agree with that but would not the same principle apply here, if we could collect income tax and customs taxes and offset the million dollars? Today we do not collect customs taxation but neither do we have to maintain the services which we would have, had not the Federal Government maintained them.

MR. RUSSELL: They pay in services, the Income Tax Division and Customs Division, but these make money.

MR. JANES: Yes, but the Government spends it to maintain the services in the public interest, but not the breakwaters, bridges, railway and coastal services which are maintained by the Federal Government. Section 9 permits the Government to appoint to the board of directors, people who are not shareholders of the corporation. In other words the Government goes out and finds people public spirited enough and willing, with the necessary financial business background, to act on the Board of Directors of the corporation, and to do so without being shareholders in the corporation. Section 24, Sir, protects the shareholders in the distribution of shares. I think that protection is so exercised by the Government, I do not think the shares can be distributed or redistributed without the consent of the Government and there is nothing very difficult about that section.

Now, Sir, I am about finished. I see nothing in this legislation about which to worry; I do not see the public domain being given away, but I do see the Government in its policy of economic development going out and with the possibility of being able to raise capital to do the job which has to be done. I see it is possible through the corporation. I do not think the people are losing anything, not one cord of wood, nor one ounce of minerals or one kilowatt of water-power. Every right, every concession given by the passing of this legislation is amply protected by the Government, the Government is still sovereign in every concession going to the corporation. Unless the minerals we have and the timber and water-power are going to be developed, they are no use to us and if we gave them all to Wood Gundy tomorrow and there was no development, how much worse off would we be? Not one iota, Sir, not one iota. I believe something will come out of this, I believe the stage is now being set for economic development which the Government has been trying to bring about and it did not take me any thirty days, Sir, to read this Bill, it did not take me thirty days and I do not think I need challenge the honourable member for Ferryland to explain every section in it tonight, if he wants me to,

MR. SMALLWOOD: I understand that one of the members, if not two, of the Opposition spoke in the debate, and I am not sure it would not be the wish of the House that that honourable member should thereby lose his opportunity to participate fully in the debate. He moved an amendment and thereby spoke and I think this amendment seconded by the honourable the junior member for St. John's East, means he also spoke.

MR. SPEAKER: Not the honourable member.

MR. SMALLWOOD: In that case the motion was not moved, was not seconded. It does not matter, and the honourable member for Harbour Main-Bell Island has a chance to speak. Now, I feel the House would want to have ample opportunity for debate and if, Sir, there is any way that Your Honour can suggest whereby the honourable member would be given ample opportunity to contribute to the debate, I feel, Sir, the House would be enormously happy if this could be arranged.

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable member, as far as the Chair is concerned, has spoken and it is merely a matter for the House to decide.

MR. FAHEY: I used my privilege in speaking already when I moved the amendment for delay of thirty days, and according to the rules of the House, I have lost my chance to speak in the debate except for the few words leading up to the amendment and I have no desire to ask the House to break the rules and I realized that when I moved the amendment. Now, I do not care to speak any more.

MR. FOGWILL: Mr. Speaker, I move the debate be adjourned until tomorrow.

MR. SPEAKER: A motion to adjourn the debate was put and lost, then the honourable member who moved the adjournment would lose his right to speak.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Well, to save that, as leader of the House I will move the adjournment and take the matter out of the hands of the honourable member; I am sure it will carry. In cases like that where members are in doubt of losing a chance to speak, it is better to refer it to me and as leader of the House, I can move the adjournment of the debate and to make the motion doubly sure I move the debate stand adjourned and you second the motion and it will be carried.

Debate adjourned until tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, we have still an hour. Could we turn to No. 16 on the Order Paper, second reading of a Bill, "An Act relating to Licenses to Cut Timber Issued Prior to January, 1931."

MR. HEFFERTON: Mr. Speaker, when this Bill came up I moved the adjournment of the debate. I have no intention of speaking to any great length on the Bill, it is, in short, a principle with which I feel everybody must be in entire agreement. The importance of public domain which have been given in concession to various companies running back for a period up to fifty years and during this period the conditions attached to the concessions have not been fulfilled or only in part. By reason of non-fulfillment of these conditions I think it is safe to say, Mr. Speaker, that possible development has been prevented and consequently since we have reached a time in our affairs when we feel that there is a possibility of some development taking place, the original concessionaires are not prepared to accept responsibility which went with their concessions, it is up to this House to amend it in any way they consider to be the best way possible form now, in addition to giving the limited time as mentioned in the various agreements covering these concessions. This Bill goes a little further and extends to them a period of grace, as it were, that period of grace running from now until the end of January, 1952, in which these vested interests have the opportunity, if they so desire, of trying to live up to the obligations which they undertook years ago and conditions which they have not fulfilled up to this time.

If during that period of grace they are unable to fulfill the obligations which they undertook, then I think it is only right that the concessions should automatically lapse and as the Bill says, the lands and rights vested in these lands should revert to the Crown and the Government of the day been given the opportunity of giving further concessions if they so desire or of taking other steps they deem necessary and proper in order to carry out our main purpose on this side of the House and I believe on the other side of the House as well. Our main purpose is the economic rehabilitation of Newfoundland in order that we may be enabled to give to our people better service than we have hitherto been able to envisage.

MR. FOGWILL: Mr. Speaker, I support this Bill because I do feel, too, just as well as the member on the opposite side of this House that concessions given years ago to people coming to this country looking for concessions, perhaps some of them who were prepared to develop and fulfill the conditions of their contract and others perhaps just came in for speculative purposes, just speculators. However, Sir, although being in support of the Bill, I do want to say a word or two about the changed conditions between now, this year 1951, and the years gone by when some of these concessions were made. It was pointed out by the honourable Premier in his opening remarks in respect to this Bill, something about the governments of the past in Newfoundland, and how the governments of the past valued the territory and minerals and timber and other things in or around the territory which was sought by some of these concessions. Mr. Speaker, in those days, territory was not valued as much as it is today, you cannot make any comparison today Sir, between the value of concessions, make any comparisons at all with the value put on them, some say, twenty years ago. I feel sure, Sir, that when it was first discovered, I think forty or fifty years ago, that there were great iron deposits on the Labrador, and I think it is only now the world is beginning to realize that they are so valuable because of what took place since, and the other sources of raw material in the United States and Canada were now being used up. Iron ore is today also very valuable to the United States and other countries because the world needs raw materials and they are more valuable today than they were fifty or even twenty years ago. Now, Mr. Speaker, since some of these concessions were made quite a lot has happened. Labrador, then, and much of Newfoundland was unknown and probably was called a wilderness but there has been a lot of development since and several large industries have gone up in the Island which have proven very valuable to us in the way of setting up communities and giving employment to thousands of people. Other concessions which have been given have not been developed, probably for various reasons. I know, however, that during the first great war there was a boom on and that for a period of ten years prior to the last war nobody had any money at all to invest in development of any territory. I know we can make no comparison today in so far as territory and timber lands are concerned. Then even the price of eggs was down to 10c. a dozen. The same thing applies when we go back a few hundred years and realize the whole Island was worth $10, so that there is no comparison between those days and now. And we must realize this too, Mr. Speaker, it was only in 1903 that the United States of America purchased the Louisiana territory from France for fifty million francs at a time when fifty million francs was eleven million and a quarter dollars but that territory today is comprised of ten states, the whole of ten states, 748,000 square miles of territory, 4,161,000 people. So that when anybody in this House, including the Premier, casts any reflections upon the Governments of the past for neglecting their duties, I would like people to realize that people in those days dealt with conditions which faced them. You can go back a little nearer, Mr. Speaker, to 1912, when the United States bought all the territory of Alaska from Russia for $6,200,000. That territory is comprised of 526,000 square miles, and that is not very long ago and should only go to show this House the value placed on territory in those days. When anybody, Mr. Speaker, talks about the Governments of the past I would like to remind them that I believe, in most things at least, they did the best they could under the circumstances in which they found themselves.

It was just a short while ago, Mr. Speaker, we were told by an honourable gentleman here in this Chamber, how Newfoundland was discovered. He did not say these exact words but in effect to me it meant the Dominion of Canada discovered Newfoundland in 1944 or 1945 or perhaps it might have been re-discovered by Canada. It was only when the Great Dominion found out the value of this Island to them, and the value of our Labrador territory. You realize, Mr. Speaker, in 1914, at the beginning of the first world war, Canada herself was perhaps in much the same position as we were. In that day Canada had very few industries, very few paper mills, very little manufacturing, no motor car industry. They had none of those things which they are endeavouring to develop today to build a first-class nation. They are succeeding to a certain extent, no doubt, but Canada has only come of age in those last few years. I think they are very delighted with themselves to have found a little gem in the mouth of the St. Lawrence which is very desirable to them. Canada, in 1914, Mr. Speaker, was just a big farm, very little else and she has progressed a long way since then. I just want to stress this point once again in supporting the principle of this Bill that these concessionaires or people who hold licenses or timber rights in Newfoundland and Labrador, these people who can, should give some assurance that they are prepared to go ahead and do their best to develop and give this House and the country assurance they are prepared to put up money to go ahead with development of the Labrador concessions they have. I think they should be given an opportunity to do so, a reasonable opportunity, not such a short period as outlined in this Bill, about five months, and if they do not by the end of this present year fulfill the conditions under which they hold concessions, the Government can take them away. I think that the Government should consider if at any time they think that the concessionaires should lose their concessions, first they should find out whether or not these people are prepared to come forward and put up the capital to develop the territory which they control.

With those few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I conclude in saying that I support the Bill in principle.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Speaker, I support in part the principle of the Bill, and in part I do not.

Now in that we term the olden days of Responsible Government—our governments here had very little money to carry on the work of the country, for a long time it went from three to six million dollars and in 1930 was up to ten million dollars. That is the highest they ever had; it went to eleven one year I believe. This country could not afford to carry on any heavy development which cost a half million dollars, which was an enormous amount of money then and might be the amount necessary to balance their budget. Now the result was that they decided to give out timber and mineral leases to private enterprise charging them rentals, making these people give them copies of their surveys so that those people would be agents of the government but independent people in development of the various areas with which they were vested by the Government. Now as a result of that the A.N.D. Company came into existence. The honourable and gallant member for Ferryland told us that the late Harry Crow got certain timber licenses from the Government but they also had to buy other leases, a license to cut timber, and a lease of surface rights and as a result there came into being the A.N.D. Company. Reids for some time had been trying to develop what is called the Humber areas, but in 1915 it fell through and then very shortly afterwards, one of the biggest financial wizards of Norway, came here and for some reason, that fell through. It was the intention at that time that they would develop water rights on the Humber and by means of the power generated there they would build a big pulp and an aluminum mill. If that had happened we would have had one of the largest aluminum plants in North America, but unfortunately it fell through, but the interests grouped up and built an enormous mill on the Ottawa River which cost $65,000,000. Now that was all done by private enterprise, and with private capital. Unfortunately the Reids who had spent millions in furthering this development lost everything when the Newfoundland Power and Paper Company went bankrupt.

Now, unfortunately, the Labrador areas have not been developed at all. Leases were given away back in the early 1900's but these leases were of absolutely no effect. We heard the other day that Dickie had built a saw mill near the Muskrat Falls and had started development when the Canada Quebec Co. came in and took the mill and put him into insolvency, and the Royal Bank took the leases and that was the end of him. So that nobody dared start any further development on the Labrador, and in 1913 one of the large companies who owned a large track of land on the Labrador, I do not remember which one it was, sold this property to interests in England who were going to develop it, and of course the amount paid is immaterial, either one or two million dollars, but they were warned in London that it was Canadian territory and that fell through, that stopped the development of Labrador. However, these people who had the leases of the timber areas still paid the rent, hoping some day the Quebec Border Dispute would be settled and they were willing to spend a lot more money to keep what they had. It was not until 1930 that the Privy Council confirmed us in our ownership of Labrador.

House recessed at 6 o'clock.

NIGHT SESSION

MR. HIGGINS: I have an idea they may not; the public don't read those things, these foreign interests, most of them, and whether they are foreign or not we should treat them with respect and decency and honesty and I say I will agree that if this time was extended and we had sufficient time given them to take steps to either carry out the terms of the leases or licenses or if they find they can do nothing about them, I presume they won't pay another rent. They won't pay out three or four thousand dollars a year and some of them have paid rent for forty-five years, some go back to 1902. I think they have been paying the rental. I know one of them. I know it is only a small amount compared with all the money they spend on promotion but I don't think any of them outside the Royal Bank of Canada have made any money at all to compensate for the money they spent in all those years. Suppose a man gives me a lease of a piece of land for 99 years and I agreed that within one month I should build a house on it. He collected the rent year by year, the house is not built but after that he still keeps on collecting the rental and after twenty years the man comes to me "You have not erected the house" but he lets me carry on, thinks everything is all right. I would say you forfeited your rights, you should have come in after a year or two or before this time and said, "You have not built the house." It might be said it was not equitable to hold that land for twenty years without putting the house on it. But if you go to law you would be given a year more to build the house on it. Now a house can be built in six months but to come in here and say to those people, you must build a pulp mill, a saw mill within six months, well, it is just as well to take the property, they can't do it. The time should be extended, you can't tie up property anywhere in the world, but give sufficient time to carry out the terms, and don't delude yourselves by saying within six months you carry out the terms. I think that is deluding yourselves. I agree with the principle in part but not that, and it goes to the very root of the principle.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I don't know if any other honourable gentleman wishes to speak before I close the debate. I will be very brief. There may be all kinds of good reasons why those various concessionaries failed to carry out the obligations which they knowingly assumed. Back in the early part of the present session they were given notice and I think though there may have been very good reasons for their failing to carry out the great indispensable feature or conditions of their agreements, namely development, yet right up until 1927 there was still some reasonable doubt in the minds of most people as to who owned the Labrador. But in 1927 the matter was resolved and the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council confirmed Newfoundland's title to the Labrador and set the Boundary. They did not award Labrador to Newfoundland because it was not in their power to do so. They merely confirmed our title and they agreed with out contention as to where the boundary should lie. That settled that question in 1927 which was one of the greatest turning points in Newfoundland history. 1927 is almost a quarter of a century ago and while in that number of years, within that quarter of a century there were years when there were individuals did not and could not carry out their agreements by developing the areas as they had agreed to do, it could not surely be argued that throughout the long period of years in the life of the country—it is a long period, a quarter of a century—they could not have done it.

MR. HIGGINS: Twenty years really because the Government tried to forfeit the leases.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Whatever the Government tried to do or not to do, the one big cause for non-development was removed in 1927, and I make that 24 years.

MR. HIGGINS: Was there not an action in the Privy Council when the Government tried to forfeit the leases?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Yes, that was in 1931, I think; I think they made an effort to make those private companies develop if they really meant business. Now what we doubt is that they meant business, we doubt it. They got those concessions and tried to peddle them and some collected money for options they gave to possible purchasers, but to develop the areas in question was not even in the minds of the concessionaires; so far as we can judge by the records, they got them for speculation only. Why, Mr. Speaker, I know of a case of two men in this City of St. John's who discovered a parcel of fine timber in Newfoundland, went to the Government of the day and got a grant for that timber and on the following day sold the area to a private party for $40,000 and pocketed $20,000 each. It was a fine day's work. One of these two gentlemen is still living. It was quite commonplace in Newfoundland; I say quite commonplace, for some governments at least in the past, to parcel out the land amongst their favourites and sponsors so that they in turn could make a dishonest dollar and many a dishonest dollar was made, many hundreds of dishonest dollars were made. It was an open traffic in the public domain, graft, corruption and mis-practice in office. There were claim jumpers, men who made their money on Crown lands. They would stake the claim and having staked it they had to get it. That was the law and it was a racket. Now insofar as this Government are concerned we have again and again and again in our meetings discussed the question of alienated Crown property belonging to the people once, but now in the hands of private speculators who have no intention of developing, and have asked ourselves what would we do about it. We decided very early in our deliberations that we would not confiscate, we would not expropriate. We felt that morally we would be handsomely justified if we did, we felt that legally we had only to introduce an Act into the House and if the Act were passed, the land in question would be expropriated. But we valued our reputation in the eyes of the American and Canadian and British capitalists and financiers to whom we knew we would be going seeking assistance, seeking active participation in the development of Newfoundland and we felt it would sit very ill indeed upon us to go to them bearing a reputation, or facing a reputation that had gone before us of being a Government that did not value its word, that did not hesitate to break agreements, that was not prepared to live up to its part of any agreement into which it entered. So the decision was made, but at the same time we retained lawyers and got their views and we mullied it over and thought it over and discussed it and a year and a half ago or more when this Legislature was opened by His Honour the Lieutenant Governor in a speech from the Throne, that speech proclaimed the clear intimation that it was the Government's intention to bring in here legislation aimed at recovering for the people the people's lands that had been alienated. Here is the Bill now, we have given them a year and a half's notice, we think we have been fair to excess on the side of generosity, we feel that concessionaires owning public lands in Newfoundland have no grounds for complaint even if we were to come in and merely confiscate and still less have they grounds for complaint when, after a year and a half, which is fair warning, we bring in a Bill granting a further period of grace of another six months during which they can, if they will, erect the necessary saw mills. That is all they have to do, run up saw mills and get the men cutting saw logs and fulfill the terms of the agreements, some of them made half a century ago. With some of them we think we have been very fair, very fair and reasonable and I think that the people of Newfoundland will applaud this House for passing this Bill; I think that private capital on the mainland of this Continent and elsewhere will agree that we have been singularly most forebearing to allow so long to pass without reclaiming these public properties alienated so long and under conditions which the concessionaires have made no effort to carry out. I think if we accomplish this we will not hurt Newfoundland one iota by passing this legislation, and I hope to see it go through with complete unanimity. I move, Mr. Speaker, this Bill be read a second time.

Bill read a second time. To be referred to Committee of the Whole on tomorrow.

On motion the remaining orders of the day were deferred.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I move the House at its rising do adjourn until tomorrow at three of the clock.

HON. J. R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, His Honour the Lieutenant Governor will be in the House a few minutes from now. He is expected to arrive at 3:15 p.m. to give Royal Assent to the Supply Bill, and I think perhaps several other Bills as well. I think, Mr. Speaker, it might be just as well if we did not proceed with any business for the sake of the few minutes left before His Honour arrives.

His Honour the Lieutenant Governor arrived and assented to the following Bills:

An Act to Make Uniform the Law Respecting the Distribution of Estates of Intestates.

An Act Further to Amend the Old Age and Blind Persons Pension Act, 1949.

An Act Further to Amend the Exploits Valley (Closing Hours) Shop Act, 1938.

MR. SPEAKER: May it further please Your Honour, it is my agreeable duty to present to Your Honour on behalf of His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, a Bill for appropriation of supply for the support of the Public Services, and ask Your Honour's assent thereto.

HIS HONOUR THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR: In His Majesty's name I thank his loyal subjects, I accept their benevolence and assent to this Bill.

MR. SPEAKER: For the information of the Honourable House, the Honourable the Lieutenant Governor was pleased to give assent to certain Bills and to receive the appropriation Bill passed in this session.

Giving Notice of Motions and Questions

MR. CASHIN: There is a question there, Mr. Speaker, on the Order Paper, June 13th, addressed to the Premier, relating to the campaign "Buy Newfoundland Products."

MR. SMALLWOOD: I gave the reply yesterday that I am trying to get the answer as quickly as possible and as soon as I get it, I will hand it in.

MR. JOHN G. HIGGINS (Leader of the Opposition): There is a question Number 110.

HON. LESLIE R. CURTIS (Attorney General): I can answer that question, Mr. Speaker.

(1) This Bill was drafted by Mr. Claude Richardson of the law firm of MacMichael, Montgomery, etc., Montreal.

(2) Only law officers of the Crown were consulted.

(3) Mr. Claude Richardson was a member of the Firm engaged in connection with it.

(4) The firm was acting for all the parties.

(5) None that we know of.

(6) The Bill was drafted in Montreal, sent back here again and was revised here before printing.

(7) No lawyers represented the other parties that we are aware of.

Orders of the Day

Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means was deferred.

On motion, all items up to Number 8 were deferred.

Second reading of a Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation Limited."

MR. FOGWILL: Mr. Speaker, I view this Bill with mixed feelings. I did listen to the majority of those honourable members who had spoken to the Bill; I contacted all those who did speak, whom I heard expressing their opinion and viewpoint in respect to this legislation.

First, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say a word on the Preamble. The Preamble itself is something you will find perhaps as a preamble to any resolution concerning the public good or the setting up of an organization fraternal, co-operative or trade union. The preamble sets forth the reason why the organization, or whatever it may be, is formed, or the reason why it was proposed to do such things. Now, in this preamble, Mr. Speaker, the words in the preamble itself are very worthy; the objects set down in the preamble are good. Mostly the preamble concerns the development of the natural resources of Newfoundland and the improvement of standards of living of the people living in this country. Now, it is well known, I think, that it is the concern of this House as well as the concern of everyone that the improvement of the standards of living of our people and the development of our services in Newfoundland is something that all people should make some effort to attain. It is well known, Mr. Speaker, that in this year at least, the need for development is great, the need for a better standard of living is great. It is known to every member of this House, I believe, of the number of people who are seeking employment, many of them prepared to go away and leave their native shores and go to Greenland or Goose Bay, go to Labrador and to other places, leaving Newfoundland to go outside to seek a living for themselves because the where-with-all to earn a living has not been presented to them here in Newfoundland up to the present date. Now, Mr. Speaker, although the preamble of the Bill looks nice I am opposed to it. The Premier in his opening remarks when he made some explanation in respect to this Bill confined quite a lot of his remarks to the principle that those people concerned with the operation of this Crown Corporation, when it came into effect, particularly he made some remark about Harriman-Ripley and Wood Gundy. I do not know anything about these people only what I have heard about them. They are financiers, no doubt, of note, and have helped in a great way to promote and sell shares and bonds in many things and many development projects in the United States and in Canada, that is what I hear. However, Mr. Speaker, those people to me are just financiers and their interest in this Crown Corporation is only one of profit. These people will sell the shares and sell the bonds but they have no interest in the working people of this country, as it is laid down in the preamble. Corporations such as those, Harriman-Ripley and Wood Gundy and many of the big banks in Canada and the United States and financiers of that sort, they have neither a soul to be condemned nor a backside to be kicked, neither do they give a particular damn about the working people of this country.

The first page of the Bill, Sir, has set down a list of names of people, some Newfoundlanders, and one or two probably who take it upon themselves to call Newfoundland their native home. Mr. Lewin is a high official at the present time in one of the largest companies in the world. For myself, Sir, if I were entering in any business I would not go to the Government seeking any concessions whatsoever, if one of my competitors were a director of the company with whom I have to confer, Dr. Valdmanis, too, I understand, is a director. He should not be. Dr. Valdmanis is the director of Economic Development or the Director General, and he should stay outside this Corporation, should be the watch dog of the Government on what that Corporation is doing.

MR. SMALLWOOD: If the honourable member would allow me.

MR. FOGWILL: Mr. Speaker, this Bill we have here has no precedent in any House or I do not think it has any precedent in any Assembly of Newfoundland, though there may be precedent elsewhere, may be similar legislation laid down, in other countries, perhaps in England you may find somewhat similar legislation but the present Government over there is a socialist government and they are nationalizing the coal industry and the social government did also nationalize the railways and likewise, I believe, nationalized steel. They did that, I believe, one hundred percent so that in one sense there was similar legislation enacted elsewhere. What is the difference in this, what we have here in the House today, and the legislation laid down the nationalization of the industries, in England? The difference, Mr. Speaker, is only ten percent. That is what it means to me, ten percent between the difference in nationalization of our national resources of Newfoundland and what was done in England when they nationalized the railways and steel and coal industries.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Our natural resources have always been nationalized.

MR. FOGWILL: Now, Mr. Speaker, the honourable the Attorney General today said, I believe, that this was a simple Bill. Perhaps it is but it does not seem very simple to me. It may seem so to the honourable member for Fogo who, I believe, last evening threw out a challenge to the honourable member for Ferryland, and I think he did say that he did not need thirty days to study it, thirty hours was enough. I think he challenged the honourable member for Ferryland that he could explain to him every clause and section in the Bill, but I do not think he can do so.

MR. CASHIN: He must think the honourable member for Ferryland is simple too.

MR. FOGWILL: Probably the honourable the Attorney General might think so, but some of them who are not simple on the other side of this House do not understand this either, know what it is now or what it will mean in the future. Because, Mr. Speaker, it might mean a lot. Remember the socialized government of England has laid down a pattern of nationalization and the difference between that and what is laid down in this Bill is just ten percent. Ten more percent and we would have one hundred percent nationalization of our industries.

HON. C. H. BALLAM (Minister of Labour): You were not in the House when it was explained.

MR. FOGWILL: I read the paper. Now, this may be, and may not be, a simple Bill. The honourable the Premier explained this as being very simple too. Now, Mr. Speaker, I am not going to talk about that part of the Bill relating to Labrador. I do not know very much about it. I have seen it several times from a ship and that is all my knowledge of the Labrador. But that part of the Bill, Mr. Speaker, which relates to rights which are going to be given to this corporation in respect to mining rights embracing all that area from the eastern point of Fogo Island to a point, I think, in White Bay, taking in all the adjacent islands and in Green Bay and Notre Dame Bay comprising practically all the district of Fogo and all the district of Twillingate and all the district of Green Bay, I wonder what the people in Gander Bay will think when they see this Bill go through; what will they think when they find that for ten years after the enactment of this legislation they will not be allowed to share in any of the territory laid down in the Bill.

MR. SMALLWOOD: They will be.

MR. FOGWILL: I think the corporation alienates one thousand miles of coastline from at least somewhere in that vicinity of ten thousand voters and what are they going to think about legislation of this sort when they will be denied the right for ten years to leave their homes, villages and communities, leave their houses and go out in the country and do a little bit of exploring, will not be allowed to do that for ten years. That right is taken away from them for ten years and ten years in the life of any young man is quite a lot and I feel many people in the area of Notre Dame Bay will be concerned to know they will not be allowed to go out and explore because exclusive exploration rights are laid down here as the exclusive rights of this corporation. What is more, Mr. Speaker, for a period of ninety-nine years they will not be able to go out into the country at all, in the valleys or over the hills to look for sheep or cows or horses because if they do that they will have to keep their eyes only on the object they seek, their cattle, they dare not look at the ground for fear they might find a piece of mineral because the exclusive mineral rights are alienated from them for ninety-nine years. That is what it means; they dare not go out and pick up a piece of rock showing any trace of mineral. They have not the right, they have to forget it for all their lifetime, they have to forget that and the same thing applies on the South Coast for a distance of about one hundred miles extending from Hare's Ears Point to Terrenceville, all one side of Hermitage and all of Bay D'Espoir, all that territory and all the lands in behind it. The same thing applies to all those people down there and I do not think the people in Milltown and St. Alban's, Rencontre and English Harbour will be so delighted with this Bill as the Premier or the members on the other side of the House.

HON. E. S. SPENCER (Minister of Public Works): I would like to rise to a point of information.

MR. FOGWILL: If it is a point of order, I will yield.

MR. JANES: I think the question was to be a request for information bearing on the debate.

MR. FOGWILL: I have the floor.

MR. JANES: The honourable member, I think, does not wish to yield.

MR. FOGWILL: No, I am not going to yield. I find too often when yielding the floor to someone on the other side of this House that too much time is taken; in fact, sometimes it goes into a speech and I am not going to have that. All of those people living in those areas concerned, Mr. Speaker, will not be allowed to explore in the territory concerned for a period of ten years and the mineral and mining rights in the area concerned will be alienated from them for a period of ninety-nine years as laid down in this Bill. They will be denied the right to go in there to look for minerals of any kind. Mr. Speaker, is there is any necessity for a Bill of this sort or of encouragement to people of the outside who we were told were going to come in with millions of dollars, when certain things took place? The money was supposed to come in here from the Mainland to develop Newfoundland. Up to the present time not a cent, not a sou came in; nothing. So what was the Government to do? Set up a Crown Corporation and put in nine hundred thousand dollars in it and with the advantage of having Harriman-Ripley and Wood Gundy associated with them with one hundred thousand dollars, they together hoped that this will be the bait to bring in some new money. It may and it may not encourage or entice people to come in here with money. I, myself, very much doubt it. I hope they will, but I very much doubt whether any people will come in here with money. If any corporation, Mr. Speaker, came to this House with any sound proposition and some assurance that they were prepared to put in twenty or thirty million in development of our natural resources, the Government of Newfoundland would probably agree to guarantee a percentage of their bonds, but under the sections laid down in this Bill I don't think that anyone will come. Under this Bill, Mr. Speaker, the rights of this House are being lost because in many clauses under the bill it is the Lieutenant Governor in Council who will make the decisions and not the House. The Government has the right to guarantee bonds up to ten million dollars. That is wrong. Before the Government guarantees any money up to ten million dollars they should come to this House and have it passed before the guarantee is made.

There is one other point I wish to make, Sir. The Government of Newfoundland is empowered, if and whenever authorized to do so by the Lieutenant Governor in Council at any time and from time to time to make or grant to or vest in the Corporation any other concessions and rights of any kind or nature. Now to me, Mr. Speaker, that principle is altogether wrong. It is also laid down in the Bill that there are certain concessions and if this Bill goes through, the corporation will have these concessions, but other concessions of any other nature comprising any other territory of Newfoundland should not be given to this Corporation on the word of the Lieutenant Governor in Council but they should come back into this House before any other concessions are made.

I wish to say I am opposed to this Bill and I don't think it will do the country any good.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Speaker, I am not in favour of this Bill because information given us is too generalized, too vague, and it is impossible to judge what it comprehends in this Act.

We know nothing about the principle of the Bill, in other words, the organization being set up under the Bill. What the Prime Minister told us is notable not for what it said but for what it did not say. The Bill has been explained, the deal has been outlined but the question is: what is all this about? What is the company which is to be the custodian of the public money? We are supposed to have all information at our disposal when public money is expended. We know nothing of the policy of this Bill, the policy reiterated by this Bill. All the House knows is that the Corporation is going to be formed with a small capital, in comparison to its vast assets; the Government will hold ten percent of the stakes. Vast timber areas, minerals and extensive water powers are vested in this new corporation. What about it? What will the corporation do? We judge that there may be subsidiary companies formed to which this corporation will transfer all or some of the assets. Well, what after that? What business will they carry on through subsidiary companies and how is the money to be raised in order that their plans may be carried on? When the corporation is formed and valuable assets are transferred to this corporation, what about it? It is not much of a problem forming a company, not much trouble transferring property to a corporation, individual or firm, but when this is done what is the corporation expected to do with this power—who is to make money with this power? Is there a good prospect of making money and how much money? Would the possible amount to be obtained be sufficient to warrant carrying on this work, what seems to me to be speculative work? But the main question to be asked by anyone interested in this Bill is what work will it do? What work is comprehended?

We know nothing of this corporation. To say it is formed to develop this country is not very enlightening and I may add for the information of this House it is a precedent for a government to give away valuable assets without informing the House of all aspects and angles of the case and in the days of long ago would have brought a formal protest from the Opposition and the press and I say now it is time the press assert its rights and privileges. The other day a reporter was attacked, I saw no account in the paper, and the Daily News was threatened. It is the duty of the press to protect the voice of public opinion and it is time to assert its rights. The press is dead and I am afraid public opinion is dead and I can't see the press come out as it did in the past and take an independent stand particularly when its own rights are infringed. I may say here that as far as the press is concerned there is no such thing as an anonymous letter.

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable member is not speaking to the Bill now.

MR. HIGGINS: Now the IBEC Report, which we on this side have asked for, has not been made public. We have received little information of the cement plant. The Premier promised the member for Harbour Main-Bell Island District he would table information concerning the cement factory in eight weeks. We have not got it. Have we erected an iron curtain? We are told the financiers have never seen the IBEC report. They must have heard of it, no doubt, and we must accept the Premier's statement, but I say those financiers must be very indifferent and half-hearted in this connection if they don't want to find out everything possible about the national assets of this country. When we ask who will gain, we are told Newfoundland, and who will lose, the speculators. In the words of the honourable member for Fogo, that is nonsense, nonsense.

Now there are certain matters to be discussed at the outset, viz., One: This Bill when it deals with the assets vested in the corporation formed by this Bill. The future of Newfoundland is at stake. That is a very serious matter, a national one, and ought to be very carefully considered. Two: The Newfoundland Government takes ninety percent interest in the Corporation. The company has as directors financiers very well versed and experienced in the business of financial deals in many countries and with many governments with bigger incomes and revenue than ours. Now, can the Government in any respect be called financiers? They have very little knowledge of this kind that the corporation being formed calls for. They are babes in the woods in comparison.

Now we were told some time ago there is a prospect of building another pulp wood mill in Newfoundland and I presume this new corporation will deal with the matter of having this mill erected. Now, of all those Newfoundlanders on the Board of Directors, which one would be interested in erecting a mill? Mr. Lewin is the Managing Director of the biggest pulp and paper mill in the world and has little time to attend to this, and moreover he is a competitor.

What are the profits to be made? Is it worth our while to take a chance on an outside company to take over and expand their own capital? Much better if there was a failure this company would not lose at all. But it could be said on the other side, why should we not think they would make a profit. That is true but profits will be small if any compared to the losses if those fail. Suppose the paper mill, they have a paper mill in view, fails, we have as an example—Newfoundland Power and Paper which failed and brought down the big financial people of this country—the Reids who were ruined by it. We have the example of the other mill in Grand Falls in the slump of the 30's; there may be another. It is speculative, and profits can only be made by very astute men taking an interest and spending all their time at it.

Now the Premier has said we gave away vast lands. Now I don't intend to discuss that again. It was discussed yesterday. But I know this, if the Government in 1921-22 had taken sufficient interest in the Humber Deal, put money into it to promote it in the same way as this corporation is promoted, it probably would have been a terrific venture for Newfoundland and the company would have lost a fortune. Now the Premier mentioned once or twice in the past that one government advanced ten million dollars to Bowaters, and the honourable member for Bonavista South has told us it is a different matter as a Province and as a Dominion to advance money when we had the excise and customs duties. There is one thing I am sure of: there is more money going out of the country to the Federal authorities than is coming back today.

Now another thing; it has been said that this is a Crown Corporation and there would be no Federal taxation. Now, apart from the fact that Newfoundland is investing a lot of money to provide employment we must remember that we have received no guarantee from the Federal Government that this form of Crown Corporation would be allowed to stand. Crown Corporations have existed in the past, but if Alberta were to start all oil companies in Crown Corporations do you mean to say the Federal authorities would not make them pay income and corporation taxation? We are at the mercy of the Federal authorities,

Now how much money is to be spent on this venture? The Premier said when talking about the programme of economic surveys that last year a half a million was spent by the Government and they expected this year it would be a quarter of a million. Now that is not a small amount of money for this country. The Government will buy shares in the Corporation and if three million dollars worth are taken up at not less than $1.00 a share and the Government takes ninety percent of this, in the long run, the Government possesses 2,700,000 shares and under the terms of the Bill; under certain conditions, the capital may be increased and the Government must take ninety percent more of that. Now there is also a ten million dollar guarantee. Suppose it goes ahead full speed for a time and then fails, we lose a million on surveys, lose our capital, the $2,700,000 and our $10,000,000 of guaranteed bonds. What is going to happen to the country then? We will have to go out and try to raise a new national loan and I am afraid after that failure it would be very difficult to find any financier to underwrite such a loan.

Now we don't know, and it is a terrible thing in a so-called free country, to say; that we don't know what the Bill comprehends. The Opposition does not know. We see in the Bill a certain amount of machinery but we don't know what it is to do or how it is to work and I must be forgiven for thinking it is meaningless.

Now let us examine the Bill in order to realize the contents. What do we learn? The authorized capital is $3,000,000. The office is in St. John's. The object is to carry on the business which in the opinion of the directors should be operated to promote the industries and development of our natural resources and thereby improve the standards of living of the people. They have the power to sell or otherwise deal in any or all of the property rights which it shall at any time and in any way and manner acquire, whether by way of grant from the Government of Newfoundland or otherwise: To purchase or in any way or manner otherwise acquire any property, real or personal and any rights of any kind or nature; lend or advance money to any person, firm or corporation: To invest and deal with any monies of the Corporation: To promote any company or companies: To mortgage all or any part of the property and rights of the Corporation to secure and fulfill any obligation of the Corporation: To draw, make, accept, endorse, discount, execute and issue promissory notes: To carry on any such other trade or business and to do and perform any and all such other acts and things as are calculated, directly or indirectly, to enhance the value or render profitable any of the property.

Now, these are the objects of the Corporation. The Corporation need not start work until one million dollars of shares have been taken up and the Government of Newfoundland have nine hundred thousand shares and outsiders one hundred thousand and from time to time shares may be issued up to three million dollars.

Now, the Company obtains certain concessions: Timber concessions for 99 years in Lake Melville and adjoining areas. They must in the first five years cut one hundred million feet of timber and manufacture it into lumber or pulp and pay a royalty of 50c. per cord. The Corporation has the right, up to December 31, 1955, to cut not more than 1,000,000 cords of pulpwood on said concession and to sell it, but not more than 50,000 cords of such pulpwood shall, except with the approval of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, be exported from the Province of Newfoundland in any one calendar year. For ten years they obtain the exclusive exploratory rights of two thousand square miles and for 99 years for all minerals not previously alienated by the Governments of Newfoundland and for a term of 99 years all hydro-electric and hydraulic power rights and rights to assign or lease all this property acquired. There is nothing more. That is all mentioned in this Act but there is one thing more, the Government guarantees bonds up to ten million dollars. That is all the information placed before the House and we are asked to pass on the principle of this Bill.

Now let us contemplate some of the sections: Section 6 (a): The power for operation of the Corporation seems to be unlimited and it would enable the Corporation to compete with private enterprise in any activity, exempt from any taxation whatsoever, and private enterprise will be at a disadvantage and could not hope to survive, apart altogether from the taxation standpoint, a state-owned corporation could afford to subjugate private business and create monopolies, and private endeavour and enterprise would be lowered rather than improved.

Section 6 (b) (ii): "Power to purchase or in any way or manner or otherwise acquire any property, real or personal, and any rights of any kind or nature;" Now what does that mean? Does it not appear to give the corporation powers of expropriation denied private enterprise?

Clause 9: "The Government of Newfoundland is empowered, if and whenever authorized so to do by the Lieutenant Governor in Council, at any time and from time to time to make or grant to or vest in the corporation any other concessions and rights of any kind or nature."

Now this clause gives the Government power to give the corporation any other concession or rights of any kind or nature whatsoever. This is a very far reaching and dangerous process. Nationalization, maybe? If that is not the intention why want to proceed beyond the experimental or development stage in any project, and when it reaches that stage, to be disposed of outside bidders.

In relation to Clause 12: Now this intent should be made mandatory in the Act.

Clause 17 (1): "The Corporation may from time to time, with the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, under authority of a resolution of the Directors:

(a) borrow money upon the credit of the Corporation;

(b) limit or increase the amount to be borrowed;

(c) issue bonds, debentures or other obligations of the Corporation;

(d) pledge or sell such bonds, debentures or other obligations for such sums and at such prices as may be deemed expedient;

(e) mortgage, charge or pledge all or any of the real and personal property, present and future, and rights of the Corporation to secure any such bonds, debentures or other obligations or the fulfilment or discharge of any other obligation or liability of the Corporation.

(2) Such powers of the Corporation may be delegated to such officers or directors of the Corporation to such extent and in such manner as shall be set out in a resolution of the directors."

Now, this apparently does not place any restrictions whatsoever upon the actions of the directors who may borrow money subject to the decision of the Cabinet up to ten million dollars under Government guarantee.

Now, by-laws may be enacted by the majority of the directors and may not be made public and are not passed on by the House, but passed on and confirmed by the Cabinet. Directors may pass by-laws to regulate the remuneration of the directors. Such should I think obtain the approval of Parliament but they need only obtain the approval of the Cabinet.

Clause 37 enables or empowers the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council to guarantee unconditionally the payment of the principal and interest and premium, if any, of and on any bonds, debentures or other obligations of either the Corporation or its subsidiaries to the amount of ten million dollars. That is a very onerous burden for Newfoundland to take on. Now, it is noticed in this Corporation Act that the whole business is run by the Cabinet, a minority of the House. It is not the House that passes on it or says what business or how much money is to be spent. It is done by the Cabinet itself.

There are a lot of other sections which are important and serious to which attention might be drawn. Section 10: "In the event of the Corporation's deciding at any time to proceed with the acquisition, development or carrying out of any project, other than one relating exclusively and pertaining directly to timber or mining." It may be water-power or buying up a cement mill or something like that.

"10 (a): the Government of Newfoundland shall at the time own more than ninety-five per centum (95%) in number of the then outstanding Common Shares of the Corporation, or (b): that Director of the Corporation who has been elected, as provided in sub-section (2) of Section 31, exclusively by the votes of the holders of a majority of those Common Shares of the Corporation which are not owned by said Government shall have consented thereto by instrument in writing signed by him and delivered to the Corporation." One Director can stop that work.

Now according to Clause 12: If anybody wants to sell the shares, the Government has the first offer and if the Government does not want them, somebody else may buy them, and if there is an increase in the capital of the company the Government has a right to take their share but if the Government happens to be hard up they lose their 90% of the stock.

Attention should also be drawn to Clause 14: "In the event that at any time prior to December 31, 1955, the Government must purchase bonds at either par value or enhanced value." In other words, if the Company increases in value the Government loses out and if it decreases the Government loses, so in any case it loses.

Section (2) of Clause 17: Such powers of the Corporation may be delegated to such officers or Directors of the Corporation to such extent and in such manner as shall be set out in a resolution of the Directors. So that a resolution of Directors can appoint any director or directors, to carry out full responsibility.

Now, the Directors of the Corporation administer affairs, Section 22. ". . . in all things and may make or cause to be made for the Corporation and description of contract which the Corporation may by law enter into and from time to time may, subject to the provisions of this Act pass by-laws to regulate." In other words the directors can make any contract and conditions under this Act and not even the Cabinet is involved here apparently.

Now if this Act is not satisfactory to the financiers you know well the Government are going to change it and in the interval come to the court to confirm the right. Now the financiers here are not going to let them go, they are going to hold them, and remember the Act may be changed in favour of the financiers to give them a chance to run the company. It is quite easy to change an Act. You know one was changed in the present session. I can't name the Act.

Now with reference to Clause No. 8: I was not going to mention that; that was adequately taken care of by the honourable member for Bonavista South. About the one hundred million feet of lumber and about the fifty thousand cords of pulpwood.

Now, the Premier questioned Mr. Russell's statement about the clause concerning this. If they are not going to make the timber into pulp wood or pulp what do you expect the Company to do, and the Act says either one or the other. Mr. Russell—

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable member for Bonavista South.

MR. HIGGINS: I am always wrong in that. I was always poor in Geography though very good in History. I can tell you the names of all the Speakers up there: Garland, Carson, Shea, Carter, Whiteway, Bennett, Emerson, Winter and so on. I think if we had the photographs of present members with their designations it would be a very good thing.

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable member is not on the debate.

MR. HIGGINS: Now this Company, what about it, what would you expect it to do, export it and make money, a hundred million feet of lumber which is put in the Aot? It is nonsensical. The Premier told the honourable and gallant member for Ferryland there is no remuneration paid. I don't care what the honourable Premier said, it is all nonsense to me; there is provision in the Act for remuneration to be paid to directors and whether the Premier says it is or not, I say it can be and if there is no intention to pay directors it should not be put in the Act.

Now, Mr. Courage did not have any trouble in understanding the Bill. The honourable member for Hermitage and Fortune Bay says he did not have much trouble in understanding the Bill and that 60% of it was taken up with the usual stuff. I say probably 70%; that is not the difficulty. We are told of the formation of companies, anybody can follow that. But is there any intimation as to how it should be run or the subsidiaries? Can you tell me what subsidiaries and companies are to do? So there is no necessity of a mandate from the people. Certainly not to put in all these assets. It is very easy, it has been said to wind them up.

Now, I am going to tell you gentlemen the Attorney General or I would not know how to wind up this Corporation because it is formed by an Act of Parliament. This is a charter, and how to wind up a charter I do not know, and would not be surprised if insolvent it would go under the bankruptcy law of Canada. That is the sixty-four dollar question I would like to ask the Attorney General. We are not used to Crown Corporations or bankruptcy laws. I do not think it would come under the Companies Act of Newfoundland. I don't think it would be wound up in Newfoundland.

If people know the Government here could easily wind up this Corporation then they would hardly put any money in it. It is hardly likely; and another thing, should subsidiaries be formed, who is going to wind up the subsidiaries? In connection with subsidiaries, there is no doubt subsidiaries could be solvent and the holding company insolvent, but the holding company would have a lot of shares in the subsidiary and would have the right to take and sell. What is going to happen to Newfoundland as a Crown Corporation then? It certainly cannot be denied that shareholders, if it were spread abroad that directors could not deal with any shares of subsidiaries the Newfoundland Government own would be greatly dissatisfied and people would not deal with the Corporation. It must be treated like any other corporation in order to have money invested.

Now, I cannot guess what is going to happen to this Corporation or what it is going to do. I do not know and do not want to venture an opinion. If the Premier denies what I am going to say he should tell what he has up his sleeve. We should know when debating this Bill and before we vote on this Bill. Now, the Premier told us a five hundred ton mill would cost fifty million dollars, therefore, I presume it is the five hundred ton mill which has been contemplated for some time to be erected on the South West Coast of Newfoundland and which is supposed to use wood from the Labrador. Now, this Corporation has a lot of timber and minerals and water-power and this Corporation could sell these to a subsidiary for sixty million dollars, raise twenty million in bonds then the last ten million could be guaranteed by the Newfoundland Government. They may sell at least six million dollars in shares, but if that happened then it would not be a Crown Corporation so it may be that the shares would be smaller but the bonds would be heavier. The shares may be two millions and the Government would take all or ninety percent and the bonds would be high, maybe six or eight million in order to bring it up to eight millions. I don't know but that is the only thing I can imagine.

Now, I can visualize these financiers who are designated in the Bill hoping to get. I presume, a good percentage for underwriting, and will tell about the wonderful land in Newfoundland; timber, wonderful water-power rights, great mineral rights, enough timber to keep a five hundred ton mill in operation for a life-time. Then the water-power would not alone supply a mill with power but carry on a saw mill too if necessary.

Now moreover, it is quite possible that the cement mill might be sold too, there might be a subsidiary to take over the cement mill. The Premier mentioned one time to the House it cost about six million dollars to erect and they will sell this to a subsidiary through the Corporation or the Government will transfer it to the Corporation and the Corporation will sell it to a subsidiary. But will it be sold for six million dollars, one million in shares and five million bonds to the Newfoundland Government, is that the idea? I don't know. Will the other Government Companies, the hardwood company and the gypsum mill, be done the same with? Is that the prospect? I don't know. I can't tell. We are not told.

Now, we have knowledge of certain business firms coming here and one we are told is ready to cut enormous amounts of timber in Labrador and pay $5 royalty. A Corporation so big it is ready to build towns and schools and I suppose put up a nursery for wood and something else, I forget what now, and endow a chair at the Memorial College for the length of time the Act is in force and is ready to pay $5 a cord royalty. That is a big proposition. There is another big mining company, Falconbridge Nickel Mines, Limited, an honourable name, who are ready to develop and spend money. These companies are ready to spend a lot of money in order to find out if there is any ore there and if they find there is not it just won't work out. One company after spending nine million found nothing and walked out. But these companies are here and would like to explore and have the right to move around, but they are now going to be stifled, they cannot go around, they can do it with the consent of the Corporation but that is a competitive company and they should be dealing with the Government. Falconbridge is willing to come here and is willing to spend a lot of money in this country and has done so already. What about Buchans, it was formed first with one belt of ore and then found more and more, they are exploring all the time to find the ore, then they develop or hold it until the other is gone—will they be stifled too? Does all this put a clamp on private enterprise? These are things of very great importance. There are men ready to come in and spend their own money on exploratory work and don't ask the Government to put any money up and if they fail this Government, this country, does not lose and is no worse off than before they started. What is more, these exploratory companies are supposed to hand in all surveys to the Government, give copies to the Government and if another party wants to come in the Government can show these surveys to them.

Now, like other members here, I am not in agreement with this preamble. Any Bill of any importance which gives puny words of praise and adulation of the good of the people and so on—I was a bit nauseated here last year when the honourable Minister brought in a Bill relating to the fishery; saying "if ever a Bill had a conscience this was one." I thought it meant life insurance of a billion dollars and looked at the cover and found an accident policy of about forty thousand dollars not a billion. It was their own earnings, part of the fishermen's own money and they were now asking how to spend it. What happened to the Bill, it was dropped; never heard of it lately. I know what happened to the conscience.

Now, the Premier is always optimistic about projects and makes wonderful prophesies. He has great silviculturists coming from Europe and the people are going to learn about horticulture. The United States is one of the great leaders in the field of forestry and there is no doubt of their great knowledge. Now they are coming to teach Newfoundlanders what to do. I hope they will not be like the Icelandic people who came to teach us about the herring. I hope they do it. They were going to teach us where to get the herring.

MR. SMALLWOOD: They could not get herring when they were not there.

MR. HIGGINS: Other people can have an opinion. We must be humble, be humble in the eyes of God that he might exalt us in the time of visitation.

There is a lot of talk about condemnation of foreigners but that is up to the people. We have the history of the last war when Norway was overrun. It is not because Ottawa passed them, it is all right, they thought other people were perfect and they stole the atomic secrets. You can't blame people for this, many people are entitled to their opinions in this country.

Now, this Corporation is authorized by the Cabinet and bodies commissioned by it, to delegate rights to smaller bodies and the Cabinet is spending money either through itself or this Corporation, and the Cabinet instead of the House is acting and its powers are delegated without restraint.

At the present day the House has no control over them, by Act of Parliament it is passing control to the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council. This is enormously contentious legislation whereby the Cabinet may act without application to the House and an enormous amount of money may be spent by the Government and all they have to do in the interval between sessions of the House is to have the Lieutenant Governor issue a warrant. Actually the Government has finally to get confirmation or have the majority of the House confirm it. Often the money is advanced which has nothing to do with the welfare of the country, not being used for developing the natural resources of the country; I said before, the printing press has nothing to do with natural resources of the country. Now in this Bill the House is asked to delegate to the Cabinet or the Corporation, of which the Cabinet forms a part, certain rights, giving these parties absolute power of various natural resources. The House is asked to vote away what it is supposed to look after, preserve and save from harm, public rights and national assets. The welfare of Newfoundland, the future welfare of Newfoundland is wrapped up in this and it is time the public understood the whole matter.

Now, the Premier said he got no independent financial advice. That is a very strange confession. Surely, the Premier dealing with the assets of a small country should have someone to advise him on matters of such vital importance and particularly when such astute financiers are on the other side, and he now asks the House to delegate to him and the Corporation various powers affecting the welfare of this country when they have had no independent expert advice on the financial side of it.

It has been said in this House that this is the greatest party ever came into this House and the persons who said that did not blush when looking at the great men on the wall above who bore the heat and burden of the day with little money on hand, no forty millions in the surplus. They bore the burden and balanced the budget by careful work, but any party should have sense enough to know their business ability is small, when dealing with financiers such as we have in this Corporation, their ability is small. Fortunately the legal part is looked after. The Justice Department has had good advisors, expert in the matter, and professional men, and we should have had real professional men on this matter. Those on the other side can't be called experts, they don't know anything about it any more than I. I might know the legal angle, but bonds and budgets, frankly, I don't know; we are all amateurs and should have professional advice in the matter of finances.

The Premier drew attention to the rottenness of the days of Responsible Government, of land gifts to claim-jumpers, people who were friends of the Government. Now, I would like to say that a lot of people of those days were better men than he. Look at the pictures up there; men like Bond. There are no men like him today. These men were good, decent, honourable men, he-men, none of them were grafters. We are only amateur gentlemen on the broad highway of Government. There was more graft in one year in one city on the mainland or in the United States than happened in the life-time of politicians in this country. We had a very small public fund very well protected and considering the small amount of money at the disposal of the statesmen of those days, we have a wonderful lot of national assets built up. How they did it, I don't know. It required competent, capable, honest and conscientious men to build up out of a small revenue hundreds of millions of dollars worth of assets.

Now, the Premier said that even if the devil came he would be welcome if he brought employment. He would welcome anybody who would bring employment, I presume he means less than the devil. However I am told the devil is out looking for souls that may be bought for a price, ever on the watch; the Scripture tells us that. Sure let us sell our souls if we want to, but don't let us sell our country to the devil; let us crucify ourselves but not our country and don't let us sell our country for the sake of temporary labour, for then we become hewers of wood and drawers of water and soon there will be no water and no timber, and don't laugh when I say no water, because if you cut away the timber there will be no water left and that is no paradox.

The Premier also told us this Bill is not State Socialism. It is not, it is saved by ten percent and that is a narrow escape. Now, I must add that in that case it is a corporation state, by 90% it is. Like Fascist Italy; did not take over but it ran everything in Italy, managed the hours of labour, the prices, the number of people to work. The nation and everything in it was made the slave of business though entirely run by private business people. Do away with private enterprise and stifle it by such a corporation. I state it is able to do that because it is in competition with private enterprise.

Now under Section 14, if the other ten percent comes in and says to the Government, "Now, take our ten percent and have one hundred percent." Then it is socialism, why not go out and call them that and change the name of the party.

MR. SMALLWOOD: You would like us to do that.

MR. HIGGINS: Yes, we are sure to beat you then.

Yesterday you told us you glory in the word Tory. The Tories are Progressive Conservative, decent, honest men and we follow in that direction. We know that these people uphold the practice of our fathers, follow the old customs.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is a pity they did not vote.

MR. HIGGINS: You know the good man falls seven times a day and there is always room for the repentant sinner. Quite a number fell away, but they will come back and will be in the army of the Lord again.

Now, I am against this Bill because there is altogether too little information given to us and what is at stake is too heavy and I say the House should refuse to accept it until all the cards are put on the table. Now, it is foolish to say it is easy to understand, easy to follow. The wording is easy to understand. If I were to say I am going to build a cement factory, if I am going to erect it I am going to carry on a business, and I may enlarge that and I am going to do other things also, have subsidiary companies. We understand all this but it does not make us any more enlightened about the mill, the cement factory and other projects.

I would like to have the following questions answered:

- (1) When will the mill be built?
- (2) Where?
- (3) How big will the mill be?
- (4) When will it be finished?
- (5) How much will it cost?
- (6) How will you put up the money?
- (7) What is the likelihood of profit?
- (8) What other projects, what likelihood of other projects?
- (9) How are they to be formed and for what reason?
- (10) How is the money to be obtained?

We need to know the practical outcome of the association, we know nothing without that. If you were to ask a man information about the mill, would you ask those questions of the owner of the mill? They are far more important than the appointment of directors or the rotation of directors, remuneration or the reserve fund or transfer of shares and all other items which are in every organization or company. These are minor things, let the lawyers fix them up, but let the policy about running be done by business men.

Now secondly, I say it is taking from the House all its rights to dictate the future policy of this and place it in the corporation created by this Bill, place it in the hands of the Cabinet, a small body in the House, the right to decisions which should be left to the House itself. It gives the Cabinet the right of spending money not voted by the House. It gives the Cabinet absolute power over assets of the country, the by-laws, the corporation may make by-laws if it wishes with consent of the Cabinet, which may not be published and confirmed only by the Cabinet and not by the House. It thoroughly does away with entirely the House of Assembly, taking away the right to direct the work of the corporation, deprives the House of its rights of dealing with the assets of the country, all except those alienated heretofore.

Thirdly: All mineral and water-power and mineral and timber and all other assets which the Cabinet desire to put in with the Corporation, and fourthly because it jeopardizes the future of Newfoundland, its solvency, its honest business as a result obtained by private capital to develop without putting the finances of the country in jeopardy. We have other companies willing to come in and do what the Corporation proposes to do.

Fifthly: The profit is small in comparison with the possible losses. It is a speculative business, the profit is small but if there is a failure of the Corporation then we will see how much the country suffers. If these projects fail it will involve in ruin, the solvency and security of Newfoundland and for that reason we dare not and we cannot vote for it. We have no information and on the information we have we should not vote for it, giving the Cabinet all and absolute power over vast sections of this country. Therefore, I do not support the second reading of this Bill.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, may I point out that it is the honourable member introducing the Bill who closes the debate. I have no indication any other honourable gentleman wishes to speak, and it was for that reason only I rose.

If I were to attempt to answer all the points made, good, bad and in-different points or relevant points and points less relevant made in this debate, I fear it would keep us here too long to be comfortable. But there are one or two points that call very definitely for some reply. For example, my honourable and gallant friend the member for Ferryland favoured us in his speech with his opinion of Harriman-Ripley and Company and Wood Gundy Company, but more particularly Wood Gundy and Company. He told us that Company had ruined or almost ruined some reputable companies in Canada; paper mill companies, and we would be justified, I think, in inferring from his remarks that the name of Wood Gundy today stinks in the nostrils of the paper mill trade and industry of Canada. I think that would be a fair inference from his remarks.

MR. CASHIN: That is so.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is a fair enough inference, that their name stinks or that he thinks that it is so.

MR. CASHIN: Both.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is a fair inference that their name must stink in the nostrils of the paper industry of Canada and also a fact that their name stinks. Now, if that is so why is it a fact known only to my honourable and gallant friend? How has that fact been kept secret, the alleged fact that the name Wood Gundy and Company stinks in the nostrils of the paper manufacturers of Canada? How has it been kept such a dark secret from all but the honourable and gallant member for Ferryland who is aware of it? Because I think I can convince my honourable and gallant friend that he is entirely wrong and not for the first time in my life will I have convinced him he is wrong and not for the first time in his life will he have been wrong, just like all of us. And I hope my honourable and gallant friend will be like me, when I am shown to be wrong I admit it, and I hope he will do likewise when I proceed now without further delay to show him he is entirely wrong, just as wrong as he ever was in his life before.

First of all let me say that the Government of Canada repeatedly has availed itself of the services of this firm of Wood Gundy; repeatedly I say; not once in the past quarter of a century has the Government of Canada required loans or sold bonds without availing itself of the far-flung services of Wood Gundy and Company. That is rather significant that the Government of Canada in so serious a business as borrowing money, selling its bonds, etc., should deal with a firm whose reputation is so bad. Another very serious fact is that with two exceptions only all of the Provinces of Canada have dealt and deal with Wood Gundy and Company in their public finances. The two exceptions are Newfoundland who has been a province for only two years, and as a Province of Canada Newfoundland has never dealt with Wood Gundy and Company. The other exception is the Province of Prince Edward Island. But the Provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia have all availed themselves of the services which the great financial house of Wood Gundy and Company have been and are able to render. Now that is a striking fact that all the Governments of Canada, Federal and Provincial, with two exceptions, have gladly dealt with this disreputable, and/or discredited financial house of Wood Gundy and Company.

MR. CASHIN: Canada also deals with a bunch of bootleggers.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Now that is not the only evidence of course. We find that some of the great firms of Canada, and there are great firms in Canada, that will not be denied, also are glad to avail themselves of the services of this same financial house. Just listen to some of the names of the companies in industry and commerce and finance: Anaconda Steel Corporation; Aluminum Steel Corporation of Canada; Bell Telephone Company of Canada; Diesel Contractors, one of the greatest companies of the world; British American Oil; British Coal and Electric Company; British Coal Packers Limited; British Columbia Packers, probably the largest fishing firm on the whole Pacific Coast; Canada Cement; Canadian Foundries; Canadian Steamships Limited; Canadian Bridges Company; Canadian Car and Foundries; Canadian Pacific Railways; Columbia Celanese, that is the Canadian subsidiary of the Great Celanese Company of America; Dominion Coal; Dominion Factories; Dominion Tar and Chemicals; Imperial Oil; these innocents abroad; Imperial Oil, they are suckers not knowing the disreputable characters of the name of Wood Gundy who rush in where angels fear to tread, and get this disreputable company to do their financing for them; Inter-Provincial Pipe Line, of the Mac-Millan outfit; National Drugs and Chemicals; Ogilvies Flour Mills, more softies; Steel Company of Canada; George Weston Limited, who are no softies, innocents or ignoramuses.

MR. CASHIN: You omitted one, The Canadian Power and Paper Company.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I was leaving it to the last hoping my honourable friend would work in on that one. If he had listened carefully as I read he would have noticed I did not read the names of paper companies. Now I will read them. I waited for that one. The paper companies of Canada who shudder at merely hearing the name of Wood Gundy, knowing them as well as my honourable and gallant friend so well knows them to be, a disreputable crowd of wreckers, out wrecking paper companies, but not the A.N.D. because they were fortunate enough to get out, got out in the nick of time and never again in the world looked at Wood Gundy Company, obviously, after such a scalding as they got. How about the fact that only last year they went to Wood Gundy and got them to do their financing. A short memory perhaps, probably they had forgotten the scalding they got from them. Take up the Financial Times today and all the financial papers and you will see that a new issue of ten million dollars for a great power and paper company and you will find the firm of Wood Gundy are floating that; British Columbia Cellulose, which is attracting a great deal of attention recently; and Canada Pulp and Paper; the Consolidated Paper Corporation, one of the big ones; Elk Falls Company; Great Lakes Paper Company; Howard Smith Paper Mill. Is my honourable and gallant friend beginning feel a little shaky now? I will go on: The Powell River Company; Provincial Paper. Now look at the dates: Consolidated Paper 1947 the last issue made, handled by Wood Gundy British Columbia Cellulose 1948, last issue.

MR. CASHIN: How many more companies are associated with Wood Gundy?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Ten or fifteen.

MR. CASHIN: It takes the other ten or fifteen to watch them.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The practice is, as my honourable friend must know, when large amounts of money are borrowed the lending of it is handed to one firm as principal and that firm associates itself with a group. Even the great Harriman-Ripley who issued fifty million dollars the other day for the Province of Ontario is associated in the United States with several other bond houses, and in Canada, Wood Gundy associated themselves with several other bond houses. Take up any bond issue in any financial paper and always on top there is one name, the name of the principal, the people who organize the financing, and nearly always, not always but very frequently, the name on the top in Canada is Wood Gundy, the greatest financial house in Canada. I think that is enough said, at least it ought to be enough to show even my honourable and gallant friend, notwithstanding his interesting remarks here the other day, this firm Wood Gundy is a highly reputable financial house in Canada trusted by the Government of Canada and the Governments of the Provinces and the great industries and companies of Canada and the paper manufacturing trade. This Government feels quite safe in dealing with Wood Gundy, feels absolutely safe dealing with them and don't think we are dealing with gangsters, don't think we are dealing with fly-by-nights or people of no consequence. We know we are dealing in Wood Gundy with the greatest financial house of Canada.

Now as for Harriman-Ripley we cannot say in dealing with them we are dealing with the greatest financial house in the United States but we can say it is with one of the three or four greatest out of hundreds of financial houses in that great nation.

MR. CASHIN: They have committed themselves to nothing in that Act.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We will come to that, whether they have committed themselves or whether we have given everything away, they are going to clean up, they will get all and we will get nothing, that point I will deal with. At the moment we are talking of the fact that the Government of Newfoundland accomplished the remarkable feat of having two of the greatest financial houses of the world become willing openly to associate themselves as partners with this Government. Now that is a remarkable fact, that is a remarkable achievement for this Government. No previous Government in Newfoundland could have been capable of achieving that; no Government unless it would have been the Commission of Government, they might indeed have been able, but no other government in Newfoundland was strong enough or reputable enough or wealthy enough to be able to get two of the greatest financial houses in the world not only to associate themselves with the Government and to do it publicly but to become partners with the Government in some enterprises and that is what this Government has accomplished.

Now, the next point I want to deal with is this: The honourable member for Harbour Main-Bell Island, I have forgotten whether he is the junior or senior member for Harbour Main-Bell Island but the gentleman who sits at the back, because my honourable friend who lives on Bell Island is so young looking, I feel he must be the junior, he shakes his head therefore I gather he is the senior member. Well, the honourable the junior member for Harbour Main-Bell Island said, and I took down his words and if I have misquoted him I would be glad if he corrected me: He said, "Mr. Speaker, we are asking members of this House to give away nearly all that is left of Newfoundland to this Corporation." And then again he said; "We are asked to give it away." And again, "We are giving it all away." Now, he was not the only one who said that. Virtually every member on that side used those same words, giving away our natural resources to that Corporation, what is left of the public domain, to that Corporation. Again and again they have shown very clearly that they regarded the Corporation as something separate and distinguished from Newfoundland. Newfoundland is one thing, the Corporation is another, separate and apart with a gulf between them. On the other hand that does not prevent the honourable junior member for St. John's East from telling us this is only ten percent removed from socialism.

Just in passing will he mind if I point out to him a rather remarkable difference between this Corporation and socialistic organizations. He said that in Britain, as he understood it, the socialist government nationalized the railway, the coal mines and steel industry, this Government is nationalizing only 90% so that they fall short only by ten percent of nationalization. May I point out to him and to the House that there is a rather remarkable difference between what we do in this Bill and what the British Government has done in its legislation? When the British Government nationalized the railway, they nationalized private property, and so with steel and so with coal, they nationalized private property, they expropriated private property by legislation paying certain compensation in doing so. But it was private property they nationalized. Now this Bill does not suggest nationalizing anything, private or public property, we could not do what has already been done. If a man is drunk he is drunk and can be drunk only once. This property envisaged in this Bill is already nationalized and was before we were born. It belongs to the Crown, to the public, to the Government, it is for the people, we are not nationalizing it, it is already nationalized. What we are doing is denationalizing it to the extent of ten percent. I am surprised that my honourable friend did not see that. What has always been nationalized will become in part, precisely ten percent, privately owned property, operated by private enterprise. We can't have it both ways. The honourable gentleman, the junior member for St. John's East tells us it is socialism. The honourable and learned Leader of the Opposition tells us it is fascism.

MR. HIGGINS: You said it was only removed by ten percent.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It was not I, it was the honourable Leader of the Opposition. What I said was that it was a combination of State Socialism and private enterprise. Now can my honourable friends opposite have it both ways? Which will they choose, they can't have it both ways. They are either right when they say the Legislature is asked to give away this public domain or they are right when they say that this is socialism, it cannot be both. If they would only get together and decide what they do mean.

MR. RUSSELL: It could be both. We can nationalize and give away at the same time. The House is giving away its rights to this Corporation which is—

MR. SMALLWOOD: Now he talks about giving away the public domain, my honourable friend sees the difference, argues that this House is called upon to give away the public domain and at the same time argues this is nationalization. It could not be both. Tell us why it is?

Incidentally I was touched by the gallant effort made by the honourable junior member for St. John's East, his gallant fighting effort on behalf of the fishermen living in Notre Dame Bay and their right to go prospecting. I was touched by the indignation he expressed over the fact that a corporation, he did not say soulless, but that a corporation for ten years is to be given the right to prospect and the only right for ten years to prospect, thus denying the fishermen of Notre Dame Bay the right to go prospecting, saying they can now lock their doors and leave their little homes and go off prospecting, and at that point I was reduced to tears. At that point tears blinded my eyes and I was deluged in sadness at the picture of this tyrannical government invading the rights of the fishermen of Notre Dame Bay to prevent them by law and to have the audacity to come into this House and ask the House to ratify the law which will prevent these fishermen from going off prospecting in Notre Dame Bay. My honourable friends opposite are reduced to a pitiable plight in opposing this Bill. Now the honourable gentleman treated the House to his opinion as to whether this Bill, if it becomes law and the Corporation is set up under the law, if it will bring any money into the Province. His opinion is that it will not. I have no doubt the House duly noted his opinion, but it is not the opinion of the Government. The Government are not proceeding with this project for fun; they are not proceeding with it merely to waste time. We are proceeding with it as part and parcel of the great drive undertaken more than a year ago to bring about the economic development of this Province as the very preamble to this Bill puts it, to develop the Province and raise the standards of the people's living and this is part and parcel of it and because we think so and because we think the Corporation will be the means of bringing very important capital, new capital into Newfoundland, that is why we are going ahead with it.

Now, Mr. Speaker, my honourable and gallant friend from Ferryland said we give all these concessions named to this Corporation to peddle around the world to make what they can out of it. Now that is literally true. And I agree fully with it, that is exactly why we are creating it, the Corporation, and as a matter of fact although I do not agree that the word "peddlers" is quite the dignified expression that might be used in a more dignified atmosphere, I agree it is the best definition of this Corporation so far projected in the House in my honourable and gallant friend's sentence which I will repeat, except that I object to the word "give" and the implication of the word "all" and object to the word "peddlers" but those are minor objections: "We give all these concessions to this Corporation to peddle around the world to make what they can by it." Now that is exactly why we are setting up the Corporation. That is a splendid definition.

MR. CASHIN: Tell us about the failure of Valdmanis to promote the paper mill, are those people going to do it when he failed?

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is not so and my honourable and gallant friend would not want me to admit something that is not so. It is not so. The Corporation, Mr. Speaker—let me put it this way; suppose the Government were to come into the House with a Bill to create a wholly owned Crown Corporation, one hundred percent with no private enterprise in it at all, no partners, just the Government, a Crown Corporation. And to that Crown Corporation the legislation suggested that precisely these same areas be ceded under precisely the same conditions, then the only argument to be brought forward in this Chamber which would still have any consistency at all or any validity as an argument is the one brought forward by the honourable member for Bonavista South. If that were the case, if it were wholly owned, a Crown Corporation wholly owned by the Government, then what would we be doing in that case? At the moment those same areas are wholly owned by the Crown, the particular department which has jurisdiction over them is my honourable friend's on the left, his Department of Natural Resources. At this moment anyone interested in going prospecting or logging or into woods operations would naturally enquire and discover it was the Department of Natural Resources, and he would go and discuss it with the Minister and the Minister would bring it in to the Cabinet and the Cabinet would discuss it and a decision would be taken. That is what happens now. Now, we set up a Crown Corporation wholly owned by the Government, what would then be the difference, can anyone tell me? That wholly owned Crown Corporation then would be merely an extension of the office of the Director General of Economic Development, merely a department or division of the Government. In the broader sense of the word of course, I don't mean parties but a Government organization wholly and solely. Now what advantage would that be?

Now on the other hand if we were to bring in a Bill setting up a Corporation wholly owned by private interest and that Bill proposed to give to that Corporation the same areas named in this Bill, would that not be an absolutely unprecedented thing for the Government to do. Although I remind the House that the Government of Newfoundland gave to one company ten years ago for ten years, twenty thousand square miles in Labrador; The Labrador Mining and Development Company, which expires a year or two from now, twenty thousand miles with the right in that time to make—does the honourable member remember?

Now what does the Crown get out of that? Five percent of their profits, the profits being defined in the Act as being what is left after a great long catalogue of named expenses had been paid and what is left is net profit and the Crown gets five percent. Now, that is the reward from a great area of twenty thousand square miles.

That is what the Commission of Government, a good, clean, honourable government, I don't think anyone doubts it, clean and honest, not democratic but clean and honest and honourable, enacted.

MR. CASHIN: And generous.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Not nearly as generous as governments in the past. Who gave Harry Crow the land he sold to Lord Northcliffe, now the A.N.D. Co? Who gave him that land? God did not do it, some government did it. He made money but how much did the Newfoundland Government make out of it? What did the Newfoundland Government ever make out of any Crown Land in Newfoundland as a direct payment? I pointed out here in introducing another Bill that all that the Newfoundland Treasury got last year as a direct cash payment from Bowers and the A.N.D. Co., Buchans Mining Company and DOSCO and the two mining companies in St. Lawrence was $355,000 altogether. That is all. That is the way we have been giving away our property, our public domain in the past. This Government does not believe in it. It could very well do what it did with Falconbridge. I will not attempt to anticipate legislation due to come before the House.

That brings me to my honourable friend the member for Bonavista South who expressed words something of this order: I am entirely at a loss to see how a better deal can be made than the Falconbridge Nickel Deal. I will tell him the answer to that. We have surveyed at a cost of some hundred thousand dollars last year an area of five square miles in Notre Dame Bay. That is not a lot of money.

MR. CASHIN: It is a lot of mileage.

MR. RUSSELL: Falconbridge would have done that.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is a little late in the day to say if we had not made a survey of that area Falconbridge would have done it. Falconbridge came in and because they were the first mining company in the world to show any interest whatsoever in the mining possibilities of Newfoundland since this Government came in, we treated them with rather more than ordinary generosity as will appear when the legislation comes down. If I had my time back I doubt, I may say, I doubt that we would make these concessions but we whittled it down and down and finally they gave up and went home and I said "Never mind, they will be coming back." I was right, they came back, there were gentlemen who did not agree, thought I was making a mistake, thought we were losing Falconbridge. But three weeks later they came back and I met them in my office and I told them quite frankly that this is as far as we will go, and that is what they got. One company, remember a good company, one of many good companies, but one company only of hundreds of dozens but a very large and big one. They got two thousand square miles or rather more. They have to spend $150,000 or some trifling peanut sum of money, $150,000 on two thousand square miles, one of the most promising areas in the world perhaps, an area contiguous to Buchans mine. If we had our time back I doubt very much if this Government would do it but it was only because they were the only company in the world with any active display of interest in our mining prospects and we wanted to get the ball rolling. At that time the thought was born in my own mind that what we needed was a development corporation. That is when the idea was born in my mind. We gave them the two thousand square miles. I say it is not possible for Falconbridge to give that two thousand square miles the kind of thorough prospecting that it needs and we have to get away in Newfoundland from the idea of giving any one mining company vast areas. We have to get away from it. How much better would it be if we had that area to pass over to the Corporation along with the others which we will pass over if this bill becomes law, and have that corporation bring in additional companies to scour the areas which they alone now have the right to survey and pay $150,000 a year for doing it.

I can give another example of a very fine company on the Mainland of Canada who have a good reputation, very much interested in what may be a very important mineral deposit in the Mealey Mountains of Labrador, and they want to go in and prospect now, would like to be in there today or tomorrow and do a magnetometric survey and not all kind of mineral shows on a magnetometer, some can and some can not. Those you can are in the Mealey Mountains and I understand it is mainly around the edge where the mountain meets and merges into the land. It is thought perhaps that is where the mineral lies. They wanted this area but we wanted to hold on to it and vest it in our own Corporation, our own 90% Crown Corporation so that we could say to them: we are the board, you come to us. I still think that is a lot of land to give Frobisher, for one company to get. Frobisher is an energetic Company apparently willing to spend money and do a real honest to goodness survey,

If Frobisher is not willing to do it then the corporation can bring in another company. We hope that Falconbridge will bring in half a dozen fine American mining companies, each one taking two or three hundred square miles and concentrate on them and spend money on them, do the geophysical and magnetometric survey, the drilling and spend real money, more than the Government can spend. I welcome the idea of this Corporation bringing here Harriman-Ripley and Wood Gundy as partners of Newfoundland, not the Government but Newfoundland partners, "peddlers to us" my honourable friend's term, and as I said when he used it "some peddlers." If we can bring in such peddlers as partners I think they will be able to succeed in bringing large and important American and Canadian houses in at their own expense to do their own prospecting and then having discovered something, deal with the corporation, get their lease from the corporation of what the corporation holds itself on title rights. That is all the Bill does; gives rights, title to rights but not title to land. What the Corporation owns it could sublease to these various corporations at a profit and the profit comes into the Treasury of the Corporation. We own 90% of that profit and the private partners who would have sold the deal, brought in the companies and who had bought their shares and paid the Corporation for them, they get 10% of the profits. Now what is wrong with that? Would you expect them to do it free?

Now as my honourable friend, the Attorney General says, every ten cents the corporation makes, nine cents comes into the Treasury and one cent goes to private partners, every dollar, ninety cents to us and ten cents to them, for every thousand, nine hundred goes to us and one hundred to them. My honourable and gallant friend said yesterday, but for every dollar you lose they lose ten cents. What does he want, does he seriously think that any private company would come in on any other basis, share the profits, share the losses, share the wealth. That adds up, makes sense, does it not?

Now, my honourable friend made one valid criticism, just one that I thought at least was sound when he said "what will this corporation accomplish, I don't know, we are not told what it will do for Newfoundland, I don't know—the Government does not tell us, I don't know—the Bill does not say." I know you cannot wave your arms, it is only the honourable and gallant member for Ferryland and myself who do the arm waving, it must be the French in us or a bit of English or something, I don't know but we do the arm waving. But except for the arm waving that is what my honourable friend said. "What will the Corporation do, will it put a paper mill there, a mine here, will it put something else there?" I can't say, I say quite honestly I don't know, nobody in the Government knows, we don't know, we can't guarantee, but we can try, Harriman-Ripley can and will try. Put it this way, suppose this Bill is passed on second reading today, on division probably, and goes through committee stage and some changes are made in the clauses, as doubtlessly there will be, and it gets third reading and Royal assent and a meeting is called of the first directors and shareholders and a million dollars is placed in the till. They meet and say, well we are a pretty big outfit with a million dollars in the till, but we have all the land so we are a big outfit, and a year later they meet, having not met in the interval, hold an annual meeting and find they have made no profit only some expenses, the office, telephone, light, janitor services, stenographers and office management, they spent out some $25,000 for the year but have no dividend, but it is a wealthy corporation, the Legislature of Newfoundland was naive and foolish enough to make them a wealthy corporation so they meet at their annual meeting and can't declare a dividend, and so annually, year by year there is the usual meeting and an additional $25,000 or $30,000 spent but they have not profits, no dividends. Is that why they come in, is that why Wood Gundy comes in? Does anyone think that there is only one way Wood Gundy and Harriman-Ripley can make a copper in dividends? It is the commission they make on any bonds or financing they do for this Corporation. Will Harriman-Ripley and Wood Gundy look at a corporation like this and say, we will go in to this corporation and between us all we will put up a hundred thousand dollars and if we can get a Canadian or New York or any of the numerous companies to go in and start mining, if we can induce them to do that they will pay royalties to the Corporation and we will get our ten percent of the profit of the Corporation and the Government of Newfoundland will get the other ninety percent but we presume these companies in starting mines will need financing and they will come to us for preferred stock or common shares they will to sell.

MR. RUSSELL: That is not any part of the argument.

MR. SMALLWOOD: No, certainly not, but we are justified in presuming that if we bring any company in to Newfoundland. Harriman-Ripley or an officer of Harriman-Ripley can go into American markets and say: Look have you being paying any attention to Newfoundland? Do you know there are pretty good prospects for minerals down there? Look at that, it is a geological report, or so on, of this area in Notre Dame Bay. Take a look, see what the geologists say. They look it over and say, we should look into this and so they call back again to Harriman-Ripley. Or they don't need to call back, they will be camping on the door step. They are now ready to talk business and they are told: We are able to give you two hundred square miles and the rates are this, thus and so. Now, not Harriman-Ripley but the Corporation sets these rates. So they come in here and prospect and have to spend two or three millions to start a mine and they have to get money from a financing house and I presume that any company brought in by Harriman-Ripley, Wood Gundy, will be financed by bonds and they will make a commission. So the only way to make a dollar out of this Corporation is not the dividends paid out of it, the profits of the Corporation. Now the more money they make the better for Newfoundland. The more money, I say, Harriman-Ripley and Wood Gundy make out of this thing the better for Newfoundland because they cannot make money unless Newfoundland makes money, they are only partners in the Corporation, ten percent partners and the Newfoundland Government are ninety percent partners. They cannot make money without the Government's sharing but the Government makes ninety cents for every dollar. What is wrong with that?

Now, frankly we cannot guarantee results, all we can guarantee is to try hard, Mr. Ripley, who is in the House, is present here this afternoon, a vice-president of Harriman-Ripley, informs me and the Government that they will try hard to make a genuine effort to interest companies in coming into Newfoundland at their own expense, such as Falconbridge and Frobisher are doing and other companies as well but we have too few of them.

Well, there are a lot of other points but I could talk forever. My honourable friends opposite have no faith in it. They want to see results before the thing is started at all. They want to have guaranteed results. We can't guarantee them but this I will say, we ourselves are going to propose some amendments in committee of the whole. One is to eliminate the clause giving the Lieutenant Governor in Council the right to add to the holdings of the Corporation—that is coming out.

MR. FOGWILL: That is sensible.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Now, there are other changes, one with regard to mining areas that we think we will propose. Maybe our honourable friends opposite have some amendments to propose to improve the situation and without offending Harriman-Ripley and Wood Gundy, so-called peddlers but we don't want to lose our peddlers and anything we can insert in the Bill without jeopardizing the activity and sympathetic friendship and support of these two great houses we are willing to accept, besides that which we propose ourselves. Mr. Speaker, I move second reading of this Bill.

Moved and seconded this Bill be now read a second time.

Division is called.

MR. SPEAKER: The motion is this Bill be now read a second time, those supporting the motion please stand.

Honourable the Premier, Hon. Attorney General, Hon. Ministers Public Welfare, Provincial Affairs, Public Works, Supply, Fisheries and Co-operatives, Hon. Mr. Vardy, Mr. Morgan, Mr. Bulton, Mr. Janes, Mr. Horwood, Mr. Canning, Mr. Courage.

Against: Hon. Leader of the Opposition, Mr. Fogwill, Mr. Jackman, Mr. Fahey, Mr. Russell.

Motion lost 14-5.

Motion is carried. It being now six o'clock I do leave the Chair until 8:00 of the clock.

NIGHT SESSION

MR. SPEAKER: At 6:00 o'clock the motion was put that the Bill, "An Act to Incorporate the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation Limited" be read a second time.

Bill read a second time, ordered to Committee of the Whole on tomorrow.

Second reading of a Bill "An Act to Provide for the Payment of a Superannuation Allowance to James Forbes, Retired, Marine Engineer."

MR. SMALLWOOD: With reference to this Bill and to make the position clear beyond a doubt, this is a money Bill and I think we will make it a Government measure. I think the whole House desires that Mr. Forbes should get his pension and purely for that purpose and to meet the wishes of the House I move it. I don't think I need to say a word about it as I think the House understands the situation and it is the only way to get what is undoubtedly the desire of the House, but which through some technicalities cannot otherwise be gotten. It is the wish of the House Mr. Forbes gets his pension and I move the second reading.

Read a second time, ordered to Committee of the Whole on tomorrow.

MR. HIGGINS: May I ask one question, Mr. Speaker? I understand that enquiry has been made as to whether there are other people in the same position. I think there were two or three.

MR. SMALLWOOD: They are under consideration, Mr. Speaker, but I don't think the investigation is sufficiently far ahead to enable us to bring legislation in and in any case Mr. Forbes is the only one petition received. I suggest that this Bill be now referred to the Committee stage.

Motion is that this Bill be referred to Committee of the Whole now.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendments. Ordered to be read a third time now.

Read a third time, ordered passed and Title be as on the Order Paper.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I think we are ready, I think the honourable member for Labrador expressed the wish to speak on the Seighiem Bill but he is actually not ready yet consents to go on.

MR. CASHIN: I adjourned the debate. I am going on.

Second reading of a Bill, "An Act to Ratify an Agreement Made Between the Government and Dr. Arthur Seigheim.

MR. CASHIN: Since I adjourned this debate, Mr. Speaker, because we did not have the actual copy of the Bill yesterday afternoon, to see what was into it and this afternoon this Bill was tabled in the House. While I support the principle of the Bill—I want to see work on the Labrador—but I am rather doubtful when I notice that whatever his name is, incidentally he is not a Swiss but a German, is prepared to pay $5 a cord royalty on this wood. But there are tails to that $5 a cord and when the Bill comes into Committee, personally I am going to move that section four comes out altogether. Now, this is not fair particularly when we read Section 2. Well, I think it is impertinence on his part to come alone here and say he is prepared to pay $5 a cord royalty and then add a clause that if the market prices go down to submit it to arbitration in Germany to determine the market prices.

Now, it was stated here by the Premier yesterday that the freight rates across the Atlantic from Hamilton to Rotterdam is $30 a cord. I don't believe it, and I have taken it on myself—I don't know if I have here a copy of a message I sent last night or not.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is more important to have your reply.

MR. CASHIN: You can't get a reply inside of several days or probably a week or two. There is no shipping firm in the world today prepared to contract to take that wood across for a period of years, or even a year. It will probably be a week or two before I get a reply because I was not in the position to name the financial firm and offer so much a cord. Yes, it will probably take a week to get a reply to that telegram and when they get it they will probably say, Cashin has gone crazy. Here is the position, no wood has been cut on Labrador this year, he is not committed in his agreement to cut any this year. He is in a sense committed next year but I venture the opinion that he won't be able to cut a cord because Seigheim—my, we will have to get an interpreter in here to teach us foreign languages before very long, we soon won't be able to pronounce our own names we will have become so accustomed to pronouncing foreign names—won't be in a position to ship two hundred thousand cords because, I want to ask you, Mr. Speaker, don't take my word for it, get in touch with Albert Martin and ask him, if you gave him the contract tomorrow, would they be able to cut two hundred thousand cords and ship it this year from that area? He will tell you, no, I predict that. Why? Because before he can cut a cord of wood he must establish camps and it would take all this year to do it. Next year he can bring men in from Labrador and Newfoundland and from the Province of Quebec. If he is going to cut wood it is questionable if he will get men from Newfoundland or not. There are plenty of wood operations in Newfoundland at the present and will be for some time to come, thank God. We would want at least one thousand, not five hundred men because five hundred men cannot cut two hundred thousand cords a year, drive it, haul it, load it and ship it. It is impossible. You want at least three thousand, the more the merrier. Two hundred thousand cords of wood, prior to a few years ago was a big cut for the A.N.D. Company, I presume they cut much more now, probably six hundred thousand and Bowaters six hundred thousand, over a million between the two of them. But he has to establish camps, places to live, stores, etc; that is a year's work in itself.

Now, I am not trying to knock this proposition in any way. I want to see it go ahead, but I am leery of that $5 a cord. It looks too good. Seigheim knows nothing about wood otherwise he would not try to commit himself to ship two hundred thousand cords next year which is a physical impossibility. Don't take my word for it, go and ask Bowater's who will tell you the same thing unless I am mistaken. Now, Mr. Speaker, I was mixed up in operations such as this about ten years ago and the outfit were only going to ship one hundred thousand cords and it took nearly two years to get ready to ship one hundred thousand cords a year. That is one thing they don't know anything about, this wood business, particularly on this side of the water. They have never operated on this side. It is just the same or worse than if I went to Holland and tried to operate. Nevertheless, I hope they do. But in relation to clause four, when the time comes in Committee, I want to tell the Government, right now, I will move to have it taken out altogether. Now, with regard to the ten percent on the Mainland in the Province of Quebec and in New Brunswick the price of wood has gone up and down but they don't reduce the stumpage to the Federal Government in New Brunswick and Quebec, they made a deal for 75c. a cord and they don't say if the price of wood goes down the stumpage goes down in proportion. These people say $5 but add a tail and say it cost $30 transportation. My guess is it would cost $15 to transport it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Present wood prices in Finland is $17.50, F.O.B. to Finish ports; if that goes up by ten percent or more our royalty is affected but I know the honourable gentleman would be interested in knowing the present price is $17.50 which is not a tremendously high price and it might go higher.

MR. CASHIN: It might go lower. Let us have a stabilized stumpage price, that is what it amounts to. Let us have two dollars or three dollars or five dollars, but let us have it definite.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It won't go below $2.50 for many years to come.

MR. CASHIN: I don't know, the world may be upside down, it is half upside down now, no one can tell. A definite stumpage should be incorporated in here. I tell you, Mr. Speaker, right here now, if that crowd are prepared to go ahead and heave money out and are prepared to start operations on two hundred thousand cords, I would say, I am not going to charge you $5, it is too much.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It might be a sound idea to put in a minimum.

MR. CASHIN: I would charge $3 whether the price is up or down or whatever price is agreed on but if you have it at $5 and subject to market prices that is no good for this country. We are selling this wood on the stump as it is cut and we charge $5 a cord. That is too much. It is not worth it, profiteering in a sense. Now, another point I brought out yesterday which I want to emphasize today. I don't know if the Premier has the leases here of the property held—would you mind letting me have a look at them, Mr. Speaker? The actual leases, the one for the Labrador Pulp and Lumber Company. I have seen it some time ago and read what the lease said. Now under this lease the Labrador Pulp and Lumber Company can cut timber on the Labrador and pay at the rate of 25c. a thousand feet.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Would my honourable friend allow the Attorney General?

MR. CURTIS: I was just going to say I have had occasion to look at the Bowater agreement of 1926-27, under that agreement if they manufacture more than so many hundred tons of pulp they are permitted to export an additional pulp wood and the royalty starts at a dollar and goes up by fifty cents a cord for every five dollars increase in the price of pulp over $75 dollars; in other words they used the price of paper for a yardstick and at that time the price was $75 a ton and every five dollars the price of paper goes up after $75, they pay an additional 50c.

MR. CASHIN: Have they done that?

MR. CURTIS: They had not exported any, I understand.

MR. CASHIN: The point I am getting at is this. Here is the Labrador Pulp and Lumber Company Limited; they have for argument's sake, a one hundred and fifty thousand miles lease, 99 years lease, well-timbered, probably twenty million cords of timber on that and control the timber on either side because it is questionable if anyone taking this up would be able to use their land for hauling and driving on the river. Now, if these people really meant business they would, instead of paying the Government a million a year for two hundred cords of wood, they would buy that property and I am sure it could be bought for a fair price.

MR. SMALLWOOD: If you knew this legislation was coming up, would you?

MR. CASHIN: Yes, I will tell you why. Right now, Sir, if I were in a position to export two hundred thousand cords of pulpwood and had the necessary money, do you mean to tell me I would go to the Government and pay five dollars a cord when I could get it for one and a half by buying the property for a quarter of a million dollars? That is the position, 25c. a thousand feet. That is their royalty they have to pay the Government under that lease.

MR. CURTIS: They have to saw it.

MR. CASHIN: Not necessarily, pulpwood.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Not pulp, they have to saw it.

MR. CURTIS: They have to manufacture it into saleable lumber or other saleable product.

MR. CASHIN: Now, that covers a multitude of sins. What other saleable products? Would not pitprops? What can you manufacture wood into apart from lumber or pulp? I tried to find that in that lease.

MR. CURTIS: It is provided and their license is upon the specific conditions: It says the company shall commence within one year and complete within two, or three from the date 1951 for the erection of a saw mill at the rate of two hundred feet board measure every twenty-four hours and spend the sum of $125,000 in erecting and equipping a factory or factories for the manufacture of paper and paper pulp, erected to commence within two years and be completed within five years from the date that the said Labrador Pulp and Lumber shall take and manufacture into lumber or other saleable products all the timber, every tree cut down.

MR. HIGGINS: You mean two hundred thousand feet per day, that is six million a month, seventy two million a year.

MR. SMALLWOOD: What kicking about one hundred million.

MR. CASHIN: We are getting lost now in figures.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It would not be so simple to make a deal under that lease.

MR. CASHIN: I don't know but I know that the price the Government intends to get to cut it has me flabbergasted and when they come along and tell you the freight rate is $30 a cord they don't know what they are talking about.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That might be landed at the mill.

MR. CASHIN: $30 across the Atlantic to Rotterdam is ridiculous.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It could mean putting it to the mill.

MR. CASHIN: In Europe today the rate of pay is nothing compared with our people; our fellows get $5, and $6, and $7, and $9 a day, it would take that crowd a week to make that. That part is ridiculous to me.

Now, as I said at the outset, I support the principle of the Act but again I say section four of the Act should come out altogether, or a clause inserted to make a minimum stumpage or royalty not less than $3 or $3.50 a cord under any circumstances.

MR. SPEAKER: May I remind the honourable member that may be more properly discussed in Committee of the Whole.

MR. CASHIN: I agree with you, Sir, and it will be discussed in Committee of the Whole as well. I want to drive it home before so that there won't be any undue argument. All we have to do is draft a new section and it is done.

Now, in addition to these two hundred thousand cords, these people also agree to cut another couple of thousand cords, they must have unlimited capital. Now, as I see it if this is made law they can come along to you, tomorrow and say, in addition to that two hundred thousand cords, we want another two hundred thousand cords for some one else and you got to cut it or else. That would mean four hundred thousand cords to be cut in one year, and four hundred thousand cords of wood is quite a pile. Then in addition to this two hundred thousand cords this Bill also agrees to cut another couple of hundred thousand cords. They must have unlimited capital. If this Bill becomes law a man can come along today and say: in addition to that we want another two hundred thousand cords for some one else and you have to cut it or else the agreement lapses. That is four hundred thousand cords to be cut in one year. Well, four hundred thousand cords of wood is quite a pile. I imagine stacked up to six feet high, bet it would reach from here to Port-aux-Basques and probably, farther. It is a lot of wood. Now, I don't think any concern, though they may be German, are going to undertake to do that. There is going to come along another business proposition and say we are prepared to cut but not to cut another two hundred thousand cords for someone else who might be a competitor of ours. They are not going to do it, it is ridiculous.

The other sections of the Act can be gone into as we go into committee. There is very little in it only this, I am afraid in this whole thing we may be making asses of ourselves by discussing the thing at all, that it is going to blow up one of these days. It looks suspicious to me to have people offering.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Not offering, we asked it.

MR. CASHIN: To me it is ridiculous because you are making too much profit, other outfits do not bring in more than $1.75 at the most.

MR. RUSSELL: It is time for us to get a break.

MR. CASHIN: You are not going to get it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We are a good Government, a very good Government to drive people out because we ask too high a price.

MR. CASHIN: The position is I don't see $5 a cord. It shows a lack of sense somewhere.

Then there is one other point the most important of all. "The Government shall use its best endeavour to assist the financier to arrange with the Timber Controller of Canada for the export of the said pulpwood."

What if the Canadian Government should say you can't export that?

MR. SMALLWOOD: They had better agree.

MR. CASHIN: Suppose they don't?

MR. SMALLWOOD: They will find a market for it if they don't.

MR. CASHIN: I say these things should be all cut and dried and the Government of Canada should have agreed. It should be stated here that they are prepared to permit the export of this two hundred thousand cords of wood. Before doing a lot of debating they should have made that arrangement. Have you applied to the Government of Canada to make that arrangement, applied to the Timber Controller of Canada at Ottawa requesting that permission?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Would it not be far sounder procedure to pass it before asking them, when it is the will of the Legislature of Newfoundland that it be done? Now, if it is just the will of the Government and to one approach Canada says no which I do not think will happen. Yet, the best procedure is to bring it into the House and if it goes through unanimously as the wish of the Legislature of Newfoundland it would make it a little more difficult to turn it down, does it not?

MR. CASHIN: That is all very fine but suppose they do say no, what can we do about it? And then the Government undertake to use their best endeavour to permit the importation of machinery and equipment needed for the project. Now here is the position. They are supposed to be all ready to start, according to the Premier. It is not going to start until the people concerned know whether or not any equipment is to come in, and how long is that going to take?

MR. SMALLWOOD: The moment this Bill passes.

MR. CASHIN: Is there any assurance that you will get it in this Bill?

MR. SMALLWOOD: We will get it.

MR. CASHIN: That is all very fine but why dilly dally, I want to see everything on the Table.

MR. SMALLWOOD: If we don't it is all over, that is the end of it.

MR. CASHIN: I feel it should be ironed out now. Ottawa should say whether or not they will give the permit and let the machinery in either duty free or with special concessions on it. In the old days the Government always let in duty free any equipment and machinery to start an industry.

Now, this afternoon emphasis was placed on the fact that we get four hundred thousand dollars out of our other industries, Buchans, the A.N.D. Co., Bowaters, Bell Island, etc., but you forgot to mention, I think, I mentioned it myself yesterday, that Bowaters must have paid a million or a half million to the Federal Government in Corporation and Profit Taxes and the A.N.D. Company just the same. One time Bowaters and the A.N.D. Company would have been paying these taxes in Newfoundland and we lost out in that respect by Union with Canada. It is all very well to say we are getting more money out of the Dominion of Canada than they are getting out of us. But we are not by any means and we are not in a position to debate that question at the present time. But the point I am making is this; when the Premier brought up that statement that we were only getting four hundred thousand dollars out of these various industries last year, it only goes to show me what would have been gotten if we had our own Government.

MR. SMALLWOOD: He is back again.

MR. CASHIN: But that is gone and we have to forget it but everyone is either a Confederate or anti-Confederate. The Premier and I at every opportunity dig at one another. Died in the wool Anti-Confederate, yes I am, and the Premier is a died in the wool Confederate and I am just as much entitled to my ideas as he is, or to be Anti as he is to be Pro or anyone else. It is done anyhow and history will tell the ultimate result of the whole business. I have no sympathy for Bowaters having to pay a million and a half dollars or whatever it is in profit taxes. I have no sympathy for them whatsoever, but this Provincial Government lost one hundred and fifty thousand dollars they used to get in lieu of taxation. Now they don't get a dollar from Bowaters today. They may pay a couple of dollars a square mile rental on some timber areas and that is about all we get out of it. No stumpage or we don't get any stumpage from the A.N.D. Company and they probably also have some timber areas on which they are paying $2 a square mile.

Now, coming back to this Bill, I am only too delighted to be able to support the legislation which is going to give employment on Labrador, I, and I use the personal pronoun advisedly, was interested as I said in one of these projects ten or 11 years ago. It is nothing new to me. The Bill here is practically in some ways similar to a proposed agreement which a group I represented tried to negotiate with the Commission of Government in 1939 or 1940 only we were not so optimistic as those people, we would only undertake to cut a hundred thousand cords a year and were only in a position to pay 75c. or $1 a cord. This makes me suspicious. Who will tell me anyone is prepared to come in here and pay that kind of money and then turn around and tell the Government even though they are men of business that they will pay $30 a cord freight. It is ridiculous to begin with and I will produce documents before the House closes that the freight rate is much lower. Now this project should give employment to two or three thousand people and pay them big money, today men average ten dollars a day, that is twenty-five or thirty thousand dollars a day for twenty five days a month, a million dollars a year if they work continuously. Then they have to cut down the wood, haul, drive, boom, load, that is all labour or all money paid to Newfoundland or Labrador people for cutting and doing these things, that is at least $12 a cord in my opinion, two and a half million in labour in that respect in addition to which you can add three million a year employment to people on the Labrador and people belonging to Newfoundland that might go there if you can get them to go down there.

Now, the Premier pointed out very thoroughly that up to the present the Labrador Timber Areas have had a black eye; every one went down there failed. Dickie who started operations in the early part of this century about 1901-02, or somewhere around there, exported some timber from the bottom of Hamilton Inlet when the Quebec Government came along and closed him down and he went bankrupt. No other operations took place until later, 1930, or somewhere around there and first when the Commission of Government came in, J. O. Williams came to Newfoundland and started exporting considerable pit props. He went broke. The Grieve Brothers went down further North and went broke. Now, it has to be proven, as the Premier very rightly says, that the Labrador is an economic proposition to produce wood in order to do that we have to have plenty of money and I am so sold on Labrador either for pulp and paper for Newfoundland or export of timber because if timber is allowed to stay without being cut it is going to rot.

How much fallen timber must be on the Labrador. I have not had time to read the aerial survey but I imagine that considerably damaged, rotten and fallen down wood went bad and was damaged by weather and so forth. The longer it is left without being cut and looked after the worse it is going to get. So that this exporting of wood is not so bad after all because when you are exporting some and getting money for it, it is better than leaving it there for someone to manufacture as during the interval it might rot. Therefore, I am not against that kind of proposition. Here right in the Island of Newfoundland, I would be opposed to it; only in extraordinary circumstances would I be prepared to support legislation to allow raw timber to be exported from the Island of Newfoundland. But I would be prepared to pay a certain amount of money, if in the Government, to try and prove that the Labrador timber operations can be prosecuted and operated successfully, would be prepared to subsidize it because it would pay in the long run to give subsidies for a year or two.

Now here we have a man coming in and offering $5. I would be prepared to give it to him free for a couple of years to see how it will work out, provided these people knew the business because if we gave it to him free he could save that money to put back into the operation and build it up and prove to the outside world, to people interested in the purchase of timber that it is a paying proposition even though it is down near the North Pole. That is what the financial world thinks about the Labrador, but I would say you can get it out for four months of the year and probably for six months on the Southern Labrador. Williams shipped wood out in December and that can be done even yet. One thing they should have made an effort to try and get someone to operate the Southern part of Labrador, that place can be operated and has several million cords of wood there all belonging to the Crown at the present time except what is owned by the Newfoundland Labrador Company. There are approximately five to six thousand square miles of possible timber land in that area in the Southern part of Sandwich Bay.

MR. SMALLWOOD: There are a million cords in Sandwich Bay.

MR. CASHIN: Is that the aerial survey? That is the survey, I take it, where people went down and had a look.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Aerial in Hamilton Inlet, in Sandwich Bay it is not aerial.

MR. CASHIN: Now, Mr. Speaker, I am supporting that Bill in principle, and the Premier is seeing it my way for once in his life and is prepared to inject a minimum price in section 4. And I give the bill, the principle of the Bill my very hearty support, I hope it succeeds but I do think the Government before they made any agreement with these people, and I am not saying this for political reasons, that they should have contacted Ottawa and make sure they would be prepared to give a permit to export and all that and if Ottawa would be prepared to let them bring in equipment and machinery for the operation of that proposition duty free. I say duty free because they are taking a chance in going in there. If they have the money they should make a success of it and I wish them every success and I hope that my pessimism in connection with it is just a dream and my pessimism in connection with this $5 which they are supposed to get, I hope that also is a dream and that my statement with respect to the $30 a cord freight is also a dream, because if I were a shipping broker I would be delighted tomorrow to try and charter a few ships at the rate of $20 a cord for transportation across the Atlantic, any shipping broker would be tickled pink to get that, a broker would make money. So, Mr. Speaker, again I say I support the principle of this Act, I wish it every success and I hope my pessimism is all wet.

MR. HORWOOD: Mr. Speaker, about two weeks ago I made a good resolution that no matter the occasion, for the remainder of this session I would not delay the business of this House even one second by opening my mouth on any subject whatever, as we are all agreed that this session has lasted long enough and I know personally when any member stands up to make a speech no matter how interesting I begrudge the time which is added to the length of this already too long session.

However this Act is a matter which affects my own district very vitally and is a matter in which I have been so vitally and so keenly interested, the development of Labrador, a matter in which I have had such abundant faith for some time, and now I feel that my resolution must go the way of a good many other good resolutions and I cannot permit this opportunity to pass without expressing myself at least briefly, and very briefly, in support of this Bill.

Now, like the honourable and gallant member for Ferryland, I am much more at home attacking something than defending something. Unfortunately tonight I have nothing to attack, the papers tomorrow won't be able to come out with headlines saying Horwood attacks merchants or called NAFEL crooked or some company has broken an agreement. They won't be able to report I said any nasty things about the architects or even that I called anybody stupid or the scum of the earth.

MR. HIGGINS: The penitent sinner we were talking about today.

MR. HORWOOD: Tonight, Sir, I have two things to which to refer: First of all Lake Melville itself, that great northern garden, that great paradise of wood and water power and good soil, so richly endowed by Almighty God with most of the things which tend to make any region great. And second, what little I know about it and that is not very much, the principle of scientific forestry. That new and all too recently applied principle which does so much to keep a nation or a region great.

About three years ago, Sir, an editor of a local paper here said to me: "Harold, I hear you are going to Labrador today. What on earth do you want to go down there for?" And I said in reply: "Well, amongst other reasons because I am convinced that Labrador has in front of it a greater future than any other part of this Province." It was not a Province then, so I said, "this country." As time has gone by, Sir, during these three years that belief of mine has been expanded by my personal observations in Labrador, what I have seen and noted, and also by the course of events. My faith in Labrador's future is stronger today than it was then. I believe it can be at the present time explained as the faith of Dr. Harry Paddon, a very great man who devoted his life to the people of Labrador, spent the major part of his life amongst the people of Lake Melville, serving them and trying to make their lot in life easier, their shocking conditions better. He believed that Lake Melville was destined to become one of the great regions of North America. He lived in obscurity and comparative poverty and held that faith until his death, and unfortunately he died before Goose was constructed, and I regret that he could not have seen at least a beginning of the realization of that faith he held for thirty years.

Now, Sir, tonight is not the first time I have stood here in this House and listed some of the natural endowments of Lake Melville and I hope honourable members won't be too impatient with me if I am a bit repetitious in mentioning some of the natural endowments which make Lake Melville, in my belief, one of the great regions of North America. To begin with it has one of the great water-ways in North America, next to the St. Lawrence River, the largest and greatest inland water-way on the East seaboard of Canada extending nearly two hundred miles from Hamilton on the Coast to the Head of Grand Lake, the whole of that distance being navigable. That two hundred miles of water is teeming with fish of the most delectable variety, with salt water and fresh water fish. Not only the Atlantic Salmon, the finest species in the world, but the bottom of Lake Melville itself, recorded by biological surveys, is encrusted with scallop, very large variety with a seven to ten inch shell, an especially marketable, valuable product. It has several species of trout which grow to enormous sizes which would make any Newfoundland angler's eyes pop out and he would not believe it until he was actually down there and ate them as I have done. It has a very large variety of fish and one of the possible industries in Lake Melville area and other of the large lakes of Labrador—one possible industry is a big commercial fresh water fishery.

Lake Melville itself is the largest lake in Canada, and next to it is Lake Michikamau larger than any other lake East of the Great Lakes. The Lake Melville region which includes, in my nomenclature at least, the Hamilton River watershed has immense resources of hydro-electric power, Muskrat Falls has a hydro-electric potentiality of nearly a million horse power. The Grand Falls further up the Hamilton River has a much larger potentiality and with certain engineering projects carried out the total production of hydro-electric power would be over a million horse power, three times as much as Boulder Dam, that could be developed at a tiny fraction of normal hydro-electric developments.

Lake Melville is also blessed with an area of especially rich soil. Those members who know anything about agriculture will know what I mean by river bottom soil, four, five and six feet deep of loam without a single stone or pebble, nothing to be done except to take the trees off and clear the stumps and you have areas of potential agriculture development down there that could supply all the people in Lake Melville and conceivably could even supply Goose Bay itself with fresh vegetables and with dairy products.

Now the Premier mentioned the other day that this company who are moving in there are going to bring in seed from Northern Finland and that may be a very good idea to bring in northern produced seed. But it so happens that Lake Melville is not nearly as cold as Northern Finland and it happens that on a small scale they have agriculture there now which is quite successful without any particular strain of seed but the normal type of plants that grow successfully in Newfoundland, and I have seen with my own eyes growing in Lake Melville every type of vegetable that grows successfully in Newfoundland and I venture to say here and now that in that area everything that can be grown in Newfoundland can be grown there, and some things that can not be grown in Newfoundland ripen there, with a possible exception of fruit. No one has attempted yet to develop fruit trees.

Now conceding the fact that it is several hundred miles north of this area, it might be wondered why that is so. The reason for it actually is quite simple. It lies in the remarkably fine climate of the Lake Melville area. Lake Melville, although it has adequate rainfall for agricultural purposes, has far less rainfall than any other part of Newfoundland, more fine weather, less fog. It has on the average about two or three days fog per year. Sometimes the whole Spring, Summer and Fall passes without a single day's fog at the head of Lake Melville. Last year I think there were two days and the amount of rainfall at Goose Bay is twenty-seven to twenty-eight and a half inches a year, evenly distributed throughout the year approximately the same each month of the twelve.

MR. HIGGINS: That includes snow?

MR. HORWOOD: That includes snow. It is evenly distributed month by month throughout the year and that is less rainfall than any part of Newfoundland, any part of Eastern Canada other than Labrador, less than anywhere on the whole eastern seaboard of the North American Continent and anywhere on the whole West Coast of North America except only Southern California and Alaska. But still, as I stated, adequate rainfall for agricultural purposes. More rain falls there than in some of the great inland agricultural areas of North America, and this rainfall makes it a more pleasant place to live and an easier place to work, obliterating the suggestion the honourable and gallant member for Ferryland raised when he said there would be one day out of every three with bad weather loading conditions. It does this for agriculture, gives an intensive growing season, a short but extensive warm summer, with, incidentally, far more sun and daylight per day than farther south. It has a continental type of climate, a climate which gets cold, dry weather and warm dry summers. The temperature at the head of Lake Melville is colder during the winter than in St. John's but not as cold as Winnipeg, about the same as Ottawa in the winter time. In summer it is warmer than here in St. John's. The mean temperature for the month of July at Goose is 60.4 degrees. I believe the mean temperature here at St. John's is 58. something for July. It is warmer in summer and colder in winter, peculiar and also unique in the world, an area of continental climate situated at tidewater. That happens though inland a hundred and fifty miles from the sea in the inland waterways along tidewater in the Lake Melville and adjacent interior waters.

Now Lake Melville has in addition to good climate, good soil and water ways, and incidentally, speaking of climate I must reiterate this point. The ice-bound conditions of the Labrador have been exaggerated beyond belief, you could sail there this year in the month of April and last year in the month of December and if it were possible for Williams to export wood in December from Alexis River it can be possible from Lake Melville, as it does not freeze up as soon as Alexis River freezes up.

In addition to its other features which lends themselves to the process of economic development in that area, it has one feature that particularly pertains to it, immense timber resources. Timber resources in Lake Melville have been quoted here as in the vicinity of forty million cords for that particular ten thousand square miles block. There are of course other timber resources in the area and there is a lake just north of Lake Melville and with a common outlet which has a large and very fine stand of timber. But there is one thing in connection with this stand of timber which has not been emphasised so far in this debate, that is the extreme density and availability of the wood in that region. It occurs in a density per square mile, per acre, rarely found anywhere and I don't believe it is found at all in the Island of Newfoundland. There for example on the bank of a certain river, as the honourable and gallant member for Ferryland has said an area of half a million cords to which a lease was issued to some company or other on the bank of that river on the West Bank, one block ten miles west and 10 miles north and south along the bank of the river which contains 920,000 cords of timber, nearly a million cords in one ten square mile area. Another, immediately adjoining has over eight hundred thousand cords of timber. I quote those merely as an example and there are other blocks where timber is almost equally dense. The availability of timber in the Lake Melville area will immensely cheapen the cost of operations.

The quality of the soil there and the terrain is imminently suitable to timber operations. It is, generally speaking, an area of mineralized rock covered with a thin layer of soil and this in turn covered very lavishly by a layer of dried moss lending itself admirably to timber operations, not only winter but year-around operations.

The rivers and streams have a comparatively constant flow of water. There is no such thing as floods or drought. This also lends to all year round driving operations. Some of them will require a certain amount of engineering, some will require deepening of the channel, a process very commonly used in Finland where just the center is dug out making a track on which timber is floated down, some may require damming operation, but generally speaking the waterways lend themselves admirably to year-around timber operations.

Now, Mr. Speaker, it has been said in this House that the United States is the most progressive or greatest forestry country in the world and has the greatest experts in forestry or something to that effect. Nothing in the world could be further from the truth than to suggest that the United States is one of the most progressive countries in forestry. What little the United States knows or applied in the realm of scientific forestry has only been within the last few years, since the beginning of the second world war. It was only then they began to realize they were ruining their forests and destroying their natural resources and only then they rushed to Europe looking for timber experts and brought them over to teach them Sylviculture, scientific forestry and to teach them how to save what little they had left. That is the true history of forestry in the United States. There has been no country more famous for simply tearing out the soil and the ground and the natural products of the land and wasting them and doing nothing about conserving and replacing. The home, the original home of scientific forestry is in Northern Europe. It was first applied on a large scale in Scandinavia and particularly Finland and Sweden. There, trees are not treated as something to be just cut off the land and dragged out and made use of in whatever way most suitable to the particular operation and operator who is working there at the time. They are not treated as something you chop but something you farm. The idea, the concept of farming the forests grew up and was there first applied on a large scale, applied in the sense that an operator went in to the forests and started an intricate forest industry, cutting the best of the trees for saw logs, and those not suitable are used for pulp and the tops of those trees that were used for saw logs they use for pulp and they use all the by-products of the sawing industry and pulp industry and paper industry in the manufacture of various products. They took the hardwood trees and used the best of them for veneer and on the second best ones for manufacture into furniture, stock and so on, and those for stock are manufactured into various articles. That whole conception grew up in Scandinavia and they developed there rung for rung their know-how of scientific forestry. Now we could not do better than to go to Scandinavia to teach us, and the rest of North America, how to apply the principles of scientific forestry.

Now, I have heard quite effectively scientific forestry confused with selective cutting. Selective cutting is only one aspect of scientific forestry and one only, although admittedly scientific cutting is good, but there is a lot more to scientific forestry than selective cutting. I had the great pleasure a few weeks ago of sitting down here in the City of St. John's and spending one whole afternoon with Professor Shipel, the agent, the representative of Dr. Seigheim himself. He is the man who went to Lake Melville and conducted the on-the-spot survey about that agreement signed between the Government of Newfoundland and Dr. Seigheim. I had the pleasure of sitting down with that eminently civilized, eminently informed gentleman, spending a morning with him talking about the principles of scientific forestry, forest management, and conducting well managed scientific forest operations. I was deeply impressed by his wide knowledge, his evidently wide experience, and the number and varieties of his interests, not in the mere matter of cutting down trees and making a dollar. I was impressed by the fact that agriculture is a subject in which he is extremely well versed, a subject which is an avocation, and I was happy and impressed by the fact he wanted to build modern townsites in the Lake Melville area of Labrador; he spoke of cutting up blocks of land into sections and producing farms out of them, giving each of the workers his own house probably prefabricated, properly constructed, put in water, sewerage systems, that he should give the workers in that area something to live for beyond merely making a dollar, and one of the most important things, give each of them a home of his own and a piece of land of his own on which to rear his own vegetables and help him improve his standard of living. One of the things he told me about was forest management and silviculture. When you cut down a tree and cut off the limbs and take the timber and leave the area for forty or fifty years, then like A.N.D. Company, when you go back to it you have your second growth, but the area never produces, no matter how long it is left, the same quality of timber that it produced originally because of the fact that on second growth unless it is left for centuries, the spruces, black and white, are crowded out by balsam and fir and you get a large quantity of balsam, fir and a very small quantity of spruce in the second growth in the area. One of the things he tells me he means to do in the area is a scientific process of timber, forest management, cutting out the fir and leaving for breeding stock the very best of the spruce, leaving the spruce trees to stand helps the process of natural selection, helps nature to reseed the cut-over area with a stock to which you can come back in thirty or forty or fifty years from now and get just as good or possibly better timber than originally cut from the virgin forest.

Now, Mr. Speaker, yesterday a local gentleman who carries on as a professional journalist, not a reporter, but a genuine and really professional journalist of which we find too few in Newfoundland, approached me and asked what particular good I thought that Bill would do for Labrador, and just off the cuff, I had not thought about it, I said two things: One, it would accomplish centralization of the population and, secondly, might very well lead to future expansion of industrial development in Lake Melville area, aside from the particular good of putting dollars immediately into the pockets of the people there. Centralization of the population, and the possibility of new industries, may result from wood cutting operations in Lake Melville by a firm which knows its business, not a fly-by-night outfit which went broke for lack of capital and did such stupid things as damming the river and trusting the ice would not come down and take the dam and sweep the whole thing out to sea. But this operator knows his business and is going to make a success of it, will restore the once fair name and remove the blot from the name of Labrador as an area suitable for economic development, and will encourage the things which I mentioned heretofore, the establishment of a pulp and paper mill in Lake Melville.

I am as convinced, after having read the report on Bay D'Espoir region as I was before, that Lake Melville is an ideally suited place for a pulp and paper industry. I firmly believe such industry will follow, almost inevitably, the establishment of this large wood cutting operation in the area. I feel also that a number of other industries, which I won't mention, will also follow, the development of large hydro-electric power will follow.

The other good I feel it will do most of all is for the people in the centralization to some extent of the present isolation. I have previously stated that the population of Labrador today is somewhere over six thousand people, living along an area of over fifteen hundred miles of coast line, in one hundred and fifteen settlements. Now I don't know what the average number is in each of these one hundred and fifteen settlements, I was never good at mental arithmetic, but it does not work out to very many per settlement. Of one area in particular, it is said, Sir Wilfred Grenfell used the very descriptive phrase "The Land that God Gave Cain." That phrase, I think, was coined by Jacques Cartier, adopted and made famous by Sir Wilfred Grenfell in his references to that hopeless, poverty stricken stretch of coast where the people lived in little settlements often built on the bare rock, no grass, no moss, not even trees for miles, and where they existed solely on the results of what they could get from the products of the fisheries only. People who live in a type of poverty, a degree of poverty, a quality of poverty which most Newfoundlanders are completely unable to visualize—go to the slums of St. John's and some of the great cities of Canada or visit the ordinary poor family in the outports and you will not find anything like the type of poverty or living conditions as are to be found on the Central Labrador Coast. Now it does not do me any good to say this. Just as Newfoundlanders dislike or used to dislike having people coming from the Mainland and the United States and going back and saying that St. John's had slums, bad buildings and all sorts of things wrong with it, so the people of Central Labrador will not like for me to say they are living in conditions of indescribable poverty and squalor, but I don't care and I am going to say it and keep on saying it until something is done about it. Some of them are living in houses without floors except the bare ground, some in houses with holes through the walls you could put your hand through and I have slept in a house where I would wake up in the morning in winter with snow about that depth on the bed—it was driven by the drift in through the wall, and I don't want any of that quoted in the press in case any of the gentlemen of the press are tempted to do so, I prefer they would not. But that is the second great thing that this organization can do for Labrador, help to relieve some of that terrible poverty which is the result of isolation, scattered population, living this miserable type of existence which they can procure from a few weeks' fishing in summer.

Now, I want to say one more thing. That is that I am firmly convinced that the development of Lake Melville, the economic development is inevitable. I have said it before and I say it again: "The trend of civilization is now moving north." For many centuries it moved westward, moved from central and Western Asia to the shores of the Mediterranean into Western Europe and up and across the Atlantic to where the centre of civilization today is in centre of the American Continent, across the great continent of America until it could move no farther Westward, and the northward march has just begun, it is the last great frontier of the world. As the centre of civilization moves north, and it is moving north now toward Canada and into Canada and that is why Canada is bound inevitably to become one of the greatest of the great nations of the world. The only direction in which Canada can extend is northward, through Canada into Northern Canada goes the march of civilization farther and farther north, then that popular fable which is based on a popular fallacy, that stupid misconception about the ice-bound condition of the Labrador, this fairy tale that it is inhabited by a few thousand Eskimos crawling in and out of snow igloos, and polar bears drifting by on cakes of ice and seals and whitecoats all over the place. That fairy tale will inevitably be concluded and killed, please God, and killed quickly as it is purely a fairy tale. The Northland, the Canadian Northland, of which Labrador is one of the warmest and most southermost parts, is a land of great promise and great potentialities. A famous man wrote a book one time, "The Friendly North," which attempted to explode the idea, that old superstition, that had developed in the people's minds that the Arctic regions were northern wastelands where nothing could be grown and nothing live. That fable was encouraged and cultivated in the minds of the general public by explorers who went down there and did not have too uncomfortable a time of it but who came back and described the Arctic as a horrible gigantic expanse of ice and snow and even told how they had survived, how they had taken their lives in their hands to explore and Stephenson set foot in the Arctic Ocean among other places in an effort to explode that popular fallacy formerly developed by charlatans. The development of Labrador is inevitable as tomorrow's dawn, as daylight follows night, consequently it must come to Lake Melville which by natural endowment will become one of the centres of civilization of North America, and probably the greatest economic centre of this Province. I am completely convinced of that. It will come within the next ten years, fifty years or the next century but just as the great lakes area inevitably, because of natural endowment became great, so the Lake Milville area inevitably, because of natural endowment of Lake Melville area, become great.

I am extremely pleased and happy, my heart is full of delight when I realize that this Government of which I am a supporter, this particular Government is to be the instrument for promoting that development, is to help along the development which will come whether we help it or not. But we may hasten it by a few years by our judicious action. I am particularly pleased to see our Premier for whom I have the highest respect and regard making his place in history more secure, not that it is not, surely, but adding as it were another laurel to his crown of fame by being the instigator and initiator of this development of that vast and potentially rich area the Lake Melville section of Labrador.

MR. RUSSELL: Mr. Speaker, I rise to give my unqualified support to the principle of this Bill and, believe it or not, I am genuinely pleased over what I consider the possibilities inherent in the Bill as a good bargain.

The principle is, Sir, whether or not this House should agree with the idea of exporting unmanufactured timber, pulpwood, from Labrador to Europe or elsewhere. Now two hundred thousand cords a year, Sir, is the increment on about some million cords, and in my opinion nearer one than ten the figure we have on increments where an area replaces itself in forty, fifty or sixty years. The figures we have, if they err at all, err on the side of exaggerating the length of time it will take timber to replace itself. After all we can get those figures generally from the paper companies who if they give any information at all are not likely to exaggerate and thereby let us get an exaggerated opinion of the value of the limits they have. Personally I think that two hundred thousand cords, especially when it is scientifically farmed will not affect to any appreciable extent the quantity of timber on the Labrador and probably will improve rather than deplete it particularly pulpwood, Sir, because the cutting of railway ties is the most wasteful way of handling wood we know of, apart from setting fire to it, yet the cutting of pulpwood can be least wasteful.

There are things about the Bill which maybe the least said about them the better for our own sakes. The Bill is a good Bill. There are certain things in it we better not look into too closely and certain things we better not talk too much about or we might wake up and find it is all a dream, I hardly know how to put it but there are things here that can be improved yet I hesitate to suggest improvement, Sir, because without them I still support the Bill. But in order to save time when we do go into Committee, I am going to mention one or two sections that I think are important sections; Sections No. 2 and No. 8. If the Government can do what they like to do about that, it is not their fault if by any means the scheme fails, and it may, through the break-down on either one or both sections. It would be a tragedy which the Government would feel keenly just as we would. These are the two sections, Mr. Speaker, where our government undertakes to do its best to encourage the export and all the importations of machinery. If it can be done the most we can do is to wish the Government every success in any effort they may make, and I am sure they will make every effort to see that section two and eighteen are carried out successfully.

In section four I have another point to mention which I will pass to the Government to think over when we come into committee. I don't like the idea, and I am sure no one else when he comes to study it will like the idea of our revenue in Newfoundland depending on the Baltic Freight Rates. That is so in section No. 4. If f.o.b. were there instead of c.i.f. it would not be so. There may be some way, and the Government anyway has assured us already that they will give special attention to section No. 4. While this might be dealt with in the committee stage, I particularly call attention to the implications of subsection (2), that c.i.f.

There is a vagueness about two or three sections in the latter part of the Bill regarding all sorts of things the financiers undertake to do. There is no specified time in which they have to do it. Well if we can get a specified time, say he is obligated in say two, three or five years, all right, let us try and get it, if not I am not going to stress the point in committee because even without that I think that the Bill is a good Bill, the principle is sound, and it may well lead to better things. I hope it does and I sincerely hope that none of the things I see that might happen to interfere in any way with this development will happen. I wish the Government every success on it and I would like to add if you see any peculiarity about the distance between the top of my face and the bottom at the moment it is no indication whatsoever of my inward feelings.

MR. FAHEY: In speaking to the principle of this Bill I am supporting it for two obvious reasons; first of all it has been indicated in this House that the Government, or the people of this Province, will collect a substantial revenue by way of $5 per cord for the wood. The second reason why I support the Bill is due to the fact that it will give a certain amount, I may say great amount, of labour, as we have been told in this House to the extent of twenty-five hundred workers. I feel, being somewhat connected with labour in the past that this is more or less in the line of what I think and am connected with.

But there are one or two things that strike me as we go along through this Bill, and that is this: The Premier has mentioned in his remarks in introducing this Bill that these people, Dr. Seigheim and Professor Shippell, perhaps I should add shepherd, because we get a lot of shepherds in this country now and then and understand there are a lot in the vicinity of Whitbourne and I might inform the House that these sheep had to be taken from Whitbourne and have been brought into the District which I represent, in order to give them grazing ground, and what happened in that district applies to many other districts as far as grass is concerned and we are pleased to help out the Government in its sheep raising project.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We are putting all sorts of industries in the honourable gentleman's District, sheep raising and everything.

MR. FAHEY: The only thing is we don't get the work for the men of the district—they are mostly from other districts.

MR. COURAGE: You are supposed to be speaking on the Labrador?

MR. FAHEY: I am not, I am in Harbour Main-Bell Island but most of the people working on projects come from the Labrador and from Fortune Bay too, don't forget that. I hope the honourable member makes a motion of that.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We are all Newfoundlanders and we all belong to this great Province which is a part of the Great Dominion of Canada, so let us forget the jocose side of it and go on with this Bill before the House, with the principle of it.

MR. FAHEY: However, I think with this Bill giving the right to export raw material as we would put it, or pulp wood to supply mills on the other side of the ocean, from a labour point of view it does not assist us so much as it does those who purchase it. There was a time when pulpwood was exported from this country when we could say with a clear conscience that we got the labour from the stumpage areas. That is to say all the work in cutting this wood and bringing it to the ships for export was done by Newfoundland labour and at least we got that much from pulpwood exported. But even at that there was a certain resentment in Newfoundland and there is today, even though a part of the district which I have the privilege to represent, feel they should not export that iron ore to be used up in the steel mills and give work to people there. They contend the raw material comes from the earth in Bell Island and we should have the right to manufacture it into steel in this Province and export it to the markets of the world. Others use the argument that in order to produce one ton of steel we must bring in five tons of coal. But I am like Mr. Ripley, Believe it or Not, I think we have the raw material and therefore we should say to the markets of the world that if you want this raw material you should come in and be prepared to manufacture it and make the products and supply them to the markets of the world. Now, to me those same thoughts come back again in connection with pulpwood. In the past, from the labour point of view we only got the barely necessary labour to cut this timber and export it to supply the paper mills that have been established in Europe, and we contended for a number of years that was not right. If those paper mills on the other side of the Atlantic needed this wood so badly then we should put in iron bound clauses in the agreement to say if they needed it that badly to come in and manufacture it.

Now, the implementation of this Act will give a certain amount of employment up to the extent of fifteen hundred Newfoundlanders. We appreciate that now and perhaps we will appreciate it a year or so from now a lot more than at the present time, but nevertheless, if the markets of the world are so hungry and need this pulpwood so much I think it is a grand opportunity, a wonderful opportunity to say to those European Countries across the sea that they should come in here and manufacture it. Now, that is so much for the general labour aspect.

Now we are told, Mr. Speaker, by the Premier that this company intends to bring in mechanized methods. Now, what does that mean? That means these bulldozers and saws are portable electric or gasoline engines that would generate electricity to supply the saws to cut the trees. In other words labour that we used to get years ago, that we kicked so much about when we only got the bare labour to cut the raw timber and export it, we don't even get that much because of the fact that they use mechanized equipment, which is going to move in on this job and where perhaps one hundred were employed in the past, with this modern machinery cutting the trees it would be necessary probably only to employ ten in the future. Now, it is all very fine for the Government to say we get $5 a cord royalty on this wood when we export it. I appreciate that, it is good for the treasury. I think all the honourable members here appreciate that but take it from the labour point of view if in the past we only got one-fifth of the value through labour, now we are going to move in mechanized machinery, buck-saws or whatever you might call them, supplied by a current coming in overhead or by gasoline for modern equipment that generates electricity to cut off these trees. I presume therefore that the labour would not be a fraction of what we got in the past.

Now, I ask the Government to consider this very carefully and when the Premier made his statement that now is the time the world needs this pulpwood to supply these paper mills; well, if that is a fact, now is the time for us to ask those companies to come in here and produce the material into the finished product, what we have here. In the past we have been accused of having various governments who gave away too many concessions and so much so that as a Province today our country gets very little, only the labour producing this raw material where people make paper, pulp or wood out of it. But the finished product was made in other countries and they got the benefit of it. I think this time we might pause and look around and see that is not all we get. The royalty is very fine but in addition to that, we should look at the labour value and not be giving away our assets in various ways. We should sit up and take notice of that.

Now, the Premier stated in his introduction to the Bill that the Government must approve of all this company will take out of Newfoundland. I would ask this question, what about this corporation that the House has been asked to consider recently; if this Act is passed, I don't see why the House would be asked to consider this because in this Act, this corporation is given the right to give out any section of Newfoundland whether mineral, watersheds, power rights or timber rights.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, the honourable member has already spoken on that Bill, on the Act the honourable member just referred to the Newfoundland Labrador Corporation.

MR. FAHEY: I appreciate the point of the Premier, that I would not have the right to speak on it again because of the fact that I spoke in making the motion, but I am not referring to that Act now, I am only saying that right here in introducing this Act the Premier said that it would be on the Government's approval. I feel, Mr. Speaker, that if this Act dealing with the Corporation goes through, it won't require the Government's approval, but only the approval of this Corporation. In my opinion, as far as this Act is concerned, it gives away our rights and we should reserve these rights to create labour to put them into a finished product. The Premier also spoke about three men who arrived in this city only a short while ago and he hoped there would be no more propaganda as far as newspapers are concerned; it may have some effect. Mr. Speaker, that is a joke because to my mind, from this side of the House, we can talk as long and as much as we wish, but when it comes to the final vote it is going through whether we like it or not. That happens to be the picture and some of those members who have a grin on their faces should realize too that they are only shadows, then they might not have a grin on their faces any longer.

I am now coming to the honourable Minister of Welfare. The honourable Premier, Mr. Speaker, yesterday on introducing this Bill said we would have scientific people, some from Sweden and some from Norway to come over here to plant trees, show us how to grow them and eventually have people come down, he says, from the Mainland and the United States to take note of how those trees should grow. Well now, that is very nice, I appreciate that and I am glad to see Newfoundland is going to take a lead away from the Mainland and is going to show them something because of the fact we eat more fish we must have more brains and we are going to show them. However, it appears to me that in the forty-eight states of the United States they have so many thousands dealing with the various aspects of agriculture, whatever branch of it you may want to go into, wheat growing, dairy farming, or otherwise, and after all the colleges they have set up they have to come to Newfoundland after those people have come from the other side, and come up here and learn to grow trees. These people could not go over to these countries to see what is going on but have to wait for ten or twenty years to come to Newfoundland and see what is going on. I would like to believe the Premier on that but I am a little doubtful and to be honest, I can't agree. But I would like to ask the Premier right now if those colleges in Ontario and Alberta and right to the West Coast and right through from New England out to that great bridge that goes across there in San Francisco, can't produce men with knowledge how to take care of trees. That is where the honourable Minister of Public Welfare comes in, if they can't find out how to take care of trees and grow them, they should come down and take a lesson from the honourable Minister, the member for Carbonear-Bay de Verde and go down and see the trees he planted in his district in the last two years and learn something about trees, and they don't have to come from Norway or Sweden or any other place, because in my opinion, we had more trees planted in that district in the last two years than has been planted in Sweden or Norway in the last twenty years, believe it or not, Ripley.

He seems to have had an influence over the Ex-Minister of Natural Resources, so much so that when I tried to get half a dozen to plant on Brigus Barrens it could not be done, but the honourable Minister of Public Welfare who happens to be the member for Carbonear-Bay de Verde had more trees planted in that district than Europe, including Norway, and all the other countries, did in the last twenty years, so instead of having all those people I suggest they come over here and go to Carbonear to learn how to plant trees. I would suggest to the honourable member that the member for Carbonear-Bay de Verde show them how to plant trees.

MR. COURAGE: Or put him in the Chair for Sylviculture.

MR. FAHEY: I believe our school teacher is only joking.

Now I agree, Mr. Speaker, with the Bill in principle, but I must say this that there are certain clauses in the Bill with which I cannot agree. In the final analysis the export of this pulpwood and the fact that it will give employment is appreciated on this side of the House as well as that side. I think we all welcome that but the fact in the final analysis is that in the past we gave away certain amounts of what we call Crown or raw timber for the labour of export and in thirty or forty years there is replacement, does not concern me but what does concern me is this; how much labour can we give? The Government is concerned on the other hand that they are getting $5 a cord on this wood which would probably add up to a million dollars a year. That is very good from the Government's point of view and I agree looking at it from a revenue point of view, but it just happens I am looking at it from the labour angle. We only get the chance to cut the wood for export and not to put it into a finished product. In other words with this new machinery that will come in there will be less labour than in the past per cord and for that reason I am a bit doubtful, but I agree with the Bill in principle, due to the fact that it will give employment and a certain amount of revenue to the country.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Speaker, the Premier in his usual manner found fault with the Opposition saying the other day that there was not a decent debate put up by the Opposition. I feel, like the honourable member for Labrador—I don't want to speak when unnecessary, Sir, there has been too many long speeches from the other side, otherwise the House would have been closed long ago. Now the honourable member for Labrador spoke so well of the Lake Melville that I felt we should fold our tents like the Arabs and steal away to Lake Melville. We must perhaps allow some latitude when he said the centre of our civilization is moving North. "For I dip into the future, far as the human eye can see, see the visions of the world and all the wonders that will be." I do hope something will come to Labrador—they have had a very hard time, that the land will become bright as the story and the land that was Cain's at last bring glory. I will rush from Newfoundland if there is such wonderful fishing down on the North West River. Unfortunately I would be seasick but I'd go for such big fish as I hear the lake trout down in some parts of Labrador ponds grow as big as twenty and twenty-five pounds, I heard they have summer days so warm that really you become credulous because after all Labrador is not so far down North—about in the same latitude as the Southern part of Scotland or the city of Paris.

MR. SMALLWOOD: If the honourable member will allow me: Goose Bay and Liverpool are exactly the same latitude.

MR. HIGGINS: Well, I was about fifty miles out, that is all.

If Lake Melville is the best part of Labrador and has a very good climate and I am not going to debate about the sylviculture at all. I accept what the honourable member told us there were some wonderful forests and I admit there ought to be a limit on the cutting which should be done selectively without careless destruction. That the trees are five times the size of Newfoundland and nothing but rich soil everywhere. I admit all that. But there are a large number of very fine men in the United States who know the forests in the United States. But now I am ready to welcome Dr. Seigheim; any man is welcome who pays $5 a cord for wood and builds a town and puts up a modern town, as it says here, and everything else. I am ready to welcome him. If I were to go up to Canada and meet a man who came out and said, "Do you come from Newfoundland? Is there anybody investing money down there? I have twenty-five millions to invest." I would say, "My dear man, we will meet you with flags." This case is the same; I would welcome him, I am afraid the scheme won't come true, I hope they succeed, I hope that Dr. Seigheim succeeds in this. It is wonderful to get $5 a cord for wood and have people down there employed. Employment in the woods I am told is very good and particularly where timber is thick and easily cut and men are paid by the cord, but I wonder if the honourable Premier forgot one thing when giving us the picture and left out what I thought an important section No. 13, "As soon as it has been established that it is a reasonable and economic proposition the financier will carry out the erection and financing of a paper and cellulose plant at Bay D'Espoir."

Now I trust for the sake of the member for Labrador that this will not be the most important thing and Dr. Seigheim decide Bay D'Espoir is a better place after all, Labrador is entitled to something. I just wonder why the Premier left that out. It is a most important item. But no matter what he is going to do if he pays $5 a cord, cuts two hundred thousand acres a year for ten years and builds a town and, yes, endow a chair of Sylviculture at the Memorial College. But I am afraid some things are subject to the permission of the timber controller of Canada and since at our request he is not bound to give this permission, there might be a war or a lot of things, and this dream may be shattered. I give the Bill my blessing and pray nothing will happen to prevent him carrying it out so we may have good work and fair employment.

MR. JANES: I am not going to speak.

MR. SPEAKER: Does the honourable member wish to speak to the Bill.

MR. JANES: I merely want to make a point, there was a point raised by the honourable member for Harbour Main-Bell Island and I am not quite sure how the press or the radio might take it. It was his argument that in view of the fact that the company going into Labrador might be using mechanized equipment and on that basis there will be less people employed. I want to tell him, Sir, that if there are any physical wrecks in Newfoundland it is lumbermen over fifty-five. I know of no other class of workers in this country nor anywhere else who suffer as much as our lumbermen after they pass the age of fifty-five. There are such men in the woods today and the cutting of wood calls for tremendous physical effort and hard work. Most of our people, I don't know what statistics the Department of Welfare might have on it, but in my opinion, no small number today receiving dependent's allowances are lumbermen who have worn themselves out. And if this Government going into Labrador can bring in mechanized equipment and make the cutting of wood and the lumber industry less arduous than it is it will be to the benefit of the Province. I see no justification in this mechanized age to have men going out and exerting themselves to the point where they grow old and become absolute physical wrecks just because of it.

MR. SMALLWOOD : Mr. Speaker, if no other honourable gentleman wishes to speak, I will very briefly close the case for the Bill.

My honourable friend, the Leader of the Opposition touched very briefly on the matter of debate in this Chamber. I have in the past two or three days enjoyed myself in this House as I have not done since I came in here as an elected member because for the first time since this General Assembly was elected two and a half years ago we have had a debate that has had body to it. We have had issues of first class importance that elicited speeches that were worth hearing and I think the past two or three days have been a credit to this House.

Now, I would like to say a word in particular about the speech of the honourable member for Labrador. I feel less free to express my mind about it because of the sentiments he expressed in the closing part of his speech; leaving that aside, however, I think I can say that it was one of the finest speeches I have ever heard, delivered quite extemporaneously in such language, picturesque and colourful. It was packed tight full of fascinating information and threw light on that great Lake Melville area which I felt quite sure was entirely new to the most of us in this Chamber. I hope that before Hansard is printed a year or more from now it may be possible to get a transcript of the honourable gentleman's speech so that it may be possible for the newspapers to publish it. I can well imagine the Department of Education putting it in booklet form and circulating it to the schools in Newfoundland, I can well imagine the Department of Economic Development printing it as a pamphlet form and circulating it amongst industrialists, bankers and capitalists across North America and in Europe as a description of the area. I am sure that the House listened with the greatest interest to the honourable gentleman's speech.

Now, Mr. Speaker, as to the Bill itself there cannot surely be much left to say. The matter has been thoroughly well debated, in great good humour by all the parties and members on all sides of the House who seem to be in agreement that it is a fine deal. If it is called off now, and that is one point I would like to say just this last year the Minister of Public Welfare and I accompanied by the then Minister of Finance, the present Senator Quinton and Dr. Valdmanis travelled by car the entire length of Western Germany from South to North and we travelled through many miles of forest because the highway, or some parts of it, ran through the centre of some of the state forests of Germany, unfenced. We got out more than once and travelled through the trees a quarter of a mile or more and it was a highly impressive sight such as I had never seen before, which none of us with the exception of Dr. Valdmanis had ever seen before. It was not a forest, it was a vast park and I was informed that every individual tree in that forest in Germany is numbered which is entered in a book and its life history is recorded and there is no tree there can be cut except upon instructions and by number so that the number is recorded in the register. The limbs of the tree are required to be removed, not even twigs are permitted to be left lying on the ground so that as we walked through that forest it reminded you in a way of a great cathedral, the trees are well spaced, there is lots of sunlight and these trees grow very straight and very tall and with very few limbs until well toward the top and so you can picture walking through such a forest with rays of sunlight slanting down through the trees. Now I think that is scientific forestry. As a matter of fact I think Germany is the original home of scientific forestry, I believe it was the great Bismark, the Iron Chancellor, who introduced it as one of the means of preparing Germany for war, a war measure to make Germany more self-supporting in timber.

I believe that under similar circumstances the honourable member for Ferryland would be right, namely to go into Labrador, Lake Melville, and get to the point where we could cut and export, and do all the physical things required to export two hundred thousand cords of wood a year. It would take two or three years with those Finns and Swedes and their mechanized methods of cutting and their great efficiency. If there is any way to do it, this is it and it will be done by these men, very effectively. The more I live the more I learn and the more respect I come to have for European thoroughness and efficiency. I think here in the New World it has been altogether too easy to get things and to do things. Nature has been very prolific in North America and on the other hand Nature has been quite niggardly in Europe and the millions of people who live there have had to be frugal and careful and efficient. They have to make things go further. They have to do with less. While the people of North America have slipped into profligate ways because there seems to be no particular reason to be economic and frugal and prudent, the people of Europe learned the trick of efficiency, making a little go a long way, of learning to do a lot with a little. That is the background of European economy. Coupled to that is the well known thoroughness of North Western and North Eastern Europe. I think of countries such as Switzerland, Belgium, Holland and Denmark, Sweden, Finland, Latvia and Estonia, that kind of efficiency and thoroughness with general European background of needing to make a little go a long way. I think the introduction of that into this continent, into our part of this continent, to Lake Melville gives promise of efficient results that could not reasonably otherwise be expected to follow. I confidently expect to see it. I have met Dr. Scigheim more than once. He and another European gentleman entertained us at dinner one night in an European City, I forget which it was. I have heard about him from various people. He is one of the greater timber men in Europe, a man of great wealth, who, if it is any interest to the House, lives in a castle, which is well known, a man of wealth and great background in the timber business and he is all that the honourable member for Labrador said, civilized, distinguished, who possesses a tremendous knowledge. If that combination of German, Swedish and Finnish know-how and drive can be of benefit to Newfoundland, I think it would be shortsighted for Newfoundland to fail to take advantage of it.

On the air last night on the National News Bulletin I heard of a new drive on the part of the mining interests of Canada to bring in Belgians, Dutch, Estonians, Latvians, etc., into Canada. But there is great difficulty about it because the Australians and New Zealanders have gotten in there ahead of them and have taken thousands of these people from those countries. Since the war ended there has been a drive on in the British Colonies and other parts of the world to get the best of these Germans, Belgians, Latvians, Swedes and Finns by businessmen and capitalists.

I don't think Newfoundland should consider herself too big and independent and too proud to share in that rush, if by so doing our own people can be served. If we could bring in ten Germans with the result that ninety Newfoundlanders would get new jobs, would we stop? Where would the House or the people of this Province want to stop? If Newfoundlanders were to get ninety jobs for every ten we bring in, where would we stop? At a hundred? five hundred? a thousand? fifteen hundred? Would we stop at five thousand?

MR. RUSSELL: You are running up against that labour shortage.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Until we reach the labour shortage of the honourable member for Harbour-Main-Bell Island.

Although we on this side of the House have some doubts this deal is all too good to be true, it is a magnificent deal if it comes off, a million dollars a year into the Treasury and fifteen hundred Newfoundlanders at least assured of a chance to earn a good living. It is almost too good to be true. We can only keep our fingers crossed and hope for the best and go along with those people and wish them the best of luck and success, and try to do everything in our power to help make it a success.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I conclude as I began, although I can't find the words to express what I feel about this Bill and about the quality of the debate of the last two or three days. I think back to some of the past debates in this House, debates I have heard in this Chamber as far back as thirty years ago, and I feel we are beginning at last to get back some of that greatness of debate. I don't think any member should apologize for speaking the full length of time permitted under the rules of the House, two hours.

MR. FAHEY: You mentioned thirty years ago. I don't think —

MR. SMALLWOOD: I am fifty.

MR. FAHEY: You are not like the women, they keep their arguments light and their age dark.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I started coming to this Chamber at fourteen years of age. I was living at the time as a boarder at Bishop Feild College and I could not wait for school to get out to dart up here and sit in the balcony and listen to Sir Robert Band. I was an active politician. I was an active politician and journalist busily defending the fishery regulations by pen and voice and travelled for Sir William Coaker along the South West Coast holding meetings defending the fishery regulations. For thirty years I have followed up debates and I am very pleased and delighted.

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable Premier is out of order.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I am fully aware of the time and won't go on beyond the time.

Again I say in closing how pleased I am and I know the House was impressed by the brilliant and colourful speech of the honourable member for Labrador.

Mr. Speaker, I move the second reading of this Bill.

Read a second time; ordered referred to committee of the whole on tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I move the remaining orders of the day be deferred, and that the House at its rising adjourn until tomorrow Friday at 3:00 of the clock.

The House adjourned accordingly.

FRIDAY, June 15, 1951.

The House opened at three of the clock.

Giving Notice of Motions and Questions

HON. J. R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, I give notice that I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Authorize the Government to Establish and Dispose of Industrial Enterprises."

HON. LESLIE R. CURTIS (Attorney General): Mr. Speaker, I give notice that I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Amend the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1950."

HON. DR. H. L. POTTLE (Minister of Public Welfare): Mr. Speaker,

I give notice that I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill "An Act Further to Amend the Crown Lands Act, 1950."

MR. FOGWILL: Mr. Speaker, I give notice I will on tomorrow ask the honourable Minister of Supply, how many pounds of ham and bacon were supplied to the various public institutions in St. John's for the months of January, February, March, April and May, information to include the name of the supplier for each month, the brands, and the price per pound. Also, who has the order for the supply of ham and bacon for the month of June, at what price per pound?

MR. J. G. HIGGINS (Leader of the Opposition): Mr. Speaker, I do not think question No. 115 was answered yesterday.

HON. C. H. BALLAM (Minister of Labour): Mr. Speaker, I think, I answered part of it the previous day and mentioned that those men were hired out here on those jobs. But I mentioned yesterday these contractors have certain people working, on key jobs, and when the job is completed they will be returned to their own country. They are not on a pensionable basis but are on contract rates, hired by the contractors doing the job. This is quite customary and the common practice.

MR. HIGGINS: That is not an answer to my question.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I can inform the House the question is not going to be answered.

Orders of the Day

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, before you call order No. 2, may I say that there are three important amendments we propose to make, one of which has already been announced eliminating altogether the clause giving the Government additional land not specified in the Bill. I forget the number of the clause. The other is to revise completely the chief clause on mining leases, and bring it into one hundred percent conformity with the new mining Act not yet brought in. The third is really to remedy a rather stupid verbal error contained in the clause which says the Government, with permission of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, may guarantee bonds up to ten million dollars. Obviously the word "Legislature" belongs where the word "Governor in Council" occurs.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation Limited."

MR. CASHIN: Before the section is passed I would like the Premier to explain if these people mentioned here, Pippy, Bowring, and Lewin, are Government Directors.

MR. SMALLWOOD: These gentlemen have been invited by me as leader of the Government to serve on the board at least for the first year because that is all that these names mean. The names, that is, of the directors of the corporation until the first annual meeting at which the directors will be elected. I understand that is customary on incorporation of a new company and I have asked these gentlemen to serve on the board without remuneration. Now when the first annual meeting of the corporation is held obviously the shareholders, in proportion to the shares they hold, will elect the directors suitable to them, except that it is provided further on in the Act that the representatives of the minority group shall be entitled to one director. Now, I may say the honourable the Attorney General is piloting the Bill. I don't mind having questions directed to me also and I shall always answer them if it is in the public interest to do so. I was referring not to this particular matter but to questions of recent vintage.

MR. CASHIN: The point is, Mr. Chairman, that there is no section in this Act as far as I have read, no particular clause saying how the number shall be so, not less than nine, not more than fifteen. Now these three gentlemen are, as I understand it, the government directors, but there is nothing here to confirm that, and I object frankly to Mr. Lewin being a director on the ground that no man can serve two masters. He is working for Bowaters and their interests may be apart from this. The gentleman may be the best man in the world, and it is not fair to him, and not fair to the company he represents, the biggest mill in the world and under this Act there may be a possibility of another in Newfoundland or Labrador, and I don't think it is fair to either Mr. Lewin or the Government that he should be there to express an opinion on it. With all due respect to Mr. Lewin's qualifications and everything else, I think it is placing him in an embarrassing position and I think the Government should have left him out.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Does the honourable gentleman consider the implications of this question? Supposing the people most interested in establishment of the third paper mill in Newfoundland were Bowaters?

MR. CASHIN: That is doubly the reason why he should not be here.

MR. SMALLWOOD: If that should happen to be the case it is doubly the reason why he should be there.

MR. CASHIN: For Bowaters interests.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is hard to separate the interests of Bowaters and the interests of Newfoundland. Is it not desirable that Bowaters has so big a stake in Newfoundland, so great that it is virtually impossible to separate them, virtually impossible, I was going to say with the exception of the C.N.R., probably with that exception, it is the largest single industry or employer in Newfoundland. Their stake in this Province is tremendous. They are now a hundred million dollar enterprise and if Bowaters themselves should hope to be the ones to put up a third paper mill in Newfoundland it would be very likely—now I don't want to go any further than that—well, the honourable gentleman accepted this, that these are the directors only until the first annual meeting and at that annual meeting the major shareholders will have a completely free hand to elect all of the directors except one, the one which is provided for in the agreement as a representative of the minority. Now, that is a picture so long as they hold not more than the ten per cent of these shares. All other directors are such as the majority stockholders determine to have. That is the normal position but at first the directors would be as named in the Act but only until the first annual meeting. I hesitate to say anything that when published would appear to commit anyone but we are most anxious, the whole House, and no one more than the honourable and gallant member himself to have a third paper mill in Newfoundland, so is Mr. Lewin. We have had countless conversations and discussions on it and he has turned his books and all information on it wide open to us for data and has a special report prepared by his company both in New York and Corner Brook and he has come here several times so to discuss the matter with me in very frank discussions. We have had long distance telephones and I am not committing anyone to anything when I say it is just a report on the facts. But I honestly think in the interest of the paper industry in Newfoundland two things are necessary, one the Corporation, and two it is very desirable to have that one man more perhaps than any one, with the exception of my honourable friend, Mr. Harriman, if we want to have a third paper mill in Newfoundland. He is a pretty obvious man to invite on the board and his acceptance of it can be taken, to say the very least, as an action of good will on his part. I think it is inconceivable that a gentleman who is Vice-President and General Manager of Bowaters of Newfoundland would accept office on the Board of this Corporation with any purpose or motive in the world other than to be of benefit to Newfoundland. I don't think there is any doubt about that. Honestly if my honourable and gallant friend will read between the lines then I think he will agree it is a smart thing to have Mr. Lewin who can bring to that Corporation and the meetings of the board tremendous first hand information about paper mill production costs in Newfoundland. Not only the costs but the background of these costs, the variations, the reasons for these costs, problems involved in the knowledge of the engineering and practical problems involved in the production of paper and pulp in Newfoundland. Now, who can be more help to be able to give real dependable information than Mr. Lewin. Now, Mr. Grouchy, I am sorry to say is not well at the moment, I believe he is away on vacation and is not at all a well man, so that Mr. Lewin is the one man to bring to this Corporation this amount of intimate knowledge of the paper mill industry in this Province.

MR. RUSSELL: Was Mr. Grouchy invited to be on the board?

MR. SMALLWOOD: To begin with he was away and it would be a mere courtesy to invite him when we know he could not accept. Mr. Grouchy had to refuse us but he would have been equally willing, and both of them for obvious reasons would be interested in this set-up for procuring development. For obvious reasons it would have been good to have both of these gentlemen but not being able to get both we got one.

Now, I know the honourable and gallant member for Ferryland has this matter of a third paper mill in his heart. I know he talked about it in the National Convention and there is no man in this House today more interested in seeing a third paper mill. A third paper mill in Newfoundland has a tremendous attraction for our people, for all of us. It would be a great labour-giving industry and I know that now there is to be a Corporation he will want it to succeed. I am sure everyone in the House knows that, we all want it to succeed and we want to see the right directors on it.

MR. FAHEY: With respect to the suggestion that anything said in this House ought not to be publicly recorded, published widely, far be it from me but I have surmised that Mr. Lewin has discussed the possibility of a third paper mill there, here, and in New York. That all can be recorded, I think.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Yes.

MR. CASHIN: I appreciate the Premier's reply but I still have to look back at what happened before Corner Brook was built. I started to explain here the other night how in the A.N.D. Company the present owners in England showed the A.N.D. Company as losing money in order that no one else would try to come over here as they would be hit right between the eyes with the fact that the A.N.D. Company is losing money. That was shown on the records at that time and helped to block a mill in Newfoundland for twelve to fifteen years, until the British income tax rose to such heights that the A.N.D. Company in Great Britain allowed them to show their gains over here instead of over there and thus avoid the high taxation, as at that time for a short period there was no profit taxation in Newfoundland. From 1924 to 1928, I think they abolished the income tax in 1924 and it fell to me to bring in a renewal of it when I came into office.

Now for that reason, in view of what happened thirty years ago, I feel it would be an embarrassing position in which to place a representative of the A.N.D. Company or Bowaters. It would not be fair to them. What would happen is this, for argument's sake, these two men were on the board and the hopes for the mill did not materialize, there is nothing to clear them of being accused of using their best efforts to block a third mill, nothing will clear them whether they blocked it or not. Now, I said a man cannot serve two masters. I believe they might be interested in a third mill and if so it would be an error for the Government and Bowaters to have a representative in this Corporation, I don't think it is right for Bowaters or A.N.D. Company to be on that Board. This is a new Corporation and one of its purposes is to bring about the development of Labrador wood with a mill on the Labrador or in Bay D'Espoir. These financial geniuses that are here, Harriman Ripley, and Wood Gundy, don't need Bowaters and the A.N.D. Company to find the money. They found money before and I think they have access to all the data the Government has and various other reports, the water-power on the South Coast, the water-power in Labrador and it is a case now, even in the last night's paper, it was stated that newsprint is going up, the price is going up, the Americans are raising it and I think the Federal Government in Ottawa, yesterday or this morning, authorized the increase in price, and it was pointed out by one honourable gentleman there that no new mills were being erected; during the past number of years some have been extended and others revised but there has been no new units constructed in Canada since the early thirties and then we all know what happened to the paper industry. However, there is a big demand, and the costs are going to be high. I pointed out the other day the difficulty of getting steel for construction of that plant, these are all matters to be taken into consideration and if we can find people who are interested in it, it would be a wonderful thing for Newfoundland. But I feel again that two directors, either Bowaters or A.N.D. Company will not create confidence as far as these persons will be concerned. They may know everything about the paper industry but the ordinary man is going to say that Bowaters have their fingers in the pie. I have not said anything disparaging against any of them in these few remarks.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Talking about this incredible demand for paper such as the world has never seen before, almost beyond belief, the terrific markets for newsprint paper, the trouble is that the costs of building a mill, a newsprint paper mill are staggering running anywhere from eighty million to one hundred thousand a ton of the capacity of that mill. Now the remarkable thing is that it is sometimes more profitable to have a pulp mill making craft or ordinary pulp which is just a case of taking wood and grinding it into pulp. There is most profit, I am informed, in any kind of sulphate craft paper, and we are aware of all the various uses to which it is put, paper boxes, linings for gypsum plaster, you know how that is made—two sheets of paper are run through a great machine with liquid plaster then through the molder which presses it thin to the exact thickness and hardness and that paper or board is used to line more wooded boxes but all paper cartons, cardboard cartons. Think of the hundreds of thousands of cases coming in to Newfoundland packed in paper containers, milk and all kinds of can goods are packed in paper cartons but they are all made from wood. Now take wood and turn it into newsprint or into those cardboard cartons and the difference of it is you make more money out of the latter than from newsprint. That is why there are no new newsprint mills being built but other paper mills are. My honourable friend did not read in the paper today that for the last number of years there were no newsprint mills built in Canada. There were no pulp mills built but there were a dozen to produce craft and birch sulphite of all kinds except newsprint. If they have to spend the money they naturally turn the wood into the most profitable article and newsprint is not that today although the price has gone so terrifically high.

MR. RUSSELL: As the Premier pointed out just now, the principle of the Corporation has been settled and it is the desire of everyone only to make such comments in committee as will help to make the Corporation a success. I have just this to say on it. As my honourable friend the member for Ferryland has pointed out, it is entirely up to the Government. If the Government feels there is a third party interested in the paper mill assuming, we have to assume yet, that there will be a third party approaching the Corporation, does the Government feel sure that this company won't be discouraged by coming across their greatest competitors sitting as members on the board. I take it the Government is taking that into account.

MR. CURTIS: Are they really competitors?

MR. RUSSELL: At the moment it appears to be one big happy family but in fifteen or ten years time it may not be. But anyway that is not my worry. But I ask if the Government feels confident it won't interfere in any way or discourage a third party coming into the country. There is another thing and I can't ask the newspaper not to take this but shall make it as cryptic as I can: Bowaters did not even start a second paper mill.

One way of starting a mill it to build it, another is to buy it, take it over from someone else and they build it and help to make a good success of it, that is the cheaper way to get it, and that is the Government's business, I have no objections.

MR. CURTIS: There are one or two changes. I think the Premier ought to be a member of that directorate. I think the first line of Clause 2 ought to start: Honourable J. R. Smallwood, Premier for the time being of Newfoundland. The same as in section (I) clause 3, the only thing being if you do that then in clause 3 it says the person named in section two of this Act shall be these directors. If you say in two "the directors" you more or less suggest they are the only directors, so I think it is better to have this Honourable J. R. Smallwood, Premier of Newfoundland as first on the list of paragraph 2.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It was suggested I be chairman for life but I declined, I feel it ought to be the Premier for the time being, although I expect to be here for the next twenty-four years. Still I might die or something like that may happen.

MR. RUSSELL: If you make this succeed we will make you honourable chairman for life, that is a promise.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It takes two to make a bargain. I have to accept, you see. I think the Honourable Chairman should be the Premier of Newfoundland. That is why I insisted on that change.

MR. CASHIN: Is there any clause going to be inserted to say so and so are Government Directors.

MR. CURTIS: No, that will be dealt with when it comes to the election of officers. The Government has nine hundred thousand shares and will have control.

MR. CASHIN: There is no indication here that those gentlemen are government directors.

MR. CURTIS: That is indicated in the Act. As long as we have the veto it is not important, you will find all through the Bill veto clauses giving the Lieutenant Governor in Council so much rights.

MR. CASHIN: The point is when we made the Humber Deal where we guaranteed twenty million dollars, it said the Government were entitled to have two directors on the board and the Bank of England one and the British Government one.

MR. CURTIS: That matter may be considered when we come to that clause later.

MR. CASHIN: At the present time we are appointing them directors not government directors.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The Premier is first on the list in clause two.

Motion carried.

MR. FAHEY: Mr. Chairman, I would like to draw the attention of the Attorney General where at any time any vacancy may occur from time to time the board has the right to go ahead and elect other members of the board. Well, there may come a time when members of the Newfoundland Government may die or resign as the case may be and the remaining directors may elect other directors and we could be left with no representative on the Board as this clause is read at the present time.

MR. CURTIS: That is possible but most improbable, as my honourable friend the Leader of the Opposition knows on a board like this when one man dies and his place has to be filled it is very good practice to fill the vacancy from someone representative of the people whom the retired director represented.

MR. FAHEY: I don't see the sense of it. Even when we try to assist the Government from this side of the House, it reminds me of the other day when I draw attention to another matter and they did not accept it but left it alone and is still wrong. But on this Committee now we have the same thing. The honourable member for Ferryland also brought up a point dealing with—when he asked the question in this particular clause dealing with the Newfoundland Government Representatives on the Board. But under this clause if it is possible that the remaining members of the Board can elect whom they like from this part of the world, then it is possible, nobody can tell me it is not possible that we can be left without any representative of the Newfoundland Government. We have a clause somewhere else saying the Government of Newfoundland must have two or more directors on the Board, but this clause here can leave us at some time with no directors.

MR. HIGGINS: I think the Government ought to look after all eventualities at the present moment. If the ceiling happened to fall down and all the Government members were killed then we would find ourselves with only foreign representatives. When the Directors are all going on one plane and if that plane were lost, which is possible, I would suggest then that the directors go in separate planes so that at least one shall survive.

MR. CURTIS: Would my honourable friend seriously suggest that. It might be remembered that all the minority interests have the right to elect just one director, that is all they are entitled to and the Newfoundland Government by virtue of its preponderating voting power put in all the rest. That comes under the clause dealing with elections. So I think we may safely leave that.

Clauses 1, 2 and 3 passed and carried.

MR. HIGGINS: I don't see the words senior shareholders, but it is used over towards the end.

MR. CASHIN: I think, Mr. Chairman, with all due respect that we should take out the words "Thereby improve the standard of living" I think that is superfluous and looks too begging on our part.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is actually the purpose of the Corporation. That is the one thing that separates this corporation from all other corporations and we cannot take out this very thing that tells what it is principally organized to do.

MR. CASHIN: It does not get you anywhere. You will never see it in the articles of incorporation.

MR. CURTIS: All other corporations are incorporated to make money.

MR. CASHIN: This one means to lose it.

MR. HIGGINS: The honourable member for Ferryland took those words from my mouth. I think the phrase to improve the standards of living of the people should be taken out. We should not include the welfare of the people like an advertisement.

Clauses 4 and 5 passed and carried.

MR. HIGGINS: This clause takes away from private enterprise, it is altogether too broad. Under 6 (a) and there is a second one under (b) (ii) to purchase or in any way or manner to otherwise acquire any property real or personal and any rights of any kind or nature. Personally, I don't like this at all. I claim it is very broad, taking in all business whatsoever.

MR. CURTIS: I hesitate, Mr. Chairman, to agree to any amendment of this clause, it was drawn by a firm of solicitors. Unless the honourable member insists I prefer to let it stand, certainly for the present. We just took it as we got it, Mr. Chairman.

Section 6 read and passed.

MR. FAHEY: They have a nice one in number 7 too.

MR. HIGGINS: Does that mean interest on one half?

MR. CURTIS: No, the principal is still there.

MR. CASHIN: Clause 7, Sub-section (2): The sum of five hundred thousand dollars shall be and become paid-in surplus and only the remainder shall be capital of the Corporation. Now, I take it the five hundred thousand dollars would be set aside from the invested sum as security, what are they going to do with that five hundred thousand dollars now?

MR. CURTIS: I think the position is this. The company starts the business and will have a million dollars from the point of view of the balance sheet and five hundred thousand dollars as surplus. But from the point of view of using either capital or surplus, it depends entirely on what section it comes under, both amounts come under assets of the corporation and are liable to be used by the Corporation for the purpose of its business. The idea of the surplus in the early stages is good for exploration for mineral development or anything, all the capital is still intact. It is purely a book-keeping procedure. The position is it is a non-par share company, the value of the shares are really the value of the assets divided by the number of shares. The idea of just taking so much as surplus is purely a book-keeping procedure for the sake of the balance sheet.

MR. HIGGINS: That is contrary to Newfoundland Corporation law.

MR. CURTIS: We have allowed it, now of course this section allowed nothing for shares which we have been asked to do by several companies.

MR. CASHIN: Now the Newfoundland Government puts in ninety-nine thousand dollars. That includes the surplus.

MR. CURTIS: That surplus means this is split.

MR. CASHIN: In other words it is to be jacked up another million dollars and what the House passed yesterday should be six million.

MR. CURTIS: Except that this is not an expenditure, purely an investment.

MR. CASHIN: No, but it should be in supply.

Mr. Chairman, before that clause is passed I want to be quite clear on it. We heard yesterday the Government has to bring in a supplementary supply to cover this nine hundred thousand dollars?

MR. SMALLWOOD: This is a new Bill.

MR. CASHIN: In other words, point I am trying to get at, your total expenditure including capital and everything now will be practically forty-five instead of forty-four millions because you are investing nine hundred thousand in this and it is not included in the estimates. Consequently the supply Bill yesterday should be—

MR. SMALLWOOD: We could not include that Bill in the previous list already passed by the Legislature.

MR. CASHIN: This gives you authority to buy the shares if put through.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It does not give any money.

MR. CASHIN: It says the Government are allowed to invest nine hundred thousand dollars.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The honourable and gallant member may be right.

MR. CASHIN: I am never wrong.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I could give an answer to that which could lead to bloodshed. It is better to follow the formal procedure and bring in the supply Bill.

MR. CASHIN: I just brought it up to know whether you were awake.

Section 7 passed.

Section 8 read.

MR. CURTIS: I wonder if we might stop there. There are several little alterations on page nine, the manufacture of lumber cut on said concession. There are two amendments: On the third line page nine, after the word "Concession" add the words: "Or the manufacture of lumber cut on said concessions."

MR. CASHIN: Mr. Chairman, on page 9, I notice the stumpage is 50c. a cord.

MR. CURTIS: Page 9, line 12, after the word "contingency or," insert the word "Delay."

MR. CASHIN: On page 9 it says: you have to pay stumpage, 50c. a cord. How is it they have to pay only fifty cents a cord here and five dollars in the other outfit. If you collect five dollars what are you going to do about it?

MR. SMALLWOOD: The fifty cents is taxation that goes into the Treasury of the Corporation. In making a deal by actual operating companies we will obviously not give that concession. The operating company will pay this stumpage of fifty cents to the Government directly into the Treasury but also pay more, probably much more than that to the Corporation.

MR. RUSSELL: Is there any possibility of upping that to a dollar?

MR. CURTIS: The only question is do we charge a stumpage to paper companies? We have not in the past, have we?

MR. RUSSELL: I would like to see the Government make that as high as they reasonably can.

MR. CURTIS: It is 25c. a thousand feet now.

MR. CASHIN: The Corporation might charge $5.00 to some outfit or outside concern of which 90% would come to you and 10% to the other people. Well now why should not one hundred percent go to the Government?

MR. SMALLWOOD: The Government only owns 90% of the shares.

MR. CASHIN: They are making a deal with the Government through a Corporation though the Government has 90% control. Now they are getting $5.00 from another Company for another separate deal.

MR. SMALLWOOD: No, from them the Government gets 50c., but in the one last night $5.00. That is for wood to be exported.

MR. CASHIN: There is a provision over here where—

MR. SMALLWOOD: Fifty thousand cords, $5.00 a cord, half a million a year. If Bowaters want to export, which they very well might, they pay a quarter of a million which they don't pay now and should have under the old agreement.

MR. CASHIN: I think you can't make fish of one and flesh of another. The other company has to pay $5.00 unless it is reconsidered later on which goes to prove my point. 50c. a cord is a very reasonable charge. I hope that you can get it. The point I am trying to make is this: Here you are charging this Corporation, the Government 50c. a cord and Seigheim is going to pay $5.00 a cord. Now it is not fair to Dr. Seigheim or Dr. someone else who will have to pay $5.00 a cord.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is a different situation altogether.

MR. CASHIN: It is not, it is the same situation. You are paying 50c. a cord and this Corporation may sell to someone else and Dr. Seigheim or some other has to pay $5.00 a cord and that company is going to cut two hundred thousand cords and the Corporation would make $4.50 a cord, that would be eight hundred thousand dollars a year profit of which ten percent goes to someone else, looking at it from the ten percent angle. We will assume that Seigheim does not go down and develop at all and you say okay give us $5 a cord and you, the Corporation, gives the Government 50c. and the Corporation gets $4.50, a net profit of eight hundred thousand dollars. These other people put in one hundred thousand dollars initial capital and made a profit of 90% in the first year operations. Pretty good business.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Pretty good imagining.

MR. CURTIS: In other areas.

MR. CASHIN: Here is the position, there are very few Seigheims, I am afraid and the thing is this Corporation are getting this from the Government for 50c. a cord and Seigheim has to pay $5.00 because the Government owns 90% of the other, but forget about the 10% the other people own.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The honourable member is now beginning to glimpse what we realized from the beginning in our negotiations with Harriman-Ripley and Wood Gundy, namely, that they will really put their monies into getting enterprises going because it will pay them to do it. That is what I mean when I say—

MR. CASHIN: Did they have nothing to do with Seigheim?

MR. SMALLWOOD: No, nothing.

MR. CASHIN: You got him on your own?

MR. SMALLWOOD: You will see an amendment proposed by us a little further on requiring the Government at the request of the Corporation to require Seigheim to cut up to one hundred thousand cords a year for the Corporation apart from the two hundred thousand.

MR. CASHIN: They will cut two hundred thousand for themselves and one hundred thousand for the Corporation.

MR. SMALLWOOD: In our agreement with Seigheim, Seigheim is required to cut wood at the direction of the Government on his area, over and above the two hundred thousand cords which he must cut. Now we are going to suggest an amendment to the Bill presently, a little further along to this effect: That the Corporation may request the Government to request Seigheim to cut for the Corporation up to one hundred thousand cords a year but cutting it for the Government, or for the Government's agent which will be this Corporation. Now the Government may require Seigheim to cut even more than that because in the Seigheim agreement he undertakes to cut over and above the two hundred thousand any wood the Government may direct him to do so. Now if the Corporation asks the Government to require him to do so, Seigheim must cut a hundred thousand cords for the Corporation and to cut other wood for someone else if the Government should so direct him. The payments on that wood are a matter entirely for the Government to determine from time to time. That is the profit Seigheim would make cutting at cost plus; what the Government would get as a stumpage is a matter for the Government to determine when the occasion arises and it is not limited to fifty cents. Now it would be childish to expect that a firm such as Harriman-Ripley and Wood Gundy and Company would come into this partnership no matter how much we credited them with decency and a normal desire to get into a creative and constructive enterprise. It would be childish to expect them to go in without making a dollar.

MR. CASHIN: I know that but not 90%.

MR. SMALLWOOD: If they have the incentive and are in a position to make a dollar, it is common sense to expect that they will throw themselves boots and all into the drive to procure that economic development. Now is not that exactly what we want and if they make money out of it we must not complain, for every cent we make nine cents, for every dollar we make nine, so we must not complain we must be happy if they make money because that means we are making nine times as much as they make. It is our Province, it is our timber our water-power.

MR. CASHIN: You will have possibly fifty million dollars in it, they have one hundred thousand dollars.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Let us thank God that he gave to the people of Newfoundland the assets we start with together with a few dollars that Harriman-Ripley comes in with, with fewer dollars but with something far more vital to Newfoundland today than just dollars, far more vital. We don't need the one hundred thousand dollars, if we are putting in nine hundred thousand dollars it would be just as easy for us to put in the additional one hundred thousand and make it a million. Then it would be wholly owned. It is not the one hundred thousand dollars but it is the name of Harriman-Ripley and Wood Gundy's name and their ability and the connections and their know-how in getting others to come in and start enterprises. That is worth money, worth their getting a profit especially when we get nine times the profit they get. It is not perfect, far from perfect but it is not a bad deal.

MR. CASHIN: But can't the Premier appreciate this point, we can't make fish of one and flies of another. Seigheim is paying $5.00 a cord. If they are paying $5.00 a cord why can't this Corporation pay just as much, if you can get $5.00 from Seigheim and only 50c. from Harriman-Ripley and Wood Gundy they are not worth talking about.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is quite a different thing to get for exporting and cutting raw wood and getting a mill. It is altogether another matter.

MR. CASHIN: Here is the position also with Seigheim. We are trying to draft into the Seigheim Bill, he is supposed to cut one hundred thousand board feet a year and in the next paragraph here now, Seigheim may have to cut a hundred thousand cords for this Corporation. I am going to be quite honest. I don't think he can do it and carry out his contract. I know I am out of order, Mr. Chairman, but I can't see how he can do it in 1952.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It may take until 1953.

MR. CASHIN: At least, and into 1954 to bring it up to that production.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We won't ask him to.

MR. CASHIN: I say he won't be able to do it next year.

MR. CURTIS: We want the five dollar wood first.

MR. SMALLWOOD: What we want in point of fact is a mill.

MR. CASHIN: What are we talking about here?

MR. RUSSELL: I have a few remarks I wish to make on section (a). After that I don't think I am going to make any more comments on the Bill. As the House knows perfectly well, if I had my way, wherever it is conceivably possible to eliminate the phrase "Lieutenant Governor in Council" without nullifying the whole set up, I would have it changed to "Legislature." There are times when if we change it to Legislature it would spoil the whole Bill, and it would therefore be out of order even to mention it. We have already had two or three changes made and I would like to see some more every place possible without changing it. On top of page 8, in the fourth line, "Subject to the approval of the Lieutenant Governor in Council." I have no objection to it whatsoever there because the House is given certain specific rights which are outlined in detail, so that I see no objection. But when it comes down to the bottom of the page in the second last line, it is a more serious matter. If you examine that proviso, already discussed at some length in the debate. Let us examine it, it is worse than the first time I studied it: Here we are giving into the hands of a corporation, and I don't care if it is one hundred percent government, we are giving into the hands of the Corporation, and it may be one hundred percent government owned in thirty days or at any time within the next five years, we are giving into the hands of this Corporation, the timber limits of four to five thousand square miles. I said on another occasion, they don't have to do a thing with it, for I believe ten years at least. Supposing the Corporation sits on it. I don't think they are as likely to sit on it as some of the leasers sit.

MR. CURTIS: With the Premier on the Board, do you think they are going to sit on it?

MR. RUSSELL: The Premier may be on the Board for a while.

MR. CURTIS: They are not going to let anyone sit on them, don't worry.

MR. RUSSELL: I don't want to give him the right, I don't think he would want the right but a mandate, instructions from the House not to sit, that is what I want to give him. The Premier is not immortal; anyone might be Premier before the three years are up. For instance you cannot interfere with this Corporation for five years providing the continuance of that right after five years shall be subject to the conditions that they or their assignees or transferees shall cut not less than one hundred million board feet and shall manufacture or procure the manufacture in Newfoundland of the timber so cut into lumber or pulp, and that, if, during any such five calendar year period, the average annual quantity of timber cut on said concession and so manufactured shall be less than one hundred million board feet, said right shall be subject to termination on such date, not earlier than three years after the end of such five calendar year period. It may be ten, twelve, thirteen, and it may be fifteen, sixteen, seventeen or twenty years before the end which the Lieutenant-Governor may fix by order in Council. Now, let us assume that after a period of thirteen years the Government wonder if they are going to make that crowd do something or get off that claim. I think certainly by the time that period was up and surely by fourteen or fifteen years it would undoubtedly be time for the Legislature to begin to have some say but by that time they still have no such say. Surely by that time it would not hurt the Bill or the Corporation one bit for some power of the Legislature to be introduced there at the end of that section.

MR. SMALLWOOD: What would you suggest?

MR. RUSSELL: I don't know, to say the Legislature shall fix, would not make it read very sensibly, but I do believe that it will be time then to have this aired in the House.

MR. CURTIS: The Legislature could instruct the Lieutenant Governor in Council.

MR. RUSSELL: Well, Sir, I am not going to waste time, but I earnestly appeal to the Government that every time they can change "Lieutenant Governor in Council" to Legislature, I hope they do it, and I do feel that particularly at the bottom of that page there should be some provisions by the Legislature without being in a position of moving a vote of censure against the Government they should be able to do it.

MR. CASHIN: In connection with that particular paragraph, it now comes to light after closer study that under this paragraph four or five thousand square miles of probably the best timber areas of Labrador are tied up in this Corporation owned ninety percent by the Government and ten percent by the people whom the Government have identified with them and in whom they place a lot of confidence. They don't have to do anything in connection with this property for ten years, and it is peculiar that a hundred million board feet is mentioned here, as the Premier remarked there is no possible chance of saw mills being erected to cut a hundred million feet of lumber a year. Is it not possible to give those people an option on this thing for five years, five years is plenty? We have been criticizing other people with leases on the timber areas in Newfoundland and Labrador for not carrying out their contract, not building the mills specified. Now here we are in a somewhat similar position. We are giving this Corporation full control of four or five thousand square miles and they have not to do a thing with it. We don't know what is going to happen, don't know if an effort is to be made or if it may not be made. Bowaters may not want a mill but in four or five years from now someone else may want it and it is tied up here. Now, further on in this Act it is pointed out, on page 12, I think, at any time after five years the right is reserved to the Government to develop a pulp and paper mill on this particular area just the same as the right to the water-power.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The Government has that under this Act from the very start; because we are the Corporation.

MR. CASHIN: I know, but as you pointed out very rightly before, you have those people identified with you.

MR. SMALLWOOD: If there are others interested we can get them as members of the Corporation as well as merely members of the Government.

MR. CASHIN: They are not going out to do it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I agree to put the word Legislature here, I agree to that. That is practical.

MR. CURTIS: I don't think it is prudent because the Lieutenant Governor in Council functions twelve months and the Legislature only functions for three.

MR. SMALLWOOD: On that point I am going to make a statement a little later on in prorogation. It seems to me, the world being what it is and conditions what they are, and the Government is anxious to procure development and the Audit Act being what it is we are either going to have to keep the House in continuous session or eliminate the Audit Act to allow us to do things, the Act presently does not allow us to develop. To me the result might well be we may have to adjourn the House up to the day before the new session and then prorogue and on the following day open a new session so that the House is in continuous session to be called together by the Speaker on very short notice because we have ten industrial projects, the first of which we have agreed on today up to a point where it has to come before the Cabinet. There will be nine others and if the House is closed we have to hold them up until the House meets again next year, next January or February. So I think the thing to do is keep the House in continuous session for which action the reason of the Attorney General is quite adequate, otherwise the only way to do it, and we are all agreeable is to substitute the word "Legislature" as we have in the back of our minds and have a year round session of the Legislature for the next year or two while we are putting on this drive for economic development, so that if we have to come in the House, can do so at short notice, but to follow normal procedure and prorogue the House would mean we would have to wait until a year later which would be pretty awful.

MR. RUSSELL: I will probably be shot, but I would much prefer to see it in continuous session than to see the House lose any of its rights.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I think my honourable friend must profit somehow by his championship of the rights of the House. I have tried to fathom what possible benefit there would be in that. I somehow do not think it is going to set the Province aflame exactly. It is not what I would choose as a great issue on which to make a public career. But one can keep the search going for issues, I have heard of issues in search of a politician but a politician in search of an issue is an exciting spectacle. However, the honourable gentleman has one point here in his crusade for the rights of the House, substitute "Legislature" for "Lieutenant Governor in Council."

MR. RUSSELL: The Premier will say about five hundred words and only come to the point in the last five. If it makes him feel happy I will say I have no issue as far as I am concerned, not an issue, and I don't care if it sets anyone aflame, it is a principle I believe in. I don't care who else does or who votes for it. I am arguing for a principle and let that go on the record by all means, it makes me happy.

MR. CHAIRMAN: The amendment is to strike out the words "As the Lieutenant Governor shall fix by Order-in-Council" and substitute "As the Legislature may determine."

MR. CURTIS: I wonder if I might have section (b) stand. The Premier suggested this afternoon we might modify that and my Department is drafting a new sub-section (b) so that we could probably go on to (c) and have (b) stand over.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Chairman, this section gives expropriation rights to the Corporation because it gives them the right to transfer any of the assets to any person or corporation whatsoever subject to any conditions the Cabinet may lay down. It does not say the Government shall have control of these firms or Corporations. These may be subsidiaries or the Corporation may hand over all assets in return for shares. It gives absolute control to do whatever the Cabinet or the Corporation wishes with these properties set out in the Act. They have the rights to transfer them to anybody at all without any exceptions and these bodies may carry on without any control by the Government.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I can't see how it can be otherwise. Admittedly the Corporation itself is not going to start enterprises and own and operate them. That is not the function of the Corporation. The function of the Corporation, dominated always by the Government, owned and controlled by the Government, is to procure economic development. That is the reason why the Corporation is created. Now to that Corporation the Legislature is asked to cede certain rights which it itself cannot exercise because that is not its function, it has not the capital, men or know-how but that Corporation in turn will contact firms that have the capital, have the know-how, have the means and such rights as the Corporation has; it may sell or transfer by some arrangement and that arrangement of course will vary from deal to deal, from project to project and company to company, but that it should have the right to make these separate and various deals for economic development is undeniable if you have it at all. If not let us abolish the Corporation and let every individual deal come before the House and be debated.

MR. FAHEY: That is the right way.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Yes, but definitely not if we want development. We want it. I think we all agree we want development. What we need is this Corporation organized, financed, all the year around even when the House is scattered to all the four winds.

MR. FAHEY: Where is the Department of Economic Development?

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is the Government, and the Corporation is the Government. What we are asking in the Bill is for the Corporation to have the right by having the Legislature say so. They have not the right except the Legislature gives it to them. If the House is not in session the Government is functioning but the Government, unless the right is given them by the Legislature, do not possess it. Now the Legislature can give these rights either to the Government or the Corporation, but it is necessary to give them to someone, otherwise they cannot be exercised. If we were thinking of only one project a year, yes, it is all right. For example the great Humber Deal was one project and could await negotiations until they got the "i's" dotted and the "T's" crossed and everything read and open the House and put it through.

MR. FAHEY: We had two last year without this Corporation.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Yes, and what has that got to do with it. That was a matter of the Government going out itself and building a thing and coming to the House for ratification. But here is a case entirely different, we have no company of whose existence we know of, don't know who they might be or what they are going to do. Suppose we have a dozen projects in the next nine months, are you going to hold them all up until the House meets next year?

MR. FAHEY: The House can open if necessary.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Call the House together all through that time every four or five weeks.

MR. FAHEY: If you call it once a month it would be twelve times a year. If you wish to, yes, for the benefit of the people.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It would be much more practical for the Legislature to say we give these areas to the Corporation for them to develop.

MR. FAHEY: That takes away the rights of the House. Once the House gives that right, they lose their rights in future.

MR. SMALLWOOD: No. The House may come in next year and repeal that Act. The House never gives up its rights. The House is sovereign.

MR. CURTIS: I think, Mr. Chairman, some of my honourable friends opposite are too impressed with what they think is the magnitude of these concessions. I would like to tell them that some years ago we gave the Labrador Iron Ore Company in Labrador, twenty thousand square miles to practically do what they liked to do with it. We gave the Water Power to Muskrat Falls for $30 a year for 99 years.

MR. FAHEY: Two wrongs don't make a right.

MR. CURTIS: The day before we came in office in 1949 the Commission of Government gave six thousand two hundred and fifty square miles of property in Newfoundland to Buchans.

MR. FAHEY: It is a wonder they did not give it all away.

MR. CURTIS: So I think they are too much impressed by the magnitude of this thing. The concessions are not nearly as high as we think. We are giving them away, it is true, but we are giving them away to ourselves with the Lieutenant Governor in Council as a perpetual watch dog over everything.

MR. FOGWILL: That is the trouble, we are giving it to the Cabinet.

MR. CURTIS: But the Cabinet is there to organize everything that is done. In other words there is a double check, a check by the Corporation and a check by the Lieutenant Governor in Council. I don't see how my honourable friends can seriously say we are not protected in every way.

MR. FAHEY: I appreciate, Mr. Chairman, the explanation given by the honourable the Attorney General, but nevertheless you must admit that this Act asks the House to give this Corporation nine hundred thousand dollars, for a start, of public funds and as mentioned in the Act we give the right to this Corporation to raise a bond issue subject to legislative ratification. Now, I contend a project the Government deals with is not a two by four thing which happens every day. It is not like selling a package in a grocery store, or someone selling a suit of clothes. But this involves millions and we are giving the rights to water-power, minerals and mining rights. These are not things that happen every week or every day. These are things of which there may be a half dozen in the course of the year and it takes some time to negotiate them and I presume that one agreement is like another and finally the Government would have two agreements that they would want ratified. Then if the House is not open and they cannot wait for the regular time we must lose them due to the fact that we open in February and the first session of the House opened in July and did not close until December and this year it is running into four months, it probably averages three months open, so for any time in the nine months it is necessary and here may be two or three contracts ready for development. I think it is essential that the House if prorogued should be called together again to pass this legislation. If the House is prorogued it is only a matter of calling it together for a week or two to take care of that necessary legislation. I think the Attorney General, though I appreciate his remarks, has ignored the fact, and the House here is not carried away by the magnitude of the Act but we are asked to pass legislation to give this Corporation the right to legislate for Newfoundland, we were not elected to give away that right and if anything comes up so fast as that, we are not going to have twenty-five in the next year.

MR. SMALLWOOD: You might be surprised.

MR. FAHEY: If that is so and it is so essential to have development, keep the House going all the time. It is worth it. It seems to me there may be a nigger in the wood-pile somewhere in this Act. If it is essential to have twenty-five or even fifty new developments in the next year it is worth it to the people of the Province to keep us here all the time I say, even if it takes extra pay to pay some of the members for the extra time in the House, if it is so essential and we have so many contracts. I do not agree for one moment with handing over the rights of the Legislature to this Corporation, that we are elected to take care of by the people and not to give away. I think we should hold on to that and we should not give it away and I do think any member has a right to vote with a clear conscience on all legislation and not have this Corporation take care of the business of the House of Assembly. The people elected us to the Legislature to hold on to their rights and we should do so until the people will tell us otherwise.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The House of Assembly as far back as Bond and Whiteway gave away some tens of thousands of square miles. We are not giving one inch away, we are holding on tight to ninety percent, holding it in the hands of the Government and we are selling ten percent while past Legislatures of the Government gave away scores of thousands of square miles for nothing, gave away a couple of hundred thousands of hydro-electric energy for one pepper corn, even one pepper corn a year, and I have been hunting high and low for the pepper corn, as I want to put it in the museum and I can't find it. Now, you are complaining because we ask the Legislature to vote to the Government what the Government already has.

MR. FAHEY: If they did wrong in the past should we continue it?

MR. SMALLWOOD: We are not doing wrong. But we are doing right to try and get development, right and efficiently, we have time against us not with us. It is a fight against time. There may be a bloody world war within six months. We must get development quickly. That is what the people expect, development and not talk and sermons about it, and they trust the Government and look to them for development and don't split hairs about it. Now, I am not by that implying that the House of Assembly is a mere formality or that it lacks in playing its part. The power of the House is seen in the fact that without the sanction of the House this Bill is not worth the paper it is written on. But what the House does in passing it is to create an efficient instrument to get good quick efficient development. There is nothing wrong with that. We have even agreed there that in some of the vital parts of the Bill the word "Legislature" be inserted instead of "Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council" and the guarantee of large sums of money up to ten million dollars can be done only on the authority of the House and other things to maintain the authority of the House we have done. We have amended the Bill according to the suggested amendment. With that in mind my main point is this: The Legislature gives authority to a corporation, it is a Crown Corporation up to ninety per cent and it took the Cabinet itself more than a month to look upon the Corporation as something different and apart, we are one thing and the Corporation is another. It took us more than a month to get it in our minds that this Corporation is the people of Newfoundland.

MR. FAHEY: And the Government are the agents of the people of Newfoundland, what else are we?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Does the honourable gentleman doubt it? That is why we are but here, the agents of the people of Newfoundland and we are trying to act like that and we are asking the House for authority for us, our corporation, which the House creates, we are asking the House to give the Corporation the means to work fast and efficiently for the people of Newfoundland to bring about development.

MR. FAHEY: Does the honourable the Premier mean to tell me that the Government and the Department of Economic Development can't work efficiently and fast as this Corporation. Well, I fail to see it. The sun may be too hot on this side or something, I don't know. As I see it the Department of Economic Development may not have the staff to take care of it but that can be arranged through the Cabinet or otherwise. But the Department of Economic Development and the Government itself can bring about those issues just as fast and efficiently as any corporation can, as I see it and there is no reason whatsoever for the Corporation. In the final analysis we are asked to give away ten percent of the property the Government already owns.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Let me give the Committee an example: Last night after the House closed at eleven o'clock some of us had a meeting which ended at three this morning. It is a commonplace thing with us, this happens quite frequently, we work long hours. At that meeting there was present the vice-president of the great firm of Harriman-Ripley. We were discussing the possibilities of a paper mill in the Labrador. Now, one of the very great drawbacks to a mill in Labrador is the short shipping season to which the honourable and gallant member for Ferryland drew spectacular attention. He pointed out quite rightly that the marine insurance companies really are the ones who determine the length of the shipping season because the shipping can go down there any year not later than the insurance companies will permit or will give insurance for. That is the great drawback, the shortness of the shipping season. That involves building gigantic storage warehouses, in Labrador, gigantic warehouse facilities, and the members of the Committee have seen the gigantic paper sheds of Bowaters at Corner Brook which are designed to store paper for maybe a couple of months. Now, if we have to build warehouses in Labrador to store paper for eight months not only do you have to spend a tremendous sum of money to build them but have two other things arising from that fact: One, is the very great capital cost of them; two, paper is just like woman's clothes in one respect, the styles change, the dimensions change.

MR. FOGWILL: Mr. Chairman, what section are we on?

MR. SMALLWOOD: The same section as the honourable member for Bell Island is discussing. The newspaper varies in size, in the number of pages they publish and the size of the rolls of newsprint paper, varies according to the number of pages a paper may publish in one day to another. Therefore no newspaper places an order for newsprint paper for more than a month or so at a time because the size of the rolls vary, the length and the number of endings in a roll of paper varies, therefore a newspaper mill cannot make eight or nine months' supply and store it because it is not possible to anticipate the size and dimensions of the roll they will be able to sell. Now, ask A.N.D. or Bowaters and they will tell you quite frankly they will have to change their length of rolls to specifications laid down by customers. Now this is a very serious obstacle. Here is a suggestion he mentioned last night, a rather startling one. Fly the paper out from the Labrador in huge transport planes that would take fifty or sixty tons. I don't know how much but they have a huge tonnage. I know when at Goosc two or three weeks ago we had pointed out to us a gigantic plane of which the whole nose falls down and a ramp comes out and truck after truck roll into the belly of the plane. They have huge planes now that carry three hundred men. Now, he spoke of having these gigantic planes to fly the paper out from Labrador, Lake Melville to somewhere on the South East Coast of Labrador which is open eight months of the year.

MR. HIGGINS: I can't see what this had to do with section 2.

MR. SMALLWOOD: If the honourable gentleman does not want the information—I thought perhaps he would like to have it.

MR. FOGWILL: It is not a case of not wanting the information but on several occasions, quite a number of occasions the Opposition has been confined strictly to the clause under consideration. I enjoy listening to the honourable Premier, but we have been brought back to the question under discussion and if members of the Government wander off we want the same rights. I want to say to the Chairman that the honourable gentleman is out of order. The other night when we were on a section (c) the honourable Chairman said, you are out of order.

MR. CHAIRMAN: We are not, we are on subsections (a), (b) and (c) of 8. Sub-section (a) has not yet been put and as Chairman of the Committee I have allowed wide latitude in Committee when I have asked at any time anyone on any side of the House to be relative to the clause under consideration. This is a very wide clause and no doubt the honourable the Premier was leading up to some point. In fairness to myself as Chairman of the Committee I must challenge the statement that I have not allowed a wide latitude in debate.

MR. FAHEY: I agree, Mr. Chairman, it calls for wide debate, covering a wide area.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I have only two other points to make. As a matter of fact the members of the committee may remember in the past few days reading in the paper of a project started somewhere in the United States to pulverize coal and blow it through pipe lines a very considerable distance. Now the committee may not be as familiar with another project in the United States to move coal a very great distance through pipe lines by reducing the coal to a lump of a certain maximum size and with force of water move the coal by water through pipe lines for hundreds of miles. Now, does that, or does it not, open the possibilities of pipe line from Lake Melville out to the Southern Shore of Labrador piping the pulp out. I am told by the Vice President of Harriman-Ripley in this meeting early this morning that there is a paper mill somewhere on the Atlantic Coast of the United States which operates on the basis of pulp manufactured on the Pacific Coast of the United States and shipped down through the Panama Canal in tankers and brought to the mill on the Atlantic Coast. It has, of course, to be pumped in and out of the tankers and evaporated and the water taken out.

MR. HIGGINS: But they have pipes to bring pulp from Bishop's Falls to Grand Falls.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Yes, and they have done it for a great number of years. Unfortunately they had to abandon it for two reasons: first, the pipe itself is quite old and is likely to burst at any time and is not any longer dependable, but chiefly because of strong economic reasons in delivery since they speeded up their paper machines in the mill at Grand Falls. The temperature of the pulp arriving at the mill by pipe line from Bishop's Falls is considerably lower than the temperature of the pulp being used to make paper, consequently the greater speed of the machine through which the pulp is running will not allow this cooler pulp arriving by pipe line to mix. They therefore had to heat it and it has made it uneconomic. But that you can pipe pulp twelve miles has been demonstrated and it has been abandoned, not due to the fact it is impractical to pipe it but because of the fact the pipe line needs to be replaced and it would not pay because they cannot mix it with the hotter pulp actually running through the machine at Grand Falls. Now, Harriman-Ripley had stated that there are three possibilities that must be explored, the economy, the possibility of flying the newsprint out in those giant transport planes and thereby eliminating the need to store it for eight or nine months of the year at tremendous cost in Lake Melville, and secondly, the idea of a pipe line pumping the pulp a distance of two or three hundred miles. If you can pump oil practically from Alberta to the lake head in Ontario where it is then picked up by giant oil tankers, can we not by the same token pump pulp from Lake Melville down to a more open port of the Labrador Coast where it would be picked up by tankers and delivered to paper mills say in Bay D'Espoir and so on?

Now, I am going to make a confession to the Committee. I don't know what clause the Committee is on, I do not remember, I don't know what page. All I know is the honourable member for Harbour Main-Bell Island raised a point which seemed to give me a chance to pass on to the Committee some information that I thought would be of some value in our thinking about this Bill.

MR. FAHEY: I raised the point there that I could not see why the Government could not carry on and promote a paper mill and negotiate as well as this Corporation, and the Premier gave us a lengthy discussion. He started off, Sir, by telling us the reason why the Government could not promote as well as the Corporation and he went on to explore the Labrador area. I don't know if this Corporation can lengthen the season in Labrador but the Government has not the power to do it. Then he went on to show us how some oil stations in some parts of the world had pipe lines. I still think my original question to the Premier is not answered.

That the Government can promote this paper mill, minerals or water power that we have to develop and our other resources through the Department of Economic Development and get it ratified by the House just as well and more efficiently and just as fast, in my opinion, as by passing them over to this Corporation. I still stick to that point. I have not been convinced yet; he did not convince me that this Corporation would lengthen the season on the Labrador. One of the reasons was that the season is too short but he did not show me how to lengthen it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I remember now what my other point was.

MR. CHAIRMAN: May I remind the members of the Committee we are discussing Clause 8, (a) and (c) and also sub-clause 2. Clause 8 (b) was allowed to stand. As I pointed out before, I have allowed the widest latitude of debate of which full advantage has been taken.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It was sub-clause 2 which gave rise to the remarks of the honourable member for Harbour Main-Bell Island to which I stood up to reply. The point is this, now that he has rephrased his question. This corporation in partnership with firms such as Harriman-Ripley and Company will be in a far better position to deal with problems such as a paper mill in Labrador than the Government unaided will be able to do and by way of example I cited this conversation which took place. They know the problems of a paper mill in Labrador, the problems raised by the short shipping season, etc., and they have been thinking along the line of flying the paper out in giant airplanes or to have a pipe line pumping the pulp out to the southern shore of Labrador that would be open for many months more than is the Lake Melville area.

MR. FAHEY: What distance would the pipe line have to run?

MR. SMALLWOOD: A distance of about two hundred miles. They run oil pipe lines for a distance of ten or fifteen hundred miles. Two hundred miles is no great distance and the cost of a pipe line compared with the cost of the great warehouses which would be necessary to store the paper which would be terrific, with the cost of maintenance. The cost of the pipe line in comparison with the warehouse would be small. That may be the answer. If you can manufacture paper on the East Coast of the United States from pulp pumped to the Pacific Coast, on board tankers run down the Pacific Coast and through the Panama Canal to a paper mill on the Atlantic Coast, why can't we do the same thing in Labrador?

MR. FAHEY: It would seem to me cheaper to fly it out if you could get the giant transports.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We saw a few at Goose, tremendous giant transports. It would be a short run for flying boxcars. First we thought of flying it to the railway from Lake Melville and then run it by rail down to Seven Islands to be shipped by boat from there, but it seems even more sensible to fly it direct to Seven Islands, then we question whether or not there was a seaport somewhere along the coast between Seven Islands and the entrance to Lake Melville open longer in the year than is the port of Seven Islands and in such case fly it there and have it picked up by boat. These are practical problems and economical which financiers like Harriman-Ripley who, if they are not themselves able to cope with them are able to get firms who can and that is one of the great advantages in associating with a firm which has wide experience and connections with all the great firms of the Mainland and the United States of America.

MR. CHAIRMAN: This clause with the exception of paragraph (3) sub-clause 1, passed.

MR. HIGGINS: My argument is we cannot give back to the Government what belongs to the Government. I say in this Bill the Cabinet has authority to transfer all these assets to all and any corporation they wish which gives them control of the country. The point is we as the House of Assembly lost all control.

The House adjourned until 8:00 of the clock this evening.

NIGHT SESSION

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation Limited," page 13, clause 9.

MR. CURTIS: Clause 9 is to come out, Mr. Chairman, and I might read to the Committee the draft we have to take its place. If the honourable members will refer to the Seigheim Bill, this is the new No. 9, Mr. Chairman, instead of the present No. 9.

The draft proposes that "If the Corporation wishes to have timber up to a maximum of one hundred thousand cords annually, from the area covered by the agreement entered into on the ninth day of June 1951, between the Government of Newfoundland and Dr. Arthur Seigheim supplied to it or an assignee for the purpose of its or the assignees operations in areas in the vicinity of the said area, the Government of Newfoundland shall, if in its opinion the request is reasonable, instruct the said Dr. Arthur Seigheim or his assignee to cut and supply the timber in accordance with the terms of the said Agreement."

Now, if the honourable members will refer to the aforesaid Bill they will see there under Section 5 of the said Bill, "If the Government wishes at any time to have timber from the area supplied to any other party the financier shall cut and supply the timber required.

(2) The financier agrees to deliver timber to such party at a price equal to the cost of felling, floating and other costs including capital costs (for all of which itemized statements will be presented) plus ten per cent (10%) of the costs maintained above and ten per cent (10%) of the royalty (if any) payable by such party to the Government."

The suggestion now is that the old Section No. 9 be replaced with this section whereby the Government will undertake, if the request is reasonable, one hundred thousand cords. It was necessary to restrict it to one hundred thousand cords, otherwise the contractors may take advantage of this.

Amendment is that clause nine be deleted and the draft above inserted as the new clause nine.

MR. HIGGINS: Who is to decide whether it is reasonable or not.

MR. CURTIS: The Lieutenant Governor-in-Council.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, I would like to express the wish that the honourable and gallant member for Ferryland try to be on time while this Bill and the one referring to LATUCO are being discussed so that at any time any honourable member is in doubt as to the names printed here, we can appeal to the honourable member to put us straight on the pronunciation.

Clause 9 carried.

Clause 10 read and passed.

Clause 11 read.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Chairman, would the Government consider the cement mill exempt from that? It would not pertain to that, would it? Clause 11 (2) the words "any person in whose name" to be inserted between the words "means" at the end of the fifth line and the word "any" at the beginning of the sixth line.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I do not know how members feel about it but I feel in this particular instance we should have additional sessional pay, I think a suggestion of three thousand dollars to each member, up to three thousand dollars, I do not think anyone would mind.

MR. CASHIN: This is a very pleasant subject but out of order.

MR. HIGGINS: "The receipts of shareholders in whose name it is registered." Is that the trust as registered, I suppose three and four may be read together? The present shareholders are also to be offered new shares in the same position. Supposing somebody does not accept, what happens then?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Then the rest of the section applies.

MR. RUSSELL: There is no way under this whereby the Government could end up with less than ninety percent.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Unless they choose.

MR. HIGGINS: What is that in for?

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is the proviso for the first five years of the life of the corporation. The minority shareholders may require the Government to buy their shares. The reason is that this whole partnership is, in these modern times, at least in North America, quite a unique partnership of private enterprise with a Government in a Corporation. It is particularly striking and unusual when the private interest partners are a couple of large bankers and strange as it may sound to the Committee, these firms look upon themselves in the financial world as being far more important than is the Government or than the Government can possibly be. They look upon themselves as a world-wide organization, especially Harriman-Ripley, whereas the Government of Newfoundland, is merely the government of one of the provinces of Canada, and by no means the largest and richest of these provinces. No matter how anxious they may be to come and collaborate and how anxious they are to make the corporation a success and anxious to work along with the government, they have nevertheless agreed with considerable foreboding (perhaps that is the word) to enter into an agreement with a government as partners in a corporation because they are businessmen, financiers, not politicians, and they look upon governments in much the same way as most business houses look upon governments. They wonder what a government will do. Now, for example, they know that a government is subject to a legislature, that the whole Bill can be repealed at any session of the House, and unlike an agreement with another private company they naturally and inevitably wonder what the story is going to be, how they are going to get on. They are more or less at the mercy of the major shareholders. Supposing the government got cock-eyed ideas about this corporation and began to turn it into, for example, political instrument or one of a political party. Here would be this firm, world known, tied hand and foot with a government whose antics they did not like. So, therefore, the whole idea is inserted as we here in this Chamber are so intent upon protecting Newfoundland interests in this corporation and so determined that these so termed city slickers—and we being the small town boys—they the city slickers—we are determined that this great Wall Street firm is not going to walk off owning Newfoundland and all the rest of it. We are so intent on that perhaps we fail to put ourselves in their place and see it as they see it. They are in a position they have never been in before, actual active partnership with a government for the first time in their lives. Now, in the United States, business in general takes a very dim view of governments in general. Mr. Ripley put it this way at a dinner he gave us in the course of our conversations: "You may pity the poor businessman today, if he makes money a congressional committee is set up to investigate and he has to defend himself for making money. If he does not he is brought up to explain why he does not. He is damned if he does and if he does not." They take a dim view indeed of governments and never know what they will do next. They feel harassed and hounded by governments, continually being investigated by the Senate or the House of Representatives or some one or other. Right now there is a big investigation going on in the United States into the public financial business of the United States in which many hundreds of banking houses are engaged, which is in fact a monopoly of eighteen of the largest banking firms and I think it is Judge Medina who held the Communist trials who is conducting that enquiry and Mr. Ripley himself spent, I think, eighteen hours in the witness box as a witness being grilled and examined by the Attorney General of the United States and his representatives on those accusations levied against eighteen of the great bond houses of America. In general they take a very dim view indeed of governments.

Now they say, we go into this as minority partners, we believe that your government are going to treat us decently, we believe we are going to get a square deal from you. You are not going to bludgeon us or drug us, because you are the majority, into all kinds of schemes that we would not wish to be associated with. We would like during the time while this thing is in the experimental stages to have the right to sell out and also we make this point very insistently that we are assuring that our partners will never be able to sell one share without our approval. They said, well if we insist on selling them you will have to agree during that experimental period to buy our shares from us and that experimental period is fixed at five years. That is the explanation.

MR. HIGGINS: I can understand that the Government should have the option of buying the shares at a sum not less than one dollar, that is the amount paid, or higher, but if they are worth more than a dollar, will the government say, you go out and sell them, we don't want to pay that price?

MR. SMALLWOOD: We must have the right to choose our companies.

MR. HIGGINS: I say you would have the right to buy at the enhanced value but if you did not want to buy they could sell at the enhanced value. They pay a dollar for them. That is the amount paid out of their pockets, but if they want to sell you have to pay the enhanced value, why not go outside?

MR. SMALLWOOD: We say, no we won't purchase, if we decide not to buy and then they can sell to anyone else. But this is not like other cases. This is a corporation to which is ceded by the House those Crown Areas and the owners of these minority shares are our partners, represented by the directors, we are willing to do that with Harriman-Ripley and Wood Gundy.

MR. HIGGINS: But you can increase the shares to three million and still you each have to buy proportionately, and they can sell.

MR. CURTIS: No, they must offer all to the Government first. If we say, no.

MR. HIGGINS: Why not the same thing here.

MR. CURTIS: I think the position is really a guarantee by the Government that they get back.

MR. HIGGINS: You cannot offer less than a dollar but supposing they are worth a dollar and fifty cents and you do not want to buy and you say you can sell in the open market in one case and not in the other. There are two lots of shares to be issued. You have an option to purchase. You are propositioned. You can say, no, and other shareholders have a right to buy. There is no doubt you should pay a dollar, and if they said, we paid a dollar, here buy us out, and you say no, not at any enhanced value, all right, you go into the open market and get your enhanced value.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We could but the honourable gentleman's point might have been better taken with a depreciated value.

MR. HIGGINS: I am not saying that.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We have to pay a dollar even if they have depreciated in value, if they had an enhanced value who would mind buying them? But if they say we paid a dollar for shares and they have become a washout or failure and we want you to buy our shares at what we paid for them which would occur only if the two parties could not get on together, private interest and the Government. If the experiment does not work and we cannot see eye-to-eye, we are at cross-purposes and things go from bad to worse; they say, all right buy us out, we have had enough. Then we have to buy them out at not less than they paid. Now if the shares are enhanced we do not mind buying them out at the enhanced value as the shares are worth that but if they have depreciated we are losing, we are paying a hundred thousand dollars for shares worth less than that, and we have a loss.

Section 11 passed. Sections 12 and 13 read and passed. Section 14 and 15 read.

MR. RUSSELL: That is the purpose of the two sections combined, 14 and 15. No. 14 has the sales value and the next one describes what is the sales value. They make sure they will not lose any money by getting out.

Section 14 and 15 passed. Section 16 read.

MR. HIGGINS: Yes, they must not get less than a dollar. On page 18, line 5, after the word "paragraph" insert "or in the event of his receipt of earlier notice from said Government that it will not purchase such common shares, forthwith upon receipt of such notification notify the transferer and all the other holders, except said Government of Common Shares of the Corporation that the transferer wishes to transfer such common shares . . ."

Now, I presume it is understood the Government is allowed to sell shares. I do not follow exactly. Mr. Chairman, the holders of those shares offered for sale must be offered first to the Government and after that, if the Government turns them down, they are to be offered to shareholders and this section determines how that fraction may be resold. Now, I presume they are meant to be a semi-private company, none are to be accepted except those approved by the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council. Now, suppose the Government has less than ninety percent.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It ceases to be a Crown Corporation.

MR. HIGGINS: Supposing one of the companies goes burst and it has a whole block of shares.

MR. CURTIS: If so, the company is bought out by the other companies.

MR. HIGGINS: That has not to have the consent of the Government. You might have outsiders in then, that is the only case.

Section 16 passed.

Section 17 read.

MR. HIGGINS: Was it the intention to change that or not? Was it Clause 17 or 37 which was to be changed?

Section 17 passed.

Section 18 to 22 read and passed.

MR. HIGGINS: Should not those by-laws be tabled here in the House so many days after the opening? Should they not be made public?

MR. SMALLWOOD: I don't see why not.

MR. HIGGINS: You cannot draw any contract without the consent of the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council.

MR. RUSSELL: The point about that: First it would appear by inference that the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council does not intend to exercise any interference over the board in making contracts as provided in Section 24, it states specifically. I do not see anything wrong with that. If every time the board meets it has to wait for approval of the Lieutenant Governor in Council especially when the Government has a majority of shareholders anyway action is delayed, but Section 24 also holds another veto on the minority, I did not notice before. If there is any change in capital structure it apparently has to be ratified by the Lieutenant Governor in Council.

Sections 23 to 35 read and passed.

Section 35 read.

MR. HIGGINS: Is there any need to keep those balance sheets private? Should not that be tabled in the House?

MR. CURTIS: I think that information should all come to the House. It is just a case of knowing where to put it in.

Section 36 passed.

Section 37 read.

MR. CURTIS: In Section 37: "Lieutenant Governor in Council" to be deleted and "Legislature" to be inserted. I think as the honourable the Premier said we are going to take out that whole proviso under Section 37. It is a matter for the Legislature anyway, I move the proviso be eliminated and the words "Lieutenant Governor in Council" be eliminated and the word "Legislature" be inserted. In Section 38 (2) that the word "voting" be inserted after the word "carrying" in the third line.

Sections 37 and 38 read and passed.

MR. CHAIRMAN: Sections 40 and 41 are deleted. The Bill has been passed except for one paragraph allowed to stand, as was the Preamble and the title.

MR. CURTIS: I have the draft, Mr. Chairman, and I would like to read it to the House, but I do not think we ought to adopt it until it has been typed in detail.

At the bottom of page 10, continued on page 11 part of page 12. It is a long clause. The proposal is, Mr. Chairman, that we go back to section 8 on page 7; this is just changing it around, the old section said "The Corporation is hereby granted. . ." It is the suggestion of the Department that should read: "They are granted to and vested in. . ." And paragraph (a) will stay as it is and paragraph (b) will be altered. Now if you will notice, looking at the original, about the said exclusive exploration rights for ten years from the day upon which this Act comes into force. We feel, Mr. Chairman, that this clause should be amended and have it drafted to this effect "the exclusive right to explore, develop, produce, extract and remove all minerals, both metallic and non-metallic, in the areas described in sub-paragraphs (i), (ii) and (iii) of this section and on the expiration of such period of ten years or within six months thereafter the exclusive right for a period of fifty years and subject to such terms and conditions as the Lieutenant Governor in Council may prescribe to explore, develop, produce, extract and remove all minerals, both metallic and non-metallic, on, in or under every tract of land, which is a square of forty acres or less contained within such areas, upon which the Corporation has done work which, if the tract was staked out as a mining claim under The Crown Lands (Mines and Quarries) Act, 1951, would be counted as sufficient work to enable the Corporation to obtain a development licence under that Act."

And it is proposed by my Department to renumber the clauses on page 13 to sub-section (3) and have a new sub-section (2): "All parts of the areas described in paragraph (b) of sub-section (1) on which sufficient work has not been done by the Corporation on the expiration of the period of ten years referred to in that paragraph to entitle it to an exclusive right for fifty years, as set out in that paragraph, shall revert to the Crown and be thenceforth dealt with as Crown Lands upon which there is no encumbrance."

In other words, they have to do so much work, otherwise it would revert to the Crown. I suggest we rise, report progress, and in the meantime have the copies circulated.

MR. RUSSELL: I would like to suggest just this one thought to the Government. Since I have been trying to do my best to improve rather than defeat section (b) it has brought this to my mind. Exclusive mineral rights to be given to the Corporation for ten years. That would be enough and too long for an operating company and I wonder if limiting that to ten years is not a little difficult. Supposing an area did not interest any subsidiary company for nine years, well after ten years they would not have the power to transfer their exclusive rights to the subsidiary or some interested company for more than one year. Don't you think that is tying their hands a little that way?

MR. SMALLWOOD: I do not think that is so. At the end of nine years, if they have a company ready to go in, it could go in under the Mining Act. They know that, under the provisions of the Crown Lands Act with which my honourable friend is probably familiar. It has not yet come before the House but it is on the Order Paper and I think it will be ready on Monday. Under the terms of that Act, when it becomes an Act, certain rights are established for a person meeting certain conditions and if at the end of a certain period of years the conditions can be met, the rights can be transferred.

MR. RUSSELL: It is the Crown then rather than the Corporation.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Even the Corporation is contingent upon performance.

MR. RUSSELL: They only have it for ten years.

MR. SMALLWOOD: But they can give in the ten years any area and if the Corporation at the end of nine years does not succeed in getting someone in to look at the interests. It is not the nine or ten years but to get people in to look at them that is important. But if even at the end of nine years they get a company in, that company can take steps to obtain what rights they need.

MR. HIGGINS: In other words they make the agreement with the Government? The Corporation will give it to them for one year and the Lieutenant Governor in Council will guarantee after that to carry on.

MR. CURTIS: Or they might even amend the Act.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Of course the big thing about this amendment is at the end of ten years any of the mining rights, any of the rights to the areas allegedly containing minerals now given to the Corporation will revert to the Crown unless exploration is developed or production is underway. In other words, any part of the whole of the area now ceded to the Corporation not under active exploration or development reverts to the Crown which is, I think, as it should be and it puts a sense of urgency into the Corporation. They have ten years with rights and at the end of that time these rights revert to the Crown. That is the big thing. Then again we do get rights at the end of ten years or any time for fifty years rather than ninety-nine.

MR. CURTIS: I move the Committee rise, report progress and beg leave to sit again tomorrow.

The Committee rose, reported having made some progress and asked leave to sit again. Ordered to sit again tomorrow.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Approve and Give Statutory Effect to An Agreement Between the Government and Doctor Arthur Seigheim."

Sections 1 and 2 read and passed.

Section 3 read.

MR. CURTIS: Before turning over the page on the fifth line it should read "dated the ninth day of June" not the eleventh.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Chairman, I think the honourable member for Ferryland said $5 was too much. I notice now it is U.S. Currency which means $5.30. That is frightful, disgraceful, worse than ever now, pure robbery.

MR. CURTIS: I move the Committee rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again.

MR. RUSSELL: You will note on page 10, the word "royalty" is meaningless. I think it should be "licence fees." We will have to amend that in the Act, we cannot amend the Agreement.

The Committee rose, reported progress and asked leave to sit again. Ordered to sit again tomorrow.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act Relating to Licenses to cut Timber Issued Prior to January, 1931."

Section 1 read and passed.

Section 2 read.

MR. HIGGINS: I would like to move an amendment in that if any holder of a claim can show any bona fide effort within six months that he intends or shows he wants to carry out the terms or conditions of his license should be granted further time. In other words the position is that if he wants to start work and cannot finalize it by the 31st of December but has spent some money on it, a further extension should be given.

MR. RUSSELL: I do not think that, Mr. Chairman. After all, it is all right to say it has been a year and a half since the first warning, but we cannot assume they read the Speech from the Throne and if they did then I have no mercy on them whatsoever. If they have not done so and do not intend to do so then it might wake them up and if a company convinced the Government that they really intend to do something between now and the end of December but could not quite make the grade and qualify, maybe there is no need of an amendment.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, there is merit in the suggestion but I am afraid we cannot accept the amendment. If, as the honourable member says, a reputable company comes to us and convinces us that they do genuinely intend to develop then they will be doing exactly what we want them to do and doing the thing for which the Bill is being enacted. But, I can't agree that they have not had ample notice. First of all, ever since the award of opinion expressed by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, ever since 1931, a lifetime, they have had, and they have done nothing. Now, in addition to that they had particular notice from the Legislature of Newfoundland in the Speech from the Throne delivered more than a year and a half ago. Now they read that Speech all right, there is no question about it. Some of these holders are here living in St. John's and those who do not, all are represented here and are well aware of what was in the Speech from the Throne last year, well aware, yet they have done nothing about it. They have done nothing about it for twenty-four years, practically a quarter of a century and now that we are giving them another six months' grace on top of that quarter of a century, on top of the particular notice a year and a half ago, that six months should be ample. We want these areas developed, we want someone to develop them. If they go ahead now and keep the bargain they made with Newfoundland long years ago, before some of the members of this House present tonight were born, if they keep it, all right, we are delighted. If they do not, let the areas revert to the Crown. With all the sympathy in the world with the view expressed we cannot accept the amendment. That again throws the whole thing into uncertainty and time is pressing now. It is a fight against time to get development going.

MR. CHAIRMAN: The amendment is that "if any holder of any timber licenses shall show any bona fide effort to carry out the terms of licenses before December 1931, that further extension shall be granted."

MR. SMALLWOOD: The Act itself suggests, if by that date if they give bona fide evidence of their intention to do so that there be an extension.

HON. JAMES J. SPRATT (Minister of Provincial Affairs): Intention is not enough. A man may have an intention to do a thing but it must be specific. If I were the holder, I could come in and say it was my intention—in fact having the intention is what has kept this thing going on so many years and a thing not worth doing right is not worth doing at all. I don't believe there should be any amendment. I watched down through the period all the time the licenses giving away our heritage and we are now trying to get it back and some kind and sympathetic people are still saying, give them another chance. I have a kindly feeling for everyone but I don't agree with this.

Motion lost.

Clause carried.

Sections 3 and 4 read and passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendment.

Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

Second reading of Bill "An Act to Amend the Mining Tax Act, 1950."

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, this Bill is made necessary by two things; 1, the expiration of the contract that existed between DOSCO and the Government more than a year ago; and secondly, the tax rental agreement which exists between the Government of Canada and the Government of Newfoundland.

Now the ideal idea is that Bell Island Iron Ore should pay into the Treasury of Newfoundland a royalty of ten cents a ton on the tonnage up to a million tons and thereafter a royalty of six cents a ton. The production of Bell Island will shortly run to two and a half million tons or perhaps even more a year and the total revenue that would flow to the Treasury will be an amount of two hundred and twenty thousand dollars plus some other small amounts which they pay under some other legislation. I think an amount of ten thousand dollars or some very small figure for the support of local roads. Now, under the tax rental agreement we may not impose a straight sum or royalty upon the minerals produced and instead we are supposed to impose a taxation on the profits of the mining companies. We have no intention nor desire to change that but in the case of DOSCO we want to collect this ten cents a ton on the first million tons and six cents on all tonnage above that figure and we cannot do it as a straight royalty. We are not permitted to do it under the tax rental agreement. So what we do here in this Bill is provide that they shall pay us a percentage of profits but an amount which shall not in any case be more than ten cents per ton on the first million and eight cents on the rest. It is blind-folding the devil in the dark but we are obliged by the situation to do it. It will affect only this one company although it is a tax of general application. Now there is nothing underhanded whatsoever about it because what we do, we do with the knowledge of the company concerned and the Federal Authorities. What we do there is proper and honest and will raise no unpleasant consequences.

We have further agreed to recommend to the Government for submission to the House a contract of fifteen years duration during the lifetime of which we will not impose higher rates of taxation than the amount in the figures contained in this Bill. We have no alternative, this is the only way we can do it and it affects only one company really because up to the moment only one company is producing iron ore and it affects DOSCO only and does so with knowledge and consent of the company and the knowledge and consent of the relevant Federal Authorities in Ottawa.

I move second reading of this Bill.

Bill read a second time. Ordered referred to Committee of a Whole on tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I do not know if it is on order—there is a very important point I might have mentioned. If it is all right and the honourable members say to go ahead—

MR. SPEAKER: If leave of the House is given.

Leave given.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The Bill is retroactive. We have not yet collected any revenue from DOSCO in respect of last year. The contract under which they paid taxes expired on the 31st May, 1949, and for the calendar year of 1950, there was no taxation legislation in Newfoundland under which we could collect the two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. Pardon me, there was legislature, but it was the regulation governing percentage taxation on profits of mining companies. Under that we had the right to collect but actually we were not able because there was such a tangle there between the Wabana Iron Ore and Dominion Steel, that it would take some of the greatest corporation lawyers to untangle it. At any rate we did not collect a dollar from DOSCO in respect of last year's production and the present Act is retroactive to last year to the 1st of January as we want that two hundred and fifty thousand dollars; and the House may recall that in the estimates on the revenue side for the Department of Natural Resources we show for the current year a prospective income from that company of over half a million dollars under that heading.

MR. RUSSELL: I am quite sure you wondered how we figured on getting that. And we added another one hundred and fifty or seventy on account of last year's production which this Bill enables us to collect and DOSCO fully expects to pay. Frankly, Mr. Speaker, under the five percent tax on mining profits it would be a pretty heinous mess if we expected to get revenue from DOSCO, it would require a royal commission supported by accountants and auditors to untangle that. This is the only way to do it.

Ordered referred to Committee of the Whole on tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I think, Mr. Speaker, it is a little late to go into further business. There are only a few minutes left and I think perhaps we have done enough work.

DR. POTTLE: May I direct the attention of the House to No. 14 on the Order Paper which should read "An Act Relating to Mines and Quarries."

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Speaker, item 11 is wrongly worded. Second reading of a Bill "An Act Further to Amend the Act 26 Victoria Act 5 entitled "The Harbour Grace Water Company."

HON. WILLIAM KEOUGH (Minister of Fisheries and Co-operatives): Mr. Speaker, I beg leave to place upon the table of the House the Annual Report of the Fisheries Loan Board and Co-operative Loan Board of Newfoundland for the period ending March 31, 1951."

MR. SMALLWOOD: I move remaining orders deferred, and the House at its rising do adjourn until tomorrow, Saturday, at three of the clock.

The House adjourned accordingly.

SATURDAY, June 16, 1951.

The House opened at three of the clock.

Presenting Petitions

None.

Presenting Reports of Standing and Select Committees

None.

MR. JOHN G. HIGGINS (Leader of the Opposition): We were told by the end of May we would be through. It is now the 16th of June and we are still going on. I would like to know how many more Bills we have to come in. I know the Government has the right to decide but they have no right to delude us and we have been deluded.

HON. J. R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): Speaking very literally I would say some thirty or forty. But those we have no hope whatsoever of bringing before the House at this time. I think, however, there are one or two—I do not remember if notice of them has been given or whether they have appeared on the Order Paper, but there is one of very great importance almost exactly similar to the Falconbridge one, dealing with an area in the Labrador. Now, that is in the hands of the printers and we are hoping to have it here on Monday. I do not think that will give rise to any particular delay. If we have a good afternoon today and a good day on Monday and Tuesday, it may be possible to prorogue on Wednesday and if not Wednesday, on Thursday or Friday, but I think it will be in the coming week.

MR. HIGGINS: What about the Crown Lands Act?

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is not the whole Crown Lands Act, it is only the part dealing with mines.

MR. RUSSELL: The Committee will consolidate it anyway.

MR. SMALLWOOD: This is not formal, as my honourable friends know, but I think we could at least aim at Wednesday. Frankly, I am not too hopeful but if not on Wednesday, perhaps a day or two later in the coming week and with hard work and giving every measure due consideration I think it will still be possible to prorogue around the middle of this coming week. At least we can aim at it.

Giving Notice of Motions and Questions

HON. P. S. FORSEY (Minister of Supply): Mr. Speaker, the answer to question number 116 is being prepared.

Orders of the Day

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I think we might defer this Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means. The honourable the Attorney General will be here in a few minutes and we might go on to it then.

Third reading of Bill "An Act Relating to Licences to Cut Timber Issued Prior to January, 1931."

Bill read a third time and passed.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Approve and Give Statutory Effect to an Agreement Between the Government and Doctor Arthur Seigheim."

MR. CHAIRMAN: This Bill has been all read except the preamble.

MR. RUSSELL: There is one point. I take it, Mr. Chairman, that the whole agreement is open for discussion. It has been all read but is still open, I presume.

Section 2 passed.

Sections 3 to 8 read and passed.

MR. FOGWILL: On page 7, Mr. Chairman, No. 9, would the honourable Minister explain what is meant by standard rate of wages and whether they are the standard rates established by agreement on the Island.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The standard rates are those in this Province.

MR. FOGWILL: It does not say that, just says standard rate of wages.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That can only mean, in the Province in woods labour there is only one rate set by the Woods Labour Union and the paper companies and employees.

MR. SMALLWOOD: But provision is made for unionization and facilities for unionization, and the payment of standard rates can have only one interpretation. The standard set by the Woods Labour Board and they have jurisdiction in this Province.

MR. FOGWILL: Why does it not say this?

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is all right, but the unfortunate position is now that Dr. Seigheim, after signing the agreement, flew to London to spend a few days, and from there on to Switzerland and on to Germany, and it is not at all possible unilaterally to change the agreement because it has been signed and in view of the fact that the standard of wages in the Woods Labour code can only mean one thing, the rate set by the Woods Labour Board, there would not seem to be any real need to do that. In any case the House can at any time, by another Act, make the operations of this Company subject to the awards of the Woods Labour Board. It is not a thing which is incapable of being remedied in another way if the need arose to do it.

MR. FOGWILL: Then the honourable Premier assures the Committee that the standard rate is the rate set by the Woods Labour Board.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Indeed I am quite sure and not only that, I am sure if there is any variation between the rates paid, by the Labrador operation and the operations in the Island of Newfoundland, it will be a variation in favour of the men. It will be more than standard rate, not less, if there is any variation.

MR. FOGWILL: Mr. Chairman, there is one other point on that section. You will promote and foster formation of unions, that is labour, I take it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: They want that, they are accustomed to it. If my honourable friend will allow me. For many years past, much longer than companies in Newfoundland have been required to deal with unions, this company nearly half a century, I would say, dealt with employees through collective bargaining. They are sensitive about the fact that they are foreigners and they want goodwill and the greatest possible degree of friendliness between their men and ours and they want these men to organize themselves and they will pay the very top wages; at least I am as much interested in that aspect as my honourable friend is, as I think he would agree. There is no doubt whatever about the situation. This company will at least match the best that any company in this Province is doing at the present day.

Section 9 to 21 read and passed.

MR. HIGGINS: Did the Prime Minister give a hint when he passed the remark that this is already signed?

MR. SMALLWOOD: I said it cannot be changed unilaterally. No agreement can. It cannot be changed unilaterally in the absence of Dr. Seigheim. That is, on any important matter.

MR. RUSSELL: On the other hand, Mr. Chairman, the Committee does not have to approve section 2. If section 2 is approved it means the agreement is approved as it is. If it is approved with amendments it means the Committee is given certain authority to go ahead with the mandate to get him to agree to make the changes and come back to us again. The whole thing hangs on section 2. There are two clauses to which I want to make reference.

Clause No. 14 is the first one. I think on second reading the Government appreciated the point made by the honourable member for Ferryland, and I made a comment on that myself. That is the $5 which may decrease or increase, dependent on the world prices. Now, world prices are subject to conditions over which we have no control and conditions a long way away from us, independent of what is going on in our part of the world and I think the Government would be willing to set a minimum of $5 at the most and $2.50 at the least.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Suppose I take this action. I talked with Dr. Valdmanis in the hotel dining room where we had lunch. I might step out and sound him out. I think we have the right, of course, to insist upon it but I don't know if we want to.

MR. RUSSELL: I have another point: Section —

MR. CHAIRMAN: I think it might be better if I were to call the Clauses.

MR. RUSSELL: If you wish, Section 2 is passed.

MR. CHAIRMAN: You are still discussing Section 2.

MR. RUSSELL: The other point is Section 13 of the agreement: "As soon as it has been established that it is a reasonable and economic proposition the financier will carry out the erection and financing of a paper and cellulose plant at Bay D'Espoir.

Now, honestly from the beginning I have not seen what that means, what is the implication. Let us suppose Dr. Seigheim's operation is successful and during the course of the first year of operation, suppose we are in retrospect all delighted. There is no one who knows now. I say if he makes a success of this, he is the man rather than any other I would like to see operate a mill in Bay D'Espoir. But does that mean he automatically goes ahead and if there is to be a mill will he have the first chance? It does not say so here.

MR. CURTIS: There is no penalty.

MR. RUSSELL: I don't see the value of that section at all and since it is restrictive on Dr. Seigheim I believe he would be willing to have it cut out. It is not a privilege but a restriction and I see no implication and in the mind of someone like myself it has no value.

MR. CURTIS: But it does no harm.

MR. HIGGINS: It might do harm to the effect of raising bonds and that here he is tied down to have to erect a mill and—

MR. RUSSELL: I ask you if in a year from now some one came here to the Corporation with a proposition to start a mill in Bay D'Espoir. Shall we have to say, well we don't know, this Section 13 says Dr. Seigheim got to have the first chance?

MR. SMALLWOOD: No, in my view he would not take too much notice of that because I don't take too much notice of it. It is so vague, lacking in time limit and penalty that it does not do any harm to leave it there. Leaving Dr. Seigheim with the feeling that he is obligated to pursue the matter won't do Newfoundland any harm but I would not base the hope of a paper mill in Bay D'Espoir on that clause. I would prefer to have something more substantial than that. On the other hand if he pursues the matter it is all to the good and can't possibly be a monopoly as there is lots of room for two mills or twenty mills as far as physical space and enough hydro-electric power for at least eight paper mills.

MR. FOWELL: What size mills?

MR. SMALLWOOD: The best part of three hundred thousand in that whole watershed. The best part of three hundred thousand horsepower which can be laid down for less than half a cent. We have now our first primary report which arrived the other day from the Power Corporation of Canada, and it can be delivered at tide-water for less than five mills a kilowatt hour so that there can be no harm done by this clause if it never accomplishes any good.

MR. RUSSELL: One other thing. I will say this carefully and if I am in error, ask the Premier to stop me. This is not just confining Dr. Seig-heim—if he wants a paper mill in Bay D'Espoir would we still have a chance of having one in Lake Melville?

HON. LESLIE R. CURTIS (Attorney General): This does not commit us at all. If he sees a chance there is no objection on our part.

MR. HIGGINS: But as far as he is concerned I think it is important if he is giving $5 a cord and as soon as he can establish that it is a reasonable and economic proposition. Suppose you interested capital in a mill in Bay D'Espoir and got surveys and reports and everything pertinent and if you turn to him and say, we will erect a mill, poor old Seigheim will suffer on account of it. It is only a hope but it is there and if ever anyone agreed to erect a mill and you have all the reports and—

MR. SMALLWOOD: In the opinion of Dr. Valdmanis there is not even the slightest objection to fixing a minimum of $2.50 a cord U.S. Funds. As pointed out, the world prices would have to fall in half what it is at present which is a very unlikely eventuality. So that we might insert there but in any case not less than $2.50 U.S. Funds per cord.

I don't think we should delete the mill clause. If Dr. Seigheim wishes to do so we should not take away the obligation he feels to pursue and as there is no time limit it cannot do any harm. Personally, I don't take it too seriously and I would prefer to base my hopes for a paper mill in Bay D'Espoir on something far more substantial than that clause. But it can't do any harm and it might be better for Newfoundland to have Dr. Seigheim feel himself to be under an obligation to pursue the matter. If he gets together the information and makes a thorough survey and finds the thing is feasible it does not stop anyone else from doing the same thing and it can't do Newfoundland any harm whatsoever that I can see.

MR. RUSSELL: To specify Bay D'Espoir looks like a preference—you are perfectly welcome to stop me if I am wrong and I don't want to get on forbidden ground, I wonder, the honourable member for Ferryland notwithstanding, if there are not some advantages in a five hundred ton mill at Lake Melville rather than at Bay D'Espoir?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Now, I have subsequent information.

MR. RUSSELL: That may or may not overcome those obstacles.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We would start one anywhere if it were a project that we could approve.

MR. RUSSELL: If there is not one specifically at Bay D'Espoir or no one else is barred because of that, then this clause is of no value.

MR. SMALLWOOD: There is value in having Dr. Seigheim under some obligation to pursue the matter.

MR. RUSSELL: I hope he gets one over there yet and makes some money to reimburse himself.

MR. CURTIS: We are going to put in a clause to put the minimum price of wood at $2.50 U.S. Funds. We will leave the $5 in and add a minimum. Now, Mr. Chairman, the way to amend an agreement when it has been signed is by putting an amendment into the Bill itself and that would involve a little drafting so that I would move the Committee rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again.

MR. HIGGINS: How do they get that Baltic price?

MR. SMALLWOOD: There is a world federation of timber interests near Hamburg.

MR. HIGGINS: A European federation separate from this side?

MR. SMALLWOOD: The greatest sources of pulpwood to supply the world are Finnish and the price is the Finnish price.

MR. HIGGINS: Why is it set in Hamburg?

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is so that foreign bodies can always refer to them and cable them what is the price and they cable right back. It is not a matter of authority. It is a matter of knowing.

MR. HIGGINS: They are recommended as authorities and they are accepted as authorities but you do not have to accept their opinion but call in the authorities.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is exactly the position.

MR. CURTIS: If everybody is satisfied that is the only amendment required, I move the Committee rise and ask leave to sit again.

The Committee rose and asked leave to sit again presently.

Carried.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Amend the Mining Tax Act, 1950."

Section 1 read and passed.

Section 2 read.

MR. CURTIS: They want us to treat it as a short ton but we are not saying so here. Amended paragraph (a) Sub-clause 2, the words "hundred and fifty thousand" be deleted and the word "million" inserted in its place.

Section 2 passed.

Sections 3 to 7 read and passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

Committee of a Whole on Bill "An Act Respecting the Public Revenue, the Raising of Loans Authorized by the Legislature, and the Auditing of Public Accounts."

MR. CHAIRMAN: At the time the Committee rose there was an amendment before the Committee. The amendment to clause 37.

MR. SMALLWOOD: There were three points, Mr. Chairman, still to be decided. One was an amendment moved by the honourable member for Bonavista South, and the other two are sections providing for the removal of the Auditor General and secondly of the Comptroller of the Treasury by an address of the House of Assembly to His Honour the Lieutenant Governor. Now I moved an amendment to the section as it stood in the printed Bill, making it read, on the removal of the Auditor General, on an address of the majority of the members of the House of Assembly and I propose also moving an amendment to the section providing for the Comptroller of the Treasury, by the same means, to make it read two-thirds or something of that order. I wish now to reverse that position so that the end result would be the given clause as printed in the Bill and make it in each case removable by vote of the House of Assembly, in other words we would revert to the original position proposed in the Bill. These are, so far as I recall, the only outstanding points in this Bill: first the amendment moved by the honourable member for Bonavista South which, as I said, we cannot accept, and these clauses dealing with the removal by address of the House of Assembly of, first, the Auditor General and secondly the Comptroller of Finance.

MR. RUSSELL: Before we get down to anything specific, was section 40 allowed to stand over? I believe I expressed a doubt about the meaning of forty.

MR. CHAIRMAN: Yes, and also clause 67. I would suggest we begin on the honourable member for Bonavista South's amendment to Section 40 and also Section 67.

MR. FAHEY: When last in Committee the honourable member for Bonavista South had an amendment on No. 37. I was about to speak at that time and was asked to yield because of the time being so near 6:00 o'clock. I presume now, Mr. Chairman, we are dealing with section 37 and the amendment?

MR. CHAIRMAN: The honourable member is speaking to the amendment. Would it be agreeable to the honourable member if I were to read the amendment, and then he can speak to it.

Reads amendment. Moved that this amendment be passed.

MR. FAHEY: Mr. Chairman, in rising to support that amendment, as I see it, in order to get money to continue a job; say there is a certain amount of money voted and the money has run out, the hundred thousand dollars for the project is, as the case may be, it is harder not to get ten thousand dollars to finish that job than under (b) probably get a million for a new project. The honourable member's amendment is so worded as to make (b) more in line with (a) and that is why I rise to support it. That is as I see it—the backbone of the thing. It is more difficult to get funds to finish a job than it would be to get a million or a half million to start a new thing never heard of, under that clause.

Now another thing which the amendment deals with is that it will bring it more in line with other Provinces. We are told here on many occasions that we are so backward and the Attorney General in dealing with another Bill the other day when I made the remark that we were not worrying about the kind of franchise in Prince Edward Island or Nova Scotia or anywhere else, but we were dealing with Newfoundland, remarked: "That is why we are so backward." Now, here is an amendment to bring the Bill into line with the other Provinces and this is the first time, or first occasion the Premier intimated that this is more suitable for us than a uniform one as in four or five of the other Provinces. I am not quite sure the Premier said they were wrong but he intimated they were wrong and that this Act is more suitable for us. Now, we are told one day when a franchise is before the House we should support it because of the fact that other Provinces did so some years ago, but we were asked then to conform with that Act so that we would be more in line with the other Provinces and we were told that is why we are so far behind. Now in reverse to that the Government advocates a different policy. I think it is time for the Government to make up its mind as to whether it is going to follow the pattern of the other Provinces or follow it one day when it suits them and then another day say these Provinces are all out of line and put in an Act more applicable to Newfoundland. Now, I have very little more to say but I rise now, Mr. Chairman, to support the amendment before the Chair to bring this Act more in line with other Provinces that have Acts similar to this.

HON. JAMES J. SPRATT (Minister of Provincial Affairs): I don't like the argument advanced by the honourable member that we should act in conformity with other Provinces, I don't think that is a very sound suggestion and would justify fundamental opposition to the Act now under consideration. This Act under section (b) simply gives the Government the right in an emergency and surely that is necessary, if an emergency arose and parliament were closed do you think it would be wise to have this condition of affairs prevail that it would be necessary in case of an emergency to call parliament together before an expenditure could be entered into. Personally, I think that the Opposition is really not justified in its criticism of this particular proposition.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Speaker, I do not think the honourable Minister understood the argument of my honourable colleague. He said all along we have been told we should pass Acts in conformity with the other Provinces and he asked why it has not been done in this case? Now, I say the argument of the Prime Minister is purely on a technical point and has no substance in it at all. We are asking to have the public funds protected in connection with spending, whether provisions had been made by the House or not it is the same thing, protection of public money, and I don't see what difference it makes in any case, the same amount will be spent and a larger amount than provided for is just as bad as spending money that no provision had been made for at all. Therefore, I say the defense of the Prime Minister is purely technical.

MR. SPRATT: It may be a matter of life and death and matters a lot to people who die.

MR. HIGGINS: Supposing the building falls down here, it is a sudden emergency and comes under (b) and that is a bad emergency. Suppose it fell down and you were caught in it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I have no doubt the honourable member for Bonavista South in his amendment is endeavouring to protect the principle of retaining in the hands of the Legislature control over public funds but the amendment as made destroys the very thing which it ought to do. I am surprised he does not see himself that it leaves it wide open, his amendment leaves it wide open and would make countervailing savings available for everything. That is exactly the effect of the amendment. It would be to make countervailing savings in any department of Government available for any of the purposes of the section and that is not as it reads today at all but that is how it would read and operate if his amendment were carried. If the Committee will look at the section (a) and (b) they will see that countervailing savings may be used in one of these two sections but not in both, and the effect of the amendment would be to use it for both and for that and various other reasons stated we cannot accept the amendment.

MR. RUSSELL: I hope that the Government have given genuine thought to at least the meaning and importance of the amendment I proposed. Statements have been made in the last few minutes which made me doubt whether or not they understand what I am trying to get at. The honourable the Minister of Provincial Affairs referred to the fact that we were interfering with (b). We are not interfering in the least. We accept (b) just as it is but would add something to it that would not affect in the least what is there but would add other things. (a) Allows for certain things to be done in certain cases, we leave them alone and say that other things be done described above in (a). Let them be done the same way as under (b). The honourable Premier suggests that it would throw everything open to countervailing savings. They are described in an entirely different sub-section than my amendment which would affect only sub-section 2; if the subject for expenditure is one for which no legislative provision has been made or insufficient provision has been made, that is how (a) reads; or for which countervailing savings are not available under (1) which would not affect countervailing savings one bit but just bring what is already done under Section 1. In fact the whole purpose of what I suggest, humbly and with the best of intentions, was this: that the sections we have already passed, the fundamental finance on the preceding page wherein the Legislature vote certain totals called heads of expenditures and appropriate amounts appropriated by the Legislature shall be referred to as heads of expenditure of such departments and may be divided into sub-heads. All we do in the amendment is this: we vote certain heads thirteen or fourteen heads all in the Supply Bill to be passed. The other day when we voted a head of expenditure we did not want the Lieutenant Gov-error to increase that head of expenditure under certain conditions, we wanted the conditions to be the same for new services or for existing ones. That is their own business, they know what they want to do with the money. But we say, do not increase that head of expenditure, if you have to do it, by all means get a special warrant to do it. But to me, as I said the other day, when we give a certain department five million dollars to spend and they say during the year: we want five million one hundred thousand, an extra one hundred thousand, it is practically the same to the House that Section 35 of the Audit Act already passed were added to that head of expenditure, to increase that head of expenditure, increase some provision already there or think up an entirely new one which would probably come under that heading. We only ask that the two categories be treated the same way. I don't know if it is a safeguard but would inform and certainly would be more consistent. That does not affect me, if we are consistent with the mainland or not. But we would be and I do hope the Government at least understands the purpose of the amendment.

Amendment put. Division.

Favour—Leader of the Opposition, Mr. Fogwill, Mr. Fahey, Mr. Russell.

Against—The Premier, Attorney General, Minister of Provincial Affairs, Minister of Education, Minister of Public Works, Minister of Supply, Minister of Labour, Minister of Fisheries and Co-operatives, Hon. Mr. Vardy, Mr. Morgan, Mr. Button, Mr. Janes and Mr. Drover.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Now, Mr. Chairman, there is an important amendment I wish to move in this same Section 37. Sub-section 2. In view of the fact that we now have in mind the thought of having the House either adjourned or prorogued for a short period in such a way that the House can be called together at reasonable short notice or to have the House adjourn with a view to having it called together quickly with reasonable notice, in view of that fact, we see the need in this Clause in this Section to provide against having to call the House together merely for some eventuality pictured in either (a) or (b) and therefore I move that Section 2 read as follows: "If when the Legislature is not in session, or when the House of Assembly has stood adjourned for more than thirty days, any expenditure in excess of that provided for by the Legislature is urgently and immediately required for the public good the following provisions shall have effect.

(a) If the subject of the expenditure is one for which the Legislature has made provision but the provision is found to be insufficient, then, upon the report of the Minister that there is insufficient legislative provision and that no countervailing savings are available under other subheads of the Head of Expenditure concerned and of the minister having charge of the service in question that the necessity is urgent, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, on the recommendation in writing of the Board, order that a special warrant be prepared for signature by the Lieutenant-Governor for the issue of the amount estimated to be required, and the amount shall be added to the appropriation under the relevant Head of Expenditure.

(b) If the subject of expenditure is one for which no legislative provision has been made, then, upon the report of the Minister that there is no legislative provision and of the minister having charge of the service in question that in his opinion the necessity is urgent, giving reasons for his opinion, and that if such expenditure is not made grave damage to persons or to property or to the interests of the Crown or the public will occur or excessive additional expense will result from delaying the expenditure until the necessary legislative provision has been made, the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council may, on the recommendation in writing of the Board, order that a special warrant be prepared for signature by the Lieutenant-Governor for the issue of the amount estimated to be required, and an additional subhead shall be set up in the books of the Comptroller against which expenditures on the service shall be charged.

(c) In every case under paragraphs (a) and (b) the Minute of Council authorizing the special warrant shall quote the special reasons therefor, and a certified copy of the Minutes of Council shall together with certified copies of the reports referred to and recommendations of the Board, be tabled in the House of Assembly within fifteen days from the opening of the next ensuing session in order that the necessary legislative provision may be made."

MR. CURTIS: It is understood from what the honourable the Premier said that Clause 34 (6) stay as is and Clause 55 (2) stay as is. Clause 55, page 30, same amendment stay as is.

MR. RUSSELL: I am sorry to hang up the Committee. That one looked queer to me but since then I have been satisfied.

MR. HIGGINS: Section 43 (c) was kept open.

MR. CHAIRMAN: Clause 41 was allowed to stand because it concerned Clause 40, it is now passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable the Premier asks leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Authorize the Government to Establish and Dispose of Industrial Enterprises."

Bill read a first time, ordered to be read a second time on tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, could we have second reading or the explanation so that the House will know what it is about.

MR. HIGGINS: So as it is not rushed.

MR. SMALLWOOD: There has been no rush on any Bill, there has not been and there will not be any, not even an attempt. Mr. Speaker, this Bill is for the purpose of giving the Government authority to sell the cement and gypsum mills, the property of Newfoundland, and the Government cannot sell them without authority. This is preliminary, Mr. Speaker, it is not official until it is proposed from the Chair.

MR. SPEAKER: It is by leave of the House. When I put a motion and hear no negatives, I assume the members are agreed.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I am grateful of course to the House particularly to my honourable friend the Leader of the Opposition for not denying second reading of the Bill.

The purpose of the Bill is to give the Government authority to dispose of industries. The first important clause says that the Government has—by this Act shall be deemed to have had the power to establish independent enterprises and mentions where enterprises may operate alone or in conjunction with any other person or corporation. Section 4 says moneys required for the establishment, acquisition or operation of an industrial enterprise shall be paid out of monies voted by the Legislature. The next one says the Lieutenant-Governor has power to sell, lease or otherwise dispose of, on such terms as he thinks fit, his interest in any industrial enterprise held by him under this Act. And finally monies acquired by the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council shall be paid into the Consolidated Revenue Fund. That is the whole outline of the Bill.

Moved this Bill be now read a second time.

MR. SPEAKER: Now, let me inform the honourable members the honourable Premier asked leave to read this Bill a second time. It is now competent for any honourable member to move the adjournment or if he wishes to speak or adjourn the debate.

MR. HIGGINS: I adjourn the debate, Mr. Speaker.

MR. SPEAKER: Honourable the Attorney General asks leave to introduce a Bill, "An Act to Amend the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1950."

Motion is the Bill is now read a first time.

Read a first time.

MR. CURTIS: I would ask the permission of the House, Mr. Speaker, that this Bill be now read a second time. Not so that the House would accept the principle of the Bill. As a matter of fact I don't know what the principle is. It seems to be a Bill designed to allow the court to deal with conditions of release of accused in certain circumstances when it is considered unfair that certain offenders should suffer imprisonment. If the House would give second reading I think we could follow better in committee. It is not a Bill of any importance and is just brought in so as to bring our legislation in keeping with Federal Legislation on this subject and makes it applicable to cases of summary jurisdiction. I would recommend the second reading but would not hesitate to consent to adjournment.

MR. HIGGINS: If the honourable Minister would explain the Act to us, I would not mind, but when I see an Act retroactive it is one thing that is not done at all. It comes in force August 1, 1950. I wonder if that is a typographical error. This Act may be all right, I would rather help a prisoner than hurt him. But I think it is better to get that information.

MR. RUSSELL: It shows how long the Bill has been lying up.

MR. SPEAKER: The motion is the Bill be now read a second time. Does the honourable Leader of the Opposition wish to adjourn the debate?

MR. HIGGINS: I adjourn the debate, Mr. Speaker.

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable the Acting Minister of Natural Resources asks leave to introduce a Bill, "An Act Further to Amend the Crown Lands Act, 1930."

Read a first time, ordered read a second time on tomorrow.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Further Amend the Public Utilities Act, 1949."

Section 1 to 8 read and passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendments.

Ordered read a third time on tomorrow.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Newfoundland Federation of Fishermen."

HON. W. J. KEOUGH (Minister of Fisheries and Co-operatives): If the Committee would agree I think the constitution could be called by number.

MR. CHAIRMAN: It is agreeable to the Committee that the constitution be taken as read.

Sections 1 to 4 read and passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

MR. FORSEY: I was going to suggest—on a previous day I proposed second reading of a Bill to Authorize the Lieutenant Governor in Council to Guarantee Payment of Bonds issued by Town Councils. That Bill has been rather hurriedly prepared with a consequent very serious omission. I ask therefore that the Bill be withdrawn and an amended Bill with the specific amount of guarantees substituted.

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable Minister informs us that the first distribution of this Bill "An Act to Authorize the Lieutenant Governor in Council to Guarantee Payment of Bonds issued by Town Councils be withdrawn, the corrected copies have been distributed.

MR. RUSSELL: Mr. Speaker, I have the floor. I already have the first copy which has been withdrawn. I think it should be more than withdrawn, it should be taken and ripped up and thrown in the furnace and forgotten. I will never refer to it again only on strong provocation. This Bill, as far as I can see, is a very fine Bill, I am in favour of it in principle, since in principle I am in favour of giving assistance to Town Councils. I think the first town council was organized probably at Windsor and I was very much interested. I was living at Grand Falls at the time and was very much interested in the move the people were making on their own behalf. My only regret, Sir, is that on this list on the second page, or schedule, the town of Bonavista is not there. There are two or three rural councils in the district which I represent.

I have just one or two brief comments to make. The guarantee of bonds is probably the finest way in which the Government can help those town councils because it is probably the simplest way not involving the outright transfer of any hard cash or outright discussion with some hard-headed banker regarding whether or not they would accept the Government's guarantee for a loan. The guarantee of bonds is probably the easier way for the Government to help town councils and therein lies the danger. The Government, if not careful, can pledge or spend the same money two or three times over and leave us in the position where we might be very proud of our small national provincial debt $11 per head but where we would be accumulating without noticing a tremendous contingent debt. That is a danger of which I am sure the Government is well aware and not one of these bond issues should be guaranteed unless it meets the requirements that should attend on every wise loan. Now, from my experience with credit unions and I am an authority on that subject, in this Province I have learned that in making a loan or guaranteeing a loan or bond the same principle applies to guaranteeing loans and guaranteeing bonds in making a loan not purely for commercial purposes not caring if you get the money back or if you get twice as much out of the property. But referring to loans not for commercial purposes but for social uplift the supreme test, Sir, is this, that the borrower should be able to repay the loan and be better off after he has it repaid than he was before he got it. Therefore, Sir, though I approve of the principle entirely I do hope that when the Committee stage comes the honourable Minister will be able to inform us of the purpose for each of these bond issues and I hope that in each case the purpose will be for something which will improve the community and at the same time give the council an opportunity to raise revenue. Unless it is revenue raising and at the same time tending towards community betterment the issue should be discouraged and in no such cases should a government guarantee it.

Now, I am going to say something else, a most unusual statement and will then sit down. I am not praising up the Minister of Supply, Sir, he is no particular friend of mine, on good authority I understand the contrary if anything might be the case. But amongst the things this Government is doing a little better at least than the Commission of Government ever did, is in my opinion the administration of Town Councils. There used to be a director of local governments, a full-time job, which today the Deputy Minister of Supply has assumed in addition to his regular duties as Deputy Minister and he is by no means the least busy of the deputy ministers which is no reflection on any of them and there is no reason why they should be less busy, but in addition, I understand, he is voluntarily taking on this other task and doing the job for the same pay. That should be noted by the House and the Committee. I think in that phase of the Department of Supply which has to do with Town Councils the Deputy Minister and his superior are probably handling the whole matter in a realistic, hard-headed manner. I repeat again, Sir, I hope they will get around to paying some attention to the district of which I am the member. As a matter of fact the last time the Town Council was defeated in Bonavista by popular vote, therefore, it may be politically unwise to say what I am going to say, my greatest regret is that they are not included here in the schedule as a town council applying to the Government for a guarantee of some bond issue and getting it, only if it were for some purpose to bring some badly needed programme of improvement to the community and at the same time a chance to collect enough revenue to lay aside a sinking fund to pay interest due on it so that the Government might never have to pay a cent and afterwards have the community end up better off than it started. There will be no time wasted in Committee if the honourable Minister is able to give information as to each bond issue.

MR. HIGGINS: I think it is a good thing for the Government to help out municipalities but it is dangerous unless well managed. The member for Bonavista South has told us that the guarantee of bonds is a very insidious practice, something like a man who thinks he has paid his debt when he has given a note and does not realize that three months later he has to meet it, but here it is some years, a generation.

MR. SMALLWOOD: You can get a renewal.

MR. HIGGINS: You have to wait twenty years. That means the Government is building up contingent liability and if they want to raise a new loan the financiers will find contingent liability amounting to an Act of legislature of this date and unless each municipality or town council meets its payments they may have a very expensive baby on their hands. Now, there is $160,000 given to Springdale and South Brook. That is a large amount of money.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is a fast growing place.

MR. HIGGINS: We should look at every phase when giving a mortgage or bond, if there is a prospect of collecting enough to pay off interest that is not sufficient. The Government should see that some of these bonds should be paid off in five or ten years or a sinking fund provided or the Council give some money to the Government to hold so that after a given number of years they would be paid off and in twenty years not find the town owed the Government $150,000 at Springdale but that it has been paid off. If this system is adopted and the town councils go burst the treasury then pays it. It is all right if it means the town council has improved the community and paid off the bond but if they have the improvement without paying off the bonds they are in the same position as when they started. Now, if they default it is impossible for the Government to get the money and the town is in a bad condition and it is hard to sell property. I hope the Minister will assure us in Committee and give us what security we have, and whether there is a sinking fund and an attempt made at the end of twenty years to pay. Secondly, he might tell us why there is a difference in the amounts granted, Grand Bank $200,000, and Lewisporte $120,000, Lewisporte is prosperous too, and why Belleoram has only $10,000. I don't know. Corner Brook East $10,000. I trust we can get this information so that there will be no delay. But there is one thing I do hope, at the end of twenty years that the money will be paid off whether by annual payments or a sinking fund is created whereby it is paid off at the end of twenty years. If at the end of ten years they have paid nothing, it is safe to presume nothing will be paid off at the end of twenty years.

MR. MORGAN: In supporting the principle of this Bill I should like first of all to clarify the remarks made by the honourable member for Bonavista South. He stated that the principle of the Bill was to help out town councils. I think the principle goes a little deeper than that in that it encourages self-help. The undertaking of the projects envisaged in most of these guarantees would be, I say, absolutely impossible were it not for some similar assistance. In giving these guarantees we are certainly encouraging town councils to help themselves. I should like also to put the honourable Leader of the Opposition at ease with regard to the reason for which Springdale, which happens to be in the District of Green Bay, is getting the amount of $160,000. Probably if he had taken Grand Bank, the honourable Minister of Supply would be on to him. The population of the town of Springdale has increased from something like 945 in 1945 to 1,700 in 1950. I say that is an increased population by one hundred percent in the last five years. That is due to the fact that Bowaters has quite a large woods operation there cutting last year in the vicinity of sixty thousand cords of pulp wood. There was in addition some four million board feet of lumber cut there each year. The town being a wooden structure, the danger of fire is very great and the purpose of the guarantee is to provide a water supply for the town.

MR. DROVER: I rise, Sir, to support the Bill for the following reason. I believe that where we have town councils in the Province it is a first step towards a better government for the whole of Newfoundland. Where we have a people interested enough to band themselves together and manage their own affairs locally, if we had more of them all over Newfoundland then we should not have any fear of the outcome of electing a wise and sound government.

Secondly, I believe that it is the duty of the elected Government to support these town councils. In the District of White Bay we pride ourselves on having three and two years ago I helped to organize one at Englee. They have done a fine job and I believe that if the people of Bonavista South and other towns of Bonavista to which the honourable member for Bonavista South made reference to a moment ago, had they taken the initiative in the town of Bonavista as they did in the place in which I live they would find themselves having a place worthwhile and a better town like you find in different places in the Province where there are town councils at the present time. I have much pleasure in supporting the Bill.

Bill read a second time. Ordered referred to Committee of the Whole now.

Committee of the Whole on Bill, "An Act to Authorize the Lieutenant Governor in Council to Guarantee Payment of Bonds issued by Town Councils."

Section 1 and 2 read and passed.
Section 3 read.

MR. HIGGINS: I presume that will be read with the schedule.

MR. FORSEY: I am prepared to give all the information. I think these percentages will have to be deleted because we may sell some of these bonds and some might go as high as four and others vary between three and four.

MR. HIGGINS: Why not put in not exceeding four percent or something like that?

MR. CASHIN: Yes, how are they going to sell these bonds?

MR. CURTIS: Ten years, I think.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, the honourable and gallant member for Ferryland has raised a very important question. I hold that bonds guaranteed as to interest and principal by the Government are tantamount to Government Bonds. They are tantamount and the credit standing of the Government of Newfoundland is involved in the rate change and the discount rate of these bonds of private parties or corporations for Town Councils that are guaranteed as to principal and interest by the Government. Now a very large question is raised here by this Bill, if it were a question only of guaranteeing principal and interest of bonds envisaged in this Bill it would be an important question but it is much more important because of the fact that it is the only way which the Government now has, apart from the giving of cash, to give assistance to industry or to establish or expand, by means of guaranteed bonds—the Committee is aware of the fact that under directive of the Bank of Canada the chartered banks are not now permitted to make loans for a period of more than one year. That means the procedure followed up to now in assisting industries to expand, particularly the fishing industry, is lost to us since that directive of the Bank of Canada. So as I say, we must either do so in future with actual cash out of the surplus or else guarantee the bonds of the town council, fish companies, industrial companies or other individuals or organizations whom we desire to assist in the process of developing Newfoundland. Now as a matter of fact, it is quite likely in connection with these nine or ten new industries to be developed by parties from Europe about which I spoke here a few days ago, the Government will be requested to give financial assistance up to a point in each case with a view to going perhaps as far as to match in investment dollar for dollar. That is to say, if a European firm comes here willing to establish a new industry employing a hundred or two hundred or four, five or six hundred persons each and that firm has no dollars and no way of getting dollars but has the whole of the machinery and know-how and lacks only the dollars, it may, indeed it will get down to a case of the government assisting them to establish here. Now, that can be done, as I say, only by cash disbursements from the surplus or else the guaranteeing of bonds. It looks as though the whole thing might run to a sum of six or seven million dollars when we count eight hundred thousand dollars here for these various town councils and certain modern fish plants or projects that are in the blue print stage and in hand and these industrial developments which I just spoke of. Now, if that is to be done and the credit standing of Newfoundland amply protected in the rates of discount and interest then clearly some sound procedure must be devised. The Committee may be aware of the recent development in the bond market. In recent weeks a very marked rise has taken place in the bond market. The City of Winnipeg, for example, floated an issue quite recently in the United States, I think they were able to sell bonds at a discount of 7.3. I know that is not good, it is very bad and an interest rate of three and a half percent. So that would yield very much higher rates than three and a half percent. In short the City of Winnipeg would be paying three and a half percent on $100 for which they received $93. Now, the City of Halifax quite recently floated a bond issue, again I forget the exact issue, in the United States. The rate of interest was four percent but the discount was quite high. Now, the Province of Ontario just floated a bond issue of fifty million dollars on behalf of hydro-electric of Ontario, one of the most successful publicly owned bodies in this whole world with regard to their credit. Their bonds were floated by Harriman-Ripley in the United States and Wood Gundy Co. in Canada and the rate was much worse than the Province of Ontario had been expecting. The market is so bad that to attempt at least to iron out the local jam that had come in public housing the Canadian Government quite recently were obliged to raise the interest rates on central housing and mortgage to five and a half percent because they were not able to sell bonds no matter how attractive, how appealing or how sound a proposition, they can't sell if the purchasers are in a position to buy bonds at a higher rate of interest and larger rate of discount. It is a matter of supply and demand. They will buy the bonds that yield the greatest returns provided in the first place the bonds being bought are safe and sound.

The whole question that my honourable and gallant friend asked the Minister of Supply—how to go about floating those bonds—is a question it is not possible to answer without at the same time taking into account far more than just the bonds envisaged in this Bill, the whole position of the Province has to be considered and the need of the Province to guarantee bonds for this and other purposes has to be taken into account. So I may say the Government, including the Minister of Supply, who is a member of the Government have taken that matter into careful consideration and with the advice of our treasury and of other people both here and elsewhere we must and will arrive at a sound procedure under which we can safely guarantee these bonds.

Now, all the Bill does is to ask the House to give the Government authority to do so and it is the first duty of the Government to safeguard the public standing or rating of its bonds, credit standing in the world in general.

Now, we are starting off in a magnificent position, magnificent. No

Province in Canada stands in so fine a position in that regard as we do with a public debt of only $11 a head compared with the next lowest of all Canada, the Province of Quebec, with $80, and compared with the highest in Canada, New Brunswick, getting up to $300 a head. An exceptionally attractive position. So much so that at least half a dozen bond houses have come down here especially to call on me to plead with us to place some of our bonds business with them. To which my answer always has been: you have come on a wasted mission, we are not in the market, we can lend you some money if necessary. And I hope we will be in that position for a while to come. Anyway, I was purposely laying the foundation for establishing the fact that we are not begging, we are sitting on top of the world with a public debt scarcely more than the City of St. John's.

MR. FOGWILL: A stick of dynamite.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Far from it. The public debt of the City of St. John's is almost as large as of Newfoundland. It is almost unbelievable and against that we ended the year with a surplus of nine hundred odd thousand and have budgeted for a surplus of eight hundred thousand and we have in the pot some twenty millions in cash and we have estimated for the end of this year one million net cash together with the value of the cement plant and the gypsum and birch mill. So that we are in a very attractive position. But to translate that into a sound and prudent scheme of financing these bonds is a matter calling for very careful, very careful and prudent organization on our part and I am sure the Committee would not expect us to discuss the ins and outs of that. It would be shirt-sleeve diplomacy with a vengeance. When it is in the interest of protecting the Provincial credit—open discussion in the elected House is never done. I say an open discussion of the intricacy of the actual mechanics—

MR. CASHIN: You are teasing and leading us on.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I was trying for something more intricate than that. It is not very complicated to call on bond houses to submit tenders. There is a much better way than that to go about it, a far better way.

MR. CASHIN: We could sell to them if they are worth anything.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That depends on the rate of discount.

MR. CASHIN: I claim they should go more.

MR. SMALLWOOD: And get a rate of interest three and a half per cent, less than that, and two months ago, and we would have gotten three per cent. The last issue of the Government of Canada, two point five, which was about two and a half months ago. The last issue of Saskatchewan was 3.20 and virtually no discount but the Province of Saskatchewan will be the last province for some time to come to get that very fine rate, just immediately after that the bond market abruptly jumped but where Saskatchewan got 3.20 we ought to have gotten two and five-eighths or six-eighths or something of that order and no discount on the face value. But I have said those things only to assure my honourable friend, the Leader of the Opposition, and the former Minister of Finance that at least we are not just bungling into it but giving it very careful and prudent consideration and they can feel a little easier in their minds we are not rushing into it like a bull in a china shop or like Alice in Wonderland or Little Red Riding Hood, amongst the wolves of the financial world but we are very much awake to our duties and our position and our opportunities in this matter.

MR. CASHIN: In connection with this matter, we have had this speech, now I may say a few words too. When you advertise bonds as all Governments do, you must also produce a statement, an audited statement, of your affairs. Now, none of these companies, at all, at the present time are worth speaking about but the Government in Newfoundland guarantees the principal and interest. Now, I might say right here, in my view, taking it for what it is worth, this eight hundred and fifteen dollars here should be sold locally at par, not go to any bond houses at all.

MR. FORSEY: They are all committed at present.

MR. CASHIN: In other words some house has agreed to buy all at par.

MR. FORSEY: That is right.

MR. CASHIN: And is going to sell to the public undoubtedly to make a cut out of it.

MR. VARDY: It would be most unusual if they did not buy at par and sell at a premium.

MR. CASHIN: Now, I have no objection to this Act. I am just trying to get at this. $10,000 is issued to the Town of Corner Brook East for five years. Bonds are very seldom issued for five years. No Government to my knowledge issues bonds for five years. There are no bonds issued for less than ten or probably twenty and in some cases twenty-five and Corner Brook is merely $10,000 for five years. Now, I take it sinking funds are established on these bonds, they can't be established yet the issue is not sold. I remember in the supply estimates a sum of $150,000 voted for special grants for two councils; ever since they were instituted by the Commission of Government they have been giving out ten, fifteen, and twenty thousand, some town councils got as high as $35,000 in one year. I added up what Grand Bank has gotten in free grants from the government since they have been a town council and it runs to one hundred and fifty thousand in addition to a ten thousand dollar loan they finished paying off last year. But out of that one hundred and five we took out fifty we are not going to give out as special grants and put it aside to set up a sinking fund in the Department of Finance to pay half the interest and half the sinking fund. Take Corner Brook East, the servicing of that loan will be $2,350 and we will set aside $1,175 as our share of service, and the Town Council of Corner Brook will pay us $1,175. As a matter of fact they have already paid it for this particular loan here for $10,000 was one we gave them last year, but once the bonds are sold this particular $10,000 will revert to the treasury and that applies also to Lewisporte to the tune of $30,000, we already loaned them the money and advanced them the cash last year, and also Belleoram, that $10,000 was a loan last year so that when the bonds are sold, $50,000 will come into the revenue this year. Reference was made to Springdale, 1,700 people, and they are borrowing $160,000 and their interest and sinking fund will be roughly thirteen or fourteen thousand dollars a year. That is practically $10 a head for every person down there they have to find this year to pay cash in interest and sinking fund, every man, woman and child has to pay $9 each in interest and sinking fund.

MR. SPENCER: If they have other means of income.

MR. CASHIN: They will pay indirectly, yes.

MR. FORSEY: In the case of Springdale this $160,000 is required to put in a water system and in Grand Bank it is for a water system. We had a chap away last year, Healey, taking instruction in tax structure for municipalities and he has been to Grand Bank and just about doubled the taxation and the poll tax there is raised from $3 to $5 which gave him a couple of thousand dollars increase in the case of Grand Bank. The total revenue to the council when they have a water system installed will be about $25,000 paid by roughly six hundred families, nearly three thousand people.

MR. CASHIN: Returning to the Bond issue, you have practically made arrangements to sell this issue?

MR. FORSEY: There will be no difficulty in disposal of them. The two companies there have notified the Springdale Town Council, they are taking $10,000 each at 3%.

MR. HIGGINS: On one point, I did not get what the Premier said about the prosperity of the country. If that were the case the result would be to reduce taxation. Put it down at 4%, that is the only way to settle that.

MR. FORSEY: I would say not exceeding 4%.

MR. HIGGINS: I am glad you have no doubt about raising the money. To my mind there is going to be difficulty about raising money on long term. At the present day there is so much inflation people don't want to tie up money for a long time, a man may have a thousand dollars today but in twenty years time it is not worth it.

Moved Clause 3 amended by inserting the words "not exceeding 4%."

MR. HIGGINS: I don't see any arrangements made about paying off the sinking fund on this amount.

Section 4 read and passed.

MR. FORSEY: All those town councils listed here, apart from Corner Brook East which is a special thing, will not get any more special grants from the Government. That is final and the only help given them is to set up a sinking fund and pay up to one half probably. In the case of Grand Bank, we won't have to pay anything. For instance, if it costs $12,000 in Springdale to service that loan we will set aside six thousand dollars for Springdale and they will raise the other six. That is the total contribution of the Government to Springdale from now on and they will get no more special grants.

MR. HIGGINS: You don't give them the money?

MR. FORSEY: We leave it with the Department of Finance as a sinking fund. If Springdale did not have this water system we would be giving them at least ten thousand dollars this year.

MR. HIGGINS: How does Belleoram carry on with only $10,000?

MR. FORSEY: Belleoram got from the Commission of Government fifteen thousand and twenty-five thousand, a total of thirty-five thousand, and we loaned them ten on which they paid the interest. As a matter of fact since we came into office we have loaned to town councils $145,000 and have now outstanding $85,000; no council has defaulted on principal or interest. I am wrong, one town council defaulted on interest, that is Placentia, due to the fact it split up in two and it had a water system but they have made arrangements with others to pay back what they should for water supplied for them.

MR. FAHEY: There one town council supplies the water to the other two.

MR. FORSEY: They got the loan in the first instance when Jersey Side and Freshwater were a part of their town council. There are no town councils behind in principal or interest.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments. Ordered read a third time on tomorrow.

Second reading of Bill "An Act to Vest Lands Comprised in Certain Fee Simple Grants in the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation."

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move second reading of this Bill. As the House knows the Government is very anxious to develop certain areas with potential resources which are fully vested and explored. Now, we have other areas such as Parsons Pond on the West Coast which may contain oil, and it is the intention of the Government to have an extensive examination into those areas. We find however, Mr. Speaker, that we cannot find out the present owners of these properties, we don't know them, they were granted some years ago to the Newfoundland Oil Co., and certain others to the Newfoundland Petroleum Limited, all companies registered in London.

MR. HIGGINS: Who is the individual living out there who built the camp in Hawks Bay?

MR. CURTIS: As far as we can enquire we don't know who owns them. They were ultimately, I think, all vested in The General Oil Field Limited, originally I think Newfoundland Oil Fields Limited. As far as we can make out from our investigations, when the Newfoundland Oil Fields or General Oil Fields went into liquidation all the assets were sold for $60 or £60 to some party over in Britain, in the British Oil. So there is a serious gap and we felt that it is time that something were done to reclaim these areas and get them producing if they are capable of production. We did not want to have them vested in the Government, we feel that a private organization or a semi-private one such as this new Corporation proposes to establish might succeed in getting these areas explored and developed when we could not. So we are asking the House to pass this Act which will vest the title in the Newfoundland Labrador Corporation. I might say here that the Bill as it is at the moment will not be acceptable to the Government as it vests the fee simple in this new corporation. Even though we are the Corporation we do not think the fee simple should be vested in us. We propose to ask the House in Committee to amend the section so that this Corporation has only the same interest in these areas as they have now or will have in other areas for development. In other words, ten years prospective rights with certain mineral rights the details of which will be better known to the House when the revised clause will have been read in Committee. I move the second reading and express the hope that as a result of this Bill some of these areas will be developed.

MR. HIGGINS: I don't exactly know how to take this. I don't know enough about the parliamentary procedure on the point. But when the Attorney General is talking about the Labrador Corporation it is not yet in existence, Sir, I hope it is a big bouncing boy or pretty girl, but it is not in existence as yet and how can we convey property to a person not in existence, we cannot do it, it cannot be done. Until such time as the Corporation suddenly blossoms out into a girl or boy, a man or an old man, the whole thing is dead. Now, what effect it has on this I don't know. If we pass the Bill before the Newfoundland Labrador Bill we will have a Bill passed granting privileges to a corporation not in existence.

MR. CURTIS: The essential thing is the date.

MR. HIGGINS: We hope the other one goes through first otherwise we will be out of luck. Now, I am telling you I don't know enough about that point, I have never looked it up but I presume it is not born until the assent is given and then I presume that steps will be taken to see that there will be development. Is the Company an hour old when this comes in, that is the question?

MR. CURTIS: It is a good point raised.

Bill read a second time, ordered to Committee of the Whole on tomorrow.

Second reading of Bill "An Act Respecting the Sale and Distribution of Fishery Salt."

MR. KEOUGH: The intention of this Bill is to provide enabling authority under which recommendations can be made by the Lieutenant Governor in Council requiring that fishery salt sold in Newfoundland be sold by weight instead of by measure and prohibiting or otherwise controlling the mixing of fishery salt of different origin. The current practice in Newfoundland at present is for salt to be sold by the hogshead, that is by measure, but salt of different origin has different weights there being a variation, I understand, of 3.2 to four hogsheads a ton depending on whether the salt is mineral or saline and there is a variation in these categories. The fairest basis for sale is thought to be by weight relating to retail price rather than cost price, instead of the straight weight per hogshead presently taken.

The thought behind prohibiting the mixing of fishery salt is to improve quality when a fisherman works with salt of a single origin and consistency he knows the capacity of the salt and how much to give fish but where he has to work with a quantity of mixed salt varying in quality and capacity he is at a considerable disadvantage. He may give too much or too little and in either case an inferior production results.

I would draw attention to the fact that what is sought is enabling authority as outlined and I understand that representatives of the salt distributors and fishermen have expressed their views that legislation to control the sale and distribution of salt in the manner envisioned here is desirable. I should add that while the Government cannot in any measure forego its right to make regulations in the public interest nevertheless before any legislation or regulations are made in implementing this legislation representatives of the salt distributors and the fishermen have been consulted as to what these regulations should contain. I think that covers the points of the Bill and I move second reading.

Read a second time, ordered referred to Committee of the Whole on tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I move the remaining orders of the day be deferred and that the House at its rising adjourn until tomorrow, Monday at 3:00 of the clock.

The House adjourned accordingly.

MONDAY, June 18th, 1951.

The House opened at three of the clock.

Giving Notice of Motion and Questions

MR. CASHIN: Mr. Speaker, on June 13th, I asked a question in respect to the Buy Newfoundland Campaign and have received no reply.

MR. SPEAKER: Question No. 112, Order Paper of June 13th.

HON. JOSEPH R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, I have the answer here but it is not exactly what the honourable gentleman asked for so I am sending it back. It is quite a long thing and I am sending it back to have it put in the form that the honourable gentleman asked for and I will have it tomorrow.

MR. CASHIN: Whatever the answer is I might as well have it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I am afraid I do not see it that way.

MR. CASHIN: Why, is there something in the reply that won't bear the light of day?

MR. SMALLWOOD: I object to that comment. The honourable gentleman has no right to make such a suggestion. I have told the House it is not in the form requested and he will have to wait for the answer as we are to give it to him not as he wants it.

MR. CASHIN: In reply to the honourable Premier, I know that matter is not one for debate but I think or take it we are not going to get a reply, that is the position.

MR. SPEAKER: Order.

MR. J. G. HIGGINS (Leader of the Opposition): I asked a question regarding that matter three months ago and have received no answer as yet.

MR. SPEAKER: That was automatically ruled out because there is no question that can be made twice in the same session.

Orders of the Day

Third reading of Bill, "An Act to Amend the Mining Tax Act, 1950."

HON. LESLIE R. CURTIS (Attorney General): I ask that this order be recommitted.

Motion carried.

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Chairman, the change we would make in this Bill is this: Sub-section two refers to taxation on iron ore; in the original text it said on the first one hundred and fifty tons of ore and when the Bill was in committee it should have been changed to one million five hundred thousand tons, so I move that amendment.

MR. CASHIN: What is the position now, 10c. a ton or a million and a half and eight cents on everything over that?

MR. CURTIS: Yes.

Paragraph (a) sub-clause 2 amended. The error arose because the taxation on a million and a half would be $150,000. It was just a misprint. The Ex-Minister of Natural Resources drew my attention to it.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments.

Report received and adopted. Bill ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

Third reading of Bill "An Act Respecting Public Revenue, the Raising of Loans Authorized by the Legislature and the Auditing of Public Accounts."

Bill read a third time and passed.

Third reading of Bill "An Act Further to Amend the Public Utilities Act, 1949" was deferred.

Third reading of Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Newfoundland Federation of Fishermen."

Bill read a third time and passed.

Third reading of Bill "An Act to Authorize the Guarantee of Payment of Bonds Issued by Certain Town Councils."

Bill read a third time and passed.

MR. CURTIS: Before we proceed to No. 7, Mr. Speaker, there were two Bills passed which require nominal amendment. One, the "Law Societies' Act," and the other "An Act Respecting Liability in Actions for Damages for Negligence where More than One Party is at Fault." I move that the third readings be rescinded and these Bills be recommitted.

Motion carried.

Committee of a Whole on Bill "An Act Further to Amend the Law Society Act."

MR. CURTIS: I would ask the House if it would refer to Section 2 of the Act. Mr. Chairman, when we passed this Act it was in April and we had in mind then that Law Students at Dalhousie would be able to prepare their law papers and get before the law society before June. However, the students are not able to take advantage of this section, therefore, I move the words "twelve months in June" be stricken out and the words "eighteen months" be substituted. Change the word "twelve" in the second line to "eighteen." In paragraph (k) the words three be stricken out and twelve months be substituted therefor.

Passed.

Committee of the Whole "An Act Respecting Liability in Actions for Damages for Negligence Where More than One Party is at Fault."

MR. CURTIS: The honourable Leader of the Opposition has called to my attention the fact there is no clause in this Act regarding any cause of action existing when this Act came into effect. This may produce some difficulty in actions not paid but may have been started before this Act came into effect. I therefore move (a) Nothing in this Act affects any cause of Action Existing when this Act came into effect.

Motion carried.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bills with some amendments. Ordered read a third time. Read a third time and ordered passed and title be as on the Order Paper.

MR. CURTIS: I move the House into Committee of the Whole on the next four Bills items 7, 8, 9 and 10, on the Order Paper.

Committee of the Whole: A Bill "An Act to Approve and Give Statutory Effect to An Agreement Between the Government and Doctor Arthur Seigheim."

A Bill "An Act to Vest Lands Comprised in Certain Fee Simple Grants in the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation."

A Bill "An Act Respecting the Sale and Distribution of Fishery Salt."

A Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation Limited."

MR. CHAIRMAN: The Doctor Seigheim Bill has been read but so far only Clause 1 has been passed; we were discussing Clause 2 on the last day.

MR. CURTIS: It will be remembered, Mr. Chairman, when this House had this Bill before it I think the honourable member for Bonavista South suggested there should be a floor price on pulp wood exported, or it was the honourable member for Ferryland who suggested that we should have a floor minimum as safeguard in case the market in Europe should be uncertain. Therefore I suggest in Clause 3 of the main Act, sub-clause 1 of Clause 4 of the said agreement shall be read as if there were added there to the words "But in no event shall the royalty payable be less than $2.50 U.S. Currency for each cord." That is a new section as we cannot amend a contract that has been signed, we can only amend it by putting a section into the Act which is a new section 3 of the Act.

MR. SMALLWOOD: On that amendment, I may say that on Friday when I asked Dr. Valdmanis' opinion of what Dr. Seigheim's reaction would be to that suggestion, he answered that he felt Dr. Seigheim would agree. I, therefore, made the suggestion here in committee. Dr. Valdmanis at my suggestion cabled Dr. Scigheim telling him the desire of the House of Assembly to insert that minimum amount to which he cabled back his reply saying that he felt that a hard bargain had been driven by Newfoundland, which meant in this particular case by Dr. Valdmanis, but that while he agreed to this change he felt that if there were other substantial changes he would have to reconsider the whole thing.

MR. CASHIN: I believe he will be reconsidering it anyhow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The honourable gentleman is, of course, completely and absolutely entitled to his belief as is for that matter the Committee, but I think the contrary, and time will tell which of us is right. Minor amendments or changes Dr. Seigheim would not mind but this is the only substantial change to which he agrees and he does agree to the insertion of this minimum. He inquired in his cable if it has passed through the House, because he wants to begin at once to move in to these areas of Labrador and start operations within the next week or two as quickly as he can get equipment in there and temporary accommodations in the way of tents, as they cannot go in on the bare ground and must have something to live in.

MR. CASHIN: Everything is fixed now except the passing of the Bill.

MR. SMALLWOOD: When it is passed and has Royal Assent we will cable and tell him all is clear as far as we can clear it, and the rest is up to him.

MR. CASHIN: What if the Canadian Government will not consent?

MR. SMALLWOOD: I do not anticipate anything there. As soon as the Bill is passed I will telephone Ottawa and get the green light, but I anticipate no difficulty whatsoever. The Province of New Brunswick is exporting a considerable quantity of wood from year to year and I do not anticipate even in the nature of newsprint—while it is true quite recently the Government of Canada have taken authority to control the disposition of newsprint paper they are not exercising that control let alone raw wood.

MR. CASHIN: Raw wood is very essential and my point is this, we will have to get a ten year contract for the export of wood.

MR. SMALLWOOD: We will try but I cannot guarantee a ten year permit from the Timber Controller. Suppose a war broke out and timber became not timber but green gold, certainly then the control of timber will be carried out.

MR. CASHIN: You will have to get that agreement from the Federal Government for as much of the ten years as you can.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That would not be very satisfactory.

MR. HIGGINS: That would be anticipated, that would be part of the contract. It says subject to the permission of the Timber Controller of Canada, says so in section 7.

MR. HORWOOD: I would like to ask the Premier whether Dr. Seigheim was approached in the matter of the change in schedule of this Act.

MR. CURTIS: I have an amendment here but I have not discussed it with him. I do not think we need to.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Is it the amendment in regard to the settlement of North West River? We cannot give him the right to cut the trees in the middle of the settlement of North West River and a margin of about two and a half miles around.

MR. RUSSELL: You will want to leave plenty of trees as there is going to be a town there yet.

MR. CURTIS: Now, Mr. Chairman, I would like to propose an amendment in section 4 of the Act. The side note will be "Amendment to Lot No. 1 of Schedule." There is a new section 4 in the Act:

4. Lot No. 1 contained in the Schedule to the said Agreement shall be read as if

(a) the words "sixty-five" were substituted for the word "seventy" in line 16 thereof; and

(b) the words "Montagnaid Point thence turning and running in a general southwesterly direction five miles more or less to a point on the East side of Grand Lake at its outlet into Little Lake, thence across the said outlet of Grand Lake in a general southwesterly direction to the point on the western side of the outlet, thence along the shore of Little Lake and North West River in a general southeasterly direction, a distance of three miles more or less, to the point of beginning" were substituted for the words "the southernmost point of North West River; thence crossing the outlet of Grand Lake;" and

(c) the word "Nineteen" was substituted for the word "twenty-five" in line nineteen thereof."

MR. HIGGINS: What about Goose Airport?

MR. CURTIS: That is not in it at all.

MR. RUSSELL: That would be about fifteen square miles.

MR. HORWOOD: It is much less than that, it comes out to a point, it is a triangle, about six miles.

Motion carried.

MR. RUSSELL: What are you going to do with Clause 15, subsection (b)?

MR. CURTIS: I move we refer to section 15, Mr. Chairman. This shall be read as if the words "licence fee" were substituted for the word "royalty."

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Vest Lands Comprised in Certain Fee Simple Grants in the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation."

MR. CURTIS: When this Bill came up for second reading, Mr. Chairman, the House was given to understand that the fee simple in this land would not pass to the Corporation and consequently when we come to section 2, I will move that all of section 2 be stricken out, Mr. Chairman, and the following substituted "The rights that any of the companies mentioned in the schedule to this Act or any other company or persons had or has in the land described in the grants set out in the said schedule are completely and wholly extinguished."

Motion carried.

MR. CURTIS: I will then move a new section No. 3. "The Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation Limited is by this Act granted the same rights in the lands mentioned in Section 2 as are granted to it in the lands described in paragraph (b) of Section 8 of The Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation Limited Act, 1951." In other words they are getting just a limited title for ten years and leases for fifty years.

Motion carried.

MR. CURTIS: I move a new clause 4, Mr. Chairman. "This Act shall come into force on the date to be fixed by proclamation of the Lieutenant Governor in Council."

Motion carried.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act Respecting the Sale and Distribution of Fishery Salt."

Sections 1 to 5 read and passed.

Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendments. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Incorporate the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation Limited."

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Chairman, we held up paragraph (b) because we wanted to check up on the wording. At the bottom of page 9 and continuing on to pages 10 to 11. The new clause (b), Mr. Chairman, will read: "For a period of ten years from the date upon which this Act comes into force, the exclusive right to explore, develop, produce, extract and remove all minerals, both metallic and non-metallic, in the areas described in sub-paragraphs (i) and (ii) and (iii) of this paragraph, and on the expiration of such period of ten years or within six months thereafter the exclusive right for a period of fifty years and subject to such terms and conditions as the Lieutenant Governor in Council may prescribe to explore, develop, produce extract and remove all minerals both metallic and non-metallic, on, in or under every tract of land . . . ." The amendment is that the first part of (b) be deleted and the amendment as read be inserted as the first part of (b) down to (i).

MR. RUSSELL: Am I correct in interpreting that as meaning that the small-time prospector will not be allowed to hunt around on these areas any more, the sole right to explore belongs to the Corporation, I gather, is that right?

MR. CURTIS: I think that is it in effect.

MR. RUSSELL: A few days ago in another section of the Bill the honourable the junior member for St. John's East aroused some good-natured ribbing from the House and I do not think he was taken seriously enough. I would like to say here in passing, if this is out of order the Chairman may check me, but in fairness to those who oppose this Bill it is an entirely unfortunate impression which has been given to the newspapers that the Committee themselves understand that those of us who opposed the Bill on second reading would not, obviously, keep on with the same objection in Committee. If this means the end of small operations in those areas, I think we ought to remember his remarks as we pass and realize what the honourable member for St. John's East said is not quite so funny after all. There are men down in that area who have prospecting in their blood, the Wells, the Simms, as a matter of fact an old fisherman Ingraham found the Rambler. I admit he did not do much with it, but he probably did his best and if this does mean—as I say I am not going to raise any objections but not because I am reconciled, yet I say it is a thing to be deplored that in some parts of the potential mineral areas of Newfoundland the little prospector is no longer seen amongst us, R. I. P.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, I am afraid I cannot share the honourable gentleman's tears. If Newfoundland is noted in the field of mining for one thing it is the fact that we have no prospectors. We have not any, not one prospector in this Island today, not even one. And if Newfoundland has to depend for mineral development for Newfoundland prospectors we will be here in the year three thousand and fifty-one and still talking about our mineral resources.

MR. RUSSELL: I agree.

MR. SMALLWOOD: If there is going to be prospecting done it has to be done in these days according to the most modern and most scientific methods. The day of the fellow with the pick poking around at the rocks is gone. Gone forever. Where in the world today when the prospector even the sourdough in Ontario and Quebec who gets grub stakes by some company or wealthy man he has to be equipped with knowledge and instruments that would make the old-time prospector's eyes pop in astonishment. We have not in Newfoundland today one such prospector and the only way we are going to get any mineral development is by means of airborne magnetometers, an exceedingly expensive process and by other methods of prospecting geologically, it is absolutely ridiculous to oppose this Bill on those grounds of protecting those who no longer exist in this case. Two years ago a man, a native, I believe of Witless Bay or somewhere on the Southern Shore, came back to Newfoundland from the Province of Ontario where for thirty years he was prospecting, and he was sent back here by the man who had been grubstaking him to do some prospecting. An account appeared in the press and that was the one and only prospector in Newfoundland in that year doing any prospecting and since then there has not been even one. He was served by aircraft and it is the last word surely in futility in opposition to suggest that this Bill ought not to be passed because it sets up a corporation whose aim and purpose is to bring into the search for minerals in Newfoundland the latest science that great corporation can afford to employ, and that it is a matter of regret to see this Bill come in and such corporation turned loose in the search for minerals because it mean R.I.P. to individual prospectors who do not even exist anymore. No, Mr. Chairman, I, for one, as I look back as far as I can remember and that is thirty-five years anyhow, have been quite familiar with the mining promoters of Newfoundland. These chaps who discover a hole in the ground and sometimes not even a hole, and then paddle around for one million dollars, the cool round sum of one million dollars net tidy and impressive, it is always a cool million he is going to get for some alleged mine, and what ever came of such mining efforts in Newfoundland? Could those men lift rocks covered with heavy over-burden of four, five or six and ten feet? We have to abandon the idea of prospectors picking and poking at rocks and minerals. In a land such as Newfoundland where you cannot get over the bulk of the area except on foot or by aircraft as you can do in other parts of the world. Again the crying need is for extensive aircraft prospecting and it is to bring into Newfoundland the type of companies with the kind of resources to enable them to carry out that kind of prospecting that this Bill is set up. I have heard some arguments used against this Bill but that takes it, this stupid argument that it is goodbye to non-existent prospectors, that is the limit.

MR. CURTIS: I move now that the present clause 2 on page 13 be renumbered three and a new clause two, be inserted. "All parts of the areas described in paragraph (b) of sub-section (1) on which sufficient work has not been done by the Corporation on the expiration of the period of ten years referred to in that paragraph to entitle it to an exclusive right for fifty years as set out in that paragraph shall revert to the Crown and be thenceforth dealt with as Crown Lands upon which there is no encumbrance." In other words it has exclusive right to explore for ten years and then gets fifty years' lease and if they do not qualify the remaining areas revert to the Crown.

Carried.

MR. CURTIS: Now, my honourable friend the Leader of the Opposition suggested that when this Bill was going through we should modify the clause there dealing with the directors having the right to do certain things. I think it refers to 22, I think the honourable member suggested the majority of the directors. Now, I would refer him to the Section which we just renumbered on page 13. I think in view of the fact that the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council has to consent there is no need to amend Clause 22. Here it definitely says that if any contract dealing with lease, etc.—I think the clause is just subsidiary indicating how they will do it. I suggest that it stand as it is.

We have drafted an amendment to Section 34, a new clause which reads this way:

- "34 (1) The Directors shall submit
- (a) to the shareholders at every annual meeting, and
  - (b) to the Minister of Economic Development within ten days after each annual meeting.
    - (i) a balance sheet, made up to date not more than four (4) months before such meeting;

- (ii) a general statement of profit and loss for the financial period ending upon the date of the balance sheet;
- (iii) a statement of surplus showing separate accounts for capital surplus, paid-up surplus and earned surplus respectively and the changes which shall have been made or occurred for any reason in such accounts respectively in or in respect of such financial period;
- (iv) the report of the auditors, and
- (v) such further information respecting the financial position of the Corporation as the by-laws of the Corporation require.

(2) The Minister shall present the balance sheet, statements, report, and information to the House of Assembly within fifteen days after he receives them if the House is then in session and if not in session then within fifteen days of the opening of the next ensuing session"

Now, I was just wondering, as this House has a very substantial investment in this Company, I wonder if the Company should be compelled to give a balance sheet and statement of profits and loss report. I think we would be entitled to that.

Motion carried.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I think we might go on to No. 11 on the Order Paper.

Second reading of Bill "A Bill 'An Act to Authorize the Government to Establish and Dispose of Industrial Enterprises'."

MR. SPEAKER: Second reading has been moved and the Leader of the Opposition moved the adjournment.

MR. HIGGINS: I have no objection, Mr. Speaker, to the Government having businesses they want to sell. I have no objection but not to give them carte blanche authority to go ahead and start other business out of money voted by the Legislature. It is quite possible the Government would say, this has been voted in principle and we can go ahead. This is giving them the right to establish enterprises here in Newfoundland. That is the principle here to go ahead and establish enterprises and also to sell. If they name the business we are quite willing to agree in principle. They have certain business now they would like to sell, we don't want them to be tied up and I won't stand in the way, but I cannot agree with putting in the hands of the Cabinet practically the right to do things the House itself should do.

MR. CURTIS: I think, Mr. Speaker, the real object of Section 2 is to authorize what has been done. True, it is worded in the present tense but I don't think it is even the intention of the Government to establish any new industries but this is to authorize what has been done. The Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council by this Act has and shall be deemed to have power to establish—the real object of the Bill is contained in Clause 2 and I might say I gave instructions to have this Bill prepared with a view to be empowered to deal with our present industries.

MR. HIGGINS: I am quite willing to accept this assurance that it is to deal with enterprises already started.

MR. RUSSELL: May I ask a question of the Attorney General?

MR. SMALLWOOD: If there is no other speaker, I would like to say in reply to the honourable Leader of the Opposition we don't need this Bill to authorize any industry and furthermore we are going to go right on starting them by exactly the same procedure as those three. We feel we have a mandate for them and feel that when we come back for verification and when we don't get it we will fail and go out of office and we would fight an election on the strength of it. We don't necessarily need this Bill, we will go right on starting, by the same procedure already adopted, that is what we are here for.

Bill read a second time. House gives leave to have referred to Committee of the Whole now.

Sections 1 to 4 read and passed.

MR. RUSSELL: Mr. Chairman, I supported this Bill on second reading but even then I assumed there would be an amendment on Clause 4. I wonder if the Attorney General would give us his opinion, I supported the Bill wholeheartedly, but when it says paid out of money voted by the Legislature I take it that means voted for that specific purpose.

MR. CURTIS: Or generally for the establishment of industries.

MR. RUSSELL: There is no need to amend it. This money is required for establishment of enterprises by the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council and shall be paid out of money voted by the Legislature. I take it for that purpose whether it is done, afterwards ratified or in advance. To me that is the meaning.

MR. CURTIS: Yes.

Sections 5 and 6 read and passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendments. Ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

HON. DR. H. L. POTTLE (Minister of Public Welfare): Mr. Speaker, may I have your permission before the next order to introduce a motion? I give notice I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill entitled "An Act to Authorize the Government to enter into An Agreement with Fro-bisher Limited."

MR. CURTIS: I give notice I will on tomorrow introduce a Bill, "An Act to Amend the District Courts Act, 1939."

MR. SMALLWOOD: I give notice I will on tomorrow ask leave to introduce a Bill, "An Act Relating to Public Records, and An Act Relating to Elections."

MR. HIGGINS: I am reminded of the story of the Irishman leaving to go some place and he stopped a half dozen times and was told each time that it was half a mile away, so that he could never get there; apparently it is good to be holding our own. We are not able to close the House but at least we are holding our own. I think though we ought to pay respect to the unfortunate members of the Justice Department, they are so few and have to draft so many Acts in so short a time. These individuals should have the gratitude of the House, no extra pay, but at least gratitude of the House for carrying on such long hours in spite of the fact that their producing the Acts brought before us is going to hold the House open a long time. I would like to express a special note of thanks and I hope the Honourable Speaker will pass on the word. In doing this I feel I am expressing the opinion of everyone in the House, we should be very, very thankful.

Second reading of Bill, "An Act to Amend the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1950."

MR. SPEAKER: The Honourable Leader of the Opposition adjourned the debate.

MR. HIGGINS: I don't know if I am exactly in favour of this Bill, Mr. Speaker, there are certain things in it I don't like.

In the case where a man is sick or old it is all right to allow the magistrate to dismiss the accused. It is a serious thing, old people, reprobrates may commit an offence for instance on young children and should not be loose and that is not good enough. I can understand in the case of certain offenses that do not amount to robbery but on the spur of the moment a young fellow takes something. Then I say he should not be sent to jail, but a vicious young fellow who commits an offense should not be given the benefit of this Act. If a person who commits an offense that is not serious, it is all right that he should be let off with a suspended sentence, it is all right where the charge is trifling, but if the offence were a second time I would not allow any man to dismiss it or let him off with a suspended sentence where a person is guilty of serious offense.

Take for instance in the United States a man may be paroled for murder, after ten years he is let out and he commits murder again. An old man who commits a grievous offense like an offence against women and is not reprimanded because of his mental condition, that has happened in two or three cases and I know of a couple of cases where such a man was let loose and again committed the same crime. If you could depend on every judge, but to give carte blanche authority to a judge or magistrate to dismiss a charge involving a heinous offense because of age or ill-health, is a serious position. Now, perhaps, the Attorney General would agree to put in, an offense not a heinous offense.

MR. RUSSELL: That would be beyond the summary jurisdiction.

MR. HIGGINS: In the summary jurisdiction the magistrate deals with attempted rape and grievous bodily assault.

MR. CURTIS: I don't want to close the debate, I can only speak once, unless some other member wishes to speak, I would like, Mr. Speaker, to say in the first place this Act does not involve any change in Government policy, it is a departmental Act, brought in to cure a defect found in our summary jurisdiction Act. Under our law prior to Confederation there was provision for imprisonment in our court, and suspended sentence. However in revising this Act something was left out by oversight and we are asking that it be put back and I can assure my honourable friend that while I am in the Department of Justice there will be no mercy. It is not our policy to allow any magistrate any more discretion.

MR. HIGGINS: Suppose a magistrate does, can you force it?

MR. CURTIS: No, but we can fire the magistrate and if we find magistrates abusing their powers they won't be magistrates very long. These powers only give the court their right of suspended sentence and probation and are putting the position exactly back where it was. This is an exact copy of the law before confederation, not altered or amended but is just bringing our own legislation on the date and an omission was made in the Summary Jurisdiction Act of 1950.

MR. HIGGINS: I don't think it should be in the old Act, that is not logical to dismiss an offense because the offender is old or sick. That is not very logical to say an offense is proved and leave the court without conviction.

MR. CURTIS: If my honourable friend will allow the matter to go through second reading, I will definitely have the second checked up and make sure. My honourable friend knows that when drafting a Bill like this it sometimes pays to give a lot of latitude but not have the courts take advantage of that latitude.

MR. HIGGINS: May I say this much, it may be a good thing in trivial cases to have that right, there may be a charge against a young fellow and for the rest of his life he can never leave the country because of a very trivial offense.

Bill read a second time, ordered referred to Committee of the Whole on tomorrow.

Second reading: "An Act Further to Amend the Crown Lands Act, 1930."

MR. CURTIS: I might say, Mr. Speaker, that the honourable the Premier is to introduce that Bill.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, this is a short and fairly simple Bill. I think the House will admit it requires very little explanation. It provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council in the absence of specific Legislation may make a grant of Crown Land for agricultural purposes and particularly for the purpose of raising livestock or cultivating fruit. Then in the second place it provides for the setting up of a board of examiners consisting of two representatives of the Department and two other persons not connected with the Department whose duty it will be to examine applications for appointment as surveyor and issue certificates to them on evidence of competence and to remove them in case they prove unsatisfactory or incompetent. Then it is provided that any such leases or grants issued under this part of the Act, minerals, limestone, granite, slate, marble, gypsum, marl, clay, sand, gravel, all building stone, coal, oil, natural gas and salt shall be reserved to the Crown. Then there is another section with regard to the same thing stating that no employees of the Department shall be entitled to receive any grants, leases or licence or hold any land in that way either alone or with another and it provides also that in all leases and licences issued under this Act a strip of Crown Land not less than thirty-three feet wide around and adjoining all lakes and ponds and along each bank of all rivers and shall be reserved. Now, there is another section dealing with the timber reservations providing that holders of timber leases cannot cut on Crown Lands. It is really a very simple Bill and I think lacking in any contentious feature.

Mr. Speaker, I move the Bill be now read a second time.

Bill read a second time, ordered deferred to a Committee of the Whole on tomorrow.

DR. POTTLE: I would suggest we not have second reading of item No. 15 on the Order Paper.

Second reading of Bill "An Act Relating to Mines and Quarries."

DR. POTTLE: I would like to move second reading of this Bill. Mr. Speaker, this Bill is, in fact, in its entirety, based on part five of the Crown Lands Act of 1930, and that section of the Crown Lands Act of 1930, namely part five by means of which mining claims and grants have been acquired over the last twenty years, was based on the statute, respecting mining.

Now, in outlining the principle underlying the Act and in our own previous Act I may state that the permit holder staked a mining claim and then proceeded over a period of five years to meet the main requirements of the Act, and that was to do an amount which was a minimum amount of two hundred days work on each forty acres of the claim and providing they did that satisfactorily was entitled then to apply for and get a fee simple grant which gave him all title to the Crown Land, timber, minerals, water-power then up to a limit of several hundred horsepower. Furthermore this grant was for all time and there was no provision in our previous statute whereby the land so acquired would revert to the Crown should the claim holder fail to develop what he acquired from the Government through a fee simple grant. I need not then, Sir, refer to the arguments here, and it is not in order for me to do so to indicate how adverse this practice has been and how great a disadvantage it has been to the interest of Newfoundland whereby Crown Lands should become so alienated without benefit to the Province. There was no way under such a Statute then for these lands so alienated to come back into government ownership.

Now, by contrast, the Bill before us makes it somewhat more difficult for a prospector or mining company to obtain title to a property which may be developed into a mine, although I am advised that such provision as shown by experience in other parts of Canada and other countries of the world where similar legislation is enacted is not so onerous as to prejudice genuine exploration and development. This is the first feature of this proposed Bill and the second will prevent a long time holding of inactive land.

Now, in my next remark, I may probably make my point more clearly understood if I indicated that acquiring of land for development or mining purposes there is first the staking of mining claims; secondly, when the work has developed up to a point where there seems to be justification for going on to the next stage a development licence is issued and if further progress is indicated finally a mining licence is granted.

Now, in more detail, a permit holder may stake any number of forty acre claims under this Bill and within a period of three years must do a minimum of one hundred and fifty days work on each claim and at any time within that period may apply for a development licence which can be issued to cover up to six mining claims. This development licence gives him title for a period of one year for which he pays at the time the licence is issued $10 plus 50c. an acre for the services covered by the licence. Along with this rental he is required to do twenty-five days work a year for every forty acre lot and at the end of the licence period if his property is not sufficiently developed, it may be assumed that he can go on to further exploration up to the point of the mining licence. He may apply for a renewal of the development licence for another year and go on until the stage of exploration or development reaches the point where it may be assumed that a mine might be brought into production. When that point is reached then the permit holder may apply for a mining licence, the third phase indicated, and this is issued for the sum of $25 per acre and when the mining licence is issued then he must within two years spend the sum of not less than $10 an acre in two years. If by that time he has brought a mine into production he may continue to hold it for a period of twenty-five years and a rental of $10 per acre, per year. That rental is remitted to him if production is maintained or a mine of two hundred tons a year is produced. Now, $10 per acre rental a year may look trifling. But the point is when a holder brings a mine into production we must consider that the condition under which he operates the mine and the success that we have in operating our mines, are affected by conditions which apply to similar work elsewhere and it is not to Newfoundland's advantage to charge a higher rate than is charged elsewhere for similar services. It is favourable for us not to make our minimum charges too high.

Now, the effect of this legislation is two-fold. The more important one is that payments called for and work required are sufficiently heavy to discourage long term holders of potentially valuable mining land, and secondly and probably less important is that it is, from the point of view of long term mining development, a very small revenue producer to the Government from issues of licences. The main thing is that every incentive is in the Act to enable a holder of a licence to speed up his development of his holding.

The remaining sections of the Bill, Sir, deal with coal, oil, natural gas development which are mainly relative to the Act which this Bill seeks to amend. I move the second reading of this Bill, Sir.

Bill read a second time, ordered to be read a third time on tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I have no intention, Mr. Speaker, of delaying the House, but I cannot see the motion for second reading put through without saying at least a word along the line of expressing pride in the foresight of the Government as a whole in bringing once again before the House something which ought, long ago, to have been done and which in fact was not done. We have, in three sessions of this House, since we have been here, brought in almost countless pieces of legislation to remedy the neglect and failure of past governments, and more particularly the failure of the Commission of Government because in that regard I hold that no government of the past had quite the opportunity of the Commission of Government to bring in and remedy all measures as they operated without fear of the electorate and had no House of Assembly to remedy and redress weaknesses that existed in our system. The powers of the Commission were greater than any elected government in Newfoundland could possibly hope to have and so therefore in each of the sessions of this General Assembly we have brought here a rather staggering number of pieces of legislation similar to the one just moved by the honourable Minister of Public Welfare.

Now, Sir, in no field in Newfoundland that I can name is there such need for modern up-to-date legislation as in the field of the public domain, in the field of natural resources of Newfoundland. This Government are deeply impressed by the importance of the public domain. Unlike former governments, most former governments in Newfoundland, we attach the utmost importance to public domain, we regard the natural resources of Newfoundland as a gift from the Great Almighty for the people living in Newfoundland and we regard it as the duty of the Government whoever they may be, elected, appointed or howsoever they come into office, it is their duty so to hold the public domain and natural resources of all the people so as to bring to all the people the maximum advantages possible.

Now, in the past there was neither head nor tail to Government policy in dealing with the natural resources; to bring order out of that kind of chaos has entailed on the Ministers of the Crown and the permanent heads and sub-heads of the various departments of the Crown an enormous amount of work. This Bill, for example, which my honourable friend moved second reading just now, is really only a small matter of a much larger Bill, it is not much more than a fractional part of a general consolidation and revision of the Crown

Lands Act. We are getting that done but due to the enormous pressure of work in this long session it has not been feasible to bring the full Act before the House. It has become imperative that we bring this section in for enactment because of the fact that other legislation is tied closely in with this particular Bill and I cite as an example of that; the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation Bill which has been finally passed through this House, in which the concession made to that Crown Corporation in respect of mineral areas or areas which we suspect of being mineralized are ceded to the Corporation under the terms of this section of the Crown Lands Act. Indeed up to this moment, up to the passing of this Bill, every individual person or company could come to Newfoundland with a view to engaging in a piece of prospecting or developing or exploration in the mineral field has not know where he stood, not been able to study any documents that would tell him quite clearly what his rights were and what obligations he would need to assume if he engaged in prospecting development or mining activities in this Province. Now, in that regard we are quite clear cut, quite definite and quite categorical so that by merely reading it was possible for a man interested in mining activities to know exactly where he stood. When this Bill is passed, as we hope it will be, all people coming to Newfoundland and many who will not come themselves but will merely send for copies of this legislation, will be in the position of knowing exactly where they stand if they decide to come here to Newfoundland. Now, Mr. Speaker, I suggest to the House, in view of the great interest shown in the mineral possibilities of Newfoundland, and in view further of the greatly increased interest in the Crown Corporation for exploring our mineral possibilities, this Act has become a pure necessity and it is regretted that it has been possible to bring the Bill in only at this stage of the session. What my honourable and learned friend the Leader of the Opposition has said about the vast volume of work that has fallen to the law officers of the Crown in the Department of the Attorney General is all too true, and the end is not even in sight because a large number of other Bills ought to have come in and I am afraid there just is not time for them.

I think when the House reads this Bill they will agree that it is a constructive and prudent and sound piece of legislation in the interest of development here in Newfoundland and I would hope that the House devote the whole of this evening to the Committee, the night session beginning at eight o'clock, to close scrutiny of the Bill in Committee of the Whole if that is the pleasure of the House.

MR. RUSSELL: I know the Bill very well, Sir, and I concur wholeheartedly with the remarks which have been made regarding it by the honourable the Acting Minister of Natural Resources. I am so anxious to see it get through all stages that I am not going to repeat any of the things already said for fear I might delay even for a minute but have only to add this that the abolition of the old system and the taking on of this new one here will, but increase the incentive to development. It is indeed one of the most progressive pieces of legislation that has been brought before this House since I have been in it. I will do everything I can to speed it.

Bill read a second time, ordered to Committee of the Whole at a later hour today.

Second reading of Bill "An Act to Authorize the Government to Enter into an Agreement with Falconbridge Nickel Mines, Limited."

DR. POTTLE: Mr. Speaker, this Bill is related to a previous Bill which has just passed second reading, and namely, the Mines and Quarries Act, in that it is an extension in one respect and meets the requirements of the Act in all other respects.

Clause one indicates the Government shall forthwith withdraw from the operation of the Act. Before I go on to indicate what that withdrawing means, I might say this agreement represents the result of a long series of negotiations extending over Nickel Mines Limited. When these negotiations began the Government was anxious to bring such substantial mining interest to bear upon the development of mining resources of the Province and of all the group interested, the Falconbridge Nickel Mines seemed to be the only one willing to undertake a substantial programme of development in this Province over a considerable period of time. In the original negotiations Falconbridge requested terms and conditions similar to those which were agreed upon between the Commission of Government and Buchans Mining Company Limited extending over a period of ten years. The Government, however, could not agree to giving the Falconbridge people opportunity to explore for as long as five years, but eventually compressed the areas of such exploration into a three year period.

Now, I come back to Clause No. 1 of the agreement. "The Government shall forthwith withdraw from the operation of the Crown Lands (Mines and Quarries) Act, 1951, and subject to Clause 15 of this agreement reserve from the operation of the said Act for a period of three years." Now what is the meaning of the withdrawing? It needs just a little explanation. It means that instead of going from the stage of exploration, doing the detail assessment work of each group of four and spending time and money on the various surveys and groups of blocks, allows the Company to hold one large area for a period of time. This agreement in that respect surely is somewhat liberal and precedes recent negotiations and plans of the Government for dealing with the programme of development of Crown Lands as has been dealt with in previous Bills. Now the continuation of Clause 1 delineates the boundaries of the territory they are to explore and includes certain fee simple grants also claims No. 10, and 11 and 17 at Pilley's Island, these I understand were explored by Frobisher and that Company requested an area of two miles for the protection of their own undertaking.

Now, Clause 2 is an important Clause. In the area there are private lands and Falconbridge wishes to extend their exploration in the immediate vicinity of these areas. They may stake and when they do they come under the Crown Lands Act, 1950. The effect of this if exercised, operates to reduce the area of Crown Lands and the amount they are required to expend for production. They will have to increase their overall expenditure in the area.

Now, Clause 3 has to do with giving the company exploration rights and all of the accessories to help in the process of development such as geological and geophysical and all other normal concomitant of development.

Now, Clause 4 denotes the payments Falconbridge is required to make, namely, $150,000 over three years and not less than $25,000 in any one year. I am given to understand that on the basis of having begun negotiations with the Government the company is actively interested in a number of private properties and is at present actively engaged in exploring three of them. Last year they spent $87,000 in Newfoundland and this year are probably spending considerably in excess of that amount and eight parties are now on the way to Newfoundland to intensify the company's enterprise here and these parties will be, for the most part, engaged in enabling the company to carry out its obligations under the agreement.

I believe from here on the agreement follows standard lines followed in cases such as this. For instance under Section No. 5 the Government is giving the Company every reasonable opportunity to inspect the field work so that the Government domain there is protected and on the other hand, at the request of the Government, the Company shall furnish to the Government systematic regular reports.

Then in Clause 8, as I indicated just now, the Company should be allowed to select any area during the life of this agreement of not less than one square miles in area but not exceeding forty square miles altogether. Now, I made reference during the earlier part of this afternoon to the development licences existing in Clause 8. Now, that license under this agreement is renewable for a term of one year up to a maximum of five years. Now, that requirement is more rigid, the provisional renewal under the Crown Lands Act or Bill of 1951 just passed second reading. There is in that Bill no limit to the number of times the licence may be renewed.

Clause 9 indicates a future development of licences in all stages. Now, the Company may, at any time during the year life of the undertaking, apply for a mining licence.

Clause 10, the Government gives the Company the right to develop water power necessary for the carrying on of the operation, but there is a proviso that the giving of this right will not prevent the Government from carrying on any other legitimate enterprise of its own. This proviso protects the public or any other third party from tying up of water power that might be developed for other purposes.

Now, Clause 11 is redundant, having to do with companies having the right without payment to extract certain samples and in Clause 12 agrees to grant the company necessary and sufficient Crown Lands.

Under Clause 13, if it desires private lines for transmission lines and so on shall be granted that concession, etc., to the end of the agreement. I believe the remaining clauses are concerned with matters which I have covered. I therefore move second reading of the Bill.

MR. HIGGINS: Is this near the Rambler Area, do you know?

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, once again I do not want to keep the House very long but I would like to say a word about this Falconbridge deal. I will say here in the House that if we had our time back we would not be giving to the Falconbridge Nickel Mines Company the concession that we propose to give them in this Bill and I add that not at all because we have taken on a sudden dislike to Falconbridge, far from it, because Falconbridge is one of the finest operating mine companies in all of Canada and we are very happy indeed to have them in here and we expect good things from them in the way of mining development. It is not at all because of any prejudice against the company but our regret arises from the fact that we have agreed to give them so very large a slice of what we believe to be highly valuable areas in Newfoundland, an area for more than two thousand square miles, and that two thousand square miles and more forms part of the area of five thousand square miles which we had surveyed last year by magnetometer, at a cost of more than $200,000. Now, Sir, the two thousand square miles is too much to give even in the way this Bill gives which is not giving at all but it is tying up too much for one company in the world today. If that same area were divided on the same terms and conditions amongst half a dozen, the result for Newfoundland would admittedly, I think, be a much better thing than the result can possibly be in this particular deal. Falconbridge, without the shadow of a doubt, will go in on those two thousand square miles and more and will conduct an honest and intensive survey. As the honourable minister has said some eight survey parties are on the way to Newfoundland but it stands to reason even so large and important and progressive a firm as Falconbridge with all the resources they expend, will not be in a position to survey so thoroughly and spend so much money as half a dozen firms would spend on the same area if that area were divided into as many sections.

However, at the time that Falconbridge made their application in the first place they were in all the world the only company of which we had any knowledge who were showing any interest whatever in the mining possibilities of Newfoundland, apart, of course, from the Buchans Mining Company, to whom the Commission of Government gave much the same type of concession, indeed more concessions, more generous, for a longer period, over a greater area of more, I think, than five thousand square miles in the central portion of Newfoundland running roughly south from Buchans and east down to the salt water of the south west coast. Apart from Buchans and the concessions they had already, Falconbridge Nickel were the only firm displaying any definite interest in the mining possibilities of Newfoundland. Even at that the Government did not fall all over them and accede to their original request, indeed protracted negotiations were carried out and at one point the Government just refused point-blank what the Company asked, with the result the negotiators of the Company left Newfoundland rather angrily, I think, and went back to their headquarters in Toronto. But I felt personally that they would be back and indeed they were in two or three weeks later when the President of the Company came back to Newfoundland and negotiations were resumed with the result the present concessions which are less generous to them than those they wanted were agreed to by the Government. Now, we have given them our word put forward to them as pledged and we ask the House to back us in the concessions we have given as set forth in this present Bill. I must say again, however, that I have a feeling of regret that so large an area of very promising territory from the mineral standpoint has been disposed of to one company even so fine a company as Falconbridge Nickel Mines. I have a feeling that if this had not been finalized and the public faith not pledged to them we could now get into that same area four or five or six or seven other mining companies some of them being about the same size and some not quite so large and the returns of course to Newfoundland in that case would have been quicker because more parties would have been working and perhaps we might get three or four or five mines opening where as in the present deal we are not likely to get as many as that into actual production.

However, that is not a word against Falconbridge, and I hope it will be understood that I have not a thing to say against that very fine Canadian Mining firm with world-wide ramifications including Sweden where they have smelters and activities that make them one of the outstanding firms of Canada, indeed of the whole world.

I support the second reading.

HON. E. S. SPENCER (Minister of Public Works): Mr. Speaker, I feel that I cannot let this opportunity go by without a word or two in connection with it as I rise to support the mover of the Bill, the honourable the Acting Minister of Natural Resources and the Premier who stated most of the facts concerning the Bill. It is due to my personal knowledge of the area concerned that I rise to have just a few remarks. I realize the time is very short and I am not going to adjourn the debate but if the House permits me to speak for a few moments I shall be happy.

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable member has two hours.

MR. SPENCER: I happen to have been born in the town of Pilley's Island where at the present time there is very considerable doings in this connection which is now being brought to light. My knowledge of it is due to the fact my father was one of the miners there and later acquired the position of underground captain or manager whatever he called it. My older brother who is still alive was one of the last operators to operate a drill in the famous old mine in Pilley's Island. It is part of almost our life's dream and I am very happy on behalf of the people I know who are still living in the area I came from, to know that prospects are now very bright as to the possibility of future development of this mining area, namely Pilley's Island. The honourable Premier may be troubled with the area assigned to this very fine and well known, reputable company of Falconbridge Nickel Mines and amongst others in the Government we were not too happy about the large area, but that has been reduced down to some extent and with the knowledge we have of this great company we hope they will not rest on their oars when they get in there and will find a fine body of ore underlying Pilley's Island and not rest alone on that and operate it. But the clauses in this agreement will prevent that; they will not hold it long if they attempt to do it so we hope they will thoroughly investigate the possibility of that great mineralized area which we, the Government of Newfoundland are about to give them the opportunity and rights to prospect and investigate. There are many still living, miners who worked in the old mine there and know something about it. I was privileged to go back there in 1919, some thirty-two years ago as a young man and spend some time with the late S. Lawton, one time manager and who came back as a representative of a company in New York who owned the property at that time and still do, I believe. Mr. Lawton at that time did some drilling, etc., and produced results which were unknown before and I am lead to believe, from the grapevine, it has still fairly recently shown sufficient proof to justify his faith in the matter.

Mr. Speaker, merely on behalf of the people from home—I can name Notre Dame Bay area as such, I have pleasure that this Bill indicates the possibility of development there. I feel without prolonging the debate, I had to make some comment, I am happy on behalf of my people in the Notre Dame Bay area.

Bill read a second time, ordered referred to a Committee of the Whole House, at a later hour this day.

MR. SPEAKER: It being now six o'clock I now leave the Chair until eight of the clock.

NIGHT SESSION

Second reading of Bill, "An Act to Amend the Welfare of Children Act, 1944."

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, in the absence, temporarily, of the honourable the Minister of Welfare, I ask to have that order deferred. I know that the Minister is ready for it and the same thing applies to No. 17 on the Order Paper, the honourable Minister of Supply is ready, I believe, with that Bill. I think, Mr. Speaker, the biggest task we have remaining form the standpoint of time is that big Bill, Mines and Quarries, and I think we might profitably spend as much of the evening as necessary in Committee of the Whole House on that Bill and the House being agreeable, I move the House into Committee of the Whole on that Bill.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act Relating to Mines and Quarries."

Sections 1 to 14 read and passed.

MR. RUSSELL: Mr. Chairman, did I understand the honourable minister to state on second reading that there is no limit to the number of years to which a licence may be held provided the fees were paid? It was once five years, now here I believe it can be kept as long as the holder wishes provided he pays.

Sections 15 to 87 read and passed.

MR. CURTIS: I move the committee rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again tomorrow.

Motion carried.

Second reading of Bill "An Act to Amend the Welfare of Children Act, 1944."

DR. POTTLE: Mr. Speaker, I would like to present this Bill for second reading. The Bill contains a number of relatively disconnected items concerning amendments considered necessary as a result of future operations of the Welfare of Children Act, 1944. This is the second series of amendments in as much as seven years. The clauses here for consideration, Sir, have no necessary connection one with the other, only that they fall under the general pattern of child protection.

Now, the first had to do with Section 25 of the original Act. As it stands now it is so diffused, so hard to interpret, so loosely worded that the magistrates ordinarily find it hard to get a conviction under this section which has to do with contributing to neglect of children by adults. So it is proposed that this section be cleared or pruned as it were and the proposal is as contained under Section 25 amended which repeats a good deal of the wording of the original Clause 25 and omits a number of points.

Now, the next Clause to be amended, Sir, is 92. In the original it says "The alleged father." This has to do with affiliation proceedings. The alleged father when brought before the magistrate under summons may, unless the complaint is dismissed, be required to enter into a bond in a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars. It is proposed that that amount be lowered to $750 because thereby it is hoped that it would be easier to obtain bonds, and by making it $750 we make the financial position of bondsman the same as the putative father under sub-section (1).

Now, looking at 101, the next section to be amended. This clause outlines the kind of expenses that may be ordered to be paid by a putative father judged to be the father of a child born out of wedlock. Here we propose that in order to insure some further protection for the child we should make provision for the mother concerned to be able to secure counsel and we do that by repealing paragraph (b) of sub-section 1 and substitute for it that paragraph which says "may order the cost of all proceedings taken under part of this Act including a counsel fee not exceeding blank dollars" which we might discuss in committee. Now, in detail, if she wins the case the cost will be upon the putative father, if not the department would pay the cost not exceeding forty or fifty dollars. What we have done is to insure the mother will have her case fully heard and be equally represented in the court period. Now, we amend 101 to make uniform the practice regarding reasonable expenses to be paid in addition to the $750 ordered to be paid ordinarily. Different magistrates at the present time order differently and this amendment is to provide uniformity. Now, Section 102 is the next section proposed to be amended. At the present time when a putative father has a court order made against him in Newfoundland and goes outside the Province, we can not enforce payment. Now, part (1) of this amendment or sub-clause (1) of this amendment provides for a bondsman but in some cases it is not possible to get the bondsmen and so that provides for such specific cases. The magistrate may in any case, where the Director of Child Welfare gives consent in writing accept the cognizance of the father for a sum not less than $750 with security as referred to in that sub-section so as to give flexibility, if you will, or enable the Director where the original coverage of a bondsman should not necessarily be carried out.

Now, Section 129 in the original Act says: "Every payment ordered by a magistrate in accordance with provisions," this has to do with payment required out of affiliation cases in the main and every payment ordered by magistrate shall be made to the Director and while that is the law we have been practically violating it for the last few years by setting up a regional office in Corner Brook. We suggest now to validate that practice by making it possible for any other officer designated by the Minister to receive payment and as separate welfare centers from St. John's will become more necessary to give legal status to these officers in Corner Brook, Bell Island. Section 129 takes into consideration the evolution of the Department since the Act was first drafted.

Now, there is a further amendment to Section 136, having to do with adoption of children. As I recall the original section was amended in 1948 which provided that when a mother gave her consent to adoption of a child she named in the interim the Director of Child Welfare as the legal parent of the child. That was to assure a sound working welfare principle and to insure that at no time in the child's life should he be without a parent. When the mother signed there is a gap, the mother gives her parenthood away, then who becomes the parent until the child is legally adopted when it then continues upon the adoption parents who would be the legal parent by the adoption for all practical purposes? There is one difficulty in the number of children going out of Newfoundland for adoption to other provinces or out of other provinces into Newfoundland; when people go away and get a child from the mainland we need to have a working arrangement where they recognize our institution and we recognize theirs from here. The amendment here enables the court to give recognition to consents which are given up there and have no counterpart here. In other words, it will make adoptions easier in Newfoundland which have already begun on the mainland through recognized child welfare agencies. That is another very sound child welfare protection, otherwise the court here is inclined to hold up proceedings and it becomes vexatious to people who want to adopt children and do not wish in the last stages to have anything deter them when they have made up their mind that they need children and have taken papers to secure children.

Altogether these are amendments to facilitate the legislation to protect children and I believe they will achieve that. I move second reading of this Bill.

MR. RUSSELL: The honourable the Minister made it very clear that it will facilitate the operation of legislation but whether or not it will facilitate the handling of those cases in the best interest of the general public is something of which I am not quite clear with respect to two points only.

Instead of leaving it for Committee, it may affect the whole principle of the Bill therefore I had better bring them in now.

The honourable Minister may be able to reassure us—I have in mind at the bottom of page 2, Section 4 of the said Act. The putative father may, say instead of signing a bond for ten or fifteen years, may be able to satisfy the obligation by paying the expenses and a specific sum of not less than $750. Once he had to sign a bond and had an order made on him requiring him to do this instead of asking to pay $750. If he is to be able to clear himself of all obligation by paying cash down to cover expenses of lying-in and then $750 to be paid in full or over a period of not less than three years. It may be a serious thing. I may say I have had much practical experience on those cases as I think I handled more per year while I was in that business than anybody else. A magistrate may give consent thereto in writing. This is a case of a judge writing to the director and asking in effect, I have this fellow on hand, he will sign a bond, anything to keep out of jail. I cannot get a bondsman, a rascal, good for nothing scallywag, so what is likely to happen, he goes to jail for six months; that won't help anybody, won't pay the bills to support the child so what about taking his own bond, it is not going to be any good, it will keep him out of jail, he is not worth the expense of sending home to St. John's so with the consent of the director, I accept just the recognition of the father for a sum not less than $750. If we ever find him with some money we can collect on it probably, but from then on there is no security to fall back on and either the director of the Child Welfare or the guardians of the child or the magistrate or someone will have an exciting time for the next twelve or fifteen years trying to get annual payments and if they can't do it the public in general has to pay, or if he goes to Seven Islands or anywhere else out of our jurisdiction we have the working agreement, otherwise he gets out of it and the taxpayer supports his child. Now, that is how it looks to me. It is no doubt making the law easier to administer but is it doing the thing we really want it to do?

MR. HIGGINS: There is always the difficulty of the individual who has nothing and never wants to have anything—that sort of man who has not any property real or personal, no security present or future and no hope here or hereafter. Now, in dealing with that sort of man what can you do? I have seen cases where they are sent to jail for six months and I contend when they get out they should be sent back but the authorities are tired of having them in jail. I think the only thing to do is express my sympathy to the director.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Like the man with no pride of ancestry or hope of posterity.

MR. HIGGINS: No, he can get that unfortunately.

Bill read a second time. Ordered referred to Committee of the Whole on tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Before you call the next order, Mr. Speaker, I give notice I will on tomorrow introduce resolutions to be submitted to Committee of the Whole House in relation to granting of additional supplies to His Majesty. May I suggest we now go on to Committee of the Whole on the Falconbridge Nickel Mines Bill.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Authorize the Government to Enter into an Agreement with Falconbridge Nickel Mines, Limited."

Sections 1 to 3 read and passed.

Section 1 of Schedule read.

MR. RUSSELL: The first section brings the whole agreement under review, am I correct? The reason why I asked the question now is that I am not sure whether the original Mines and Quarries Act is limited in time apparently to the period during which a party may hold the development licence here in this agreement. That is a period of five years, is that rather unusual in a special agreement?

MR. SMALLWOOD: There were reasons for it, quite obviously on these two thousand odd square miles.

MR. RUSSELL: Of course even then they are getting a privilege because under the original Act, they can only get six claims at a time. They got extra privileges in some ways and it is not quite as good in other ways.

MR. SMALLWOOD: May I enquire if the memory of the Minister is sufficiently clear to be able to tell the Committee just what is the effect of the extension made in respect of mining claims No. 10, 12 and 17? I suppose that is at Pilley's Island. My recollection was that we agreed to give them only the claims they had secured from the owners of the property plus a margin of Crown Land surrounding that estate. Do I read here correctly that it is two miles surrounding the estate?

DR. POTTLE: Yes, that is given to them in order to protect them in their work, but only two miles. It does not include the whole of Pilley's Island.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It releases the rest of Pilley's Island for others.

MR. RUSSELL: I am wondering whether we are not laying up trouble for the Attorney General to recommend this. Is it a fact the title of the Mines and Quarries Bill was changed on the Order Paper the other day? If that is so, we will have to handle not only this here but incidentally Section (1) of the Mines and Quarries Act.

DR. POTTLE: The correct title is the Crown Lands (Mines and Quarries) Act, 1951. In Section 8 the words "Prescribed hereunder in the 7th line shall be inserted in place of the words "Set forth" which shall be deleted. Clause 12, page 9, line three, the words "To prevent" are deleted and the words "Of preventing" inserted. Clause 15, line 6, the word "may" is deleted and the word "shall" is inserted.

The Committee rose and reported progress and asked leave to sit again. Ordered sit again tomorrow.

DR. POTTLE: I wonder, Mr. Chairman, if the House would be ready to receive "An Act Further to Amend the Welfare of Children Act, 1944," in Committee?

MR. SPEAKER: There is a rule which says when a day is named for Committee of the Whole, no other day may be fixed. If it is the pleasure of the House the rule may be rescinded at the request of the honourable Minister.

MR. HIGGINS: I suggest we adjourn and meet tomorrow, it is rather late.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I have a suggestion that we meet at 11:00 a.m. tomorrow and sit until 1:00 p.m.

MR. HIGGINS: We could meet at 11:00 o'clock. I cannot be here in the morning though.

MR. SMALLWOOD: If we do so meet and my honourable friends think we should not pass some Act until their leader was here, we would be very glad to hold it over until later. I move the remaining orders be deferred and that the House at its rising adjourn until tomorrow, Tuesday, at 11:00 a.m. of the clock.

TUESDAY, June 19, 1951.

MORNING SESSION

The House opened at 11 of the clock.

Presenting Petitions

None.

Presenting Reports of Standing and Select Committees

None.

Giving Notice of Motions and Questions

HON. JOSEPH R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, in connection with a question asked by my honourable and gallant friend yesterday, it is being typed and will be here today, but I doubt if they know up in the Finance Department that the sessions begins at 11 o'clock. We will have it down this afternoon, I have no doubt.

Orders of the Day

MR. SMALLWOOD asks leave to introduce a Bill "An Act Relating to Public Records."

Bill read a first time. Ordered to be read a second time on tomorrow.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I doubt whether the Bill has arrived. It is one about which the honourable Leader of the Opposition is quite familiar and I wonder if the House will give permission to give second reading, not to adopt but merely to explain it, and have second reading given later in the day or perhaps tomorrow.

Permission granted.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, this is a Bill to create a committee of six or eight or ten citizens, unpaid and consisting of gentlemen who have much more than ordinary interest in the public records of Newfoundland and which exclusively functions for the purpose of preserving historical articles a great number of which are outside of Newfoundland and a few of which are within the Province. The idea is that they seek to lay their hands upon the historical souvenirs of Newfoundland with a view of making a collection of them. Now, they will have no fund, they are merely to trace those documents and to recommend to the Government which if any of them should be purchased for which purpose we have in the estimates a quite modest amount this year, and we hope each year to have a small amount not all of which may be spent but down through the years to come there will always be, we hope, a small amount of money, out of which purchase can be made of historic documents, old account books, maps, charts, pictures, prints and things of that character which ought to be gathered altogether and put either in the museum or the public library. Now, the honourable Leader of the Opposition has consented to serve on that committee, not as Leader of the Opposition but as a Newfoundlander who has been interested in collecting Terranovan records. Another member, Mr. R. S. Furlong, who has been active in the Historic Society, and Mr. N. C. Crewe, an especially well-known collector of old records. I think we are also to have as a member Mr. Arch Munn who is a veteran member of the Historic Society, and perhaps the Minister of Education. However, the committee will consist of well-known Newfoundlanders and will be a non-political body of private citizens interested in this work. Mr. Leo English is also a member.

That is the purpose of the committee, unpaid, in an honorary capacity really, to search out these things and advise the Government whether any of them should be purchased and the actual purchase is to be left to the decision of the Government from time to time.

I move second reading now with a view not to the motion being put but just to get it started and if no honourable member wishes to speak I will move the adjournment of the debate and it can come up again later in the day.

MR. SPEAKER: The motion is this Bill be read a second time. If some honourable gentleman will move the adjournment of the debate.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I move the adjournment, Mr. Speaker.

The Premier asks leave to introduce a Bill "An Act Respecting Elections."

Bill read a first time; the Honourable the Premier asks leave to have this Bill read a second time presently.

Honourable the Attorney General asks leave to introduce a Bill, "An Act to Amend the Districts Courts Act, 1949."

Bill read a first time.

HON. LESLIE R. CURTIS (Attorney General): In view of the fact that the honourable and learned Leader of the Opposition is not here, Mr. Speaker, I propose to ask the second reading of this Bill be given later in the day.

Honourable the Acting Minister of Natural Resources asks leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to Authorize the Government to enter into an agreement with Frobisher Limited."

Bill read a first time.

HON. DR. H. L. POTTLE (Minister of Public Welfare): I wonder, Mr. Speaker, whether it is possible to have the second reading to this Bill at a later hour today?

Leave granted.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, would you prefer the next order as that ought to come after third reading of No. 7 on the Order Paper "An Act to Incorporate the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation Limited."

It might be deferred temporarily. Ordered deferred to a later hour this day.

MR. FOGWILL: Before we enter on the Orders of the Day, Mr. Speaker, there is a question on the Order Paper of June 16, No. 116, addressed to the Honourable Minister of Supply. I think he promised he would have it yesterday or today.

HON. P. S. FORSEY (Minister of Supply): I will have it ready this afternoon, I think, Mr. Speaker.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I move that No. 11 be stricken from the Order Paper, Mr. Speaker, ("Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means"). We are completely finished with this order.

Third reading of Bill "An Act to Amend the Mining Tax Act, 1950."

Bill read a third time and passed.

Third reading of Bill "An Act to Amend Further the Public Utilities Act, 1949."

MR. CURTIS: I move, Mr. Speaker, that Bill be recommitted. There are one or two nominal changes to be made.

Motion carried.

MR. CURTIS: Section 4 refers to "rate base." All the way through the section, the Board has asked to strike the word "base" out in the second line and in the eleventh line and in the thirteenth line and in the fourth line of the next section. Those are the only amendments, Mr. Chairman, and I move the word "base" be stricken out in four places.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments.

Bill ordered read a third time now. Read a third time and passed.

Third reading of Bill "An Act to Approve and Give Statutory Effect to an Agreement Between the Government and Doctor Arthur Seigheim."

Bill read a third time and passed.

Third reading of Bill "An Act to Vest Lands Comprised in Certain Fee Simple Grants in the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation."

Bill read a third time and passed.

Third reading of Bill, "An Act Respecting the Sale and Distribution of Fishery Salt."

Bill read a third time and passed.

Third reading of Bill, "An Act to Incorporate the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation Limited."

Bill read a third time and passed.

Third reading of Bill, "An Act to Authorize the Government to Establish and Dispose of Industrial Enterprises."

Bill read a third time and passed.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Now, Mr. Speaker, might we at this time revert to the five notices of motion? We could go on to No. 5.

MR. SPEAKER: Honourable the Premier moves the House into Committee of the Whole to consider the certain resolutions in Relation to the Granting of Additional Supplies to His Majesty.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, the Committee is aware of the fact that provision is made in the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation Bill for the purchase of one million shares of the Corporation's authorized capital and that nine hundred thousand of these are to be purchased by the Government and remaining one hundred thousand being purchased by a group of private interests. The Bill itself having been passed, short of the Royal Assent, it now becomes necessary to authorize the Government to draw upon the public funds in the amount necessary to make the purchase of these nine hundred authorized shares for which reason a Bill is to be introduced if these resolutions pass voting the sum of nine hundred thousand dollars, on account of this year's vote.

MR. FAHEY: Mr. Chairman, that is asked for now, under the heading of Economic Development. But I presume that when this nine hundred thousand is voted it is really to go to the Corporation in the Bill passed a few days ago.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Yes.

MR. FAHEY: It is a sort of asset thrown in by the Government to buy up the shares and private interests buy up ten percent. It is asked for now under Economic Development.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The Department of Economic Development, that means that it is the Department who pays it out. It has to be voted to some Department and the Department chosen was Economic Development. It might have been some other Department, it might have been the Department of Natural Resources or Finance, but as the whole purpose of the Corporation is Economic Development it was decided to put the vote under the Department of Economic Development.

Motion carried.

The Committee rose and reported having agreed to certain resolutions and recommended that a Bill be brought in to give effect to same.

First reading of such resolutions to be read on tomorrow.

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable Minister of Finance asks leave to introduce a Bill based on these resolutions.

Bill read a first time. Ordered to be read a second time now.

Bill read a second time. Ordered to be refererd to a Committee of a Whole House now.

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Chairman, I move this Bill be taken and read. There is one amendment, that No. 2 be stricken out in the fifth line and No. 1 substituted in its place.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments. Ordered read a third time now.

Bill read a third time and passed.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Amend the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1951."

Section 1 read and passed.

Section 2 read.

MR. CURTIS: I would like to say for the information of the honourable Minister of Welfare and others that this Act only applies to Provincial offences and does not apply to any offences on the criminal code. Therefore it only applies to local statutes such as drunkenness and highway traffic, excluding drunken driving, so that this Act deals purely with our local offences created by our local statutes.

MR. FOGWILL: Larceny comes under the Federal Code.

MR. CURTIS: Yes, and pledges come under the Provincial Act.

DR. POTTLE: With reference to pledges, I wonder how effective these pledges are?

MR. CURTIS: Well, the whole effect of this section is to enable the court judge really to remand the accused and put him under bond and if he violates the terms of the bond can bring him up for sentence. It is really postponing the sentence pending his good behaviour. This is a copy of the English Statutes enforced in Newfoundland from time immortal and is just a restatement of the existing laws.

DR. POTTLE: Referring to intoxication, when a person is drunk in public and makes himself a nuisance he becomes liable but if an accident occurs on account of it, we go through all kinds of effort to get evidence under this section. Otherwise, if he is proven drunk, these are extenuating circumstances and lawyers are hired to prove the man was drunk. Now, when he is proven to be drunk and he should be let off, I do not think that is a very happy reflection on society, on civilization, that we employ all the services of the law to make such an anomaly. I notice it is not the principle employed here, I have never been involved myself and cannot think of first-hand experience but I consider it a strange matter.

Section 2 passed. Section 3 read.

MR. FAHEY: The first day of the Act, 1950. That takes us back ten months. Can the honourable the Attorney General explain? In other words this Act when passed is retroactive ten months, I do not see why that should be and I think the Attorney General should explain to the Committee.

MR. CURTIS: It is really not serious. That was the date the Act came in force and the date from which the Courts have acted on it. The effect really was that the magistrates in good faith did do so, many did not realize the law had been changed and gave probation to offenders. By dating it back we protect them by this for what they did in good faith. It is not really serious.

Section 3 passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendments. Ordered to be read a third time now.

Bill read a third time and passed.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act Further to Amend the Crown Lands Act, 1930."

Sections 1 to 16 read and passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendments. Ordered to be read a third time now.

Bill read a third time and passed.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Authorize the Government to Enter into an Agreement with Falconbridge Nickel Mines Limited."

Sections 2 and 3 of agreement read and passed.

DR. POTTLE: Mr. Chairman, there is one amendment I would suggest in clause three of the agreement. In the fourth line AND should be OR.

Sections 4 to 18 of agreement were read and passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments.

Ordered read a third time now.

Bill read a third time, passed and title be as on the Order Paper.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act Further to Amend the Welfare of Children Act, 1944."

DR. POTTLE: There are some amendments, Mr. Chairman; Section 25 (1) line 6, the word "exposes" should be "Exposed." I have an amendment of more substance to suggest in the last line of the clause, having provided for it we failed to take steps to have the provision inserted. I suggest the last line be deleted and substitute therefor the words "Administer by the Department" for the assistance of needy persons. In Section 101 (d), I suggest the word "fifty dollars" should be inserted. Mr. Chairman, this clause was commented on critically yesterday by the honourable member for Bonavista South in which he indicated that we should be a bit more rigid in enforcing that orders by bonds may be enforced. If he would read Section 102, he would see that such bond is provided for and if the former does not, certainly this one provides such. Furthermore the latitude in sub-clause two is defensible as in some cases the Committee finds it impossible to secure bonds where the man himself may be in sanatorium, etc. These amendments are made here with the advice of magistrates in St. John's who have more experience than probably all the other courts in Newfoundland together, and with the advice of the Attorney General's Department.

For the purpose of further clarity I suggest in Section 101 (d) the words "Which shall be paid over to the Director for counsel for the complainant."

Sections 1 to 7 read and passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the matters to them referred with some amendments.

MR. SPEAKER: The honourable Minister asks leave to have this Bill now read a third time.

Read a third time, ordered passed and title be as on the Order Paper.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act Relating to Mines and Quarries."

Section 15:

DR. POTTLE: Mr. Chairman, there were certain clauses allowed to stand. Amendment, line two, cross out "Therein and after" and to insert "Thereunder." Then in page 3, line 3, sub-clause 7, delete the word "to" insert "with."

On page 9, there is an omission at the end of the paragraph "Approved by the Minister."

I wonder if we could by-pass 40 for the time being and go on to 57. I (c), the extra line following the word "letters" should be stricken out of it. Delete the words following "Letters." There seems to be a necessity to insert another word to make what is there clear on page 30, Section 40, sub-clause (I). No we will let that clause go as it is.

Clause 71, page 47, to be amended by the substitution of a new clause. "Subject to this Act every mining lease."

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments.

Ordered read a third time now.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, would you call it 1:00 o'clock?

MR. SPEAKER: It being now 1:00 o'clock, I leave the Chair until this afternoon at 3:00 of the clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION

The House opened at 3 of the clock.

Presenting Petitions

None.

Presenting Reports of Standing and Select Committees

None.

Giving Notice of Motions and Questions

MR. FOGWILL: Mr. Speaker, before we continue with the regular business of the House there is a question of privilege I want to bring up at this time. We have been here quite a long time in this session and we have had quite a number of night sessions and in regard to the lighting of the Chamber of which I will speak. I know over here the front benches on this side find it rather difficult in the evening to adequately see what is going on when different Bills are going through. I am drawing this to the attention of the Premier at this time and may be between now and the next session something should be done to light the Chamber. I notice several members have difficulty as well as myself.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I must say the point raised by the honourable gentleman is well taken. The lighting in this Chamber is antique, antediluvian and I think it is also causing considerable strain on the eyes, especially at night. I will undertake to bring it to the attention of the Honourable Minister of Public Works with a view to see what can be done in the interim to improve the situation. Another matter along the same lines is acoustics. I often stand in the door here when I want a smoke and I might as well be a quarter of a mile away. I am quite sure that most of the strangers present in the chamber hear very little of what is said, and I am told by the honourable members at the far end of the Chamber they find it difficult to hear speeches as far away as here. Something maybe could be done to improve the acoustics. I will bring the matter to the attention of the Public Works and see what can be done.

MR. HIGGINS: I asked a question about steel, there was $500,000 voted for.

MR. SMALLWOOD: The honourable member for Public Works is not present for the moment. I know he has the answer prepared and no doubt has them with him and will table them when he gets here.

Item 14 on the Order Paper: Second Reading of the Bill: "An Act to Amend the District Courts Act, 1949."

MR. CURTIS: I beg, Mr. Speaker, to move the second reading of this Bill. As the honourable members know, it provides simply for appeals and hearing of appeals. Appeals lie in the jurisdiction of a magistrate and the Judge of the District Court in that area, the object of this new section is to provide for hearing of such appeals, and to authorize their being taken before the District Court.

Section 4 of this Bill provides that when there is no judge of a District Court the appeal may be made direct as at present from a magistrate to the Supreme Court. Under the present position now if an appeal is taken from the magistrate to the Supreme Court the court has held that under the present legislation such appeal must be held by a cassation of judges. The effect of this amendment is to permit an appeal from magistrates to be heard by one judge and not necessarily two. The effect of this Mr. Speaker, is when the court is on circuit the circuit court will be able to hear appeals from the magistrates whereas now if there is an appeal from the magistrate it must stand over and be heard in St. John's.

Sub-section 2 which deals with this aspect of the matter provides that on the appointment of district court judges, sub-section (a) ceases to have effect and cases then pending before the Supreme Court go to the District Court for trial in appeals that do not involve any serious implications. This follows out the desire of the Government, and I think of the Province, so that I beg to move the second reading.

Bill read a second time. The honourable Minister asks leave to have this Bill Committee of the Whole House now.

Ordered to go into Committee of the Whole now.

Section 1 to 4 read and passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendments. Bill read a third time, ordered passed and title be received and adopted as on the Order Paper.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I have prepared second reading of the Public Records Bill in the absence of the printed Bill which the House was agreeable to do and I take it now that the Bill has been received and the matter did in time open for discussion. I have hoped that the honourable the learned Leader of the Opposition might care to speak a word on the matter of the Bill as I know that is a matter in which for some years past, he has shown considerable interest and while I would suggest nothing that would prolong the business of the House, I hope he may be able to say a few words on it.

MR. SPEAKER: The motion now before the House is that this Bill: "An Act Relating to Public Records" be now read a second time.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Speaker, I had not seen the Act. I did not know it was to be brought into this session but knew it would be brought in, in some session. It has been brought about by the efforts of Mr. Crewe who interested himself enough to write a little article about the necessity of preserving the historic records of this country, documentary and otherwise, and I think it is an unfortunate thing that our records have been scattered. I have in my possession now a book I have held for thirty years locked up. I found it around one of the court houses here torn up, and I took it and I intended to give it to somebody able to take care of it. I was going to give it to the Public Library but I did not know who would run it eventually. But I have that to hold for an occasion like this. It is a pity so many of our public records have been destroyed by fire and other things. There are lots of records lying around with no attention from anybody. There must be records in the various courts around the island of very great importance. It is fortunate that a man like Judge Prowse interested himself in the history of Newfoundland and he had access to documents now gone beyond existence and we only have them in a secondary form. The history of this country has never been looked into properly, even the Norsemen. There is a tradition that St. Brendan landed here one time in a Northern part, he had journeyed from Ireland to Iceland and Greenland and then from there on to Labrador. Some historian of the distant future may claim that is so. Now we had a lot of commotion when the Scotchmen took the Stone of Scone, but maybe the Irish were more entitled to it. It was in Ireland for seven or eight hundred years and the Kings of Ireland were crowned on it at the time when Tara was the capital of the Kingdom of Ireland. It was in danger of destruction when the Danes came and was sent to Scotland and then down to England. Now we know the historians of the future can never follow the history of this country as it has never been written but this is a good thing, a wonderful thing and I support it. It should have been done a long time ago. We are now trying to save the last of the documentary records and trying to prevent anyone from taking them out of this country. I compliment the Government at least on this wonderful Bill and I pay tribute to them for having brought it forward. At the same time Mr. Crewe was the one who started the ball rolling. I am sure everyone on this side of the House is going to support this.

Bill read a second time, ordered referred to Committee of the Whole now.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendments.

Read a third time, ordered passed and title to be as on the Order Paper.

A Bill "An Act to Authorize the Government to enter into an Agreement with Frobisher Limited."

Leave was granted earlier this day for the motion on second reading.

DR. POTTLE: Mr. Speaker, I ask to move the second reading of this Bill and "An Act to Authorize the Government to enter into an Agreement with Frobisher Limited."

By way of background, I might indicate to the House, last year Frobisher Limited, under agreement with the Government, spent something in the way of forty-five thousand dollars in a programme of general exploration in Eastern Labrador. Part of the programme undertaken by this Company consisted of photographic work which was done in an area of some five thousand miles on the Upper Nauskaupe River Area and copies of the photographs are lodged with the Department of Natural Resources and form part of the permanent library of the Government. In addition to that the Company paid considerable sums for information acquired by other exploration work done the year before. As a result of the exploration of this Company in the region referred the company decided to concentrate there more intensively on that specific area in Labrador. One on the Western part of the Grand Lake Kasheshibaw, I have a map here, if any honourable member wishes to consult it, showing the areas in question. The other area is on the south side of the Lake Melville. This may be seen in a more comprehensive form from this map on which the areas are marked (a) on this map and part of the areas marked (b) South Lake Melville showing thirty-six hundred odd miles and be about twenty-seven miles in this area. This second area south of Lake Melville is selected chiefly for further reconnaissance and geological survey by Newfoundland, 1949. Geological information of interest in this respect is that there is a striking similarity between the geology of that area and Lake Alikonak area near St. Pierre on the North Shore of the St. Lawrence and Quebec noted for large deposit of magnetite of recent discovery. There are fairly good reasons to assume that there are accumulations of similar minerals to be found in the area applied for by Frobisher and the company is already committed to a contract for a detailed air-borne magnetometric survey similar to one on which the Government overtook in Notre Dame Bay in 1950 to determine, we hope, the existence of this mineral. By way of further ratification it might be indicated through no specific knowledge of my own that titanium and compounds of titanium, inasmuch as they are new and very precious metals, are becoming very important in the whole gamut of metal production. They have rare potentialities as regard value and uses to which they may be put. Titanium Oxide is the right for weight, I am advised, probably the strongest metal known being much higher than steel or aluminum.

Now, the outline of the agreement follows very closely an agreement the House is already familiar with. The areas are given under Clause 1 and because they are concessions applicable to this company is reserved from the conditions of the Crown Land Mines and Quarries Act in some respect but in certain other respects not, most of it, in fact, conforms to that Act. The company is required under that statute to spend not less than one hundred and fifty thousand in operations per year of not less than three years and in any one year require to spend thirty thousand dollars. The development licence indicated in Clause 7, makes available to the Company an area not in aggregate to exceed fifty square miles. The other clauses are formal or may be considered formal clauses from the point of view of such an agreement. Apart, as I say, from the special clauses, one which indicates that it is exception in certain clauses, or respects from the Crown Land Mines and Quarries Act, the agreement is in conformity in all other respects. I would move, Sir, second reading of this Bill.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I again do not wish to delay the House unduly, but I would like to say a word about this concession. One of the leading mining companies in all of the Canadian nation is the Ventures Limited group, two of the best known members of that group are Frobisher Nickel Mines Limited and Frobisher Limited, but they are two only of these companies making in the aggregate Ventures Limited. Now Frobisher Limited is in particular the exploration arm of the Ventures Company. Falconbridge Nickel Mines has also quite recently gone into the field of exploration although principally a producing company and Frobisher Limited are still the main exploration branch of Ventures Limited, a group of mining companies. Now, Frobisher Limited are themselves identified either as sole owners or part owners of some six or seven extremely important mines in various parts of Canada and various parts of the world. The principal one, owned wholly or partly by Frobisher is Giant Yellow Knife, one of the best known names in the whole mining field in Canada. Then another company, they either own wholly or partly, is the United Kenoun, and the third one is the Konnemera in Southern Rhodesia. A fourth company is the Kelimbe in South Africa. Then there is another mining company whose name is extremely well known in Canada, Kulmet in the Province of Quebec.

Still another is Mediterranean Mines in Greece. I would say that in connection with the Kelimbe Mining Company in South Africa, Frobisher Limited are closely connected with the famous mines in Spain, I believe in Spain. There are a number of others as well but these alone indicate, I think, the extremely important nature and dimensions of this company known as Frobisher Limited. They derive their funds for exploration chiefly from the profits made by these companies, I have just named. Falconbridge Nickel Mines Limited and a number of other companies operating within the Ventures Limited Group and as Frobisher Limited are still by far the most important exploration branch of it and of all these other companies on which they draw for funds to conduct exploration, the House will see the very fine position in which Frobisher Limited find themselves from the standpoint of active and energetic, and I may say, scientific exploration of mining propositions in various parts of the world and so it is this well connected and highly experienced company that is now moving actively into the exploration of certain areas of Labrador as laid down in this present Bill. As the honourable Acting Minister of Natural Resources has said one of the most promising, indeed one of the most exciting of these areas is on the South East corner of Lake Melville in the Mealy Mountains. If there is titanium in these then Newfoundland has some thing and indeed Frobisher Limited already have got some little indication of a discovery of titanium in economic quantities and the very exciting new mineral found on the North Shore of Quebec where that new mineral is now actively being developed. The House will recall the tragedy of a year or so ago of a plane disaster, when a plane was blown up and of which the perpetrator has since paid with his life in the Province of Quebec. In that same plane at the time of the explosion were several of the high officers of a large copper mining company of New Jersey in the United States on the way to visit the titanium property on the North Shore of Quebec and anyone who follows the mining world today is well aware that the titanium mines of Northern Quebec are ranked and regarded as amongst the most exciting mineral finds of recent years. So that the House will not find any difficulty appreciating the tremendous importance of the fact, if it should turn out to be a fact that in the Mealy Mountains of Labrador titanium is believed or suspected to exist in workable quantities. At all events Frobisher from their exploration this year and perhaps next year should establish the yes or no to that great question.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the company requested originally for almost double the area which this Bill proposed to give them in the Mealy Mountains district of Labrador, in the vicinity of Lake Melville. One half of the area the company wanted, overlapped into the area which we have now given to the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation. We declined to give them that half and we have agreed to give them, subject to ratification, by the House, the Eastern half of the area for which they have applied, the Western half has gone, as I say, to the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation. Now, that means Frobisher would formally and naturally apply to the Newfoundland Labrador Corporation for rights in the Western half of the Mealy Mountain section, if anything is found in the Eastern half that section now belonging to the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation then obviously should result in considerable more profit accruing to the Treasury of Newfoundland than we could hope to receive if the development of the Eastern half which this Bill proposes to give to Frobisher Limited. It may turn out that it is Frobisher Limited who will conduct the active exploration over the Eastern section by arrangement with the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation.

This is the second of the Ventures Group with which this House has been asked to deal in this present session, indeed in recent days, Falconbridge Nickel Mines, Limited, within Newfoundland and Frobisher within Labrador and I think the House can congratulate itself and the Government can, and Newfoundland can feel quite pleased that these two great, progressive companies have expressed this active interest in the mining possibilities of Newfoundland.

Mr. Speaker, when all that we have done in this House in this session is added up, it may yet turn out that the biggest of all are the two deals made with Falconbridge Nickel Mines Limited and Frobisher Limited. At least we all wish them the greatest possible success and hope they prosecute their surveys now with great energy and great efficiency and that they will lead to mineral discovery and actual development of great and important new mines to strengthen the economy of the Province of Newfoundland.

Bill read a second time, ordered referred to Committee of the Whole now.

Sections 1 to 3 read and passed.

DR. POTTLE: Area A and Area B stand.

MR. JACKMAN: It says here: "In the event of the Company failing in any year to submit any account—" What is this company, Mr. Chairman, is it a private company, is it a holding corporation or exploration company or operating company? Yet to my knowledge, I think this company here is an exploration company and the holding company Ventures, in turn Falconbridge is held by Ventures. Now, my point or reasons for raising this is this appears to me to be a sort of monopoly or combine and I would not like to see our little Government in Newfoundland compromised anyway. The Federal Government in Ottawa is getting after combines and monopolies and if, as I say, this is a monopoly, Frobisher controlled by Ventures and in turn Falconbridge controlled by Ventures it seems to me the whole thing is a cartel or monopoly or combine and combines today are being prosecuted in Canada by the Federal Government and police and we could be embarrassed later on if we happened to get caught up that way. I just mention that because that is the situation.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, I would agree one hundred percent with the honourable member myself if there were a combine or a monopoly. It is just about beyond human capacity today to imagine a mining combine or a mining monopoly. It is inconceivable. This is not a monopoly. It could not be a monopoly, there is nothing monopolistic about it. It cannot be a monopoly, if the word means anything at all, it means a man or group or company have sole and exclusive control over a certain product which they hold and exercise for fixing prices beyond their real value. Now, it does not do that and consequently it is not a monopoly. In what sense can Frobisher or Falconbridge or Ventures Limited be a monopoly? What can they monopolize? Nothing. Now, it is true they are a large company but we must not fear too much because of their largeness or bigness, if it were so we would not have DOSCO operating on Bell Island, and they are probably the highest of all the world's mining companies with a vast ramification of associated companies. Take Buchans, it is owned by the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Co. and they have formed a subsidiary known as the Terra Nova Properties Limited and have the control of the Buchans Mining Production. Terra Nova Properties Limited ended an agreement with a big smelting and refinery whereby another company, the Buchans Mining Company is set up and the Buchans Mining Company is owned as to fifty-one percent by an American Smelting and Refinery and as to 49 percent, Terra Nova Properties Limited operating a mine in a series of ramifications. Does that make it anything objectionable, does it make for monopoly? The answer of course obviously not. We are not a bit afraid of Buchans because of the largest mining companies in the world is operating it through a subsidiary, nor Bowaters, though it is the world's second largest paper producing firm with mills all over the world, we are not afraid of Bowaters or the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company though they are controlled in turn by another large company. Mere size ought not to frighten us. My honourable friend's fears, I can assure him, quite sincerely, are groundless and there is nothing monopolistic whatsoever about this Bill. True the company is big, but he need not be afraid of mere bigness—even so in Newfoundland it is not as big as the Legislature or the Government of Newfoundland. When it is operating in Newfoundland we have the last word here in this Chamber. We can pass a law tomorrow if we wish to do it and Frobisher would have to do as we say. We could pass a law abolishing Bowaters but they could not pass a law abolishing this Legislature. We have the last word with all companies operating in Newfoundland. Now, I am referring only to power or authority, using it is another matter altogether. No one is mad enough even to think of that.

MR. JACKMAN: My point, Mr. Speaker, was this, to point out that while we are not saying here now that this is going to be a monopoly but Falconbridge and Frobisher are owned by Ventures which is a holding company and—

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is more than a holding company, they are an operating company operating at least half a dozen mines.

MR. JACKMAN: Their main business is a holding company. I know you know more about it than I but the point is this: here is a monopoly in this respect that it is going to shut out outside companies and competition.

MR. SMALLWOOD: For how many years?

MR. JACKMAN: Five years I think or three years. Anyway I see a nigger in the wood-pile though I cannot properly explain it, maybe next time I will.

MR. HORWOOD: I may assist the honourable member to clear this point. We are not giving the company in fact anything they cannot get without the Act at the present time. Any individual can go in and stake mining claims and that means one thing, nobody else can go in there and explore that area. Now it would be quite simple for Frobisher to go down to Labrador as a prospector and stake all the claims he wants to on the area. The only reason why he cannot do so is this Act giving them exactly the same rights as they could get by staking claims so as to save the expense involved in staking and sending parties in for that period and they can take the same money and spend it on actual exploration. That is what it means by the Crown Lands Act. This Act gives the same right as they would get staking claims but saves the expense. Now, if they went down and staked claims on that area it is just as much a monopoly as any monopoly arising under this section. Any prospector holds a monopoly on the particular claim he has staked.

MR. HIGGINS: That I presume means general application to all mining companies. Now, I wonder if the honourable Minister is taking into account the objection of the honourable member for Bonavista South, raised in connection with the words: "Crown Lands (Mines and Quarries) Act, 1951." I understand he said—

DR. POTTLE: That has been dealt with, Sir, obviously a change is necessary in the seventh line from the top on page five. Delete the whole of line seven and insert "Along 530 5' North Latitude to its '.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments.

Bill read a third time, ordered passed and title be as on the Order Paper.

Bill read a second time, "An Act Respecting Lists of Electors for Election in the year 1951."

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I move the second reading on a Bill "An Act Respecting Lists of Electors for Election in the Year 1951." This Bill has been made necessary by the Terms of Union. Clause 15 of the Terms of Union reads as follows: "Until the Legislature of the Province of Newfoundland otherwise provides, the List of Electors prepared pursuant to the List of Electors Act 19—shall be deemed to be the List of Electors etc.—"

It was under this term of the Terms of Union the general election was fought and had to be fought and that term makes necessary the present Bill which is one that enable the Lieutenant Governor in Council to authorize the Minister of Provincial Affairs to cause a new list of electors to be taken for each electoral district where any election is to be held and to prescribe for them forms to be used for the taking of voters lists and making regulations provided for the revision of such lists. It provides also that if the Lieutenant Governor in Council does not authorize the taking of a new list of electors the list of electors prepared pursuant to the Act of 1949 shall be deemed to be the list of electors for the purpose of any election, subject to provision of the Election Act, 1913, respecting supplementary lists of electors. So that under this Bill, if it becomes law, one a new list can be ordered by the Lieutenant Governor in Council and carried out by the Minister of Provincial Affairs or, two, the existing list could be made to suffice and provisions of the 1913 Act with regards to supplementary lists come into effect. That is to say those on the list would be entitled to vote also and those not on the list would be entitled to vote by having their names entered on the supplementary list. It simply provides for amending the Election Act. We did formerly intend to bring before the House more elaborate changes for the Election Act, but due to the lateness of the session we have contented ourselves with this one indispensable amendment to the existing Election Act.

Motion is the Bill is now read a second time, ordered referred to Committee of the Whole House, now.

Sections 1 and 2 read and passed.

MR. FOGWILL: On that section now there may be elections held in 1951. At the present time there is a district without a member. I wonder if the Chairman or whoever is piloting this Bill, would give us any indication of the tentative date of an election that might be held this year.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I am afraid I cannot do as requested.

Section 2 passed.

Sections 3 and 4 read and passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendments.

Second reading of Bill "An Act to Further Amend the Act 26 Victoria Chapter 5, entitled 'An Act to Incorporate the Harbour Grace Water Company.'"

MR. FORSEY: Mr. Speaker, this Bill seeks to empower the Lieutenant Governor in Council to transfer to the Harbour Grace Town Council the assets and systems of the Harbour Grace Water Company. The Harbour Grace Town Council is anxious to take over the Harbour Grace Water Company for the following reasons:

In order to develop certain building sites which they acquired, the water main had to be laid in these new sites and the Water Company is unwilling to take on any work and consequently the central sections of the town have not been developed. Also the Company's appraisement is completely out of line with present day values and under the provisions of the Council Act the Council used the basis for appraisal of property and their revenue is very low, if absorbed by the Council it would make a new appraisal on present day values and thus increase their revenue without increasing the rating.

I might say the Water Company approves in principle the resolutions to have the Company absorbed by the Town Council. The financial position of the Harbour Grace Water Company is good. As of December, 1950, the Company has a cash reserve of some $25,000. The Company is incorporated under Act 26, Victoria Chapter 5, and amendments thereto. Present authorized capital stock is $75,000, six thousand of which is taken up by the Newfoundland Government, twenty-five thousand, in the Savings Bank, and Private Shareholders $44,000.

The Newfoundland Government has already approved in principle the transferring of its shares to the Harbour Grace Town Council. The Harbour Grace Town Council proposes to raise a bond issue of $50,000 to buy out the private shareholders and the Town Council has been given assurance by private shareholders that they will exchange the four percent interest bonds they presently hold for the four percent debentures to be issued by the Town Council when the Water Company is passed over to the Town Council. I move second reading of this Bill.

MR. HIGGINS: Mr. Speaker, I just want to ask a question. The honourable Minister says the Savings Bank has $6,000 invested in the Harbour Grace Water Company.

MR. FORSEY: Yes.

MR. HIGGINS: Is that an old loan?

MR. FORSEY: The Savings Bank has debentures guaranteed by the Government.

MR. HIGGINS: Is that an old loan?

MR. FORSEY: Yes, an old loan.

MR. HIGGINS: I was wondering because the general savings bank loans are guaranteed by the Government and it is very strange they invested money in other companies because if that company goes broke there is nothing left. I thought they were all called in. However that is immaterial now.

MR. FORSEY: They are presently held by the Newfoundland Savings Bank and incidentally only on one occasion had the Government been called upon to make good guarantees in the case of Harbour Grace.

MR. HIGGINS: I mean the Government Savings Bank guaranteed by the Newfoundland Government; they should have no money in companies, guaranteed by the Newfoundland Government.

MR. CURTIS: That is ridiculous. They lent Burin some money some years ago on government money and it was all paid off but it was lent by the Savings Bank and guaranteed by the Government.

MR. HIGGINS: They should not have bond debentures guaranteed by the Newfoundland Government. The Newfoundland Government guarantees the Savings Bank and the Government Savings Bank should protect themselves otherwise, that is a principle. They found some years ago they had only a thousand dollars in Newfoundland Government debentures and I understand then it was recommended they turn them in.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That applies to any bonds they own issued by any Government or guaranteed by any Government. If the value of the bonds they have become uncertain it is common sense for them or any other bond holders of any such bonds to sell them.

MR. HIGGINS: But they have a double guarantee, the Newfoundland Government guarantees and the Canadian Government guarantees our debentures.

MR. CURTIS: The Government guarantees the borrower but there is a party in between known as the Savings Bank and I don't think there is any relation between the two.

MR. HIGGINS: It is the deposits you are looking after.

MR. CURTIS: The deposits the Government guarantee.

MR. HIGGINS: That is why I asked. I don't think any debentures have been taken in recent years guaranteed by the Government.

MR. FORSEY: Now being paid off.

MR. SPEAKER: I must point out—that though this is a very important matter it is not a question to take place on second reading.

Bill read a second time. Ordered referred to Committee of the Whole now.

Section 1 to 16 read and passed.

Section 17 read.

MR. FORSEY: In 17—(16), there is a line left out which is to be inserted between the ninth and tenth lines—“pany—exercise all of the rights held by the company.”

Move that this Bill with the exception of sub-clause (6) be passed.

The Committee rose, reported progress, and asked leave to sit again presently.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I move we recommit the Bill, “An Act Further to Amend the Crown Lands Act, 1930.”

MR. CURTIS: Mr. Chairman, the honourable Leader of the Opposition was not present in the Chamber when we dealt with this Bill and so the Committee was deprived of the advantage of his advice.

Since then, in conversation with me the honourable and learned gentleman invited attention to clause 16: “In all grants leased and licenced under this Act and a strip of Crown Land not less than 33 feet wide around and adjoining all lakes and ponds and along the banks of all rivers shall be reserved . . .” As he pointed out members of the committee will have no difficulty in agreeing with it. The only question is as to how much more than 33 feet the committee might care to make it. Now I suggest 66 feet, doubling it, and if that is satisfactory to my honourable and learned friend I would move an amendment that the words 33 feet be stricken out and 66 feet be submitted therefor.

MR. HIGGINS: I was going to say it is a very strange thing that 33 feet have been kept in there. When our first parliament passed this Act I think they were people imbued with ideas of liberty. Now, in recent years it has been recognized that this strip of land not much more than six feet in some cases has been the means of preserving the banks of rivers because while this is reserved no timber should be allowed to be cut off that. You will notice our rivers very often have high banks and after a time the rivers wash it away, particularly when the timber has been cut, all the banks wash away and you will find that in some the whole width was washed away. I have found and fought for the farmers here and there, right, but unfortunately our farmers never think about erosion. That is the history of this side of the world where soil erosion has been caused by pioneers who cut away all the timber and the rivers dried up and the lakes and everything else, and the farms suffered. Now, the rivers are meant for everybody, for fishermen, salmon fishing, and are meant for timber companies who have a right to drive logs down to the sea.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Also I suggest courting couples strolling on the banks.

MR. HIGGINS: That is very important too. That is natural, not wild life but natural. Now, you will notice in a heavy rain storm a terrific flood runs down quickly and washes away the soils and it is all over in a minute but when a river has no trees around its banks there is a heavy flood and the banks are washed away, but if you see a river with heavy timber around the banks it takes four, five or six days to go down to normal and the trees preserve the water. Now, to have 33 feet of trees is a little help but 66 feet will be a better one, five hundred feet would be a wonderful help or even a hundred, yes, or even sixty-six feet.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is enough. You will find the soil is damp for days after rain but if there are no trees there the soil is dry. The river banks are well protected by timber also they hold the water and make a passageway for pulp but if the timber is taken away there is no passage.

MR. HIGGINS: I think 66 feet is small enough and no timber should be allowed to be cut off that. I know my friend the member for Port de Grave is a farmer, and he knows the farmers destroyed millions of acres of soil on this side of the world. I understand in Saskatchewan for some years they have been trying to get the timber on most farms. In droves of timber it becomes more important when it interferes with the rights of posterity and any farmer who cuts down to the bank of a river is a potential destroyer and steps must be taken to see that no timber should be allowed to be cut down and I say I would not mind seeing an Act passed making this applicable to all leases or grants heretofore given.

MR. SMALLWOOD: It is an unusual pleasure for me and a most unexpected one to hear my honourable learned friend uphold the rights of the public against the rights of private enterprise and private property. It is the first time I have heard him do it, since this House assembled. I agree with him a hundred percent, and a hundred and one percent if that were possible, but it was unique and a most interesting occasion when my honourable and learned friend, the great champion of private enterprise and private property, held forth with conviction in favour of the public interest versus that of private property.

MR. HIGGINS: I have been twenty or twenty-five years fighting that, Sir.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Well, every great thing is accomplished by some one man with patience and the sole and unquenchable desire for justice and it is a lucky thing for Newfoundland to have one citizen who sees the need and who harps continuously on the need for conservation and against the destruction brought about by indiscriminate cutting of timber. I think he is one hundred percent right. My honorable friend the member for Port de Grave is a professional farmer, one of thousands of these in Newfoundland and I don't think the farmers in Newfoundland can have laid at their doors the accusation, truthfully laid at the doors of the farmers such as the wheat growers of the mid-west and prairie provinces. I think perhaps what my honourable friend and colleague from Port de Grave is concerned with most is access of cattle to rivers. I don't think he is holding the right of farmers to go and cut trees off the river bank but the right of farmers' cattle and livestock to get to water, which is a right my honourable friend would not deny him.

MR. HIGGINS: They have just as much right as I have to go to the river.

MR. SMALLWOOD: That is a most generous admission, I would not go quite that far. But my honourable friend the member for Port de Grave is better able to state his own views on that any one else could hope to do for him.

MR. SPRATT: Mr. Chairman, I suppose I will get a chance to say a few words now. I am very pleased to know we have such a Bill before us today. Now, the honourable Leader of the Opposition made a statement that he was very much concerned over the right of ways and I am not wrong, Sir, I can prove it. There was never a right of way of 33 feet around any lake, it was only a thought that came into the people's mind. It would never be found in the Crown Lands Department, Sir, I have searched for it for more than half a century, before you were born, I went into it quite a bit. We have ample proof here today in the Municipality of St. John's, Waterford River, Rennie's Mill River, Quidi Vidi Lake, where the owners own to the water's edge. That is a statement now, and I make these few remarks with the hope that when this Bill is passed to rectify the situation that the people will be informed that they can, they have a right to walk around any lake and no other than the public can claim it within a radius of thirty-three or sixty-six feet. Now, that is not the case. I have been turned off land myself and have not been allowed to cross it to go to a river. Whether my few remarks casts any reflection on previous speakers I do not know, but if you are going to pass a law and leave it there it will never be carried out because the statement I made is perfectly correct. You cannot go around the Waterford Bridge River today unless you go down in some places and get in the water. It is owned by the private land owners to the water's edge in the West End of St. John's and go along Waterford Bridge Road and the fences are built and concrete walls and that is so, if it is against the law or whatever it is. I have it from some of the best informed gentlemen in this country, public men and some of them lawyers and they never could find any such thing.

MR. HIGGINS: Go up to the law library and ask for the Acts of 1933.

MR. SMALLWOOD: There were Acts that took away rights existing before the House and in 1933, my honourable friend is right, took away since 1933.

MR. HIGGINS: Virginia Waters, Murray's Pond and I think two other ponds are the only places where rights were given by the Crown. Another thing, when Reid got all the land they forgot to withdraw a passage of 33 feet, but granted entirely all the land, banks of rivers and everything else, and when they found their mistake and Reid wanted to get right of way for lumber, they wanted to put in that on all lakes and river territory granted to Reids the public have passage way of sixty feet.

MR. SPRATT: What about the people with rights already?

MR. HIGGINS: Why should they think they cannot do it now in this Act?

MR. MAKINSON: It is very interesting to me to hear the remarks of the honourable Leader of the Opposition. However, he is poorly informed on two or three points. One is when he quoted that certain water rights were granted in Newfoundland, he quoted that Virginia Waters, Murray's Pond, I think, and one other place, he forgot the oldest, or if not, the second oldest grant in the Island which happens to be the place where I live now, Makinson, by Governor Cochran. They have had water rights on it but my grandfather's father never enforced it and held entirely for us. The right of way has been given, however, when timber has been floated. My grandfather, a hot-headed Englishman, decided to establish his claim when Horwood had his lumber mill down in Clark's Beach; it was a regular custom for so many logs to be thrown on the bank when floating through. So, in regard to my honourable member for St. John's West, wherein can leased areas he reclaimed by the Government, I suppose they could by certain Acts, but I do not know what government is going to go against the community and reclaim them, I know, I would certainly put up a fight if such an Act went through and I am sure there are others. Besides, I think it would be a Federal matter to consider because the rivers, I understand, in Newfoundland, are controlled by the Federal Government in regard to fishery, etc.

However, I think a matter of thirty-three feet, I maintain is just as good for preserving the banks of a river and keeping back the flow of water as would be sixty-six feet. Now, I admit that in the past, timber cutters have gone in on their concessions and cut right up to the river bank and in many cases the root system has been broken up and the stumps and all deteriorate and the banks wash away. However, even ten feet of growing timber will retain a bank and I will maintain if this timber is not cut periodically it will deteriorate and on its own accord fall down across the river, block the river and be worse than if it were cut systematically and will divert the river, causing overflow unto the other parts and do more damage than cutting systematically. However, the honourable Leader of the Opposition agrees if I told him that a limit was made in regard to the size of trees cut, and I can tell him now that on parts of it where the timber has been cut to the river bank, the river bank has not been touched and I am sure if a strip of sixty-six feet were then taken out of these fertile valleys on either side of which the honourable Mr. Gardiner told us that here we should develop our agriculture in Newfoundland, develop and concentrate on the fertile valleys; there is not much left of the fertile valley.

There may be valleys in this Island that can be developed with regard to agriculture, I am not speaking entirely from a timber concession point of view, but of valleys that can be developed, if sixty-six feet be taken away from each river bank and find we cannot encroach on the river any closer than sixty-six feet I am afraid that some of our little valleys will not be developed very well and there are a lot of them on this Island now. Another thing; now just what constitutes a river? I know of many clearings of land with little rivers running down to the main brook and it is absolutely essential that they have part of these streams for their livestock and they cultivate up to the shores of these rivers. Now, in making an amendment of sixty-six feet, I think we should be very careful to have down that the Government should not rush into this thing rashly until giving it far more thought than they have here today, even by a separate committee set up to study it and I am sure between now and the beginning of next session there is not going to be any great loss in regard to water ways and streams during that time.

The honourable member for St. John's West mentioned that there has been no grants giving rights up to the shore of the lake. That is not absolutely right. I have seen many grants recently that went back as far as 1923 whereby a 33 foot strip has been reserved to the public. Now the Leader of the Opposition may be entirely right, but before an amendment of that nature is made I ask this House to give serious thought to it.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Chairman, the fact of the matter is we hope to conclude our business of this Session before six o'clock today with a view to adjourning until Friday for prorogation at 3:00 of the clock and to call a new session of the House reasonably soon thereafter. In the light of that fact I wonder if the honourable Leader of the Opposition might not agree with the suggestion of the honourable member for Port de Grave, that is to say, that a select committee be appointed, and on that I would certainly hope both honourable gentlemen would be willing to serve, to look at the matter in some detail with a view to bringing a recommendation before the House, I think the House would accept and embody in the present Bill. Suppose that in the light of that suggestion we withdraw the amendment and let it stand for a few weeks when an amendment might be brought in at the next session, in which case I propose to withdraw my amendment.

Amendment withdrawn.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill without amendment.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I was going to move the third reading of the Bill with a view to having the Bill adopted and given the Royal Assent on Friday, but in the meantime a select committee be appointed to study the section and report back at the next session.

MR. SPEAKER: My suggestion is that you make the motion before third reading.

MR. SMALLWOOD: I make that motion, Mr. Speaker.

MR. SPEAKER: This Bill is referred to a select committee, to report at the next session of the House. This will give the committee authority to sit on that section of the Bill and compels them to report to the House at the next session. Bill is now read a third time. Ordered passed and title be as on the Order Paper.

That is the last item on the Order Paper.

MR. FORSEY: I would like to recommit to Committee the Bill, "An Act to Incorporate the Harbour Grace Water Company," Mr. Speaker.

The amendment is that the following words be inserted, in the first place the word "Company" should be completed in line seven, and "exercise all of the rights held by the Company" inserted.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendments.

Bill read a third time, ordered passed and title be as on the Order Paper.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, I rise to move the adjournment and I would like to say that it is our hope that His Honour the Lieutenant Governor will attend here on Friday at 3:00 of the clock to prorogue the House and I would urge that the House meet at 2:30 on Friday so that in case of the Attorney General's Department or any other Minister detecting some slight error in legislation given third reading in the last day or two, attention might be drawn to it in the half hour between 2:30 and 3:00 o'clock so that such error might be rectified before His Honour the Lieutenant Governor arrives for prorogation.

I move the House at its rising adjourn until tomorrow, Friday at 2:30 of the clock.

MR. FAHEY: Do not the rules of the House call for 3:00 o'clock and the House would have to give consent to meet at 2:30 o'clock?

MR. SMALLWOOD: The point is well taken and the honourable member may vote against it.

MR. SPEAKER: We can suspend the clock rules and it is then up to the Chair whether the privileges of the House are being interfered with by taking this motion. It is the opinion of the Chair that the privileges have not been interfered with.

Motion carried.

MR. SPEAKER: Before leaving the Chair, I would like to inform the House that Mr. Flynn, our Janitor, after coming to work today suffered a paralytic stroke.

FRIDAY, June 22, 1951.

The House opened at 2:30 of the clock.

Presenting Petitions

None.

Presenting Reports of Standing and Select Committees

Giving Notice of Motions and Questions

HON. J. R. SMALLWOOD (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, I move we dispense with reading of the Minutes.

HON. LESLIE R. CURTIS (Attorney General): Mr. Speaker, earlier in the session we passed a Bill "An Act to Amend the Education Teachers' Pension Act, 1950." It appears now a slight amendment is necessary in the Bill and I move therefore that the third reading be rescinded and that the Bill be recommitted.

Motion carried.

Committee of the Whole on Bill "An Act to Amend the Teachers' Pensions Act, 1950."

Amendment passed.

The Committee rose and reported having passed the Bill with some amendment. Ordered to be read a third time now.

Bill read a third time and passed.

MR. SMALLWOOD: Mr. Speaker, His Honour the Lieutenant Governor is due, as the House knows, to arrive at 3:00 of the clock. It is now only a quarter of three and I think we have completed our program of legislation and the House finds itself at the moment with quite literally nothing to do except to sit and await the arrival of His Honour the Lieutenant Governor.

MR. SPEAKER: I might give the honourable members something to occupy their minds. I would like to see all members and their wives in the adjoining room after the formalities have been completed.

MR. J. G. HIGGINS (Leader of the Opposition): I think there will be absolute unanimity in accepting that motion.

MR. FAHEY: We have a few minutes to spare, would that give the Opposition opportunity to tell the Government what we think of them?

MR. SMALLWOOD: We would be charmed to hear what the honourable Opposition really thinks of us.

SERGEANT-AT-ARMS: Mr. Speaker, I have the honour to inform you the honourable Judges of the Supreme Court have just arrived.

Mr. Speaker, I have the honour to inform you His Honour the Lieutenant Governor has arrived.

HIS HONOUR THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR: In His Majesty's name I thank His Loyal Subjects, I accept their benevolence and assent to this Bill.

His Honour was then pleased to make the following speech:

MR. SPEAKER AND MEMBERS OF THE HONOURABLE HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY:

In common with all of his subjects we rejoice that the recent disturbing reports concerning the health of His Majesty the King appear to have been considerably exaggerated. While His Majesty is undoubtedly experiencing the strain imposed by his heavy responsibilities and unceasing activities, as well as the aftermath of the heavy burden borne during the War years, the anxiety which these reports might otherwise have caused has been allayed by the announcement that the Royal Visit to Australia is planned to take place early in the coming year.

In releasing you from your duties I wish to thank you for the careful attention you have given during the past three months to the many and important measures that my Ministers have laid before you. You have been asked to give, and have given, consideration to matters affecting every phase of provincial responsibility.

In the field of labour you have passed very necessary legislation concerning apprentices, and made certain necessary amendments to the Workmen's Compensation Act.

In educational matters you have encouraged our teachers by providing them with Statutory Membership in an Association of their own, by increasing the school leaving age to fifteen years and by otherwise amending existing legislation. For the public welfare you have approved the establishment of Family Courts and in other ways taken steps to increase the effectiveness of this important Department.

Further provision has been made for the housing of our people, and now for the first time we are witnessing the condemnation and demolition on a large scale of houses in St. John's which are definitely below recognized standards for habitation.

You have assisted the fisheries and our fishermen by guaranteeing substantial loans to fishery firms in an effort to assist in the production and marketing of more fresh fish; and by organizing the fishermen into a live Province-wide Association.

In the field of Local Government much has been accomplished. Substantial encouragement and assistance is being given town councils through the medium of Government guaranteed bond issues, and by the passing of a Standard Election Act democratic control of such councils is now assured. The adoption of water and sewerage legislation for the Corner Brook area will place these very important services in the hands of the residents themselves.

You have made ample provision for an ever expanding Health and Public Welfare Service and substantial grants will be available for roads and bridges.

But it is in the field of economic development that this session of your Assembly will have created a record. Funds have been provided to complete the birch, cement and gypsum mills. Authorization has been given my Ministers to arrange for such disposition of these industries as may be in the public interest; and I can assure you that my Ministers are deeply conscious of their responsibilities in these matters.

The creation of the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation Limited provides an original method of dealing with our latent natural resources. In the past large tracts of land containing valuable timber stands and mineral deposits have been leased or granted to individuals, some of whom evidently had no intention to develop the areas by their own efforts but rather hoped to be able to speculate by resale at a profit to such parties as might be desirous of bringing the areas into production. The holding of these areas for substantial options and unreasonable prices has in the past deterred industrial development.

The adoption of the Bill, An Act Respecting Timber Licences issued prior to January 1st, 1931, will, it is expected, either produce development in these areas by the licences or else make these holdings available for early development.

It is anticipated that the inclusion in this Crown Corporation of a minority interest representation of wealthy and powerful New York and Mainland financial interests will afford a new approach and impetus to the development of our natural resources. Under this scheme a major portion of profits derived will accrue to the Government.

An Agreement has been made by my Government and ratified by you, whereby the development on a large scale of our resources in Labrador will be immediately proceeded with. Although this Agreement provides for the limited exportation of raw timber for a period of ten years, the operations of the Corporation are so designed as to harvest the wood and not to denude the area. The Royalty provided and the provisions of this Agreement calling for the settlement of certain areas and the introduction of the most modern and improved methods of silviculture are such as amply to justify this departure from the determination of my Ministers not normally to permit the exportation of raw materials when these can be profitably manufactured in the Province. The location of this proposed experiment and the conditions of the Agreement entered into are such as not to interfere with the further development of our resources in the Lake Melville area of Labrador.

The authority given my Ministers to negotiate Agreements with Falcon-bridge Nickel Mines, Limited, and Frobisher, Limited, will enable my Government to call for the expenditure by these Companies of some three hundred thousand dollars during the next three years exploring certain promising areas in Newfoundland and Labrador. The fact that Falconbridge Nickel Mines, Limited, has at considerable expense secured options on well known mining locations in the Notre Dame Bay area would indicate their serious determination to explore thoroughly the concessions they have sought. It is to be hoped that the efforts of both Companies will be crowned with success.

The Royal Commission appointed to investigate the prices paid to fishermen for fish produced in 1951, and the profits made on the exportation of this fish, is expected to submit its report within the next few weeks. It may become necessary to have legislation to deal with the matter of prices paid to fishermen for 1950 fish, and there may be other important matters requiring your early attention. For these reasons a special session of the House of Assembly may have to be called within the next few weeks. In that event members of this Honourable House will of course be given due notice.

I thank you for the ample provision you have made for the public service. I am confident that the amounts voted will be expended wisely and economically and in the best interests of the Province, and that under the guidance of Divine Providence the well being and security of the people of this Province will be strengthened.

I regard the visiting of the outlying places of the Province as one of the most important and useful functions of the Representative of His Majesty the King.

During the summer and autumn of last year, together with my wife, I visited a number of places along the railway line and in Bonavista and Notre Dame Bays as far north as Exploits.

During the month of July next I have planned an extended tour of the more Northerly portions of the Province, my first port of call being Fortune Harbour. Thence I shall proceed North as far as Hebron on the Labrador, returning through the Strait of Belle Isle along the North West Coast of the Island to Corner Brook.

In all, this tour will include visits to some thirty-five places in Newfoundland and Labrador.

Such a comprehensive tour could not have been arranged without the assistance of the Flag Officer, Atlantic Coast, who has kindly placed at my disposal, for this purpose, one of His Majesty's Canadian Ships.

For this co-operation I am deeply grateful.

I thank you for your arduous and devoted services as legislators and trust that, until you are called to meet again, you will enjoy a well earned vacation.

MR. SPEAKER: His Honour the Lieutenant Governor has been pleased to prorogue this 29th General Assembly in Newfoundland until the third day of July, 1951.

Journal and Proceedings of the Third Session
Twenty - Ninth General Assembly of Newfoundland

Begun and holden at St. John's in the Province of Newfoundland on Wednesday, the eleventh day of March, Anno Domino, Nineteen Hundred and fifty-one, being in the Fifteenth year of the Reign of His Majesty our Sovereign Lord George, by the Grace of God, of Great Britain, Ireland, and the British Dominions beyond the Seas, King, Defender of the Faith.

P R O C L A M A T I O N

BY HIS HONOUR Sir Leonard Cecil Outerbridge, Knight Bachelor, Commander of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Companion of the Distinguished Service Order, Colonel in the Army, Lieutenant-Governor of Newfoundland.

WHEREAS, the General Assembly stands prorogued :

AND WHEREAS, I think fit to summon the said General Assembly to meet on Wednesday, the Seventh Day of March next;

I do, therefore, by this my Proclamation summon the said General Assembly to meet for the despatch of business, on Wednesday, the Seventh day of March, next as aforesaid, of which all persons concerned are hereby required to take due notice and govern themselves accordingly.

GIVEN under my Hand and Seal at Government House,
St. John's, this 19th, day of February, A.D., 1951.

By His Honour's Command,

JAMES J. SPRATT,

Minister of Provincial Affairs.

WEDNESDAY, March 7th, 1951.

His Honour having fixed the hour at which he proposed to open the present Session of the Legislature at three of the clock in the afternoon of this Wednesday, the seventh day of March instant, the Members of the House of Assembly met in the Assembly Room at three of the clock in the afternoon, when Mr. Speaker took the Chair.

At three of the clock the Sergeant-at-Arms announced that His Honour the Lieutenant Governor and party had arrived.

His Honour the Lieutenant Governor and party entered the Assembly Chamber preceded by the Sergeant-at-Arms.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair.

His Honour the Lieutenant Governor took the Chair.

His Honour was then pleased to open the Session with a Speech from the Throne as follows:

MR. SPEAKER AND MEMBERS OF THE HONOURABLE HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY:

It gives me great pleasure to welcome you to this Third Session of the Twenty-ninth General Assembly of the Province of Newfoundland.

Since we last met, Newfoundland, together with the rest of the Commonwealth and Empire, rejoiced at the birth of a daughter, Princess Anne, to Her Royal Highness the Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh. On behalf of the Government and people of Newfoundland I despatched a telegram of congratulations which received gracious and grateful acknowledgement from Their Royal Highnesses.

During the past year the Governments of Canada and the Provinces have met in conference to devise an amending procedure for the British North America Act, and two further Federal-Provincial Conferences were held for the purpose of considering relations between the Provinces and the Government of Canada in fiscal matters, including a means of providing a universal Old Age Pension. Satisfactory progress was made regarding the latter and my Government will do all in its power to cooperate in speedily bringing about this desirable end.

You are called to your legislative duties this year at a time when momentous events are taking place. Menaced by the threat of war, the democratic world is rapidly devoting a fast-swelling proportion of its economic resources to rearmament. Many types of goods essential to the ordinary industrial enterprises of the world at peace become increasingly difficult, if not impossible, to secure for such purposes, as they are diverted to the strengthening of our defences against possible totalitarian aggression. Far-reaching changes in our mode of life seem to be inescapable, and it would be idle to suppose that Newfoundland can be immune to most of the dislocations and shortages that these changes will bring.

My Ministers are gravely concerned to note the possible effect of the worsening prospects of world peace upon their programme of economic development. They have redoubled their efforts to procure the establishment of certain new industries; and the expansion of others, in case world conditions deteriorate to an extent which might prevent, or at least reduce greatly, for some years, the accomplishment of that economic development to which they had set their hands. Since you last met, my Ministers have sought my guarantee of a number of loans to Newfoundland fishing and industrial companies, to speed expansion of these enterprises. Details of these guarantees will be laid before you, and your approval of them will be sought. My Ministers have also entered into contracts of the construction of a Cement Mill, a gypsum-plaster and plaster-wallboard plant and a plant to manufacture birch flooring, veneer, plywood and plywood doors. Insofar as it is prudent, and in the public interest to acquaint you with the financial details of these contracts, they will be laid before you at the present session.

My Government have for some months been conducting negotiations for the establishment of a Newfoundland Corporation designed to procure important development of the Province's Natural Resources. If these negotiations should be successful, my Government would join with a very large and important financial organization in the United States of America to form this Corporation, to the end that a partnership of public and private capital would more quickly result in considerable economic development of the Province. These negotiations are nearing their end, and my Ministers hope to lay the full details before you in due course.

As you are aware, the Power Corporation of Canada was retained by my Government to conduct careful field surveys of certain watersheds on part of the South Coast of Newfoundland. With the exception of certain drilling of dam-sites, canal-sites, and power-houses cities, which will be conducted as soon as weather conditions permit this year, the survey has been completed, and the Corporation's report on the hydro-electric potential, together with estimates of the cost of developing it, are expected to be in the hands of my Government before the end of the present session. In the meanwhile a competent local hydro-electric engineer has been engaged to conduct a field survey, and to estimate costs of development, of certain watersheds on the East Coast of Newfoundland.

In 1950 an air-borne magnetometer survey was made of the geological nature of some 5,000 square miles on the North East Coast of the Island. While the complete map and report of the survey will not be in my Government's possession for another few weeks, considerable satisfaction, I feel sure, will be derived from the fact that preliminary data gathered by the survey, indicated the presence of some interesting magnetic anomalies of the type sought in such a survey. My Ministers propose to have a similar survey made this year of another area of the Province. Rarely, if ever, in the history of this Continent was there such interest and activity in the search for base minerals, as there is throughout North America at the present time, and considerable regret may justly be felt over the fact that more energetic geological survey work by the best means available was not conducted here in the past. My Government are intent upon doing everything practically possible to speed the work of survey and to interest mining companies in the mineral possibilities of this Province. Already two important Canadian mining Companies have entered Newfoundland, and others are known to have become interested.

An important economic survey was conducted in Newfoundland and Labrador in 1950, by Mr. Nelson Rockefeller's Company, IBEC Technical Services Corporation. This survey centered chiefly upon the economic feasibility of another pulp and paper mill based primarily upon the use of pulpwood to be garnered in Labrador. The report, which has been received, within recent days, is divided into two sections; one of them on the practicability of a mill in Labrador, the other on that of a mill in Bay D'Espoir, on the South Coast of Newfoundland. My Ministers are now giving close study to these reports, and are making all possible endeavour to procure the establishment of at least one additional pulp and paper mill in this Province. Various negotiations for the establishment of such a mill are being carried on with important organizations in North America and in Europe, and I feel sure that you will hope that this development will not be made impossible by the present world situation.

I know that you must have taken much satisfaction from the very successful result of the action taken by my Ministers to bring Railway Freight Rates into line with what they believe were envisaged in the Terms of Union. The favourable judgment given to my Government's suit will save several millions of dollars a year in freight charges.

The situation in the fisheries continues too be cause for considerable concern amongst my Ministers, as it must to all our people. Since Newfoundland became a Province of Canada, responsibility for public administration of the fisheries is no longer borne by the Government of Newfoundland alone, but is shared therefor taken from the fact that the two Governments have united in an effort to establish an over-all policy for the fisheries of Newfoundland. This effort is being made particularly through the recently appointed Fisheries Development Committee under the Chairmanship of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Newfoundland, and with representatives of the two Governments and of the fishermen on mercantile community comprising its membership. Both Governments have pledged their unstinted support to this Committee, and are collaborating closely through it. In the meanwhile my Ministers take satisfaction from the fact that they have been able to secure the services of Mr. Clive Planta as Deputy Minister of Fisheries.

Arising out of a public statement made by the Prime Minister, in behalf of the Government of Newfoundland in May last, my Government have appointed a Commissioner under the Public Enquiries Act to conduct an investigation into the prices paid to the fishermen for salt-dried codfish which they produced in 1950, and into the profits made on the sale of that fish in the markets. The Government of Canada have initiated an enquiry into the prices paid to fishermen, pursuant to a public statement made by the Minister of Fisheries of Canada in October last. Considerable useful information, it is to be hoped, will be elicited by these enquiries.

My Government have taken the initiative in inviting the fishermen to organize themselves into a strong, Province-wide occupational body with a view to enabling them to make their collective voice heard in all matters concerning the fisheries. You will be requested to vote funds to pay the cost of bringing representatives of the fishermen to St. John's to attend a conference at which the question of forming such an organization will be explored.

It is the view of the Government that, important though general economic development must be, no lasting prosperity is possible in this Province so long as the fisheries fail to give a fair living to all those engaged in them.

Since you last met my Ministers have availed themselves of the authority which you vested in them to appoint the Fisheries Development Loan Board, the Industrial Development Loan Board, and the Co-operative Development Loan Board. All of these Boards are under the chairmanship of Mr. James Baxter, a commercial banker of great experience, and their membership is made up of men of wide experience in the commercial and public life of this Province, some unavoidable delay was experienced in appointing the Boards; but the useful work is expected of them in the period ahead.

Considerable progress has been made during the past year in Municipal Government. Eight Town Councils have been established during that time, and three other Town Councils are in process of being established. When these have begun to function there will be thirty-one Town Councils in Newfoundland. More and more Committees are realizing the great value of this type of Municipal Organization and the indications are that the number of Town Councils will continue steadily to increase.

Since the last session of your Honourable House, my Government have conducted a "Buy Newfoundland Campaign" designed to encourage our people to patronize home industry, by purchasing more of the products of our fisheries, farms and factories.

This campaign, which is being continued, has met with encouraging success throughout the Province.

My Government attach much importance to vocational training, and you will be asked to vote a considerable sum of money with which to match an amount available from the Government of Canada for the construction of a modern new building to house these activities. My Government hope to be able to establish, in this same building, an efficient School of Navigation and a School of Fisheries.

A substantial programme of legislation will be laid before you in this session, including an amendment to the Alcoholic Liquors Act designed to provide for Local Option in our communities and for limiting the sale of hard liquor.

I will later request you to vote Supply to His Majesty.

Since your last session there has been a notable improvement in conditions in some of our greatest industrial enterprises. Only a year ago the Grand Falls Paper Mill was operating on a part-time basis only, while the sulphite pulp mills at both Grand Falls and Corner Brook were not operating at all. The Mines at Bell Island were all but closed down. Unemployment was widespread. Today quote a different picture is to be seen.

Both sulphite pulp mills are operating at capacity, and both of the paper mills are working full-time. They have more orders for pulp and paper than they can fill. The 1950-1951 pulpwood logging season has seen the largest cut in Newfoundland's history, amounting for the first time to a million cords. The future of this industry is bright with promise. So, too, is that of the mines of Bell Island, Buchans and St. Lawrence and at the Limestone Quarry at Aguatuna. Large sums of fresh capital are being invested in the mines at Bell Island, and their productive capacity is being increased from one and a half million to two and a half million tons a year. Demand for the base metals mined at Buchans was never so brisk, while the Fluorspar mines at St. Lawrence are being kept exceedingly busy in an effort to meet the demand for their products. Both mines at St. Lawrence are spending a considerable sum of money to one of the two companies operating there.

Very large new installations and extensions are to be begun on various defence works in this Province this year, and thousands of men will probably find profitable employment therein.

Altogether, therefore, my Ministers believe that 1951 will prove to be an exceptionally prosperous year for a large number of our people, and the beginning of a relatively long period of expanding earning power for the population in general.

Mr. Speaker and Members of the Honourable House of Assembly, I have full confidence that you will discharge faithfully your duties and responsibilities in the best interests of all our people.

May Divine Providence bless your labours and make them fruitful.

His Honour then said "In His Majesty's name I thank His Loyal Subjects, I accept their benevolence, and assent to this Bill."

His Honour was then pleased to make the following Speech :

MR. SPEAKER AND MEMBERS OF THE HONOURABLE HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY :

In common with all his subjects we rejoice that the recent disturbing reports concerning the health of His Majesty the King, appear to have been considerably exaggerated. While His Majesty is undoubtedly experiencing the strain imposed by his heavy responsibilities and unceasing activities, as well as the aftermath of the heavy burden borne during the War Years, the anxiety which these reports might otherwise have caused has been allayed by the announcement that the Royal Visit to Australia is planned to take place early in the coming year.

In releasing you from your duties I wish to thank you for the careful attention you have given during the past three months to the many and important measures that my Ministers laid before you. You have been asked to give, and have given consideration to matters affecting every phase of provincial responsibility.

In the field of labour you have passed very necessary legislation concerning apprentices, and made certain necessary Amendments to the Workmen's Compensation Act.

In Educational matters you have encouraged our Teachers by providing them with Statutory Membership in an Association of their own, by increasing the school leaving age of fifteen years and by otherwise amending existing legislation. For the Public Welfare you have approved the establishment of Family Courts and in other ways, taken steps to increase the effectiveness of this important Development.

Further provision has been made for the housing of our people, and now for the first time we are witnessing the condemnation and demolition on a large scale of houses in St. John's which are definitely below recognized standards for habitation.

You have assisted the fisheries and our fishermen by guaranteeing substantial loans to fishery firms in an effort to assist in the production and marketing of more fresh fish; and by organizing the fishermen into a live Province-wide Association.

In the field of Local Government much has been accomplished. Substantial encouragement and assistance is being given town councils through the medium of Government guaranteed bond issues and by the passing of a Standard Election Act, democratic control of such councils is now assured. The adoption of water and sewerage legislation for the Corner Brook area will place these very important services in the hands of the residents themselves.

You have made ample provision for an ever expanding Health and Public Welfare Service and substantial grants will be available for roads and bridges.

But it is in the field of economic development that this session of your Assembly will have created a record. Funds have been provided to complete the birch, cement and gypsum mills. Authorization has been given my Ministers to arrange for such disposition of these industries as may be in the public interest; and I can assure you that my Ministers are deeply conscious of their responsibility in these matters.

The creation of the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation Limited provides an original method of dealing with our latent natural resources. In the past large tracts of land containing valuable timber stands, and mineral deposits have been leased or granted to individuals, some of whom evidently had no intention to develop the areas by their own efforts but rather hoped to be able to speculate by resale at a profit to such parties as might be desirous of bringing the areas into production. The holding of these areas for substantial options and unreasonable prices has in the past deterred industrial development.

The adoption of the Bill, An Act Respecting Timber Licences issued prior to January 1, 1931, will, it is expected, either produce development in these areas by the licences or else make these holdings available for early development.

It is anticipated that the inclusion in this Crown Corporation of a minority interest representation of wealthy and powerful New York and Mainland financial interests will afford a new approach and impetus to the development of our natural resources. Under this scheme a major portion of profits derived will accrue to the Government.

An Agreement has been made by my Government and ratified by you, whereby the development on a large scale of our resources in Labrador will be immediately proceeded with. Although this Agreement provides for the limited exportation of raw timber plans are so designed as to harvest the wood and not to denude the area. The royalty provided and the provisions of this Agreement calling for the settlement for certain areas and the introduction of the most modern and improved methods of the sylviculture are such as amply to justify this departure from the determination of my Ministers not normally to permit the exportation of raw materials when these can be profitable, manufactured in the Province. The Agreement entered into are such as not to interfere with the further development of our resources in the Lake Melville area of Labrador.

The authority given my Ministers to negotiate Agreements with Falcon-bridge Nickel Mines, Limited and Frobisher Limited, will enable my Government to call for the expenditure by these next three years exploring certain promising areas in Newfoundland and Labrador. The fact that Falconbridge Nickel Mines Limited, had at considerable expense secured options on well known mining locations in the Notre Dame Bay area would indicate their serious determination to explore thoroughly the concessions they had sought.

It is to be hoped that the efforts of the both Companies will be crowned with success.

The Royal Commission appointed to investigate the prices paid to fishermen for fish produced in 1951, and the profits made on the exportation of this fish, is expected to submit its report within the next few weeks. It may become necessary to have legislation to deal with the matter of prices paid to fishermen for 1950 fish, and there may be other important matters requiring your early attention. For these reasons a special session of the House of Assembly may have to be called within the next few weeks. In that event Members of this Honourable House will of course be given due notice.

I thank you for the ample provision you have made for the public service. I am confident that the amounts voted will be expended wisely and economically and in the best interests of the Province, and that under the guidance of Divine Providence, the well being and security of the people of this Province will be strengthened.

I regard the visiting of the outlying places of the Province as one of the most important and useful functions of the Representatives of His Majesty the King.

During the Summer and Autumn of last year, together with my wife, I visited a number of places along the railway line and in Bonavista and Notre Dame Bay as far north as Exploits.

During the month of July next, I have planned an extended tour of the more Northerly portions of the Province, my first port of call being Fortune Harbour. Thence, I shall proceed North as far as Hebron on the Labrador, returning through the Strait of Belle Isle along the North West Coast of the Island to Corner Brook.

In all, this tour will include visits to some thirty-five places in Newfoundland and Labrador.

Such a comprehensive tour could not have been arranged without the assistance of the Flag Officer, Atlantic Coast, who has kindly placed at my disposal, for this purpose, one of His Majesty's Canadian Ships.

For this co-operation I am deeply grateful.

I thank you for your arduous and devoted services as legislators and trust that, until you are called to meet again, you will enjoy a well earned vacation.

His Honour the Lieutenant Governor left the Assembly Chamber preceded by the Sergeant-at-Arms.

Mr. Speaker then said:

It is the will and pleasure of His Honour the Lieutenant Governor that this General Assembly be prorogued until Tuesday, the third day of July to be then here held.
